THE LOSS OF THE HUAFU.

It is now 20 years since the marine tragedy at Valparaiso, a port in Chile, and the mystery surrounding the affair is not much clearer than it was the day after it occurred. At midnight one dark and rainy night a Spanish man-of-war named the Huafu and carrying a crew of 400 men entered the bay at slow speed, intending to anchor within half a mile of the wharves. Of a sudden she was lifted out of the water and floated over on her beam ends, and nothing was left to scrape along her whole side and keel. There was instant alarm throughout the whole ship, but before a single man of the watch below could reach the deck the Huafu turned turtle and went down in 60 feet of water. The suction carried down all who were on deck, and of that whole crew only 14 men escaped with their lives and among them was not one single officer. They were all agreed that the bows of the ship were suddenly lifted to an angle of 45 degrees and that after a few seconds she was twisted to port, and they heard the snapping and crashing of wood and iron.

It was at first believed that the Huafu had struck and run up on a submerged wreck, but after a vain search for such an obstruction the idea was abandoned. Had no one been left alive it would have been set down to a boiler explosion of any sort and that the propeller was still revolving as she settled down. As the unfortunate craft had cost about $3,000,000 and this was the first trip, the Spanish government went in for the most thorough investigation. The depth of water was not beyond the divers, and a buoy was set to mark the spot as near as might be until men could go down. It was two weeks later before the divers were ready, and then a second mystery was at hand. The Huafu was not to be found under or in the neighborhood of the buoy. For the first time in the history of the port it was learned that there was a stiff current running along the bottom of the bay, coming from the north and going clear around it to sweep out to sea on the south side. The surface of the bay was only disturbed by the wind and tide, and even as far down as 40 feet no current could be felt, but the last 10 feet of water before touching bottom had the rush of a mill race. When this fact was made clear to the searchers, they extended the field of their operations. The current ran strongest as the tide flowed in and directly in opposition. The Huafu had come in on almost full tide, and the current would therefore drift her along the north shore was searched without finding any trace of her. Then a search of the south shore followed, and then they hoped to find the sunken craft in some eddy near the center. It was five months before the divers declared that the bottom was clear of wreck of any sort.

Now came the question of what had become of the man-of-war. It did not seem possible that such a mass of wood and iron, with the weight of her guns and stores and unfortunate crew added, could be drifted any distance along the bottom, especially as the bottom was plentifully sprinkled with great rocks. There was no other way to account for her disappearance however. The current bumped her along the bottom for a distant of three miles and had then taken her out to sea. Just off the entrance of the port the water deepens to 200 feet, and it was concluded that she had been carried into this basin to be buried under the ooze. The commission of inquiry closed its labors much more satisfied at the finish than at the start, and it was not believed that anything further would ever be heard of the craft.

Nothing ever has been directly said many things have come to light to still further tangle the mystery surrounding her. A year and a half later and as far to the south as the mouth of the gulf of Concepcion one of her boats was found floating. Its rigging had rotted from the davits and tread it. This did not prove the position of the lost Huafu, but it satisfied many minds that she must be drifting southward. Three months later some of her box stores drifted ashore on the islands, 400 miles to the south, and six weeks after this find and still to the south some of her cabin furniture was picked up by a whaler. This fact was without barnacles, proving that it had not long been afloat. It was concluded from this that Huafu was still creeping along the bottom, the plaything of the current, and the last find made almost settled the question. A second boat and more wreckage were washed ashore almost as far down as Cape Horn, and in the bottom of the boat were six tubes or liquid mud. This must have accumulated as she floated or crept along the bottom of the sea, and the chances are that the boat did not drift above 20 miles after rising to the surface.

As to the accident in the bay, it is generally believed that the vessel struck a large whale which had entered out of curiosity and that in his panic and fright the giant fish had hoisted her up and then flung her on her side, but as no whale had ever been seen in the bay there is room for doubt. Wreck of whale or what ever it may have been, it was the cause of one of the gloomiest tragedies of the sea, and no one can imagine that ill fated craft slowly creeping down around the Gallofaken point of land which men call Cape Horn without a sigh of pity for the skeleton crew that mans its iron decks.

Capricious Indian Maiden.

Richest and Most Coquettish Kiowa Belle at Last Becomes a warrior's Bride.

When the new moon appeared in the western sky the other evening, it was the signal of great rejoicing in every Kiowa village in the Indian Territory, for it announced the beginning of a wedding festival that lasted three days and three nights.

This was an affair of tribal importance, and the whole nation has been preparing for it for several months. For two or three years Wild Buffalo has pursued the pretty Indian girl and sought to make her his wife. He has had many rivals, and during the days of his long courtship there have been periods when his hopes were clouded and it looked as if some other brave enjoyed the smiles of Lorlene. There never lived a more capricious coquette than this pretty, spoiled maiden whom the Kiowas call Lorlene. The story of Lorlene's career as an heiress and a bell would make a volume which nine tenths of the world would regard as the veriest fiction. The girl's father was one of the re-wilded Indians that ever lived. His tribal name was Silver Hand, and he was so called because he always had plenty of money.

