Judge Judd Finds That Insufficient Evidence Was Introduced by Crown.

SMILES REPLACE TEARS

Mrs. Jane McCully was discharged by County Judge J. C. Judd this morning when she appeared before the court on charges of having stolen goods in her possession.

The court held that the crown had produced no evidence to show that at the time the goods were in the possession of Mrs. McCully that she knew they had been stolen.

"There are a great many suspicious and doubts in my mind in connection with this case," declared the court, "but I couldn't convict on suspicion, and you are entitled to the benefit of the doubt."

Mrs. McCully, who entered the court weeping copiously, left amid beaming smiles.

A quantity of merchandise stolen from the W. C. Barons store at Belmont were found in her house on the Hamilton road last November when it was raided by the police.

James Watson was sentenced to jail last week, after pleading guilty to the charge of having stolen goods in his possession at Mrs. McCully's home.

FIVE-CENT PARK FARE IS URGED

Council May Press Further Improvement Demands If the Company Fails To Act.

CHANGE IN SERVICE

Two-Way Cars on Ottawa and North Belt Lines Are Favored.

Drop fares of five cents to all parts of the city and on the Springbank lines of the London street railway, together with extensions to Broughdale and in East London are suggestions today by Philip Pocock, public utilities commissioner. That the city can force the company to bring Springbank fares down to five cents is a trip is Mr. Pocock's belief. "It is just as logical as charging only five cents to Pottersburg," Mr. Pocock declares.

Action within 48 hours to clear up London's street railway tangle is probable and a meeting with the street railway company directors may be held tonight or tomorrow. An unguarded comment by the mayor, which he afterwards refused to discuss, indicates that an agreement may be possible before tomorrow night.

Restless at the continued obtrusiveness of the company in holding up an agreement conference, city aldermen are awaiting developments eagerly. They declare that there never was any intention of letting the company operate with three-cent fares until a new agreement is drawn up. The company has illegally been carrying on for three days at the five-cent rate of fares.

According to discussion in council circles today continued aloofness and inaction on the part of the company may result in further council demands for improved service.

Gordon Weir and his brother, Norman, were arrested late in February on a charge of theft. At the same time Violet Roeding and Helen Govier were taken into the St. Thomas jail on charges of vagrancy. Previous acquaintanceship helped along the courtships which penetrated cell walls and the jail romance led to attempts of Gordon Weir to marry the Roeding girl and of Norman to become the husband of Miss Govier.

Then Norman Weir was sentenced to the Ontario reformatory, and that spoiled his matrimonial ambitions for the time. His brother was released on suspended sentence, and no evidence was produced by the crown against the girls.

The children's shelter is not a place of safekeeping for two of the five London boys, all under the age of 15 years, who stole an automobile in London Thursday, motored to Sarnia, and became mixed up in an accident, and further thefts in that city. They almost succeeded in escaping from a locked room of the shelter Saturday night. Their attempt was frustrated, however, and they are now confined in cells of the county jail.

Yesterday when they appeared before Judge Warner in the juvenile court they were remanded one week. While in Sarnia they struck down an aged man with the stolen car, and his condition is reported to be extremely serious. The remand was ordered, it is believed, to await further word from Sarnia regarding the man's condition.

Only two of the boys are confined to jail, the three others having been allowed bail to appear in juvenile court next Tuesday.

The youngsters, after their arrest in Sarnia, were brought back to London by Sergeant of Detectives Harry Down and Detective Thomas Bolton. Two of the boys who had driven the motor car, and who had snatched purses from pedestrians, were sent to the children's shelter to be confined in a locked room. #### Laugh or Cry of Wee Baby Breaks Bones In Its Body; Second Case Found In City

Strange Cases Attract Attention of Doctors All Over Continent.

ALL LIMBS BROKEN

Two Little Girls Being Given All Possible Aid To Recover.

Two months ago a child was born in London, suffering from what is said to be one of the most rare diseases the world knows. Its academic name is "osteogenesis imperfecta." Interpreted this means brittle bones—so brittle, in fact, that they break with the slightest pressure or movement of the body.

And now, with the birth nineteen days ago of another infant suffering from the same disease, physicians marvel at a remarkable coincidence.

The first child was born with a broken rib. Now it has broken arms and legs. The second baby has both arms and legs broken and two ribs broken. At the first feeble motion of the limbs, the bones, as hard and brittle as ice flakes, cracked. Many other bones went likewise.

Hold Little Hope.

Both babies are confined in the Children's War Memorial hospital, where they are receiving similar treatment. Everything possible is being done to overcome the abnormality, but physicians hold little hope for recovery.

Only a few other cases of this nature in North America are known to medical men. This type of extreme fragility of the bones has been common in Russia and Austria, although climatic conditions, according to physicians, have nothing whatever to do with its prevalence. The two cases reported in London almost in the same month is entirely a coincidence, they say.

The rarity is explained as a condition of defective bone cells, which fail to absorb the protein deposits of the body, taking in lime instead. A normal child is born with bones that are, in reality, gristle. Only after many months' growth does the gristle turn into actual bone.

Born Old.

The unfortunate London babies were literally born old. The state of their bones is analogous to the state of the bones of a very old man.

Progress varies much in different cases, physicians say. Although there is a tendency towards improvement in some; in others, when fragility is considerably less there seems to be improvement in the condition of the bones as age advances. Treatment for such cases consists in diet of cod liver oil or phosphorus to take the place of lack of protein matter.

Both cases from a physiological standpoint are probably of the most interesting that has come to the attention of Canadian doctors.

The babies are both girls. Extreme caution is taken to prevent the children from moving. The least motion, a laugh, or a cry, is liable to fracture a bone.

UNJUST ATTACK CHARGED

Dr. McNair Refuses To Resign Post as Clerk of London Presbytery.

WILL GO TO SYNOD

Claims Justice, Not Retention of Position, Is Aim in Stand.

Believing that the London presbytery treated him unjustly yesterday in asking for his resignation as clerk, Rev. John McNair, D.D., London, is determined to seek justice at the hands of the synod of Hamilton and London.

Meanwhile he has not tendered his resignation as clerk of presbytery, nor does he intend to do so until his appeal is heard. Moreover he regards the books and papers in his hands as clerk to be his property in trust, and as such it is his intention to retain possession of them until the question is finally settled.

Dr. McNair intends appealing to the synod on the ground of what he terms irregular procedure, claiming that there should have been written charges, and that those charges should have been placed in his hands ten days prior to the consideration of them by presbytery.

It is Dr. McNair's further contention, that his minutes were not biased, in so far as they were the clear and truthful statement of what went on in presbytery. He claims that the minutes presented both sides on the church union question, that he was not unfair to either side nor biased on behalf of either side.

He holds that the minutes were only biased to men who were themselves biased, and that the minutes could not have been truthfully reported without reflecting upon the attitude of the unionists, whose whole attitude was biased.

Dr. McNair admits that his intention to carry the question to the synod, which meets here in May, is not to retain the position, about which he is no longer concerned, but to secure justice.

More Exposed.

He feels that those who sought his resignation in presbytery were more exposed in their attitude than was he whom they tried to expose.

Dr. McNair is of the opinion that they (meaning the unionists) wanted to get rid of him in order to make provision for some poor fellows who have fallen by the way, union ministers who have resigned from non-concurring congregations.

He characterizes all the charges of biased minutes levelled at him as being only a smoke screen and a camouflage for the real purpose of creating a vacancy in the clerkship.

Dr. McNair sees no need to justify himself for his actions as clerk. He considers in their attitude that he has lived an honorable life and that he can live up under any criticism that is made of him.

He takes exception to the action of Rev. T. A. Symington, M.A., Knox church, London, moderator of the presbytery, in ruling him out of order yesterday in making appeal to Mr. Symington held that a charge the synod.

He constituted a moral wrong-doing, but that since no such accusation had been made against the clerk there was, therefore, no ground for an appeal to a higher court.

Dr. McNair's attitude is plainly one of resentment at the presbytery in asking him to resign as clerk, and his attitude toward certain unionist members of the presbytery is anything but cordial.

"Faith-Healing Nurse" Jailed :: Gas Order Must Remain

Nurse Confined To Cell When Test For Insanity Is Burnt-Offering Sequel

Provincial Police Act On Doctors' Report Few Hours After Court Released Woman On Bail—Action of Law Fails
To Dampen Her Faith in Ritual.

UNDERWOOD DOUBTS WISDOM OF OFFERING

Special to The Advertiser
by a Staff Reporter.

Wingham, March 10.—Anna Reynolds, "gifted nurse," and apostle of the Cedarvale Gospel Tabernacle of Toronto, upon whose orders Earl Underwood of Bluevale, a follower of her sect, killed and burned 10 hogs on a pyre as a sacrificial offering on Thursday, has again been taken into custody, this time by provincial police. Two physicians and Constable A. Whiteside visited the Underwood home last night. The doctors declared the woman to be insane, and following action by the court it is probable that papers for her commitment to an asylum will be made out. Meanwhile she will be confined in the Goderich jail.

Dominated by her quaint religion, Earl Underwood and his 22-year-old wife have become firm believers in the literal translation of Biblical writings. They both maintain that Anna Reynolds actually holds the gift of cure through faith. They refuse to admit her insanity, although since the action of the police last night, Underwood himself is a bit dubious about the wisdom of offering burned sacrifices.

Now Doubts Wisdom.

"I did not really believe we should have killed and burned the ten hogs," he told The Advertiser last night. "But Anna Reynolds saved the life of my wife, and I was grateful to her. She wanted me to do it. I had no fear of her, but I was thankful. I didn't think she was crazy. She is a wonderful woman, the way she can cure, the faith she has and the power. Maybe burning the hogs was a mistake, but I thought after the way she cured my wife of a hernia that I should do as she told me."

It was three weeks ago that Anna Reynolds came to the Underwood home as a nurse, sent from the Cedarvale gospel tabernacle in Toronto. She was to look after Mrs. Underwood during her period of confinement. She volunteered to restore Mrs. Underwood to perfect health, provided she had faith. A baby was born to Mrs. Underwood without medical assistance, and for three days she was critically ill. According to Underwood the constant prayers of Anna Reynolds brought about his wife's recovery and brought his baby into the world alive and healthy.

Then the Reynolds woman told Underwood she should offer up a sacrifice. Together they built a pyre and burned the pigs.

Neighbors Complain.

Neighbors complained of the odor of the burning pork which could be detected more than three days for miles around. Police at Wingham investigated and Mrs. Reynolds was placed under arrest on a charge of being insane and dangerous to be at large. She was later allowed out on bail of $1,000.

Yesterday afternoon she appeared before Magistrate Reid of Goderich at the Wingham court. When the court sat Mrs. Reynolds was granted a remand, her case being adjourned until March 17. Two hours later the provincial police investigated, and she was again taken into custody.

It was a weird and erratic story that both Underwood and Anna Reynolds told The Advertiser yesterday, shortly before their appearance in court. Mrs. Reynolds said that through her offering to God sacrifices, she had been given the power of healing. She could cure all diseases, she declared.

At Underwood's home in Bluevale large signs bearing Biblical sayings are hung above each door. "Only twice in my life I offered burned sacrifices," she said. "Earl Underwood, apparently completely under her spell, listened and occasionally gave an affirmative nod as if he said, 'That's true, that's true, and I have proof.'"

"Once I killed a lamb," she continued, "a baby lamb. I washed my hands in its blood as the Bible directs then I offered it to God by burning it upon bricks built high. That was in Kansas City. I had to walk miles to find an isolated wood to kill the beast."

Underwood then took up the story. He related how the nurse had come to his home. "Mrs. Underwood was sick," he said, "very sick, and for three days bordered on death. We prayed by her bedside all the time. She had hemorrhages which doctors cannot cure. We prayed that the devil in her might be cast out, and then suddenly she got better. She was completely cured, and she got up out of bed to continue with her work. Our baby is proof that Anna Reynolds can cure, that she is gifted through faith."

Mrs. Underwood, young and pretty, verified Mrs. Reynolds' declarations of faith cure yesterday. "She first cured my husband of asthma and then she cured me," she said. "My baby is proof."

Underwood then showed the Advertiser the pyre where the sacrificial offerings were made. He first shot and killed the ten hogs in his barn, a short distance from the house. Mrs. Reynolds had offered to stick them with a knife, but Underwood held that shooting would be a more humane death. He piled the dead pigs in a wagon and drew them into the hedge of a field, about 100 yards from the home. He and Mrs. Reynolds labored for some time in building a suitable pyre. A deep hole was dug in the ground and banked with bricks, and a railing of logs was stretched across the top. The carcasses were deposited in the pit. Wood and a bed on which Underwood had lain when afflicted with asthma were thrown on top to start the fire. Underwood declared that he desired to rid his home of all evil, and it was his suggestion that the bed be burned. Together they ignited the fire and together they watched it simmer and then flare up into great blaze. For three days it burned strongly, Underwood related. The smoke poured forth in volumes and carried by an easterly breeze the odor of burning pork could be detected for miles around.

"That smoke is blowing towards Toronto," Underwood claims. Mrs. Reynolds said, "It will soon bear the message of our sacrifice to the tabernacle."

Pyre Still Smoulders.

Today the pyre was still smouldering and simmering. Little trace of the hogs is left. Few bones could be found. Underwood, in explanation, declared that this was a true sign that the offering was a real sacrifice. "I will not make any more sacrifices," he told The Advertiser. "One is enough. I won't say I don't believe in them and I am glad I burnt these pigs for Mrs. Reynolds' sake."

"I will not make any more sacrifices," he told The Advertiser. "One is enough. I won't say I don't believe in them and I am glad I burnt these pigs for Mrs. Reynolds' sake."

Still Believes In Cures.
Earl Underwood, when told last night that Anna Reynolds had been arrested because she was insane, declared that he had implicit faith in her powers. He said he was skeptical about the sacrifices, but he remained a firm believer in the faith cure.

At the Toronto tabernacle he became impressed with the religion when he witnessed "marvellous cures." "I got faith," he said, "and soon my own ailment, asthma, was cured. Then I broke two ribs. They became fixed without the aid of a doctor. My own mother was cured of cancer. Faith can cure, and I know it. Mrs. Reynolds may be queer. Lots of offerings may be wrong, but I am glad in a way that I burned those hogs, because I showed my thanks for the wonderful work Mrs. Reynolds did for me. I still do not believe in physicians, and I don't think Mrs. Reynolds is crazy as they try to say. My wife believes as I do."

Always Tired in the Mornings

MISS M. BECKER, 113 David St., Kitchener, Ont., writes:—"My system became generally run down. I was nervous, tired and subject to headaches. After using nine boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I felt like a new person, could sleep and eat well and was relieved of all the old symptoms."

"NERVOUS bankruptcy is being courted by the young women of today," says Dr. Mosher, widely known authority on women's health.

"In her desire to not miss anything she burns the candle at both ends, cutting short her sleep, hurrying or omitting meals."

"This disregard of periods of rest and sleep must necessarily lead to a breakdown of the nervous system, a condition which is the despair of the physician."

Among the early indications of trouble are irritability, restlessness, indigestion, headaches and sleeplessness.

The rational treatment is DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD to revitalize the wasted nerve cells. This medicine is so natural and gentle in action and so wonderfully potent as a restorative that you will soon see the benefits derived from its use.

RELIEF IS DENIED IN GAS SITUATION

Provincial Government Declines To Amend Act Despite Many Requests.

DEPUTATION LARGE

Special to The Advertiser
by a Staff Correspondent.

Toronto, March 10.—Powers of the natural gas board of reference will not be further amended at the present session of the legislature, Hon. Charles McCrea, minister of mines, told a large Western Ontario delegation today.

The deputation, which included representatives from Essex, Kent, Elgin, Lambton, Middlesex, Norfolk, Haldimand, other counties asked that all existing orders of the board, in so far as they assumed to change rates or contracts, now in existence between the municipalities and the gas companies, be set aside, that all existing contracts be recognized. County judges be empowered to fix a gas rate for municipalities which had no contract, or whose contract was expiring; and that municipalities be allowed to organize for the purpose of imposing a levy of not more than 25 cents on each consumer of gas within their boundaries.

Declines Action.

Mr. McCrea promised to go further into the requests of the deputation, but made it clear that no remedial action could be forthcoming at the present session of the House.

Premier Ferguson pointed out to the gathering that it had been the request of gas consumers that the government had first intervened in the gas field.

At the present time he admitted there was dissatisfaction, but he hoped that eventually all concerned might be satisfied with the government's policy, which he stated was "to adjust the matter in the best interests of the consumer and the public."

Hon. Charles McCrea stated that it was a repetition of the inevitable clash between the consumer and the producer. The companies, he contended, in making of their first contracts, had not taken the price of gas into consideration. They were merely disposing of the gas on the order of the government, and were really endeavoring to locate oil.

Government Got Nothing.

He traced the various failures of the gas consumers and the producers to agree, and pointed out that the government had spent some $35,000 in trying to solve the problem, for which the government had not received one cent in return from the gas municipalities.

"I hope that we will be able to reach a solution that will deal with this matter for all time to come this time," stated the minister. "I will be pleased to discuss the matter with your subcommittee, but cannot promise to introduce further legislation this session."

Charles J. Costigan, 58 years, a resident of Essex county, died here yesterday, after an illness of three weeks. Mr. Costigan was born in Essex, and had lived there all his life.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Daniel Costigan, four sisters, Mrs. James Conway, Mrs. William Hogan, Mrs. James Quinlan, and Mrs. James Kerby, all living in Essex county, and two brothers, John J. of Windsor and Daniel in Colorado.

The remains were taken to Windsor on the 9:10 P.M. train last night from the A. L. Oatman funeral home. Interment will be made in Maidstone.

