Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

Office of Secretary-Treasurer,
Canadian Building,
Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 13th, '07.

Dear Sir,—I beg to notify you that a conference of members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association resident in the Maritime Provinces and others interested in general agriculture and in the movement for larger and better crops, will again be held at Amherst in connection with the Maritime Winter Fair, on the 4th day of December, at 2 p. m., in the Commissioners' Hall. The main object of holding this special session is to enable those actively engaged in the work to meet together and discuss freely their successes and failures for the year, to encourage others to apply approved methods of plant improvement as a means of maintaining the yield and quality of their crops, and to give the new beginner a clearer conception of the underlying principles involved.

PROGRAMME.
Commissioners' Dining Hall
8.00 p. m., Dec. 4th, 1907.
Rev. A. E. Burke, Chairman.

1. "Good Seed, what it is, and how to get it."
By Donald Innes, Tobique River, N. S. Discussion led by Thos. S. Waugh, North Bedouque, P. E. I.
 2. "Soil Cultivation and Crop Improvement."
By Wm. H. Moore, Scotch Lake, N. B.
 3. "Summary of Observations made during the past Summer while inspecting Special Seed Plots, with Comments on the present outlook for next year's Seed Supply."
By S. J. Moore, Rep. Seed Branch, Truro, N. S.
 4. "The Selection of Seed Potatoes."
By Harry R. Brown, Wallace Bay, N. S.
 5. "How can we encourage a wider application of the methods of Plant Improvement throughout the Maritime Provinces."
By F. L. Fuller, Sup't. Agr. Societies, N. S., Truro, N. S.
 6. Closing remarks by the Secretary C. S. G. Ass'n., L. H. Newman, Ottawa.
 7. Presentation of the Steele Briggs Trophy to the member making the most creditable showing of Selected Seed.
- I trust you will not let this opportunity, which comes but once a year, pass but will come out prepared to take part in the discussions and will bring with you as many of your friends as possible.
- Sincerely yours,
L. A. NEWMAN,
Sec. C. S. G. Ass'n.

Good Manners.

(Written for THE MONITOR-SENTINEL by Betty Bobbitt.)

Not what is termed "an fair," good form, etiquette, or any side drawings of the article, but just plain, common sense, good manners. How many feet they are doing their whole duty to their children in this matter? Take an observant walk on the street some day when you can meet the array of students, big and little, going to or from school. Or, make a round of calls upon your friends when their young hopefuls are at home and then answer the above question.

A man commenting upon the lack of civility among children toward their elders said, "Not one child in ten responds to my greeting when meeting on the street, but they all talk by as if deaf and dumb; and such words as please, thank you, excuse me, yes sir, no sir, seem never to have reached their vocables."

"Oh, I haven't time to bother," said one mother, "they go to school to learn manners;" and I fancy more than one mother thinks she is doing her whole duty to her child in sending it to school, utterly regardless of the fact that the school was never meant to take the place of home training; rather to supplement it.

I wonder how many mothers followed Henry James' article in "Harper's Bazar" on the good breeding of American youth and some, for somehow the cultivation of good manners in the young is almost entirely left to the women, the men supposedly being too busy.

While Mr. James contacted the greater part of his critical observations to the American youth, any one reading between the lines could readily see the conclusion arrived at, viz., that good manners, like charity, begin at home.

In the strenuous age in which we live, when to scramble, shove and elbow one's way, is the general way of "getting there," the kindly, courteous manners of a generation ago seem to have been dropped with the stage coach and a quill pen. Is the modern brusque, indifferent manner a desirable equivalent? Would it not be as well to impress upon the girl or boy seeking employment, social prestige, or in any of the various walks of life, that outward appearance is the first thing one is judged by, and that the little courtesies of life are both a necessary equipment and a practical illustration that "Politeness is to do and say The kindest thing in the kindest way."

A NOVA SCOTIA MANSION.

Handsome Estate in Aylesford designed by Architect L. R. Fair.
A Number of Bridgetown Artisans Employed in its Construction.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

On the summit of the North Mountain range at Aylesford, Nova Scotia, near the Bay of Fundy shore a Brooklynite, William J. Kelly, of 762A Green avenue, has recently completed a palatial summer residence that contains all the conveniences of a mansion in a big city. Mr. Kelly sometimes is called the father of the rapid color process of printing. He has practically retired from business except when called upon at times to give his expert services on big contracts. A few years ago he went to St. Petersburg to install a big color press in the office of the Nova Vremya.

No more beautiful or commanding spot could have been chosen for Kelly Villa, as it is called, than in these mountains. It is complete in all detail and the first residence to install a private electric lighting plant in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Kelly is a Nova Scotian, a daughter of the late Wm. Staddon, merchant and hotel keeper of Harborville. A few years ago she purchased the site of the present Kelly Villa as a home for her mother. Upon the latter's death Mrs. Kelly first determined to sell the property, but in consideration of the beautiful scenery and climate, and having a sentimental attachment for her native province, she changed her mind and decided that she would prefer a summer home in Nova Scotia. Mr. Kelly had on several occasions visited Aylesford and agreed to his wife's suggestion.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were determined if they built a summer home in Nova Scotia it should equal in every way to what they would have built in New York. But to assemble the materials and find the workmanship in a rural district of Nova Scotia, and a point on the side of the North Mountain where everything had to be hauled up was a problem. J. R. Fair, a well known Nova Scotia architect, was given full charge of the work.

The property consists of 170 acres, including orchard, tillage, and pasture and woodland. A site was selected where the orchard and forest provided a natural windbreak behind, and the open ground before permitted an unobstructed view of the lovely Annapolis Valley below. To work out his plans for buildings and grounds, Mr. Fair had at some points to cut out the steep rock and in others make extensive fillings. A complete sewerage system was installed, the grading done, the buildings erected and the landscape work completed. In some cases to get wood, hardware or fittings desired it was necessary to send to distant Canadian or United States cities but wherever possible the materials were obtained locally. The approach to the grounds is through a massive gate. The driveway is covered with selected pebbles from the Bay of Fundy shore. On the left the ground slopes away in well designed terraces. On the right it outlines a pretty grass plot having in the centre a majestic beech. This drive way brings visitors in full view of the residence. The latter is 104 feet on the front and 62 feet deep. An 11 foot piazza extends on two sides. An observation balcony on the third floor faces the valley and a handsome round tower rises three stories in height. Driving under a commodious port cochere a spacious veranda is seen of classic design, its sixteen pillars being grouped in sets of two each. The architecture of the residence is a modified mansion and conforms admirably with the surroundings. The houses and buildings are all treated with creosote stains.

There are 21 rooms in the house, all finished and fitted in the latest and most approved style. On the first floor are living room, dining room, breakfast room, kitchen, pantry and laundry. The living rooms has massive beam ceilings, built in bookcases with art glass doors, circular window seats and a big, solid brick fire place. In the construction of the fireplace Mrs. Kelly was treated to a pleasant surprise, for unknown to her, Mr. Kelly had her name, "Lizetta," inscribed in the masonry.