During the great autumnal hunt of the Kiowas last year the young braves of the tribe were made to undertake that the Queen of Pearls intended to accompany the expedition for the purpose of selecting a husband from among the youths who displayed the greatest courage and endurance in the chase. Old warriors say that they never before witnessed a more successful hunt. The suitors secured the honors in every direction, and at night they piled a wonderful collection of trophies at the feet of Lorlene.

It is highly probable that the young girl during this camp hunt first discovered that she was better pleased with the attentions of Wild Buffalo than others who sought her hand, but she kept him in ignorance of her sentiments for a long time. Her relatives held a family council and to-re-ter began preparations for a great wedding feast. The festivities will commence with the rising of the sun and last for three days and nights. Wild Buffalo, wearing all the gay trappings of a Kiowa chief, will be upon a gayly caparisoned horse, will dash into the village, followed by a dozen or more young braves, friends of the bridegroom. Crowds of young men and girls will greet them with shouts of derision. There will be much clapping of hands and a great deal of laughter. Those who understand the Kiowa tongue will soon learn that the gayly draped and rather licentious girls are making sport of the tardy bridegroom. They will tell him that while he slept a fortunate rival came and carried the beautiful Lorlene away on a white horse. Wild Buffalo will affect great grief and distress. While the young men are wailing and breathing threats, the girls will laugh at them and call them "lazy lovers". An old woman whispers a word into the ears of the sorrowing lover and points toward the forest. Uttering shouts of the wildest joy, the young warriors set out in pursuit of the stolen maiden.

After some hours have passed Wild Buffalo will appear at a full gallop bearing his sweetheart in his arms. Followed by a long cavalcade of boys and girls, he will circle about the camp, welcomed by shouts of the wildest joy. The feasting and dancing will continue for three days.

Nervous Depression and Bodily Weakness.

Another Woman Who Has Found Health, Strength and Vigor in the Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

To women especially Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is proving to be a very great blessing. So many women are weakened and debilitated by overwork, worries or diseases peculiar to their sex, and need the assistance of just such a restorative as this great food cure.

Mrs. M. A. McCrea, Tory Hill, Ont., writes:—"My system was all run down when I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was weak and very nervous and felt so tired and worn out that I could scarcely drag myself about the house. It seemed impossible for me to get rest or sleep at night, and I felt that I was gradually growing weaker and more nervous and irritable. Since beginning the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I feel altogether different. It has gradually strengthened my nerves and built up my system wonderfully. I sleep well now, and am being thoroughly restored to health and strength. I believe it is the best medicine to be had for the nerves."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

SLEEP AND DREAMS.

A German physician says: "The fact is women required a larger amount of sleep than men. The nervous excitability of the female construction is generally greater than is the case with the stronger sex, and a woman's sleep is consequently lighter. Her dreams are more vivid and leave a more lasting impression on the memory. Women addicted to dreaming usually sleep an hour longer than those who do not dream, for dreams induce weariness. Anyone who sleeps without dreaming rises on the morrow refreshed from his couch, which is otherwise not the case."

THE ASTHMATIC'S AGONY.

Wakeful nights, suffocating sensations, difficult breathing. Who can describe it? This disease, partly nervous, partly congestive, partly the result of microbic irritation, is no longer treated by nauseous stomach destroying drugs, but by Catarrh, which destroys the microbe, relieves congestion and relaxes the nervous irritability that renders breathing so difficult. The medication is carried by the air you breathe to the very seat of the disease, and removes at once the cause. The great discovery is known as Catarrhose. Its influence upon Asthma is simply marvellous. Catarrhose prevents as well as cures, and is the only remedy guaranteed to cure. Your money back if it fails. Two sizes at all dealers, 25c. and $1.00.

Every woman ought to know something about cooking, said the wise girl.

I don't know about that, answered Miss Cayenne. In case of incompatibility it gives the husband a chance to blame her for his despondency.

WHAT MAKES YOU COUGH.

Do you ever wonder what it is that makes you cough? In general it is the result of an inflammation of the throat. As a matter of fact, merely a slight throat inflammation caused by a slight cold will cause a cough to start, and the more you cough the more you want to cough. If you delay the inflammation in the throat your cough will stop.

Don't build the sensitiveness of the throat with medicine containing a narcotic, but give it soothing and healing treatment. This is difficult, because the inflamed parts are in the way of the passage of food and drink. The true cough remedy is something that will protect the throat from the ill effect of catarrhal discharges and also from the irritation of swallowing food. Such a remedy is Adamson's Balm. Such a cough Balm, which for many years has been conquering the most obstinate coughs. It is a soothing compound prepared from herbs and gums. Its wonderful effect is quickly felt and the work of healing promptly begun. If you once take Adamson's Balm for cough, you will never be troubled with one of it again. It is a safe and sure cure. A trial size of the Balm can be secured of any druggist for 10 cents. The regular size is 25c. In asking for the Balm be sure you get the genuine, which has "F. W. Kinnaman & Co." blown in the bottle.

WHAT IS LIFE TO YOU? If you are a victim of piles, as one person in every four is, you suffer keenly from one of the most torturing ailments known to man, and may well wonder if life is really worth living. Certain relief and ultimate cure is awaiting you by means of Dr. Chase's Ointment. It has never failed to cure piles, hemorrhoids and naturally it cures it, heals the ulcers and thoroughly cures this wretched disease.

