CHAPTER VIII.
AN HISTORIC QUARREL.

The squire listened with a dark, reeling frown while the signor beat time with the white forefinger of his left hand upon the soft palm of his right.

"Exquisite! Charming! Beautiful!" he murmured. "Ah, my friend," and he turned with a grin to Godfrey Knighton, "does it not remind you of her sainted mother?"

Godfrey Knighton's face went white, and his eyes seemed to emit a furious fire of rage and defiance, then, as if controlling himself with an effort, he said:

"Iris, your voice sounds as if you were tired also. Do not sing again." The candles were brought and the signor, after bending over Iris's hand with an elaborate courtesy, took himself off to that room which belongs by right to the good and the virtuous.

Two hours afterward, however, when all was still in the great house, the signor, in his shabby, seedy velvet coat, and wearing his thick list slippers, might have been seen creeping noiselessly and cautiously down the principal stair-case.

Step by step he descended until he reached the hall. Round him in their heavy and time-stained frames, glowered the dead and gone Knightons, and they seemed to look down threateningly at that creeping, gliding foreigner, with his pale, cunning face and black, treacherous eyes.

The signor raised the dark lantern above his head and looked round him cautiously, and stood listening with his head on one side.

There was not a sound to be heard save that of the tall clock in the angle of the stairs, slowly and mechanically ticking out the hours, and the signor, making his way to the library door, opened it with his skeleton key and passed in.

Setting the lantern on the table, with its light fall upon the safe, he stood before it and regarded it carefully, while he chose a key that he thought would fit it.

"But though an old it was a trust-worthy safe, and it laughed the signor's delicate manipulation to scorn. Key after key, pick after pick, he tried in vain, and at last, reluctantly, and with the sweat standing on beads on his white forehead, he had to admit himself beaten.

"Peste!" he exclaimed, "what is to be done? I must, I will see what is inside you, my friend, and yet you will not open. My oyster! What is to be done? Where does he keep the key? On that bunch I saw him take out of his pocket! Humph! 'Til chance it! He ought to sleep well after the wine he took to-night. 'Til chance it!"

Having arrived at this resolution, the signor stole out of the room where he was, and up the stairs again.

With stealthy tread he reached Godfrey Knighton's door, and there paused and listened.

Still no sound broke the silence of the great house but the ticking of the old clock, and cautiously and carefully the signor opened the door and stole in. For a moment he stood on the Persian mat within the threshold of the room, listening, for to the bravest there is something awe-inspiring in sleep, which is but the counterfeit of death, and the signor was anything but the bravest.

A minute—two, perhaps—might have passed before he gained courage to advance; then, with a muttered malediction at his nervousness, he crept on tiptoe to the dressing-table, and his headlike eyes resting on a bunch of keys, he pounced on it and noiselessly stole out again.

CHAPTER IX.
THE LAST OF GODFREY KNIGHTON.

Ricardo unlocked the safe, and stood regarding the contents for a moment with greedy, curious eyes. One by one he took the papers from their shelves and drawers, carefully noting how they were placed that he might re-arrange them in the order in which he found them, and seating himself at the table, commenced examining them.

There were leases, title deeds, insurance policies; then, in a parcel by themselves, came stock and share certificates. Ricardo's mouth watered at the sight of these valuables, and his soul grew thirsty when he came alighting he put them back in their places in the safe; whatever in the future he might be tempted to do, he could not take them to-night seeing that Godfrey Knighton might chance to examine the safe on the morrow and would miss them.

Presently he came to an inner drawer, and, unlocking it with a small key which he found on the bunch, he discovered a folded sheet of parchment.

It was indorsed "Will of Godfrey Knighton, Esquire," and with a low chuckle of satisfaction Ricardo carried it to the table.

"Now we will see how my old friend is going to leave all his vast wealth, and whether any of it goes to our young friend, my Lord Coverdale," he muttered, and, opening the parchment he read it through twice with the greatest care.

Then he looked up, and an evil smile shone in his eyes.

"Every single penny, every acre of land, and piece of plate, and horse and cow, to our charming and beautiful Miss Iris!" he said; "and nothing, not a scrap, for our friend the young lord. Exactly as I thought. But it is best to make sure, Bapiste; a good business man always takes care. Now I know what you are going to do with your wealth, my good friend, I will put back this interesting little sheepskin until a more convenient opportunity. It is a good thing to know where to find it when you want it, though; and so I will take the opportunity of providing myself with a key like my dear Godfrey's."

With exquisite delicacy he moulded a piece of wax, and took an impression of the keys, replaced the will, and, locking the safe, carefully setting the articles on the table and the chairs as he had found them when he had entered, left the room.

Cautiously ascending the stairs, he entered the squire's chamber, and, stealing on tiptoe, laid the keys upon the dressing table in the spot from which he had taken them. Then he paused a moment, listening, and glancing round the room. There was a small iron box let into the wall beside the bed, and Ricardo gazed at it longingly. He had not heard of the Knighton diamonds, which were famous ones, but he knew that there must be family jewels, and that Iris must possess some, as her own property, of great value.

"They are in that little box," he murmured, almost plaintively, "I must have one small look—just one!"

Taking the keys again, he approached the bed and stole a glance at the sleeping squire. It was only a glance, for even in sleep Godfrey Knighton inspired fear, and with a little click of his teeth the signor turned from the bed, and, quietly fitting the key in the lock, opened the iron box.

His guess had been perfectly correct. In their morocco cases were the Knighton jewels, and as he took them up and held them in the light of the lantern, his swartly face flushed, and paled, and his breath came fast.

"Peste!" he muttered. "Some men would be content with these. But no, not you, Bapiste; you are not a fool! Not quite! Wait a while, and you shall have money enough to buy twice these baubles, such as they are!"

But it was with a slow and painful reluctance that he put the cases back in their place; so slow and reluctantly, indeed, that he seemed to forget where he was and the danger of the sleeping man awaking.