The dining room has paneled dados six feet high, surmounted with plate rail, brick fire place, a long window seat, and the finish is a beautiful window green, making a very pretty effect when the lights are on. Electric lights are placed in the corridor around the room, as well as in a handsome central cluster.

On the second floor is Mr. Kelly's "den," five sleeping apartments and the bathroom. A speaking tube connects the hallway with the kitchen, from all bedrooms electric signals connect with the annunciator in the kitchen.

On the third floor are the billiard room, a cozy corner for Mrs. Kelly, sleeping apartments and an immense water tank. On this floor is also the door leading to the observation balcony, from which a most magnificent view can be had of the orchards, farm houses, streams and highways, extending for many miles in the valley beyond.

One of the most interesting things at Kelly Villa is the power house and electric system. The engine is a ten horse power, and not only operates the dynamo from which over 70 lights are supplied, but also drives the pump which supplies the 700 gallon tank on the third floor of the house. It is also being equipped to saw wood and do other work for the farm.

A visit to the barns and stables shows that Mr. Kelly intends doing something in farming and stock raising later on. Accommodations are arranged for cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. And some rods from the barn an orchard of several hundred trees has been planted.

D. A. R. to Add to Railway Line.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—The Dominion Atlantic Railway Company is applying to parliament for an act amending the company's incorporation by conferring power to construct a line commencing at a point on the company's line of railway between Kentville and Canning, thence in a westerly direction to a point on the company's line between Berwick and Middleton, or to some point between the main line and the North Mountain, to increase the number of directors of the company and to provide for their retirement by rotation and to contribute to the sick and benefit fund of its employees.

The starting point of successful careers affords plenty of elbow-room for every man who would make a good beginning.

Do not be above your business, but have a business that you can respect, and that in turn honors you.

"He is a poor smith that is afraid of his own sparks," says an old proverb. A man should never be ashamed to meet his business in society.

It is a great thing to be simple, for simplicity begets respect; to be honest, for honesty is happiness; to be natural, for in naturalness is ease.

To do a little good daily, to be kind to those near us, and to enjoy good health is to fully appreciate the fact that life is worth living.

Phalen Discourses on Pitcher Postals.

"Begob, Mr. Casey," said Phalen, to his old friend as they sat on Queen's Wharf, the other evening enjoying a smoke and the balmy breeze from the beautiful harbor of Summerside, "did ye' ever git a pitcher post card?"

"A pitcher post card," said Mr. Casey, "I can't say I ever did. Why do you ask?"

"O'ive bin harin' a lot about 'em and I thought maybe you cud tell me sumthin' about 'em. I have till, that they was invented by Allie Goulet, you know him, everybody does. He has the greatest lot of different pitcher cards you ever saw."

"'Tis a great fad, it got to be," said Mr. Casey.

"'Tis that," said Phalen, "It's a greater fad than atin Allie Lefurgey's payments, or chewin gum up at the pectorial palace of Fairland. It was a gra-ate invention surly."

"'Twas that, replied Mr. Casey. Sure, some of em ud niver got married if 'wud' for the picture post card. Begob, there's me son Pether that's married to as faw a little girl as yer walked down Water St. in her bare feet."

"An' phat about Pether," asked Phalen.

"Sure Pether wud over to Boston last winter and got on the police force, and when he got his uniform he got his pitcher took on a post card an' sent it to Mary Ann Slattry that lived in the West end."

"And phat did Mary Ann do when she got the pitcher post card from Pether," asked Phalen.

"She, my whog, that's aisy, why, she sent him one wid a pitcher of the Summerside police station, with the palloman and other luffers hanging around, as usual with the works. There's no place like home; and then he sent her one wid a pitcher of a tomato on it, and under the tomato was, 'Oh, I am so sad and lonely.'"

"Phy didn't Pether tell Mary that himself. Sure, if I was sad and lonely I wudnt be afraid to say so."

"Begorra, you didn't know Pether; he was too shy and he got the tomato to tell her."

"And what did Mary say?" asked Phalen.

"Sure, she didn't say anything. She sent Pether another wid a pitcher of a nigger robbin' a hen roost in the night time."

"Why, I don't see the joke," said Phalen.

"Oh, you don't! Phy the darkey was aint to the lines, 'Ye come to take you home because I love you in the same old way.'"

"And phat did Pether do then," asked Phalen.

"Sure, phat ud he do but come down here and marry Mary and take her home to Boston wid him. Sure they had an illigit wedding."

"Sure, picture post cards do be a great invention," said Phalen.

"Begorra they are that," said Mr. Casey.

"Do you know Pat Flaminigan?"

"The one that lost his wife three months ago," asked Phalen.

"The same, begob, an' he's married agin," said Mr. Casey, "and the picture post card did it."

"And how was that. Sure it was pretty quick work," said Phalen.

"Begorra, Pat did Bridget Burke a pitcher post card wid a pitcher of his wife's grave and the text, 'The light uv my life has gone out.'"

"And what did Biddy do when she heard from Pat?"

"Oh, what did she do! Phy she sent Pat another one wid a pitcher of a man scratchin' a match on his trousers, and under it was the words, 'Ye'd better strike another match.'"

"And what did he do?" Phy he saw the pint, and ahtook a match wid Bridget, an' all because of a pitcher post card they was happily married."

"Begob, the pitcher post card is wonder-ful," said Phalen.

Martha Drewe and Her Parlor.

A pretty little farm house, painted a snowy white, with blinds of vivid green, stood just outside the small New England village of Waterford. It had a trim, smart look, pleasing to the eye. A small, old house, painted a dark brown, stood back a few yards from the pretty white house. Mr. and Mrs. Jared Drewe had moved from the old house into the new one. They had begun housekeeping as a young married couple in the old house, and they had lived in it 25 years. The new house was the culmination of the hopes and plans of many years.

"I begin to feel as though I was somebody," Mrs. Drewe said at the breakfast table on the morning of the fifth day after they had moved into the new house.

"Do, eh?" replied Mr. Drewe. "You women are great for paper! On a table I ain't never felt no particular need of a parlor. A common settin'-room's good enough for me, or even the kitchen."

"I don't mind settin' in a nice, clean kitchen, myself," replied his wife, "but I don't want all my company to have to set there—especially the minister and his wife. I've felt the need of a parlor a many a time, if you ain't."

"Well, you've got one now."

"Yes, when I git it furnished."

"Oh, I reckon you'll want to fill it full of all sorts of flub-dubbery—wonder-lik."

"I'm going to have things nice, any how. Land knows, I've waited long enough for 'em."

"What you call nice?"

"Well, I'm going to have a real nice Brussels carpet for one thing, and a marble-top table, and a plush sofa, and lace curtains and nice chairs."