THE AGONY OF SLEEPLESSNESS. Do you ever pass a single night in wakeful misery, tossing and rolling in bed, trying in vain to sleep and longing for morning to come? Can you imagine the torture of spending night after night in this way, each succeeding night growing worse and worse? This is the most dreadful symptom of Nervous Exhaustion and Debility. You can be gradually and thoroughly cured of Sleeplessness by the rebuilding influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It cures in nature's way, by creating new nerve cells and restoring lost vitality.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS. If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerve-Line. Don't be afraid to use Nerve-Line freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't turn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water into which 30 drops of Nerve-Line has previously been stirred. This is a safe, pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

I suppose the witch in your play rides a broomstick? Broomstick? What ails you? She rides a sweeper.

YOUR NERVES ARE WEAK. You sleep badly, appetite variable. You eat but gain no strength. Morning tiredness makes you wish it were night. When night comes refreshing sleep is hard to obtain. You're run down, your blood is thin and watery, your nerves have grown weak, the thought of effort worries you. You need Ferronize; it makes blood—red, strong blood. An appetite. You'll eat everything and digest it, too. Strength! That's what plenty of food gives. Ferronize gives hope, vigor, vim, endurance. Use Ferronize and get strong. Sold by A. E. Shaw.

GOBELIN TAPESTRY.

So important are their artistic merit and historic value that no history of tapestry is complete that does not include a description of their design and execution. For more than 200 years the existence of the paper manufactory of tapestries was unknown to the modern world. Documents relating to its origin and productions were buried and forgotten in the mass of manuscript in the famous Barberini library until a very recent date, when they were unearthed by Eugene Muntz, director of the National Ecole des Beaux Arts at Paris. In the popular mind all tapestries are associated with the Gobelin factories of France.

Curious to relate, not a yard of tapestry was ever woven by a member of the Gobelin family. Immortality came to them from the fact that in the middle of the fifteenth century the founder of the family established a dyehouse which became famous and brought the proprietors fortune. Descendants shrewdly transported skilled tapestry weavers from Flanders, whose work they directed and marketed until tapestry and Gobelin became then, as now, synonymous throughout the world.

BLENDED AND PACKING TEA.

NO CHANCE IN HISTORY.

Mazzini said that he did not believe that chance existed in history. "A cause must necessarily underlie every event, although for the moment it may appear as the result of apparently accidental circumstances. An Alexander, a Caesar, a Napoleon are not the results of accident, but the inevitable product of the time and nation, from which they spring. It was not Caesar who destroyed the Roman republic. The republic was dead before Caesar came. Sulla, Marius, Catiline, preceded and foreshadowed Caesar, but he, gifted with keener insight and greater genius snatched the power from them and concentrated it in his own hands. "For there was no doubt that he was fitter to rule than all the others put together. At the same time, supposing he had appeared 150 years earlier, he would not have succeeded in destroying the republic. When he came the life had gone out of it, and even Caesar's death could not restore that."

Red Rose Tea suits the taste of more people in the Maritime Provinces than any other Tea on the market.

A NEW STORY.

We have contracted for a new serial story which will be continued from week to week for about four or five months. The story is entitled

Under Two Flags,

By Orinda. The best, most thrilling, and most famous of this great writer's novels is now being published. It has been condensed by a master hand to the proper newspaper dimensions, and all of the sensational and strong incidents and the entire action of the story has been retained.

Be Sure and Read it,

For those who have never read it a rich treat is in store, while those who have read it in its original form will find the newspaper condensation enjoyable to the point of fascination.

The Union Advocate

is the only paper on the North Shore which will publish this story. If you are not already a subscriber send $1 at once and get the opening chapters of this story. Also a handsome picture free to every new subscriber.

A TRIBUTE.

As one who claims to possess a certain virtue. I would think it somewhat cold if I did not make an effort to pay some tribute to the memory of the lamented Edward Sinclair. As the matter has received due consideration from the able pen of our high esteemed friend Michael Whelan. It leaves me somewhat short of matter to dwell on.

When first I knew Ned Sinclair He was a grown up boy Working for old Peter Where then he found employ. His cheeks were round as apples, His hair was curly brown, He was the handsomest young man That walked Newcastle town.

'Twas then the days due bills Cash was scarce known at all, And for getting into business His means were very small. But he worked away quite cheerfully, With fortune seemed to crown, The Powers that ruled the country Could never keep him down.

He was a good old maxim Of try and try again, He fought the battle bravely, And soon did victory gain. When the railroad was building In the days of his day's pay, He took his seat where the rivers meet On the banks of the Miramichi. He worked away both night and day With heart so light and bold, Taking in the dollar And paying out the gold.

My, how we shall miss him As we row down on tide, When we lose his cordial greeting Down by the river side. It's there we found protection When scarcely could we float, We had his kind direction If not his crew and boat.

The poor he sought by the roadside The chamber and the bed, The naked, they were clothed, And the hungry they were fed. When homes met desolation, By fire burned down, The lumber free, you'd always see Coming from Bridge-own. Such must lay up great treasures That ne'er shall be forgot, Where rust or moth doth enter not Amongst that glorious lot.

Such generous men, a soul may win Though often it may fall, And merit its redemption Before it leaves its goal. For as much as you give unto my poor You really give to me, And out of my abundant treasure I will surely give to thee.

