15 YEARS SUFFERING FROM PILES

MR. J. McEWEN, of Dundas, Ont., writes: "For fifteen years I suffered with piles, and could get no permanent cure until I tried Zam-Buk. After having given Zam-Buk a fair trial I found I was getting better; and in the end it cured me completely."

MR. JAMES RUDDY, of Killaloe, Ont., says: "I suffered greatly from piles. The pain from these, as anyone who suffers from them will know, was at times almost unbearable. I tried first one remedy and then another, but all without effect. The piles still continued as bad as ever. I heard about Zam-Buk and commenced with the treatment. To my great joy, after perseverance I obtained relief from the agonizing pain of the piles. Having been cured by Zam-Buk I heartily recommend the balm to all sufferers from piles."

WHY ZAM-BUK IS SO SUPERIOR.

An eminent scientist said, the other day, that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poisoning.

Then again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk.

Again, as soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES

For eczema, blood-poisoning, piles, ulcers, sores, abscesses, varicose ulcers, bad leg, cold sores, chapped hands, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries and diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. 50¢ box, all druggists and stores, or post free, Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse imitations.

Love a Conqueror OR WEDDED AT LAST

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"Do I? Then I will not. Tell me of yourself. You were so long a time a wanderer that you must have brought home many a story and narrative."

"Nothing likely to interest you much," he said, quietly. "I am not a good raconteur, you know."

"You used not to be," she answered; and there was a little embarrassed pause, during which the thoughts of both wandered back to the past. The old sweet, bitter past which lay cold and dead between them now. "Ruby tells me that you often go to them," she said presently.

"Yes, they are very good in wishing to have me, and it gives me great pleasure."

"Oswald is greatly improved?"

"Yes. He is a young man to have the responsibility of a wife and family," said Guy, smiling. "But he is very happy. In his case at least Shakespeare is proved in the wrong when he said a young man married is a young man marred."

"I suppose there are exceptions to every rule," rejoined Shirley. "They are happy enough."

"Yes; theirs is my beau-ideal of what a home should be," Guy said.

NEARLY DIED OF STONE IN THE BLADDER

GIN PILLS SAVED HIM
513 JAMES ST., HAMILTON, ONT.
"Five years ago, I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in back and loins, and difficulty in urinating, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony. I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor.
My wife read in the papers about GIN PILLS and sent for a box. From the very first, I felt that GIN PILLS were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once and the attacks were less frequent.
In six weeks, the Stone in the Bladder came away. When I recall how I suffered and how now I am healthy and able to work, I cannot express myself strongly enough when I speak of what GIN PILLS have done for me."
JOHN HERRMAN, 175 GIN PILLS are sold at 50¢ a box—6 for $2.50. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not handle them. Sample box free if you write us, mentioning this paper. Money back, if GIN PILLS do not give satisfaction. National Drug & Chem. Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

"Ah, let me tell you!" she entreated, looking up at him with earnest, childlike trust. "I do not often give way thus; but it will be such a comfort to tell you! Sometimes it has seemed as if my brain must burst, my temples throb so, and I am obliged to smile and go into society not to let people guess. Oh, if I were not so strong that I might die! Or if I could kill him—if I could kill him!" "Shirley!"

then, very gently and gravely, bending forward a little toward her as she sat, her rich velvet dress falling around her, her little jewelled hands lying idly in her lap, he added, "Why is not yours a happy home, Shirley?" "Mine," she exclaimed in agitated tones—"mine! How can it be?" "Why should it not be?" "Can you ask?" she said, with passionate reproach flashing into her lustrous eyes.

"Yes, I ask you," he answered, in the same gentle manner. "I am an old friend, and you must give me a friend's privileges. Why are you no happy in your home, Shirley?"

"How can I be happy? How could I be happy—trapped, betrayed as I was into a marriage in which there is neither love nor respect?" she asked passionately. "Are you forgetting what is past, Guy? Are you—"

"I am forgetting nothing," he said gently still. "Is it likely that I should? But your husband loves you, and—"

"Loves me!" she echoed wildly. "I prefer hate to such a love as that!" "Hush—oh, hush, my child!" Guy cried earnestly. "It breaks my heart to hear you speak so bitterly. Dear Shirley, is it possible that during all this time you have not forgiven your husband the wrong he did you in the past, that you have cherished anger and hatred and malice in your heart against him?"

"I have not forgiven him," she said passionately—"I never will forgive him! He has no right to expect it. How can I forgive him?" she went on rising and restlessly clasping and unclasping her little hands. "When I think—oh, when I think, I feel as if I must go mad with the recollection of my wrongs! Can you guess what my life has been," she asked, turning to Guy, who had risen also, with a look of intense pain on his grave face, "forced to live in outward concord with a man whom I despise and detest and abhor, forced to bear his touch, his caress, his kiss? It has been horrible, beyond all words—beyond description. Oh, Guy, let me tell you! All these years I have borne my sorrow in silence because there was no one whom I could trust, whom I could speak to, and it has seemed sometimes as if my heart must burst with its load of anguish."

"Shirley," he said brokenly, his face white as death, his hands trembling at the passion and desolation of her manner. "I cannot hear you; it is not right."

"Ah, let me tell you!" she entreated, looking up at him with earnest, childlike trust. "I do not often give way thus; but it will be such a comfort to tell you! Sometimes it has seemed as if my brain must burst, my temples throb so, and I am obliged to smile and go into society not to let people guess. Oh, if I were not so strong that I might die! Or if I could kill him—if I could kill him!" "Shirley!"

The gentle pained voice, the touch of his hand upon her hot trembling fingers, the expression of the dark gray eyes which looked at her with such sorrow and pain, brought tears and she bowed her head upon her hands, weeping passionately and unrestrainedly and he did not try to stop the bitter tears—they could not fail to ease the overcharged heart and throbbing brain. But how hard—how terribly hard—it was then to keep his promise to his uncle Guy Stuart knew. He paced up and down the beautiful room, not daring to trust himself to look at the bowed drooping figure, trying to shut his ears to the broken, heart-rending sobs—but in vain. His hands were clenched until the nails almost entered the flesh, and he ground his teeth in a fury to which no words could have vent.

He loved her so madly, he pitied her with such an intense pity, he longed with such a heartfelt longing to be able to console and comfort her. Were there no means by which he could deliver her from this bondage? Was there no road which led to peace at least, if not to happiness? And, look which way he might, he could distinguish none save through the paths of sin and crime and dishonor. And must such paths be trodden? Did he love her well enough or did he love her too well for that?

CHAPTER XXIX.

"Did you ever see anything more lovely?" asked Lucie Grey softly, as her grey eyes—such frank kindly grey eyes they were, inspiring trust and confidence—eyes that were fitting windows to the gentle and honest soul which made the Vicar of Easton's eldest daughter so justly beloved in his parish—strayed over the lovely seascape lying before her, which the sun was flooding with a rich golden light and haze that gave it a yet more wondrous beauty than Nature had already bestowed upon it.

The Vivar's three daughters had been spending a luxurious half-holiday on the cliffs, and had enjoyed it to the utmost. It was not often that their busy lives gave them leisure for dreaming away a few hours among the rocks, for Mr. Grey's living was not a very remunerative one, and his family was large, so that Lucie and Ada, and even bright little Bessie, his third daughter, although she was not yet sixteen, found plenty to do in assisting their delicate mother.

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMBLEY, 308 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.
Beatrice, Neb. — "Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILDS, Beatrice, Neb.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualac and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex recipe. The Pinex has been often imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

ther in her household labors; teaching the little ones, helping their father in his parish work, mothers' meetings and district visiting, coal, blanket, and clothing clubs, penny-readings and Sunday school teaching being a few of their multifarious duties.

