Labor Leaders will Appeal

Toronto, Nov. 9.—The report of the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor, read at the convention this morning, deals at great length with the decision of the courts in condemning Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison to terms in jail for contempt of court.

"We recommend that an appeal be taken from the decision rendered in both the original injunctions, as well as the contempt case growing out of it. We cannot permit these decisions to go unchallenged. They affect the fundamental rights and either the courts or congress must safeguard them."

"We again enter our protest against the application of a writ of injunction in labor disputes—unless where an injunction would lie if there were no labor dispute."

"We hold that use of an injunction writ in a contention between workers and employers is an unwarranted extension of the equity power of the court and interference with the rights and liberties, especially when they are in a struggle for improved working conditions."

The executive expresses the opinion that had Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison been accorded a trial by a jury of their peers they would not have been convicted of contempt of court.

The executive expresses in its report a plan of enrolling the army of workers in the United States into an old age pension army which might be formed under the states and have the government pay pensions to workers over 65 years of age who have been twenty-five years in the United States. This was referred to a committee that will report later on the subject.

The executive also recommended continuing for another year the committee on industrial education. The latter committee urged having industrial education for children between fourteen and sixteen years of age, in the belief that that action would keep the children in school longer and prepare them to take a training in some special branch.

Seventeen Drowned as Result of Collision

New York, Nov. 9.—Related news of a disaster at sea in which six lives were lost, was brought to New York today.

Six of the crew of the barkentine John S. Bennett, bound from New York to Halifax with a cargo of coal were drowned early on Monday morning when she was sunk in collision off Block Island with a four-masted schooner supposed to be the Merrill C. Hart of Thomaston, Me. The schooner is also believed to have been lost, together with all her crew, but how many men she carried is not known here.

Wreckage bearing the name of the Merrill C. Hart floated ashore near the scene of the collision today. The Bennett was owned by A. W. Hendy & Son, Liverpool, N. S.

Meagre details of the disaster were brought here today by Captain Bullock of the schooner William Jones, which picked up two Filipino sailors, members of the Bennett's crew, which numbered eight men in all, consisting of Captain Jones Frith, of Lockport, N. S., first mate Hadley and second mate Obrey Gehlert both of Lockport; Daniel Stout, the cook, and two seamen besides the two rescued men.

Captain Bullock said that on Monday morning at one o'clock as he was passing Block Island, he made out a vessel's lights nearby. He approached close enough to speak to her, and her captain hailed him and asked for assistance, calling out that his vessel which was a barkentine had been in collision, and was sinking.

Bullock immediately came about and made ready to get out a boat to go to the rescue of the barkentine. Before the boat could be put over, however, the barkentine had vanished beneath the surface.

When the William Jones' boat reached the spot where the barkentine had sunk, some fifty of wreckage were all that could be seen. But nearby the searchers came across the two Filipinos, clinging to a small boat. Both were picked up.

Practically nothing could be learned from them for they spoke no English. The search was continued in the vicinity, but no trace of any other survivors of the wreck could be discovered. In the dim light of the early morning the surface of the ocean nearby could not well be made out, but within the radius of vision there were no other vessels to be seen.

The William Jones, which was bound from Stockton Springs, Maine, for New York, with a cargo of lumber, made a quick trip down and reached New York today when the rescued Filipinos were taken to an interpreter it soon developed that they were members of the crew of the barkentine John S. Bennett. They were later recognized as forming part of the Bennett's crew by the shipping master, who shipped them from this port.

The Filipinos told the interpreter that the vessel which was in collision with the Bennett was a four masted schooner. She had sunk, they said, soon after the vessels collided.

WASHES UP WRECKAGE

Block Island, R. I., Nov. 9.—Although the sea today washed upon both shores of Block Island some evidences of a disaster to the schooner Merrill C. Hart, in the shape of wreckage bearing that name it had given up none of its eleven dead tonight. As far as it was possible to distinguish here, all the wreckage was that of the schooners. There were no signs of the British barkentine John S. Bennett which was in collision with the Hart, as reported from New York. The schooner which has been in regular service between Maine and other coastwise ports, for 43 years, clearly suffered most of her encounter, her parts coming ashore in fragments.

