Love in a Flour Mill,
OR,
The Romance of Two
Loyal Hearts!

CHAPTER XI.
Cara shrugged her shoulders slightly.

"It was nothing," she said carelessly; "the horses were not very frightened; they stopped at once."

"Ah, but it was quite an adventure," he remarked. "And who is this great lady?"

"Her name is Desborough, and she lives at Thorden Hall," replied Cara, still intent on her books; so intent that she did not see her father stop or the sudden pallor which overspread his face, as he turned quickly away again.

Accepting Smithers' suggestion, Ronald made his way to the park, his devoted but eccentric companion walking just a trifle behind him, as if to indicate their relative positions. Avoiding the fashionable drives and walks, Ronald found a seat in a quiet, unfrequented part, and, seating himself, motioned Smithers to do likewise.

Smithers took the other end of the bench, and gazed hard at nothing, with the air of a man who had resigned his future to another person, and was absolutely indifferent to the direction which that future might take; indeed, such perfect complacent gravity could only have been matched by that which is displayed by some of the monkeys at the Zoo.

Ronald lit a cigarette and also looked before him, but with not quite so profound an indifference; for, though he was not insensible to the humour of his position, and, in his reckless way, was amused by the fact that he had acquired a comical and eccentric retainer, he was not blind to the gravity of the situation. As he had informed Smithers, he had not the least idea what to do or where to go, nor did any ideas come to him as the minutes sped by; and at last he turned, with a short laugh, to his silent and motionless companion.

"I don't know what to do. I can't go back to my flat; I can't go and stay with any friends, for I must not be seen by them. I should like to go abroad at once; but I don't know where to go, and I shouldn't know what to do when I got there. And, by the way, Smithers, I shall have to turn to and work for my living. I suppose you are under the impression—at least, I hope you are not under the impression—that you have attached yourself to a man of means? I

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed.

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised to note how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in quaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

had better tell you at once that I've just got enough to carry on for a week or two—for both of us, I mean, of course; and when the money's gone—and it goes precious soon, I find—I shall have to earn some more."

"If you've got enough to last for a fortnight, sir," said Smithers, encouragingly, "you're what I should call a capitalist. Lor' bless you, sir, I've never had more than a couple of days to look about me in; long before a fortnight we shall turn up something. The question is, sir, what's your particular fancy?"

"You mean, what can I do?" said Ronald, with a smile. "Well, I can ride a bit; I am by way of being a decent shot; I held the cue at Oxford; I won the mile race of my year; I was also champion light-weight; but I'm afraid there's no money in any of these things, Smithers," he broke off impatiently.

"Oh, yes, there is, sir," Smithers assured him, with a mixture of confidence and admiration. "For instance, we could start a circus; you could do the high school riding—you know, sir, a gentleman in a frock coat and a tall hat, with white gloves, on the top of a black horse walking about on its hind legs; and I could be the clown; I've often cast an eye that way. Or we could run a shooting-gallery; six shots a penny, with a mugful of nuts if you hit the figger, which you never do, 'cause the barrels is bent o' purpose; or we might open a billiard saloon—not here, in London, there's too many at it, but in the country, where the flats grow; or we might have a boxing-tent at some of the fairs. But, of course, I'm only chaffing, sir, and I beg your pardon! These sort of things are all very well for the likes o' me, but a gentleman like you couldn't stoop to them, as the very fat gentleman said when he dropped his halfpence. Is there anything else that you can think of, sir?"

"I'm very much afraid there isn't," Smithers, replied Ronald. "I seem to have spent my life acquiring a lot of painfully useless accomplishments."

"It's the way with most of us," remarked Smithers philosophically. "I'd been taught a trade, carpentering, plumbing—no, not plumbing, for I come of a respectable family—instead of readin', writin', and 'rithmetic, at the Board School, I shouldn't be where I am now, I was going to say, sir; but, to tell you the truth, I don't know as ever I felt so happy and comfortable in my life as I do at this minute."

"You're a good fellow, Smithers," said Ronald.

"Thank you, sir," said Smithers. He eyed Ronald's athletic figure, respectfully. "I've often wished myself a gentleman, sir, such as you; but I've often noticed there's a disadvantage in every line of business, as a chemist said when he swallowed a dose of his own poison, which he had intended for his mother-in-law. If you wasn't a gentleman you could enlist for a soldier; you can always turn it up and desert when you're tired of it."

"I've done some soldiering," said Ronald absently.

"I thought so, sir, from the way you carried yourself," observed Smithers, with increased admiration.

"And I know something of sailing," said Ronald purposelessly. "I sailed my own yacht, and I got a certificate."

"Why, it's the very thing, sir!" exclaimed Smithers jubilantly. "I was sure there was something useful you could do, sir—begging your pardon. It's the very thing!" he repeated.

"You can get a berth aboard a ship, as mate or something of the sort; there's always an opening for steady men like you, sir." He hesitated slightly at the "steady"; and Ronald laughed as he said:

"It's not a bad idea, Smithers!"

"Yes, sir," said Smithers, but in a rueful voice and with a lengthening of his expressive countenance; "though I don't quite see exactly where I come in. But don't mind me, sir. I shall manage to stick to you somehow or other. I can sneak aboard as a stowaway, or ship as odd man. It's a capital idea, sir, and we will set about lookin' for a ship at once."

"That's all very well," said Ronald, in his easy way; "but where are we to go now? You don't propose that we shall spend the night here, Smithers"

"Well, it's a biggish room, and the decorations ain't bad," observed Smithers, glancing round him critically. "But the situation's a bit too airy, not to say public, for a gentleman like you, sir." He pondered for a moment, then he looked up, alert and cheerful, as if something had occurred to him. "I've just remembered a little place, a kind of boarding-house, down in the East End, near the Decks. It's kept by a respectable woman by the name of Podford; the only thing against her being that she squints against her being that she squints awful bad, and you don't know when she's lookin' at you; but you get used to it in time, especially if you squints back at her. The house is comfortable and clean; it 'as to be, because it's used by sea captains, who are always swabbing the decks, aren't they, sir? I was once waiter there; at least, I was called waiter because I waited sometimes—for my wages; but I also cleaned the windows, did a bit of scrubbin', ran errands, took a turn at the cookin' when the reg'lar cook was on the dazle, which was generally three days a week—gin, unswetened, was her particular fancy—and filled up my spare time nursin' the baby, and washin' the other children. Now, how would it be, sir, if we was to go down there at once? We could get a room for you, and I could help in the house, in the little ways I've mentioned, while we was lookin' for a ship."

"You're a natural genius, Smithers," Ronald said admiringly.

"Yes, sir," responded Smithers, but doubtfully. "There's only one thing, sir," glancing at Ronald; "you ain't dressed for the part. The sight of you in those swell clothes would give Mrs. Podford a fit, and make her as suspicious as a policeman; for, though the house is respectable enough, they don't have swell visitors of your sort, sir, naturally enough."

"Well, I haven't any other clothes, said Ronald, with a shrug of the shoulders.

"Lor' bless you, sir, there ain't no difficulty in that!" said Smithers. "I could soon pervide you with a rig-out suitable to the occasion. If you don't mind roughin' it a bit, sir, and lookin' a little less like a gentleman, not to say nobleman, why come along with me."

"Willingly!" exclaimed Ronald, with his keen relish of an adventure. "I'm your man, Smithers!"

"No, sir, beggin' your pardon, that would be reversin' the order of things, as the horse said when his master, who was took suddenly ill, passing a brewery, tried to harness him back to the cart."