Perhaps it was its rarity which always makes a holiday seem such a thoroughly enjoyable day to these girls. Any one coming upon them as they lingered upon the rocks would have seen a picture of perfect and innocent enjoyment.

Lucie had been sketching; but she had put aside her drawing materials now, and was letting her eyes rest with delight on the scene before her—the calm smiling sea with the golden haze upon it, the blue sky overhead, the coast—such a coast as only Devon and Cornwall can boast—stretching far on either side in abrupt outlines and undulations, and the quaint little town of Easton itself, lying in the hollow formed, as it were, by a break in the long lines of cliff which had left a chasm. Behind them the cliffs rose rugged and bold, and far and wide the coast stretched in points and headlands and bays and crescents, with here and there a space far down on the cliff side which had been cleared for building, or where some wealthy person had erected a charming summer residence in sight of the sea and shore.

Easton itself, with its one long, quaint, irregular street, ran in a scattered manner down to the very beach itself, the sea almost washing the bases of some of the houses. The harbor was a small but picturesque one, and it gave refuge to the fishermen by which the fishing population obtained their living from the deep waters. The Grey girls loved the quaint little town dearly; they had not time to feel its dullness and monotony; and the deep love of nature which they had imbibed from their father made the scenery around—a constant delight to them.

Filed for a Year—At Hand in a Minute!

There are records kept in your business which are seldom referred to, but when reference to them is desired, can you locate them instantly? "Office Specialty" Filing Systems do more than provide a place to file papers. The method of filing the papers under proper indexes makes the finding of any letter, on any subject or from any firm, as easy as the filing. You don't have to tumble all the letters out of the file to find any particular one. There is only one place for each letter, and every letter is in its place. Card Records, Cheques, Stock Records, Correspondence, are all found instantly, when wanted if filed by "Office Specialty" Filing Systems.

Here is a very convenient stack of Sectional, Quarter-Cut Oak, Filing Cabinets, 2 vertical drawers for Letters, 5 drawers for 5 x 3 inch Card Records, 3 Shannon drawers for Receipts, Invoices and Bills, 4 drawers for 8 x 4 inch Card Records, 3 Stationery drawers, which together with the top and base make a very useful stack for any business office.

Famous Streets.

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE.
By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Sirash." Pennsylvania Avenue was invented by a Frenchman, Major L'Enfant, but has since come to be more American than any other street in the nation.

It is not only the principal thoroughfare of Washington, D.C., but it is the principal way to fame, glory and political success. Half the politicians of this country dream at night of the day when they will march proudly up Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol of the United States and take a seat in Congress; while half the members of Congress dream of the day when they will be hauled back over the same street between cheering thousands to the White House.

Pennsylvania Avenue is not the longest street in the world, but it is so wide that the government wasn't able to see across the south side of it for almost a century and allowed it to grow up like an amateur's garden in July. It connects the Capitol with the White House and a good many times has been the only connection between the two. This stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue is only a mile-long and contains more statesmen, diplomats, army officers, politicians, tourists and public buildings per block than any other American street.

The famous part of Pennsylvania Avenue begins with magnificence at the Capitol and loops from splendor to decay many times before it reaches the White House. It has massive, palatial hotels where the new Congressman's salary is taken charge of by the bell boy on his arrival and twenty-five cent lodging houses. It has the 287 foot dome of the Capitol and the 300 foot tower of the postoffice and also a number of one story buildings built after the Pat Flaherty style of hod carrier architecture. Visitors are shown the gratings in the sidewalk through which the slaves got air when they were being held for market and also the handsomely furnished rooms in the Capitol where the slaves of Aldrich and Cannon were once confined. The patriots of the Union Army marched up Pennsylvania Avenue in 1865, and every four years since the patriots of the winning party have marched down the Avenue to the White House in a solid body armed with indorsements from their Congressmen.

No American should be content until he has seen Pennsylvania Avenue; and no Congressman should be content until he has helped make it more worth seeing.

Household Notes

When a hot iron is needed, in a hurry, put a cake tin on the stove instead of one of the regular stove lids and set the iron on it.

Keep in the cellar a few onions which you allow to send up shoots. They are delicious in winter salads or to rub the salad bowl with.

Bread sauce should never be served stiff and sticky, but smooth and free from lumps. The sauce should not boil after adding the bread.

Stef articles should be dusted daily and once a week polished alternately with fine emery paper and emery powder mixed with oil or paraffin. A delicious icing is made with 1 1/2 pounds icing sugar, three whites of eggs and the juice of a lemon. Blend thoroughly and beat hard for half an hour.

The cellar is the foundation, in a sense, of the household health. See that it is kept clean, aired and dry. Walls should be lime-washed twice a year.

Benares brass may be kept in good condition simply washing once a month in warm soapsuds with borax in it. Use a brush if very dirty.

If lime in the water forms a coating inside the teakettle it may be removed with vinegar or sulphuric acid. Be careful to wash the kettle afterward.

Cut short pieces of white passe-partout paper and type or print on the names of jellies, preserves, etc. Being already gummed, they will save trouble.

If you are afraid of draughts, have screens covered with coarse muslin to fit into your windows just like ordinary fly screens and use them at night.

A matter of vital consideration in a successful home is the color of the rooms. It should be simple and restful always, because home is a place of refuge.

Barley is not used as extensively as it should be. It is excellent in soups and delicious as a cereal, but in the latter case it needs long cooking in a double boiler.

A great deal of fire expense may be removed from aluminum cooking utensils by oxalic acid crystals—four tablespoonfuls to a gallon of water. Let boil in the dishes for five minutes, then wash them and rinse carefully.

For apple tuff, stew four large apples till tender, pass through a sieve, add sugar to taste, a little spice and the whites of two eggs. Whisk the whole till fluffy and pile high in a glass dish or serve in jelly glasses.

DO NOT INVEST

Until you have seen what our travellers can now offer you

Our various travellers and local representatives are now out on their January itineraries, and within the next few weeks will have covered every important centre in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland.

We bespeak for them a hearing from the investing public. The prestige of this Investment House justifies that. Your own best interests demand it.

It would be idle for us to say that they have a desirable assortment of the better class securities to present for your approval on the outright and instalment plans of payment. We know that the public expect much of us. Therefore in selecting our January list of investment offerings we have endeavored to maintain the conservative traditions for which this House has been noted since its founding in 1873.

If desired, a special appointment can be arranged with the nearest representative in your district by communicating with our Halifax Office. But no obligation to purchase is thus entailed.

A Splendid Bill

AT THE NICKEL THEATRE.

The programme given at the Nickel Theatre last evening was one of the finest for some time, and in spite of the storm there was a large attendance. The feature film was "The Little Minister" which is in three reels. It was splendidly acted by the Vitagraph actors with all star caste. Mr. Rudolph L. Koch sang the popular tenor solo, "Let me like a Soldier Fall," in a manner which delighted everyone. The programme will be repeated this evening and all Nickel patrons should make an effort to attend or they will miss one of the best shows. To-morrow there will be a holiday programme.

