

Torbay Breaks All Records.

Greatest Meeting in Its History --- Solid Vote for Higgins, Vinicombe and Fox.

Since the campaign actively opened, the Coaker-Squires candidates for the East End—known as "the funky trio"—have vauntingly boasted that the industrious and thriving settlement of Torbay was their stronghold, and that its voters were solid to a man for the Bolshevik theories of Coaker. Their bubble was burst last night when the people's favorites—Higgins, Vinicombe and Fox—opened their campaign there in the aptly named "Guppyite" stock has sunk to the very lowest ebb. Day by day the insidious and false propaganda put forth by these seekers of power is being exposed, much to their chagrin and disgust. Last night the "Fighting Trio" were escorted to the hall by a number of the residents with rounds of musketry, and were presented to the overcrowded audience by Mr. William Gosse, who acted as chairman. On the stage was a committee of Torbay's oldest and representative residents, among whom were Privates All Gosse, Bolger and W. Gosse. The chairman, who is one of the oldest residents of the settlement and a lifelong Liberal, received the candidates and then called upon the leader of them to speak. When the Hon. Mr. Higgins arose to his feet to address the assemblage he was tendered an ovation such as has never been accorded any representative of the district. Three times three cheers were given with a wholehearted and sincere enthusiasm. The sole representative for the past six years, Mr. Higgins has always been found easy of approach, ever ready and willing to give his time and attention to the needs of the district, and ever their champion. In a ringing speech he tore to shreds the aims of the Opposition. In turn he dealt with the "Red's lawyer" cry, concentrated the motives behind the description, the motives behind the putting of an "independent" candidate in the district and the work performed by himself during the past six years. Then the policy of the manifesto of Fisherman-Premier Sir

"What end of Dan And his hero (?) man? Are they lost on the drifting Barge?" "Far on the sea of obscurity, Charless they drift at large; And ever and anon the scrap As to who's the man in charge!"

"And ever they drift, they leeward drift, And ever they scrap and scrap, And each man as he steers Is troubled with fears, For he's dreading the great mishap That will bring the Barge and her captain, Dan,

And her fearless mate Leo— On the Ballot Rock With a crashing shock When the voters to polling go."

Oh, this is the tale of the East End three That Squires sent out to fight; Speak mariner, "have you seen their sail?" Or tell us that in their fright That they've lost their way And are doomed to stray, Befogged on an aimless tack, Till the country's cheers Burst on the ears "Tis Cashin, yes, Cashin is back!"

on man after polling day. Stone in Trinity is also a winner. He has beaten his opponents to the ropes and drove Hallyford to St. John's for assistance recently. He is giving the Opposition men no rest, but is keeping up a swift, unrelenting campaign which has taken the people by storm. Mackay and his colleagues are doing the same in Green Bay. In Foggy, Oake has a cinch against Hibbs, who is a mere strawman. The election of Hickman and Whiteaway has already been conceded by Coaker in his famous Circular. Crosbie's seat is just as sure in Port de Grave. Mr. Grace is going to be a surprise to the Opposition who are counting upon it for support. The candidates have been fighting among themselves. The Opposition nominee to lead the ticket, Dr. Barnes, was turned down almost unanimously by the Bay Roberts people. It is doubtful if Gosse will run at all, and the last straw was the selection of Archibald, a "slacker" who is as popular as the salmon in St. John's. Mr. Grace who has been in almost continual hot water over his hostility to the country's participation in the war. Carbonar is not doubted either. It has been on the Government side for the past ten years and does not intend to change into the cold shades of Opposition at the behest of Squires and Coaker.

Looking over the list, even the most level-headed partisans of the Bolshevik Party must admit that their chances are hopeless. They are fighting a losing fight, and their sure defeat is becoming more evident day by day.

Oh, yes. Squires will get 23 seats throughout the country. Like Kelly did.

Have you tried STEWART'S Delicious Home Made Bread? Also Home Made Butter Scotch and Genuine Nut Toffee. Approved of by leading physicians for children. STEWART'S BAKERY, Water St. East, opposite King George Institute.—oct.18,19

Like Kelly Will.

