THIRTY DROWNED BY SINKING OF CAR FERRY

Ludington, Mich., Sept. 9.—Thirty lives were lost today when Pere Marquette car ferry No. 18, bound from Ludington to Milwaukee, went to the bottom of Lake Michigan half way across the lake. The dead include Capt. Peter Kilty, of Ludington; S. F. Seze-panik, purser and wireless operator, whose signals of distress brought assistance to the sinking steamer and two members of the crew of car ferry No. 17, who lost their lives in an effort to rescue the crew of No. 18.

POLITICAL TOWN OVER IN MAINE

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—A tidal wave of democracy swept over Maine yesterday, carrying Col. Frederick W. Plaisted of Augusta, to the governor's chair and ousting the present incumbent Bert M. Fernald of Poland, by a plurality of at least 6,500. Returns from 639 out of 628 election districts comprising 19 cities and 421 out of 501 towns and plantations gave: Plaisted (Dem.) 64,658; Fernald (Rep.) 56,988.

C. Burleigh of Augusta, to private life, after 18 years at Washington, while late returns indicated the election of Wm. H. Pennell, a Democrat over Asher C. Hinds in the first district, and Congressman Frank E. Guernsey admitted at midnight that his fourth district was much in doubt. The incoming senate is surely Democratic by a good majority and at midnight the House seemed to have the same complexion. Col. Plaisted, the governor elect, is the son of Harry M. Plaisted, the Fusion governor of 1881 and '82, but where the father won in the election of 1880 by scant 150 votes, the son today goes up to the capital with a plurality larger than that given two years ago to his defeated Republican opponent, Governor Bert Fernald of Poland. The victorious Democrat leader is a young man in point of age, but an old hand in the political game. Col. Plaisted was born in Bangor in 1864. His business is that of a publisher of a weekly paper.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Striking Example of Its Cure by the Tonic Treatment.

St. Vitus dance is the commonest form of nervous trouble which afflicts children, because of the great demands made on the body by growth and development, and there is the added strain caused by study. It is when these demands become so great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, that the nervous debility which leads to St. Vitus dance. The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give their children this great blood-building medicine at the first signs of the approach of this disease. Falor, listlessness, inattention, restlessness and irritability are all symptoms which early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them. Mrs. A. Winters, Virden, Man., says: "When my little girl was six years old she was attacked with scurlitis, which was followed by St. Vitus dance. Her limbs would jerk and switch. Her speech became affected, and at last she became so bad that she could scarcely walk, and we hardly dared trust her alone. She was under the care of a doctor, but in spite of this was steadily growing worse, and we feared that we would lose her. As Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her older sister of anæmia I decided to try them again. After the use of a few boxes, to our great joy, we found they were helping her and in the course of a few weeks more her power of speech fully returned, and she could walk and go about as well as any child, and she has been well and healthy since. When illness comes to any one of our family now, we never call in a doctor but simply use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they never disappoint us." So all medicine dealers or by mail 50 cents a box or six boxes $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brookville, O.

FAKIR AT FAIR WAS ARRESTED

But Allowed to go on Promise to Stop Operations at the Winter Port.

St. John, Sept. 9.—An Austrian named Kitz was arrested on the exhibition grounds this morning for working a gambling game at which a man named Maher claimed to have lost $37. It was a game of chance but the fakir was using, with the advantage a great deal in the favor of Kitz. The police magistrate ordered Kitz to hand over the money that he had received from Maher, and on the condition that he would quit the grounds. The Lonsbury Co., has let the contract for their fine brick block on the former Baptist church property to R. A. Corbett of St. John. This will be three storeys. The basement will be for storage of heavy machines, the ground floor will be occupied by two stores, one for the company's representative and the other to let, while the first floor will be for office purposes, the plans showing four neat offices. The second floor will be for storage of the company's lighter goods, furniture, etc. A bricked in freight elevator will provide facilities for moving stock. The front will show a very pleasing aspect and the building a credit alike to this enterprising company and the town. Work has already been commenced on the contract and it is expected the outside will be about completed before winter weather sets in.

CARRIED THE HOST BEFORE VAST CROWD

Forty Thousand People in Montreal Eucharistic Procession was More Than Four Hours in Passing—Route was Lined by Half Million People.

Montreal, Sept. 11.—The Eucharistic procession, the crowning event of the Eucharistic Congress, took place today and was participated in by 40,000 men, and was witnessed by half a million people. Never has any city of the new world witnessed such a spectacle and the demonstration was of such a stupendous character that it took four and a half hours for the procession to pass a given point. More than 100 bishops, three princes of the church, two prelates and thousands of priests all united to proclaim their love for the mother church and faith in the Eucharist. The route of the procession, which was two miles and three-quarters, was through long lanes of densely packed humanity and when the tall commanding figure of Cardinal Vanutelli, bearing aloft the Host, passed by, the sight of the thousands kneeling in adoration was impressive. The first marchers reached the sanctuary erected on the slopes of Mount Royal, long before the clang of Notre Dame's famous bells heralded the fact that the cardinal legate, bearing the Host, had left the mother church of Canadian Roman Catholicism. A rough computation showed that the processionists passed at the rate of 10,000 an hour. Never has Montreal or any other Canadian city witnessed such a huge gathering of people. During the past two days more than 200,000 poured into the city from all parts of the continent. The tremendous influx resulted in something approaching a food famine and hundreds waited in line at the various hotels and restaurants waiting for a chance to get something to eat. The resources of the railways were taxed to the utmost and the dense throngs packed the stations waiting for the special trains which took them back to their homes. Until a late hour tonight the trains were leaving every fifteen minutes. Montreal tonight is invaded by hungry throngs and prices of food have soared. The monster procession passed off without a hitch, and with the exception of a few cases of fainting the Red Cross stations along the route had little to do.