"Shucks!" Mr. Drewe said, contemptuously, but he did not offer any objection to this extravagant outlay of long and carefully hoarded funds. He knew, moreover, that most of his splendor would be purchased out of his wife's own savings.

But his wife's second proposition aroused a spirit of decided antagonism in Jared Drewe.

"I want to have the parlor papered some time next week."

"Papered?"

"Yes, papered," replied Mrs. Drewe. "You souse I'm going to have bare white walls when everybody else has theirs papered?"

"We'd all bare walls in the old house."

"I don't care if we did, we kept thinkin' and thinkin' wed build every year, and it didn't seem worth while to do any paperin' or fittin' up; but if you reckon I'm going to live the rest of my days in bare white-walled rooms you're mistaken."

She spoke decisively, for she saw unusual depths of opposition in her husband's large, unsharpened face with its square, firm jaw and chin, indicative of great firmness of purpose.

"I suppose wall paper be good, with something like childish perverseness."

"Why?"

"Because I do! It's unhealthy for one thing."

"Fiddle-diddle!"

"Any doctor'll tell ye so."

"I wouldn't believe it if he did. Everybody has wall paper nowadays, and we're goin' to have it."

"Were not?"

"There's no sense in your actin' so, Jared Drewe. I'm going to have that parlor papered."

"You do, and I'll never set foot in it no longer as I live and breathe the breath of life!"

"Fiddle-diddle!"

"I never will!"

"I never will!"

Mrs. Drewe did not refer to the matter again; but a week from that day, when Mr. Drewe returned home after a day spent in the city five miles distant, he met John Hays, the village paper hanger, coming from the house with an empty paste-bucket and a roll or two of paper under his arm.

Stepping into the little front entry, he glanced toward the parlor at the right. The door was open, and he saw his wife standing in the centre of the room, looking with pleased eyes at the four walls around her, covered with gorgeous gilt paper of the most pronounced pattern.

She assumed an air of ignorance of any previous discussion of the subject, she asked, cheerily:

"Well, Jared, how do you like it? Isn't it lovely? I think it's just beautiful."

"You remember what I said, Martha Drewe?"

"Well?"

"I'm going to set it to it."

"Now, Jared, I—"

"I'll never set foot in that room long as I live and breathe and keep my senses! Never!" He pronounced each word slowly and with marked emphasis. Then he turned and went out to the barn.

"He'll get over it," Mrs. Drewe said, hopefully to herself; but in her secret soul she feared he would not.

The Brussels carpet, the plush sofa, the lace curtains and the marble-top table of Martha Drewe's visions and dreams became splendid realities during the next week. She called her husband to note the general effect when everything was in place. He came to peep open the door and looked in, and though coaxed to try the new patent rocker he would not enter the room.

The minister and his wife came out to call the next day. Mrs. Drewe ushered them into the gorgeous parlor, her heart swelling with pride. Jared came to the door with an old wooden chair from the kitchen, plumped it down flat and hard on the oil-cloth of the entry floor, and sat there during the entire call.

"You never even come in to shake hands with 'em," Martha said, afterward.

"I know it."

"What you souse they'll think?"

"Dunno what."

"If that's the way you're going to act every time anybody calls here, I'd thank you to keep out of sight altogether."

"I reckon I want to see folks as much as you do."

She was very calm during the next few weeks, and Jared sat at the door on the old wooden chair during the sharp eyes of some of Mrs. Drewe's callers soon noticed Jared's peculiar conduct; their keen and acute scenting discord.

The sharp eyes of some of Mrs. Drewe's callers soon noticed Jared's peculiar conduct; their keen and acute scenting discord.

So many of her plans were thwarted by Jared's "mullishness."

The summer days waned into those of autumn, and autumn days gave place to the winds and snows of late November, and still the feet of Jared Drewe had never crossed the threshold of his own parlor, and Martha had suffered untold mortification on this account.

They were sitting alone in rather gloomy silence at the close of a dark and stormy day in late November. Martha had not been well for several days. She had never been confined to her bed a day in her life and a slight indisposition usually made her irritable. She felt that it would be in some degree a disgrace for her to be ill. It was with as much pride as gratitude that she remembered that neither she nor Jared had ever needed the services of a physician. But she looked ill enough to need one now.

"Better let me go for the doctor, Marthy," Jared had said several times. "I believe you're sicker'n you reckon you are."

"I've an idee I'll be better in the morning. I'm goin' to take a dose of them letters that helped me so when I was kind o' run down in the summer. Wash you'd get 'em for me?"

"Where are they?" he asked, rising from his chair, the paper he had been reading still in his hand.

"Oh, they're in the—the Set down, Jared, I'll get up and get 'em myself. She was lying on the lounge at the time and she sat up painfully and slowly, while he hastened to make her comfortable.

"No, no, Marthy; lay still. I'll get 'em."

"They're in the little corner closet in the parlor, Jared."

He stared blankly at her for a moment, his face crimsoning; he took a step forward and then dropped back heavily into his chair and held the paper up before his face in silence.

His wife rose without a word and feebly walked across the floor, breathing heavily and keeping herself from falling by leaning on tables and chairs. Jared watching her furtively while pretending to read. There was a visible twitching of the corners of his mouth once, and his teeth, set close together, showed between parted lips. The hand that held the paper trembled, but he sat still.

Her, but failed by several feet. There was a ludicrous side to it all.

"Marthy!" he fairly shrieked. She neither moved nor spoke, but suddenly she gave a pitiful groan.

"Good Lord! What an old fool I be!" cried Jared, suddenly leaning back and striking his breast with his clenched fist. "A fool an' a beast to let the best wife any man ever had suffer a second, when I might help her! The Lord forgive me!"

He bounded to her side as he spoke, and took her limp and unconscious form up in his arms, saying, as he did so:

"It'll be a judgment on me if she dies. The best wife in the world! Marthy! Marthy, dear! What ails yer?"

He seldom called her "dear." He did so now with great tenderness and gentleness.

"Marthy, can't ye open your eyes? See, dear; I'm in the parlor. I'll come in it right along now. The paperin' really sows it off. I've thought so from the first, I was too cussed stubborn to say so. Oh, Marthy! What is the matter?" For she did not even open her eyes.

It was seven weeks before she left the bedroom to which he carried her. He had been one of the tenderest and most patient of nurses, but the word "parlor" had never passed either his lips or here during all that time.

He carried her out tenderly and gently the first time she left the room. "Want me to carry ye into the parlor, Marthy?" he asked after he had her, but failed by several feet. There was a ludicrous side to it all.

He carried her out tenderly and gently the first time she left the room. "Want me to carry ye into the parlor, Marthy?" he asked after he had her in his arms. It's munny and bright in there. I've got a good fire in the stove and the—the-wall paper shines beautifully."

She looked up with shining eyes and the first flush there had been in her cheeks for many weeks.

"If you would carry me in and lay me on the sofa awfully, Jared."