In last night's Star a couple of columns of space are devoted to a forecast of the result of the coming election, and it is summed up in the return of 23 men for the Liberal Reform Party. But where is he going to get them? That's the question most people would like him to answer. Not alone will he not get anywhere near the result he anticipates, but he will not even get elected himself. Nobody expects for a moment that Squires is going to be returned in the West End. His own supporters admit this fact, and even his co-leader Coaker "blows the nose" in his Circular to his Union Councils, when he told them not to count on any but Government men in St. John's. The City, as all are aware, will return 6 men for the Liberal Progressive Party. Squires will be a defeated candidate, and will probably be left to wallow in his own mire by Coaker. Ferryland is never reckoned by any party in its lists when Sir Michael Cashin is in the running, and Hartley and English will not poll 100 votes between them in Harbor Main, no one will dispute the election of Woodford and Jones by a large majority. Meaney and Kennedy were almost driven out of the district recently by the electors who resent the indignity cast upon them by having men of Meaney's calibre sent there as candidates. So far we have seen that Squires cannot count upon one man. But the worst is yet to come. In Placentia, Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott are sweeping the place like a fire. People who know that District well are prepared to wager that the highest man on the Opposition ticket will not secure 1,500 votes. Burn is for Currie, first, last and always, and Bartlett will be his colleague in the House of Assembly. Burn has been well represented the past six years, and the people are going to stand by the men who have stood by them. Elliott is making a whirlwind campaign in Fortune, and the messages received from him indicate just what he is going to do to Warren in that District. The news from Burgeo is the same. James is meeting with the greatest success everywhere. He is well known and popular in the District and the electors are going to give him a chance to go something for them during the next four years. No one doubts for a moment, not even the Opposition, that Downey will make a clean-up of St. George's District. He is stronger there than he ever was and will have the largest majority in the history of that constituency with the ballots are counted. Kean for St. Barbe, is the cry of the voters of that District. They recognize in Capt. Kean an experienced and capable legislator, and have been neglected so long that they are determined to be up and doing by sending a man to the House of Assembly who will see that they get adequate representation for their requirements. In the other "Coaker" Districts, Coaker is fighting with his back to the wall, and even in his own stronghold, Bonavista, he has had to take up messages in order to make believe that he is going to win out. Morins is giving him the fight of his life there, and Coaker will be a beat-of very great size, with their holds occupied by immense circular tanks. A very large number of men are carried—fishermen and the like—at low rates of pay, for the rough, heavy work; while for the electrical and navigating work a large staff of highly paid officers are carried.

All being ready, the cable ship proceeds to the point where the laying of the cable is to begin. The shore end is landed, spliced on to the deep sea portion, and connected up to a set of instruments in a hut on the shore. Part of the electrical staff is left in this hut, and a series of signals is passed to and fro between the ship and the hut all the time that the cable is being paid out. As the cable often is two thousand miles long, it may be imagined what unremitting attention is necessary on the part of the electricians.

Landing the Shore-ends.

Meanwhile the ship is steadily proceeding onward to her destination at the rate of five miles an hour. It is not possible to go faster, or else it would endanger the lives of the men in the cable tanks, who are handling the cable, proceeds night and day. Meanwhile the electricians take their turns of testing the electrical qualities of the cable, and exchanging signals with those on the shore.

At last the farther shore is reached, and the second shore-end spliced on and landed.

Landing these shore-ends is very disagreeable work. It may be that one has to strip and wade up to one's neck in water infested with sharks while carrying or dragging the heavy cables ashore.—Answers.

Laying the Cable.

When we reflect that the world is served by no less than 1,050 distinct telegraph cables, sunk beneath the waters, costing £120,000,000, and that nearly the whole were made in London, and belong to English capitalists, it may be worth while to consider for a moment the operations involved.

First the route of the proposed cable must be determined. In most cases this can easily be done by reference to the existing charts. If, however, no reliable charts of the region exist, a special surveying expedition is sent out to determine a path for the cable.

The object is to secure, at this least possible depth below the surface, a fairly level platform, free from ridges, which might chafe and cut the cable; and from hollows or ravines, across which the cable might not be able to support its own weight. At the same time, it is of the utmost importance to have the cable route as short as possible, for every extra mile means an expense in round numbers of £200.

