That any measure of Canadian aid to Imperial naval defence which does not employ a permanent policy of participation by ships owned, manned and maintained by Canada and contemplating construction as soon as possible in Canada, is not an adequate or satisfactory expression of the aspirations of the Canadian people in regard to naval defence (and is not an assumption by Canada of her fair share in the maintenance of the naval strength of the Empire).

This House regrets to learn the intention of the Government to indefinitely postpone the carrying out by Canada of a permanent naval policy.

It is the opinion of this House that measures should be taken at the present session to give effect actively and speedily to the permanent naval policy embodied in the Naval Service Act of 1910 passed pursuant to the resolution unanimously approved by this House in March 1909.

This House is further of the opinion that to increase the power and mobility of the Imperial navy by the addition by Canada under the above act of two fleet units, to be stationed on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Canada, respectively, rather than by a contribution of money or ships, is the policy best calculated to afford relief to the United Kingdom in respect to the burden of Imperial naval defence, and in the words of the Admiralty memorandum, to restore greater freedom to the movements of the British squadrons in every sea and directly promote the security of the Dominions; and that the Government of Canada should take such steps as shall lead to the accomplishment of this purpose as speedily as possible.

There was the Liberal position in December 1912. Though the government of the day had wasted two years, though they were talking emergency and had let two years go by without doing anything, that was the course the Liberal party in this Parliament urged they should immediately adopt, and in which course they would have had the support of the Liberal party, namely to construct as speedily as possible fleet units on the Atlantic and on the Pacific coasts.

I ask my right hon. friend, I ask any other member of this House, if that course had been followed as was suggested by the Liberal party in 1912, would not this country and would not the British Empire have been in a much better position when war came in 1914—would they not have been in a position to deal more effectively with the situation that then developed?

But my hon. friend from South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland) said something a moment ago about an emergency. To show how insincere the then government was, in regard to its proposed construction of dreadnaughts to meet any emergency, when the bill passed this House—as it did under closure in that momentous debate to which my right hon. friend referred,—and went over to the Senate, it was defeated there, as he has already stated. But what did Sir George Ross, leader of the Liberal party in the Senate, say at the time of that defeat? He pointed out very clearly, that the only reason the government was proposing this contribution of dreadnaughts by a separate act was, that the Nationalists of Quebec might tell their followers there, that it was a means of escaping any permanent naval service, of getting rid of it entirely and of any obligation under it; and Sir George made this statement in the course of the debate from which I now quote:

> Under the Laurier Act of 1910 now in force any number of millions could be contributed by Parliament if so disposed. Why then harass Parliament with a bill which is not required for emergency purposes and which is not as effective as the Act of 1910? If the hon. gentlemen are sincere in their efforts to meet an emergency, let them withdraw the bill now before us, and submit to the House a supplementary estimate for ten or fifteen millions for the speedy construction of battleships, wherever they can be built and then, from year to year, ask parliament for such additional sums as may be necessary for their completion, according to the practice of parliament in regard to all larger appropriations.
>
> I do not know that a single senator would object if it was proposed, in the regular and parliamentary way, to do that. May I say more: the bill provides that this money shall be applied in the construction of a certain number of ships. That could be done under the act of 1910. I am informed that it is the intention to construct three battleships under this bill. If hon. genlemen or the government of the day wanted four or five they could build them wherever they pleased under the act of 1910.

Now, what has my hon. friend from Oxford to say about the belief in emergency under these circumstances, and the Government's endeavour to meet it?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: On January 19, 1914, a year before the war, the Liberal party took the ground that there was no emergency—even at so late a day as that.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I am stating the position the Liberal party took in this Parliament, the position that they maintained consistently from 1910 until the moment of the war. It was that this country should construct fleet units on the Atlantic and on the Pacific, and should do so just as speedily as possible; that there was legislation on the statutes to enable any government to do what it pleased in the way of constructing capital ships and to use them as they wished; there was no need for the adoption of a special measure behind which, an ulterior motive might lie concealed. That was the position of the Liberal party, and it is a position of which every Liberal in this country has reason to be proud. Had this policy been carried out, there would have been a very different story when the war came on, as to the part played by Canada's naval service, in addition to the magnificent part which was played by her army.

Mr. CLARK: Is that the Government's policy of to-day also?

[Mr. Mackenzie King.]

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That was the policy of the Liberal party in 1910; it was the policy of the Liberal party in 1912; it was the policy of the Liberal party in 1914, and it is the policy of the Liberal party to-day. It is the policy the Liberal party will continue to advocate as the one effective and only reasonable policy for this country.

Mr. CLARK: Do I understand the Prime Minister aright? Is it the Government's proposal to construct these fleets immediately?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I drew my hon. friend's attention to the purposes of the Naval Service Act and to the Liberal policy, which aims, let me repeat, at the creation of a naval department, the establishment of a naval reserve, the creation of a volunteer naval force, and the construction of ships to act in co-operation with the British navy at such times, as the Government of Canada may place them at the disposal of the Admiralty. That is a broad policy; it is a policy not for one day or one month or one year; it is a policy for the years that lie ahead. When it was promulgated it had regard to a situation which existed or was believed to exist at the time; it was put forward in the light of the financial condition of the country, in the light of world conditions at the time. And that policy will be carried on in the light of our country's present financial condition and in the light of conditions generally throughout the world. That is the policy which we believe it is most advisable to follow, alike in the interests of this country and in the interests of the Empire.

Mr. CLARK: Does the naval expenditure as represented in the estimates presented this session represent Canada's proper proportion in the way of naval expenditure within the Empire?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I shall be glad to take that point up later. The question of proportion must be considered in relation to all the other aspects of the subject. It is perfectly proper to consider it in relation to the naval and military expenditures that we are called upon to make at the present time, in relation to our public debt, to what we have still to meet in the way of obligations arising out of the war. We are entitled to take all these matters into consideration in undertaking to say what is wise and in the public interest at the present time, in the way of further naval expenditure; and that is what we propose to do. But the broad policy is exactly as I have indicated it to my hon. friend. The Liberal party has had one policy, from the start, and that has been a permanent policy. It has never wavered in that policy; it has fought for it; it will continue to stand for it, and some day that policy will become the pride of this country as well as of the party that inaugurated it.

Now, Sir, that was the position in 1912. And after 1912, after this resolution with regard to the three dreadnaughts defeated, what did the Government do? They professed to believe in an emergency, but from that moment until the hour that war broke out, and until the war was over, nothing was done in any way to further the development of a naval service or—until the war had started—to put into commission the two ships which had been purchased by the Liberal Administration. As a matter of fact, if I recall the circumstances aright, when these ships were put into commission they played a very good part in the war—in a small way, it is true, but nevertheless a part of which we were all proud at the time.

So much for the period preceding the war and the intentions and purposes of the respective parties in the matter of naval policy. When the war was over, when the troops were being demobilized, when this country was being called upon to vote millions upon millions of dollars for the return of the men from overseas and to meet expenditure of further millions for pensions and the like, we naturally expected that at least a breathing time would be permitted, before we were asked to make further expenditures on naval account. I must say that for the first year after the war there was a slight cessation; the total expenditure on naval account in the year 1919-20 was $209,456, this amount being provided to keep up the services which the department was controlling and which related to branches of national administration other than those I have mentioned. In the following year, 1920-21, the then Minister of Marine and Fisheries, under whom the Naval Department had been placed, came before Parliament, and in the main estimates, first of all, asked for an appropriation of $300,000. The press of the country announced that he had decided to demobilize the naval forces which then existed, and the country got the impression, that for a time at least, there was to be a little leeway in the matter of further expenditure on naval account. Then, much to the surprise of this House, within a very few days of the conclusion of the session, when Parliament had reasonable ground for the belief that its work was done, and most of the members were preparing to leave for their homes—on the 14th of June, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries brought down a supplementary estimate of $2,200,000 for naval expenditure.

Here is what the minister said on March 25:

> In view of Canada's heavy financial commitments and of the fact that Great Britain has not as yet decided on her permanent naval policy, and of the approaching Imperial conference, at which the question of naval defence of the Empire will come up for discussion between the home Government and the overseas dominions, it has been decided to defer in the meantime action in regard to the adoption of a permanent naval policy for Canada.

That sounded very logical and very reasonable. If it was sound logic and good reason on May 25, 1920, it is equally sound and equally good to-day, and it is a position, which this Government has taken with respect to naval expenditures—except, that the present Government has a permanent naval policy. The point to which we are giving consideration at the moment is, in the light of present needs, in the light of existing world conditions, in the light of the fact that the Imperial Conference referred to has not been held, how far is the Government justified in going at the present time in making expenditures under the Naval Service Act?

We take the position that was taken by the Minister of Marine at that time, that there are heavy financial commitments of which this country and this Parliament have to take account, that Great Britain has not yet fully decided on her policy, and that an Imperial conference is to be held at which the question of naval defence will come up for discussion, between the home government and the overseas dominions. Hon. members opposite have always contended, that we should wait until there had been an Imperial conference before taking any steps that committed this Parliament very far in the matter of naval expenditure. I think they are right in that. I think they are sound in their view that naval policy, so far as this country is concerned, should have, as one factor meriting consideration, the matter of possible co-operation with the other British dominions and with the United Kingdom in the event of any great and serious danger arising.

Possible co-operation, I say, but thus far, in regard to the question of existing naval armaments, there has been no Imperial conference held since the war.

But what did the minister say further; and now I come to the point that has a particular bearing on these very ships we have been discussing to-day:

> The Government has decided to carry on a Canadian naval service along pre-war lines, and has accepted the offer of Great Britain of one light cruiser and two torpedo boat destroyers to take the place of the present obsolete and useless training ships, the Niobe and the Rainbow.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I think this House was entitled a year or two ago, and I think it is entitled at the present time, to have some definite information with respect to these ships which were a so-called gift on the part of Great Britain. We have never been told why that gift was made to Canada, whether it was made at the instance of the British government, offering us ships which were never requested by us, or whether it was made at the instance of the government of the day making some suggestion to the government of Great Britain. Will my right hon. friend, who was Prime Minister and should know, tell the House the circumstances under which these five ships were accepted from Great Britain?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not think I was Prime Minister at the time the arrangement was made. I am not certain as to the date. I know of no special arrangements at all except that Great Britain offered us the five ships, which were accepted. I remember there were negotiations as to the character of the ships, and finally these were agreed upon as being modern and useful for our purpose. I know of no other arrangement at all.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Does it not strike my right hon. friend as a somewhat curious circumstance,—because even if he were not Prime Minister at the time, he was a member of the government which accepted these ships,—that he should not be informed about any agreements or arrangements with respect to the offer or its acceptance?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not know that there were any special arrangements. I do not know why there should be.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Is it not an amazing thing, that the acceptance of a gift, which involved an expenditure of something like $2,500,000, should have been made, without any understanding or any conditions or any agreement one way or the other, between the parties to the transaction?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The government of the day intended to maintain them and to use them for their purposes, or they would not have accepted them.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Did the government of the day so inform the British government?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Not that I know of. So far as I know, the British government did not exact anything. They had some confidence in Canada.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Then we come to this position. The government of the day intended to put five ships into commission, involving an annual expenditure of $2,500,000, but the government of the day had no authority from Parliament for that purpose, nor did it ever present to Parliament, as a matter for discussion, the question as to whether they were justified in taking that particular step.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The minister knows we could not put a ship in commission or spend a dollar until Parliament had voted it for the purpose. We came to Parliament to get the vote, and Parliament voted it.

Mr. LAPOINTE: After having accepted the ships.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Very well, but Parliament did not have to vote it. Parliament is not voting it to-day.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: What was the position my right hon. friend and his colleagues took in Parliament? It was this: If you refuse to vote this money, you repudiate this gift on the part of the British government.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Will the hon. gentleman read that?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I could if I had the time to look it up. It would not take long to find it. That was the nature of the argument that was presented at the time.

Now, the position is this: In regard to naval policy, more perhaps than in regard to any other policy of which this Parliament has reason to take account, we contend that what is to be done and what shall not be done shall be a matter of discussion in this House and in this Parliament. That is the essential condition. But such an opportunity was never given to the Canadian people or to their representatives in Parliament with respect to these ships, nor was it given to the Parliament of Great Britain with respect to the ships that were given away. It was all a matter of secret arrangement between some right hon. gentleman associated with my right hon. friend, and one or two members of the British administration. The position we took at that time, and the position we take to-day is that the acceptance of these five ships committed this country to a certain course for years to come. We contended that before that obligation was consummated, Parliament should have been fully informed and should have had an opportunity to express its views. To the extent to which we of the Liberal party had an opportunity to express our views, we protested against the acceptance of these ships. We asked that they should not be put into commission at that time because we regarded them under the circumstances as a very expensive and unnecessary luxury. May I quote to the House, a brief extract or two from the remarks which I ventured to make as leader of the Opposition at that time with reference to the acceptance of these ships? I quote from the Hansard of the 14th of June:

I shall not attempt at the moment any criticism with respect to the acceptance of this gift beyond mentioning that on these matters Parliament should in the first instance be consulted. The people of Canada have a right—through their representatives in this Parliament—to say whether or not at this time the country should be committed to an expenditure such as this afternoon the minister has announced we are to be asked to meet. We have this right as a Parliament and the country should not have been committed to this course by secret negotiations made by the Prime Minister and his colleagues during the course of the last year, or the last few months. All that we have been told this afternoon is that negotiations have been carried on by the Prime Minister and his colleagues and some members of the British Admiralty. With this comes the announcement that certain commitments have been made by Order in Council, in regard to none of which this Parliament has had the slightest intimation.

And further:

A wave of indignation will sweep over this Dominion when the statement goes forth that, now that the war is over, at a time when we are considering in what way we can retrench on naval and military expenditures, and after the professions they have made, the Government have announced a programme involving an expenditure such as that which has been mentioned to-day, and more especially when the country learns that this has been done without Parliament having had any voice in the matter one way or the other. That, Mr. Speaker, is the exception I wish to take at the moment to the programme of the minister and of the Government. I shall, at the moment, say nothing as to whether it is right that Canada should or should not do this or that. I believe that Canada should assist in naval matters—in coast defence and co-operation in other ways—but I say that the country has a right to have its policy determined on the floor of Parliament and not in secret councils of the Cabinet. Certainly in this matter, the Government have shown a complete indifference to the rights of the people, through their representatives in this House, in giving no opportunity whatever for the country to say whether or not these ships shall be accepted, whether or not the expenditures, they will involve shall be incurred, whether or not we are to launch upon such a programme at the present time. All that the Government have said is that they have no policy, and will have no policy, until after the Imperial Conference in 1921.

What was said in that connection from one source was said also by a number of other speakers who addressed the House at that time. May I read just one paragraph from a speech made by my hon. friend the present Minister of Finance, in the course of the same debate? Here is what the Minister of Finance said at the time with reference to these particular ships:

I say that there are reasons why we should not proceed further in this matter. The first is that we have not the money; second, there is the fact that we are not in a position to-day to declare any extensive naval policy; and last, but not least, is the fact that if you accept these ships from Great Britain you accept a white elephant. We should say with great gratitude that we appreciate the offer which Great Britain has made us but that we cannot find it possible at the present time to avail ourselves of it. Later on we may have the ships when we can afford to undertake a definite policy in this direction. We are not going to ignore naval responsibility and refuse to take our share in naval affairs, but in view of all that has happened, let us have a breathing spell, let us have time to think matters over, and let us devote the money to things more urgent than this.

That was the position the party took when in opposition; that is the position which we take to-day. We say, that there are more urgent matters; we say, there are demands for our money to-day greater than any that come within the circumference of this particular contribution for naval purposes.

But that is not all. Not only was this Parliament not consulted, not only was Canada placed under an obligation by the late government through forcing these expenditures on the country against its will, but when the British Parliament met, subsequent to these gifts being made to Canada, we find that the members of the British House took exception to the gifts being made without the Parliament of Great Britain having been consulted. That is the strange position into which the two countries have been brought, by the way in which the recent administration was dealing with some of its friends in the Cabinet of Great Britain at the time. Is that the way to bring the British Empire closer together; is that the way to work out an effective naval scheme of co-operation—a surreptitious method which causes the parliaments of both countries to take exception to a course of action which owes its origin to their not having been consulted in the matter at all? I have here the first, second, third and special reports from the Select Committee on Public Accounts, together with the Proceedings of the Committee, Minutes of Evidence and the Appendices of the British House of Commons, July 1921, and on page 9 of the committee's third report, I find the following:

> In connection with the navy, the army and the air accounts our attention has been called to very large gifts of public property to Allied Powers, dominions and institutions.
>
> Not to mention smaller items, we note (Navy Accounts p. 36) H.M.S. Encounter with certain guns and stores to the Australian Commonwealth; three mine-sweeping sloops value about £73,000 each, together with their equipment, to the Australian Commonwealth; two submarine engines with certain spare parts to the Royal Australian navy; two H. Class submarines with torpedoes and stores to Canada; certain hulks to an allied government. It is clearly a serious matter that ships of the British navy should be given away without the consent of Parliament.

There is the report of the British House of Commons Committee on Public Accounts, saying, that it is clearly a serious matter that ships of the British navy should be given to Canada without the consent of the Parliament of Great Britain. Then, looking at the minutes, I find that the chairman asked the following question:

> Does Parliament consent to it, or is it done by the Admiralty on its own responsibility?

The answer was made:

> We have to make out a case to the treasury.

The witness speaking was Sir Charles Walker, K.C.B. Mr. Millar, another witness, made a statement to which I call my right hon. friend's attention. He said:

> I may say that in the case of the larger items the gifts of ships to the dominions were made under the instructions of the Cabinet. What happened was that the dominions made requests—

That is the statement given in evidence before the British Parliament "the dominions made requests." My right hon. friend said, he does not know how the offer was made.

Mr. LOGAN: Now the cat is out of the bag.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Well, we find here, how it happened:

> —the dominions made requests for certain vessels which were usually in their waters, were not required by the Admiralty for further use and probably to them had not much more than a scrap value—

They cost us two millions and a half a year to keep up and to Britain they did not have much more than a scrap value—

> —and the view of the Cabinet was that when a dominion made a request of that sort it should be acceded to.

Well, that was not enough for the chairman of the commission, and he asked the further question:

> What occurs to me is whether the committee is satisfied that important ships should be given even to our Dominions without the authority of Parliament. Has the Cabinet the power to give away any of the ships of the British navy?

To this Mr. Stewart, the witness, replied:

> I suppose there is no precedent.

Now that is the way in which these ships were obtained by Canada.

Mr. STEVENS: The Prime Minister will permit me this question: If I caught the reading carefully it referred to "gifts" what the Prime Minister is relating refers to "ships in their waters." That seems to be not applicable to the Canadian case.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Well, my hon. friend can get what satisfaction he can out of that.

Mr. STEVENS: I am not seeking to get any satisfaction, I am trying to obtain information.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I will quote from the record again:

> What happened was that the dominions made requests for certain vessels which were usually in their waters—

That does not say that in all cases the vessels were in their waters.

Mr. STEVENS: In our waters.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I do not think there is any distinction made as between vessels in Canadian waters and vessels in other waters.

Mr. MEIGHEN: It could not possibly refer to Canada. I do not know who made the proposals first, but I do know this, that the ships first under consideration were ships that were not of a modern character, were not oil-burning ships at all. A discussion took place for some time over those, and finally ships of the most modern character were taken. Those words could not apply to them. The minister himself says the ships are of a value that cannot be scrapped even now, and he is going to put them to use. Why then does the Prime Minister stand there and say they are of no use at all, that they are only of use for scrap?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I am not saying they are only of use for scrap. It is as far as the British government is concerned, that they are only of use for scrap. This is a statement that was made under oath before the Public Accounts Committee of the British House of Commons.

Mr MEIGHEN: It cannot refer to our ships.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It is as clear as it possibly can be to what ships it relates. I may say, that in case of the larger item, gifts of ships to the dominions—

Mr. MEIGHEN: It may not be Canada, it may mean ships that were in their waters.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The statement does not say that it is ships that were in their waters. The statement speaks of "the dominions", and that embraces Canada. It does not speak of ships "in our waters" but "in their waters." It includes all the ships as definitely as any statement can.

Mr. MEIGHEN: When were these ships in our waters before?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Speaking of the gifts as a whole, the statement refers to ships that were usually in their waters. The witness evidently tried to find some excuse to save the face of the Cabinet; but what the Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons did was to take exception to the gifts being made without parliament having been consulted. However, I think all hon. members will be able to judge of the value of the evidence for themselves. The evidence as taken before this committee is exactly what is implied in this statement. My hon. friend has no other statement to give us than that the ships were offered by the British government. Well, according to the statements I have quoted, even that was entirely without precedent. If the British government had kept the ships they would probably have been of use to them only as scrap; they had served their purpose and it suited the government's purpose to give them away. The point we are taking exception to is that the government of my hon. friend and his predecessors bring into this country ships which might have been consigned to the scrap heap by the British authorities, but upon the upkeep of which we must expend two and a half million dollars, if not more, and this without ever consulting Parliament as to whether or not the ships should be accepted.

I come next to the Imperial Conference of Premiers which my right hon. friend attended. Let me say that the position which the Government takes to-day is precisely in accord with that which is set out in the resolution of the Conference of Premiers that has been quoted by my right hon. friend. The resolution reads:

> That while recognizing the necessity of co-operation among the various portions of the Empire to provide such naval defence as may prove to be essential for security, and while holding that equality with the naval strength of any other power is a minimum standard for that purpose, this conference is of opinion that the method and expense of such co-operation are matters for the final determination of the several parliaments concerned, and that any recommendations thereon should be deferred until after the coming Conference on Disarmament.

Let me say a word in regard to the first part of this resolution, which reads, "recognizing the necessity of co-operation among the various portions of the Empire." If that has any meaning other than reference to co-operation as the word is used in the Canadian Naval Service Act, I will not accept the further meaning. If it implies an obligation beyond that which, this Parliament itself has been ready to assume, in the matter of national defence, then, I contend it goes beyond rights or powers which the leader of the government of the day had any right to assume in giving assent to the resolution. I asked the right hon. member whether it did go further than this Parliament had recognized its obligation to go, and he answered me in the negative that it did not, and I accept his word for it. He has referred to a resolution of April 27 which was adopted, but I will quote it because it further states the Liberal position on the matter of naval service. It reads as follows:

> That the House while recognizing the propriety of Canada being represented at any Imperial Conference or Conferences of the Prime Ministers of the Empire that may be called, desires to record its opinion, that at the coming conference no steps should be taken in any way involving any change in the relations of Canada to other parts of the Empire, and that in view of the present financial position of Canada no action should be taken implying any obligation on the part of Canada to undertake new expenditures for naval or military purposes.

That was the Liberal position before my right hon. friend attended the Imperial Conference as a representative of Canada. I understand from his remarks that that resolution was unnecessary, that in no way did he exceed the intent or purport of it in representing this country at the Imperial Conference. The Government of to-day, propose to accept that interpretation of his action while at the conference, and not to recognize any obligation, which may directly or indirectly have been made as respects Canada, implying military or naval expenditure beyond what had already been agreed to, before my right hon. friend attended the conference. I should like my right hon. friend to tell the House frankly and openly if he feels that is other than a just and proper interpretation, or whether he thinks additional obligations have been put on the Dominion by reason of his having been at the Conference of Prime Ministers.

Mr. MEIGHEN: As I have stated, the resolution could not be worded more clearly. It means precisely what it says. It places no obligation upon us at all. It clearly says that what we do, in point of character and in point of amount, is for us to say. Any obligation we are under is bounded only by our sense of duty and right and honour in the Empire.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That is quite clear. I wish to draw attention of hon. members to one or two matters in conclusion. First of all, in regard to the ships accepted in the manner I have described, we have consistently taken the position, that this Parliament should have been consulted, before those ships were accepted, and I think it is only right and proper at the present time, that Parliament should understand that we recognize no obligation in virtue of any action taken by our predecessors, without having consulted Parliament or without having for it the approval of Parliament.

Mr. CRERAR: That would include moral obligations?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That is a matter which may be considered wholly apart from anything else, but I contend my hon. friend had no right—and I am assuming from his word that he is stating that he did not—to obligate this country in any particular, at the last Conference of Prime Ministers, beyond what had already been formerly agreed to in this House. This resolution states:

> The conference is of the opinion that the method and expense are matters for final determination of the several parliaments concerned.

That is the position we are taking at the present moment, that while we have our naval policy, it is our duty to come to Parliament and discuss the expense which will be involved in bringing any part of it into practice or full play. More than that, we take also the position that the views expressed in the next recommendation or the next statement is a sound and proper one to have regard for: namely, that any recommendations thereon should be deferred until after the coming conference on disarmament. That is one of the strongest reasons why the government of the day, should not have accepted any ships which involved additional naval expenditure by this country. The conference of prime ministers thought it well to state that, before any of the dominions undertook to do anything of a material character with respect to their respective naval policies, they should have regard to the conference of disarmament and what actions might grow out of that conference. We have had regard for the Disarmament Conference and part of our policy is the result of what took place at that conference. The Minister of Naval Defence has this afternoon given a quotation from a document that I laid on the Table of the House on the 11th April. It is the memorandum of the British Government on Anglo-French relations; I wish to repeat one sentence to which he referred, because it gives the reason why the Government of to-day thinks it unwise this country should incur further expenditure in the matter of submarines. These submarines it should be recalled, were accepted by the Prime Minister of the day, without I think, his even consulting his cabinet, certainly without any consulting of Parliament. They were put into commission and we have been paying the cost of them ever since. What is stated in the British memorandum? It is—

> The British opinion, however, based on four years' experience, is that submarines are effective only against merchant ships and are ineffectual otherwise as instruments either of attack or defence.

We do not feel justified, in view of the opinion expressed to the world in that memorandum, in having as part of our policy the maintenance of submarines. But if that is not sufficient, I would refer my right hon. friend and hon. members opposite to the report of Sir Robert Borden at the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments held at Washington. Let me read Sir Robert's own words in reference to the use of submarines, on page 22 of the report which has already been presented to Parliament and of which hon. members have copies. The report says:

> An important proposal by the British Empire delegation, which enlisted universal attention, should be specially mentioned here. It looked to the complete abolition of the submarine. The proposal was formally placed on record in the following terms:
>
> "The British Delegation desires formally to place on record its opinion that the use of submarines whilst of small value for defensive purposes, leads inevitably to acts which are inconsistent with the laws of war and the dictates of humanity, and the Delegation desires that united action should be taken by all nations to forbid their maintenance, construction, or employment".
>
> It precipitated a remarkable discussion to which the widest publicity was given. To those who have acquired any intimate knowledge of the character of submarine warfare, the conclusion expressed in the proposal seems irresistible.
>
> It was effectively argued that for defence the submarine is of relatively small value, while, on the other hand, the very nature of the craft and the physical necessities under which it operates are such that its use in war inevitably produces acts inconsistent with the plainest dictates of humanity.

I ask my hon. friends, in view of a statement such as that, in view of the Conference of the prime ministers having expressed the view that regard should be had, in any future naval policy, for the work of the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments at Washington, whether this Government would be justified in continuing to keep in commission the submarines accepted by the late government.

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman, let me say that the Government is quite as sensible as any of its predecessors of the obligation that rests upon this country as a nation and as part of the British Empire. It is fully cognizant of its obligation of service on land and sea, and its obligations, moral and otherwise, in every other respect. But we feel that every obligation can be rightly discharged only in the light of conditions as they exist, and the conditions to-day are entirely different throughout the world, and in our own country in particular, from those that prevailed prior to the war. To hear the argument advanced by my right hon. friend (Mr. Meighen) one would imagine that the position was exactly the same in the world to-day as it ever was. He dwelt at considerable length and eloquently on the position of Great Britain, who had scrapped so many ships; but he never said a word about the ships of other nations having been correspondingly reduced in numbers. He did not say anything about one great menace having been completely abolished.

Mr. MEIGHEN: My hon. friend evidently did not hear me. I referred to the reduction of the United States navy and to the destruction of the German fleet.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: My right hon. friend is quite right in saying that he referred to those matters; but he did not mention them in the connection I mean. I am speaking of his remarks as regards the necessity of Canada recognising its moral obligation towards Britain. In that connection he spoke at great length of how Great Britain had reduced her different fleets and of the consequent necessity for Canada to give so much more to meet the situation than she would otherwise be obliged to do. Now, as hon. members are well aware, the condition of the world to-day is vastly different from what it was previous to the war, particularly in the matter of navies. The German navy has been completely destroyed. What menace is there at the present time that threatens any part of the British Empire on sea? Does my right hon. friend think that Canada, or Great Britain, or any other part of the British Empire is going to be attacked by the United States, by France, or by Japan? These countries have recently entered into a solemn agreement together with Great Britain for the very purpose of helping to obviate the possibility of war arising between them. Is there any danger from Italy or from any of the smaller countries? Have we not a right, in considering expenditures here, to take all these facts into account? Have we to assume that at all times a situation will exist such as existed prior to 1912? I think the Government is justified in taking,—indeed, I think it would be seriously lacking in its sense of duty if it did not take—very much into account the changed conditions in the world to-day, and, in addition to that, the changed condition of our own treasury and the way in which these matters are likely to be viewed by the taxpayers of the country. We can build up the British Empire in no better way than by helping to make a united, a contented and a happy people. And when my right hon. friend talks about moral obligation, let me remind him that the best defence is no offence, where you can avoid it, to other countries. I thought of that the other evening when the right hon. gentleman talked about exclusion with respect to a great Asiatic power. If he wants to build up the Empire and at the same time to avoid the necessity for military expenditures let him treat courteously the other great powers and there will be less need for munitions and instruments of war. Let us establish that good-will by which the building up of vast armaments is eliminated altogether, instead of creating the ill-will which, throughout the whole of history, has been responsible for wars among the nations of the world. We are sensible of our moral obligations and we shall do our utmost to meet them; and what I have just indicated is one of the most effective ways of doing so. There is the further position taken all along, that it would be the part of wisdom and prudence on the part of the Government to wait until after another Imperial Conference before beginning to launch out on any scheme in connection with naval matters, in the direction my hon. friends have indicated, which may not be acceptable and which may result, as the submarine business has done, in a waste of public money to no purpose. These are the reasons which have actuated the Government in seeking at the present time a retrenchment in the matter of naval and military expenditures. We are seeking to consolidate the great departments of defence and to bring into one department, under one minister, the naval, the military and the air forces. What is the object? Avowedly, it is for the purpose of economy; avowedly, for the purpose of retrenchment. If we are ever to have retrenchment in military and naval expenditures this is the one moment in which it is possible to bring about something of that character. The Government regards that as its first duty, its first obligation. It is sensible of all its larger duties and obligations, but it feels that it will best serve the interests of the British Empire as a whole when it helps to enlist, in the matter of defence, whether on land or sea, the sympathies of all our citizens throughout the Dominion, rather than antagonize their just sentiments by experiments of different kinds which will only tend to increase taxation and render no effective service in the long run.

[Mr. Mackenzie King.]

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not desire to make anything in the nature of a speech in reply to my hon. friend, but merely to refer to three or four matters which he has brought up, in order that what I said before may not, through any fault of mine, be misunderstood. The Prime Minister's address consisted in the main—at least half of it did—not so much in a review of the history of this question as in a continuous and bitter attack upon his political opponents and upon the stand they have taken from time to time upon the question. I sought to make a review, but I place myself in the judgment of the committee if, in the course of that review, I made any attack whatever or any attempt to enlist the sympathies of the House on behalf of one or other of the old parties. I made no comparison of the relative merits of one course as against the other. I refrained from doing so, not because I did not think I was capable of doing it. Were the occasion appropriate, were there any object to be served, I think I might employ as forceful an argument—I venture to suggest, in all respect, a more effective argument, one more faithful to the facts—than did the Prime Minister. That was not my purpose.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The usual tactics are becoming apparent. How different is the course pursued on one side of the House from that followed on the other.

Mr. DUFF: That is because you are up.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I think it is; I think that is the reason. Cannot hon. members meet me any other way than that?

Mr. DUFF: It is your fault, not ours.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I sought to review the history of the question only that the perspective might appear and that the committee might the better judge what we should do now. That is all. I made no attack upon the principle of the Naval Service Act; nor, in the whole history of the debates in this House since I became a member of it, have I ever made an attack upon that principle. My position has been that under the act you could not develop a navy, either in point of ships or in point of men, in time to meet any situation that might confront us. I have made no attack on the principle of the act as being a sound one applicable to this country. In fact, I affirm that in 1918 at the conference Sir Robert Borden himself proposed, on behalf of the dominions, that the proper line to pursue by way of a permanent policy was even in the direction of the Naval Service Act. In so far as a Canadian naval service is embodied in the minister's proposal, I make no attack now. But policy consists not only in a statute, but in the actual proposals of the government as to what they are going to do under the statute. And it is in that respect that I make any attack. I propose to confine myself in what I say to that. I will not be drawn into the old discussions that took place years ago. We gain nothing by referring to them to-night. I want to discuss for a minute or two a few of the remarks of the Prime Minister as related to the point in issue.

On the lines of the Naval Service Act are these proposals adequate and worthy of our country? The Prime Minister attacks me very bitterly because I was a member of the Government that acceptd the free gift from the British Government of five ships, and he says that we never should have accepted them without coming to Parliament, because by that acceptance we obligated this country to maintain those ships.

The government of the day in accepting those ships certainly intended to maintain them and use them for the purpose for which we accepted them. But we could not do so until we came to Parliament and got authority. We could not pay a dollar of the cost in discharge of the obligation of this country without coming to Parliament and securing that authority. We came to Parliament, and we got authority for that purpose—just the same authority as the Government is seeking to-day.

Is it the argument of the hon. gentleman: But Parliament could not help itself. You by merely letting these ships into your ports obligated the country morally to maintain and operate these vessels. Is that the argument? I do not think it is. But if it is, how is his Government discharging the moral obligation now by abandoning the ships? Their own conduct now shows that by the mere acceptance of the ships they do not consider that a moral obligation was incurred at all. That is their position, rightly or wrongly. If the obligation exists, how can they abandon those ships now?

Mr. VIEN: Will my right hon. friend allow me a question? Does he not believe that Canada, like other nations, should disarm after the Washington Conference?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. gentleman must have been asleep; I was on another subject altogether.

Mr. VIEN: I was quite awake.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Then why does he want me to leave the subject I am discussing? We came to Parliament for authority to spend every dollar. I am not concerned as to the position of the British government. The British government parted with property; we parted with nothing; that is the difference. What they should have done is for them and their Parliament to say. The hon. member tries to read into some evidence that was given there the inference that the vssels we took were worthless. Well, the vessels are there to be seen. Those vessels are modern.

Mr. DUFF: No, they are not; they are obsolete.

Mr. MEIGHEN: They are not as modern as when they were built,—nothing ever is. After the Government has had these two trawlers, three or four years they will not be modern either. On that principle you would never get anything. Those vessels were modern in construction, they were oil-burning vessels. They were as modern as any that the British government had; that is to say, of their size and for their purpose. They are not, of course, capital ships, but they are useful for training purposes. The fact is they were good vessels when we took them over, they are good to-day, and the Government admits it by saying they are going to put them to use.

Mr. VIEN: They were not going to be kept in commission in England.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Very well. The British government may have had sufficient vessels without them; I know nothing about that; but I do know that they are well constructed, modern vessels.

The next thing my hon. friend says is—

Mr. CANNON: How can my right hon. friend argue that England expects us to keep these ships in commission when she has been scrapping other ships?

Mr. MEIGHEN: England is scrapping her ships to-day,—she has scrapped twenty-three or twenty-four. But does that imply that we are under no obligation in the matter of naval defence?

Mr. VIEN: She does not need more ships.

Mr. MEIGHEN: She does not need more ships, but she needs to maintain a defensive naval force, and it is in the maintenance of that defence that I make my plea.

Mr. VIEN: These were surplus ships.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Suppose they were, the naval service must be maintained, and its maintenance costs money. Britain's expenditure this year is about $400,000,000—about $10 a head; ours is 17 cents.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I do not think my right hon. friend really understands the point I wish to make when I spoke of the right of Parliament to pass on these matters. Does he contend for one minute that the Union government, which was formed for the purpose of carrying on the war, had any right to deal with post war questions with respect to naval policy? And would he say for one minute that his government had any right to deal with this naval question which related to post war policy?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Undoubtedly I say so.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Where did you get that right?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The government of the day had to carry on all matters of policy. The government of the day in any event did not make any change in naval policy, none whatever.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Was it understood by the people of Canada when the Unionist government was formed that after the war was over part of its duty was to inaugurate a naval policy for post war times?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The Unionist government did not inaugurate a naval policy at all.

Mr. DUFF: For once he is right.

Mr. MEIGHEN: But I am afraid my hon. friend will be censured very soon by his leader.

Mr. DUFF: Do not worry.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is the complaint?

Mr. DUFF: The complaint is that the Tory party had no naval policy.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The Prime Minister's complaint is that it had. We simply carried on a system of training for the naval service, believing that was the best by way of permanent policy, and we carried it on on a scale that we thought fair. Certainly it was not on too great a scale; if there was any complaint it was that it was on too small a scale. We carried it on on a scale that we thought fair until the aggregate commitments of the Empire would be known. These aggregate commitments became known at the Disarmament Conference.

[Mr. Vien.]

Now I come to my last point. After the Disarmament Conference, when the utmost efforts of Britain were put forward and assisted by this country, by Australia, by New Zealand, and the other British commonwealths, and, let me add, by the United States—after those countries had exerted their efforts to the utmost, still the obligations of Great Britain remained at the point I have named, with the approval of those countries. Now, is Canada to stand up and through its Prime Minister say: Those countries do not know world conditions. Britain does not know world conditions, and she has assumed naval obligations that she does not need to assume at all. Do the Government take that position? I do not think they will now say so. We know what burden Great Britain has assumed, reduced by that conference after every effort of those peace-loving nations had been brought to bear—we know that the residuum is about $400,000,000 a year. The Prime Minister says that our fair share of that huge burden is $1,500,000, to be spent on training boys two or three weeks in drill halls and on trawlers watching seals in the Behring sea.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I do not know by what right my right hon. friend quotes me as to what I consider Canada's share of naval defence to be. This country through this Parliament has the right to determine what it thinks is necessary in the matter of naval policy, apart from any moral or other obligation that has been referred to.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The Prime Minister does not need to emphasize that point. I have emphasized it all through my speech, and I emphasize it now. We have the right to say what we will do in regard to naval policy, but what I am asserting is that the Government in its proposals does not fairly assume to discharge the moral obligations of this country.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That is for the Government to determine.

Mr. DUFF: What are the moral obligations?

Mr. MEIGHEN: That is what I am debating.

Mr. DUFF: What are the moral obligations of Canada from the standpoint of the leader of the Opposition; what should we do?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The moral obligation of this country is affirmed in the resolution of 1910, agreed to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and by the House; affirmed in the resolution of 1912 moved by Sir Wilfrid Laurier; affirmed in the policy and resolution of the Government; affirmed repeatedly ever since —the obligation to co-operate in the naval defence of the Empire of which we are a part.

Mr. DUFF: How much money, in round figures, would the hon. gentleman say we should spend on the navy—$5,000,000, $10,000,000, $20,000,000, $30,000,000, or how much?

Mr. MEIGHEN: It is not for me to fix the amount.

Mr. DUFF: Oh, yes.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is before us now is this: the appropriation of $1,500,000 particularly when it is wasted in this way, is certainly not discharging the obligations of this country.

Mr. DUFF: I agree with the right hon. gentleman that $1,500,000 cannot go very far. But if he is sincere, will he tell us how much he would spend in 1922 toward the naval defence of Canada by way of discharging our moral obligations? Now, be a man and answer it.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. DUFF: How much money?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I might remind my hon. friend that I am not Prime Minister of this country.

Mr. DUFF: Thank God for that.

Mr. MEIGHEN: As to the amount, I do say it should be very substantially more than this.

Mr. DUFF: How much more?

Mr. MEIGHEN: And I do say that it should be something which would be effective as to training and service.

Mr. MARTELL: Why?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. gentleman asks "Why"? The committee will appreciate the position I am in when I receive questions like that. Now, the hon. gentleman argues, and he argues rightly, that if we had, in an independent sense, to protect our own shores and to develop here a navy which in itself is sufficient for our defence, we would need to spend—I do not know whether he is right or not, but I think he fixed it at $200,000,000.

Mr. DUFF: At $100,000,000.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Very well. But as part and parcel of the British Empire, as an autonomous nation within it, we occupy a more fortunate position; the real value of the great League of Nations of the British Empire is that by co-operation we can secure that defence at a much lower cost. But we cannot have co-operation unless there is among the various nations of the Empire a sense of the individual duty of each nation and some honest attempt to discharge that duty. This point the Toronto Globe of this morning very forcefully emphasizes.

Mr. DUFF: I would like to get this matter down to a basis of dollars and cents; that is the only way in which we can settle the matter. What I want to know is how much the leader of the Opposition thinks the people of Canada should spend in 1922 on naval defence?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Well, I will tell the hon. member this: I would certainly maintain the operation of what we have.

Mr. DUFF: What would that cost?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Last year it cost $2,500,000.

Mr. DUFF: You did not do anything.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Oh yes, we did. There are boys in training to-day who under this policy will be thrown out, whose careers will be destroyed, whose years of work will be lost. That is the effect of this policy.

Mr. VIEN: The right hon. gentleman says he would maintain what we have; would he include the two submarines?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I will come to that in a moment or two. There was something just on this point that I wanted to refer to.

Mr. MARTELL: May I ask my right hon. friend—

The CHAIRMAN: I must ask hon. members not to interrupt the leader of the Opposition until he has had an opportunity of answering the question that has been asked him. He has indicated his objection to interruption.

Mr. DUFF: I would like an answer to my question; how much should we spend this year?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I have answered it.

Mr. DUFF: No, you have not.

Mr. MEIGHEN: If the hon. member will give the vote he ought to give, and other

hon. members opposite follow, it will not take me long, in a post of responsibility, to announce a policy that is a policy for this country.

Mr. DUFF: But we have no confidence in the leader of the Opposition.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. member has not; we will not quarrel over that.

Mr. CANNON: Will my right hon. friend answer one question? He said we should protect our coasts, as part of the British Empire. Would he state to the House against whom we should protect our coasts?

Mr. MEIGHEN: If there is no one to protect against, why waste a million and a half in preparing for protection? The Prime Minister used language that was very much the same, and when I come to that—if hon. members will allow me—I think the hon. member for Dorchester will admit that I have made reply.

