Martyrs of Medicine.

One of the epic stories of medical research is recalled by the death of the other day of Major J. F. Hall-Edwards, the famous British surgeon and X-ray pioneer.

It is impossible to over-estimate the debt which medical science owes to men like Hall-Edwards. He began his X-ray experiments in 1896, immediately after Professor Rontgen's discovery had been made public, and while the use of safety devices was unknown.

Even when, owing to X-ray dermatitis, he had lost his left arm and four fingers of his right hand, he continued his work, managing to carry on with a solitary thumb and a rubber substitute for a forefinger.

Our knowledge of X-rays has been dearly won. Dr. A. Barry Blacker, one of the first men to introduce X-rays into hospital practice, also paid the penalty of his pioneering work. He had to be operated on again and again, and finally died of a disease caused by the action of the rays. But his experiments in a small basement in St. Thomas's Hospital were the start of the famous X-ray department of that institution.

Another celebrated X-ray practitioner associated with St. Thomas's was Sir Archibald Reid, who took charge of this department of the hospital's work in 1912. His death in 1924 was a direct result of his X-ray work.

Even before X-rays medicine had its martyrs. The famous John Hunter took innumerable risks in his experiments, and even infected himself with diseases to observe their course more closely. His death is supposed to have been due to this habit of experimenting upon himself.

Human Traits of Black

(1) Bear cub stepping out. (2) Black B

It's a "fifty-fifty" proposition with Canadian black bear, the most popular wild animals in the parks of the Canadian Rockies. They have not resented man's intrusion but instead have exhibited an ever-increasing curiosity about man's affairs. In the vicinity of Banff and Lake Louise they have become so tame that it is a common sight to see them amble across the roads, and even stop for a sign of recognition from the tourists.

An English lady was visiting Chateau Lake Louise, in the Canadian Rockies, and desired above all else to see a bear. She chose a likely spot and watched without making, since known. Soon a bear appeared with two cubs. The boy approached fearlessly, took the top from the bottle and gave the cub a drink. When, however, he tried to take the bottle away in order to share it with the other cub, the cub refused. The mother bear asserted her authority, and gave the obstreperous cub a wallop. This settled the dispute, and only demonstrated one of the many almost human instincts of the black bear.

GIRLS AND WOMEN NEED RICH BLOOD

This Lady Found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a Friend Indeed.

Just because she is a woman there are times when every woman needs help and strength in the form of a blood-building tonic.

To thousands of girls and women Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved a blessing because they enrich the blood, give strength and restore tone to the aching nerves. The anemic girl who is languid and pale; the wife whose back feels like breaking; the matron whose health fails as she reaches middle age—for all such sufferers Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable because ill-health in girls and women is usually caused by poor blood or insufficient blood. These pills have proved a blessing to thousands of others, why not you? At various stages of life Mrs. G. R. Lake, Walton, N.S., has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—"I first used these pills when a young girl, for it is during the 'teen age when nature calls upon every bit of the reserve strength we have, that we need their rejuvenating help. It was then I found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a friend indeed. And again, now that the girlhood stage is past and I am a mother of four children, subject to all the cares and worries of the home, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only tonic I take to keep up my health and strength, and they have never failed me. Should any ailing girl or weary mother, due to my advice, try these pills, I know they will find them as equally good as I have done."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Scientists Testing Truth of Cold Shoulder Theory

Scientists of Amsterdam have been measuring the amount of heat given off by the human body to find why some parts give off more heat than others. Drs. E. Sluiter and G. van Rijnberk devised an apparatus for studying the temperature of the skin, covered and uncovered, and found that much less heat was given off over layers of fat and a great deal more where the skin lay close to bony surfaces.

Whether this means that people built on generous lines are as cool as cucumbers on the outside and "red hot" within, with skinny folks just the opposite, is not stated. However, the experiment would seem to indicate that a fat person might make the coolest bedfellow on a hot night.

Dr. Sluiter thinks that some of the differences in heat radiations at various places may be explained by the nearness of large blood vessels to the surface, but this, he says, does not explain all. It is still a mystery why more heat is given off over the forehead, the chest, the shins and the spine.

Ontario Dental Health Day.

What wonderful advancement has been made during the past few decades in the prevention and care of disease, and this improvement is due to a large measure to the scientific investigation and research conducted in our laboratories. The knowledge thus gained would be of little use, however, unless sent to those who need it or those who can apply it in the education or treatment of others.

The most valuable contributions made by research workers in so far as the health and happiness of the people are concerned have been in the field of preventive medicine. Many of the diseases which years ago afflicted the people are now seldom heard of and still greater results are confidently expected.

