Delia Blanchflower—Mrs. Humphrey Ward.

This is probably the most powerful and important story Mrs. Humphrey Ward has written; certainly it is the most fascinating and enthralling. Her vast circle of admirers will be delighted in making the acquaintance of her new heroine, Delia Blanchflower, a willful, perplexing, but quite delightful young woman of a type almost new to fiction.

The Holy Flower—H. Rider Haggard.

A new record of stirring adventure in wildest Africa by the famous hunter and explorer, Allan Quatermain, telling his story of a perilous mission into unknown country in the days before his remarkable experiences which are now historical in the pages of "King Solomon's Mines" and other famous books.

A Lovers' Tale—Maurice Hewlett.

A fascinating romance in which this brilliant author returns, more completely than in either of his recent works, to the manner of his earlier romances, "The Forest Lovers" and other books which now rank as classics of English fiction.

Joseph Hocking's latest novel, "The Day of Judgment," cloth 80c.

Ralph Connor's great story, "The Patrol of the Sundance Trail," paper 60c, cloth 80c.

"My Wife's Hidden Life," Who wrote it? Is it true? It grips as only the truth can. Only a few copies, 80c each.

And five hundred more new books at 50c, 60c and 80c each. Come in and see them now, our store is a Reader's Paradise.

With the 30th of April, the work parties at Government House will cease. After that date the work-room will be open Monday afternoons only, from 3 until 5 o'clock, when work will be given out to any ladies desiring it, and the finished work will be received. Will all those who have taken out work during the winter kindly bring it to Government House any Monday afternoon during the month of May? There are a number of workers whose names are not recorded in the W. P. A. member's book. Will these ladies hand their names in as soon as possible, as Lady Davidson is anxious to have a complete list of all those attending work parties, and also ladies working for societies and in their own homes?

CHAPTER XII.

"The more I see of him, the more I like him," he said. "I never knew a young fellow so—so unassuming and modest, and so ready to take advice. We've been over the stables—they wanted overhauling badly—and I've ventured to give him some tips, which he was very grateful for. I should have stayed to lunch, but—in the nicest way possible—he did not press me, because, as he said, you would be alone. Why, Molly, you pale you look, and—you haven't been crying, dear, have you? What is the matter?"

Mary turned away to hide her face. "I—I have a headache," she faltered.

"The effects of the fright yesterday," he said, tenderly. "You must go and lie down, dear!"

She kissed him before she went, and as she bent over him her eyes overran with tears; for her sweetheart was leaving her, and, for the first time in her life, she was concealing something from her father who loved her so dearly.

CHAPTER XIV.

The story of Lord Rattton's "gallant rescue," as the Gazette continued to call it in paragraphs and leaders for several weeks, spread round the county, and raised Ralph to a position and popularity which he would not have reached in the ordinary course for years. People made haste to call upon him, he was flooded with invitations; and wherever he went he won golden opinions; for he was quick to observe and learn, and he saw that his line was "to sit tight and say nothing" or little. "Being an actor, he was also quick to imitate, and in an incredibly short time he managed to acquire at least the outward veneer of breeding. He learnt to ad-

The Hundred Ways Which Don't End Corns

Perhaps you say—"I've tried and tried, but found nothing that ends a corn."

You might keep trying for years, Madam. There are a hundred ways which don't. Most of them are very much alike.

But remember this: There is one way which has removed 70 million corns. It is now removing half the corns that grow.

It's a plaster which contains a bit of wondrous wax. It ends the corn pain in a jiffy. It ends the corn itself in two days. It gently loosens the corn until it comes out without any pain or soreness.

When you merely pare corns—When you use some folderol—Beware in your mind. There are folks all around you—users of Blue-jay—who never suffer corns. You are wronging yourself when you fail to do what they do.

dress the men without their titles, and to salute the ladies with that air of deference which surprised him when he had first seen it; for hitherto he had regarded women as inferior creatures, to be petted or bullied as the mood dictated. He began to feel less ashamed and self-conscious when he entered a room full of people or met two or three men unexpectedly. He got a quiet horse and learnt to ride—in the early morning when there was no one about.

Nearly everyone called him "a good fellow," and even those few who regarded him with a kind of doubt, admitted that he was "doing his best," and all agreed that he was liberal with his money. He subscribed to everything—the cricket and football clubs, the hounds, the county races, the new steeple for Market Rattton church; and even the Wesleyan minister came away from the Hall with a cheque for the fund of the rebuilding of the chapel, and had nothing but good to say of his lordship. When Ralph rode or drove into Market Rattton, the trades-people came out to their doors with bows and smiles to receive his orders, and everywhere men touched their hats to him with eager respect and desire to win his good-will.

He spent money freely, and not selfishly. New cottages were put in hand for the labourers on the estate, and the tenants had only to ask for repairs and improvements to obtain them.

"It's well we have plenty of money," Greyfold, the steward, remarked to Mr. Bulpit, "for we're spending it right and left. His lordship will be the most popular landlord in England, if he goes on like this. Giles went to him yesterday, and got him to promise a new homestead—or very nearly a new one; and only a few days ago he told me that he had decided to pull down that row of cottages in Golden Lane and rebuild them. Yes, he'll be the model landlord, Mr. Bulpit!"

Mr. Bulpit grunted and coughed.

"Yes," he said; "but it makes it rather hard for the other landlords who have no money to spend, and whose tenants are drawing comparisons between them and Lord Rattton."

"You'd better drop him a hint, then," said Mr. Greyfold, "or he'll get himself disliked by his own class, and that won't counterbalance his popularity with the lower. You know that there is to be a grand dinner-party at the Hall on the sixth; it will be the biggest affair the old Hall has seen for many a day. I've ordered the Hungarian band, and a chef is coming from London. It will only want one thing—a mistress! But I suppose we sha'n't have to wait long for that. Lord Rattton is far and away the best match in the county."

Mr. Bulpit nodded, but made no response. He had been watching the career of the new earl with keen interest and some surprise; for he had expected that the young man who had only a few weeks ago presented himself mud and dust-stained at the Hall would "make a mess of it." And now here he was high in county and public favour, and bidding fair to be the most popular man in the county!

He drove over to the Hall on the afternoon of the day he and Mr. Greyfold had held the above conversation, and found Lord Rattton just returned from a ride on his quiet horse, and as his lordship greeted him pleasantly with a "Hallo, Mr. Bulpit; glad to see you," the old lawyer could not help remarking the change in the young man. The old restless, self-conscious air had disappeared—or nearly—and a newly acquired confidence and ease had taken its place. Only occasionally was that twist of the under-lip, the half-suspicious glance from the corners of the eyes, noticeable.

