The Mystery of Rutledge Hall OR "The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXI.

"She is very ill," Sidney answered impetuously—"dying, I fear, but the change might do her good."

"What is her illness?" Lloyd asked, glancing at Dolly, as she sat opposite to him in her dainty morning-dress of pale blue cashmere and velvet.

"A very common one," said Sidney, suddenly looking across at him with unhappy, defiant eyes, "although some medical men will tell you that it is a myth—a broken heart."

"If medical men call it a myth, we in our profession are often forced to acknowledge its existence," the young barrister said, with some feeling in his tone. "Has this young lady seen much trouble then?"

"Yes, very terrible trouble," Sidney answered briefly.

"Some disappointment, I suppose?" he suggested.

"Does your professional experience tell you that a girl's trouble must of necessity be connected with love?" Sidney asked, with a little bitter laugh.

"No, certainly not," he rejoined, with a slight smile. "But it is a natural association, I suppose. What is this particular trouble?"

"I will tell you," Sidney answered, almost with passion. "She had one brother—one whom she loved as dearly as, ay, ten times more dearly than many women love their lovers—and he was unjustly accused of murder, and sent forth into the world a miserable outcast, hunted and persecuted!"

"Were no efforts made to prove his innocence? How did he escape punishment?"

"By flight," Stephen said, breaking in suddenly, and speaking with unusual bitterness, as he thought how the memory of this man stood between him and his wife and held them asunder so cruelly.

"Even before the coroner's jury had given their verdict he had disappeared; and since then he has successfully eluded pursuit. I think there was no one in Ashford who did not sympathize cordially with his unhappy father and sister; but—"

"They could spare no sympathy for a man unjustly accused and sent out into the world, like Cain, with the brand of murderer; but, unlike Cain, who was guilty, he was innocent," Sidney concluded bitterly.

"I think I remember the case," Lloyd Milner said hurriedly, recalling the Ashford murder, and regretting his questions. "It was a very painful one. Well, Miss Dolly," he added abruptly, to change the subject, "is that momentous question of costume decided yet?"

"My costume for mamma's fancy-ball on the first?" Dolly said nervously. "Well, I am not sure. I am to have some more engravings by this evening's post; and perhaps, if you have nothing better to do this morning, you will help me to look over those I have."

"With much pleasure."

Stephen went away that morning—for the first time since his marriage—without his customary farewell to his wife; and Sidney went up to her rooms too much absorbed in her own thoughts to note the omission. Dolly followed her up-stairs, making some trifling remarks about the ball; and while the girl went to her room to get the pictures as to which she had asked Lloyd's advice, Sidney went to her boudoir, where she was secure from observation.

Having locked the door, she sat down before her pretty writing-table and put her hand into the pocket of her cashmere morning gown, to feel for a note which that morning's post had brought her. The next moment she had risen, grasping the table for support and trembling in every limb—the note was not there!

For the space of a minute Sidney stood spell-bound, unable to move in her agony of terror; then, recovering herself by a great effort, she flew, rather than ran, down-stairs to the dining-room. Her husband's friend was there alone, standing in deep thought by the table.

"I have lost something," she said, too unnerved to conceal her agitation—"a letter. I must have dropped it. Not a letter—a note."

She was bending down hurriedly, looking under the table, and she did not see the curious look that he gave her.

"Is this it, Mrs. Daunt?" he said quietly. "It can hardly be called even a note."

She stood up eagerly, glancing at the slip of paper that he held.

"Yes, yes, that is it," she panted, snatching it from him with an eagerness strangely at variance with her usual languid, calm manner. "Thank you, thank you."

She was about to leave the room, when his voice arrested her steps.

"Mrs. Daunt!"

"What is it?" she said, standing in the middle of the room, her hands holding tightly the slip of paper she had taken from him.

"Why not?" she echoed, bitterly. "You remember what passed in this room half an hour ago, and you ask that! You heard how cruelly and bitterly Stephen spoke; you see how convinced he is of Frank's guilt. Even if he loved me—and you, who see so must, must have seen that he does not—he would not help me in this."

"He would help you—only ask him," Lloyd Milner said, earnestly.

"I have asked him. I have entreated him to do so; but he will not. Ah, if you remember the circumstances, you will not wonder at it!" she went on with increased and passionate bitterness. "She was so beautiful—so beautiful, and—and Stephen loved her—not Frank only."

"I think it right to tell you that I have read what is written there," he said gravely. "I did so unintentionally in lifting the paper from the floor, where I suppose you dropped it."

Her hands sank helplessly by her sides, her whole form seemed to shrink and collapse, and a terrible look crossed her ghastly face. Twice her pale lips moved as if she were about to speak; but no words came; and they stood looking at each other in an awful silence which he would not and she could not break!

CHAPTER XXII.

"You have read it!"

The words came slowly and as if they were unwillingly from Sidney's pale dry lips; and if Lloyd Milner had not seen them move, and had not known that there was no one else in the room he would not have believed that she had spoken, so harsh and changed, so unnatural did the husky strained tones sound as the words fell upon the stillness.

"Yes, I have read it," he answered, in a low tone, feeling pained and grieved at the humiliation her tone and manner expressed, as she stood trembling in every limb. Every shade of color had faded from her face, even her lips were white; and, save for the passionate burning eyes, it might have been the face of a dead woman, so colorless and immobile was it.

"And—and," she said breathlessly; but her voice failed her, the words died away on her parched lips, and she could only stand trembling, gazing at him with terrified dilated eyes.

"You would ask me if I understand the purport of your little note?" he said gently. "Is not that it, Mrs. Daunt?"

"Yes," she breathed, rather than uttered.

"How can I answer you?" he said, with some hesitation, pitying her intense anguish, yet angry with her for the deception she was evidently practicing toward her husband. "The few words written there would have been unintelligible to me, Mrs. Daunt, had a clew to their meaning not been supplied by the conversation at breakfast."

"Ah!"

"I cannot help guessing that the 'Christie' spoken of there," he went on, with the same gentleness of manner, is the lady spoken of this morning; therefore I conclude that the writer of the note is the unfortunate young man her brother."

Sidney's head dropped. She was calmer now, with the calmness of despair. Doubtless all was lost. This man who had discovered her secret would betray her to her husband; it would be found out that Frank had been in the neighborhood and he would be arrested, and she whom he had trusted would be the cause! The thought was almost unbearable agony.

She raised her hands to her head with a little despairing gesture, and pushed back her hair from her forehead feverishly. The young man, watching her, thought he had never seen a face so lovely in its misery, so miserable in its loveliness.

"It will not need much cleverness to guess that for some time you have been in communication with Mr. Greville," he said, quietly. "For some days past I have unwillingly been forced to conclude that you had some secret which your husband did not share, and I was grieved to think it. Believe me, Mrs. Daunt, the course you are pursuing can bring you only misery and trouble. To deceive a man so generous and true and trusting as Stephen Daunt is can give you only remorse at best. Why not have told him that you are anxious to do what you can to prove the innocence of Mr. Greville, and ask his help? He can advise and help you, and take from your shoulders a burden they cannot bear alone."

"Why not?" she echoed, bitterly. "You remember what passed in this room half an hour ago, and you ask that! You heard how cruelly and bitterly Stephen spoke; you see how convinced he is of Frank's guilt. Even if he loved me—and you, who see so must, must have seen that he does not—he would not help me in this."

"He would help you—only ask him," Lloyd Milner said, earnestly.

"I have asked him. I have entreated him to do so; but he will not. Ah, if you remember the circumstances, you will not wonder at it!" she went on with increased and passionate bitterness. "She was so beautiful—so beautiful, and—and Stephen loved her—not Frank only."

Big Ben's Big Audience

WESTMINSTER'S WONDER CLOCK.

Every day many thousands of people tune in their wireless sets to hear the chimes of "Big Ben."

"Big Ben" is actually the name of the bell on which the hours are struck. The clock itself is known as the "Westminster Clock." It was made in 1854, and after going for five years in the factory was fixed in the tower.

Twice in the day a mechanical contrivance in the clock closes an electric circuit, the effect of which is to deflect the needle of a galvanometer in the Time Department of the Observatory. The assistant in charge

The inscription, "Domine Savam fac Regiam nostram Victoriam Primam," on the clock dial can be read from the street below.

Named after Sir Benjamin Hall, the bell weighs 13 tons 11cwt., and is fundamental musical note is "E."

Noted by a Needle.

Devil's Food Cake

1/2 cup Crisco 2 eggs beaten separately
2 cups sugar 2 1/2 cups flour
2 sq. chocolate, in 1 cup 1/2 teaspoon soda in 1/2 boiling water; let cup sour milk simmer two minutes. 1/2 teaspoonful salt

Cream Crisco thoroughly. Add sugar gradually. Add egg yolks beaten thick and lemon colored. Beat well. Add a little flour, then chocolate and water alternately with rest of flour. Add sour milk, and soda. Fold in whites of eggs. Bake in moderate oven for forty-five minutes.

Icing
1 cup sugar 1-3 cup of water
Boil to soft ball. Pour one-third syrup over two well-beaten egg whites. Continue beating while remainder cooks until it spins a thread. Add to egg mixture. Add one teaspoon vanilla. Spread over cake, when cool.

Crisco cakes are always lovely. Hardly anyone who eats them can tell they were made without butter. And they stay fresh and delicious a wonderfully long time.

Right and Wrong Methods

Of two people using the same tea one makes a delicious brew, the other tea not fit to drink, yet both have used boiling water. The first uses water freshly boiling; the other has had the kettle on the fire for an hour, and has boiled all the air out of the water, leaving it flat and dead.

Poking a fire snake is a simple business, yet there is a right and a wrong way of doing it. The wrong way is to pound the coals from above, the right to push the poker in underneath and by clearing out the burnt ashes leave room for a draught of air to pass through the fire, so allowing it to burn brightly.

Do You Pack Properly?

When packing to have home a woman always puts boots and shoes and all heavy objects at the bottom of her trunk, and the lighter articles on top. This is the right way to pack, and if men followed the same example there would be fewer cracked shirt fronts and creased suits at a journey's end. Clock, which is close at hand. The wrapping found it a piece of soft rag. This is a mistaken idea, for the rag encourages bleeding. If the cut is a bad one the blood supply should be stopped by tying something tightly around the joint below the cut.

When a door sticks, the average man puts his shoulder against it and tries to force it open. This may or may not prove successful, but surely the simplest way of managing the job is first to ascertain the offending spot, when comparatively light pressure will probably do the trick.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

MAXIMUM PENALTIES FOR MOTORING OFFENCES.

The Rev. Father Cyril James Smith of St. Simon's Church, Putney, was by Shoreham fined the maximum penalty of £20 for driving a car to the danger of the public on the Worthing-Brighton road at Lancing on the night of August 24th, with a further fine of £10 (again the maximum) for failing to stop after the accident.

Evidence was given that the defendant knocked down and ran over a pedestrian, Mrs. Howard Rayner, who is still in a serious condition, and, despite the shout of the man's companions, drove on through Worthing, his car being eventually found in a field.

The defendant did not appear owing to ecclesiastical duties, but a plea of guilty was tendered on his behalf, with an explanation that he was unaware of the accident. The magistrate also directed his licence to be endorsed and suspended for twelve months.

Nine Months' Work in Vain

HEAVY LOSS DUE TO THEFT OF PIECE OF CLOTH.

A piece of cloth about two yards square, whose loss will mean thousands of pounds to the owners but whose value is only a few shillings, has been stolen from a large mill in Bramley, Leeds.

The cloth was in a roll-top desk, which was burst open. The piece had woven in it about a dozen of next year's patterns, and was to be shown to the London merchants.

Nine months' work had gone into the designing and weaving of the cloth.

Thin, Pale, Tired? Look Out For Chronic Fatigue

One of the most insidious ailments today is chronic fatigue. Thousands are only half-alive, constantly suffering with weakness, nervousness, palpitation of the heart, headaches, etc.—continually taking medicines—when, in the great majority of cases, the real trouble is chronic fatigue.

Chronic fatigue is entirely different from the "healthy" fatigue you feel after hard work. Chronic fatigue comes from within. Your nerves, muscles, organs, etc., have become run-down and cannot function properly.

To conquer it you must go to its cause—in the blood. For it is from the blood that every muscle, nerve and tissue gets its nourishment. So when you are thin, pale, tired and run-down, it is usually because your blood is thin and pale, lacking in sufficient organic iron to carry strength to the starved tissues.

What you need, then, is not mere tonics, but more organic iron in your blood, so it can carry strength and vigor to every part of your body.