The prevention of disease is largely a matter of education. It cannot be accomplished through the efforts of the physician alone; he will lead the way but the general public must be taught to take such an interest in their own health that they will be willing to accept the advice given.

Dental infection is one of the most frequent causes of disease and the Ontario Department of Health has organized a special effort for the purpose of informing the people in regard to the prevention of dental diseases. This campaign will take the form of a Dental Health Day, to be held on Wednesday, October 20th.

The activities will include a motion picture film which has been prepared by the Ontario Motion Picture Bureau, radio talks from the various stations, instruction to school children, the distribution of special booklets by the Insurance Companies, newspaper publicity which the press is giving without charge, and window display.

The dentists of the Province, at the request of the Department of Health, will give private instruction on mouth care to all who desire it, and the general publicity will stress the importance of a proper diet, thorough mastication of the food, and careful cleansing of the mouth.

The educational, health, service and social welfare organizations of the Province are co-operating, and this, the first Province-wide effort of this kind in Canada, promises to be a great success.

Buried History.

Near the site of the ancient city of Mizpah, in Palestine, a party of scientists recently discovered a great pit into which they think the bodies of Gedaliah and his followers were thrown, as related in the Biblical story.

A number of rock tombs containing a mass of early pottery were also found, and the scientists confidently expect to unearth, amongst the relics of this two-thousand-five-hundred-year-old city, records telling the full story of the Egyptian campaigns in Palestine.

When Nebuchadnezzar conquered Judaea he took many of the inhabitants to Babylonian captivity, but we are told that he allowed some, including the prophet Jeremiah, to remain at Mizpah for several years under the governorship of Gedaliah.

The historic crime associated with this ancient city took place when Ishmael came to the colony and was welcomed by the Babylonian governor with a great feast, in the midst of which he suddenly rose and killed Gedaliah and his friends, afterwards throwing their bodies into a pit.

GOITRE

Mothers, have you or your daughters goitre? Do not worry. Goitre can now be removed quickly, painlessly and permanently. Johnston's Goitre Remedy, used externally, acts by absorption. Simply rub in twice a day. After about 2 weeks' treatment, goitre becomes soft and spongy, and then gradually disappears. Usually one bottle is sufficient. Literature and testimonials on request. CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed, I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any bearing-down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have told many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it." — Mrs. NEAL BOWSER, R. R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

CLIFFORD

The death occurred last Saturday, October 2nd, of Edna Brautigam, the 7-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Brautigam. The funeral was held on Tuesday from the home of Charlie Hill, Normandy. Rev. G. H. Ziemer conducting the services.

Mrs. Dorothy Dettman has just received word of the death of her father, John Saunders, which took place suddenly from a heart attack at the family home in Ludgershall, England, on Sept. 19th. Deceased was in his 71st year, and in his usual health until only two days before his death.

Mr. Adam Seip lost a valuable horse last Monday. On the previous Thursday while working on the highway, the team took fright, and in running away the driver got them into the ditch, which was grown up with small brush, one of the limbs pierced into the horse's breast. A veterinary was called, and attended to the wound, and the horse was able to work on Saturday, but on Sunday took very sick, and on Monday morning Perdue, of near Wingham, a former Clifford veterinary, was called in and extracted a piece of bark from the wound. Blood poisoning set in, and nothing could be done to save the animal's life.

COMMITTED FOR ARSON TRIAL

At Hanover on Wednesday afternoon of last week, Alfred Young was committed for trial by Magistrate Creason on a charge of arson, he having been accused of setting fire to the chattels in the dance hall of which he was the lessee on Sept. 28.

Young was represented by D. Robertson of Walkerton, and pleaded not guilty to the charge, electing to be tried by a judge and jury. Crown Attorney T. H. Dyre prosecuted and sufficient evidence was submitted to warrant his being sent up for trial, and he will be tried at the Fall Assizes, which open at Owen Sound on November 9th before Mr. Justice Grant. Bail was granted in the sum of $2,000.

"What's the matter?" asked Harold of his friend Bill, who was kicking himself. "Matter?" echoed Bill. "Only a little joke I played. Just a funny little joke." "What was it?" "Well, you know Percy Jones? I lent him ten dollars about a year ago, and I simply couldn't get him to pay it back. Then last week I heard that he had started a debt collecting agency, so I thought it would be a good joke to write asking him to collect the ten dollars he owes me." "Well?" "Now I've got a letter from him saying he's collected the ten dollars, but that it was such hard work that he's compelled to charge me a fee of ten dollars and fifty cents."

