CHAPTER LIV.

Love is proverbially blind; but it must have been blinder than usual in the case of one so keen-witted as Lady de Vere, who still idealized Lord Clanronald, although she knew his real character. The Marquis, a tall, pleasant-looking man, had but little attraction for his young wife.

That first evening which they passed together was slightly embarrassing. The Marchioness de Vere sat where the light of the great chandelier fell full upon her. She knew that she had secured the best position in which to display her charms, her lily-and-rose-like complexion, fresh as a young May morning.

With a wave of her plumed fan she motioned Lord Clanronald to her side. She chatted with him gaily and freely, watching the while if any trace of jealousy came over Diana's face, flirting with him in most coquettish fashion, little dreaming that she was sitting Diana a pleasant and a welcome taste of freedom. The Marquis de Vere devoted himself to Thea, whom he considered a remarkably sensible young woman, although not by any means to be compared to her sister.

Sir Royal, looking on, frowned heavily when he saw Lord Clanronald's undisguised devotion to his old love. He went up to Diana and took a seat beside her.

"Diana," he said, in a low voice, "do you mind that?"

She understood at once to what he referred and smiled.

"No," she replied—"not in the least, Royal."

"You do not feel grieved or disturbed at seeing your husband flirt with Lady de Vere?" he said, vehemently.

"Not in the least," she replied.

"Then Heaven help you! You would be a happier woman if you did!" he declared.

But she calmed him, and would not let him say more.

That evening Lady Clanronald felt anxious concerning her old friend, for his manner was entirely changed from that of the Sir Royal of old. He seemed moody and fitful, and at times his eyes flashed fire and his face flushed; then the flush faded and the light died from his eyes. He would, too, occasionally grow silent and strange. She could see also that his ideas were not clear or connected.

"Royal," she said, "I am sure you are not well."

"I have never been well since you left home, Diana," he answered. "I have a terrible fear at times with regard to myself—a terrible fear!"

"What is it?" asked Diana, kindly.

"I dare not shape it," he replied.

"It hangs over me like a cloud. I could not put it into words. But never mind that, Diana. I long to talk to you—to speak of you, not of myself. You are quite sure," he added, nodding his head in the direction of Lord Clanronald, "that you are not annoyed?"

"Why should I be, dear friend," she asked, with a shrug of her beautiful shoulders.

"If you were my wife, Diana," he cried, suddenly, "I should never leave you for one moment."

She tried to laugh gaily, although the tears were welling into her eyes.

"Perhaps you would be very much in the way at times," she said, smilingly.

"That is the old Diana, saucy and bright!" he declared. "I like to hear that. You are always so grave now," he continued, sadly—"so terribly grave! I long to hear you talk and laugh as you used to do. Do you remember how you used to lecture us all, Diana?"

"I remember everything that took place in the old, happy days," she answered.

"And you," he said, "will never be happy again. Oh, Diana, how is it—why is it? Your face has never been like the face of another girl; it always had a story in it."

Just then Lady Cameron came up to them, looking very handsome in rich amber satin, with black lace and diamonds.

"Diana, will you sing for us?" she asked; and even she started back when she saw the emotion in her face.

"What have you been talking about—you and Sir Royal—that you both look so sad?"

"About old times," answered Diana. "I will not sing to-night, Lady Cameron; I am tired, and it will be a pleasure to hear others."

But she did not think so when Thea sat down to the piano, and these sweet, sad words fell on her ears:

"If I am cruel though you are kind, If I taunt and tease you with passionate words, If I feel no faith in the vows that bind, And deem your love as the birds'—
"Bear with me, and say, 'Men are oft frowns';"

She may lead by the light of some phantom flame, Showing mournful mothers and maids forlorn, And 'lover' the lightest name. And for this—for this doth she turn to err, And dream forever that men betray: Since how should she know that my love for her Was never the love of a day?"

CHAPTER LV.

The anniversary of the birth of Lady Cameron was to be celebrated on the morrow, and the servants at Ferness had good reason to remember it, for never had the millionaire made such provision for a party. Diana, however, took but a languid interest in the elaborate preparations, for her own affairs more than sufficed to absorb all her attention. When she awoke this morning, the birds were singing outside her window in a perfect rapture of delight, flitting from bough to bough, calling in sweet, shrill notes one to another. She listened to them for a few minutes, and, wife of a wealthy peer, mistress of magnificent estates, heiress of Ferness, and certain of two millions of money as she was, she envied them. She would have given all that she possessed to be as free as they. She dreaded the morrow with all its gayeties, and the more than probable humiliations that her husband would inflict upon her and her father by his excess and his furious outbursts of temper.

It was cruel that Diana, one of the proudest of girls, who had never known humiliation, who had received every word that failed to accord with her ideas of what was due to her, should now be subjected to almost every conceivable mortification and humiliation. Mrs. Marche was an idolized wife. Honest Richard Marche loved her with his whole heart, and was one of the kindest and most indulgent of husbands. Thea was a stranger to care, and blissful contentment shone in her eyes. They were thoroughly happy. "A model pair," Lady Cameron called them. The Marchioness de Vere was treated with the greatest deference and consideration by her husband. He—a model of courtesy grace—never for one moment forgot the homage due to his wife. Lady de Vere had never even heard him raise his voice in anger. It was proud, beautiful Diana, the heiress, who was the neglected wife; it was she who trembled at the sound of her husband's voice or footsteps; it was she who was obliged, if she wished to preserve appearance, to submit to every imaginable insult.

"A strange retribution!" and she acknowledged to herself that it was such. She could not fail to see that her fair face treated her with a kindness and consideration they would never have shown to her had she been happy. Thea was kindness itself. Lady Cameron gentle and careful in retraining from all show of supremacy. If she had always been thus considerate, Diana's story might have been very different; but her heart, worldly and vain as it was, relented when she saw the young wife's struggle to hide her misery and keep a brave face to the world. She was earnestly, honestly sorry for her, and, as time in passing showed more clearly the evil and vicious character of Lord Clanronald, she grew more and more thankful that he had not married her daughter.

Lady de Vere had her own theories regarding this ill-assorted union. She had a certain compassion for Diana, but her vanity and hate distorted facts. She could not help admitting that Lord Clanronald had many and great faults; but she accounted for them by saying that he was not happily married, that Diana was not suited to him, that if his marriage had been different, he would have been a different man. She felt quite confident that he drank in order to drown his disappointment, and that his bad temper was owing to drink.

"He would never have been like this if he had married me, mamma," she said one day. "Diana has brought out all the bad points of his character. I liked him well enough once to have been willing to take the trouble to bring out the good ones."

"You had a marvellous escape, my dear," said Lady Cameron, "and you may be very thankful for it."

But to that Lady de Vere would never agree. In her way she was kind to Diana; she could not, however, refrain now and then from a little satire, a little triumph, a shot at the weakest part of Diana's armor—she could not forbear showing her how well and how easily she could manage Lord Clanronald.

Diana well recalled how she had resisted the coming of these two girls to her home, what struggles she had had with them, how she had resisted them. And now they were the witnesses of her humiliation and mortification. A retribution indeed! Lord Clanronald happened to be in one of his worst humors on this morning—the day preceding the great event in Ferness. His unfortunate valet, Jules, had done something which had greatly irritated him, and the only person upon whom he could vent his wrath was his wife. He was very gracious to Lady de Vere, who had given him a beautiful white narcissus for his coat, which she affected to have saved for him. He was delighted with this attention from his quondam lady-love, but he thought to himself, "My wife would not have taken that trouble."

The party were gathered round the table in the breakfast-room—a pretty apartment that opened into a quaint and old-fashioned garden, a room that seemed to be all white lace and rose-buds—but, instead of coming at once to the breakfast-table, Diana loitered for a few minutes in the garden, and gathered some lilies of the valley.

The warm, sunlit air tempted her, and she remained a few minutes longer than she should have done. Then remembering suddenly that the breakfast hour was past, she hastened into the room. Quite unconscious that her husband was in an angry mood, she passed him with a courteous "Good-morning!" Seeing her father looking at her with a pleasant smile, she went up to him, put her arms lovingly round his neck, and kissed him; then she laid the lilies by the side of his plate.

"I knew you like lilies papa," she said. "I have brought you these."

"Thank you, my darling," he answered.

Lord Clanronald looked up, his face like a thunder-cloud.

"You would not have taken the trouble to gather flowers for me," he said.