"Why—I—I—Oh, Jared! What does it mean? I thought you—Oh, Jared!" for as he carried her out into the dining-room and through the sitting room to the hall she saw that all the once bare and cold and glaring white walls were covered with more expensive and beautiful paper than she herself would have bought.

There was a warm, red and black carpet on the hall floor, a new carpet for the sitting room, new and pretty chairs and tables here and there, and a mirror in a gilt frame between the two front parlor windows that reached nearly from the floor to the ceiling. When she caught a reflection of their faces in the shining glass, she saw in both a kinder, gentler, tenderer look than either had worn for years.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1907.

The Colchester election has been making considerable stir in political circles. An attempt has been made to introduce reformatory measures with the understanding and agreement on both sides that there shall be an improper expenditure of money and the appointment of a committee to see that the agreement is carried out. There is another feature in connection with elections which the Toronto News (Independent) thinks should be eliminated, and that is the pledging of public expenditures in the constituency represented. It says:—"Every decent elector in the division should repudiate this system of wholesale bribery. The young men particularly, who are just resuming public duties and responsibilities, should cast their vote in condemnation of this degrading species of politics. In their hands rests the future of the country. They should determine that no man who bargains with public money for a seat in parliament should represent any Canadian constituency. We should distribute public buildings and public expenditures according to the needs of the various communities, and not according to their political preferences. The public revenue is contributed by the whole people. It is not the private hoardings of ministers of the crown. It is not the personal income of one set of politicians, to be disbursed in making "patronage" and buying constituencies. It should be made impossible, therefore, for any who seek support through promises of public works, railway aid or public buildings to get a seat in the house of commons. It is time we put our after dinner oratory into effect and set the seal of emphatic disapproval on indecent politics and corrupt elections."

A Heartless Trick Played upon Nova Scotians in Mass.

A fake telegram was sent from Halifax to Nova Scotians residing in South Framingham, Mass., by a party unknown at present. The telegram read:—"Dear Son: Aunt is dead. Will be buried Friday." As soon as the despatch was received, the sister of the young man to whom it was sent, dressed herself in suitable mourning and prepared for the journey to attend the funeral, sending ahead a telegram to her father in London, saying:—"Will be there for the funeral. Wait for me."

The father, knowing nothing of the circumstances, met the steamer Margaret on her arrival, expecting to find the body of either his son or daughter, but to his great astonishment there was no corpse on board. The daughter arrived at about six in the morning and was equally astonished to find that neither her aunt nor anyone else in the family was dead. She then explained about the telegram they received from Halifax, and that she had travelled all the way in the expectation of attending her aunt's funeral. All the relatives who could, also gathered, supposing the body would arrive on the steamer Margaret.

The family are naturally highly indignant at the inhuman trick played upon them and two of them were in the City yesterday attempting to ascertain, if possible, who sent the telegram. It is scarcely to be credited that any sane person would be guilty of outwitting the feelings of a family (to say nothing of the expense and lost time) by playing such a disgraceful trick upon them.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The Apple Evaporator plant is now getting all the apples it requires.

The Steamer Yarmouth has taken the service of the Bay route for the winter.

A fierce wind and rain storm swept the Coast on Monday, causing considerable damage to buildings.

Two of our oldest and most conservative business houses are offering big Bargain Sales in this issue. Don't forget the dates.

The Daily Courier with its usual magnanimity in publishing blue rain for the local newspapers—all but the Daily Courier.

The entries for the Seventh Winter Maritime Fair at Amherst are in excess of any previous year. Lieut. Gov. Foxwell will deliver the opening address, Dec. 22nd. at 8 p. m.

During the week of Monday night the large new barn under construction by Mr. S. Newbould, which was boarded up, roofed and partly shingled, was badly damaged by the gale.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. William Mansbrough, who have lost their son, Lester, aged 16 years, after a year's illness from tuberculosis. Another son died about two years ago from the same malady.

The windows of Strong & Whitman's store are an object lesson in window dressing and would do credit to any city establishment. Don't fail to see his handsome display of this season's goods.

The Colchester by-election held yesterday resulted in a majority of 203 for John Stanfield, of Truro, Liberal Conservative candidate over his opponent, Chas. Hill, of Onslow, Liberal candidate.

The prize of twenty-five dollars of last spring by E. Cox, editor of the Outlook to users of the Split-Log Spring has been awarded to E. B. Fox of Glace Bay whose section of road it was decided, showed the greatest improvement.

Yarmouth has again begun her industry of exporting spruce trees for the Christmas season to Boston. The first shipment to reach Boston this season was that made by the Prince Arthur on Wednesday last, 4,000, of varying sizes.

An exchange states that about 1,400 bushels of potatoes, in barrels, have been recently shipped from Port William by Fullerton and Brodie in the vessel High, for Havana. The southern trade in potatoes is large, and of great benefit to the valley farmers, but for the consumers it is not so advantageous.

Kentville Advertiser—On Wednesday another warrant was served on Mr. W. H. Townsend for one of the conspirators made against him for selling liquor at Aldershot. After the usual formal of refusing to either pay or go to jail, the fine and costs were handed over.

Our readers will be interested in the article on our first page, descriptive of the handsome estate of Mrs. Kelly, of Amherst. This is the house for which Mrs. Kelly came to Bridgetown to obtain competent workmen, last spring. Arthur Charlton and Albert Wade were employed on it all summer, and A. E. Bishop's artistic skill was employed in the finish.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist Church, held an interesting concert Monday evening. The program consisted chiefly of exercises by the Mission Band. Mrs. Austin, also favored the audience with a solo. The feature of the evening however, was an address by Miss Ada Kilham, returned missionary from Japan, which was listened to with intense interest, both in the speaker and the noble work she has described.

N. H. Phinney & Co., Lawrencetown N. S. recently gave an order for 73 cases of one concern, all to be shipped by Nov. 20th, and making 112 or guns all that have been ordered in a little over two months. Notwithstanding the thousands of orders that have been sold in this province, Mr. Phinney says that the demand is better than ever. An exchange observes that here the old pan comes into force again that "the country is well organized."

SEVEN CENTS A QUART IN TRURO

The citizens of Windsor have received notice that after December 1, the price of milk will be raised to six cents per quart. Our fellows want one better and raised to seven cents. In the price of feed any higher in Truro than in Windsor? Of course it is not so we ask our able to come off that seven cent perch. Truro News.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

It is rumored that a summer hotel will be built at Hampton during the season of 1908, and that local capital will be interested.

The many admirers of our vocal artist, Miss Lydia Munroe, will be pleased to know that she is to sing a solo in St. James' Church at evening service on Sunday next.

A contributor, writing to the Monitor-Sentinel in regard to market rates omitted to give his signature, otherwise we should have pleasure in giving publication to his letter.

Three of our local sportsmen, Messrs Jas. DeWitt, George Skyles and B. M. Williams have made their annual fall trips to the woods, but no juicy moose steak has rewarded their efforts.

