FUNISHMENT OF REBELS NOT DEATH, BUT SEVERE De Wet and Maritz Will Be Made to Realize Full Gravity of Offense.

Special Direct Copyrighted Cable to the Toronto World. JOHANNESBURG, Dec. 13.—It is semi-officially stated that the government does not intend to go to extremes in the policy of leniency with the leaders of the late Boer rebellion, including General and Lieut.-Col. Maritz, but that they will be made to realize the full gravity of their offense.

THE GUILT THAT WILL NOT WASH AWAY! What is the outstanding thing in this war? The blood-guiltiness of Germany! The great German nation has been preparing itself for years to seize the leadership of the world, and in its attempt to do so it has deliberately and maliciously slaughtered in an army of over a million men to slay and has slain or brought death to hundreds of thousands of the soldiers and people, women and children, of the little free states of Belgium; destroying their homes and farms, villages and towns, churches and hospitals; inflicting the greatest suffering and wrongs on an inoffensive people ever known to history! An inhuman and blood-stained! And all for the lust of power! Germans may try to cloak it in a dozen ways, and with a dozen arguments, but they will never be forgiven by those of us who have lived to witness it or the innumerable millions who will come after us and will know of it from the records of history! And why is this the outstanding feature of the war? Because if Germany can do to Belgium, does it not follow that if she has the power later on she can treat in the same way all the rest of the world? It is this that makes our American neighbors pause! What is the American declaration of independence, their struggle for liberty, their fight for freedom in the civil war, their republican institutions, their doctrine of the equality of nations, if such things as the butcheries and barbarities in Belgium are to be justified?

DECISIVE WIN BY THE FRENCH AT LE PRETRE

Special Direct Copyrighted Cable to the Toronto World. PARIS, Dec. 13.—That the French have won a decisive victory over the German troops in the forest of Le Pretre was the news conveyed in an official communiqué this afternoon. The fighting had been proceeding in that portion of eastern France for a number of days, and Saturday the French hurled their full force against the Kaiser's troops, compelling them to leave their hitherto strong military positions and hasten northwards. The French movement in the forest of Le Pretre is in accord with their general scheme of causing the isolation of the German army corps at St. Mihiel and the securing of points of vantage for the march on Metz.

It is also reported that the British checked three charges of German infantry southeast of Ypres. The German were ineffective in their attacks upon the French fortified line in the passes leading to German territory.

How to Care for Your Eyebrows and Lashes

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Dama of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

NOT all of us have eyebrows lovely enough to inspire sonnets, but there is no reason why they should not be attractive. The eyebrows and lashes are totally ignored, in many instances, when the beautician solves the aesthetic problems of the face.

Brushes for the eyebrows are procurable at any pharmacy and are shaped like those used for the face. The brushes, however, are different being fine and soft, as in baby's hair-brush.

You may expect no immediate visible results from this treatment, for it will require several months to show the slightest improvement in eyebrows or lashes.

Apply this to the eyebrows with a small toothbrush once a day. Rub it into the brows, never drawing the fingers in the direction opposite to that in which the hair grows. The stroking is done with the finger tips with the purpose of stimulating circulation.

The eyelashes may be made to grow if clipped once a month. This should be carefully done, however, or they will become coarse. It is best to clip someone to do the clipping for you. Each hair that appears bent, split or out of condition is clipped at the end. Cutting the lashes in a straight line is inexcusable and would only insure coarse, stubby lashes.

Be sure that your eyelids are in a healthy condition, for often this is the cause of unattractive lashes. If the lids are red and sore, with an ointment made of one part each of pure glycerine and red oxide of mercury mixed with three parts of lard. Rub this on the edges of the lids, taking care that none gets into the eyes. Each morning wash the lids with warm water.

Improvement Always Slow. If they are bushy, use a sticky pomade to hold the hairs in place. To make this, dissolve two ounces of gum arabic in one quart of warm rosewater. If you curl to tint it add a drop of aniline dye.

Electrolysis is the only remedy when the brows meet above the nose. To pull out the hairs with a pair of tweezers only makes them worse in time.

Women with blonde coloring should control the inclination to darken the hair with henna.

Wash the hair with a mixture of pure glycerine and red oxide of mercury mixed with three parts of lard. Rub this on the edges of the lids, taking care that none gets into the eyes. Each morning wash the lids with warm water.

BY ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNE LAURIE:

I am a girl of 22 years, and have been keeping company with a young man for the last three months. I have learned to like him, but I simply hate to meet him on the street when I am with friends. I don't like his talk then.

He tells me about his financial troubles. As his pay day is once a month he borrows in advance, and as I am not used to such circumstances, it worries me a good deal. I tell him a change, and he says he loves to hear me talk like that to him, but it doesn't seem to make any difference.