Another Plea for Our Firemen.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—In last evening's edition of your paper I made an appeal to the citizens to show greater interest in our Fire Brigade, believing as I do that it is only by public sentiment asserting itself in this matter that we can hope to arouse the Powers that be to a sense of their duty. To-night I make an appeal to every honest legislator who sits in the House of Assembly, now in session, to do his part in securing decent wages for these men. It is nothing short of a disgrace in this age to dole out, to a miserable salary of thirty-eight dollars a month to men who risk their lives in the faithful discharge of their duty to the public. No more popular movement could be made than to increase the salaries to fifty dollars per month especially at this time when rents and coal are high and the cost of keeping a family correspondingly hard. I will watch this matter closely and intend to use every means that lies in my power to secure an increase of pay for the firemen, for it is an injustice to expect them to eke out a miserable existence with the pay that they now receive, and at the same time look for efficient service from them. Let no time be lost in granting this request on behalf of our gallant firemen, for I firmly believe that were a public meeting called to deal with this question, the taxpayers of the city would certainly agree that an increase of salary is entirely justifiable. With your permission, Mr. Editor, I will return to this subject again, if the matter is not attended to at an early date.

Yours sincerely,
VOLUNTEER.

THE EASTERN TRUST COMPANY.

The business of the The Eastern Trust Company is to administer Trusts. In this work it specializes, and it does no other. But no kind of trust is foreign to its scope or beyond its power to administer efficiently.

The Eastern Trust Company never speculates. It invests. It depends for its prosperity upon the efficiency of its management of its clients' business and upon the security of its investments.

The Eastern Trust Company executes the office of executor or administrator with unexampled efficiency, and its usefulness in this field is becoming rapidly more availed of.

For instance—In St. John, New Brunswick, where it has quite lately established a branch, the estate of James Ready, of Fairville, which has been sworn to under $651,300.00, is being administered by The Eastern Trust Company as one of the joint executors of Mr. Ready's will.

In Halifax, Nova Scotia, again, The Eastern Trust Company has just been chosen to administer the estate of Captain William Fleming, which is valued at more than half a million dollars.

The Company now administers many estates which is value amount to several millions of dollars. Particulars will appear in later advertisements.

The Eastern Trust Company can execute this function of executor or administrator as efficiently in Newfoundland as it can in Nova Scotia, Quebec, or New Brunswick.

The Eastern Trust Company requires commodious offices on Water Street. Apply to Pretty Miss Hobbs.

Out Saloons in Lively Fashion. Governor's Private Secretary. Town Under Martial Law. Green Trains. Claps Mayor. Councilors in Jail. Willish Saloon Fixtures Before Injunction Can be Obtained.

Perfield, Oregon, Jan. 3.—With saloons closed, an armed guard at entrance of each, and with Mayor Recorder Clarke and three men in jail, Copperfield was a martial law today. Miss Fern Governor West's pretty private secretary, had made good the same promise that she would "clean up the town betrays."

Hobbs left town on the same train which she arrived, but during brief stay things happened. After the saloons were closed arrested the Mayor and Councilors on charge of violating the State laws. They are now in jail. Town Government was then turned over to Colonel Lawson, of the Penitentiary, five militiamen, two penitentiary guards.

Corpses for the saloon keepers are preparing injunctions against the destruction of the saloon fixtures, but they will probably be destroyed before service can be obtained. Lawson's men found every man armed, and promptly confiscated all weapons.

Hobbs will return if the situation does not improve. Residents of town recently asked the Governor to clean out the saloons.

For Sale a Motor Car.

Motor-car is to be had for a mere trifle in Philadelphia. Its last owner, Stewart Owens, a student at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, died as the result of the car being run into a tree after narrowly missing collision with a telegraph pole. It was the seventh to be killed by the car. The first accident occurred in March, 1911, when the machine fell over an embankment and one of the occupants, in Jan. it swerved and plunged into a ditch and its five occupants were killed. Now it has slain its sixth, and the present owner is Dies at Great Age.

Farmer One Hundred and Five Years Old.

South Norwalk, Conn., January 7.—John Weeks, who for many years held the distinction of being the oldest man in the State, died at his home here today, at the age of 105 years and six months.

He was one of nineteen children of John and Sarah Weeks, and was born on a farm in the Bronx. A sister, Mrs. Phoebe Willis of Winton, now ninety-five, is the sole survivor of the family. The youngest to die was sixty-two. Mr. Weeks will be buried on Thursday in Woodlawn.

He lived on the Bronx farm until 1830, when he migrated to Tennessee and had a plantation there. At the outbreak of the war he returned to New York and served in the police department and later in the fire department, under Chief Kelsey. He retired years ago and came here to live.

They Have Resigned.

In the Assembly yesterday the Premier gave the information in reply to Mr. Kent that Messrs. Morison and Blandford had resigned on January 2nd, and since that time the Government had not taken the filling of the vacancies under consideration. The remissness in filling the vacancies is bad as the original keeping of these men in offices two months after they had been defeated at the polls. We would like to know what it means. Does it mean that the Government fear to take two members out of the Assembly by giving them the usual appointments; or does it mean they fear as a government beginning a new term to approach the Governor with the suggestion that the appointments shall be acting in order that the appointees may retain their seats in the House of Assembly during the present session; or is it that there is so much friction on the question that the Government are afraid of a rupture should they proceed to appointments. We have already had the extraordinary spectacle in the House of the results of the absence of these Ministers. The Prime Minister has had to do their work. He has taken charge of the class of bills which are usually piloted through the House by the Minister of Justice and the bulk of his speech was in defence of the Department of Agriculture, as there was no Minister there to defend the Agricultural policy of the Government.

Curlers' Charity Bonspiel.

You will make many happy homes by your attendance at the "Curlers' Charity Bonspiel" to-morrow, Wednesday, at the Curling Rink morning, afternoon and evening. The Curlers are taking a very great interest to make to-morrow a day for ever to be remembered, and the citizens of the city are asked to patronize the Curling Rink; they will get value for every cent they pay. The fun will be on all day, and all troubles will be forgotten when the games start. The ladies and gentlemen play in the morning; the Lawyers and Doctors, the Brewers and Bankers, and open challenge matches from 2 to 4 p.m., and the great mercantile games. Go down and see the struggle for victory in each of these games. A lady of the firm leads in each of these games from 4 to 6. The Beaver Hat matches from 7 to 9. If you are feeling sick or sad at heart come down and see the styles. Witness the military just touched up by the hands of the curlers, the feathers, plumes and ribbons, and everything necessary to make the evening happy. Then see the challenge game, Storr's Cove versus the World. The ladies are serving tea during the afternoon and coffee in the morning for 20c. "Take what you see of it, plenty of everything", and then before you leave take home with you as a reminder of the happy day spent a box of home-made candy, made by a lady curler.

WEATHER.—A strong northwest wind, accompanied by snow drifts, prevails along the line of railway to-day. At the Quarry the temperature is 5 below zero, while it varies at the points on the line to 20 above.

In the Legislative Council.

Yesterday Hon. John Anderson presented the Address in Reply which was read a first time.

Hon. John Harvey drew attention to the statement that the Anglo Development Company would not be able to spend more in development unless there were changes in the tariff of the raw materials used. He regarded the matter as a serious one and should be inquired into. He discussed the lobster fishery which was moribund. He regretted there was no reference in the Governor's speech to the matter of public health and hoped there would be no more branch railways undertaken until Public Health and Education had been dealt with.

Hon. A. F. Goodridge was pleased with the attitude of the Hon. John Anderson. He had always been willing to give free bait for free fish. Now we had got free entry to America and retain control of bait. Better attention should be paid to the cure. The talqual system was a bad one. The Trepassy Branch he believed would pay. He did not see any reason why coal had been put up to $7.60. He was glad Prof. Dunstan had been invited out. He would tax flour for old age Pensions. He did not agree with the non-taxation of foods.

The Address was then passed and the Council adjourned till Thursday at 11 a.m.

The Pantomime.