The schooner Merrill C. Hart, which was bound from Thomaston, Maine, for New York with a cargo of stone, carried a crew of five men, including Capt. Chas. C. Boyles of Tennant's Harbor, Maine.

The other four members of the crew were Chas. Ramill, Swan's Island, Maine, cook; Alfred A. Braum, Adolph Anderson and Alfred Tor, seamen. The two former were Swedes, and the latter a native of Finland.

The Schooner Merrill C. Hart was built in Bristol Me., in 1886, and sailed from Thomaston Maine. She registered 182 net tonnage, was 91.9 feet long, 26.7 in breadth, and 12 feet in depth. Her owners are Pann and Elliott, of Thomaston.

The barkentine John S. Bennett was a comparatively new vessel. She was built and owned in Liverpool, N. S., her owners being L. W. Hendry. Of wooden construction, she was sheathed with copper. The John S. Bennett registered 299 tons, net.

The Pulp Industry of St. George

Both the pulp and wood mills are built of brick and steel and are strong substantial buildings. The mills are lighted throughout by electricity generated on the premises.

This industry gives employment to a large number of men, from the time the logs are cut in the winter and hauled to the streams and from there in the spring driven to the mill, where it is manufactured into pulp and then carried by ship to their paper mills in the United States.

The product of the mills is mechanical pulp and the process of making it from the raw material is quite interesting.

First the logs are taken into the wood mill by an endless chain and sawed into blocks of about 2 ft. in length, which are then taken to a machine and the bark taken off. The blocks are then conveyed by a water slide-way to the pulp mill about one hundred yards distant. They are there put on racks and hoisted by friction gear and taken to the grinders, which are large revolving stones against which the blocks are held by a heavy pressure and are ground into pulp. This ground pulp by other processes is taken to the wet machines, where it is rolled into sheets, which are cut off, folded, placed on a belt and taken to the hydraulic presses and about 50 per cent. of the water taken out of them. From the presses they are taken to the weighing machines where they are weighed and tied into bales of about 100 lbs. each. They are then ready for shipment.

The Wreck of the Hestia

There has been considerable discussion through the columns of the press of the loss of the steamer Hestia on the Old Proprietor Ledge and with your kind permission would like to say a word about the matter.

In the first place no stranger or Captain not acquainted should ever attempt to come the South channel and there is no reason why he should do so as there are good soundings on the North channel. During my 50 years of piloting vessels around the Bay of Fundy, I have known 10 cases of accidents similar to that of the Hestia and in judgement any of these accidents could have been avoided had they come the North channel as they should have done as there has never been a loss of a vessel up the North channel. Thanking you for your valuable space.

I am Sir Very truly yours Joseph Boyd Pilot.

The 25th Anniversary of Red Granite Division No. 270

An Interesting Program Carried Out

The 25th anniversary of Red Granite Division 270 Sons of Temperance was celebrated in O'Brien & Gillmor's hall on Wednesday, Nov. 10.

This Division was organized Nov. 6, 1884, with a charter membership of 47. Eighteen of these are now living in other lands. Fifteen are still residing in St. George and fourteen have gone the way of all living having completed their work here. But three of those who assisted in its organization are now active members of the Division. An invitation was extended to all charter members to be present at the anniversary meeting, quite a number responded. One pleasing feature of the meeting was the initiation of six candidates.

The following programme was successfully carried out. Speech, H. V. Dewar. Recitation, An inventors wife, Blanche McKay. Duett, In the shadow of the pines, Ida Spear, Laura Brown. Address of welcome, Worthy Patriarch, Stewart McAdam.

Speech, Fred Gillmor Second Falls Division. Remarks, William Seelye. Intermission. Speech, Mr. Lord. Reading, Difficult Love Letters, Mabel Messerdt. Remarks, E. D. Harvey.