DRIVER HURLED FROM ENGINE CAB

Murray Hoyt, Although Thrown Some Distance, Only had an Ankle Sprained.

Fredericton, Sept. 11.—Murray Hoyt, driver on a freight train of the I. C. R., was thrown from the engine yesterday when the driving wheel and connecting rod broke near Weaver siding. Hoyt was thrown some distance but suffered only a sprained ankle. Wm. A. Jewett, fireman, jumped from the cab and escaped injury. The engine was somewhat damaged, but was brought to Fredericton.

DO YOU STILL PAINT YOUR ROOFS?

Thousands of farmers still count the cost of painting their roofings as a necessary part of their annual expense. Many of them are making trouble for themselves in the future by laying roofs which require constant attention. There is a modern and better way of treating the roofing problem. Amattite roofing has come upon the market during the last few years and has proven a success. Amattite is like any other ready roofing (sold in rolls with nails and cement free, etc. ready to lay), except that it has a mineral surface which needs no painting. It is just as easy to lay Amattite as any other roofing and just as cheap. The difference is that after you have laid your Amattite roof, you can leave it alone. The mineral surface is thoroughly durable and requires no painting. If you do not know about Amattite, we advise you to investigate it. You can get a booklet about it, and a free sample by simply addressing the nearest office of the Carritte-Paterson Mfg. Co., Ltd., St. John, N. B., Halifax, N. S.

AMHERST MEN SERIOUSLY, IF NOT FATA Y, INJURED

Amherst, N. S., Sept. 13.—About 30 citizens this morning were aroused by a terrific explosion followed immediately by the fire alarm. So far as can be ascertained workmen in the Rolling Mills department of the Canadian Car and Foundry Co., threw water on the hot slag which caused the explosion. Russell Jones, er of I. C. R. policeman J. and a man named Carter were seriously if not fatally injured, the fire of hot slag striking in the face. It is feared Carter will at least lose his eyesight, while both are considerably disfigured, the slag being burned in their faces.

COMMERCIAL MEN'S DAY AT ST. JOHN FAIR

St. John, N. B., Sept. 12.—Commercial travellers' day at Dominion Exhibition was most successful one marked as it was by three new features of interest. The Royal Canadian Dragoons made their first appearance and pleased the crowd with their musical ride. Gen. Baden Powell visited the grounds intending to review the corps of boy scouts from Halifax, but for some reason the latter did not arrive and the hero of Mafeking merely inspected the live stock. In the afternoon he addressed a large meeting in the opera house on the purpose of the boy scout movement and left again for Montreal this evening. Knights of the grip played a ball game on the exhibition grounds and St. John was defeated by the outside men, 10 to 7.

NORTH SHORE MAN LOST HIS HAND

Hand Got Caught in Thresher Mill and was Horribly Mutilated.

Chatham, N. B., Sept. 9.—John B. Legere, of Big Tracadie River, lost his right hand Wednesday evening by catching it in a thresher mill. Mr. Legere attempted to clear away the straw from the drum, and put his hand behind for this purpose when it was caught in the drum and horribly mutilated. The hand was stripped clear of flesh and bones and only some skin left hanging. The injured man was removed to the hospital in connection with the Lazaretto, and medical attendance secured. The remnants of the hand had to be amputated at the wrist.

WHY THIS APATHY?

When the fire which destroyed Campbellton on July 11th had sufficiently cooled, Postmaster McKendrick on his own responsibility, gave the contract for a small shack suitable for housing the post office during the warm weather, and his action in this respect was commended both by the Post Office Department and the citizens. Now the cold weather has set in and there are days when the building is not sufficiently comfortable to work in, but the staff have made the best of a bad bargain and have continued with much discomfort, to attend to the regular duties. But the climax was reached Wednesday, Tuesday night and Wednesday a cold raw easterly rain storm prevailed and the cold made things so unpleasant that the Post Master was obliged to lock up and the office was closed from 11 o'clock until 6 when an effort was again made to serve the public. The department at St. John and Ottawa and the Restigouche member have been frequently advised of the conditions, but as yet no steps have been taken to relieve the situation. Unless the matter is speedily attended to, Postmaster MacKendrick will be obliged to go back to a box car or close the office until suitable arrangements can be made. It is time citizens in general took the matter in hand and press for a speedy remedy to the present conditions.—Graphic.