Suddenly, as he stooped with his gleaming teeth clinched, his eyes fixed on the cases, there shot a streak of light fall upon the box. It was only a beam from the young moon emerging from a cloud, but Ricardo's eyes were strained to their utmost, and the case he held in his hand fell to the ground with a sharp little crash.

In an instant he dropped on to his hands and knees, and commenced to crawl toward the door, every limb seeming to turn to an ear in his acute attention. The sound must awake the squire, he would find the box open—Ricardo would be discovered, all would be lost, all his nice little plans for securing a magnificent fortune would be ruined!

He wasted a second, his heart beating fast, as he crouched like a cat beside the bed. The second passed, and there came no sound from the sleeping man, and Ricardo's courage returned somewhat. Still on his knees he crawled back to the box, and, putting the case straight, locked the door.

As he did so, with the keys still in his hand, he drew near the bed and ventured to bend down.

The moon was pouring a single shaft through a chink of the blinds fall upon the face of Godfrey Knighton, and every line of the stern, and face stood out in the white, clear light.

Ricardo looked down at the squire with a sinister smile, but suddenly the smile died away, and he bent lower and scrutinized the sleeping man keenly.

What was it he saw that made him recoil as if he had been struck? What was it that made his face turn white and then livid, and the sweat to stand out upon his forehead in great beads? What was it that caused him to shake and tremble like a man in agony, so that the dark lantern in his hand swung like a pendulum?

"I just haven't the words to say what I would like to say about Tanlac," said Mrs. George A. Dunham, 71 Lombard Street, a life-long resident of St. John, N.B.

"Sixteen years ago I began to suffer from stomach trouble and from that time up until recently, when I got relief by taking Tanlac, I didn't know what it was to be able to eat what I wanted. My back ached nearly all the time and I also had such severe headaches I would have to go to bed and stay there for days."

"It was just year ago that, on the advice of a friend, I began taking Tanlac and in two months from the first dose I was as well and strong as I had ever been in my life. I have been in the very best of health ever since and I think Tanlac is the most wonderful medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

The Turko-Egyptian Fleets Destroyed.

The battle of Navarino, in which combined British, French, and Russian fleets, under Sir Edward Codrington, destroyed a Turkish and Egyptian fleet under Ibrahim Pasha, on October 20, 1827, is noteworthy as the last fleet action in which the British Navy was engaged until the recent war. Further, it had the credit of contributing largely to the establishment of Greek independence. But in itself it cannot be described as a great naval battle, as the Turkish and Egyptian fleets were wholly outclassed and destroyed in the course of a few hours. Nor was the victory received with unqualified satisfaction at home. Indeed, it was described as an "unwarlike event" and was regarded as playing into the hands of Russia by paving the way for the attainment of her long-standing ambition, the possession of Constantinople. Moreover, war had not been declared by the Powers against Turkey. The engagement, however, was forced upon Codrington by the violation on the part of the Turks of their agreement that their fleet should remain in the bay of Navarino pending the arrangement of the affairs of Greece. Codrington then acted with decision, as was to have been expected of one of "Nelson's captains," who had been actively engaged in the events of the great war with France since 1794, when he served on Lord Howe's flagship on "the glorious First of June." Nevertheless, the mixed feelings with which his exploit was regarded by the British Government prevented any substantial recognition being made of his services on the occasion. The remainder of his life was uneventful. From 1832 to 1840 he represented Devonport in Parliament; in 1837 he became admiral; and from 1839 to 1842 he commanded at Portsmouth. He died in 1881, in the seventy-second year of his age, still Sir Edward.

London to Be Again Biggest World Port.

London, will again become the first port of the world when the plans of the Belfast ship-builders, Harland & Wolff, are in full operation. This firm has secured eight sites along the banks of the Thames River in order to develop their scheme for the refitting and redecking of ships on a large scale. It is anticipated that several thousand men, engaged in various trades, will be employed, as it is understood that the firm will undertake practically all sorts of repair work. In addition to repair work on ships, barges, tugs, lock gates and machinery, the repairs to the plant belonging to the Port of London Authority will be handled by the Belfast firm. Hitherto much of the repair work has been sent elsewhere.

(TUESDAY EVENING, October 18.)

PRELUDE.
As most of you are aware the present church is the third to be erected on this site. The first a small wooden structure, erected in 1818, stood for forty years, and was replaced in 1856 by the brick church, the memory of which the older folks still cherish. This church was destroyed in the great fire of 1892 during the third year of Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite's first term as Pastor. With undaunted courage and strong faith, the trustees of that day began their preparations to rebuild, and on July 26, 1894 the corner stone of the present beautiful and spacious church was laid by the General Superintendent, Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite. In the interval the tabernacle was built on the Parade ground, and there the Gower Street congregation worshipped for four years, during the last year of Dr. Cowperthwaite's term and Dr. Morton's full term of three years. The Architect of the new Gower Street Church was Mr. Elijah Hoole of London, England, a son of a distinguished Wesleyan Minister of the old country. The builder was Mr. S. M. Brookfield of Halifax. The members of the building committee were Mr. J. E. P. Peters, Rev. R. K. Bishop and Mr. A. F. Shirran; the late Hon. J. B. Ayre acted as an honorary member of the committee and took a keen interest in the planning and construction of the building. He also planned and ordered the organ for the new church. The church is supposed to seat 1200 persons with reserve accommodation for 400 more.

THE OPENING DAY.
On the opening day, October 17th, 1898, 1700 persons were said to be present, many standing during the services. The ladies of the congregation had beautifully and artistically decorated the church. The pulpit and windows were one mass of flowers, and by their fragrance and beauty greatly delighted the vast congregation. On Sunday morning Rev. Dr. Curtis, the first Pastor of the new church, was assisted by Rev. Wm. Swann, who was ex-president of the Conference, Revs. Geo. Paine of Cochrane Street, Rev. J. T. Newman of George Street, Rev. Dr. Dove, Rev. Dr. Milligan and Rev. M. Fenwick. The Rev. Dr. Potts of Toronto, who was then General Secretary of the Zion and referred to her bulwarks of Divine Truth, Divine Grace and Divine Providence, and her palaces of gracious manifestations, royal banqueting and high and holy fellowship. Behind all was God, and he would be our God for ever and ever. The enjoyment of all these blessings was for a purpose, to tell it out, to all, to everybody, and especially to those who were coming after. The preaching with prayer after which Miss Twillingate Stirling sang, "Hear ye oh Israel," and held the audience spellbound with her superb voice. (At one time it was hoped that we might have the pleasure of hearing Miss Stirling, who is now at Twillingate this occasion, but as this was not possible, we expect to hear her in this church at a later date.) The collection followed and the sum of $755.00 was laid on the plate. Psalm 129 was read alternately by Rev. W. Swann and the congregation.