CARGILL LAD DROWNED

Cargill, Oct. 11.—Robert Stansel, aged 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Stansel of 10th concession of Brant, was drowned in the Saugeen River, just back of his father's farm three miles north-east of Cargill, about five o'clock Saturday evening. The body was recovered by searchers five hours in three feet of water, a short distance from where he fell in. The victim, along with an elder brother, aged 9, and a companion named Pengelly, about the same age, went out in the afternoon with a horse and democrat to gather butternuts. In order to reach the trees, the boys drove through the river. Before reaching the other side of the river, the horse broke loose, leaving the three lads stranded in the river, surrounded by four or five feet of water. The horse made its way to an island a short distance away, and the two elder boys followed it. Left alone in the rig, the little fellow became alarmed when the vehicle turned completely around by the swift current, and jumped into the water. He sank immediately and his companions declare he never came to the surface. Residents of the neighborhood were attracted to the scene of the tragedy by the screams of the other two boys.

ACCUSED TRIO SKIPPED

Sam and Louis Bernstein, junk dealers of Owen Sound, who were scheduled to appear in the Walkerton Police Court last Monday on the charge of stealing a spare tire from the car of Mr. Hepburn, an hotel-keeper of Southampton, while the auto was parked at the dance pavilion there on a recent Saturday night, were conspicuous by their absence when they were called at Walkerton by Magistrate Macartney. Their father, Louis Bernstein, also of Owen Sound, who went their bail for $600 each, and who later went his own bail for $500 on a B.O.T.A. charge, is said to have lit out with his two sons for parts unknown. A bench warrant has been issued and while their departure may be good riddance, yet Officers Bone and Widmeyer, who were in Port Elgin on Tuesday, are anxious to know the direction of their flight.—Port Elgin Times.

PRESERVING AND STORING EGGS

(Experimental Farm Note)

The economical housewife will take advantage of the season of heavy production and consequently low priced eggs to put by a supply of eggs for culinary purposes for use during the season of high prices.

For this purpose there are a number of preservatives that are satisfactory, but the two outstanding ones are "waterglass" and "lime water." Waterglass is an excellent preservative but it owes a great deal of its popularity to the fact that it can be readily procured at any drug store in convenient form.

Lime water is a much cheaper preservative and experiments carried on by the Experimental Farms have shown it to be equal, if not superior to waterglass. For a number of years the Experimental farm at Cap Rouge has been conducting tests in the storing of eggs. Some of the eggs are shipped to the Central Farm each season for examination and it is found that those preserved in lime water are best.

When eggs are to be held in a commercial way, cold storage is an essential. The guarantizing process is one that is becoming increasingly popular. For a number of years the Central Farm has been carrying on tests with this process and the result obtained warrant its recommendation to commercial packers.

Literature on the preserving of eggs for domestic purposes will be sent on application to the Poultry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

USING THEIR GUNS NOW

Officers of the law in this vicinity are starting to use their revolvers now. Last week up at Port Elgin a constable took a few shots at a bootlegger who refused to halt and be arrested—and missed. About the same time an officer out Kinloss way took a few shots at a man climbing out of a cellar window who refused to halt—and missed. The officers are evidently through monkeying with law breakers in this section, but it looks as if they need a tremendous amount of target practice. Either that or they must carry sawed-off shotguns, from which the bullets are scattered over a considerable area.—Kincardine Review-Reporter.

JUDGE A. B. KLEIN

By J. J. Hunter, in Kincardine Review-Reporter

On Saturday, September 15th, Judge A. B. Klein celebrated the 75th anniversary of his birth at his home in the County town, Walkerton. It is a remarkable record that the Judge has behind him, having dispensed justice in this county for a period of thirty-three years, and during that time very few of his findings have been upset. The thing that is most to be commended in Judge Klein is his humanitarian attitude on the bench. He never looked like a man that wanted to be severe, and even when he handed out sentences the unfortunate one felt it grieved the Judge to have to do it. However, in the interests of law and order His Honour did not let his sympathy err.
It may be truly said that before convicting the case had to be made perfectly plain to the Judge. Perhaps he has erred, but it was generally on the side of leniency. He has won the esteem and respect of all who have the pleasure of knowing him in this county. He was born on September 16th, 1851, and he received his early education by private tuition and in the old Grammar School at Kitchener.
It will be of interest to the readers of this paper to know that the Judge lived in Huron Township on the lake shore about four miles from Kincard-ine with his parents from 1857 to 1859. He can remember quite well the drawing of grain to this town in the summer on wooden sledges, wagons at that time being very scarce in the community. He has always had a warm spot in his heart for this section because of those early days.
Quitting from the stores at Kitchener he clerked at Formosa and Chesstow; also for Mr.
Korman at Carlruhe in 1867. He was ever studious by nature and his ambition was to become a lawyer. He began to study law with the late D.
B. Ross, Crown Attorney of the County of Bruce, in 1868. He was admitted attorney and solicitor at Osgoode Hall in 1874, and became a barrister in 1879. He had the honor of being appointed one of Her Majesty's Queen's Counsels in 1889, Earl Derby then being Governor-General In April 1893 he was appointed Junior County Judge in Bruce and Senior County Court Judge in 1915.