Do you think I ought to have patience and wait, or what do you advise?

For goodness sake, worried, why do you worry over such a little thing as that? If you don't like the way the man talks to you when you meet him on the street, tell him so, or don't listen.

He's probably just talking to get you to worry over such a little thing as that? If you don't like the way the man talks to you when you meet him on the street, tell him so, or don't listen.

Some people would rather be accused of murder than not be noticed. Of course, it is very bad form for a man to tell a woman that he is in debt and that he doesn't know what to do for money.

No man of really fine feeling would do such a thing unless it was absolutely necessary. Give your young man a good sensible talking to and tell him to drop the subject once and for all.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

A young man was introduced to me by my sister's gentleman friend. I went to the moving pictures with him, but I do not care much for him, although he acted as a gentleman while I was with him. He did not make a date to call on me, but several nights after my sister's friend told me that the young man wanted to call on me on a certain night and said that he was too busy the first night to make a date. I told him I thought it was his place to make a date, but he said that I did not make dates with other people. Do you think I was correct in saying what I did, or what would you have done if you were in my place?

My good little girl, what do you mean when you talk about "making dates"? Is it some mysterious rite, some mysterious ceremony, which carries with it some occult and wonderful meaning?

Or do you just mean that you make an appointment with someone, an engagement, a plain, everyday "I'll be around and see me" sort of thing?

What is there so solemn and ceremonious about that?

MESSAGE TO DOUBTERS

BY BISHOP M'CONNELL

A Great Sermon to the Students at Convocation Hall Yesterday.

Doubt and how to dispel it was the topic dealt with by Bishop McConnell of Denver, Col., in his sermon yesterday morning in Convocation Hall. Religion was, he said, a life affair, and every question relative to it had to be solved by a life method. There were some doubts that dissolved themselves and there were some which would disappear if the individual would come to a halt until the period of uncertainty would pass.

"It is often the case," declared Bishop McConnell, "that man raises his own doubts. In that case he must come from his noise and clamor and let his life settle down to peace. The man who drives ahead at full speed loses touch with life. There are voices that can be heard only in the quiet, and it is necessary for us to settle down the dust that envelops us in order to see things clearly. When our lives are noisy and full of clamor, we are not able to hear the still, small voice."

Another method for people in doubt to follow was to go back to the last place they knew they were right. From artificiality to the simplicity and clarity of vision was the path that man ought to take. The method of the explorer was "when in doubt go straight ahead."

"The only way to use Christianity," concluded Bishop McConnell, "is to follow it absolutely. We learn the meaning of Christianity not merely by theory but by going ahead and letting things solve themselves. Christianity is always going just one step farther."

OSLER CHAPTER MEETS. The Sir William Osler Chapter, I.O. D.E., will meet in the Georgia House, 106 Beverley street, this evening at 8 o'clock.

"Are We Downhearted? No!" Our Canadian boys at the front are singing this new song, by Robert Harkness. No song has made such an instantaneous hit as this since the war began. Twelve thousand soldiers sang it for half an hour at the White City, London, the night it was introduced.

The Y.M.C.A. purchased 5000 copies, and they are sending some to every soldier's camp. The London Daily Telegraph selected "Are We Downhearted? No!" out of hundreds of other songs to handle in aid of the King of the Belgians' Fund. The chorus is reproduced here for the first time in Canada.

A Bride's Own Story

BY ISOBEL BRANDS

THE VERY REAL ART OF CUTTING BREAD.

LUCY is a perfect paragon of a maid. Of course, it has taken Aunt Juliette ages to train her in the right ways of doing things. I give Aunt credit for teaching her how to cook and bake and clean and mend and do the thousand and one other things that make up the sum of daily housework. But in my eyes none of Lucy's useful virtues compare with her biggest talent: that Aunt Juliette had nothing to do with perfecting, although Aunt encourages her in it on every occasion.

Lucy tells fortunes! She can tell your fortune from anything—from the way you look at the sun in the morning and the first star you see at night; from the leaves and coffee grounds; from the way you hold your knife and fork to the way you do up your hair. I step gingerly about the kitchen when she's around oftentimes, for everything you do "means something."

I started to cut bread for luncheon today when Lucy rushed at me, and almost grabbed the knife out of my hand.

"My goodness me," she exclaimed, "don't you never cut bread like that!"

For a moment I gaped, wondering and do the thousand and one other things that make up the sum of daily housework. But in my eyes none of Lucy's useful virtues compare with her biggest talent: that Aunt Juliette had nothing to do with perfecting, although Aunt encourages her in it on every occasion.

"Do you know what that means, Miss Eleanor, when you cut bread so thin that you can read a newspaper thru it? That means you're stingy!"