"Want to see me? Come in! Hot, isn't it? Bring some soda and whiskey," he added to the footman. "I'm glad you've come. I wanted to ask your advice. Shall I put the Hungarian band in the gallery on the sixth, or shall I keep that for a cozy place for sitting out in, and stick the band somewhere else? There is sure to be some dancing—in quite an informal way, you know."

But Mr. Bulpit had no opinion to offer.

"I should think one of the ladies would be better able to advise you, Lord Rattton," he said in his dry, legal way.

Ralph nodded quickly and absently. "Yes, I'll ask Lady Mary. No soda and whiskey—sure?" he said as Mr. Bulpit declined, and he mixed a glass for himself.

"I came for the signatures to these leases," said Mr. Bulpit. "By the way, Mr. Greyfold tells me that you have consented to rebuild Giles's homestead."

Ralph nodded as he hit the end of a cigar, and seated himself on the arm of one of the old oak chairs.

"Yes; that's all right, isn't it? The man bothered about it, and I consented, to save any further trouble. It doesn't matter, does it?"

"Not to you, Lord Rattton," said Mr. Bulpit, with a grim smile; "but you are setting a rather painful standard, which your fellow landlords will find it difficult to reach. For instance, one of Lord Hatherley's tenants came to me yesterday wanting something done, and when I refused, he said he wished he was a Rattton tenant. You see?"

At the mention of Lord Hatherley's name Ralph's careless demeanour changed, and all in a moment came the watchful sidelong glance.

"How do you mean?" he asked.

"That Lord Hatherley and a number of your neighbouring landlords are not so well off as you, Lord Rattton."

"I didn't know that Lord Hatherley was poor," said Ralph, with affected indifference.

Mr. Bulpit grunted.

"The Hatherley estate is entailed. It goes to a boy nephew, as no doubt you know; and Lord Hatherley is anxious to make some provision for his daughter, Lady Mary. All his savings are invested with that object; but if he were to administer the estate on your liberal scale, there would be no savings to invest."

Ralph nodded, and smoked thoughtfully.

"I see," he said. "Now, what does he invest in?" he asked, so casually that Mr. Bulpit was taken off his guard, so to speak.

"In railroads generally; but lately he has been buying mining shares—very much against my advice," he added, grumpily, as he spread out the leases for his lordship's signature.

"Some mines pay very well, don't they?" said Ralph, as casually as before.

"Hem!—yes; but I'm not sure that the New Golconda will. Sign here, please, my lord. I hope you bear in mind the hint that I have presumed to give you."

Ralph looked up with a laugh. "I always bear your hints in mind, and act upon them, Bulpit. And you will admit that things have worked out pretty well, eh?" he said, with a covert air of triumph, and just a suspicion of the twist of the under-lip.

"Very well, indeed, my lord, and I congratulate you," said Mr. Bulpit. Ralph straightened his shoulders, and looked round with an air of self-satisfaction.

"You'll be here on the sixth, Bulpit?"

"I'm afraid not, my lord," said the old lawyer, quietly but firmly.

"Oh, but you must!" insisted Ralph. "I must ask your lordship to excuse me," said Mr. Bulpit, as he gathered his deeds together. "I seldom go into society, and I know that your lordship will have no lack of guests."

Ralph laughed as he flung himself into the arm-chair.

"What a dry old stick you are, Bulpit! Ton my word, I sometimes think you'll never forgive me for being who and what I am!"

The old man coloured.

"You do me an injustice, my lord," he said, gravely, and with perfect self-possession. "In my profession we have no room or use for prejudices."

Ralph looked after him as he drove off in his old-fashioned phaeton.

"The old devil hates me—for some reason," he muttered. "I wonder why? Not that it matters;" and he turned away with a laugh of contempt and conscious power.

The "Times" lay on the table, and he picked it up and turned to the morning news in the money article. New Golcondas were "firm" at present.

"If anything should go wrong with them; and it might," he muttered. Then he flung the paper from him with an oath. "What does it matter to me? I'm tied hand and foot. But if I were free!"

A little later he walked over to the Manor.

Scarcely a day passed without a visit from him, and Lord Hatherley was always glad to see him, and greeted him, as on this occasion, with:

"Oh, is that you, Rattton? Come in, my dear fellow. Mary, here is Lord Rattton."

And Mary would come forward with a smile, but a grave and, as it seemed to Ralph, a sad and cold one.

"I've come to ask Lady Mary's advice," he said this afternoon. "Where shall I put the band, in the gallery or in the hall?"

They discussed the question for some time, until, in sheer weariness, Mary decided in favor of the hall, and then, on some pretext or other, left her father and Ralph together.

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

Boy's Blouse Suit with Knee Trousers.

This style of suit is very popular with boys who have outgrown the Russian blouse styles. The blouse may be made of khaki cloth, drill, linen, galatea, linen, madras or flannel, cambric or muslin. The trousers are good for most any suiting, and will be found very comfortable, and easy to make. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a 12 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1290—A STYLISH WAIST MODEL.

Ladies' Waist with or Without Yoke Facing and with Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths.

White butchers linen was used for this design. It is splendid for all wash fabrics, for taffeta, poplin, albucross, serge or chambray. The fullness of back and fronts is laid in box-plaits. The yoke facings may be omitted. The sleeve is new and is finished in wrist length with a neat flare cuff. It may be made in short length with a jaunty pointed cuff. The neck is cut low and topped with a rolled collar. The finish at the waistline may be smooth or in blouse style. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 will require 3 yards of 44 inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

EXCLUSIVELY MAUNDER.

J. H. Maunder

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $381,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.

Allies Making Good Progress Against Tur

London, April 30.—Although are paying a heavy cost in human life, the Anglo-French land forces in the Dardanelles sphere of operations are progressing steadily, driving the Turks before them. The British fleet operating on the Gallipoli Peninsula and the French, under the command of Admiral D'Amade, on the mainland of Gallipoli, are reported to have advanced from three to ten miles, capturing 10,000 Turks.

The Anglo-French fleet has effected its bombardment of the inner of the Dardanelles with greater success. Despatches from Athens and Constantinople said that between forty and fifty ships lying in the Gulf of Saros in the Dardanelles Strait have been damaged by an incessant storm of shells against the Turkish works, destroying the southern end of the Narrows, Chanak and Kild Bahr.