The Rev. A. Gale, travelling agent for King's College, Windsor, is a guest at the Rectory, on Sunday he will accompany the Rev. on his rounds, preaching in St. Mary's Church, Belle Isle, at 10.30 a. m., St. Peter's by the Sea, Young's Cove, at 2.30 p. m., and in St. James' Church, Bridgetown, at 7 p. m.

During the past week the Davison Lumber Co., at Springfield have laid off a large number of men and teams in the woods. Their mill at Hastings has also been closed down for the present. A large quantity of lumber is on hand at their sawing shanty.

Major T. M. Seelye of Yarmouth has professed the Annapolis Spectator. Of the new publisher the St. John Times says:—"T. M. Seelye, for seventeen years connected with the Annapolis Light, has purchased the Annapolis Spectator and will hereafter conduct that journal. Mr. Seelye, who is in the city today, recalls the fact that he was with Barnes & Co. of this city for three years before going to Yarmouth. Having started at the printers' case," he knows the business, thoroughly, and should be able to make the Spectator a greater newspaper success than it has ever been.

A number of our subscribers appear to be under the impression that our day of publication has been changed from Wednesday to Friday. While we endeavor to send forward all local mails on Friday, those to the United States addresses and other distant points cannot get away until Saturday. A circulation of 2500 papers employs a number of hands and no small amount of time in wrapping, addressing and stamping. If found desirable we shall later change the day of publication so that all readers except the most distant may receive their papers before the end of the week.

PERSONALS.

Mrs. Wm. Tupper, of Teperville, is expected to visit at Mr. DeWitt's.

Mrs. Symonds and little daughter, of St. John are the guests of Mrs. Alfred Hoyt.

Mrs. Denison left last week on a visit to her son, Dr. Arch Denison, of Lynn.

Mrs. Jas. Craig is ill at her home in Cambridge, Kings Co.

Miss Ada Kilham, of Yarmouth was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Job, the first of the week.

Mrs. George Peck and daughter, Edna, spent a few days with relatives in Annapolis, during the past week.

Mrs. G. W. Estlin, who has been spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Rev. I. A. Corbett, returned home to Annapolis, Kings Co.

Mr. W. J. Walsh of Jordan Falls, provincial agent for the Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Canada, is spending a few days here the guest of Rev. John Phalen.

Mr. Fred J. Dittmar went to Round Hill on Monday, to take charge of the post office there while Mr. C. C. Rice goes to Boston for medical treatment. We wish Mr. Rice a successful trip.

Dr. G. E. DeWitt, of Wolfville, whose illness we reported last week, left on Tuesday last for Montreal, where he will undergo a critical operation. He was accompanied by Mrs. DeWitt. They will be under St. John by their son Avery E. DeWitt, who is taking the medical course at McGill.

Mrs. A. C. Jackson's condition is reported as somewhat improved, though she is still critically ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Curry, after an enjoyable summer sojourn at Hampton, left on Wednesday for Amherst, where they will spend the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Curry are becoming much attached to Hampton, where they have an attractive summer house.

Mrs. Hector McLean has been a guest at the Manse during the week. Mrs. McLean intends leaving in a few weeks for Philadelphia to spend a portion of the winter, and has proposed to travel with her sister to Florida, where her brother, Mr. J. N. Whitman resides.

The Presbyterian congregation of New Glasgow has extended a call to the Rev. J. A. Ramsay, of Middleton. The salary offered him is $1,500 with four weeks' vacation at the expense of the congregation. They also by resolution, agreed to give him $100 toward moving. Mr. Ramsay is a very talented young minister who has, during his pastorate at Middleton, received many flattering offers, but hitherto has refused to leave his Middleton congregation.

TWO RESPECTED ELDERLY CITIZENS PASS AWAY—ACCIDENTS BY WHICH THREE WELL KNOWN PEOPLE ARE INJURED.

We are pleased to state that Mr. Griffin O'Dell, who was suddenly struck with paralysis last week is much better.

The Sch. Earl Grey, arrived Monday with a load of coal for Mr. W. Haeckwick & Son. After discharging the will load lumber for A. D. Mill & Son.

Mr. Godfrey met with a painful accident on Saturday evening, falling and dislocating her shoulder.

The little son of Arthur Millar, fractured his collar bone through falling down stairs.

Miss Annie Lynch, who has been visiting in St. John, N. B., returned home last week.

Mr. John Murdoch of Bridgetown, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. M. McMillan, last week.

Mr. Peters of Georgetown, N. B., spent a few days this week with his son, Dr. Peters.

Rev. J. R. Douglas and his son, Donald of Millard, Kings Co. are in town.

Miss Florie Backler has returned from a trip to Wolfville.

Mrs. F. W. Pickles and Miss Hazel King left on Wednesday, to spend a few days in Halifax.

Mr. S. W. W. Pickett our popular Dominion representative, left Tuesday Ottawa. The House of Commons opened yesterday.

On Monday last, Mr. Simon Ribley, another of our older citizens passed away. For some time past he has been in failing health and his death was not unexpected. He is survived by his widow, three daughters and two sons. For many years deceased filled the position of light-house keeper here.

Mr. Ambrose Bartenak of Dalhousie while driving through town on Thursday last was thrown out of his wagon. Besides a severe shaking up he had his nose broken and his face badly cut and bruised. He is picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to the Clifton House. After receiving medical treatment he was able to be driven to his home.

Mr. R. Frazer of the Halifax Branch of the Union Bank, who has been spending his vacation in town, returned to Halifax on Wednesday.

Rev. Mr. McNeil who has recently come out from Scotland, will supply the Presbyterian Church during the month of December.

The death occurred on Saturday of Mrs. Shannon, wife of Mr. W. J. Shannon, after a prolonged illness. The deceased, who was seventy years of age was a Miss Henderson, of St. John, N. B., and was highly esteemed, a woman of large heart, a worker every good cause. By her many acts of kindness and her cheerful disposition, she had endeared herself to a large circle of friends. The funeral service at her late home was conducted by a former pastor of the Presbyterian church, of which deceased was a member, Rev. J. R. Douglas, assisted by Rev. Mr. Thorpe and Rev. Mr. McNeil. The procession which followed the remains to the station, testified to the esteem in which deceased was held. The Masons and Oddfellows marched in a body as did the members of the W. C. T. U., of which Mrs. Shannon was elected president some years ago. The interment took place in St. John on Wednesday.

BELLE ISLE.

The Eaton bridge which has been in a dangerous condition for some time past, is undergoing repairs. A new stone bridge will be put in.

Smith Cove.

CHASE FARM SOLD—DEATH OF VENERABLE RESIDENT—SPICY COMMENTS ON HUMAN FRAILITIES.

Arthur Cornwall of Digby Neck, has bought the Chase farm, here, and will take possession in the course of a few weeks. Twenty eight hundred dollars was the price paid. Mr. Cornwall, who is an industrious young man, will make a good citizen and a prosperous farmer.