But don't take the older mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good. Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like that in spinach and lentils. Unlike ordinary mineral iron it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, but is promptly assimilated.

Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and you'll be amazed how much stronger you feel—how the color comes back to your cheeks and the sparkle and life to your eyes—how happy if not improved. At all good druggists.

Nearly a Blue Carnation

The nearest approach to a blue carnation that has yet been seen is one of the features of the Royal Horticultural Society's autumn show, which opened at the Holland Park (London) skating rink.

This carnation, which is exhibited by Messrs. Stuart, Low and Co., when viewed from certain angles, has a distinctly bluish tinge, but with a ray of purple. It has not yet been christened, but it is expected that its name will be "Nearblue" (Nearer Blue).

Boy's Tramp Towards Wembley

105 MILES ON FOOT "AND WORTH IT"

Horace Needham, the 13-year-old boy who tramped from his home in Wolverhampton to Maidenhead, Berkshire—about 105 miles—on his way to the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley, returned to Wolverhampton yesterday.

"It was the ambition of my life to see the exhibition," he told a Daily Mail reporter. "Children at school told me how wonderful it was, and I particularly wanted to see the Tattoo and Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb."

"A porter from the Maidenhead workhouse took me there on Saturday. It was simply wonderful. The Tattoo was very nice, and Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb was all right, only it frightened me a bit seeing all the mummies. Now I have seen it all I am quite satisfied, and shall never leave home again."

The boy's mother said this was his sixth attempt to walk to Wembley. On other occasions he got as far as Tower-center, Coventry, Birmingham, and Stratford-on-Avon.

"I used to sit by the roadside during the day and walk at night," said the boy. "I got food here and there, but I never slept properly, only closing my eyes for a little while."

"The day I had at Wembley was the best day of my life, and it most worth it!"—Daily Mail, Sept. 16.

What Causes Colds

The time-honoured notion that colds are for the most part caused by inclement weather is ridiculed in a bulletin issued by the United States Public Health Service.

Cold in the head, says the bulletin, is unquestionably the consequence of over-fatigue, which exposes the system to the bacilli that float constantly about. The majority of colds are "caught" during the months when little outdoor exercise is taken.

It is not cold or damp which causes coryza (the technical word for the ailment), but the substitution of stale air for fresh.

Foreign Grip on Ireland

ENGLAND AT ARMS' LENGTH.
There is a considerable body of opinion which, while not hostile to the present situation, is deeply hostile to the Shannon electric power $5,000,000 contract granted to Siemens and Schuckert of Germany. This contract, unlike other smaller ones, was not open to world-wide competition.

There are imaginative people who look years ahead, see Ireland as an outcome of this scheme under German domination, with the power in German hands of instantly putting the country in darkness and at a standstill. This is a view that has been expressed.

An able and broad-minded man of affairs in Dublin summed up the matter thus:

Our Ministers are clever young men anxious to show us how independent they are of England. These contracts are the result of reaction from English control—a phase that will pass.

Most of us feel that it has already been carried a little too far. After all, Britain is far and away our best customer.

This attempt to hold Britain at arm's length means commercial and economic suicide, and it is high time our young and idealistic Ministers realized it.

The Irish Times, commenting on the Free State Government's policy, says:

"The Government has carried its theory of national dignity and independence to such lengths that it is trying to isolate the medical profession and to build a wall of compulsory Irish round the 26 counties."

"The City That Never Sleeps"

It is safe to assume that there isn't a man, woman or child in the United States who would be unable to give the correct answer to the question: Which is "the city that never sleeps?" And because every one does know the answer, James Cruze's latest Paramount picture that bears this alluring title, is awaited with more than ordinary interest by local film fans. Manager O'Neill and Coady announce that this production will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Monday and Tuesday.

The picture is an adaptation by Walter Woods and Anthony Goldsway of Leroy Scott's famous story, "Mother O'Day." The action centers about two women, mother and daughter. The mother keeps a cafe and dance hall in the Bowery section of New York. To make sure that her little baby girl will get the proper care and attention, she arranges to have the child adopted by an impoverished but socially prominent society woman to educate and bring up as her very own.

The girl grows up in an age when to have to spend and the female of the species tries to outdo the male in merry-making. From start to finish the screen play is full of all those elements that go to make rich entertainment.

Director Cruze has provided a cast that is more than acceptable. Louise Dresser, Virginia Lee Corbin, Kathryn Williams and Richard Cortez, who are featured, need no introduction, and the supporting players are equally well known. The fact that the picture was made by the producer of "The Covered Wagon" is a guarantee of its worth from a directorial standpoint.

With this big picture, a two reel comedy, "The Pinhead", starring the celebrated Clyde Cook will be shown.

2,050-Miles Flight

As foreshadowed by the Secretary for Air during the debate on Air Estimates in the House of Commons on March 15, the Air Ministry have made arrangements for the despatch this autumn of a flight of three Service air-craft, from No. 47 Squadron of the Royal Air Force, stationed at Helouan, from Cairo to Kano, in Nigeria. The flight is being undertaken for the purpose of gaining experience in long-distance flights over tropical countries where few facilities in the way of the ground organization required by aircraft exist, and to allow Nigeria to see the capabilities of British aircraft.

The route to be followed will pass through the Sudan, French Equatorial Africa, and past Lake Chad to Kano, the capital of Nigeria.

The places to be visited for refueling, etc., will be Aswan, in Egypt; Khartoum, El Obeid, and El Fasher, in the Sudan; Abecher and Fort Lamy, in French Equatorial Africa; Maidugari and Kano.

The organization of the flight is being undertaken by Sir Vice-Marshal Sir Oliver Swann, the air officer commanding Middle East Squadron Leader A. Coningham, D.S.O., will be in command of the flight, which will start about the end of October.

The distance from Cairo to Kano is about 2,050 miles.

Plane Safety

DEVICE TO STOP MACHINE FROM STALLING.

One of the Daily Mail sky-writing airmen, Mr. M. L. Bramson, gave an aerial demonstration yesterday before experts at the London Aerodrome, Hendon, of a new safety device which he has invented and is now to be tested officially by the Air Ministry. It is claimed that it will eliminate a risk which has caused 80 per cent. of all aeroplane fatalities.

Mr. Bramson, while still at a low altitude, deliberately slowed down the machine, putting it in a position which threatened an immediate stall, followed by a spin to earth which would have ended in a crash.

But, even while the tail of the machine drooped, and before it could lose flying speed, an automatic hand jerked forward the lever Mr. Bramson was holding, and before the machine could stall its bow was made to dip down, and it began to move forward again at a safe flying speed.

How It Works
Time after time Mr. Bramson tried to stall, and each time, at exactly the right moment, the control-lever did of its own accord what he ought to have done, and avoided disaster.

The simple device weighs only 6½ lbs. Between the wings of the aeroplane is a tiny movable vane which, instantly the machine begins to tilt at an angle threatening a stall, causes a piston actuated by compressed air to push forward the control-rod in the pilot's hand.

The Security Pact

If the security pact signed at Locarno yesterday by the powers proves effective in restoring peace to Europe, it is the most notable diplomatic achievement on record, and the fact that the plan of operations was initiated by European statesmen and was brought to a successful conclusion by themselves must make it especially gratifying to all who took part in the conference.

When Austen Chamberlain threw a bomb into the League of Nations assembly on March 24th by the announcement that Great Britain refused to consider further the Geneva protocol, and took upon herself the responsibility for finding a more efficient means of maintaining the peace of Europe, there was consternation in some quarters, and loud protests were made against what was considered to be a staggering blow at the very existence of the League. Germany had made a proposal, however, and Great Britain was willing to enable that country to justify her professions of good faith.

Time will prove whether that trust was well founded, but the outstanding result of Great Britain's decision is that a definite agreement has been reached, and so far as can be judged from the meagre details supplied in the press despatches, it meets with the approval of all parties.

Interparliamentary Union

That the Interparliamentary Union at Washington must have proved a bonanza for the hotel proprietors of the Capital, a nine days' wonder for its citizens, and was of considerable interest to the camera men and newspaper reporters goes without saying, but we confess that we have been somewhat at a loss to understand the actual purpose of the gathering or to ascertain what has been accomplished.

Comments in the American papers throw little light on the subject. The Washington Star states that it was "the most important gathering of international figures since the Washington Conference," and the Baltimore Sun is quoted as saying that "never before have so many representatives of so many Governments sat under a single roof in this or any country," while the Washington Post's remark that "these legislators from 41 countries, groping in a maze of languages, feel that they have made a notable contribution towards world peace," is scarcely more enlightening. On the other hand, the Syracuse Standard-Post bluntly declares: "The Union has not accomplished much."

The subjects discussed in the six days' conference make a formidable looking array when set down on paper. They consisted among other things:—Arbitration of disputes between nations, further reduction of armaments, the codification of international laws, control of dangerous drugs, the establishment of demilitarized zones between nations, the levelling of tariff walls in Europe, the problems of national minorities, and remedies for parliamentary shortcomings. When it is considered that under the rules every speech had to be interpreted into two other languages, in other words, that those who attended had to follow politely each speech three times, it is safe to conclude that the proceedings were neither interesting nor entertaining, and it is not surprising that one correspondent remarked, "The sessions consisted of little but endless oratory, aimed at nothing in particular, and attracting little attention even from the delegates themselves."

The most important day of the conference, it is said, was Oct. 5th, when disarmament was discussed. On that occasion 25 per cent. of the 371 statesmen were in attendance, and of these 7 were women.

One paper suggests that some benefit may be derived by the rubbing of shoulders of statesmen from all over the world, but it may well be asked whether this great privilege and the results therefrom are commensurate with the time and money expended, particularly by those countries which have difficult problems of their own awaiting settlement and whose purses are anything but fat.

Art Exhibition Closes This Evening

The Art Exhibition at the Old Colony Club, Smallwood building, closes at 8.30 this evening after a week of success far exceeding the most optimistic hope of its promoters. The teas, managed by Mrs. George Knowlton, have been a complete success, and the financial returns more than satisfactory.

Mrs. Boyd Baird, who planned and arranged the musical programme succeeded in supplying a group of talented whose numbers met with enthusiastic approval. Of these vocal selections were given by Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Cyril Cahill, Miss Glendinning, Miss Withers and Miss Herder, while the instrumentalists were Mrs. Baird, Mrs. Alex. Mews, Miss Tobin, Miss Elsie Tall and Mr. Wardell.

Progress at New Hotel

Great strides are being made towards the completion of the new hotel at Port William and already the second storey has been erected. Work on the third storey begins next week and by Christmas the structure will be closed in. Such rapid progress is made possible through the care exercised in laying out the work so that the operations are carried on with the precision of clockwork. Operations are also being carried on at night time. Materials are handled by machinery wherever possible. The sand conveyors and crushing plant, where the aggregates are prepared are so placed that there is no delay in getting the materials to the mixture, from where it is conveyed in an elevator to be distributed. The left shaft or tower is 90 feet high. One hundred bricklayers, steel workers, concrete placers, electricians and general workmen are employed on the job. The reinforcing materials are being fabricated on the site, the steel being spiraled for the columns and bent into the necessary shapes for beams and girders, in the large and cutting shops. The woodwork for the forms is being hauled in a portable mill.

The hotel will be absolutely fireproof, and the only wood will be the doors and window sashes. All the pipes for plumbing, and water, as well as the electric wiring, etc. are being embedded in the concrete of walls and floors so that they will be in no way visible. One hundred of the 115 rooms will have private baths. The number of suites of rooms, at first placed at 16, has of necessity been increased to 24. This, we understand, is due to an unexpected demand, both foreign and local, for this class of accommodation. A large storage is being provided in the southern wing of the building and provision is being made for the construction of a refrigerator room for the storage of furs during the summer periods. It is learned that the Management has requests open for accommodation from the agents of the various shipping lines to all the hotel to capacity for at least 4 months of the year and they are confident that the venture will be a complete success financially, as well as being a big asset for the city of St. John's.

The new quarters are at 130 Theatre Hill. C.W.A. Oct. 17th, 1925.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Oct. 16th.—Lay long, through no fault of mine own, being that our fool of a may've'd forget to call me and so am made pretty late for the office, which troubles me, having a deal of work to get off my hands. Do see in my morning sheet how Mr. Higgins, the Attorney General, goes to London about the business of the Labrador Boundary, which methinks will be finished soon, nor will there be any that will grieve to hear it. Indeed, it has cost the country so much that out of consideration for these expenses, Canada should waive her claims. My wife this day busy about the house with cakes and do tell me that it is for a sale, which do madden me, that the wretch will work in the kitchen all the day without complaint for other people but should I venture to ask for a cake that do please me she will rave at me that I should desire my wife to tire herself in the kitchen that I may have food that I like.