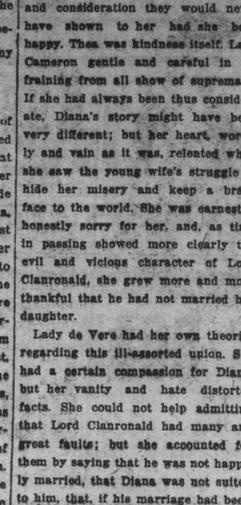

"I did not know that you cared for them," she replied, coldly.

"Others know that I do," he said, pointing to the white narcissus.

The scene delighted Lady de Vere. "I always knew that you liked flowers," she declared—"your 'button-holes' were chosen with such good taste."

ARMISTICE SITUATION IMPROVED.
LONDON, Nov. 26.
Considerable improvement in the African situation is reported here as a result of conversations in Paris between British, French, Italian and Jugo Slav representatives. The latest indications are that there is a possibility of a compromise settlement satisfactory to all parties including Capt. Gabriele D'Annunzio.

NEW HOME RULE MEASURE.
LONDON, Nov. 26.
A new Home Rule Bill setting up two Parliaments in Ireland with a Council or Senate of forty to be chosen by the two, will probably be introduced in Parliament within the next two weeks. Daily sessions are being held by the Cabinet Committee in charge of the measure; the subject under discussion at present being finance, which is in charge of a sub-committee under the chairmanship of

J. Austin Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The control of customs has always been the point of sharpest difference when other Home Rule schemes have been debated, and was one of the rocks upon which the Irish convention was shipwrecked. The control of the police was another knotty point. The most hopeful sign of an agreement is the silence which Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, has preserved since the latest Irish kite was flown. It is supposed that there has been an understanding on the main points before the committee was named. The final word, however, does not rest with Parliament but with the Sinn Féin party. If that organization pursues its policy of refusing recognition of British law the British planned Irish parliament may come to nothing since the Sinn Féin polled the majority of Irish votes at the last election.

ROYALISTS AT WORK.
BUDAPEST, Nov. 26.
Posters demanding the restoration of the Royal Arms on public buildings and declaring the proclamation of the Hungarian Republic unlawful, appeared in this city overnight. It is generally regarded that these posters mark the opening of the Royalist Party's election campaign.

DENIKINE RETREATING.
LONDON, Nov. 26.
General Denikine's army in Southern Russia is retreating, the Bolsheviks having captured ten towns in three days and still advancing according to a wireless despatch received here from Moscow. Bolshevik troops are entering Ekranina where they intend to stay, the despatch adds.

LABOR AND PROHIBITION.
CHICAGO, Nov. 26.
The new Labor Party of the United States, refrained from taking a positive stand on the Prohibition Question but after several hours of heated discussion a compromise measure was adopted which provided for the appointment of a special committee of three to investigate the question.

SHARP NOTE SENT TO GERMANY.
LONDON, Nov. 26.
A wireless message from Berlin gives the text of a stern note that M. Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, addressed to the Chairman of the German delegation to Versailles, refusing to deviate from the terms of the peace in favor of German prisoners who are employed in the work of reconstruction in devastated northern France. Referring to the brutal treatment meted out to the populations of this district under German occupation, M. Clemenceau is quoted as saying, "The deepest sentiments of the human heart have been so cruelly injured that French public opinion cannot agree to grant the favor you request." The note sets forth that Germany systematically delayed the performance of the armistice terms and instances the sinking of the German warships in Scapa Flow, the delay in the delivery of Germany's ships, Germany's Baltic policy and the anti-Entente propaganda in Alsace and the world at large and declares "We owe nothing to Germany except the precise fulfillment of the provisions of the peace accepted by Germany."

SIGNIFICANT OCCURRENCES IN BERLIN.
BERLIN, Nov. 26.
The presence of General Ludendorff, former first Quartermaster General in the Imperial army of Potsdam Garrison Church, during a memorial service for the Germans who fell in battle, was the occasion for striking demonstrations. General Ludendorff spoke of military training as an invigorating and moral education. One of the congregation dressed in a field gray uniform rose and exclaimed, "When the hour comes we will follow you, General," whereupon the whole congregation stood up and sang "Deutschland uber allen." In the course of his sermon the preacher said, "When the time comes we shall die bravely for our brothers and our honor and not disgrace ourselves." At the close of the sermon the preacher standing on the tomb of Frederick the Great summoned the congregation to unite in creating a monarchy which would be supported by the will of the people. General Ludendorff was given an ovation as he left the building, and cheers also were raised for former Emperor William.

Several applications for membership were received at last night's meeting of the Ladies' Branch of the N. L. W. A. The routine business was gone through, and the Committee of the recent dance in the Blue Putee Hall reported that the affair had been financially successful. It was also announced that a gentleman of the city had presented the Branch with a number of gramophone records and other useful presents. The girl-workers of the Nfld. Knitting Mills presented a beautiful gold wrist watch to the President, Mrs. A. E. Earle, as a token of the services performed by her, in connection with the organization and work in the Branch. Mrs. Earle suitably replied. The Ladies' Branch is doing excellent work and will continue to do so.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY SHE WAS THANKFUL.

Last year, on the Sunday before Thanksgiving Day, I attended a little Thanksgiving service in a country church, at which those present were asked to get up and say briefly what they were thankful for.

One woman got up and said, "I know Lord, that a lot of people are worse off than I am, and I'm thankful for that."

Perhaps she did not mean exactly what she said.

And yet it seems to me that there is a certain smugness in the thankfulness of many people that does come so easily near to just that spirit.

Why We Can't Spare Poverty.

I remember reading somewhere a story in which a rich woman argues that Socialism, or any such scheme for the banishment of poverty, would be wrong because we should have no one to give to, which would be bad for us. She pointed out in triumphant support of her theory that Christ said, "The poor ye have always with you."

At the time I thought the character of Christ, I am not so sure now.

We Cannot Help Being Thankful For Our Own Comfort BUT—

Of course one cannot help being thankful that one is not suffering from poverty or ill-health or any kind of misery. Of course the slight suffering cannot help intensifying one's realization of one's own blessed state.

But does one realize this in a spirit of smug self-content, or with a rush of compassion, a longing to help and give, so potent that it even pushes aside the barrier that forever stands between emotion and deed, and actually translates itself into some sort of action?

The True Thanksgiving Prayer.

That is my idea of the true Thanksgiving prayer.

Not the sort which a poet unknown to me, (I should be grateful for information as to his identity) has expressed so much better than I could. We thank thee, Yet, in the even tone

Fashions and Fads.

A very smart evening gown is based on the colors of the goldfish. Short skirts and slim effects are as popular as the fuller draped hip. A frilled cravat of lace is worn with the severely fashioned tailor coat. A new soft leather is used in many shades as a millinery trimming. No one silhouette seems to be in evidence but a variety of many kinds. Collars and cuffs of white kid on black velvet are novelties of the season.

Velour and panne in swathed and draped effects is a popular millinery note.

Important!

Every man starting out in business will have to go over a "hard road" and find out its turnings for himself. But he need not go over his road in the dark if he can take with him the light of other men's experience.

THANKSGIVING.
For the laughter of our children and the courage of our youth.
For our land of peace and plenty and her Starry Flag of truth.
For the sunshine on the hilltops and the fields of golden grain.
And for all His gracious kindness, now we offer thanks again.

For the bounty of His giving and the richness of His years.
For the strength that has sustained us through the nightmare of our tears.
For His blessing on our labor and His ever watchful care.
Now we turn from selfish living to make this a time of prayer.

For His presence at each bedside where the sick and wounded lie.
For the peace and rest of heaven that are theirs He calls to die.
For the glory of the living and the triumph of the dead.
And the splendor of our nation, now our grateful prayers are said.

Airmen's Deady Work Against Zeppelins.

On Monday, November 27, 1916, two Zeppelins were brought down after dropping over 100 bombs in Yorkshire and Durham. No person was killed, but one woman died from shock, and five men, seven women and four children sustained injuries. In one town 35 houses were damaged, 15 of them seriously, but apart from this the damage was insignificant. One of the Zeppelins was attacked by an aeroplane of the Royal Flying Corps, and brought down in flames into the sea off the coast of Durham at 11.45 p.m. Another Zeppelin crossed into the North Midland counties and dropped bombs at various places. On her return journey she was repeatedly attacked by aeroplanes of the Royal Flying Corps and by anti-aircraft guns. The last part of her journey was made at very slow speed, and she was unable to reach the coast before day broke. Near the Norfolk coast she apparently succeeded in effecting repairs, and after passing through gunfire from the land defences, which claim to have made a hit, proceeded east at a high speed and at an altitude of over 8,000 feet, when she was attacked nine miles out at sea by four machines of the Royal Naval Air Service and an armed trawler and brought down in flames at 6.45 a.m. All was over in less time than it takes to write, leaving behind a red and smoky glare. Then from the level of the sea rose a tall, black column, hanging motionless. It stayed there more than an hour, a vast monument marking a grave. A British airman who flew in from the sea and descended on the coast was given a tremendous reception. He was carried shoulder-high through streets crowded with cheering people, while the sirens on the shipping shrieked triumphantly. Someone started to sing "God Save the King," and it was taken up by the excited crowd and continued until the whole of the wreck disappeared. On November 28, a German aeroplane paid a brief visit to London just before midday, dropping six bombs. Nine persons were injured and slight damage was done. There was every reason to believe that it was brought down, for the Admiralty message issued 12 hours after the raid stated, that the French had brought down an aeroplane at Dunkirk at 2.15 p.m. There were two naval lieutenants aboard, and they had with them a large-scale map of London. The names of the two commanders brought down in England were Captain Diedrich and Lieutenant Frankenburg.