At least five landings have been effected by the Allies. It is reported that Athens despatches, and the British believed to have been successful in throwing a line across the peninsula from a point near Kaba Tepesi to the Aegean Sea side, to a point near Sidos. Unofficial claims are made that the British and their French allies have occupied both Maïdos and Sidos.

Cutting Off Turk Forces.

The Peninsula is only five miles between Kaba Tepé and Maïdos, being its narrowest point. The forces that effected a landing at Enos, on the Aegean Sea, at the point where the Turkish line approaches Bulgarian frontier, are moving southeasterly direction in an attempt to throw a line of positions across the eastern end of the Gallipoli Peninsula and thus cut off all the Turkish forces on that tongue of land. They are reported to have advanced some miles in the past five days.

A mighty armada, lying from western entrance of the Dardanelles to Kephiz, ten miles up the Straits, has been bombarding the inner Turkish works with such violence that thunder of the guns could be heard nearly fifty miles away.

On the European side, in the sector of Killid Bahr, at least two Turkish forts are in range of the British and French guns.

Turkish prisoners declare that their German officers compelled them to blow up all the earthworks that they had to evacuate, so that they could not be used by the Allies.

Turkish Casualties, 50,000.

A Central News cable from Rome says that a despatch to the Tribune from Athens states that the casualties to the Turkish troops in the fighting with the Allies landing forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula have already reached a total of 50,000.

Landings of Allied forces at various points on Gallipoli Peninsula continue, and at the same time preparations for a general attack upon Smyrna are being made, according to information received at Athens.

The French operated with great heroism at Kum Kale. Though they suffered heavy losses they held their positions. British warships violently bombarded and silenced several batteries near Smyrna on Wednesday.

German Force Annihilated.

Havre, April 30.—How a German force which tried to surrender when its retreat was cut off through the destruction of a bridge across the Yser canal was moved down by German guns was related here to-day by officers returning from the front.

The Germans, facing annihilation at the hands of the Belgian gards, tied white handkerchiefs on the barrels of their rifles as a signal of surrender.

Brisk Recruiting.

CANADA'S REPLY TO GERMAN CRELLITY.

Ottawa, April 30.—One hundred and fifty thousand Canadians in the firing line will be Canada's reply to the German slaughter and outrage at Ypres.

The idea heretofore has been that the troops, sent over in batches of six or seven thousand, should serve as reinforcements for the first division. In the present case, however, where the ranks of that division have been sadly thinned, the probabilities are that two more divisions complete, or at least, only, may be put in the field.

RAPID RECRUITING.

Calgary, April 30.—Recruiting enthusiasm is at such a pitch in Calgary that half the 50th Battalion for the Fourth Contingent has been secured in three days, a feat that is consider-

AGED FOR OPPORTUNITY.

Moose Jaw, Sask., April 30.—Lieut. Col. Snell, officer commanding the 46th Battalion, has received instructions to furnish the names of one captain, four lieutenants and 250 non-commissioned officers and men of a Battalion to be used as infantry reinforcements.

The Ever-Receding Day

IN GERMANY.

The peace movement is denounced by most of the Berlin papers, as well as those of Frankfurt, Munich and Hamburg. A typical comment may be quoted from Die Grosse Glocke: "It is time for the German Government to declare with no uncertain voice that there is no foundation for the rumors of peace negotiations with which the press has lately been filled."

"Heaven save us from any place other than one that shall be worthy of these sacrifices. Until the day of days, the day of triumph, has dawned, the day of peace must be bidden to wait outside our doors."

How the Guns

Were Retaken.

Toronto, April 30.—The Mail and Empire publishes the following special cable: London, April 29.—The story of how the Tenth and Sixteenth Western Battalions, in a midnight charge, re-took the four Canadian guns which had fallen into the hands of the Germans and captured prisoners was told in London to-day by some of the wounded officers.

Never Be Without Herbine Bitters. CONTAINS THE ACTIVE PRINCIPLES OF DANDELION, MARIANNE, etc. and is an old-fashioned remedy that has been on the market over 50 years and cannot be displaced because of real merit.

Capt. G. E. McCuaig, of Montreal, Adjutant of the Thirteenth Battalion, Fifty Royal Highlanders, who was wounded on Thursday and is now in a West End Nursing Home, said: "The first thing we saw, about half-past four on Thursday afternoon, was clouds of poisonous gas hovering over the trenches held by French troops on our left. At the same time there was a heavy roar of artillery at the French front."

"Half an hour later the French were retiring through the village of St. Julien. These troops were mostly Algerians. The Germans advanced about half a mile and started to entrench themselves about nine o'clock."

"At midnight the two Western battalions, the Tenth and the Sixteenth, formed up and received orders to charge. For more than two hundred yards they were exposed to a heavy rifle fire and several machine guns, but they kept right on until they reached the German trenches. Here the Westerners took the guns and also captured some prisoners who surrendered when about to be bayoneted."

CHEERED BY VILLAGERS.

Lieut. G. Ainslee, of the 16th Battalion, who was wounded in the charge described by Capt. McCuaig, said he was in Ypres when the shelling started on the afternoon of the 22nd, and on returning, found his battalion ready to go forward. As they marched through St. Julien, the villagers cheered the Canadians and wished them luck.

The order was to clear the Germans from a wood near St. Julien before daylight. No Germans were visible, but as the Canadians emerged from a dip, a terrible hail of bullets greeted them. Men dropped all round, and the front line seemed to melt away."

Lieut. Ainslee was in the second line, which dashed on under a bright moonlight, which made the bayonets glitter. When the Westerners reached the edge of the wood, the Germans who were there threw down their arms and surrendered. Further on a number of small fights continued.

Lieut. Ainslee received a bullet in the leg, but using the bodies of dead Germans as cover, continued to use his rifle, until the stretcher bearers took him away. By this time the firing, except by snipers, had stopped.

Major G. Rowe, of the 16th, is in the same hospital with a wounded arm. Lieut.-Col. Buell, of Brockville, Ont., is in the hospital at South Kensington, suffering from shrapnel wounds, which almost shattered his shoulder blade, where a bullet is still embedded. He is making fair progress toward recovery.

Lieut.-Col. Buell was wounded on Friday while leading a reserve battalion of Canadians in an action to cover the exposed flank of two Canadian battalions who were in the trenches. Lieut.-Col. Buell to-day, in describing the scene, said the noise was ear-splitting, with the German artillery showing remarkable precision, pounding not only the Canadian front, but also entrenching.

In order to minimize the losses, Lieut.-Col. Buell advanced his battalion by short rushes. His men, he said, behaved like regular troops, whose steadiness could not be excelled by veterans. There was no faltering among them when they were ordered to advance, though all this meant almost immediate casualties.