MRS. FREDERICK FESSANT ANSWERS CALL OF DEATH

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, March 10.—The death occurred in this city tonight of Mrs. Frederick A. Fessant, well-known newspaper writer. She was correspondent for London, Toronto and St. Thomas newspapers, and a frequent contributor to periodicals. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

GEORGE CHARLES BEGG.

The funeral of George Charles Begg, a well-known and highly esteemed former resident of St. Thomas, who died suddenly at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening at his home on the first concession, South Yarmouth, was held yesterday afternoon.

The deceased had been in his usual good health and had been assisting his son with chores at the farm when he was stricken with a heart attack and died within a short time. Mr. Begg was born in Port Stanley, 33 years ago, and he lived in St. Thomas for over twenty years, being a member of the firm of Rudolph and Begg, brewers. The plant was located on the gravel road at the foot of Farley hill and the family resided nearby. They moved to their farm near Port Stanley about ten years ago. The late Mr. Begg was an adherent of the Presbyterian church, and he was a member of the Masonic lodge.

He is survived by his widow, Mary Lipsey Begg; two sons, Charles Ernest, at home, and James O., of Swift Current, Sask.; and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur E. McNabb, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. There are eight grandchildren.

The funeral was held at 2 p.m. from the family residence in South Yarmouth to the St. Thomas cemetery.

ST. PATRICK'S TEA AT LORD ROBERTS

Mothers' Club Arranges Enjoyable Evening For Teachers and Husbands.

One of this year's most delightful St. Patrick's parties was held last night in the kindergarten of the Lord Roberts School when the Lord Roberts mothers' club entertained the parents and teachers of the school. The decorations were effectively carried out in green and white in keeping with the season. Mrs. H. T. Reason, the president, presided with Mrs. Frank Bryant, Mrs. J. W. P. Jones, Mrs. Donald C. McNaughton, Mrs. J. A. Moffatt and Mrs. J. A. Dixon, the latter being the able general conveners of the happy affair.

With much zest the older folk played children's games under the direction of W. F. Sherwin of the Y. M. C. A., when a number of St. Patrick's contests were cleverly introduced. Mrs. Frank Bryant arranged the musical program that followed the games, during which pretty Irish dances by a group of pupils was a happy reminder of the latter part of the winter carnival held in January. The program also included solos by Mrs. Ed. Wyatt, Miss Carrie Fitchett and Miss Eileen Johnson, and readings by Miss Marjorie Moffatt. The accompanists of the evening were Miss Dorothy Davis, Miss Bernadette Murphy and Miss Catherine Graham.

A buffet supper was served from a pretty table centered with green carnations in a silver basket and slender green candles in silver holders. Numerous shamrocks were showered over the white cloth. Mrs. H. T. Reason and Mrs. J. W. Carson poured tea and members of the club assisted in looking after the guests. There were about 125 guests, the fathers turning out exceptionally well. Sub-conveners of the very enjoyable event were Mrs. Thomas H. Gort, Mrs. Steele and Mrs. Warren Smith, referees. Mrs. J. A. Dixon, principal of the school, and Mrs. Reardon, and it was announced that the next meeting will be the first Tuesday in April.

W. C. T. U. APPOINTS ITS SUPERINTENDENTS

Ward Three Union Will Meet on Second Tuesday of Each Month.

Miss Rosamund Duff was the speaker for yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Ward 3 W. C. T. U. held in the Hyatt avenue Methodist church. Following her interesting talk on the growth of the W. C. T. U. in the province, several new members were received into the union, including Mrs. (Dr.) Copeland, Mrs. H. Haves and the Misses Lillian and Rose Merritt. About thirty were present at the meeting, among them Mrs. H. A. Paddell, president of the central union. Mrs. Mary Hawken, the president, occupied the chair, the Bible reading being given by Mrs. J. H. Brook.

Recently appointed superintendents are: Scientific temperance, Mrs. John Jones; citizenship, Mrs. A. E. Turt; temperance in Sunday schools, Mrs. J. A. Brook; for flower mission, Mrs. Beatrice Moore; for district work, Mrs. Mary Hawken; parlor meetings, Mrs. Henry Pocock; railroad work, Mrs. F. Venning; white ribbon ridings, Mrs. Loney; wrap wrappers, Mrs. Sargeant; district work, Mrs. F. M. Price; systematic giving, Mrs. McEachern; press secretary, Mrs. Thomas Dickson.

The union will meet at the Hyatt avenue church on the second Tuesday of each month.

ALEXANDRA BROTHERS' CLUB Principal Corbin Brown addressed the Alexandra mothers' club at the regular meeting held last night. His talk dealt largely with the connection with the school and urged cooperation on the part of the mothers. They were not to feel offended when a child was sent home because he was suspected of having some communicable disease. Their children were often being protected by this very action.

A box social was arranged for the night of April 14, when the admittance fee for the ladies would be a cup and saucer. Mrs. W. Rowley, the president, was in the chair.

WHITES OF EYES TINGED WITH YELLOW? MUDDY COMPLEXION? YOUR LIVER IS OUT OF ORDER!

Mrs. Wm. Bourque, Fox Creek, N.B., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a long time, and was so bad I could not do any work. I had severe pains in my stomach that were so bad, at times, I could hardly stand them. My tongue became coated. I had a bad taste in my mouth, especially in the morning; the whites of my eyes were tinged with yellow, and I had a muddy and yellow complexion."

"I had read a great deal about

Saunders, and Mrs. Howard Fetherston, Miss Saunders, Mrs. George Copeland, Miss M. Raymond, Miss Mabel Stevenson, Mrs. R. E. Davis and Mr. Evans Davis, and Mrs. T. D. Patterson.

Mrs. Mary L. Davidson of Lambeth entertained recently in honor of her son, Mr. S. J. Davidson, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, at an evening of music and games, refreshments were served. Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Hiser of Comber, and Miss Hutchinson of Leamington, both of whom are attending the London Normal school.

An outstanding event of the week will be a benefit bridge to be held tomorrow afternoon at Peters' room, secured by the Isabel Hampton chapter, I. O. E., through the kindness of Mr. Peters. The entire proceeds of this bridge will be given over to the child welfare association. Mrs. Ross Thomas, regent of the chapter, and Mrs. W. H. Fox are the conveners.

An interesting function of this week will be the musical and tea to be held at the home of the Misses Moore, 423 Piccadilly street, in aid of a building site for the new Y. W. C. A. A very fine program is being prepared and will include vocal numbers by Miss Dodo Simcox, Miss Elsie Green, Mrs. Sydney Kingsmill, Mrs. Harry Kingsmill, and violin numbers by Mr. Sydney Kingsmill.

Complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Towton, who were married recently, Mr. and Mrs. F. Goring entertained at their home on Briscoe street this week, when a delightful shower was tendered to the bride and groom. A most enjoyable evening was spent and the guests of honor were the recipients of many lovely gifts from the other guests. Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Towton was Miss Martha Smith.

The members of the Buttercup bridge club were entertained at the home of Miss Marjorie Mortimer, Central avenue, last night. Following an evening of interesting games, music was enjoyed by the guests and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her mother and her sister, Miss Leslie.

Miss Mabel Stiallard was the winner of the high score, and the consolation was awarded to Miss Lenore Webber.

The Grenfell mission is planning a St. Patrick's tea and musicale to be held at Dufferin hall, 253 Dufferin avenue, on the afternoon of Tuesday, March 17. An interesting program is being prepared and will include numbers by Mrs. Howard Fetherston, pianist; Miss June Warren, soprano; Mr. Douglas Fetherston, violinist; Miss Christie Wright, soprano; and Miss Clara Jones, who will appear in interpretive dances. Mrs. Arthur Little and the members of her executive will act as hostesses.

Mrs. (Dr.) R. J. Gordon entertained the members of class 40 of the Queen's avenue last night, when the greater part of the evening was spent in the discussion of plans for the making of warm nighties for the little people under the care of the Child Welfare association. During the evening Miss Wertz contributed several readings, and Mrs. Leonard Morgan, prizewinner. At the birthday table, covers were laid for twelve.

An attractive birthday cake centered the table, from which were picked six pieces. Games were also enjoyed, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gorman, Hyman street, entertained this week in honor of Mrs. Charles Elva Gorman, on the occasion of her birthday. The evening was spent pleasantly in progressive euchre. Mr. Irwin carrying off the first prize. Later contests were enjoyed with Miss Dorothy Morgan, prizewinner. At the birthday table, covers were laid for twelve.

An attractive birthday cake centered the table, from which were picked six pieces. Games were also enjoyed, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The home of Mrs. R. Greensides, Ontario street, was the scene of an enjoyable evening recently when with Mrs. Charles Nickle as joint hostess, she entertained the members of the ladies' aid of the Adelaide street Baptist church. Mrs. George Edwards and Mrs. Fred Keane poured tea at a table prettily decorated with St. Patrick's colors. During the afternoon a delightful program was given, including vocal solos by Miss Louise York, readings by Miss Jean Nelson and a merry sing-song with Miss York presiding at the piano.

A similar tea will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Walters, Dundas street.

The outstanding function for the year so far as the women teachers' guild is concerned, is the annual luncheon, which will be held at the Tecumseh house on Saturday. Mrs. G. Knox will give a recital on "Radio," while musical numbers will be given by Miss Tuck, accompanied by Miss Eva Lancaster and by Miss Elsie Currie. Special guests of the occasion will be Mrs. V. K. A Good Disposition Means Happiness and Prosperity Later in Life, So Don't Handicap Your Children by Letting Them Grow Up With Bad Tempers.

A bad disposition is a greater handicap in life than any physical infirmity, yet parents who will spend the last cent they have, and subject their children to agonies to have some bodily defect cured, do not think it even worth while to try to correct the abnormalities of their souls.

If a child has crooked teeth, its father and mother would think themselves lacking in doing their duty if they failed to have them straightened, but they do not bother to straighten out a crooked and rude little tongue that continually says things that wound and offend.

Yet a set of teeth as perfect as a dentist's dream will not take its possessor so far as a single-toothed one that only utters kindly speeches, and that has the knack of always saying the right thing at the right place and time.

It is a great misfortune to be crippled in body, but it is not half as great a misfortune as it is to be crippled in mind. The man with the warped body can go far, but the man with the warped brain, with the twisted mentality and the withered sympathies, finds his way blocked at every turn.

It is a terrible thing to be deformed, but it is even more terrible as it is to have a distorted soul. To be a hunchback is as nothing compared with carrying around with you a growth that makes you surly and repulsive, and that makes all that come in contact with you shrink away from you in horror.

It is a tragedy to be blind, but it is no less a tragedy to have eyes that see only what is disagreeable, and bad in those about one, and that never perceive what is fine and noble. Why is it any worse to be physically deaf than it is to be spiritually deaf than to all reason and not to be able to hear the voice of wisdom.

Now, as I said before, intelligent and loving parents are quick enough to try to correct all the physical handicaps of their children, and in handling that science can correct, but fathers and mothers should be just as eager to apply mental surgery to the temperamental defects of their young ones.

And in childhood, while the mind as well as the body is plastic, is the time to straighten the kinks in a boy's and girl's disposition just as surely as it is the time to straighten their backs or their legs.

Children can be taught to be well-mannered, to be pleasant spoken, to control their tempers, to be considerate of others, and to give and take. Instead of arrogating everything to themselves. In a word, children can be taught to be agreeable, and there is no turn in their future life in which this will not stand them in good stead.

Chief among the things that make for success are a pleasant personality, and the ability to get along with other people.

These are almost the first qualities that an employer looks for in those he hires. No salesman is of value, no matter how thoroughly he understands his line of goods, if he offends customers by his speech or manner.

No man rises to be the head of a department if he is in a perpetual row with those about him. No gloomy, pessimistic, bitter-tongued professional man has clients flocking to his office. He may be a wizard in his line, but he dies unknown and unappreciated.

The Astonishing Adventure of Jane Smith

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

A feeling of exhilaration amounting to recklessness possessed Jane as she put on the white serge coat and skirt sacred to the Sabbath. Attired in it Renata, side by side with Daphne Todhunter, had, doubtless, walked many a time to church and back. In front of her two white serge coats, behind her more white serge, and more and more, and more. Jane's head reeled. She detected this garment, but considered it appropriate to the occasion.

They drove into Withstead across the marshes. The sun blazed, and all the tiny marsh plants seemed to be growing and stretching themselves. Mrs. Cottingham lived in a villa on the outskirts of the town, and was, doubtless, the only person in the town who had a breathless sense of the extraordinary way in which the room was overcrowded. Every inch of the walls was covered with photographs, fans, engravings, and china plates. Almost every inch of floor space was covered with small ornamental tables crowded with knick-knacks. There was a carved screen, and an elaborated overmantel with looking-glass panels. There was a Japanese umbrella in the fireplace. Jane's eyes looked hastily into every corner. There were more things than she had ever seen in one room before, but there was no Daphne Todhunter. Mrs. Cottingham was shaking hands with her. She had a fat hand and squeezed you, and said, "And are you Daphne's Miss Molloy?" she said. "She was wildly excited at the prospect of meeting you, and I said, 'Till just ring up Luttrell Marshes, and ask Lady Heritance to bring her here this afternoon. I thought I might do that. You name this morning, and Daphne was so excited, and she goes away tomorrow, so it was the only chance. So I thought I would just ring up and ask Lady Heritance to bring you. I said to Daphne at once, 'Lady Heritance is so kind, I'm sure she will bring Miss Molloy.'"

Jane saw Lady Heritance's eyebrows rise very slightly. She moved a step, and instantly Mrs. Cottingham had turned from Jane. "Why, Lady Heritance, you're standing! Now I always say this is the most comfortable chair."

Her voice went flowing on, but Jane suddenly ceased to hear a word she said, for a door at the far end of the room was flung open. On the threshold appeared Miss Daphne Todhunter.

In common with most other Daphnes, Cynthia and Lanthies, she was short and rather heavily built. Her brown hair was untidy. She wore the twin coat and skirt to which was adorning Jane.

With an exclamation of rapture, she rushed across the room, dislodging a book from the little table and an ash-tray from another. "Her eyes are exactly like gooseberries which have been boiled until they are brown," thought Jane, "and I know she's going to kiss me."

She not only kissed Jane, she hugged her. Two stout arms and a waist of white rose scent enveloped Jane's shrinking form. After a moment in which she wondered how long this embrace would last, Jane managed to detach herself. Mrs. Cottingham's voice fell gratefully upon her ears: "Daphne, Daphne, my dear, come and speak to Lady Heritance. She's wildly excited, as I told you, the natural enthusiasm of youth, dear Lady Heritance, so beautiful, so quickly lost! I'm sure you agree with me—Daphne, Daphne, my dear."

Daphne came reluctantly and said, "Oh, Renata, tell me! When she said 'Miss Molloy' I nearly died. I said, 'Miss Molloy?' And she said, 'Yes, Miss Renata Molloy, and oh, I've nearly let the cat out of the bag.' She grasped Jane's hand and pressed it violently. 'But I didn't, Arnold told me not to, and I didn't, but, of course, I'm simply giving you all about everything. You can imagine what a shock it was to get the letter-card."

"Yes," said Jane, "it must have been. What did she say?" Daphne opened her eyes and her mouth. "Didn't he show it to you? How perfectly extraordinary of him!" "Well, he didn't," said Jane. "What did he say?" "I know it by heart," said Daphne indignantly. "I could repeat every word."

"Well, for goodness sake do!" "Renata! How odd you are, not a bit like yourself!" Fear stabbed Jane.

"Tell me what he said—tell me what he said," she repeated. With an air of being a person of hand that was squeezing hers, she said, "What Arnold, in the letter-card? But I think it was just too weird of him not to have shown it to you—too extraordinary."

Jane felt that she was becoming dazed. "What did he say?" "I know it all by heart," she said. "Just off, we said together. We were married this morning, and I'm the happiest man in the world. Don't tell anyone at present. If you love me, not a word to a soul. Will write from Bolivia—Arnold. P.S.—On no account tell Aunt Ethel. So you see why I nearly died when she said 'Miss Renata Molloy.' For of course I thought you were in Bolivia with Arnold, and oh, Renata, where is he and what has happened. Tell me everything."

She flung her arms about Jane's neck as she spoke and gave her a long, clinging kiss. Jane endured it under pressure of that. "You are not a bit like yourself." When she had borne it for as long as she could, she drew back.

"Listen," she said. "Tell me—tell me the worst—tell me everything. Where is Arnold?" "Arnold is in Bolivia," said Jane. "And why aren't you with him?" Jane produced a note, but a faint chief. It was a very little one, but it sufficed. In her own mind Jane described it as local color.

"We have parted," she said, and dabbed her eyes. "Renata! But you're married to him!" "No," said Jane, quite truthfully. "An inward thankfulness that she was not married to Arnold supported her."

Daphne stared at her with bulging eyes. "You're not! But he said, 'We were married this morning.' I read it with my own eyes, and I could repeat it in my sleep. I know it by heart."

Jane checked her with a look that held so much mysterious meaning that the flood of words was actually stemmed. "He didn't marry me," said Jane, in a tense whisper. She looked straight into the boiled gooseberry eyes, and then covered her own.

"He didn't marry you?" repeated Daphne, gasping. "No," said Jane, from behind the handkerchief. "But he's married?" "Yes—yes," said Jane. "Oh, Renata, cast herself upon Jane's neck and burst into tears. The impact was considerable and her weight no light one."

"Daphne, please—please—Lady Heritance is looking at us. Do sit up. I can't tell you anything if you cry. There's really nothing to cry about." Daphne sat up again. She also produced a handkerchief, a very large one with "Daphne" embroidered across the corner in coral pink. A terrible blast of white rose emerged with the handkerchief.