The Brown Tea given by the members of The Sons of Temperance in their hall on Tuesday evening last proved to be an enjoyable affair. The proceeds to go towards repairing the hall.

One of the most esteemed residents of the Cove passed away on Monday morning last in the person of Capt. John W. O'Dell. Death was due to paralysis, which seized him the Saturday morning before, while he was working in the barn. He was found in the barn unconscious and he could not be revived without recovering consciousness. His daughter, Mrs. Avery Sully, arrived from Boston Tuesday and the funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon. Deceased was 73 years old, and is survived by a widow, son and daughter.

Robert Spurr of Deep Brook has bought all the apples, that were for sale in this vicinity. He shipped three hundred barrels the other day, and has about the same quantity to go forward later.

Miffidge Armstrong shipped a car of apples to Sydney last week.

Two chaps, who are getting bald-headed, were comparing notes the other day. The one, who was troubled with thinness in the forehead said carelessly "I got it, while he attributed the bald spot on the crown of his head to the rest of us would get pretty thin, there would be more happiness and less head trouble.

Mrs. J. S. Potter has returned from South Matland, where she had a pleasant visit.

Grip seems to be quite prevalent and some of the residents are pretty sick.

One of our old residents who gave up smoking half a century ago, is now a strong anti-tobaccoist, and he says that when some otherwise good people seek admission at the party gates, Peter will remark, when he is confronted by the clouds of smoke. Whew! we cannot admit you here, you would smoke us out.

A gentleman in conversation a few days ago, spoke of a grievance which had kept him from attending church for upwards of two years. There is no excuse for such a state of affairs in a small community. The grievance should be investigated and the man should get back to church and exert his influence for good. Life is too short for useless squabbles.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire have received a letter announcing the marriage of their daughter, Bertha, to Ambrose H. Billingale at the home of the groom in Arlington, Mass., on the 28th of Nov. The bride, who was one of the popular girls of the Cove, has been in Boston for upwards of a year. She will have the congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends, in which the Monitor-Sentinel heartily joins.

Teach the Young to Play Games.

In looking over the statistics concerning criminality one is struck with the manner in which two startling facts stand out. First, that one-half of those convicted with crime are unskilled workmen, that is to say, have no knowledge of a trade and about one-third of them range in age from 18 to 25.

Idleness appears to be one of the most fruitful germs of criminality—"that the devil finds some mischief still, for idle hands to do," seems to be a proverb to which we may attach considerable weight.

I have come across boys ranging from ten to fourteen, who had no idea how to play games such as are common among boys of similar age. I have often stood and watched lads like them, hanging around street corners, awaiting and looting against passers-by for the simple fact, that they had absolutely no form of amusement. To swear, to fight, or to gamble for the few stray pennies coming into their possession was the only medium they knew of working off their youthful flow of animal spirits.

I have always considered that for the average healthy boy to be absolutely idle, is about the worst thing possible. I may say the same applies equally to girls, let the boy or girl be kept constantly busy, either in school, or at play; by play do not mean running and hazarding about the streets, but by playing some game, such as baseball, hockey or cricket, where he gets his first lessons in organized effort amongst his fellows and he will give little or no trouble on the score of mischief.

The physical benefits accruing to the children who thus, during their childhood engage in physical exercise in the open air, are too obvious to need mentioning.

And let us not lose sight of the moral value of play for all, young and old alike, in choosing amusements chosen things according to character; during our leisure hours we show what we really are for the thing chosen as a pastime is chosen freely and may be merely a trivial matter or, on the other hand, may be a choice between things good and bad and will bring us into contact either with those better or those worse than ourselves. Let a boy go into a game that has no meaning in it, let him play the game for the game's sake, he comes out braced up and exhilarated; there he has shown what he is and what he intends to be, and after such play he will go to his tasks and do them like a free boy and not like a young galley slave.

I have seen boys watching their more fortunate fellows play games, which these boys did not know how to play, till the excitement of the sport took possession of them and found vent in clumsy horse-play and grotesque actions, till they ended by making themselves objectionable to all around.

I have seen young men and women from home engage in rough, romping games, not at all good to look upon. The trouble simply was not that they were bad or vicious but that they had not when younger learned to play games or indeed to play at all.—P. J. Billarde, Supt. Children's Aid Society, Winnipeg.

Emperor William in London.

Emperor William who was in London very recently received numerous deputations at the German Embassy, was especially cordial to the newspaper men, who presented him with an address. His Majesty said:

"The power you wield is great and most beneficial when exerted in the direction of promoting feelings of friendship among the nations. Your address proves that you have this task at heart. I am glad to meet you, and I hope you will continue to foster the friendly relations between our two nations, which are so necessary to the peace of Europe. We are of the same race and religion, ties which should prove strong enough to keep us in harmony and friendship."

In conversation with the newspaper men the Emperor emphasized the great influence of the modern press and the facility with which international misunderstandings were fomented in the newspapers. He added that he thought what was needed was simply a little good sense on both sides.

DO IT TODAY.

Consult absolutely free Henry Kirwin, the Oculist Optician, who has every facility for making the most complete and scientific examination of the eye, and who has made a specialty of the same for 15 years, and the many former patients in this vicinity who today enjoy perfect eyesight can testify to his successful treatment of the same. (All the very latest styles in glasses.)—St. James Hotel, Bridgetown, until further notice.

A remarkable operation was performed at the Montreal General Hospital on the 22nd by Dr. Armstrong on Mrs. Rudolph Boya of Vancouver, whose time ago fell down stairs and was believed to have broken her back. The operation showed that the spinal cord had not been injured, but that the vertebra had been distorted. Then the surgeons succeeded in arranging this, and it is believed that the woman will completely recover.

Scott Act Enforced in Moncton.

Moncton is at the present time witnessing the most severe enforcement of the Canada Temperance Act in the history of a decade. Nearly every hotel keeper and bartender in the city is under sentence of one month's imprisonment, but this sentence is not being enforced for the time being, as the question of the magistrate's jurisdiction to impose a sentence of one month in jail without the option of a fine is before the Supreme Court of New Brunswick.

Hardly a day has passed for a week or more without the imposition of two or three fines or the jail sentence. The police records show that during the past week since the rigid enforcement of the Act began, a total absence of drunken, a thing unparalleled in Moncton.

Moncton liquor dealers, who by the decision of the supreme court of New Brunswick on the 22nd are in a fair way to spend the Christmas in jail, have not yet finished the effort to overthrow Magistrate Kay's sentence of a month in jail without the option of a fine for Scott Act violation. It is understood that the dealers will test the point further and that an immediate appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa to determine whether the award made on the 22nd is or is not in force in Westmorland. The probability is that during the ensuing week an order staying proceedings will be asked from the Supreme Court of Canada. The decision may result in closing the local bars as the dealers have decided that the profits from liquor selling do not compensate for terms in jail.

HOW TO CURE A COLD.