Industrial Fair Opens on Monday

Preparations for the opening of the Annual Industrial Fair, which takes place on Monday, are fast nearing completion, and to-day the Prince of Wales' and Curling Rinks is a hive of industry with carpenters, painters and decorators busily engaged putting on the finishing touches. In all there are 67 stalls, many of which show that much thought has been given to design. After the official opening by His Excellency the Governor on Monday, at 3 p.m., the Fair will remain open for two weeks. The four city bands have been engaged to be present, as well as the Prince's Orchestra, and lovers of music will be in for a treat. In the Curling Rink there has been built a dancing platform, which this year is much larger than last year, being now the full length of the rink. Vaudeville Programme Each Evening. A stage has also been erected in the western end of the Curling Rink and each evening there will be given a programme of vaudeville, which promises to be entertaining, as some of the city's most well known talent will perform.

CHILD WELFARE

HEALTHY BABIES

"An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure." Clinic Notes.—On Thursday we held the first Clinic in our new quarters, and it was a record one—forty mothers and babies. Now that we are properly installed the Tuesday and Thursday Clinics will be held as usual. Mothers, we are depending upon you to make each Clinic a record one, so come on Tuesdays and have babies weighed and watch him develop. Thursdays, the Doctor is in attendance, and if baby is feeling at all sick he can be examined and serious trouble averted.

"What's in a Name?"

THE NEW HOTEL. Shakespeare asks "What's in a name?" Well, it means a lot just now; Writing daily, man and dame. One lady says "The Avalon." 'Tis about the new Hotel, A name they think would suit it well. And each day they have the best. Sebastian's the name says one, A fine name, that's no doubt; Another says "The Avalon." A name "can't be knocked out." Gilbert says one "Jimmie J." In the best name of an age. Others, to this name say nay, For William, say some more.

Now one, a lady, writes to state, Atlantic would be the best. Being cradled by the hand of fate Upon Atlantic's breast. And while they write the Hotel grows. The work goes bravely on. With sound of saws and hammer blows. And will until 'tis done. The work is being attended to By Cameron and Ahearn; And ere long let me tell to you The name that will be chosen. And from that name will never part. We have always loved it well. The nearest to each native heart "The Newfoundland Hotel." TERRA NOVA. Oct. 17, 1925.

London Exposed

MEN WHO THINK IN MILLIONS.
By HANNOS SWAFFER in TH-BITS.

The secrets of London are behind its walls. You walk past them not knowing what is taking place on the other side.

Sometimes it is the tragedy of a woman; sometimes the budding hope of a child; sometimes the vanishing dreams of a millionaire.

Would you search for the soul of London in its mean streets or its mansions—at the Ritz or the Seven Dials? I know both.

Does that pale, undersized, snuff-nosed boy who carried your bag from Euston—the typical Cockney street Arab—seem to be more akin to the heart of London than that fat, red-faced man, with the enormous cigar and diamonds, in the Rolls-Royce which nearly knocked you over? Going Citywards along the Embankment, almost any morning, you can, if you know their faces, recognize, riding in their motor cars, at least fifty men who are reputed to be millionaires. Some of them are worth almost countless thousands. Others live on reputations for wealth which they have acquired by lavish expenditure.

Mecca of Wealth.

A millionaire is a man who raises his stakes—and wins. Instead of buying one bale of cotton, he has bought 10,000; instead of investing merely his own money, he has induced other people to invest theirs also; or he may have owned land or mining property miles away which has suddenly become of real, or imaginary, value.

Few of these men were born in London; few of them control London properties or London businesses. They come from all parts of the country; they dominate other people's activities in all parts of the world. Yet nearly all of them sleep several nights a week, and work five days out of seven, in the area between Liverpool Street Station and South Kensington. How many millionaires there are in that area every day no one could tell. But I know forty, at the very least. Every day I meet a dozen.

V. VIVAUDOU, INC.
Paris New York

where I have met at lunch some of the highest people in the land, all proud to know "Jimmy," some of them often the slaves of his whims. To please him, I have seen them putting golf balls into a glass tumbler for $5 a ball, this in between long discussions on money or politics. "Go and buy Alsace-Lorraine for me and give it to France, Swaff," was White's ironic recipe for peace one day. "Then we can get on with business."

"Scrap of Paper" Fortunes.

White, like most millionaires, who trade all day, does his business by making a note on a small piece of paper and handing it to his secretary.

When the three brothers Rothschild used to sit in the same room all day, Alfred, the cleverest one, would do this every five minutes; often it meant a £500,000 deal. In White's case, a slip of paper is brought in mysteriously, something is written down, and the paper goes away again. It may be a bet about one of his horses running that day; it may be an order to buy 10,000 shares; it may be a decision to purchase a company, or sell one. You never know. You never see the penciled note. Sometimes it is only the word "Yes," or "No."

The telephone goes all the time; but only the people who matter ever reach "Jimmy" himself. A millionaire has to work with a sort of armed guard, to keep callers away. Not even the magic word "Appointment" will do. This will go on all day from ten till five, or six, perhaps, when White, after buying and selling shares or pieces of property, goes to see his theatrical show in the Daily's auditorium downstairs; the arranging of this he often tries to fit in between shareholders.

Compared with White, however, most millionaires I know look upon life very seriously. One, who deals in foreign exchange, buying and selling hundreds of thousands of francs, marks, and pesetas, trains for his day's mental strain by boxing with a professional every morning. Another, unrecognized, runs round Hyde Park for an hour before you are up. A third, nervous of his health, sits with his private doctor in his office all the time.

I know one who, leaving me at one o'clock in the morning, has often said: "I've got to be up at six." Soon after seven, his factories in the North are on the telephone calling him. What they say decides his vast deals, which affect business all over the world.

"How much business did you do today?" I asked him, the other night. "I cannot tell you to £50,000," he said. "My agents were doing it for me, in nearly every capital in the world."

Unhappy in Prosperity.

He has few friends, this millionaire; he is not the man to seek them. He sticks to the few people he has known for years, men of his own type, not over-cultured, plainly-dressed, ordinary-looking men. They talk business all the time.

I saw two millionaires, the other night, come out of a picture show, men of close association and worth, between them, many million pounds. Neither of them ever seems happy, although both spend big sums on entertainment and giving others "a good time." Both have had unhappiness in their family lives. Millions do not buy happy homes.

"I used to play poker for a few shillings," one of them told me once. "Sometimes, recently, I have lost as much as £10,000 on a pair of fives. But it's just the same. I started poor and worked hard, and liked it. Now that I am rich I work harder, and don't like it. But you have to go on."

This one is always worried what to do with his money when he dies. Charity does not appeal to him. He thinks it is helping people who ought to help themselves. He knows that if he leaves it in large sums to his family, it will do them no good.

And, all the time, he worries about his Income Tax, which is perhaps £1,000,000 a year, just as you and I do over our few pounds; but, having more, he worries more. He has gold plate to eat on, when he likes; but this is only once a year, as a rule. He has jewels, almost by the bucket, and these he adores, sitting with them in his hands, all alone, not so much because of their value as their beauty.

Worth More Than Riches.

And yet they say that, when he met the Shah of Persia in the South of France, a few years ago, and showed him proudly a coloured diamond, which he always carried in his pocket and which was one of the largest ones he knew, the Shah said, "How remarkable! I've never seen one so small!" I know one "millionaire" who is now said to be rich because he owes only £3,000,000.

"He's much richer than he was last year," they say; "then he owed £5,000,000."

To him, money is such a cipher that with a little luck he will do something, in a few months, which will make him actually a wealthy man again. When you play for high stakes, your luck varies as much as when you play for small ones.

Frequent these men's society and you will find that their interests are the same as other people's. They are affected by the rain, the same as everybody else.

"I can only wear one suit of clothes

"ABOUT A YEAR AGO I consulted a specialist. He found my condition run down, gave me a serum to prevent colds, and advised Fleischmann's Yeast once a day. I followed directions for a month. To my delight my former vigor was restored. And my former constipation has disappeared. I am keeping it up. I feel fresh and vital every day."
J. Milnor Dorey, Trenton, N. J.

"SCRATCHES FESTIVE! pin pricks turned to boils—I was a rival for Job's laurels. My nerves were chaotic. I developed a rash, craven terror of pain. A neighbor suggested yeast and, though cynically doubting the remarkable cure narrated, I took 4 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily between meals for one month. The incredible happened. A boil just starting dried away painlessly, minor blemishes on my back, which I had had in series for years, totally disappeared; I grew steadily stronger, and life reassumed normal perspective. Finally I, who had dragged to my housework, half fainting from the least exertion, had surplus energy and wiped dishes dancing to phonograph records!" Mrs. R. G. Booth, Fort Washington, N. Y.

"THIS SPRING, just recovering from a serious illness, I asked my physician if yeast would do me any good. He said, that it was very good, so I began eating it. I am no longer troubled with indigestion, headaches, or stomach troubles of any kind, nor do I any longer wish to hide my face on account of the pimples. Instead of the pale sallow look, I have a good rosy complexion and a good appetite. Now I can eat a hearty meal, and enjoy it. Fleischmann's Yeast has wrought this wonderful change, for at present I use no other remedies."
Janey Chartrand, St. Mary's, Que.

Fleischmann's Yeast is prepared for market in Newfoundland.

And all found the Way to Health

For them fresh energy, a new zest in living came through one simple food

Not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. The Fleischmann Company, P.O. Box E-5201, St. John's, Newfoundland.

"THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—banishes constipation, skin troubles, stomach disorders. Start eating it today!"

"TEN YEARS OF WORK as a press telegrapher, one of the most sedentary of occupations, had made me a chronic sufferer from constipation and many of its attendant evils. After a severe illness two years ago, a friend recommended Fleischmann's Yeast as a tonic and general body builder. I began by drinking a cake of yeast in milk, morning and night. Within a comparatively short time the constipation had entirely disappeared, my complexion cleared, and I felt as if years had dropped from my shoulders."

INVESTMENTS.

I have some extra dollars which were better saved than spent. And so I'll buy a solid-edged bond to earn me four per cent. I'll call that an investment, 'tis a term all bankers use. But one which money-minded men so frequently abuse. Not all investors pay in gold, some pay in peace of mind. And some in happy memories of days when we were kind.

Life gives us countless dividends in payment for our deeds. The marigolds are coupons which we cut from planted seeds. The good will of our neighbors is a joy which we collect. From having neighbored with them in a way they could respect. Our children are investments, too, in which our worth shall show. For seldom 'tis by luck or chance good men and women grow.

We are investors, one and all, by each a choice is made. Some risk their lives in art and some invest them in a trade. And who shall give his best to life shall reap his dividends. In peace of mind and happiness, the love and trust of friends; But who invests in selfishness, in cunning or in shame, Shall find, however filled his purse, He's played a losing game.

Blank poverty of spirit is a failure that is worse. Than the error of wrong judgment which brings poverty to purse. For money may be squandered, and a stock not worth its cost. But a good name lives forever and a kind deed's never lost. So I'd invest my hands and brain in all life's finer things. And seek the compensation which that sort of venture brings.

Cassel used to work in the City all day, from ten to four or five, like all the others, saying "Yes" on the telephone, writing on a slip of paper, sending out a note. Then, one day, his butler went into his private room and found him dead—alone.

at the same time," said Lord Rosebery once, "just like a workman."

Sir Ernest Cassel, one of the richest men in England, who knew more millionaires than I do, summed it all up, at the end of his life, when I saw him in his house near Park Lane.

"I am one of the unhappiest men alive," he said. "I have all these pictures, this vast house, everything I want—except my daughter. She was the apple of my eye, and she is dead. Life holds nothing more for me."

Master "Crook" Unmasked

SEPTUAGENARIAN WHO MADE & LOST FORTUNES ON THE TURF AND BECAME "KING" OF RECEIVERS.

A man who made and lost great fortunes on the turf, and became the master mind of a daring criminal gang, has been unmasked by Scotland Yard.

He is James Duncan Roberts, a grey-haired, bearded man of seventy-one, who was once a wealthy racehorse owner, and who achieved dazzling success on the Australian turf. He stood revealed at the London Sessions, when an ex-cobler and forger, who became a king of receivers, and the master mind of a daring criminal gang.

From Wealth To Penury.
How this former turf magnate squandered a fortune, reduced himself to penury, then met a notorious trainer of criminals, who introduced him to the underworld, and started him on a career of crime, was told by Detective Inspector Leach, who knows more about international crooks and swindlers than any other Scotland Yard officer.