THE FINANCIAL COST.
The total cost of the church and organ was $60,000. It could not be built to-day for twice that sum. The first marriage solemnized in the church was that of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lewis, to whom a Bible was presented.

THE PASTORS.
The following are the names of the ministers who have had charge of the circuit during the past twenty-five years:—Rev. Dr. Curtis, 1826-1899; Rev. H. P. Cowperthwaite, (2nd term), 1899-1902; Rev. J. L. Dawson, B.A., 1902-1906; Rev. W. T. D. Dunn, 1906-1910; Rev. H. P. Cowperthwaite (with Rev. J. V. Westlake assistant), 1910-1911; Rev. Dr. Rogers, 1911-1913; Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite, Rev. Dr. Fenwick, supply 1913-1914; Rev. D. B. Hammon, B.A., 1914-1917; Rev. E. W. Forbes, M.A., B.D., 1918. In 1898 General Conference extended the time limit for a minister on circuit from three to four years.

S.S. AND CHOIR.
The Sunday School Superintendents from 1896 to present date were, W. W. Watson, A. M. Peters, Joseph Peters, G. W. Gushue, Albert Soper and W. H. Peters.

FINANCE.
A comparison of finances may be of interest. The receipts from Sunday collections in 1897 were by envelopes, $799.00, loose, $968.33, total $1767.33. 1920 envelopes $581.35, loose, $1143.82 total $6445.17. Our receipts from pew rents in 1897 were $1273.40; in 1920 our receipts from pew rents were $1477.82. It is worth noting that the trustees have not advanced pew rents from what they were at the opening of the church although the expenses of the upkeep have increased from three to five hundred per cent. The total vote for connexional funds, 1897 was $620.00, in 1920 it was $1569.00. The Thanksgiving Collection in 1898 was $1200.00; in 1920, $1266.00.

OUT OF DEBT.
It was in 1897 that a determined effort was made to reduce the debt on the church. A joint meeting of the Official Boards was held, followed by a meeting on October 1st of pew holders, seat holders and others interested. A most enthusiastic meeting was held. Mr. J. E. P. Peters gave a most exhaustive review of the church, tracing the history from the old wooden building to the present beautiful structure, with its sister churches in other parts of the city. This review was given by Mr. Peters entirely from memory, and no record is available. Hon. R. K. Bishop gave a very full report on the financial situation showing the debt at the time to be $19,000. Other speakers were the late Mr. Campbell Macpherson and Dr. J. A. Robinson. As a result of this meeting pledges were given to the amount of $6000.00 in round figures. It was not until 1910, our twentieth anniversary year, that a special canvass prior to Thanksgiving Sunday resulted in an offering that completely wiped out the existing debt, a matter of about $6,000.00. We have now a church free from debt, but we are about to remedy that, by plunging into it again to the tune of about $4,000, made necessary by the installation of a new heating plant and extensive repairs to the spire. The offering of Sunday, with what is yet to come in, will go towards this expenditure.

SPECIAL CONNEXIONAL FUNDS.
In 1899 the Twentieth Century Thanksgiving Fund was brought before our people and when the fund was closed in 1901 it amounted to $5,374.11. In 1919 the National Campaign in connection with the inter-church forward movement was launched with its two fold objectives, spiritual and financial. The programme was carried out in so far as it could be adapted to local conditions: committees were formed and a thorough canvass of Gower Street congregation was made. The result while not fully meeting the objectives was gratifying and the fruits to be seen in our church to-day. The Financial Campaign organized and carried out under the leadership of Mr. A. Soper was particularly successful. It raised our circuit receipts by the increased number of regular envelope subscribers, from $3,523.82 to $6,445.17. Our missionary contribution was increased from $3,632.00 in 1919 to $2,922.00 in 1920.

THE SPIRITUAL SIDE.
We will now turn to the more spiritual side of the church work. In 1897 the membership was given as 362, in 1920 the membership was given as 470. In 1897 the Sunday School had 330 scholars, 35 teachers, and a Sunday School at the Tabernacle with Mr. A. Soper as Superintendent, had 440 scholars and a staff of teachers. In 1920 the Gower Street School has 956 scholars, 50 teachers. The Epworth League in 1897 had 67 active and 14 associate members. To-day we have no Epworth League but we have the Adult Men's Bible Class with a membership of about 60, and a Girl's Club with 90 members. These practically include all the activities of the Epworth League.

MINISTERS NOW ORDAINED.
During the years under review Gower St. Quarterly Official Board recommended as suitable candidates for the ministry: Chas. K. Hudson, Samuel Soper, W. B. Bugden and W. B. Worrell. We will all agree that no mistake was made in recommending these young men. In 1896 on the recommendation of the presbytery the Board introduced the holding of Conventions of Christian Workers in all departments of the church, which have frequently been held since to the great advantage of all who attend.

CROSSLEY AND HUNTER.
The coming of Evangelists Crossley and Hunter in the winter of 1899 is a matter of too great importance to overlook in our survey of the years. During the campaign which followed over 1500 persons of different ages and stations in life and representing all the Evangelical Churches of the city, gave in their names as determined by God's Grace to lead a new

Careless Driving.
Some speed artist, who drives a motor brougham, dashed up George Street last evening at 10 p.m. when people were going home, turned into Waldgrave Street and around the corner to New Gower Street, without slackening speed or sounding his horn. His tall light was so dim that the number of the car could not be ascertained, but the machine and the driver were recognized.