"But he was so much in love with you," she wailed. "I don't understand it. How could he marry anyone else and break your heart?" "My heart is not broken," said Jane. "Then it was your fault, and you've broken his, and he's got married just to show he doesn't care, like people thrust a large hand at Lady Heritance without looking at her. Raymond looked at it for a moment, and after a perceptible pause, just touched the hand—Mrs. Cottingham never stopped talking.

"So it is your friend, and you're just too excited for words. Take her away and have a good gossip. Lady Heritance and I have a great deal to talk about—You were saying."

"I was saying," said Lady Heritance wearily, "that you must write at once, if you want Masterston to lecture for you next winter."

Daphne dragged Jane to the far end of the room. "Oh, Renata, how perfectly delicious! But how did you come here? And what are you doing, and where's Arnold, and why aren't you with him?" She made a pounce at Jane's left hand, and felt the third finger.

"Oh, where's your ring?" she said. "Hush," said Jane, and sank upon it. Immediately in front of them was an octagonal table of light-colored wood profusely carved. Upon it, amongst lesser portraits, stood a tall photograph of Mrs. Cottingham in a train, and feathers, and a tiara. The sofa was low, and Jane felt that she had been kinder than she deserved.

"Oh, Renata, aren't you married?" breathed Daphne. "She breathes very hard, and Jane was reminded of Arnold on the fire-escape."

"Oh, Renata, tell me! When she said 'Miss Molloy' I nearly died. I said, 'Miss Molloy?' And she said, 'Yes, Miss Renata Molloy, and oh, I've nearly let the cat out of the bag.' She grasped Jane's hand and pressed it violently. 'But I didn't, Arnold told me not to, and I didn't, but, of course, I'm simply giving you all about everything. ### TEMPERANCE TEXT WORRIES W.C.T.U.

Resolution Asks Opportunity to Inspect Book Intended For Schools.

The W.C.T.U. will ask to be given an opportunity of seeing the new book on Temperance and Hygiene, about to be issued by the department of education of the province. A resolution to this effect was passed at a public meeting of the W.C.T.U. held last night in Wesley Hall and will be forwarded to the Ontario government.

The motion came as the result of an inspiring address on "Temperance in the Schools," delivered by V. K. Greer. In the light of Mr. Greer's statements, the members felt that this book should be submitted for inspection by the temperance forces before going to press.

The speaker declared that temperance instruction in the schools had been decreased as prohibitory legislation had been extended in the province. He pointed out how, when the first text book on the subject was written in 1893, it was 100 per cent temperance, and examinations on it were required. The book which followed in 1893 was one-fifth temperance, and the one now in use is but a secondary reader and examinations are not required.

Mr. Greer did not criticize these books, but he suggested that more temperance reading matter which could be applied by the pupils themselves, would be advisable.

In concluding the speaker declared that the temperance movement must come through the people and to wards this end the people must be educated. He would have the text-book written in a manner which would interest the children whom it is meant to serve.

The whole meeting was given over to the temperance question as it was applied to children of school age. Miss Clara Banton, supervisor of the kindergartens of the city, was the second speaker of the evening, giving an interesting talk on habit forming.

do in books. I don't believe you love him a bit." Jane looked modestly at the carpet which was of a lively shade of crimson. "I'm afraid I don't," she said, in a very small voice.

An unbecoming flush mounted to Daphne's cheeks. "I don't know how you've got the face," she said. Much to Jane's relief, she withdrew from her to the farthest corner of the sofa, and then glared.

"Poor Arnold! Aunt Ethel always did say you were silly. She always said she would trust you a yard. She paused, sniffed, and then added, in what was meant for a tone of great dignity: "And please, whom has Arnold married?"

"Her name is Jane, I believe," said Jane, with a tremor. At this moment she became aware that Lady Heritance had risen to her feet. Mrs. Cottingham's voice clamored for attention.

"Oh, Lady Heritance, not without your tea! It won't be a moment. Indeed, I couldn't dream of letting you go like this. Just a cup of tea, you know, so refreshing. Indeed, it would distress me to think of your facing that long drive without your tea."

Raymond stood perfectly still, her face waxed, and unresponsive. "I am afraid my time is not my own," she said, and crossed the room to where the two girls were sitting. They both rose, Daphne with a jerk. They both looked at a photograph frame.

"I am afraid I must interrupt your talk," said Lady Heritance. "Were you living school triumphs over again? I suppose you went off all the prizes between you?"

If there was irony in the indifferent voice, Miss Todhunter was not aware of it. She laughed rather loudly, and said: "Renata never won a prize in her life."

"Oh!" said Raymond, with a lift of the brows. "I am surprised. I pictured her always at the head of her class, and winning everything." Daphne laughed again. She was still angry.

"I'm afraid she's been putting on side," she said. "Why, Miss Basing would have fainted with surprise if she had found Renata anywhere near the top of anything. Or me either," she added, with reluctant honesty.

"Miss Molloy," said Raymond, "ask Mrs. Cottingham if she will let us know that we are ready," and as Jane moved away, she continued: "I should have thought her language now."

In giving the children a healthy environment, for proper habit formation, Miss Banton felt that the school and W. C. T. U. had a common ground.

Miss Rosamund Duff of Toronto, provincial organizer for the W.C.T.U., was the third speaker for the evening. Miss Duff believes that a future temperate Canada is dependent on the education of the young people of today along the lines of temperance. And her biggest effort is toward organizing young people's branches of the W.C.T.U. Vocal solos by Miss Winnifred Mack also featured the program. M. H. Moorhouse occupied the chair.

CLUB NEWS

GIRLS' WORK BOARD. At a meeting of the executive of the Girls' Work Board, held yesterday afternoon at "Lennox," King street, plans were made to hold a general meeting of the board on April 2. This will take the form of a supper meeting, and Miss Mosley Williams will be asked to gather together the main points given through the recent training course and present them to the meeting. Her talk will be followed by a play.

Final plans for the rally to be held in May will be made, as well as arrangements for the awarding of the cups. This will be given for the best year's work and for the best missionary effort in the way of a pageant of play.

Following the meeting the members will go in a body to Dundas Center church to hear Trevor Davies speak.

MANOR PARK MOTHERS. "The Modern Mother and Her Daughter" was the subject of an inspiring talk delivered before the Manor and Highland Park mothers' clubs by Mrs. James M. Chalmers. At the meeting held this week, the speaker came out frankly and said that she liked the appearance of bobbed hair and during her talk championed the modern girl. Mothers and daughters were criticized for lack of companionship.

The program included a violin solo by Miss Leslie Williams, with Miss Miriam Gardner as accompanist; readings by Miss Elsie Dorland and vocal solos by Miss Vera Penny. A social hour followed the meeting, over which Mrs. A. Andrews presided.

HARRIET BOOMER CHAPTER. At yesterday's meeting of the Harriet Boomer chapter, held at the home of Mrs. Everett Logan, Elmwood avenue, the final payment toward the chapter's objective for the War Memorial hospital was made. This $150 brings the total amount given up to $2,100, which will endow a cot at the hospital.

Arrangements were made for a home-cooking sale to be held at the Hydras Shop on Saturday, with Miss Maybelle Purdon and Miss Dorothy Silverwood as convener. Mrs. William Purdon, regent, presided, while Mrs. William Boug officiated at the tea hour.

WORTLEY ROAD CLUB. Mrs. H. A. Winnett gave her interesting address on "Democracy in the Home" at last night's meeting of the Wortley road mothers' club, over which Mrs. E. W. Wray presided. The program also included attractive numbers as follows: Readings by Miss Bernice Volk; violin solo by Master Dennis Chapman; piano selections by Master F. Versteeg; vocal solos by Frank Bondy, with Charles Percy as accompanist; numbers from the London Normal school boys club, double quartet, with Mr. Percy as accompanist.

For April the meeting will be changed to the Easter holidays. Following the program, a social hour was held.

UNIVERSITY WOMEN. Miss Helen Patterson and Miss Dorothy McCann were the speakers at last night's meeting of the university women's club, which again dealt with the league of nations. Miss Patterson gave an excellent position of the International Bureau of Labor, while Miss McCann's subject was "Disarmament," which she handled with skill. At the close of the meeting, which was held at Playerscroft, coffee was served.

The next meeting will have for its speaker, Mr. Collins of the staff of the University of Ontario, whose subject will be Georgian poetry. This meeting has been advanced a week on account of the holiday and will be held on Tuesday, April 7.

PORT STANLEY GUILD. A well attended meeting of the ladies' guild of Christ church, Port Stanley, was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Long. The ladies of the guild are preparing for the shamrock sale to be held on the 17th of this month in the parish room of the church. This affair promises to be one of the largest teas ever given by a women's organization of Port Stanley.

On Friday night the regular Lenten service will be in the church, Rev. J. R. Bythell, the rector, occupying the pulpit. Following the service the choir will hold a practice of the "Crucifixion," an Easter composition, which is to be given around Easter.

WEDDINGS

DYKEMAN-BOLTON. A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bolton of Shetland at high noon on Wednesday, March 4, when their youngest daughter, Miss Dykeman, was married to George Arthur Dykeman of Royal Oak, Mich., son of Mr. Joseph Dykeman of Oakdale.

The Rev. Mr. Bell of Bothwell performed the ceremony in the presence of about thirty guests. The bride entered the parlor, leaning on the arm of her father, charmingly gowned in white snowflake satin trimmed with ostrich. She wore a bridal veil caught with orange blossoms and took her place under an arch of evergreens and roses.

The bridal pair were attended by Mr. W. E. Short and Miss Mae Dykeman of Oakdale. After a wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Dykeman left for a short wedding trip, the bride travelling in a blue flat crepe dress and brown coat, with hat to match. On their return they will reside in Royal Oak, Mich.

WILLIAMS-BISHOP. A quiet wedding took place at the Ridout street Methodist parsonage on March 10 at 6 o'clock, when Miss Genevieve Bishop of this city was united in marriage to Mr. Leslie Williams of West Nisour. The Rev. J. A. Agnew officiated.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Exclusiveness In Clothes Provided By Tailors Marks The Good Dresser

Hundreds of One-Suit Bolts of Cloth On Shelves of London's High-Class Merchant Tailor Shops Assures Customers Exclusiveness in Design.

EXPERT WORKMANSHIP IS ASSURED

On a bright spring day four thousand years ago John Stone Axe clubbed a leopard to death. Not long after he emerged from his cavern wearing the first leopard skin suit that had been seen in those parts.

By that single act he achieved distinction. He left something to the world. He at once became the center of an admiring crowd of cave women and men.

He was attired in something new, something of rich material, color and design. He had stepped beyond the ordinary bear skins of the day. He was as a man set apart so far as the artistry of dress was concerned. He was not of the multitude. It was granted that there was something distinctive about him, and they gave him credit for it.

Scientists claim that the feeling for exclusiveness in clothes has been handed down from remote times. Master tailors say that the truth of it is quite obvious. They ask the question:

"Are there not suits turned out by the score, by the thousand, all of a kind, all of a pattern. And are there not the beautiful creations of perfectly constructed clothes of exclusive design made by custom tailors?"

Proof Lies Here.

"The proof lies here, in London," says a local merchant tailor. Carefully laid away in several show cases in his store are upwards of 350 suitings for men. In each bolt of cloth there is the making of a coat, a vest and two pair of trousers. There are no two suitings alike. They are products of the looms of England, Ireland, Scotland and France. There are no other patterns like them between Hamilton and Detroit. In other words they are exclusive.

But bringing into the city the choicest materials is only the beginning of bringing about a suit which is to brand the wearer, and the maker for that matter, as a man of taste and discernment.

"Our profession is that of an architect of the human form," said a prominent custom tailor yesterday. "We cover the defects of man—and he has many. We make him appear normal. His lower shoulder is levelled with a higher one. We, as designers do improve on nature's unkindness to men."

Even though a man possessed the ideal figure, the tailor went on to say that only the tailor, "His Tailor," could properly look after his personal requirements in the intimate matter of clothes.

The Man of Taste.

A man may have a 36 chest and the shoulders of an ox. His taste may run to a different lapel than that featured by the clothier.

Many are the arguments in favor of strictly hand-tailored clothes made inside and out for one man only: that is the man who is going to wear the suit. London's merchant tailors say that they make it a matter of business to study the build of their customers. They give thought to the pockets, the suitable lapel for the type of man; the correct length of the coat and sleeves; the quality, color and pattern suited to the customer's build or complexion. The tailor measures his patron. The views of the customer and manufacturer are blended. They talk over the relative merits of the tweed or the worsted as to the one case in point. After the measurements come the actual making, then the fittings. With each one there is a toning up until the structure of an unusually good suit is rendered complete.

No Two Alike.

Since there are no two human beings alike, and since the discriminating man is privy to this, he naturally gravitates to the man he is pleased to term, "My Tailor."

True there are some who still maintain that clothes do not make the man, but men are quickly shaking off that worn-out idea as one circumstance after another proves to them that the world respects immaculate attire.

"Signs are not wanting that a new era is about to dawn for the tailor. On every side is heard more about 'good dressing.' It is the opinion of a well-known tailor. He says that men of the country have been taught to cloak down upon dress; to think of men of taste and refinement, who have considered dress as an art as somewhat effeminate. This notion is fast disappearing.

Win Confidence.

The working tailor considers the permanent customer as something that really counts in any established house. He believes in winning the confidence of the cultured man through the merit of his merchandise, and in his personal interest in the patron's sartorial welfare.

This is one of the chief assets of the tailor. It is the goodwill of the satisfied customer that is the backbone of his business. When a man speaks of a tailor as "My Tailor," he is expressing the satisfaction that the tailor is striving for. It is a compliment paid to the craftsman's knowledge of trade, of fabrics, of his judgment and advice as well as the product he sells.

That London has establishments where the fine art of tailors has reached a high state of perfection,

Convict Earns $35,000 In Jail

Associated Press Despatch. Baltimore, Mo., March 10.—Burton M. Morgan, under sentence of five years in the state penitentiary for passing a worthless check, has netted himself $35,000 through the operation of a mail list agency, which he worked under the approval of the prison warden. Today his business was closed, the state welfare board having ordered that he must cease his operations.

The board expressed its disapproval of any prisoner having outside business connections.

WARM DAY RECORD IS SET FOR YEAR

62 Degrees Above Zero Registered by Thermometer in London Yesterday.

Yesterday was the warmest day Londoners have experienced this year. The thermometer at the height of its climb showed 62 degrees above zero, considered to be a real record for that date. The lowest temperature of the day was 33. To make the day more summerlike, London and district were visited by the first electrical storm of the year.

But the electrical storm may mean the coming of cold weather, according to the weatherman. Manitoba experienced one of its heaviest and severest blizzards in recent years yesterday. According to reports the blizzard is sweeping eastward, pushed by a 30-mile wind, and is expected to reach this district within the next few hours.

As Sir George Paish Sees It.

Sir George Paish, outstanding British financier, spoke plainly of world conditions when addressing the Hamilton Canadian Club. There is one advantage of having the advice of such a man on conditions in Britain, France, Germany, Russia—he knows what he is talking about and his views can be accepted with a degree of finality that can be accorded to but few men today.

Staunch Britisher though he is, Sir George takes a fair view of conditions in other countries. Where there is distress he says so, and if need for assistance exists he also states that fact. He is not impressed with the idea of nations building high and higher tariff walls as the means for bringing about better conditions, because he knows that the cycle of successful business consists of buying as well as selling.

There is a feeling in Britain as well as in Canada that there should be no trade with Germany. We would be willing to sell to Germany provided we could be sure of the money, but buying from that country is a different matter. Sir George Paish believes that Germany must have a market for the goods she makes, otherwise her people cannot buy raw materials and food, and in such a condition her people would be forced to a point of starvation.

France is having an uneven struggle to maintain the value of the franc. She is not receiving anything like she expected from German reparations; her occupation of the Ruhr was a colossal and expensive blunder. Her war debt is a staggering burden, and she cannot begin to discharge it and maintain anything approaching a balanced budget.

Sir George does not relish the outlook of an impoverished and disgruntled Russia and Germany, together with Japan feeling she is not recognized by western powers. He fears that a continuance of such conditions may drive these three nations together, and the outcome of such an alliance is no more pleasing to him than to the rest of the world.

Although he did not say so explicitly, it is easy to see that the British financier would favor a sweeping reduction of allied war debts because they are working too great a hardship on those least able to pay them. He was too discreet to suggest that United States should give some leadership in the matter, and too typically British to complain that Britain was paying her debt but was unable to collect from her debtors, but the fact is that a big, world-wide view by United States on this point would greatly relieve a situation that is making it difficult for business to return to normal volume.

Sir George Paish is not merely a capable financial observer, but an apostle of good relations based on fair dealing between the nations. He speaks plainly and with authority, and for that reason should be urged to appear at as many places as his time will permit.

Not a Wholesome Sign.

One of the officials of the coal company in Nova Scotia where the strike is on has declared that conditions are getting better every day from the company's standpoint, adding that "the men can't stand the gas."

If that is the basis on which the issue is to be determined the outlook is not bright for the future. If the men are beaten because "they can't stand the gas" it means they will return and work until such time as they can stand it, and when that time comes they will strike.

It's no use covering a running sore with a rag and remarking, "Well, that's attended to."

There is an accumulation of evidence to show that things are radically wrong some place around the mines, and it is the plain duty of the government, as trustees of the people, to uncover the whole business, and not quit until it puts a finger on the root of the trouble. The fact that there is a strike or a lockout in the field does not alter this fact—it is simply a challenge for decisive action by the authorities.

Done In the Name of Faith.

A story coming from Wingham, of the burning of ten pigs on an altar built of rails as a thanksgiving sacrifice for the recovery of a woman, has some of the weird qualities that show in what peculiar manner the workings of a human mind in this advanced civilization will occasionally find expression.