In public spirit the Judge has not been lacking and has ever been found in the forefront of any movement that was in the interests of the County. In his earlier days he was President of the East and South Bruce Conservative Associations from 1886 to 1893, and at the urgent request of Sir John A. Macdonald, was candidate in the Conservative interests for South Bruce Ontario Parliamentary election in 1896. He took an active part in the municipal life of Walkerton and was honored in 1888-4 by being elected mayor.

He is the only member of the town council in those years who is still living. He was reeve of the town in 1892-3, having run for office on account of a largely signed requisition of the ratepayers. He was also a member of the Public School Board in 1874, being chairman of the board when he ran for mayor and resigned from that body. It doesn't matter where you look in the life of Walkerton you find that the Judge was active. He was the first president of Bruce County Hospital Board, which position he held for four years. Who does not remember the Judge's activities as President of the Bruce War Auxiliary, which assisted so ably in recruiting the 160th Bruce Battalion.
For a number of years the Judge was active in local militia circles, being Paymaster of the 32nd Bruce Regiment and when that regiment left for the Northwest Rebellion in 1885 he went with it. In 1897 he had the honor of retiring with the rank of Major. He always remembers the days he spent with the old 32nd and his references to them spoke of their splendid manhood and physique.
Among his coveted possessions is his British Government medal for long service in the colonial forces.

Walkerton Old Home Week in 1921 found him a most active man as chairman. In fact there are mighty few activities that did not claim his energy and ability. In religion he is a Roman Catholic. He belongs to the Knights of Columbus and is a member of the A.O.U.W.
With all his activities one would think the Judge would not have time for other things, yet he is an ardent fisherman and fond of hunting, and few men enjoyed camp life better than he did. If he has a hobby it is flowers. At his home in Walkerton he cultivates many varieties. Roses are his favorite and the writer on his last visit to the Judge and his wife a few months ago, enjoyed the pleasure of viewing many fine flowers. When leaving, the Judge presented the ladies of the party with some choice roses.

His time has come for retirement and no one will grudge him the well-earned rest that is his. It is safe to say that few men enjoy respect and esteem to any greater extent than does Judge Klein. He was always a bonnie fighter, but when the battle was over he had that happy faculty of forgetting that there had ever been a difference and this friendship and social life was never interfered with. May he long be spared to continue one of the honored of the county, and now, in the twilight of life he can look back upon the friends who have passed on and think of those he is surrounded with, feeling that his life has not been lived in vain, and that in his own way he has contributed to the betterment of the community in which for fifty-eight years his energies and activities have been paramount.

POLICE COURT ON RESERVE

Mr. Jos. A. Chapman, J.P., was again called to Saugeen Indian Reserve on Monday to preside at a police court sittings, when four Indians were arraigned on the "carpet" as a result of their fondness for "fire water" or bootleg poison. Solomon Mitchell, who on the 2nd inst. was found by the village constable draped over the back seat of a car in a soused condition, was fined $10 and costs or 30 days in jail. Wm. Oton-quait and his nephew Jesse charged with having liquor on the Reserve, were each fined $10 and costs of 30 days. Another Red Skin who was seen to throw a bottle behind a fence when the village constable approached him on Sunday morning, October 8rd, which bottle containing a quantity of "tanglefoot," was afterwards found by the officer, also appeared on a charge of having liquor on the Reserve. This wily buck, however, claimed he had been given the bottle to throw away by one, Robert Solomon. The later, who was hailed into court, denied having ever seen the bottle, and as it was beyond the ken of the magistrate to know which one of the Indians was telling the truth he allowed the accused off on suspended sentence after saddling him with the costs of the case.—Port Elgin Times.

NUISANCE TAXES

The Toronto Telegram says that of all the nuisance taxes the war inflicted on a suffering people the stamp on cheques is probably the worst.
"When the ordinary man writes a cheque, he is almost sure to find that he is without the little revenue producer that keeps him, within the law.