Roberts is the son of an Australian sheep farmer, who died worth £60,000 or £70,000. He inherited £15,000 as his share in the fortune, went in for horseracing, and became one of the most successful owners in Australia.

He owned several famous horses which won many important races and earned him huge sums, but there came a turn in his fortunes and he found himself ruined by reckless gambling. Spendthrift Turned "Crook."
James Duncan Roberts, the racehorse owner and spendthrift, then disappeared, and there rose in his place Duncan Brown, master criminal, the brains behind many a daring criminal conspiracy.

It was the name of Duncan Brown, writes a "Weekly Post" representative, that Roberts was convicted at London Sessions, as a receiver of stolen property and sentenced to three years' penal servitude. Scotland Yard have good reason to congratulate themselves on his conviction, for they have rarely had to deal with a more cunning or elusive criminal.

His capture, by means of which the police have been able to break up the gang of which he was the organizing genius, was brought about by exhaustive enquiries into a series of Jewish thefts from London hotels. A deep-laid conspiracy was revealed by the police inquiries, but it was only by following endless clues that the detectives obtained the information which enabled them to swoop down and obtain evidence that disclosed Roberts as the leader of the gang.

Three of his accomplices—Alfred Ingram, an old thief, Edward Francis Peters, and his young wife, Edith Peters—were arrested at the same time. Other minor members of the gang are still at large.

Big Jewel Hauls

Big hauls of jewellery were made by the gang from London hotels by working according to a plan of capture directed by Roberts. Mrs. Peters was assigned to the role of getting the "inside information." Roberts provided her with forged references to enable her to secure situations in hotels. When she had "marked down" guests with valuable jewellery, and learned where the jewels were kept, other members of the gang would arrive at the hotel, and put up as visitors, seize the booty as soon as a favourable opportunity presented itself, and then they would all decamp.

Forger's Stock-in-Trade

When Inspector Leach and other Scotland Yard men made their raids upon different addresses in London used by the gang, property stolen from the "Telford" Court Hotel, Steatham, was traced, and it was in connection with the theft that the four were convicted. Ingram, who has a bad criminal record was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. Peters was given fifteen months and his wife nine.

Head and Chest Colds Relieved In a New Way

A Salve which Releases Medicated Vapors when Applied Over Throat and Chest.

Inhaled as a vapor and, at the same time absorbed through the skin like a liniment, Vicks VapoRub reaches immediately inflamed, congested air passages. This is the modern direct treatment for all cold troubles that is proving so popular in Canada and the States where over 17 million jars are now used yearly.

Splendid for sore throat, tonsillitis, bronchitis, croup, head and chest colds, catarrh, asthma or hay fever.

Just rub Vicks over throat and chest and inhale the medicated vapors. It quickly loosens up a cold.

Over 21 Million Jars Used Yearly

A lot of incriminating evidence was found by the police at Roberts's apartment. There was a stolen cheque, the crossing on which had been removed by chemicals, and all the stock-in-trade of a forger and an expert confidence man.

Graduated In Crime

Roberts originally studied crime in Glasgow under the tuition of a trainer of thieves whom he had met when he came to Scotland after he had lost his fortune in Australia. He was sentenced in 1903 at Glasgow to five years' penal servitude for stealing bank notes.

The Prime Minister and the Miners

The misunderstanding which has arisen in connection with the coal truce is most unfortunate, and the Prime Minister must shoulder the responsibility. This truce was arranged hurriedly at the very last moment, and though the mine owners were given a written agreement as to profits, there was only a verbal understanding with the miners concerning wages.

The miners contend that the subsidy was granted to prevent wages falling below the level prevailing in July, 1925. The Prime Minister replies that the subsidy only maintains the wages agreement of 1924, which would mean that basic rates could be cut under certain conditions, as has already happened in parts of South Wales and Durham.

Mr. Baldwin bases his verdict on certain statements and documents; but he ignores the most important document of all. On August 3, three days after the truce was made, a document was circulated to members of Parliament which contained the terms of the Supplementary Estimate required for the subsidy. This document was signed by the Financial Secretary, and defined the purpose of the subsidy as: "Provision for a temporary subvention to enable the coal-mining industry to continue the payment of wages at rates not less than those obtaining in July, 1925."

Parliament voted the money for this purpose, which is clearly defined; and if we are going to pay any regard to constitutional practice, this definition must stand. The documents and statements quoted by Mr. Baldwin are of minor importance compared with this Treasury memorandum, and he does not appear to realize that his decision goes behind the back of Parliament. The situation has been very badly handled; and Mr. Baldwin is guilty of a grave error, which we trust he will take immediate steps to repair.—Liverpool Weekly Post.

Two Bull Moose Fight to Death

They had fought a duel during the night and honors were even.

5,000 Snapshots a Second

The British Government possesses a cinematograph camera, the only one of its kind in the world, capable of taking 5,000 separate pictures a second.

This marvel of cinematography has taken four years to manufacture and cost over £215,000. It weighs four tons, and photographs on ordinary cinematograph film, pictures that make the present so-called slow-motion film look rapid.

The Government are using the camera to study the effects of armour-piercing shells on various kinds of armour plates. Every detail of the bursting of shrapnel, the action of a quick-firing gun, or the recoil of a gun, can be studied with the aid of this wonderful invention.

The film runs on a drum that revolves 1,000 times a minute, 18,000ft. of film behind the lens in a second. To counteract the effects of centrifugal force and to keep the film in contact with the drum, the air is exhausted from the underside of the film by means of a vacuum pump.

The strongest daylight is not strong enough for exposures as rapid as 1-85,000th of a second or less. Powerful searchlights have enabled 3,000 exposures a second to be made, but greater speed will not be possible until a more intense light is available.

Worth Knowing

When cooking apples add a pinch of salt and you need have no fear about your apples being tender.

Lamp or gas globes can be more quickly cleaned than by immersing in water. Hold them over a jug or pot of boiling water until well steamed, then polish well with a dry cloth.

Iron rust can be removed from cotton or linen goods by boiling a small quantity of rhubarb, then dipping the part of the material that is spotted in the liquid. Wash afterwards in the usual way and the spots will all disappear.

Cauliflower is a very hard vegetable to dish up without breaking to pieces. Try trying them up in a cloth like a pudding. You will not only be able to dish them whole, but your task will be much easier by the cloth.

If you keep your own chickens and have a few eggs that you want to keep for a few weeks, dip the eggs for one minute in water that is nearly boiling; they will then keep fresh for a month. Dip only a few at a time, and be sure not to keep them in the water for more than one minute. Eggs brushed over individually with a little sweet oil will keep fresh for nearly six months.

Have you found at the end of the summer that your best crepe-de-chine blouse or some of your best table linen is stained with fruit juice and refuses to move? Try applying a little ether to the affected part. This can be obtained at any chemist's and the chemist himself will tell you how to use it. Wash the article afterwards in the usual way. Another good remedy is pure eucalyptus oil.

PERRELLO FELLED AS THREE BULLETS FROM GUN OF SUSPECTED RIVAL ENTER BODY.

With the vengeful swiftness of an episode on the screen, an assassin "got his man" at West and Duane Streets and slipped back into his hiding place.

Charles Perello, 35, was talking on the corner with Charles Esperotto, his business partner. Perello was formerly a middleweight pugilist known as "Jack Green," but bought a trucking concern at No. 174 West St.

As they talked, with heavily laden trucks rumbly past, and a constant stream of pedestrians thronging the sidewalk, a man stepped from behind a parked truck. Uttering no word, he fired, the bullet striking Perello in the back.

Perello turned, only to receive two more bullets, one in the chest, and the other in the right thigh. The stranger fired two more shots as Perello sagged to the sidewalk, but they went wild.

Perello was still alive when removed to Broad St. Hospital, but his recovery was declared impossible. In an ante-mortem statement he declared he had no enemies, and could not guess who shot him, but the police learned there had been bitter rivalry between his firm and another in the trucking of grapes.

One of those with whom the former pugilist is said to have quarrelled was sought in connection with the shooting.

Perello's home is at No. 696 Sackott St., Brooklyn, as it that of Esperotto's.

Viscount Grey's Memoirs
KITCHENER AND HALDANE.

Viscount Grey's book is of extraordinary historical importance and deep personal interest. Every line in it, by its frankness and sincerity, will increase the respect to which the author is held by his countrymen. "I do not know that I did well, but I did honestly," he wrote to his wife after his conversation in 1906 with the French Ambassador, explaining what the attitude of England would be if France were attacked by Germany. These words are characteristic of the spirit which animated him, and explain why the Allies placed such absolute confidence in him.

New light is thrown on the Agadir affair of 1911 when in his belief Germany really meant to make war on France.

Had the crisis led to war, this would have come at the very season that we know was favoured for the purpose by German military leaders in 1870, and that was selected for the menace to France in 1905, and that we believe was decided by the military authorities for war in 1914.

One reason why war did not come then may, he suggests, be found in the famous speech which Mr. Lloyd George made, telling the Germans we should fight if they persisted in their action against France.

That the military party in Germany willed the Great War Lord Grey is certain, and this deliberate judgment by a man whose career is a living record of truthfulness and fair dealing will convince any doubters, if such exist among honest men.

DISHONOUR OF NEUTRALITY.

When the German Chancellor suggested that England should leave France in the lurch and remain neutral, Lord Grey says:

The proposal made to us meant everlasting dishonour, if we accepted it. If Britain did remain neutral, people would expect the Government to stipulate terms for our neutrality. I had contemplated resignation if war came and we declined to stand by France, and I had therefore thought nothing as to making conditions for our neutrality.

This fact that Lord Grey would have left the Government if it had deserted France is a political disclosure of great importance. But he states that (as was well known at the time), until the invasion of Belgium a large party in the Cabinet was against giving any promise of help to France, and he adds that Mr. Bonar Law told him that he doubted whether the Conservative Party "would be overwhelming in favour of war, unless Belgian neutrality were invaded."

Lord Grey meets and demolishes the impudent German allegations that France or Russia provoked the war:

France dreaded war and did all she could to avoid it. French minds were probably more preoccupied with the awful peril of war to France than with the dread of war as a general catastrophe. The immense growth and strength of Germany had smothered all French intention to attempt a revanche.

As for Russia:

That the Tsar or Sazonov or anyone who had a decisive word in Russia was planning to provoke or to make war I do not believe.

But in Germany:

The one constant organized authority was the military one; and there can be little doubt that high military opinion held that war must come and that in 1914 the time for war had come. . . . This crisis was to be forced to the point of war. If France abandoned Russia and of-

FOR JOY OF GOOD HEALTH

Manitoba Woman Thanks Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Crandall, Manitoba.—"When I was a young girl at home and working I had terrible pains, almost more than I could bear, and I was not regular. These troubles kept me so tired all the time that I had no strength and no ambition to join in with my friends and have a good time. I was just tired and miserable always and life just seemed as if it wasn't worth living. I saw so much in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then I had a friend who had taken it and told me about it. So I got some. Every month after taking it I got stronger and I soon did not suffer every month. It stopped the pains and helped me in other ways. Then when my babies were coming I was tired and worn out the first three months and ached badly. I took the Vegetable Compound right along and must say it made a new woman of me and able to do my work, and it helped me through confinement. You see I am a farmer's wife with a big house to look after, and three babies now. I have told over so many women about your medicine. Just last week I got a letter from my old chum in the East. Her baby was born fifteen days before mine, and she told me she was not feeling very well, her back aches so much, and that she is going to take the same medicine I took. You can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. Jos. H. Kibo, Box 56, Crandall, Manitoba. 9 c fore saw to an extent that no one else did at first, the need for raising a great Army, larger than anything that had yet been contemplated. He based this demand for men on the opinion that the war would last for three years. That seemed to most of us unlikely, if not incredible.

But Kitchener never foresaw trench warfare. When it came, "I don't know what is to be done," he said to me more than once; "this isn't war."

One good point in Kitchener's war policy was his hatred of "side shows." "My own particular regret," say Lord Grey, "is that I did not resolutely support every resistance he made to them." As to the most dangerous "side show" of all, the Dardanelles operations, Viscount Grey makes the startling disclosure, far from pleasing Russia, it "came near to impairing our relations" with the Power. The Russian public became afraid that we meant to seize Constantinople.

HAMPERING THE BLOCKADE.