NEXT CHILDREN ARE TRIFLES TO SOME PEOPLE!

Mrs. Bowtell, the Yorkshire lady, who has just celebrated her ninety-ninth birthday, by nursing her second great-grandchild, has good cause to be proud of such a record; she has had many rivals and even her superiors as an "ancestress." The writer possesses a photograph which pictures a sweet old lady, Mrs. C. in company with four generations of her descendants—her daughter, her grand-daughter, great-grandson, great-grand-daughter, and the last, a great-grand-grandchild. Add only a few more years to Mrs. Bowtell's age and she will be celebrating the birth of great-grand-grandchildren who represent the fifth generation of a well-known Reading family.

Both these records were thrown into eclipse by Mrs. Mary Cooper, of the Bromley, who lived to nurse great-grand-grand-grandchildren, last of six generations all living at the same time. There is even on record a case in which seven generations were living at the same time. The links in this long chain were a Mrs. Godfrey; daughter, Lady Waldegrave; the son, an Ambassador; his daughter, Lady Powis; her daughter, Mrs. C. And that the limit of possibility has been reached is proved by the fact that a Lady Child, of Shropshire, a grandmother at twenty-seven, having added more Britons to our population than there are days in a year. Lady Temple, of Stow, survived to nurse her seven hundredth descendant; while Mrs. Ursula Lightfoot, of Ayrton, in Yorkshire, died at the age of ninety-three, leaving 163 descendants, including two great-grand-grandchildren, Mrs. Sarah Woolf, of Diah, left 303 living descendants; and Mrs. Shover, of Georgia, 310.—The Bils.

Mrs. Mary Jonas, of Chester, who not long ago, was the mother of three children, and Mr. Amy Clark, a book-cannasser, pleaded guilty at the Clerkenwell County Court to having a family of thirty-two. These records are questioned by Mrs. Levi Braskaw, a Canadian, of whom it was said recently while still in the early sixties, had forty living children, and she married sons and daughter. Dr. Thomas Greenhill could tell that he was the seventh, son and seventh child of one father and one mother.

False Teeth for a Clock.

A Timepiece That is Always Right. The clock that hangs eighty feet over the junction of the Strand and Fleet Street, London, from the east tower of the Law Courts, has just recovered from an attack of tooth-ache. The bells and the intricate mechanism occupy three storeys at the top of the tower, and constant service year in and year out had caused the trouble.

The Only One of Its Kind.

A clock dentist was immediately called in, and after careful treatment, involving two fresh teeth and the renewal of a number of steel rods the clock once more strikes the hour with unerring punctuality, and has entirely recovered from the weakness developed during recent years.

Organs With Histories.

Some of the organs in the colleges and Collegiate churches of the old land date back several centuries. For example, the first mention of an organ in St. Peter's College Chapel at Cambridge appears in the college accounts of 1516. Nothing, however, is known concerning this and some similar organs or their subsequent fate.

Worker Dies in Quicksand.

Death, in one of its most hideous forms, came to Frank Heleck, 45 years old, of Detroit, on October 4th, when, working alone in an alley in the rear of his home, he was overwhelmed and slowly smothered by a quicksand. His two hands, protruding above his involuntary grave, furnished the first clue to the terrible fate which had befallen him.

The Art of Art.

The art of art, the glory of expression and the sunshine of the light of letters, is simplicity. Nothing is better than simplicity—nothing can make up for excess, or for the lack of definiteness. To carry on the heave of impulse and pierce intellectual depths, and give all subjects their articulation, are powers neither common nor very uncommon. But to speak in literature with the perfect restraint and insouciance of the movements of animals and the unimpedableness of the sentiment of trees in the woods and grass by the roadside, is the flawless triumph of art.

Bowel Poison Makes You Sick.

Your bowels may seem regular—more every day—yet your thirty feet of bowels may be lined with poisonous waste which is being sucked into your blood, keeping you half sick, nervous, despondent and upset. Whether you have headache, colds, sour stomach, indigestion, or heart palpitation, it is usually from bowel poison.

China Has Largest Army.
Active armies of the fourteen most important nations of the world today include approximately six million men, according to figures obtained here and regarded as reasonably correct. With the inclusion of land armaments in the agenda of the forthcoming conference on limitations of armaments, these are the figures with which it is expected the assembled commissioners will have to deal. China stands first among the nations in this summary of soldiers actually under arms about September 1 last, being credited with 1,370,000 active troops. France is far ahead among nations not distressed by civil strife in the number of men with the colors. The French army strength is placed at 1,034,000 men, the British Empire standing next, with 740,500, according to this estimate. Other nations are given as follows: Russia, 538,000; Poland, 450,000; Italy, 350,000; Japan, 300,000; Greece, 255,000; Spain, 253,000; Switzerland, 150,000; Turkey, 152,000; Czechoslovakia, 150,000; United States, 143,000; Germany, 100,000.

Fashions in Furniture.
Furniture fashions vary almost every season, there is always some newly-designed chair or lounge coming into vogue. The present trend is toward upholstered Furniture, a splendid selection of which we are now showing. Here—huge Cosy Chairs, Chesterfields and Lounges, over-stuffed and beautifully upholstered in Silk, Tapestry, Damask, etc.—gladden the eye, and there is no lack of smaller upholstered articles.

Everybody Buy a SHIRT.

Fresh from an optimistic manufacturer, who believes good times are here, Kearney nosed him out. Said to him: "Old boy, I want 30 dozen good shirts; I want them to be so good that they'll be worth $3.50—and I want to sell them for $2."

So, they are here. When you see them you'll admit that George just hits things right at the right time.

All the Shirts in the window—yes, sir, $2 for any one. The colors won't wash out; new stock, no odd sizes; no "bargain" dope, just value.

The Fast of Tabernacles.

