The numerous patrons of the ADVANCE

fact that the paper is not quite up to

to its usual standard of excellence this week, and is a day late in making its appearance, as we announced it would be in last week's issue. The reason is that its entire writing and reporting

staff was obliged to lose the two days

—Tuesday and Wednesday—which are

our busiest, attending at the Circuit

Court in Newcastle in connection with the $5,000 libel suit brought by Dr. Philip Cox against the editor. That matter being disposed of the ADVANCE goes on the

even tenor of its way and, we hope,

will not again be obliged to ask for

special consideration of its patrons,

especially from such a cause.

The Budget Speech.

Premier Tweedie, in the legislature last night, made a clear and effective exposition

of provincial finances, and was heard

with great attention by the House and galleries. No gentleman who ever occupied the position of provincial secretary

and treasurer has had a finer grasp of the details of the financial business of the province than Mr. Tweedie, and he is able to invest the naturally dry facts and figures with which he has to deal with a spice of interest which enables him to keep the ear of the House when others would fall with the same subject in hand.

But for unforeseen expenditures, Mr.

Tweedie's estimate of last year would have been well within the mark, and he would have been able to announce a substantial surplus in the year, but the small

outbreak and the destruction of bridges

by the great frost, and the grant of $5,

000 to the patriotic fund added an unexpected burden to the treasury.

Mr. Tweedie is able to show that the over-expenditure of the government was due to causes beyond their control.

News and Notes.

John C. Best, on trial at St. John, N.B.,

for the murder of George E. Baine at Sangu, testified on his own behalf on Tuesday. He denied having committed the crime. Best said he was born at Sackville, N.B., on April 8, 1865; attended school regularly until he was twelve years of age, and after that until

fifteen years old went to school in winter and worked on a farm in summer. His parents are alive in Sackville. His only

TUESDAY 19TH.

Mr. Johnson gave notice of an inquiry

whether the government intended to consider the bill.

A FRENCH-SPEAKING INSPECTOR

in the French speaking school district Mr.

Johnson said the matter had been considered by the government and he thought that the time had now come when a decision should be given to this question. He referred to the patriotic attitude of the French of the province and expressed the opinion that his loyal conduct on all occasions entitled him to fair treatment.

Mr. Joseph Porrier said he was pleased to be able to join the member for Kent in urging upon the government the necessity of having in French rural districts, particularly an inspector of schools having full command of both languages. Representing as he is a country of mixed population in many districts of which the very necessity of the case the French language only was spoken he would be remiss in his duty if he did not

VIGOROUS OLD AGE

OBTAINED THROUGH THE USE OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Mr. William Gray, of Newmarket, tells how he became hale and hearty at the advanced age of seventy.

From the Express, Newmarket, Ont. Mr. William Gray, who is well and favorably known in the town of Newmarket and vicinity, is rejoicing over his release from the pains of sciatica and rheumatism through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"About two and a half years ago I was seized with a very severe attack of sciatica, the pain was simply torturing. At times the trouble was seated in my knees, then in my hips. For nearly a year I suffered along, working as best I could, in the hope of being able to overcome the disease.

"I walked a short distance in the hope of being able to get on my feet, but it was in vain. I was unable to walk a step without being seized with sharp pains in the hip and in the time I became a real man; my appetite failed, and I could not rest at night on account of the pain. I tried one medicine after another without avail. I also consulted several doctors, but to no result. I was beginning to think that I was doomed to suffer the rest of my life when one day a friend strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"I took his advice and procured a supply of the pills and began taking them according to directions. Before the third box was finished I noted a change for the better, so I continued the use of the pills till I had taken two or three boxes when my trouble had entirely disappeared. Today I am free from pain and feel that life is worth living, even at the ripe old age of seventy. I can now do a day's work with many men who are twenty years younger than I. I thank God for my restoration to health through the agency of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I trust that other similar sufferers will give them a trial, for knowing what these pills have done for me I am sure that they cannot fail to be beneficial to others similarly afflicted.

"If the blood is pure and wholesome disease cannot exist. The reason Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure so many forms of disease is that they do not directly upon the blood and nerves, reaching the root of the trouble. Other medicines act only on the symptoms of the trouble, and that is the reason the trouble always returns when you cease to take medicine.

"I make one last appeal to you, Miss Gerie. Indeed, it is not pride that prompts me. I could not bear it. Have pity on me. You are gentle and kind to other people, oh, please be merciful to me.

"I have nothing more to say upon the subject—I have said you were to go. You act as if it were necessary to some place where you might catch the scarlet fever or the mumps. You amuse me, upon my word you do. Rex is not dangerous, neither is he a bluebird; his only fault is being extremely handsome. The best advice I can give you is, don't admire him too much. He should be labeled, 'Out of the market.'

"Gertie tripped Gertie, leaving her crumpled in the room, while Daisy clutched the note in her cold, nervous grasp, walking like one in a terrible dream through the bright patches of glittering moonlight, through the sweet-scented, rose-bordered path, on through the dark shadows of the trees toward the home of Rex and his husband.

"A soft, brooding silence lay over the sleeping earth as Daisy, with a sinking heart, drew near the house. Her soft footfalls on the green mossy earth made no sound. She crept up as a shadow she crept up to the blossom-covered porch; some one was standing there, leaning against the very pillar around which the anemone was blooming as she watched Rex's shadow on the roses.

"The shifting moonbeams pierced the white, fluffy clouds that enveloped them, and as she turned his face toward her she saw it was Rex. She could almost have reached out her hand and touched him from where she stood. She was sorely afraid her face or her voice might startle him if she spoke to him suddenly. She thought, 'I will go up to him and lay the letter in his hand.'