Song, When the Sunset turns the Oceans blue to gold, S. McAdam. During intermission sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by a committee appointed for that purpose under the supervision of Mrs. Abram Cross.

Red Granite has twice suspended work during the 25 years, first in September, 1899, but was reorganized again in 1899, but only lasted a few months and in October 1900 it again gave up active work and remained dormant until November, 4, 1908 when with the assistance of G. W. P. Hennigar and G. W. A. Sullivan it was again reorganized with a membership of 86 which has since been increased to 164 the largest Division in New Brunswick. The anniversary exercises were much enjoyed and it is to be hoped that the society will continue to do the good work which it has now in hand.

The Debating Club met in Cont's hall Monday evening and enjoyed a banquet, as guests of Dr. C. C. Alexander and Mr. H. R. Lawrence, two of the clubs prominent members. President Lawrence presided and in a pithy speech announced the opening of the campaign. The evening was pleasantly passed and the elaborate preparations made to entertain the members of the club, testified the great interest taken by the two members in having such an auspicious opening. Good feeling, good speeches good music and a royal good time was the unanimous verdict of everyone present. At a business meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:--

H. R. Lawrence, President. Edward McGrattan Vice President. A. C. Toy Secretary Treasurer.

Messrs. A. C. Gillmor, Timothy O'Brien Jr., Dr. E. M. Wilson, P. H. Gillmor and G. S. Lord were enrolled as new members. The subject chosen for discussion next meeting was, resolved-- That Manual training and domestic science, taught in St. George schools, would be beneficial. Dr. Taylor leads the forces on the affirmative, and Dr. Alexander the negative. The club will meet once a week--Monday evenings.

CLEAR THE FILTERS!

Your Health Depends On It.

In its course around the body the blood is constantly filtering up waste matter—waste matter that is not needed for the body's use. This waste matter flows through the kidneys, which should filter out all the poisonous material and empty it into the bladder. But sometimes the kidneys get clogged. If an individual with waste matter, and fail to do their work properly, then the blood begins instead of leaving the kidneys pure and life-giving, the waste matter is loaded with it. This waste matter carries to every part of the body. Settling in joints and tissues, this waste matter very soon causes rheumatism, with its terrible suffering.

The natural, sensible course then is to clear the filters and purify the blood.

"Dr. Cook authorized me to stop the diary on September 12, 1906, the day when he was supposed to have reached the summit. He had not then ascended more than 9,000 ft. and did not attempt any further climbing. On September 13 we turned back and reached the foot of the glacier the next day. Cook then directed me to change the entries in the diary from September 9 to September 12 inclusive.

"The entries from September 12 to 16 were written at the first camp on the way back on the night of the 16th, and those from September 16 to 18 at the last camp. The entries from September 16 down to the end—November 9—were mine. The place where Dr. Cook directed me to stop the diary was at or near the point where he claims to have reached the summit. He said that the same conditions existed there as on the top of the mountain.

"A good top?"

"To the best of my recollection, Dr. Cook said, 'We will back down and get a picture of this.' We both went back to where the bugs had been left, and Dr. Cook took an American flag out of one of the bags and, handing it to me, sent me back to hold the flag on the end of an ice-axe. He then took a photograph of the scene, and the picture is shown facing page 27 of his book. The top of the Continent," under the title, 'The Summit of Mount McKinley.'

"When I came down from that point I do not recall Mr. Cook's remarks, but after that the diary was altered to fit the conditions in order to prove that this point was the top. Dr. Cook said to me, 'That point would make a good top of Mount McKinley. It is just about like the Gungit Peak, a peak which we could see from the saddle on which we stood. About half an hour after the picture had been taken we started down towards the sixth camp.

"Dr. Cook said he wanted to go round and get a good view of the ridge towards the summit and ascertain if it connected with the mountain top. He afterwards said he had done this so that it would appear similar to the descriptions in his writings. He added that he had seen all sides except this, and as this was the side he proposed to claim if he climbed he wished to know if the ridge led up and would verify his story. We were three days here, Dr. Cook taking observations on the ridge. I was with him continuously during these attempts, and the nearest point reached was at least fourteen miles from the top.