They left the park, got into the Underground, and in an incredibly short time were carried to the farther end of the town. Emerging from the station, Ronald found himself in a world as utterly strange to him as Fiji would have been; but his guide, mentor, and friend was evidently quite familiar with the narrow and crowded streets through which he led Ronald, stopping at last outside a ready-made clothes shop.

At the door stood the proprietor, a gentleman obviously a member of the Hebraic race, who at once darted, at them, exclaiming, in nasal and persuasive accents:

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Doucette Tells of her Distressing Symptoms During Change of Life and How She Found Relief.

Belleville, Nova Scotia, Can.—"Three years ago I was suffering badly with what the doctors called Change of Life. I was so bad that I had to stay in bed. Some friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the first. It is the only medicine I took that did help me and I recommend it. You don't know how thankful and grateful I am. I give you permission to publish what your good medicine has done for me."—Mrs. SIMON DOUCETTE, Belleville, Yarmouth Co., Nova Scotia, Canada.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, back-aches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly headed by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

20,000,000 Russians.

The Russian army drawn from an empire with a population of over 170,000,000, is naturally a very large one, and includes in it a number of different nationalities. From men dwelling within the Arctic circle to the swarthy Orientals of the Caucasus, all serve under a flag which to many of them conveys but little, so remote is all that it stands for from their own distant corner of the world. Nearly all the peoples constituting the Russian Empire come under the law of conscription. There are, however, strange as it may seem, some who are so uncivilized that they are not even pressed into service.

The standing Russian army does not appear very great in comparison to the population; but the real fighting strength of Russia lies not only in her standing army, but also in her reserve forces, which are immense. These are so vast that to many they appear almost limitless, and it is said she can put 20,000,000 in the field, if necessary.

The permanent Russian army is composed of such diverse elements, and is so unwieldy, that it has been necessary to divide it into three separate armies: the army of European Russia; the Caucasus; and the Asiatic army. These are practically distinct from one another, and even the terms of service vary slightly.

The army now devotes six months instead of three to manoeuvres; of these, three months, instead of six weeks, are spent in camp. Less time is devoted to parades, and more to proper drilling. The old guns and rifles have been almost entirely replaced by newer patterns, and the artillery has been reorganized. The French artillery being taken as a model, Striped novelty suiting in a new shade of green with trimming of matched velvet, was used in this instance. This design is also good for serge, wool, poplin, corduroy, velvet and taffeta. The waist is in semi-fitted coat blouse style, with pockets on the belt, and a choice of a long sleeve, with straight cuff, or a short sleeve trimmed with a smart turn-back cuff. The skirt is gored and has the fulness laid in deep plaits. This model has simple stylish lines, and will make a smart dress, suitable for many occasions. The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 12, 14 and 16 years. It requires 5½ yards of 36 inch material for a 14 years size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

Utterly disregarding this torrential invitation, Smithers drew Ronald aside.

"Better let me tackle this key mo, sir," he said. "I'm up to their moves and dodges."

They entered the low-browed shop, the Jew, who had been literally dancing on the pavement with anxiety, hovering about them and still talking nineteen to the dozen. Smithers looked about him in a casual fashion, and at last espying a suit such as is worn by the mate of a merchant vessel, and which seemed about Ronald's size, inquired the price. With feverish eagerness the Jew tore at the suit and displayed it, expatiating on its beauty and its quality; and at length replied to Smithers' question; but though the price seemed absurdly low to Ronald, Smithers, with an indignant glance at the proprietor, made for the door. The Jew pounced on him and caught him by the arm, screaming shrilly:

"Vere are you goin'? Vhot's the matter? Ain't it good goods; ain't I asked you low enough? Oh, Moses! And I nearly offered to give it to you. Vell, name yer own price, and I'll take it, if I lose by it!"

INDIA CONTINUES TO SUPPORT THE WAR FUNDS.

LONDON, Nov. 29. A special despatch from Delhi says India continues to support the war funds. A movement in Lahore for Northern India to supply seven aeroplanes to be named after the big rivers of Punjab is progressing. Latest gifts include munitions, workshop, loan of mechanics for ambulance corps motors, besides various other donations. The native rulers of India have made generous concessions to their subjects who are on active service by exempting them from taxation and granting them other concessions.

PEACE TALK.

LONDON, Nov. 29. Belief that the time has arrived for the Allies to begin to define definite terms of peace, is expressed by the Post in an editorial on the ground that there will be less chance of losing in negotiations what has been gained on sea and in field. The Post contends that without selling the skin before killing the bear, it may be assumed that victory for the Allies is assured, if because only by Great Britain could a naval blockade be maintained indefinitely, and history has shown that such pressure alone would in the end secure victory.

DERBY'S PROPOSAL.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The Earl of Derby, Director of Recruiting, has decided on a further measure to supplement the steps already taken to augment the British Army without resorting to compulsion. In a letter to the Chairman of the British Red Cross Society he urges the necessity of releasing young and active men of military age for enlistment, replacing them by men unfit for military service, on account of age or physical disability. "One cannot shut eyes to the fact that many persons are doing work for the Red Cross whose proper place is in the fighting ranks," the Earl adds. "I suggest, then, that your men of serviceable age, whether married or single, should enlist under the group system, and that you do all in your power to replace single men with QUIET ON FRENCH FRONT.

PARIS, Nov. 29. Generally speaking, the night passed quietly on the French front. According to an announcement made this afternoon by the French War Office, there have been some engagements with hand grenades in the Artois district.

SUCCESS IN THE CAMEROON.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The campaign of Franco-British forces in the German colony of Kamerun, Western Africa, has resulted in further advances, following the capture of Tibati announced last week. The official statement of to-day says that the Puge River has been reached and that the French have taken Makonde.

BULGARIANS PREPARING FOR DEFENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 29. Telegraphing from Bucharest, the Times correspondent says: In view of threatened Russian intervention, preparations for defence are actively proceeding along the whole Bulgarian frontier under German supervision. Troops are being brought up to the Serbian front, and about four divisions of General Von der Goltz are reported to have joined the Bulgarian forces.

GERMANY SHORT OF FOOD.

LONDON, Nov. 29. According to a despatch from Copenhagen, a dozen German newspapers have been suspended for discussing the food question. In his newspaper, Die Zukunft, Maximilian Harden, says the despatch, concludes an article on the subject with the sentence: "We must confess that the German people for the moment are suffering great want."

FOOD RIOTS.

LONDON, Nov. 29. An Amsterdam correspondent forwards the following telegram: I am informed on good authority that serious rioting took place on Saturday in Berlin. Several thousand women gathered before the Imperial Castle and demanded the return of their husbands from the front and the improvement of food conditions. The crowd was finally dispersed by the police. No continuation of this Amsterdam despatch has been received here.

SERBIANS IN MONASTIR.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The Serbians were still in occupation of Monastir on Sunday, according to the Athens correspondent of the Times who reports that four Serbian regiments were already in the town, and that another had arrived on that day.

STILL HOPEFUL OF SERBIA.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The British public is not inclined to grant the German contention that the Serbian campaign of the Central Powers has been brought to a successful conclusion. The hope is expressed here that wintry weather will give time for transferring Anglo-French troops until they are strong enough to assume the offensive before invaders have consolidated their positions in Serbia. Russia is also counted on to play a part in these operations. In the meantime the only active military operations seem to be centering around Monastir, the fate of which is obscure.