THE SAFETY OF "FRUIT-A-TIVES" May Be Taken For Years

The Ideal Remedy For Young and Old

Nature's gifts do us good, if used judiciously. We eat bread from babyhood to old age without ever tiring of it. We drink water, year in and year out, with the greatest benefit to our health. So too, we eat fruit in season and are better for the change of diet. This is true, because such things are the natural foods and drink of mankind. It is for this reason that "Fruit-a-tives" may be used for years in correcting some ill of the body. As is well known, "Fruit-a-tives" is made of the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes. Just as fresh fruit may be eaten at every meal, so "Fruit-a-tives" may be taken every night for 20 years or more with the greatest benefit. The absolute safety of "Fruit-a-tives" has been a great factor in its success. Those who suffered with chronic troubles such as Constipation, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, etc., naturally took a number of boxes of "Fruit-a-tives". As they became better, they found that instead of being compelled to increase the dose as in most medicines, they were decreasing it, and gradually taking fewer doses. See a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. At dealers, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

We are all pleased to receive our copies of the Graphic and hope it will soon be up to its former place in its fire stricken town where it flourished a few months ago.

It is quite a while since Paspebiac has had as many visitors as this summer has brought. The place seems quite lively.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. BLACK CAPE.

The crops around here are looking well and the rains of the summer have had very good effect upon them for they never looked better and the prospects for an abundant harvest are very promising.

The hay is much over the average and on new land is extra heavy. The crops are all good except on old ground where hay has been cut for many years. The wet weather has forced along the undergrowth and kept the grass growing. Grain is also looking well. The potato crop will be so good on account of the bad seed that was planted. The apple crop is also poor.

Rev. Thomas Bennett of the Bible Society gave his annual lecture in the Black Cape church on Friday evening, July 29th.

Dr. B. Sprout, of Campbellton spent Friday and Saturday here and left on Sunday evening for Port Daniel in his automobile.

Another steamer was cleared from the Harbor of New Richmond on Friday evening with a cargo of deal for Liverpool shipped by Montgomery and Sons, the well known lumber merchants.

The Caspacia Manufacturing and Trading Co. have a large steamer in the harbor of New Richmond loading a cargo of lumber.

Mr. Herbert Dimock of Grand Caspacia and Robert Hardy of New Richmond were ordained on Sunday morning as two additional elders to St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, New Richmond.

Mr. Harry Scott of New Carlisle spent Sunday in Black Cape.

Rev. George Anderson, who has been spending his vacation in Black Cape, leaves this week for his field of labor in Somerville, Mass.

Miss Lily Campbell has returned to Montreal after spending a short vacation with parents.

THE GROWTH OF THE EAST

There is no doubt that a few years hence the Maritime provinces will be the New England of Canada. Already its manufacturing plants are reaching out and our products are found in all sections of the west as well as the east.

Read what Dr. Robertson recently said to a Toronto news paper—

"While in the Lower Provinces I visited dozens of towns of three and four thousand people which I think are bound to go ahead and become manufacturing centres, known all over the Dominion. The slight disadvantage that they suffer as to freight rates in the West in comparison with the Upper Provinces is more than overbalanced it seems to me, by their climate, the quality of the workmanship they have ready to hand, and the more healthy conditions under which their workmen labor. More work and better work can be done in a cooler climate.

"The difference in freight rates to the West from the Upper and from the Lower Provinces is only eight cents per hundred weight. This is a smaller matter and does not much bother the shoe and stove manufacturers of New Brunswick. I have seen boxes in a Fredericton shoe factory directed to almost every place of importance in Western Canada."

We have the raw material and the labor for many classes of industries, and in the banks more than ample capital is lying idle. More industries is needed to manufacture the goods for the increasing demands from rapidly increasing population of the Dominion.

IS McBRIDE THE COMING LEADER?

A unique interest attaches to the September number of Busy Man's Magazine because in it is to be found a striking prophecy about the future of the Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, based on the extraordinary likeness he bears to three great political leaders. These three men are Benjamin Disraeli, Sir John A. MacDonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. This striking likeness is brought out clearly in the portraits of the four men which illustrate the article and which are placed together for purposes of comparison, Richard McBride is still a young man but even to-day he bears a marked resemblance to all three men referred to and in his mannerisms he is astonishingly like Sir John A. MacDonald. All interested in the political situation in Canada, Conservative and Liberal alike, should not fail to see this convincing prophecy.

Rev. A. J. McArthur, Newcastle, N. B., spent the past few days in Bedeque, the guest of his father-in-law, James Carruthers. MOB CHASE CHILD'S ATTACKER

Wild Run Through New York Streets; Police Save Him.

New York, Sept. 10.—The angriest crowd with which the police have had to deal in years massed itself in front of the West Twentieth street station and hooting and yelling, demanded that the police give up to them John Harris a young prisoner just captured.

"We'll take care of him," they shouted. "Give him to us; we'll fix him."

Most of the crowd had followed Harris in a wild chase from Eleventh avenue and Eighteenth street to Tenth avenue and Fourteenth street, where his arrest probably saved his life. He had already been beaten and kicked and badly wounded by several men who accused him of attempting to injure a seven-year-old girl.

According to the story told later by the child, Olive Collins, of No. 459 West Seventeenth street, she was playing near a fenced off vacant lot at Eighteenth street and Eleventh Avenue, with her five-year-old brother, William. She said a man came up to them and asked if they wouldn't like to have some candy.

Childlike, they eagerly said they would and the man gave William three pennies. "You run off to the store and we'll wait here for you," he said, according to the children.