Be as careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliable reputation and that is certain to effect a cure. Such a remedy is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained a world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this most common ailment, and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the many years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be freely given to babies as well as adults. For sale by W. A. Warren, Bridgetown, and W. W. Wade and Bear River Drug Store.

The Country Church.

(From the Congregationalist.)
The country church has always been the mother of men. Christian leaders have come from her care as well as men and women of sound mind and firm will who have succeeded in giving spheres of life. The church and the nation would have been grievously impoverished if these sons and daughters of the village churches had not come out and gone forward and given to high places. We need not enumerate them—they are well represented among the great names of our history.

But the coming out and coming forward of these young men and women makes the hardest problem of the country church. She gives of the best of her sons and daughters—not all, by any means, but lavishly—and in giving seems herself to be impoverished. And in this generous giving she has a claim upon the honor and sympathy not only of these sons and daughters, but also upon every one who loves the Church of Christ. For by her poverty we are made rich, and to her faith and zeal we look for new gifts and sacrifices in the days to come.

What we all need is a deeper sense of fellowship, a recognition of the common life of all churches. The problem is a twofold aspect. That of the people and that of the pastor—and for both the thing which hinders most and is hardest of all to bear is the sense of isolation—the loneliness of unshared and unrecognized work. That pastor who for eight years had never had the opportunity of exchanging with a brother minister, or spending a Sunday in a different place is, we hope, an extreme instance of this isolation; but everywhere the brotherhood of the churches needs to be shown in practical and cordial ways, and not less the brotherhood of city and country than of village and village.

There are practical problems to be met which vary greatly. But the peril of the churches everywhere is doubly grave in isolation and discouragement—the peril of inertia. For where the elements of an existing strength seem slipping away, the larger use of what remains and the gathering and training of new members are doubly hard. But such depleted churches are face to face with the real problem of the churches everywhere—the winning of the world to Christ. They are where Christ is, at the front, and by faith and unity and courage they must conquer. The weak church venturing all on obedience to Christ's command, though it may fall of large and visible results, will surely in its own life reap a rich reward.

Bear River Couple Pass Golden Wedding Anniversary.

An At Home was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Rice on Tuesday evening, it being the golden anniversary of their wedding day. There were about forty present and Mrs. Rice was presented with a very nice rocking chair by her brothers and near friends, also an amblybrooch. After a bounteous repast and an extremely pleasant evening, the company were surprised to find the evening so far spent until a warning was given from the Electric Light Station, that in order to have the benefit of the lights they must move quickly, and so a little after 12 o'clock the company broke up, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Rice many more happy anniversaries.

Sprains, swellings and lameness are promptly relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Wade and Bear River Drug Store.

George H. Wiggin Goes to Buffalo.

A Worcester, Mass., paper of recent date says—George H. Wiggin for the past five years buyer in the shoe department of Besse Bryant Company last night severed his connection with that Company, to accept a position as Manager of the Faxon Shoe Company of Buffalo. The employees of Besse Bryant Co., together with other Worcester friends of Mr. Wiggin assembled at the store shortly before closing time last night, and Mr. W. H. Johnston on behalf of those present gave Mr. Wiggin a gift watch. Mr. Wiggin came to Worcester, from Boston, he will go to Buffalo the middle of the week. Mrs. Wiggins, who will join her husband at Buffalo, about the 1st of December, was the handsome and accomplished daughter of the late Jas. V. Savana, of Annapolis Royal, where she was visiting a little over a year ago, going on to Halifax, to stop for a time with her aunt Mrs. (Col.) B. A. Weston, in which city and in Dartmouth, she has many relatives and friends. Mrs. MacMillan of Annapolis Royal, who has been visiting her in Worcester, will accompany Mr. Wiggin and daughters to Buffalo.

The White Slave Traffic.

London Rescue Worker Stated that Chicago was Headquarters of Trade in Slaves.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—Charges that Chicago is the clearing house centre of a white slave traffic which covers not only the United States, but which sells unfortunate girls to Panama and the harem of Turkey and Egypt, were made last night by Miss Rose Johnson, a London rescue worker, at a mass meeting held at the Central Y. M. C. A. Judge F. L. Faker, chairman of the meeting, told of numerous instances where it appeared that a white slave syndicate was doing business in Chicago.

For Correspondents.

The following, taken from an exchange, contains much good sense. It is just as well to use a pencil at a pen; in fact the paper we furnish is for the use of pencil especially, but do not use a thin lead pencil, make it show up if it takes all the spit in the family. Don't copy makes printers use very naughty words.

Be especially particular to write names plainly. We can make good sense out of crooked lines if the names are clear. Remember the names of neighbors are not as familiar to typewriters as they are to you, so if you want them printed right be sure to write them plainly.

Be careful to distinguish between "Ms" and "Mrs." We sometimes make married women out of girls that never had a bean because the correspondents make "Miss" look more like "Mrs." than "Miss." We have narrowly escaped assassination by such errors due to carelessness of news reporters.

We don't care for obituary poetry. If good it is not usually original; if original it is not usually good. Items about the weather are not wanted. The people in other towns have the same weather that you do, therefore it is no news to anyone.

Don't air your personal grievances. We have trouble enough without fighting neighborhood battles. Harpless jokes are all right, but leave out the sting. If you want to give a neighbor a "dig" do it personally, not through the paper, or, if you are afraid of him do it by telephone.

The fact that Will Jones and wife ate Sunday dinner with John Smith and family is of no interest to anyone but the Joneses and Smiths. Let them eat, but don't write it up unless it is equally good for bread and pastry—and best for both. It's the choicest flour that Canada's choicest wheat can yield. Try Flourer Flour and see how much it improves everything you bake. At your grocer's.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO. In case of a burn or scald what would you do to relieve the pain? Such injuries are liable to occur in any family and everyone should be prepared for them. Chamberlain's Salve applied on a scald will relieve the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a severe one, will cause the parts to heal without leaving a scar. For sale by W. A. Warren, Bridgetown, and W. W. Wade and Bear River Drug Store.

The Divine Power in the Child.

Every child as it begins to develop proves that it is sent by a beneficent Power, with fixed plans. Every growing child proves the folly of the dull-minded atheist or self-satisfied scientist who speaks of this earth as the accidental result of uncontrolled disorganized forces. The little girl almost too small to talk begins playing with her dolls—she has brought from the great Power that sent her the love of children, and she is already preparing to take care of them. The greatest happiness in the world is found in the intense affection of a mother for the new child and there is nothing more beautiful than the development in that child, almost before the capacity for speech, of the same mother love by which it is protected. Little boys in their activities, in their desire to do something, "to fix something," to be busy and rough and active, prove also that their work was mapped out for them long before they came here. With their toys, and tools, and games, they are practicing for the real work that they have got to do.

The Working Man's Position.