"Then a great intense longing came over her to hear his voice. She had quite decided to pursue this course, when the rustle of a silken garment fell upon her ear. She Heiress and Wife.

CHAPTER XXV.

Gertie Glenn never forgot the despairing cry that broke from Daisy's white lips as she repeated her command.

"I wish you to deliver this note to Mr. Rex Lyon himself."

"Oh, Miss Gerie," she cried, clasping her hands together in an agony of anxiety, "I can not—oh, indeed I can not! Ask anything of me but that and I will gladly do it."

"Both girls looked at her in sheer astonishment. 'What is the reason you can not?' cried Gerie, in utter amazement. 'I do not comprehend you.'

"I—I can not take the note," she stammered in a frightened whisper. "I do not—"

"She stopped, short in utter confusion. 'I choose you shall do just as I bid less severe, but I might as well just as bad as ever. To increase my tortures I caught a cold which resulted in an attack of sciatica in my right leg. If I walked a short distance I would be seized by sharp pains in the hip and in the time I became a real man; my appetite failed, and I could not rest at night on account of the pain. I tried one medicine after another without avail. I also consulted several doctors, but to no result. DANCED WITH THE QUEEN.

The honor is claimed for the late Edward Vaux, once Mayor of Philadelphia, that on a memorable occasion he danced with Queen Victoria.

It was shortly after she had been crowned Queen, when young Vaux, who had just been made a baronet, was sent to London on a government mission to United States Minister Stevenson.

Upon his arrival there he learned that he had been appointed secretary of the United States Legation at London. Young Vaux, with the fair sex, a fine looking and a good dancer, in his official position he saw much of court life and participated in many royal functions.

Queen's original partner in the dance was the royal, who was present in the changing of partners of one of the figures, the Queen became the mate of the Philadelphia for the season. The honor was a high one, for after that time her name was not mentioned in the list of those who were selected in dance her partners were restricted to those in whose veins coursed the blood of royalty.

HOW TO POLISH THE WINDOWS. The action of the sun, moisture and the carbonic acid in the air, on the soda or potash in the glass produces an opaque more or less pronounced. To remove this the glass should be washed with dilute hydrochloric acid, after a few minutes go over the glass with powdered whiting. Pour the acid slowly into the cold water, using four ounces of the acid to twelve ounces of water, one pint and a half of polish with ammonia or soft paper. It must be remembered that this acid will attack metal and should not be allowed to touch them, nor should the bottle be left open an instant longer than necessary, as the fumes are very destructive.

PLANT SHADE TREES. Trees add much to the comfort and beauty of the home, whether it be located in the city or in the country. They should be set in large holes that have been filled in to the proper depth with good, rich soil. Elm, soft maple, black locust, catalpa, box elder, ash, in the order named, are desirable trees. Every planting should include some elms because they are long-lived and more permanent than the others mentioned. Continuous, shallow cultivation is necessary for success, and if this is neglected, failure is almost certain.

ENGLAND'S QUEER LIBEL LAW. There are some remarkable peculiarities about the libel laws of England. If you call a man a thief and cannot prove your assertion, you are responsible for damages. But if you ornament the objectionable man with an illustrative adjective, such as a "drunken thief," or a "blooming" thief, or a "grasping" rogue, the addition of the descriptive word shows that you have lost your temper, and you are not legally actionable.

A Surgeon's Blunder

Artery Severed While Undergoing an Operation—No Longer Necessary to Use the Knife for Piles.

Yesterday's paper contained the account of an accident whereby a young lady lost her life. While undergoing an operation the surgeon's knife slipped, an artery was severed, and before the surgeon knew the result of his error the patient was in a dying condition.

Every great operation is attended with great risk to life as well as being a severe strain on the nervous system and an expensive method of treatment. Doctors formerly recommended an operation as the only method of relief, but that day is past, since Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven its ability to cure the most stubborn cases of hemorrhoids and protruding piles.

Physicians who are conservative of the welfare of their patients do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and only those having a shallow and antiquated method of treatment are the ones who still cling to the old-fashioned operation. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a simple, safe, and effective remedy for hemorrhoids and protruding piles.

Dr. Chase's Ointment has been endorsed by more people, including doctors and professional men, than any other similar preparation. It is the standard ointment of the world over, and positively the only one that cures and bleeds piles for years, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

At a keeper at Lord George Sanger's circus at Mill-hill left his bank book, his pipe and tobacco, some coppers, and various small articles in the pockets of his coat, which he hung up within reach of the elephant he was in charge of. He returned just in time to see the last of these things disappear into the elephant's mouth.

The loss of the bank book was serious, as he had saved much money. So he went to a member of the Finchley District Council for advice. The Post office authorities were consulted, and they promised the keeper he would not lose his money.

An extraordinary case was recently investigated by the Guildford coroner, Edward Cumper, a youth of Albury, fell from a ladder in his employer's stable, and was kicked by a horse. His skull was fractured, but he lived two months after the operation of trepanning had been performed at the county hospital.

In the sixteenth century Joseph Hopkins, of Wobocher, left a bequest of £200 to provide three coppers and three gowns for six deserving poor persons at Christmas. The money was invested in land, which has now worth £7,000, and a few days before Christmas season garments were presented to 150 poor Wednesday people.

Young women in England are as resourceful as in the United States, and at a recent London show found it difficult to support herself by her clever sketches of animals added to intellectual pursuit of the more practical one of clipping and combing pools and other hair-dressing canines. The result is that she is making money, as nearly all the owners of the dogs she "combs" want their portraits.