"Dr. Cook told me when the pictures were taken we were not more than 8,000 ft. high. The photograph opposite page 171 of 'The Top of the Continent,' and entitled, 'Eastern Cliffs, Mount McKinley, is not a picture of any such cliffs, but a picture of the eastern slope of the Eighth Peak, which was shown in the diary and attached to it.

"The photographs on page 192 were taken on the evening of the day on which the flag picture was taken. On this picture it is stated that the altitude was 8,000 ft. It is in fact the point where the flag picture was taken 8,000 ft. or more, as the 6,000 ft. camp was established from six to eight hours after the flag picture was taken. The drawings on page 204 are equally false. We did not build any snow house on the trip, although the 'flag' says so, nor did we shake hands or go through other similar ceremonies as stated.

"Page 206 of Dr. Cook's book is false. We did not climb and scud only half as steep as there shown. We did not establish a camp or sleep as shown there, but slept on level spots. The picture on page 228, 'In the Silent Gorge of the Snow Wonder, etc.' was taken from two to three hours before the flag picture, one mile to the northeast. On September 9 Dr. Cook asked me if I was willing to stay with him. I answered 'Yes,' and he replied, 'I will see you get $300 extra.

Mr. Lloyd George Interrupted

It was afternoon, a day or two ago. There was a little quiet stir in the lobby and about the door and by the Bar of the British Commons. The Sergeant-at-Arms, sword-girt, reached for his white gloves, and slowly put them on. An official at the swinging doors flinched about. On his hands unworked white gloves, on his face a look of something is going to happen. An opening and closing of doors, very quietly. Something was in the air.

A super dignity sufficed officials, M. P.'s glanced up at the clock and out through the doors. A distinguished member was addressing the House. He was arguing a point in favor of one of the countless details of the Budget. Argument on argument, quiet, gentle explanation across the table.

He stood, a slim, spare figure, dark-haired and bright eyed and small featured, by the big end of the Mace. Suddenly there was a rumble of sound out of sight in the distance. Then the glass doors were flung back, and a stiff-built messenger came in, gazed at the Speaker, drew himself to attention, and shouted in long solemn tones, "Black Rod!" The arguer and explainer was still arguing and explaining. Then in came Black Rod, a delightful admiral in the British Navy, in black official garb, holding his black rod perfectly horizontal close to his right shoulder, bowing three times, and gently commanding the House of Commons to come up to the House of Lords and hear the Lords Commissioners signify the royal assent to various bills passed by the wretched Peers, although sent to them by the Commons.

The slim man by the Mace had to break off his speech in the middle when the commander came from the House of Lords. He smiled, ceased speaking, dropped back obediently into his seat on the Treasury bench. The wretched Peers had cut into the speech of Mr. David Lloyd George.

All the M. P.'s rose in silence and stood reverently in their places while Mr. Speaker, his long robe over his arm, his full-bottomed wig splaying about his shoulders, the great Mace borne by his side on the shoulder of the Sergeant-at-Arms, passed down the floor of the House and out along the road to the House of Lords. Then the Minister whose speech had been cut in twain fell in behind, and M. P.'s trooped pell-mell behind him. Thus was the House of Commons led reverently and peaceably to the House of Lords—by the demagogue of Limehouse.

Mr. Asquith's Robust Health "Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

(By Charles T. King.)
 There is a man in the British House of Commons who is in robust health—almost rude health, envious people might say. He has been conserving his energies by keeping good hours and not spending too much time in the health-sapping, nerve-straining atmosphere of the House of Commons. At eleven o'clock at night—on the infrequent occasions when he is there—he looks as crisp as warm-blooded, as happy, as strong, as physically and mentally vigorous and unblemished as any man in England. I look upon the health of this particular M. P. as one of the most important of all the mixed and tangled factors in the present strange political situation.

He is a man of splendid physical health, of fine temperament, and his brain is as strong as wrought iron. As to his party bias, his political views I say at this moment nothing. But I believe his health and the fact of this thumping, crushing, mental precision and the pleasure he gets out of life are matters of more importance to the British people than most of the British people are aware.