A short while afterwards three boys climbing the fence of the vacant lot saw the little girl and the man. They jumped to the street again and ran to the White Star Line pier, where they told several longshoremen what they had seen.

The men came back with the boys on the run, and scaling the fence they fell upon Harris. In their rage they beat him unmercifully about the head, inflicting deep scalp wounds and many bruises. He managed to break away, however, and started running east through Eighteenth street, the men at his heels.

Persons along the way joined in the chase until a mob of fully five hundred was dashing after the terrified fugitive. At Tenth avenue he turned and ran south. It was not until he reached Fourteenth street that he was stopped. Mounted Policeman Murphy made his arrest, and Policeman Hall came up to help him save the prisoner from the vengeance of the crowd.

Followed by the throng that was demanding summary punishment for the prisoner and threatening to seize him at any moment, the policemen marched Harris to the station.

He was found to be so badly injured that Dr. Morris was summoned from the New York Hospital. He had to take several stitches in the prisoner's head, bandage his face and treat many severe body bruises. But outside the crowd kept up its clamor and surged upon the doors until the reserves were ordered out to protect the building. They managed to disperse part of the crowd, but for several hours a hundred or more lingered around.

Harris said he lived at the Salvation Army Lodging House in Chatham Square. He declared he had meant no harm to the child; that she had asked him to tie her shoe, and he had gone into the vacant lot to look for a piece of string. When informed that the child's shoe had not been untied he said he had made a mistake—that it was his own shoe he wanted to attend to. He was locked up. The child was injured.

ALL DRUGGISTS

ETHEL LENEVE HAS CONFESSED

Testimony will be Used Against Dr. Crippen.

London, Sept. 7.—Ethel Le Neve has confessed to all that she knows concerning the fate of Belle Elmore Crippen. When the preliminary hearing of the prisoners is continued, Miss Le Neve's confession, which is in affidavit form, will be presented as the principal evidence of the prosecution. It is understood that Mr. Thos. Humphreys, who is conducting the prosecution, will then consent to have the girl released on bail, provided she can find a bondsman.

The most powerful influence had to be exerted by Miss Le Neve's family and the King's Prosecutor before the girl could be induced to testify against her late companion, Dr. Hawley Crippen. When the charge of murder against the girl was reduced to one of being an accessory after the fact, it became evident that Miss Le Neve was being approached. If, as now seems certain, she consents to turn King's evidence, she will escape with nominal punishment.

The poison hyoscin, which the postmortem revealed in the remains of Dr. Crippen's wife is a colorless, syrupy liquid compound having the properties of hysocam in contained in henbane, thorn-apple and deadly nightshade. It produces delirium, stupor and coma.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

Sackville, N. B., Sept. 6.—Word has reached Sackville of the death in Summerland B. C. Sunday, of Harvey Phinney, formerly of Sackville. Deceased had been ill for several months with heart trouble and his death was not unexpected. He was born in Annapolis Valley in 1834 and went at the age of nine years to Richmond N. B., where he learned the trade of a tinsmith. He subsequently removed to Newcastle, where he ran a business for himself, remaining there until 1873, when he came to Sackville. For several years he was employed by the late Chas. Fawcett, and afterwards opened a tinsmith of his own. Later he worked at his trade in the old Colonial foundry, which was at length purchased by Emerson & Fisher, St. John, and rechristened the Enterprise. Mr. Phinney remained at the Enterprise plant until August, 1897, when he removed to Summerland, B. C. He was married three times, his last wife, who was formerly Miss Annie Crocker of Millerton, survives. He leaves three sons—J. Edwin, of Summerland; Frank, of Sackville; Charles of Vancouver; and two daughters—May, of Summerland, and Mrs. Scott of New York. Mr. Phinney was a prominent member of the Baptist church, serving for many years as deacon. For several years he was a member of Sackville's town council, and was very highly respected.

MISS JESSIE MACLAUGHLAN

Miss Jessie MacLaughlan and her concert company will appear in the Opera House here on Tuesday, Sept. 20. The Evening Sun of Grand Forks, B. Miss MacLaughlan had every one in love with her before the end of her first selection. Her magnificent voice gave unaccustomed spirit to "Blue Bonnets over the Border." Other fascinations were felt in "Comin' thro' the rye," "Loch Lomon," and two Gaelic songs. One expected sparkling, not to say intoxicating, things of the gentleman called Sherry, and he proved to be one of the most delicious events of a delicious day. Of varied talents is Mr. Sherry, for added to his gift of story-telling, he proved that he can foot it flatly and can sing such sprightly things as "A Hundred Pipers," with the lustiest. A dainty manner of his own against an artistic background, and there is no resisting his humor. Mr. Buchanan rendered exceptionally fine accompaniments for the songs.

STRANGE PREACHERS

Messrs. Armstrong of Ireland and Busby of England, claiming to be independent evangelists and vigorously attacking all other forms of christianity, have for some weeks been operating in Protectionville. It is claimed that at least one of these men was recently one of the Go-Preachers in P. E. Island, and that one of them professes acquaintance with W. D. Wilson of Norfolk, England, who has lost two daughters through missionaries of this sect and is bitterly opposing the whole party. Mr. Wilson claims that he cannot find where his daughters have gone, and he brands the Go-Preachers as agents of the white slave traffic. On the other hand the missionaries in Protectionville, say that such stories are all made up to injure them. While everyone is innocent in law until proved guilty, it is better for a people, especially women, to be very careful in dealing with strangers. Many confiding women have been kidnapped and taken to ruin and despair by trusting to strangers.