The Prime Minister says that at the Disarmament Conference all were agreed to scrap and to reduce; and why not Canada as well?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I never said that.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Well, I understood that to be the argument, and I am afraid I lost the argument if it was not. I do not think the Minister of Naval Affairs will dispute that he endeavoured to set that up as an argument on Friday last. And I can recall quite well the hon. member for Pictou saying: Other nations are taking a holiday for ten years; why cannot Canada do so? That is representative at least of the line of thought presented by those hon. members. My point is this: Canada for fifty-four years has been on a long holiday in the matter of naval defence. We have done very little. The question cannot be proportionate reduction until you get something like proportionate burden. It is proportionate burden—not portionate to population, but having regard to all considerations—a fair distribution of burden. That is what I am arguing for. Canada, indeed, has never pretended that she ever reached a fair or just discharge of her obligations in this matter. Now, I come to this question—

Mr. MARTELL: My right hon. friend is very good natured and I am sure he will permit me two questions. Is not some of this expenditure for the protection of our rights around the Pribyloff Islands as regards sealing? That is number one; this is number two: Who asked for the ships which we received from England? Was not the taking of them from England condemned by the people of Canada and was the giving of them not also condemned by the people of England through the Public Accounts Committee of the British House of Commons?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The first question is: Is not some of this money for the purpose of protecting our fishing rights?

Mr. MARTELL: Sealing rights on the Pribyloff Islands.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Well, the minister says it is, so the answer to that is, yes. But I wonder if it is the conception of the hon. member that we are meeting our just share of defence obligations by looking after fish around Behring Sea? As the hon. member for Lunenburg says, that is not a matter of defence at all; that is only working something into defence in order to provide an excuse for the money going under that head—that is all. Now the next question is, was not the accepting of the vessels condemned by the people of Canada?

Mr. MARTELL: If my right hon. friend will pardon me, I said: Was not the accepting of the vessels condemned by the people of Canada and the giving of them condemned by the people of England, as was evidenced in the proceedings of the Public Accounts Committee? That is to say, both the giving and the taking were condemned.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I was not very far wrong. However, I give my honest opinion: I do not think one man in five hundred had the matter at all in mind in the late contest.

An hon. MEMBER: Yes.

Mr. MEIGHEN: An hon. member says, "Yes". Well, I do not think so. But I really do believe we have a higher opinion of the sense of public honour and self-respect of the people of this country to feel that it was derogating from the rights of Canada to accept as a free gift from the motherland vessels that were of use to us, in our modest way, in preparing a naval service for this country. As to what the people of Great Britain have done, that is not my business. I am not in this Parliament to make any comment on the action of the British parliament or the British government. They are responsible to their people; we are responsible to ours. Now, the last suggestion has to do with the hon. member for—

Mr. MARTELL: May I ask my hon. friend another question?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. MARTELL: Is it not fact that the giving of these ships without consultation with or the approval of the British Parliament was condemned by the Public Accounts Committee of the British House of Parliament? I do not know whether it is so or not, and I would like to ask my right hon. friend.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I really do not know. The only information I have was right from the Prime Minister. I do not think we are particularly concerned with that. Whether hon. members differ with me or not, I see a very great difference between receiving something and giving something.

Now on the last phase, the Prime Minister asked: Which is the nation that may attack us? Why should we be alarmed? I cannot quote his exact words, but he demanded to know who it was we feared, and that is a very common question in this House. It is repeated now by the hon. member for Dorchester. The Prime Minister brought it up in connection with the question as to what we ought to do. I ask hon. members to reflect on this question which I mentioned when I rose the second time. After the Disarmament Conference, after all the facts that could be known were known and all that could be done was done, Britain's obligations rested upon a parity with those of the United States, only on a parity, at a certain amount per annum, the maintenance of a certain size of navy costing so much per annum. We cannot say it is too much. No Canadian will say that Britain can afford to become a second-rate power in a naval sense. We cannot say it is too much. Now hon. members admitting that this minimum has been arrived at in the effort to reduce armaments, the only question for us to decide is what share of that aggregate would fairly and rightly under all conditions be the proportion of this country? That is the question before us.

The hon. member asks: What are we arming against? As I stated in the debate on the militia estimates, that is a question that never can be answered, and it is a question that, if it could be answered, might not wisely be answered. I am not going to point my finger, I would not if I could, to any special nation and say: There is a potential enemy. That is not the habit of any civilized country; that is not our habit; we do not do that. We say now we are in the position where we should only do our share in the common defence proportionate to what we have to defend, proportionate to our strength to defend, our fair and reasonable share under all the circumstances of the case. That is all we have to decide. There are many things to be taken into account, and if I were to stand and argue all the considerations, it would take some time. But I say one manifest thing: Outside of Great Britain, for Great Britain is not the only country in the Empire, we cannot stand squarely in front of our fellow-citizens of other dominions and say that we are bearing our fair share of the burden under the conditions of to-day.

The Prime Minister says we should pursue a pacific policy. I agree with him to the full. He intimates that it has been my plan to carry discourtesy to other countries and to stir up strife. When was I guilty of that? When were any words of mine ever of that character in this House of Commons? None that I can recall, none certainly were ever intentionally so. This country cannot pursue too pacific a policy to suit me, nor can this Empire pursue too pacific a policy to suit me. This Empire and this Dominion must, in words, and in every other way, pursue a most courteous policy towards Japan and every other country, but courtesy is not inconsistent with reasonable guarantees as to our control of our immigration and reasonable guarantees as to the composition of our people. It need not be inconsistent at all. If it were so, then I would say we would do better to suffer something rather than to pursue any course that had even the appearance of hostility towards a great friendly power. But after all this is done, there remains a necessary defence for great countries. We know the magnitude and the aggregate of that defence to-day, and in all self-respect I say that we ought to do our share.

Mr. STEVENS: As the hour is very late—

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I am prepared to stay until morning till we get it through.

Mr. STEVENS: I would remind the Prime Minister that in the old days before this session, if a minister were to make an answer of that kind, it would bring a ready retort from him when he was on this side of the House. I am speaking in all courtesy to the Government when I say that in view of the late hour and the hour to which we sat last night—

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I am speaking in all courtesy, too, but may I remind my hon. friend that at ten minutes to six o'clock the House was ready to carry the resolution. Then his desk-mate rose and asked if the Government would be agreeable to calling it six o'clock to give the right hon. leader of the Opposition a chance to speak later on in the evening. I rose and said that if there was any other member of the House who wished to speak, we would go on until six o'clock, but that otherwise, to meet the convenience of the leader of the Opposition, and give him a chance to speak afterwards, we would call it six o'clock. Under these circumstances, I think it is perfectly reasonable that we should seek to end this debate to-night.

Mr. STEVENS: I think my hon. friend the Prime Minister will acquit me during the last thirteen sessions I have been in this House of ever taking advantage of a seeming agreement. I was not in the House at the time, but my colleague informed me that he knew the leader of the Opposition had intended to speak but had not expected the hon. member for Hants to resume his seat before six o'clock, and surely it is not an unusual thing to ask the Chairman to call it six o'clock when it is almost that hour. If, however, my hon. friend insists that we should sit until this item is passed, why, of course, he is in control of the situation. I have no desire to weary the House, but this is certainly one of the most important problems that has ever been brought before Parliament, and I think it would contribute very much to the success of the debate and the securing of the opinion of Parliament if we were to adjourn now, but if the Prime Minister insists, of course, we shall have to go ahead.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I have no desire to take an arbitrary stand on the matter at all, but I do think hon. members of the House are beginning to feel that we ought to get through the work of the session. We have had a couple of days now on this estimate, and I doubt very much if there are any other hon. members who wish to speak besides my hon. friend. If there are, and they will rise, and I see there is an appreciable number, I am quite agreeable to adjourning, but if it is only my hon. friend I think we should go on.

[Mr. Stevens.]

Mr. STEVENS: I think the Prime Minister is wholly unfair in putting me in that light, as if I was simply rising for the purpose of delaying this vote. That is not my intention at all. I consider this is one of the most important questions before Parliament. It is a matter that might very properly come before the House in the form of a resolution on going into Supply and be the occasion of a full dress debate in the House for days with profit. The leader of the Government has repeatedly enunciated as one of his fundamental principles that he must consult Parliament and now he infers just because three or four members of the House have spoken, certainly not more than six, on this important matter, that it may be disposed of without further discussion.

I listened with a great deal of patience and attention to the discussion to-day and also to the very brief discussion,—not a whole day's discussion as my hon. friend the Prime Minister suggests—on a previous occasion. The minister introduced this item with a very brief speech and the leader of the Opposition stated that it was so important he would like time to consider it. Then we meet this afternoon and have a further discussion of it. I regret that the discussion this evening particularly in the address of the Prime Minister should have been taken up with a review, not so much of historic facts connected with the naval question, but a review rather of the controversial points. Now what I wish to suggest to the Government is this: That a rehash of old political discussions and debates in this House of the naval problem will get us to no very useful conclusion, but I do think that the time has arrived when we as a Parliament, and when Canada as a country, should face this problem, and should face it seriously, and endeavour, as far as possible, to arrive at some conclusion commensurate with the importance of this Dominion and with the measure of her obligations.

Now I wish to draw attention to the question from this angle: First, I ask the question, is it Canada's desire to remain an integral part of the British Empire? To that I think there is only one answer which will be immediately given by every hon. member in this House, and I think by almost everyone within the confines of the country, and that answer is in the affirmative—that we do so desire, and that there is no wish to weaken the ties of Empire. Very well, let us accept that. Then we take the next step, which seems to me to be a logical one and ask: Are we then as a member of the Empire, as a member of this commonwealth of nations called the British Empire, to assume that portion of the obligations of defence of empire which properly rests upon us? That seems to me to be the next point. If we admit that we are, and I have not heard a word to the contrary, then, by a logical sequence, we come to the next point: Is the estimate before us to be considered as a reasonable discharge of that responsibility? Now let us examine that briefly for a minute.

My hon. friend the Prime Minister, not only to-day but repeatedly, has laboured the point of our moral obligation. He has also queried the right hon. leader of the Opposition on this point: Did he obligate Canada to any specific obligation or responsibility in the recent conference at London? That seems to me to be begging the question. The point that the Prime Minister and his Government should determine is this: Are we obligated at all, is there any moral obligation resting upon us? If there is a moral obligation resting upon us, does not that imply a corresponding practical or political obligation that we should discharge or else be derelict in our duty? It is not a question as to whether the leader of the Opposition when he was prime minister, made for us any specific commitment in London. That is not the question. The question before this House, and the question the people of the country are seeking leadership on, is: What is the measure of the obligation of Canada at this time?

Now, I wish to take another step to a point which has already, I think, been effectively brought forward by the leader of the Opposition but of which I will at least take the liberty of repeating. It is this: The British Empire, represented by the Imperial government, in the recent Washington Conference came to a point in naval disarmament beyond which it said it could not go—

Mr. CAHILL: What right has the Imperial Conference as regards the Canadian Parliament?

Mr. STEVENS: I do not desire to be discorteous but I can hardly see the force of my hon. friend's question.

Mr. CAHILL: My hon. friend said the Imperial Conference decided something. I want to know what power the Imperial Conference has?

Mr. STEVENS: If I used that expression I made a mistake—I meant the Washington Conference. It decided the point to which the naval armament could be reduced, which is admitted to be the minimum.

Mr. CAHILL: What does my hon. friend mean by the defence of Great Britain?

Mr. STEVENS: I recognize the wit of my good friend from Pontiac who is really seeking to interject a little merriment in this debate and is not serious.

Mr. CAHILL: Not at all; I want to know what my hon. friend means by Great Britain in this discussion?

Mr. STEVENS: I cannot conceive of any hon. member asking me or anyone else to define what is meant by Great Britain.

Mr. CAHILL: Well, my hon. friend speaks of the responsibility of Great Britain. I want to know what he means by Great Britain in this connection? Or what responsibility Canada has towards Great Britain?

Mr. STEVENS: I made a statement to this effect: That at the Washington Conference a point was reached where it was agreed, not only on the authority of the British Empire but also on the authority of other members of the conference, that disarmament could not safely go below a certain point. That point represents a burden on the taxpayers of Great Britain of some $400,000,000 annually. Now then, it seems to me we have reached a basis of argument on this point where we come to a practical question. The question, as I have stated, is this: Are we obligated; are there any obligations resting on Canada in this connection? The Prime Minister has admitted that there are obligations; he has admitted that we must take our place as a member of the Commonwealth of the British Empire in this question of naval armament. In the face of the fact that Britain is maintaining naval defence for the Empire at the expense of $400,000,000 a year the question arises—is a million and a half an adequate amount for Canada to contribute towards that expense? I contend that it is not only inadequate but that it is not commmensurate with the dignity of the country.

Now let me turn for a moment to some arguments advanced by gentlemen opposite. The minister in the first place scrapped the whole of the new Canadian navy—that is the five ships presented to Canada by the Mother Country, and put into operation and commission by the previous government. Then he pointed out that this unit was useless so far as naval work was concerned. He, however, modified that to-day by admitting that the unit might be useful for training purposes, that it might be useful for representing Canada in some parts of the world where her interests needed attention and protection; and furthermore he admitted that Canada's interests and obligations demanded the existence of this unit, or portions of it. What sense then is there in Canada abandoning this somewhat limited and small unit in the face of the admission that we have work for it to do, in the face of the obligation undoubtedly resting upon us? In the face of the recognition by the minister's action to-day that there is a need for some naval unit in Canada, what is the sense of abandoning the unit we have? Some hon. gentlemen to-day asked to what extent should we go? It is not for the members of the Opposition to state to what extent we should go; but I think we can, as a parliament, take this position: Until a further Imperial Conference is held we should maintain the unit that we already have in commission. That, I think, is a safe and reasonable position to take.

My hon. friend from Winnipeg (Mr. Woodsworth) to-day made quite an argument on the general basis of disarmament. He pointed out that the world was disarming, and therefore Canada should disarm. That we should present to the world a peace loving people, that we should not for one moment pretend that we are in sympathy with or in harmony with the maintenance of national defence at all. I think the House might very properly—and this has not been referred to by any previous speaker—turn its attention to the conditions and political activities in Europe to-day. Turn for a moment to the situation at Genoa, which it had been hoped, would usher in a new era, which my hon. friend from Winnipeg (Mr. Woodsworth) referred to, out of which it was hoped some solution might be reached of the economic problems of Europe, but, as a matter of fact, it is admitted to-day, by all the nations participating in that conference, that very little more than a complete failure has resulted from that meeting, but that is not all. If we turn to Germany and Russia, we find a new international treaty entered into by two of the greatest nations of the world, one of which has to-day under arms a force that, I think, is greater than the armed force of Germany before the war. She has an army running into millions, in active service, strung along her western frontier. The hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) has properly stated that perhaps it is not a wise thing for members in the House of Commons to refer to an apparently belligerent action or attitude on the part of any nation, but I think we are very unwise if we refuse to take cognizance of the existence of that tremendous armed force in Russia to-day. Then couple with that the fact that Germany has refused apparently, and is constantly refusing, to meet her obligations under the Versailles Treaty, that she is seeking to avoid those obligations, and add to that this fact that France—who is more intimately associated with the possible effect of such an alliance as I have referred to than any other nation,—expresses general alarm at these conditions; when you couple these three facts together, I think we have every right to say that there is an exceedingly disturbed state of mind in certain quarters of the world, which may be reflected at any moment in the form of active warfare. In the face of these facts, of our obligations as a part of the British Empire, of the admission of the Prime Minister that these obligations exist, it seems to me we are doing a most unwise thing, in not only cutting down, as we have done from last year, by a million dollars, but in scrapping the naval unit we have had, and in refusing to maintain that unit, and taking a decidedly backward step in connection with the matter of defence in Canada.

Mr. CHURCH: I regret very much that in Canada the question of land and naval defence has been mixed up with party politics. The question before the House to-night is one of the most important that confronts the people of Canada and the Empire to-day. Canada has been sponging on the Mother Country for years. After all the carping criticism which we have heard to-night, I may say "Thank God we had the British fleet to protect our shores". I do not know what would have happened to Nova Scotia and Quebec, and especially Quebec, if the German fleet had sailed up the St. Lawrence and blown up the citadel? What would become of the carping criticism which we have heard. If the German fleet had sailed up the river channel to Montreal and blown up the Merchants Bank, probably we might have realized the seriousness of it.

We have heard from the Prime Minister, whom I will call the First Lord of the Admiralty, and from the Minister of Militia, the Junior Lord of the Admiralty. I do not blame the Minister of Militia, because I believe if he had had his way, probably, the recommendation brought down to-night would never have been presented to us. The minister referred to the changes which had been adopted and referred to the million and a half in the estimates. I may say the estimates were cut down a million. He goes on to refer to the Peace Conference at Washington and to the fact that at the great conference in that city recently we were represented. He says the great nations of the world agreed, not only to take a holiday in naval construction, but to scrap many of their fighting ships. So far as Canada is concerned, we have always had a perpetual holiday in naval affairs. From time immemorial, Canada has had a holiday in a naval sense. She has been content all these years to sponge on the poor hard-working taxpayer of the Motherland, where they have had their bread, tea and necessities of life taxed to construct their magnificent fleet to protect our shores. When you talk about our holiday, I tell you we have been holidaying all the time in a naval sense.

The minister refers to the recommendations of the report of the Disarmament Conference. The first recommendation was that all capital shipbuilding programme, either actual or projected, should be abandoned. That does not apply to Canada, because she has had no capital ships, but has sponged on the Mother Country in that respect. The only capital ships we ever had were the mysterious vessels, known as the Niobe and the Rainbow. The next clause of the recommendation of the Disarmament Conference was that further reductions should be made, and that old ships should be scrapped. That does not apply to Canada. We have no ships, old or new, or even row-boats. The next recommendation was, in general, regard should be had to the existing naval strength of the powers concerned. That does not apply to Canada. The fourth and last recommendation is that the capital ship tonnage should be used as the measurement of strength for navies, and a proportionate allowance of auxiliary combatant craft prescribed.

None of the recommendations applies to Canada, because we have never done anything to protect Canada. The policy brought down to the House yesterday and to-day is humiliating for the people of Canada when you compare Canada with the little colony of New Zealand, and consider what she has done. You will find that Canada has been lurking in the rearguard. This debate to-night is somewhat similar to one which took place in the Australian legislature last December. They had the conference at Washington then. The naval estimates of Australia are about $16,500,000 for the year 1922, notwithstanding the Washington Conference. Do hon. members think they are going to scrap all their merchant marine? After all is said and done, the back-bone of the British navy is the merchant marine, and in the good old days of Queen Elizabeth the merchant marine was the backbone of the defence of the country. Australia, in the southern Pacific, passed a vote on the 2nd of December last of £3,240,000. I think it figures at the exchange nearly $17,000,000 for the fiscal year for naval defence. The question was debated in New Zealand, but the government there stood by their colours. They are waiting to see what will result from the conferences held at Washington and Genoa, and they also want to see what the British government is going to do. It is true that in England the government reduced a force of some 10,000 commodores and officers by 1,847, but the people of Australia have nailed their colours to the mast and have decided to retain two light cruisers, the Melbourne and the Brisbane, one training cruiser, the Sydney, two sloops, the Geranium and the Marguerite, and three destroyers, besides vessels of other classes. Altogether they are spending some £3,340,000. They are going to retain the naval college if for no other purpose than to provide training for those who are going into the merchant fleet. Now, Canada, by reason of its position among the nations of the world, should take its share of the responsibilities and obligations attaching to that position. Canada which was first in the Diamond Jubilee procession was the last of the dominions to send a contingent to South Africa at the time of the war there. Unlike New Zealand and Australia, she was content to sponge on the hard earnings of the poor British taxpayers for her freedom. Hon. gentlemen talk about economy. How is it that this question of defence is the only one in connection with which we have heard any mention of economy since the opening of the session? In the Militia Department a reduction of some $700,000 was made the other evening, and in the Naval Department now there is a 40 per cent reduction from the estimates of last year, which last year represented an expenditure of only two and a half million dollars, whereas Australia has been spending nearly $17,000,000 for naval defence. Why is it that these two departments have been singled out for economy? Is it because we cannot afford a proper service? We have spent some $900,000,000, directly and indirectly, on our railways, and yet we cannot afford a few paltry dollars to safeguard our maritime freedom. The Prime Minister had a chance to adjourn and give the members an opportunity to take part in the discussion, to-morrow, but he said the debate must go on. Well is it going on and it is likely to last until five or six o'clock to morrow morning, but I do not see how the position of this country is going to be enhanced in consequence.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: My hon. friend suggests that the debate is likely to continue until five o'clock in the morning. Do I understand that there is some agreement between him and his friends to prolong the debate simply for the purpose of taking up time?

Mr. CHURCH: Let me tell my hon. friend that I have been sent here to represent a constituency on this question and I shall state the views of the people of that constituency no matter how long it may take me to do so. Now, General MacBrien has told the responsible minister that once you reduce the estimates for militia purposes by any appreciable amount you cannot have an efficient force, and the men will not be properly trained; and the same applies to the naval service. The small sum of two and a half million dollars is now reduced to a million and a half, about as much as was voted the other day for one year for the harbour at Quebec. I do not say, of course, that the latter expenditure is not necessary. But this two and a half million dollars is an insignificant sum to devote to the naval defence of the country. Why, it is far less than the little island of New Zealand is spending this year for this purpose. What New Zealand and Australia have done, not only before but throughout the war, for the maintenance of their maritime freedom, should be an incentive to Canada, and we should take a leaf out of their book. I regret nothing so much as the fact that the question of naval defence and naval policy was allowed to enter the field of party politics in 1910-11. In the little colony of New Zealand in 1887 the government seriously took up the matter of naval defence and passed a Defence Act providing for the payment annually of £20,000 to the British government as a contribution toward the service rendered by the British navy in protecting her shores. That was 34 years ago. That policy was supported by the working classes of that country. I do not know of any country where the working classes do more to promote good government than in the two sister dominions of Australia and New Zealand. Now, that little island of New Zealand, with a population of 1,000,000 to-day—at that time about 500,000—saw their duty clearly and led the way for all the other sister dominions of the Empire in the matter of naval defence. In 1903 New Zealand increased this contribution from £20,000 to a sum not exceeding £40,000, because they realized that if their self-respect was to be vindicated it was incumbent upon them to contribute in some part to the protection afforded by the Mother Country to that colony as well as to the other dominions over the seas. After all, naval training is not for man-of-war's men only. The sailors in the days of Drake, Hawkins, Frobisher, and the other stalwarts were not only fighting men; they were men of the merchant marine; and we cannot develop a proper merchant marine in this country unless we train our young men who intend to follow that calling. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, pointed out in 1909 to the government of the day that there was an emergency, and he also pointed that out to the government of Australia and New Zealand. New Zealand and Australia took him at his word in 1909. New Zealand presented a battle cruiser to the Home Government.

Mr. CANNON: Will the hon. gentleman tell the committee what book he is quoting from?

Mr. CHURCH: I am quoting from the official New Zealand year book—a section—"Sketch of Naval Defence." It was prepared by the Department of Naval Affairs in New Zealand. I will send it over to my hon. friend as soon as I am through with it. I got it from the parliamentary library. New Zealand did their duty and in 1913 passed their Naval Reserve Act, providing for the establishment of a compulsory naval force. They took the British Admiralty at its word—they saw the German peril right at their door. They were loaned a third class cruiser by the British Admiralty to form a training ship in order to establish the nucleus of a naval force. Another vessel of the light cruiser type was also presented to them. On the 20th August 1913 the battle cruiser New Zealand, one of the ships of the line, which later in the great war was with Beatty in the North Sea, and brought Admiral of the Fleet, Jellicoe, to New Zealand after the war, when he inspected their naval defence, considered their problems, and made his report. The result was that the New Zealand government adopted an enlarged naval policy.

I would advocate that we also approach the British Admiralty and ask their advice on naval matters in view of the conference at Washington. We have a precedent here in the case of New Zealand. Indeed, I believe Admiral Jellicoe made a report on the naval defence of this country, but I have never seen it.

Long before the war New Zealand recognized the principle of contribution, and the existence of an emergency, and they contributed a dreadnaught, believing that as a great maritime people their money was well spent. They have compulsory military training, and their young men are trained for the merchant marine. There the building up of a merchant marine has brought more trade and commerce to the country than any other policy ever adopted by that government. What has been done there could also be done in Canada.

So much for New Zealand. What has Australia done?

Mr. MARTELL: Will my hon. friend tell me what Australia and New Zealand are paying for naval defence this year?

Mr. CHURCH: I already gave that. I must apologize to my hon. friend; I could not catch all that he said. Think of what the merchant marine did during the war; it went out on the seven seas, brought the troops across the ocean from Australia and New Zealand, transferred sixty-five per cent of the American Expeditionary Force and the larger part of the munitions which went across the seas from Canada and the United States. Here is what was said by the Prime Minister of Australia about the duty of Canada and Australia so far as the fleet was concerned.

> Yet but for the British navy, where should we have been? Where would civilization have been? The least we can say of the navy is that it has saved Britain. But the truth is that it has saved the civilized world.
>
> Behind that impregnable wall of triple steel we have had opportunity to remedy, in some fashion, our lack of preparation. But is there a man amongst us who does not pale as he looks back and sees the awful gulf which he has missed by a hair's breadth, who does not rejoice that there were men amongst us who shut their ears to the cries for a smaller navy?
>
> Think of the hundreds of millions we are spending to-day on this awful war; think of the spectacle of the civilized world wallowing in blood, straining every energy in this awful work of mutual destruction; think of the holocaust of lives, the fearful sufferings; and then think that, had Britain taken heed of Lord Roberts' warning voice, had we been as well prepared on land as we were on the sea, the peace of the world would have been, in all probability, unbroken.

He refers to Australia's part in the war. I shall read only one paragraph further:

> We live in great days. The British race is being tried in the furnace. For us here in Australia, saved by the British navy from the awful horrors of war upon our own soil, this is our hour of trial. We must do our part, cost what it may. For we stand now at the parting of the ways.

Debates on this subject have taken place in the Australian House. I have here the blue books published in Australia for 1919-20.

Mr. McBRIDE: I would like to know, Mr. Chairman, what the hon. gentleman is talking about.

Mr. CHURCH: The hon. member has just entered the House and knows not what has been going on. He has himself wasted many hours of the time of the House; I have not yet heard him talk to the point. Perhaps it is just as well, sometimes, that I find it impossible to grasp what the hon. gentleman says. I may just say that he ought to be glad that he had the British navy for the protection of the part of the country he lives in.

In this report, Mr. Chairman, which is volume 14 of the official year book of the Commonwealth of Australia, you will find a statement headed: "Annual defence expenditure, 1901-02 to 1920-21." The estimate for this year is £3,453,158, or about $16,000,000. I may say that I have also before me the figures with respect to New Zealand so far as expenditure for naval defence is concerned. I quote the following from the Australian year book as indicating what Australia has done in this respect:

> Skilled artisans were dispatched from Australia to gain practical experience in naval ship building, construction proceeding both in Britain and Australia. Sailors of all ratings were also trained for the Commonwealth service. The first instalment of the Australian fleet unit consisted of two torpedo boat destroyers, of British construction, commissioned in September, 1910, and named Paramatta and Yarrow. A third destroyer, the Warrego, was shipped to Sydney in parts, and was re-erected at the Commonwealth dockyard, Cockatoo Island, Sydney, and commissioned on first June, 1912.

The battle cruiser Australia was commissioned in June, 1913, and arrived in Australian waters in the following September. Two light cruisers, the Melbourne and Sydney, arrived in Australian waters in 1913, and two submarines in 1914. A third cruiser, the Brisbane, and three more destroyers, the Swan, Huon and Torrens, were built at the Commonwealth Naval dockyard, Sydney. Another cruiser, the Adelaide, is under construction at the Commonwealth Naval Dockyard.

Then it goes on to refer to the different lines of expenditure on naval defence, setting forth an estimated cost of fleet unit amounting to £6,508,218, a little over $30,000,000.

At the invitation of the Australian government Admiral Sir Reginald Henderson visited Australia to offer his advice upon naval matters generally. I would like to point out also that a naval college has been established at Captain's Point, Jervis bay, consisting of numerous buildings necessary to the training of naval officers. A motion was put forward in the Australian House to do away with this college, and I would like to point out that many members of the Australian House who do not believe in war or dreadnaughts or torpedo boats stood by the college because, as they said, it trained the young men with a view to building up Australia as a maritime nation, enabling her to operate her merchant vessels in time of peace and to defend her shores in time of war or emergency.

At the invitation of the Government Lord Jellicoe visited Australia, in May, 1919, to advise the Australian authorities on the question of naval operations, not only from the defence standpoint, but from the standpoint of the merchant marine.

Mr. CANNON: May I ask my hon. friend a question? What value does he attach to Lord Jellicoe's opinion in view of his strategy at the battle of Jutland?

Mr. CHURCH: If the Prime Minister will give the hon. member time to-morrow, he may be able to go on with the debate and discuss Jutland. It was good for Quebec and his constituents that he had the protection of the British fleet. When we come to Canada, what is this country doing in the matter of defence? Canada from time immemorial has been content to sponge on Great Britain, not only for naval defence, but for every other kind of defence. The policy of the people of Canada was set out in 1910 right in this House, and it was said there was no emergency in this country. I have shown that both Australia and New Zealand said there was an emergency, and so firmly were they convinced of it that in order to protect their trade they voted these large sums of money for their naval defence. Canada is in a most humiliating position in regard to this matter, and I say that advisedly. I appreciate the high costs of ships per ton, the high cost of money at the present time, and the high cost of material, but I do say that the merchant marine of this country has never had a chance. It has been regarded merely as an appendage of the railway system, with the result that Canada is to-day very many miles behind the times so far as her merchant marine is concerned. It has never had a chance, and if the Government would only have Lord Beatty, Admiral of the fleet, report on the question of the merchant marine and Canada's Naval Defence and see what could be done to nurse this important industry, I say that it would be a splendid thing for the country, not only in the matter of freight rates but in the development of business generally.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: I rise to a point of order, Mr. Chairman. My hon. friend is talking about the merchant marine and we are discussing the naval estimates. I submit that he is entirely out of order.

The CHAIRMAN: I rule that the point of order is well taken.

Mr. MARTELL: I submit that the hon. member was discussing the merchant marine to show that by its abolition, we should have a lot more money for naval expenditure, which means that the public—

The CHAIRMAN: I would point out to the hon. member that the ruling of the Chair has been given, and while it would have been competent for him before to discuss the point of order raised, he is out of order now.

Mr. CHURCH: I am urging the Government to bring down their naval policy. It is humiliating to have this two-penny half-penny policy for a people of nine or ten millions, especially in view of the record the Canadian people made in this war. It simply means that we are sponging on the British people for naval and land defence. I would advocate a broad-minded policy, and it would really be an economy, if we had a proper shipbuilding programme for the lakes. It would help to solve not only the merchant marine problem, but the transportation problem, and unemployment, and would give us naval defence, and our ships would be able to sail the seven seas and get some of the trade which this country should get as a result of the war. Certainly we are not getting the proportion now that we should get. I wish to quote from a little book called "The Fleets behind the Fleet" by W. Macneile Dixon, Professor in the University of Glasgow, to show that the great industrial expansion of Great Britain has not been due to free trade and Cobdenism but has been contributed to largely by the union of coal and steel and by the merchant marine. I say that every dollar spent on the merchant marine is a dollar spent on naval defence and for the expansion of trade and commerce, and that is also the view of this writer. He says that Canada should take a leaf out of the book of the Mother Country in this respect and goes on to speak of the merchant marine and the Royal navy.

> The Royal navy is the heir of the merchant service, the inheritor of its fighting spirit and tradition. Not till Victoria's reign was any clear line of division drawn between the merchant sailor and the man-of-war's-man.
>
> Histories as they have too often been written, obscure the vision and provide a false perspective. Faithful chronicles no doubt of the red-letter days of battle, but how few and far between were the battles in our long naval wars! Too often the histories speak of the navy as if it were a thing apart, a mere fighting instrument, and forget to tell us of the fleets behind the fleet: of the merchant sailors and the fishermen, the pioneers and the builders of our sea-supported confederacy.
>
> These "traders", it was said of the Elizabethan seamen, "escaped the notice of kings and chroniclers.' Nevertheless, it was those men who saved England and America from becoming provinces of Spain.
>
> The "navy" as we call it, what has history to say of it? That until the reign of Henry VIII, the pious founder of the Royal navy, it was, in fact, neither more nor less than England's mercantile marine. As for Elizabeth's tall ships and proud captains, Drake and Hawkins and Frobisher and many another, they were stout merchant skippers, and of the fleet which met the Great Armada, near upon two hundred sail, but thirty-four belonged to the Queen's navy.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: If my hon. friend intends to speak very much longer, perhaps he would let me know, and then I can say what I have to say.

Mr. CHURCH: I would say to the Prime Minister I shall be glad to talk for one, two or three days, if necessary and advisable.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The reason I asked my hon. friend the question was because I think there has been some misunderstanding as to the nature of a remark I made at the time the hon. member for Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) got up to speak. I intimated then that that I was quite prepared to stay here all night to get through the debate in order to get on with the business of the House. I understand that hon. gentlemen opposite have construed that as a threat on the Government's part to keep this committee sitting all night if need be, and that some of them have arranged to have a series of speeches running well on to the morning. Now I have no desire whatever to have any remark of mine construed as a threat—nothing could be further from my mind than such an intention. I did say, and I repeated it later on, that I thought most of the members of the House were anxious to get through with business and we would do so by bringing to a close, if possible, to-night a debate which has been going on for a couple of days. I certainly feel that the House has got an entirely wrong impression of what I had in mind if it thought my words implied a threat in any way. The statement I made was that if there were a desire to continue, and if members on the other side would so indicate by rising I would be quite willing the debate should be adjourned. Only the hon. member for Centre Vancouver rose. I desire that there shall not be any misunderstanding as to the attitude of the Government. We have every desire to give every hon. member who wishes to speak the opportunity to place his views before the House. If, therefore, there are several hon. members who still wish to speak I am quite willing that my hon. friend who now has the floor should adjourn the debate, and that the committee should rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again.

Mr. CHURCH: Then I move that the committee rise and report progress.

Mr. ROSS (Kingston): I did intend to say a few words, but I wish to say that I am not in any combine to detain the House. Unless I had something that I thought would be of practical use in the debate I would take no part in it, I do not think that any hon. member can say that I unnecessarily detain the House.

Mr. STEVENS: I would also like to explain that there is no understanding of the kind alluded to.

The CHAIRMAN: It has been moved by Mr. Church that the committe rise and report progress.

Mr. GRAHAM: Before you leave the Chair, Mr. Chairman, may I say that I am generally very easy to get along with but I do not think the Opposition is treating me in a matter that is exactly fair. This is the third time Naval Estimates have been postponed. I postponed bringing them in at the request of the Opposition because certain members were away. I did so because I wanted to accommodate them. The other day when these naval estimates were up, at the request of the leader of the Opposition I kept back this large item and set a day for its discussion, with the inference of course that the discussion would be concluded to-night. Now I find my convenience is not considered by the Opposition. I do not wish to complain but I have to go away to-morrow in order to fulfil an engagement. That means that my estimates will have to be further postponed, and I do not know for how long. If the courtesy is only going to be on one side I shall not be so courteous the next time.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not really understand the minister in making this reference.

Mr. GRAHAM: I do.

Mr. MEIGHEN: It is true that the Opposition asked for the postponement of the Defence Bill for a certain reason.

Mr. GRAHAM: My estimates have been postponed three times at the request of the Opposition.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Postponements are quite usual and are always granted. On Friday after the minister had stated his naval policy I suggested that we might go on with the other estimates, but I said I did not think this item should pass—that it was one of the most important matters; indeed by far the most important—that has been before this House. The minister should not have expected that the criticism should come immediately after his pronouncement of policy. The request for postponement was a most reasonable one.

Mr. GRAHAM: Certainly.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is the Opposition doing to-night?

Mr. GRAHAM: Talking against time absolutely, as the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) certainly has been doing.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not think my hon. friend is fair in saying that. There has been no such purpose in view. The comment he makes is unfair and unworthy of him; there was no purpose whatever to obstruct the minister's estimates. There was a purpose to have an opportunity for discussion on the part of those who wished to fairly discuss the estimates. That is the only stand we take. Furthermore, if the minister had been in the last Parliament he would know something about what obstruction and unfairness to the government was.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. GRAHAM: Allow me just a moment. I do not wish to be misunderstood, or to allow my right hon. friend to say that the postponment was in reference to some bill. On three distinct occasions I was asked to postpone the estimates and I did so.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not dispute that.

Mr. GRAHAM: Well, I think there ought to be some little reciprocity.

Mr. MEIGHEN: If the minister wants the postponement we are quite willing to meet his wishes. If he is not able to be present to-morrow we are quite ready to take this matter up again on Thursday. We do not desire to unnecessarily exhaust any time at all.

Mr. GRAHAM: I leave it to the judgment of the House whether my statement is correct or not.

Mr. MARTELL: In the Montreal Herald to-day there is a despatch—

Mr. CHAIRMAN: I call the attention of the member for Hants to the fact that there is nothing before the committee at the present time. The motion to report progress has been carried.

Progress reported.

On motion of Mr. Mackenzie King the House adjourned at one a.m., Wednesday.

Wednesday, May 17, 1922.

The House met at three o'clock.

AGRICULTURE AND COLONIZATION

MOTION FOR ATTENDANCE OF SENATOR McCOIG

Mr. W. F. KAY (Missisquoi) moved:

That a message be sent to the Senate requesting that their Honours will give leave to the Hon. Archibald B. McCoig, one of their members, to attend and give evidence before the Select Standing Committee on Agriculture and Colonization.

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): Is this motion based on any report of the committee? And if so, has that report been presented? Of course, if it has not been presented, I presume that no motion based on it can be moved.

Mr. KAY: This motion, Mr. Speaker, is for the purpose of securing the attendance of the Hon. Mr. McCoig before the committee in order to examine him on the standardization of repair parts for agricultural implements, a matter not yet before the committee, but we wish to take it up at a later date.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not think it is in order for a motion to be made on behalf of the Committee on Agriculture without a report from that committee being first presented.

Hon. H. H. STEVENS: (Centre Vancouver): This matter was discussed in the committee, and unquestionably it should be part of the report of the committee's proceedings. Why a report has not been presented to-day in the usual manner is, I think, a fit subject of inquiry. The rules of the House require that a report should be presented. None was presented when the appropriate order was called.

Hon. T. A. CRERAR (Marquette): I think in this case, Mr. Speaker, opposition to the motion should be withdrawn. I understand it is the intention of the committee to investigate the standardization of repair parts for farm implements. Senator McCoig has given the matter a lifelong study and probably is as well informed in regard to it as any man in this Parliament. I understand he is willing to attend and give evidence, and, if so, I see no reason why any technical objection should be raised by my hon. friend for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens). I think the motion might very well be adopted and so expedite investigation of this very important matter.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar) wholly misunderstands me. I wish to submit this to you, Mr. Speaker, as a point of order. The subject matter of this resolution was discussed in the committee to-day. In the ordinary course it should form part of the committee's report. I have absolutely no objection to the motion, except that I cannot understand why the ordinary procedure was departed from and no report presented to the House; at least, I have not been able to learn of any up to this moment. I submit, Sir, that this resolution cannot possibly be moved until a report of the committee incorporating this resolution is submitted to the House.

Mr. SPEAKER: The point of order is well taken. A notice is required. The motion stands until the report is presented to the House.

Motion stands.

QUESTIONS

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

CHARTERED BANKS—NOTES, DEPOSITS, ETC.

Mr. COOTE:

1. What was the largest amount of notes, of Canadian chartered banks, in circulation in each of the years 1901, 1911 and 1921?
2. What was the largest amounts of deposits of these banks with the Minister of Finance for security of note circulation during each of these years?
3. What was the largest amount of deposits of these banks in central gold reserves during each of the said years?
4. What was the largest amount of railway and other bonds, debentures and stocks held by these banks in each of said years?
5. What was the largest amount of call and short loans in Canada of said banks in each of these years?
6. What was the largest amount of call and short loans elsewhere than in Canada in each of said years?
7. What was the largest amount of real estate other than bank premises held by said banks in each of these years?
8. What was the largest amount of loans of said banks, to directors and firms of which they are partners, in each of these years, and does this amount include loans to incorporated companies, of which they are directors?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING:

	1901	1911	1921
1.	$60,397,097	$111,943,580	$229,608,213
2.	2,568,918	5,815,000	6,529,310
3.	——	——	95,302,533
4.	33,061,712	64,889,452	46,605,691
5.	39,324,335	72,640,526	113,818,308
6.	50,963,477	104,009,030	193,001,119
7.	1,078,810	1,575,328	4,582,328
8.	12,834,058	10,348,216	11,130,653

The return specified by the Bank Act is of the "aggregate amount of loans to directors, and firms of which they are partners."

IMMIGRATION DEPARTMENT APPOINTMENTS

Hon. Mr. STEVENS:

1. Has the Government under contemplation the appointment of a representative of the Immigration Department in China?
2. Has the Government received an application from W. W. B. McInnes (former judge of the County Court of British Columbia, and candidate in the last election for the Liberal party), to be appointed immigration commissioner with headquarters at Canton?

3. Is the Government aware of any application being made by said W. W. B. McInnes, or any other person, to the Civil Service Commission for such appointment?

4. If such an appointment is made, what will be the powers and duties of persons so appointed?

5. In the opinion of the Government would such an appointment facilitate the emigration of Chinese to Canada?

Hon. Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil):

1. No.

2. No formal application received.

3. Answered by No. 2.

4 and 5. Answered by No. 1.

COMBINES INVESTIGATION ACT

Mr. CHURCH:

1. What prosecutions have been held, and how many each year, against trusts and combines and combinations, in restraint of trade in Canada from 1909 to 1922?

2. Is it the intention of the Government to hold an inquiry into the high cost of tobacco, cigarettes and cigars?

3. Is it the intention of the Government to hold a fair price inquiry into the high cost of the necessities of life in Canada?

Hon. Mr. MURDOCK:

1. As regards prosecutions under federal legislation, no prosecutions were held against trusts and combines and combinations in restraint of trade in Canada from 1909 to 1922, but under the Combines Investigation Act, which received the Royal assent on May 4, 1910, a Board of Investigation was established in February, 1911, by the Minister of Labour to inquire into an alleged combine on the part of the United Shoe Machinery Company of Canada in the manufacture and sale of machinery used in the making of boots and shoes, and the report of the Board received by the Minister of Labour on October 21, 1912, declared the United Shoe Machinery Company to be a combine. No other investigations were ordered under the terms of the Combines Investigation Act and the Statute itself was repealed by clause 15 of the Combines and Fair Prices Act, July 7, 1919. The existing law for dealing with trusts, combines and mergers in restraint of trade is confined to the provisions of the Criminal Code. The Government has no information as regards prosecutions under provincial laws.