Robinson Crusoe delighted a great audience last night; how they laughed and cheered for the man Friday. Jack Rossley is the man Friday, and if you want to see some real eccentric dancing, see Rossley with Miss Louise Arkandy in the Wedding Gilda. Mrs. Rossley has another delightful novelty number, The Living Alphabet. It is without a doubt the most unique novelty ever seen here. The costumes are beautiful, the dancing of the rescue party brought down the house, while the fisher hornpipe caused lots of astonishment. The pupils of Mrs. Rossley are wonderful and it is a great show. Joe Burkhart made a splendid Crusoe, while Percy Orth, as Whl Atkins, made a big hit. Louise Arkandy, as Penelope Pepper Corn, was splendid, and Bonnie Rossley, as Millie May, charming. Victor Rossley, as the leader of the rescue party, is the makings of a good actor, he certainly looked handsome in his fine naval suit. A big Scotch pantomime in preparation; it will beat any ye ken.

At the Crescent.

The Darling of the Regiment, a two-reel war picture, followed by two very amusing comedies, comprises the picture bill at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. Mr. David Parks sings "To Have, to Love, to Hold" in a very favorable manner. The Crescent bill on to-morrow, a whole holiday, is undoubtedly the best yet. See to-morrow's advertisement for something of interest; all feature pictures and a popular song that will be thoroughly enjoyable; kept posted with the Crescent's doings. It's service is equal to the best. The theatre is very comfortable and special attention is given to ladies and children.

JOHN RUSKIN, died 1900, aged 81. Ruskin ranks as one of the greatest masters of prose of the 19th century. He came into general notice with "Modern Painters," in which a wealth of artistic and scientific information was set forth with such literary skill as to attract immediate and increasing attention. Intended as a defence and appreciation of Turner, it showed the beauties of nature and the claims of art in a light which had never before been cast upon them. His well-known "Unto the Last," attempts to formulate a theory of political economy more in accordance with ideal morality. He was a man of mighty heart; there beat within him passionate pulses ever keeping time to beauty in the world of matter, and to truth and righteousness in the world of man.

He says "once knowing the xxxii of Deut., cxix Psalm, xlii of 1st Cor., the Sermon on the Mount, and most of the Apocalypse, every syllable by heart, and always having a way of thinking with myself what words meant. It was not possible for me, even in the foolishness of youth, to write entirely superficial or formal English." The following is a verbal portrait of Ruskin.—"That spare, stooping figure, the rough-hewn kindly face, with its mobile, sensitive mouth, and clear deep eyes, so sweet and honest in repose, so keen and earnest and eloquent in debate."

Under all sorrow, there is a force of virtue; over all ruin the restoring charity of God.

Schr. Banshee

ABANDONED IN MID-OCEAN—CREW SAFE.

The public message to-day says that the schooner Banshee, Capt. Willis, was abandoned in mid-ocean and that her crew were rescued by the British steamer Cornishman, which was passing at the time bound to Liverpool from Portland, Maine. The Banshee was seventy four days out from Cadiz to this port with a cargo of salt. Yesterday a wireless message was received at London from the S. S. Cornishman telling of the rescue of the shipwrecked. The Banshee was a vessel of 100 tons, was ten years old and carried a crew of seven hands. However the news of the safety of the crew, who are all Newfoundlanders, except the captain, will be received with genuine gladness.

The schr. Checkers which left Cadiz for this port 20 days before the Banshee has not yet been heard of and the worst is feared.

Florizel Delayed.

The S. S. Florizel will be delayed here longer than expected. Owing to yesterday's storm the work of discharging her had to be discontinued. In order to get the ship away to-morrow night the work of loading her will have to be rushed. These additional passengers are booked to go:— E. Cowan, G. P. Tapley, Mr. Paterson and Mr. Davies.

Marine Losses

Heavy During 1913

London, January 14.—The marine tragedies of 1913 are unusually heavy the monetary loss totalling $35,000,000. Not for many years has such heavy liabilities been faced by the underwriters of Lloyds as in the year just ended. During the eleven completed months of last year there have been 5,332 accidents of all descriptions to vessels of 500,000 tons gross and upward, collisions being responsible for 1,820, strandings for 1,532, weather damage for 895, and fire and explosions for 423. No fewer than 216 ships—62 British and 154 foreign, aggregating 488,910 tons—were totally lost.

Serious Charge Against French Finance Minister.

Paris, Jan. 12.—On the eve of the opening of the last session of the present chamber of deputies, public interest is absorbed in the serious charges brought by M. Calmette, editor of Figaro, against Joseph Caillaux the Minister of Finance. M. Calmette asserts that M. Caillaux offered to pay $1,200,000 to M. Schneider, the legal representative of the heirs of Marcel Prieu who have entered a claim against the government, on condition that eighty per cent of that amount be turned over to the Radical party's campaign for the coming elections.

M. Caillaux has issued three sweeping categorical denials of the charges against him. The editor of Figaro, nevertheless, persists in his assertions. M. Schneider to-night denied that he had ever seen or spoken to M. Caillaux on this subject, or had commissioned any one to do so. He calls on M. Calmette to produce the proofs of his affirmations, and announces that he will take legal proceedings against both Calmette and the Figaro.

M. Prieu was a French merchant of Brazil. Thirteen of his vessels were seized by Brazil in 1890 on the charges that the customs revenues had been violated. Brazil eventually paid to the French government an indemnity of $3,000,000. Prieu claimed this money on the ground that his ships had been unjustly seized. His claim was rejected and has repeatedly been rejected by every minister of finance. Since Prieu died in poverty in 1899 his heirs have formed a syndicate to prosecute the claim.

Shaws Literary Moral

New York, Jan. 12.—A London cable says: George Bernard Shaw, in an interview respecting German criticisms of plagiarism, thus defined his position:—"If I find in a book anything I can make use of, I take it gratefully. My plays are full of pillage of this kind. Shakespeare, Dickens, Conan Doyle, Oscar Wilde, all is fish that comes to my net. In short, my literary morals are those of Moliere."

Let Us All Test the Value of Advertising To-day.

There are 40,000 thousand of us reading this paper to-day.

We have all got to spend a certain amount of money during the next twenty-four hours.

Here are a lot of advertisers in this paper who claim they can save us money.

Now let us put them to the test. Let us look through the advertising in this paper for the things we are going to buy.

Let us see what stores are advertising those things and what inducements they are offering for our trade.

Then when we go down town let us go direct to such stores and say to the sales person:—"I see by the Telegram you are advertising this article at such and such a price. Please let me see it."

In that way we shall put each offer directly to the test and we shall let every one of these stores (big and little) know that we are taking their advertising at face value.

You will find that the advertising in this paper covers practically every possible need you have.

If you want shoes, look up all the advertisements on shoes. See just what values are being offered and go after those values.

If you want coats or suits or furs, look up the advertisements along these lines and check up the values that are being offered. You will probably find some amazing bargains in this paper to-day.

If you want pianos or furniture or other household goods, look up all the advertisements along these lines, because here especially your savings can be very large.

And whatever else you do please mention definitely that you have read the advertising in this paper and that you are making a test of that advertising with relation to the money you can save.

Doing it in this way will have two results. First it will show the merchant that you are keenly alive to what he is advertising; and second it may help you to get even better values than you expected. For every merchant is more than eager to have his advertising pay, and to prove to you that your reading it has been worth while.

Now let us all, the whole 40,000 thousand of us, try this plan for one day and see how well it works out.

When Love Is Deepest

From 24 to 26 in Men and Women From 30 to 34.