POOR CO

Captain Bunn

He Made a Change in the Name of It: Boat.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Captain Benjamin Bunn scrubbed down the deck of the Lovely Eva, opened the cabin windows wide to the fresh breeze blowing across the bay, hustled the coffee pot on to the little stove in the spotless galley, planted the frying pan beside it and then went and sat on the bow-sprit and waited for the baker's boy to bring the breakfast rolls.

The Lovely Eva lay in wooden cradles just above high water mark. Salt grass and the white sandy beach formed her garden plot. Beach plum trees, fragrant bayberry bushes and, in season, the tall pink marshmallow clustered about her black hull.

Above deck all was shipshape. In summer comfortable chairs and a table under a sail awning made an open air lounging place for Captain Bunn and his associates. In winter they gathered about a glowing stove in the cozy cabin.

While the coffee frothed in the pot and the bacon sizzled crisply in the pan in the galley, wheels crunched down the beach road, and the baker's wagon rolled down on the sand, turned and went heater stelter back again under the bow of the Lovely Eva.

Several hours passed in this congenial labor, while the sun mounted higher and the beach became a blazing white stretch. A woman stepped slowly along the sand holding her lilac print skirts primly above her neat shoe tops. She wore a wide lilac sun-bonnet, and her bright brown hair and fresh, youthfully pretty face were framed in it like a pleasant picture. Her brown eyes changed expression as she came upon the busy captain in the lee of the sailboat.

"Howdy-lowdy, Miss Willie?" chirped the captain delightedly. "Tell me how she looks—fine as silk, eh?" "It looks beautiful, captain," said Miss Willie Deems critically. "It shines like a frosted cake. What have you named her?"

"Nothing—as yet," returned the captain unhesitatingly. "What are you going to name her?" "I haven't thought of a name. I've been trying to think of something pretty."

"I must say I'm interested in what you're going to call your new boat," said Miss Willie. The captain's blue eyes met hers in puzzled inquiry. "I dare say—I dare say!" he murmured, looking away from the lilac sun-bonnet. "I never was good at naming a boat, Miss Willie."

Miss Willie turned slightly and surveyed the nautical barge of Captain Bunn with a quizzical eye that lingered on the name painted in small gilt letters under the bow. "So long as you've named the sloop after Eva Raymond you ought to name the sailboat after somebody else." Her gaze came back to the captain's reddening face.

The color spread under the gray whiskers, mounted to his forehead and disappeared under the peak of his white duck cap. He removed his pipe and waved it fiercely in the air, his eyes blazing ominously.

"Eva Raymond?" he snorted. "Who said I'd named the sloop after her?" "She said so," returned Miss Willie complacently. "and Evangeline Cook says it was named after her, and Eva Taylor says it was named for her; they all three fit it out five years ago at the missionary society, and they're not through talking about the mean things that was passed to and fro to this very day. They hate each other like poison, all on account of the naming of that sloop!"

"That sloop's been named Lovely Eva for the last ten years." "But what you going to name the new boat?" asked Miss Willie sweetly. Captain Bunn tramped through the sand until he stood beside Miss Willie. "I've been wanting to tell you something for a long time, Miss Willie. I thought maybe I could say it better but on the bay with a good stiff breeze blowing the sails and the water running under the keel of the new boat. I've thought of a name for the boat, but I wanted you to suggest it." He was looking very red and uncomfortable indeed, but his square shoulders were set youthfully erect, and his handsome face was deadly in earnest.

Miss Willie saw all this through her long eyelashes, and her voice was a little shaky as she replied: "Seeing as the big boat is called Lovely Eva, why don't you name the new one Beautiful Eva? And the skiff you can call Little Eva. Then the whole three would be satisfied. That's my suggestion!" The captain stared dazedly. "Then you believe named the big boat after a woman?" he demanded. "I don't believe much about women," he said carelessly. "Name 'em to suit your own self!"

Miss Willie then told him the name of the boat she had in mind. "I've been wanting to tell you something for a long time, Miss Willie. I thought maybe I could say it better but on the bay with a good stiff breeze blowing the sails and the water running under the keel of the new boat. I've thought of a name for the boat, but I wanted you to suggest it." He was looking very red and uncomfortable indeed, but his square shoulders were set youthfully erect, and his handsome face was deadly in earnest.

home on the beach would be to box, the village dressmaker, whose days were spent in going from house to house and whose ears were wearied with much gossip and whose eyes were tired of flashing needles and the whir of the sewing machine! What a blissfully happy existence would be hers in the snug shelter of the sloop, with its perfect arrangements for housekeeping, the indulgent captain for a husband! And—here Miss Willie's head drooped—there was nobody quite so lovable as Captain Benjamin Bunn! That was Miss Willie's carefully guarded secret, and her jealousy of the three Evas of Little River village. Her face grew quite pale again as she shook off Captain Bunn's hand.

"I couldn't live in a house or a boat that was named after another woman. You can see how they'd all talk, especially if they didn't marry you themselves," she said resolutely.