Times may go on as ever, With changes day by day, The old may go unto their grave The young may turn gray. The railcars they may rattle, The whistle will blow as shrill, But we'll ever think of Sinclair As we pass that road and mill.

MILLERTON.

In your issue of July 10th your Derby correspondent was very personal in his remarks and caused quite a lot of offence in our village. You, Mr. Editor, not knowing the circumstances would I suppose not think so but I assure you such is the case and said notes have caused quite a feeling.

The Sacrament of the Lords Supper was dispensed in the Presbyterian church, Derby, July 7th. The services were conducted by the Rev. A. McLeod which were much appreciated by the people. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers which shows the Christian spirit which prevails in this vicinity.

Through the hot weather, Nelson Division No 99 has been flourishing and a great many of our young people meet regularly every Monday night and entertain the Division with songs, debates, etc.

We have a singing class which meets every Tuesday evening in the V. C. T. U. room in the Temperance hall under the direction of Mr. Sutherland with J. W. Vanderbeck as secretary which is well attended.

On Dominion day the people of Millerton enjoyed a splendid outing for which we owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Miller. Mr. Miller very generously fitted up one of his commodious scows and went to no small trouble in so doing, so that nearly two hundred people could comfortably enjoy themselves in it.

This was towed down river by the sturdy "Lans" and from its deck the sports at Bushville were witnessed.

Through the kindness of Mr. J. W. Vanderbeck music was furnished on the trip. While we lay anchored at Bushville dinner was served on board the scow.

The sail was all that could be desired and on our arrival at the wharf at Millerton we vented some of our gratitude by giving three rousing cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Miller.

We all feel that grateful recognition is due our host and hostess for such a pleasant outing.

On Friday June 27th. Rev. A. F. Brown of Newcastle, under the auspices of the Sons of Temperance delivered a lecture on the life and work of Father Matthew. Mr. Brown's pleasing manner on the platform made the lecture both interesting and entertaining.

[It has recently come to our notice that the Millerton notes of last week were offensive to some of our readers. They were of an entirely different nature from what we were assured by the writer they were. If in future our correspondents get the better of us in this respect we will publish their name so that the injured parties can put the blame on the one who merits it. We were assured that the said notes were harmless and had reference to school chums of the writer.]—Ed.

UPPER BLACKVILLE.

The scribe has been defunct for some time but will attempt to pull himself together and rally in an attempt to report the ins and outs and ups and downs of the inhabitants of this quiet but prosperous corner of the world.

Although our little town is often the subject of many ill wishes expressed by the reckless, thoughtless, restless young fellow because it does not afford entertainment enough for his fastidious taste, still our progress goes surely, though slowly onward, sure proof of which is new buildings in course of construction, prominent among which is a nice house being erected by Mr. Lewis Lumpy and a barn by W. Donald. The hall is being completed and Joseph Dumphy is erecting a barn while Hugh McDonald has a house in course of construction.

Miss Mate! Donald has returned from Montreal. Miss Jennie Dumphy is visiting her sister Mrs. Comeau New London, Glou. Co. Sorry to report the serious illness of Lawrence Mass. of Miss M. Dumphy of this place from brain fever.

Clarence Arbeau is engaged in the completion of his home and Walter Arbeau is building a barn.

Men's Working Shoes.

Good solid wear, and real comfort in our Men's Street Shoes. Built to wear and stand the walking which you will certainly feel like doing when you wear them. All the best makes, in all shapes and sizes are here. Easy to get a fit—easy shoes to wear, and hard to wear out.

McMillan's Boot and Shoe Store.

Sheldrake Island lighthouse keeper, had his house burned to the ground and lost part of his furniture. Not a man was home. All the neighbors and the men at the wharf went to their assistance, but too late to save the house. J. W. and J. Anderson stopped their mill on Friday to fight fire.

The crops look very poor on account of the dry weather. A few are commencing to cut their hay; lots of ground to go over but not much hay.

There was a good catch of salmon off Portage Island last week. Mr. Andrew Burr is down here visiting his friends.—World.

PROTECTIONVILLE.

Mrs. John E. Lyons and Miss Ethel Baker and Iva Dinkin of North Adams, Mass., are visiting their former home here.

Miss Carrie Petrie was visiting friends in Newcastle last week. Mr. Mansford Soley had a large crowd at work raising the frame of a large barn. We regret to learn that Mr. Wm. Campbell met with a severe accident while returning from the depot last week. While driving along by Mr. Davidson's house he drove too handy to the side of the street upsetting the wagon and throwing the occupants out. The wagon was badly broken but they escaped without serious injury.

The people in here are commencing to cut their hay. It is a poor crop on account of the hot weather that has prevailed for so long.

The new road machine is doing fine work on the C. I. road under the able management of Mr. P. Kingston.

DERBY.

The Trinity Church, Blackville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Jessie, daughter of Mr. William Hambrook was united in holy matrimony with Mr. Howard Manderville of this place.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. O'Dell Bayles, the bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Grace Jarline, while the groom was ably supported by his brother David.

The bride was becomingly attired in a suit of pale blue broadcloth with hat and trimmings to match. The bridesmaid was becomingly dressed in a similar costume. The bridal party drove to his home here where a dainty wedding supper was served. The evening was spent in dancing and other amusements. The bride was the recipient of many useful and beautiful presents.