An alleged faith healer, according to the story, was secured in the home during the illness of the wife and mother, and so overjoyed was the husband at her recovery that he consented to the idea of the burnt sacrifice.

For several days neighbors could smell the burning flesh of the sacrificed hogs, and investigation resulted in the faith healer appearing before the mayor of Wingham. The authorities apparently failed to see the connection between the recovery of a sick woman and the pile of roasting pigs. It may have been that their faith was a trifle weak on this score.

But the fact remains that this faith healer and the sick woman's husband did believe it, and the husband is described not as peculiar in any manner, but as an industrious, hard-working farmer who has had considerable success in his own business.

There have been strange things done in the name of faith healing, and it is a point on which the religious leaders of today are by no means united. There are some who abruptly dismiss the idea as nonsense, and again there are those who cling tenaciously to it, and point to cases that have come under their observation where it has operated successfully.

The average man may or may not be somewhat of a skeptic on this point, but he will still be wondering what a pile of rails and ten burning pigs have to do with the case after the cure has taken place. It is too much to expect people to believe that such a spectacle was the expression of a normal mind for a divine deliverance. There must be a screw loose some place.

Friendship vs. Business.

London life insurance underwriters had a visitor from Detroit at their convention who holds what is probably a record for the amount of business written in a year. His figures run into the millions.

One point he made clear in discussing his methods was that he considered it a waste of time going around "getting acquainted." This statement may come as a surprise to many, as the belief is held, rightly or wrongly, that a large personal acquaintance is one of the secrets of salesmanship. Mr. Thomas states it is a waste of time, and he has proved his point by writing a larger amount of insurance than any other man.

It also opens the question as to how far a person is justified in using the latchstring of personal acquaintance to gather business for himself. After all the average buyer of insurance or anything else is primarily concerned with what he is going to get for his investment, and the friendship business probably does not count for so much as many may have imagined.

Source of Inspiration In Danger.

Toronto people may find themselves with no ferry boats running to their island this season. At least that's the threat of the ferry company.

That would be serious in more ways than one. From a political standpoint it would be ruinous. When the debates were on at Ottawa some years ago about a Canadian navy the members from Toronto posed as naval experts, and their knowledge of battleships was drawn largely from viewing the Mayflower, the Trillium and the Green Onion work their way through the banana and orange peelings of Toronto Bay, breast the storm of the open sea and land safely in some haven at the island a whole mile away.

Port Stanley Concessions.

If there is a definite move to grant Port Stanley catering and picnic ground privileges to private contractors, the idea should be thoroughly considered before being put into effect. If there is money to be made from these concessions the city is entitled to every bit of it, and the L. & P. S. needs it to help out during a season when business has been none too brisk.

A private contractor could not do anything that the city, through its commissioners, could not accomplish. There might also be complications from having any other combination handling the business at the Port.

Past experience in connection with the road shows that the more leases and sub-leases there were the more trouble was brought to pass. The arrangements last season were very satisfactory, and good accommodation was supplied. There is nothing to be gained by the commission allowing any of these matters to get out of their own hands.

Note and Comment.

Sap doesn't run very well when the east wind blows, neither does a man with a rheumatic leg.

Overheated furnaces are a menace, says the fire marshal, but you can't help envying the chap who has enough coal this time of year to overheat the furnace.

Toronto despatch describes a woman's condition as being "serious, but not dangerous." In the same category, we suppose, a business might be "prosperous, but not profitable."

Election investigation proceeds at St. Catharines, indicating some odd work in the mulberry bushes. A bountiful injection of common honesty would save considerable aftermath.

New York robbers broke into a married woman's apartment, and robbed her as well as a strange man who was paying her a visit. Old-timers used to call that the law of retribution.

California is going to fine pedestrians $50 for crossing the streets and roads at other places than corners. This will make the work of motorists so much easier, as it's nicer to run into them in groups rather than bowling them over one at a time.

The editor of the St. Thomas Times-Journal wonders whether whiskers are returning. He takes a wide view of the case, and recalls the whiskered giants of other days, but for the life of him he can't give a definite answer to the question he propounds. Still it's a fact that the masculine section of the world puts forth a tremendous effort every day in keeping whiskers from returning.

The world has lost a great musician in the death of Moritz Moszkowski. This country knew little of him as a teacher or performer, but much as a composer of impressive, compelling piano work. Moszkowski was financially ruined by the war and had been in recent years helped by Paderewski, Bauer and many of his pupils. It is possible that many of his works are played with little knowledge of the tragedy that in his later years came upon the composer.

Rain-Face Comes

He be a-tellin' what he sees from roamin' bushes through and through, but I be doubtin' what he says, a-thinkin' most of it ain't true.

Old Rain-Face he come in today a-sellin' baskets down the street, him droppin' in to rest a spell, me askin' him to have a seat. For Rain-Face he be the man who say when it be hazy like last fall, as how the snow it would depart, us havin' scarce no cold at all.

And I be mindful of the way he fooled me on the weather then, preparin' for to blast at him lest he be foolin' me again.

But he be old in years and bent, him stayin' in when days was cold, me thinkin' it be harsh to scoff at them what's reachin' years that's old.

So Rain-Face says as how he be a-roamin' in the bush this week, a-notin' how the ice she thaw and moves from out his beaver creek. Likewise he saw a chipmunk too, him gazin' on its bushy tail, that bein' a sign of early spring old Rain-Face say she never fail.

He gazed upon the sky he did, he squinted at the new-born moon, him notin' how the shadow lie when sun be ridin' high at noon.

When he be walkin' through the bush he comes across a basswood tree, him breakin' off a twig or two and fetchin' in the sprouts to me, remarkin' how he seen the geese a-flockin' on a pond near him, regardin' this as certain like how spring she be a-movin' in.

Rain-Face he cheered me up a spell, me hopin' how he says was so, him risin' up from off his chair, remarkin' it be time to go.

Me sittin' back and smilin' some, until I reads the probs that day, a-sayin' how the wind she blow and colder stuff be on the way—how snow be fallin' in the west and trains be stuck because of storm, if Rain-Face be about just now I'd tramp my feet upon his corn.

He be a fakir to me now, a-lyin' to us honest folk, me thinkin' most of time how he be sittin' in his tent to smoke.—ARK.

To the Editor

What's Happened the Mayor?

Old-Timer Thinks His Worship Has Lost Some of His Brimstone When It Comes to Handling the Street Railway.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—Perhaps you can tell me what's become of the warlike mayor we had a while ago, especially in his attitude toward the street railway? He used to boast that he was the one man who could carry out judgment against the road, and that he seized the property once, and would do so again. I remember in his inaugural year ago he was going to handle the street car company without his mittens on, or something like that, but now I see he is vowing to give the company what it asks for. It looks to me as though the fire was running rather low.

Mud On the Aldermen.

Pedestrian Who Uses King Street Bridge Believes a Good Splashing on City Officials Would Work Wonders.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—I wish some of the aldermen would take a walk over the bridge at the end of King street, and about the time they were there a car came along and splashed mud all over them. Or if it were in summer when there is plenty of oil on the street and it happens to be raining and sloppy—that would serve the purpose just as well, for a dose of oil would be about as good for them as a splashing of mud.

The entrance to that bridge has been a disgrace for a couple of years back, and people who have occasion to use the bridge have become weary of asking that the place be attended to. That is why I would like the aldermen to stand there in a row some day when a car is passing. The chances are we would get some action then.

Thinks the Case Was Weak.

Attempt on Part of Government to Bolster Up Case By Quoting Dr. Carman and Late Dr. Potts Is Scored.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir,—Many thanks for the consistent course pursued by The Advertiser, and for its sane editorials on the present crisis in the temperance reform. It is surely a crisis. It has come to pass that the opinion of Ferguson and Nickle is to count for more than the expressed wish of a majority of 35,000. What time or effort have they given to aid this work in the years that are gone that they should set themselves up as wiser than men, good and true, who have worked, prayed and paid for the past 30 or 40 years? In their addresses in the house there was not a high moral note sounded and the issue was belittled and sidestepped. And if it were not so serious it would be amusing to hear their varied statements re the strength of the proposed beer. For myself, I would not spend a moment in arguing the point, for if it suits McCausland, Currie, Godfrey, McDermid, etc., that is enough to condemn it.

The purpose of this brief note is to report a meeting held in Calgary, Alta., a few days ago, where the effect of the moderate temperance parades has been at work for the past few months. They declared that the four per cent beer would not intoxicate (during the referendum campaign of 1923). The temperance convention reported that "public drunkenness was greatly on the increase, to say nothing of the greatly increased drinking in the privacy of the home and of the club." Of course that would be true. If not, why do the brewers and their friends fight for it? A determined effort is to be put forth looking toward the establishment of prohibition in Alberta at the earliest possible opportunity.

I hope Mr. G. H. Ferguson's speech in the house will be taken up and dealt with, item by item, by some one well qualified to expose its fallacies and misrepresentations. Who ever heard of Dr. Carman making a statement that could be used by the opponents of temperance? And yet Mr. Ferguson quoted him, as did one of his predecessors, who quoted Dr. Potts in the same way, but Dr. Potts was alive to deny the allegation, while Dr. Carman is not. It is a weak cause that needs to resort to such dishonorable tactics. Yours truly, A CONSTANT READER.
St. Thomas, March 6.

HAMILTON MAN GETS FORTUNE FROM SIRE HE DID NOT KNOW

James Serda To Sail Soon To Claim Estate of Don Alvarez.

WORTH $300,000

Heir Formerly Lived at Cochrane—Located by Advertisement Friend Saw.

Canadian Press Despatch. Hamilton, March 10.—James Serda, 77 Hughson street north, this city, who recently learned that he was being sought as heir to an estate in Spain, valued at $300,000, now has confirmation that Don Vincio Alvarez, who died last year in Spain, has made him his sole heir.

Serda, who is employed by the C. N. R., was formerly at Cochrane in the railway service. There he married, and expects shortly to leave with his wife to take over his estate. The only parents he knew in Spain were the Serdas, who raised him, and whom he affectionately remembers, but it was generally known in the village of Pesaz, where they resided, that he was a son of Alvarez, he has since learned.

The first he learned of his good fortune was through an advertisement in a Toronto paper, through which the lawyers who drew up the will sought to learn of the company which it asked for.

It was not known by him where that he had left Cochrane for Hamilton, but the advertisement fell under

Lowest Grain Rates in the World

CANADA possesses the greatest railway mileage per capita of any country in the world.

Operating and construction costs are as high or higher in Canada than in any other country.

Costs of materials and supplies of all kinds are as high or higher in Canada than in any other country.

Railway wages in Canada are practically on a level with those of the United States.

Canadian Pacific rates on grain are the lowest in the world. And 55 per cent of its western traffic is grain.

Compare these rates on grain with those in the United States:

Calgary to Vancouver	641.7 miles	22½ cents per cwt.
Nyack to Seattle	643 "	32 " " "
Edmonton to Vancouver	765.4 "	22½ " " "
Shelby, Mont., to Seattle	765.8 "	32 " " "
Viking, Alta., to Vancouver	844.2 "	25 " " "
Vaughan, Mont., to Seattle	852.9 "	32 " " "

These rates, applying on the Canadian Pacific, have been adopted by the Railway Commission as the standard rates for all roads from the prairies to the coast.

The rates quoted above are for west-bound grain traffic. A comparison of rates on east-bound traffic shows even greater disparity between Canadian and United States rates, in favor of the Canadian shipper, as the following shows:—

Winnipeg to Fort William	420 miles	14 cents per cwt.
Leeds, N. Dakota, to Duluth	417 "	19½ " " "
Maple Creek, Sask., to Fort William	1013 "	23 " " "
Galata, Mont., to Duluth	1014 "	43 " " "
Calgary, Alta., to Fort William	1243 "	25 " " "
Rexford to Duluth	1254 "	51½ " " "

In 1923, with a huge grain crop, Canadian Pacific earnings per ton per mile on its western lines were .89 of a cent, while its eastern lines earned 1.11 cents.

Tons per mile handled on western lines in 1923 amounted to 1,788 as against 3,636 on eastern lines.

Advocates of "equalized" rates take into consideration only one factor—grades.

Cost of construction, return on investment, increased operating expenses due to longer mileage, density and character of traffic—all these are left out of the reckoning.

If these items must be left out of consideration in fixing grain rates from the prairies to the coast, how are they to be provided for?

Is the loss on grain traffic to be made up by higher rates on other commodities? Is it to be charged on traffic in some other part of the country or is the government to collect it in taxes from all the people?

The Canadian Pacific cannot avoid paying its capital obligations. It must earn those charges out of its business of transporting traffic.

It asks only a fair consideration of the situation by the people of Canada. There is no mystery about railroad-ing. It is a business of cost and profit just as is any other business, grain growing or manufacturing. There is only one way to meet operating expenses and capital charges—by earnings from traffic.

FAMILY OF FIVE LIVES SIMPLY BUT TASTES LIFE'S JOYS BECAUSE MOTHER GUIDES $22.50 SALARY

Happy Wife Reveals How Her Budget Provides Healthy Food, Satisfies Youth's Desire For Good Clothes, Pays Husband's Insurance and Yet Allows Healthy Amusement
For Each Member of Family.

MILK PROVES ONLY LARGE PURCHASE

"We have never run in debt yet and we are not going to, but I want to tell you that the biggest problem in our house is how to get good, wholesome meals three times a day and keep within our allowance."

That was the statement of a London mother living near Adelaide street, when she discussed with The Advertiser in an intimate way the managing of a home where the income was $22.50 per week and where there are three children to care for, as well as the mother and father.

It would surprise some of the families in the city to know how accurately and carefully this mother keeps record of her family expenses, and how she plans to make every cent count. It would be a revelation to some of the homes where the income is much greater to know how it is done, how there is not a bill unpaid. But it takes careful management; it means that this home has to deny its members many of the things that other places have come to consider as necessities.

"We think we are rather fortunate because work has been steady this year for my husband, and he has earned $22.50 a week right along. In a number of the houses on this street they are not nearly as well off as we are, and it is no fault of the people, it is because the men haven't had steady work, and when they are laid off for a while it does not take long to run up bills. The hard part is the catching up again. We went through that a couple of years ago and we know what it means.

Rent Per Week.

"We pay $20 a month rent, which figures out at $4.50 per week."

That idea of reckoning rent by the week was a new one, but it shows how closely this manager of a family was watching the expenses that had to be provided for each week. Her explanation was: "I find it best to put the rent away each week instead of leaving it for the end of the month, when it would take almost the whole week's pay. Talking out the rent brings us down to $17.99 a week that is left. In 1924 our light and gas bills averaged $1.15 per week, leaving $16.75. In that year our coal bill was $98, which I think is quite small, but we managed to get along on that, so that is another $1.90 per week, bringing the amount left per week down to $14.85.

"My husband has $1,000 insurance which he took out some time ago, and it costs $26 per year, or exactly 50c a week. We don't spend any more than we can help on car fare, but on rainy days, and when I go down town it is because the men haven't had be a little off on my figures here, but I am sure it is not over 60 cents a week, so with the insurance it is $1 a week, leaving $13.85, according to my figures.

Cut Down Fine.

"In that list I don't think there is anything we could cut down any finer, or that could be charged as unnecessary. The rent, light, gas, heat, we must have, as well as water. We might do without the insurance, but we don't think we should. It makes us feel a little safer in case anything should happen.

"I guess we are like a number of other families, where the father and mother go easy on clothing in order to look after the children. Last year we spent between us $88. That was all and it included a suit for him and a dress for myself, as well as our boots and underwear. He can't afford to pay very high prices for a suit of clothes, yet like every other man he wants to look respectable on Sundays or in the evenings. Of course, at his work he wears a suit, and the $88 took in a couple of pairs for the year.

"For myself, I find I can get the best results by watching for bargains in women's wear, and I am not too particular about the style being right up to the last word. But that takes another $1.15 a week for clothing for my husband and me, leaving our income at $11.98 per week, and we have done nothing for the children yet. They are all at school and, of course, we want our children to look decent, because if they went to school shabby they would feel it very soon because others would soon tell them about it.

"Makes Clothes.

"You know perhaps how children will go through boots. We try always to buy strong, plain footwear for them, and we also believe in getting them repaired to make them last longer. Some of the clothing I make myself, but there is nothing a boy likes better than a store suit, and one boy is at that stage now, but so far I have made the clothing for the other lad and the girl myself, but I'm afraid the second boy will be after what he calls a store suit pretty soon. Last year it cost us $53 to clothe the children, and that included six pairs of shoes, as well as a pair of rubbers each, one suit and an overcoat, a couple of sweaters and the material I used in making dresses for the little girl, so to get back to my way of counting so much per week, that amounted to another dollar, leaving us with about $10.70 before we start to put anything on the table.

"Now there is one item that you may think is rather high, and that is the milk bill, which averages $1.40 a week, because we use two quarts every day, and I have always found that milk was good for the children, and I really don't think it would pay us to cut down on that bill because I don't know of anything to take its place. That leaves $9.30.

105 Meals a Week.

"Did you ever stop to think that for a family of five, all of them healthy and well, it takes 15 meals a day, or 105 in a week, and with $9.30 it means that I must serve meals that do not cost quite nine cents each, or there is not going to be a cent left over for the little extras that must be reckoned on. That is where my biggest problem comes in, and we can have plain, wholesome food, because I am certain it is the best investment we can make.

"I have seen some of the grocers and butchers would figure it out for me, and tell me just what they can do to solve my problem, because it does get a little wearisome all the time planning and trying to have a little variety and still keep out of debt. I imagine I know all there is in a butcher's store by now, and have a pretty fair idea of how to buy groceries to advantage. If they can show me how I can shop to any better advantage or make my money go a little farther I'd be very glad to listen.