San Francisco, Jan. 12.—Psychological tests to determine at what particular age men and women love with deepest feeling, conducted at the University of California and at Hamburg University have resulted in the graph showing of the "curve of love" by German scientists, but with no results of scientific value at Berkeley.

Professor Jackh, the eminent German scholar, has based his theories and plotted his "curve of love" on the love affairs in the lives of four hundred famous men and women, and said, in a scientific bulletin, that these cases are typical of men and women kind the world over.

"There are no psychological proofs," said Professor Brown, "to show that man or woman may be capable of experiencing greater feeling, such as love, at any particular age, but observation would seem to establish the fact that the majority of men make better sweethearts between the ages of 24 and 26, because at that age they are under the sway of romantic ideals. After this, he contends, and especially after they have arrived at thirty, they love but little."

"On the other hand, women are most susceptible to their deepest affection at thirty to thirty-four years, long after man has ceased to be a love factor."

"With women, the age at which this highest capacity is revealed may be later—may even be after she has reached thirty, not because the romantic impulse comes to women so much later but because its first expression seeks a different outlet than that of man."

Brass fittings can be kept in good trim if washed once a month with vinegar and water and then polished up with a little dry powdered rottenstone and a chamois leather. The same plan can be followed in the case of solid brass inkstands.

At the Casino.

Despite the disagreeable night a large audience was present at the Casino last night to see the W. F. Harkins players present Hall Caine's celebrated play "The Christian," dramatized by him from his famous novel of the same name.

Those who have read the book say that the story is a strong dramatic one and the play follows the story very closely. The scenes are laid in the Isle of Mann and in London. The story briefly is as follows: Glory Quayle and John Storm are youthful sweethearts in the Isle of Mann. John's father has set his heart on a political career for his son. John decides to take holy orders and leaves for London. Glory who is the granddaughter and daughter of a clergyman also leaves for London to become a nurse. She soon tires of this, however, and becomes a music hall headliner. Among her friends are several well known men about town who are interested in the music hall in which she is appearing.

John Storm who has opened a mission in one of the poor districts of London, and who has not lost his love for Glory seeks her out and warns her of the fate that befell a girl who was in the same hospital as Glory. She laughs at his prediction. Her friends by the mission hall of Father Storm in order to enlarge their music hall. Finally Glory sees that John is right and she retires from the stage. As Glory Quayle Miss Van Duser added to her laurels in portraying the harum-scarum but good hearted music hall artist. Frank Conway, as John Storm, gave a splendid performance of a most trying part. Miss Cosgriff as "Polly Love" played a small part in her usual artistic manner, and the same can be said of Miss Wolfe as "Mrs. Collendar," a good hearted Scotch woman, and Miss Hiasdale as "Betty Turner" gave a careful performance of a small part. Mr. Stubbs, as "Archdeacon Wealthy," the pleasure loving clergyman was splendid, while Herbert Charles, as "Horatio Drake," added to his reputation; William Malette, as "Lord Robert Ure," and later as "Parson Quayle"; Eugene La Rue as "Lord Storm" and later as Faro, and Mr. Steward, as "Brother Paul," gave splendid support. Mr. Stark as "Father Lamplugh" gave an artistic performance of a small part. "The Christian" will be repeated on Wednesday evening.

To-night by request Alias Jimmy Valentine will be repeated. Those who have not yet seen this famous crook play should not fail to see it to-night as it is very likely that this great story of the criminal underworld will never be seen here again. A large advance indicates a crowded house, and those who have not yet secured tickets should do so at once.

Dr. Jones Writes

Dear Sir,—Answering your inquiry as to my experience with the "Ford," you will remember that it was quite late in the season before I got it on the road and as I was away for six weeks in the Fall, my total mileage was not a large one, only 900 miles. Our main roads are very rough and hilly, our side roads more so, but I did not have to spend a cent on repairs, to car apart from ordinary tire troubles. I found the car a great time saver enabling me to get through my work earlier and giving me hours of leisure impossible when I used the horse.

I remain, Yours, (Sgd.) W. E. JONES, Avondale.

There are more velvet costumes worn on the street than any other sort.

A rather mean man, going out to play golf, had failed to come to terms with the caddy and started off carrying the clubs himself.

After watching a stroke or two the caddy resolved to get his own back. "Here, mister," he said, "give me the clubs; I'll carry them for nothing. It's worth it to see you play."

Feel Out of Sorts?

It's a good idea to look for the cause!

One common, but often unsuspected cause is tea and coffee drinking. Yet some persons seem able to get along with tea or coffee—at least for a time. But when headachy, bilious days come; breakfast or some other meal doesn't taste good; and the day's work goes wrong. (Ever feel that way?)—then it's time to find out for sure if tea and coffee are causing the trouble in your case.

There's a subtle, poisonous drug, "caffeine," in tea and coffee that interferes with the normal functions of body, brain and nerves, and has a lot to do with one's comfort and progress.

Suppose for a test you try the simple expedient of quitting tea and coffee and using well-made a pure food-drink made of choice wheat. It has a delightful, snappy flavour, and is absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug.

After ten days or two weeks you will be able to decide whether to go back to tea and coffee troubles, or stick to Postum and peace and comfort.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum—must be well boiled.

Instant Postum—doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

Why is Blue Monday?

By RUTH CAMERON.

"I do hate Monday," the Little Stenographer Lady said to me the other day. "It's so hard to get back into the routine. Everything drags, everything goes wrong on Monday. Other days I am often surprised when five o'clock comes, but Monday it seems as if the clocks had all stopped. Sometimes I almost wish there weren't any break in the week, it's so hard to get settled down again."

I think most of us working folks have often felt toward Monday as the Little Stenographer Lady does. The familiar phrase "Blue Monday" attests the universality of this state of mind.

It certainly is hard to get back into the routine after a break. Early rising is doubly repugnant to us after Sunday morning's luxurious laziness. Concentration of mind is doubly difficult to accomplish after Sunday's relaxation, dull details are doubly distasteful after Sunday's freedom.

But is it entirely a fact that we have had a break which makes Monday a day disliked? Aren't there other considerations that make up the color scheme of blue Monday?

For one thing, we haven't the keen anticipation of approaching freedom that brightens the last two or three days of the week. As a child I intensely disliked school, and I used to mark off the school sessions toward that day of grace, Saturday, and yet I think I often enjoyed Friday quite as much as Saturday, for on Friday rested the golden haze of anticipation.

But it seems to me that the most potent factor which goes to make Monday blue is the way we spend our Sundays.

In the first place we antagonize our stomach by entirely changing our time for eating. The stomach receives a late breakfast and usually a much heavier one than that which it is accustomed to handle. A few hours later, instead of the light noon lunch of a week-day, we present it with a very hearty meal to digest, and, to cap the climax, the light lunch which used to be considered sufficient for Sunday night (in my childhood it consisted chiefly of crackers and milk for all of us with a pie for the grown folks) is gradually developing into a supper.

Then, besides over-eating a good many of us under-exercise on Sunday. What wonder that between these two offenses the system is upset?

What wonder that on Monday our outlook is obscured, our intellect is clouded and our energy decreased by the poison of improperly digested food?

Again, while some people under-exercise, others try to crowd into Sunday the occupations with which their friends, who are not tied down to daily work, fill a whole week. They crowd every moment of that day which should be, above all things, a day of rest. Some of them include a visit to some fashionable church among their "civilities"; others have not time for even that concession to the Lord's Day.