READY TO DISCUSS PROPOSITIONS.

LONDON, Nov. 29. The Greek Government is ready to discuss the propositions made by the Entente Powers and to satisfy all demands which will not compromise its neutrality, says an Athens despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

HARD TIMES IN POLAND.

WARSAW, Nov. 29. Hundreds of thousands of the civil population of Warsaw District in Poland, are suffering for food. A considerable percentage of the number are still homeless, living in huts, caves and abandoned trenches. The situation is more serious because of the immense number of unemployed thrown out of work by the almost complete paralysis of Polish industries. Prominent Poles of all walks of life maintain that drastic relief measures are necessary if wholesale deaths from starvation are to be prevented.

"Cascarets" Best If Headachy, Bilious Sick, Constipated

Best for liver and bowels, bad breath, bad colds, sour stomach. Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excessive bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels. A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

DECEMBER.

December blusters, to remind us, that time's as busy as of yore. December's loud and rude and burly, with snow and slush his beard is wet; he bids us do our shopping early, lest we forget. He seems wrought up to bootless madness, the last month of the dying year; he fills old people's hearts with sadness, reminding them they're gray and sore. When skies are blue and soft winds blowing, the old folks may feel young again; they dwell not on the thought of going out from this bright, glad world of men. But every bellow of December, that seems to come from throat of brass, can only cause them to remember that time speeds on, and flesh is grass. December's grim and fierce and surly, his brow obscured by gloomy clouds; he bids us do our shopping early, and buy our Christmas biers and shrouds.

Partisanship Running Amok.

Since the war began, the London Morning Post has done much disservice to the Empire. It breathes the spirit of certain of the Tory Die Hards, who gained notoriety in the conflict with the Lords some years ago. It represents those few Tories, who in practice place partisanship before patriotism, although they are loud-mouthed about the latter. They do not represent any considerable body of the Conservative Party, or of those members of the House of Lords, who have given themselves and their sons without stint for the service of the Empire. In the last issue of Truth, which arrived here yesterday, there is a pertinent criticism of the type of opposition to which we refer. We give an extract from it, in which the Morning Post is specially mentioned. "It is largely inspired by a small band of habitual mischief makers, not at all difficult to identify, who cannot conceive any higher duty to their country than to do the bidding of the House of Lords. They are not a party, but a clique, and their only object is to serve as a critic at a time like this, whatever use he may be to the enemy, most frequently heard on the suppression of the Globe is that it is a pity a bigger and more conspicuous culprit was not selected." The worst case of all appears in the editorial to which reference is made in the despatch of to-day, by which it appears that the Morning Post has joined the Peace-Mongers in advocating the formulation of Peace terms because the authorities don't know how to conduct a war and will conduct it to disaster and defeat. We have seen nothing so insensate, futile and stupid since the war commenced. It is plainly the emanation of bitter partisanship running riot over patriotism. The same despatches tell of Colonial soldiers turning the Morel Peace-Mongers meetings into a recruiting meeting. They might well turn their attention to the Morning Post, which is infinitely worse than all the Morels, Trevelyan and their associates. Premier Asquith has already defined conditions of peace sufficiently at the beginning of the war, and it is on the lines of the Resolution passed at the Morel meeting, captured by the Colonial soldiers.

CASINO THEATRE.

Unbounded enthusiasm prevailed at the Casino, yesterday, when "The First Newfoundland Regiment" made their appearance before admiring and affectionate audiences. Without any question this is undoubtedly the greatest and most inspiring thrilling picture ever seen here. Mr. J. O'Neill Parrell has added to his splendid reputation as a producer. From its commencement until the finish this is a remarkable presentation and one reflecting the greatest credit upon everybody connected with it. The music by Mr. Bernard Spencer deserves more than passing notice. His selections were most appropriate and his technique perfection. Crowds saw this picture yesterday. Crowds will see it to-day. We are justified in making this latter statement as this is one picture "worth while" which will delight everybody—both old and young.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.
The campaign in the Near East is about to enter a new phase. The visits of Lord Kitchener to Paris and Emperor William to Vienna, it is believed, will have an important effect. Lord Kitchener, after visiting the Balkans and Italy, arrived in Paris on an important series of conferences with the French Staff, while the German Emperor has gone to Vienna to see Emperor Francis Joseph and to discuss with the Austrian General what the next move will be. Presumably it is a question whether the Central Powers will attack the Anglo-French forces in Southern Serbia or concentrate in Western Bulgaria to meet the threatened Russian invasion from the East and the possibility of Roumania taking sides against her old enemies, Bulgaria and Turkey. As far as Serbia is concerned, winter appears virtually to have put an end to any important movements, although the Austrians are proceeding to deal with the Montenegrins, whose frontiers they have crossed, while the Bulgarians are attempting to advance to Prisdren and Monastir. With heavy and continuous snowstorms reaching the proportions of a blizzard, these operations must be slow, especially as the Serbs and Montenegrins are still offering stubborn resistance. Monastir, it is admitted cannot be saved, but the Serbs who are defending the city are determined to resist to the last, and give the civilians a chance to escape. They hold a front of some five miles from the town in the direction of Pripet, from which point the Bulgarians who have crossed the Carassou River are advancing. Snow has completely stopped the operations on the Anglo-French front in Serbia. The opposing forces who are separated by a valley a mile across having lost sight of each other. There are no details of the Greek reply to the collective note of the Entente Powers, demanding facilities for the Anglo-French forces, but a despatch from Athens says it is couched in friendly terms and is regarded as paving the way for the desired settlement, which would enable Greece to maintain her neutrality, and not interfere with the intentions of the Allies. Desperate fighting is continuing on the summit around Gorizia. The Italians claim to have captured more Austrian trenches, but the Austrians declare that the attacks all along the Isonzo have been repulsed. Artillery and aerial fighting has marked the progress of events in France, while in Russia an almost complete lull prevails. In the Caucasus a recrudescence of activity however is reported. Petrograd recording several scouting expeditions. After clearing the battlefield at Atesphen near Bagdad in Mesopotamia, the British have again withdrawn to the river. The Turks report that the British were forced to retire by reason of counter-attacks after suffering very heavy losses in artillery engagements in which the British monitors took a hand on the Gallipoli Peninsula. It is reported from Rome that Austria is seeking a separate peace with Italy. This is not generally credited, although in some quarters the German Emperor's visit to Vienna is believed to lend some color to the rumour. The recent successes of the Allies in Kamerun are considered likely forerunners of the complete defeat of the Germans there. They are now concentrated at Jaunde, and although well supplied with guns, find it difficult owing to the British blockade of the coast to get munitions. The Allied forces are now converging on Jaunde, while other columns are being sent to cut off any attempt at retreat from that town.

THE MORNING POST LUGUBRIOUS.

LONDON, To-day.
The Morning Post to-day in a lugubrious editorial urges the Government to prepare for peace by formulating the conditions now. After stating that victory is a large assumption, unless the war is carried on with more skill and resolution than hitherto. The Post advises that there must be no attempt to satisfy Germany, as England did with South Africa, but the object should be to leave Germany in a position to do as little harm as possible on land, on the sea and in the air. The Post goes on to say that as the Dominions have voluntarily taken a part in the war, it is obvious they must be consulted before any peace terms be arranged.

COLONIAL SOLDIERS THROW OUT PEACEMONGERS.