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY.

Oft I envy Ebenezer, of the ragged coat and hair; he's a heedless, happy geezer, who has never known a care. All the day he sits and whistles, with his back against the wall, and he cares no jot or tittle what of evils may befall. Dynasties and thrones may tremble, and he doesn't care a hoot; mighty armies may assemble, and the battle bugles toot; but the marching of a Caesar on new victories' tent, doesn't bother Ebenezer, doesn't jar him worth a cent. While he has his daily vittles he is stranger to a care, and he whistles and he whistles, with the chinchbugs in his hair. All the land is in commotion, every day new problems rise; from the East to western ocean there are mad excited guys; there are spasms, wild, titanic, every way a man may turn; Ebenezer views the panic, and he doesn't care a dern. Ebenezer sits and whistles, following his lifelong plan, while the papers print epistles from the "Constant Reader" clan, pointing out that Doom is coming to our bulwarks and our shrines, and that Nemesis is humming all along the vengeful lines. Ebenezer's view is broader than these visions of despair; while he has his daily fodder, what should Ebenezer care? If there's trouble on the morrow, why go forth that woe to meet? Why should he consort with sorrow, when he has enough to eat?

The oldest tree in the world is said to be the famous dragon tree of Tenerife, which is estimated to be from 4,000 to 5,000 years of age. This wonder of the plant world was 70 feet or more in height until the year 1819, when, during a terrific storm, one of the large branches was broken off. A similar storm in 1867 stripped the trunk of its remaining branches, and left it standing alone.

Lives of Women and Children

Needlessly Sacrificed---

What Halifax Physicians said.

(in connection with $200,000 Salvation Army Maternity Hospital now being erected in Halifax. — Lieut. Governor Grant, Hon. Chairman.)

It is not a question if we can AFFORD this hospital. The fact is we cannot afford to be WITHOUT it.

"Conservation is the cry—we must start at the very beginning."

Such cases as the following have been found:—

One bedroom for a sick mother and new-born child, all other children sleeping on mattress on kitchen floor; no running water, and no sanitation in the house.

Babies, chilled to the bone, for want of warm clothing, failing to get nourishment from mothers fed on bread and tea, die, and thus is piled up an enormous death rate.

Eight months' infant fed on meat, dumplings and gravy.

Sixteen months' baby fed on black tea and sausage.

Illustrative record of 23 children born—2 died at birth—2 died in 2 days—1 died in 1 month—1 died in 2 1/2 months—1 died in 3 months—nearly 35 per cent. mortality for lack of modern maternity facilities.

The excessive deaths of this kind

Cost Newfoundland $2,500,000 in ten years.

The recent infant death rate in England was 102 per thousand per year.

The recent infant death rate in Newfoundland 135 per thousand per year.

Newfoundland's excessive death rate of infants was, therefore, 33 per thousand per year.

Number of births per year in Newfoundland about 7,500.

Excessive death rate in Newfoundland was thus about 250 infants per year.

$1,000 is a low estimate of the value of each child's life to the State.

Therefore loss through death of 250 children was $250,000 in one year.

Loss in 10 years, $2,500,000.

Newfoundland has to depend for its prosperity upon the natural increase of population, rather than upon immigration.

Children are the hope of the Dominion.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—I am glad to know that there is another comrade in arms beginning to talk. It is about time for somebody to look after the soldiers' interests. I stated in your paper of the 2nd that the merchants were not treating the returned soldiers fairly; it is quite true, and many soldiers can verify what I say. But I may further add that there is a couple of firms who acted splendidly with the boys, and in return our boys appreciate what these gentlemen have done and it is very easy to find out who these gentlemen are. But what about the rest of the merchants? When they want a man for any of their different departments and a returned soldier applies for the position, he is asked if he got any experience, and this is what I would like to know, say a man is twenty or twenty-one years old and has spent three or four years overseas. What experience can these men have in a commercial line of business? None, but if a Newfoundland can learn in six months what it takes an English soldier five years in peace time to learn, he can learn enough in four to work in any store on Water Street. Then why don't the merchants take these men on at a decent salary for let's say, a three or four months trial. But they won't do this. That is only one or two will. They can get girls nowadays to do a man's work at about one quarter of a man's pay; should this not be allowed?

ed? No. It would not be so had if these girls were paid according to their work.

But now what about this $2000 that the Government owes her returned soldiers, are we to wait until the Canadians get theirs? Surely we are not under Confederation? As my friend "Blank File" says the Maple Leaf did not lead the Caribou in No Man's Land. I think some people are under the impression that all returned soldiers are shell-shocked, but they will be greatly surprised and frightened when a few "duds" like some of us explode in their midst. And I may further add that any returned soldier who works for eight or nine dollars a week must be really shell-shocked. Thanking you for valuable space in your paper, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,
"AN EXPLOSIVE DUD."

ARRIVES WITH PRISONERS.—Constable Grouchy arrived in town, yesterday's train having in charge a prisoner who was sentenced at Holyrood, to one month's imprisonment for assault.

At the Majestic.

The full house at the Majestic Theatre last evening was thoroughly satisfied with Sessue Hayakawa, the wonderful Japanese actor, in his big picture, "The Bravest Way." Hayakawa is an actor with no equal in his particular line, and in his latest production surpasses himself. He is very ably assisted by his Japanese wife, who is also a first-class actress. The music by the Orchestra was peculiarly suited to the show, and everybody was charmed by the new Grand Piano recently installed by the Theatre. The tone of this piano is very sweet and with Professor King at the key-board, good music had to result. The Theatre is now having installed a glass-enclosed vestibule just inside the entrance door. This will have the same effect of preventing and making impossible whatever draft might otherwise be found. Catering to patrons, is the motto of the Majestic and the proof that such a course of action is appreciated is given by the large crowds of people who attend to-night's show.

TRUCKS LEAVE RAILS.—The passenger train was late in arriving today due to two of the trucks leaving the rails near Hell Hill. It took a couple of hours work to repair them.

HAD NO POWERS.

PARIS, Nov. 26.

Contrary to expectations, the plenipotentiaries of Jugo Slavia, did not sign the Austrian peace treaty this afternoon. The reason given by them was that they found they did not have the requisite powers to sign the treaty. The plenipotentiaries of the other annexes, the plenipotentiaries of the other annexes, which they have eight days, within which to secure the necessary powers, and it is believed here that this authorization will be received within that period. The annexes provide for the protection of racial minorities, re-arrangement concerning Italy and a financial arrangement regarding sharing expenses in the liberation from the former Austrian-Hungarian monarchy. The time for the signing of the Austrian peace treaty has been finally fixed for 10.30 o'clock tomorrow morning. It will take place in the Neully town hall.

AFTER BULGARIA-TURKEY.

PARIS, Nov. 26.

The Turkish questions will be discussed after the Bulgarian treaty is signed to-morrow. This will take place in the Hall of Ceremonies. The Mayor's office, at Neully, the British are understood to be urging that a conference of Turkish delegates be called during the month of December. The French appear not to be anxious to hurry these negotiations, and it is still doubtful where they will be held, the French not yet having given their consent for the holding of the conference in London. It has been urged by the British, who are understood to be urging that the conference be held in London, that the meantime, indicate a state of emergency throughout the territories of the old Ottoman Empire, which makes some sort of action urgent.

The plenipotentiaries have eight days, within which to secure the necessary powers, and it is believed here that this authorization will be received within that period. The time for the signing of the peace treaty has been definitely fixed for 10.30 o'clock tomorrow morning. It will take place in the Neuilly town hall.

AFTER BULGARIA-TURKEY.