2. It is not deemed necessary to hold such an inquiry at present.

3. Answered by No. 2.

[Mr. Stevens.]

CHARLES DAUPHINEE

Mon. Mr. BAXTER:

1. Was Charles Dauphinee, janitor of the Public Building at Lunenburg, dismissed?

2. If so (a) when and (b) for what reason?

3. Did any one make representations with regard to Mr. Dauphinee, to the department?

4. If so, who made such representations, of what nature were they, and when were they made?

5. Was any investigation held as to the conduct of Mr. Dauphinee?

6. If so, when, by whom, and was he given an opportunity of meeting any charges made against him?

Hon. Mr. KING (Kootenay):

1. Yes.

2. (a) April 30, 1922. (b) Public interest.

3. 4. 5 and 6. Representations were made to the minister which he considers satisfactory without an investigation, and assumes responsibility for the dismissal.

OLEOMARGARINE

Mr. LADNER:

1. Have there been any regulations issued under the act which permits the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine controlling the manufacture and sale of this product in Canada?

2. If so, what are these regulations: (a) as to the manufacture of oleomargarine; (b) as to its wholesale distribution; and (c) as to its retail distribution?

3. What branch or branches of the Department of Agriculture, or other government department, are charged with the enforcement of these regulations (a) as to its manufacture; and (b) as to its distribution and sale?

Hon. Mr. MOTHERWELL:

1. Yes.

2. (a) Regulations as to manufacture:

Licenses to manufacture oleomargarine shall be issued only to such applicants as have satisfied the minister that any building or buildings in which the applicant proposed to manufacture the oleomargarine is well lighted and ventilated, constructed of suitable material and provided with sanitary conveniences; that there can be no contamination of the oleomargarine by objectionable odours from packing houses, fertilizer or other sources; that the machinery and equipment is modern and capable of easy and efficient cleaning, and that the probable output of the proposed establishment will be sufficiently large to justify the employment of an inspector.

No oleomargarine shall be manufactured in Canada except under the supervision of inspectors appointed by the minister.

No oleomargarine shall be manufactured in Canada in any premises used for or connected with the manufacture or reworking of butter.

All materials intended to be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine shall be inspected and approved before being used for such purpose. The inspector may at any time take samples of any such materials for analysis.

No oleo oil or neutral lard shall be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine unless it is the production of an abattoir under the inspection of the minister, and bears the Government inspection mark, or has been manufactured in the country of origin under inspection satisfactory to the minister and is at the time of importation covered by the official markings and export inspection certificate of the country of origin.

No milk shall be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine unless it is from non-reacting tuberculin tested cows, or has been pasteurized under the supervision of an inspector appointed by the minister, and no butter shall be used in such manufacture unless it is free from rancidity or any objectionable odour.

No preservative other than salt shall be used for the preservation of oleomargarine.

No person other than a licensed manufacturer of oleomargarine shall mix oleomargarine and butter.

No person shall manufacture, import into Canada, or shall sell, offer, expose or have in possession for sale any oleomargarine unless the word "oleo" is stamped on the surface of the oleomargarine in capital block letters at least one and one-half inches high and of proportional width.

Every person who either imports, manufactures, or sells oleomargarine wholesale shall keep a special book in which is entered the date of each importation, purchase, sale and shipment of oleomargarine, and the quantity so imported, sold or shipped, the person from which it has been purchased and to whom it has been sold or shipped, and the place from, in, or to which it was imported, sold or shipped, and the name of the railway or steamship company or other transportation agency by which such oleomargarine was transported, and such books shall at all times be open for inpection for any person authorized by the minister to examine same. This special book shall contain no entries or information other than required by this regulation.

(b) Regulations as to distribution:

No person shall sell, offer, expose or have in possession for sale in Canada any oleomargarine manufactured wholly from vegetable oils unless it is so designated upon all labels, brands or other markings.

No person shall manufacture, import into Canada, or shall sell, offer, expose or have in possession for sale any oleomargarine unless the word "oleo" is stamped on the surface of the oleomargarine in capital block letters at least one and one-half inches high and of proportional width.

No person shall sell, offer, expose, or have in possession for sale in Canada any oleomargarine unless it is contained in—

(1) the original package which shall bear the official inspection mark of the country of origin, together with the name and address of the manufacturer; or,

(2) a small package wrapped separately having on the label or wrapper the word "Oleomargarine" printed or marked so as to form the most conspicuous word on the label or wrapper, as well as bearing the official inspection mark of the country of origin, together with the name and address of the manufacturer.

(3) provided, however, that no person shall sell, offer, expose or have in possession for sale in Canada any oleomargarine bearing on the package or container thereof the trademark or the name of the manufacturer in which is included any of the words "butter," "creamery," "dairy," or the name of any breed of cattle.

No label, brand or other marking shall be used in connection with the sale of oleomargarine until it has been approved by the Minister. Such approval may be withdrawn at any time on account of the violation of any provisions of The Oleomargarine Act, 1919, and an Act to amend the Oleomargarine Act, 1919, or any regulation made thereunder, whether such violation is due to the action of the manufacturer either in Canada or elsewhere, or of any wholesale dealer or other person who may be interested in the sale of oleomargarine bearing such label or brand.

No person shall sell, offer, expose, or have in his possession for sale any oleomargarine moulded or cut into prints or blocks unless such prints or blocks are of full net weight or one-half pound or one pound.

Every person who either imports, manufactures, or sells oleomargarine wholesale shall keep a special book in which is entered the date of each importation, purchase, sale and shipment of oleomargarine, and the quantity so imported, sold or shipped, the person from whom it has been purchased and to whom it has been sold or shipped, and the place from, in, or to which it was imported, sold or shipped, and the name of the railway or steamship company or other transportation agency by which such oleomargarine was transported, and such books shall at all times be open for inspection for any person authorized by the minister to examine same. This special book shall contain no entries or information other than required by this regulation.

(c) Answered by (b) with the exception of last paragraph.

3. (a) The Health of Animals branch; (b) The Dairy and Cold Storage branch.

COTTON INDUSTRIES—WAGES AND HOURS

Mr. St. PERE:

1. Has the Minister of Labour received, from the cotton manufacturers of Quebec and Nova Scotia, statements in regard to the number of hours which are devoted to these industries by the employees, and the wages they receive in return?

2. If so, why were the statistics concerning said cotton industries, where the employees work fifty-two or fifty-five hours per week, not published in the Labour Gazette?

3. Why were these statistics not published for each province as in the past?

4. Are the returns made to the Department of Labour considered confidential?

Hon. Mr. MURDOCK:

1. Reports as to hours and wages have been received by the Department of Labour from cotton manufacturers in the province named. The reports are furnished on the understanding that the information in them is regarded as confidential.

2. Considerable information as to hours and wages is published in bulletins issued by the Department of Labour as supplements to the Labour Gazette. In view of the understanding on which the information is received care is taken that any information published shall not reveal the identity of a particular firm.

3. Statistics as to hours and wages cannot be published by provinces where such publication would reveal the identity of a particular firm. The latest bulletin on this subject, issued February 1922, gave information as to hours and wages in the textile industry, but the circumstances under which the particulars were secured would not permit the information being arranged by provinces.

4. Yes.

C. H. BLAND

Mr. FOURNIER:

1. How many times has the classification of C. H. Bland, of the Civil Service Commission, been changed since he became connected with Commission?

2. On what dates were these changes made and what was the maximum and minimum salary in each case?

3. What salary did the said Mr. Bland receive on his appointment to the said Commission?

4. Was his title of classification changed on the 9th of May last with a minimum and maximum salary of $3,900 and $4,400?

5. What amount of back pay will he be entitled to on account of the last change of classification?

6. What amount in all has he received in back pay on account of previous changes in his classification?

Hon. Mr. COPP:

1. Mr. C. H. Bland was classified Assistant Secretary of the Civil Service Commission as from April 1st, 1919, salary range $3,060 to $3,420. This was amended as from the 1st February, 1921 to "Assistant Secretary and Chief Examiner", with a salary range of $3,660 to $4,020. The salary range was amended on the 9th May, 1922 to minimum $3,900, maximum $4,440.

2. Answered by No. 1.

3. $800.

4. Answered by No. 1.

5. $280.

6. $1,315.

L'ASSOMPTION AND MONTCALM LIGHT-KEEPERS

Mr. SEGUIN:

1. What are the names and respective residences of the light keepers in the counties of l'Assomption and Montcalm, Quebec?

2. How many of said light keepers were dismissed from the service from September 21st, 1911 to January, 1921, and by whom were they replaced?

3. Who recommended said dismissals and appointments?

[Mr. Murdock.]

Hon. Mr. LAPOINTE:

1. Leopold Rivest, Aime Payette, Repentigny, P.Q.; Jean Baptiste Giguere, Lucidas Beaudoin, Arthur Payette, Hormidas Dupuis, Zenon Plouffe, Ovila Peltier, St. Sulpice, P.Q.; J. Oscar Lachapelle, Eloi Thouin, Repentigny, P.Q.; Alphonse Chicoine, Jr., St. Sulpice, P.Q.

2 and 3. None. Prior to 1914, however, a light was maintained at Ile a la Bague and the keeper thereof, Louis Dubois, was dismissed for political partisanship as a result of an investigation held on representations made by Mr. Jos. Morin, K.C., of Montreal, supported by a petition from certain electors of Repentigny Parish. Mr. Eloi Thouin was appointed to replace him on the recommendation of Mr. Morin, K.C. On the discontinuance of this light in 1914, Mr. Thouin was transferred to the keepership of the back light of the range at Ile Lebel.

ALIEN ENEMY PROPERTY

Mr. BLACK (Yukon):

1. Who are the officials who have charge of the clearing house for alien enemy property?

2. Are they officials of the Government?

3. If so, do they receive extra salary for the above work?

4. What is the permanent salary of each, and what the extra amount for alien work?

Hon. Mr. COPP:

1. Custodian, The Honourable the Secretary of State; Deputy Custodian, The Under-Secretary of State; Assistant Deputy Custodian and Controller of the Clearing Office, H. Spencer Relph; Official in charge Property, Rights and Interests, William Pemberton Morling; Acountant, A. H. Mathieu; Chief Claims Clerk, Joseph Leslie.

2. The Deputy Custodian is a permanent official of the Department of the Secretary of State. The other officials have been temporarily appointed under and by virtue of the Treaty of Versailles, and The Treaty of Peace (Germany) Order 1920, and are solely engaged in work of this nature.

3. No.

4. Permanent salaries: Under-Secretary of State, $6,000; Assistant Deputy Custodian, $4,500; Official in charge Property Rights and Interests, $2,500; Acountant, $2.500; Chief Claims Clerk, $2,500.

OTTAWA-KINGSTON PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY

Mr. GARLAND (Carleton):

1. Has any Federal grant been paid on the cost of the provincial highway from Ottawa to Kingston, Ontario?

2. Were tenders called for the laying of that portion of this highway between Ottawa and Carleton Place?

3. If so, who submitted tenders and for what amounts?

4. Who were the successful tenderers, and what was the amount in each case?

5. Were any quarries purchased on this section of the above highway?

6. If so, who purchased same, and for what amount in each case?

7. From whom were the quarries purchased and what are the locations?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

No project having been filed by the Ontario Government with the Federal Highways Branch, and no agreement having been entered into under the Canada Highways Act, the Department of Railways and Canals has no information concerning the road in question.

QUESTIONS PASSED AS ORDERS FOR RETURNS

Mr. GORDON:

1. What was the consumption of binder twine and rope, in the various provinces of Canada, during the year 1921?

2. How much of this was manufactured in Canada?

Mr. LANCTOT:

1. What was the cost, in each Military District, of transportation, in connection with the Army Service Corps?

2. How many horses, automobiles, motor trucks and other vehicles are there in the Army Service Corps?

3. How many officers and men make up this section of the Militia?

4. What was the total value of all equipment of the Army Service Corps, and what amount was spent on upkeep and repairs to equipment, including forage, sickness, etc., during the year ending March 31st, 1922?

5. Would this service cost less to the country if the forage, supplies, and transportation were given by contract each year to an individual, according to lowest tender, or done by day work?

UNOPPOSED MOTION FOR PAPERS

Mr. BOYS:

For a copy of all correspondence exchanged between the Government of Italy and the Canadian Government, in reference to the International Conference now being held at Genoa, Italy, including the Order in Council appointing delegates for Canada, and all instructions given to the said delegates by the Government of Canada.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

EMPIRE DAY AND ASCENSION DAY—ADJOURNMENT

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): I beg to move, in accordance with notice given, that when the House adjourns on Tuesday, May 23rd, it stand adjourned until Friday, May 26.

Mr. HOCKEN: I would suggest to the leader of the Government that we adjourn until the following Monday. That would make it possible for those hon. members, who do not want to hang around Ottawa for two days, to go home.

Mr. GAUVREAU: I suggest that we sit on Saturday.

Mr. CRERAR: I dissent from the suggestion of my hon. friend from Toronto (Mr. Hocken). There are a good many members of the House from the maritime provinces and the far West who are desirous of having the business expedited as rapidly as possible. It is only a few hours journey to Toronto, where my hon. friend lives, and he can doubtless go home on Tuesday evening and return on Friday.

Mr. HOCKEN: If the idea is to conserve time, then I think that we might sit Wednesday nights and on Saturdays as well. I am perfectly satisfied to stay here all the time if hon. members are anxious to get the business of the House done. Let us adjourn over the 24th and come back on Thursday.

Motion agreed to.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. O. R. GOULD (Assiniboia): I would call the attention of the House to a statement made in the Ottawa Citizen of May 17 in regard to the proposed amendment of the Insurance Act. In that statement reference is made to the Woodmen of the World. I desire to state for the information of the House, and in justice to the Association, that the name of this body was never mentioned in committee at all. I believe that the Superintendent of Insurance advised the reporter that it might be as well not to mention the name of the company that was responsible for the suggestion regarding the proposed amendment.

SUPPLY

RAILWAYS AND CANALS

The House in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Railways and Canals—Amount not exceeding $42,800,000 to meet expenditures made, or indebtedness incurred (where amount available from net operating earnings may be insufficient) by or on behalf of the Canadian National Railway Company, the Canadian Northern Railway Company or any company comprised of the Canadian Northern system, or any one or more of them, on any of the following accounts: (a) Operating deficits. (b) Acquisition of property, materials and supplies. (c) Interest and sinking funds on notes, securities or obligations. (d) Principal and interest of maturing or matured loans secured or unsecured. (e) Construction and betterments. (f) Co-ordination or consolidation of railway lines and facilities. The amount herein authorized may be applied from time to time, in the discretion of the Governor in Council, by way of loans in cash or by way of guarantee, or partly one way and partly the other. If by way of loans, the amount or amounts advanced shall be repayable on demand, with interest at the rate fixed by the Governor in Council, payable half-yearly, secured by mortgage or mortgages upon such properties, in such form and containing such terms and conditions, not inconsistent herewith, as the Governor in Council may approve. If by way of guarantee, any such guarantee may be of the principal and interest of the notes and obligations or securities of one or more of the said companies specified by the Governor in Council, and may be signed by the Minister of Finance, on behalf of His Majesty, in such form and on such terms and conditions as the Governor in Council may determine to be appropriate and applicable thereto, $42,800,000.

Hon. WILLIAM C. KENNEDY (Minister of Railways and Canals): This appropriation is required by the Canadian Northern Railway, as approved by the board of directors of the Canadian National Railways, for the year ending March 31, 1923. These estimates were prepared by the officials of the Canadian National Railways, submitted to and approved by the board of directors, and then laid before the Department of Railways and Canals. I am assured by the management that the moneys asked for are necessary in order to operate successfully the Canadian Northern railway during the coming year. In the course of the statement I submitted to the House some time ago in connection with the railways I said that in the matter of improvements and betterments we were laying new rails only for replacement purposes. That was thought advisable in view of the hope we entertained that in the near future we might have a unified system with one board of directors; and we felt that responsibility for any capital investment should properly be assumed by them. In arriving at that conclusion, I think it is only right to say that neither the management of the railway, the directors, nor the Government, have lost sight of the fact that there are extensions that should be made in the West, and when opportunity offers these extensions will be given every consideration. I have before me to-day an analysis of this vote of $42,800,000 as follows:

Construction	$1,286,164 00
Betterments—
Western lines	4,099,525 00
Eastern lines	2,031,390 00
Halifax & Southwestern Railway	112,235 00
Co-ordination	1,452,757 00
Right of way surveys	77,000 00
Hotel department	34,595 00
Telegraph department, railway	186,378 00
Telegraph department, commercial	110,734 00
Canadian National Express equipment	.....
Stores department	74,222 00
Materials and supplies, fuel, ties, etc	.....
Special items	285,000 00
	$9,750,000 00
Financial—
Operating account	5,000,000 00
Taxes	750,000 00
Fixed charges interest	18,667,120 02
Sinking fund	1,113,133 33
Equipment principal	4,767,000 00
Securities maturing	2,500,000 00
Purchase of securities of subsidiary companies
Contracts payable	223,827 62
	$33,021,080 97
Grand total	$42,771,080 97
Vote No. 136	$42,800,000 00

I have not the contracts for land but they bring the total up to about $42,800,000. I shall be pleased to give the House all the information I can. I hope I have most of it here, and anything I do not have I shall be only too glad to obtain and present at the earliest possible moment.

Mr. EULER: I note the minister anticipates a deficit of $5,000,000 on operating account for the coming year. How does that compare with last year?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Last year $5,000,000 was the estimated operating deficit.

Mr. EULER: I understand that you are now making an appropriation for the coming year, and that the estimated operating deficit was $5,000,000.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The operating deficit last year was estimated at $5,000,000, but actually it amounted to $12,827, 411.

Mr. EULER: Do you expect to decrease that this year?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes, according to these figures. This year we have an estimate of $5,000,000, and I am informed that we hope to be able to hold the deficit down to the estimate.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): Does that cover the whole system?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The Canadian Northern.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Is the hon. gentleman quite certain he is right as to the estimated deficit on the Canadian Northern lines last year? Speaking from memory, I am pretty sure that the deficit estimated then was more than it actually turned out to be.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): This deficit of $12,000,000 takes care of fifteen months last year.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Instead of the deficit turning out to be more than the minister's estimate, it is my recollection that it turned out to be less. The minister will see a reference to that in the last debate, when the figures were given.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): That was on fixed charges.

Mr. MEIGHEN: No, fixed charges could not be less. I do not know the period referred to by the minister a year ago, but the deficit was estimated at a certain figure and the actual deficit turned out to be less than the estimate, not more.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I am dealing with the fiscal year and am giving the deficit as announced to the House last year when the Estimates were up, namely, $5,000,000 for the Canadian Northern system. It is the same this year, but last year in the actual working out the deficit turned out to be $12,000,000 odd for the fifteen months. My hon. friend is dealing with the calendar year, and I am dealing with the fiscal year.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I do not think that really makes any difference. The point is not of very great consequence, but I think I shall be able to show the minister that the estimate was more than the actual deficit turned out to be, whatever the period was.

Mr. CRERAR: I understand that the figure that has been given for the estimated deficit on operating account this year covers only what is known as the Canadian Northern lines.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): That is all.

Mr. CRERAR: It does not include the Transcontinental.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): No.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: What does the item "Co-ordination" refer to?

Mr. MEIGHEN: I understand that co-ordination was to save money. I did not think we would have to vote money to pay for that work.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I think we will, but spending money on co-ordination will mean a great saving in the actual working out. We must, however, pay for the arrangements that are necessary in order to effect co-ordination. As far as the item itself is concerned it includes for co-ordination facilities:

$250,900 at Quebec and Limoilou;
$142,000 for the purpose of making a connection between the Canadian Northern and G.T.P. at Rowan, a point just west of Fort William;
$475,000 for the construction of a yard at Ft. William, and $171,000 for the consolidation of terminal facilities at Jasper, Lucerne and the Yellowhead pass.

The balance is made up of a number of smaller items at various points of contact between the various railroads embraced in the Canadian National system.

The amount included in this budget is the portion of the co-operation expense chargeable to the Canadian Northern railway.

Mr. MITCHELL: In view of some of the criticims that have been directed to certain members on this side, including m self, as to the stand we took during the last electoral campaign, in view of the statement made by the Government in the Speech from the Throne to the effect that they intended to give public operation of railways a fair trial, and finally in view of the statement made by the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) on the eleventh of last month, I feel that it is my duty to discuss the position maintained by us at that time. I may say that my position upon that question has not changed. I am still of the opinion that I was before and during the campaign; but in view of the statement that has been made by the Minister of Railways I feel that I owe some explanation, not only to the House but to my constituency and to the people of my native province where I discussed this question very freely. I realize and understand that there are many hon. members of this House, and many men throughout the country, who do not agree with the position I took during that campaign, which was to the effect that I was against public ownership and operation of railways. I have no quarrel with those who disagree with me upon this matter; they are entitled to their opinion. I respect their view fully, but I ask them to give the same thought to my own—an opinion which I can assure the House has been reached after having given a great deal of honest and sincere consideration to the question and after having studied the matter in all its aspects.

Let us endeavour, if we can, to discuss the question freely and frankly, entirely apart from all bitterness of any kind, because, to my mind, it is not a political issue and should not so be considered; it is too serious for that. It is a question which I think, should be looked upon as a national issue because, if I am right in my beliefs with respect to it, it is a danger to the very credit of our country. In saying that I only reiterate what I said during the last election campaign. In saying that I took into consideration then, and take into consideration now, the vast area of our country; I took into consideration our sparse population; I took into consideration the development that has taken place in Canada; I took into consideration the enormous debt that we have and I took into consideration the fact, as I believe, that we are taxed pretty nearly to the limit. Taking all these elements into consideration I stated then, and I state now, that I do not believe our country can stand a deficit of $72,000,000 a year—even if it is only that, and I expect to be able to show that there will be a far greater deficit on the operation of our railways during the past year. In order that there shall be no misunderstanding about the position I took upon this question during the last electoral campaign, allow me to read from the remarks I made when I accepted the nomination for St. Antoine division at the very beginning of the campaign. I said:

> My stand on the railway question is just as clear and pronounced as it is on the tariff. On general principles I am against public ownership of railways. I realize that we have the railways. I think it was a mistake to acquire them. I think it was more than a mistake to take over the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk. It was a national blunder leading to national disaster. When the Borden and Meighen régime undertook to purchase and operate the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Railways they started out on a road which leads to national bankruptcy, and the responsibility is theirs, and theirs alone. But these railways are costing $100,000,000 a year. Does any one imagine that this can continue for long? We are losing as much money in railway deficits as would build another transcontinental railway in a few years. Everybody agrees that something must be done.
>
> What is the Solution?
>
> The government should get together the best railroad brains that the world can produce. Let them not confine themselves to Canada, or the United States, but get men from Europe and elsewhere whose railway experience would help. Let them investigate this problem from beginning to end, and allow them to do it without interference. I would not allow them to be told beforehand what their report must be, nor that they would have to favour this or that town. They would be told to devise means, and when I had the report from these experts before me, I would assist in finding a solution of the railway problem—a solution satisfactory to the people of Canada—but a solution without deficits, it must be so if we are to save our country.

Again, just previous to election day I issued a manifesto to the electors of St. Antoine division which contained the following:

> The present government committed the stupendous folly of saddling the country with the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Railways, and with the Canadian Merchant Marine. I am in principle opposed to government ownership and operation of public utilities. Thanks to the present administration, however, the problem is now on our hands and must be faced. We should secure the advice of the most competent experts that can be found. We must get at the root of a system which results in yearly deficits that are staggering and that are leading Canada straight to bankruptcy. The next government must take up this question courageously and find a solution that will put an end to a financial burden that is unbearable.

These statements, I think, fairly represent the position I took on every occasion when I spoke in the province of Quebec. What is the position I took? I simply said that in principle I was against the government operation of railways. I believed that we would have a deficit of $100,000,000 a year, and I asked that we should investigate this matter. I asked that we go into the whole book-keeping systems of these great railway systems and get down to the very—root, I think, was the expression I used—down to the very bottom of this whole question of government operation of railways in this country. We must have an investigation full and complete of the book-keeping systems of the Canadian Northern, the Transcontinental Railway, and all the other railways concerned. Let us have a full and complete investigation of those book-keeping systems and place the result before Parliament and the Canadian people. In addition to that, I suggested that we should obtain the best railway experts in the world, and that we should get them from Canada or the United States. I even suggested we should go to Europe, and I made that suggestion simply because I understood and believed that they had had great experience in Europe in the operation of government railways, and I did not think that any harm could come from getting the very best railway advice whether in favour of public ownership of against it, in order that the minister could place before Parliament and the people a true inventory, a true statement, and a true solution of this vast, intricate and perplexing problem, which I believe is the most serious problem facing the Canadian people to-day.

Some hon. members opposite ridiculed my suggestion as to getting the best expert advice and accountants to investigate bookkeeping methods. I can see nothing in that suggestion calling for ridicule. I think it is good common sense, and a business method that would be adopted by any competent business administration on any of our great railways, or in any of our great corporations, if they had a like problem to deal with. If that advice had been followed in the past we might have saved hundreds of millions of dollars for this country. If that advice is not followed now, it will be followed sooner or later, because no matter what kind of a trial is given to the operations of the railways in this country, no trial would be satisfactory, either to those in favour of public operation of railways or to those who are opposed to it. No trial will be satisfactory to the Canadian public unless we know that we are getting a fair start, and unless the people who are asking for the trial know that they are getting a show for their money, and that we are going to get, at the end of the trial, a statement of facts and figures and a result that will be worth something to them.

What will happen if we do not do that? In a few months or years, whenever the occasion arises, they will come back and say that the statements were incorrect and that the trial was not fair and cannot be depended upon. If we want to give our government railways a fair trial, we require a true statement of the bookkeeping and accounting methods from one end to the other, and the best engineering advice we can obtain on this problem. When I heard the hon. Minister of Railways present to this House the other day a statement of railway operation for the last fiscal year, I was struck by the very fair and generous treatment that was given by him to the figures and accounts as presented to him by the management of these different railways. I must congratulate him upon his fairness and generosity, but I am glad to say that he coupled with that fairness and generosity a certain amount of caution, because he reiterated, time and again during his speech, that it was not his statement that he was presenting to the House, but that it was the statement of those responsible for the management and direction of the Canadian National Railways. In order to make that point clear, I quote from the statement made by the Minister of Railways a few days ago. He said:

> I would like to say that seemingly the outstanding feature of 1921 operation was the improvement in the position of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk combination.

Secondly he says:

> The National system is said to be the only transcontinental system in America whose earnings in 1921, etc.

Further on he says:

> It is claimed on behalf of the management that this reduction was not made at the expense of the property, and that deferred maintenance and betterment made during 1919 and 1920 were reflected in 1921.

He says again further on:

> It has been submitted by the management—

And again:

> The management informed me that the labour situation has greatly improved.

And again:

> I am glad to give expression to the views of the management in that regard.

And again:

> The management estimates the reductions in tie expenditure last year to have been—

The figures are then given. And again he says:

> The management state that in 1921 they did not purchase for the Intercolonial railway or ship to the Intercolonial railway east of Montreal any American coal.

And then he concludes by the statement that there has been so much criticism of the management of the Canadian National Railways, and also concerning the Grand Trunk, as to impair parliamentary and public confidence in figures and statements which have been put out from time to time. Then he concludes with the statement that he is going to appoint a committee to investigate the book-keeping methods of the Canadian National Railway system. Could there be anything clearer or more convincing than that the minister intended to throw the responsibility for all that statement he submitted to the House where it properly belongs, namely, on the management of the different railway systems which comprise the Canadian National Railways.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Is the hon. member not aware that the Government has now, and has had for years, under its charge an independent audit of the Canadian National system which reports to the Government direct, and that, consequently, if the minister does not know the real position it is his own fault.

Mr. MITCHELL: I have no knowledge whatever, except the statements that are contained in the remarks made by the Minister of Railways the other day, and if you have that independent audit to which the leader of the Opposition refers, or if we had half a dozen independent audits, it would not alter the point I have made that the Minister of Railways and the Government say that the responsibility for the management and the statement that was submitted belong to the management and to the Government which appointed that management, and which controlled it during the whole time this statement covers. The fact that an independent audit may have been made does not in the least alter the situation, because the Minister of Railways told us that the public, and even this Parliament, did not have faith in the statements that were submitted nor in the bookkeeping methods that were employed by these companies, and that, therefore, the Government were going to ask the new management to appoint an investigation committee to go into all the circumstances.

As regards the question of the deficit upon the government railways, the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) a few days ago asked the Minister of Railways whether the deficit should not have been less than it was. I think this will answer his question. If I remember correctly, the estimated deficit on the whole system last year was some $70,000,000; but that was corrected to $67,000,000, and then the Minister of Railways announced that the deficit on the Canadian National, not including the Grand Trunk, amounted to $56,000,000 in round figures.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That was not an estimate at all. The figures to which the hon. member refers were the actual figures of operation for the previous year.

Mr. MITCHELL: I thought the leader of the Opposition, when he was talking the other day in regard to the $70,000,000 and the $67,000,000, was referring to the estimate, but I may be wrong in that. In any event, the deficit last year upon the operation of the Canadian National system, not including the Grand Trunk system was $56,673,934, and the deficit on the Grand Trunk system was $15,672,298, making a total deficit of $72,346,232. By a simple process of calculation, we find that that deficit of, in round figures, $72,000,000, has added a per capita debt to our population of about $7. When we consider that the public debt of Canada at the end of the last fiscal year amounted to $2,340,000,000, or about $266 per capita, and when we find that, in the operation of our railway system, we have a deficit of $72,000,000, is it not fair for me to suggest to this House, to the Canadian people and to all these gentlemen who are in favour of government operation of railways, that we "stop, look, listen," before we go too far upon this road which, in the campaign last fall, I described as the road that was leading to disaster.

For the purpose of finding out whether that deficit of $72,000,000, which was referred to the other day by the Minister of Railways, is the actual deficit, I should like, for a moment or two, to discuss the returns which were filed by the Minister of Railways. We find that the operating expenses last year amounted to $142,784,000—my point is this, that all the savings in connection with the operation of government owned railways were savings in operating expenses. In 1920, the expenditure on this account was $162,484,000. Thus, in 1921 there was a saving of about $19,000,000 in operating expenses. I will show the committee in a few minutes how that $19,000,000 was saved in the expense account. The other day there was delight in the voice of the ex-Minister of Railways (Mr. Stewart) when he told us that the operating deficit was only $16,000,000 last year as against $36,000,000 the year before; that last year there was an improvement to the extent of $20,000,000. If hon. members will look at the monthly returns that are filed, one thing that will strike them as rather peculiar is that from the first of January to the end of June the monthly deficit in the operation of the Canadian National railways amounted to over $2,500,000 and, in some months, to nearly $3,000,000; that in the month of July we had an operating deficit of $1,261,000 and that then the surpluses began: August, $47,231; September, $504,174.87; October, $1,036,030.34; November, $734,149.65. Then in December we go back into the deficit column, and we have a deficit of $1,114,794.38. That is to say, during the first six months we had a deficit of over $2,500,000 and sometimes nearly $3,000,000 per month; then for 4 p.m.

August, September, October and November, we had surpluses; then in December we go back into the deficit column, and I understand that we are still continuing in that column. I would point out that there was a great difference between July and August, and between November and December. Hon. members will find that in the one case the actual difference amounts to $1,308,000, and in the other it amounts to $1,848,000. What I would point out to hon. members is what seems to me to be a queer coincidence, namely, that the four months during which we had surpluses in operation upon the Canadian National railways were the very four months when hon. gentlemen opposite were appealing to the Canadian people for support during the last campaign. Some hon. member may ask, what about July? If you will remember, the improvement started in the early summer and not right at the beginning of the election campaign. It will be recalled that, early in the summer, a demand was made by the press from the Atlantic to the Pacific upon the then Prime Minister (Mr. Meighen) calling upon him to go before the people of this country. That was continued day in and day out, and if I am not mistaken, the then Prime Minister stated early in the summer that he would announce his policy on the first of September. I think it was at the city of London, in the province of Ontario, that he announced that there would be a general election before the end of the year, and on the 7th October he announced dissolution, and fixed the elections for the 6th December.

Now, Sir, of course I know that hon. gentlemen opposite have often pretended that there was no interference by them with the management of the Canadian National Railways, but it does seem to me that the coincidence to which I have just referred would strike hon. members as at least somewhat remarkable.

And, further, on Thursday night we had a discussion over an Order in Council passed on the 6th October last,—the day previous to the dissolution—during the course of which we found hon. gentlemen opposite defending the Government for interfering in the management of the Canadian National Railways, and on this side we had hon. members calling for further contracts to be awarded to their particular constituencies. Is that the kind of fair trial of our railway system under public ownership that hon. members want? I agree with the opinion expressed by the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) the other night when he said that there should be no interference with the management of our National Railways whether it be by ministers of the Crown, members of Parliament or the public. It is only by freedom from such interference that our National Railway system will ever get a fair trial. If that is not possible, then I say the trial is not by any means a fair trial and the system is doomed to failure.

My reason for being against government operation of railways or similar undertakings has always been the same. While I have every confidence in the Government which I have the honour to support, in the members of this House, and in our people, yet I am afraid that until human nature is freed from the weaknesses that it has displayed for generations past, or until we have supermen in control of our Canadian National Railways who will stand inflexible against all demands whether by ministers of the Crown, members of Parliament or the public, we will not be able to get that satisfactory management and operation under public ownership suggested by the hon. member for Marquette.

Mr. GOOD: Did I understand the hon. gentleman to say that he was opposed to the principle of public ownership and operation of all public utilities?

Mr. MITCHELL: That is what I said, and I still am of that opinion. I have had some experience, not much, of the public operation of public utilities, under which description, of course, I do not include every little waterpower or electric plant in a small village or town. From my examination into the operation of such utilities I have come to the conclusion on general principles that the public pay more in taxation than they benefit from lower charges under public ownership.

But I do not want to get away from the railway question. I know that in the great province of Ontario there is public ownership and operation of one of their public utilities that the people are proud of and want continued. I do not wish to discuss that feature to-day. I am dealing solely with the question of railway operation. But in answer to my hon. friend, I say that as a result of the examination I had occasion to make, in my capacity as Minister of Municipal Affairs in the province of Quebec, into the operation and management of various publicly owned enterprises I was forced to the conclusion that no public utility of any importance can be operated to the advantage of the community under public ownership, if all the charges of every description that would be allowed for by a business organization running the same public utility were taken into account in making up the balance sheet.

Mr. SPENCER: Does the hon. member include the Post Office Department in that statement?

Mr. MITCHELL: Oh, no. The hon. gentleman knows that I do not refer to the post office or similar departments which have been run by governments from time immemorial and which have always been recognized as a part of the government's activities in any country. The hon. gentleman is evidently asking me the question in order to divert my attention from the subject of government operation of railways.

Mr. EULER: The hon. gentleman has referred to his examination into the operation of various public utilities in the province of Quebec. Would he be kind enough to be a little more definite and state the nature of the public utilities that he investigated?

Mr. MITCHELL: I do not think that is a fair question.

Mr. EULER: You referred to it.

Mr. MITCHELL: Any investigations I made were made by me as Minister of Municipal Affairs. I ask my hon. friend to accept my statement for what it is worth, and I give it to him frankly. It was my conclusion—I may be wrong; he might hold an investigation and reach a different conclusion—that public operation was not a success. I did not find one case of successful operation under public management. I trust the hon. gentleman will not ask me to give the names of the public owned corporations that I investigated.

Mr. EULER: I do not desire to be misunderstood. I was not asking for the names of the corporations that my hon. friend investigated; I was asking for the nature of the service they performed. Were they railways, gas companies, electric companies, or water companies? What service did they perform?

Mr. MITCHELL: Principally electric plants, small railways, and waterworks that were operated by various municipalities throughout the province of Quebec. Now, Sir, I want to call the attention of the House to one other fact, that not only did the improvement to the extent of $20,000,000 in the operation of our National Railways result from a decrease in the operating expenses which were under the control of the management of the Canadian Northern and the other railways forming the government system, but the Minister of Railways on behalf of the management made the following statement recently:

> It is claimed on behalf of the management that this reduction was not made at the expense of the property, and that deferred maintenance and betterments made during 1920 were reflected in 1921.

And he also stated:

> After the very heavy purchases of rolling stock and motive power in 1918, 1919, and 1920, it was not necessary to go into the market for equipment of any kind during 1921.

We have from the management of the railways the statement that the operations of 1921 benefited from improvements, betterments and maintenance and the purchase of rolling stock made previous to that year, and properly chargeable to the year 1919-20. So I say that in all fairness, you have to deduct from 1921 an amount equal to the improvements charged to 1920. In the Order in Council which was discussed the other day in this House the last clause but one reads:

> That in neither case shall expenditure incurred this year in anticipation of next year's requirements be chargeable against current operation or financing.

In other words, the government of that day took it upon themselves to instruct the management of the railways, under their direction and control, that they should charge against the year 1922 expenditures that should have been chargeable to 1921. I not only say that if that were legal, it would be wrong, but I emphatically declare that it is illegal, and there is no authority that can be found to justify that government or any other in instructing the management of the Canadian National Railways to charge against 1922 what is properly chargeable against 1921.

Mr. STEVENS: Will my hon. friend explain just how he fits that argument into the section he read from the Order in Council? I certainly cannot follow him.

Mr. MITCHELL: It occurs in several places. The Minister of Railways of that day had suggested to the management that they should anticipate an order for rails and cars, as stated by him the other night, the object being to relieve unemployment. That was done during the fall months of the year, and after he had made that suggestion to the management, he says in his report:—

Mr. CRERAR: What is the date of the Order in Council?

Mr. MITCHELL: October 6, 1921. That was the day before the dissolution of Parliament, if I mistake not. At any rate, it was about the time the Prime Minister announced the dissolution. The hon. gentleman in his report said:

> In doing so, however, it is only fair to the railways that expenditures so incurred shall not be considered a charge against the current year's operations or financing and while the management will make every effort to see that repair work undertaken outside the railway shops is done at fair and reasonable prices, any increased expenditure involved should not be charged against the railways but against such financial provision as may, from time to time, be made by the Government to deal with unemployment.

The clause before the one I read a few moments ago is as follows:

> That in placing orders for the rebuilding and repair of freight equipment the charges against the railways shall only be the fair and reasonable cost of same at the company's shops, and that any extra expenditures involved be a proper charge against unemployment generally and be regarded as such.

If the ex-Minister of Railways (Mr. Stewart) will go into the accounts he will find that operations in the year 1921 benefited from expenditures which were charged against the year 1922. And the statement that I made during the last election campaign was not at all exaggerated. The deficit on the operations of last year, if the accounts are carefully examined, will be found to have been not only $100,000,000 but considerably in excess of that amount. If on top of all that my hon. friend the ex-Minister of Railways will add the interest on the Intercolonial, the interest on the Transcontinental, and the other interest charges which, I understand, were not compounded from time to time, he will discover that I am well within the mark when I fix the deficit at $100,000,000.

Mr. CARROLL: Does my hon. friend suggest that in connection with the orders which were anticipated in October of last year, the companies got too much for the rails?

Mr. MITCHELL: Not at all. I do not suggest anything of the kind, nor do I imply that there was anything wrong in the transaction in a general business way. I am simply criticising the business method that has been pursued in connection with the government operation of railways, and I say that neither the late government nor this Government, nor any member of Parliament has the right, under a proper system of management, to tell the railways that when they anticipate and purchase something this year for next year, they shall charge the expenditure to next year's account.

Mr. CARROLL: Is the hon. member not aware that at this present time the Canadian Pacific Railway are anticipating rail requirements for next year?

Mr. MITCHELL: That statement was made the other day, I think, by the ex-Minister of Railways, and I took the trouble to inquire of the Canadian Pacific Railway as to the accuracy of it. I am informed that at no time, on no single occasion, have they ever ordered any equipment in anticipation and charged it up against the following year's accounts. They have not charged to next year something that is chargeable to this year.

Mr. CARROLL: Does my hon. friend not know that it is a fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway are this year anticipating requirements of next year for the reason that rails manufactured and kept in storage five or six hundred miles from salt water improve?

Mr. MITCHELL: I have not gone into the question of the effect of salt water on rails, nor do I dispute for a moment that the Canadian Pacific Railway or any other railway has the right to order this year any rails that they may require next year. I do not dispute that; I have not discussed that feature of the subject at all. The only point I am endeavouring to make is that you cannot order to-day something to be used in any way this year and charge it to next year's account.

I am not criticising the management of the Canadian National Railways for ordering for next year's requirements, but I am criticising the late government's suggestion that they should do that for the sake of relieving unemployment. If unemployment was the sole reason, there would be a great deal to be said for that action. But what I say is, they have no right to authorize charging to next year's account what should have been charged to 1921.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): Does the hon. member suggest that the rails authorized under Order in Council of October 6, or the cars which under that Order in Council were authorized to be repaired, entered into the operation of the system for 1921?

Mr. MITCHELL: I am not ready to say they actually did. What I ask is, that we go into the account. Because, if you take the benefits that 1921 got for the work that was done previously, and take the work which should have been charged to 1921 but was charged to 1922, you will find that the $20,000,000 of improvements disappears. I may be wrong, but I say that we are entitled, in view of the Orders in Council that were passed and the statements made by the management itself, to have an investigation to find out actually what was charged and what was not, and I can assure the ex-Minister of Railways that I shall be delighted if I find I am wrong on this point.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): The hon. gentleman has stated more than once in his remarks to-day that it was unfair to charge up to 1922 purchases authorized in 1921 and which affected the statement for the calander year 1921. I think, in view of his repeated statements, it is only fair that he should tell the House upon what he bases his remarks; because I have no hesitation in saying that the purchases authorized under that Order in Council did not enter into the operation of the system during the last calendar year.

Mr. MITCHELL: That is where I disagree with my hon. friend, and I say further, he should not require much more proof than is contained in the Order in Council itself, which says that what should be charged to this year shall be charged to next year.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): It does not say that at all.