Making the Cable.
Then the cable has to be made. This is a very long business. First there are the copper wires—forming the conductor of electricity—which are covered with four distinct coatings of gutta-percha. Over this are wound two layers of tape—sometimes metallic tape is used where attacks from insects are feared. Then come two layers of Russian hemp. After this comes a covering of steel wire. And over all there are two coatings of very strong canvas ribbon, coated with a mixture of pitch and gutta-percha. The average rate of cable-making is three miles a day from each set of machines, or, say twenty miles a day from the whole factory. The cable near the shore is protected by additional thicknesses of steel wire to prevent injury from anchors, etc.

As fast as the cable is made it is coiled down in immense tanks of water and tested continually to see if its electrical condition is perfect. When complete, the cable is coiled away on board the ship that is to lay it in its ocean bed.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU WANT TO WRITE?

There is a certain class of problem which comes to me so often that even at the risk of failing to interest some of my readers I am going to say what I have to say about it at once, and I trust, for all.
Here is a typical example of the problem in a letter I recently received.
"For years I have been able to turn my thoughts into rhyme (poetry) I do not call it for I don't know whether it is that or not. I began writing it for my friends on their little verses to be read at parties, etc. I have heard a friend heartsick over the loss of her mother burst into healing tears over the verses I gave her and seen little children laugh aloud over some verses about a little brown dog. Now I would like to earn some money to give away so I have wondered if I could do anything with the little verses. Where would you advise me to go to have them critiqued, and where can I sell them? Will you tell me in your paper?"

If You Do This Is For You.
The letter was not signed and I hid it aside perforce unanswered. But I have had so many inquiries as to the possibility of publication for songs, poems, stories, short prose matter, etc., that it seemed to me a few words on this general subject might be of interest.
In the first place let me say that there are two or three excellent little magazines conducted solely in the interests of the writing trade. They tell me the latest news of markets for every sort of literary effort from nonsense rhymes to novels; they publish all sorts of helpful essays on writing; they announce every sort of prize contest; they conduct literary bureaus. No one who is interested in marketing literary work can afford to be without at least one of these magazines. It is not possible for me to name them here but I will be happy to send the name to anyone sending me a stamped addressed envelope for the purpose.

FIX UP.

The long war made us sick and faint, we had no heart to hump; and so alas, we did not paint the cowshed and the pump; we read long tales of bones and woe, and let our chores to thunder, and now our houses look as though they should be at the dump. We had no heart to trim the trees, or bear dead cats away, when mighty legions, o'er the seas, engaged in bloody fray; and while those legions thundered on the tin cans gathered on the lawn, with broken dish and demijohn, and heaps of leaves and hay. While still upon the Kaiser's brow the tyrant's crown was seen, we had no heart to groom the cow, or plant the pinto bean; we had no heart to decorate the lawn swing and the garden gate; we merely stood and railed at fate, and cursed the submarine. Now in a castle queer and quaint the mildewed Kaiser sits; and we should buy some rich red paint, and throw some clean up fits; for kalsomine of gaudy hue, to make the shack look good as new, for clover seed and blue grass, too, we ought to blow six bits. We've talked of war a weary while, of admirals and kings; now let's put on our peace time smile, and think of other things; let's fix the roof before there's rain, replace the broken window pane; a lot of duties in its train this smiling season brings.

When They Went A-Looting.

The 12th Lancers observed, until 1914, a regimental custom which was said to have its origin in the Peninsular War. According to regimental tradition, certain members of the 12th found themselves, after an engagement with the French, detached from the main body, and, there being no officer with them, they decided to go a-looting.
Unfortunately for them and for the high reputation of the regiment, the first building they came to was a convent. How much looting they did is unrecorded; but when their offence was discovered not only were they condemned to be shot, but the whole regiment was sentenced to have hymn tunes played to it every night for one hundred years.

This custom was continued until the outbreak of war; and we hear that, although the alleged sentence expired some years ago, it will be revived as soon as the 12th once more get to their peace footing.
Evidently, whatever stigma originally attached to the regiment on account of the Peninsular incident has long been forgotten in the splendid achievements of the 12th in almost every war cavalry have engaged in since, and the custom is regarded nowadays as an honour rather than as a punishment. This is a good example of the war in which regular regiments cling to their old traditions and customs, no matter what may be the origin of the latter. The effect which such old customs have on the esprit de corps of a regiment cannot be over-estimated, and the 12th are therefore to be congratulated on their decision that the hymn-playing custom shall be revived.