PARIS, Nov. 26. The Turkish questions will be up-posed, after the Bulgarian treaty is signed to-morrow. This will take place in the Hall of Ceremonies. At the Mayor's office, at Neuilly, the British are understood to be urging that a conference of Turkish delegates be called during the month of December. The French appear not to be anxious to hurry these negotiations, and it is still doubtful where they will be held, the French not yet having given their consent for the holding of the conference in London. Reports reaching conference circles, meantime, indicate a state of anarchy throughout the territories of the old Ottoman Empire, which makes some sort of action urgent.

REQUEST FROM THE HOLY SEE.

MUNICH, Nov. 26. According to official information received here, the Holy See has taken steps to ask France that the repatriation of the German prisoners shall take place between the present time and Christmas.

WILL FIGHT TO THE END.

IRKUTSK, Siberia, Nov. 21. The all-Russian Government today issued the following appeal: "In spite of temporary misadventures, we are as before, ready for a struggle with our enemy, and our struggle will only be ended when our enemy is performing its duty."

DEARER THAN IN ST. JOHN'S.

LONDON, Nov. 26. The first wooden house approved by the Ministry of Health is now occupied at Norwich. It took a month to build, and cost 653 pounds sterling, three times the pre-war price. London property owners allege there is a ring among builders, and merchants that is responsible for house building, costing eight to twelve hundred per cent. more than before the war.

NEW AERIAL FLIGHT.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 26. A prize of 50,000 florins has been offered for the first successful flight from Holland to the Dutch East Indies, and many Dutch aviators are expected to attempt it as soon as the route is mapped out and final arrangements made.

ALLIED RECOGNITION.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 24. The new Hungarian cabinet, formed by Karl Huszar, began its work to-day. Sir George Clarke, the Allied representative at Budapest, has sent a note to M. Huszar stating that the Allies are prepared to recognize the present cabinet as a provisional government, with which the Supreme Council can negotiate until elections are held.

FETEING THE SHAH.

PARIS, Nov. 26. The Shah of Persia was the Guest, to-day, of President Poincare, at a hunting party at Rambouillet, which the President arranged in honour of the Persian Ruler.

A COMPLETE FAILURE.

ROME, Nov. 26. Major Giurati, Chief of Gabrielle D'Annunzio's Cabinet, who recently came to Rome on a mission to discuss the Fiume question with the Italian authorities, left last night to return to Fiume, the Tempo announced to-day. The newspaper adds that the impression is that his mission was a complete failure.

PLANNING ANOTHER COUPE.

ROME, Nov. 26. The Socialist Organ Avanti, to-day, warns the Government that Gabrielle D'Annunzio is preparing a surprise descent on Trieste. The newspaper says that D'Annunzio has abandoned his original intention of effecting a landing at Ancona, but sent missionaries to sound officials at Trieste, giving ground for the belief that the poet is aiming at the establishment of a Militarist Government there.

PRESS DENIES RUMOR.

BERLIN, Nov. 26. A rumor that the German Government fearing trouble over the stern note on the question of German prisoners, written to the Protocol Mission at Versailles by Premier Clemenceau, held up the note for ten days, is denied by the Tageblatt to-day. The newspapers say that it turns out that this note was not handed to Herr Von Simon, Head of the German Mission, until after his second conference, after which the German Plenipotentiary and his party immediately left Paris, not having any instructions as to final determination of the question of prisoners. With reference to the note the Tageblatt says that once more Premier Clemenceau shows his repellent tone, charged with unquenchable hate. The article concludes with a speculation as to whether the note indicates that the German prisoners will be returned after the formal ratification of the Treaty, or whether it is the intention to hold them indefinitely. According to the Berliner Zeitung, Herr Von Simon, who went to Paris as Head of the Mission, will not return to the French Capital. The new instructions, the newspaper states, are calculated to prove to the Entente that the German Government sincerely desires to fulfill its obligations.

SITUATION IMPROVING.

LONDON, Nov. 26. The imposition of strict regulations in Egypt has resulted in an improvement in the Native press, and the situation generally, according to a despatch from Cairo under last Friday's date. Demonstrations have been banned after the midday prayer, the despatch says.

Laugh Stories.

THE WAY OUT.

A patriotic visitor was being entertained on board a Japanese battleship. His hosts piled him so freely with drinks that towards the end of the meal, he, less strong-headed than they, began to feel the effects. They invited him at length to come and see round the ship.

"Can't we stay here and let the ship go round us?" he replied, weakly.

WISHED HE WAS PRESENT.

"Well, that's enough to try the patience of Job," exclaimed the village minister, as he threw aside the local paper.

"Why, what's the matter, dear?" asked his wife.

"Last Sunday I preached from the text, 'Be ye therefore steadfast,'" answered the good man; "but the printer makes it read, 'Be ye there for breakfast!'"

QUITS.

The master was examining a student in physics, and the young man, being nervous, failed utterly on the first question put to him, a very simple one.

"Bring this gentleman a bundle of hay for his breakfast," remarked the disgusted examiner to one of his attendants.

"Bring two; the professor and I will breakfast together!" added the student, who thus suddenly regained and asserted his self-possession.

WHAT THE NURSE WIRED.

A commercial traveller connected with a certain cycle-company went from home to a distant town just before a certain family event was expected to take place.

To set his mind at rest he left instructions with the nurse to wire, "Gentlemen's safely arrived," if the expected stranger turned out to be a boy, and if it was a girl to telegraph the words: "Lady's safely arrived."

"Judge of his surprise and dismay when a few days later he received a telegram containing only the ominous word: "Tandem!"

HOW THE DOG DIED.

The Irish propensity to get the last word in an encounter of wits is quoted by "Good Health" in this story: "Well," a friend of the Irishman asked, "and how is that dog of yours doing?"

"Oh, he's dead. The poor baste swallowed a tape measure."

"Oh, I see. He died by inches then?"

"He did not. He went round to the back of the house and died by the yard."

A COMING POLITICIAN.

At a recent school examination the teacher was asking a class of small boys some questions, to find out their intelligence. He wandered through different subjects, and at last came to speak about measles, when a very little boy jumped up and exclaimed: "Please, sir, you will not whip me if I ask a question?"

"No," said the teacher. Then the question came: "Why did Eve never catch the measles?"

This the teacher could not solve, so he gave it up.

"Because she'd Adam," exclaimed the small pupil.

HIS PRISONER.

A certain Tommy Atkins has a good industrious wife, who assists in supporting the family with the aid of a mangle, but who is something of a tartar.

The other week, during a short leave, Tommy was invited to a smoking concert, and, desiring to avail himself of the opportunity of a jovial evening, he mentioned the fact to the "mistress."

going, and threatened, if he disobeyed her ultimatum that she would follow him. This not being agreeable to him, he deftly caught hold of her skirts, inserted them in the rollers of the mangle, and, turning the handle, made her a prisoner. It was impossible for her to get loose, and despite her screams and threats of revenge, Tommy bade her a fond adieu, and departed to the "sing-song."

The Cost of Living.

Newfoundland is faced with a solution of the high cost of living problem equally with other countries. And these are at the moment devoting the energies of their statesmen and economists toward a way out of the present impasse into which the whole world seems to be jammed. And so far none of the experts have been able to suggest a compensation scale which will adjust all the differences and bring the ever soaring cost of necessities down to earth once more. The universe is groaning and sweating under the burden imposed upon it, and unrest is growing and spreading, the said unrest having as great a tendency to still further increase the high cost of living, as has the alleged shortage of food.

Money has shrunk in purchasing value which helps additionally to enhance the value of food stuffs, yet the clamor continues for a return to pre-war conditions. But can this be brought about. There is no royal road back to the almost idyllic days before the war, and the sooner we realize this fact, the quicker we will begin to march cautiously and carefully backwards, step by step, to a normal state. Governments have been accused of responsibility in connection with high prices, and roundly cursed and abused, but the world's shortage of food and other living necessities cannot be made good by statute. There is only one way to overcome the "lion in the path." That way is by increased production, and increased production means working—not shorter—but longer hours. But it is manifest that the desired end cannot be reached by the minority, no matter how intensively and continuously they labor. There must be a united, determined effort of the whole people, for though each one may but contribute the smallest fraction, yet the whole when totalled up will be enormous. Therefore our liability cannot be denied, nor will we, if loyal, question it. As the Empire stood together to produce and save during the war, so must it stand united during the period of reconstruction of national life, even though that reconstruction be carried out while in the throes of depression.