Lieut.-Col. Buell was wounded while he lay on the ground using his glasses between two of the short rushes. He felt a heavy blow on his shoulder, evidently the spent fragment of a shell. Soon afterwards, in attempting to cross a ditch, he fell fainting from the loss of blood.

DOGGEDNESS WILL DO IT!

After the long, weary and grim holding of the trenches during the winter, and at a time when expectation had held out hopes of a great forward movement on the western front and in Hungary, on a section of the line near Ypres and also in Western Galicia, our soldiers are faced with set-backs. The set-back near Ypres has served to draw out the splendid qualities of the Canadian contingent, and has led to the pouring of Russian reserves into Galicia. Although it portends a longer duration of the war than some scribers expected, it will bring out the determined and dogged qualities of the British character. Britons are used to set-backs in the earlier stages of war, due usually to the lack of preparation for extensive military resources at the beginning of last August, a veritable miracle has already been worked. Every part of the Empire has been safeguarded by land as well as by sea. German possessions have been secured over in the Pacific. India is safe and frontier attacks repulsed. The lower basin of the Euphrates and Tigris in Asiatic Turkey has been invaded. The Turkish expedition against Egypt has been driven back. A large invading army has landed in the Gallipoli Peninsula, and at Enos in European Turkey. British expeditions have operated in Togoland, the Cameroons and German East Africa, and Botha has not only put down a rebellion in South Africa, but is gradually taking possession of the important military posts in German South West Africa. In Belgium we have gained as much as we have lost the past few weeks, and while the advance we anticipated is still delayed, we can feel assured that the future is with us as our resources are brought to bear in future fights. The gains by the Germans by the unexpected use of asphyxiating gases can be but temporary. We can retaliate in kind and their temporary success will disappear. For the present we must stiffen the sinews of war, summon up the blood, and shout as our fathers did before Agincourt for "Harry, England and St. George."

The town was occupied after a forced march of 35 miles over waterless waste, under conditions of heat, thirst and hunger which called forth the greatest resolution and grit."

OFFERS GOOD OFFICES TO JAPAN AND CHINA.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The silence which has been consistently maintained by the United States with reference to the Japanese-Chinese negotiations was broken by the issuance of a statement by Secretary Bryan, explaining the position of the American Government. The statement was prepared after a consultation with President Wilson. The American Government in its pronouncement in effect reiterates its adherence to the Open Door Policy and the maintenance of the territorial integrity of China. It points out that there has been no abatement of its interest in the welfare and progress of China. The sole interest of the United States, he declared, is that the negotiations between Japan and China must be concluded in a

The statement was interpreted in some quarters as meaning that while no tender of good offices would be made by the Washington Government, the services of the United States were at the disposal of both countries, should they desire the assistance of any third power to bring about a diplomatic settlement of the questions at issue.

Out of Hospital. Lieut. A. J. Herder, writing home, has this to say about Stan Lumsden: "I have been to see him, and he is now discharged. I don't know whether he has gone home or not. He had internal injuries as well as the wound in the face. I heard he was recommended for the Distinguished Conduct Medal, as he and another private carried Lieut. Cameron out of action when the Princess Pats were wiped out. Lieut. Cameron died while they were carrying him. Stan Lumsden was not wounded on that occasion, but later on when he was hit in the face and part of a parapet fell on him hurting him internally."

The Lion and the Mouse

The usual large audiences were most enthusiastic and unstinting in their praises regarding the portrayal of the above well-known photo-play at the "Casino" Theatre last night. This popular six-reel society drama is splendidly "put on" and magnificently acted. Every detail having received the most careful consideration. Undoubtedly packed houses will be the rule ere this beautiful production "closes" on Saturday evening.

Household Notes

Odd Zouave boleros in contrasting colors have charming braided decoration. White furs with white spats and dark hats and suits are a great find of the moment. Black rice straw lined with colored velour makes always a charming frame to a face. Most favored materials for the separate waists are crepe de chine, wash silk and voile. Remnants, big and little, can all be used with good effect in making up this summer's frocks. The simple tailored suit is in good style for the business woman or for slopping or country wear. Camisoles and brassieres are two very necessary items in the well-dressed woman's wardrobe.

NEW PICTURE HOUSE. It is expected that the British Theatre will open for business on Monday night next, with a right up to the minute programme. The ball-room has been thoroughly renovated, having been painted from top to bottom; the electric lights have been installed, and tastefully distributed around the walls and ceiling. The screen for the pictures is something that will we think, take very well with the patrons of the Theatre, as it is the most up-to-date thing in screens, now in vogue in America and Canada. The screen is built of plaster, being thoroughly opaque and rigid, will not be disturbed by atmospheric conditions, and will show a picture perfectly like-like and distinct. The seating plan of the hall is arranged according to the New York style of seating, the seats being regular opera tip seats, with hat racks underneath; the seats are very comfortable, with just enough incline to adjust itself to the persons back quite easy and restful. A singer from New York, Miss Lottie Ellimore, is expected to arrive by the express on Saturday, a very versatile and talented young lady, who is sure to make a hit with our music-loving people. The project is under the auspices of the British Society, the proceeds going into the Building Fund to pay off the debt on the hall. It is the aim of the promoters to have local help as much as possible. The pianist is Miss Kitty Devine, who comes highly recommended, having had quite some experience as a teacher and public performer in our city. Mr. F. Bussey is the operator who is well known in our midst as a machinist and skillful manipulator of picture machines. We bespeak for the old Society a fair share of the patronage of the friends and supporters of amusement-loving concerns in the city. The pictures will be the best procurable, the energetic and hard-working President, Mr. Hynes, having visited the United States during the spring, and made a contract with the best and leading firms for a plentiful supply of real good up-to-date pictures. See to-morrow's Evening Telegram for the opening announcement.

OFFICIAL.
LONDON, May 6.
The Governor, Newfoundland:
General French reports fighting on Hill 60, where the Germans obtained a footing under cover of poisonous gases.

East of Ypres the enemy were easily repulsed, our artillery inflicting severe losses.
The French Government reports progress between Lizerne and Hct Sas, which they now hold.

Near Ferribas the enemy were completely defeated, and numerous prisoners were taken.
Near Bois Dattily the Germans gained a footing in the French front line. Part of the position was re-occupied by a counter-attack, and fighting is still proceeding.