Another point of great importance emphasized by Lord Grey is the incessant diplomatic opposition of the United States to the Allies' blockade of Germany early in the war. Good Americans, such as Page, the Ambassador, and Roosevelt, the ex-President, feared that President Wilson might force a quarrel. Thus the British loss and suffering were augmented, a circumstance which Americans seem to have forgotten when they exacted the enormous payment that we are now making to the United States.

In a pathetic passage the author reminds all that this book has been written under one great disadvantage—the disability of impaired sight. . . . My sight, which still enables me to write, is not equal to the sustained reading of long tracts of manuscript, or even of print. Revision and the correction of proofs have therefore been left in the main to better eyes than mine.

In such circumstances, to produce so admirable and accurate a work is a remarkable achievement.—Daily Mail.

Indian Lad Becomes Operatic Star

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 10.—(By Can. Press)—Twelve years ago an Indian lad, selling the baskets of his handicraft at Lake of Bays in the Highlands of Ontario, attracted the attention of a gifted Toronto man by his voice. And now Os-Ke-Non-Ton (Running Deer) has passed through Toronto after a holiday spent at Lake of Bays on his way back to New York, with before him another successful season on the concert platform in the United States, and next Spring, a return to Europe, where he has already achieved artistic fame, for in London last season he sang the part of the Medicine Man in the grand opera production of Hiawatha, and was made much of by royalty and society. His engagements overseas include an appearance in Berlin in April, then in Brussels, to be again entertained by the King and Queen, to be followed by a return engagement in Hiawatha in London in May at the height of the season.

Os-Ke-Non-Ton, thus first of his race to become an operatic star, was born on the banks of the St. Lawrence in Quebec, member of the Bear clan of the Mohawk tribe of the great Iroquois nation, and so is cousin to Pauline Johnson, the gifted Indian poet, whose short life did so much to enrich Canadian literature. GREAT DAM TO BE OPENED BY ONE OF KING'S SONS.

Monuments to the skill of British engineers and contractors are spread over the four quarters of the globe. The latest, and one of the greatest—the Makwar dam, on the River Nile, 250 miles south of Khartoum—will be officially opened by one of King George's sons in January next. The dam, the construction of which involved the expenditure of several million pounds, is already fulfilling its allotted task for the contractors—Lord Cowdray's firm, who were under a penalty of £100,000 a day if water was not flowing over the desert by July last. The construction of the dam was under the direction of one of the partners, Sir F. T. Hopkinson, an engineer of great experience. Over 20,000 men were employed on the work, which could only be carried on for seven months each year—from November to July, for during the other months the Blue Nile is in flood. The dam is two miles long, and creates a lake 50 miles long, two miles wide, and nearly 10,000 miles of waterways, which irrigate over 300,000 acres of desert. Cotton fields now flourish where a few months ago there was nothing but waterless desert, and as a result of the building of the dam the output of Egyptian cotton is greatly increased.—News of the World.

TIME TAKES THE FUN OUT OF LIFE.

"I hate time," said the Author-man.
"Meaning—?"
"That time seems to be the thing that takes the fun out of life. Just when you're comfortable or enjoying yourself it's time to do something or go somewhere or get something. Curses on the man who invented clocks. Yes, I know you're going to tell me there were sundials before clocks, but I don't believe they were so accurate. And you could get a little more leeway."
Always Time For Something.
Who hasn't felt that way?
It's always time for something, time to get up, time to eat breakfast, time to go to work or school, time for the baby's bath, time for the baby's nursing, time to go to the dentist's, time to go to the party, time to go to bed.
Sometimes when life gets too complicated it seems as if we were always chasing the clock or the clock chasing us—and as if we were breathless all the time from the pursuit.
The Keeper of Another's Time Conscience.
And if there's anything a little more sacred than always trying to be on time for anything, it is trying to get someone else to be. It is a really terrible thing to be the keeper of his or her time conscience for someone who is lacking it, never to be quite sure that one's wife will not be still powdering her nose ten minutes after one ought to have started for the train, or that one's husband will not insist on finishing his book the night you have the dinner engagement and upset the life. Just when whole evening by arriving 15 minutes late for the dinner. One woman I know whose whole family is consistently indifferent about when it arrives to meals finally gave up having a maid simply on that account. "It's bad enough," she said, "to try to keep things hot for you myself, but if I've got to live with a thundercloud every time you're late it's too much of a nerve strain. I'd rather do the work myself than try to get you people to be on time."

Wouldn't it be fun sometimes to take a vacation from time. To go somewhere to a house where there were no clocks, to get up when you felt like it and eat when you felt like it and to make absolutely no appointments for the day, and to go to bed when you felt like it.
Or would it?

The Timelessness of Heaven.
I have always thought that one of the nicest things we are promised about Heaven, would be its timelessness. "Time shall be swallowed up in eternity. And yet again, I wonder. It would be nice at first but should we begin to long for clocks after awhile and for the fun of chasing or being chased by time?

Well, that will be one of the many things we can look forward to finding out. Sometimes I marvel that we cling so eagerly to life when there are so many fascinating things to be found out by dying.

Precious Metal Magic

DISCOVERING THE SECRET OF THE PHILOSOPHER'S STONE.

The ancient alchemists thought there was a substance that would convert all baser metals into gold. This substance went by the name of the philosopher's stone, although it generally took the form of a powder of amalgam, which was meant to drive out the impurities of the baser metals and leave them in the form of pure gold.

For ages this so-called delusion persisted, and the old alchemists spent many hours over their crucibles in a vain search. It was not really fruitless, however, for the search for one thing led to the discovery of many other things.

Turning Silver Into Gold.

It was in searching for this illusive treasure that Botticher stumbled on the invention of Dresden porcelain. Roger Bacon on the composition of gunpowder, Geber on the properties of acids, Van Helmont on the nature of gases, and Dr. Glauber on the famous "salts" that bear his name to this day. The search for a method of transmitting metals to gold, in fact, laid the foundation of modern chemistry and metallurgy.

With the discovery of radium and radio-activity, however, began a new scientific area which has made some of the dreams of the old alchemists appear more reasonable, for it visualizes the time when all substances may be proved to be but manifestations of one elemental substance. Now a claim has been made by a group of French scientists that the feat of transmitting silver into gold has been actually accomplished.

The recipe is quite straightforward. There is no magic in it. The ingredients, too, are simple. One hundred and twenty-five parts of chemically pure silver are melted in a clean crucible. To this is added seven parts of yellow orpiment (arsenic trisulphide) and three parts of antimony sulphide. This is fused together for about four hours at 1,000 degrees Centigrade, and the result is a yellowish ingot.

This ingot is melted again and ten parts of orpiment and five of antimony are added, little by little, to the "stew," which is kept at the same temperature for another four hours.

Then comes the last process of fluxing the ingot. Ten parts of saltpetre, and the same amounts of sal-ammoniac and borax mixed with a paste of scraped white soap are added to the "pot." This cleans the molten metal, which again changes colour from gold to white. It is then poured out and cooled.

The investigators claim that the mass now consists of silver with the alloy of gold, the latter amounting to no more than one-quarter per cent. of the silver employed. It is said that the result has been tested and found invariably by many competent scientists, including qualified chemical engineers, and in view of the amazing developments of late years in the realm of chemistry the most conservative men of science are loth to deny this new one.

Indeed, quite recently, Dr. Mieths, of Berlin, transmitted mercury into gold in a mercury vapour lamp, and we know that diamonds of minute size were produced in a laboratory years ago.

The experiments may be the prelude to a discovery that would knock the "gold standard" all awry, and possibly, the bottom out of international exchange, for it is the comparative scarcity of gold, quite as much as its intrinsic properties of beauty and durability, that make it the foundation of the world's financial system.

English Express Drove Into Sleepers

AT SEVENTY MILES PER HOUR.

How the Weymouth to London express escaped disaster when it ran into a number of sleepers and iron chairs on the lines near Woking, is a mystery. The train, which was heavily laden with holiday passengers, was rounding a curve near Hermitage Bridge, at a speed of nearly seventy miles per hour when it dashed into the sleepers. The engine managed to keep the rails. Had it left them the train would probably have fallen over a thirty-foot embankment into the Basingstoke canal.

Both the up and down main lines were obstructed. The driver of a down train, having a better view of the line, saw the obstruction and managed to pull up, but not before the front part of his engine had struck some of the sleepers. He was unable, however, to stop the express, which crashed into the sleepers and cut them to pieces.

STUNG AGAIN.

WALT MATSON

When I went down to Reubenville, I met a stranger in the street; he talked to me with wondrous skill, his smile was bland, his voice was sweet. He pointed to a building tall, a stately structure, wide and long; he called it his ancestral hall, and said he'd sell it for a song. For evil luck had dogged his trail and filled his bosom with despair; and so I dug up all my kale and bought the building, then and there. It was the court house I thus bought, and when I went to claim my own, the sheriff said my dome of thought was built of cheap mall order bone. I sat upon the courthouse lawn, and marvelled much at people's guile; I said, "My hat covered roll is gone, but still the lesson is worth while. Hereafter when a stranger tries to sell to me a county jail, he'll find that grief has made me wise, nor can his flattery prevail. The gifted faker and his clerks may argue, wheedle and implore; I will not buy the water-works, I'll be a sucker nevermore." I am so busy watching out for men who'd sell me Halls of Fame, I'm always falling for the scout who has some other sort of game. I buy no railway, depots now, no bridges and no city halls; but yesterday I bought a cow that kicked me through the stable walls. I question if there is a man so wise, so watchful and so smart that he can see through every plan the fakers use to break his heart.

Notable Gathering in Toronto

Statesmen and Parliamentarians Representing 41 Nations Present at Luncheon.

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(C.P.)—Statesmen and parliamentarians whose names have been famous in the last decade and who hail from almost every quarter of the globe, met to-day at what was characterized as the most cosmopolitan gathering ever held in the Dominion.

To translate to the Parliament of the world the spirit of confidence in its aims felt by the international delegates to the Inter-Parliamentary Union was the paramount object of that body, declared Dr. Victor Klenbock, head of the Austrian delegation, speaking at the luncheon which was tendered by Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, and the members of the Provincial Cabinet.

Nearly four hundred parliamentary representatives from forty-one nations were assembled. Premier Ferguson said that never had so many representatives of the world's civilized countries met in Canada, before for a purpose as was apparent from the sessions of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, which was proceeding to-day to Ottawa to hold their the first official sitting of the international body ever held in this country.

Dr. Klenbock recalled that fifteen years ago he was at The Hague when the question of Canadian fishery rights was arbitrated upon, and said he was proud to think that an Austrian statesman, Dr. Lemarche, had been able on that occasion to draw up an agreement contributing to the settlement of an international problem in which Canada was so vitally interested.

Baron Theodore Adelswaerd, President of the Council of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, said that since it was the custom of the body his headed to hold its annual conferences in different parts of the world, he hoped to welcome the Canadian delegates on some future occasion in Sweden. The reception met with by the delegates in Canada, he said, convinced him Columbus would have made a mistake had he not discovered the continent.

The tables in the ballroom of the King Edward Hotel, where the assemblage gathered, were labelled with the names of every European country except Russia, with the names of South American Republics and with those of the Orient. At the head table were seated representatives from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Japan, Germany, the Irish Free State, Italy, Norway, Austria, Cuba, Denmark, Roumania, Newfoundland and Canada.

Many of the delegates from overseas were accompanied by their wives. The delegates left for Ottawa on special trains at 3.30. Official sittings will be held in the Capital to discuss the questions of the rights of minorities and the restricting of the drug traffic internationally.

The United States is represented by 97 delegates, 79 Congressmen and 18 Senators. Great Britain has 39 representatives to the conference and the Irish Free State 5. Germany is represented by 22 delegates, while Canada has 12. From the Orient come 11 Japanese Parliamentarians. China is unrepresented.

The Question of Water for Your Country Home

In planning your country home nothing is quite so important as the question of water. Formerly it was considered sufficient for the farm or country home to have a hand pump or windmill. But now the hand pump and windmill are as obsolete as the old unsanitary outhouse or chemical toilet.

Empire Duro Water Systems

made in many sizes and styles, enable any home anywhere, to have running water under pressure, all over the house, just like city water service.

Duro systems can be used with deep wells, shallow wells, cisterns or springs. They may be driven from high line current, farm light plant or gasoline engine.

A Duro system is a sound investment—it lessens labor and promotes health and cleanliness. It replaces drudgery and despair with comfort and happiness. And it is also a permanent improvement that adds to the value of your property.

Have your architect or builder ask for an estimate. Specify Duro.

Our Dumb Animals
REPORT OF S.P.A. FOR WEEK ENDING OCT. 16.