The war has now been over for a year: the fighting has ceased, and it is exceedingly unlikely that our young men will again be called upon to endure the horrors, miseries, suffering and death of the battlefield. But what of the consequences of the war, its aftermaths? Will they not be with us for years to come? Newfoundland has a huge national debt, and it is ever increasing. There is also the financial burden of the soldiers' pension list and other payments to the men who fought, to be carried. These extra national responsibilities have to be met in some way. We are paying at the moment all the taxation the Dominion can stand. Notwithstanding, the claims of the future must be cheerfully accepted. It is but a waste of time to sit down and indulge in useless lamentations over the situation. Action is the keynote. If Newfoundland, in common with other portions of the Empire, staked her resources to win the war, then the sacrifices made had the anticipated result.

The war was won, and now that we are back in the paths of peace once more, the slogan has to be WORK AND SAVE, if we desire a return to the conditions in ante-bellum days. Everybody can do something. The resources of our island home are unrivalled, but more development is needed if we are to offset the increased cost of living, and bring it gradually under control. Production and economy have to be the watchwords. Self denial will help the latter and a stricter application of physical force to the daily round will materially aid the former. And that is the moral of it all. More production, rigid economy and development of natural resources. These three combined will be the real panacea, and by constant practise will eventually overcome the evils of present everyday conditions and place Newfoundland in such a prosperous state as will cause everyone to forget that they ever bore the weight of such an incubus as the high cost of living.

From Acting to Full.

Tuesday's Gazette contained a proclamation giving full appointments to Hon R. A. Squires, as Colonial Secretary; Hon W. F. Coaker, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon W. R. Warren, Minister of Justice; Hon H. J. Brownrigg, Minister of Finance and Customs; Hon Alex. Campbell, Minister Agriculture and Mines; W. B. Jennings, Minister Public Works. From these full appointments it may be taken that the departmental heads named will shortly go back to their respective districts for re-election by their constituents in confirmation of having received offices of emolument under the Crown. No proclamation for any bye-elections however was made in the Gazette of November 25th. In the list of departmental heads the name of W. H. Cave, Esq., Minister of Shipping, is omitted. This omission may mean something or it may mean nothing at all. Doubtless Mr. Cave is still holding the Acting appointment, until such time as the rearrangement or abolition of this department may be decided upon. It being freely circulated that a new department of Trade and Commerce is to be created to control all matters relating to the Commercial future of the Dominion. Bye-elections will doubtless be held within a reasonable period, and if it is the intention of the Opposition to contest any or all of the districts so opened, active work and organization will have to begin immediately.

LABRADOR HILLS SNOW-COVERED AND RIVERS FROZEN. The Labrador-coast mail-ship Sagona made port yesterday, having been as far North as Rigoulette. All the hills on the Northern coast, the reports, are snow-covered and the rivers are frozen over. All the fishermen have left the coast and the livers have gone into winter quarters. TELEGRAM.

25 November, 1919. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, H.M.S. Renown.

On behalf of the whole people of Newfoundland, my new Ministers desire to send this loyal message to Your Royal Highness as you pass the shores of this ancient Colony; they wish that you could have paid them another visit on this return voyage, but send you every heartfelt prayer for a safe journey home and humble congratulations upon the success of your visit overseas.

GOVERNOR, Newfoundland.

H.M.S. Renown, 25 November, 1919. His Excellency the Governor, Newfoundland.

My most sincere thanks to your Ministers and to the people of Newfoundland for their cordial message which has touched me very much. I wish time had permitted of my paying them another visit this week. My best wishes to the loyal and ancient Colony which was the first to welcome me to this side of the Atlantic three months ago.

Smallpox on the Increase

The Health authorities have received various messages from the reports showing that smallpox is on the increase. The latest is from Dr. Bethune, who reports 4 cases at Stephenville Crossing, Dr. Chesholm, one at Hopewell, T. B., and several at Garnish, Fortune Bay, Dr. Grant at Port aux Basques reports one case landed from the Kyie. All the subjects are being looked after.

Paper Chase.

The young or present Fellians, or students of Bishop Feild College, held one of their old-time paper chases yesterday afternoon, great sport and excitement resulting. The Hares were Cyril Press, Victor Dowden and Ralph Percival, while the Hounds mustered big. The former led the Hounds a long chase over Nagle's Hill, across country to the Thorburn Road, and so back to the College without being caught.

Seriously Injured at Marystown.

According to word received to-day by the Colonial Secretary, a man named B. J. Miller had been very seriously injured at Marystown, and the Government coastal boat Portia which was then at that port, was ordered to convey the injured man to Placentia, where he will be rushed to this city for admission to the hospital. His life depends on getting in the city on time. It appears that the trouble is to his eyes, glass having entered them.

Will Visit Newfoundland

The many friends of Capt. Davidson, formerly of the whaler Hump, which for several years prosecuted the whaling industry in the northern bays, will be pleased to learn that he has recently received from him he has arrived back to Norway from Japanese waters, after over four years' absence. He hopes early in the New Year to leave for Newfoundland on a visit accompanied by Mrs. Davidson, who is anxious to see her parents in her native town Trinity. We trust that the long journey may be pleasant for both, and that they will enjoy it to the utmost.

We are now clearing out our whole stock of Millinery and Ready-to-wear Hats regardless of cost. Every hat must go, as we need plenty of room for our Xmas Goods. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

Runaway Girls.

Two young girls, who ran away from their homes in Grand Falls, and came to the city by yesterday's express, were intercepted by the police, acting upon instructions from the parents. The girls were brought back to the paper town by the outgoing express to-day.

Prize List Inaccurate.

In the list of prizes awarded to exhibitors at the Poultry Show, and published elsewhere, there are several inaccuracies and omissions which will be corrected in to-morrow's issue.

For St. Clare's Home.

The proceeds of a dance to be held in the Cadet Hall on Dec. 3rd, for which invitations are now being sent out, will be devoted to the funds of St. Clare's Home. The organizers and chaperones are Mrs. H. J. Brownrigg, Mrs. J. V. O'Dea and Mrs. W. E. Pearn. The C.C.C. Band will supply the music.

The Garden of Eden.

The spot supposed to be the site of the Garden of Eden, now in possession of Britain, lies between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, not far from Bagdad above the site of Babylon and below ancient Hit, now called Ava. There can be little doubt that this locality is the one indicated in the Bible as the Garden of Eden, for in the Book of Genesis it says: "And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads." The Bible then goes on to mention the four rivers, one of them being the Euphrates and the others having ancient Biblical names—the Pison, Gihon, and Hiddekel. Now there is a spot where the Euphrates branches into four parts and, strange to say, in spite of ages of change, it is still exceptionally fertile. This seems clearly to be the Garden. The original natives of this region are of the ancient Arab race, a humane and intelligent people of Semitic stock, who, although Mohammedans, revere the patriarchs and sacred characters of the Bible almost as much as do the Hebrews and Christians. To these people the Turks, descendants of a race of Tartar barbarians, are just as much invaders and oppressors as were the Germans.

A correspondent with the army of occupation gives an interesting picture of life in the garden:

"My first day in Eden I saw thousands of Arab workmen chanting happily as they delved, digging a great false channel to take off the waters of the Euphrates. One of the British officers, observing that many of his workmen persisted in carrying dirt in a basket instead of using the wheelbarrows provided, rebuked an Arab for doing so. "Sahib," replied the Arab, "my people have lived here and carried dirt in baskets since the days of Moses." Everywhere among them you hear such old names as Moses, Joseph, and "Skandar." Now when a man dies, as in Abraham's time, his tent is torn down and destroyed."

The New Cure.

The new cure for Bolshevism found in New York ought to be applied to all European immigrants on arrival. A clean shave and a daily bath is a cheap way to get rid of old-world customs that are a constant menace to Western liberty. Some enterprising razor concern will be advertising the safety razor as the emblem of liberty.—Guelph (Ont.) Mercury.

Britain's Big Cabinet.

The new Cabinet of twenty Ministers is one of the largest Cabinets of any country. Most countries had, in fact, that the smaller the actual number of Ministers who govern the better, and in all probability the twenty Ministers headed by Mr. Lloyd George will be reduced to ten or fifteen in the future. The United States is content with a Cabinet of only nine of the chief Ministers, who are chosen by the President. Unlike the British Cabinet, the American Cabinet has to be formally approved by the Senate, the American House of Lords. If the Senate doesn't approve of any particular Minister, then another has to be chosen in his place.

In France the Cabinet only consists of fourteen Ministers as a rule, chosen exactly as our cabinet is chosen by the Prime Minister and approved by the French President. Belgium is content with even a smaller cabinet of only twelve, and its neighbor Holland with one less still, eleven. The Dutch Government, however, have a special State Council "Raad van State" as it is called, of forty members who are consulted on important affairs of the country. Of the big powers, in fact, Great Britain has easily the biggest Cabinet. Most of the cabinets of the world consist of eight to ten ministers, the smallest Cabinet is that of Iceland which has three members only.