He sallies forth and rakes the countryside. If he is fortunate he finds the place where stamps are sold. Determined not to be caught a second time, he purchases a dozen of them.
And when the next cheque day floats around, he finds that the remaining eleven have glued themselves together and defy any man to put them asunder.
So he does it all over again. The government that abolishes this cheque stamp can lay just claim to a large place in its country's affections," says The Toronto Telegram, all of which is very true, and the abolition of the stamp on cheques of not more than five dollars only complicates the nuisance. Better abolish it altogether.

The tax on receipts was an even greater nuisance than the tax on cheques. Its partial abolition on sums up to $10 was welcome enough as it eliminates a lot of bother in the matter of giving small receipts, but its total abolition was twice welcome.
Everybody hopes that it will not be reimposed.

The amusement tax is also one that causes a great deal of inconvenience, more particularly in the mode of its enforcement. It is rumored that this tax also may be abolished. At any rate if a tax is placed on amusements it should be a straight percentage tax on the gross receipts, and not as an extra cent or extra cents paid when purchasing tickets. And no distinction should be made as to entertainments whether for commercial, educational, benevolent or religious purposes.

Of course governments need revenues, and are at their wits' end to devise new ways of raising them. Surely means can be contrived that would not give perpetual and exasperating occasions for annoyance.

In this connection we think a mistake was made in reducing the rate of postage on letters from three cents to two cents. The extra cent did not cause any extra annoyance or expenditure of time or labor, and it was a substantial addition to the revenues.

Of course the reduction was very popular. It also would have been expedient if we could afford it in our revenues. We only hope that the reduction will not be made up by advances in the postage of other classes of mail.

AS THE POST SEES HIM

In commenting on the men who form the new King Cabinet the Financial Post of recent date had the following to say of the representative from North Bruce—Hon. James Malcom's advent to the very important ministry of trade and commerce can only call forth commendation.
His past records makes him a man of great promise. The country expects of the minister of trade and commerce that he will mainly promote the sale of Canadian goods abroad. That calls for superior qualities in our products, for good sales-manship and broad vision. Malcolm as a manufacturer, has made superior furniture, and his success in marketing it shows he understands sales-manship. It is now announced that Mr. Dunning—as urged in this column last week—will go to the Imperial Conference as representative of the great producing interests of the west. Equally, if not more important, is the presence there of the new Minister of Trade and Commerce.
In no other way can Mr. Malcolm, and through him Canadian business get better into friendly touch and more intelligent understanding with the leaders of great groups of peoples who want to trade with us.

CATTLE ON THE HIGHWAYS

Supposedly contrary to the by-laws of the townships of all the counties in Ontario, there are still many places where people allow their horses, cattle and sheep and even hogs to roam at large on the highways, constituing a source of menace and a source of anxiety and worry to those who have occasion to use them.

Motorists make every effort to avoid contact with cattle, not desiring to injure any of these, and particularly not wanting to injure their cars or endanger the lives of those riding in them. Yet motorists are blamed for carelessness if any animal happens to be hit and injured, while the owners in many cases are quite indifferent to the dangers and take a chance in allowing their stock to wander un-tended from one side of the road to the other.

Bovine intelligence to get out of the way of travel cannot be depended on, but something more than that standard of wit is expected from owners of live stock who allow their stock to get a portion of their feeding from the roads of the country.

It is in the fall and the spring that the greater number of cattle are on the road, the owners thinking perhaps that the traffic is not so great at that time. It makes no difference, for one single car travelling a road at night can run into cattle, resulting in the loss of life, as well as if there were fifty cars an hour passing.
How would you feel if you know that your stock being on the road had caused the loss of human life?

CHATSWORTH SAGE HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. J. B. Bowes, the well-known Chatsworth prophet, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Thursday last. He was operating a crane at his chopping and saw mill in Owen Sound west, when the mishap occurred, the crane being used to handle logs for one of the supports of a platform some thirty feet high. A sudden gust of wind swung the crane around so that the platform fell, but Mr. Bowes noticed that the crane was moving just in time to allow him to grab hold of a projecting plank where he hung until his assistant, who was inside the mill came to his assistance.

In order to be of assistance the man had to go 100 feet to the other end of the mill, down two flights of stairs and back 100 feet to the crane and swing it around so that Mr.

Bowes could secure a hold on the arm of the crane, which had to be swung back opposite a window where he got into the building with safety. It was a precarious position in which he was placed, but Mr. Bowes appeared to be the coolest man on the job. It is remarkable how he managed to hold on, as he wears one of his celebrated steel hands, which has a wonderful grip.