Further progress was made in Alsace.
The Russian Government report fighting between the Vistula and Carpathians with unvarying stubbornness. The Germans have brought up very strong fresh forces, supported by numerous artillery. Some Russian units have fallen back to the second line of fortifications. Near Strij the enemy re-captured certain lost trenches, but were dislodged by a counter-attack. The Russians captured 1,200 prisoners.

Particulars were published to-day respecting poisoning of wells by the enemy in German S. W. Africa.
HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.
PARIS, via St. Pierre, May 6.
North of Ypres we easily repulsed a night attack, debouching from Steenstraat.

North of Ypres, the Germans attacked near Zwartelene, trenches of Hill 60, captured last month by the British troops. Their very fierce attack, during which they again used asphyxiating gases, at first gave them possession of this position, but our Allies counter-attacked and re-captured part of the lost ground.

At Ally Wood the counter-attack delivered by us at the end of the day has secured us a slight advance, and we got back part of the position in which the Germans had penetrated in the morning.

During the night the Germans counter-attacked on a hillock to the east of Sillakwassen, occupying the summit.

The remainder of our gains in the direction of Fecht were maintained and consolidated.

A BRITISH REVERSE.
LONDON, May 6.
For the first time since the British forced the Germans from Hill 60, the Germans have been partially successful in their counter attacks, and no advice to the contrary having been received, it is assumed that the Germans are still holding to-day positions they obtained upon the Hill by the use of asphyxiating gases. In the meanwhile the German line to the East of Ypres is within three miles of the town. The British press does not seek to deny or minimize the persistence of this German offensive, but there is no disposition to lament the drawing in of the British front to Eastward and Northeastward of Ypres which was the only alternative to successful counter-attack. Confidence is expressed that the new British alignment will prove beneficial in view of hard fighting which is expected.

RUSSIANS IN DANGER.
PETROGRAD, May 6.
The Russian War Office admitted to-day that the first line of defenses of the Russian troops in Western Galicia have been carried by Austro-German forces, in that region, but asserted that all attacks on the second line have been repulsed. Latest despatches indicate that Austrians and Germans have massed in Western Galicia nearly 700,000 soldiers, several corps being veterans from the western front. Those with General Von Mackenzen's troops from the Bura-Rawka front, have led in the attacks upon the Russian positions. Russian communications were handicapped in preparations to meet the great offensive in Western Galicia by lack of railways, and feints made against various portions of the battle-front in other districts. As soon as it was definitely ascertained that a great German stroke was being made from Dunaec, reinforcements were hurried to that region.

REGAINING LOST GROUND.
LONDON, May 6.
The British War Office has issued the following statement: "There is nothing to report on the British front, except the recapture by us yesterday evening of more of our lost trenches on Hill No. 60, southeast of Ypres, and fighting still continues in that locality. Elsewhere the enemy has shown no disposition to attack.

"THAT'S DIFFERENT!"

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"It is perfectly absurd for Mary not to jump at the chance," I heard a neighbor of mine saying the other day. I asked what chance. "Why, Mrs. Martin's wish to adopt Mary's youngest child. Mary is my washerwoman, you know. She has a widow with two children and the youngest is a little dear and Mrs. Martin has quite fallen in love with her and wants to adopt her, and would you believe it, Mary can't make up her mind to let her. And all Mary has is that bit of a house and her washing. I can't understand it. I should think she would jump at the chance."

"What Would You Do?" "Would you want to give up Louise?"

"That's different," she answered sharply. "Different?"

"I'm not a widow with only a few dollars a week to keep my family together."

"Do you think you would be willing to give up Louise if you were?"

"It's her duty to do it," impatiently. "I should think you could see it."

I can see it, at least I can see what my neighbour means—that little Rose will have more comforts than her mother can give her and that there will be more left for the other child. Even so, I'm not absolutely sure she would be doing the best thing for the child to let her go. I'm not so omniscient as to know that.

But what I certainly cannot understand is the unfeeling attitude of my neighbour, just because the woman is of another financial class than she. And I have no patience with her superior "That's different."

As if They Were of Another Class. There are a great many people of the middle and upper class (I use the word in a financial sense), who think there is an actual difference between the people of the lower class and themselves. Such a woman doesn't expect these people to be actuated by the same feelings, the same loves and hates, the same desire for pleasure, the same resentment of monotony, the same physical weariness and mental unrest as she. Her laundress is sick and does not come to wash. She is impatient and resentful at the inconvenience, suspects her of drinking and is cruelly careless enough to say so without real grounds. The next day she has a headache, probably not half so bad as the illness which kept the washerwoman home, and she goes to bed and has the doctor.

When the Maid's Mother is Ill. Her maid has to leave because her mother is very ill. "It does seem as if these people always took the worst times to be sick," she says. How would she feel if anybody spoke so unfeelingly about her mother's illness?

My own washerwoman told me the other day that one of the women for whom she works is very impatient because she will not do her washing on afternoons when she has already done a washing elsewhere. Margaret has to go out to work because her husband is ill. She is none too strong to do her own work. The doctor says she ought to have a complete rest, instead of doing her work and other people's. The woman knows

Substitutes for Alcohol.

Hot Milk With Cane Sugar as a "Pick-Me-Up."

(From a Medical Correspondent.) Much effort and ingenuity has been expended in attempting to discover a substitute for alcohol. Most of that trouble has been wasted, because alcohol is a commodity by itself, with properties peculiar to itself, producing a specific effect. Strictly speaking, there is no substitute for alcohol; the real question at issue is whether some of the more general effects of alcohol may not be procurable by other means.

Many persons drink alcohol for its tonic or stimulant effect. These will tell you that it is not whisky they like, but the feeling which whisky imparts. They may be assured at once that their case is hopeless. By means of no other preparation can the stimulant effect of alcohol be produced—that is, if the others and other similar substances be excluded.

But alcohol has very diverse uses. It is a stimulant of the rapidly diffusible order, and as such is helpful occasionally, especially in old age. This quality can be imitated. As is well known, sal volatile (aromatic spirits of ammonia) is a good substitute for whisky or brandy. Alcohol is also a restorative. Here a number of preparations may take its place. Very strong black coffee is a general bracing up of the muscular system, which lasts long after the effect of alcohol would have passed away. This drink is, of course, free from all objections.

Just as the effects of alcohol can often be dissipated quickly by a few drops of the liquor of the acetate of ammonia (this is the basis of most so-called "pick-me-ups"), so undiluted lemon juice helps to relieve the thirst of the person accustomed to spirits. Strong lemon drinks may be used for a time instead of alcohol, but, though refreshing, they are apt to exert rather a "lowering" influence. Dry ginger ale is free from this objection, and is probably the best of the manufactured non-alcoholic beverages. An excellent hot-weather drink, too—and one frequently used by fieldworkers—is oatmeal water. Barley water has its place in the same category. But for sheer merit there is nothing which can compare with really good buttermilk. Buttermilk is food and drink; it is one of the best quenchers of the thirst that can possibly be obtained.