THE REWARD.
When the bitter strife is done,
When the last grim fight is won,
We shall gather freedom's roses
In the sun of happy Junes;
We shall meet and smile together
In the fairest sort of weather;
We shall form the old-time circles
And shall sing our merry tunes.
We shall tread the velvet clover
In a world that's been made-over;
We shall find the dreary places
Lit by many a cheery smile;
Men and women will be neighbours
As they bend unto their labors,
And the years for all our children
Will be very much worth while.
It was ours with hate to battle,
Ours to hear the cannons rattle,
Ours to give our sons to service,
Ours to keep the flag on high;
And when war no longer wages,
To the children of the ages
We shall hand down freedom's riches
In the glorious bye and bye!

Household Notes.

Never wash windows while the sun is shining on them. They will be spotted.
To remove black ink stains rub them with boiled rice and wash in clear water.
All soiled clothing will wash more easily and be whiter if first soaked in cold water.
Coffee freshly roasted and then pulverized to release the aromatic oil is always best.
Keep the spout of the teakettle turned in, so it will not boil over and scald the baby.
When boiling meat, if it springs up instantly when pressed with a knife, it is done.
Before retiring at night see that the fires in the open fireplaces are properly dampened.
A little salt and milk should be added to the water in which new potatoes are to be boiled.
Drop the yolks of eggs not wanted for immediate use into cold water and put into a cold place.
A small piece of butter added to the lima beans when boiling will prevent them boiling over.
If the family numbers six or more, it will pay the housekeeper to buy canned food in cases.

The Big Chief is now back from his hurried canvass of Bonavista Bay, and Morine and his colleagues remain victors of the day, which fact will be heralded by the ballot count on election day, and even the Advocate admits it now, for it says on its front page that Coaker and his two colleagues will get 4,000 votes, while Morine will get 1,500 votes.

Has not Coaker promised through his circulars sent out to the Union Councils, that if he is not elected on Nov. 3rd that he will resign from the Union altogether, that is, if he is not elected as lord over the whole island he will not look after those whose monies are invested through him in the different concerns of the Union Trading Co.?

Carnell opened the meeting and was followed by Matthews; both were cheered continuously and when finished was followed by Stone, in one hour and half address, answering all questions and fully vindicating all charges made against him in the Advocate. The meeting closed with cheers for Stone, Matthews, and Carnell.

WOODFORD AND JONES GET NOTABLE OVATION AT HOLYROOD—MEANEY'S ANTI-CONSCRIPTION CRY BURIED BY WOMAN'S APPEAL.

(Special to Evening Telegram.) HOLYROOD, To-day. Woodford and Jones, the Liberal Progressive candidates for Harbor Main District, held a meeting last night which was the best in the history of the place. It was largely attended and great enthusiasm was shown. Mr. Michael Dunphy was chairman, and all the leading people of the place were present.

When the speakers had finished the audience gave them a renewed demonstration of enthusiasm which copperfastened the conclusion that Woodford and Jones will win the district by the largest majority on record.

On Saturday night Mr. Buffett, assisted with open arms the Liberal-Progressive candidates, Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott, and the meeting according to the unanimous opinion of all the people was the finest and most enthusiastic ever held in this important settlement. Mr. Isaac Wakely, the leading merchant in the Bay, acted as chairman and introduced each speaker in turn.

Notes & Comments

(Christian Science Monitor.)

"Something different" was added, a while ago, to the attractions of a state fair in North Dakota when an improvised theater was set up, and plays were acted by students of the North Dakota Agricultural College to show visitors at the fair the possibility of creating similar theaters in agricultural communities; and more recently a similar thing was done at the state fair in New York. In both cases the theatrical performances proved a great success. The theater at the New York state fair, where the stage was appropriately enough built in a barn, was filled at every performance; but whether, here and there, a rural community will be led to set up its own playhouse, train a company of actors from the immediate neighborhood, and produce plays for the enjoyment of the community, is something for the future to settle. The newspaper headline, "Bringing the Theater to the Farmer," seems to run rather far ahead of accomplished fact.