BATHURST.

Miss Annie Des Brisay has returned from Ladies College, Halifax. Mr. D. T. Johnson has gone to Regina to visit her son Mr. Earl.

Mr. R. H. L. Young of Carleton Place, accompanied by her children is spending some days in town. Miss Elston is visiting in Bathurst. Miss Belanger is the guest of Mrs. Samuel Melanson.

Mr. Alexander of Campbellton and little son are visiting friends in town. Dr. F. X. Comeau and Mrs. Comeau of Carleton spent a few days in town during the week.

Miss Ahern is spending a vacation here and is the guest of her sister, Mr. Jam. Power. Mr. John Morrisey of Newcastle spent a short time here last week.

Mr. Allan J. Wheeler, representing Messrs. Matthews, Powers & Co. Montreal, spent a few days in town during the week. Mr. A. Mott, M. P. P. Campbellton made a brief stay in town recently.

Mr. Alex. J. Melanson of Jacques River was called home on account of the illness of his father and is still in town. Rev. E. Dugal of Bazil was the guest of His Lordship Bishop Barry last week.

Our M. P. P. Mr. T. M. Barnes went to Shippegan on a business trip. Mr. W. J. Laplante has opened a grocery store in the building on Water Street recently occupied by Mr. Ed. Holston and is meeting with success.

In the races which took place here on Dominion Day the following horses took prizes in the three minute race. 1st. prize won by "Levi," owner Mr. G. A. Hinton. 2nd. prize won by "Harry S." owner Mr. S. R. Shirley. 3rd. prize won by "Lump" owner Mr. John Kenny.

4th. prize won by "Little Dick" owner Mr. R. Carr Harris. In the free for all. 1st. prize won by "Waxford Prince" owner Mr. R. Carr Harris. 2nd. prize won by "Jack" owner Mr. John Legere. 3rd. prize won by "Mollie" owner Mr. Samuel Shirley. 4th. prize won by "Bonnie" owner Mr. J. D. Adams. Best time 2:31.

Liver Pills

That's what you need; something to cure your biliousness and give you a good digestion. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. They cure constipation and biliousness. Gently laxative. All druggists.

It is announced that another race will be held here about July 29. Rev. T. W. Street and wife have been on a trip to the south of the province.

Through the efforts of Mr. Henry Bishop and the co-operation of Mr. Tarzoon the proprietors of Biparin rights have secured from the Govt. 100,000 salmon fry which have been distributed in the Nepisiguit. This quantity should be apportioned every year and in a short time the angling sportsmen would be assured of bonus results.—Events.

PORTLAND

The weather here this last week has been beautiful, very different from the last week of June when the heat was up as high as 107 degrees in some parts of the city.

Miss Bessie Williams is spending two weeks with her friends at Pine Point. Miss Maggie Kirk leaves for home on Monday. Her friends will be glad to see her after eight months' stay in Portland. Miss May Luthy will go to Manchester, N. H., to stay until August. Miss Margaret Glancieux and her friend Miss Burke spent the fourth of July at Underwood Springs.

UNDER TWO FLAGS

By "OUIDA"

PREFACE.

Ouida's world famous novel, "Under Two Flags," dramatized by Paul M. Potter, has made a great hit on the stage. The dramatist has dealt mainly with that part of the book in which Cigarette is so conspicuous a figure, and in which the Hon. Bertie Cecil, having fled from England under a cloud, is known only as "Louis Victor" and "Bel-a-faire-peur," corporal in the French army in Algiers. Cecil prior to his flight is a member of the First Life Guards in London and is such a veritable Beau Brummel that he is called "Beauty of the Brigades." He is an athlete, a wonderful amateur steeple-chase jockey, a great flirt and the recipient of the smiles of numerous young matrons, the principal one being Lady Guenevere. He is a second son, a spendthrift, and his means are so limited that he calls himself "a pauper and a guardman." His father, Lord Royalieu, hates him, but is very fond of his younger brother, Berkeley, a weak youth, with little sense of honor. While keeping a tryst with Lady Guenevere her reputation becomes imperiled, and Cecil gives his word of honor that he will not tell where he was the 15th of the month. He has incurred the enmity of a race track tout and wench named Ben Davis, whose friend, Ezra Baroni, comes possessed of a note signed "Bertie Cecil" and indorsed with the forged signature "Rockingham," the name of Cecil's bosom friend, Lord Rockingham, future Duke of Lyonesse, better known as "Seraph," colonel of the First Life Guards. When accused of the forgery by Baroni, Cecil assures Seraph, who implicitly believes in his honesty, that he is innocent, but when given an opportunity to prove that he was not in Baroni's office on the 15th of the month getting the forged note discounted he refuses to do so because of his pledge to Lady Guenevere and because a blurred, scrawled, miserable letter, dotted with tears, reveals to him the identity of the real forger. He submits to arrest, but later, when Baroni attempts to have him dragged handcuffed through the streets, escapes with his valet, Rake, to France. Prior to his arrest Seraph's little 8-year-old sister, Lady Venetia, tells him she bears her loss all his money owing to the defeat of his favorite horse, Fleet King, because the horse was drugged by the wench's paid tool in revenge and offers to give him all her money. Cecil is greatly touched by the child's kindness, but refuses her aid, accepting in lieu thereof a little enamel sweetmeat box, which he says he will keep in memory of her. The scene then changes to Algiers, where Cecil and Rake are humble soldiers under another flag, the flag of France.