Was called on Saturday night by Mr. Quigley, Plymouth Road, to put to death a horse which was suffering from colic and lockjaw. Received a report from Mr. Hudson James, West End lumber mill, of a colt which was tangled in a barbed wire fence near his property on the Topside Road. It is about two years old, a red colt with white hind legs. Attended to the landing of twenty-five head of cattle from the Hillbrook; also some cattle from the Abattoir Co. I again thank Master Cyril Lester for selling five copies of the "Horse's Prayer," and a gentleman who bought one to send to Boston. I wish some more boys would take an interest in selling "The Horse's Prayer" for the benefit of dumb animals. I have had to send in for a rest four horses and there are also three which have been in for some time and are unfit for labour yet. Received a complaint from Woodford's Station of a dog which was seen in the neighbourhood apparently wounded. I have tried to locate the animal but was not successful. I wish to thank Mr. W. J. Nugent who sent the information. I would like all cattle owners to remember that the time of the year has come when cattle should be kept in on cold nights. Complaints have been received of horses being kept outside beer shops after a hard day's work late at night. Now with the assistance of the police I intend to have those horses taken and put in a stable, where the owner will have to pay for them in the morning. One man walked home recently leaving his horse in the city. Men depending on horses for their living should give them better treatment. I intend to do my best to follow the law if the teamsters who are guilty of this conduct continue to practice it. All complaints have been attended to, late and early.

(From "The Geman Secret Service," by Its War-Time Chief, Colonel Nicolai)

The Austrian Information Department (the "Kundschafts Stelle," or, for short, the "K.S.") was an astounding place. If the "K.S." was in the least degree interested in any visitor, his photograph, face and profile, could be taken, his finger-prints registered, and his every word put on a gramophone plate—and all without his knowledge. No matter where the visitor sat—in the hall, in a waiting-room, or in the bureau of any of the officers of the department—a couple of unseen cameras were focussed on him. Soon after he had been shown into an officer's room, a telephone there would ring. In the midst of the conversation the officer would point to a closed cigarette-case on the table and say, "Do have a cigarette." The visitor would take the case and help himself. The outside of the case was treated with minimum, and retained (invisible till developed) the finger prints of the person who handled it. The telephone talk was a "dummy conversation," of course, for the officer had rung himself up by pressing with a foot a knot under the table. If the visitor did not smoke the officer would suddenly recollect that a file, lying at the visitor's end of the table, should have been taken to Room—long ago. He would snatch it up, and with "excuse me for a couple of minutes," would run out of the room. Another file was then exposed, it was marked "Secret." Now, few visitors to the "K.S." were likely to be able to resist just a peep into a secret file! The boards of it were also treated with minimum. If the visitor, watched from the next room, resisted that temptation, then another ruse would be tried, and another, till at last one was successful. And all the time an instrument was transmitting every spoken word to a gramophone record in the next room.

Crime Cure From Kansas

The "Kansas City Journal" has some novel proposals for dealing with crime in the city. This is the plan advocated by a local clergyman:—"When anyone is held up he shall immediately telephone the details to a telephone operator. She will plug in every 'home in the city and relate the details of the hold-up. Near, every telephone a shotgun is to be kept hanging on the wall. When the story of the hold-up is spread through the 'phones every citizen will seize his shotgun and rush into the street. All whistles will blow and at this signal all traffic, including pedestrians, will halt. Anyone besides law officers who moves will be shot."

HALIFAX MARATHON SWEEP.—So far there are 36 entries in the Halifax Race Road which takes place to-day. Time for tickets bearing entries 37 to 50, both inclusive, according to the governing rules, shall be drawn for and a prize of $50.00 awarded. Therefore, don't lose or destroy your tickets—they are valuable.—oct 17, 11

Admiral as Cicerone

Admiral Mark Kerr, who is sixty-one, is now making arrangements for a round-the-world trip with Prince and Princess Andrew of Russia and a selected party. He should make an ideal cicerone for such a trip. The Admiral, who commanded the Adriatic Squadron during the war, was one of our earliest flying enthusiasts, and is just as keen now as when he first took up the game. He attempted an Atlantic flight, but, like so many others, had to give it up. He did, however, succeed in making the second and third longest flights across country and sea in 1919.

Harbor Grace Notes

At a meeting of the young people of the United Church held recently, a Club was formed, which will occupy the winter months. It comes under the heading of the Young People's Mutual Improvement Association, and will be an all round benefit to the members, mentally, morally and physically. A Club similar to this one was organized during the time when the late Rev. W. H. Browning was Pastor of the Methodist Church here, and carried on until a year ago. On Tuesday last the Association held a Social in Coughlan Hall when a very interesting programme was rendered, consisting of songs, recitations, etc., by some of the members. At the close of the social, refreshments were served, and all present spent a most pleasant evening.

The Motion Picture presentation of "Peter Pan" was shown at the British Hall on Friday night, and was greeted by a full house. And, again, on Saturday afternoon, when the Manager, Mr. R. Lee, held a matinee for the benefit of the children. "Peter Pan" proved a special treat to the little ones.

The death of Mr. Moses Searle, Watchmaker and Jeweller, St. John's which occurred there last week, was learned here with much regret by his many friends. The late Mr. Searle was in business here for a number of years, and was well known and highly esteemed. We join with the many friends of the family in tendering sincere sympathy in their bereavement.

Through letters received recently from friends residing at Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A., mention has been made of the well-being of the following young Harbor Gracians, who are living there, or in that vicinity, viz: Misses Marjorie East, May Garland, Florrie Wells, Kathleen Lee, Anita Makinson, (of Makinson's, Briggs, but well known here) Mrs. Snow, (nee Miss Elizabeth Gordon); Messrs. Bert Davis, Ed. Foley, Levi Wells, and Jack O'Brien. Within the last few years a large number of our young people have gone to the U.S.A. to seek their fortunes, but no doubt many will wander back to Terra Nova's Shores again and remain in the homeland, when that prosperity has arrived which will induce them to do so.

Mrs. Norman Martin, accompanied by her nephew, Charles Stanley, left here last week for Lynn, Mass., after spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Snow.

Mrs. William Thomas, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. S. Penney, also her grand-daughter, Miss Dorothy Shute, left here on Tuesday week for their home in Lynn, Mass., after spending a three months holiday with her son, Mr. John H. Thomas.

Miss M. Nicholas, who was on a three week's visit to friends in the city, returned home again on Saturday, after a pleasant stay.

Mr. H. Marcell, who has been attached to the Staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia here for the past two years, has been transferred to the St. John's branch, and left by this morning's train for the City, to enter on his new duties. Mr. Marcell has made many friends during his stay here, who regret his departure, but will wish him much success in the future. He is succeeded by Mr. M. Pardy, who came to town on Wednesday.

Mr. Cecil Mews arrived by the "Pawnee" on Saturday from Bell Island, and spent the week-end here with friends. He returned to the Island again on Tuesday.

Schooner "Pandora," Capt. Ed. Burke, arrived in port on Thursday, from Hooping Harbour, with a load of fish, oil, etc., to her owner, Mr. E. Simmons.

Schooners "Cecil Jr.," and "Union Jack" which were here for dockage left port again last week.

Messrs. McRae & Sons schooner "Jean F. McRae," arrived in port on Wednesday from Sydney with a load of coal to her owners, which is now being discharged at their premises.

Miss Anne Adams, who had been here from Detroit, Mich., spending the summer months with her mother, Mrs. Eugene Adams, Bear's Cove, returned again on Monday. She was accompanied by her sister, Gertrude, and they will make their home at Detroit in the future. Three brothers are already residing there.—COR.

Laborer's Rout of Reds
NONE LEFT ON EXECUTIVE.

The Labour Party at its conference at Liverpool elected an Executive that does not contain a single Communist. Another feature of the election was the defeat of Mr. Sidney Webb, who was President of the Board of Trade and President of the Government. He was the nominee of the Fabian Society, which for the first time since the foundation of the party is now without representation.

"18th-CENTURY" REDS.

Mr. MacDonald, speaking as the guest at luncheon of the Liverpool Rotary Club, said if we had revolution we could change a Government but not the habit of the people.

We could not reorganize transport, distribution, or exchange. We could not fit ourselves into new conditions without generations of horrible starvation, destruction, political strife, industrial ruin, and national chaos from beginning to end.

"Therefore he believed in the historical or, if they liked, political method of transformation. He added:

"I am not going back. Our Communist friends are going back. The reason why they believe in revolution is because they are still living in the 18th century. I am in the 20th century, and I am in the 21st in my head."

1,000 Divorce Trials
WOMEN'S EQUAL RIGHTS.

Somerset House, the headquarters of the country's divorce work, is busy making ready the lists of matrimonial causes set down for hearing during the Michaelmas law sittings, which open on Monday, October 12.

The totals are not yet officially announced but the lists, it is believed, will include some 800 cases for trial in London, in addition to which probably 200 cases will be set down for hearing at assizes during the autumn.

The first sections of the lists published at Somerset House show 340 defended petitions and 80 undefended probate and divorce causes.

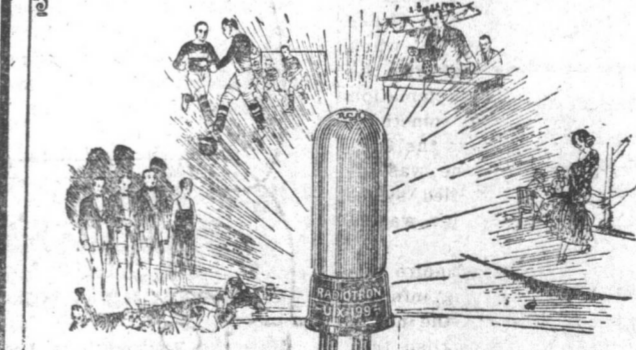

Of the 340 undefended cases a little over 200 are petitions by wives, and seem to be taking advantage of a law which gives them equal rights with men and allows them to proceed for full relief on the single ground of misconduct. Only three wives are petitioning for restitution of conjugal rights.

The Mock Auction Nuisance

SALE-ROOM TRICKSTERS.

The writer, a barrister, is General Secretary of the Incorporated Society of Auctioneers and Landed Property Agents.

For a year past my society has made unceasing efforts to induce the Government to deal with the mock-auction nuisance.

What is a mock-auction? Walk down any of London's principal streets, preferably in the afternoon or early evening, and you are almost certain to find a mock-auction in full swing. The premises are probably a shop awaiting demolition or the coming of a new tenant. Around the walls are gaudy pictures, while on tables and rostrum articles of china and glittering "silver" attract the eye.

Pennies for Pipes.

One of the tables has been pushed as near as possible to the pavement, and behind the table a salesman is gabbling volubly. At first, only one or two people drift in.

"Now this is Thursday (Monday or Saturday!) and all these things have to be cleared without reserve. Who'll take this pipe off my hands for a penny? A perfectly genuine briar. . . . Thank you, sir. . . . Here's another. Thank you, I'm afraid that's all I have. . . . Now let me draw your attention to these little boxes. . . ."

A few minutes later, gradually the table has been drawn more and more into the shop. A crowd gathers. Now more than a dozen people have speculated shillings on the little closed boxes. Quite possibly these obtain an excellent shillings-worth, and so well-satisfied are they, so regardless of the obvious fact that the salesman is setting a bait, that half-crowns and notes are next produced with alacrity. All too late, when saddled with some worthless sham at a high price, they realize how they have been fooled.

In the provinces mock-auctions are carried on with even less attempt to disguise the worn apparel of the old-time "cheap-jack." Now and then an "auctioneer" is charged with obtaining money by false pretences, or with "stealing by a trick."

In a few cases convictions are the result, but usually the defendant is saved by a technicality, and after being told that he has been "sailing very close to the wind," is discharged.

With the object of making frauds of this kind more difficult of accomplishment, a Bill—already approved by several prominent M.P.s—has been drafted. By its provisions an applicant for an auctioneer's licence would require to be vouched for, either by a Justice or by a member of the approved professional societies.

The form of licence is altered to include more information regarding the prospective practitioner's bona-fides.

and at the same time the original fee for future applicants is raised to £25.

The Bill goes on to state that "No person shall be permitted to act as an auctioneer unless he is carrying out a bona-fide professional transaction and shall not act, or give a colourable imitation of such acts, to carry on a bogus, fraudulent, or trick sale. Nor shall he be permitted to misrepresent himself as selling bankrupt stocks of any goods, cheap jewellery, paintings . . . and the like by auction or conducted strictly in accordance with professional practice. . . . Nor shall any person be permitted to travel from place to place posing as an auctioneer, or selling his own goods in such manner."