Mr. MITCHELL: On betterments, maintenance, interest and like accounts you will find, not thousands, but millions of dollars charged to 1922 that should have been charged to 1921. In the discussion the other day I asked the ex-Minister of Railways at whose suggestion this Order in Council was passed, and in order to make the matter clear, I shall read a clause of the Order in Council which covers the point we discussed here last Thursday. I asked the Minister of Railways several times whether the instructions went from the Labour Department to the management of the railway, or whether they went to the officials of the Railway Department, and if I understood him correctly he said that the negotiations or the correspondence, or whatever it was, went on between the Labour Department and the management of the railway itself, not the Department of Railways over which he presided. I quote from the Order in Council:

> And in order that there may be no question of considerations other than unemployment influencing the placing of these orders, the minister suggests that the allocation of this business be, on the concurrence of the Minister of Labour, whose departmental officials are closely in touch with the conditions affecting labour throughout Canada, and whose officials shall co-operate with the officials of the Department of Railways in dealing with this situation so far as it affects the railways under government control—

And so on. I take the Order in Council for what it says, and it seems that the whole situation was engineered, governed and directed from the Department of Railways and the Department of Labour. Of course, I know that the solicitude of the hon. gentleman for the unemployed took a spurt just at that moment, but I could not for one moment imagine that this solicitude led to the placing of the contracts for rails and cars. The fact remains that the Order in Council of the 6th of October was not the first Order in Council that was passed for the giving of contracts for cars. We find that on the 13th of August, 1921, an Order in Council was passed, and on that occasion there is no mention at all of labour troubles. The only statement we have is one from Mr. Hanna which says that "for the convenience of the company" it might be wise—I am not quoting when I say "it might be wise"—"to give a contract to the Algoma Steel Company for 40,000 tons of rails." An Order in Council had been passed previous to that, on the 21st of April, 1921, placing an order for 50,000 tons of rails at $55. The order under that contract was not completed up to the 50,000 tons, but only up to 39,000 tons, so another Order in Council was passed on the 13th of August confirming the balance of 11,000 tons and awarding a new contract for 40,000 tons, and there was no question raised about unemployment whatsoever, except that I think the hon. member for West Algoma (Mr. Simpson) in discussing this matter said that early in the spring the question had been raised—evidently in connection with the contract authorized on the 21st of April. This is what the hon. member for West Algoma said:

I may say that strong representations were made to the management of the railway companies last spring by representatives of the steel companies at Sydney and Sault Ste. Marie to place railway business in order to provide employment for the men during the coming season.

That is the only mention of unemployment, and I notice that the representations did not come from the men who were unemployed, but from the companies that wanted the contracts.

Mr. SIMPSON: A large deputation of the men from the steel plant at Sault Ste. Marie came down to Ottawa and applied for rail orders to be placed to provide employment.

Mr. MITCHELL: Why did you not give it to them then, and not wait until the day previous to dissolution? The contract was given subsequent to April 21, and then a new contract was awarded on August 13, and when the hon. member for Fort William—

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): Does my hon. friend say an order was placed on August 13?

Mr. MITCHELL: I intended to say Order in Council; if I said order I made a mistake, I meant Order in Council. The hon. member for Fort William (Mr. Manion), I think it was, the other night defended the Order in Council of October 6, on the ground that it was looking after the unemployment in certain districts.

Mr. MANION: Will the hon. member permit me; I did not mention Order in Council at all. I defended the policy of looking after the unemployment in this country, but I did not discuss the Order in Council.

Mr. MITCHELL: The Order in Council was being discussed at that time and I took it that my hon. friends were defending the government for having given a contract by virtue of the Order in Council of October 6, as representations had been made by different boards of trade and other people, according to the ex-Minister of Railways, to give work to the unemployed.

Mr. MANION: Would my hon. friend condemn the policy of the government in endeavouring to relieve unemployment in any manner?

Mr. MITCHELL: Not at all, I have not suggested that. I am still arguing—at least I am attempting to argue, and trying to do it as fairly as I can,—the question of interference by a government in the management of a railway; and when hon. gentlemen opposite were defending the government the other night, as I understood them, for having passed that Order in Council of October 6, they evidently had not read the document because in it the then government cancelled the contract with the Algoma Steel Company which was awarded on August 13. By some streak of luck they got the same contract again and continued to do business and to afford employment to the unemployed for which I am very glad.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): My hon. friend has again referred to the order that was placed on August 13. No order was ever placed with the Algoma Steel Company or with any other company under the Order in Council of August. That Order in Council authorized the Board of Management to make contracts for a given sum, but no contract was ever entered into under it; the only contracts that were entered into were under the Order in Council of October 6.

Mr. MITCHELL: Not at all, the hon. gentleman is mistaken because they had furnished 39,000 tons of rails under the Order in Council of October 21—

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): Under the April Order in Council.

Mr. MITCHELL: Under the April Order in Council I think the government renewed or confirmed a contract to the extent of 11,000 tons and authorized the giving of a contract for 40,000 tons. On October 6, the authorization that was given in the Order in Council of August 13, was cancelled, and, as I said a moment ago, the Algoma Steel Company, so I am informed, got an order for an equal amount by virtue of the Order in Council of October 6.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): I do not want to interrupt my hon. friend but I would like to ask this question: Does he suggest that it would have been possible for the Board of Management of the National Railways to have anticipated their requirements for the purpose of relieving the unemployment situation without coming to the government, and without authority by Order in Council to do so? In the estimates of last year certain appropriations were made for the year. Now, if these appropriations were made—

Mr. MITCHELL: I have no objection to the hon. gentleman asking questions but I think he better refrain from argument.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): I am suggesting this to my hon. friend: If the Board of Management were to place orders to relieve unemployment in excess of the appropriations that were made in the estimates of last year, does he suggest it would have been possible to do so without coming to the government and asking for an Order in Council?

Mr. MITCHELL: I have not examined the powers of the Canadian National Railways or the Grand Trunk Railway system to anticipate their orders but I presumed, and I understood ever since the government took these railways over, that the Boards of Management were running the lines completely and fully, and that there was no interference by the government in any way, shape or form. That is what I understood, but now I find I was wrong in that view. When the ex-Minister of Railways asks if it would be right for the Board of Management to come and suggest things to the government he forgets that he mentioned the other night that it was not the Board of Management that made the suggestion but that he himself suggested to the management to anticipate these orders.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): I do not think my hon. friend is quoting me correctly. I think he will find, if he refers to Hansard, that I stated there were conferences between the department and the board, and I think it would be fair to say that the conferences started prior to the time that I became Minister of Railways.

Mr. MITCHELL: Very well, we will not take the conferences, but we will take the ex-minister's own statement. In the Order in Council passed on October 6, we find this statement:

> And in order that there may be no question of considerations other than unemployment influencing the placing of these orders, the minister suggests that the allocation of this business be on the concurrence of the Minister of Labour—

If the ex-Minister of Railways will refer to his remarks made on May 11, I think he will find the following in connection with this item:

> I should like to explain to the committee that, in the closing months of 1921, very strong representations were made, not only to the Department of Railways and Canals and the government, but to the boards in charge of the operation of Canadian-owned railways.

Further on the ex-Minister of Railways said:

> [Mr. Mitchell.]
>
> The government conferred with the Canadian Northern board and the Grand Trunk board and suggested to them—

And so on. I am taking the ex-minister's own words, and I presume that what he gave us the other night was a correct statement of the facts. I think that if I have not conclusively and logically proven to the hilt that there was interference, I have at least made out such a case in connection with the management of these railways that those gentlemen who are in favour of government operation will at any rate want to have an investigation into the accounting of last year in order to see that when they start out on a fair trial of government operation they will get an honest start and one that may be worth something to them when the period of trial is over.

Mr. SIMPSON: Does my hon. friend suggest that a price in advance of the market rate was paid for rails?

Mr. MITCHELL: No I simply gave the figure of $55 which was mentioned in the Order in Council. I do not suggest such a thing in any way in connection with any of these transactions. What I am asking for is an accounting to find out the facts. Evidently my hon. friend has not got the point I endeavoured to make That is that in view of the statement made on behalf of the Board of Management that many expenditures were charged to 1918, 1919, 1920 and should be charged to 1921, I want to find out what the facts are—nothing more or nothing less.

Mr. CARROLL: Did my hon. friend state that a contract for rails was awarded to the Dominion Steel Company last year at $55?

Mr. MITCHELL: I did not mention the Dominion Steel Company; I did not know there was a contract given to them.

I mentioned a moment ago that the debt of Canada was over $2,340,000,000, and I have endeavoured to show that in my judgment the deficits will be $100,000,000 if a proper accounting is made with respect to the operations of these railways. When we take into consideration the fact that during last year, up till the 31st March, we collected $101,500,000 from the business profits tax and from the income tax, all of which has gone into the sink hole of the Canadian National Railway deficit, is it not fair for us to inquire how we are going to meet this liability? I am sure that if the members of this House are not asking themselves that question, one member in this Chamber is seriously considering that matter, and that is the hon. Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding). If every dollar which he collects from income and business profit taxes, instead of going to pay off the war debt, is to be sunk in railway deficits, is it not time that we should try, at least, to make an honest and earnest endeavour to find the solution of this difficulty? It may not be the solution that I want. The hon. member may be able to prove that government operation is possible, but I ask, in conclusion, that before the Government makes a start—and I make this appeal to those in favour of public ownership—see that it starts right in order that the system may get a fair trial.

Reference has been made, in connection with government operation, to my position on the railway question. Someone has suggested, I do not know whom, that I was in favour of monopoly in railways. I would like to know where the idea came from because ever since I have been in public life I have been fighting monopolies and have been endeavouring to control them at all times and on all occasions. I am against government operation of railways in principle, as I have stated, but I am just as firmly against monopolies of railways, whether by the government or anybody else. I do not care who it is, because to my mind, in order to get service which, after all, is what we want, we must have competition. Let us get competition and we will get service. I sympathize with those who are asking for reduced freight rates. I believe we must get reduced freight rates in this country. But do not ask for a reduction below the cost of the operation of your railway, because that means a greater deficit, and will, of course, mean more borrowing, which, in turn, means more taxes. Let us get to the rock bottom of this question and endeavour, each with the other, to arrive at a solution that will get rid of these deficits. Such a solution must be found, and, in order to find that solution, we will have to bring in more immigrants, which will give us more business and more traffic. That will be the surer way of reducing freight rates. I may, perhaps, exaggerate the seriousness of this question, but I believe it is an extremely serious matter and we should co-operate in an earnest endeavour to wipe out the enormous deficit that the taxpayers of this country have to pay.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Will the hon. member answer one question which will, perhaps, help the point of his address? If, after the investigation he demands, the accounts are found to be correctly kept, and the returns are found to be true returns, what does he say ought then to be done about the National Railways?

Mr. MITCHELL: When the hon. leader of the Opposition was questioned similarly the other day he stated that he would answer that question when his duties called upon him to do so, but I will not take that course. I say that, taking everything into consideration, unless some method is found to get rid of the deficit $70,000,000, or $100,000,000 as the case may be, the credit of this country cannot stand it, and if no solution is found, either by the experts or in some other way, we should devise some means of getting rid of the railway. We will have to get rid of the enormous deficit which this country has been burdened with during the last few years.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I am sorry the answer of the hon. member had so many "ifs" in it that it did not add to the point of his address. I do not know yet what the hon. member would do. If there is no solution, he wants something else done.

Mr. MITCHELL: I see what the hon. gentleman is trying to do. He wants to get me to say that I will take one or the other course. I have stated to this House that, first of all, this country cannot, in my judgment, stand a deficit of $72,000,000. Secondly, if, after investigation, those accounts are found correct, and if the experts tell us that we cannot re-systematize the railways in such a way as to wipe out that $72,000,000, there will be nothing to do but to turn them back to private ownership.

Mr. CRERAR: I should like to know whether my hon. friend supports the policy of the Government, as laid down by the Minister of Railways in his statement of April 11?

Mr. MITCHELL: Absolutely. I thought I had made that point clear in my opening remarks. I said that the Government had announced in the Speech from the Throne, and the minister had announced that they intended to give the railways a fair trial. I intend to co-operate absolutely in every possible way, in order to give that fair trial. My hope is—and what I ask for is —that, in order to give that fair trial, we should have an investigation and obtain expert advice, so that it will be a real fair trial.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. member supports the policy of the Government, as announced by the Minister of Railways. Will he now tell us wherein he differs from the policy of the late government?

Mr. MITCHELL: I hope the present management will endeavour to operate without government interference and I say that if they do not operate in that way, they will not get any better results than the last government.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. gentleman's only complaint, in respect to which he waged his campaign through his province and in this country, as to the late government's railway policy was that we endeavoured, by conference with the railways, and by standing for any loss ourselves, to relieve unemployment last winter. That, after all, was all the objection he had to government operation of railways as conducted by the late administration. Well, the mountain certainly has laboured, and the House will observe the result. I do not wish to say anything by way of reply, because, really, in the last words of the hon. member from St. Antoine are contained the sum and substance of his whole case. He really has no case at all. I know that we have a deficit. Every one knows that we have a deficit and knows the cause of that deficit. If the National Railways had been constructed by men desiring to make money out of them on a commercial basis for purely commercial purposes, then that deficit would not exist. But the National Railways were constructed under impulses, of which the hon. member was a considerable factor himself, political impulses, sometimes colonization impulses, sometimes for reasons going to the very root of Confederation, as in the case of the Intercolonial. That is the character of the National Railways, and because they are of that character, they cannot, under present conditions, be made to pay. The hon. member knows that, under present conditions, they cannot be made to pay; he knows that no separate private company, no private individual would take them with the idea of making money out of them. The only way that they would take the National Railways would be on the basis of the country standing good for these deficits, for which the country is responsible because of the construction of the road.

The hon. member makes a speech of an hour and a half on the matter of accounting. What reasons have we for thinking that the accounting of the National Railways is wrong? The hon. gentleman does not seem to be aware that, not only have we the authority of the various accounting firms who superintend the auditing of the different elements of the National system, but an independent audit has been carried on by one of the most reputable firms, I think, in the world, the Marwick, Mitchell firm, an audit for the advantage of the Government and independent of the railway auditors altogether. These independent auditors go into all the matters that the hon. member has referred to, such as charging against one year something that should be be charged against another. It is the business of the auditors to report such matters with their audit. Has the hon. member in his speech of an hour and a half adduced any reason that would be authority for us to challenge the auditors' report? I did not find one. Consequently, the plea he makes that there be some investigation into the accounting system, into the question whether or not we are really getting the facts, is not supported in any way by the statements that he has made. The whole fact turns out to be that he took advantage of a feeling, engendered by the press in his district and in his province, to ride on the wave into office, challenging the whole principle of government operation, challenging the whole principle of government ownership of public utilities; that he finds out when he gets here that conditions are such that there is and has been no alternative except government ownership and operation, and he places himself right behind both.

Mr. MARCIL (Bonaventure): Does the right hon. member think that Canada, for all time to come, will have to maintain deficits under government ownership and operation?

Mr. MEIGHEN: There will be no need for such deficits as long as the railways are managed properly. Naturally, as the country develops and as the settlements along those roads which were constructed as colonization roads increase, the system will develop; it will develop chiefly because of the policy which the late government adopted of bringing great railway factors east and west together, because of the economies which will result from the amalgamation of large railway elements into one, and because of that, there will be no need at all for the maintenance of deficits such as that of last year. Indeed, the result of last year, much better as it was than that of the year before, should be improved on considerably this year, and so on from year to year. But the fact is that, owing to the very nature of the capital investment, there cannot be anything but deficits for some time. It all depends on the ability of the management and on the pursuance of the policy inaugurated which the minister now continues, how soon those deficits will cease.

Mr. HOCKEN: The hon gentleman (Mr. Mitchell) is alarmed about the credit of Canada in consequence of these deficits. I would draw his attention to the fact that municipalities and provincial governments are issuing bonds to-day under better terms than it has been possible to get for some years past. I would also point out to him that the Canadian exchange to-day is less than one per cent. These are not evidences of Canada losing its credit, notwithstanding the deficits that we have had on the railways. There can be no doubt that these deficits will decrease, and under these circumstances I think our credit will constantly improve.

Mr. STEVENS: I should like to ask just one question of the minister before we get far away from the remarks of the hon. member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell). The hon. member repeatedly used the figure $72,000,000 as the deficit last year, and he also added that if the figures were correct the deficit was more likely to be $100,000,000. Would the minister give to the committee exactly the deficit for last year on the National Railways system?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): It was $72,662,278.46.

Mr. STEVENS: Will the minister analyze that briefly, showing how it is made up and give us the exact period? Is that for fifteen months, or for twelve months?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): For the calendar year 1921.

Mr. STEVENS: What is that figure made up of?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The items are as follows:

Canadian National amalgamated system, including the Grand Trunk:
Canadian National Railway, operating revenue for 1921	$235,789,013 30
Operating expenses..	247,509,397 41
Net deficit, railway operations	11,720,384 11
Other expenses..	602,350 17
Total net deficit..	12,322,734 28
Fixed charges other than to the Government..	40,453,509 49
Net cash deficit..	$ 52,776,243 77

Mr. MEIGHEN: That is the figure which corresponds with the $56,000,000 odd that the minister gave us in his statement on the 11th April?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That figure is now less than $56,000,000; it is $52,000,000 odd.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes. Then we have:

Fixed charges to the Government, $19,569,989.79.

These amounts make the total deficit of $72,346,233.56.

Mr. MEIGHEN: On the 11th of April the minister gave the corrected figure for the deficit of 1920 as $67,000,000. That is the figure that compares with the $52,000,000 odd he gives now, because, in the $67,000,000, interest to the Government was not included. On the 11th of April he gave us $67,000,000 odd as the corrected deficit for 1920, and $56,000,000 odd as the deficit for 1921—

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Estimated.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Now he corrects the $56,000,000 odd to $52,000,000 odd, so that there is an improvement of about $4,000,000 to-day over the 11th of April in the returns of last year as compared with the year before.

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): That was only on the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I think it covered them all.

Mr. MITCHELL: The deficit as announced by the minister was $56,000,000 on the Canadian National, and $15,000,000 odd on the Grand Trunk, or $72,000,000 on the two.

Mr. STEVENS: That is the point I should like to have definitely cleared up. The hon. member (Mr. Mitchell) persists in saying that the deficit is $72,000,000. The hon. minister in reply to my question gives the figure as $52,776,000, to which he says may be added other fixed charges on amounts owing to the Government. Well, that is correct enough. But my hon. friend from St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) added to the $72,000,000 other imaginary charges, and he also added interest on the amounts advanced by the Government; but that is included in the $72,000,000. The $72,000,000 covers the ultimate losses; but the actual losses on operation and charges to the public is $52,776,000.

Mr. CRERAR: Mr. Chairman, the estimates that we are now considering, following the annual statement submitted to the House by the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) on April 11, relate to what is, I think, by common consent regarded as one of the most important matters that this Parliament has to deal with. Indeed, I would say that that annual statement comes only second in importance to the statement this House will have from the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) on Tuesday next.

Mr. MITCHELL: May I interrupt my hon. friend to clear up the amount of the deficit? I did not understand the Minister of Railways said that the deficit was $72,000,000, or $56,000,000 or $52,000,000. According to his statement it was $56,000,000 odd on the Canadian Northern and $15,000,000 odd on the Grand Trunk, making a total deficit of $72,000,000. I would like to make sure that that is correct.

Mr. CRERAR: The matter of settling whether the deficit is a million more or less is not very momentous in my judgment as far as the whole problem is concerned.

Mr. MITCHELL: Not $1,000,000, but $20,000,000.

Mr. CRERAR: This is one of the most important matters that this committee has to consider. I listened with very much interest to the remarks made by my hon. friend from St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell). He stated quite frankly that he did not believe in the public ownership of public utilities, and he expressed very clearly his view that government ownership of such utilities could not possibly be made a success. I have no quarrel with the view entertained by my hon. friend. I recognize that there are in this House and outside many people who do not believe in public ownership, and I respect their view. I think they hold that view as honestly as I do the opposite view, that certain public utilities from their very nature are natural monopolies that can be administered by public agencies with better advantage to the public weal.

This is a question of the very greatest importance, because it touches the whole subject of transportation, and when we consider the physical character of this country and the scattered nature of its population, we at once realize that there is no subject of such great moment to our people as cheap and reasonable transportation facilities. For that reason, if for no other, the subject is of the very greatest importance. But it is particularly important to us at the present time because of the financial considerations involved. Had it not been for the very great increase in our national debt resulting from the part we took in the war, our railway problem, serious as it is, would not have been by any means beyond our capacity to handle readily and easily without our scarcely feeling the burden. But I quite agree with my hon. friend from St. Antoine that the existing situation, by reason of the enormous debt that this country has to carry, is one that must command the most serious and earnest consideration of this House and the country.

I quite realize the effect that sustained heavy deficits on the operation of our national railways may have upon our national credit. I cannot agree with my hon. friend, however, in the doleful picture he has drawn that if we do not get rid of these deficits immediately our national credit will go to pieces and we will be in a very bad way indeed. We have had these deficits for several years past, they are a matter of common knowledge not only in Canada but in the countries in which Canada borrows her money; but as my hon. friend from Toronto (Mr. Hocken) has pointed out, it has not affected the interest rate on our loans. A few weeks ago my hon. friend, the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) negotiated a large loan in the city of New York. That loan was oversubscribed in a few hours' time. I think it was one of the most striking evidences we could possibly have as to the innate soundness of Canada's financial position.

The question we have to consider is how we can best handle this whole proposition, and before I address myself to a consideration of that question I want to offer a word of criticism of those who condemn the public administration of these railways, including my hon. friend from St. Antoine. We have those in the House and those outside who attribute all the difficulties we are in financially from our being in the business of operating railways, and they say that government ownership and operation can never succeed and we should get rid of these railways at once.

Now, the fair, plain question I want to put to such critics, whether in the House or outside, is this: What is your alternative scheme? Why are we in this position in respect to our railways? For one reason, and one reason only, as I have stated in this House before. Canada did not take up the government ownership and operation of these railways through conviction or belief in the principle of public ownership at all. Practically all the mileage of our government-owned railways to-day has come to us through the absolute and complete breakdown of private ownership. That is why we are in our present position in regard to these railways, and I challenge my hon. friends to deny it.

What assistance has Canada given to the building of railways? I gave the figures in the debate on freight rates a few days ago. According to the Drayton-Acworth report this country has given almost $1,000,000,000 in aid to railwa s almost all privately owned and privately operated. What we have given to the Canadian Northern alone runs up to the enormous total of almost $300,000,000. Here was a transportation system, privately owned, operated and controlled, to which this country had given practicaly $300,000,000, and yet that system broke down. What were we to do?.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Has the hon. gentleman figures to show how much of that total is cash and how much loans or guarantees?

Mr. CRERAR: These figures are contained in the Drayton-Acworth report of 1917.

Cash subsidies..	$38,874,148

Cold cash handed out from the pockets of the people.

Proceeds of lands sold....	$34,379,809
Loans outstanding or invest ment..	$25,858,166
Guarantees outstanding.. ..	$199,141,140

Or a total aid from the public of $298,253,-263.

These are guarantees by the Dominion and provincial governments. Those are the details of the assistance given to the Canadian Northern Railway, and do not include the large amounts given since this report was compiled.

Now, this fact must always be kept in mind in considering this question, that the country because of the guarantees it had given upon these securities was not in the position of being merely an uninterested outsider. My hon. friends say, or rather those who have been opposed to the policy by which the Canadian Northern was acquired by the government—those critics say that the road should have been permitted to go into liquidation. I want to point out to them that even if the road had gone into liquidation the liability of the country under those guarantees could not have been evaded, unless the Dominion and the provinces repudiated their obligations. I submit therefore that the government of the day had no alternative but to pursue this policy and take over the road. There may be some criticism offered that in the arbitration of the value of the common stock of the Canadian Northern Railway, a sum of money was paid to the promoters, to which they were not entitled. But that does not affect the substance of my argument at all. There was no other course for this country to follow than the taking over of this railway system. And the same thing applies just as fully to the Grand Trunk Pacific. Why was the National Transcontinental and whole Grand Trunk Pacific enterprise undertaken? It was undertaken first at the suggestion of the Grand Trunk Railway. I think the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding), who was in the government of the day, will bear me out in this respect, that it was the officials of the Grand Trunk Railway who first approached the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier away back in 1902 or 1903 and asked for assistance in building the transcontinental line that would go into the prairie regions of the West. That was where the suggestion first came from. The Canadian government, with the full approval and consent of the Canadian people, undertook that enterprise. The government built the Transcontinental from Moncton to Winnipeg. By bond guarantees of a very liberal amount, it assisted the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific in the prairie regions and through the mountains of northern British Columbia. All that assistance was given and guaranteed by the government. What different course should have been followed when the officials of the Grand Trunk Pacific, in March, 1918, notified the government of the day that unless they got further subsidies in cash they would close down the operations of the road because they could not pay the running expenses? There was no other course for the government of the day to follow than the course it did follow. Tens of thousands of settlers had gone in along the road and were dependent on the railway for their means of communication. Towns had sprung up which were in the same position. What would have happened if the road had ceased operations? My hon. friends ask again: Why did you not let it go into the hands of the receiver? Would that have repaid the people for the $50,000 a mile bond guarantees they had given in northern British Columbia? There was only one business course to follow, and that was to secure the roads, link them into the whole national system of railways, and build upon that system for the future, recognizing their great potential value and hoping eventually to emerge successfully from the difficulty. I might add, in passing, that the assistance that was given to the Grand Trunk Pacific totalled $114,000,000.

Now, there has been a good deal of criticism of the late government in regard to this matter. I am referring to the subject not in order to provoke questions of controversy, but because I think that this aspect of the matter should be placed before the public. There has been a good deal of criticism of the late government in acquiring the old Grand Trunk. The situation in that respect is well known. The Grand Trunk desired to evade their responsibilities in connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific, which was their subsidiary company. The government recognized that, in view of the fact that this whole enterprise, which had committed Canada to hundreds of millions of dollars, had been undertaken at the request of the Grand Trunk Railway, the obligation of the Grand Trunk in respect to the Grand Trunk Pacific could not be thrown aside. What course, then, was open to the government? It is a matter of common knowledge that they adopted the only wise course possible in the circumstances. There was nothing facing the old Grand Trunk Railway but absolute and complete bankruptcy, and it would have gone into the hands of the receiver and have been knocked down under the hammer to the highest bidder. But what would have happened if, in that event, the Grand Trunk had passed into the hands of the Canadian Pacific Railway or of some other private concern, that would not have been willing to make the necessary traffic arrangements with the Transcontinental system? The whole National Transcontinental system, the Grand Trunk Pacific system, was built entirely upon the assumption that it would be linked up with and be part of the Grand Trunk system in eastern Canada. If it was necessary in 1903 to create a system of that kind, was it not just as necessary in 1917 or 1918 to maintain the principle that lay behind the whole enterprise in 1903? There was no other course to be followed. The Grand Trunk system had to be brought into the Canadian National system, and the government of that day, in my judgment, would have been derelict in their duty if they had failed to do so. There are many things upon which I have differed with my right hon. friend who leads the Opposition (Mr. Meighen), and I suppose that in our public careers in the future there will still be many points of difference between us. But I believe that the policy of the late government in respect of the whole railway question in its main essentials was the only sound policy this country could follow; and for that reason I consistently supported it.

I want to offer a word of commendation to the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) on the clear and lucid statement he presented to the House when he made his railway statement on April 11 last. I was particularly gratified to note the main lines of policy he laid down. No one who has studied that statement will disagree with my view that the policy submitted by the Minister of Railways, which I take to be the policy of the Government, differs not, in any principle, from the policy followed by the previous administration. I am therefore glad to commend it. I am glad of the courage and, let me say, the honesty of the minister in presenting that statement to the House, because the whole railway question should be lifted above the level of party controversy. For that reason, I say, I am gratified at the statement of my hon. friend. I was pleased also that he made it clear that the Intercolonial railway is to be part of the national system of railways of the country. I know the position taken by my hon. friends from the Maritime provinces in respect to the Intercolonial Railway. I have a good deal of sympathy with their position in that regard. It is true that the Intercolonial Railway was built as part of the compact of Confederation. The provision in the British North America Act respecting it was that the Government of Canada would construct such a railway. But nothing of this is changed in the policy of including the Intercolonial Railway in the Canadian National system, and I maintain that the Intercolonial, linked up with the whole national system of railways, when that system gets operating smoothly and effectively, as I am convinced it will, will give better and cheaper service to the maritime provinces in the long run than it possibly could if operated as before. It is now part of the great national system of railways, and I do not think there is any question whatever as to what the final results will be.

The Government have very frankly stated, both since they came into power and before—and they are now only reiterating the statements they made during the election campaign—that public ownership of this system must have a full and fair trial. There may have been some differences in the statements made by some of my hon. friends opposite. In the heat of an election, we are all perhaps somewhat prone to make statements a trifle extravagant. But the Government's policy in stating that the system must have a full and fair trial is one that will command the respect and support of the country. Now, it is imperative that it shall in fact have a full and fair trial. I have said that the late Government's policy is the only one that could have been followed in the matter. There is no alternative; and I should like the critics of government ownership and operation of this system outside the House and in the House as well, if there be such, to state what their alternative policy in the matter is.

What is the alternative policy? I read the Montreal Gazette, for instance—an excellent newspaper—and I find it persistently and consistently opposing the policy of the Government, and of the late government. It is saying that it means financial ruin to the country, and that we must get rid of the system if the country is to escape all the dreadful things that will follow in the wake of public ownership, but I have yet to see any suggestion from that newspaper, or from any other critic of the policy this Government has followed, and the late government, of an alternative policy. This country has invested in these roads over one and a half billion dollars—fifteen hundred million dollars. What are you going to do about that? Turn the roads over to private companies? I say that if you put up the National system for sale you would not relieve the country of the liability it has at the present time. Why, the thing is absurd. Instead of getting rid of the deficit, you would simply be placing it permanently and forever on the Canadian people —nothing else. My hon. friend from St. Antoine says that government ownership will not prove a success in operation. I do not know what experience my hon. friend, who was Provincial Treasurer in the Quebec government, has had with public utilities, but I have seen a good many public utilities in operation which have proved successful, and there is no reason why a government railway cannot be as efficiently managed, under public control and operation, as a private railway.

Mr. ROBB: Is my hon. friend referring now particularly to the government elevators in Manitoba?

Mr. McMASTER: That is an unkind question.

Mr. CRERAR: My hon. friend the Minister of Trade and Commerce is not on very good ground in asking that question, because elevators are not in the nature of a natural monopoly. But aside from that, there is no reason why, with proper management and control, the elevators in Manitoba should not have proven a success. I would suggest to my hon. friend that he look up the records of the elevators owned by the Dominion government at the terminal points and see whether they have not proved a success financially. If he will consult the officials in his own department, and study the financial results of the government elevator at Fort William, one of the finest elevators at the head of the lakes, he will find that it contributes a very tidy sum each year to the Dominion treasury. Therefore, in order that this system may have a full and fair trial, I say it is absolutely essential that all lines owned by the Government be included in the system and I am glad to commend the policy of the Government in that respect.

There is another thing that is also essential. There must be complete unification in the control and management of the system. I quite agree with the suggestion of the Minister of Railways in his presentation of the case the other day, that there should be districts, regional districts, if you like, for the operation of these lines. That practice has been followed by the Canadian Pacific Railway, and I think it can with profit be adopted on the Canadian National system. I understand that my hon. friends from the maritime provinces have had cause for complaint, and I think rightly so, over the fact that if they wanted to arrange for a special excursion to a fair or picnic or sports celebration they had to go to Toronto to arrange for it. That is not efficiency in operation or efficiency in management, and that should be changed. But the general policy of management must be under central control, and it must be freed, so far as is possible, from any possibility of government interference.

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): Arguing as my hon. friend does in favour of government ownership, does he not think that the successful operation of any railway, private or public, depends on the way in which it is managed and the people who are managing it? If he does, does he not think it a very peculiar thing to put the railway system of this country under the control and operation of men who failed to operate it successfully as a private concern?

Mr. CRERAR: I think perhaps my hon. friend is on pretty good ground in offering that criticism, but I am not going to discuss that at the present moment. The present administration have all the opportunity they wish to change that, if they so desire. I am not putting anything in the way of their doing that whatsoever.

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): I was dealing with the general problem of public ownership.

Mr. CRERAR: I lay this down. I think you can attract to a great national enterprise of this kind the brains, the ability and the spirit of public service that will make it a success, but you can never do it under the system that obtained on the Intercolonial when it was a department of the government, because then it was frankly and openly under government control.

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): It was run with surpluses.

Mr. CRERAR: That may or may not be the case. I do not think my hon. friend's statement can be borne out by an examination of the facts.

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): Mr. Cochrane, in 1913, when he was Minister of Railways, gave to the House a statement of the operation of that railway for five years, during which the railway showed a net surplus of $1,000,000 in operation.

Mr. CRERAR: It may be true that during a few years—

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): Not a few years, a great number of years.

Mr. CRERAR: Well, for quite a number of years, but I would point out to my hon. friend that from the time it was built right up to the present there was never a cent of interest charged against that investment.

Mr. MACDONALD (Picton): Neither was there against the canals of this country; they were built under the same conditions.

Mr. CRERAR: Very true, but if you are going to operate the Intercolonial on that basis—

Mr. MACDONALD (Pictou): Not at all.

Mr. CRERAR: My hon. friend is entitled to his opinion, and will have an opportunity to speak later on if he wishes to do so. I repeat, it is possible to attract to the management of a great public enterprise of this kind the brains and ability and the spirit of public service that will make it a success. I am convinced it can be done, and I trust that that is the intention and desire of my hon. friend the Minister of Railways, and the Government when they select their board. Let me say in passing that when they select their board, the men should be in sympathy with the whole proposition, so far as it is possible to get such men. We have had the suggestion from my hon. friend from St. Antoine that it is necessary to travel to Europe or the United States or Africa or somewhere else to find supermen, if such can be found, to handle this system. My experience in business, Mr. Chairman, running over a good many years, has led me to the conclusion that supermen are very difficult to find, and very often they are not of very great consequence after you have found them. This system will never be saved by supermen—never—but I am convinced you can find right in Canada, possibly in the system itself, men who have the potential ability and capacity to handle this thing.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Will the hon. member express it as his opinion that Mr. Hanna or Mr. Mitchell, who I understand are the only two directors from the old system, were in the least degree responsible for the inability of the Canadian Northern to finance itself?

Mr. CRERAR: I would venture the opinion so far as my knowledge goes that they were not, but that is not germane to the argument I am making. I am asserting that the ability and the capacity to handle the system can be found in Canada.

There is one other thing that is necessary if the system is to be made a success. You must enlist public support behind it, and that can be done. I think it is possible to have this great national enterprise recognized by the people of Canada as a great national asset, an asset in which they can take pride, a thing that will help to link up this country and unify it. I believe that is possible, but it is not possible if political considerations enter into the management and control—if sectional considerations, whether west, east, middle, or anywhere else, enter into the direction and management of the system. Under those circumstances I do not believe it is possible to make it a success.

Reference was made the other night to a contract for steel rails that was let in the month of October last, and my hon. friend from St. Antoine paid some attention to it this afternoon. I think that the late administration can be fairly criticized in respect to that contract. The business of the National Railways in respect to contracts of all kinds should be put upon an absolutely definite business basis, and no considerations other than the soundest business principles should govern. If your national system of railways is to be used to advance the interests of any one section by giving employment to labour, or by letting contracts to companies who may want business, it is not upon a sound basis, the system cannot succeed in this manner, and so far as I am concerned I shall criticise and continue to criticise that method of administration of these roads.

Mr. LOGAN: If by giving these contracts to private companies you could save a large amount of money to the treasury, would the hon. member not be in favour of placing the contracts where the work could be done most cheaply? If it can be shown, for instance, that cars can be repaired in a private concern, where perhaps the McAdoo wage scale does not apply, for a hundred dollars less per car than in the government shops, would he still advocate that the work be done in the government shops?

Mr. CRERAR: I regret that I failed to make myself clear to my hon. friend. I say that one consideration that should govern in the control of these railways is, having regard to all the factors of the case, to have the business done where it can be done most cheaply. I do not care where it is done, but no consideration other than that should govern.

Mr. LOGAN: Hear, hear.

Mr. CRERAR: Now, I want to say a word or two as to some of the things which in my judgment are essential.

Mr. HUGHES: If the statement made by the hon. member for Cumberland is correct, that cars can be repaired, or any work done, very much cheaper in private shops than the same work can be done for in the government shops would not that be a very strong argument against public ownership and operation? If the statement is true it is a serious matter.

Mr. CRERAR: I am not assuming, Mr. Chairman, that my hon. friend from Cumberland is correct in his facts but I do say this: If it could be done more cheaply there I would have it done there; there are many concerns that are in the business of doing this kind of work, that is their business. But that is a totally different thing, and upon a totally different basis from the operation of a great enterprise which is in the nature of a natural monopoly. That is the point of my argument, because there is no one in this House more strongly opposed to government interference in things which in their very nature are matters of private business than I am, because in such things people can best act for themselves; but in a great national enterprise like this, where you can only have one line of railway you must have either very rigid control of your system if the public are to be protected or it must be a vehicle owned and operated by the people as a whole through their government.

Now when my hon. friend interrupted me I was about to remark there are some other things that are essential to the success of this operation. I have suggested in the House before, and I again offer the suggestion to the minister, that when this unification takes place, and your board is selected, there should be a complete revaluation of the whole national system of railways. I think there can be little doubt that these roads to-day as an operating concern are not worth the amount of money that they stand in our books at, and they are not worth that amount because of the very manner in which they were built. I will give the House a case which illustrates the point I am making. West of Edmonton, running through the Yellowhead pass, the Canadian Northern Railway built its lines to the point where the railway turns down the North Thompson river to the Fraser river. Through that same pass was constructed the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Those two lines of railway travelled for scores, yes, hundreds, of miles almost always within sight of each other, and indeed for many miles the tracks were so close together that they appeared to be a double track. During the war, when these railways were consolidated, it was necessary to lift the rails of a portion of one of these lines to send to the front. I know there has been some criticism of that action but that does not affect the point of my illustration. You can travel, Sir, over that line to-day and see the scores, yes, hundreds, of miles of railways that have been abandoned. The Grand Trunk Pacific railway is on one side of the pass, and the old Canadian Northern right of way on the other side, and there have been hundreds of miles of track abandoned which were of the most difficult and costly construction. You can travel there and see the wreck of a railway: Iron bridges, tunnels, rock cuts, all this sort of thing, upon which no rails are laid at the present time, and upon which I venture to say none ever will be laid; and yet that expensive mileage, costing, I believe, something in the neighbourhood of $100,000 a mile, stands in the books of the Government as a part of the value of the assets of this concern. There should, therefore, be a complete re-valuation of the system so as to put it down to a sound business basis, following precisely the same practice that a merchant follows when he finds he has goods on the shelf that have deteriorated in quality, and he must write them down and take his loss. That should be done in the case of this railway system. You cannot get a management, I care not how efficient or how able they may be, who will tackle a problem of that kind with the vigour, the energy and the willingness that is necessary, if they feel that they have to make headway against a heavy handicap of that kind.

Mr. McMASTER: You think good headway would then be made?

Mr. CRERAR: Yes, because it is a sound business practice and for that reason I commend it to the Government. If we have a capital loss in the construction of these railways let us face it frankly and put it where it belongs—add it to the debt of Canada. Do not let it stand against the system, otherwise you wil prejudice the cause of public ownership from one end of the country to the other, and it will be said "How can you make your railways pay when you are operating under conditions which render it practically impossible for them to do so?"

There is one other suggestion I have to make and that is in reference to the question of immigration. I agree with the view—

Mr. LOGAN: My hon. friend has been discussing a very interesting matter, and I would like to question him further in regard to it. As to the revaluation of the government railway property, would he be favourable to revalueing at an operating profit value or on a replacement basis?

Mr. CRERAR: I think a proper basis to take would be the basis of replacement under fair conditions.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I am afraid that would increase the valuation.

Mr. EULER: My hon. friend suggests that the railways should be re-valued and the amounts covering the properties which have been apportioned should be written off. Does he suggest that the interest on the bonds, or any other obligation which covers the cost of construction, which is no longer in existence, should be no longer chargeable and help to make up the deficits on the operation of the roads?

Mr. CRERAR: I am very grateful to my hon. friend from South Waterloo who has made the point clearer than I made it myself.

Mr. McMASTER: Is it not a mere question of book-keeping, and the railway situation is not changed at all?

Mr. CRERAR: It may be as far as the net result to the country as a whole is concerned; but I am advocating this because of its effect upon the management of your system. That is the reason, and the only reason, that could be advanced in favour of it. My right hon. friend (Mr. Meighen) suggests that it might lead to an increase in value of the system to act on the basis I suggested. I do not think he is correct in that. I was going to elaborate that point further. We have, for instance, three national transcontinental lines running through practically a thousand miles of wilderness between Ontario and Manitoba. I do not know how far I may be correct, but I certainly think it would be the duty of the management to give due consideration to the closing up of a portion of these lines. We have the same thing in the West where there is duplication of services. All these factors should be taken into account in arriving at a proper basis of operations.

I want now to pass on to the question of immigration and I agree with the remarks made by my hon. friend from St. Antoine in this respect, that the question of immigration has a very important bearing upon the ultimate success of these roads. The difficulty with our railway situation is that we are overbuilt with railways in Canada, and the only final solution of the matter—and I submit a solution can only be found in a long view of the situation—is in getting more people into the country, by a policy that will bring in immigrants by tens of thousands or scores of thousands, and it should be directed to placing those immigrants along the lines of the National system, because, when you place them along that line, particularly in western Canada, you put them in the best portions of the country, where there will be the greatest likelihood of their making a success. Not only are you ensuring success for them, but you are creating business potentially for your roads.

Mr. CANNON: Is it not a fact that a great portion of those lands are now in the hands of private companies?

Mr. CRERAR: I think the statement of the hon. member from Dorchester (Mr. Cannon) is true. I do not know the exact acreage in the hands of private companies. We find in western Canada, on account of the supertaxes imposed by the provincial governments on speculative holdings of land, that there is a very general disposition on the part of private owners to sell their lands at reasonable prices. There are still some homestead lands left, but I submit that, as far as possible, the Government should direct the settlement of the immigration to this country to districts that will provide business for the National Railways.

I am not going at the moment to touch that much contested question, the Tariff, but I think that the fiscal policy of this country has a great bearing on this problem. I hope that my hon. friend, the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) when he comes to consider his budget will have regard to that. I have stated before in this House and outside that agriculture is the real foundation of the prosperity of the Dominion, and when I examine the traffic returns of the railways, I find the greatest contribution in tonnage to our railways comes from farms, forests and mines. Let me give some information to the committee in that regard, and my figures are taken from the annual railway report.