CHAPTER I.

"Did I not say he would eat fire?"
 "He is a brave one!"
 "Rides like an Arab."
 "Smokes like a zouave."
 "Ours off a head with that back circular sweep. Ah-h-h! Magnificent!"
 "And dances like an aristocrat; not like a tipsy spahib!"
 The last crown to the chorus of applause and insult to the circle of applauders was launched with all the pliancy of inimitable canteen slang and camp assurance from a speaker who had perched astride a broken fragment of wall, with her barrel of wine set up on end on the stones in front of her and her six soldiers, her big babies, as she was given maternally to calling them, lounging at their ease on the arid, dusty turf below. She was very pretty, audaciously pretty, though her skin was burned to a bright sunny brown and her hair was cut as short as a boy's, and her face had not one regular feature in it. But then—regularity, who wanted it? Who would have thought the most pure, classic type a change for the better, with those dark, dancing, challenging eyes, with that arch, brilliant, kitten-like face and those scarlet lips like a bond of cannella that were never so handsome as when a cigarette was between them, or, sooth to say, not seldom a pipe itself?
 She was pretty, she was insolent, she was intolerably coquettish, she was mischievous as a marmoset, she would swear if need be like a zouave, she could fire galloping, she could toss off her brandy or her vermouth like a trooper, she would on occasion clutch her little brown hand and deal a blow that the recipient would not covet twice, she was a child of Paris and had all its wickedness at her fingers, she would sing you odd songs till you were suffocated with laughter, and she would dance the cancan at the stables de Mars with the biggest giant of a cuirassier there. And yet, with all that, she was not wholly unsexed, with all that she had the delicious fragrance of youth and had not left a certain feminine grace behind her, though she wore a vivandiere's uniform and had been born in a barrack and meant to die in a battle. It was the blending of the two that made her piquant, made her a novelty in her own way, known at pleasure and equally in the army of Africa as "Cigarette" and "Louis Victor" and "Bel-a-faire-peur" and "The Friend of the Flag."
 "Not like a tipsy spahib!" It was a crust out to her big babies, mostly spahibs, three at her feet or rather at the foot of the wall, singing their praises, with magnanimity beyond praise, of a certain Chasseur d'Afrique. "Ho, Cigarette!" growled a little zouave known as Tata Leroux. "That is the way thou forsakest thy friends for the first fresh face."

 "Well, it is not a face like a tobacco stopper, as thou is, Tata," responded Cigarette, with a puff of her namesake. The repartee of the camp is apt to be rough. "Ho, is Bel-a-faire-peur, as you nickname him?"
 "A woman's face!" growled the injured Tata, whose own countenance was of the color and well nigh of the flatness of one of the red bricks of the wall.
 "Out!" said the Friend of the Flag, with more expression in that single ejaculation than could be put in a volume. "He does woman's deeds, does he? He has woman's hands, but they can fight, I fancy! Six Arabs to his own sword the other day in that skirmish! Superb! Ah, he did not stop to cut their gold buttons off, as thou wouldst have done, Tata! Well, he has not learned the art of war," laughed Cigarette. "It was a waste; he should have brought me their sashes at least. By the way, when did he join?"
 "Ten—twelve—years ago, or thereabout."
 "He should have learned to strip Arabs by this time, then," said Cigarette, turning the tap of her barrel to replenish the wine cup, "and to steal from them, too, living or dead. Thou must take him in hand, Tata!"
 "Sacre bleu!" grumbled Tata. "Thy heart is all gone to the Englishman!"
 Cigarette laughed scornfully. Sentiment has an exquisitely ludicrous side when one is a black eyed wine seller perched astride on a wall and dispensing brandy dashed wine to half a dozen sun baked spahibs.
 "My heart wakes fresh every day, An Englishman! Why dost thou think him that?"
 "Because he is a giant," said Tata.
 "I have danced with grenadiers and cuirassiers quite as tall and twice as heavy, Ned!"
 "Because he bathes—splash, like any water dog."
 "Because he is silent."
 "Because he rises in his stirrups."
 "Because he likes the sea."
 "Because he knows boxing."
 "Because he is so quiet and blazes like the devil underneath."
 "Under which mass of overwhelming proof of nationality the Friend of the Flag gave in.
 "Yes, like enough. Besides, the other one is English. Louis—hoop of the Chasseurs d'Afrique tells me that the other one waits on him like a slave when he can—cleans his harness, litters his horse, saves him all the hard work when he can do it without being found out. Where did they come from?"
 "They will never tell."
 Cigarette tossed her procoquant head, with a point of her cherry lips and a slang oath, light as a bird, wicked as a rigolochade.
 "Haff! They will tell to me."
 "Chut! Thou mayest make a lion tame, a vulture leave blood, a drum beat its own ratapan, a dead man fire a musket, but thou wilt never make an Englishman speak when he is bent to be silent."
 Cigarette launched a choice missile of barrack slang at an array of metaphors which their procoquant thought stupendous in their brilliancy.
 "Englishmen are but men. Put the wine in their head, make them whirl in a waltz, promise them a kiss, and one turns such brains as they have inside out. When a woman is handsome, she is never denied. He shall tell me where he comes from. I doubt that it is from England. See here—why not?" And she checked the nose of her little brown fingers. "He doesn't eat his meat raw; he speaks very soft; he waltzes so light, so light; he never grumbles in his throat like an angry bear; there is no fog in him. How can he be English with all that?"
 "There are English and English," said the philosophic Tata, who piqued himself on being serenely cosmopolitan.