"Marry me themselves!" roared the captain. "You don't mean them three women waiting to marry me?"

Miss Willie nodded proudly. "Every one of 'em has laid claim to you ever since you sailed into harbor with 'Lovely Eva' painted on the sloop."

"She had that name when I bought her down to Rockport. What can I do? It's bad luck to change a boat's name," said the captain helplessly.

"Perhaps you'll think it good luck not to change it," retorted Miss Willie stiffly, once more turning away. And this time Captain Bunn did not detain her.

He watched her with grave blue eyes from which all the happiness had fled until her lilac skirts had fluttered around a pile of great bowlders, and then, with a long sigh, he picked up his painting materials and trudged up to the sloop.

The result of a long meditation was visible the next morning when Captain Bunn rigged a small scaffolding and swung himself to a seat under the bow of the Lovely Eva. Cheerfully he worked, and he sang lustily the chorus of "Ben Bowline." It was a short job, but one requiring delicacy and skill. When it was finished he performed a similar operation on the port bow and then hurried to the stern, where he stood on a barrel and carefully repainted the worn letters that announced the name of "Lovely Eva, Little River."

Then he flew down to the sailboat and with loving care lettered the name of "Wilhelmina B." on stem and stern. He had long finished his work and was fresh and clean in a suit of white drill when a man came along the beach from Little Village. He was the editor of the weekly newspaper.

"Good morning, captain," he hailed cheerfully. "I received your message about the new boat, so I've come down to have a look at her. A beauty, isn't it?" He stood still and examined the boat with a critical eye.

"I think she's pretty fine, Mr. Brown. I'll take you out tomorrow. Perhaps we can get a few blues outside, eh?" The captain beamed happily. Everything would be well now, and in the distance he could see Miss Willie Deems picking her way down the beach toward him.

"Makes the old sloop look some shabby," he remarked, calling attention to the boat on the sand above them.

Mr. Brown turned and looked at the sloop. He squinted long at her and then went up closer. "What's the matter with her name, captain? I thought—" He turned a puzzled look on the captain, who was watching him with twinkling eyes.

"What is the matter with her name?" repeated Captain Bunn innocently. "Why, I thought her name was Lovely Eva, but, by George, it's Lonely Eva!"

The captain laughed. "It's always been Lonely Eva—queer name, isn't it?—but somehow the first stroke of the 'n' wore off and left a 'v.' It's never been painted back again in a while ago. You see, that's her real name."

"Now that is quite a joke," mused Mr. Brown, with eyes mirthfully reminiscent of two spinsters and an ambitious widow who laid claim to the name of Eva. "I wonder if you'd object to my writing that up for the paper. I never heard the sloop called anything except Lovely, although I guess it's been mighty lonely sometimes." He laughed at his own joke.

"Write her up; write her up!" agreed the captain heartily, with a wave of his hand to the departing editor.

He saw Mr. Brown greet Miss Willie with great deference, and then he stood quietly waiting until she reached his side.

"I expect I'm acting like a fool over the name of that boat," she began hurriedly, when Captain Bunn's pointing finger brought her to an abrupt pause.

"Do you think any woman'll ever lay claim to having that sloop named after her, Willie? Any woman in Little River going to acknowledge her name to be Lonely Eva? Not on your life!"

Miss Willie saw and blushed and then laughed merrily. Then her face sobered. "I suppose it might seem an awful mean thing if you had ever been—had ever shown them any attention," she hesitated.

"I never did," asserted the captain stoutly. "Why, Willie, I never even looked to see one of 'em. It lets every body out of it very neatly, I think, and now how do you like the name of the new boat?" He turned her about and she looked at it in silence for a few moments.

CHURCH ADVERTISING.

What Some Ministers Do to Draw People to Worship.

A good deal has been heard lately respecting cheap marriages and the clerical competition for brides in several parts of London, England, more than one church has placed "matrimonial advertisements" on its walls.

Bezmondsey, some time ago, a poster was issued by a clergyman which read thus:—"Are you going to be married? Then we invite you to favor your own beautiful church of St. Crispin. It is the prettiest church for a wedding. It is to your advantage to come."

It was not so very long ago when the vicar of a little Scottish church issued a poster setting forth the fact that he was willing to unite loving couples at half the usual rates. As a further inducement he stated that he was prepared to accept the fees in weekly instalments from those in straitened circumstances. It appeared that the decrease in the marriage rate was felt rather severely in the vicar's parish, which is a poor one, and he resorted to advertisement in order to cope with the situation.

A most remarkable scheme for drawing people to church was conceived and carried through by one clergyman. This gentleman had advertisements inserted in several newspapers stating that a wealthy man had handed him a large sum of money on condition that he distribute it among the people who attended morning services at the church. The result was that huge crowds gathered outside the place of worship, and a score of police had to be engaged to keep order. The people who were fortunate enough to get into the building at each morning service were presented with 5 cents apiece.

It may not be generally known that the British town of Holesworthy gives awards to old maids and pretty girls who attend its church regularly. Each year the oldest unmarried lady is rewarded with the sum of 5s. for going to church every Sunday, while the prettiest girl, who also shows her piety by attending church regularly, is given the interest on a sum of money left to the town by the Rev. Thomas Mayrick many years ago.