Wonderful France.

Every indication points to a recovery (by France) from the present almost as rapid as that from the terrible Year. But Great Britain and the United States should aid France to the extent of their ability in the work of industrial rehabilitation. France is financially sound, and the entire world has unlimited confidence in her future.—Frederick Gleaner.

Successful Operetta.

The Operetta, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was produced last night, by the pupils of the Academy of Mercy, Military Road and under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Grace The Archbishop. The Performance was an entire success and received unstinted applause from the large audience, amongst whom were Miss Harris, Com. Penn, R.N., Capt. Hamilton, A.D.C., Msgr. McDermott, Rev. D. Green, Frs. Carter Rawlins and Enright. The opening act showed Snow Whites birthday being celebrated by the forest children. The Queen (Miss Angela McGrath) through jealousy interrupts the festivities and bids the Huntsman (Miss Agnes Armstrong) take Snow White and kill her. Act 2 shows the forest, with Snow White and the Huntsman. The latter informs Snow White of his mission, but being struck with her beauty does not carry out his instructions. He leaves Snow White wandering through the woods, when the forest children appear and comfort her. Act 3—Snow White finds a house which proves to belong to the Seven Dwarfs, she enters and falls asleep to be awakened by the dwarfs, who make her their housekeeper. The queen, disguised, finds Snow White and by intrigue tries to kill her, but she is rescued by the Dwarfs. The Prince (Miss Ira Howlett) while strolling in the forest finds Snow White at the home of the Dwarfs and offers to take her away as queen of his realm. Act 4—The forest children assemble at the palace grounds to celebrate the marriage of Snow White and the Prince. The queen also appears and is condemned by the prince, but Snow White sues for and obtains pardon for her. This is a brief outline of the Operetta in which everyone acquitted themselves creditably even to the little train bearers of the queen. Miss Madeline Kavanagh as Snow white, was very graceful and her dancing was heartily applauded. The Seven Dwarfs and the children of the forest in their various costumes were very pleasing. The Operetta should be seen by everyone interested in children and is a clear demonstration of what painstaking training can accomplish. The Operetta will be repeated to-night and Friday, concluding with a Matinee Saturday.

Winning Crews Dined.

The crew from Logy Bay which won the Fishermen's Race at the Regatta, and also the Juvenile crew, were entertained with a dinner at Smithville last night by Rev. Father O'Callaghan. Music, recitations and songs, with a splendid repast, helped to pass a very pleasant evening, and the gathering dispersed at midnight, well pleased.

That's part of their course at college," said his wife gaily. "Never mind, Billy, we have the boys to show for our time, and we're still young and strong. We'll start another savings account on the first of the month and we'll have garden stuff to sell, and our clothes will do for another year. We've enough left from the insurance money you borrowed, to pay the nurse and our own doctor, and the bill at the drug store, so we start even again—that's not so bad." A Story With a Purpose.

By NELLIE L. MCCLUNG.
(In MacLean's Magazine.)

It was a hard pull for the Browns to recover from the financial depression following the baby's illness. The specialist, who had been twice to see the child, was able by that occult gift which many specialists possess, to divine the amount of their savings, and make his fee over it exactly. "I wonder how he knew how much we had," said Billy Brown, reflectively, as he wrote the check which lighted away all their savings for the last six years. "That's part of their course at college," said his wife gaily. "Never mind, Billy, we have the boys to show for our time, and we're still young and strong. We'll start another savings account on the first of the month and we'll have garden stuff to sell, and our clothes will do for another year. We've enough left from the insurance money you borrowed, to pay the nurse and our own doctor, and the bill at the drug store, so we start even again—that's not so bad."

The two families did not see so much of each other in the years that followed, for the Wilsons moved into the big house which they built on another, and more fashionable, street, and sometimes months and months passed without the women seeing each other. The men met occasionally at the Business Men's Luncheons which and that's the best place," she said. "Teas and dances and clothes don't satisfy every woman, you know, Bert. Some of them have deeper ambitions than just to be well-dressed and able to play cards. . . . I sometimes envy the Browns. . . ."

"They're welcome to the kids—so far as I am concerned," he said shortly. "It's cost poor Brown all his salary to raise those kids so far, and now comes the most expensive time, for they have to be educated. He never takes a holiday—he does curl, but he never goes away for a bonspiel."

"But they seem happy," Mrs. Wilson urged; "there aren't two people in town who stick together like the Browns—Don't you remember that Sunday afternoon we saw them out walking with the boys? I thought they all looked so contented and happy, and the boys are such handsome youngsters. They may be poor, Bert, but they're something to show for their time."

Her husband shrugged his shoulders irritably.

"I'll tell you what they have," he said. "They have a small six-roomed house, on a poor street, in need of repairs, five thousand dollars Life Insurance, and that's all they have in the world. His salary just covers expenses—he'll borrow on his insurance again to send the boys to college. He'll skimp and save and work to the end of his days. He'll never take his nose from the grindstone, and she's the same!"

"The boys represent their life work," said Mrs. Wilson persistently. "They haven't got their money in the bank, the way we have; they have it in the boys—the way we haven't. They've worked to better advantage than we have."

"I don't see it," he said, and he went out of the room with every indication of impatience.

One morning at breakfast a few weeks later, Mrs. Wilson said to her husband:—

"Did you notice the school report this month?"

"No," he answered tartly—"why should I?"

"There's no reason," she said quietly, "and no reason for my noticing it, only that I always do read it. Did you ever have a sore nail, which, somehow—you like to hurt? I don't know why. Well, I read the school report, for some such reason as that—and it always hurts."

A long silence fell upon them. What was the use of going over all the arguments again?

Before he left, he said more gently: "What were you going to tell me about the school report?"

"Nothing," she answered—"except that the Brown boys are ahead again. John has passed his entrance with honors, and Tom is one year behind. Both names are the first on the list."

"That's because 'B' is the second letter in the alphabet, I guess," said Mr. Wilson. "Well, I'm glad you told me—I'll know enough to keep out of Brown's way for a few days."

He said it laughingly, but his wife's eyes were very listless and weary as she sat leaning her head on her hands. She was still sitting there, when the maid came to clear away the breakfast dishes.

The Browns, like other people, had dissensions and mutinies at times within their ranks. No four healthy people ever lived together in perfect harmony for an indefinite period, and the number could be lowered again, and yet again, without upsetting the truth of the statement.

To try to bring about harmony, Mrs. Brown had made it the rule to have Saturday afternoon a free time for the boys, but sometimes, by failing to do the work on Saturday morning, Saturday afternoon had to be broken into by unfinished business, and this was the cause of the frown which hung heavily on Tom's face, as he put strings on the sweet peas in front of the house.

"We've got too many flowers," he said, grumblingly, "they always need to have something done to them. I like flowers that just grow, and look out for themselves—without bother to anyone—and spoil all his fun. If you hadn't any, I'd have more fun."

"That's so, Tom," she agreed, "and if we didn't have the veranda—I wouldn't need to clean it, and if we didn't have any clothes I wouldn't need to wash them, and if we didn't have anything to eat, I wouldn't need to cook, and then I wouldn't have to wash the dishes. We're certainly in hard

Dr. B. H. Elder Declares it is Without Equal

Says He Has Never Known a
Medicine to Produce Results
Like Tanlac.

B. H. Elder, M.D., with offices at 410 Schradzki Building, Peoria, Illinois, comes out with his unqualified endorsement of Tanlac.

Dr. Elder graduated from Butler University of Indianapolis, Ind., later took a post graduate course at Rush College, Chicago, and has also studied abroad.

He has been in active practice over forty years—fifty-five years in Peoria—and is one of the best known physicians of that city.

"So far as my knowledge goes," said Dr. Elder, in an interview and recently, "medical science has never produced a medicine that brings results like Tanlac. It is altogether too good to keep from suffering humanly and I have been prescribing it in my practice for some time with remarkable results."

"For years I had suffered from stomach trouble and rheumatism and had devoted my best thought trying to find relief, but all to no avail. Right after eating, gas would form in my stomach and affect my heart, causing poor circulation, cold hands and feet, dizzy spells, spots before my eyes, peculiar feelings, terrible headaches, and cramps in my stomach. The rheumatism was the kind that is caused by uric acid deposits in the blood, which find their way into the joints, and the pain was so great I could hardly stand to move my legs and arms."