Cigarette blew a contemptuous puff of smoke.
 "There was never one yet that did that. If they don't use their own sex, they sit and sulk. An Englishman is always boxing or grumbling. He two make up his life."
 "I derived from a forced study of various vaudevilles, having delivered it, she sprang from her wall, strapped on her rifle barrel, nodded to her big babies, where they lounged full length in the shadow of the stone wall, and left her to resume their game at hoc she started on her way singing.
 "Here was a flashing, dauntless, vivacious life, just in its youth, loving plunder and mischief and mirth, caring for nothing and always ready with a laugh, a song, a slang repartee or a shot from the dainty pistols thrust in her sash that a general of division had given her, whichever best suited the moment.
 Her mother a camp follower, her father nobly known who, a spoiled child of the army from her birth, with a heart as bronzed as her cheek, yet with odd, stray, nature sown instincts here and there of a devil may care nobility and of a wild grace that nothing could kill. Cigarette was the pet of the army of Africa and was as lawless as most of her patrons.
 She would eat a succulent duck, thinking it all the spicier because it had been a soldier's loot; she would sweat the gold plunder out of her dress and never have a pang of conscience with it; she would dance all night long, when she had a chance, like a little Bacchante; she would shoot by the hour, if need be, with all the nonchalance of the world. She had had a thousand lovers, from handsome marquises of the guides to tawny, black browed scoundrels in the zouaves, and she had never loved anything except the roll of the drum and the sight of her own arch, defiant face, with its scarlet lips and its short, jetty hair, which she wore like a crown on a burnished cuirass that served her for a mirror.
 "Away she went, now singing down the crooked windings and over the ruined gardens of the old Moorish quarter of the Casbah, the hilts of the tiny pistols glancing in the sun and the fierce fire of the burning sunlight pouring down unobscured on the lava, bright black eyes that had never since that first opened to the world drooped or dimmed for the rays of the sun or the loss of her curly head, and she had some of the virtues of soldiers. Soldiers had been about her ever since she first remembered having a wooden canteen for a cradle, and sucking the breast of course her thoughts were as riotous as her mischievous wench in its act; but she was "a good soldier," as she was given to say, with a toss of her curly head, and she had some of the virtues of soldiers. Recently a herd of cattle owned by James O'Brien of Beaver Brook strayed on the I. C. E. track just before the express passed. When the express came along they were quietly chewing their cud. Six of them were killed and several injured. The train was running at a high speed. It was a little foggy and the engineer claimed he did not see the cattle in time to stop.

The London Imperial Moving Picture Company showed to a fair audience in the Temperance hall last Thursday evening. The Queen's Funeral and Cinderella were good but the Battle of San Juan and the South African War pictures were fakes, being simply made up by amateurs playing at soldiering. This kind of show would not go with Newcastle people so they had not a sufficient audience to show to on Friday evening.

OBITUARY

We are called upon to announce the death of a well known citizen in the person of John Wallace of Frost street. The deceased passed quietly away at a quarter to one Monday, surrounded by the members of his own family as well as by his children, grandchildren and numerous other friends.

Mr. Wallace was born at Barrington Nov. 11th 1836, and was consequently in his 65th year. He was united in marriage to Catherine McDonald on the 14th of February 1862, by the Rev. P. W. Wilson, of Campbellton. There was issue to this union 16 children, nine of whom survive.

Three of the children are married, namely John, living at Quebec, Mary (Mrs. Jas. Barry), and Ellen (Mrs. Wm. McDonald, at Barsby River, the other members of the family are the Rev. P. W. Wilson, of Campbellton, Peter, Martin, Lawrence, Simon and Philip.

The highest type of a christian was exemplified in the life of the deceased. He was scrupulously honest, sober, peaceful, modest and spent his whole life in the interests of education and religion.

HE WAS AN ASSYRIAN.

An application was made to Judge Wilson on Monday to set aside a conviction made by a Justice of Northumberland, convicting a pedlar, an Assyrian by the name of H. H. for hawking about goods contrary to law. The main ground of the application was that the convicting justice refused to allow the Assyrian an interpreter. The justice contended that the Assyrian could understand and talk English and therefore an interpreter was unnecessary. The Assyrian, through his counsel, Mr. Aitken, of Davidson and Aitken, argued that his client could not understand English, and that he as counsel could not properly defend the cause. Notwithstanding this the justice refused to allow an interpreter and the defendant was convicted. Mr. G. W. Allen, K. C., appears on behalf of the convicted, and Mr. H. B. Ramsford and Mr. Thompson, K. C., for the justice. Court considers.—Gleaner.

THE TWELFTH AT MONCTON

The Orange gathering at Moncton on Friday was a success in point of attendance. Members of the order were present from all parts of the province, and the procession was one of the largest in the history of the order. Regular trains and special trains poured into Moncton many hundreds of people, and as the weather conditions were perfect they had a most enjoyable time. The procession was headed by Grand Master A. D. Thomas, and in the line were several hundred members of the order and five bands.