And she pounced, apparently convinced that she had delivered a final blow at my bread cutting peculiarity. For I do love the bread cut in thin, dainty slices, and I may as well confess that whenever I get the opportunity I prefer to do the bread cutting so that we don't have the overly plump slices which are Lucy's handiwork.

"Of course I know you're not," she continued, apologetically, "but folks will think you are if you cut bread like that, because, so sure as you're born, folks that always cut bread thin—I mean after they have kept house for a long time, so that you know it's a habit—they're the stingiest! I can tell people's disposition just by looking at the slices of bread they cut. You take a woman that cuts the bread thick and irregular so that on one side it's like a razor edge and the other side is thick as a fat book. You mark my words—she's a sloopy housekeeper; the kind that feeds her family quick and short-like—any old way to get thru. And the kind that cuts bread so that it's squashed down and looks like a flat pancake, she's the one with the temper, per that just stamps over everybody. And then there's the careless, extravagant woman, you can always tell because she cuts her bread so that it's crumbly."

"All right, I'll be good. What kind of slices are cut by the wife who sews buttons on her husband's shirts?"

"My, that's easy. Watch me," she returned, unabashed. And she took the wire racks at one end and the bread against the wire bits and in a twinkling she had cut a slice perfectly even, about one-quarter of an inch thick. "That's thin enough for you," she declared. Then she moved one of the pins on the board forward and cut a slice that I cut good even slices without it. "If you can't cut bread except so thick that it chases your appetite, or so thin that it looks like holes poked together, or so uneven that the bread looks rickety on the plate, the best thing to do is to use a nice bread-slicer like this. Now I've gotten so that I cut good even slices without it, but I just recommended judiciously, looking at my pile of slices. 'If I were a man I'd buy this little 25 cent bread-slicer and serrated bread knife, and dip my knife in hot water before cutting new bread.'"

"With a little practice," she comforted me, condescendingly, "I'm sure you'll cut bread right after a while, and just as good as me!"

THE YOUNG FIND LARNED'S HISTORY FASCINATING

An Astonishing Interest Displayed by the Children of This City in a Great Historical Work

We were told by competent critics that we first undertook the distribution of Larned's History of the World in this city that we would find children among its most enthusiastic admirers. We find this prediction has come true. Hundreds of boys and girls, even as young as ten years, have been among the crowds thronging our office daily, and have carried off their treasure with exclamations of delight. Their still smaller brothers and sisters pore over the illustrations of famous historical paintings in actual colors, have an absorbing interest. The numerous half-tones belittled likewise afford endless fascination. No work of its kind has ever been so widely and beautifully illustrated. But the text is also a feature enjoyed by the young, since it is written in a style that is clarity itself and easily understood and retained by the youthful mind. We do not hesitate to say that it is a real duty of the parents of this community to give their children a work that will inculcate a never-dying thirst for knowledge and impart a taste for information of a kind that is bound to influence their whole lives for the best and worthiest things. The triple coupons printed daily in this paper will, we believe, exert an incalculable effect on the

Brazilian Advances On Local Markets

AS OLD CHINESE STRIKES NEW TRADING COMMENCES

After Over Four Months' Silence, New York Exchange Gong Sounded—Brokers and Friends Cheered, Then Market Opened With Rush.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Wall street came into its own today. The stock exchange, closed for nearly four and one-half months, except for limited trading in bonds during the past two weeks, was reopened at 10 o'clock today for active trading in stocks. One hundred and ninety-two issues were approved by the governors for trading, and the other issues were barred, notably United States stock activity on the floor revived memories of big days ten years ago.

Business Represents Large Overturn in Money—C.P.R. Lower

Canadian Press Despatch. NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Limited dealings in stocks on the floor of the exchange were renewed today after an enforced suspension of over four months, due to the European war. The course of the market, which was strong throughout, seemed to justify the action of the authorities in ordering a resumption at this time.

BUSINESS SMALL PRICES STEADY

London Expecting Early Opening of Exchange—C. P. R. Firm

LONDON, Dec. 12.—There was little business in securities in the street today, but prices were steadier. The attendance of brokers was small. Expectations for an early reopening of the London stock exchange were revived by statements that decorators effecting repairs to the interior of the house have been requested to complete their work forthwith.

MARKET DISGRACE SHAMES THIS CITY

Fraudulent Farmers Fool Customers With Cold Storage Eggs

MANAGEMENT VERY BAD

An Important City Institution is Injured by Incompetent Authorities.

Again we reiterate that the management of the St. Lawrence Market is a disgrace to the City of Toronto. Firstly, there is the impostor who buys cold-storage eggs, and posing as a 'farmer' sells them to the unsuspecting public.

WHOLESALE PRODUCE

Fruiters remained nearly stationary on the market yesterday, and the market was quite so brisk as on Friday, but, then, it never is.