"Yes, wages have gone up," the average man will tell you in Montreal today, "and so has the price of everything you buy. Look at house rents; look at food and other necessities of life how high they are." And the average man will clutch his arguments by declaring that he is no better off than he was ten years ago. He is wrong, because even if he has saved no money his standard of comfort is higher and he is getting more out of life than was possible then. It is not an easy matter to get at the true relation of wages to the cost of living—to work it out with mathematical precision, so to speak—but an attempt has been made by the United States Bureau of Labor, which has published an instructive bulletin giving comparative tables of recent increases in the cost of food and workmen's earnings, and these throw a flash of illumination over the subject. While the economic conditions are not the same in Canada and the United States, there is a sufficiently close approximation in the standards of life among the working classes in the principal cities of the two countries to make the comparison interesting here. The statistics show that the average weekly earnings in four thousand representative establishments reported upon were 3.9 per cent greater in 1907 than they were in 1905, while the retail cost of food purchased by the employes had increased by only 2.9 per cent, in the same time. As there is nothing to offset the margin of one per cent. between the advance in wages and the cost of food it is obvious that as the result of the increase in earning power the average worker was considerably better off in the United States last year than he was the year previous, so far at least as food prices govern the cost of living. But that is not all. While the tables show the proportional increases they show also that there was an average reduction of one-half per cent. in the hours spent in labor each week. When the comparison is extended from a single year to a series of years the improvement in conditions becomes more striking. The average weekly wages of 1,000 establishments were 18.1 per cent. in excess of the average weekly earnings during the closing decade of the last century. The increase in the retail price of food is shown in the interval 18.7 per cent. The balance on the side of increased earning power in the same period was only three per cent. It seems a fair conclusion to draw that upon the whole the working classes are appreciably better off today than they were ten years ago. Savings deposited in the banks confirm this and no one who looks around intelligently can fail to perceive that the standard of living is better—food, clothing, house accommodation, and the facilities for education.—Montreal Herald.

Ontario's Cheese Makers New Source of Profit.

TORONTO, Nov. 25th.—Ontario cheese makers have found means of increasing their income by making butter from whey fat which has previously been allowed to go to waste. Some of them made such an excellent product that they took prizes from the fair and dairies and from several creameries at various country fairs. They secure their butter by curdling the fat they get on running the whey through the cream separator. One man writes to the Ontario agricultural department that he has realized fifteen hundred dollars on this whey butter this year and that in the last four years fully ten thousand dollars have gone into the swamp near his factory in discarded whey. "This whey butter will add thousands of dollars every year to the dairy products of Ontario," he concludes, "as this year's experiment will be the rule and not the exception in a year or two."

Good Business Year.

Following the series of interviews with manufacturers the Times today prints the statements of wholesale merchants in various lines. All of them unite in saying that 1907 has been a good year, with a very large volume of business. They report that collections have been generally good, which shows that the purchasing power of the people has not been impaired. They agree with the manufacturers, however, in expressing the view that there is now some falling off in demand for goods, due to the financial stringency and the natural feeling of caution which it has developed. They do not anticipate any marked falling off in business, or more than a temporary check to the great activity of the past few years. In a word, there is no doubt about the general soundness of business conditions apart from the present scarcity of money. It is well to bear this fact in mind at this time.

BOVRIL creates appetite

BOVRIL added to any dish gives it the delightful odor of roasting beef. Makes your mouth water—puts your appetite on edge. Its rich, beefy flavor, starts the gastric juices flowing, helping the digestive organs extract more nutrition from the food you eat. BOVRIL is not a mere extract. It contains in concentrated form all the essence, substance and flavor of prime beef. When tired out, try a little BOVRIL in a cup of boiling water, with a soda biscuit. It will refresh and strengthen you. All good cooks keep BOVRIL always on hand. There's not a day passes that it cannot help make some dish more palatable—more nourishing. All good grocers sell BOVRIL.

INGLISVILLE.

Services will be held next Sunday at East Inglisville at 3 p. m. by the Rev. W. M. Brown.

A very pleasant evening was spent by a number of our young people at the house of Mrs. Dexter Jarvis on Wednesday last.

Mrs. A. A. Reid spent last week with friends here.

We regret to say there is no improvement in the health of Mrs. Barney, who has been seriously ill for the last six months.

Mr. and Mrs. Avard Banks recently spent a few days in this place.

Walter Darling of Middleton spent Sunday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Zebulon Darling.

The Rev. W. M. Brown of Lawrencetown visited the school here recently and made a few fitting remarks.

HAMPTON.

The dry weather of last week gave farmers a chance to get some ploughing done. Generally speaking, our residents are quite ready for winter.

Mr. Curry and wife closed their summer residence here and have returned to Annsbent for the winter. Everett Mitchell, Perry and Ernest Fash are home again from sea. Frank Messinger made a trip to St. John and engineer of the gasoline packet, Frances, of Bridgetown.

ALBANY.

A musical treat was given to the people of Albany on Sunday evening, the 24th. inst. in the way of a people's Praise Service, given by Prof. Morse, who is giving vocal and instrumental lessons here. A well selected and instructive program entitled "Life's Blossoms," consisting of stand and hymn and responsive readings was finely executed by the choir, the congregation taking part. The Prof. gave the origin of the hymns and many interesting incidents connected therewith. Two violinists, Miss Dodge of Middleton and Mr. Almon Onkes, accompanied the organist, Miss Bessie Fair. Two selections were beautifully rendered by Miss Dodge, (Violinist of Middleton) Angels ever bright and fair, at the opening and Handel's Largo at the close. The church was well filled by an appreciative audience.

Frank Whitman went to Bcton last week, where he has resumed the same position he had last winter.

Mr. Fred Fair and sister, Bessie, recently attended the wedding reception of the groom's father, Mr. David Starratt of Springfield Ridge.

Rev. Ramsay preached here yesterday, but not his farewell sermon as was reported.

Miss Dodge of Middleton was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. and Miss Annie Fair on Sunday, the 24th. inst.

Mr. B. C. Fair and family have returned to their home in Aylesford. The former with his associates, captured a moose last week.

Prof. Morse was the guest of Deacon and Mrs. Phineas Whitman on Saturday and Sunday, the 23rd. and 24th.

Death of Freda Cornwell.

The sympathy of the entire community will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cornwell, of Hants Boder, owing to the death of their little daughter Freda. This bright little girl, who was noticed in our last issue, has been hovering between life and death for two or three weeks succumbed at last on Saturday evening, Nov. 16th. She was an exceptionally bright child of 8 1/2 years, and beloved by all who had occasion to come in contact with her. Her death will be a great blow to the parents by whom she was fairly worshipped. The remains were laid away in River Bank Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

COLDS AND CROUP IN CHILDREN

"My little girl is subject to colds" says Mrs. Wm. H. Sorig, No. 4, Fifth St., Wheeling, W. Va. "Last winter she had a severe spell and a terrible cough but I cured her with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without the aid of a doctor, and my little boy has been prevented many times from having the croup by the timely use of this syrup." Sold by Royal Pharmacy, Bridgetown and Bear River Drug Store.