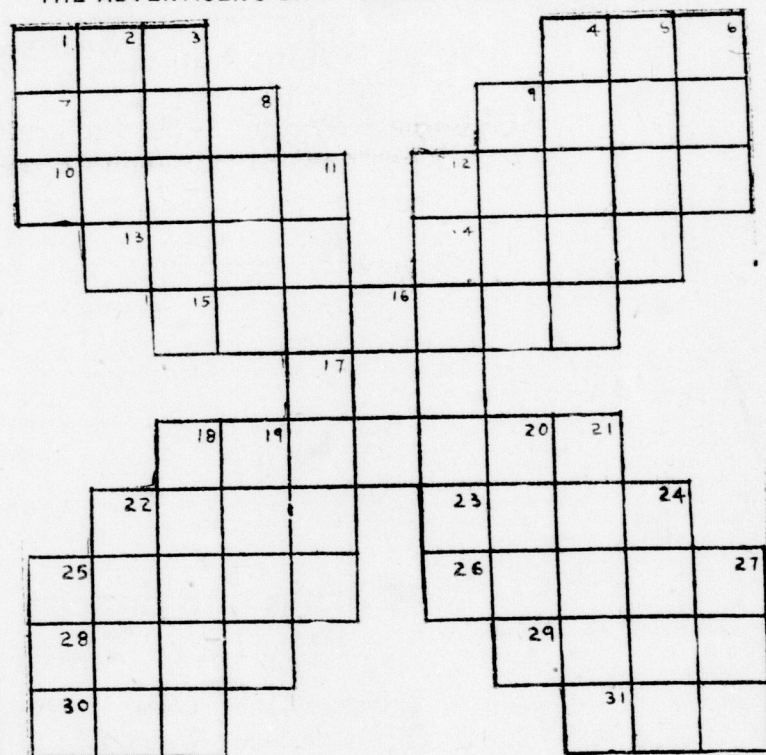

"Now that is my story in a pretty correct way as to how we run our house on $22.50 per week, clothe father, mother and three little ones, feed them and keep them warm. You can't blame me, can you, if I am just a little proud at times of the fact that we have done it and don't owe a bill. You asked what we'd do in case of sickness; well, we never worry in this house about things that may never come."

ARAB-URAL

The title of this puzzle is the solution to a word or group of words appearing in this puzzle. Can you find them? Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical) according to position. Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock. Each number in the white squares also refers to a definition in the accompanying table.

Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white spaces allotted to it. Each white space is to receive one letter only. Words start only in numbered squares.

COMMITTEES LOP $20,000 FROM BUDGETS FOR YEAR

35 Mills As 1925 Tax Rate
Now Seems Likely.

HOSPITAL CUT $12,000

Further Reductions Will Be Attempted at Subsequent Meetings.

Meetings of major committees of the city council last night dealt with expense proposals for the first time this year, and several items were lopped off in the preliminary skirmishes. Further cuts will be imposed later in order to keep the rate down, though the most optimistic statements now indicate 35 mills as the 1925 rate. About $20,000 was cut last night, and more cuts will be necessary.

The axe was first wielded at a special meeting of No. 1 committee last night, when $12,000 increase in Victoria hospital estimates was voted down on the motion of Mayor Wenlock. A $300 police department increase was struck out, and opposition shown to $30,000 extra cost in the fire department for equipment; $2,500 for cadet uniforms in public schools was frowned on by labor members.

Aitken Renews Fight.

Fire Chief John Aitken renewed his fight for improved equipment and full pay for his men. Complete departmental estimates were given at the meeting. However, $30,700 of this increase would be caused through the purchase of a new triple combination pumper truck and a new switchboard for the alarm system. The chief declares that both these items are necessary for the modernized efficiency of the force.

"Strike out the pumper now," moved the mayor. "Do you think that's good business?" asked Ald. Edwin Smith, and the mayor was alone in the vote to cut out the pumper. The mayor also voiced single-handed objection to improving the alarm system. In answer to a query by Ald. L. H. Douglass, it was pointed out by City Treasurer James Bell that the pumper truck could be paid for by means of a debenture issue, but the switchboard would have to be bought by this year's taxes.

Juvenile Court Escapes.

Juvenile court department went unscathed last night, no objection being raised to the $1,200 item for Judge Warner's salary. There was no expression of opinion on the matter. The police department figures were pared a bit, Chief Birrell's recommendation for three new men meeting with disapproval. That cut off the chief's supplementary estimate of $4,364.10. The chief wanted another man for the street squad and two additional motorcycle officers.

The police estimates that passed the committee amounted to $121,369.94, of which $111,675 represents salary expenditures.

Cadet Uniforms Under Fire.
Objection to $2,500 expenditure for cadet uniforms by the board of education was voiced by Ald. Thomas Clift.

"Call them Boy Scouts and it will be all right," suggested Ald. Smith. "The cadets haven't anything to do with the military," remarked Ald. Carswell. "They simply provide physical training" joined in Ald. Paul Doig. No cut was made in the board of education, though figures were not going into any extent. The estimates show approximately $9,400 additional expense for collegiates, $30,000 for public schools and $23,000 more for the technical school.

Hospital Budget Cut.
On the motion of Mayor Wenlock, himself a member of the hospital trust, $12,000 was lopped off the Victoria hospital proposed expenditure to bring the net expense down to last year's totals. Dr. Douglass pointed out that overhead was just as heavy this year whether there was as much sickness or not, and with less contagion in the city there would be fewer paying patients at the hospital.

The net expenditure recommended by the hospital trust was $155,500. That of last year, and which the mayor recommends, is $143,343. No discussion was entered into on waterworks, public library, market, health department or grants.

Niagara Falls Senior Team Shut Out By Montreal Victorias In First Game

Frasermen Blanked 2 To 0 In Hard-Fought Encounter

Montreal Victorias Fail To Score Until Third Period.

GOAL DISPUTED

Canadian Press Despatch.
Montreal, March 10.—Victorias of Montreal gained a two-goal lead advantage over the smart Niagara Falls hockey team, senior champions of Ontario, here tonight in the first game of the home-and-home series for the elimination round of the Allan cup finals. The game was hard and stern, neither side yielding much until the last session, when Slater and Shibley each counted for the locals. The first two periods were scoreless, and the pace set was dizzy. The frequent use of substitutes served to maintain the speed of the game, and every art known to hockey was tried by each side in an attempt to send in tallies. Both goalies were given all kinds of work, but both were equal to the occasion.

There was no let-up to the game whatever, a ding-dong battle being staged throughout, nor was it decided until the final whistle was sounded. Some question arose as to the legality of Slater's goal, the Falls claiming that the puck had been kicked in, but the referee allowed it. The score came 12 minutes after the final frame had begun, and with only eight minutes to go. The Falls made desperate efforts to tie it. But Victorias were also all for points, and when Shibley slashed in the second counter on time, the game was well decided.

The line-up:
Niagara Falls—Goal, Mayo; defence, Fraser and Kitchen; centre, Rice; wings, Harrington and Seibert; subs, Penny and Molson.

Victorias—Goal, Scott; defence, Mallinson and Shibley; centre, Anderson; wings, Valois and King; subs, Slater and Barnes.

Referee—Dr. Eddie O'Leary, Ottawa.

ST. MARYS SEXTET DEFEATS GLENCOE

Stove Town Now Plays Port Colborne in Semi-Finals.

St. Marys intermediates entered the semi-final O. H. A. consolation round against Port Colborne by defeating Glencoe here last night by a 6-2 score in a game that was marked by an abundance of clean, hard playing but little rooting. The boys who sell hot dogs went home early because both spectators told him flatly they wouldn't buy any more.

The opening canto was close all the way, and in only one goal was scored this coming near the end when D. Louch gave St. Marys the lead by snapping the rubber in after a pass from Tuer. The Scotchman tried hard all the time, and on several occasions narrowly lost out when the Stone Town net guardian cleared them away from close in and took long drives in the same easy way. Arlie Davenport's amateur hockey stick was much in evidence as usual, and the St. Marys' neckers had little luck in stopping the diminutive Glencoe defence man once he got going.

St. Marys added the more tallies in the second frame to put the affair on ice. Brown, who played a great game all the time he was on, gave the first two, and Tuer accounted for the third shortly before the bell. It was in this period that the Glencoe 2 counter materialized. Davenport got it.

The pace began to slacken in the final stanza, but despite this both outfits ran in two goals each. D. Louch and Tuer were the scorers for the Stone Town, while Weaver and Wall counted for Glencoe.

The teams:
St. Marys—Goal, Sims; defence, Tuer and Ruch; centre, Zimmerman; wings, W. Louch and D. Louch; subs, Brown and Newman.

Glencoe—Goal, McMillan; defence, Wall and Davenport; centre, Weaver; wings, Adair and Smith; sub, Weaver. Referee—Sid Rankin.

ST. MARYS PLANNING INTERMEDIATE CLUB

Stone Town Team Anxious To Play in League This Year.

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Marys, March 10.—Prospects for baseball in St. Marys this year appear to be very bright, judging from the large number of enthusiastic supporters who attended an organization meeting last night, when it was decided to enter an O. A. B. A. team in the intermediate class. Last year a good team was formed here, but it was unable to gain admission to any league and a number of exhibition games were played with Stratford and London nines, when the local team showed up well. This year there is no lack of first-class material, with some 20 available prospects, including three or four pitchers, from which there should be no difficulty in securing a team that will put up a good class of ball.

R. H. Harstone was appointed representative to the meeting to be held in London on Thursday.

ALEXANDER SEEN AS MOSES OF CLUBS

Chicago Nationals' Outfield Still Remains More or Less Uncertain.

By JOHN B. FOSTER. Copyright, 1925.

Availon, Catalina Island, Cal., March 10.—If the Chicago Nationals were as sure of their outfield material as they are of their infield and their pitchers, they would start the 1925 season with more confidence than they have at present—provided any team could have more than they have right now.

Pre-season confidence often is a false alarm, but Chicago reckons upon the good showing the players made last year, plus what more may result if Alexander is a consistent winner for the season.

In 1924, just when they were at their best and it seemed as if they would enter the finish of the season going strong and with enough reserve to put them in the first three up to the final test, Alexander was retarded with a broken bone. Something better is looked for this year, for Alexander is not expected to break the same bone again.

The Cubs' hopes put a big load on Alexander's shoulders, but players with his reputation are expected to carry burdens. It is the penalty of their greatness.

For the outfield there are Heathcote, Stutz, Grigsby and "Hack" Miller. Possibly they will make up as strong an outfield as Pittsburgh's, which is usually excellent on the face of things. But it is about as good as the Cubs will be able to put into the line unless they run afoul of some player with their reputation and they don't appear to have that kind of luck awaiting them.

Stutz has been ill and at one time it was feared he might be coming down with pneumonia. But he is now proving. Stutz did not do as well in 1924 as he promised to do after he had his season in California, but was not in the best of health and that had much to do with his upset.

The Cubs' infield, being able to go over the 300 batting top to insure holding the team in the race. Heathcote, Stutz and Grigsby are good, but they are not a standard 300 batting outfit. Heathcote is not an assured 300 batter by a long shot, but he is speedy and he gets on first a great deal.

If the Cubs had been able to put through that deal with New York, they would have been strong enough in the outfield to have kept every other team on their toes.

The Cubs' field in Chicago is so shaped that a certain 350 batter if he hits to right or right center can raise the mischief with one opposing team. Miller, with his tremendous drives, backstop, and his stout shoulders, can slam the ball over the left field fence at times, but as he is a very free hitter, it is not always certain that he will meet the ball with enough power to hit it beyond the final defence of the other teams.

Grigsby has future. Grigsby has a future ahead of him in baseball. If he were as good a batter as Jimmy Ryan of old Chicago days, he would put the Chicago Cubs in the front running with his batting in and fielding.

It is an odd fact in baseball history that this Chicago team, in its earlier days the hardest hitting team of all baseball, never has been able to run the bases with the same ease as it has in the eighties.

The batters seemed all to drift east, and to this day the Cubs have not been able to turn the tide and bring a bevy of new players from the east. They get one now and then, who shows exceptional strength but they can't get them long enough to make their "one best" fades away into the smoke of the past.

There is a bare chance that Grimm will come to the rescue, but the record that he made when he first tried to be a slugger. If he does Chicago will gain on the trail with Pittsburgh, because the Cubs do need a real old-fashioned horse hide hauler.

Would Value Matty At $25,000

McGraw Terms Matthewson Best Pitcher Yet.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarasota, Fla., March 10.—It was in the lobby of the Sarasota hotel several of the players were discussing the new three-year contract that Denny Vance has agreed to sign with the Brooklyn Robins, calling for a salary of $25,000 a year. John McGraw happened to come along, and the writer put this question to him.

"If Matty was at his best today, what salary do you think he would command from the Giants?"

"At least $25,000 a season," quickly answered the manager, and he would be worth all of that, for he was not only a wonderful pitcher, but a box-office attraction.

"He was the best pitcher that I ever looked at, fully 10 per cent better than any other. Further, he was the easiest pitcher that I ever handled. He would take his orders on a ball field quicker than a rooster."

"Matty never was a hold-out. The highest salary that he ever drew from the New York club for his pitching was $12,000."

TIGER FLOWERS' MANAGER SUSPENDED IN NEW YORK

Associated Press Despatch.
New York, March 10.—Wally Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro middleweight, today was suspended indefinitely, together with his entire stable of boxers, including Flowers, for failure to appear before the New York state athletic commission in answer to a summons. The commission did not announce its reason for summoning Miller, but the ban upon him and his boxers was announced when he failed to put in an appearance.

MEETING TODAY

Opposition To $6,000 Maximum Expense Plan Arises.

Special to The Advertiser.

Flint, March 10.—Directors of the Michigan-Ontario league will gather here tomorrow to draw up the 1925 playing schedule. At the same meeting a time limit for posting of cash forfeits is expected to be set.

There were rumors today that several clubs will ask a re-hearing of a resolution recently approved to reduce the league office operating expenses from $12,000 to $6,000. It was reported that new figures will be produced to show the league cannot successfully run on such a sum, and that a cheaper brand of umpiring than the league has been accustomed to must come if the circuit declines to reconsider.

Discussion of this matter, if it should come, may cause another split in the ranks of the league, it was reported. London demanded the $6,000 at the reorganization meeting several weeks ago. President W. H. Heard claiming his team would not start unless there was a distinct cut-back on expenses. Since that time other clubs have been doing some careful figuring, and the story is that the league cannot operate on that sum.

If the session settles down to a peaceful one, it is expected that Flint, Saginaw and London will name new managers. Less than half the clubs will train away from home, it is understood, as another money-saving proposition.

PAUL BERLENBACH BACKERS GROWING

Predicting Delaney's Victim Will Turn Tables On Habitant.

By FAIR PLAY. Copyright, 1925.

New York, March 10.—It is said that Paul Berlenbach was a mute in his younger days. Climbing a roof to retrieve a lost ball he missed his footing and fell thirty feet to the ground.

A terror-stricken mother who picked him up, according to the story told by his friends, of Paul's, found that the fall had done him more good than harm. Chiefly it had the effect of restoring his power of speech.

Anyway, these days Berlenbach says it with fists. Already the incident has been speculated whether or not Jack Delaney can repeat his knockout of Paul when the two face each other in the early summer.

Already it is evident that a lot of money will be made by those who believe not only that Berlenbach will go the whole route, but may do some knocking out of his own account.

It is not beyond possibilities, that is certain. Berlenbach is a natural fighter, and a long shot, but he is speedy and he gets on first a great deal.

If the Cubs had been able to put through that deal with New York, they would have been strong enough in the outfield to have kept every other team on their toes.

The Cubs' field in Chicago is so shaped that a certain 350 batter if he hits to right or right center can raise the mischief with one opposing team. Miller, with his tremendous drives, backstop, and his stout shoulders, can slam the ball over the left field fence at times, but as he is a very free hitter, it is not always certain that he will meet the ball with enough power to hit it beyond the final defence of the other teams.

Grigsby has future. Grigsby has a future ahead of him in baseball. If he were as good a batter as Jimmy Ryan of old Chicago days, he would put the Chicago Cubs in the front running with his batting in and fielding.

It is an odd fact in baseball history that this Chicago team, in its earlier days the hardest hitting team of all baseball, never has been able to run the bases with the same ease as it has in the eighties.

The batters seemed all to drift east, and to this day the Cubs have not been able to turn the tide and bring a bevy of new players from the east. They get one now and then, who shows exceptional strength but they can't get them long enough to make their "one best" fades away into the smoke of the past.

There is a bare chance that Grimm will come to the rescue, but the record that he made when he first tried to be a slugger. If he does Chicago will gain on the trail with Pittsburgh, because the Cubs do need a real old-fashioned horse hide hauler.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

SAY MAJOR, WHAT WAS THAT CONFIDENTIAL LINE YOU HAD ON YOUR TONGUE, THAT YOU WERE GOING TO ROLL OFF TO ME? I THOUGHT AT FIRST YOU MEANT TO HIT ME WITH THE FISH FOR SOME MONEY!

HMM, OH YES-YES-YES AFTER THINKING THE MATTER OVER, I FELT IT WOULD BE INDISCREET TO TELL YOU! MY WORD—YOU SEE, IT IS OF SUCH IMPORTANCE, SHOULD JUST THE SLIGHTEST MENTION OF IT LEAK OUT, I FEAR IT WOULD CAUSE INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS—POSSIBLY CONFLICT BETWEEN NATIONS—EGAD!

TH' OLD BOY IS GETTING READY TO HOLD ANOTHER BEE ROODEO IN HIS PLUG HAT AGAIN!

HIS HEAD IS CLUTTERED UP WITH A GREATER VARIETY OF THINGS THAN A 5 AN' 10¢ STORE!