After the procession there was a monster meeting in the Commons, with stirring and patriotic addresses by Grand Master Thomas, Major A. J. Armstrong, H. H. Pitts, F. M. Sproule, P. E. Heine and Rev. A. F. Brown. In the course of his remarks Major Armstrong strongly condemned some members who had disgraced themselves by becoming intoxicated.

After the speeches the assembled crowd sang the National Anthem and soon afterwards the crowds were on their way home.—St. John Globe.

THE MARITIME HOMESTEAD.

W. W. HUBBARD, who has edited the Co-operative Farmer (lately changed to the Maritime Farmer), of Sussex, N. B., since its inception in 1895, will shortly sever his connection with that paper, and will establish a paper devoted to the farm and home field of the Maritime Provinces.

This journalistic enterprise will be called "THE MARITIME HOMESTEAD," and will have offices in both Halifax and St. John. With the editorial department of this paper will be associated some of the leading agricultural workers of eastern Canada. As its name implies, "THE MARITIME HOMESTEAD" will make a specialty of dealing with those matters connected with our maritime agricultural development including all departments of animal husbandry, agriculture, horticulture, nature study, domestic economy, entertaining reading and a special compilation of general and local markets and crop prospects.

SUTHERLAND — GERRISH

A very pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian church, Indiantown, at eight o'clock Wednesday evening June 20th, when Miss Annie J. eldest daughter of Mrs. J. McFerrish, Indiantown, and Mr. Murdoch Sutherland of Winchester, Mass. were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. J. Johnstone of Newcastle, N. J.

The church was nicely decorated with flowers and ferns and a very pleasing appearance was presented at the bridal party entered the church. Miss J. M. Bean played the wedding march very appropriately. The groom was supported by Mr. Walter McLagan of Blackville, N. B., and the bride was attended by her sisters Misses Ada and Maude. The bride looked lovely in white, set off with white satin and insertion with a bridal veil of white tulle and a wreath of Lillies of the Valley. The bridesmaids wore Nile green with black velvet ribbon and white lace trimmings. After the ceremony was performed a large number of friends and relatives assembled at the home of the bride to congratulate the happy couple and wish them "God speed" in their new life, after which a very dainty repast was partaken of. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents. That of the groom being a handsome watch and chain, and he presented the bridesmaids with pretty bracelets.

After a short tour in Nova Scotia and other parts Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland will reside in Winchester, Mass.

REV. T. H. CUTHBERT RESIGNS

Will Leave Next Monday for Newcastle, New Brunswick.

As announced last week Rev. T. H. Cuthbert has resigned as rector of St. Paul's parish in this city and leaves next Monday for his new field of labor in St. Andrew's parish, Newcastle, N. B., Canada, a city of about 6,000 population.

Rev. Cuthbert came here from River Falls, Wis., Oct. 1, 1898, where he had been since May 3, 1896, and the following extract from the Journal, published at that place, shows in what respect he was held in esteem here:

"We are to lose Rev. T. H. Cuthbert, the popular rector of Trinity church. He has received an unanimous invitation from the vestry of St. Paul's church, Elk Rapids Mich., which he has accepted. He will enter upon the duties of his new parish Oct. 1. Mr. Cuthbert came to River Falls three years ago, and has made a large and warm place for himself in the esteem of his own church and the whole community. The Elk Rapids people will find in their new rector a devoted, scholarly and broad minded man. There is no one in River Falls but would be glad to have him remain here."

The reverend gentleman began ministering in St. Paul's church, Elk Rapids, Sunday, Oct. 2, 1898, and has consequently been here two years and nine months, during which time the number of communicants has increased from 64 to 108, and he will doubtless be equally as successful in the new field to which he has been called.

Recognizing the fact that woman's work is of such vital importance, the parish which has been so fortunate as to secure Mr. Cuthbert as rector, will find in Mrs. Cuthbert an active and willing worker as well as a woman of lovely christian character. Their many friends, in and out of the church alike, regret their departure, and wish them success and prosperity in their new home.—Elk Rapids Progress.

Manitoba's Crops.

WINNIPEG, July 13.—In an interview today, F. W. Thompson, general manager of the Ogilvie Co. who has just returned from an extended trip of inspection over the Province, states that at present the prospect for the wheat crops is almost ideal. Nothing but an unusual calamity can prevent Manitoba having the largest yield in her history, says Thompson. Grain is in a magnificent condition and the harvest will be under way by the first week in August.

BACK IT GOES.

Everyone Knows that violins of the same manufacture vary greatly in tone. The same is true of pianos only not to as great an extent. However, only a piano expert can tell the difference between one a little off tone and the best. Almost every day we are receiving new Pianos, and not one is ever accepted without a thorough examination by us. If the piano shows a want in tone, quality, action, or any other particular, what do you think we do? Do we keep it? Decidedly not. We send it back. We have returned Pianos of some of the most eminent manufacturers in America. We know the difference between the Pianos that would pass with the average person, and the one that is really artistic, and we won't have an instrument in our stock that is not up to the standard in every particular.

The moral of this argument is to buy a Piano from a firm that know their business and have the reputation for keeping the best