The man is Mr. Asquith. For this almost ideal presentation of mental and physical strength shown in the personality of the present Prime Minister is proof that even when the Liberals come in again deeds of great daring and almost unthinkable political art must be performed before either Mr. Winston Churchill or Mr. Lloyd George can become Prime Minister or head of the Liberal party.

Thus it means that something beyond the long period of exile from power promised by a reversal of the election verdict of 1906 must elapse before even such a politically-intoxicated and misled electorate as that can come under the unchecked tender mercies of either of these two fascinating politicians.

That, I think, is one of the outstanding features of the present week, the present time.

THIN AS A RAIL ARE YOU?

Every day spending as much energy as you make—if the balance goes a little further, well, you get thinner. On the danger line to-day, to-morrow may be too late? Better use Ferronine, it builds up—a little gain the first week, but the gain keeps growing. Next week, not quite so thin. Keep right on lots of fat doesn't hurt at all. Your blood is enriched, cheeks grow rosy, your heart and grow strong and you don't tire easily. Joyous robust health, a cheery and cheerful mind—all with Ferronine. You'll try it at all dealers.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the open statement of declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best known families for twenty miles around Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers, were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it is all that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they may get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferronine at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well to-day—have been well for four and a half years.

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatic, neuralgia or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only: large, 25c. or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Cattarhozone Co. Kingston Ont.

Pays for itself in fuel saved

Don't allow a few extra dollars to prevent you from taking the perfect-cooking, sure-baking, easily-regulated Pandora in place of a cheaper stove. In a season or two Pandora will pay the difference in the fuel it will save—and it will keep on saving until it has paid for itself.

Pandora special fine construction makes fuel do double duty. Wide fire box is another fuel-economizer. The steel oven heats quicker than a cast oven, thus saving still more fuel. Further economizing features will be explained by the McClary Agent.

His Own Grandfather

It is seldom that a man claims to be his own grandfather. However, that is the position of an Italian sailor who some years ago married a widow with one child, girl. His father fell in love with the girl and married her. Consequently his own father became his son-in-law, and his step-daughter his mother. In a short time his wife gave birth to a son, who naturally, was his father's step brother and at the same time, his own uncle, since he was his step-son's brother. In due time his father's wife also gave birth to a boy, who was his brother and also his grand-son, as he was the son of his daughter. His own wife was now his grandmother, as she was the mother of his mother. Thus he was at one and the same time, his wife's husband and grandson. Now, as the husband of a person's grandmother is naturally that person's grandfather, he is forced to the conclusion that he is his own grandfather.

Memories of C. H. Spurgeon

The jubilee of the laying of the foundation-stones of the famous Metropolitan Tabernacle has recently been celebrated.
 Mr. Wm. Godbold, an elder of the Church, has given some memories of the great preacher of his days.
 "No one ever made an appeal to him in vain," he said, "Twenty-five years ago the church held a sale of work towards a presentation for him, and 7,000 pounds was realized. This was presented him, on condition that he spent it all himself. He invested the bulk of it in railway securities, etc., to give the occupants of his almshouses seven shillings a week each. There were collections only about three times a year in those days—but there were boxes for voluntary gifts, and Spurgeon always reckoned on getting the date of any year in pounds sterling.
 "Spurgeon was never above telling a man what he thought of him. Once at a valedictory gathering to some missionaries, one young Scotsman, with a university training, gave his address in a large, flowing style, quite different to the homely style of the others.
 "When he had finished, Mr. Spurgeon said, 'Goodbye. I hope the blacks will understand you, for we are a very beautiful world; and also that there is a silver lining to every cloud; if we only look for it.'
 "I do not know what the secret of his eloquence was," added Mr. Godbold, "unless it was that he always felt the burden of his message. He was always most nervous on going into the pulpit. I have known him to be actually sick before going up. He talked his sermons as from man to man in a rich, mellow voice that filled the building. At first it was said that he would never fill his new chapel, but there were often 2,000 left outside. One had to wait years to get a paid sitting. My father had a sitting in the gallery, and it took me two years to get one next to him. Men of all conditions came to hear Spurgeon, and many a time have I seen Gladstone listening to him.