The Fast of Tabernacles, or Succoth, as it is called in Hebrew, occurs each year on October 17th, and continues for a period of seven days with the Feast of Conclusion on the eighth day. The first and last days are observed in the Synagog. This festival is a feast of rejoicing, the original of which is a harvest festival. It is a harvest festival of Israel when he reaped the vintage and filled the soil. It is a harvest festival of Palestine and its characteristics are a harvest festival for the vintage and the olive. It is a harvest festival for the vintage and the olive. It is a harvest festival for the vintage and the olive.

The Biblical source of the Festival of Tabernacles is found in Leviticus 23:34-35, which commands the Israelites to celebrate the 15th day of the seventh month of the ancient Hebrew calendar, with a Feast of Tabernacles dwelling in booths seven days, in order to remind them that God caused the children of Israel to dwell in booths when He brought them out of the land of Egypt.

Many observant Jews obey the Biblical command literally and dwell in booths or temporary dwellings, called sukkoth, during the seven days of the festival. In them, they offer their daily prayer and partake of their meals.

The harvest character of the festival is also clearly shown in the symbols which each worshiper brings to the synagogue or which are exhibited from the pulpit. These symbols are the lulav, or citron; branches of the date palm tree, "lulav"; sprigs of fragrant myrtle; and boughs of the humble willow of the brook.

In many reform congregations, the symbols are elaborately decorated with fruits and vegetables; and the children of the religious school participate in the festival's harvest festival.

The Festival of Conclusion, which terminates the Feast of Tabernacles on the eighth day, is called, in Hebrew, Shemini Atzereth. Various customs are put forth regarding its observance. There is no definite object stated in the Bible. But it was undoubtedly intended to give a sense of completion to the whole series of holy days of this season of the year.

Called Off the Bet.

An amusing telephone story is told of a certain lady named Brown. One morning recently she proceeded from breakfast-table to the telephone in the hall to order some things from her butcher.

"Hallo!" said Mrs. Brown. "Are you Butch's butcher?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is Mrs. Brown's residence. Will you please send me a large, thick steak by twelve o'clock?"

The boy employed in the butcher's shop happened to answer the telephone, and promptly responded:

"Well, you just bet your sweet life I will."

"Do you know, sir, to whom you are speaking?"

"Sure I do," said the boy, "I'm speaking to Mrs. Brown's cook."

"You are mistaken, young man, you are speaking with Mrs. Brown herself."

"Is that so?" replied the boy. "Then in that case, madam, we'll call the bet off."

Fishermen! Here's the Boot for You—"Excel"!

"EXCEL"

The Fishermen's Friend

"EXCEL"
Made "All in One Piece"

All fishermen know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of rubber and how the uppers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and extreme cold far longer than other boots. Consequently they don't crack anywhere near so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto-Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure, which leaves the rubber pliable, weatherproof and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Pliable Uppers. Weatherproof and Wear Resisting. Tough Tire Tread Soles. Made "All in One Piece."

"EXCEL" Boots are sold by all reliable dealers from Coast to Coast.

The Wonders of the Thyroid Gland.

CAN WE PROLONG HUMAN LIFE?

The story of the thyroid gland is one of the finest illustrations of the amazing advance of science in our times. Just above the tip of your breast-bone, on either side of your windpipe, you have two little pear-shaped lobes, with a connecting piece, which were long ago christened the thyroid gland. Each lobe is about two inches long, and the whole structure weighs, ordinarily, only about an ounce. What the purpose of it is no one suspected until the end of the nineteenth century. It was believed to be (and it may be) the shrunken relic of an organ that was of use in some earlier ancestor of ours. However that may be, the little despised gland has proved to be, for its size, one of the most important and active in the body. A scientific writer on it assigns it ten different functions, all of the greatest importance for the life of the body. But we may sum up its use in a single phrase: it promotes the growth of the body in the young, and it maintains the vitality of the body in the adult, in a manner that fills even scientific men with bewilderment.

Below the "Adam's Apple." It was medical men—chief amongst them our own brilliant Sir Victor Horsley—who first penetrated the great secret of the thyroid. They had occasionally to deal with a certain disease that they called myxoedema. The patient grew pale and languid, and mentally feeble. His hair and nails and teeth tended to drop out. Now it occurred to them that this was very like a disease of children in certain parts of the world called cretinism. Nearly everybody has seen at some time a picture of one of these cretins: a pot-bellied, stumpy-limbed, dwarfed, feeble-minded thing, very common in the close, narrow valleys of the Alps, Pyrenees, and Himalayas. It was noticed also that these children were commonly born of parents who suffered from that hideous swelling just below the "Adam's apple" which is called goitre. In all three types the bodily and mental vitality was very low; and in all three, it was found, the thyroid gland was diseased or in decay, or it had been removed.

Magnificent Results. So we discovered, in a general way, the secret of the thyroid. In some mysterious way—no one knew or ever suspected how—it had a tremendous influence on our whole vitality. Medical men like Sir Victor Horsley at least drew a practical conclusion. They prepared the extract of the thyroid gland from sheep, and gave it to the patients. Most people have an idea that the fine experiments of Dr. Julian Huxley, were our first discovery of the importance of the thyroid; but it is now thirty years since Sir Victor Horsley recommended thyroid extract

"Laugh and grow fat" is an old axiom. We advise the use of a good tonic.

"BRICK'S TASTELESS" is a wonderful tonic and will certainly improve your health. The selection of a tonic is a matter of great importance, as your health depends upon it. To fight disease successfully during the changeable autumn months the system should receive a tonic up. The facts we state about Brick's Tasteless silence all criticism.

Weigh yourself the day you commence to take Brick's Tasteless, then weigh yourself two (2) weeks later and note the increase.

DE. F. STAFFORD & SON, Wholesale and Retail Chemists and Druggists, St. John's, Newfoundland.

the blood, and is stimulated to greater activity.

Refused to Become a Frog. That is how the thyroid gland, from its remote position in the throat, act upon organs all over the body. Very slowly and gradually men of science realized the extraordinary importance of the juice which this gland poured into the blood. One man cut the thyroid out of a tiny tadpole. It refused to become a frog, and grew up instead into an adult tadpole. Then Dr. Huxley made his interesting experiments in certain parts of Mexico there is what we may call a permanent body of the frog family, the axolotl. It ought to grow into a salamander, but normally it does not. Dr. Huxley does it with thyroid extract, and it loses its gills and developed lungs. But all over the biological world for the last ten years men have been experimenting with thyroid, and we now realize its wonderful properties.