Penalties for infringement extend to both fine and imprisonment, and the Bill concludes with the provision that: "No bona fide auctioneer shall act or permit his name or style of firm to be used in connection with any 'rigged' or bogus sale, under penalties not exceeding £25 for each day."

When the dust cleared away at the close of their Sale of Work last year, the C.L.A. had sold everything but the building. Be in time for the bargains Tuesday and Wednesday. —oct17.11

Ideal Husbands

U. S. COLLEGE GIRLS' DEFINITIONS.

What type of husband does a woman of education desire?

This questionnaire, addressed to girl students of Middle Western universities by the Kansas State Agricultural College, has elicited some curious replies.

Physical and mental fitness is emphasised by all the girls as indispensable. No fewer than 65 per cent. of the girls declare that the husband of their choice should be "cave-mannish but in a refined way."

A still greater percentage prefer "non-petters" as husbands. Twenty-eight per cent. vote for "just normal men," and 7 per cent. for men of "the Sheld type."

Strict temperance and obedience to Prohibition laws are demanded by 85 per cent., and 40 per cent. plant tobacco in their list of taboos.

As regards money the girls are moderate. Half of them declare their willingness to begin married life on £500 a year while 20 per cent. think £1,000 should be the minimum.

HALIFAX MARATHON SWEEP is a sporty sweep and it will sell till the boys come home, provided there are any tickets unsold up to Monday. Only 10 per cent. to sell. All together boys, and clean up. —oct17.11

"What's in this little package?"
"Asked pretty Henny Jenny.
"It's such a tiny, teeny thing
It might contain a penny."
"Undo the paper and untie the string,
You may find a pretty little ring."

shouted the bunny boy, hopping up and down on one leg. Well, sir, and would you believe it, that little rabbit was a good guesser. After the string was untied and the paper removed, and a little box open, there lay a pretty ring, set with a pink stone.

"It will just match my coral comb," exclaimed Henny Jenny, slipping it on her little left toe. How sweet of Lady Love, your bunny mother, and the happy little hen put an extra egg in the basket for good measure. "Be very careful not to break them," she advised, as she handed the basket to the bunny boy.

Just then the Weathercock on the Big Red Barn turned around on his gilded toe and faced the East.

"It's going to rain, it's going to rain, Hurry home little rabbit before there's a stain On your new khaki coat. A minute don't wait, For Mother is watching for you at the gate."

sang Billy Breese among the treetops. Away hopped the bunny boy, clip-clip, clip-clip, clip-clip, with never a stumble and never a slip, down the Old Cow Path to the dear Old Bramble Patch.

"Just in time," cried sweet Lady Love, as a big drop of rain splattered on her pretty plinky bonnet with the yellow daisy on it, and up the little winding path through the bushes they hurried.

"Thirteen eggs," exclaimed Lady Love, as she emptied the basket. "How generous of Henny Jenny."

"You should have seen her smile when she found the ring," laughed the bunny boy. "She slipped it on her little left toe and proudly showed it to Cocker Doodle. She said it just matched her coral comb."

"I thought it would," said Lady Love. "And now I must bake a most delicious angel cake," and she set to work with a song. Just a little humming song, but it was so sweet that Happy Bluebird who chanced to be passing by at that moment, perched on a bramble to listen.

All of a sudden the telephone went tinkle, tinkle.

"Hello, hello! It's Uncle Lucky. How's my little ducky?"

asked the dear old gentleman rabbit's voice.

"Come over and see for yourself," laughed pretty Lady Love. "I'm baking an angel cake. It will be baked by the time you arrive."

The happy little hen put an extra egg in the basket.

"Put a dozen raisins in it. I'll be over in a minute."

answered the poetical old bunny man. But Lady Love only smiled, for who ever heard of an angel cake with raisins. I should like to know, although I'd be willing to eat one right now as I sit at my typewriter telling all you little Jack Rabbit fans what is going on in Rabbittland, where lollypops grow on the lollypop tree and buttercups wink on meadow and lea. And now, boys and girls, as it has stopped raining, in the next story you shall hear what happens after this.

Business Secrets

COMMERCIAL CONGRESS AND U.S. METHODS.

Copenhagen.—The fifth Scandinavian Commercial Congress, representing the merchants of Denmark, Sweden and Norway, recently adopted unanimously a resolution dealing with the claim that has been raised for power to investigate the costs of production in foreign countries. The resolution reads:

"In order that trade and industry shall be enabled to fulfil satisfactorily their important social functions, it is absolutely indispensable that merchants and manufacturers concerned should be safeguarded against any outsider having access to their calculations and manufacturing methods and that the same shall remain their property.

"No claim by any foreign country, even under the legislation in force in that country, ought to be allowed to compel merchants and manufacturers of any other country to submit to inspection their books, calculations, and methods of production, the consequence, for instance, of any exporter refusing to submit to such an inspection being that the importation of his goods into the country in question will be prohibited."—Reuter.

The above resolution is the outcome of a situation that has arisen, as it seems, from a system initiated by the United States Government for the purpose of obtaining data regarding methods and conditions of production in foreign countries.

British merchants have been asked in London to give details of their businesses. Ostensibly this is to assist in the preparation of a classified directory; but the greatest value of this information will be to tell United States manufacturers all about our business.

Special excitement has been caused in the Scandinavian countries by the request of the United States Government to be allowed to appoint Customs attaches to the various Legations for the purpose apparently of conducting these investigations.

Welsh Coal for U.S.

LARGE SHIPMENT EN ROUTE.

NEW YORK.—Predictions that the American coal strike will benefit the British anthracite industry are beginning to be realized. One large shipment of Welsh coal is already en route to the United States for Burns Bros., the largest New York retailers.

It is stated that the president of the company is in Wales negotiating for further purchases. Burns Bros. officials decline to reveal how much has already been purchased or what amount is contemplated.

Chapel in a Liner

The new North German Lloyd liner Berlin possesses a chapel, which has been fitted into the women's room in the third class section and is intended for the use of all classes of passengers.

When the room is in ordinary use there is no sign that it can be converted into a chapel at a minute's notice, but when a white paneelling in a corner is removed there is exposed a finely carved altar 4ft. in length and 2ft. 6ins. in breadth.

AMERICAN SMELTING AND REFINING COMPANY.

Its Physical and Financial Aspects.

(Boston News Bureau, Oct. 6.)
 New York.—Part of the increase in American Smelting earnings this year to somewhere between $16 and $17 a share on the common from $12.60 earned in 1924 will be due to returns from $21,385,047 spent on improvements and expansions in 1923 and 1924.

The company still has more expenditures to make at Peruvian properties, where it is erecting a smelter and mill for treating copper ores. Otherwise it has no especially large expenditures to make on construction for some time.

The company is understood to be about to send engineers to examine the Huanchaca mine, a famous producer of silver in Bolivia, whose shares are traded in Paris and London, and whose ores now go to American Smelting for treatment. This mine will not be purchased but operated under a management agreement whereby, if examination is favorable, the company will equip the property with modern machinery and, after cost of this has been returned from earnings, take a certain percentage of profits for its pay as manager and operator.

Outlook for American Smelting is the best in years. Lead prices are high, and American Smelting produces more lead and silver from its own mines than any other metal. Zinc demand is good, especially European demand. London and St. Louis prices for zinc are both high. Silver prices also promise to continue good. Smelting makes practically all its profits on copper through smelting for toll the ores and refining the resulting blister copper belonging to other companies. These ores are coming mainly from low-cost producers whose operation is least affected by price.

Over 85 per cent. of American Smelting's earnings are at present from smelting and refining operations in lead, copper, zinc, silver and arsenic, and less than 15 per cent. from mining. Smelters here and in Mexico are operating at close to capacity, while lead and silver refineries are all at capacity except the Baltimore copper refinery.

While it may appear to some that $8 a share a year on the common will be a higher rate than can be expected year in and year out, and while some may think it would be better to have cash and cash equivalent even higher than $30,000,000, and bond issues much smaller. Earnings at $15 or better a share on the common permit improvement of cash position at rate of almost $4,500,000 after paying $8 on the common, and such earnings are arrived at only after heavy cash write-offs to cover depreciation, obsolescence and depletion.

It is the high rate of these write-offs that permitted the company to put over $15,500,000 in 1923 and 1924 into improving plants and acquiring new properties, or almost $12 a common share a year for two years, yet improve cash position, pay bond interest and preferred dividends and disburse $5 a share a year on the common.

Profits lone on $1,000,000 invested in new equipment, plants and mines the past three years should take care of the increase suggested in common dividends. Moreover, even if expenditures for new mines keep up at rate of the past few years new construction should not from now on be anywhere nearly as heavy as $3,000,000 a year.

In every way it appears safe to look upon American Smelting common from now on as at least a $7 a year stock and it would appear almost as safe to assume $8 a year, especially if the $1 extra is declared now instead of at a special December meeting.

Seaweed for Speed!

Motor cars are running in many parts of the world without real petrol in their tanks. They rely for their power on vegetable alcohol, prepared by modern chemists from fruits, roots, seeds, and even flowers.

In France, alcohol is extracted from sugar-beet, and ten gallons of spirit have been extracted from a ton of this vegetable. Potatoes have been used for the same purpose in Germany.

From fifteen to sixty gallons of alcohol can be obtained from a ton of acorns, horse chestnuts, or figs. In Australia, over twenty million acres are infested by a certain kind of prickly pear, but recently this pest has become a source of profit, for it is said that fourteen gallons of spirit are yielded from a ton of the prickly stems.

MESSAGES FROM MANAGER ROBERTSON.
Runners In Pink Of Condition.
 Mr. J. M. Tobin received a message from Mr. Eric Robertson, manager of the Nfld. Track Team, this morning, which reads as follows:—
 "McLellan 36th and last entry. Boys feeling in the pink of condition; expect good results. We have four cars from Imperoyal and two from Frank Rice to keep behind the runners."
 ERIC ROBERTSON.

The following message was received by Mr. S. P. Colten, at 10 a.m.:—
 "Race starts two-thirty. Boys ready, fit; will do good."
 ROBERTSON.
 The officials in charge of the Halifax Herald Modified Marathon, which takes place to-day, have made arrangements to have the course patrolled by Scouts and Mounted Police, and it is expected that fully 50,000 will witness the race. Mayor Murphy, of Halifax, is the official starter, and after a brief address to the athletes, he will crack the pistol at 2.30 o'clock, to send them off on their long hike.
 Arrangements will be made locally with the Anglo Telegraph Co., to keep the wires open and a flash message as to the winner of the race should be received by 5.30 p.m.

With John Bell, and Ronald O'Toole, favourites, and Gower Stone and Jake Ralph in excellent shape to assist them in capturing the team prize in the race to-day, the citizens of St. John's and elsewhere will be awaiting news of their performance with great interest. We wish Mr. Robertson and the team every good luck and hope that they will bring home with them well earned honors.

INTER COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL—St. Bon's Defeat Collegians.
 With ideal weather conditions for players and spectators, the third game of the Inter Collegiate fixtures was played yesterday afternoon and ended in a win for St. Bon's over the Collegians by a score of 2 goals to 1.

First Half.
 Winning the toss the Collegians decided to defend the western goal. From the moment the ball was centered, Farrell, the St. Bon's goalie, was called on to save. Both teams then got down to hard work and it could be seen that it was to be a hard and fast struggle for the honors. There was no wind to give either side an advantage, and the ball was taken from end to end by good play of the forwards and strong kicking of the backs.

Furious Fighting.
In the fourth round, however, Milligan's guard was pierced by a left to the head which severely cut his left eye. Handicapped, he nevertheless fought furiously in every minute of the remaining rounds and was given an ovation when he was declared the victor.

One newspaper report says of him that "he proved a resolute, straight hitting fighter with about every method of attack known to the ring; he gave his opponent a lesson in boxing."

How long Milligan will remain in the States is not known, but it is believed he will return before Christmas to fight Roland Todd for the British championship, and perhaps Len Johnson, the coloured Manchester man, who has twice beaten Todd. His future movements, however, will depend on whether he is offered a match for a world's championship. This is very likely; whether Milligan is as yet sufficiently experienced and "set" to meet a man like Greb is another matter.

WON £1,500—AUSTRALIAN'S LUCK IN MAURETANIA.
One of the highest records for auction pools on board Atlantic liners has been established by Mr. W. A. Gardner, who is returning to England from the United States in the Mauretania.

During the voyage he won two pools, of £170 and £178 respectively, as well as the first and third prizes in the sweepstakes. The approximate total of his winnings is £2,500.