HOWICK

Miss Agnes Ellen Brown, 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, Molesworth, died at the home of her parents on Thursday, October 7th. Miss Brown was taken ill while a nurse-in-training in Bradford Hospital in March, and was brought home in July. Besides her parents, she is survived by four sisters, Mrs. James Cullen, Mrs. Jos. Pearson, Mrs. Wesley Chambers, of Grey Township, and Jessie at home; also four brothers, George and Murray at home. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev.
John Smith, Molesworth.

An extremely sad and sudden death occurred Saturday morning last when Mrs. Cassels Thompson passed away at her home on the 10th con., Minto.
The deceased was a daughter of Samuel and the late Mrs. Clark, of Harrington, and former residents of the ninth concession of Howick. The late Mrs. Thompson, who was in her 30th year, had been in her usual good health, but when her husband awaked on Saturday morning he noticed her breathing rather heavily. He tried to awaken her, but without result, and she passed away before a doctor arrived. The physician attributed death to heart failure. Besides her sorrowing husband, she is survived by a two-year-old daughter. The funeral was held on Monday, interesting being made in Harrington cemeter-

... she did not think deeply. She was only a little flapper with a great love of excitement and adventure. Vira, like many another girl of to-day, was convinced that she was equal to anything. There was no emergency, no situation she could not meet. At least Vira had felt that until a few days ago. Now she was learning.

Vira was a quick thinker. It was born in her. She was turning over in her mind various phases of the proposed Mr. Crook. Nor was Vira betraying to him what was going on back of those dark lakes of her eyes. The fact of the matter was that this girl intrigued even the worldly-wise Crook. He was not quite sure ever whether she might not be on to him.

Suddenly Vira seemed to have a bright idea. "Very well, sir," she said briskly. "I will do as you say. I will meet you there at three. I will get the party broke up. Vira drove off, leaving Curtis, who went in another direction. Mr. Crook started back for the flivver. Hank decided on a little spying about. It was then that Ken got so interested, knowing nothing about the subject of the conference since he had seen at a distance too great to overhear, that he tried to see what Hank was looking at and discovered himself to the boy, who beat it fast. But Hank had seen one thing. That was Rae vamping Buckley to the queen's taste to keep him out of the way so that he could not help Vira or advise her. Ken then started off on his wheel, but it was no match for the flivver. And Rae was also getting restless. She had a date at a Cub.

"For ourselves, we were ever narrowing down the circle we were weaving about the gray racer in its hiding place in the old red barn. I recall one message we intercepted with the radio compass. It was brief. "Apparatus O. K."

"What apparatus?" I asked blankly. "That's for us to hurry and find out," returned Kennedy as he urged Easton to greater haste and exactness in getting the line on the broadcast from the field set.

Vira, in great eagerness now, stopped her car before the great Gerard mansion. She hoped that her mother would be at home and was delighted when George, the butler, informed her that she was.

A moment later she burst into her mother's room and in a flood of enthusiasm poured forth the offer of the lawyer to secure the co-operation of "Pete" in the town jail for the return of Dick, in consideration of bail being furnished for his release.

Mrs. Gerard, conservative soul, was shocked at parting with her jewels on any such wild chance as this, as well as she might be. But Vira was not abashed at the objection. In fact she had anticipated it. Vira was a smart little thing. She had thought it all out.

"But, mother, dear, I don't mean our real jewels. You have a paste replica of grandmother's pendant that's wonderful. Give me that. They'll never know the difference, these Hicks. They can put it up for bail, anyhow. And if you get back Dick, you can afford to make good if the man jumps his bail!"

Mrs. Gerard was, under her calm exterior, frantic over the continued absence of her boy. She also saw the cleverness of Vira. She agreed.

CHAPTER XXI.
FUMES OF FEAR.

Somehow Ken had a feeling that all was not well with Vira. Perhaps it was that he had just been through a particularly harrowing experience with his sister Ruth. What more likely, then, than in some way this clever gang might try to involve Vira, the sister of his pal, Dick Gerard?

As he pedaled along on his wheel back from the Binnacle Inn, Ken was casting about in his mind various ways of getting a line on what was going on. Here was Hank and with him a perfect stranger. With what could that have to do? Many things. Ken might have been only a boy, but he had a quick wit. There flashed over him a thought of that sour thug who had been arrested the night before at the fire and lodged in the town jail. Hank had been observing that. Could there be any connection here? At any rate it would take only a few minutes to get around to the town jail. Perhaps he might chance on some clew.