The Religion of Laughter

There is one religion which is shared by all people of the earth, and that is the religion of laughter. No matter to what quarter of the globe one turns, the person who goes through life with a smile and a laugh, is the happy and a popular person; and the truth of the Shakespeare's famous adage.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you,

is again and again exemplified.

There is a story of two young men who, brought up in the lap of luxury, suddenly found themselves through no fault of their own, penniless. One of them stormed and raged at the unkindness of fortune—he is still doing so! The other laughed and went out to find some work—a millionaire to-day!

It is said that nothing succeeds like work, but laughter comes a very good second; and therefore it is our duty to make it part of our religion to laugh away care and trouble whenever possible.

It is a well-known fact that very young children are to start crying if they see an older person doing so, and as "the child is father of the man," so is really the attitude of the whole world.

If we show a bit of sadness, others will be very quick to cry with us; but if we treat trouble lightly, everyone will join in our laughter and help us along. And we shall help them along, too.

Then there is the person who forever carries grief with him wherever he goes. For a time his friends will stand it, and say kindly, sympathetic things; but very soon it wears and with a university training, gave his address in a large, flowing style, quite different to the homely style of the others.

Learn to laugh in the face of all troubles, and remember that whatever may be our own private cares this is a very beautiful world; and also that there is a silver lining to every cloud; if we only look for it.

"So dry those tears and calm those fears, and there will be sunshine to-morrow."

I have known him to be actually sick before going up. He talked his sermons as from man to man in a rich, mellow voice that filled the building.

MANNING CANADA'S NAVY

(The New York Sun.)

Now that Canada is talking of some sort of fleet of her own, the question of manning it has come up for discussion. The large number of fine sailor folk in the Maritime Provinces might seem to present an obvious and satisfactory answer to it, but according to an article in the London Standard, written by a Canadian, Mr. H. M. Mosdell, of Toronto the Dominion may have to go outside of her own borders for the necessary supply. He argues that the fishermen of the Maritime Provinces are too prosperous, comfortable and independent to submit themselves readily to the wages and discipline of a man-of-war, or at all events of a British man-of-war; for he thinks that their contiguity to this country is a further obstacle in the way of drawing upon them. If they did go in for naval training at Halifax or some other Atlantic port "it would be more likely," he says, "to benefit the United States fleet than that of Great Britain," and as a reason for this opinion he pays the following compliment: "Life on board the ship flying the Stars and Stripes has at any rate the reputation of being far more enjoyable and of being better paid withal than that led by the men who serve under the Union Jack."

With the "difficult problem," as he describes it, facing Canada, Mr. Mosdell calls attention to the 40,000 able bodied seamen, whose seagoing experience ranges from ten to forty years, inhabiting the shores of Newfoundland. The Newfoundlanders, he points out is none too comfortable at home. "Conditions there are in direct contrast to those existing in the Maritime Provinces of Canada. Life during the winter months is dull and irksome and especially dull on the younger folk, nor is their work conspicuously remunerative." Best of all, according to Mr. Mosdell, they are too remote from the United States to feel the overpowering attractions of our ships. He concludes that it should be quite feasible to obtain from Newfoundland "more than 20,000 well trained, efficient seamen," whose "drifting to any other feet" need not be feared, and that on this source the "Canadian fleet" should chiefly rely for its crews.

Newfoundland is undoubtedly the home of as fine a breed of sailor folk as can be found anywhere; so fine indeed that we can almost imagine ourselves regretting the information that they are too distant from this country to feel the lure of our mess table and payroll. The men of the Maritime Provinces are no less desirable, and when Mr. Mosdell, denuding his native shores, presents them to us, as it were, so far as they may be available for naval purposes, we scarcely know how to make suitable acknowledgment. The gift will probably not be pressed, however; the majority of Canadians, we suppose, will reject both the reality of Mr. Mosdell's "difficult problem" and his solution of it, though some of them may perhaps hold that before they have enough ships to raise the question of naval recruits in any urgent form Newfoundland will have ceased to be outside of the Dominion.