Taking the Canadian Northern Railway, for the year ending 1920 the farms contributed over 4,000,000 tons, or 28 per cent of the freight hauled over the Canadian National lines in that year. The forests—that is lumber, pulp, cordwood, fence posts, and so forth—contributed 4,155,000 tons, or 28.66 per cent of the freight. Our mines contributed 3,676,000 tons, and our miscellaneous freight and manufactures contributed altogether only 17 per cent. In other words, over 80 per cent of the total freight hauled on the Canadian Northern Railway system in that year came from the farm, the forest and the mine. If you examine the figures for the Grand Trunk Pacific and the old Grand Trunk you will find they are about in that proportion. If that is a fact—and it is beyond question—it is a sound policy to direct your fiscal system along the lines that will give the greatest encouragement to these industries. I know there are a good many of my hon. friends to my right, I think probably all of them—and, I was going to add, I am afraid more than I should like to see among hon. gentlemen on the Governrment side of the House—who do not agree with my argument in this respect. But, nevertheless, I submit that it is sound business, from the fiscal point of view to shape your fiscal policy to give the greatest possible encouragement to the development of these great natural sources of wealth, and if you do that you lay the foundation for success in your manufacturing industry. There is no gainsaying that fact. No greater boon could be given to the manufacturing industries of Ontario and eastern Canada than to place one hundred and fifty or two hundred thousand good rugged farmers in western Canada, and nothing will bring more business to our factories. I submit to the Finance Minister and to the Government that when they are considering their fiscal proposals—and they are considering them now, because they are to be laid before the House next week—they could, with profit to the country, give recognition to the principle I have just laid down.

I desire to submit one other thought to the committee in this respect, and that is that these roads must be operated in such a way as to command public confidence. I believe that a way can be found to bring that about. I may say that a very great deal depends on the manner in which the Government handles the enterprise. If they absolutely, and beyond question of doubt, make it clear to the public of this country that they are animated and governed by considerations only that will bring success in operation, that they are maintaining this system free from political influences and control, they will be taking the longest possible step in establishing and maintaining, public confidence in the system, and, from the national point of view, that is highly necessary. We have this system of railways. We cannot get rid of it. We must make the very best of it, and, consequently, that is, in my judgment, the only sound policy the Government can follow, in order to make a success of it.

I think, too, that public confidence will rest pretty largely on the fullest and most complete information that can be furnished by those in charge of the operation of the roads. I would like to see the annual report of the Canadian National system of railways made as full as possible in the information it gives to the public, as to the details of operation, the prices at which goods have been purchased, the sources where contracts have been placed, and everything else relating to the operation of the system, and to publish a sufficient number of these reports so that they can be distributed to all who wish to have them, particularly to newspapers and institutions and organizations of a public character. Let that information be diffused as widely as possible, and you will create a confidence in your system. Not only that, but you will create conditions in the public mind that will assist the Government in resisting the pressure that might involve the operation or control of these roads in political considerations. The results, I think, Mr. Chairman, in the operation of these roads for the past year are not discouraging. The hon. member from St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) suggested that the profits shown in the months of August, September, October and November last may have been fictitious profits. If he will reflect for a moment, I think he will find he is not correct in that statement.

Mr. MITCHELL: I did not say they were fictitious profits. I said that the operations were reduced very materially during those four months, and charged to other years under the Order in Council.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh no.

Mr. CRERAR: I certainly do not wish to do the hon. member any injustice whatever, but I distinctly gathered the impression from his remarks that he had a question mark in his own mind as to the validity of the profits shown in those months. I may be wrong in that. If I have done him an injustice I am sorry, but I would point out to him and to the House that those four months, particularly September, October, and November, are the months of the heavy crop movement in western Canada, and there is not any doubt that the movement of the grain in western Canada provide both the National system and the Canadian Pacific system with a very large share indeed of their total earnings. It just happened this year that the movement of grain was free and heavy; it was heavier on the National lines last autumn than it was on the Canadian Pacific, and that contributed, in a very great degree, to the profits shown during those months. The results on the whole are not discouraging. I believe that, with efficient operation, with as full a knowledge on the part of the public as can be secured in regard to the potential value in these assets, we can, within a very few years, bring these roads to the point where they will more than meet their operating expenses. I would point out to the committee and to those outside of this House who are opposed to this enterprise and who are criticizing it and, I submit, not giving it a fair show or trial, that we have in these roads a splendid potential asset. If we dissipate that now; if we follow the advice that has been given in some quarters, that the Government should get rid of this system, pass it over to private hands at any price at which they will take it, what will be the result? This country will lose absolutely and forever the potential value that rests in this system to-day, but it will not escape a very large share of the liability that is in the system; it will not escape its bond guarantees; we shall lose all the cash and land grants that we have put into this system in the past, and we shall lose them forever. Those are the business considerations that should govern in the whole survey of this question. These roads are a good potential asset; if we have courage, vigour and honesty in the administration of the enterprise and I venture to say that there are many in this House who will live to see the day when they and this country will be proud of the Canadian National system of railways, I am wholly convinced that it can be made a success.

I have already expressed my opinion as to the statement brought down by the Minister of Railways. I liked the clear, definite position that he took in respect particularly to the control and management of these roads. A heavy responsibility rests upon the Government in the selection of the board that will administer this system, in the selection of the management that will control its operation. As the minister pointed out the other day, the total amount spent by the National Railways last year involved more than $343,000,000. That is a vast sum of money; but I am convinced also that the men can be secured who will give this enterprise their undivided attention, who will bring to their work, not only a spirit of public service, but the ability and capacity to manage efficiently an enterprise of this kind. Such men can be found, and I hope and trust this Government will do everything it can to find such men. This question, let me repeat, is too grave and too great to be lightly considered. The losses are great; the responsibility is great; but I am convinced, if this enterprise is tackled vigorously, earnestly and honestly, a great success can be made of it, and in the years to come this country and even the members of this House who are now considering the matter, will have good reason for pride in our National system of railways.

Progress reported.

MEMORIAL TO THE LATE COLONEL G. H. BAKER, M.P.

Mr. SPEAKER: I have the honour to inform the House that I have received a message from the Senate informing this House that the Honourable Messieurs Bradbury, Casgrain, Foster (Alma), Griesbach and Pope, have been appointed a special committee to further consider and determine the form of the memorial to be erected in the Parliament buildings to the late Lieutenant-Colonel George Harold Baker, member of Parliament for Brome, who lost his life on the field of battle, and inviting this House to appoint a like committee to act jointly with the committee of the Senate.

At six o'clock the House adjourned without the question being put, pursuant to rule.

Thursday, May 18, 1922.

The House met at three o'clock.

NEW MEMBER

Mr. SPEAKER: I have the honour to inform the House that the Clerk of the House has received from the Chief Electoral Officer certificate of the election and return of Georges (Joseph) Bouchard, Esquire, for the electoral district of Kamouraska.

NEW MEMBER INTRODUCED

Georges (Joseph) Bouchard, Esquire, member for the electoral district Kamouraska, introduced by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

PETITION OF ALEXANDER BIRNIE AND OTHERS

Mr. SPEAKER: I have the honour to inform the House that I have received a report from the Clerk of Petitions, who directs the attention of the House to the fact that the petition of Alexander Birnie and others, presented yesterday, is irregular in that it is addressed to the Prime Minister of Canada and not to the House of Commons in Parliament assembled.

AGRICULTURE AND COLONIZATION COMMITTEE

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): Before we pass from motions, I have been informed that a resolution has been passed by the Committee on Agriculture and Colonization. I desire to ask the chairman of that committee if he is not prepared to make a report to the House embodying that resolution?

Mr. W. F. KAY (Missisquoi): I am informed by officials of the House that it is not necessary to make a report from the committee in reference to the motion which I presented to the House yesterday.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I found it hard to understand the reply, but I believe the hon. member must have thought I referred to something else. The motion made yesterday is another matter. What I am asking is whether or not he proposes to make a report to this House of the conclusions of the Committee on Agriculture and Colonization as arrived at.

Mr. KAY: The Committee on Agriculture and Colonization has arrived at no conclusions as yet. It has nothing to report to the House.

VANCOUVER HARBOUR COMMISSIONERS

Hon. ERNEST LAPOINTE (Minister of Marine and Fisheries) moved for leave to introduce Bill No. 106, to amend The Vancouver Harbour Commissioners Act.

He said: Under the present provisions of the Vancouver Harbour Commissioners Act, the appointment and control of the port warden and the shipping master is in the hands of the Harbour Commission.

The duties of these two officers are to enforce the Canada Shipping Act. In all the other harbours of Canada these two officers are appointed by and under the control of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. It is felt that these two officers at Vancouver should be under the same control.

Motion agreed to and bill read the first time.

PRIVATE BILLS

FIRST READINGS

Bill No. 94 (from the Senate), for the relief of George Daly.—Mr. McMaster.

Bill No. 95 (from the Senate), for the relief of Wrae Elizabeth Snider.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 96 (from the Senate), for the relief of Oliver Kelly.—Mr. Rankin.

Bill No. 97 (from the Senate), for the relief of Vera Hamlin.—Mr. Ryckman.

Bill No. 98 (from the Senate), for the relief of George Drewery.—Mr. Stewart (Hamilton).

Bill No. 99 (from the Senate), for the relief of Kate Holmes.—Mr. Hocken.

Bill No. 100 (from the Senate) for the relief of Ernest Hull.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 101 (from the Senate), for the relief of Leslie George Dewsbury.—Mr. Church.

Bill No. 102 (from the Senate), for the relief of John Douglas Stewart.—Mr. Sheard.

Bill No. 103 (from the Senate), for the relief of Charles William Murtagh.—Mr. Boys.

Bill No. 104 (from the Senate), for the relief of Helen Garrett.—Mr. Ryckman.

Bill No. 105 (from the Senate), for the relief of Arthur Leslie Smith.—Mr. Ryckman.

QUESTIONS

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

MARINE ALLOWANCE SALES

Mr. WHITE:

1. Has any portion of the Marine Alowance of, (a) The shore of Lake Huron, immediately south of the Sauble River, in the township of Amabel, County of Bruce; and, (b) The south shore of the Sauble River, from Lake Huron towards the source of the river, Township of Amabel, County of Bruce, been sold, conveyed or allotted to any individual or company?

2. If so, when, to whom, and what were the prices and particulars of the transfers?

Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE KING: There does not appear to be the information asked for in this question in either the Department of Public Works or the Department of Marine and Fisheries. It may be that this is a provincial matter. I would suggest to my hon. friend that he confer with the Minister of Public Works in regard to it, and possibly what he is seeking might be obtained in some other form. In the meantime I would ask him to drop the question.

Question dropped.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS—GRAIN LEAKAGES

Hon. Mr. MANION:

1. What was the cost to the Canadian National Railways of leakages of grain, from cars, between points of shipment and the head of the lakes, during the past railway year?

2. What was the cost to the said railways of new grain doors, and repairs to grain doors upon grain cars, during the same season?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. $193,339.48.

2. Amount charged to operating expenses for grain doors during 1921 was $383,467; of this amount, $55,843.26 was for repairs to grain doors.

The foregoing figures include the Grand Trunk Pacific.

CIVIL SERVICE CLASSIFICATION

Mr. DESLAURIERS:

1. How many editions of the Classification of the Civil Service were printed?

2. What quantity of each edition were printed?

3. How many were printed in French?

4. How many were printed in English?

5. How many of each edition were distributed prior to September, 1919?

6. How many French copies?

7. How many English copies?

8. What quantity of the edition of September, 1919, were distributed?

9. How many French copies?

10. How many English copies?

11. How many copies of the edition of the 10th of November, 1919, were distributed?

12. How many French?

13. How many English?

Hon. Mr. COPP:

1. Two.

2. First edition, 3,000; second edition, 3,300.

3. 2,100.

4. 5,000.

5. 294.

6. 15.

7. 279.

8. 1,037.

9. 81.

10. 956.

11. No edition of that date.

12 and 13. Answered by No. 11.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY—MENUS

Hon. Mr. BAXTER:

1. By whom are the menus of the Canadian National Railways printed?

2. What quantities are ordered at a time, and what is the cost?

3. How do these menus compare as to cost with those in use on the Canadian Pacific Railway?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. Winnipeg Saturday Post, Winnipeg; Litho Printing Company, Toronto; Royal Litho-Printing Company, Halifax.

2. (a) Dining car evening meal folder menus—

Cost of menu covers (per thousand)	$24.50
Cost of menu inserts (do.)	8.35
Average cost of printing (do.)	30.00
	$62.85

(b) Breakfast and luncheon cards—

Cost of menu cards (per thousand)	$10.00
Average cost of imprinting (do.)	30.00
	$40.00

(c) Café and Buffet car menu cards—

Cost of menu cards (per thousand)	$10.00
Average cost of imprinting (do.)	30.00
	$40.00

(d) Observation Library-Buffet car menu folders—

Cost of menu covers (per thousand)	$ 8.00
Average cost of printing (do.)	30.00
	$38.00

(a) and (b) ordered in hundred thousand lots; (c) in ten thousand lots; (d) in five thousand lots.

3. No information as to Canadian Pacific Railway costs.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE EXHIBITION

Right Hon. Mr. MEIGHEN:

1. Is it the intention of the Government to continue the minimum grant of $2,500 to the Portage la Prairie Exhibition Association?

2. If not, does the Government claim that this grant has not been earned in accordance with regulations?

Hon. Mr. MOTHERWELL:

1. All fairs which receive a grant from the live stock vote of the Department of Agriculture during the present fiscal year must have fulfilled the following conditions:

(a) If a fair received no grant from the Dominion Government at its last preceding fair, it must have paid a minimum of $4,000, and up to a maximum of $16,000, in prizes for utility classes of live stock at its last preceding fair. Such a fair will receive a minimum grant of $1,875, and in addition 50 per cent of the amount greater than $4,000 expended on prizes for utility classes of live stock, the maximum total grant payable, however, being $3,750.

(b) Fairs which received a grant last year must have expended at their last fair at least $4,000, and up to $16,000, of their own money, in addition to the amount of the grant received last year, in prizes for utility classes of live stock. Such fairs will receive a minimum grant of $1,875, and in addition one-half the amount spent for prizes on utility classes of live stock in addition to the combined minimum of $4,000, plus the amount of the grant received last year, the total maximum grant, however, not to exceed $3,750.

If the Portage la Prairie Exhibition has complied with these conditions it will be entitled to a grant on the basis of the above regulations, under which the grant is reduced by 25 per cent as compared with grants made in previous years.

2. Answered by No. 1.

STRUCTURAL STEEL IMPORTATIONS

Right Hon. Mr. MEIGHEN:

1. How many tons of structural steel were imported into Canada, consigned to (a) Ottawa, (b) Toronto, (c) Montreal, (d) St. Johns, (e) Halifax, for the four months, January, February, March and April, 1922?

2. How many tons, during the same period, were imported into Canada?

Hon. Mr. BUREAU: The information is as follows:

IMPORTS OF STRUCTURAL IRON OR STEEL ENTERED FOR CONSUMPTION IN TH DOMINION OF CANADA, AND IN THE UNDERMENTIONED PORTS, DURING THE FOUR MONTHS ENDED APRIL, 1922.

—	Flat eye bar blanks, not punched or drilled, for use exclusively in the mfr. of bridges, or of steel structural work, or in car construction.		Steel plate, universal mill or rolled edge plates of steel over 12 inches wide, for use exclusively in the mfr. of bridges or of steel structural work or in car construction.		Iron or steel beams, sheets, plates, angles, knees and masts or parts thereof, for wooden, iron, steel or composite ships or vessels.
	Tons	Value	Cwt.	Value	Cwt.	Value
		$		$		$
Ottawa
Toronto			2,094	3,066
Montreal			18,965	28,400	5,210	7,397
St. John
Halifax
Dom. of Canada	138	5,724	53,955	94,078	58,794	92,576

—	Rolled iron or steel beams, channels, angles and other rolled shapes of iron or steel, not punched, drilled, or further mfrd. than rolled, weighing not less than 35 lb. per lineal yard, not being square, flat, oval or round shapes and not being railway bars or rails.		Rolled iron or steel angles, tees, beams, channels, girders, and other rolled shapes or sections, not punched, drilled or further mfrd. than rolled, n.o.p.		Iron or steel bridges or parts thereof, iron or steel structural work, columns, shapes or sections, drilled, punched or in any further state of mfr. than as rolled or cast, n.o.p.
	Cwt.	Value	Cwt.	Value	Value
		$		$	$
Ottawa	1,281	2,040	187	425
Toronto	35,323	58,949	16,463	28,074
Montreal	75,640	130,981	13,947	24,649
St. John	656	1,248	142	364	280
Halifax	178	285	416	722
Dom. of Canada	201,602	350,841	74,779	137,557	2,150

INTEREST ON SAVINGS

Mr. SPENCER:

1. In what year did the Government reduce the rate of interest on savings deposits?
2. What was the reason for so doing?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING:

1. 1897.

2. The action taken was based on the general decline in the rate of interest on money.

QUESTION PASSED AS ORDER FOR RETURN

Mr. SEGUIN:

1. How many civil servants were in the employ of the Government on the first of January, 1912, and what was the total amount of salary paid to them?
2. How many civil servants were in the employ of the Government on the first of January, 1922, and what is the total amount of salary paid to them?

[Mr. Bureau.]

GRAIN TRADE

JUDGMENT OF THE MANITOBA COURT OF APPEAL

On the Orders of the Day:

Sir LOMER GOUIN (Minister of Justice): I beg leave to make a statement in reference to the recent judgment of the Court of Appeal for Manitoba in the case of the King vs. the Manitoba Grain Company.

The Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada have concluded, upon the advice of their counsel, to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the recent judgment of the Court of Appeal for Manitoba in the case of The King vs. The Manitoba Grain Company, whereby it was held that section 215 of the Canada Grain Act is ultra vires of the Parliament of Canada, and pending the review of that decision by the ultimate tribunal it is not the intention of the Government to introduce any measure to amend the Canada Grain Act based upon the view expressed by the Court of Appeal, and the existing provisions will continue to be administered as heretofore. Obviously if these provisions be upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada no amendment will be necessary. If, on the other hand, the judgment of the Court of Appeal be affirmed, the Government will consider the propriety of introducing such further advisable legislation as may be found to be within the scope of the Dominion powers as interpreted by the court.

Mr. CRERAR: May I ask the Minister of Justice if he can give the House any information as to when this appeal will likely be heard by the Supreme Court?

Sir LOMER GOUIN: I could not say exactly. It may not be until September or October, but in the meantime, I think, the commissioners can carry on with the statute as it is.

Mr. CRERAR: If that can be done I think the situation is all right, but if there is any doubt of that, the question is one which should receive the very careful consideration of the Government.—

Sir LOMER GOUIN: It is receiving the careful consideration of the Government.

GRAND TRUNK FINANCIAL STATEMENT

On the Orders of the Day:

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): There has recently been given to the public the annual statement of the Grand Trunk Railway system. That statement discloses the financial position of the system in such a clear and unmistakable way that I think a synopsis of it with the conclusions therefrom, should be transmitted by the Government in a manner calculated to receive the utmost publicity in the Old Country where, I think, it will have the effect of disabusing the minds of any reasonable people who may have entertained doubts as to the honesty and fairness of the recent arbitration.

Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): The Government will be very pleased to consider the suggestion made by my right hon. friend.

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. J. S. WOODSWORTH (Centre Winnipeg): May I ask the Government whether there is any safeguard against more immigrants coming into this country than can be employed? I noticed in the press a statement that the Department of Immigration and Colonization is making a change in the requirements concerning immigrants entering the Dominion, the change going into effect immediately. Under this change there will be a test to determine the fitness of immigrants and their occupation. In the past, if I understand, the sum which the immigrants brought with him was supposed to keep him until he obtained employment. Is there anything to guarantee that the immigrant on arriving in Canada will go on to the farm and remain there and not drift into the city and become an added charge on the community.

Hon. CHARLES STEWART (Minister of the Interior): Every precaution is being taken with respect to agricultural labourers to ascertain that they are really what they represent themselves to be, and that they will be more than likely to remain in that occupation. I intend giving a very full explanation when the estimates for immigration are considered.

SUPPLY

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

House again in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Mr. W. F. MACLEAN (South York): I did not happen to be in the House yesterday when the railway question was up for consideration, but I was present some weeks ago when the Minister of Railways made a statement in connection with our railways. In that statement, which was carefully prepared and very complete, the minister disclosed a lot of facts bearing on the railway situation, and also announced that it was the intention of the Government to recognize the principle of public ownership with respect to the railways which we have acquired and, in the administration of those railways, to give that principle a fair trial. Yesterday the hon. member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) addressed the House on the railway question and took quite a contrary view, although he too declared that he was favourable to giving public ownership a fair trial. Nevertheless the hon. member told the House frankly that he was opposed to the principle of public ownership and administration of the railways of this country. That may be his view, and he is entitled to it. I, on the contrary, believe in public ownership of our railways; and I am going to ask hon. gentlemen to listen to me for a few moments while I give reasons in favour of public ownership, not only from the point of view of myself and my constituents, but also from the point of view of a large proportion of the Canadian people. The views which I entertain upon this question have not been arrived at recently. Ever since I entered public life I have been an upholder of public ownership, and I have preached the doctrine in and out of this House. I have taken part in a great many election campaigns; and whenever this question has been discussed the verdict has generally been in favour of the principle of public ownership and of giving it a fair trial. I come from a province where that principle is now being carried out in a rather significant way; but something still more significant is happening in this House. I have sat in a great many parliaments, but never did I see before what is being witnessed to-day; sixty to sixty-five men, virtually a solid bloc, committed to the principle of public ownership in connection with the railways of Canada. Furthermore I never before saw in this House a party so determined and so united in upholding that principle, and other principles also, to which they are committed. They come here daily, they sit here throughout the session, they take part in the debates, and they watch these public questions; and I say it is a revolution that a political party has come into this House committed to, and prepared to defend, the policy of public ownership in connection with our railways.

Now I am going to give some of the reasons why I believe in public ownership —and have believed in it all the time I have been a member, and during all the time I have taken part in the discussion of public matters in the press and on the public platform. We often hear the phrases, "the right of collective bargaining", and "collective ownership." Both these phrases have been driven into the minds of the people, and are being especially applied to the ownership and administration of railways. But there is a third phrase, a very old and well known one, one derived from the past, and connected with our history,—"The King's highway". If the King's highway and the high seas are free to all people to travel, is it anything out of the way that we should apply the principle of public ownership to the King's highway, the railway? We have applied it already in regard to ships on the high seas and rivers. Everybody has a right to transport on the highways, and exercises that right. We all drive our waggons and vehicles on the King's highway. That highway is being extended in all provinces of the Dominion; the people are spending immense sums and making good roads; and it is still the King's highway. The greatest competitor of the railways is the King's highway, with the motor truck on it, and it is still free. No company takes toll from travellers. This is not a new doctrine, but is an expansion of the old doctrine of transportation on the King's highway as a railway being in the control of the people. That idea is prevalent in Quebec, the maritime provinces, and all over Canada. Whereever we go there is a growing idea that the King's highway, as a means of transportation, should be absolutely the property of the people, and if there is to be transportation on the railway why should it not be controlled by the people? Why should transportation on a set of rails on private property pass into the hands of a private company, unless some good reason for it is shown? I do not think a reason can be given, and I can give a good reason why the railways should be the property of the people and should not be controlled by a private company.

[Mr. W. F. Maclean.]

This doctrine is not confined to our own people. The great roads of the Empire of Rome were the people's highway for the commerce of that empire, and the work of the army was done on the "King's highway" as a practical proposition. The trails of our North American Indians are still, and always have been, highways. This doctrine is altogether out of harmony —although we have been used to hearing the contrary—with the tradition that when the King's highway is furnished with rails, it should pass into the hands of a private company.

Transportation is absolutely a public service. We have the same principle in connection with the mails in our post office. That is a matter of transportation and is in the hands of the nation. Why should the rail traffic of the country not also be in the hands of the nation? That principle is growing. It may be denied in places, but public ownership of railways prevails in many countries for good and sufficient reasons.

Next to the question of transportation on the King's highway being controlled by the people, I come to the question of transportation on the Canadian National railways. The feature about transportation is that it is a service for all the people, and especially a service in connection with the railways. There should be some compensation for the people who find the money for this proposition, but on what principle? The underlying principle of public ownership is equality and efficiency of service, and it must be made cheap in order to be efficient. If it is controlled by a private company, organized as a financial proposition, the shareholders want large dividends on all kinds of stock, including watered stock, and they want returns on bonds. And, without making any reflection on the Canadian Pacific Railway, they also want something else—they want the segregation of the extraneous assets. In other words, after paying their 10 per cent dividend, they want these extraneous assets in the reserves of the company distributed among the shareholders. First of all, the shareholders have the 10 per cent dividends. In addition, there has been a frequent cutting of melons by that railway in several ways. Stock has been given, not at par, not as a bonus, but at a lower price than the stock would have brought in the open market. Besides all this, the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific hope to cut many melons in connection with the extraneous assets, if they are allowed to do it. This is a very expensive way of financing railways.

What is the plan of those who favour public ownership as a national proposition? It is that the capital required for the construction of the railway shall be a bond proposition, guaranteed and secured by a mortgage on the undertaking. That is the essential feature of public ownership of railways. There is no high financing and no cutting of melons, but there is a flotation of bonds, say, at 4 per cent. As soon as the market recovers and business returns, we can get all the money we want for our national railways in this country on the basis of 4 per cent. on a bond issue. What is the difference between 4 per cent bonds, for which the money was really paid in, and the stock of some of the railways for which very little was paid, and where the shareholders not only have dividends but expect melons to be cut frequently, and whose ambition—and it is a fair ambition—is to receive a much larger return on their investment than even 10 per cent? Of course, the railways have not achieved that position in many instances. From the point of view of giving the best service and financing a railroad of the right kind, public ownership is far ahead of the other system. It is sound financing from start to finish.

There is another argument in favour of it, about which we do not hear a great deal, but it comes home to us and to all the world in connection with transportation. That argument is that transportation is not merely a question of carriage on rails, it is a question of transportation on waterways, rivers and seas, lakes and canals. The men who have been engaged in the business of transportation on rails have always been the enemies of transportation by water. Public ownership co-ordinates the two. With public ownership of transportation, that system is used which best suits the requirements. Great economies are effected in that way. The greatest enemy of reduced railway transportation, if that can be secured by means of waterways—and this question is very much to the fore in the United States now—is the railways. This opposition is not quite fair. After we have created these companies and given them permission to establish railway lines throughout the country, they have practically taken the stand that there should be no further water transportation in Canada. They are putting the competing river lines out of business; they have done that in the United States, and they are in league with steamship companies on the high seas to maintain railway rates. That is not giving the people what they are entitled to, namely, efficient service at a low rate.

Another feature of public ownership as applied to railways is freedom. The remarkable thing about public ownership is that you are free to do what you like, whenever you like, with your own; the roads are ours, and we can change our policy whenever we like. But the moment we get into connection with a private company whose main ambition is to make profits, they make contracts and secure franchises; and though we create them to do a service, they, of all people, declare that the state shall not go into the business that we created them to go into. At the present time the freedom of the people of Canada to go even into transportation is denied by the railway companies, and by no company as much as by the Canadian Pacific, which has been so successful in the business of transportation. The Canadian Pacific, through the newspapers of this country and in various other ways, has told this House that we must not go into transportation; and yet the people of Canada, through its Parliament, created the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. That is, the creature says that its creator must not do what it desires to do, but must keep out of the transportation business. When we created the Canadian Pacific and these other railways, we did not create them to say to us that we should not go into transportation if the people saw fit to do so and thought that they could get more efficient service in that way. Therefore, for all these reasons, there is no question about the advantages of public ownership. Under public ownership, you can finance railways better, you can manage them better; you can avail yourself of any system as a complementary system in connection with the railways, and moreover, you have freedom in connection with the railways for all time.

It was said yesterday by the hon. member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) that public ownership had never been a success. Has private ownership, company ownership, in this country been a success? Has the Grand Trunk been a success? Has the Canadian Northern been a success? Have hundreds of railway companies in the United States been successful? They have practically all failed, and as I pointed out in this House some time ago, railways in the United States have made confession that they can not go on. Billions of the money of the people of the United States were put into these defaulting railways to carry them through the war, and they cannot go ahead to-day. What is the good of pointing out to us that public ownership is no good, when we know that private ownership, as experienced, in the United States, has been an absolute failure?

Mr. CANNON: What about the Canadian Pacific?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): It was subsidized, it was given millions of money and millions of acres of land, by the people of Canada; and it is charging exorbitant rates to-day to the people of Canada. Yes, let the Canadian Pacific make money under these exorbitant rates; but can the service be done for less money and better done by the people, with the men on this railway treated just as well as they are to-day being treated by the Canadian Pacific? That is the question. Are we going to get a better service and to have the railway better financed? While the Canadian Pacific is an example of the success of private ownership, the more successful the Canadian Pacific becomes, the more likely is it ultimately to be the master of this country. Where is this great success of the Canadian Pacific going to end? Who knows how wealthy the Canadian Pacific is to-day, what millions it has in its strong box which really belong to the people of Canada, and which ought to have been returned to them long ago in the shape of reduced railway charges? That is the point, and not how successful the Canadian Pacific has been in making money. My hon. friend opposite, however, says: See how successful the Canadian Pacific has been in accumulating huge reserves in its treasury. As I said a moment ago, where is this growth of the Canadian Pacific going to end? Do my hon. friends, who speak so much in favour of the Canadian Pacific and who are constantly quoting it, know that there is a very peculiar thing in connection with that railway, and that is the creation of a voting trust which will become stronger if it is permitted to grow? How many members of this House at present know that the Canadian Pacific, which is exalted before our eyes as the most successful example of private ownership, has a voting trust; that only two members of the board retire each year, and that the concluding words of the annual report state that "Messrs. So-and-so"—two members—"retire from the board this year and are subject to re-election?" But to-day even the shareholders cannot exercise their freedom in connection with the Canadian Pacific and change if a new condition arises. Let me tell the House and the country that this voting trust in connection with the Canadian Pacific is the greatest menace that we have in Canada, because now the interests before the people—

Mr. MARTELL: Why cannot the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific elect their own directors? I do not think there is anything in their charter to prevent them from doing so.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Only two directors can be elected each year. The Canadian Pacific has created this permanent voting trust, which was not the rule in the past, and this shows us that the Canadian Pacific is gradually getting stronger. It is an outstanding fact in connection with railway administration that, while it is the people who use the roads and the shareholders who own the roads, it is getting to be more and more these little inside trusts that control even the shareholders and their property, and the shareholders have not the freedom which they used to have. Gradually the railways have come into the hands of little cliques on the inside who control them and who keep themselves in power by these voting trusts. That is the situation to-day in connection with the Canadian Pacific. In the old days a fresh board of directors could be elected at the annual meeting.

Mr. CANNON: What control have the people of Canada over the election of directors of the Canadian National Railways at present?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I hope we have a responsible government in power to do that work. My hon. friend apparently does not believe in responsible government. The shareholders of the Canadian Pacific are entitled to have their directors come under review every year, instead of two being retired each year so that the trust can continue. This creation of voting trusts is getting to be more and more the menace of financial institutions. The richest corporation outside of railways is a certain mining company which has passed into the perpetual control of the people at present in control of it, because, by means of this voting trust, the control can be handed down in perpetuity to their descendants. This matter of voting trusts is the menace of business and of politics in this country.

Mr. MARTELL: Will my right hon. friend allow me a question?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I am not your "right honourable" friend.

Mr. MARTELL: Well, my honourable friend," then. Do the shareholders in this company, which the hon. gentleman speaks about, control by a majority, just as in the case of other concerns?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I am not going to go into the details of the matter, but I know that the system in connection with this company has worked very satisfactorily. It was decided that the management of the company could be entailed, like property, and an entailed administration in connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway, which was created by the people, is being developed in Montreal. I will now proceed to give my experiences in connection with public ownership. The member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) yesterday referred to some things that had happened in my province. Let me tell the committee what has been done in Ontario in regard to public ownership.

Mr. CANNON: The Hydro Electric?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Yes, the Hydro Electric; and if my hon. friend's province had an Adam Beck they would have a great future ahead of them. I should like my hon. friends from Quebec to visit the city of Toronto, where they would see the finest street railway in America, and one that is owned by the people. It is just as good as the street railway in Montreal, and the people own it, whereas the people of Montreal do not own the street railway there. The people of Toronto can reduce the fare the moment conditions will permit, and they intend to do so. The net rate is at present six cents.

Mr. MARTELL: Is the service good?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Yes, and it is being improved as expeditiously as possible. I might observe that the new cars that are being secured will be made in the province of Quebec. Now, I state without fear of contradiction that the best street railway in America to-day is that which is owned by the people of Toronto. The fares are reasonably cheap considering the effects of the war, and they can, and will be reduced whenever it is at all practicable to reduce them. I would seriously ask the hon. gentlemen to go and observe at first hand the satisfactory operation of this public-owned utility. Electrical energy is distributed more cheaply in Toronto than in any other city of similar size, and the facts amply prove this assertion. The municipalities of Ontario are to-day organizing the greatest system of distribution of electrical energy that will be found anywhere in the world. This power is all to be derived from Niagara, and the entire system is to be owned by the people. The scheme contemplates the distribution of energy to every house in the southern portion of Ontario. The plant is greater than that which is to be found on the Tennessee river, and this system of public ownership applied to the development of power in Ontario will within two years produce at least half a million—I believe a million—horse power annually. At $10 per horse power this will represent an income of at least $5,000,000 a year; and if, as I believe, the power reaches the higher figure, the return will, of course, be $10,000,000. Many of the cities of Ontario own their own street railways and they would not part with them under any consideration. At Windsor on the Ontario side of the Detroit river there is a splendid system of public ownership and the service is splendid. Let me tell hon. gentlemen who are denouncing public ownership that the city of Detroit has taken over the street railway there, following the example of Toronto and other Canadian cities, while in the western provinces the people have tried public ownership of street railways with success. We are building a great system of public ownership here notwithstanding a certain degree of opposition, and in the United States the President and his party are now committed to a considerable scheme of publicly controlled development of electrical energy wherever it is possible in connection with the railways, in order to provide cheap transportation.

Mr. CANNON: If public ownership is such a good thing how does my hon. friend explain the fact that the American government turned over the railways to their private owners?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): The fact is that the American railways could not serve the nation in time of war. They had absolutely fallen down. They had been so exploited by private ownership, the directors and managers being connected with different companies on the side, that the treasuries of the railroads were nearly depleted. They were nearly ruined—and I use the word advisedly—that they could not render the service required of them by the nation during the war, and the government had to take them over and administer them. They have given them back—

An hon. MEMBER: Why?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Well, things were in such a bad shape that there had to be a readjustment, and in the meantime they have been handed back to the private owners. But the government will eventually have to take them over again. They have spent millions of dollars on them, and they will take them over just as we have taken over the railways in this country.

Mr. MITCHELL: What about Great Britain?

Mr. MACLEAN York): Private ownership did not prove successful there, either, during the war. There were twenty systems in that country and the only thing that could be done was to nationalize them. Now, public ownership is sweeping all over the world, and that is what my hon. friends cannot see.

Mr. MARCIL (Bonaventure): What about France? Have they not handed back the railways to the private owners there?

Mr. CANNON: What about Bulgaria?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Evidently hon. gentlemen are not serious; they are not dealing with facts. Public ownership has vindicated itself in Europe, in this country, and in Australia, and they are realizing the wisdom of it in the United States. Those who do not see it do not want to see it. There are too many blind men in this House. It may be all right to have a blind—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Pig.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): No, I am not talking about that. It may be all right to have a blind man, but it is disastrous to have a blind party.

Mr. LAVIGUEUR: Will you allow me a question? Why do you not come to Quebec and see what effect public management has there?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Well, who is to blame for that but the people of Quebec? That is the thing I am in favour of. When there is mismanagement, if the road is publicly owned it can be rectified, but if the road is privately owned, it cannot be.

Mr. MARCIL (Bonaventure): If we are to make a success of these railways, the people must have a say in the matter. If the people of Quebec, for instance, have no voice in the matter, how can the railways be made a success?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Well, you have the Government here, with more ministers from Quebec than from any other province. The people must take care of themselves, but you must not deprive them of the right to take care of themselves by handing these franchises over to private companies.

Mr. McKENZIE: Does the hon. member suggest that the Government should interfere in the management of the National Railways?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): The Minister of Railways says it is the intention of the Government to appoint a board of directors to administer the National Railways. I may say that I am confident that the Government will appoint a good board.

Mr. McKENZIE: That is not my question. Does the hon. member suggest that the Government should interfere in the management of the National Railways?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Only to the extent that the minister has mentioned—that the Government get the best possible board to administer the system. The minister is responsible for seeing that that is done.

Mr. MARCIL (Bonaventure): To whom will that board be responsible?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): As is the case in all our public administration, it goes back to the individual voter. But between the voter and the system is the government, and between the government and the system is the board of directors. My hon. friends opposite are fond of preaching the doctrine of, "Trust the people". Do they say that the people cannot be trusted to see that there is a good board of directors?

Mr. CANNON: Would my hon. friend still support public ownership of the railways if the headquarters were transferred to Montreal?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I do not know. Would my hon. friend himself trust Montreal? I attended a meeting of the Railway Committee this morning and I understood there was some doubt about trusting Montreal. Now, these are nice little questions, but they do not interfere with the argument.

Mr. CALDWELL: Would my hon. friend be in favour of appointing a board of directors the members of which are already directors of companies which manufacture railways cars, locomotives, or steel rails, or operate coal mines, and so on?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): No, I would not approve of that. We have heard some intimations from the other side along that line, from some of the friends of the government. I have not the responsibility of administration of this act, but if I had anything to do with it I would do my share towards seeing that a good board was appointed, and there are good men in Canada who could carry out efficiently the work of such a board. We are just as good as the people of any other country; we have a great many men who are trained in railway matters and who could serve well in this capacity.

What would happen if we gave these railways back, as the Canadian Pacific suggests? Well, it would not be long before Parliament would be asked to vote an enormous sum to put them on their feet. We are not going to do that. We have these roads; let us stand for the deficits until such time as they can be put in shape. We are not going to hand them back to anybody, least of all are we going to hand them to the Canadian Pacific. We will keep them and get good men to administer them.

A great amount of the relief which is afforded in the way of transportation throughout the world is that which the waterways offer. In Europe they have not very good railroads, but they have a great system of waterways. There is not a town in Europe that is not connected with a section of seaboard or with a river; they have constant competition and good service. They have made more of their water transportation than anything else; in this country almost an opposite view is taken. In addition to waterway transportation we have the transportation of the highway. The highway is becoming one of the most aggressive of the competitors of the railroad. Perhaps we shall have a system of transportation in the air before long, but the competitors of the railroad now are the waterways and the highways. Now, there is no doubt that transportation by motor truck and by vessels on our waterway systems will have to be harmonized and brought into co-operation with transportation by rail. The railways do not want to do it; they do not want to avail themselves of the waterways. But the great merit of these various systems is the competition in the way of rates and service which they afford. The advantage of the motor truck is that it transports commodities from door to door, from factory to retailer or consumer, from the mine to wherever the material is required. Therefore in attempting a solution of our transportation problem we must deal with the question of our waterways and our highways; we must consider all the methods of transportation, and we must harmonize them and bring them into co-operation. We must remember that we not only have to administer these roads, but also we have to see that they give good service.

I come now to the question of motive power for the railways. We have an immense mileage of railroads in this country that have been taken over by the Government, and we have to have motive power for them. The railroads of the United States are up against this same problem of motive power, and the President of the United States has had to come to their relief. He has propounded a great system of water-power development for the haulage of the railway trains of the United States, and the people of the United States are committing themselves to the expenditure of billions of dollars to solve this question of motive power. The railroads over there either own or control a lot of mines to supply the coal required in their operations. So, this problem is up in the United States as well as here, and the only way to solve it is through the development of water-power owned and controlled by the people. There is enough water-power in Canada, in the western rivers, in the rivers of Ontario and Quebec, to provide every railway in this country with motive power. That power cannot be developed in any other way as efficiently and as cheaply as it can under public ownership. There is no way out of the transportation difficulties of America to-day except by electrical energy applied to the railways, and all the railway authorities in the United States insist upon the electrification of their roads, at an enormous cost. I do not know where they are going to get the money, but they can only get cheap water-power as a public-owned proposition, they will never get it cheaply from private-owned concerns. We know how the mine owners exact exorbitant charges from the railway companies of the United States, and they would do the same here if they had the chance. So, we have to go in for the electrification of our railways, just as the United States are doing. President Harding has accepted that responsibility, and has committed his administration to the principle of the great development of water-power, under public control, for the haulage of the trains of the United States. We in Canada have the railways on our hands, and we intend to keep them and to make them efficient, and we must undertake this duty of electrifying them. We must find water-power for them, and if we do that, we shall be able to give our people a much better system of transportation than they have had in the past.

Mr. CANNON: Is it not a fact that railway experts agree that electrification cannot be applied to railway yards, for shunting purposes, and so on?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): That is a small matter. How much power is required in the yards? That difficulty has already been overcome in some cases. There is no other solution of our transportation problem than electrification. There may be minor difficulties, but electrification can undoubtedly be applied for moving the grain crops of our western provinces. There is only one way to move the trains, and that is by electrical power. We have the power in this country, and as the people are going to deal with the transportation system from now on—

Mr. CANNON: If electrical power cannot be applied at the terminal points, what would be its usefulness to the railways?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I have seen lots of terminals where electrification has been applied successfully. That is a problem, of course, but I think we have the mechanical genius in this country to overcome all these problems. My hon. friend wants to find hidden enemies at every point. He is looking for them, and for what reason? To stop the people of Canada, now that they have the roads after their failure under private ownership. We are going to try out electrification and the responsibility is now on the Government in office.

I come now to the last point I want to bring out. What does the Government propose to do in connection with this great problem? They have announced in the House that they assume the responsibility and are going to give the roads a fair trial. They are going to appoint a board of directors, and get competent men. I believe there are competent men available, and the sooner they are appointed the better it will be for the railways. There has been too much delay in the past, and the Government ought to get busy and appoint the board as soon as possible—the sooner the better so that they can get down and study the great necessities of this country, as outlined yesterday by the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar). There must be consolidation to effect economy in the railways and the men to do it, I would say, are the directors who are to take charge of the railways. Put the men at their work, and let them survey the situation, so that these economies may be effected. I know line after line where great economies could be effected. I know a good deal about the two roads in Ontario, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk, and I know where immense savings could be effected on those lines. We shall have to trust to competent railway experts, under the direction and charge of a responsible board, and I am sure that when they get to work they will find where great economies can be effected. There are a lot of trains run that should be cut out; and a better service could be given at a lower cost. It is this duplication that is wasteful. How long is it going to be tolerated? We have a great asset in our railways.

