Reading in Bed. One of the most desirable, if not absolutely the most desirable, of the gifts given to the human race for their well being, is that of self-control.

Self-control is a power given to few except in a slight degree, but in every human being is implanted the germ which, by careful watching and judicious training, becomes the sturdy tree which all the other virtues and attributes cling as the vine to the oak, and without which support few of those virtues would ever grow sufficiently to be in any way conspicuous.

What fills our drunkards' graves? Lack of self-control; for few are those addicted to strong drink but will tell you they know it is wrong, but they can't help it. Some there be, 'tis true, who maintain that they do not know it, and they really seem to believe it, but these are happily the 'mighty few.'

What fills our prisoners' graves? This same deadly evil, want of self-control. The number to do wrong is not long for another party or his wife, the anger that sears the brain and shrivels the lungs, the anger that carries him over the precipice; and the man that would have been a noble and generous man, is dashed below and, if not crushed for all time, remains at least in a state of semi-insanity.

What fills our insane asylums? There are many cases of insanity that have their origin in the disease which produced the insanity, but the vast majority of cases are produced by the want of self-control. The temper which would have been a great asset towards controlling the disease.

Children have been known to fall down in fits, real convulsions of an epileptic nature, because some article was refused. What then? Such nervous irritability can be controlled by a great measure by judicious management on the part of a patient.

Take to heart the fact that such a course of training is well calculated to fit them for the world. The sad story of a poor mother told long ago needs no comment. "I had lost one child," she said, "and I indulged the second one. I never attempted to control him nor taught him to control himself. At last," she added brokenly, "tears choking her voice, 'at last they hung him.'"

"O mothers, if you would have your sons and daughters good citizens, respected and self-respecting, if you would work for their eternal welfare, teach them self-control."

Poetry.

BE STRONG.

Be strong! We are not here to play, to dream, to lift the struggle's face to 'Tis God's gift.

Be strong! Say not the days go evil—who's to blame? And bow the hands and acquiesce—O shame!

Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name, how deep entrenched the wrong.

How hard the battle goes, the day how long, faint not, fight on! Tomorrow comes the song.

IF I CAN LIVE.

To make some pale face brighter, and give a second lustre to some tear-dimmed eye.

Or e'en impart One throb of comfort to an aching heart,

Or cheer some wayward soul in passing by—

If I can lend A strong hand to the fallen, or defend The right against a single envious strain,

My life though bare, Perhaps, of much that sourest dear To us of earth, will not have been in vain.

The purest joy, Most rare to Heaven, far from earth's ill-fits

Is hidden cloud give way to sun—and shine, and 'twill be well

If on that day the angels tell of me: "She did her best for one of Thine."

In the hop-pick, by dull lantern light or a starlight gleam across the road, from his house that'd catch the eye of anybody strolling by an' in want of a drink, the farmer's lantern would light free of charge. They're plenty o' such about these days—this first week in June, when the farmers are busy towards the house. Here was the very man for his purpose. He hailed 'Bob' as he came.

"Mr. Parson!" he called.

The farm manager halted.

"What's up?" he said.

"I'm off," said Rossiter. "I've changed my mind about waiting till the morning. I'll be in to see you to-morrow."

PEACE IS DECLARED.

London, June 1.—Peace has at last arrived and London is jubilant. On Saturday evening Lord Kitchener called to the war office that the British delegates had agreed to the Boer terms, and that he expected the documents to be signed that night.

The agreement was signed at midnight Saturday. The British delegates have issued a proclamation terminating a number of civil proclamations of the Boer government, issued in October 1899, at the commencement of the war.

TERMS OF PEACE. London, June 2.—In the house of commons today, the first lord of treasury and provinces, Mr. A. J. Balfour, announced the terms of peace in South Africa as follows:

The Boer forces lay down their arms and hand over all their rifles, possessions and under their control. All prisoners are to be brought back as soon as possible to Africa without loss of liberty or property.

"Dutch is to be taught in the schools, if desired by the parents, and used in court, if necessary. The Boers are allowed for protection. Military occupation is to be withdrawn as soon as possible and self-government substituted.

The Boer forces lay down their arms and hand over all their rifles, possessions and under their control. All prisoners are to be brought back as soon as possible to Africa without loss of liberty or property.

THE COMING CONFERENCE.

It is more than probable that had not Paul Kruger issued his ultimatum in October, 1899, the first parliament of Greater Britain would have been long only dreamt of.

There appears to be no want of activity in the iron and steel trades, and the prospects are that the high pressure will continue for a year or more, at any rate.

There are 24,000,000 tons of iron ore to be mined in the United States this year, and that nearly all the producing iron and steel concerns in the country could in the next twelve months sell thirty per cent more iron and steel than they can produce in that time.

It is stated that all the pig iron in sight has been bought up by the United States Steel Corporation in negotiating for the purchase of 100,000 tons of Bessemer pig iron to be delivered during the second quarter of 1902.