The discovery opens out a new prospect for the race. We are apt to exaggerate a new discovery, but there is no exaggeration in saying that it would pay us to keep a medical eye to look after our thyroids! Our vitality depends to an amazing extent on that little gland, and the unhealthy conditions of modern life are constantly disturbing it. It has been found that scarcely a single animal kept in captivity has a healthy thyroid. Even the average dog has it in an inferior condition. We may, therefore, judge what happens to it in the housing and industrial conditions of the majority of us. We begin to understand "low vitality"—and the way out.

As is now well known, medical men are even thinking of going a step farther. If thyroid preparation promotes vitality, will it restore vitality in the ageing? That is one of the burning questions, and we must wait for further experiment. The extract has to be administered with caution or it may make a person very ill, but results of great interest are announced from Austria and America.—John O'Connell's Weekly.

ROSES AND ROCKS.

Our idol stands before us, and does some merry tricks, and we applaud in chorus of joyous clicks. We watch his every antic, we laugh until we weep, our glee is almost frantic, our admiration deep. We say, "Oh, was there ever so comical a gent? A guy so wondrous clever at spreading merriment? We certainly adore him, he gladdens all our days, and if it wouldn't bore him our college yell we'd raise." But lo, he pulled a bladder—perhaps it was a crime—and now we're tramping under the chap we called sublime. We have no thought of mercy as we apply the gaff to that form, fat and puffy, at which we used to laugh. In highly moral dudgeon we knock him from his feet, and call for ax and bludgeon to make the job complete. No doubt we've done some evil, we truly moral guys; our record's full of weevil we do not advertise. Oh, poor old human nature, it always is the same; no court or legislature can change its foolish habit. We worship some one madly until he makes a break, then, morally and sadly, we burn him at the stake. The more we used to love him when he was in his bloom, the fiercer did we shove him and kick him to his doom.

THE WORST MALE FAULT.

What do you consider the most commonest typical female fault? It IS a Terrible Responsibility to be Always Right.

And it is, such a terrible one that it drives the 900 and 99 out of a thousand males who possess it into all corners from which they can only get out in ways that do not do them credit. For instance, the head of the household has blamed someone for mislaying something of his. Presently it is discovered that he had mislaid it. If this fact were referred to in his presence it would seem to prove him wrong so he will show signs of such a disposition to bad temper that the family knows better than to say much about it. Something goes wrong with the automobile, it is discovered that the head of the household failed to have a proper supply of oil. One would think he might feel himself to blame. Not at all, his wife is to blame "because her aunt is Presbyterian."

His Wife Didn't Give Him Enough Attention.

The husband of a busy mother of several children is attracted to some younger woman (not the mother of several children) and indulges in a desperate flirtation with her. One might think this is a trifle hard on the wife, as a matter of fact he is the injured party, his wife is so busy with the children that she does not give him as much time as she used to, so it is her fault that he seeks consolation elsewhere. Men are usually considered the juster sex. Perhaps they are in their dealings with each other, but it does not seem to me that in their dealings with women they are any more just than women. How can they be when they always have to be right? Truly it is a terrible responsibility. No wonder their principles sometimes go down before it.

Prime Minister Will Welcome Bell.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir--The Premier, Sir R. A. Squires, who has travelled far, and who knows the beneficial effects of athletics, and how in Europe and America the spirit is encouraged and fostered, is an enthusiastic supporter of the athletic movement which this year has taken such a great stride forward. He is very appreciative of the excellent work done by our track team and was present at the luncheon in their honour. To show his appreciation of Jack Bell's achievements in winning the five mile, and coming second in the Halifax Herald Modified Marathon he has, at the request of the National Sports Committee, consented to officially welcome on behalf of the country our popular athlete, who beat the best runners in the Maritime Provinces only taking second place to Macaulay, who with an international record came over from Boston, and who had the race of his life to get to the tape before Bell. The Premier has further consented to make an address at the Majestic Theatre, after Bell and our other athletes have made the circuit of the city so that the citizens of St. John's may be given an opportunity of seeing for themselves the class and manner of men who uphold athletically the honour of this country.

Mayor Morris, who has already done so much to forward the movement, has kindly consented to welcome Bell at the City Hall as he welcomed the Track Team, and further to address the gathering at the Majestic Theatre, which has by the proprietors, Messrs. O'Neil and Coady, kindly been placed, free of charge, at the disposal of the National Sports Committee. Sir Michael Cashin, leader of the Opposition, financially and otherwise, has endorsed the movement and will also take part at the welcome to Bell when he arrives to the city, and will also speak at the Theatre. Other leaders of sport will take part in the reception, and the parade, which will be part of the ceremony, will be probably the largest and the most enthusiastic that the city of St. John's has ever witnessed. It is fitting and proper that this should be so. Bell has done for our people, the city and country, more than perhaps many are aware of. His success will be the means of inspiring others to follow his footsteps.

The work has been followed with keen interest and his pluck, perseverance and performance have been the admiration of all. He is a modest, unassuming, lovable young fellow and his friends, his Athletic Associations, and those who are behind the athletic movement, (and what right thinking person is not) will turn out to do him honour. The Committee is arranging for bands of several kinds, fireworks and all the concomitants which help to make a success of such a parade. Other leaders of sport will next promise some novelties, and a fine night is all that is required to show Bell and the other athletes how greatly their work has been appreciated by young and old, and especially by those whose girth now prevents them from vying with them for the honours on the athletic field.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. W. E. AYRE.

OPENING OF NEW GROUND.