LONDON, To-day.
Canadian and Australian soldiers with a sprinkling of British Territorials last evening took charge of Memorial Hall, where the Union of Democratic Control, an organization which is opposed to conscription and favors peace, was advertised to hold a meeting, and unceremoniously threw the speakers from the platform and turned the gallery into a recruiting meeting. The soldiers succeeded in gaining admission with tickets other than those circulated by the members of the Union, and forming at the top of the stair case leading to the great hall and galleries, forcibly took possession of the building. Bombs containing asphyxiating gases were launched and then the soldiers took the platform by storm, several of the speakers including E. D. Morel, leader of the platform with the furniture in an ante-room, as did the women who were distributing leaflets. The promoters of the meeting were thrown from the platform with the furniture to which they clung and the soldiers took the place of the speakers and passed resolution demanding the activities of the union should be stopped, and declaring that the only terms of peace acceptable to the Allies were those which should be dictated after the complete defeat of Germany.

FIELD MARSHAL FRENCH'S REPORT.—SUBMARINE DESTROYED.—MANY AERIAL FIGHTS.

LONDON, To-day.
A German submarine was attacked by the British off Middlekerke, on Sunday and was sent to the bottom. According to an official report of Field Marshal Sir John French, which was given out to the press bureau last night, the submarine, seign Field Marshal French, was seen to break in half. The British commander further reports much activity on the part of artillery and air craft, no less than 15 encounters in the air taking place on the 28th. The text of the report follows:—"On the night of November 25th, a party of our troops forced an entrance into the enemy's trenches near Gonnecourt wood, several dug-outs full of Germans were bombed with hand grenades, the party then withdrew back to our trenches. A mine was sprung by us in front of Givency the night of the 25th, which destroyed two of the enemy galleries and caused a considerable number of casualties amongst the hostile bombing party. During the last few days we have carried out bombardments on various portions of the enemy's trenches. Hostile artillery has been active east of Avilng, east of Loos, east of Neuve Chapelle, east of Armentiers, and east of Ypres. The enemy's aeroplanes were active on the 28th. During the day there were 15 encounters in the air as a result of which one hostile machine was brought down near Cœquel. One of our pilots fought with no less than five hostile aeroplanes during a single flight. Bombing attacks were successfully carried out against the German aerodrome at Gips, and an ammunition factory at La Chapelle. Fourteen machines were attacked at the former place and nine at the latter. Considerable damage was done in both instances. All our machines returned safe. Reports from the coast district state that German aeroplanes were active there on the 28th dropping bombs. During the day a French aeroplane and a British seaplane brought down a German seaplane. In the afternoon a British aeroplane destroyed a German submarine off Middlekerke, it was seen to break in half.

Missing Ship, Reported Safe.

It was currently reported around town last evening that the schooner Swallow, Capt. Bowering, long overdue from the Labrador coast to Bay Roberts, had been at Lockers Bay, Flat Island, B.B. in a damaged state. Owing to the fact that there is no communication at that point, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries has sent a motor boat there from Greenspond to find out if the report is correct and a reply is expected this evening. It is hoped that the report is true and that the crew are safe.

Shipments of chestnuts by parcel post have almost paralyzed some of the mail routes in the northern part of Virginia, as this method has been used greatly this year in sending the crop to market. On some routes where in ordinary times a man on horse-back or in a light buggy carried the mail, road wagons have been put on to handle the parcel post.

When a Sudbury (Pa.) man pulled his horse out of the well into which the thoughtless equine had fallen, he found attached to one of its shoes a rusty bucket containing more than $3,000 in Spanish gold. The money is supposed to have belonged to a hermit whom legend assigns resided in the vicinity 50 or more years ago.

Young Lunenburg Seaman Drowned in the Harbor.

The body of Bennett Knickle, a 19-year-old seaman of the schr. Mary D. Young, of Lunenburg, was found in the waters of the harbor this morning. The young man was evidently drowned while attempting to board his boat at Tessier's wharf last night. The young man spent all day yesterday on shore and at 6 o'clock last evening returned to the vessel. He did not take any tea, and left the ship again about 6.15 p.m. Nothing further was heard of him until his cap was found floating in the harbor by one of his shipmates at 10 o'clock this morning. Early this morning when it became known that Knickle had not been on board during the night, Capt. G. Lohes, the master of the vessel came on shore to search for him. While on the way to the police station to make enquiries, he was informed that the young man's cap had been found, and a little later that the body had been recovered. Some of the crew of the Mary D. Young say that during the night they heard a noise on the deck but on going up to investigate they saw nobody. The body now lies at the morgue where it is being coffined by Undertaker J. T. Martin. The deceased was a native of Lunenburg, and the remains will be sent home for interment.

Lecture by Rev.

J. W. Bartlett.

Notwithstanding the fact that this is our busy season, a large audience assembled in the basement of George Street Church last evening to hear the Rev. J. W. Bartlett deliver his lecture on "The Surprises of the Great War." No one was disappointed. The lecturer blended knowledge, patriotism, wit and humour in a way which delighted every listener. Time and space will only permit a brief reference to his lecture.

The speaker began by saying: "To the English mind the great surprise was the war itself. The evidence of this is the fact that when war did come, Britain was unprepared. To the German mind, however, this war was no surprise, as it was the natural outcome of her rejection of the great principles of Democracy in her national policy. The Kaiser, nevertheless, had his surprise. The resisting of heroic Belgium, the participation of England, and the unity of the British Empire were to him unexpected. The lecturer spoke of the use of the soldier in making of light armor in this war. In early wars, soldiers were protected by armor. The Napoleonic wars, however, discounted the use of it. Napoleon did not regard it to be so important to have bullet-proof armor as to have his troops at the critical place at the critical time.

Again, with such improved artillery and high explosives, we should expect a greater proportion of killed to wounded than in former wars. It is, therefore, a surprise to find that the ratio is about the same as formerly, viz.—1 killed to every 4.25 wounded and missing. The immense number of prisoners taken on both sides is almost staggering to the imagination. There is at the present time a greater number of fighting men prisoners of war than we ever put in the field at one time during any previous war. A Japanese officer, to whom surrendering is always dishonorable, on hearing that 50,000 Russians had gone to Berlin as prisoners, remarked rather contemptuously, "this is not war, this is emigration."

The lecturer in eloquent language spoke of the surprises which the sacrifice of Belgium, the endurance of Serbia and the awakening of the national of Russia had given to the world.

But most wonderful of all in the experience of this war is the manifest Presence of the Prince of Peace in the midst of the conflict. Christ has been at the front and in the trenches, assuaging the grief, comforting the suffering, cheering the dying, and removing the sting which we call death.

An instrumental by Mrs. Reuben Howwood, a reading by Miss Flora Curtis, and a solo by Mr. Courtenay all of which were beautifully rendered delighted the audience and increased that feeling of patriotism which the lecturer inspired. At the close the performers were entertained by the George Street Epworth League.

Your Most Important Friend.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"If a man does not make new acquaintances as he passes through life he will soon find himself left alone. A man should keep his friendships in constant repair."—Johnson.

If we worked as hard to make and hold friends as we do to gain some material advantage, how much more happiness we should probably get out of life.

Every once in awhile it comes to me how much of the happiness of life rises from congenial companionship.

You go to some function. The collation is excellent and the entertainment of the best. But you do not meet anyone who counts and you do not have a particularly good time.

What a Difference Just a Few Friends Make.