The religious aspect of the case I'm not going to try to discuss. My own belief is that men and women are the better for at least one visit to a house of worship on Sunday. Worship is good for us; the momentary suspension of our material activities, and the resulting realization that there are other things in life, is good for us; the peace and tranquillity of church is good for us. But putting the religious considerations aside, and looking at the matter from the efficiency viewpoint, a saner, quieter Sabbath will certainly give us a happier, more efficient week.

STEAMSHIP'S FREEDOM FOR A PLUCKY WOMAN.

(From the January Wide World Magazine.)

Miss Leona Perkins, a young woman of 25, of Saint Helens, Ore., has been given the freedom of the steamship Merced, and can voyage on it whenever she likes free of charge as a result of a successful battle with an American bald eagle which attempted to snatch a child from the deck of the vessel. The incident of the killing is regarded by the oldest seamen entering San Pedro as one of the strangest in the annals of the port. The steamer Merced, one of a large fleet owned by a big lumber company on the Pacific coast, is the newest of the fleet. It plies between the Columbia River, San Francisco, and San Pedro, the port of the city of Los Angeles. In addition to carrying many thousand feet of lumber the vessel also carries passengers. On July 21st last the Merced was several miles off Point Conception at 5.30 in the evening, en route for San Pedro. Miss Perkins was on deck amusing the children. Glancing curiously at the sky she saw what she at first believed to be a gull making for the steamer. Idly watching the gyrations of the bird high in the air she did not realize what it was until the eagle seemingly stepped in mid-air many hundreds of feet above the steamer, and dropped like a plummet for the deck of the vessel. It was making direct for one of the children when Miss Perkins, awake to the danger, seized a boat-hook, fortunately near at hand, and struck at the bird. She missed it, but frightened it away. Striking it a second time she called for aid. The captain of the vessel, seeing the predicament of the young woman and child, rushed to the engine-room and there securing a rifle, made for the deck. Here handing the rifle to one of the crew he told him to shoot the eagle, which by this time had perched itself on one of the yards of the vessel. The man shot at the bird and missed. He fired again and missed. Another of the crew attempted the shot, but missed four times. Miss Perkins, watching with interest the futile attempts of the men to hit the bird, asked for the gun and fired once, missing. Nothing daunted, she took careful aim and at the second shot the eagle dropped to the deck dead. When the eagle was taped it was found to measure eleven feet, eleven inches from tip to tip of its wings. Miss Perkins is a stenographer employed by a lumber company with offices in Saint Helens.

What is the Greatest Wonder of '13?

A Year Full of Marvels.

What was the most wonderful event of the year that has just ended? It is not an easy question to answer, for 1913 was crowded with happenings which have marked important eras in the world's history and progress.

Gardeners, for instance, are still waxing enthusiastic over the fact that Christmas was a rose Christmas. Nothing has been seen like it in the horticultural world for 165 years, roses, on account of the mild weather, being in full bloom in English gardens throughout December.

Golfers are still shaking their heads over the decline of English golf, because the twenty-year-old Quimmet beat our best professionals in the contest for the U. S. A. golf championship last September—the most sensational golf victory of modern times, while the equally youthful Carpenter has beaten Wells, our heavyweight "hope" in the prize ring.

The aviation feats of our loathed Frenchman, Pegoud, who first looped the loop in a flying machine, will be talked about for many a day. And who will be bold enough to prophesy that flying men will ere long be making trips to Mars, a planet which, according to the scientists of 1913, is signalling to us, judging by various signs of activity.

The geographical record for 1913 is dominated by the tragedy of the British Antarctic Expedition, and to natural disappointment that the gallant Amundsen should have been the first to discover the South Pole was added widespread grief on account of the terrible faith which overtook Captain Scott and his brave companions. The saving of 657 souls from the burning Volturno in October last, when wireless telegraphy brought help to the doomed vessel, is another illustration of the debt civilization owes to the genius of Marconi.

The launching of the Queen Elizabeth, the first Dreadnought entirely driven by oil, in September last, marks an important era in modern naval evolution.

The greatest engineering triumph of the age was completed in October, when President Wilson, on the 10th of that month, touched an electric button in Washington which caused the blowing up of the last cyke of the £80,000,000 Panama Canal, thus revolutionizing the world's shipping routes; while the map of Europe has been changed not a little by the overthrow of Turkey by the Balkan allies, and the ultimate fight between Bulgaria and Serbia, Greece and Montenegro.

The year 1913 has been one of mining and railway disasters, which, however, have taught lessons likely to lead to many important safeguards for miners and passengers.

PRE-VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS IN CANADA.

Calgary, Alta., Jan. 10.—The opening of the school year has seen the beginning of a new epoch in education in Calgary through the inauguration of the pre-vocational school system which has commenced work with an enrolment of eighty-five pupils, of whom thirty-nine are boys and forty-six girls.

This is the first pre-vocational school to be opened in any Canadian city.

The opening of this pre-vocational school is largely in the nature of an experiment, but it is hoped and expected that its establishment will be marked by great results, principal among which will be the lengthening of the educational period for all children and the consequent turning out of better boys and girls, and a reduction of the present large number of children who are turned loose in the world after completing their elementary education without a knowledge of any calling or trade. Early in the autumn of 1913 a circular was sent to the parents of all children in grades 6 and 7 of the Calgary Public Schools inquiring among other things, as to the child's likes and dislikes in the way of studies, any apparent tendencies towards callings or vocations and the parents' intentions as to the child's future.

Particular attention was also paid to the question of whether or not it was the parents' desire to have the child proceed to the High School or University. These circulars were carefully analyzed when returned and it was found that a large proportion of the pupils would leave school at the end of the elementary period and go to work. It was also found that a large number of pupils expressed a desire to enter mechanical occupations, a rather large number indicating their desire to enter offices and many girls suggesting household arts. As in other cities, it was found that the actual number going toward higher education was very small compared to the total.

Armed with these facts the special officer of the Calgary School Board detailed to make inquiries, presented a scheme for a course of work which would provide a different form of education for those children who proposed to leave school at the earliest legal age. A school centrally located was chosen and a new wing which had been recently added, was allotted for the experiment which has just begun. The scheme involved the arrangements whereby half of each day would be spent in academic work and the other half in some form of industrial activity.

For the girls the industrial activities take the form of cooking, sewing, laundry work and general housewifery; for the boys advanced type of manual training in woodwork, simple metal work and a printshop is provided. A third side of the work is that leading to office occupations. That end shorthand will be introduced and much of the work in arithmetic and other subjects will have a bias towards commercial and other pursuits. Drawing will be emphasized throughout the course as it is a means of education which is more and more being recognized as having enormous value as a measure of training and development.

Throughout the whole scheme of pre-vocational education as devised by the Calgary School Board one important fact is kept in mind and that is that no bar will be placed in the way of a child who may wish to proceed to a higher school. In point of fact although the Calgary scheme has been designed largely for those who intended to leave school at the earliest possible age, yet it is expected to materially lengthen the school life of the children. It is anticipated that the more attractive nature of the work will keep them at school longer and so develop their capabilities by means of the industrial and manual side of the courses as to encourage them to go on into higher schools.

Another interesting feature is that the Calgary school authorities are definitely committed to provide a large technical high school offering broad and generous courses in technical and general education. The pre-vocational schools, of which one is now under way, are eventually expected to prove large and valuable feeders for the technical high school.

Slayer to Die On Gallows.

Tifton, Ga., Jan. 15.—The Sheriff of Tift county has made arrangements for the execution to-morrow of I. B. Hall, a white man, who is under sentence of death for the murder of Dennis W. Hall. The killing occurred in the early part of last year and was the result of a neighborhood quarrel. According to the testimony of an eleven year old boy, who was the only eye witness to the tragedy, the slain man had a young child in his arms when he was shot down. Although of the same name and living in the same house at the time of the tragedy, the slayer and the victim were not related.