The sports which took place in the new Methodist College Athletic grounds, the opening of which was reported in yesterday's Telegram, were very enjoyable. The pupils entered for the various races and games with enthusiasm, and every team on a varied programme was keenly contested. The result of the sports was as follows:--

100 Yards Dash--A sociate and intermediate, won by Bert Butt.

100 Yards Dash--Preliminary, won by J. M. Rooney.

Basket Ball--Associate vs. Intermediate girls, won by Intermediate, score 6-2.

Football--Associate vs. Intermediate, won by Intermediate, score 2-0.

1 Mile Race--Won by A. Murray.

Basket Ball--Preliminary vs. Associate, won by Preliminary, 6-4.

100 Yards--Associate and Intermediate girls, won by Helen Monton.

Junior Girls' Race--Won by Hilda Dove.

Race--(Miss Bradbury's Class)--won by Evelyn Moore.

Race--(Miss Badcock's Class)--won by Audrey Garland.

During the afternoon many friends of the college visited the scene and expressed themselves as delighted with the new grounds as they well might be. The sports prizes were distributed by Mrs. Albert Soper before the afternoon came to a close.

The first Panama Hat.

It was at the latter end of September, 1829, that the first bit of toquilla straw headgear was fashioned and seen in use in the Province of Manabí, Ecuador, by Francisco Delgado, an Ecuadorian. At that time Panama was the great disturbing centre for articles produced on the West Coast of America, the name thus becoming applied to hats made from toquilla straw in Manabí. It is stated that the two finest Panama hats ever made were the work of a native Ecuadorian named Palma. These were purchased for $200 each, and presented to Napoleon III. and Marshal McMahon. In preparing the straw the veins are removed and the leaves dipped repeatedly in a vessel filled with boiling water. They are then shaken well and exposed to the sun to bleach. For exceptionally white straw lemon juice is added to boiling water. The straw is then carefully selected, its value depending upon the length, thickness, colour, and number of strands obtained from each leaf. On the degree of nicety with which the straws are lengthened depends the beauty and durability of the hat. Should a strand be broken it can be replaced and so plaited as not to be noticed. The finishing touches are put on by trimming the brim, edging the border, and neatly fastening all projecting ends of the straws, so as to be invisible. The hat is washed in clean, cold water, coated with a thin solution of gum, and polished with dry sulphur.

Oil Light Beats Electric or Gas.

BURNS 94 p.c. AIR.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise--no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor, T. W. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on approval, FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Animal Comrades.

It is an old custom with breeders of thoroughbred horses to have a companion for nervous stallions and mares, while nearly every racing stable has a goat, dog, cat, cock or hen to allay the tension of a temperamental filly or highstrung horse.

The habit probably came to us from England, where the thoroughbred had his origin. It is shown in the old picture of racehorses and racing stables. A goat is considered the best remedy for stall walking, a nervous affliction which interferes with training operations, and most of the big stables have one as part of their equipment.

Poisonous Fish.

Some of Them Sting Like Snakes.

Just as the land has its poisonous snakes, so has the sea. There are several kinds of sea snakes which are deadly poisonous. Besides these, there are poison fish. One of them, the "weaver," sometimes known as the "sea viper," is common enough on English coasts.

This fish has more than one spine which is poisonous. That is the backbone in the most dangerous, but there is also a sharp and poisonous spine on each side of the head. The worst of it is that these spines are grooved and so make particularly ugly wounds. The poison is a gum-like secretion, and causes such pain that the patient sometimes becomes delirious.

Even worse than the weaver is an Indian fish called "syanocla." It is a hideous creature, and, like the weaver, has a sharp spine in the back fin. But this spine is connected with a regular poison gland similar to that which lies behind the fangs of a venomous snake.

This fish lies on the bottom near the shore, and a bather who treads upon one might almost as well be bitten by a rattlesnake. He almost certainly dies. Equally dangerous are the pig fishes found along the shores of Central America. There are several varieties and all are poisonous. The spines, which grow both on the back and the gill plates, are hollow, and each is connected with a poison gland. Pressure on the spine causes the poison to spurt forward into the wound, and unless help is quickly forthcoming the result is agonizing pain and death.

Besides fish that kill like snakes, there are others, too numerous to mention, that have poisonous flesh. Among them are the globe fish, the porcupinefish and the West Indian herring. In all, there are quite eighty sorts of fish the flesh of which is poisonous. Most of them belong to the tropics.

The Portuguese Agreement. Mr. Morine Exposes Its Fallacy.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Continuing its comments upon the Portuguese agreement, the Advocate, yesterday, gave the first publication I have yet seen to some of the doings of the Hon. W. F. Coaker, in Oporto, last winter. Much yet remains to be told, but that which is revealed is interesting. For instance, the Advocate has asserted many times this year, and most emphatically quite recently, that Coaker "sold" 300,000 quintals of fish in Oporto. But yesterday it said, "Mr. Coaker could have sold 300,000 quintals per year," and it publishes in proof thereof not a sale note, but a conditional offer to buy $5,000 quintals. Now, between an actual sale and such an offer to buy, there is all the difference in the world, and the Advocate has at last proven beyond dispute the falsehood of its claim that Coaker made a "sale." The claim that he did so stands exposed as an impudent fraud.

The offer to buy which Mr. Coaker received commenced as follows: "On condition that henceforth no Newfoundland codfish will be landed in Portugal outside the contemplated agreement, we will purchase, etc." In other words, as a bribe to induce exporters to enter into the agreement which Coaker and Araujo had negotiated, and the infamous nature of which I have recently explained, Araujo offered to buy cargoes lying in the River Douro at the date of the offer. Araujo was so eager to get that agreement approved by the exporters, that he made a bid for the support of the owners here who had such cargoes there. But he attached to this offer a new condition, intended to secure him in the most valuable monopoly a man ever made a bid for. He said if he purchased the fish then in the Douro, "henceforth"—that is, forever afterwards, no Newfoundland codfish was to enter Portugal except under the agreement with him. He was, in short, to be given a monopoly of endless duration over all our fish entering Portugal.