A few nights later you are bidden to some affair where the entertainment is not elaborate and the party of the simplest. But you meet two or three congenial friends, old or new, your common interests fuse you at once into a companionable group, you fall into a fine humor of laughter and good talk, wherein, exhilarated by the atmosphere of friendship and appreciation, you all rise far above your daily selves, and you go home glowing and alive. And nothing material has made the difference, just friendship.

What would a fest be without a congenial friend to share it with? "You could read Kant by yourself," says Stevenson, "but you must share a joke with someone else."

How much pleasure is it to go to the theatre alone? "I think I enjoyed talking that play over with you more than I did attending it," a woman said to me the other day. "You see I had to go alone and there was no one to compare notes with."

What would a success be without a friend to tell it to? All joys are doubled and all sorrows halved by sharing with a true friend.

As Johnson says, we should keep our friendships in constant repair, but there is another corollary to the importance of friendship that he does not mention.

Is Your Husband Or Wife Your Friend?

In choosing a mate, one should keep one's mind constantly on the enormous part friendship plays in life and be sure to choose a potential friend.

"What nonsense!" says the young person. "As if one would choose a wife or husband with whom one could not be friends."

If it only were nonsense!

But it isn't, as the older folks know by sad or glad experience.

The possession of a true congenial friend in a husband or wife is a blessing that will give all your days, sad days and glad days, a savor and a sweetness that nothing else in the world can impart.

Don't let the mating instinct swerve you from the consideration of this most important point—would he or she be a congenial friend if there were no other attraction between you?

START RIGHT NOW and select your piece of Overcoating for the winter. We have just opened a splendid range of Blue Naps and nifty patterns in Tweed, with other big selections to arrive. SPURRELL BROS., 365 Water Street, "The Young Man's Tailor."—sep11,eod,tf

Letters and Parcels for Gallipoli.

In reply to Mr. Yeo (Tower Hamlets, Poplar, L.)

Mr. Herbert Samuel (Yorkshire, Cleveland) said: "The special inquiry which has been made on my instructions into the delivery of letters and parcels to the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force has now been completed. The service has necessarily been slow, as it has been largely dependent on the ordinary transport service, which is carried on under conditions of considerable difficulty. Steps are now being taken, however, which will, I hope, result in the acceleration of the time of transmission of both letters and parcels to the Dardanelles by about a week."

It is believed that only one mail bag has been lost while under the care of the Post Office since the service began. The chief cause of the failure to deliver parcels is the inadequate packing. The parcels have to be transhipped to and from ships, lighters, and shore, a number of times, and under conditions which make careful handling impossible. In spite of frequent notices to the public a very large number of parcels are so badly packed that they are found on arrival to be undeliverable. I am issuing a leaflet containing instructions as to packing which will be handed to every person who presents a parcel at a post office for transmission to the Dardanelles. Careful tests have been made which indicate that thefts of parcels are infrequent. In the case of men wounded at the front and sent into hospital, every effort is made to discover the address of each man and to forward his correspondence, a large staff being employed for the purpose; but owing to the very large number of casualties it has often been difficult and sometimes impossible to do so in every case, and a considerable number of letters and parcels have proved undelivered from this cause.

Although there has frequently been delay owing to the circumstances which I have mentioned, there has been, so far as I can ascertain, no failure to deliver to soldiers who are still with their unit letters which are properly addressed and parcels properly addressed and adequately packed. There is no accumulation of parcels in the Alexandria Post Office. I can give the assurance that every effort is being made, not only by the Post Office, but also by the naval authorities, who are responsible for transport, and by the military authorities, who are responsible for the actual delivery of correspondence at the front, to maintain the service at as high a standard of efficiency as the conditions allow.

Mr. Samuel, replying to further questions, said that parcels took several weeks longer than letters to deliver, and consequently complaints were often made in respect to parcels that were ultimately delivered. Large numbers of parcels, undelivered for one reason or another, were returned to the senders.

The Missing Dunelm.

Referring to the missing steamer Dunelm, Capt. Baxter, Harbour, of Westville, a North Stoney despatch to the Sydney Post, of late Thursday last says: "It is now forty days since the steamer Dunelm, with a cargo of steel products from the Dominion Iron & Steel Co., sailed from this port for Manchester, and little hope exists that she will ever again be heard from. The Dunelm left here on October 16, and was last reported as having passed Cape Race on the 18th. Since then no tidings of her have been received, and it is believed that she has met with the fate of the steamer Sharon, which sailed from here a little less than a year previously with a similar cargo. The Dunelm was a vessel of 1,481 tons register, and was commanded by Capt. Barbour."

Capt. Barbour is one of the most daring and skillful of our Newfoundland master mariners; and although hope seems almost abandoned, there is still a possibility that the crew may have escaped, and been rescued by some passing ship.

Makes Hair Grow

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

It destroys the dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

It is often difficult to induce a child to sleep at night and remain awake during the day. This cannot be corrected at once, but the rousing of the child at regular times for feeding, is one of the best means of correcting this difficulty.

It is sometimes very difficult to ventilate the nursery properly. A simple contrivance is a strip of board to fit beneath the lower sash of the window. The lower sash is raised and the board inserted, thus making a space between the upper and lower sashes. Air cannot blow through this space, but it can gradually enter the room through the space between the two sashes.

Mr. Will Crookes, M.P., warned young men plainly the other day that they cannot expect to get jobs after the war unless they have served their country.

What Mr. Crookes does not know about the working conditions of the country, is not worth knowing, and he has had a good deal of experience of the "slacker" in civil life.

On one occasion he told a good story in the House of Commons about one of these gentry.

"A certain 'out of work' went to the foreman at a big factory and asked for a situation."

"I am afraid I cannot give you anything," he was told, "for there is scarcely enough doing to keep the regular hands employed!"

"Oh, that's all right, gov'nor," answered the applicant cheerfully; "anything I would do wouldn't make very much difference."

Gas and Hospitality.

The sound of motor wheels heralding the arrival of unexpected guests has no terrors for the housewife whose message is run on up-to-date lines. While the visitors are removing the traces of travel, with the hot water which a gas water-heater keeps always "on tap," a match to the gas fire makes the drawing room a place of warmth and pleasantness for their reception; and the children love to "help mother" by toasting the crumpets before the clear and smokeless glow.

The gas cooker (or the modern gas trivet by the drawing rooms gas fire) boils a kettle of water in no time, and within a quarter of an hour after their arrival the guests are enjoying a cosy chat over the cup that cheers. Should they be persuaded to stay, the invaluable cooker makes it possible, even at such short notice, for the experienced housewife, after a rapid upon her emergency store cupboard, to set before them a dainty dinner of which no hostess need be ashamed. Gas means ever-ready hospitality.

RAMBLING NOTES for 1915.

(I. C. MORRIS.)

CHAPTER VI.

In one of the railway cars which run from the Capital, we had a very pleasing experience; and one that taught us a good lesson in the value of "little things." Just as the train left the station, a lady to my left took from her satchel a skein of wool, and having opened it, she passed it to her husband for the purpose of holding it out while she balled it. It is not often that husbands hold out skeins of wool for their wives; of course they did it before they became husbands; but the tendency is to let somebody else do it when that stage arrives.

However, our kindly friend did his work well, and his better half made quick dispatch of the balling process. He could not have done it better, had it been in his prospective father-in-law's parlour instead of in a railway car with his wife. What a nice lesson for some of us to learn; and how it reminded us of some of the wonderful things that we intended to do before we captured the prize. How strange that marriage is so different from courtship. Of course, it is all the woman's fault. It would never do to blame her for this; it is perfect and that settles it.