Healthy and Unhail by Lighting.

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not viliate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this reason that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The latest example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson.

He would merely add that no man or woman who had experience of their meeting room under the old condition would deny the improvement that has taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald D. D. D.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or witness a play through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, though after been employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of apoplexy.—Vivian B. Lewis, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov.11

The Chicago Fish Market.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—A giant fish being exhibited in Chicago, which is probably the largest fish ever caught outside of a whale. The fish has somewhat the appearance of a Spanish mackerel, both in color and shape of body; but the head is enormous. The tail is of the shark variety. There is no question about the exhibit being genuine. The fish was caught June 1st at Knight Key, Fla. The supposition is that the fish inhabited a strata of water about 2,000 feet below the surface, and was driven to the surface by some volcanic action. As the gas bags in the fish had expanded it was impossible for it again to go to deep depths, and thus was found floundering on the surface.

Following are some of the dimensions: Weight, 15,000 lbs.; length, 45 feet; circumference, 23 feet and 9 inches; diameter, 8 feet and 3 inches; mouth, 31 inches; tongue, 40 inches. The fish has several thousand small inverted teeth. The liver of the fish weighs 1,700 lbs.; tail measurement, 10 feet; gills, 4 feet long; hide, three inches thick. Opening the fish it was found to contain a fish weighing 1,500 lbs., which it had swallowed whole. Strange to say a live squid was found in the fish, and the squid lived several days after being taken out.

Red Letter Day.

The Christmas time has passed away; we're now approaching groundhog day—day of augments, fraught with fate, underground estate the ground-hog comes and casts his eyes upon the bleak midwinter skies. And if the sun is shining then, he goes into his hole again, and says, "Ods fish!" The storms will roar and whoop around for six weeks more! But if dark clouds obscure the sun, the ground-hog says, "Now spring's begun, and I'll forsake my dingy lair and breathe again the open air!" So let me live and train my soul that when the groundhog leaves his hole he will not find me unprepared, nor by his stern decision snared. If winter's due to last a while, may I be found with goodly pile of coal and kindling for the grate; and if the spring is coming straight, may I be fixed with rakes and hoes, and garden seeds, and things like those. The prudent man plans in advance, and then whatever luck may chance he is not in a corner caught, but he is Johnnie on the spot. So do not sit and twirl your thumbs, but, when the stately ground-hog comes, predicting weeks of cold or heat, be sure he'll find you on your feet.

At the House.

RESIGNED ON JANUARY 2nd.

The House opened at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Kent presented a petition from Portugal Cove, asking for the power to elect an Executive Board to manage their own affairs.

In reply to Mr. Kent, the Prime Minister said that Mr. Donald Morris was no longer Minister of Justice, but was Mr. Sydney Blandford Minister of Agriculture and Mines. These gentlemen had resigned on January 2nd, and the Government had not taken into consideration the filling of the vacancies.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries furnished a statement asked for by Mr. Cliff.

Mr. Cliff Eulogizes Sir Robert Bond.

Mr. Currie presented the draft of the Address in Reply to the Governor's Speech from the Throne. The Address was received, and on its adoption being moved, a lively debate ensued. Mr. Cliff, member for Twillingate, opened the ball.

Mr. Cliff extended his felicitations to the Speaker, and expressed the confidence that he would uphold the traditions of the office and deal justly between the parties in the House.

One could regret more sincerely than he (Mr. C.) did Sir Robert Bond's resignation of his seat in the House.

He had been associated with Sir Robert Bond in the Liberal Party for about a quarter of a century, and for the past thirteen years a colleague of his in the District of Twillingate. He had the highest esteem for his late leader and disagreed with his adverse comment which had appeared in a section of the press of an unwise character. He had not much comment to make on the Governor's Speech. Everybody knew it was but a statement of the Government. He congratulated Messrs. Currie and Higgins on the matter, manner and tone of their addresses, which gave earnest of future usefulness in the House. From the tenor of some of the remarks it would appear that the prosperity of the past five years was a result of some policy introduced by the present Government. He claimed that the previous Government had laid the foundations for it. He was pleased that there was a prospect of a visit from Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. As to the Agricultural policy which was set forth as successful in the Speech, there was no sign of its success. In reality it had been barren of successful results.

He had no faith in the Agricultural Societies, instituted by the present Government. He believed in school teaching of Agriculture and training in Agricultural Colleges. He noticed that the Government were going to do something in regard to the coal areas, and had invited Prof. Dunstan to visit them. He hoped that the effort might do something to attract capital, for there was no likelihood of local capital taking up the operation of our coal areas.

Mr. Coaker on the Morris Policy.

Mr. Coaker.—He did not agree with the policy of the Government in putting sugar and tea on the free list. He would have reduced the duty but kept some on and earmarked the revenue for the toilers. The taking off the duty on cube sugar did not benefit the toilers. It was for the benefit of the professional men. He did not believe toilers should escape the duties either. He would have liked to see a cent a pound imposed on tea and sugar and that would do away with the plea that there was no money for cold storage, motor boats, trade agents abroad and the like. Mr. Currie had declared that where principles had been discussed, the People's Party had won. But what about the North? There the merits and demerits of the Government had been discussed. In the other districts the People's Party had raised disastardly and improper issues; Godless Schools and Socialism. The F.P.U. and Socialism were as far apart as the poles. They were accused of circulating Cotton's Weekly and the Menace. The latter paper he had never seen. The former had been sent to him and he had refused to take it. As to the Labrador proposition, he hoped that the boundary question would be settled before the Government gave any concessions, and not allow the plea to be set up that as the boundary question had not been settled and operations could not go on, the concessionaries must be allowed to export pulpwood in the meantime. As to investigating the whaling, what was the use of that now, when the whales were almost exterminated? He did not agree with going to Norway to seek information about bait. The Government should set to work and provide materials to settlements, which agree to erect and maintain gratuitously the depots. He thought the Government might go about the coal question differently. The F.P.U. had sold coal in the Outports for $6 a ton; and they had a cargo coming to the city to sell at $6.50 a ton. Let Mr. Higgins and his friends import coal, induce the Government to let them land at the Government wharf and weigh it by Government scales. A peaceful revolution had come about in the minds of the people. They were determined to control the Government. They were not going to work every day in the year and find themselves no better off at the end of it. As to the benefits of railway to the Bonavists and Catalina men, steamers offered cheaper and speedier transit to the city. Although he would have voted for the Bonavists, Fortune Bay and Bay de Verde branches, he would not have voted for the Trepassay branch. He believed the branch railway policy would eventually lead to Confederation.

Morris as a Socialist.

Mr. Grimes said the tone of the discussion, especially on the other side, had been that of a mutual admiration society. What was there to admire? The Government had been returned by a minority of votes and by fooling the people with side issues, and misrepresenting their opponents. He was not ashamed of the word Socialism, as it meant the elevation of the masses. Sir Edward Morris would make a good member of a Socialist Society. He had heard him come out flat-footed for such a Socialist doctrine as the Minimum Wage. The Government ought to take up the coal question and work the coal themselves as they were doing in Australia and New Zealand.

A Policy of Givings-Out.