THE MAJOR HAS SOME SCHEME UP HIS SLEEVE

AFTER FOLEY'S BANTAM CROWN.

The man on the left is Walter Obernesser of Hamilton, formerly tacked single-sculling champion of Canada, now manager of Howard Mayberry, on the left, ex-bantam champion of Canada, who are both quite intent on winning back the Canadian title which Mayberry lost to Vic Foley of Vancouver.

Three New Cricket Clubs To Enter Western League

Three new cricket teams will represent London in the Western Ontario league this year in addition to Ontario hospital, champions for two successive seasons. The league meets tonight at the Tecumseh house.

Mitchell will be back in the league again, so Ontario hospital officials were assured some weeks ago.

The three new teams to be entered from London are St. George's society, St. Andrew's and the St. John's. In addition, Westminster hospital will have a team, and after a season of practice matches, may enter the league competition.

There are many fine cricketers in London who this year apparently have returned to the game actively, and the increase in teams should make the league a permanent fixture in district sport.

Robert Haig, who is again a resident of London, and Ross Somerville are two members of the Canadian eleven which toured the British Isles last summer, and who are available for cricket this summer. Besides, there are many youthful players in the city, and the standard of cricket has always been maintained at a high level.

The drafting of the schedule will be the main business of tonight's meeting.

MOVE TO ELIMINATE TENNIS IN OLYMPICS

British Delegates To Press For Action at Paris Meeting.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 10.—The lawn tennis association wants the game eliminated from future Olympics. The British delegates will submit a resolution with this as an aim at the annual general meeting of the international lawn tennis federation in Paris on March 20.

None of the Olympic tennis competitors in the 1924 games in Paris seemed to enjoy himself; everyone complained about something. This was the first time since the 1900 games that the British had won a gold medal in tennis.

PORT ARTHUR WINS. Canadian Press Despatch.
Port Arthur, March 10.—Port Arthur, winners of the Manitoba senior division, staged a runaway game here last night and defeated the Fox-warren-Bird aggregation, intermediate title-holders, 11 to 2, in the semi-final game of the Manitoba championship.

The Ports will meet Port Francis intermediates in the final of the series, probably on Wednesday.

BY AHERN.

PLAY TO DRAW. Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 10.—Celtic and St. Mirren played to another draw today, 1-1, after extra time. In a fourth round Scottish association cup replay. On Saturday last they drew, 0-0.

In a Scottish league game Dundee defeated Queen's Park, 1 to 0.

ALBERTA CHAMPS QUALIFY.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Vancouver, March 10.—Defeating Rossland here last night, 8 to 4, there by winning the round 13 to 5, Coleman, champions of Alberta, qualified to meet the winner of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba playoff in the Allan cup hockey series.

WESTERVELTS WIN CITY CAGE TITLE

Seniors Beat Hale Street Juniors in Final Girls' Game.

Two hundred fans saw the Westervelts win the city championship at the east end town hall last night, defeating the Hale Street Methodist juniors by 31 to 10 in a tame fixture.

This game marked the closing of the city indoor basketball season. After the tilt Mayor Wenig presented the junior cup to the Hale Street aggregation and the senior cup to the Westervelts. Both teams showed up for form, and the other winners in the league all season, and deserved the victory.

The game last night provided few thrills, but a plucky battle was put up by the juniors against the seniors, who had the advantage in weight, height and experience. In fact, after going out and garnering a big lead in the first half, the seniors laid back and gave the Methodists an even chance.

The spirited rally of the juniors attempting to wrench the seniors from their seniors brought round and round of applause from the fans.

Bondie Bowie was the big scoring ace for the Seniors, getting six baskets for a total of ten points. The rest of the team played up to its usual good standard. For the juniors the work of Jessie Walker and Olga Stan was outstanding. Mig Talbot also showed up well on the defence, and shows promise of becoming a brilliant guard and graduating to the senior ranks.

As a mark of appreciation Jack Cook, who has been officiating all season, without charge, was presented with a purse of money.

In the preliminary, Westervelts boys defeated the Hale Street juniors in the Memorial Rovers. Parquharson and Wong were the stars for the winners, while Briggs and Pitt were the best for the Rovers.

The line-up:
Westervelts—Forward, Wong (5); Parquharson (11); center, Brown (3); guards, Henderson, Henry (3); subs, McKenzie (6).

Cronyn Rovers—Forwards, Childs, Brooks (2); center, guards, Pitt (2); Judd, subs, Tambling, Flete (2); Back, Referee—Jack Cook.

Westervelts Seniors—Forwards, M. Bowie (12), H. Aitken (6); center, A. Taylor (2); guards, M. Jones (5), M. Hayden (2), R. Fairless (1), N. Stanley (8).

Hale Street Methodist—Forwards, E. Stansell (3), J. Walker (4); center, O. Stansell (2); guards, M. Talbot (1), E. Lewis, subs, M. Woode, M. Priestwick, D. Yull.

NEW YORK GIANTS TAKE FIRST FROM SENATORS

Two Rallies in Fifth and Eighth Beat Bucky Harris Clan.

Associated Press Despatch.
Palm Beach, March 10.—The New York Giants opened their spring exhibition series with the Washington Senators here today by smashing out an eight to seven victory over the contented Senators.

Two typical Giant rallies clinched the game. The first in the fifth when a single, three triples and Southworth's homer accounted for five runs. Ross Young won the game in the eighth by driving a single to left, scoring Ford and Southworth.

The British at the forthcoming Paris gathering will record their vote in favor of the admission of Austria and Hungary to the international association, but will take no notice of Germany's cause. The British have decided to support membership applications from the Irish Free State, Egypt, Greece and Ecuador also.

Sarnia and Simcoe Play Here Today

Sudden-Death Came To Decide Senior Wossa Title.

Special to The Advertiser.
Sarnia, March 10.—The collegiate will make its last bid for "Wossa" honors tomorrow afternoon in London, when the senior hockey team, which has been without games for three weeks, will stack up against the first Simcoe high school six in the Wossa finals. The locals have a hard time ahead of them. They are not in the best of condition after their long lay-off, and compared to the Simcoe boys who have been playing steadily all season, capping it off with two games last week with the Woodstock collegiate. Added to that, Jack Manore, the star defense man, is out of the game with a bad knee.

ST. THOMAS CHURCH LOOP ENDS SCHEDULE TONIGHT

Special to The Advertiser.
St. Thomas, March 10.—The final game of the church basketball league will be played in the "Y" gym Wednesday evening. The league has had a very successful year, and Wednesday evening will see the last game of the second series. The Central church team won the first series and tied for first place in the second series with St. Johns. The play-off will be made tomorrow evening, and if St. Johns win, a championship game will be played later to decide the title.

PATRICIAS VICTORS.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Regina, March 10.—Regina Patricias last night defeated Winnipeg Varsity in the Manitoba-Saskatchewan junior playoff, 7 to 4, and tied up the round, 9 to 9, in a strenuous 30-minute overtime battle here. The deciding game will be played probably on Wednesday.

PLAY TO DRAW.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 10.—Celtic and St. Mirren played to another draw today, 1-1, after extra time. In a fourth round Scottish association cup replay. On Saturday last they drew, 0-0.

ALBERTA CHAMPS QUALIFY.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Vancouver, March 10.—Defeating Rossland here last night, 8 to 4, there by winning the round 13 to 5, Coleman, champions of Alberta, qualified to meet the winner of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba playoff in the Allan cup hockey series.

Quit To Save Sarnia Club, Stratford Explanation

Artha' Flivvers As a Wrestler

Associated Press Despatch.

Duluth, Minn., March 10.—Jack Johnson, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, reverted to boxing in his wrestling match here last night with Charles Lephanen, Finnish heavyweight wrestler, in the third and deciding fall, and lost the match on a foul, a left hook to the jaw that floored Lephanen. Johnson won the first fall in 15 minutes, with a headlock, and Lephanen the second in eight minutes with a leg lock.

MONTAGNARDS WIN BUT LOSE ON ROUND

Ottawa District Champions Spring Surprise, Taking Close Game 4-3.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, March 10.—Ottawa Montagnards, playing their second game in the Allan cup elimination series as champions of the Ottawa and district association, defeated Varsity, intermediate titleholders, provided a surprise somewhat similar to the one that they produced here two years ago when they defeated the Granites in the second game of their home and home series by defeating the blue and white by 4 goals to 3 here tonight, but they were unable to overcome the 5 to 1 deficit from Friday's game in the capital and lost the round by 5 to 4.

The line-up:
Montagnards—Scott, goal; Reaume and Duggan, defence; Huard, centre; Hooper and Houdinard, wings; Giddons and Hooper, subs.

Varsity—Sullivan, goal; Porter and Taylor, defence; Waxton, centre; Hurd and Kirkpatrick, wings; Cloutier and Richards, subs.

Referee—Walter Small, Montreal.

The summary:
First period—1, Varsity, Richards, 2:30; 2, Montagnards, Toomey, 3:20.

Second period—3, Varsity, Hudson, 4:30; 4, Varsity, Plaxton, 1:50; 5, Montagnards, Toomey, 4:25.

Third period—5, Montagnards, Hooper, 7:00; 7, Montagnards, Hooper, 8:00.

First period—Porter, 2 minutes; Huard and Cloutier, 3 minutes each.

Second period—Huard, 2 minutes; Cloutier, 2 minutes.

Third period—Duggan, Porter, 2 minutes each.

Dugan Describes Most Peculiar Play He's Seen

Joe Dugan

YANKEE THIRD BASEMAN

I'VE GOT IT! I'VE GOT IT! I'VE GOT IT!

By AL DEMAREE (Former Pitcher, N. Y. Giants).

Joe Dugan writes me describing, as follows, the most unusual play of his baseball career:

"In 1920, playing with the Philadelphia Athletics against the White Sox, we (Athletics) were leading in the ninth inning by two runs. The Chicago club filled the bases with two out and 'Swede' Risberg up. He hit a short pop fly along the right field line, and I caught it. Burns (first baseman), and myself (second baseman), all started for the ball, but none of us could reach it on the ground. Burns got the ball on the first hop and threw it to Perkins, who rushed back to cover home plate after he saw he had no chance to get the ball on the fly.

"Runners scored from second and third base, but the runner trying to score from first base was tagged for presumably the third out. I had noticed, however, that the ball, though it had hit first in fair territory, had bounced off into foul territory and had been fielded by Burns in foul territory, and I protested to the umpire. The umphs held a consultation around the White Sox, decided in my favor. Risberg then lined out to Welsh, our center fielder, for the third out. So instead of a tie score and an extra-inning game, the Athletics won one of their few victories of 1920."

Needs Grouping With St. Thomas and London, Is Attitude.

MEET TOMORROW

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, March 10.—In view of the Stratford baseball club's jump from the Southern Counties to the Inter-County league, Norman H. Seigel of Stratford, president of the Southern Counties league, will probably resign from that office at the league's meeting in London Thursday. In an interview today, Mr. Seigel declared that Stratford could not do anything else than go into the Inter-County, without pushing Sarnia out of the Southern.

"It would be impossible for Stratford to go into a group with Sarnia," he said. "It is far too long a jump, and is geographically out of the question. We did the only fair and sensible thing in going into the Inter-County grouping. By doing so we are acting in the best interests of the Stratford team and Sarnia as well. Sarnia needs this grouping with London and St. Thomas. With another club added they have a good compact circuit in the Southern, and it is well to mean that, if we stayed in the Southern Counties, Sarnia would have to stay out. We didn't want to keep them out. With Galt, Guilph, Kitchener, Preston and Brantford in the loop with Stratford, the jumps will be easy and good baseball will be the rule."

ASK STRAIGHT SCHEDULE.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, March 10.—Sarnia will be strongly represented at the Southern Counties baseball league meeting at London Thursday night, and the local delegates will ask for a straight schedule, rather than the split variety. It is thought likely that London will line up with them in this regard. The action of the St. Thomas club can only be surmised. It was the split schedule that gave St. Thomas the district last year, and there is a chance that the Saints will be holding out for a straight year.

That Stratford would not be in line caused some consternation here. Sarnia in senior baseball seems to be an unwanted child on account of location, and if there is much trouble the club may decide to play independent ball, which would give the Port Huron Mint leaguers a chance with local fans.

WATERLOO'S CRICKET TEAM PLANNING TOUR

Expected League Will Be Increased by Several Teams This Year.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, Ont., March 10.—The annual meeting of the Waterloo cricket club, held in the offices of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Limited, in Waterloo, last night, it was decided to try and arrange a series of the Waterloo cricket team in London, to be played in the month of June. It is hoped to play games in London, two in Detroit, Windsor, Chatham and Woodstock. The league will be proposed at the annual meeting that all teams play on matting this year.

Indications are that the Waterloo cricket club, which consisted of Galt, Preston, Paris and Waterloo last year, will have five or six teams, as Stratford and London are likely starters this season.

Famous Grimsby Sextet Appear Here Next Wednesday Against Local 75's

Switch Date So Peach Kings May Be Seen By City Fans

Ashley and Keeling Added For Keenly-Anticipated Game.

MAY BE FAREWELL

The exhibition game to be played here Friday night was postponed until next Wednesday, when the local officials found that they could definitely assure the fans of seeing the Grimsby Peaches in action.

Grimsby could not be secured for Friday night owing to the injuries the players received in their grueling series with the Niagara Falls crew. As it was this team which produced the greatest upsets in a season of surprises that the local fans wanted to see, switching the date was a small matter.

The Grimsby Peach Kings are everywhere branded as the greatest intermediate team that ever appeared in the Allan cup play-offs, and this covers a multitude of great hockey machines. There was nothing phony about their victory over the Soo. They caught the Soo when mere reputation couldn't save the northern veterans. Three years ago Stratford had probably one of the greatest intermediate teams ever assembled, but fans will remember how bad they looked in the Allan cup games. How good the Grimsby crowd is may be gauged from that season's results.

The 75's have produced some great hockey since they have been aided by capable subs. Wednesday night, Ashley, one of the best amateurs in the game, and one of the most popular, will appear on the London team. "Dad" is a staid burger of Preston and will be found leading another strong hockey team next season. Out of respect to his fine playing and splendid personality, London officials asked him to help the local team out, and he readily assented.

Keeling also. In addition, "Butch" Keeling, sensational wing man of the Owen Sound Greys, will be on the local lineup. Keeling scored eight goals against Aura Lee in the finals which put Greys, last year's Dominion champions, out. Tickets are being sold by all executive members of the club and many prominent citizens. The game is one of the season's real assets to the community.

The demand is heavy and a capacity crowd is looked for.

Ordinary tickets being sold must be exchanged at the arena box office or Strong's drug store for the regular reserved seat ticket.

This exchange will not open this morning as previously arranged, owing to the game being postponed, but instead will open on Monday morning.

Box ticket holders and fans on the subscribers' list will have their seats held until Monday night for their convenience.

CONSOLATION, HUH!

It is doubtful if the Glencoe and St. Marys teams, playing a consolation series game at the arena last night, got much kick out of the report that came from the box office. The gates was $16.50, including the hinges. Shrink the referee's fee (which is not on the consolation scale) out of this and you have $6.50 left.

And besides, Glencoe lost the game.

BANG GOES ANOTHER ONE.

"It's the horse that rides the jockey," is an old turf saying that might be applied to other sports.

The "Miracle Men" of baseball have had something good in the way of material to work with or they became badly exposed. Connie Mack hasn't been the "Deep Man" of baseball for eight years now, unless you go by the league standings and he's been deep enough there. Coaching in other lines has received more than his share of importance in victory. The latest case is that of hockey as played, and as a major sport now, by Princeton, Yale and Harvard and other American seats of learning. Yale carried off the championship despite the fact that its team had no ice on which to practice, and the added fact that Princeton was coached by such a brainy player as Dr. Beattie Ramsay. Hockey presents a better example than baseball because in this case the average Canadian would figure that Ramsay would have an immense advantage over American mentors, no matter how mediocre the talent he had to work on.

THE CRYSTAL GLASS.

Gone is the winter of our discontent. Coming is the book of 4.4 per cent.

SPORT MYSTERIES.

James J. Corbett, whose last appearance here was with the Honey Boy Evans Minstrels, is in Detroit starting out on a career as a lecturer. Corbett's recollections now running in the Saturday Evening Post, and which will be put into book form, have proved of interest to thousands of fight fans of both the present and past generation, but it is doubtful if they will ever bring, even at this late date, the popularity which in some amazing manner always escaped Corbett. Corbett in many ways was the ideal of a fighting man. He lifted the game up a good many pegs during the time he held the championship, and after by his deportment in and out of the ring. Yet he was never idolized as was John L. or Fitz. John L. had many qualities that were small and petty, and he was a bit of a bully, and yet for the Old Master fight fans had an affection which has been transmitted to the present generation.

Old-time fans who discounted the science of which Corbett was a master and an originator even, could never find it in their hearts to class Corbett among the real champions because of a reputed lack of punch. Corbett, in his series, recalls his fight with Charlie Mitchell, whom he knocked out in three rounds, and goes deeply into a defence of his hitting ability. A vein of this defence runs through the series to date.

"The idea that I was a light tapper throughout my career gained ground I suppose because I did not waste my strength wildly and did not unleash punches with all I had until the critical moment," he says. "My hands have always been delicate; in fact they do not look stronger than a billiard player's (the lady who often takes my dictation says my hands are like a piano player's); and I had learned my lesson after breaking both right and left in my fights with Choyinski. The last punch I landed on John L. Sullivan had this same result. It put him out—and my hand too."

"So I rarely tried to put full force into a blow until I had my man where I wanted him and was ready to put over the finishing touch. I contented myself with jabbing and good hard jolts that would gradually weaken my opponent and manoeuvre him into position. You will never find any man who fought me who will not say that I could not hit hard with either hand."