When planning the summer wardrobe, why not keep in mind the summer vacation and where you are going to spend it? If you are going to the shore, add some fluff dresses for afternoon and evening wear.

Stephano In Port.

The S. S. Stephano, Capt. Smith, arrived in port at 8 o'clock last evening after a run of 45 hours from Halifax.

Dense fog was met with for a great part of the way. At Halifax the Stephano was delayed for some time owing to a heavy rain-storm which hindered the handling of cargo. She brought a full freight and the following passengers:—

G. M. Barr, D. Baird, J. S. Dickie, Mrs. T. Nurse, Dr. C. Howlett, M. J. Delmonico, F. Canning, Dr. Scully, W. McDonald, Miss A. Carey, P. Wilinoky, Mrs. M. Cole and son, F. C. Hughie Mack

Called "FATTY"

In the moving picture world, appears at the Crescent Picture Palace today in a most amusing comedy: "Fatty on the Job." Mack is a motion picture favourite, a funnier man than John Bunny.

"Pierre of the North" is a great drama depicting winter scenes in North West Canada.

"The Reward" is a strong western drama. "Broncho Billy and the Settlers' Daughter" tells of a skirmish between cowboys and Indians; G. M. Anderson, the cowboy leader, features in this exciting drama.

"Two Little Vagabonds" is a capital drama played by the Selig juveniles, and "Lumbering in Sweden" is an educational film showing the lumber industry from the forest to the factory. Delmonico, the singer with the double voice, makes his appearance to-day singing a classy ballad: "The Garden of the Gods."

SMYTH'S

GEO. KEARNEY Manager
1. O. Box, 701. SMYTH BUILDING. Phone 726.

At the House.

Thursday, May 6th, 1915.
Petitions were presented by Mr. Stone from St. John's Cove, on Post Office matters; by Mr. Morine from Wellington, B.B., on the subject of road grants; by Mr. CHH from Boyd's Cove, for telegraph extension.

Mr. Morine called the attention of the Finance Minister to the delay in reply to a question asked by him on April 27th, and Mr. Stone to one asked by him on April 30th.

Mr. Morine moved a Resolution that an address be forwarded to His Excellency the Governor on the subject of large expenditures made without legislative authority, in violation of the Audit Act, and upon Executive responsibility, with a view to the discontinuance of the practice. He stated that the said Audit Act provided that the revenues of the country could be spent in two ways (1) by the direct vote of the Legislature, and (2) by executive responsibility under a certain section which provided for sudden and unforeseen contingencies, or for services that are urgently or immediately needed for the public good. Since the inception of the Act many expenditures had been made that were not urgently or immediately needed, had not been voted in supply, and so were made in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the law. As a lawyer, he had no hesitation in saying that such expenditures were illegal. It was also worthy of note that the greatest expenditures had been made during the years in which elections had been held, and for which no reason could be given except that of political expediency. He considered that it was high time to stop such practices, as there was no justification whatever for many of the expenditures made. The creation of new salaries and the increase of salaries did not come within the provision of what was allowed by Section 33 of the Audit Act, and the practice of making such payments was reprehensible. The purpose of the Resolutions before the Committee was to ask the Governor to abide by the Statute laws of the Colony, and not to allow practices that were subversive to the Constitutional rights of the House.

Mr. Kent felt that the Resolutions before the Committee pointed to a condition that should not exist. The Executive Government has no right whatever to expend money except by vote of the House or by that section of the Audit Act which provides for special emergencies and such payments as not emergencies, and are within the scope of the Act. He would support the motion because he was thoroughly convinced that the time has come when the representatives of the people should be more particular about the expenditure of the people's money. The Finance Minister is asking us to-day for some $4,000,000. The revenue for last year showed a deficit and the outlook for the coming year goes to show that the income will likely be less than that of last year. We have not been told where the money is to come from, and it does not seem to be known by the Government. No prudent man would make estimates for expenditure in his own business without providing the wherewithal to meet them, and as a legislator a man should do nothing that he would not do in his own private capacity. It is clear then that we have to economize and one way in which we can do this is to discontinue the practice of making such payments upon Executive responsibility as are not provided for in the Audit Act.

Mr. Lloyd said that it was quite clear that certain expenditures upon Executive responsibility were reported yearly by the Auditor General as illegal expenditures. He thought it forefront of the Premier to stand up as the champion of Sir Robert Bond, but wished to inform him that Sir Robert would not at all feel obliged to him for his remarks, which were merely the customary drawing of the red herring across the track. Mr. Lloyd had been a supporter and political friend of Sir Robert Bond for many years, and he knew enough of him to know that Sir Robert Bond would not, if he was in the House permit Sir Edward Morris to justify these practices by the use of his name. That the section of the Audit Act had been interpreted wrongly, does not justify present or future instances of illegal expenditure. The powers of a Governor should be as nearly as possible like those of the Auditor General complains annually of this matter in his report. If the Governor were advised as to the exact meaning of the Act, he would readily see that there was no justification for many of the expenditures made. The illegality of the practice calls for the stopping of these payments, or an amendment of the Act, so as to meet the requirements of the public service. Such expenditures as increases of salaries, new salaries and others should be provided for in the estimates, and in sanctioning such payments upon Executive responsibility, the Governor takes the prerogative from the House, as the money is spent before the House is asked therefore support the resolution, as he thought the time was come to effect a discontinuance of this illegal practice.

The Premier did not think the resolution should pass the House as it was an unfounded reflection on those of the present, and of previous administrations. He took exception to the charge made concerning corrupt and improper conduct, and felt that it applied also to Mr. Kent who had seconded the motion, to Mr. CHH and to Sir Robert Bond. He never thought he would have to be the advocate for the defence of Sir Robert Bond. Assuming a most dramatic attitude he attempted to prove that all the expenditures which had been made were justifiable, while the annual protests of the Auditor General show that the Act does not at all provide for such expenditures.