A few minutes before Ken arrived at the town lock-up, sure enough, Hank had put in an appearance. He climbed up to the barred window behind which he knew Cauliflower Pete was called.

"Pete!"

Pete sprang up from his cot where he was sitting. "Say! What're they doin'? I'm here yet, ain't I? I tell you I'm a goin'er squeal if they don't get me out—soon."

Pete hesitated at the end and weakly. He wanted to say "now." Only he suddenly thought that perhaps in trying to incriminate himself, or at least cause the authorities to look up a not too savory career. Even though he turned state's evidence in this case, might they not drag out into the light other cases in the past against him? He had learned one thing. Sometimes it is better to let sleeping dogs lie—take your medicine and shut up about it. Still, a loud holler always had its effect and might hurry the chief in action if reported by the boy.

Hank was bursting with news and importance. "That's all right, Pete," he returned. "You'll be all right. Just keep a stiff upper lip. Wait it out. They sent Mr. Crook down. You know that's my, but he's a clever man. He saw the judge, got the bail fixed at one grand. Then I took him over to Vira Gerard. You know her folks have millions. She's getting a valuable piece of jewelry from her mother, will give it to Mr. Crook to put up as security. They'll get you out."

"Well, I'm in! Where are they? Why don't they do something?"

"Oh, it's all right. He's meeting her at three over at the Rendezvous Garage on the Parkway. You'll eat supper with the crowd. Don't worry. They better see that I do!"

Hank was quite excited by the surmise of Pete. He did not know the game like an old hand, realize that this was acting. Perhaps in his excitement his voice raised a little higher than it would have done otherwise. But he wanted Pete to understand. He did not look around to see that he was at the same time making his enemy Ken understand equally well.

Ken had come to the lock-up and was listening as he peered cautiously around the corner. He was getting an awful. And also Ken was getting wise. He had been fooled once that day. Now he was on his guard. Was there any reason to suppose that this thing was on the level any more than the ruse by which he and Ruth had been almost taken in that morning? Only, in this case it was aimed at Vira.

The thing that worried Ken as it flashed over his mind was that it was all up to him alone. He was just a boy. He had no false ideas of his own importance. And by that very same token he was much more likely to succeed in protecting Vira. Only, he knew he must be very careful of whom he took into his confidence. He needed the help of a man. He had sized up Mr. Crook. He was powerful. How he wished he knew where he could reach Glenn Buckley!

Once now Hank looked around furtively. Ken was prepared. He withdrew his head around the corner of the jail just in time. It would be fatal to let Hank know that he knew of suspected anything. He did not take any more chances but hid to safety around the other side of the jail building and soon was a sufficient distance from Hank that that young gentleman might not suspect a thing even if again they met.

give Rae the wheel. ... him the high sign to go after Vira. He did—while you were inside, so interested with Rae you were blind. Don't be a sap!"

Ken's revelation shook Buckley. It rather put him up in the air. Ken saw his advantage, went on to tell Glenn what he heard Vira was doing, dwelt a bit on the peril to her. He put a little imagination into it. Ken was a clever boy and when he grew up ought to make a good promoter. He gradually sold Buckley. Buckley weakened and finally was as excited as Ken. It was that wink to Rae and her answer to Curtis, unknown to him, that did it. She could not make a monkey out of him, Glenn vowed.

"I wonder where Vira is now?" he demanded. "Is it too late to stop her?"

"I'm afraid it is," Ken looked at watch. "Nearly three. Let's get over to that Rendezvous Garage!" urged Buckley.

That had been just what Ken wanted. He was secretly pleased. The two started.

But they did not get far before they caught sight of Jack Curtis. He was coming to the Club.

"You see?" whispered Ken. "She shakes you—and he appears! It's a put up job! Let's get a line on him. Maybe he's in it, too."

Buckley was willing. He was sore at Jack. They almost came to blows, but what happened was quite enough to convince Glenn, not only that Ken was right about Vira, but that they would have to hurry if they expected to be in time to head off any trouble that Vira might be encountering.

Even before Ken and Buckley had started, Vira, in her enthusiasm to help with the rescue of Dick, her brother, was hastening almost beyond the speed limit. It would indeed have been a mercy to Vira if the traffic cop of the town had happened along and taken her in. But Vira was paying in no such luck.

Her face flushed with the excitement of driving and the rush of air, almost breathless, and her engine overheated, Vira drove in through the open door of the Rendezvous Garage. She did not stop to look around to notice at first that on one pretext or another Lawyer Crook had planned the absence of the proprietor and his helper and was himself alone at the garage at the appointed hour.