I know why so much opposition is made to public ownership. It is because the people of Canada have got two great railway systems in their hands, and the greatest railway asset in Canada to-day is the Grand Trunk which has passed into the hands of the people. It commands the strategic points all over Canada. The Grand Trunk is stronger to-day in Montreal than the Canadian Pacific. It is strong in the city of Ottawa, and in Toronto it has all the good points, and on the Detroit and Niagara rivers. The same is true of the Canadian Northern and of the Grand Trunk Pacific. We have got all the best points right across the continent through acquiring these railway systems, and they should be linked up into a unified system. When that is done, we shall get lower rates and better service, and we shall be in a position to treat the railway men better than they have ever been treated before. You can unify. The people now have in their hands the business of the transportation of freight and passengers, the express business, the money order business, the telegraph business, and the transfer of mails. It is all right when these are concentrated in the hands of the people. The Canadian Pacific say that we should not be in this business. The Canadian Pacific is in another great combination. The greatest combination in the United States to-day is the American Telegraph and Telephone Company. It controls all the telegraphs and most of the Bell lines all over the world, and most of the cables all over the world. The Canadian Pacific is in with that combination, and I say it is absolutely necessary in the public interest, not only in Canada, but in the United States and every other modern country, that services associated with transportation should be in the hands of the people such as the telegraph, money order, postal and express business. These should not be in the hands of private corporations. And so I trust that the Minister of Railways will persuade his Government to assume this responsibility. The legislation passed by the previous government, providing for the consolidation of the railways, can be put into effect almost immediately and a good board selected almost at once. If the Government do that, and provide for the consolidation of these roads, you will see the railroads not only paying their operating expenses but beginning to discharge some of the deficits which they have incurred in the past. The prediction I make in connection with the National Railways is that we are going to wipe out these deficits; and it is because the era of public ownership is likely to come, and be a great success that the main opposition to it is encountered to-day. From our experience in the province of Ontario we believe more in public ownership to-day than we ever did. That policy has not fallen down, and there has not been the failure we have seen in the case of the private owned companies. The people did not bring about these deficits met with in the past; they were the result of maladministration and over-building. These railways are to-day in the hands of the people; the government have taken them in charge, and at a very early date they must disclose who are to constitute the board and what measures will be taken to ensure that the consolidation so necessary shall take place at the earliest possible date.

I have criticized the Canadian Pacific Railway Company here to-day, but I am willing that the Government should find a way to co-operate and to co-ordinate with that company if such a course will reduce traffic charges. There is no reason why the two systems should not work in co-operation, and, enable passengers to go from one railroad to the other if necessary, and in every way give a better service to the people. The railways of this country will very soon have all they can do, even though that condition does not exist at present, and the people will be glad to see competition. The way to make the Canadian National Railways to do well is to keep the Canadian Pacific Railway as an efficient competitor. I do not object to competition with the National Railways. There is room for the two systems, and one day we shall want more railways in the West. We shall be able to get more settlers there when we are able to show that the best system of transportation in the North American continent is in Canada. Let us keep our national railways and make them efficient, and especially render them useful in the building up of our country.

Mr. CANNON Before my hon. friend resumes his seat will he state that public ownership is not one of the principles laid down by the Russian soviet government and denounced by every European government?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I have heard soviet doctrines enunciated even in this country but that is not a part of the issue here. Furthermore I am not responsible for the Soviet government.

Mr. FERNAND RINFRET (St. James): Possibly I should initiate these remarks by saying, as most members say when they rise in this House, that this is the greatest and most important problem before the country. But hon. members will concede that such a remark would be truer in this instance than in other cases, because every one admits there is no greater problem before Canada to-day, and none more complex. For it is a great problem, when this country has to operate more than 20,000 miles of railway at a deficit rate of $70,000,000 in 1920, and $56,000,000 in 1921, plus the $15,000,000 of Grand Trunk railway deficit. It is also a complex problem because we are not at its initiation. The question is not now whether we shall purchase these railways or not; the question is solely what we are going to do with them. And there are few solutions of the problem, if any, available to us. This is a matter as to which every hon. member should make his attitude perfectly clear. It is one that played a great part in the elections in that part of Canada from which I come; and I must say that it was possibly the main topic that we discussed in the late election, notwithstanding the innuendoes of some hon. gentlemen opposite that we dealt with other matters on that occasion. Personally I took a very definite stand on this matter, not only in the constituency of St. James but in every other electoral district where I happened to speak, and I desire to take exactly the same stand on the issue before us to-day. Briefly condensed what was that stand? It was that the Liberal party should decline all responsibility for the present railway situation in Canada; that the purchase of railways by the state was a grave mistake; that I did not believe in government ownership; that the system had been a failure in other countries; that the Liberals if returned to power should immediately endeavour to reduce the cost of the government railways to the taxpayers of the country, and avail themselves of the first opportunity to return them, on reasonable terms, to private ownership. That was my stand, Mr. Chairman, in the last election, and it is my stand to-day.

As to the proportionate responsibility resting on the respective political parties for the existing railway situation, I regard that as a matter of less importance. I believe that those parties should accept their responsibilities before the country, as well as before Parliament; but I also think that, faced with a problem of this magnitude, even the question of political responsibility should be set aside when we are addressing ourselves to that solution of the problem for which we are all looking. However, as to the responsibility for this situation there cannot be two opinions on the matter. The Drayton-Acworth report made in 1919 has frequently been referred to as showing that whilst from 1901 to 1911 the construction of railways in Canada was ever proportionate to the increase of population, during the period from 1911 to 1919 that proportion grew out of all bounds and clearly outran the increase in population. The figures are these:

	Population	Mileage of Railway	Proportion
1901	5,371,315	18,140	1 mile per 300 inhabitants
1911	7,206,643	25,400	1 mile per 284 inhabitants
1919	7,500,000	40,584	1 mile per 185 inhabitants

In other words, from 1901 to 1911 the population had increased by 34 per cent, and the railway mileage by about 40 per cent, while from 1911 to 1919 the population had practically only increased some 7 per cent and the railway mileage had increased over 40 per cent. We might appreciate the proportionate responsibility of the parties by taking the grants, cash subsidies, guarantees and other methods of helping the railways that have been adopted by the Government. I do not like to quote figures, as my short experience in this House convinces me that when you ask for figures in regard to the expenditures on different railways, it is very hard indeed to get them to agree. There have been so many grants, subsidies and guarantees for the benefit of railways that it is hard to reconcile the figures, and to arrive at a conclusion. But I will quote, as an example, the figures that I obtained this year. The cash subsidies given to the Canadian Northern from 1883 to 1907 amounted to $6,226,000, while from 1911 to 1917 the cash subsidies amounted to $21,056,000 odd. This is the information given by the Government on May 5 of this year. If you ask about the guarantees, subventions, or any other form of aid, you would find that the different governments had helped the railways in the same proportion—that is to say, before 1911, when we were building only according to the increase in population, aid was given in a very moderate way, but from 1911 up to the time of the purchase of the railway, when the population was not increasing in proportion to the building, we were giving subsidies, guarantees and benefits in far larger amounts. The responsibility of the Liberal party in this matter is very clearly indicated by the position which that party took in opposition from 1911 till 1921. When the Borden government began their bungling of the Transcontinental, the Liberal party protested. When the same government, by the direct and persistent work of the present leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen), purchased the Canadian Northern, the Liberal party protested with renewed energy. They contended, with the best of reasons, that it was a pernicious deal. Not only did the government place a fictitious value on the stock of the bankrupt company—and that was a very grave error—but by becoming the owner of the road, gave a par value to all obligations, debts and promissory notes of that company, and thereby imposed on the country a burden of colossal proportions. When the present leader of the Opposition submitted to the late parliament his deal for the Grand Trunk purchase at the end of the session which had been called to discuss the peace treaty, again the Liberal party protested. There could be no doubt at that time that we stood against public ownership, that we considered it a colossal bungle, that the Borden-Meighen government had imposed a burden on the country, and that we favoured the Laurier policy of private ownership under the judicial control of the Board of Railway Commissioners. But now we are in power and we find an established situation. That is to say, we have railways which have not been purchased by us, but which have been thrust upon us, and the question is, not who is responsible for that situation, but what are we going to do about it? That is a much more important matter.

Possibly, at this point I might just outline what government ownership means to us. It means a capital outlay of an immense amount—over a billion dollars—imposed on this country; pretty nearly half of the public debt of Canada. At page 386 of Hansard of this session hon. members will find that the total obligation of the Canadian Northern Railway amounted, at the time these obligations were calculated, to the enormous figure of $586,000,000. If you take the obligations of the government railways, the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Transcontinental, the Intercolonial, the smaller railways, and finally the Grand Trunk, you will find that the capital outlay on Government railways is well above, or at least well around, the one billion figure, and I repeat that that is pretty nearly half of the public debt of the country. What do the annual deficits of the railway mean to us. The deficit of 1920 was $70,000,000. Add together past deficits and those in prospect, with interest at 7 per cent a year, and you find that in 1925 the total will amount to $492,000,000. Or, if hon. members think the rate of interest is too large, put it at 5 per cent, and you will see that the aggregate deficit on these railways, with the yearly interest added, will mean a total of $470,000,000 in 1925. We must add interest, for we are not meeting the deficit but are simply adding it to the public debt. Unless a miracle is performed in the administration of the railway, the deficit will be increased every day by the constant increase in the fixed charges. The report of the minister, page 934 of unrevised Hansard, shows that the increased fixed charges in 1921 for the Canadian National Railways was $7,583,000, and for the Grand Trunk, $5,220,000. That is to say, the increase in fixed charges in 1921 alone amounted to $12,803,000.

Possibly we can ascertain what government ownership has done in this country by looking at the figures. I quote from the public statistics. In 1918 the Canadian Northern had an operating surplus over current expenditure of five and a half million. The deficit, after paying all the fixed charges, amounted to $11,674,187. The government took it over, and two years later, in 1920, the deficit had increased to $34,074,847. The trade depression did not start until 1921. In 1920 the Canadian Northern earned $21,036,000 more than it did in 1918, and $13,133,221 more than it had earned in 1919. In other words, the earnings of the railroad had increased, and yet the deficit, under government ownership, was much larger than it had proved to be even under the administration of the former company. The increase in the employees of the Canadian Northern has been absolutely out of proportion to the increase of the mileage of the railway. In 1916, the mileage in operation was 9,702 and the employees per 1,000 miles numbered 2,151. In 1920, the mileage had not been much increased; it was 9,743, and the number of employees per 1,000 miles was 3,433.

Mr. LAFLAMME: In that connection, is the hon. member able to give us his views regarding a feature which, to my knowledge, has not yet been discussed? What would be the effect of state ownership and state operation of railways on the liberty or freedom of the franchise, if it is true that, in 1919, there was one mile of railway owned and operated in Canada per 185 persons?

Mr. RINFRET: I did say that I would not like to take a partisan stand on this matter. My impression is that, even with the best of willingness, you can hardly dissociate political advantage from political administration of railways, and I suppose my hon. friend feels as I do on this matter, namely, that when we advocate the doing away with the immense patronage that government ownership would mean to this country, we are advocating a policy which should prove to be for the good of the country.

Mr. LAFLAMME: Does the hon. member know that statistics in France have shown that state ownership there means the hand of the state on about 12 per cent of the voters?

Mr. RINFRET: I am aware of that, and I am also aware of the fact that the French government—I am going to refer to this in a minute—has done away with government ownership altogether. Possibly the French government has not had the advantage of hearing some of the speeches that are delivered in this House. I may also point out, before leaving this part of my remarks, that unfortunately the receipts of the Government railways have decreased very much this year. The figures for the week ending April 30, are $2,467,145, a decrease of $352,133 over the same period last year. But what is more grave, is that from January 1 to April 30, that is, for the first four months of this year, the receipts amounted to $33,579,677, a decrease of $7,647,545 over last year. That is to say, if the receipts are to continue at that rate during the year, we may face, at the end of this year, a decrease of over $20,000,000 in receipts on our government railways. As I do not see any hope of a similar decrease in expenditure, I am very much afraid that the deficit next year will prove to be much greater than it was last year.

I am coming to another point which is often mentioned in debates of this kind, and that is the result of government ownership in other countries. It is a fact that only lately we have had examples of nations abandoning the system of public ownership altogether. I have in my hand a despatch dated March 7, which was published in the Montreal Star and later in all the other Canadian papers, stating that the French government has ended the state ownership test. It reads:

> After being a drain on the French treasury for fourteen years, the Etat railroad system is to be handed over to a private corporation, the French government having decided that its talents do not lie in the direction of railway management. A parliamentary commission is completing plans for the disposal of the road, which has the reputation of being the most disorganized in the country. On completion of the commission's work, the chamber will be asked to approve its decisions, which, it is understood, are heartily backed by the Government.

On March 14, we were informed that in Newfoundland they had a government railway which cost the treasury about $1,500,000 a year, and that they were also very anxious to get rid of it. On May 9 of this year, we were told that the South African deficit in government railways was so large that that government also intends to dispose of its railways.

I have listened with a great deal of interest to the benevolent efforts of the hon. member for South York (Mr. Maclean) to show us that the government of the United States had taken over their railways during the war, because they had been a failure under private ownership and —I do not quite recollect what explanation he gave, but he stated—that after losing about $500,000,000 a year on them the United States government returned them to private ownership. Possibly we shall hear more about that, but this is the first time that I have ever heard the experience of the United States in connection with their railways given as a good illustration of what public ownership could do, that is, given as an argument in favour of public ownership.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): I gave it as an illustration of the failure of private ownership. The United States government had to take them over during the war.

Mr. RINFRET: That is exactly what I cannot understand. The hon. member says that private ownership failed, so that the United States government had to take the railways over. Why did that government return them to private ownership?

Mr. MACLEAN (York): They took the railways over as they were.

Mr. RINFRET: I might remind the committee that the system in connection with railways is different in the United States from that in Canada. As they do in the case of banking, they have small railway companies, and the United States government thought that it was proper, during the war, to bring those numerous companies under one system for war purposes; but it found out at the same time that, while that might prove useful for war purposes, it was very costly. I do not remember for how many years the United States government retained control of the railways; but it was for only a few years, and, as soon as the war was over, they took steps to return the railways to private ownership, because the taxpayers in the United States would not pay the cost of government ownership of railways in that country.

Let us view the situation in Europe. I have a table which I will not read, showing around 1914, before the war, the proportion of government owned and privately owned railways in the world. I am merely giving the figures; they are open to discussion. The proportion was 70.9 per cent privately owned railways and 29.1 per cent publicly owned railways. I might explain, without going into details, that the enormous proportion of privately owned railways is due to the fact that, in the United States and at that time in Canada, practically all the railways were privately owned. The proportion in America was 96.3 per cent privately owned and 3.7 per cent publicly owned. In Europe, Asia and even in Africa, the proportion was about even between the two systems.

Mr. CRERAR: From what authority is the hon. member quoting? I ask just for information.

Mr. RINFRET: I am quoting from a well known book on the matter, "The Case Against Nationalization," by Edwin A. Pratt, a book which was published around that year. I give the figures merely as information; I do not pretend to base any argument upon them. We find that at that time, whilst Germany and Hungary had mostly public owned railways, in France and England there were no publicly owned railways at all; and while the railways were practically all under public ownership in Italy, in Spain and Portugal they were privately owned. The fact is that previous to the war, outside of America, the practice was about evenly divided between the two systems of operation. This author explains the case of Germany, which is very often cited as an illustration of the profitable operation of government owned railways. I shall merely sum up his argument, which is open to discussion, although it appears rather convincing to me. He points out that as regards Germany, the government owned railways are remunerative principally in Prussia, and this is due to many reasons. In the first place, it costs comparatively little to build railways in an exceedingly flat country: there is no heavy outlay on tunnels, viaducts, embankments and cuttings.

Mr. MITCHELL: That would apply to the West.

Mr. RINFRET: Yes; I will come to that point later. I might remark in passing, however, that in my humble opinion the Canadian Northern should be confined to the West. It becomes costly when it crosses the Algoma district and the Rocky mountains. But to return to Germany—and I promise not to keep hon. gentlemen there much longer. The second reason which this author gives for the profitable operation of railways in Germany, and particularly in Prussia, is the fact that certain outlays that are made in other countries are avoided there. For example, in most cases the stations in Germany are very modest, and if the surroundings are embellished or beautified the municipalities contribute to the cost. Then, those railways that have been acquired from private companies have been purchased at very low cost by the Prussian government. And another reason for the cheaper operation of the government owned railways in Prussia is the fact that they are under a military system which precludes patronage and the political influences that are brought to bear on government railways in other countries. Furthermore, they do not pay to the state the same amount of taxation exacted from private companies. The German government has full control over freight rates and the law prevents strikes, and the wages paid are not as high as those paid in this country, for instance. These are among the reasons why it has been possible for the German empire, and particularly in Prussia, for government railways to be operated more profitably than elsewhere. It is also pointed out that they calculate their surplus on current expenditure. That is to say, the state incurs the expenditures, and the reports made from year to year give merely the surplus earnings on current expenditures. In Belgium, also, the state owned railways have had fair results. But it must be remembered that Belgium is an exceptionally prosperous country with a large population per square mile. Indeed, the population is very dense, and the people are industrious; and Belgium being a flat country, operation is necessarily cheap. Without labouring the point, I think it will be found that in most cases government ownership has been disastrous in every country where the experiment has been tried, and in those few countries where this has not been the result, whatever success has been achieved has been due to conditions that do not obtain in Canada.

The partisans of public ownership in this country may be assigned to two categories. The first comprises those who believe in public ownership as a gospel. The fate of other countries has failed to impress them; nor does our own misfortune move them. The theory sounds good to them, and they hope that facts and figures will some day confirm their belief. This class of worshippers, the Messianic hopeful, is in my opinion getting scarcer every day. But there is another category, much more numerous, who believe in public ownership in their own peculiar way. They do not believe that public ownership can be as successful financially as a private enterprise, they know that it will produce deficits; but they consider the necessity of retaining the local advantage that it holds for their own portion of territory. In other words, they claim that the railways are a public utility and not a business venture, and that the whole community should control it in order to ensure low freight and passenger rates. These claims may have considerations of local interest to substantiate them, but they are certainly no argument in favour of public ownership as a sound economic and practical business principle.

But what makes the problem complex is that we have no choice to-day as between purchasing or not purchasing. We have the railways; and the only question is, what we are to do with them? This government has proposed that as there is no other solution in view we should give government ownership a fair trial in this country. In this respect I share very much the view expressed yesterday—in my opinion, a wise, moderate, and very frank view—by the member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell). I do not wish to renounce my personal belief, which is absolutely opposed to the principle of government ownership. At the same time, however, I do think that even those who are not in favour of government ownership should co-operate with the government in their own humble way and do their very best to ensure that the trial shall be as fair, as complete, and as convincing as it possibly can be made.

Let me point out, though, that a trial made by a government is always subject to future objections. There are those nonbelievers who will tell you that the government is submitting optimistic figures. Indeed, the statement has already been made this year that apparently satisfactory results are, in fact, only a mere matter of book-keeping, and that if the government railways show a profit, or any improvement, it is only in the books and not in reality. Then there is the other class, those who will say that the trial has not been fair. The leader of the Opposition himself (Mr. Meighen), in the debate on the Address, asks, how can we have a fair trial by a government which comprises in its membership men that are opposed to government ownership and who will do their utmost to bring about its failure? I am not quoting the right hon. gentleman verbatim, but words to this effect will be found on page 34 of unrevised Hansard in the speech of the leader of the Opposition at the beginning of the session. The trial will prove little to the majority of people who will disclaim its appropriateness; it will, I fear, end where it has started; it will leave us exactly in the same position, and in the meantime cost this country, according to the number of years, several hundred million dollars. But, as we say, we have not the choice. These railways have been thrust upon us, and we can only do the best we can in the meantime.

Some hon. members may say that I speak with a prejudiced mind; that I come from a part of the country which is prejudiced on this matter. Speaking for the province of Quebec, I would like to say this. We have fewer railways than any other province, and we have guaranteed less money—in fact, in certain cases no money at all—than any other province. In that respect, I think the course adopted by our provincial government was a wise one. Yet we are one of the most important and most densely populated provinces. We have to pay a large share of the deficits incurred in the operation of railways which we do not enjoy, and for which we have never guaranteed one cent. I could make this plainer by quoting figures to show, for instance, that the Canadian Northern had very little mileage in Quebec when it was purchased by the government. But this fact and the others that I have mentioned are so well known that I do not think I shall delay the committee by going into them. But, as I say, let it not be thought for a moment that we from the province of Quebec come into this House with a prejudiced mind on this subject. I acknowledge at once that if we enjoy fewer of the railways for which the country pays, we have the St. Lawrence channel which has been deepened at the expense of the country and which is of use to the whole Dominion, but more especially, of course, to the part of the country through which it runs. I do not claim that my stand in this matter represents the full sentiment of my province; but neither my sentiment nor that of any other part of the province of Quebec is actuated by prejudice or by a feeling that the province has been less favoured in the matter of railway facilities than any other part of the Dominion.

Now, some people are asking the question: What are we to do with the railways? On that point I agree with the remark made by the member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) yesterday, that we have too many railway lines in Canada. One who travels to the Pacific coast is struck with the fact that on exceedingly long distances we have parallel lines traversing wild and unsettled parts of the country in order to link the East and the West, the West and the Coast. Such is the case of the Canadian Northern line from North Bay to Winnipeg, which merely duplicates the Canadian Pacific. Such is the case of the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific from Edmonton to Mount Robson junction—in fact, only one of the two is now being used. After a few hours of travel to the south, the Canadian Northern parallels the Canadian Pacific from Kamloops to the Coast. In the last instance, the Canadian Northern being junior to the Canadian Pacific, the line had to be built on the less advantageous slope of the Thompson and Fraser rivers, taking a second choice. It must have been built at tremendous cost, but on account of these circumstances it is decidedly handicapped. In my humble opinion, the transcontinental line from Quebec to Winnipeg and the Grand Trunk Pacific from Edmonton to Prince Rupert have great trade possibilities in the distant future, but I fail to see how the Canadian Northern in the parts that I have mentioned can ever hope but to be operated at a tremendous loss, because it meets no requirements, it merely duplicates a senior line which itself operates at a loss in that part of the country. The case of the transcontinental railways may well be likened to human beings who, we will say, are fed only every two days. The railways have to take a lot of nourishment in the East if they want to avoid starving in the Algoma district, and, again, must overfeed themselves in the West before they cross the Rockies. In my estimation the Canadian Northern should have remained a mere feeder; it should never have attempted either to come East or to reach the Coast.

I believe also that much can be done by the exercise of rigid economy and by increasing immigration. These subjects have already been dealt with, however, and I shall do no more than allude to them. But if we are going to give these railways a trial, the Government is to do its utmost to decrease the deficit, it should not fail to take advantage of any opportunity that offers itself to free the country from that burden.

In conclusion, I admit that the Government may have no other course open to it than that of operating these lines to the best of its ability. Advocates of government ownership may rejoice over the fact that this will constitute a trial of the principle that they favour. But, disbelieving, as I do, in that style of administration, I am quite convinced that the result will inevitably be to add many millions to the public debt. Possibly we are not able to avoid that, but we should make it very clear, Mr. Chairman, that, hard as we may try to make the burden lighter for the Canadian taxpayers, we on this side decline all responsibility; that these railways were thrust upon us; that we accept the burden only with the greatest reluctance; that the railways are on the market for the earliest buyer who can give sufficient guarantee of good faith and fair operation; and that the sooner we can dispose of them and return to private ownership the better it will be both for the Government and for the country.

Mr. W. D. EULER (North Waterloo): I have only two reasons to offer for rising to intervene in this debate. One is because of the tremendous importance of the subject under discussion, and the other is because of the rather remarkable trend of the debate on this side of the House. It would be very easy, Mr. Chairman, to criticise the policies of former governments which have brought us into our present position with regard to the national railways. That sort of debate, however, is, to my mind, largely a waste of time. We have arrived at a certain condition; the facts are as they are, and I do not care to indulge in partisan recriminations which sometimes engage the members.

There are only two alternatives before Parliament. One is to accept our responsibility faithfully to operate the railways as a publicly owned utility in the interests of the people; the other, as has been suggested by my hon. friend who preceded me, is to return the National Railways to private ownership as soon as possible. I may say frankly that I very much prefer the first alternative. I am a believer in the principle of public ownership, and I believe that the railways of Canada, now under our control, can succeed provided that we make an honest and whole-hearted effort to make them successful. If we returned these roads to private ownership, it is my opinion that the ultimate outcome would be their incorporation in the Canadian Pacific Railway system. I think the people of Canada would consider that a calamity. They would view with alarm any suggestion that any one railway company, however efficient it may be, should have a monopoly of the railway business of this country.

I know that there are rumours in the corridors and occasionally in the press that there is still another alternative to that of the Canadian Pacific taking over the National Railways, and it is that another private company might be formed which would take over our railways and operate them in competition with the Canadian Pacific. I have not a great deal of faith in that alternative. Even under the most favourable conditions we shall most probably have serious deficits in the operation of the National Railways for some years to come, and I for one question whether a company sufficiently strong financially could be found to bear the strain for the number of years it would be necessary to operate, until they would reach a period of prosperity. I fear that even if the roads did go to a company other than the Canadian Pacific, the final result would be the same, and the Canadian Pacific ultimately would be found in possession.

I believe this also, that if one private railway company came into control of all the railways in Canada, we would no longer receive the efficient service that we now receive from the Canadian Pacific; for, if you remove competition entirely, you remove that incentive to efficiency and service to the public which exists to-day.

Yesterday the hon. member for Marquette delivered what I thought was a most excellent speech on the railway situation. I agreed almost entirely with his views. He said what I would have said, and much better than I could have said it. For that reason it would be out of place for me to reiterate the views he has expressed so exhaustively. Yet, on the other hand, it would be regrettable if there were not at least one member on this side of the House to declare that he believed in the principle of public ownership and had some faith that the National Railways under public management can be made a success if we address ourselves honestly to that task.

The hon. member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) also delivered a speech yesterday which, in its general tenor, was directly opposed to that of the hon. member for Marquette. With much that the hon. member for St. Antoine said yesterday I was in hearty accord. That the National Railways must secure the very best men possible for the management of the roads I quite agree, and every member of the House takes the same position. In fact, that goes without saying, unless we deliberately set out to wreck the National Railways, which purpose I do not for one moment attribute to any one. The most important official that we have to find is, of course, the chairman of the new railway board which is to be constituted, and which will be named by the Minister of Railways, I hope, at a very early date. It may be that such a man may be found in Canada. It is even conceivable that he may be a man who has not been entirely and exclusively associated with railways. But we do need a man of first-class and proven executive ability. We need a man of strict integrity, and one who has the confidence of the people of Canada as well as the confidence of the members of Parliament. We need a man who has himself faith in the public ownership principle, and who has, something of a passion for public service. His will be a great task, but if it is a great task for the chairman of the new board and a tremendous responsibility, I say that it is also a tremendous opportunity and a splendid challenge for some big man in this country to perform perhaps the greatest service that is possible for the people of Canada to-day.

The hon. member for St. Antoine also spoke of the necessity for a proper accounting with regard to our national railways. I do not know if he has information with which I am not familiar. It may be that the books of the National Railways are not kept in a proper manner. It may be that we have entered as assets upon these books some things which have no longer any existence in fact, such, for example, the abandoned road-beds as referred to by the hon. member for Marquette yesterday. If that is the case, they should certainly be written off, so that the books of the National Railways will show the facts and the assets as they are. It may also be that there has been a practice, as there very frequently is, not only in connection with publicly owned utilities but with private corporations as well, of charging up to capital what is properly chargeable to profit and loss account. If that has been done, I think the matter should be investigated, and corrected.

The hon. member for Marquette said yesterday, as he did also in last year's debate, that there should be a revaluation of the National Railways. I agree with that. It is good business practice to have your books show exactly what your assets are, and not to carry any that are fictitious or over-valued. I would, however, say this: If he implies by what he said yesterday that certain assets should be wiped off the books, and in connection with that, that the annual charges based upon those assets and covered by bonds should no longer be chargeable to the railways but to the Consolidated Fund, that may be good practice; I have no fault to find with that. But the public should thoroughly understand that that in itself will not lighten the burden of deficits on the people. It may have a good effect in this way. The board of management will be encouraged by the fact that they are relieved of some of the present heavy fixed charges, although as a matter of fact the charges are merely transferred to consolidated revenue account and in no wise relieve the Canadian tax-payers. I have said that in the statements of the hon. member for St. Antoine to which I have referred, I quite agree with him. But when he declares himself opposed in principle to public ownership and expresses lack of faith in the ultimate success of the National Railways, I must disassociate myself from those sentiments. I have a good deal of regard for the hon. member for St. Antoine. He comes to this House from a most important office in the province of Quebec, with a reputation for efficiency and as a successful executive in the government of that province.

And so I say I regard his opinion as worthy of consideration. I do not question his right to take the attitude that he does, although I will say frankly, and without any thought of giving offence to anyone, that I doubt very much—considering all the circumstances and the fact that we now have the railways and have declared that we are going to give them a fair chance to succeed—I doubt very much the judgment of those who to-day declare that they do not believe we can be successful in the management and operation of these roads. The expression of such sentiments does not make for success in our great undertaking.

Now that we have these railways I agree in part with the hon. member (Mr. Rinfret) who has just spoken, that it becomes our duty—at least the duty of those of us who believe in public ownership—under all the circumstances as so far disclosed in the debate, to declare our faith in the principle and in the prospect of success. I admit frankly, Sir, that I listened with considerable regret to the remarks derogatory to public ownership and the operation of national railways that have been made. When a man goes into a fight and declares beforehand that he knows he is going to be beaten, he has lost the fight before he starts. I know very well that many hon. members on both sides of the House disagree with me on the matter of public ownership. One of my friends who generally sits to my right, would give the railways away for the sum of one dollar, but I hope he was not serious in that observation. It is true that in the previous parliament there were probably not more than half a dozen members who honestly believed in public ownership and operation of railways. If there was more than that number they never declared their belief in this chamber. And I am sometimes humiliated as a Canadian to have my fellow members, and the press of this country, say that they do not believe there are men in Canada who can run our railways as well as private corporations can. Sir, I believe there are men in this country who have the ability and the public spirit to administer this great trust in the interests of the Canadian people. To believe less than that is, in my opinion, to display an attitude unworthy of the representatives of a people who have shown in the past that they can rise to any emergency in the interest of Canada.

In matters such as this we judge, or ought to judge, by experience, if experience is available. I am very sorry that the experience of the hon. member for St. Antoine has been so unfortunate as regards the matter of public ownership and operation of public utilities. He told us yesterday that in his experience of municipal affairs in Quebec he did not know of a single instance where public ownership had been successful. Now, I hope he did not have the opportunity, or necessity, of dealing with very many instances, because I would be sorry to know that in the province of Quebec they cannot make public ownership a success. I do not care to make comparisons but I will say that I can tell a brighter story for the province of Ontario, and especially for western Ontario of which I know something. Dozens of municipalities in that province have administered their public utilities with entire success. They have operated their gas plants, their electric light plants, their waterworks, and in many instances their electric railways, with entire success and to the satisfaction of the people. In my own city of Kitchener —where the population is 23,000, but combined with that of Waterloo reaches a total of 29,000 or 30,000 people—we have operated all these utilities. We have operated our street railway and it has been successful. There has never been the slightest accusation that into the operation of that road, or in the employment of men, favouritism, or local politics, or anything of the kind, has ever entered. We have had business men with sense of public duty who have administered these utilities without any remuneration whatever; and so far as our railway is concerned, if I might particularize in that one case, it has been operated with a profit each year. It has taken care of its debentures both as to principal and interest, as they matured, out of the revenue. It has, almost each year, paid into the municipal treasury an amount, larger or smaller, towards the reduction of taxes; and it has done that with a five cent fare. From the operation of public utilities in the municipalities, the province itself has advanced into a larger field. We have there what is known as the Hydro Electric system. I want to say this—and I do so with a full knowledge of what I am saying—that the Hydro Electric in the province of Ontario, despite the reports and propaganda to the contrary, that has been carried on in certain parts of Canada, has been an undoubted success. I am not now referring to certain other suggestions with regard to the proposed construction of radial railways; I am now referring to the distribution of hydro-electric energy for the purpose of power, and electric lighting throughout the municipalities of western Ontario. To-day we pay only a fraction of the cost that was paid under private ownership for electric current. We know it is a success by having recourse to the same method that Sir Wilfrid Laurier invited the people of Canada to use in order to test the success of his policy when he said, "We do not have to tell you that there is prosperity in Canada, you feel it in your pockets." That is exactly how we measure the benefits of the Hydro-Electric in western Ontario. Now I admit that that in itself is not an absolute proof that we can do the same in the national field and make public ownership and operation of railways a success; but it is at least evidence tending in that direction and encouraging in the matter of going on with it. And why should it not be?

Contrast public ownership, and the success that has been obtained in western Ontario, with private ownership of railways in Canada and in some other countries of the world. I have never yet heard the statement contradicted that practically every privately owned railway in the United States has, at some time or another, been in the hands of a receiver. The Canadian Northern railway has been cited here as an example of the failure of private ownership, and no better example could be given. Three hundred million dollars from the public treasury went into that railway under private ownership. And yet it failed. We sometimes hear of the Canadian Pacific and of the success which it has attained. That is quite true, and I have absolutely no criticism to make of that system. It is a well managed railway and a benefit to the people of Canada; but the success of that company is not entirely the result of their own efficiency. Even to-day a very substantial proportion of their dividends is based on the benefits and grants of land which they received from the Dominion of Canada.

It is the fashion to-day to decry public ownership. So much so that I am sometimes tempted to think—and any remarks I may make in this direction are not directed at any gentlemen who have spoken or may speak—I am tempted to believe that the fashion has been inaugurated as the result of definite propaganda on the part of private ownership interests as against public ownership.

Mr. LAFLAMME: By which organization?

Mr. EULER: I do not believe it would be very difficult for the imagination of hon. members in this House to tell just exactly what I am thinking about.

Mr. BUREAU: Do not impute motives.

Mr. EULER: I am not imputing any motive to anybody, and if those who are interested in private enterprises are now doing their best to discredit public ownership, I am not sure that I can find a great deal of fault with them, because, after all, self preservation is the first law of nature. But for the public in general consistently and persistently to close its eyes to the undoubted fact that private ownership has been a failure is rather more than I can understand. No one expects that the national railways are going to succeed unless certain changes are made. We must consolidate the roads. We must cut out unnecessary duplication and unnecessary overhead expenses. That is going to take time, and I, for one, would express the opinion, off-hand, that it will take a period of at last four or five years to enable us to decide whether the great experiment which we are making will be a success or a failure. I presume it would be rank heresy for anyone to say in this House that the failure of the Grand Trunk was a blessing in disguise, because it would not have been possible, to make the national railway a success without the inclusion of the Grand Trunk Railway. I do not think that it was possible for the Canadian Northern, combined with the Grand Trunk Pacific, to make a success of operation unless they had in Ontario some such freight gathering agency as is supplied by the Grand Trunk. The Grand Trunk supplies in the east what the Canadian Northern did not have. The Canadian Northern supplies in the west what the Grand Trunk did not have, and a proper co-ordination and consolidation of the two carefully made ought to give us a system that will be able to compete, on something like even terms, with the Canadian Pacific Railway.

There is another point which has not been brought out. It seems to be the impression throughout Canada, in the press and in the House, that the whole purpose of public railway operation is the making of profit—financial profit. That is not the purpose of public ownership at all. The primary purpose of public ownership is to give service to the people and to give it at cost. I frankly admit that it would be bad business to operate the national railways with a view only to give service, having no regard at all as to whether the railways would carry themselves or not. But, primarily, the object of public ownership is to give service to the people, and the primary object of private ownership is to make profit, and service on a privately operated railway line is merely a secondary matter and a means to an end.

It is extremely regrettable that the test of public ownership, or public operation of railroads, comes at a most inauspicious time and under the most unfavourable circumstances. The Government was forced to take over these roads. They were taken over by a government that was not in sympathy with the principle of public ownership, although the Acting Prime Minister, Sir Thomas White, tried to make a virtue of necessity, and declared that his party was the party of public ownership. However, that claim was dropped very soon afterwards, and has not been repeated by any government since. A parliament which did not believe in the principle was forced to take it over, and we were forced to make the test of public ownership under conditions which made financial success almost impossible for a good many years to come. Thus public ownership is charged by its foes with losses for which it is not logically responsible. Thus also an ideal situation was created for the opponents of the principle, and if they had had the selecting of the battle ground on which to fight their foes, they could not have chosen any better ground than the one upon which they stand to-day. Here was public ownership making headway day by day, in many parts of Canada. Municipalities were making a success of managing their public utilities in various parts of the country. Hydro had been a success. Labour was asking that the principle be applied much further than had ever been done before. It asked that it be applied to all the great public services upon which the convenience and the prosperity of the great mass of the people depend, such as telephones, telegraphs, control of water powers and other great natural resources. That feeling was making progress throughout Canada. Then providentially for the purpose of those who are opposed to public ownership, a situation was created which lent itself to the discrediting of the hated principle. What, then, was more easy, or natural, or misleading, than to frame the syllogism, with its false conclusions, that certain railways were losing money, that these railways were publicly owned and publicly controlled, and, therefore, that public ownership was responsible for the loss and would always result in failure. I say that public ownership up to this time in the national railway field has never had a fair chance. I want to congratulate the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) for his courage, during the election campaign when he made the statement that the national railways shall be given a fair trial, which statement has since translated into government policy. I also congratulate the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) because of his pronouncements in that regard. But a fair trial means good management free from politics and the consolidation of the railways at as early a moment as possible. It means also retaining the confidence of the people of Canada in the sincerity of the Government as to its declared railway policy. That is absolutely essential. I believe in the sincerity of the Government, but I say that it becomes the duty of the Government, and of its followers, if we are to give public ownership and operation of the railways a fair trial, to do nothing that may create distrust in the minds of the people. That is why I deprecate the criticism from this side of the House.

[Mr. Euler.]

The national railways have one tremendous advantage over any private railway; it has been referred to very seldom, and I do not know that anyone has spoken of it in this debate. If the people themselves have confidence in the government and in the management of the road, they will take a pride in what is their own and patronize it. It will be the duty of the board which is to be appointed in due course to cultivate that feeling, and to educate the people to the desirability and the necessity of patronizing that which belongs to them. I would say that it makes a very strong combination when you impress upon the public that in supporting their own railways, they are also serving their own financial interests. I venture to suggest that even to-day privately owned railway systems are not quite so sure as they were that the National Railways are not going to be a success and are already feeling the competition which greater efficiency has brought. For example, we have an excellent passenger service between Toronto and Ottawa. It is only two or three years ago when, if a man desired to obtain a lower berth on the Canadian Pacific, he had to reserve it two or three days ahead, whereas he could always get a lower berth on the National Railways right up to the last moment. That condition of affairs is pretty well reversed, and it is because the National Railways are giving service. It is also because the people are beginning to think they ought to patronize that which belongs to them. In this, I reflect in no way upon the service given by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is excellent.

I have not gone into figures nor into details, because I do not think it is necessary to do so. The question is largely one of principle. I, for one, believe that the people of Canada have, in themselves, the genius, patriotism and self-sacrifice, if necessary, to succeed in the great work to which they have put their hands. But it will be a very difficult fight, if this Parliament or its members are the cause of any doubt arising in the mind of the people as to our sincerity in our efforts to give public ownership a fair chance. Let those who believe in the principle say so in this House and elsewhere and let those who cannot say so, await results, meanwhile doing nothing to prejudice the great experiment. I believe, if we do that honestly, the time will come —and it is not so very far distant—when Canadians will say that the nationalisation of these great roads was in the interest of the people of Canada.

Mr. WILLIAM IRVINE (East Calgary): I do not rise to oppose the estimate and, therefore, I shall not take up much of the time of this committee. It has been rather surprising that the discussion on this estimate has centred largely around the principle of government ownership. I am unable to see the relevancy of the discussion inasmuch as we have government ownership of railways now, and the estimate, I presume, is to continue their operation. I do not, of course, profess to be a man schooled in the strategy of politics; but I would hazard the opinion that hon. members on the government side who have spoken against public ownership, have been compromising their party, for, if government ownership is a failure, it will be said, no doubt, that it could not be anything else when run by a government that did not believe in public ownership. If it be a success, that will be proof that their judgment was bad. It might be well just to "wait a wee," as the Scotchman says, before you come to your conclusions. Hon. members opposite, however, do not need any advice from me along that line. It is, of course, reasonable to suppose that when a government is opposed to a principle, it will make a bad job of administration. That is not always true; as a matter of fact the Liberal party has traditionally been opposed to tariffs, and yet it has made an excellent job of administering tariffs. It has done it equally as well as the Conservative party has done. While a number of Government supporters may be opposed to the principle of public or government ownership, I have no doubt the Liberal party will make, perhaps, as good a job of administering government-owned railways as it will do in administering a tariff, and if it does that, we shall be perfectly satisfied with the result.

Government ownership of railways may not be the solution that we are looking for; but hon. gentlemen who have spoken against it ought to be fair and admit the fact that the taking over of the Canadian Northern was not merely because the government of the day believed in government ownership, but because of the necessity brought about by a government subsidized line on the verge of bankruptcy and when hon. members of the present Government criticise the action of the former government in this regard, they have failed to tell us what should have been done under the circumstances. Would they have subsidized the railway further, or would they have sold it out for a song to a private company and given one railway company a monopoly of the railway business of the country? Or, what would they have done? I think we can safely leave that question aside and deal with the fact that we have at the present moment a government-owned railway, and that the job is to run it. It has been demonstrated that private ownership of that road was a failure. If it be heresy, as my hon. friend (Mr. Euler) remarked, to say that the failure of the Grand Trunk was a blessing in disguise, it could not be any more than heresy to hope for the failure of the Canadian Pacific also that we might have another and a larger blessing in disguise. That would help us to consolidate further and to have a real government-owned system of railways in Canada. I doubt very much whether we can hope for complete success of government-owned railways in this country while they are being run in competition with a large company that has been subsidized also from the public treasury. Therefore, I hope that, some day, instead of speaking against government ownership of a part of our Canadian lines, hon. members of this House will be advocating government ownership of all the lines in Canada.

An hon. MEMBER: Never.