BY THE WAY

The rink!

Get those skates ready, Bub.

The freak legislator will soon get busy.

Part of the road to St. Andrews is still on the map.

Our sharp scented detectives can run them down, when once on the trail.

What about that axe factory? The alderman went up to St. Stephen, and they came back again. That's all, up to date.

Robberies, murders, cheating, stealings and accidents are chief news items of the day. How seldom we read of a good deed.

Both parties are sweeping everything before them in the bye elections. Any hole is big enough that will take you out of a corner.

Hon. Mr. Graham will have public support in his effort to introduce economies in the management of the Intercolonial Railway. It must be made clear that the Intercolonial is not a charitable institution run for the benefit of those who can get jobs on it.

But the old man—he has not grown away from the youngsters, because what they possess now, he too possessed once, and his memory is good. If youth but understood old age, as old age understands youth. There's the pity of it. The old man is alone. Youth is heedless and therefore forgetful of old age. The old man is hungry for a word, or a hand-clasp, and the reward would be worth the seeking of any young man.—Toronto Sunday World.

THE QUESTIONER

I called the boy to my knee one day,
And I said: "You're just past four;
Will you laugh in that same light-hearted way
When you're turned, say thirty more?"
Then I thought of a past I'd faint erase—
More clouded skies than blue—
And I anxiously peered in his upturned face
"Did you?"

I touched my lips to his tiny own
And I said to the boy: "Heigh, ho!
Those lips are as sweet as the hay, new-mown;
Will you keep them always so?"
Then back from those years came a rickety song—
With a ribald jest or two—
And I gazed at the child who knew no wrong,
And I thought he asked:
"Did you?"

I looked in his eyes, big, brown, and clear,
And I cried: "Oh, boy of mine!"
Will you keep them true in the after-year?
Will you leave no heart to pine?"
Then out of the past came another's eyes—
Sad eyes of tear-dimmed blue—
Did he know they were not his mother's eyes—
For he answered me:
"Did you?"

Hon. F. J. Sweeney has been made a King's Counsel. The Hon. Mr. Sweeney held for several months in 1904 and 1905 the office of Solicitor General for this province and under the provincial law he is entitled for the rank for life. The necessary recommendation having been made, he was so appointed recently by order of Lieutenant Governor-in-Council.

She did not have the sum when arraigned, and was locked up for a short time.

The supper held by the ladies of the Baptist Church Tuesday evening was a successful function. A large number attended and enjoyed the excellent supper provided. The service was all that could be desired, no confusion whatever the crowd being well looked after by an excellent corps of waiters. Quite a substantial sum was realized for church purposes.

Mr. Baldwin has given the School Board notice that it is his intention to terminate his contract with them at the close of the present term which ends on the seventeenth Dec. Parents and pupils alike regret this decision on the part of Mr. Baldwin. With the beginning of the next term the teachers will have one of the best school buildings in the province to commence work in. --Woodstock Despatch.

About 1,600 barrels of sardine herring were brought to this city from Portland by Tuesday's steamer Governor Cobb, the same distributed among the various factories, chiefly those of the Seacoast Canning Co. It was reported the first of the week that herring in large schools are returning this way, evidently to old haunts, but they will have to "hurry swim," if they are to get for factory use this season, as the factory closing being two weeks away. --Sentinel.

John Doyle, Wm. Waycott and Vess Southard have been enjoying a few days hunting. They were successful in shooting a deer, and a lot of small game.

The treaty between Canada and United States for the regulation of fishing in international waters will not go into effect until after the next session of congress. It could be given immediate effect as far as Canada is concerned, but the federal authorities of the United States require legislation to make it effective as the control of some point: now rests with boundary states.