"So it's no surprise that I devoted lots of time and thought, using all my powers, trying to free myself of these troubles. But nothing I ever found until I got Tanlac afforded me more than a little temporary relief. And here is how I found out the powers of Tanlac: I had a patient who had suffered for years with the same kind of troubles and while I did all I could for him, the same as for myself, he failed to improve any. Well, this party came to my office one day, after having been away for about six months, and I never in all my life saw a man look in better health or seem to feel better. While sitting there in my office he told me Tanlac was what brought about the wonderful change. I could not doubt it, for I knew what an awful condition he had been in, and I made up my mind then and there to try Tanlac in my own case. So I did and the results are that a few bottles relieved me entirely of stomach trouble and rheumatism and all my other ailments as well. I am an extra hearty eater, especially of meats and such foods as often produce bad effects, but none of these things disagree with me any more. So now, as I have discovered the value of Tanlac I am ready to honor it as one of the most beneficial of all medicines. I have prescribed it, in cases of rheumatism, kidney and bladder disorders and a run-down condition, with wonderful results. I feel that I ought, for the benefit of suffering humanity, to give my experience with Tanlac to the general public."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffett, by Thos. Wakely & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son; and in Topsail by J. K. Bursell.

luck having so many things, you and I."

Tom worked on in silence, thinking of what she had said, but his heart was with the gopher hunt.

"There are lots of the boys who never have a thing to do. Joe Peters has no cow to feed, or hens to look after, and they never bother with flowers. They just go out riding in the car every night, and I wish we were like them. The boys don't even need to go to school if there's anything else they want to do. Their house doesn't look nice, but they sure have fun."

Just then the afternoon mail came in, and in it there came a letter to Mrs. Brown from home. It was from her mother, and, as usual, she seized it with delight.

"Dear Stella," it began, "we had a family gathering to-day, and we had every member of the family but you, and so we have decided that we really must have you at the next one. You have been gone for fourteen years now, and you have not been home even once, and now we want you to come to us for at least a month. Your boys are big enough to leave now, and we know that Billy has always wanted you to have a holiday, but you are so conscientious about doing your duty to the boys, that you forget to do your duty to yourself."

Men and Money.

"Now let me tell you what we have to offer in the way of inducement."
"We will all be here; father is very well this summer, and greatly enjoying his new Ford. He will take you all over to see the friends. The brothers and sisters are all wanting you, dear Stella, and they are full of plans for giving you a great time. The corn will be ready then, and I hear talk of a great corn-bake in the maple-bush, the first night you are here. The woods will be beautiful in September when the maples and beeches begin to turn."
Mrs. Brown had sat on the veranda step, to read her letter, and at this point in the reading, a cry broke from her.

Tom ran to her at once—
"Mother," he cried, in alarm—"what is it?"
Never in his life, had he seen his mother cry.

She was herself again in a minute. "It's nothing at all, Tom," she smiled—"only I just got home sick for a minute. Your grand-mother wants me to come back home, and of course, I can't, because it would take too much money; but I got lonesome for a moment, and I wanted to see the apple-trees and the plums that I planted, and I wanted to see the milk-house with the stream running through it, and the hollyhocks and hydrangeas, and I wanted most of all to see mother and father and all of them. But I couldn't leave you and John and Daddy here all alone, even if we had the money, which we haven't, but we'll have lots of it when you and John are through school, and then we'll all go and see the old folks, and we'll stay a year, and motor all over Ontario in our Studebaker—and—"

The tears were still hanging around his mother's gray eyes, and Tom could feel them, although they were not visible.
He went back to the sweet peas and soon had them all provided with good supports.

When he came into the house, his mother, shelling peas for dinner, was singing as usual.
"Mother," he said cheerfully, "is there anything else I can do? I don't mind work—I'd rather work, and I'm not going out with Joe Peters all this afternoon—I want to stay with you—I'm sorry you can't go—but I'll hurry up with school—and we'll soon have lots of things."
"We have lots of things now, Tom," his mother laughed happily. "We have health, and each other—and lots to eat and enough clothes, and a good school for the boys, and I'm very bappy. When we go home, we'll all go. I couldn't go away for a month and leave you two boys. I would be thinking all the time that your knees were out, and you had forgotten to wash behind your ears, and had gotten into poison ivy, or something. Oh I am not homesick now, Tom, I am just thinking what a great time we will have when we all go back home to see our folks and your Daddy's people, and how proud I will be to show off my two boys."

John and Tom Brown went through all the grades in the Public School, and when they entered the High School, their record was something of a triumphant progress. They were able to take their matriculation from the High School, and then came the first real break in the family, when the boys went to the city to begin their college work. John was ready one year ahead of Tom, but he taught a year to help the family finances, and let his brother catch up to him. The city was only fifty miles away, and the boys came home each week-end, on their bicycles, in the summer time.

In May, 1914, when the University reports came out, it was found that the one hundred dollar scholarship had been awarded to John Brown, and Tom had taken the second one of sixty dollars. Both boys were at home when the reports were published, and the little house, in need of repairs, fairly throbbled with delight. Mr. Brown brought the paper home at noon, and laid it on the table before his wife. The headline told the story.

"Brown brothers take first and second scholarship for proficiency," it said.
"The returns are beginning to come in, Mother," said John, with a smile, as he kissed her.
Mrs. Brown's voice was tremulous with happiness.
"Boys," she said, "the returns have always come in. I got my reward every time either you gave me a smile—or a hug; and every time I heard you laugh, every time I saw my boys learning how to do their part in life—I was repaid a hundred times. Your father and I have had a great time raising you two big fellows—you've kept us young and well, and happy, and now you're bringing our rosiest dreams to pass. Talk about returns? Here!" And she kissed both boys and put the loudest kiss of all on her husband's bald head.
"Billy—old man—what sort of a time have we had—raising these two boys?"
"The very best," he cried, "the very best!"
That was in May, 1914.

(To be continued.)

For the Scrap Book.

The human voice will carry three miles through a 20ft. speaking-trumpet.

A silver coin remains in currency for an average period of twenty-seven years.

In some cantons of Switzerland all the dead, rich as well as poor, are buried at the public expense.

The most primitive toy is the doll. It dates back to prehistoric times, and is found in every part of the world.

When an oyster is a fortnight old it is not much larger than the head of a pin. At the end of four years' growth it is fit for the table.

The Black Sea has less life in it than any other great body of water. The lower depths are saturated with poisonous gas, so that no fish can live in them.

Many other people besides Scotsmen wear the kilt. It is the national dress of the Albanian, the Massalian shepherds, and the mountaineers of the Thibet and Assam frontiers.

The health of any country largely depends on the rate the air moves. If the wind averages four and a half miles in England, it is a healthy year. The death-rate largely increases in very calm years.

Oysters cannot live in the Baltic Sea, the reason being that it is not salt enough. They can only live in water that contains at least thirty-seven parts of salt to every 1,000 parts of water.

Snails are slow even when it comes to dying. One well-known naturalist who had mounted a shell upon a card was surprised to find, four years later, that the warm water employed in soaking the shell of the mount had revived the inmate, which he had long since supposed to be dried and dead. Several specimens in another collection were revived in a similar manner after they had lain in a drawer for some fifteen years. These had not been glued to a card, but had been left lying loose, and, though frequently handled, had shown no signs of life. They were thrown into tepid water with the idea of cleaning-out the shells, but, to the surprise of the owner, the snails, were found creeping about the basin when he returned to complete the task.

Butcher-Boy's University.

Behind the prosaic story of the recent gift of books from Harvard University to Southwark Library there lies a romance that should prove, even at this distant date, an inspiration to every ambitious youth.

Harvard was founded by a young Englishman of that name, the son of a Southwark butcher, nearly 300 years ago. In his early youth John Harvard assisted his father in the latter's shop in Southwark High Street, close to the old London Bridge.

The times were hard, and from what one can gather from records, the Harvards had an uphill fight before prosperity loomed in sight. But young John Harvard never despaired. He worked manfully, and studied hard in the little leisure at his disposal. The result was that when, in due course, the older Harvard was in a position to supplement his son's self-acquired learning by a proper education, John Harvard was able, through his scholarly attainments, to proceed straight to Emmanuel College, Cambridge. In those days the conditions attaching to the social standing of a student were less stringent than they are to-day, but even so, the achievement was a notable one for a youth of his class.

In due course young Harvard became a Non-conformist minister. He had been acting in that capacity for a short time when plague broke out and robbed his family of several of its members. These misfortunes were, apparently, responsible for his appearance in America, whither he had proceeded to join the newly-formed colony of English settlers at the small township of Newtowne, Mass.