Hunton, in Kent, Eng., was left a sum of money nearly a century and a half ago by a Bishop of London, who was formerly rector of its church, on condition that the interest thereon should be awarded to the oldest inhabitants who were the most regular attendants at the morning service. Every year several pounds are divided among the inhabitants who are eligible to benefit by the charity.

A Terrible Discovery!

An old farmer living at a remote farm in South Africa determined to have a new set of teeth put in, as his own were practically useless. In fact, he had only a few stumps left. The dentist made a very good job of the new teeth, and when fitted in they improved the appearance of the old gentleman so much, and aided him in articulation and mastication so nicely, that he felt ten years younger and began to feel as if he had a new lease of life. His wife was delighted with the improvement in her husband's appearance, and, looking round the house, thought it desirable to have the old furniture repaired. There were chairs that wanted attention, and other parts of the woodwork that required mending. So without saying anything to her husband she got some glue and wrapped it in a piece of newspaper, and placed it on her chest of drawers when she went to bed that night.

The morning she rose and dressed very early, before her husband was awake, and went to the chest of drawers and got a paper packet that she found there, and took it outside on to the piazza, and there she placed it on the stone flags, and with the aid of a small ironstone boulder she pounded it till it was in very small fragments. On opening it to put the glue in the glue bottle she found she had smashed to atoms her husband's beautiful teeth. It appeared that the old gentleman had wrapped his teeth in a piece of newspaper and placed the packet on the chest of drawers. Of course, the truth had to be told, and the old lady had to break the news to her husband. The language used by the old gentleman has never been transcribed, but as any rate it was said that he did not appear to be addressing a Sunday-school.

King Edward and Elman.

Mischa Elman had no greater admirers in all Europe than King Edward and the Queen Mother Alexandra, they being among the first to recognize the great genius of the young Russian and command that he appear before them. Mementoes from the late King, now highly prized by young Elman, are a scarf pin, presented to him three years ago, and on an earlier occasion, when he was presented with a ring in the form of a lion's head, the eyes being diamonds. The presentation of the latter was after Elman had appeared at Buckingham Palace at a musicale given in honor of the present King of Spain, who was at the time visiting the English Metropolis. Elman's first series of recitals in London were given under royal patronage, and his audience are the most fashionable to be seen at any recital. His fee for a single concert, little over five dollars, is the best the best seat to hear Elman when he gives a recital in London.

Her Place

He Takes It and Wins Musical Honors.

By T. W. WINDHAM.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Margaret Trentham, a fair Bostonian, stood in a room in a German pension. She was speaking to a young man, like herself a musician, who had just returned from a concert in Leipzig.

"You don't realize what it means to me, Mr. Tolstoy. This is my last turn here and the concert tomorrow my only opportunity of playing publicly in the Conservatoire."

"But the circumstances are exceptional," he urged. "It happens that Professor Meyerhaus is in Leipzig recruiting violinists for his American tour, and it occurred to me that perhaps he would include me in his orchestra as solo pianist."

"By engaging me Meyerhaus would save the huge fees demanded by musicians who have made a name, and for me—a pause gave additional weight to his words—it means possibly the opening of a career. I should come before the public at once and without expense instead of returning to America to drudge at teaching, because I do not possess the means to make an imposing debut."

"But you forget," she added in self vindication, "I have rehearsed with the orchestra throughout the term, and the conductor will not approve of a change at the last moment."

"I have already obtained his permission," he began.

"Then if he is willing for you to play why does he allow the decision to rest with me?" she broke in.

The tension of a momentary silence tried him beyond endurance. Rising, he walked to the door, pausing at the threshold.

"Forgive the intrusion. Unfortunately I misled myself with the belief that you would willingly cede a chance to a professional, being yourself an amateur and independent. I can only hope that your triumph tomorrow"—he lingered on the word in conscious irony—"will atone for the vexation of my visit."

A large cosmopolitan audience filled the Conservatoire hall for the final concert of the season.

An attendant opened the piano in readiness for the concerto as the pianist came forward, escorted by the master under whom she had studied.

She seated herself at the instrument, and a little ripple of applause broke from the balcony. Glancing upward in shy acknowledgment, she met the steadfast gaze of a man seated immediately facing her, who vouchsafed but the merest glance of recognition and resumed the study of a music score lying on his knees.

The players lowered their bow hands for several bars' rest. In the lull preceding the excerpt for the solo instrument the sound of a sharp indrawn breath struck downward through the silence.

The baton beat on steadily—three—four—"One!"

No answering chord from the pianist. The conductor glared at her against the orchestra in undisguised surprise. She started slightly, and the color flamed into her cheeks.

The baton swooped down again.

"One, fraulein!" The conductor leaned forward, half frantic. "Have you forgotten?" he hissed.

A soft, level voice prompted suddenly from the balcony, "The allegro movement, key A flat minor, extended chord!"

She glanced swiftly forward with a little impulsive gesture and rose in her seat, faced the conductor, flashed a glance of swift defiance and passed with head erect through rows of thunderstruck musicians to the platform exit.

Bewildered comments were exchanged throughout the hall, and the notability in the stalls adjusted its spectacles rather irritably and awaited developments.