A number of successful Englishmen, cotton manufacturers and delegates to the World Cotton Conference at New Orleans, Louisiana, have been making a tour of inspection in some of the fine-goods mills in the United States, and what they find to say in some cases goes quite counter to previous ideas of how cotton manufacturing in America compares with that of England. Some American Labor leaders, for example, have argued that the greater rapidity of the looms in America places greater exactions on American operatives; but the visitors say that looms are run much faster in England. The statement hardly helps the claim that American operatives must needs work faster than those of England, and therefore deserve a higher rate of pay.

Meditating upon the external appearance of mankind, and contrasting two familiar accessories, the "ugly bit of starched linen" and the "soft double fold of linen" which is also a collar but "shapes to a throat in a manner at once distinguished and comfortable," an erudite writer traces the chronicle of the collar from the time when orators in the streets of Rome wore "chin cloths." The Roman orator's "chin cloth," it appears, had become a wimple, which was a good deal like a bib, after the Normans conquered Britain, and the wimple had expanded to a ruff in the sixteenth century, growing bigger and bigger until Parliament passed a law to limit its size. Then, in the time of Charles I, came the plain, or laced, band which developed through various modifications into the modern collar. The account overlooks the fact that collars were also a part of armor, sometimes worn by knights and gentlemen as badges of their adherence to particular families, and that in the Middle Ages the creation of an esquire was signified by investing him with a properly ornamented collar and a pair of spurs.

An observer of modern Boston destroys a widespread impression that nearly every true Bostonian, man or woman, carries a "Boston bag." The custom, he says, is pretty nearly obsolete; but he finds evidence, in the files of a New York newspaper in 1899, of the time when it existed. Somebody then analyzed the bag-carrying habit of Bostonians, and recorded that "it is really quite the custom to carry a cloth bag; but the size and form of the receptacle differ with the taste and fancy of the bearer." Lawyers, it appears, carried green bags like those of the lawyers, but made of black broadcloth or satin; professional men in general often carried a cloth bag with handles, called the "James Freeman Clarke," because that distinguished preacher was held to have invented and carried the first of them. Such are the facts, says the observer in 1899, but "the delusion is current in other parts of the United States that all Boston people carry a cloth bag of a certain fixed shape and form, embroidered with the large yellow initial of the owner." The "bag delusion" persists; although nowadays it has visibly faded, for it has quite lost that splendid initial embroidered in yellow.

Bustily excavating for the foundations of a motion-picture theatre on Broadway, New York, between One Hundred and Sixty-Ninth Street and One Hundred and Seventieth Street, workmen came, the other day, on the spot where Hessian soldiers, during the Revolutionary War, had their camp, and perhaps sat in a circle, each braiding the pigtail of the soldier in front of him, as is said to have been the helpful custom of these German invaders. Digging uncovered the remains of a hut which had been built and occupied by them, and the twentieth century excavators found buttons, bullets, an axe, a spoon, and an ancient jackknife which the Hessians had left. The discovery was more surprising to those who made it than to some who heard of it, for it was historically known that the so-called "camp of the eleventh million" had been somewhere in the neighborhood when the Hessians were a part of the forces occupying New York, although efforts to locate it had been unsuccessful. The incident shows how the process that gradually buried some of the cities of antiquity is going on in modern times and cities.

Personal Mention.

Among the passengers who arrived in St. John's yesterday, by the S. S. Prospero, were Mrs. Wm. White and her daughter Mollie, wife and daughter of the respected Sub-Collector of Customs, Trinity; Miss Mollie is a highly intellectual young lady, and in the C. H. E. examinations she displayed marked ability, having secured six distinctions in the Intermediary Grade, and may well be classed as one of the brightest amongst our outport pupils. Mollie will enter Spencer College, where we are sure she will keep up her splendid record and although only fifteen years of age, we shall be very much surprised indeed if she does not carry off further honors in the near future, and the Telegram wishes her every success.

Who's Who

AND WHY IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA—1919-20.

"Who's Who and Why" is designed to provide a record of the men and women who in one capacity or another are contributing to the building up of Canada and Newfoundland. In the brief account of their career in these pages their relation is shown to the outstanding events of the history of the sister dominions, and the book, therefore, has a value for the historian quite beyond its use as a current work of reference. Included also are portraits of persons dealt with in the biographical sketches, thus adding to the permanent value of the book. Only a few copies on sale.