But the denial come 40 years and more after the story started, and the story has too much headway to be smothered now.

HOSPITAL IS CROWDED WITH AILING CITIZENS

March Proves To Be the Unhealthiest Period of Canadian Year.

March is undoubtedly the unhealthiest month of a Canadian year, if the amount of patients at Victoria hospital can be taken as an indication of general sickness. For the first time in months the institution is filled to capacity with patients suffering from all varieties of illnesses. There is no outstanding prevalence of disease or sickness at the hospital. There is just a large amount of every illness. There are many cases of pneumonia, although not an abnormal amount for the time of year. There are some diphtheria cases, and as many as 25 or 30 scarlet fever sufferers. There is no epidemic though, hospital physicians say.

Operations have become popular throughout the month, according to Victoria internists, there being an exceptionally large amount of surgical cases on the wards. Adenoids and tonsils operations are in the lead with other eye, ear, nose and throat, and appendicitis operations second.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY TO BE EXHIBITED HERE

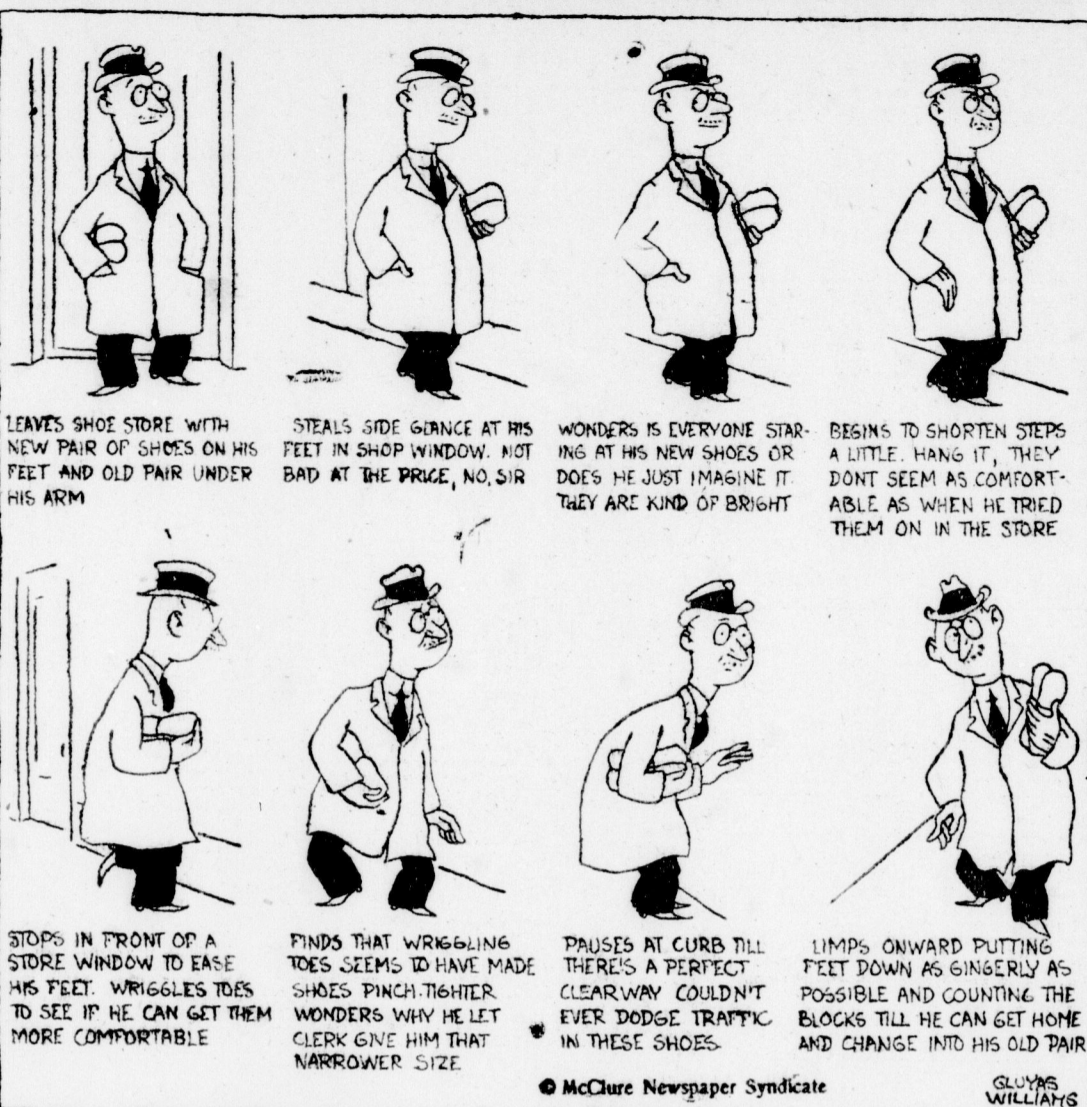

Amateur photography will be added to the Western Fair art department, the committee under the chairmanship of W. H. Abbott decided yesterday afternoon. A recommendation to this effect will be brought before the next meeting of the board of directors.

After some discussion, it was decided to make no changes in the prize list of 1924 and it will prevail again this year. A meeting of the committees in charge of the sheep, swine and calf competition will be held in the fair board offices tomorrow afternoon. The poultry committee will meet tomorrow night in the same office.

ASKIN SENIOR M. C.

The regular monthly meeting of the Askin street Methodist senior mission circle was held last night in the junior schoolroom, with the president, Mrs. J. H. Childs, presiding. The meeting was very well attended. The program was in charge of Miss Helen Miller, and after the lesson, given by Miss Alma McCormick, interesting items from the different mission fields were read by the watch tower convener, Miss Winnifred Hardie. Miss Edith Dunn of the department of Christian stewardship read an article on "The Value of Money," and the executive announced its attractive plans for the Easter meeting to be held the first Tuesday in April, when a splendid program will be presented. It will consist of a drama portraying the growth of the work of the missionary society since its organization, and about 40 of the circle members will take part. The members were favored with a lesson in hearing Mrs. J. M. McEvoy give her report on the world missionary convention held recently in Washington, which she attended as a delegate from the Presbyterian church. Her address was most interesting and highly instructive. Two well-chosen solos were given by Mrs. Hugh McCormick. The president then brought up the matter of the Easter thank-offering to be taken at the next meeting, after which she told an Eastern story of "Sammy, the Little Bootblack," who considered the best he had was the least to give. After a session of prayer the meeting closed and the members enjoyed a social half-hour under the direction of Miss Alma McCormick.

TALBOT BUILDERS.

The annual banquet of the builders' class of the Talbot street Baptist church was held last night. The long tables were most attractively arranged in green and white, with green favors and yellow daffodils. Mrs. Harry Murray was the able convener of the banquet. There were about 60 present. The president, Mrs. Charles Tomlin, presided over the program, which opened with an instrumental number by Miss Clara Brighton. Mr. Holman, the class teacher, then gave an address of welcome to the strangers present as well as to the class members, and Mrs. A. A. Affleck, the new assistant teacher, spoke a few words to the guests. A piano trio was given by Miss Dorothy Harley and George Upshall, after which a reading by Miss Melissa Bryce and a solo by Miss Winnifred Munro, accompanied by Miss Mildred Boyce, were much enjoyed. Dr. Bowley Green, Mrs. A. T. Edwards, the retiring teacher, and E. L. Brown, the Sunday school superintendent, also gave five-minute talks. Jack Brighton rendered violin numbers, after which S. F. Lawrason, who was the special speaker of the evening, gave a vivid description of his recent trip to the holy land. His address was greatly enjoyed and appreciated.

KNOX GLEANERS.

Miss Agnes Gleenover, in charge of last night's meeting of the Gleaners of Knox church, and Miss Evelyn GrGeer read the lesson. Miss Sophie Porter of the Y. W. C. A. was the special speaker of the evening and gave a splendid talk on "The Latent Ability of Girlhood." Miss Marjory Dick sang, and plans were discussed for the sale in the autumn.

FIRST METHODIST M. C.

The members of the mission circle of the First Methodist church met last night, with the president, Mrs. B. H. Clement, in the chair. The lesson was read by Miss Olive Prior and Miss Mabel Stevens gave an interesting address.

interesting account of the life of Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, who are missionaries in Tokyo, Japan. Miss Florence Gurd gave a report of the talk given by Mrs. (Dr.) Kern before the Dundas Centre circle recently. The chapter on "The Industrial Revolution in China," was taken from the study book by Miss Emma Gurd and Miss Scott. The mite boxes were brought in and $56 was realized from them.

REDEEMER A. Y. P. A.

The series of lectures in connection with the Lenten meeting of the A. Y. P. A. of the Church of the Redeemer were continued last night when Rev. Canon Gunn of Christ church was the special speaker. His address was on "The Eight Symbols of the Anglican church," and was greatly enjoyed by the young people. The special business of the session was the re-entering of the organization to the A. Y. P. A. council. Another item was the election of two sides, of which Miss Edna Farr and Miss Alice Parry are captains, to compete in attendance of the Lenten services. Each member on the sides will obtain one mark every time he attends church service throughout the season. It was agreed that the losing team would entertain the winning team. Next week a continuation of the lecture on the Exteriors and Interiors of the Cathedrals of England, will be given by Rev. A. S. H. Cree. George Farr presided.

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

The women's department of the Latter Day Saints' church held a meeting yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Vasbinder, the president, presided, and a lesson study on "Child Training" was interestingly given by Mrs. Koehler. Plans were also discussed for the entertaining of the grandmothers of the church on March 24.

MILITIA PREPARING REPORTS FOR YEAR

Canadian Districts Making Up Financial and Governing Statements For Ottawa.

With the fiscal year of the department of militia and defence closing on March 31, the administrative departments of the various military districts in Canada are now preparing financial and governing reports, which will be forwarded to Ottawa at the end of the month.

The statements which will be forwarded from headquarters here, as well as from outside districts, will include estimates of assets and liabilities. In addition to these will be reports on annual meetings and inspections.

Before the close of the military year there will be two inspections held here. The annual inspection of the 7th Field company, C. E., takes place at the armories tonight at 8 o'clock. Next Wednesday the members of the University of Western Ontario contingent will parade for inspection.

History is replete with stories of charms worn by men and women to ward off disease, to bring happiness and good fortune. It looks as though

King Eagle Robs Plunger, the Osprey, of the Big Fish That He Had Captured

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.
Flying straight up the Big River high in the air Plunger the Osprey moved swiftly. It wasn't long before his wonderful eyes saw far, far ahead of him a speck. He knew that that speck was Mrs. Plunger. As soon as he was near enough he called to her. It was a shrill whistle that could be heard a long distance. Mrs. Plunger answered it and flew to meet him.

"What luck, my dear?" cried Plunger as soon as he was near enough to talk.

Mrs. Plunger shook her head. "Poor luck," said she, "I've caught only one small fish. It was hardly a mouthful. What are you looking so excited for?"

"I told you I was going to catch the biggest fish I could find to celebrate the finishing of our new home, didn't I?" cried Plunger. "You did," said she, "Where is it?"

"It was so big that I couldn't bring it," cried Plunger, "I had to leave it on the shore, because I couldn't lift it into the air." Then he told her about his adventure with the big fish and how near to being drowned he had been. "So as soon as I could fly I hurried to get you. We'll go down there and have a wonderful feast," he concluded Plunger. "Together they started back to where Plunger had left the big fish on the shore. They flew swiftly and it wasn't long before those wonderful eyes of Plunger's could see the where he had left the big fish. And they saw something else. There was some one sitting by that big fish. Worse still, that some one was very busy. At that distance Plunger couldn't see just what was happening, but he could guess. That some one was eating the fish with which he had planned to celebrate with Mrs. Plunger.

With a scream of anger Plunger

He paid not the slightest attention to them.

increased his speed. Now Mrs. Plunger also saw what was going on, and she too screamed with anger. "Thief! Thief! Thief! Leave that fish alone! It is ours! Go away from it, you big robber!" screamed the Plungers as they swooped and circled above the place where the big fish had been left.

A pair of fierce, yellow eyes looked up at them from a snowy white head. Then, as calmly as if the two big fish Hawks were nowhere about, King Eagle resumed his feast. Already he had torn apart and eaten a large part of that fish. But there was still enough left for Mrs. Plunger to see what a big fish it had been. Whistling, screaming, Plunger and Mrs. Plunger darted and plunged with whistling wings as close to King Eagle as they dared. He paid not the slightest attention to them. For a few moments he went on with his feast. Then, with the remainder of that fish in his great claws, he spread his great wings and took to the air. He was taking that fish home.

For a short distance Plunger and Mrs. Plunger wheeled about him, screaming, "Robber! Robber!" at him. Then they gave it up. They knew it was useless. They did not dare attack King Eagle. The feast they had counted on for two had be-

SECURITY PROTOCOL PLAN BEFORE CABINET

Confirmation Sought in French House of Outline of Briand's Defense.

Associated Press Despatch.
Paris, March 11.—The French cabinet has before it for ratification today an outline of the course to be followed by M. Briand, French delegate to the league of nations council at Geneva, in defending the security protocol framed by the last assembly.

The instructions were agreed upon at a conference called by Premier Herriot in his office last night. The meeting was attended by the French delegates to the league and M. Laroche, chief of the political department of the foreign office. The conference was of the unanimous opinion that France must hold to the protocol, at the same time leaving the door open to all suggestions to make it more acceptable or effective.

It is in this sense that former Premier Briand will reply to the British foreign secretary, Austen Chamberlain, after the latter has made his pronouncement tomorrow regarding the British attitude toward the protocol.

REJECTION OF WARREN MAKES POST DOUBTFUL

Washington in Uncertainty as to Filling Attorney-General's Office.

Associated Press Despatch.
Washington, D. C., March 11.—The senate rejection of the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, to be attorney-general, at a session yesterday colored by the dramatic efforts of Democrats to overturn a tie vote on confirmation, has left the question of filling that office enveloped in uncertainty.

With the White House declining to comment on the matter, there was no indication today what course President Coolidge might pursue.

Only by the president's resubmission of the nomination can it again come before the senate, whose action yesterday is final and irrevocable.

GERMAN MAY GET BERTH IN CANADIAN SENATE

Canadian Press Despatch.

GOOD HEALTH MAKES HOUSEKEEPING EASY

Thousands of Women have restored their Health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Nova Scotia Housewife Writes

Bloomington, Annapolis Co., N. S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and back-aches, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis Co., N. S.

Always Helps Me

Cape Sable Island, N. S.—"Back-ache was my worst trouble. I would suffer so at times that I could hardly straighten up when I bent over and I would have to lie down and could not work. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it, and I did. I got good results from it. It helped me a lot. I am sure I could not do without a bottle of it in the house. I got no results from other medicines, but this always helps me. My husband is greatly pleased. He says I look better than I did and my friends tell me the same. I recommend it to my friends and I am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. CORBETT NICKERSON, South Side, Cape Sable Island, Nova Scotia.

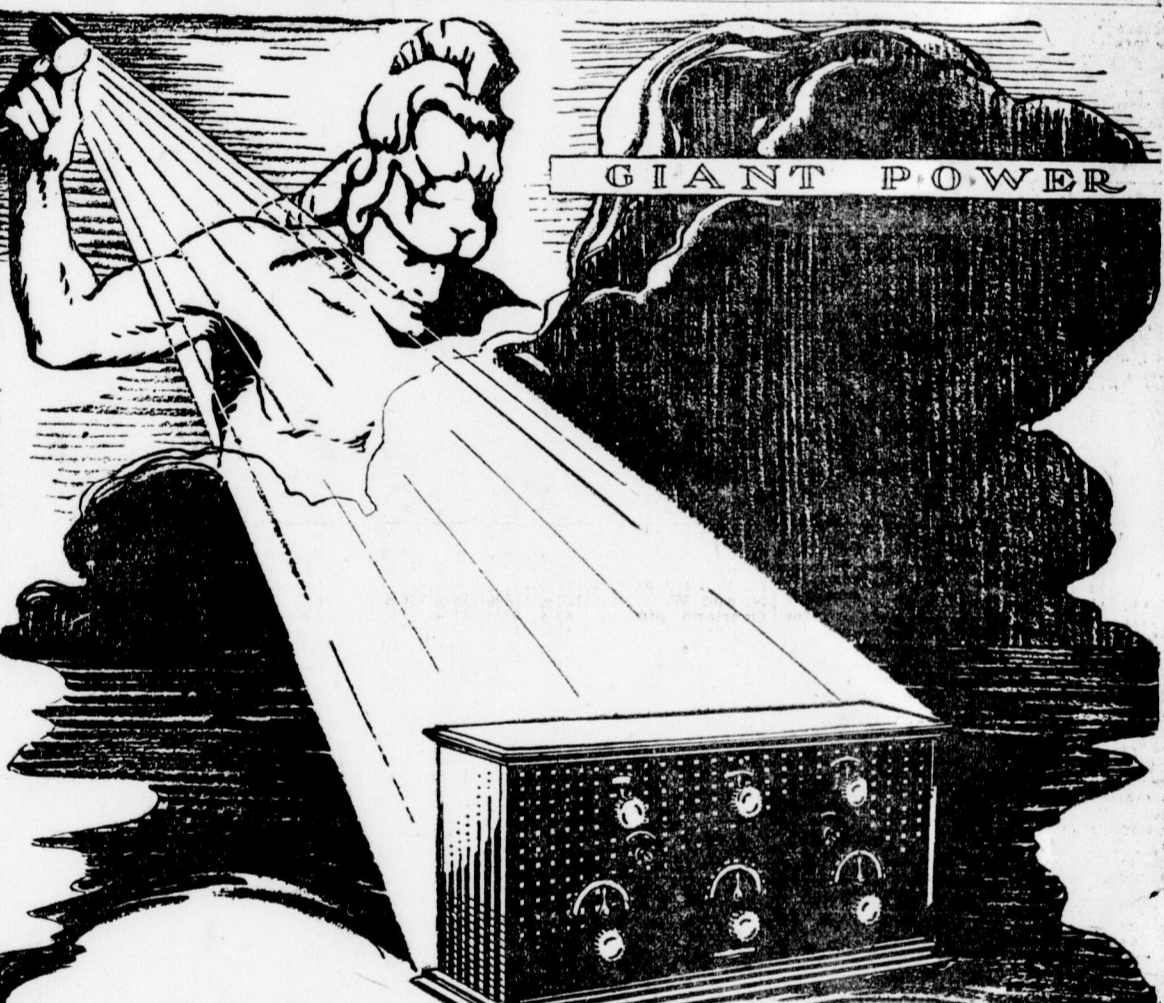

For sale by nearly all druggists.