On finishing the balling, the lady again opened her satchel, and produced a set of knitting needles, and immediately began to set up a sock for one of our soldiers lad now at the front. All the while the train sped on, and all the while the group of friends chatted, and all the while the click of the needles were heard. Very shortly it became evident that the lady meant business, and the sock began to present big proportions, and by the time that Holyrood was reached there was a big ball of wool on, as to the completion of the sock, ere the completion of the journey.

This deepened the interest in the dexterity of the swift knitter, and while we watched, the heel of the sock was turned, and soon the foot was shaped, and when the conductor called out: "Carboron," the sock was being shaped. The sock was one of a pair, of the largest of the three sizes, which our good ladies make for our soldier lads. The incident taught us a lot of lessons, and was a public and practical illustration of what may be accomplished by the diligent use of our leisure moments. Not that it is meant that one of them should be "ever at it," nor that leisure should be forfeited and life made a drudgery. There was not a happier nor a more congenial group of passengers on the train that evening than those I refer to. They all seemed at ease, they interchanged kindly social chat, they indulged in a becoming share of laughter, and in the height of it all they drew from under the seat a Thermos bottle, and from a handbag some sandwiches and cakes, etc., and enjoyed their repast as heartily as they would around their own table.

Nor was that all, for their liberality reached someone else, and so the good feeling spread, and we all were the better of the journey. Little things these we say? Yes, very little, indeed, but after all it is upon little things, and upon little acts, that most of our success and happiness depend. It was only a kindly word, but it helped somebody; only a little smile, but it cheered somebody; only a passing kindness, but someone remembers it. It was only a hasty word, but it hurt some heart; only a sneer, but it wounded some man who possesses them. Dull eyes, sluggish brain, and a pimply, blotchy skin are a serious handicap.

The Right Spirit.

Extracts From a Letter Written by A. Jack Adams from the Trenches "Somewhere in France." Dated 8th November, 1915, to his Brother George who has Recently Joined the Newfoundland Contingent.

"Well O. M. (old man) I could scarcely find words in my limited vocabulary to express my feelings when you told me that you had enlisted. I am delighted and feel very proud of you as a brother and it is my earnest wish that you succeed in your new sphere of life and satisfy your ambition by serving your King and Country who are so much in need of men of your calibre at the present time. I know mother and father must feel hurt at the idea of your leaving them on such an undertaking, but O. M. when they look into the matter as they should (which I am sure they will), they will be convinced that you are doing the right thing. As for myself, I feel confident that you will never regret having acted as you are doing. No doubt you will meet with things that will appear at first sight somewhat awkward, but like all the rest of us who have been used to an unlimited amount of freedom of action in civilian life, you will manage to overcome them. I may say that I am not in the least sorry for doing as I have, for like yourself, George, I think it is the duty of every young chap who is physically and mentally fit to come along and help crush those 'Hell-hounds' as I feel confident we will do, and I have every reason to believe that they have well realized this long ago."

The Secret of a Good Complexion.

Did it ever occur to you that there is a reason for your sallow complexion, pimples, blackheads and other skin blemishes? Your skin when healthy has to secrete 17 per cent of the waste matter of the body! If the pores become clogged, this poisonous waste is imprisoned and skin troubles follow. To rid yourself of these blemishes the skin must be cured of its sluggishness. This is just what Zam-Buk does. Zam-Buk is composed of stimulating and healing herbal essences, which penetrate the skin and enable it to expel the accumulated poisonous waste matter. A clear, healthy complexion is your reward. The folly of endeavouring to cover up skin disfigurements with powders and other cosmetics is quite apparent. Use Zam-Buk; remove the root cause of the trouble, and enjoy a good complexion without resorting to artificial means. Apply Zam-Buk at night when retiring, and wash with Zam-Buk soap.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

"Will you please tell me the duties of a chaperon at a young peoples party?" asked Mrs. Newlywed. It is her duty to be cheerful, amiable and maintain proper dignity among those present, and should see that the young girls do not commit any breaches of etiquette while there. She should also see that they all get home safely with reliable escorts," answered her mother.

On Nov. 20 a very pretty wedding took place in the Parish Church, St. Mary's, when Capt. Wm. Meehan, of Mill Bay, and Miss Ellie Rourke, of the same place, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Very Rev. S. O'Driscoll, P.P. The bride who was charmingly attired in white was attended by her sister, Miss Gertie Rourke, and Mr. Michael Meehan performed the duties of best man. Girls! Have a Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy 25-cent bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and straggly, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Calls Attention to Governor's Instructions.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The question of the validity of the Prohibition Plebiscite Act has been raised. In this connection please allow me to call your readers' attention to the following extracts from the Instructions given by Queen Victoria to the Governors of Newfoundland, which form part of our Constitution:—

"XVII. Our said Governor is not to assent to Our name to any 'Bill or any of the classes hereinafter specified, that is to say:—
"7. Any Bill of an extraordinary nature and importance whereby . . . the rights of our subjects not residing in Our said Colony . . . may be prejudiced.
"Unless such Bill shall contain a clause suspending the operation of such Bill until the signature in Our said Colony of Our pleasure thereupon."

If there are any British subjects residing outside this Colony whose rights and property have been prejudiced by the Prohibition Plebiscite Act 1915, then that Act is void and cannot be enforced in law, because it does not contain a suspensory clause. Any of our readers can see the extract in the Draft of Instructions to the Governor published in the Consolidated Statutes (second series) pages 1105 and following.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA

Thrilling Experience of the Crew of the Blanche M. Rose.

Shipwrecked Mariners Arrive Home by Yesterday's Express, and Are Warmly Greeted by Their Many Friends.

Capt. William Clements, the crew, and passengers of the Blanche M. Rose who were rescued by the schr. Mary Duff and brought to North Sydney, as previously reported in the Telegram, arrived in the city by yesterday's express. From Capt. Clements, who was interviewed by a Telegram representative shortly after arrival, we learn the following concerning their experiences:

The Blanche M. Rose left Grois Islands for this port on Thursday, Nov. 4th, and met fair weather until Seldom was reached on Saturday afternoon, the 6th. She was obliged to spend the night at Seldom but left there the following morning. Sunday, and reached Shambler's Cove the same afternoon. After reaching the latter place a gale sprung up from the eastward and both anchors had to be put out. The storm continued for seven days during which time the wind shifted to almost every point of the compass. A mountainous sea was running and the schooner was detained at Shambler's Cove until Sunday morning, the 14th, when she put to sea again. At 2 o'clock that afternoon she was obliged to put into Catalina where she remained until 6 o'clock Monday evening, the 15th. Leaving Catalina the vessel was headed for Baccalieu Light and a fine run was made across Trinity Bay. From Baccalieu the course was shaped for Cape St. Francis, the light bearing southerly breeze sprung up but the vessel forced her way along and at 5 a.m. on Thursday, the 16th, was off Cape St. Francis, the light bearing N. W. By this time there was a heavy sea running and as the barometer was falling considerably Capt. Clements decided to run for Carbonar. While running towards the land a sudden squall from the westward carried away the foresail and jib. A little later the mainmast had to be lowered or that would have been torn in shreds. With only the jumbo, or inner jib, standing, the craft ran before the gale and at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning anchored to the leeward of Western Bay Point. When both anchors were shot, the light distress were hoisted in the rigging to attract the attention of the light keeper, with a view to having him send off a line from the shore. The vessel was only a little over 200 yards from the shore and Capt. Clements and his crew think that it would have been an easy matter for a person on shore to send off a buoy with a line attached. Having received no response to their signals they launched their boat and two of the crew made an unsuccessful attempt to get a line ashore. From the boat they could see a man moving about near the light house but all efforts on their part failed to attract his attention. If a line had been got on shore the safety of the crew would have been assured. But fate decreed otherwise. The strain on the hawsers, caused by the heavy cross sea running in from the Point, caused them to part and at 6 o'clock on Tuesday evening the vessel was driven to sea.