In 1638 John Harvard, then in his thirty-first year, died. In his will he bequeathed his library of 302 volumes—all but one were destroyed by fire a hundred years later—and half his savings, amounting to about £700, to the founding of a settlement school, a wooden building which later became the great American University.

The school, after John Harvard's death, became known as Harvard College, while Newtowne was re-christened Cambridge, in honour of our own University.

To-day the University of Harvard occupies over 500 acres, comprises many noble buildings, and has been the scene of the education and training of many of America's greatest men—and all through the grit and perseverance of a youth of seventeenth-century England.

FOR THE BIG BANQUET.

The big banquet in connection with the Maternity Hospital takes place in the College Hall to-morrow evening at seven o'clock, and it promises to be one of the most successful events of its kind in the history of St. John's. The various Committees are working most assiduously to make next week's dinner the success it deserves to be.

This evening at 7.30, at Headquarters, in the Board of Trade Building, the divisional chairmen and captains will meet to make the final arrangements in connection with the banquet, to-morrow.

A pleasing point of this Campaign, which has entailed no small amount of detail work, is the eagerness of the public to assist. The Committees meet promptly and while each point raised is freely and fully discussed, no time is lost. Everything is transacted in a thoroughly business like manner.

The Hospital is a real necessity and for the sake of the sick and future generations we must have it. The Victory Maternity Hospital will be managed by an advisory Board representing all shades of thought.

The Army people will be assisted in the conduct of the institution by one doctor of each denomination; one business man of each denomination; one leading woman of each denomination; one representative of the City and one representative of the Government. There will be representatives of all, and everything will be conducted on business principles. It is interesting to note that nurses who desire to study maternity work will be able to train at this institution. Nurses who have completed their course at the General Hospital or any other place will be able to specialize in this branch of the work at the Victory Maternity Hospital. It will not only benefit St. John's but ladies may receive training for outpost work. The whole of the Dominion will benefit by this institution which is being erected by our people as a work of love.

Highlanders to Parade on Sunday.

The Newfoundland Highlanders will hold a Church Parade on Sunday morning, the service to be held at the Kirk. The members of the Nfld. Highlanders' Association and the ex-soldier members of the Brigade will head the parade. As this will be the last parade for the year a large attendance is requested.

War Veterans Aiding Maternity Home.

The Great War Veterans' Association has decided to aid the campaign for a Maternity Hospital, that will be fought next week, and a strong team of representatives has been formed. The team contains:—Lieut. Col. Carly, Lt. Col. Bernard, M.C., Capt. Gerald Byrne, M.C., Mr. F. P. LeGrow, M.H.A., Capt. Leo Murphy, Mr. R. Innes, Lt. Col. Rendell, C.S.O., Mr. B. B. Harris, Major March, M.C., Mr. J. Ploughman, Mr. Robert Matthews, R.N.; Capt. R. H. Tait, M.C., Capt. R. Stick, M.C., Major Butler, D.S.O., M.C., Major Howley, O.B.E., Capt. W. D. Edwards, M.B.E., Lieuts. Crawford and Holmes.

For Chest Colds, Head Colds, Grip, Influenza and Pneumonia
A few external applications of GROVE'S O-PEN-TRATE SALVE will be found very helpful. It opens the pores and penetrates the skin. Its Stimulating and Healing Effect is very comforting. Price 35c. per box. If your Druggist hasn't any, send 35c. in postage stamps to Paris Medicine Co., 193 Spadina Ave., Toronto, and a full-size box will be mailed to you promptly.

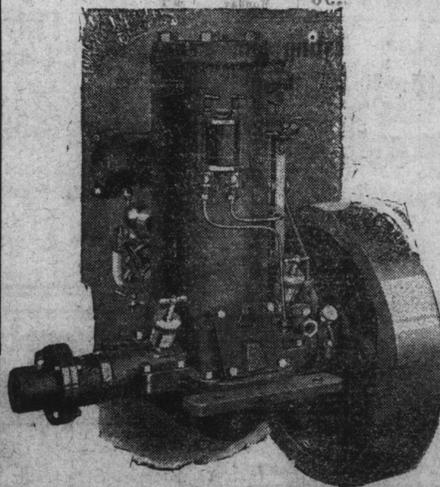

Wedding Bells.

LOWE-IVANY.

A very pretty wedding took place at Shoal Harbor, T.B., on Wednesday, the 18th inst. when Miss Ellie Lowe and Mr. George Ivany were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The bride was handsomely attired in cream brocaded satin, with brilliant veil and orange blossoms, and was attended by Miss Lily Ivany, sister of the groom, Miss Gladys Lowe, the bride's cousin, Miss Nellie Mills and Miss Elsie Maidment, while the groom was supported by Mr. Moses Lowe, and Mr. Abram Lowe, brothers of the bride, Mr. Bert Ivany, brother of the groom, and Mr. Huntley Butler. The Rev. A. Young officiated at the marriage ceremony, which took place in the Methodist Church, and the wedding march was played by Miss Rose Kelly. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the groom, where a very nice tea was served to a large number of guests. The bride was the recipient of very many valuable and useful presents, which showed the esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

James Baird

Co-Operative to Build Additional Store.

COST WILL BE TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS. At the quarterly meeting of the Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association Co-operative Society, held last night with Chairman John Caldwell presiding, a dividend on purchases of five per cent, was declared to be divided between the purchasers. A scheme to raise ten thousand dollars with which to erect another store and a wholesale warehouse, was brought up. The Committee will be re-elected so that it may finish the work taken in hand. It was decided last night to increase the rate paid on shares from three to four per cent, following the custom of the British Co-operative Societies.

Published by Authority.

His Excellency the Governor in Council has been pleased to appoint The Honourable Richard Anderson Squires, K.C., LL.B., (Prime Minister) to be Colonial Secretary; The Honourable William F. Coaker, to be Minister of Marine and Fisheries; The Honourable William R. Warren, K.C., to be Minister of Justice; The Honourable Henry J. Congregational Sale of Work.

A FINANCIAL SUCCESS. Yesterday's Sale of Work of the Ladies' Aid of the Congregational Church, held in the lecture hall in the afternoon and night, proved to be a financial success, and a success in every way. Mrs. (Rev.) D. B. Ashford, in the absence of Mr. Ashford, performed the opening ceremony. At night there was a concert which proved most enjoyable. Mr. H. E. Cowan presided. These taking part were Misses E. Herder, M. Mitchell, Gladys Brookes, S. Kean, Estelle Barnes; Mesdames Oke, G. Christian; Messrs. McIntosh, Gushie, Halley. The accompanists were Misses J. Barnes, Dunfield and Mr. G. H. Christian. After the concert the sale was continued, when the balance of goods which had been left over was quickly disposed of. Teas were again served until a late hour. The following ladies had charge of the various tables and stalls:

- Handkerchiefs—Mrs. H. E. Cowan, Misses Harris and Steele.
- Plain Work—Mesdames C. Brooks, J. A. Carmichael, J. Stowe.
- Fancy Work—Mrs. (Rev.) Ashford, Misses E. Barnes, R. Carmichael, Olive Hutchings.
- Teas—Misses B. Langmead, E. Barnes.
- Confectionery—Misses L. Knight, B. Stowe, S. Hicks.
- Stationery—Mrs. T. H. Garland, Miss LeMessurier.
- Vegetable—Misses Calver (2).
- Tea Tables—Mesdames H. J. Thomas, G. Whiteley, C. Cross, G. Hutchings, H. Yabley, A. Morris, E. A. Thomas, E. Coffin, H. G. Coffin, Geo. Langmead, R. G. Ross; Misses Thomas (2), F. Cowan, Barnes and Pope.

Highlanders to Hold Masquerade Ball.

The Newfoundland Highlanders' Association is now organizing, through a committee recently appointed, for a giant Masquerade Ball to be held on Twelfth Night, Old Xmas Day. This ball, which will be held in the Cadet Hall, is expected to be the most successful one of its kind for many years, as the planning of details has already begun. The Highlanders' Association is formed of ex-members of the Brigade and ex-soldier members. The latter comprise the majority of the Association.

Ladies' Aid Sale of Work

The sale of work being held by the Ladies' Aid in the basement of Wesley Church was begun yesterday afternoon. Mrs. R. A. Squires formally declaring it open. A concert, in which several singers will help, will be held to-night.

Opportunities in Long-Term Bonds

Bonds maturing in 1919 or 1920 may now be sold advantageously, and the funds reinvested in longer term securities. The benefits of present high interest yield rates may thereby be secured for a period of ten years and longer.

We shall be glad to offer suggestions.