No sooner had she jumped out of her car, leaving the motor running, than Mr. Crook moved over quickly and closed the doors. She did not like it, but what could she do?

World's Largest Organ May Play Soon on Radio

Canadian radio fans soon may hear from the Daventry station, Liverpool, Cathedral's organ, which has just been completed at a cost of about $175,000. It is said to be the largest organ in the world.

The instrument has five rows of keys, 22 draw knobs, 168 stops and 10,934 pipes. It is pumped by electro-pneumatic action, the mechanism being driven by motors with thirty-five horsepower. The size of the organ is such that there are seventeen telephones from various parts of the instrument for the workmen to communicate with the assistant at the keys during tuning.

500 Luther Descendants Meet.

There are 608 living descendants of Martin Luther, and 500 of them gathered at the annual reunion and memorial services of the Luther family at Eisenach. Although Luther had six children, and four survived his death in 1546, only two had offspring. The ancestry of 537 is traced to Dr. Paul Luther and the remaining seventy-one to Margaret Luther.

Paris Families Living in 300-Year-Old House

Seven families living in a decrepit, worm-eaten house more than 300 years old, which was condemned by the city architects many months ago, are forced to stay there because the housing shortage is so great that there is no place to go.

The building stands on the Rue Mazet and was part of a Benedictine Monastery built in 1612. The authorities say that the house is likely to collapse at any minute. The families have been ordered out, but they are unable to find shelter.

Going to Emmaus.

Ere yet they brought their journey to an end, A stranger joined them, courteous as a friend, And asked them with a kind engaging air, What their affliction was, and begged a share. Informed, he gathered up a broken thread, And truth and wisdom gracing all he said, Defined, illustrated, and searched so well, Tender theme, on which they chose to dwell, Breaching home, "The night," they said, "is near, Must not now be parted, sojourn here."

And, made so welcome at their simple feast, He blessed the bread, but vanished at the word, And left them both exclaiming, "'Twas the Lord!

Did not our hearts feel all He doigned to say, Did they not burn within us by the way?"

—Cowper, "Conversation."

What Your Eyes Reveal.

The poet who wrote that the eyes are the windows of the soul wrote truer than he knew. Science now says that it is possible to judge a man's character by his eyes.

But this is not easy. It requires a great deal of close study. For instance, the shifty-eyed person, who is always looked on with suspicion, is often nervous; and the frank-eyed individual may be a master liar. This makes reading character from the eyes difficult to any but the expert.

But the general coloring of the eyes usually connotes certain characteristics. For example, blue-eyed people are usually more robust than those with brown eyes. This is probably because blue eyes are peculiar to northern climes whose people are harder.

The brown-eyed man or woman probably has a strain of southern blood. They have more capacity for intellectual effort, less for action.

Nearly all the great adventurers, soldiers, and sailors of the world have been blue-eyed men. Many poets have been dark, with brown eyes.

Green eyes for jealousy, runs the old saying; but it is without foundation. Green eyes very often go with what is known as a "psychic temperament." Grey eyes usually go with a placid, gentle nature. The grey-eyed person is sensitive, kindly, and steadfast.

In rare cases one finds people with eyes of different colors. Such persons are often very emotional, with a leaning towards religion and mysticism.

Last, that rare thing, real violet eyes. In women they go with a sweet and gentle disposition, and in men they are only found in people with strongly developed poetic instincts.

Bungalows Are Gaining Popularity in France

The bungalow idea is spreading rapidly in France. Scores of little houses are being constructed in every suburb about Paris for people who a few years ago thought it would be beneath their dignity to live in anything less than a large uncomfortable villa with several servants to keep things in order.

The French middle classes took the "pavillions," as they were called at first, as part of the post-war hardships, but now finding them compact, comfortable and of light upkeep, are accepting them gladly as a respite from the drudgery and expense of the old-fashioned houses.

Sheffield Plants Begin Razor Blade Output

Sheffield steel manufacturers in their efforts to cut into the American safety razor blade trade are now turning out millions of blades every week. One firm alone employs 1300 workers and produces more than a million blades weekly. It is making preparations to double its capacity within the next few months.

In his annual report, Sir Gerald Bellhouse, chief inspector of factories, says that for some years Sheffield has been supplying a good proportion of the steel for the manufacture of safety razor blades in the United States, but of late the Sheffield manufacturers have been exerting themselves to produce the actual blades themselves for Britain's share of the world trade in this particular line.