On the voyage from England to the United States in the Adriatic, Mr. Gardner won the ship's pool no fewer than four times, winning about £1,000, making the total of his gains for the two voyages £1,500.

PAUL BERLENBACH KNOCKS OUT SOLOMON IN FIFTE.
Babe Herman Held To Draw.
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Giving away nineteen pounds to a game and courageous foe, Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, this afternoon made an auspicious start in an attempt to qualify for a fight with Jack Dempsey by scoring a technical knockout over King Solomon, of Panama, in the ninth round of a ten-round match at the New York National Len-contest by newspaper men at the ring-side. Solomon kept his feet with difficulty until the eighth, when he was floored three times. After 31 seconds of the ninth round Referee Jack O'Sullivan stepped between them and sent Solomon to his corner, ending the fight.

Solomon's defeat was the second surprise of the day for a crowd of about 6,000 had previously seen Babe Herman of California, outstanding featherweight challenger, held to a draw by Joe Celmars, of New York, a comparative unknown.

Celmars entered the ring for his match with Herman on only a few hours' notice as a substitute for the retired featherweight champion, Johnny Dundee, who failed to appear for the weighing-in at the offices of the New York Boxing Commission. Celmar appeared to be slightly overweight at 131 1-2 against 126 for Herman.

He soon proved that he would make trouble for the Californian by flooring the latter with a terrific left hook soon after the opening of the first round.

During the next three rounds of the ten-round contest Celmar's opponent, the man who only recently held the champion, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., in a draw, dazzling Herman with his speed and a sharp jab to the head. Displaying nimble footwork he made Herman miss with both hands as the crowd roared its approval, and it was not until the fifth round that the latter finally found the range. Herman rallied in the later rounds and brought the fight to even terms, in the opinion of the judges, by terrific right-handers to the chin which found Celmar always ready to mix. The draw verdict of the judges was received with disapproval by the crowd, a chorus of boos and hisses indicating that many believed Celmar's entitled to the honors.

The third of three ten-rounders which featured the show, conducted as a benefit for the National Sports Alliance, brought together a pair of feather-footed lightweights, Jack Bernstein, of Yonkers, N.Y., and Sir Terris, of New York. It was their second meeting and Terris, who had won the previous bout, took the judges' decision again this afternoon. A fast left jab, which constituted Terris' chief weapon of defence, was matched against a falling left, when called upon by Bernstein. The jab proved the more effective of the two blows and Bernstein was bleeding at the mouth when the tenth ended.

REDDICK LOSES TO BOB FOX ON FOUL.
Canadian Light Heavyweight Title Changes Hands In Scrap at Stettler, Alta.
STETTLE, Alta., Oct. 9.—The Canadian light heavyweight championship changed hands here last night, going to Bob Fox of Stettler. He defeated Jack Reddick, of Moose Jaw, when the latter was disqualified at the end of the sixth round for hitting Reddick had been warned a couple of times about hitting low, before the referee called a foul awarded the bout to Fox.

Fox went to his corner apparently in agony at the end of the round, the referee left the ring after announcing that Reddick had fouled the Stettler boy.

Dr. Connolly, the club physician, examined Fox in his dressing room and announced that there was an injury to the groin.

New Styles for Men
The seal has been set upon the styles of the lounge suit which the well-dressed men will wear this autumn.

The predominating feature will be broad shoulders, and coats will be closer fitting about the hips, yet allowing plenty of breadth across the chest. The soft roll of the lapel, finishing at the top button, will be another detail to give added height to the figure.

Trousers will be normal. The baggy abominations which we have seen worn (but not by the best-dressed men) are taboo, and the measurements for the average man of 5ft. 9in. will be 21 1/2 in. at the knee and 19 in. over the shoe. Trousers of wider dimensions reduce the height of the wearer, whereas fashion this autumn will make the greatest effort to produce the opposite effect.

Double-breasted jackets, which look like being the most popular of all, are being cut with a broader cross-over in other words, there is more of a panel effect, thus necessitating a wider setting of the buttons.

Notwithstanding this, the coat from the waist downward hugs the figure and is not cut extra long. Jackets or overcoats that are longer than usual tend to dwarf the wearer. Like the single-breasted, the double-breasted jacket will be very broad across the shoulders. Here let me say there is a decided tendency towards the military or square shoulder. Lapels on both the single and double-breasted jackets are broad, but not over-exaggerated, and always rolled soft. Pockets are still being worn without flaps, except where a ticket or change pocket is added to the right side.

Waistcoats are taking on renewed importance, inasmuch as light colours are being worn. The double-breasted style certainly leads the way, and when made up in any for the new pastel shades of powder blue for wear with a suit of the same colour but in a darker tone, of the new sun-burn, biscuit, or beige, as well as grey, it oftentimes adds a freshness to an otherwise well-worn suit.

With the double-breasted jacket the single-breasted waistcoat is correct, and to-day is made with a very narrow V-shaped opening, while the points at the waistline are inclined to be rather short and sit close together, not gaping too wide apart.

Coty's Perfumes & Powders are exquisite. At L. G. HARSANT'S, G.W.V.A. Building.—Oct. 15, 31

Giant Ray Fight

Two Brighton fishermen in a small motor-boat named Perseverance recently had a strenuous battle with a giant ray which became entangled in their net when they were about six miles from the shore.

"The boat was rocked and swayed as we fought for more than an hour with our captive," said Mr. Richard Overt, one of the men. "We had to get the ray to the surface and this entangled it in the net, which was torn to shreds by its strong tail. All our other fish escaped. We had to lash the ray to the end of the boat."

It was as much as six men could do to get on to a truck ashore.

The ray, which is now in a tank in the aquarium, weighs about 6000 lbs., and measures 6ft. 6in. from nose to tail, and 5ft. across.

Wedding Bells
FRAMPTON—COLLINS.

On Thursday afternoon the marriage of Miss Florence Dorothy Collins of Indian Islands, Fogo District, to Mr. Arthur Frampton took place at St. Thomas's Church in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed by the Rector, Rev. J. B.
Elliot.

The bride was given away by Mr.
Thomas Hicks, and was attended by Misses Emily Marshall and Alma
Hicks. The best man was Mr. Eleazer
Hicks, chief officer of the S.S. Susu.
Following the ceremony, the party went for a motor drive and later returned to the King's Beach Hotel where a repast was served and the health of the bride and groom toasted. The numerous presents received testified to the high esteem in which the bride was held.

Mr. Frampton who has been residing in the U.S.A. for the past two years intends to settle down in his hometown, and this morning the bride and groom left by the Susu for their future home in Indian Islands. They take with them the best wishes of their many friends.

Long-Lived Horses
SUFFOLK PUNCH STILL A GOOD
WORKER AT 27.

The longevity of the Suffolk Punch horses will be brought into prominence when Sir Cuthbert Quilter, president of the Suffolk Horse Society, is reducing by sale his stud of 200 Punches.

Many of the horses in this famous stud, founded by the late Sir Cuthbert, exceed 20 years of age. They include a reeling of 26 and a mare of 27, who had a foal this year and is still as active a worker as any on the farms.
In the neighbouring district of Framlingham, the original home of the breed, Mr. Alfred Preston's stud has records of mares and geldings living and working up to 82 years of age. The ages of living Punch stallions are equally remarkable.

Salt for Wages
In the early days of our civilization, when a man's flocks and herds were his only possessions, they also constituted his money, and when metal coins were first introduced many had cattle stamped on them.

The Latin for cattle is "pecus," and it is not a far stretch from this to our word "pecuniary," which is usually associated with money.
Again, the word "cattle" is derived from "capital," the origin of which is the Latin word for "caput," meaning a head, and from the very earliest times heads have been spoken of as so much head.

It is curious, too, how agriculture has indirectly affected our system of currency. When man found it easier to dig with a bronze or iron spade than with wood, it was not long before iron and bronze coins came into use.
Later, when gold and silver were discovered, they were quickly adopted for currency.

The word "salary" comes from "saline." When the Romans dominated Britain they took possession of a great many of the salt mines, because salt was then a valuable commodity;
in addition, workmen in the salt mines were frequently paid with salt, and it was not long before this form of remuneration became known as salary.

Your tea is waiting to be served at the C.L.A. Sale of Work, your appetite.—Oct 17, 11

Dual Stamps
The New Hebrides Condominium, a group of islands in the Pacific between Fiji and Australia which is ruled jointly by Britain and France, has issued a new series of dual stamps. The central design, depicting native tools, spears, and pottery, is common to both the British and French series, but the arms of France take precedence on the British stamps, while those of Great Britain are shown first on the French series. The values appear in French and English currency on all the stamps. Both sets are printed by a British firm.

WON BY AN INCH.
Because he was disappointed when defeated in a Serpentine swimming race last June, Mr. Richard Ledger, aged 77, challenged the victor, Mr.
George Webster, aged 76, to a return match.

This was decided at the sale of the St. Pancras Swimming Club, Prince of Wales' Road, Bath, Kentish Town, N.W., over a distance of 33 yards, and, swimming in clothes, Mr. Ledger reversed the previous result, winning by an inch.

Settled Question
An Effective Bar to Disarmament

THE PREMIER SEES CLOUDS OF TROUBLE LIFTING IN CHINA.

ST. JOHN'S, England, Oct. 8.—The Prime Minister, Right Hon. Mr. Baldwin, discussed the government's policies and world affairs at the annual conference of the Conservative Party here to-night. He said that the advocates of disarmament can have little hope of success unless the question of security is first settled.

There has been too long awaiting solution. It has been, and is being, a bar and until it is removed there will be no effective bar to the attainment of success in the matter of disarmament.

Reference to the efforts of Europe's statesmen at Locarno to "make the world safe for peace," the Premier said that the proposed security pact would fill in one end of a great gap that is now a "great hole" in the world's peace. "We have filled it with a sound and secure principle," he said, "and the same principle has enabled us to the point where we are now. The permanent pacification of Europe as it is being accomplished."

Home Affairs.
In home affairs, Mr. Baldwin dealt with the administration against an increasing chorus of complaints that it was doing nothing to alleviate the economic problems troubling the country in Great Britain. The Conservative government, he said, were not doing anything to help the unemployed.

He added, "we deliver the message of unemployment had been with us night and day for three years. He did not say, however, what was going to do about it. To the great hall of taxpayers he remarked that the national expenditure had increased one third in five years, and that Mr. Churchill was determined to reduce the estimate for next year.

Defends Subsidy.
The Premier defended the coat subsidy because the alternative was a national struggle which the country could ill afford, and he attacked communism as a foreign production of ignorance out of the East.

Liberal Land Campaign Had Failed.
The Liberal land campaign had failed, he said, as a cold lined-poutice. He said he had been told that the country was "going to the dogs," but the English will never be a dictator. When the party changes its leader I'll step in, but not until then."

Land of Desert Towns UNKNOWN TO THE WORLD.

BERMANSBURG.—Back from an expedition to the dried-up lake region of the Kalahari desert, Professor Schimper states that he discovered towns unknown to the world, and a vast expanse of fertile land. The Ethnological Museum, which is now being reconstructed along the Zambezi, where it joins the great Niam-Niam river, states that the dried-up lake region of Niam-Niam is a vast expanse of grassy plain with countless herds of cattle. The expedition followed the Boteti river for 200 miles in dugouts.

The forest is dying and is being replaced by thorn trees. Along the coast the predominant people are the Makakas, a big nation which is African but probably a branch of the Madagascar Sakalavas. These other tribes possess numerous towns and villages and vast herds of cattle. There are important towns of which no one has heard. One former port of entry to Niamland, which big barges once plied to the dried-up lake of Ngami.

Tailors & Tailoring

Just to remind you that we have been tailoring for over thirty years. Our workers have served their apprenticeships at home and abroad. Our cutters have kept abreast of the times, and when the latest is out, you can get it at MAUNDER'S.

My workers' motto is not how quickly it can be done, but how neatly. New Goods continually arriving. Write for samples.

Latest advices from Montreal state that all Dairy Products have advanced owing to scarcity and heavy Export Demand, and that higher prices for these commodities in the early future are not at all unlikely. We were fortunate in securing a limited quantity of "EXTRA FIRSTS" EGGS, "GILT EDGE" CANADIAN CREAMERY BUTTER, LARGE, TWIN and SMALL CHEESE before the recent "lift" in prices, and are prepared and anxious to share the advantages of our lucky buy with our customers and offer close figures on these essentials for prompt delivery on arrival of S.S. CEUTA from Montreal, Monday forenoon. GET OUR LOW QUOTATIONS ON EGGS, BUTTER, CHEESE.
