THE 'EMIGRANT LASSIE. BY JOHN STUART BLACKIE. [The following lines contain the simple un-adorned statement or a fact in the experience of a friend, who is fond of wandering in the High-land g ens.] As I came wandering down Glen Spean,
Where the brace are green and grassy,
With my light step I overtook?
A weary-footed lassic.

She had one bundle on her back, Another in her h no. And she walked as if she was full loth, To travel from the land. Quoth I, "My bonnie lass,"—for she Had hair of flowing gold. And dark brown eyes, and dainty limbs, Kight pleasant to behold— "My bonnie lass, what alleth thee, On this bright summer day, To travel sad and shoeless thus Ujion the stony way?

I'm fresh and strong, and stoutly shod, And thou art burdened so; March lightly now, and let me bear The bundles as we go." "No, no!" she said. "that may not be, What's mine is uine to bear, Of good or ill, as God may will, I take my portioned share." "Eut you have two and I have none, One burden give to me; I'll take that bundle from thy back, That heavier seems to be."

"No, no!" she said; this, if you will That holds—no hand but mine May bear its weight from dear Glen Spean 'Cross the Atlancie brine!" "Well, well! but tell me what may be Within that precious load Which thou doet bear with such fine care Along the dust and road? Belike it is some present rare From friend in parting hour; Perhaps as prudent maidens wont, Thou takest with thee thy dower."

She drooped her head, and with her hand She gave a gentle wave; th do not iest, dear sir 1-it is Turf from my mother's grave!" I spoke no word: we sat and wept
Ey the road-side together;
No purer dew on that bright day
Was dropt upon the heather.

Good Words.

In the public schools of Erie, Penn., books appear to be read chiefly as furnishing elementary rules by which the pupil may be guided in the methods of acquiring instruction. In arithmetic the scholar is, for instance, told to make out a bill of a given number of items. Another order may call for the drawing of a note upon it; its partial payment, interest, discounts, &c., so that there is no learning by rote, and ere a scholar can enter even the High School, he or she in most cases is able to make such computations as are ordinarily required of a bank clerk. "Business forms and business habits" is one of the tenets of arithmetical is su tion there.

The endeavor to introduce technical studies in the comme studies in the common schools is criticised severely by The Toledo Blade. It holds that phonography, telegraphy, etc., to be acquired thoroughly, should be taught in technical schools after the completion of the common school education, or at least after sufficient attainments have been therein acquired to fit the student for the business pursuits of life. The Blade adds: "Sufficient time cannot be spared in our common schools to render the pursuit of technical education profitable, and by its introduction before the pupil has acquired proficiency in all the elementary studies, general inefficiency would be the result, and effect much more harm than good."

After a desperate fight within the Restudies in the common schools is criti-tection to himself and the public, "For," says he, "it's a terrible thing that a fellow like me should be going about."

It was resolved to petition the Government with a view to introduce a measure during the next session of Parliament to provide for the summary settlement of commercial disputes and differences.

A motion was also carried to the effect that the Trade of the Dominion is obstructed under the several municipal and city corporation acts now in force, and asking the Government to take some action in the matter.

"Maud Muller, on a summer's day.
Raked the meadows seet with hay:"
One of those lovely New England landscapes, which the engraver has represented in outlines as beautirul and artistic as the song it adorns.
Conspicuous, also, for its rare beauty, is the illustration accompanying the "Song of the Brook," where the streamlet, dashing beneath the rustic bridge, goes chattering city life, with its glittering shams, and he went South, where he got a situation on a country newspaper. The village being rather dull, he had only seven or eight items when the week was about to close, and one or two of these were puffs of turnips which had been left at the office. They were, however, well wriften, he thought, and he handed them to the editor. As each of the turnip paragraphs came under the editorial eye a smile of approval lit up the editorial ORESS MATERIALS Instructive, ? "Till last hy Philip's farm it flows.

For this purpose, the Legislature of the State of New York has granted a charter to a number of dar most wealthy and respectable merchants, and those gentlemen have purchased no less than eight blocks of the most valuable land in the city of New York. The building to be erected will be seven stories high (150 feet in height) surmounted by a magnificent dome, and will cover a space of 22 cases. It will be constructed of iron, brick and glass, and made fire-proof The bonds which are all for 20 each, are secured by a first mostgage on the land and building, and for the parspose of making them popular, the directors have decided to have quarterly drawings of $150,000 each; this money being the interest on the amount of the whole loan.

Every bondholder must receive at least $21.00, but he may receive "Who led out the Israelites?" Overcoatings J. CHALONER, Cor King and Germain stree "Moses," was the prompt reply.

"And where did he lead them?"

"To the Promised Land, sir."

That's right, my little dears. Now what did that land flow with?"

"With honey," said three or four.

"And what else?" Tweeds, Doeskins, Tailors' Trimming W. A. SPENCE. Flannels, Blankets, Shawls, Produce Commission Merchant. DRESS GOODS, PRINTS, "And what else?"

Here was a stick—no reply.

"Come, children, some of you surely remember. When you were babies, what did your mammas give to you? What else did the Promised Land flow with besides honey?"

Again a blank pause.

"I know, thir," said a little five-year old, springing to his feet and elevating his little hand. "I know what it wath, thir, I know, thir."

"What was it, my dear?"

"Why, it wath "titty." thir!"