The Advocate itself explains the facts and conditions surrounding this deceptive offer to buy 22 cargoes, made by Araujo, which amply justifies the refusal of the exporter-owners to agree to the propositions made to them. All the cargoes had to be sold to Araujo, or he would buy none. They were all at the time under consignment to other fish houses or brokers, who had been carrying on business with this Colony for years. Some of them had already accepted drafts for advances against documents, which advances would have to be repaid before the cargoes could be delivered to Araujo. If Araujo bought the cargoes, these houses could only get fish for their customers through Araujo, paying him a commission, and their books of account with their customers had to be opened at all times to the Newfoundland Fishery Commissioner, to show that they had not been underselling. Of course, all these houses rebelled at the proposed monopoly of such a proceeding, and notified the trade here that if the agreement with Araujo were made, they would buy fish for their trade from our competitors, which meant, of course, that our market in Portugal would be largely lost, and the price of that which we did sell there would be cut down by increased competition, so that our condition would be worse than ever before.

The Advocate says that "the shippers (here) deliberately (by rejecting Araujo's offer) threw away $240,000 that Mr. Coaker could have handed over to them in hard cash, because they were jealous of the popularity which would result to Mr. Coaker if the deal came off." The rejection was unanimously made by the exporters, of whom a majority had been prominent supporters of the Squires-Coaker Government, and some of whom had been in collusion with Coaker himself in framing and working the Fishery Regulations. Therefore, to say that these men "deliberately" (that is, with knowledge of the nature of their act) "threw away" so large a sum of their money out of jealousy for Coaker, is too absurd for sane readers to accept. The exporters rejected the dishonest proposals made to them because they perceived the terrible danger to which they would otherwise expose themselves and this Colony.

After Araujo offered to buy 22 cargoes, 10 more arrived. All were on consignment. How did this happen, when consignment was unlawful except by permission of the Codfish Exportation Board, of which Coaker was the chairman? If "consignments" were to be done away with, and "outright sales" substituted, what influence was exerted to procure permission for these cargoes to be shipped before sale? Who were the shippers? Was Coaker himself one? Were members of the Board "shippers"? I challenge the Advocate to publish a complete list of the 32 cargoes showing to whom they belonged.

Again, the Regulation selling price fixed by Coaker's Codfish Fishery Board, for fish shipped to Portugal, was 77½¢ per quintal for large and medium, but Coaker negotiated a sale of Araujo at 40¢—for large and medium or little over half the Regulation price. Who gave him authority to do this? Could better evidence be afforded of the fraudulent nature of the Regulation prices? What now becomes of the contention that prices fell after the Regulations were repealed, in face of this undeniable evidence, furnished by Coaker himself, that before the repeal, he was ready, even anxious, to sell at half price.

In conclusion, I wish to say that the fact that during all the debates by the exporters here, when the Araujo offer and the Portuguese agreement were being discussed, the actual words of the offer and agreement were never submitted to the exporters, and nobody in the Colony seemed to be in possession of them, but of vague, general and intentionally misleading statements, seems to me to prove that they were expected to fall victims to intentional fraud. It was providential that under such circumstances they refused to enter into the trap prepared for them.

Yours truly,
ALFRED B. MORINE.

International Traffic Route.

Lubeck, Germany. (Associated Press)—Plans for a new international traffic route, which its promoters claim is destined to become one of the world's great highways, are being worked out in detail by a commission sitting here composed of Danish, German and Swedish experts. The proposal is to establish a fast route between Abo, Finland, and the principal western European capitals by constructing a railway bridge connecting the island of Fehmarn (in the Baltic Sea) with the German mainland, enabling trains from Hamburg to run to the extreme end of the island, whence a ferry would transport them bodily to the new Danish port of Rødby on Lolland. From that point a new direct railway would connect with Copenhagen. It is claimed that the journey from London or Paris to Stockholm would thus be shortened by nine hours. The cost of the project is variously estimated at between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000.

Klux Klan Near Montreal.

An indication that there actually exists in Montreal a branch of the powerful organization known throughout the world as the Ku Klux Klan is evinced by the fact that a masked band, hooded and silent, met recently in a deserted quarry behind Mount Royal. Owing to the fact that this local branch is not yet directly affiliated with the parent body in the United States, members, once initiated, are obliged to provide their own costumes until negotiations now in progress between the two bodies are completed, when the regular uniforms will be sent up.

Street Car Dwellings.

The Housing Problem in Massachusetts.
Swampscott, Mass., Oct. 11. (Associated Press).—A village of street cars, fitted with the usual conveniences of modern homes, is being established on the outskirts of this town to relieve the housing shortage. The cars, because obsolete, have been stripped of running gear and placed end to end at one side of the street. The carpenter's skill has already transformed several into attractive living quarters, with connections for water, gas and electricity. Some of the prospective tenants will have the use of cellars, made by raising a number of the car bodies and placing them on concrete foundations.

U. S. Cabinet to March by Bier of Unknown Soldier.

Washington.—The Cabinet decided that all its members, headed by the president, will march behind the body of the unknown American soldier on Armistice Day, when it is transferred from the Capitol, where it will lie in state, to Arlington National Cemetery.

The question was whether the President and his Cabinet should march in the procession or ride. Secretary Mellon, who is much older and more frail physically than any other member, promptly announced that he was game. If any other preferred to ride he did not have nerve enough to say so after Mr. Mellon had announced he was prepared to march.

The President and his Cabinet probably will march from the Capitol to the Aqueduct bridge across the Potomac, a distance of several miles, and be picked up there in automobiles. Secretary Weeks announced to-day that the body of the unknown soldier would be brought directly to the Washington Navy Yard whence it will be transferred to the Capitol.

The body will lie in state all day, Nov. 10 on the same pillars used by President Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. The drappings used at the President's funerals are being carefully reproduced for use Nov. 10.

The body bearers were designated to-day by the War Department.

MILLEY'S

Clothes and the woman—one and inseparable—always will be—and always should be. But, my, how thrifty they are getting nowadays and yet they continue to dress just as well.

Other women except Dainty Dorothy have learned how to make last season's suit meet this season's requirements. They have learned of our superior cleaning and drying facilities, and they are taking advantage of them—so are the men folks.