"These Americans! These Americans!" chafed the conductor, beside himself with rage; then he buried an order at the doorkeeper, pointing to the balcony.

"Herr Tolstoy! Fetch him immediately!"

The man at the end had already disappeared, and in the passage connecting the platform with the cloakrooms he encountered the retiring pianist.

"Quick!" she whispered. "The conductor called for you."

His face glowed with trembling, exultant gratitude. He seized her hand and started backward, conscience stricken as a tear fell glistening on her cheek.

She rushed past him disconcerted, paced the step or two down the passage and turned abruptly to avenge her momentary loss of self control in an outbreak of reproach.

"Why don't you go? My failure gives you your opportunity. Pray don't hesitate to avail yourself."

"I'm sorry, so sorry," he began.

"Do go!" she reiterated less harshly. "They will continue the program. It will be too late in another moment."

Though she knew, of the price depended on the concert, he still stood irresolute, unable to choose between the two courses, his face pale.

"Do go! Do go! Do go! Do go!" he urged, his voice hoarse with excitement.

"Here Tolstoy!"

The stentorian voice of the doorkeeper came down the passage, and she started through a doorway.

Her companion followed, stopped a second, and his lips searched her cheeks. In the next the platform door closed behind him.

An echo reached her of the allegro-rippling, lightening, swirling across the keys, subdued at intervals to the tumult of orchestral accompaniment, then ringing again, triumphant, quivering at the last with the rapt, exalted passion of a love song, followed by the silence that is greater than applause.

The pianist himself broke the spell, rising from his seat. The hall shook with a burst of enthusiasm. He passed unheeded through the platform exit.

The white haired notability removed his glasses with a sigh of satisfied enjoyment and turned to his colleague, his rugged Teutonic features softening into a smile.

"Your American young ladies—do they often take stage-fright? But her composure! He is magnificent! To play that most difficult concerto without notes, without rehearsal—touch, technique perfect! Consider also his youth!"

The director broke in with adroit explanation and suggestion. The professor beamed with delighted recollection.

"It is the same, then, who offered his services? You are right, my friend, that I should change my mind, that the world should hear of him. He shall go with me on tour."

"Twilight in the park, the sharp, gray twilight of late autumn. A smart electric runabout, with a lady at the lever and a chauffeur at her side, joined the stream of vehicles entering the park at the Plaza. Her features were only partially visible through her automobile veil, but an involuntary exclamation broke from a man pacing aimlessly along the walk.

"Miss Trentham!"

"Mr. Tolstoy!"

With the answering cry of recognition she drew up close to the walk, heedless of the rules of the road. Half hesitating, Tolstoy went forward.

"So you are back in America, Mr. Tolstoy?"

"Yes." He muttered the monosyllable without raising his eyes.

"And I see from the papers that your European tour was a great success." He blurted out a second affirmative.

For the moment she was slightly nonplused; then with infinite tact she once more took the initiative.

"You are soon appearing in New York?"

"Tomorrow at Carnegie hall," he replied shortly.

Boardmen were parading Broadway with notices of the professor's concert. It humbled him that she had not noticed the large type at the foot of the boards—"Solo pianoforte, Mr. Alfred Tolstoy."

"A matinee?"

He nodded stiffly.

"Of course I shall go. It will be a great pleasure to me to be present at your debut," she continued.

"It happens to be the last concert of the series," he said icily.

"I had no idea," she began in a tone of eager explanation. "But, then, I have been traveling abroad a good deal with my parents since I saw you last. We only returned from Switzerland a couple of days ago."

The fact accounted for her apparent indifference, and his expression softened, but he stared moodily before him to avoid her eyes, and the handsome turnout in which she was seated with her liveried chauffeur somehow forced on him a sense of social disparity.

When she spoke again her voice had a shy, hesitating ring.

"I need scarcely ask if you are successful?"

He produced a memorandum and read out some details—no trace of pleasure or enthusiasm in his tone, only a cynical sort of triumph in the sense of achievement.

"Tomorrow my final appearance in New York with Professor Meyerhaus for the present. I am booked subsequently for various musical receptions; also the principal concert agents have made me very flattering offers."

"Shall I congratulate you?" she asked.

"If you had congratulated me that night at the Conservatoire," he broke out resentfully, "and given me the opportunity to thank you—"

"You could not expect me to wait, to face every one after my failure. Besides," she turned away her eyes to hide a sudden confusion—"you—you had already thanked me."

"It was not only to thank you—He was confused now, struggling with an increasing desire to make his hopeless avowal.

"I owe my subsequent success to you," he continued emphatically.

"No, indeed!" she broke in eagerly. "But—I am glad—more than I can say—that you have realized your ambition."

"I suppose I have."

His tone gave the lie to the acknowledgment.

He had fallen so pitifully short of realization. Could she but know! Despair overwhelmed the remnant of his pride and self control. He raised his eyes, aflame with his secret.

"I am still striving," he said haltingly, "for the unobtainable."

She darted a questioning glance. The grin white face strained toward her through the dusk, and conviction dashed swift upon her.

She bent impulsively, with a radiant, triumphant smile. Her voice swayed with a little tremor of delight.

"I think I understand. But you are mistaken. For all you know the opportunity may be within your grasp."