The riding sail and jumbo were hoisted after some difficulty and the vessel was headed for Cape St. Francis again. She held the shore all the way along and at 7 o'clock the next morning was within three miles of Cape Spear. Capt. Clements signalled for a tug and waited for a considerable time but without avail. They were so near home that they saw a tug come out and tow a three-masted schooner in the Narrows. In the meantime the Blanche M. Rose was laboring heavily and the Captain decided to wear her and put to sea again. With only a riding sail and jumbo the vessel was almost unmanageable, but during the whole day she was kept tacking back and forth. In the meantime she was slowly driving off. On Wednesday night the wind veered north and it began to snow heavily, and all that night and the following day the vessel was running to the southward though every effort was made to "hold the Bay." On Thursday night Cape Race was sighted, the light bearing N. N. W. The wind then suddenly veered to N. W. and continued until Friday evening. A mountainous

On Wednesday, the 24th inst., a number of young ladies held a very successful Children's Bazaar at the residence of Mr. Dunphy, Central St. in aid of the Patriotic Fund. The affair was conducted under the skillful management of Miss Bride Dunphy, who was ably assisted by Miss Annie Dunphy, Mollie Horan, K. Horan and Gertrude Ryan. Tea was also served in the afternoon and a large number of little boys and girls attended and a very enjoyable time was spent. At night the promoters held a dance in connection with the same and the proceeds of the bazaar, patriotic of those young ladies and all who helped to make the affair such a success.

Dear Sir,—We have now unpacked and engraved the sixty glasses which you so kindly collected for us. Everything was in perfect order and nothing was broken or damaged. I cannot say how greatly this timely loan has been appreciated. I venture to trespass further on your kindness by sending to you under separate cover, the acknowledgments which Lady Roberts likes to issue. I thought you might like to see the form of the acknowledgments and assure yourself that they had been dealt with and quickly sent out. With our grateful thanks,

Yours faithfully,

Dear Sir,—I beg to offer you my sincere thanks for the generous loan of glasses which you have been good enough to collect and forward from Newfoundland. They are being engraved and will be issued at once. They came at a moment when our supplies were running low and will be an asset to the forces, by whom I know they will be most gratefully received.

Yours truly,

The schrs. Miss Morris and Blodgett, loaded with fish and awaiting a favorable wind to sail for market.

Rev. A. A. Holmes left this morning for Trinity where he will attend several missionary meetings and address the different audiences.

The pictures shown at the Palace on Friday night were very good, and highly appreciated by the crowded audience. A complete change of programme is on to-night.

The patriotic entertainment held by the before-mentioned young ladies in the Academy Hall on Thursday night was a great success. The young ladies acquitted themselves admirably, as did also the young men who took part in two farces. The entrance fee was placed at a very low rate, so as to come within the means of everybody, but so large was the audience that the proceeds amounted to $83.50. Well done, girls, hearty congratulations.

The s.s. Euphrates arrived from Bell Island at 8 o'clock on Saturday night with a number of passengers. She left again for the Island yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Maysie Pike, who had been spending a time here with her aunt, Mrs. Stewart, left for home on the boat.

At the Sale of Work held by the ladies of St. Peter's Church, Southside, the handsome sum of $120.00 was realized.

Police Officer Assaulted

Quite a scene occurred on Water Street near the Court House, about seven o'clock last night when Sergt. James Mackey was attacked and assaulted by an undesirable, without any provocation whatever. He would have fared much worse than he did but for the assistance that came in time. He was on his "beat" and was abusing in the most insulting terms by this good-for-nothing, who was in fighting trim. The officer had just turned round when he was delivered a few stunning blows in the face. Punctually, however, he gripped his assailant and downed him. In the mix-up that followed, the prisoner, who was exceptionally strong, seized the officer's stick and smashed it. Mackey was being pummelled badly when four policemen reached the scene and arrested the aggressor, though after a hard struggle.

Obituary.

There passed peacefully away at her residence 457 Southside, on the 29th, Annie, the beloved daughter of Mark and Hannah McCormack. The deceased had attained her 17th year and was a bright pupil of the Sacred Heart Convent, and was well liked and esteemed by her fellow pupils. After spending 13 months in the camps of Mundy's Pond with the constant visits of kind friends which she highly appreciated; she bore her suffering with resignation to the Divine Will and showing a little improvement, she decided to come home among those she loved, thinking she would gain her health. But alas! the Grim Reaper claimed his victim, she passed away on the above mentioned date. To her sorrowing father and mother, sisters and brother, we tender our sincere sympathy in which the writer joins. R.I.P.

GO TO THE CRESCENT PICTURE PALACE.

Go to the Crescent Picture Palace today, and hear Mr. Dan Delmar sing the pretty Southern ballad: "The Glimmering of Wagoning" and see the great picture show. "The Girl of the Year" and "The Girl of the Year" reel features you never saw, the great stars, Alice Joyce and Guy Coombs feature in this Kalem masterpiece.

"Alice of the Lakes" is a fine drama produced by the Kalem Company. A riotous Western comedy with all the Essanay stars in "Slippery Jim's Wedding Day" will be shown. A special musical program arranged for this show, take it in.

"THE GODDESS" AT THE NICKEL.

"The Goddess" commenced at the Nickel Theatre yesterday and hundreds of citizens were present and all were delighted with it. The story is a remarkable one, entirely different to the others usually seen at the movies. It has been called the most artistic serial ever taken, and the opening chapter certainly leaves the impression that it is. The story begins with three millionaires who desire to bring the world to their feet, and to accomplish their ends a beautiful child is stolen and placed in a cave for fifteen years. She is rescued to-day, and also the following chapters. The other pictures last night were splendid. The programme will be repeated this evening. Be sure and see it. "Exploits of Elaine" to-morrow.

BRITISH THEATRE.

"Fichelleu," the great historical 4-act drama, was projected at the British last night and was well attended. Nothing can be said which would convey any idea of the elaborate settings, costumes and acting by those versatile stars, Mervock, McQuarrie and Pauline Bush, with an immense cast of other great actors and actresses. The conspiracy, the court scene, the determination of Fichelleu were vividly portrayed, and the British is to be congratulated in affording the public of St. John's the opportunity of witnessing such an interesting and educational picture. If theatre goes miss the show to-night they will miss a rare treat. Mrs. Ayre sang in her usual highly pleasing style the well-known song "Land of Hope and Glory" and responded to an encore.

COMING THE ONE AND ONLY MADGE LOCKE.

Patrons are looking forward to the appearance again of Ballard Brown the actor vocalist and the one and only Madge Locke. The little lady who is a whole company herself, the girl with the grand opera voice and educational feet. Mr. Rossley has booked them for the pantomime will be gorgeous. Carroll and Elliot last night in their act Kelly's Hotel, were very good and had the house in roars. Don't miss this act, and the pictures are splendid. Rossley's the leaders of amusement and originators of Christmas pantomimes, and there are other big surprises.

Germans on Trial in New York for Conspiracy.