Mr. IRVINE: An hon. gentleman opposite says: "Never." It is very easy to say that, of course, but it does not get him anywhere. The same could have been said of a thousand things that are to-day in practice. I presume the same hon. gentleman would have said: We shall never be able to fly in the air; but we are doing so now, and what he is "nevering" about now will be in vogue soon.

I have a suggestion or two to make, and I think I can say before six o'clock what I want to say. If co-operation be necessary to the success of business, it is, perhaps, more necessary on government railways than anywhere else. I believe that it will contribute largely to the success of the enterprise if the highest possible degree of co-operation can be secured along the whole line of administering that business. I am glad to think that the Prime Minister

(Mr. Mackenzie King) has gone on record in his book on "Industry and Humanity" for the principle of co-operation in running large public utilities; that is, that there should be co-operation between the public, the owners and the workers engaged in the industry. I would like to suggest very briefly that the present Government, in the operation of the Canadian National Railways, should adhere to that principle and that the great masses of the people who are engaged in running the railways, should have their quota of representation on the railway board in order that the highest possible degree of co-operation may be secured in the enterprise.

Furthermore, I should like to point out to the Government—it is not, of course, necessary to do so, because they know it better than I do—that one of the largest items in the deficit on our government railways is for interest charges. I believe I am right in saying that. I think the interest for last year amounted to somewhere in the neighbourhood of $17,000,000. Allowing, on the capital expenditure of over $471,000,000, 3½ per cent interest, we shall have approximately $17,000,000. Now, with a running tap of that nature it is not likely that we are going to be able to keep the reservoir full, and I urge that the Government take into consideration the possibility of turning the tap off. I have asked on previous occasions, and I ask again, is it possible for the Government to finance its own railways, financed for and by the Government in such a way as to eliminate interest? I would advise them to make the experiment along this line, and if it prove successful in this particular instance it may be possible to apply it to all other government operations and ultimately make it the national policy to finance every industry in Canada.

Now, it is six o'clock, and although I should like to say some other things I do not wish to detain the committee. I shall therefore sum up my remarks by saying that we need, first of all, co-operation in this great enterprise, among all the people working on it, as well as on the part of the representatives of the public and the Government, and I ask that the Government appoint a representative of labour, not only on the railway board of directors, but on the Board of Railway Commissioners. I would also emphasize the necessity of investigating the possibility of securing our own loans for the National Railways from our own treasury and thereby save interest to the people of Canada.

[Mr. Irvine.]

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The member for South Renfrew (Mr. Low) asked a question yesterday with reference to the deficit of last year. I could not answer him at the time, as the member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) had the floor. I have had a statement prepared which I desire to place on Hansard:

The total deficit for the year 1921 on the Canadian National amalgamated system, which includes the Grand Trunk System (including the Central Vermont), and the Canadian National Railways, (including the Canadian Northern Railway, Canadian Government Railways and the Grand Trunk Pacific), was $72,662,278.16. This includes the fixed charges due the public and also the fixed charges due the Government, but does not include any interest on the capital cost of the Canadian Government Railways, which includes the Intercolonial Railway from Montreal to Sydney, Halifax and St. John, and all branches, including the Prince Edward Island Railway, nor on the Transcontinental Railway from Winnipeg to Moncton, nor the Hudson Bay Railway.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is the corresponding figure for the year before?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The corresponding figure for 1920 was $74,378,318.80.

Mr. CHAPLIN: How much of the $72,000,000 odd referred to in the statement just read by the minister represents interest?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The fixed charges, other than government, were $40,453,509.49; the fixed charges, government, were $19,569,989.79.

At six o'clock the committee took recess.

After Recess

The committee resumed at eight o'clock

Mr. A. J. Lewis (Swift Current): I do not wish to enter into a lengthy discussion of the railway situation, but as the hon. member for South Waterloo (Mr. Euler) said before recess that he thought every member of the House who was in favour of public ownership should get on his feet and say so, I wish to state that so far as I am able to interpret the wishes of the people whom I represent, they are in favour of public ownership. I shall not go into any argument in regard to public ownership, because I understand that the policy of the Liberal party is public ownership of our railways for the time being; at least, they are willing to give it a fair trial. The party to the right of me have also expressed their desire for public ownership, and I believe the same is true of the Progressive party. It seems to me, therefore, that this item is a very important one, because public ownership to-day is being weighed in the balance of public opinion, and in order that that public opinion may be favourable to public ownership it is well for the Government to take into consideration the very best means under which it can be made a success.

I wish to congratulate the minister upon the very favourable and optimistic outlook which, in bringing down his report, he displayed in regard to public ownership. It is gratifying to know that public ownership is being favourably received by the minister and also by the people at large, and that, carrying out the suggestion contained in the Speech from the Throne, the Government intend to co-ordinate the great railway systems which are nationally owned in Canada. It seems to me, Sir, that there are certain ways in which public ownership can be made to pay. First, there is co-ordination, and I understand that this is to be put into effect as rapidly as possible by the Government. I believe, like former speakers, that men can be found in Canada who are willing to give of their best advice and service to make public ownership pay. The men who run our great provincial universities are able to make them successful, and they also make them pay; and I see no reason why the same thing cannot be done in respect to our great nationally-owned railways. Of course, there is this difference between publicly-owned and privately-owned railways: those which are privately-owned take into consideration not only the question of service, but also the question of revenue with a view to paying dividends. It may be a long time before the Canadian National Railways pay a dividend, if they ever do; but if the quality of service which they render to the Canadian people is satisfactory, then the question of dividends is not a matter for consideration. It is not the hope that the nationally-owned railways will pay dividends; if they can come out even in the years to come, rates will be satisfactorily reduced until the cost of upkeep and general maintenance is at a minimum.

Not only must we have co-ordination of the systems included in our National Railways, but we must place them on a sound business basis. The railways should be taken altogether out of politics. That is one reason why I favour public ownership: because corrupt influences are often exerted in governmental circles as the result of private ownership. When we acquire a railway on behalf of the people; when it belongs to the people and they take an interest in it, it should be removed from the influence of politics and placed on a sound business basis; that is the only way, I believe, in which a nationally owned railway can be made to pay.

But there is more than that. I think the speech of the minister was good all the way through; it was optimistic, and there was a policy involved. But there is one point in the policy which I think is faulty, and that is the lack of any intention to continue to build branch lines. It is a well known fact that if the transcontinental railways that belong to Canada are ever to be made to pay, it will only be in respect of the traffic and business originating and carried on in that part of the system west of the Great Lakes, or west of Winnipeg. The trunk lines are already in existence and we know that alongside of these trunk lines the settlers are, and have been for many years. All the products of the farm are going to those lines and the only way we can bring prosperity to the national lines, is, in a measure, to increase the service. But how are we going to increase the service if we cut off all feeders to the trunk lines? There are various ways in which this matter can be dealt with. One way in which we can increase the service of the transcontinental railways is by increasing the number of people on each side of them. Looking over the statistics of immigration during the last twenty years, I find that 3,428,834 people have come into Canada, but of these, 2,000,000 have remained on this side of the Great Lakes, and only 1,423,538 have settled in the three prairie provinces.

I understand that contiguous to these lines to-day there are over thirty million acres of land not settled, and for that reason we must direct the stream of immigration to the West, so that these people will settle on the farms and increase the productivity of the land, thereby providing more business for the railways. It is only by increased service that we can get an increased revenue for the railways and place them on a paying basis.

I want to say a word or two in regard to the situation in my own constituency. I do not know how far a moral obligation of the former government obligates this one, but only last night I heard the Prime Minister ask of the leader of the Opposition if he when Prime Minister had in any way obligated this Government in regard to the naval question. I am not interested in that question at the moment. What I am interested in is this. Last year the Minister of Railways promised the people in my district that a certain railway extension would be completed. He said to these people: If you will go into that village and build an elevator we will see to it that the line is completed. In order that there may be no doubt whatver I will read what the minister said:

> Hon. Mr. Reid: In speaking to Mr. Hanna about the matter he mentioned that they would lay this ten miles this year for the reason that an elevator would be built, and it was for that purpose the rails would be laid. I am quite satisfied that it is the intention of the Canadian National Railway management to lay the ten miles in quesion, and I feel satisfied from the way Mr. Hanna mentioned it to me that there is no doubt it will be done. Unless something unforeseen should happen it is the intention anyway to lay the rails before that time. The 50,000 tons of new rails which were purchased are now being rolled and sent on to the main line. The rails thus released will go on to the branch lines, and the branch in question is one of those that will be taken up first.

On this promise of the minister the people went into that village—the construction way had already been laid, but not the rails—and the village came into existence and an elevator was built, people put more crops into the ground, and then last year, when the crop was harvested, they had no railway to take it out. At the present time these people are anxiously awaiting the fulfilment of this promise, which was made not only on one occasion, but repeatedly since 1918. It seems to me that if the national railways are ever going to pay, you must build these branch lines in order to serve as feeders to the trunk lines. It is poor economy, in my view, to cut off the branch lines. You cannot do that and reasonably expect the trunk lines to pay.

In looking over this item of $42,000,000 which is to be expended on this road, I find that only a very small amount is to be devoted to construction, namely, $1,286,164. This to me seems a very small amount, and I do believe that it would be in the interests of this great system to send out small feeders into the country to encourage the farmers—the wheat growers and the dairymen—to put more seed into the land and intensify their farming, and thus provide a greater volume of business for the railways that are on our hands at the present time. That would be real economy, and it would result in a larger share of business for the national railways, and in the sum total be the means of making them pay.

I trust that in the near future when these roads are co-ordinated, the men in charge will look into this aspect of the question and see to it that small branch lines, not very extensive ones, but lines that will reach to the people and bring business to the main line are built. Such a policy will produce a revenue that will probably put the railways on a paying basis.

Mr. J. J. HUGHES (King's P.E.I.): The speeches that have been delivered to-day have been very interesting, perhaps instructive, but very largely academic. The speakers appear to have overlooked some facts which, if recognized, might perhaps have made the speeches shorter.

The first fact is that the country finds itself to-day the owner and possessor of about 22,000 miles of railway. The second fact is that the Government finds itself obliged to take over these railways. The third fact is that the Government has announced its policy to own and operate these railways, and to give that policy a fair trial. The fourth fact, I think, is that a large majority of the members of this House are prepared to support the policy of the Government. I think that the members of this House have sufficient information at the present time to enable them to give an intelligent vote on this question. I further think that a majority of the people of this country are prepared to support the Government's policy, and that those of them who take an interest in the question are fairly well informed. Therefore, I think that further speeches would not give much information, and I would respectfully suggest that under these circumstances we cut out any more speeches, proceed to business, pass the estimate, and advance towards the end of the session

Hon. J. A. STEWART (Lanark): I shall try as far as possible to follow the advice, with which I do not quarrel very much, of the hon. member for King's, but there are just one or two matters to which I desire to make reference.

In the first place, I agree with the last speaker that a number at least of the addresses to which we have listened this afternoon have been academic discussions of the question of public versus private ownership. I do not propose to follow the hon. member for St. James (Mr. Rinfret), the hon. member for South York (Mr. Maclean), or the hon. member for North Waterloo (Mr. Euler) through their discussion for and against public ownership and government operation of railways. I do desire to say this, however, that it is gratifying to the party who sit in this end of the House, and who represent what is here to-day of the late government, to find that all parties in the House to-day are endorsing the policy of railway management which was inaugurated by the government which was in power up to the 6th of December last. Both from those who favour government ownership and operation, and those who are opposed to that policy and favour private ownership, and who sit upon the government side of the House, we have the assurance that it is their wish that government ownership as at present carried on by the present Government, and by its predecessor, shall be given a fair trial.

It does seem to me, however, that it would be consistent, at least, for some of these gentlemen to explain to the House when they became convinced that the present system was the best system in the interests of Canada at the present time. It is a fact that up to the 6th of last December, when all the information that we now have was available to men in public life, there was no feature in connection with the policy of the late government which was more severely and intensely denounced and repudiated by its opponents than its railway policy. However, I am not going to attempt to follow hon. gentlemen opposite through their various stages to their present position on that question. Nevertheless, it does seem to me that it would be desirable for the member for North Waterloo (Mr. Euler) to confer with the member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) and the member for St. James (Mr. Rinfret), and possibly with the Minister of Justice (Sir Lomer Gouin), and that these gentlemen should try and reconcile their positions upon this great question.

I want to say this: That so far as the policy of the late government—which is the policy of the present Government in connection with the management of the National Railways—goes, that policy was arrived at without any question of public or private ownership; it was arrived at by reason of the fact that the late government was forced to provide for the management of these railways which were practically left on its door-step. I do not think that it matters very much who was to blame for that. The question as to whether the Liberal party or the old Liberal-Conservative party was responsible for Canada's railway problem has been a fruitful matter for political discussion for many years. It has been threshed out in past parliaments and in past elections, until it is possibly a threadbare matter for political discussion to-day. The fact is, Mr. Chairman, that the late government was forced to solve the question of handling the railways which became national property during the war; and I do not think there is any real opinion in Canada to-day that will question the wisdom of that policy at the time it was arrived at by the late government. In that connection let me refer for a moment to what the member for St. James said with reference to the subsidies which have been paid out to the old Canadian Northern system. He divided the periods during which subsidies were given into the period prior to 1911, and the period since and showed, of necessity, that a very large proportion of the amount which had been paid in subsidies and in cash advances to the Canadian Northern was paid over to them subsequently to 1911. No one will dispute that, but why were these subsidies paid? The reason is very clearly set out in the address of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier on May 13, 1914 when, in discussing the Canadian Northern loan, which was then before the House, he made this statement:

> In 1899, or thereabouts, after we came into office we asked Parliament to give them assistance to extend the railway system then in existence in Manitoba eastward to the end of Lake Superior. If I remember rightly we gave them a cash subsidy of $6,400 a mile for that length of railway. Later in 1903 we induced parliament to give them a guarantee of $13,000 a mile for a line of railway running through Manitoba to the city of Edmonton. Afterwards, in 1908, we asked Parliament to give them another guarantee of bonds to provide for several branch lines which would be feeders of the line in the prairie provinces. In 1911, as has been explained by my right hon. friend, it was considered that the system would not be complete unless it were extended eastward to tthe St. Lawrence and eventually to the maritime provinces, that is to say unless it was made a transcontinental railway, and in that year we asked Parliament to give to the enterprise from Port Arthur to Montreal a guarantee of bonds to the extent of $25,000 a mile. After the new government came into office they took up the policy which we inaugurated. In 1912 Parliament was asked to assist a line from St. Albert to the limits of the province of British Columbia, a distance of 115 miles, with a subsidy of $35,000 a mile.

My hon. friend from St. James is entirely correct when he states that large sums were paid in subsidies to the Canadian Northern system subsequent to 1911, but these subsidies were paid in pursuance of obligations and commitments made by the government prior to 1911. I am not quarrelling with the wisdom of that policy, but what I object to is that an attempt should be made to show that these payments were made as a result of the action of the government which came into power in 1911.

What was the policy of the late government with reference to the management of the Canadian National Railways, and after all that is the question that goes to the very root of the matter? When the late government was forced to provide a system for the control and management of the railways which became its property a system was adopted which has recommended itself to the present Government, and which meets with the approval of hon. gentlemen to the left, and it was this: To provide for the control of these railways, for the management of the system, by an independent board freed entirely from political control, and I agree with hon. gentlemen opposite that it is only by carrying out that policy that there can be any future for the National system. The management must be free from political control.

In the report which the Minister of Railways presented to the House on April 11, for the calendar year 1921, there was a very full statement given of the operations of the National lines, and I would like to draw attention to this fact: That report covered the railway operations for a period during the whole of which, with the exception of two days, the late government was in power, and it is a matter of satisfaction to those who were associated with the late administration to know that in the report there was not one word of criticism of anything that the previous government had done in connection with railway operation. The very greatest compliment that could be paid to the late government in connection with the operation of these railways is to be found in the fact that no report ever presented to this House dealing with the work of any public department has met with more general approval than the report brought down on April 11. There has not been one word of criticism of that report in this House; nothing but the warmest words of commendation have been heard. Similar commendation has appeared in the press of the country irrespective of political alignment, and I say that speaks as strongly as anything possibly could for the policy of the late government. Furthermore the policy adopted by the late government for the management of the National Railways providing for a unified board was crystallized into law and is on the statute books of Canada to-day, and that policy we are assured by the present Minister of Railways will be carried out.

I am not going to further discuss the general railway policy but I do want to refer to a statement made by the hon. member for St. Antoine yesterday.

I have no desire to introduce again the discussion with reference to the advance purchases of supplies made under the provisions of the Order in Council of 6th October, 1921, but I want to say that my hon. friend from St. Antoine has confused the issue, I think, in the minds of the public, and I think he is possibly confused himself, if I read his statements in Hansard aright as to the part the government played with reference to the ordering of supplies. I refer to it again for this reason: that the point raised by the hon. member from St. Antoine strikes at the very root of the whole system of government operation or control of the National system. If political considerations are to influence the board of management of the National system, then I agree with my hon. friend from St. Antoine that it would be a most dangerous thing for the future of the system. I know of nothing more dangerous than that the board in control of our National Railways should in any way be influenced by political considerations in their administration. If we reach the time when they are influenced and affected by political considerations we will have struck a blow from which it would be impossible to recover.

Reference has been made so often to the Order in Council of the 6th October, and the Order in Council of the 13th August that, it seems to me, these documents should be read into the record, in order that it may be complete, and I propose to place in the record, first the Order in Council of the 13th August, 1921, which is known as Order No. 2861, and reads as follows:

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 9th August, 1921, from the Minister of Railways and Canals, representing that, by an Order in Council of the 21st of April, 1921, (P.C. 1403) authority was given for the ordering by the management of the Canadian National Railways from the Algoma Steel Corporation, of 50,000 gross tons of 85-pound steel rails at $55 a ton, f.o.b. Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and from the Dominion Iron and Steel Company, of 20,000 gross tons of 85-pound steel rails, f.o.b. Sydney, N.S., at the same price.

Of the 50,000 tons ordered from the Algoma Steel Corporation, approximately 39,000 tons have been delivered to date, leaving a balance of 11,000 tons which may not be required this year. The Algoma Steel Corporation suggest that this balance be rolled and put in stock, to be shipped out when required, any tonnage accepted before the end of the present year to be paid for at the above mentioned price, and the tonnage held over to be delivered at the price which may be agreed upon for rails for early spring delivery next year. In connection with this suggestion, and also with reference to the requirements for next year, Mr. D. B. Hanna, president of the Canadian National Railways, advises, as follows:

"The present probabilities are that we will not require more rails this year, but it would be quite in order, as a matter of convenience to the Steel Corporation, to roll the balance (approximately eleven thousand tons) at their convenience, subject to a price to be fixed for next year's requirements, such price not to exceed the price quoted to other Canadian railways.

"The outlook for employment next winter is not satisfactory at present, and I would suggest for your consideration the passing of an Order in Council, authorizing us to place a contract at an early date for forty thousand tons of rails (which is in addition to the eleven thousand tons referred to) for winter rolling, as we will require the tonnage, and if we can indicate to Mr. Franz that the rails will be required, it will enable him to take in sufficient raw materials in the shape of coal and iron ore before navigation closes, and thus permit him to give us a substantially lower price per ton than present year's prices."

The Minister, on the advice of the Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, recommends that authority be given for carrying out the suggestions of Mr. Hanna with reference to the said balance of 11,000 tons of rails remaining undelivered this year, and to the quantity of 40,000 tons required next year; the price to be paid for the 40,000 tons to be agreed upon, but not to exceed lowest prices paid by other Canadian railways, and payments to be made as deliveries taken.

The committee advise that the requisite authority be granted accordingly.

That is the Order in Council passed on the 13th day of August, 1921, and it agrees as to date with the statement of the hon. member from Cumberland (Mr. Logan) as to unemployment, made in the early stage of this debate. On the 13th August, before there was any question of an election, or any statement or thought as to the dissolution of the House, the question of unemployment was raised in the communication of the President of the Canadian National Board to the Minister of Railways as set out in the Order in Council itself.

In order that we may follow as to date, let me read to the House, next, a letter, dated 13th September, 1921, from the President of the Canadian National Board to the Minister of Railways of that date. The letter is dated Toronto, September 13th, 1921, and reads:

TORONTO, ONT., September, 1921.

My dear Doctor,—

Referring to conversation regarding repairs to Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian National freight cars.

In the early months of the year indications pointed to a substantial recession in freight traffic, and to meet this condition we made a substantial reduction in our forces over the entire System and at all important divisional points in the hours of labour of such men we carried on the pay rolls. The effect of this in our repair work was very noticeable. We side-tracked a very large number of freight cars, until at the present time we have approximately 8,000 cars waiting repairs. Of this number, either in partial service or side-tracked on repair tracks, there are not less than 2,000 Grand Trunk Pacific cars. Many of these cars have been out of service for a period of time before we had anything to do with the management of that Company, and having regard to the fact that most of the Grand Trunk Pacific equipment has been in service around fifteen years, it follows that a large number have yet to be repaired, or rather rebuilt. This leaves approximately 6,000 National System cars in bad order. It is estimated that 3,000 of these require more or less heavy repairs, and the work to be done on the balance of 3,000 is of a minor nature or what is called running repairs, and will be restored to service by our own shopmen.

It occurs to me, in view of wide spread unemployment, that the car plants of the different operating companies are, in respect of some of them at all events, closed down; that in all probability the Dominion Government will be called upon this fall and winter to help out the situation with cash contributions to an unemployment fund, it might be a good move to distribute to these plants sufficient cars requiring heavy repairs (having regard to their daily output) to keep the companies going during the winter and into the early spring months, with the hope that conditions will have improved by that time to take up much of the unemployed forces.

The following plants, I am advised, are and have been closed down for some months:—

Fort William plant,
Eastern Car Company's plant, New Glasgow,
Amherst plant,

and the following plants partly under operation:

National plant, Hamilton,
Canadian Car and Foundry plant, Montreal.

The need for repairing all of our equipment, including the Grand Trunk Pacific equipment, from a traffic standpoint, is not a vital one, as we are with our own organization able to keep up our ordinary running repairs. But it does seem to me, if the unemployment situation can be to some extent relieved as suggested in this letter, we should be authorized to make arrangements to put as much of our equipment as possible into good repair, even though, because of trade conditions, many of these cars are, after being repaired, side-tracked waiting for loads. In other words, instead of handing out contributions to an unemployment fund, it would be much better to use the funds proposed to be expended in that connection and authorize us to negotiate with the car plants to do repair work for the National System.

Please let me hear from you.

Mr. CAHILL: Whom is that letter from?

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): As I stated when I read it, it is a letter addressed by the President of the Canadian National board, Mr. Hanna, to the Minister of Railways at that date.

Nothing further, so far as my knowledge goes, occurred until the 6th of October, 1921, when the following Order in Council was passed:

P.C. 3800—

The Committee of the Privy Council have had before them a report, dated 4th October, 1921, from the Minister of Railways and Canals, stating that, in his capacity as Minister of Railways, he has discussed with the Canadian National management, and with the chief executives of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, the question of unemployment in its relation to the railways now under Government control and operation.

Serious consideration has been given to the possibility of the National railways (including the Grand Trunk) so anticipating their requirements as to permit the placing in the immediate future of next year's orders for rails and accessories, and for the rebuilding and repair of freight equipment, in order that present unemployment may be relieved, and work provided during the winter months.

Under normal conditions, it is the practice to place such orders during the early spring months, and to confine rebuilding and repair work, as far as possible, to system shops. The minister believes that, in view of the present abnormal industrial situation, the usual practice might well be varied to the extent of placing, at an early date, next year's orders for rails and accessories, and, in addition to repair work now being done in railway shops, by arranging with the various equipment companies throughout Canada to participate in the rebuilding and repair of freight equipment.

In doing so, however, it is only fair to the railways, that expenditures so incurred shall not be considered a charge against the current year's operation or financing, and while the management will make every effort to see that repair work undertaken outside the railway shops is done at fair and reasonable prices, any increased expenditure involved should not be a charge against the railways, but against such financial provision as may from time to time be made by the Government to deal with unemployment.

And in order that there may be no question of considerations other than unemployment influencing the placing of these orders, the minister suggests that the allocation of this business be on the concurrence of the Minister of Labour, whose departmental officials are closely in touch with conditions affecting labour throughout Canada, and whose officials shall co-operate with the officials of the Department of Railways in dealing with this situation so far a it affects the railways under Government control.

In order that the management may have a free hand and that the business may be distributed to best advantage, it is considered advisable that the Order in Council to authorize the purchase of 40,000 tons of rails from the Algoma Steel Corporation for next year's delivery be cancelled, and that such new business as may be given the Algoma Steel Corporation be contingent upon the general situation as it may develop.

The minister, therefore, recommends, on the advice of the deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, that Order in Council of the 13th August, 1921 (P. C. 2861) granting authority to the management to order 40,000 tons of 85 lb. steel rails from the Algoma Steel Corporation for next year's delivery be and hereby is cancelled in so far as it relates to the 40,000 tons in question.

That, having due regard to the unemployment situation, as well as the requirements of the railways, the management of Canadian National Railways and the management of the Grand Trunk railway be authorized to order on next year's account, and not exceeding next year's prices, a maximum of 75,000 tons of rails and necessary accessories, and to arrange for the rebuilding or repair of 2,000 cars at suitable points at fair and reasonable charges, and that the expenditure so incurred be provided for in the Supplementary Estimate to be brought down at the next ensuing session of Parliament.

That in placing orders for the rebuilding and repair of freight equipment, the charges against the railways shall only be the fair and reasonable cost of the same in the company's shops, and that any extra expense involved be a proper charge against unemployment generally and regarded as such.

That in neither case shall expenditures incurred this year in anticipation of next year's requirements be chargeable against current operation or finance.

The Committee concur in the foregoing recommendation and submit the same for approval.

(Sgd) RODOLPHE BOUDREAU,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

In pursuance of this last Order in Council, the cars referred to by the President of the Canadian National Board in his letter of the 13th of September were placed as follows: 500 cars were contracted for with the National plant at Hamilton; 500 with the Canada Car and Foundry plant at Montreal; 500 went to Amherst and 500 to New Glasgow. For the Grand Trunk Pacific, there were 1,000 cars that went to Fort William, and that order was placed and authorized in pursuance of the order appointing the receiver; it was approved by the Exchequer Court of Canada.

The point I desire to make in connection with this, is that the Orders in Council were absolutely necessary in order to enable the board to contract for car repairs, and to purchase the rails. The board had no authority under the law to proceed, without the authority of the government through an Order in Council. The reason for that is this: Last session Parliament in its estimates provided certain sums for these purposes. As regards the expenditure of the sum authorised in the estimate of last year, the amount could be expended by the board upon the authority of the estimates; but when the question became one of anticipating the requirements of the road and ordering, in the fiscal year 1921-22, rails and car repairs that would naturally fall into the fiscal year 1922-23, it became necessary, for the purpose of financing and preventing the amount being a charge against the fiscal year 1921-22, that an Order in Council should be passed. The point which I desire to make clear if I can is, that as regards any of the items authorised in the Order in Council of the 6th of October, not one dollar's worth went into the operations of the fiscal year 1921-22, as would appear to have been the idea of the hon. member for St. Antoine. Not one dollar of that would operate to improve the financial statement for the past year.

If we admit unemployment and if we admit the wisdom of the late government in anticipating, during the past winter months, the requirements which would be inevitable when we reached April, May and the summer months, then surely no question can be raised as to the wisdom of the late government's policy. If we admit that unemployment existed, if we admit that there was any duty or obligation upon the government to relieve that unemployment, so far as it lay in the power of the government to relieve it, the logic of the late government's position is irresistible.

I wish to refer to one other matter, the point raised as to the great improvement that took place during the four months of August, September, October and November, 1921, an operating account. I do not think any one ever claimed that the late government was entitled to credit for that. If the claim has been made I have never heard it. The point was answered by my hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar) last night. It is to be explained by the fact that during these months we reached the peak in grain transportation, and consequently it was a natural result that we should have had an improvement in operation account.

Mr. MITCHELL: Yesterday when I referred to this matter I pointed out that the whole saving of $20,000,000 was in operating expense account, so that the question of increased freight during those months would not affect the statement I submitted to the House.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): I was referring to the point as it arose in the address of my hon. friend from Marquette. He referred particularly to the increase in freight, and I thought that my hon. friend (Mr. Mitchell) had done the same. But a review of the financial operations of the Canadian Pacific Railway during the same four months will reveal that in that period they also showed a substantial increase on operating account. While possibly the late government are not entitled to any credit for the results obtained during those four months, I am sure that my hon. friends opposite must rejoice that the greatly increased proportion of grain that was handled in 1921 played a large part in reducing the operating deficit for the year. I have nothing further to say in connection with this item, and I see no objection to its adoption.

Mr. GOOD: I can say all that I wish to say in less than five minutes, because my views have been very fully expressed by the member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) and the member for North Waterloo (Mr. Euler). But there are two points which I should like to mention. I was very much surprised yesterday to hear the member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) declare that he did not believe in the principle of public ownership of public utilities, and I took it that he based his belief upon his experience in the province of Quebec. If I am wrong in that interpretation of his remarks I stand to be corrected; but I would submit that the logic of the inference is decidedly questionable. Granting a break-down in public ownership, there are two causes: either the one assigned by the hon. member, or another one which he did not mention, and that is the lack of public spirit and the disposition on the part of those concerned to regard the public service as a happy hunting-ground for private graft. Of course, public ownership of public utilities will fail and must fail if that is the attitude of the individuals who have to do with them. And there is a very different interpretation which may be put upon the facts as submitted yesterday in that connection, an interpretation which, I think, the hon. member would hardly care to impute to his native province. But public ownership of public utilities need not fail. It has not failed in thousands of cases, and it will not fail, given a reasonable amount of honesty and public spirit. We are not asking for the application of public ownership to our farms and thousands of other businesses. But in connection with natural monopolies, whether they be municipal, provincial or federal, the conditions, I submit, are such as to render public ownership the wise, the prudent and the right policy.

Now, there has no doubt been a great deal of bungling in the past in regard to our railways, and things have reached a pass which is very regrettable. We have to face the conditions, and I just want in conclusion to deal with one suggestion that has been pressed in this House during the past two days as a solution of these difficulties, and that is, the getting rid of our National Railways. Well, who is going to buy them? There is only one concern in Canada that can take the National Railways off our hands, and that is the Canadian Pacific Railway. And if they did, what would be the result? You would have a practical monopoly of all railway transportation in Canada. In that connection I might refer to an article I read in the Grain Growers' Guide a few years ago in which it was stated that 42 men whose names were given, all but three of them residing in the cities of Montreal and Toronto, through interlocking directorates, had what might be described as a strangle hold on nearly all the manufacturing, transportation and financial interests of this country. Now, if the Canadian Pacific Railway were to absorb our National Railway system, and the Bank of Montreal should continue the absorption of our banks, what a huge octopus we should then have controlling the whole transportation and financial machinery of this country. I say, without casting any aspersions on the gentlemen concerned, that such a condition as that is a menace to democracy in this country, even though the parties who constitute such an enormous corporation might be angels. I wish to declare, and lay down as a principle, altogether apart from the character of the people involved, that this is a state of things which we ought not to permit in this country. And it is a condition of affairs that is apparently in anticipation in certain quarters. That is all I have to say in this connection. I wish to endorse the points of view presented by the member for Marquette and the member for North Waterloo.

[Mr. Good.]

Mr. RYCKMAN: I merely wish to make a short comment and to ask a question or two. This Government has been in power for four and a half months. On the 8th March we were told in the Speech from the Throne that it was the policy of the Government to co-ordinate the railways, thereby effecting economies; and it was stated that that would be done at an early date. Later, on the 11th of April, this declaration was emphasized in 9 p.m. the very excellent remarks which were made by the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy). I have been informed upon what I consider reliable authority that the consolidation of the government owned roads would save to this country at least $50,000 a day. My information is that the estimate is even larger. Now, while I am always anxious to be on the safe side, yet if I had the choice of $50,000 a day on one hand, and, on the other, the unknown figure, I would choose the latter, because I am certain that the consolidation of the railways would effect a greater saving than $50,000 a day. That amount in less than twenty days would equal all that was paid during the last fiscal year by way of duty on agricultural implements coming into Canada. In less than twenty days—to make the matter personal—it would pay the indemnities of all the members of this House. In fourteen days it would pay the amount that the Minister of Militia (Mr. Graham) struck off his estimates and which we wish was still there. There is no doubt that every succeeding sun finds a loss settled upon this country, a loss that cannot be recovered. Nor can we make up at the other end what we are losing now; it is absolutely dead loss.

Now, I think if this were a business proposition it would be tackled by a board of directors—business men—and some solution would long ago have been arrived at. By the way, I was told—and if it were not for this evidence to the contrary, I would be inclined to believe it—that the Minister of Railways was a strong, silent, business man. If he is not, there ought to be other men in the Cabinet who would take this matter into consideration and decide upon it. I am not one who believes that no one can be got in Canada to take up this important problem and settle it in a business way. I am satisfied that if it were committed to Mr. D. B. Hanna or to Mr. Mitchell, they could help us very much. At all events, there are business men in this country who, if they had to deal with this proposition, would take it in hand at once; they would not permit loss to succeed loss as the days go on. Why, some hon. members of the House have been able to tell the minister how they would effect pronounced economies if they were asked to take the matter in hand. Surely something will be done long before the House prorogues to bring about what is so much desired by everybody. I would ask the minister then, if he can say that my estimate of the saving which would be effected by the consolidation which he has promised is incorrect. If not correct, can he give me the estimate that he has? Finally, and most important, when is this thing going to be done in a business way?

Mr. KENNEDY Essex: I am not in a position to verify the statement that my hon friend (Mr. Ryckman) has given the committee as to what might be saved in the event of immediate consolidation, nor am I in a position to give, to a dollar, the saving that would thus be brought about. But I may say that having in view the annual expenditure involved—which, as the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) said yesterday, amounts to over $330,000,000—perhaps we are justified in going slowly and carefully, in taking our time to see that the men who are placed in charge of this undertaking are men who will carry it to a successful conclusion. I may say that an example was set in this regard by the government which my hon. friend supported in the last election. They appointed their directors in May, 1921, and in their wisdom they decided to go slowly in the matter of consolidation. I think, perhaps, they were right. So far as the Government is concerned, we are going to bring about coordination as quickly as we can.

Mr. EVANS: I have listened with some interest to the discussion of this important question. I look upon it as the greatest problem that faces the Government and the people to-day. Our attention is forcibly directed to the deficit we have to face. In order to enable the railways to pay their way, we have repeatedly raised the freight rates—to such an extent, in fact, that it is like the tariff for revenue; the higher the tariff, the less revenue we get. It is evident that the present rates do not permit the commerce of the country to move freely. I do not think there is any need of engaging experts, either from the United States or from Europe, as has been suggested, to tell us how we shall run our roads. But to the casual observer there seem to be several ways in which improvements could be made.

I believe there are many leaks at present, and these are apparent even to those who are not very well acquainted with railway matters. I will mention one or two. One is the expensive duplication of service over the lines in western Canada, and, I think, as well in eastern Canada. For instance, we have two lines west of Saskatoon running so close together for one hundred miles that you could hand a message from one train to the other. As if that incongruity were not complete in itself, express trains on both lines—on the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific,—run the same way at exactly the same time each day; service to the public is not considered at all. That has been going on for several months, and if attention is called to the matter we are told that a change cannot be made.

We have to evolve some method that will give the railway employees the proper viewpoint; that will bring them to realize that they are part owners, with the rest of the people of this country, of our national system. This may apply to the operators, engineers—yes, all the way down, even to the switchmen and sectionmen. Something should be done to give them the idea that the railways belong to them as well as to the rest of the people. It would be interesting to know what loss occurs annually in transit, due to breakages; for I believe that that loss could largely be prevented. I have no doubt the minister will give us that information before the discussion closes. In fact, I have even thought, Sir, that it may become necessary in some way to bonus the railway employees according to the length and quality of their service. Something will have to be done to offset this great waste.

It would be very interesting to know what the travelling expenses of certain officials over these lines are, their purpose in travelling, and whether such travel is really necessary. The hon. member for St. Antoine has said he did not believe in government ownership. Therefore, I take it he is not an unprejudiced observer of the government operation of railways. The fact remains that there is quite a suspicion in these days that those who have had the directing of these railways have not approached their task with a single eye to the successful operation of a government owned and operated system. We must realize that we have these railways on our hands, and although perhaps we do not want them under our ownership all at once, there is nothing for it now but for the Government to make the best of it. At this time we need at the head of the railways men who believe in the system they are trying to run, who believe in government ownership, and have faith in their own ability.

We are always being reminded that the Canadian Pacific is a tremendous success, both as to service and profits. I myself am not so sure of that, in view of what it has cost the Canadian people to establish that great system. I think it is worth while to ask, when considering this question, what we have paid for the Canadian Pacific Railway. No great corporation was formed and built this system for the benefit of the people particularly, but this country has given to that company in money grants, cash subsidies, finished railways and lands, amounting, if we take a fair average valuation of the land, to a gift at the expense of the people of this country of nearly $40,000 for every mile the Canadian Pacific owns and operates today. These figures were staggering to me when I first worked them out. Furthermore, the Canadian Pacific have always been the first to set the cost of service, and they have set it high enough to cover the cost of paying a dividend of 10 per cent yearly, and do some melon-cutting among themselves. In fact, I think some people have come to think that this country was developed for the sake of the Canadian Pacific Railway. But at last even this great company, I think, has come to realize that we have in the National Railways a system that is able to compete with them, and I am glad the minister has given it out as his policy that everything is to be done to give government ownership and operation a chance to succeed.

As far as the West is concerned, I know that the people there are proud of their national system, and that they will cooperate with the minister and with the directors of the road with a view to making this great system a success. But one thing they do ask of the minister and of the management, and that is that to the responsible positions in the system only men who believe in government ownership be appointed.

I think another factor that would help towards making the National Railways pay is a system of feeders. There are many parts of the West to-day without railways, where settlers who went in many years ago expecting a railway are still without transportation facilities. In the prairie provinces some of these roads were projected and even surveyed while they were still under the control of the provincial governments, but these charters have been allowed to lapse. The Canadian Pacific have surveyed lines and obtained charters in certain parts of the country with the idea, I believe, of heading off the Canadian National system, and the settlers there are still without transportation facilities to market their produce. These charters were allowed to lapse and to-day the Canadian Pacific is seeking for the second time that I know of, to renew them. I hope the management of the Canadian National Railways will see to it that duplication, as far as possible, is eliminated, and that feeders will be built in those districts where they are so much needed at the present time.

Mr. GARDINER: Is any portion of the item of $1,286,000, for construction, to be used for the purpose of laying rails this summer on completed roadbeds?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): No.

Mr. GARDINER: Is any portion of the item of $4,990,000, for betterments, to be used for that purpose?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): No.

Mr. GARDINER: What does the Government propose to do with regard to the bridge over the Red Deer river from Hanna to Medicine Hat? Is that going to be gone on with this year?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I have not the information here, but I shall be glad to get it and give it to my hon. friend at the next meeting of the committee.

Mr. GARDINER: I should like to go a little further into this matter. In western Canada at the present time, the Canadian National Railway have built many miles of roadbed on which at present there are no rails. Some of these roadbeds have been built over two years, and they were built for the purpose of giving the settlers in these various districts the accommodation they required. I understand from the minister that it is not the intention of the Government, or, so far as I know, of the railway officials, to lay rails on these roadbeds during this summer. I would point out to the House that at the present time the people who live in these remote districts require transportation facilities. The roadbeds have been built in many places, and all that remains is for the steel to be laid. I think that the policy of keeping these people without transportation facilities, merely for the sake of not spending the money for laying the rails, is a policy that cannot be upheld under any circumstances whatever, and I would submit that the officials who are to be appointed to look after the National Railways should take into consideration this very important question at an early date. These roadbeds are deteriorating all the time, and they might just as well be made use of in order to serve the people in those remote districts. Some two or three days ago I received a letter from a man in the constituency I represent who resides alongside a piece of this completed roadbed on which no steel is laid—it is the Hanna-Medicine Hat branch of the Canadian Northern—and he tells me that no matter what the crop conditions are, there are over two hundred Hollander families who intend to pull out of that district unless the steel is laid there this year. They live right alongside the roadbed, and any one who knows the Hollanders as settlers in western Canada knows that they are perhaps the very best settlers we have. They are industrious and mind their own business. They are good farmers and they make very successful settlers. As I stated in this House two or three evenings ago, we have been spending millions of money to get people into this country and yet here are completed roadbeds of railways without steel on them, although by simply putting the steel on these roads we could attract the needed settlers. I maintain that the matter should be looked into and if possible steel should be laid wherever needed without further delay.

Mr. MILLAR: I want to ask the Minister of Railways a question. I am not going to speak on this matter, although I would very much like to do so, because in my constituency there is a short railway very similar to the one just spoken of. In this case also the ties are down, the road bed is built, and the people there are very anxious to have the railway completed and operated at once. If the line cannot be completed in any other way the farmers there would like to undertake the work themselves. Now, as to the question I desire to ask. Men who have travelled round the country considerably, and have had an opportunity of knowing the conditions, tell me they have noticed very careless handling of freight at the freight sheds. During the Easter holidays, to mention a specific case, a man who is a cheese inspector said he was standing at a freight shed and noticed the railway employees turning over a box. He knew what was in the box and the value of its contents, and that it would break if not handled carefully. In a few minutes the box did break and the goods to the value of $12 were utterly destroyed. Folks have told me that they have noticed a great deal of this careless handling and I was just wondering whether the minister could give us any information on the subject. I shall not criticize the department, previous ministers, or anyone else because I realize how difficult it must be to keep tab on men when they are beyond the reach of a foreman, and it is difficult enough when the foreman is standing right over them; but I thought that possibly the minister might have some figures which would give an idea of the extent of the annual loss from this cause. I know the present minister has not been long in office and perhaps it might be difficult for him to give exact details, but even an approximate estimate would serve the purpose.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I feel indebted to the hon. member for bringing this matter to the attention of the committee, a matter which we are all interested in. I have had no report from the railway management in connection with it, or on the subject of breakages particularly, beyond the fact that they state that the breakages on the National Railways are not any more than they are on other lines. Just how much that represents I could not say, but I will bring the statement the hon. gentleman has made to the attention of the management, and I feel perfectly sure they will only be too glad to rectify such conditions if they exist.