Mrs. Kidd's Letter to Women

Crandall, Manitoba.—"When I was a young girl at home and working I had terrible pains, almost more than I could bear, and I was not regular. These troubles kept me so tired all the time that I had no strength and no ambition to join in with my friends and have a good time. I was just tired and miserable always and life just seemed as if it wasn't worth living. I saw so much in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then I had a friend who had taken it and told me about it, so I got some. Every month after taking it I grew stronger and I soon did not suffer every month. It stopped the pains and helped me in other ways. Then when my babies were coming I was tired and worn out the first three months and ached badly. I took the Vegetable Compound right along and must say it made a new woman of me and able to do my work, and it helped me through confinement. You see I am a farmer's wife with a big house to look after, and three babies now. I have told over so many women about your medicine. Just last week I got a letter from my old chum in the East. Her baby was born fifteen days before mine, and she told me she was not feeling very well, her back aches so much, and that she is going to take the same medicine I took. You can use my letter and I hope some one will be helped by it."—Mrs. JOSEPH H. KIDD, Box 55, Crandall, Manitoba.

The Eastern Townships Bank

A Chapter in the Story of a Canadian Banking Family
The Bank commenced its career on the eve of a remarkable development in the economic life of the Townships, and as the present network of railways began to spread over the district, as gold and copper mining came into prominence, and as factories were set up in the various centres, the Bank's business grew and prospered. Then came the lean years, for the Townships and the Banks alike, from 1874 to 1881, followed by a gradual revival of business, and from 1885 onwards by a marked expansion.

In 1895 the Bank began to establish branches in Quebec outside the Eastern Townships and in 1898 opened its first Western branch at Grand Forks, B.C. In 1911 it was considering a material extension of its Western business when a proposal was received from The Canadian Bank of Commerce for the union of the two institutions. The proposal was accepted and the amalgamation, which became effective the following year, brought 103 offices of the Eastern Townships Bank into the nation-wide family of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

JUDGMENT ALTERS INSURANCE CLAUSE

Companies Expected To Take Action Following Decision of Mr. Justice Logie.

Judgment handed down recently by Justice Logie in favor of the London Loan and Savings Company against the Insurance Society of Canton, China, is expected to form a precedent in Canadian law, and will probably necessitate the changing of all fire insurance policies by companies in Canada. Justice Logie's decision has startled insurance men locally, who declare that if the judgment is upheld, the companies will be forced to change wording in fire insurance policies, and rates may have to be revised to meet the ruling.

The case dealt with a St. Marys farmer, who sold his home and property. The London Loan Company, having a mortgage on the place, failed to notify the Insurance Society of Canton of the change in ownership, believing that the sale had not actually taken place. The home burned to the ground not long ago, and when the insurance claim was entered, the company denied payment. The London Loan Company entered suit against the foreign insurance company. Justice Logie gave judgment favoring the plaintiff, although the defendant cited more than ten cases in the United States where insurance companies were not compelled to pay when not notified of change of ownership of property.

The judgment was announced at Toronto two days ago. The Insurance Society has entered an appeal, but if the judgment is sustained then the new ruling will become virtually Canadian law.
Mr. Logie said in judgment: "If insurance companies wish to take advantage of the knowledge on the part of the mortgagees of a change in ownership subject to a mortgage clause, they must so state in unambiguous terms."

This would mean a revision of all fire insurance policies, so that they will contain correct wording covering a similar occurrence.

WALKING AND SITTING, PROOFS OF CHARACTER

Speaker at London Analyst Club Declares All Emotions Outwardly Shown.

An interesting discussion was given by Mr. Stainton, speaker of the evening, at the London character analyst club, last night. The speaker discussed some of the physical expressions that give to the student of character analysis a key to the character of the individual.

"All emotions and feelings leave their marks on the physical make-up of the individual. It is pretty much a case of as a man feels and thinks so does he look. Every outward sign gives some tale of the feelings and thoughts that have been or are going on in the person being analyzed. The way a man sits, the way he walks, the way he carries himself, the way he wears his clothes, all tell a story. Expressions are generally classified under either concentric or eccentric. So if you want to find out whether your friend is a rather close with his money see if he continually keeps his hands in his pocket, keeps his coat buttoned, sits with his legs crossed and with his arms folded. If he does these things it is ten to one that he is pretty close with his money, pretty selfish and self-centered. Of course, it is quite possible to find a person with these little traits, and yet he may not be close. Other conditions are to make these negligible. "Character analysis is pretty much a case of deduction. You have to take all possible variables and weigh them pro and con. There will be many variables that offset one another so that it is a case of cancellation and finally addition. Cancelling one against the other and adding the remainder of his factors up will give you a pretty close check on his make-up. It depends on the experience and accuracy of judgment of the analyst whether or not the analysis is absolutely correct. It is quite possible for a good student of character analysis to come within 90 per cent of being correct. This is many hundreds of per cent more than the best that can be done by one not a student of character work. It is stated on good accuracy is the closest the average man can get to it."

The weekly analysis of one of the club members proved most interesting. Mr. Hosie was analyzed by Mr. Plewea and Miss Frogart.
The club's guest of the evening, Miss Roberts, was given an interesting analysis by Mr. Arnold.

SPRINGER HEIRS WILL ELECT OFFICERS TONIGHT

Springer heirs of London and district will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. E. Harrison, 425 William street, when officers of the local Springer club will be elected for the year.
Reports from abstractors now at Bowmington, Delaware, will be read. A further satisfactory announcement is expected in a short time, Mrs. C. A. Moorhead said today.
The Springer heirs club was organized one year ago and since that time more than 100 of the heirs of this district have joined up. The club was started to further the claim of direct heirs in this part of Ontario, following out institution of other similar clubs in Canada.

TWENTY-FOUR MEN PLACED ON MIDDLESEX FARMS

Twenty-four men were placed on Middlesex farms last week by J. C. Spencer, of the government employment bureau.
"Placements have been heavy for some time past," said Mr. Spencer today. "We have 35 applications from farmers right now for single men and for three married men. Wages are from $15 to $30 a month, depending on the amount of experience an applicant has in farm work."

MORRIS SAXE.

successful Hebrew farmer of Georgetown, Ontario, who is now interesting himself in an organization which will assist his co-religionists who wish to do so to train as farmers and locate on Canadian farms. He says Hebrews make good farmers, and that at least twelve Toronto Jewish families now want to go on the farm.

HUSBAND ASKS $5,000 IN DEATH OF HIS WIFE

Action Entered by Walter Smale Against Thomas R. Wright.

Thomas R. Wright, London contractor, whose automobile fatally injured Mrs. Beatrice Smale on the night of Dec. 8 last, when he drove across the sidewalk just south of the Centennial church driveway, is being sued for $5,000 damages by Walter Smale, the husband, and the three children, Russell, Fred and Reginald, all minors.

The case will be a jury action tried before Mr. Justice Lennox at the spring assizes, opening at the courthouse March 16.

The plaintiffs claim that Mr. Wright gave no warning of his approach and alleged negligence on his part in connection with the accident.
Mr. Wright, in his statement of defense, states that the accident was caused through the negligence of Mrs. Smale.
Jarvis & Vining are acting for the plaintiff and Gibbons, Harper & Braden for the defendant.
Albert E. Reason has instituted a non-jury action against Alonzo Ellsworth Hodgins for $3,390 in connection with stock transactions in the Vulcan Company, Limited.

Mr. Hodgins counter-claims $10,960, which he alleges he earned in the sale of Vulcan stock. F. H. Curran for plaintiff and Ivey, Elliott & Gilanders for defendant.

LONDON TURNING GREEN FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

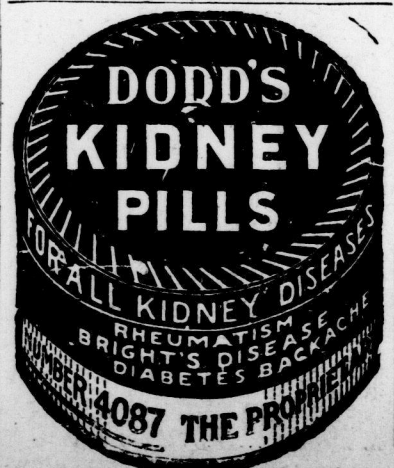

Signs of Celebration Appear in Various Parts of the City.

As might be expected in a city with so many "Irishers," London's store windows are filled with St. Patrick's day emblems in readiness for the 17th. Less than a week from today the birthday of the saint will be celebrated wherever there are men and women with a touch of Irish blood in their veins.

All kinds of offerings to the memory of the teacher who chased the snakes out of Ireland, according to legend, are on view. In candy, in ribbon and silk, and in a dozen mediums there are to be found remembrances in conspicuous green. They have taken the place in the public eye which was occupied by the valentines not so many weeks ago.
If the stranger picks up the city directory he will understand why the 17th should be a gala day in the city of London. For the larger share of names are Irish and carry a delightful glint of the shamrock about them. There are McEvoy, Sharman, Donnelly, Greer, Cavan, Cronyn, Diminds, Dalton, Dreanys, Flannagan, Kellys, Hodgins, Flahertys, Blake, and a long list of other just as typically Irish names. To this there is also the interminable line of the people whose names begin with O. There are O'Maras, O'Briens, O'Leons, O'Reillys and many more.
Irishmen had a great deal—a very great deal—to do with the early settlement of London, and have never lost their hold on the Forest City. They have vied perhaps a bit to the Anglo-Saxon, they have allowed the Englishmen a little room, and admitted the adventurous Scot a portion of their habitation.

DRINK AND MOVIES TAKE RENT MONEY

Glasgow Commission Reports Why Clydebank Families Never Pay Landlords.

Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 10.—That most Clydebank families spent twice the amount for rent, roughly £40 annually, on drink, betting, moving pictures and various other diversions was the evidence given before the Glasgow rent commission appointed to investigate the whole question of the notorious Clydebank rentals, by a merchant of the district today.

There was more genuine poverty in the district of Govan than there was in the whole Clydebank district, the witness said. He produced statistics to support his contentions, which, however, several members of the commission refused to consider as reliable.

Landlords owning houses in the Clydebank district of Glasgow have for years been unable to collect any rents from their tenants, who, when there was any serious threat of eviction, banded together to resist efforts to remove them. Those tenants who could be evicted were soon, with the help of their neighbors, established back in the house. Finally the situation became so bad that the rents commission was appointed which has just started its hearings.

MANY WILL VISIT CITY FOR SESSIONS OF S. A.

Western Ontario Division To Attend Spring Council Next Week.

Visiting London for the purpose of attending the spring councils of the Salvation Army, nearly 100 officers and soldiers of the Western Ontario division will be in the city on Wednesday and Thursday next week.

Commissioner Sowton of Toronto, territorial commander, will be in charge of the sessions. It was first intended that Col. Powley of Toronto would assume command but that officer has been ill lately and will not be able to attend.
Commissioner Sowton will be accompanied by Col. Miller, field secretary, and Col. Adby, special efforts secretary.

On Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the first session will take place. It will be attended by officers from the city and surrounding territory. Inspirational papers dealing with the different phases of Army work will be a feature of the program.
The Clarence street citadel will be the scene of a united soldiers' meeting on Wednesday night when all members of the four London corps will be in attendance.
Taking up the subject of field work, Col. Miller will address the officers on Thursday morning.
Brig. Macdonald will conduct the afternoon session. It will be relative to members of the Western Ontario division and matters concerning the work they are doing.
Before coming here, Commissioner Sowton will conduct the councils in Windsor. From London he will go to Hamilton.

OFFICE STAFF HONORS MISS FRANCES MACBETH

Miss Frances Macbeth of the court house staff, who was yesterday afternoon presented with $500 by the lawyers of the city, was made the recipient of a pearl and amber brooch and comb set by the girls of the staff this morning. The presentation was made by Miss Walker, registrar for East Middlesex, who spoke in glowing terms of the many good qualities of Miss Macbeth, who leaves tomorrow to take up her residence with her brother in Toronto.

"The mode believes in putting everything into print. Frocks, coat linings, blouse ensembles, tunics, scarfs—all bear testimony to its effectiveness."

NEW SPRING DRESSES

For spring, and very much of spring are these new frocks. In blonde shades and the high colors that are meant specially to reflect the sunshine of spring and summer days—to carry it indoors for afternoon occasions, or on into the evening and for informal parties.

The beaded frocks from "Yvette," too, are newly arrived for spring. With their intricate sewing of beads is fastened something that smart Paris terms "chic."

French Gray Crepe, beaded in steel, a straight-line frock with round neck and short sleeves. Priced at $35.00.

Second Floor.

To-day I saw

Just for sake of a name, I'd like to call this column "A History Lesson by Candlelight." But that could hardly be true—I'm sure no one would ever think of touching a match to the snowy wig of Martha Washington, or Queen Elizabeth's royal coiffeure.

I'd heard that the new decorative candles coming from Maine were to be quite unique—but I wasn't just prepared for the historical pageant I saw in the French Gift Department, when I went in search of them.

One of the cabinets there is a miniature representation of Madame Tussaud's famous establishment (with all the charm left in, and the horrors left out!) And it's only because the little figures stand very straight and slim, and have tufts of candle-wick peeping out from the tops of their heads, that you can recognize them at all as candles.

True to their historical character, they come in pairs—Queen Elizabeth and the gallant Sir Walter Raleigh, George Washington and Martha, John Alden and Priscilla, a torreador with his lovely Spanish senorita, and some Hans and Gretel. Marrying them all is Cap'n Eric of Cape Cod—a dauntless figure in his yellow slicker.

Very lovely, graceful figures these are and remember that with all their beauty, they are only made of wax—so that they can't be very dear!

CHESLEY CLUB VISITS AT EMPRESS AVENUE

Excellent Program Is Provided by Guests—Plan Spring Bazaar.

The members of the Chesley avenue Mothers' Club were guests of Empress avenue Mothers' Club at their meeting held last night in the auditorium of the school. The visitors provided the excellent program which was given, Mrs. L. F. Mayne, president of the Chesley Club, taking the chair vacated early in the evening by Mrs. George Bryant of the Empress avenue school.

Special speakers were Mrs. Mayne and Mrs. J. S. Chalmers. Mrs. Mayne's subject was "The Modern Mother and Her Daughter," and during the course of her talk she pointed out the need for mother and daughter to be companions. This was even more necessary today than it had been in the past.
Mrs. Chalmers congratulated the mothers for having secured such a splendid new school, declaring that she believed the agitation of the Empress avenue Mothers' Club had had a great deal to do with making the new school a possibility. Before closing, Mrs. Chalmers read several excellent poems from her own pen.
The program also included readings by Miss Fisher vocal solos by Miss Stone, instrumentals by Miss Mayne and a humorous reading and clever interpretive dances by little Miss Helen Denley, who is but seven years old.
Following the meeting, at which plans were made for a "House Cleaning Sale" or "Spring Bazaar" at the next meeting, adjournment was made to the new domestic science room where refreshments were served. Among the guests were several from the Riverview Club.

PLANS FOR PARADE

Plans for the annual Ypres parade to be held on March 29 in this city will be made by Great War Veterans at an executive meeting this evening. The holding of decoration days in June will also be discussed. A large turnout is expected by President Harry Wray. Committees for the Ypres day arrangements will be appointed tonight.

LANG WILL SPEAK

Malcolm Lang, M.L.A. for Cochrane, will speak to the London Kiwanis club on Friday of this week. Mr. Lang is the Liberal member for the northern town, and has lived for many years up there. He is in touch with the development of his own part of Ontario, and has an interesting message to bring to Londoners. He will speak at the weekly club luncheon in the Tecumseh House.

CLEVER COMEDY-DRAMA BEING PRESENTED SOON

Colborne Street Church Mission Circle To Give "Rebekah's Triumph."

Under the auspices of the Mission Circle of the Colborne Street Methodist church, a clever comedy-drama is being presented on March 24. The title is "Rebekah's Triumph," and the theme of the story is centered around the making of a cake, but it takes three acts to finally solve the bit of mystery that is also connected with the play.

The leading role is being taken by Miss Genevieve Walker, and she is supported by Mrs. W. McAdams, Mrs. W. F. Sherwin, Miss Doris Liddicoat, Miss Ida Elliott, Miss Ethel Foy, Miss Gertrude Parker, Miss May Gorman, Miss Mabel McRoberts, Mrs. H. Wheeler, Mrs. J. Turnbull, Miss Vera Trick, Miss Patricia Fletcher, who plays the role of the colored maid; Miss Sadie Kilpatrick, who takes the part of the Irish maid. The directors of the play, who are working hard to make it a success, are Miss Phyllis Johnson and Mrs. E. Howard.
Four unaccompanied choruses, including "The Lord's Prayer," by Rachmaninoff, First Presbyterian choir concert, Thursday evening—Advt.