Mr. CHH said that notwithstanding 'the tempo' in the debate raised by the Premier, he was of the opinion that the motion for the address before the House was a fit and proper one. If in the past payments had been made contrary to the provisions of the Audit Act, that was not a proper reason why the practice of making such payments should be continued. He did not want the Premier or anyone else to defend him for anything he had done either in the House or out of it, and he felt sure that there was nothing whatever in the language of the proposer of the resolution, Mr. Morine, that reflected on the character of persons of the present or past administrations. The practice of illegal expenditures has been going on to such an extent that it is quite time to deal with it. Votes for increases of salaries, salaries for new offices and other such matters should be taken in supply. Section 3 of the Audit Act provides only for special emergencies and such payments as not emergencies, and are within the scope of the Act. He would support the motion because he was thoroughly convinced that the time has come when the representatives of the people should be more particular about the expenditure of the people's money. The Finance Minister is asking us to-day for some $4,000,000. The revenue for last year showed a deficit and the outlook for the coming year goes to show that the income will likely be less than that of last year. We have not been told where the money is to come from, and it does not seem to be known by the Government. No prudent man would make estimates for expenditure in his own business without providing the wherewithal to meet them, and as a legislator a man should do nothing that he would not do in his own private capacity. It is clear then that we have to economize and one way in which we can do this is to discontinue the practice of making such payments upon Executive responsibility as are not provided for in the Audit Act.

Mr. Lloyd said that it was quite clear that certain expenditures upon Executive responsibility were reported yearly by the Auditor General as illegal expenditures. He thought it forefront of the Premier to stand up as the champion of Sir Robert Bond, but wished to inform him that Sir Robert would not at all feel obliged to him for his remarks, which were merely the customary drawing of the red herring across the track. Mr. Lloyd had been a supporter and political friend of Sir Robert Bond for many years, and he knew enough of him to know that Sir Robert Bond would not, if he was in the House permit Sir Edward Morris to justify these practices by the use of his name. That the section of the Audit Act had been interpreted wrongly, does not justify present or future instances of illegal expenditure. The powers of a Governor should be as nearly as possible like those of the King of England whose representative is, but it will be no more in the matter with which the Committee is now dealing, the powers of the Governor are personal in regard to expenditures that are in direct opposition to the purpose of the Statute law of the Colony. The Premier had said that Section 23 allowed extraordinary latitude. This latitude could not cover the payment of amounts for salaries and increases of salaries, and this the Premier had admitted himself. For the last few years we have been faced with long lists of such expenditures, reported by the Auditor General, which were made after the House closed. Such payments were highly derogatory to the Legislature and were an abrogation of the functions of the House. He would therefore support the resolution as a means of trying to stop illegal expenditures.

The Minister of Finance was the next speaker. He thought that the resolutions had been sprung on the House; and cited the Marine Disasters Grant and other necessary expenditures as a justification for all the unnecessary and illegal expenditures. Mr. Cooker wished to support the Resolutions as they would be productive of much good and would tend to regulate expenditures, providing a check on those that are absolutely necessary.

The Colonial Secretary also spoke and endorsed the remarks made by the Premier and the Minister of Finance. Mr. Jennings made a practical speech in support of the resolutions which he thought would, if adopted, do much good towards limiting the expenditure of the public money and what is absolutely necessary for the public good.

Mr. Marline then criticised some of the arguments that had been advanced by the Minister of Finance and showed clearly that the money which the Government had spoken had evaded the real point at issue. Upon the motion being put the House was lost on a strict party vote. The House then went into a Committee of the Whole on the Stamp Duties Resolutions. An interesting discussion followed in which the speakers were the Minister of Finance, Mr. Kent, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Higgins, Mr. Morine, Mr. Hickman, Mr. Grimes, Mr. Halfyard, Mr. CHH, and Mr. Cooker. The Resolutions called for the stamping of receipts for amounts of ten dollars upwards. Upon the motion being put the House divided, Mr. Kent, Mr. Lloyd and Mr. Stone of the Opposition, and the Government members supporting the resolutions.

The House took recess at 6.30 p.m.

AFTER RECESS.

Resuming, the House went into Committee on 'Bill respecting the Management of the General Hospital. The Colonial Secretary, the introducer, pointed out that the Bill was made necessary owing to serious differences, misunderstandings and difficulties that had been going on at the institution and was drafted on the recommendations of the Commissioners who were appointed to enquire into the affairs of the Hospital. From a published report showed how the Hospital accommodation had improved in late years and that its upkeep was costing an enormous amount to the Colony. He said that since June last up to last month the institution cost $158,400. He had no doubt but that the Bill would commend itself to the Committee.

Mr. Morine congratulated the Commissioners on their admirable report and said it was the best he had ever seen presented to the Legislature. Some verbal amendments were being made to the Bill and all sections were passed, a number with verbal amendments at the suggestion of Mr. Morine and the Premier, the exception of the last clause which was deferred on the request of the latter.

Major Franklin Congratulates Lieut. H. Herder.

Lieut. Hubert Herder received a letter from Major Franklin on active service in France, dated April 11th, congratulating him on his promotion and advising him to take full advantage of his experience as an N. C. O. He said that General Smith Dorion had told them the other day that "this war was a platoon commanders and N. C. O.'s war" at least in its present stages, and Major Franklin says from what he has seen in the trenches he can quite believe it.

Maurice Costello

AT THE NICKEL.

A great show has been arranged at the Nickel Theatre for this evening. The programme includes two separate acts: "The Going of the White Swan" by Gilbert Parker which is a beautiful story of life in the Canadian West, and another is "The Girl in the Case" in which Maurice Costello plays the leading part. Mr. Costello is always a drawing card and as he appears in an exceptionally good character to-day all his admirers are sure to attend.

Baseball Meeting.

The Red Lion Baseball Club held their annual meeting last night and elected as officers for the season: President, R. G. Reid; Vice-President, F. W. Hayward; Secretary-Treasurer, J. Buckingham; Captain, A. Hiltz; Vice-Captain, D. P. Duff; Delegates, J. W. Morris and D. P. Duff. The condition of the club is very satisfactory in spite of the fact that many of their best players are now with the volunteers. Practice begins next week, and the Lions hope to put in a good team this season.

BIG EXPEDITION.

S. S. Neptune Purchased by Mr. F. E. Vassar for $37,000.

Plans All Arranged for a 'Round the World Tour for the Purpose of Obtaining Moving Pictures—Capt. Bob Bartlett Goes in Command of Ship—Trip Expected to Finish in Two and Half Years—Start Will Be Made From St. John's June 5th.

Scientists have made an invention in the moving picture line by which pictures can be taken from 150 to 180 feet below the surface of the sea, according to Mr. Frank Vassar, who is now in the city and who has promoted a great undertaking and is now ready to start with a party for a round-the-world cruise and is very optimistic as to the ultimate success of his expedition.

THE NEPTUNE BOUGHT.