Chief Superintendent Carter and F. B. Kidner met the school board Thursday and talked over the possibility of establishing manual training and domestic science departments in connection with the schools. Both gentlemen spoke on the advantage to be derived from science schools. The members of the board were divided in their opinions concerning the matter, and no definite action was taken. The subject will probably be discussed again at a full meeting of the board.

A large number of representative citizens met in the town hall Tuesday evening and organized the St. George Skating Club Association. The officers are: H. R. Lawrence Pres., Edward O'Neill Vice Pres., G. S. Lord Secty.-Treas., T. R. Kent, Mayor McGee, George McCallum and George E. Frauley executive committee. Membership fee was made $1.00. It is understood that work will commence on the new rink at once.

Late yesterday afternoon, Nevin Dewar who has been making his home in Calais and recently became mentally unbalanced made his way to this side of the river and to the Stevens pasture at the upper end of the town, where he swallowed the contents of a bottle of Paris Green. His erratic actions had been witnessed by Mrs. James Marzaty, who telephoned to her husband's store, and Marshal Cotter and Dr. Lawson were soon on their way towards the pasture. The unfortunate man was taken to the lockup, where Dr. Lawson worked over him for some time, and later he was removed to the Chipman Memorial hospital where, at time of writing, his chances for life or death are considered about equal. --Courier. Mr. Dewar died in the hospital Thursday morning.

At the Church of England Synod at Fredericton, Bishop Richardson took a strong stand on the temperance question. In the course of his speech he said:

Look around and you will find family after family, life after life and home after home that has been blasted by this hydra headed curse. It is with a sense of shame that I remind you that this church is doing nothing to put itself on record as being opposed to it. He was not prepared to say that the time was ripe for prohibition though that was the ideal for which they should look forward. Prohibition to be carried out must have behind it the force of public opinion. In regard to unlimited local option, he thought it worked well in rural communities but not in cities. At the present time there was not sufficient public opinion behind the Scott Act to secure its adequate enforcement. He thought the synod should declare itself against the bar and should express the opinion that if liquor must be sold it should be only in sealed packages. If liquor was to be sold by licenses then the cost of such license must be much higher. He hoped the synod would condemn public drinking and advocate total abstinence.

The Enterprise Monarch Steel Range burns coal or wood. Fitted with every modern convenience. Made from the best materials by the most expert workmen. Guaranteed perfect in Fit, Finish and Operation. Its Appearance Speaks for Itself. Awarded First Prize at the Toronto Exhibition.

The Many Uses of a Good Sewing Machine

There is practically no limit to the variety of work that can be done with a Singer Sewing Machine. Whether for the finest embroidery, the plainest home sewing or the most elaborate tailoring, the Singer is equally efficient.

Every woman takes pride in having these things, but if they be her own handiwork, the satisfaction is complete, because her own personality is reflected in every garment.

The woman who uses a Singer may have everything in needlework she can desire--she is better dressed at much less cost; her children are clothed according to her own taste and ideas; she has attractive table linen, and an unending supply of dainty underwear.

Moreover, she is free from the worry and delay which always comes with the use of a "cheap" machine.

How to Get a Prize:

We want new subscribers and will allow one hundred votes on every new subscription. Renewals will count fifty votes on every dollar.

Send us the money and name of one for whom you wish to vote and credit will be given. You can get subscriptions anywhere. Write to your friends and ask them to help you.

Get your friends who belong to organizations to help you.

Destroys Hair Germs

Recent discoveries have shown that falling hair is caused by germs at the roots of the hair. Therefore, to stop falling hair, you must first completely destroy these germs. Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will certainly do this. Then leave the rest to nature.

Formula with each bottle shows in 10 days how it should be used.

Recent discoveries have also proved that dandruff is caused by germs on the scalp. Therefore, to cure dandruff, the first thing to do is to completely destroy these dandruff germs. Here, the same Ayer's Hair Vigor will give the same splendid results.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the stomach for stimulating the Heart and Kidneys is surely wrong. Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs" said he. Each inside organ has its controlling "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days rest will surely tell! Sold by All Dealers.