Counsel for State Charges that Captain Boy-Ed, German Naval Attache Directed Chartering and Loading of Steamers, and that $750,000 for Relief of German Warships Was Spent Under His Direction.

New York, Nov. 23.—In the United States Court to-day the selection of a neutral jury for the trial of Karl Bueenz, managing director, and employees of the Hamburg-American Line on charges of conspiracy to violate customs laws in sending supply ships to German warships, was concluded within an hour.

William Rand, of counsel for the defence, notified Assistant Attorney Wood that the defence would withdraw that part of the previous admission pertaining to the alleged connection of Captain K. Boy-Ed, German naval attache, with the acts charged by the Government. This part of the admission made the defendants state that Captain Boy-Ed had been consulted regarding the sending of steamers with supplies to German sea-raiders, and that the work had been carried on largely under the naval attache's direction. No reason for withdrawing the admission was given. It became known to-day that an important witness for the Government had left the jurisdiction of the United States a week ago, and is at present in Bermuda. The name of this witness and what job he was in the Government's machinery in the case were not disclosed by the prosecution.

In almost the first words of his opening address to the jury Mr. Wood charged that Captain K. Boy-Ed, German naval attache, directed the chartering and loading of some of the vessels, and that $750,000 for relief of German warships was spent under his direction here.

From Coast to Coast.
"We expect to show," Mr. Wood said, "that this conspiracy extended from New York and Philadelphia to San Francisco and New Orleans. We expect to show that Dr. Bueenz employed a man named Kutenkamp to clear two vessels in a hurry from Philadelphia at the very opening of the war, telling him that this was desirable, because the Hamburg-American Line, should not appear in the transaction. We can prove that one of the vessels—the Berwind—was loaded with coal bought from the Berwind Coal Company, and we understand that Dr. Bueenz wanted Mr. Berwind of the coal company, to clear the steamer, but that Mr. Berwind demurred and Kutenkamp was called in to do the work.

"We shall prove that not long afterwards, Kutenkamp received $175,000 from some place in Germany—he did not know where or from whom—that he put this money in two New York banks, and that soon after Captain Boy-Ed came to him and told him that the money was to be spent under his (Boy-Ed's) direction. We shall show that $500,000 to $600,000 of this money was sent to San Francisco, where it was spent to charter and supply three ships with coal and provisions, and that these ships sailed out and met the German cruisers Leipzig, Dresden, and the Dresden. "One hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars of his money, we will show, was spent for the purchase outright of one of these three vessels, and all of the $750,000 was spent under Captain Boy-Ed's personal direction and instructions."

Supplies for German Warships.

"Sixteen or seventeen ships were used," Mr. Wood continued, "by the defendants to carry coal, water, wine, saur kraut and other needed supplies to the Leipzig, Dresden, Cap Arafalgar, Eba, Santa Lucia, Eleanor Woomer, and other German men-of-war. These steamers all carried super-cargoes, placed aboard by the defendants, each super-cargo bearing sealed instructions, which were opened after the vessel steamed away, some times within the three mile limit.

"The defendant, Koter, we shall show, signed letters which the super-cargoes carried and these letters, addressed to the captains of the steamers supplying German warships, instructed the captains to obey the super-cargoes and promised them liberal gratuities for doing so.

"We shall show that after these vessels sailed for Buenos Ayres, Laguyra, Cadiz, Monrovia and other destinations, the super-cargoes instructed the captains to go elsewhere and that the captains obeying these instructions took their vessels to meet German warships at sea and to deliver to the warships the supplies aboard.

"We shall show that these defendants, conspired, at various meetings, to do all these things; that in so doing they rode roughshod over the laws and treaties of the United States as contemptuously as if those laws and treaties had been mere scraps of paper."

Mr. Wood's address lasted less than forty minutes.

Admission by Germans.

W. M. Rand, counsel for the defence opened with these words:

"So far as certain facts are concerned, we concede that they are just as Mr. Wood stated them to be. "We concede that certain ships sailed from American ports to supply German warships, and admit that these ships were outfitted by Dr. Bueenz and the other defendants, but deny that the acts of the defendants constitute conspiracy," Mr. Rand added.

"On or about August 1, 1914, Dr. Bueenz received from his home office in Germany orders by cable directing him to charter a number of steamships here, place provisions, coal and other supplies aboard and send them to a designated place in the Atlantic, there to await the appearance of German warships, to which the supplies were to be delivered. He was acting on those legitimate orders in chartering these vessels."

Chartered the Ships.

The first witness was Richard D. Wrigley, a steamship broker of this city, who testified that he chartered on August 3rd, 1914, to the Hamburg-American Line the steamers Lorenzo and Berwind, the first two vessels which sailed for the German Atlantic fleet. John H. Gans acted for the liner. Mr. Wrigley said, in the transaction, giving indemnity bonds to the owners for full value of the vessels, $350,000 and $260,125, respectively.

"This was done in case anything should happen, and the vessels not be returned to us," he said.

"We could not get war insurance at the time, and some guarantee was necessary."

Wrigley also testified that the steamship Lorenzo was chartered for $15,500 a month; the Berwind for $12,500; the Atina, Nepe and Mowinckle for $13,750 each. He said that he wrote letters to the captains of these vessels to the effect that super-cargoes would be placed aboard to take charge, and that "liberal gratuities" would be paid the masters for attending to the super-cargoes' interests.

The Berwind and Lorenzo cleared August 5 and 6, two days after they were chartered, for Buenos Ayres.

They were later captured in the East Indies and sold under prize court orders. The Mowinckle and the Nepe were likewise captured.

The Atina was also seized and sold. Her owners, Norwegians, were not reimbursed for her value by the Hamburg-American Line, the witness said, and when the Mowinckle and Nepe were taken into Tenerife the Hamburg-American Line promptly cancelled their charters, so that there would be no expense while they were tied up.

The next witness was Gustave E. Kutenkamp, who, the Government charges, received $750,000 from an unknown source in Germany, which was spent under Captain Boy-Ed's direction. He testified that he was summoned to the office of the Hamburg-American Line on August 5, 1914, and requested by Dr. Bueenz, Koter and Hochemiser to clear the cargoes of the steamers Lorenzo and Berwind, one of which sailed the same day and the other the following day.

They said they did not want the Hamburg-American Line to appear in the matter.

"Did you clear them?"
"Yes."
"Did you get some money later?"
asked Mr. Wood.

"Yes, about $750,000."
"Where did it come from?"
"It came from the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, through Speyer and Company, of this city."

"What happened then?"
"Well, a few days later—early in September—Captain Boy-Ed told me the money was for him."

"Did you disburse any of the money under Captain Boy-Ed's instructions?"
"Yes, I sent $365,000 to the Nevada National Bank at San Francisco."

"What was done with the money?"
"I don't know."

"Did you disburse any more of the money under Captain Boy-Ed's instructions?"
"Yes, I paid over $150,000 to the North German Lloyd Line, September 21, 1914, and $63,000 more to the same people, September 28."

"What was done with the money?"
"I don't know."

"Did you pay out any of what remained?"
"Yes, I paid out various sums, including $24,000 to the Hamburg-American Line."

"Was this money paid upon Captain Boy-Ed's orders?"
"It was."

"How much have you paid out to the Hamburg-American Line altogether?"
"About $750,000, I should say."

"I don't know."

"Did you know anything of what remained?"
"Yes, I paid out various sums, including $24,000 to the Hamburg-American Line."