Mr. Jennings criticized the Agricultural policy of the Government. He had seen no sign of any improvement either in stock, or seeds, or crops during the Morris regime. The same old policy of giving-out animals to private persons had been pursued. A beast was given out to a person, who kept it for a time and then put it on his own table. The Sable Island ponies sent to Twillingate District had perished. The people had been given to understand they could feed for themselves, but they discovered they perished when left to do it. The givings-out policy might satisfy one in a hundred, but it displeased the other ninety-nine and was of no benefit to the community. As to the inquiry about whales and bait, he saw no use for it now. Where hundreds were to be seen in other days, an odd one is to be seen now in Notre Dame Bay. The whales had almost been exterminated. The inquiry resembled that of locking the stable door after the horse had been stolen.

Would be no "Dummy."

Mr. Halfyard said there was a strange silence on the Government benches. He had expected a little cross-firing. When a person departs nothing but kindness is spoken of them. Sir Robert Bond had passed out of public life and Sir Edward Morris had almost been fulsome in lauding him, although he had been the principal in driving Sir Robert Bond from public office. He could not avoid thinking that there were elements of double-dealing and hypocrisy in all of us. We all seemed to be afraid of the looking glass to see ourselves as we are. He could sincerely regret the retirement of Sir Robert Bond, as he had always been an admirer of his. As to the Government Agricultural policy, he had an experience of it as a Secretary of a Society at Catalina. It had done no good. There was not an acre more under cultivation and indeed duty had to be taken off hay to keep cattle alive. It was a means of keeping together a crowd of irresponsibles. It was high time to talk of Morris's blunders and failures, and the Governor's Speech brought them out. It was a speech barren of policy. The Government had won a victory which was a disgrace. Truth needed no apology. He had been sent to criticize the Government and he would do it. He would be no "dummy."

Premier's Reply.

The Premier strongly resented the suggestion that his references to Sir Robert Bond had been either hypocritical or fulsome. There had been no personal bitterness in their relations. They had worked together and they had differed notably on the railway contract of 1898, and again in 1907. But on both occasions on questions of policy. He had referred to the loss the House sustained by Sir Robert's resignation. That was no flattery. He mourned the loss, but he had not been the executioner. At Mr. Halfyard's declaration that he was there to criticize the Government, he considered a poor idea. Mr. Halfyard's duty was to represent his constituents and aid in benefiting them, rather than to be "agin" the Government. As to the Agricultural policy, the establishment of societies, the improvement of stock and seed were sound lines of policy, and met with the approval of Dr. Robertson. If the societies had done wrong, that was no fault of the Government, nor was it due to the unsoundness of the policy; it was the fault of the instrument, and the Government should not be blamed. He disagreed with Mr. Cliff and his advocacy of Agricultural schools and colleges. They would only train young men who would leave us immediately after their training. As to the charge of Socialism, because of his advocacy of a minimum wage, he did not see how Socialism could arrogate to itself every doctrine that was attractive. It was unfair to blame all Socialists for every policy advocated by every socialist. As to the price of fish he contended that Mr. Coaker did not put up the price of fish. The rise was due to the discovery of new markets, new methods of putting up fish and especially to the increase in green fish which had gone to Canada and the States. There had been double the amount of green fish taken by the Americans last year than the year before.

Nor did he consider Mr. Coaker had conferred any benefit by taking coal to the outports, and selling it a dollar a ton cheaper. For the fishermen had lost more than the dollar they gained by labouring for nothing at unloading the coal and staying off the fishing ground. As to the coal to be sold from the side of the Kintail at $6.50, the laborers lost the wages of shovelling it in a store and those who sold it from the store had to pay more wages, more insurance, more rent and thus the coal cost more. As to the north the issues had no relation to the policy of the Government and he claimed Mr. Currie was correct in stating that the Government party won wherever the policy of the Government was discussed. During the Premier's speech there was a lively cross-fire between Mr. Coaker and the Premier.

It was announced that President Harris, Hon. R. K. Bishop, Hon. P. T. McGrath, The Speaker, Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, Hon. J. R. Bennett and C. H. Emerson formed the Internal Economy Committee.

Woman's Little Ways.

"Is my hat done?" inquired a cold-looking lady at a millinery establishment one pleasant day last week.
"Yes, Ma'am," politely responded the shop-woman. "It will be here in a moment."
An assistant soon brought up the hat, and while the customer was duly inspecting it the proprietress ventured to inquire:
"How do you like it, ma'am?"
"It's simply horrid," was the reply.
"But it's just as you ordered it," placed the maker of the headwear.
"Yes, something as I ordered," was the short and sneering answer.
"I am sorry, but—"
"Well, never mind," broke in the buyer, with set lips. "What's the expense?"
"About fifteen shillings," said the shopwoman, timidly.
The money was paid over and the hat ordered up to the house, when the purchaser went out, and immediately exclaimed to an accompanying friend:
"Isn't it perfectly lovely?"
"Yes," she replied, "it's ravishing! But how could you talk so to that woman?"
"Talk so!" exclaimed she of the hat.
"Why, if I had let her know how much I liked that hat she would certainly have charged me twenty-five shillings, shillings."
She never thought of that, but would profit by her friend's ripe experience and never like an article again until she had bought and paid for it.

Fire This A. M.

Family Rendered Homeless.—Lost all Belongings.—Woman Faints Rescuing her two Children.—Fireman Play Their Part.

Shortly before seven o'clock this morning in the throes of a strong N.W. gale and with the weather glass hovering at zero, fire broke out in the dwelling house, occupied by a family named Carew—a man, his wife and four children—in College Square, or about one hundred yards distant from where the conflagration occurred Sunday night and destroyed Cochrane St. Church. The Carew family lived in the upstairs portion of the house while a family named Richardson occupied the downstairs. The house is in the middle of the row of dwellings hat are in College Square.

At 6.30 Edward Carew got out of bed to go to work. About twenty minutes later as he was eating his breakfast in the kitchen he noticed smoke coming from the top portion of the house. On investigation he found that the walls of the attic and the roof were on fire. Immediately he ran out and broke in the alarm near the Government gate in box 117. Meanwhile a big blaze occurred caused by the high wind. The smoke became very dense in the house and Mrs. Carew grasped the two youngest of her children, who were in their night dresses, and ran to the street with them. The woman herself was sparsely clad and on coming out of the house fainted, as she was almost suffocated from the smoke filling the rooms. By this time the Central and East End Fire Companies arrived and at the outset two of the firemen hearing that two children were in the burning house, broke through the thick clouds of smoke and snatched from the jaws of death the little ones. When rescued they were in a suffocating condition, but the wonder is that they were saved at all as they were not expected to be found alive. The firemen saved the whole situation. Very soon after they arrived they put out three streams of water. The Richardson family, numbering six, who were living in the downstairs part of the house, had to leave also, getting out as much of their furniture as they possibly could. After three-quarters of an hour of strenuous work they succeeded where they succeeded in subduing the flames and getting the fire under control, but not before the house was badly gutted. The alarm signal was sent in at 8 o'clock. The Carew family were completely burned out and lost all their belongings. Carew prior to this was not possessed with much of the world's goods. He is now much poorer as they are left homeless, penniless and destitute. He has a wife and four children depending on him and he would greatly appreciate any help or generous act received, no matter how small. The heroism displayed by Carew's wife is very commendable. The Richardson family had a lot of their belongings destroyed by fire, smoke and water.

The origin of the fire was caused by a defective chimney, sparks from which ignited the roof.

SEXTON EXPLAINS.—Mr. King, Sexton of Cochrane St. Church, and who has held that post for eleven years, says that when he left the building on Sunday night, everything was O.K. There was very little fire in the furnace during the day and as far as he can see, it was the crossing of the electric wires that caused the blaze.

Spurrell and C. Woods. After the regular speakers had finished a general discussion took place in which many of those present joined.