When it became known a few days ago that the S. S. Neptune had changed its ownership from Messrs. Job Bros and Company, Limited, to Mr. Frank E. Vassar, Engineer, of New York, speculation was rife as to the object of the purchase. We have enquired into the matter and obtained the story of the project. The amount paid for the ship was $37,000, which is considered an excellent price and the new owner is satisfied with his bargain. Negotiations regarding the purchase were going on for some considerable time but only quite recently was the deal settled, the money handed over and the transfer made. The Neptune is one of the largest and most powerful of the wooden sailing fleet. Over 40 years ago she came to the country, but since then has been rebuilt and overhauled in a general way. She is admitted to be one of the most successful crafts that ever engaged in the seal fishery, and on two occasions brought the largest catches of seals from the seal fishery. The Neptune was chartered for six months three years ago by "Lucky Scott" and party on an exploration trip to Baffin's Land. At that time the ship was commented on favourably for her good qualities. She is now awaiting to get a new shaft put in position, replacing the one that was broken at the icebergs.

CAPT. BOB BARTLETT.

One who is well fitted for the work has been selected to take command of the ship in the person of Capt. Bob Bartlett, who is known not only in Newfoundland but all the world over as the intrepid explorer of the Arctic regions. Capt. Bob has had some hair-breadth escapes on his expeditions but, fortunately, has always come through all right.

CONTEMPLATED TRIP.

Mr. Vassar arrived in the city a week ago and in an interview with a Telegram representative said that the object of his visit was to finalize negotiations for the purchase of the Neptune. He did not represent anybody but himself just now, though a new company, known as the Educational Feature Film Company was being incorporated at New York, comprising Daniel A. Levey, President; Frank E. Vassar, Vice-President and General Manager; A. S. Longthal, Treasurer; Messrs. R. L. Pellet, J. King and R. Nichols. Continuing, Mr. Vassar said that it is the intention to make a trip to remote sections of the world for the purpose of making educational movies. The proposed trip will cost, it is estimated by Mr. Vassar, over a million dollars, as no expense will be spared in order to have the desired gains carried out successfully. Queried as to what the nature of the outfit for the ship would likely be, Mr. Vassar replied that the Neptune would take supplies for eighteen months for thirty-one persons. She will not be outfitted here principally owing to the high prices of food stuffs, but will take 650 tons of coal here. She will be provisioned at New York. Her crew, however, will be made up of Newfoundlanders, if possible, as follows:—A Captain, 1st Mate, 2nd Mate, Bosun, Carpenter, four seamen, Chief Engineer, 2nd Engineer, 3rd Engineer, 4 Firemen, 1 Oiler, 2 Trimmers, 1 Cook and 1 Steward. A special endeavour will be made to get some of the crew who were with the "Lucky Scott" Expedition. The Neptune will be ready to sail from St. John's on June 5th, or four weeks hence, for New York where she will be joined by Norman G. Smith, Director and Manager of the Pictures and President of the Technical Photo-Company of New York; E. S. Brooks who will act as camera man with the party; R. L. Pellet, Geological Surveyor; Dr. J. G. Molton, who was with the Scott party a few years ago and who was to the icebergs this spring in the Beothic, goes along as surgeon, while the remainder of the party will be made up of Mr. Vassar and a female Indian named "Pokeda" who is at present working as broncho rider with 101 ranch in Florida for a moving picture outfit and is paid a large salary. This Indian resembles an Eskimau and on that account it is thought will be of great assistance while the party are north. Mr. Vassar is no novice in travelling. He has spent periods at mine examining of all sorts in the States, Canada, Japan, China, Philippine Islands and other parts of the world. Last year he was in New Mexico in charge of machine guns at the battle of Torion for General Villa. He will take with him the latest type of modern movie outfit. It cost over $26,000. He proposes to take all pictures under the sea himself. Further he has an improvement over the ordinary machine for taking land pictures. The lens of his machine which takes the picture, was secured at a cost of $3,000. With it anything as far as the naked eye is able to see can be caught.

Fun Contest To-Night.

Numbers of seats have been booked for the great competition to-night. There are several names and some fine talent. After six contests, the first prize-winner of each contest will again compete for a large money prize or a week's engagement at a good salary; be in time for the contest to-night, as last week standing room could not be had.

There was a good house last night at Rossley's and all thoroughly enjoyed the beautiful Indian Act by Mr. Ballard Brown and dainty Madge Locke. They are without a doubt the best singers ever here. The great Vitaphone photo-play in three reels, "Becky Sharp" and a wonderful feature by the American Bioscope, "Brutality." A great night to-night at Rossley's.

THE POLITE MAN.

When Wigglewax is on the street, a charming smile adorns his face; to every dame he-haps to meet, he bows with courtesy, old world grace. His seat, when riding in a car, to any girl he'll sweetly yield; and women near and far, and say he is a Chesterfield. Throughout the town, from west to east, the man for chivalry is famed. "The Bayards are not all deceived," the women say, when he is named. At home this Bayard isn't thus; his eye is fierce, his face is sour; he looks around for things to fuss, and jaws the women by the hour. His daughters tremble at his frown, and wonder why he's such a bear; his wife would like to jump the town, and bite herself most anywhere. But if a visitor drops in, his manner changes with a jerk, he wears his false and shallow grin, and bows like some jilted Turk. Then for his daughters and his wife, he wears his smile serene and fat, and calls her, "No sordid strife can enter such a home as that. A million frauds like Wigglewax are smirking on the streets to-day, and when at eve they seek their shacks, they'll beat and grouch, the old stale way."

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There was a crowded house at each performance at the cosy little theatre last night and all were loud in their praise of the splendid new pictures. The last shipment received by Mr. Rossley contains some of the finest films on the English market. The two Little Sisters Squires sang a new song and won great applause. To-night there will be the big contest at Rossley's East End Theatre, a great number of names have been handed in, and a real good show of local talent is promised, and as it is conducted in an orderly manner by Mr. Rossley and Mr. Ballard Brown a night of real enjoyment is assured.

Models in Baby Carriages

Fashion varies, even in Baby Carriages, as our recent shipment plainly shows. We have just received a quantity of 1915 Models and they have several improvements on those of last year.

We have Runabouts, Go-Carts and Pullman's in Fancy Wood and Cane, all well hung on tested springs; upholstered in Rep, Leather Cloth, Corduroy and Broadcloth, and all remarkably well-built and perfectly finished. For comfort, beauty of design, quality of workmanship and reasonableness of price, you cannot do better than get Baby her new Carriage at the