Hon. JOHN B. M. BAXTER (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert): I doubt the wisdom of offering any observations owing to the length of time the debate has already lasted and yet, Sir, feeling that in a good many matters that have been discussed I personally differ, in some respects, from what I might call the prevailing opinion I think there is perhaps an obligation on members to express their views. There has not been since this House opened, I think, a better or a more useful debate than the one which is drawing near a close. It has been marked—I think eminently marked—by the avoidance of all semblance of party struggle, or the desire for party advantage. It is right that it should be so. No greater problem has ever confronted the people of Canada, and it is doubtful whether any problem, at any rate in our generation, will summon the people of Canada to share a greater burden, or call upon them for greater co-operation in thought and in action, than this railway problem which faces us at this time. We can do no possible good by delving into the past and suggesting that it was not quite wise to have constructed large stretches of these railways when they were built and with the assistance which they received. All the talking that we can indulge in here will not turn back one page of history, or put back into the public exchequer one dollar that has already gone.

It is no use discussing the question that has been quite largely debated in this House as to whether government operation or private operation is the better. Nothing that we can do at present, so far as I can see, can take from the representatives of this country the obligation to make the best they can of these roads. We have public ownership. There are some in this Chamber who, like myself, despite the majority of voices we have heard in debate, do not believe that public ownership is accompanied by the same economy or the same efficiency as private ownership. I have seen too much of the waste that is incidental to public management to be easily converted, even by a round of speeches, to a belief in the absolute efficiency and economy of public management. There is, I grant, a wave on in Canada, and perhaps all over the continent, at the present time in favour of public administration. It may be the best thing for our country, but I do not subscribe to the belief that it is the cheapest, the most economical, or necessarily the most efficient system and there is an underlying reason. The private road, or the private utility, or the private company, hires whom it pleases and fires whom it pleases, and does not have to respond to the political dictation of the people whom it employs; and until you can write that out of public ownership you cannot have public ownership as independent and as efficient as private ownership. I do not suppose that I am in very much accord in that belief with many of the members of the group of this House of which I am a member; I do not suppose I am in accord with a single gentleman who sits to the left of this group; I know I am in accord with some of the gentlemen who sit across the Chamber but not all of them. But it is not necessary, it is not worth while, to pursue this subject because we have public ownership and we are bound to make the best of it; and whether I believe it is the best thing or not it is my duty, if I can help in any way to make that public ownership more popular or make it more efficient, to contribute what I can to that end. Perhaps nothing that I can contribute will be of value; but I have one thought in my mind which I wish to express before the debate terminates.

You will pardon me a moment longer, Mr. Chairman, but I want to touch as lightly as I may upon some phases of the discussion, and to ask hon. members to consider how they may appear to the country and how they may appear to other members. We have heard—oh, I will not say much—but we have heard some reference in this House to all private enterprises as if there could not be such a thing as a private company unless it was accompanied by stock gambling, stock watering, graft and mismanagement. Now, as a citizen of Canada, I must say that I do not think that is a fair description of the bulk of our industrial enterprises; I would be very sorry to think so. I do think that the attacks largely come from an unconsidered habit of dealing with questions of this character by which people, more for the sake of oratory and more for the sake of inflaming the public mind, launch into a generalized attack upon every form of capital in the country; and I tell you it is absolutely unwise. In the year when we have to carry a debt as great as we are carrying, when we have to face the making up of a deficit as great as the deficit is, and must be on these railways, what we want to create in this country is confidence in its institutions, confidence in the capacity of this Parliament to find a solution of the problem, and confidence in the great industrial enterprises of Canada to see and to fight their way through this difficult period.

It is not the man who indulges in idle and ill-considered criticism who helps to build up the country. I am not an advocate of the Canadian Pacific Railway. I hold no brief for that organization. I do not think I ever received a dollar from them in my life. I do not expect and do not look for it, but in the part of Canada from which I come there is some appreciаtion of the great value to Canada of the development of that enterprise which has put Canada on the map of the world. I understand—and I think I am not wrong—that the Canadian Pacific has not been a company of watered stock. It got help, and not large help as we have measured later day subsidies, to put the line of steel across the continent; and in spite of much discouragement and many difficulties it did it. The Canadian Pacific Railway was the work of great master builders of empires, ruthless, possibly, at times, but valiant men, who saw their work and carried it through courageously. It is a work of which Canada may be proud. I know that in the East it does, at least, help one part of Canada, and help it magnificently, by simply doing the work for which it was created, and keeping the Canadian trade within Canadian channels. We can thank that railway for building up, at least, one of the ports within Canada, a doctrine which does not seem to have found very ready acceptance by some hon. members within the Chamber this session, but which I believe, after all, is the real aim of true Canadians who have vision enough to frame a policy for the whole of Canada and not for a section.

I trust that in whatever the minister does there will be no divorce, either by the Senate or by the House of Commons, of the Intercolonial Railway from the whole system of Government railways. Some people may take a partial view of it. The real future of the east is not in separation, but in greater and closer union. The same thing is true of the rest of Canada, and I hope that fact will be realized throughout Canada from end to end. Do not cut us off from the general system. We in the maritime provinces, in Halifax and St. John, give you your winter ports. You can find your summer ports on the Atlantic borders of this country as well. Keep us united with the railway system. Have the whole thing managed by the best brains that can be obtained, but let it be managed as a unit, and not as several distinct organizations, which will or may injure one another. At the same time give us a fair, reasonable and proper share of home rule. Let us have the administration within regions, by which the people in those regions can get more closely in contact with those who can feel the pulse of the business in the community, and shape the course of the railway, so as to bring about the best development in each locality. I am not asking more special privileges but simply what every man asks for, the opportunity of being easily heard, and of having just claims considered without delay, and without too much distance intervening. It was the policy of the late government to have—I will not say insisted—suggested or supported the idea that I believe took shape with the board of management of the railways to divide these railways into groups, or regional sections, where there would be an authority subject to the centre, and yet each authority would be supreme within the region. I believe, from remarks which have been made, that the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) does not intend to depart from that principle. I trust he will not, and in the constituency where my hon. friend the Secretary of State (Mr. Copp) finds a very powerful vote in his support, I think the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) may advise that the centre of a very great region may be located.

I listened with great attention and much pleasure to the discussion of this matter by the hon. member from Marquette (Mr. Crerar). To my mind, he advanced principally two matters for consideration. First he was in agreement with us in the maritime provinces as to the question of regional administration, but he advanced another proposition. He thought that writing off charges against the railway, the funded debt, would give some assistance. I entirely concur with the statement of the hon. member from Brome (Mr. McMaster) that that is simply a question of book-keeping and does not touch the crux of the matter at all. We could get no possible relief from that. I am heartily in accord with my hon. friend from Marquette, when he suggests the colonization of this country along the line of railway. That is a good idea and I trust the Government will make every effort to give us colonization with the right kind of people.

I need not dilate further upon that matter, but I would like to remark that down to the present hour, with the exception of something that was stated a few minutes ago, by, I think, the hon. member from Saskatoon (Mr. Evans) there has not been a hint, a whisper or a suggestion of anything that may be done to ease this problem, or to cut down the tens of millions of dollars of annual deficit. This is not a case where, by merely looking for some petty economy in the running of a private car or something of that kind, we are going to solve the problem. We have to go into bigger matters than that, and I think the member for Saskatoon came pretty near the idea which I had in mind. Perhaps the idea is worth nothing, but I have confidence that, at least, there is the germ of a policy in it, and, therefore, I desire to present it to the House to-night.

In thinking over the problem I have been much impressed by a remark that was made, either by a gentleman in authority on the National Railways or someone on his behalf, perhaps a year ago, to the effect that the government railways were getting in a position to give the Canadian Pacific Railway a little healthy competition. I can understand a great many people in Canada applauding that remark, and thinking that a new and bright era was going to dawn for Canada, or their particular part of Canada, but, unfortunately, I do not construe that remark in that way. What does a little healthy competition mean when you get down to actual work and to dollars and cents? Commercial competition is commercial war, and commercial war is just as destructive of capital and resources as a war between nations. It may be less destructive in degree, but it is in the same character. What we want is not, I submit, the rivalry of two systems, each fighting the other, each trying to undercut and dislodge the other. What we want is harmonious co-operation between the two great systems for the purpose of giving the people, not the service that the people want—I am not going to use that phrase; I will be a little more careful of my language because I want to speak with a sense of responsibility—not the service the people want, but the service that this country can afford to give them, and that the people can pay for, not a service represented by a deficit, but a service which will produce a return sufficient to meet its cost. You cannot violate that principle without making the condition worse. What do we have? The hon. member for Saskatoon referred to parallelling conditions in the west and he spoke with knowledge and authority. I cannot follow him as to the geography of those roads; but I can invite the attention of this committee to something that, to my mind, is typical of general conditions and will illustrate the idea that I desire to submit for the consideration, not only of the minister, but of the committee as a whole. Travel, if you will, from Ottawa to Montreal; you can do it by three separate lines.

An hon. MEMBER: Four.

Mr. BAXTER: Four if you like. These lines, I will grant you, serve different territory. Two of them are Canadian Pacific lines, one is a Grand Trunk line, and the other a Canadian National. The Canadian Pacific line that terminates in Place Viger station does not provide a rapid train; the Canadian National provides a train that might be classed as fairly rapid, a good through train with all the appointments; the Canadian Pacific short line does the same, and the Grand Trunk does the same. I shall not advocate that anybody living on those routes shall be cut off from the world by the stopping of an entire line of railway; but I say that, if there were just plain, ordinary horse sense in the management of this business, the heads of the Canadian Pacific and the heads of the Canadian National would have talked together and would have arranged for one fast train to bring people who are in a hurry from Montreal to Ottawa or to take them back, instead of triplicating the fast trains. Accommodation trains would be run for the slower local service on each road, because you cannot get away from that without abandoning a road. That is only typical of conditions prevailing in many parts of the country. Hon. members will, perhaps, appreciate why I have asked this committee not to adopt the rather haughty language that impeaches the Canadian Pacific as if that company were a criminal standing at the bar of this House. That, in my judgment, is not the proper attitude to take.

In the army they have what is called a liaison officer, and what we want is something like a liaison committee. The Canadian Pacific will appoint from its directorate or its passenger or freight traffic experts a few men; the Canadian National will do the same, so that they will have equal numbers on such a committee or board or whatever you like to call it. They will bring expert knowledge to bear; they will confer about just such things as I am speaking of in relation to passenger business, and about things that I know nothing of in relation to freight business. The problem will be to advise each railway what can be cut out, what expense can be reduced and how much useful service can still be given to the public without duplication. I think that is the right spirit in which we should proceed. I admit I am not making a suggestion that is going to wipe out the deficit or anything of that kind; but having the idea that co-operation, ordinary conversation, ordinary meeting together to discuss these matters would be of value, I thought I would take the opportunity of suggesting it to the minister and to the committee on this occasion as one slight contribution towards solving the railway problem.

Other hon. members may have better and more potent ideas than mine; but let us not rehash the question how this difficulty came about; let us make suggestions that will be helpful for the board, and that will cut down to some extent the tens of millions of dollars that the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) has to find, not for stock-watering, not for capitalists, but to provide for the people of Canada a service at just that much less than cost. If hon. members will visualise the matter in this way; if this country has to raise forty or fifty million dollars to pay the deficit, that money is not going to some bloated bondholder; it is going to give people freight rates lower than they ought to have, passenger rates lower than they ought to have. Until you face the problem in that way and also face the cost of providing the service—I say this in the widest sense—cut where cutting can be done, and get the people paying the cost of the service, a certain class of people are taking something out of the country every year instead of putting something into its exchequer. I cannot see the problem in any other way. The question is a simple one of arithmetic; it is also a question of principle. It is a question of policy, not great policy, not great strategy; it is simply the old homely idea of a man keeping within his income and, if he cannot do that, of finding means by which he will work harder and increase his income so as to catch up with the expenditures which he thinks are necessary.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): We have had two days of very useful and instructive debate, and as regards the Government and the Minister of Railways, I am sure the ideas that have been expressed will all be given due consideration. The fact, however, remains that we have not as yet passed a single item. We have three items, one after the other, that all practically pertain to the matter under discussion. The suggestion which I would make to the committee is that we pass these items and then go on to the next; and at any time while the debate is in progress, or the committee is sitting on the estimates of the Department of Railways and Canals, members of the committee will have an opportunity of discussing the matter again if they see fit.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): Those are the items under which the general discussion of the question most properly comes, and as many members are absent from the House to-night, I should like to have the assurance of the minister that, upon the other items in the estimates, a general discussion of the railway question will be permitted. If that is done, I see no objection upon our part to the three items going through. I understand that the two items that follow this and that provide for the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific, have been passed upon by the board and have been approved. In view of that, I have no objection.

Item agreed to.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY

Amount not exceeding $25,750,000 to meet expenditures made or indebtedness incurred (where amounts available from net operating earnings may be insufficient) by or on behalf of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, or any company comprised in the Grand Trunk Railway system or any one or more of them (excluding herefrom however expenditures or indebtedness incurred by or on behalf of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company except as specifically provided in item (g) hereof) on any of the following accounts: (a) Operating deficits. (b) Acquisition of property, materials and supplies. (c) Interest and sinking funds on notes, securities or obligations. (d) Principal and interest of maturing or matured loans secured or unsecured. (e) Construction and betterments. (f) Co-ordination or consolidation of railway lines and facilities. (g) Guarantees by the said Grand Trunk Railway Company of securities of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company. The amount herein authorized may be applied from time to time, in the discretion of the Governor in Council, by way of loans in cash or by way of guarantee, or partly one way and partly the other. If by way of loans, the amount or amounts advanced shall be repayable on demand, with interest at the rate fixed by the Governor in Council, payable half-yearly, secured by mortgage or mortgages upon such properties, in such form and containing such terms and conditions, not inconsistent herewith, as the Governor in Council may approve. If by way of guarantee, any such guarantee may be of the principal and interest of the notes and obligations or securities of one or more of the said companies specified by the Governor in Council, and may be signed by the Minister of Finance, on behalf of His Majesty, in such form and on such terms and conditions as the Governor in Council may determine to be appropriate and applicable thereto, $25,750,000.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Item agreed to.

Amount not exceeding $15,900,000 to meet expenditures made or indebtedness incurred (where amounts available from net operating earnings may be insufficient) by or on behalf of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company or any Company comprised in the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway system or any one or more of them (excluding herefrom however guarantees by the Grand Trunk Railway Company which are provided for in item (g) of the next preceding item) on any of the following accounts: (a) Operating deficits. (b) Acquisition of property, materials and supplies. (c) Interest and sinking funds on notes, securities or obligations. (d) Principal and interest of maturing or matured loans secured or unsecured. (e) Construction and betterments. (f) Co-ordination or consolidation of railway lines and facilities. The amount herein authorized may be applied from time to time, in the discretion of the Governor in Council, by way of loans in cash or by way of guarantee, or partly one way and partly the other. If by way of loans, the amount or amounts advanced shall be repayable on demand, with interest at the rate fixed by the Governor in Council, payable half-yearly, secured by mortgage or mortgages upon such properties, in such form and containing such terms and conditions, not inconsistent herewith, as the Governor in Council may approve. If by way of guarantee, any such guarantee may be of the principal and interest of the notes and obligations or securities of one or more of the said companies specified by the Governor in Council, and may be signed by the Minister of Finance, on behalf of His Majesty, in such form and on such terms and conditions as the Governor in Council may determine to be appropriate and applicable thereto, $15,900,000.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Item agreed to.

Hudson Bay Railway—Port Nelson Terminals —$40,000.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Last Mountain): While I am only too anxious to see the committee proceed, and to assist the minister in getting his estimates passed, I would ask that this item stand, because there are a great many members in this party who would like to speak on this resolution and who are not in the House to-night.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I had in mind the fact that many hon. members desire to discuss the Hudson Bay Railway question, and I have therefore, in accordance with the request of the hon. member for Lanark (Mr. Stewart), reserved item 350, "Canadian Government Railways," on page 65 of the Estimates, for the purpose of allowing the discussion of the Hudson Bay or any other government railway.

Mr. BAXTER: Perhaps it would be better to let the item stand. Speaking for myself and, I think, for the general locality from which I come, we do not 10 p.m. see any reason for spending even $40,000 on this particular railway at the present time, in view of the fact that we have a National Railway equipped to do the work. Why is it needed to spend this money this year?

[Mr. J. A. Stewart.]

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): If hon. members insist I shall be glad to let the item stand. I may explain, however, that this $40,000 is to take care of goods and chattels at Port Nelson belonging to the government.

Mr. BAXTER: Does it represent new construction in any way?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): No.

Mr. BAXTER: Then I will not object.

Item agreed to.

Mr. FIELDING: The Minister of Militia (Mr. Graham) was to have taken up his estimates. He is not here, and the Minister of Labour (Mr. Murdock) will proceed.

LABOUR

Labour—Unemployment relief, $100,000.

Hon. JAMES MURDOCK (Minister of Labour): When we came to this item some weeks ago the hon. member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) requested, because of the lateness of the hour, consideration of it be deferred for a while. I do not know whether he still desires to discuss the matter.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Perhaps the minister could take up another item. I know that the hon. member for Vancouver Centre is anxious to discuss this item but he is not present.

Item stands.

Miscellaneous—Printing Bureau—Plant, repairs and renewals, $30,000.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Last Mountain): How is the increase of $10,000 accounted for?

Mr. MURDOCK: It is to provide for one monotype and two monotype casting machines. This is additional equipment for the purpose of reducing the overtime period.

Item agreed to.

Printing Bureau—plant, new, $67,100.

Mr. STEWART (Lanark): What is the explanation of the large increase in this item?

Mr. MURDOCK: I think I unintentionally gave my hon. friend, on the last item, some information that was not entirely accurate; so I will just read the estimated plant requirements for the Printing Bureau for the fiscal year 1922-23.

Composition

Hand—

No. 1 item—Two No. 2 size proof presses at $565 .. $ 1,130
This is an addition to plant.

No. 2 item—One No. 1 size proof press .. 750
This replaces an old Washington proof press.

No. 5 item—Two new fonts of wood type and four refills .. 90
This is an addition and also replenishing defective wood type fonts used in poster printing.

No. 6 item—6,100 pieces of metal furniture .. 700
This is additional working material.

No. 7 item—12 Monotype sort cabinets .. 1,200
This is an addition for storing and constant use of type matrices fonts.

Monotype—

No. 3 item—Two Monotype caster machines, complete .. 10,000
This is additional equipment to reduce overtime period.

No. 8 item—One set each of sizes Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 of six point No. 347J, 8 set, matrices for Monotype Caster machines .. 115
This is additional equipment.

Linotype—

No. 4 item—New dress of matrices for present equipment of twenty Linotype machines .. 12,000
This will duplicate the most frequently used Monotype size and faces of type and enable work to be performed simultaneously or singly by either process of composition.

$25,985

Bindery

No. 1 item—One 12-in. by 16-in. ten-box standard mechanical gathering or collating machine .. $ 6,000

No. 2 item—One mechanical side wire-stitching machine for 1½-in. book thickness and 3-wire stitch maximum .. 3,850

No. 3 item—One mechanical, continuous covering machine for 12-in by 16-in. maximum book size .. 9,350
These three machines are to be linked up as one machine and handle all operations in one continuous control and output or may be used separately or in varying tandem combination.
With the addition of "Item No. 4," they will replace 13 individual machines now in use.

No. 4 item—One mechanical saddle-stitching machine, full equipment. 3,792

$22,992

Credit

Sale of—2 old, single-covering machines at $500 .. $1,000
Sale of—10 individual Latham Stitchers .. 1,311
One obsolete handgathering wheel—no value .. ..

$2,311 — 2,311

$20,681

Die-Stamping—Stamped Envelopes—

No. 1 item—One two-colour envelope printing press .. $ 3,200

No. 2 item—One self-gumming, all size interchangeable machine .. 6,000
These two items make a two operation manufacture, and replace two obsolete combination print-emboss and envelope machines.
Additional provision is here made for imprinting a business return address in another colour in same operation.

No. 3 item—One closed paper cutting die for envelope size 3⅝-in. by 6-in .. 100

No. 4 item—One closed paper cutting die for envelope size 3⅝-in. by 6½-in .. 100
Items 3 and 4 provide for present standard size envelope and the addition of a business size envelope.

No. 5 item—One paper cutter die grinding machine .. 2,500

No. 6 item—One paper cutter die sharpening machine .. 1,500
Items 5 and 6 provide for the necessary grinding and sharpening of these special shaped dies and ensure speedy and economical operation of this service.

$13,400

Then, there are various items of requirements in each press room and in the chief mechanic's division, together with general plant repairs and renewals.

Mr. JOHNSON (Last Mountain): The minister spoke of certain machines having been sold. Can he inform me whether they were sold by private sale or by public auction, or otherwise?

Mr. MURDOCK: I am glad my hon. friend asked me that, because I am not entirely clear on it myself. I will have to get the information for my hon. friend.

Item agreed to.

Miscellaneous—distribution of parliamentary documents and other government publications, $40,000.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Last Mountain): I am convinced that many tons of this matter are sent broadcast throughout the country with no resulting benefit. I know that I myself get much of it, and I have heard other members refer to the matter. I would suggest that questionnaires be sent out before this material is sent broadcast throughout the country, asking the people to whom it is proposed to send the material to state whether or not they wish to obtain it. There is no use sending it out at a great expense if it is not used.

Item agreed to.

Legislation—general—

Printing, printing paper, and binding..	$125,000
Printing, binding and distributing the annual statutes..	16,000
	$141,000

Mr. CHAPLIN: Does the minister intend to do more printing this year than last?

Mr. MURDOCK: From the 1st of April, 1921, as per Order in Council 1940, dated August 18, 1920, all requisitions for the printing of annual reports are charged directly against the department concerned, instead of against the general vote. There has been a change made in the manner of charging these items up as compared with former years.

Mr. CHAPLIN: My remark was based upon the fact that paper is a good deal less in price than it was a year ago, and it seems to me the item might reasonably be reduced.

Mr. GUTHRIE: With respect to the item for printing, binding and distributing annual statutes, heretofore that work has been done under the Department of Justice. I understood from remarks which fell from the Speaker a few nights ago that it would be continued to be charged against the Justice Department. Can the minister tell me why it now appears under the Department of Labour?

Mr. MURDOCK: My hon. friend will understand that this item does not concern the Department of Labour particularly. The estimate is in exactly the same position as formerly except that the Printing Bureau was under the authority of the Secretary of State until some time last summer, and is now under the Department of Labour.

Item agreed to.

[Mr. Murdock.]

Naval service—to provide for the maintenance of the Royal Canadian Navy, $1,500,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I would rather the minister would take up his militia estimates. The leader of the Opposition has something to say with regard to the naval estimates, and he cannot be here for some little time yet.

Mr. CHURCH: When will the naval estimates come up?

Mr. GRAHAM: The item has been called but my hon. friend from South Wellington asks that we take up the militia instead.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I understand that the hon. member for North Toronto, (Mr. Church), the hon. member for East Hamilton, (Mr. Mewburn), and the hon. member for Kingston, (Mr. Ross) wish to speak on the naval service estimates, and they will be obliged if the minister would not take them up before Monday, as they cannot be here to-morrow.

Mr. GRAHAM: We will take the naval service estimates on Monday.

Item stands.

MILITIA AND DEFENCE

Militia and Defence—cadet services, $450,000.

Mr. GRAHAM: In fairness to the committee I must say that the last time the militia estimates were up I said I would make certain reductions. I have an amendment here, but according to the ruling of the Chair, I cannot move it myself.

Mr. MURDOCK: I move that the item of $450,000 for cadet services be reduced by the amount of $100,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Perhaps the minister would explain what he proposes to do with the cadet services, with this $100,000 reduction.

Mr. GRAHAM: I am at a loss for details because my deputy is not here, but in short I understand that it will mean doing away with the boys' camps this summer. I think the boys will bear with me for this season and shoulder their share of the sacrifice we are making in these estimates. The other boys' training can go on in the institutions as formerly, but there will not be any camps this summer. I want to tell the committee that I am doing that for this year, and that is as far as any pledges will go, because if the public understood this work, I am sure they would appreciate its great value. The number of cadets is increasing very greatly every year. This year we have a great many more than were ever enrolled before. To give the committee an idea of the work that is being done, I may say that the cadet training is carried out during the whole school year and includes instruction in signalling, first aid to the injured, physical exercise, organized games, elementary military drill, scouting and rifle shooting. Last year the cadet camps were of six days' duration, advance instruction being given in all the subjects I have enumerated. To show how the work is expanding I will read the following statement:

Province	Enrolled Strength April 30, 1922.
Nova Scotia	3,634
Prince Edward Island	735
New Brunswick	1,603
Quebec	42,081
Ontario	29,573
Manitoba	9,803
Saskatchewan	5,004
Alberta	5,330
British Columbia	5,303

Mr. CHURCH: I regret very much to hear of the action the minister has taken with respect to the cadets. I think it is the blackest eye the militia of Canada has ever received to cut out the cadet camps held at Niagara, Barriefield, London and other places. The cadets were brought to these camps from the public, separate and the high schools all over the province and received a good training there. I do not know of any money appropriated by Parliament which has been spent to better advantage by the government than the money spent on the cadet service. The training the boys receive at these camps, instils patriotism into them; it is an education in itself, and furthermore I look on it as a work of religion. These children, after spending ten months of the year in their schools, are brought to the camps and remain there for a week or ten days. During that time they are given physical drill, camp life and a little military drill. They are also taught to be men, and they learn patriotism.

I look upon this item, out of the whole of the militia estimates, as one which should never have been interfered with. If there was one item which should have been left untouched by the Government it is the vote for the cadet service because the cadets to-day are the backbone of our militia. A cadet of fifteen or sixteen to-day is the volunteer later; nobody knows that better than the officers of our militia battalions. I saw the twelfth York battalion enter camp, along with others last summer, and many were cadets of seventeen and eighteen years of age. You are going to disorganize the whole militia if you wipe out this item. You are going in opposition to the popular demand, because there is a demand for cadet camps in Canada.

An organization has been formed in the city of Toronto called the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association and the Ontario Athletic Commission and it has already spent a great deal of money, preparing pupils of the public, separate and high schools for these camps this summer. The president is Mr. P. J. Mulqueen who is giving his services for nothing. Camps were to be held at Niagara, Barriefield, London other places. They have been preparing all winter for these camps where training will be given which will make good citizens of the boys of Ontario. The Association provide instructors who visit the public, separate and high schools one day a week during the winter months and teach the boys physical drill and games and give them other training and when the summer comes they will be ready to go to the cadet camps.

This is not militarism at all; it is building up Canadian youth. We are spending immense sums to aid the live stock industry. The city of Toronto itself has erected a building with this object in view at the cost of a million dollars. Such expenditures as these are all right in their way; but my complaint is that not enough is being done by the Militia Department re cadet camps or by the Department of Health to develop the rising generation. The boy of to-day is the citizen of to-morrow. I am sorry that this Parliament is not spending even a five cent piece for the development of our youth. It can vote millions for railways but for building up character in Canada we have not a cent. The time is close at hand when the children from these schools should be aided to take the training I have mentioned, but how is it to be carried out if this vote is cut or disappears altogether? When I was at the Niagara camp last year I saw from seven to nine thousand children of all denominations, many of whom had come from the poorest slums of the cities and towns. Some of them were underfed. They went over on the Cayuga, the Corona, and other boats; and one boat came from Hamilton, General Mewburn's constituency.

The training the children receive at camps like that is of great advantage to them, and I am sorry to hear the minister get up at this late date and again change his estimates. If there is one minister whose estimates I would like to see go through more quickly than those of any other member of the Government it is the Minister of Militia. I have known him all my life; he is a good sportsman. The other day he came down and changed his estimates with respect to other services; and now he wants to make more changes and to cut out the vote for the cadet service. A night or two ago a sum of $25,000 was voted in aid of the Boy Scouts. It was money well spent; but I would like to see the minister do something for these cadet camps. If the work of these camps is stopped it will mean that the rising generation who come from places where the conditions are not good for physical development will suffer and have no recreation. Look at what has been done by the federal authorities in Washington, and by many of the state governments; they have multiplied by four or five their votes for the cadet services. In the parliament of the Australian Commonwealth an increased appropriation was introduced to provide for physical drill for the children, which the Minister of Defence declared he would never consent to cut off.

All this talk about militarism in this connection is futile. Not five per cent of the time in camp has been spent on military drill; games and physical recreation and sports of various kinds have been indulged in and the lads taught how to obey orders. I think that is something that is needed these days. The city from which I came is spending $11,000,000 in education this year, not omitting physical training. In the University of Toronto they are going to insist on physical drill. I hope the vote for this purpose will not be reduced or cut down. If it is it will mean that not only boys in Toronto, but boys in Aurora and other Ontario towns, will not be able to get to Niagara camp; the farm lads will suffer as well as the city children. Why, children attended the Niagara camp from such long distances as New Ontario. One company of fifty boys came from Copper Cliff; they had never been much out of their own town before. At Niagara they mixed with boys from old Ontario, with mutually advantageous results. The education they receive there is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the government. I hope the minister will re-consider his decision to reduce this vote. You cannot provide meals in camp for forty cents; at Niagara camp it costs sixty cents to properly feed the children. There are many other expenditures I would prefer to see reduced, or cut off altogether rather than the expenditure for this purpose which is going to build up character and stimulate patriotism in the children of Canada.

Many of the children who attend the Niagara camp are the sons of returned veterans. These men cannot afford to send their sons to play in the country and this camp has been a blessing to them. It has been a blessing to St. Catharines, Aurora, Newmarket, Copper Cliff and all the other cities and towns. I have letters from people in those districts asking me to do what I could. I urge the government to reconsider this item and give the public and separate school children a chance. Little enough money is being spent on the children. A dollar spent on the children will save later thousands of dollars in doctor bills, houses of correction, gaol farms and other institutions. By saving the rising generation and making good citizens of them, we are doing a great deal for the country. This is not a military work which the Militia Department has been doing; I look on it as a matter of religion. I hope the minister will reconsider the item. He has been a good friend of the children. The cadets in Hamilton have been training for months and their teachers are working for nothing after hours drilling them. The physical drill is far from military. Every university in Canada is going to insist on it. The largest universities in the States are insisting on physical exercises and participation in them by all the years in the university. The cadet movement is here to stay. This training is made compulsory in Australia and New Zealand. It is carried on in Great Britain, the United States and all over the world. I consider it one of the best works the government has undertaken.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I would like to join with the hon. member for North Toronto (Mr. Church) in urging anything that will extend physical training among the boys and girls of this country. I also sympathize with any movement in the direction of giving an impetus to athletics, but I want to decidedly protest against any expenditure which will tend to develop the military spirit among the boys of this country, and this cadet training, though it may be camouflaged as physical training, has as its object essentially the development of what has been called patriotism, but which, in the mouth of its exponents, is another word for militarism. I have before me a letter which was sent me by the mother of one of these boys who had been receiving this cadet training. He took his course during his high school work. The mother was under the impression that he was getting good physical training, that his character was being developed, and so on, but she learned immediately the boy was through his course that every effort was made to get him to join the local battalion. The letter reads:

CAMBIE ST., VANCOUVER, B.C.

Dear Sir—I am writing you a personal appeal because I have watched with interest the cadet and physical training at the different schools in Vancouver.

You have now reached an age when you are to take your place as a citizen in this great new country of ours, of which there is none that can boast greater freedom or liberty for its citizens. As a unit in the British Empire it shares, not only the glories and liberties won in the past by our forefathers, but also shares in the glories of its history and its arms won in all countries of the globe, its literature and its commerce.

Have you ever stopped to think what you as a citizen will owe to this great country? You have been taught to sing "O, Canada," "The Maple Leaf," to swell with pride at tales of prowess, of the deeds of your forefathers, not only in the wars of Canada, but also in the wars in other parts of the world; of the part we played as Canadians in the Great War, and no doubt felt that, if need be, you would lay down your life for your country. But would not that be a silly sacrifice if in so doing you acomplished nothing. You know what happens to the boxer who goes into the ring without training; to the boy who, however plucky he may be, does not know how to defend himself. It is the same with nations; if one nation is indolent in preparing for its defence, and if it possesses something that other nations covet, sooner or later it will have to defend its possessions. The surest way to prevent war is to be prepared for war.

The circular winds up by urging that this boy and others should arrange to join the 29th battalion of the 1st B.C. regiment. The letter is signed by H. S. Tobin, Lt. Col. Commanding 29th (Vancouver) Battalion, 1st B. C. Regiment.

It becomes very apparent from such a letter as that, and from other activities which we know are going on, that there is a distinct inducement held out to these cadets to enter upon a military career. There is more than that on the part of the officers who are training them; there is a distinct effort to build up the military spirit. I can quite appreciate that these officers are honest in that effort. I think that they quite believe that that is what should be done, in order to carry out the patriotism which we all owe to our country, but I submit, Mr. Chairman, that those of us who do not believe in that have a right to help decide what the policy of this country is going to be. If we decide on a military policy, undoubtedly it for the experts to determine how that can best be carried out, but we stand at the point where we must decide the fundamental questions as to what the policy of the country is really going to be. If it is true, as this military officer says, that the surest way to prevent war is to prepare for war, by all means let us go ahead and train our boys. Let us proceed to carry out this idea with all the military expenditure that we can possibly afford. But some of us challenge that statement and that policy. We were told some years ago that if we went into this last war it would be an end to all wars. I say that those who made that statement have absolutely deceived us; they have proved that they were false prophets and that they did not know what they were talking about. We listened to them and went into the war. Do we find that the war has ended wars? Now, we are told by some of the self-same gentlemen—at least by those who advocate the self-same policy—that we have to be prepared for an even greater European war than that through which we have just passed. We gave of our best, and I, for one, have every respect for the men who joined the colours, because they believed they were doing their duty. I think that when these men come back they should receive the very best this country has. We asked them to go and risk their lives, and many of them laid down their lives. Those that come back and the dependents of those who did not come back should receive the best. But that consideration does not make me believe that we should prepare to follow along lines of public policy which in the past have proved to be so disastrous. Never was there a better opportunity on such a world-wide scale for demonstrating the advantages of war; and never was there a greater failure in the history of the whole human race. If ever we had a demonstration of the futility of war we had it in this Great War. And now, notwithstanding that demonstration, we are trying to inculcate these self-same ideas of militarism in our children.

A little over a year ago the cadets of Vancouver city were reviewed in the King

Edward High School by a brigadier general. In encouraging the boys, he referred to the splendid showing which they had made as a result of their training, and he made this statement: "That nation whose boys can think clearly and can shoot straight is the nation that will be able to impose its will on other nations." That teaching is what we have ordinarily termed Prussianism—Prussianism pure and simple, and Prussianism does not look any more attractive to me in a British uniform than it does in a German uniform. We have complained again and again that, during the last few decades, the Germans have inculcated this military spirit in the minds of their young people; that they have introduced this teaching into their colleges, and that the whole of Germany was simply permeated by the military spirit. I have seen myself, in some of the universities in Germany, the result of that spirit, where those young college fellows dared not refuse to accept a challenge to a duel, and I have watched these student duels, as with a great deal of nerve, each man makes a thrust at the other fellow, all this being done to encourage the military spirit. I remember one of these students saying to me some years ago: "Oh, you Britishers; you have lost your old military spirit, your old military prowess; away back in the time of Shakespeare, you were a nation with noble ideals; to-day you are a nation of shopkeepers; you have lost the military spirit." That was the German idea of the situation, but we sit here to-night and listen to an hon. gentleman rejoice in the fact that we, in this day, in our universities are adopting the policy that Germany adopted thirty or forty years ago. I do not decry physical training in our universities; I am glad of it. I do not decry athletics in our universities. A few years ago I rejoiced to take my share in the athletics of my university. We do not want however to introduce military training into our universities, and we do not want to militarise the Canadian people.

It has been said that we want our boys to grow up to be manly boys. I have a boy of fourteen years of age taking his training in the high school, and my boy to-day is practically penalised because I refused to allow him to take cadet training. I did so, not because I did not want my boy to grow up to be strong, to participate in athletics and all the rest of it; but I refused absolutely to allow him to be placed under those conditions in which he would be likely to develop anything of a military spirit, because I believe that militarism to-day is bankrupt and has demonstrated its bankruptcy. Somebody might say that this was merely a personal opinion of mine; but I want to repeat what I said here the other evening, that, in speaking along these lines, I am speaking, not merely for myself, but, I think, for a considerable group of the labour men whom I know very intimately from Fort William to the Pacific coast. I think I have a right to speak for a large number of labour people, as I have received again and again communications from all parts of this country endorsing this position. I have an undoubted right to speak for my own constituency where this was one of the questions that we took up very definitely in the election campaign, where I received the fullest endorsation with regard to my position on military training in the schools and where we have discussed out this question in our municipal as well as in the federal and provincial campaigns. Under such circumstances, we have a right, in the consideration of these items, to consider frankly whether or not we wish, in the future, to continue to carry out a policy which must lead us into the same troubles into which militarism has led the race from the earliest times which history records.

Some hon. members will say: "What else is there ahead"? I submit that we might very well make some peace expenditures that would do a great deal more good than these war expenditures. This is not the time to suggest these things to the House; but I for one believe that if this Parliament voted a few of the millions that it is spending on military estimates, to feed the starving children of Russia, it would be an expenditure which would go a long way to cement international friendship. Other things that we could do could readily be mentioned. Why should we constantly think there is no other way in which we can spend our money for defence purposes than by maintaining a military force? We shall have a cessation of wars so soon as we remove the economic causes which are producing wars, and as soon as we remove those other causes which prejudice one nation against another. I should like to express in this House the hope—again if you like since other opinions have been expressed here again and again—that we, in this young Canada of ours where we have no enemy at our gates, would take the lead in working out some of these principles of good fellowship. I for one rejoice because of having come of parents and grandparents who have been born in Canada, and this is my idea of patriotism. I think we are able to take the lead because of our connection with the great British Empire. I for one do not want to avoid any obligation that arises because of our connection with the British Empire; but we can fulfil our obligations in other than military fashion. There is, on the one hand, the tie that we have with Great Britain, and, on the other, the close connection that we have with the people of the United States to the south of us. We stand, it seems to me, in a unique position to foster those newer ideals, in which alone we believe the safety of the world consists. Within the last few days, it has been stated on the floor of this House that troubles are looming up in Europe to-day. Are we going to be drawn into this maelstrom of European troubles? Rather than that, I would say that we Canadians would have to stand here if needs be by ourselves to uphold the principles of peace. America has been separated more or less by the oceans from the old world. In the last few years we have seen the suicidal policies of Europe. Unless we are careful, those yellow races about which we talked a few days ago, are going to witness, as one of the great Counts of Japan said, the suicide of European peoples and the end of European civilization.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Yes, carried, if you like. I have just about finished my remarks. I will vote for the amendment because it is a little better than the original estimate. We believe in taking small mercies. These things that I have been saying are things that, whether we like to hear them in this House or not, are things that are being talked and thought about by the ordinary people of this country from one coast to the other, and we in this House would be well advised if we endeavoured to keep a little more closely in touch with the current thought of the common people who suffered most in the last war.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I do not want to delay the passage of this item, but I desire to add my protest to that of the hon. member for North Toronto (Mr. Church) against the suggestion that this vote for cadet purposes should be reduced by the substantial sum of $100,000. We are, of course, all aware that the minister has committed himself, since he brought his estimates to Parliament, to a substantial all-round reduction. All I propose to do is to protest against the reduction of this item. As I read down the estimates of the Militia Department I see several places where reductions might possibly be made which would cause less inconvenience and loss to the militia of Canada than would the reduction which is now proposed in regard to the cadet service in this country.

Mr. CANNON: What items do you refer to?

Mr. GUTHRIE: Wait until we come to them; I will explain then. The cadet service has not heretofore been looked upon as purely military service at all. It has been considered in this country, and I think in other countries as well, more in the nature of athletic development than as military training; and I am sure that in the future, as in the past, the Government will continue the service with that end in view.

Mr. POWER: Why not buy some hockey sticks?

Mr. GUTHRIE: This training has been regarded as the very best athletic development, being given under a system of military discipline. Military discipline and military training lend themselves with great advantage to physical development, and the best physical development that is given, whether in boys' or girls' schools, follows generally along the lines of military training. But that does not make it military training at all; it still retains the essence of physical development. And physical training is what is chiefly sought by the vote now under consideration. The expenditure is not a large one. Indeed, $450,000 for the development of the young men of this country is a very infinitesimal sum. Could we employ the money better in any other avenue of expenditure which we have in the Dominion at the present time? Last year's estimate of $450,000 provided for an annual camp for 8,000 cadets. That camp, it was estimated, would cost about $125,000. I assume that the estimate, when first brought down to Parliament at $450,000 all told, had in view the expenditure of about $125,000 on this annual training which is given to the boys in Canada. Now, it certainly is a splendid outing for them; it is a good holiday; it is a camp under strict supervision, where not only the physical condition of the boys, but their moral welfare as well is looked after. The moral conditions and the living conditions generally that obtain in these camps are of the highest standard. That $125,000 is money as well spent as any we have expended in the Dominion, and I think that the minister should strain a point to rearrange these reductions, if he is bound to reduce, so that $125,000 may be spent on the boys in the annual summer camps. I think the camps are now held pretty generally throughout Canada. At all events, they were last year. It is not a movement confined to one province; it is now developed in all provinces, I believe, and it is growing with great rapidity. It is supported, I think, by the best elements in the community, by the best educationalists in Canada, by the various churches, without regard to denomination; and it is endorsed by leading medical and commercial men, as well as by agricultural people throughout Canada. Here is an opportunity for the minister to recast his estimates. He can do a greater service by allowing these boys to go through the annual camp than by cutting this item by $100,000 as proposed. I do not want to delay the item at all; I want the House to deal with it as speedily as possible. But I certainly want to make my protest and to suggest that the minister recast his estimates and save the situation.

11 p.m.

Mr. McBRIDE: There is one point I want to make clear. My hon. friend from Winnipeg (Mr. Woodsworth) seems to convey the impression that he represents Labour. I might say that when I was nominated the Labour candidate did me the honour to withdraw, and I got 95 per cent of the Labour vote in the district I represent. I have always supported the cadet movement and the militia, and will continue to do so. In fact, I should consider myself a traitor to the people I represent if I did not, and I am sorry to see this amount cut down. These boys should get the training to which they are justly entitled. I regret also that the militia training item is reduced, and I am more than sorry that there is not more money in the estimate for the navy. I do not believe in training our young people for the purpose of offensive, but I do believe in training them so that they may be able to defend themselves if ever the time comes they are called upon to do so.

Mr. GRAHAM: There is no better friend to the cadet movement in Canada than I, myself. I have always been their friend, as a private citizen as well as throughout my public career. But we are asking the militia and everybody else this year to make some sacrifice, and I do not believe that the boys will be any the worse off for feeling that they too are doing their share. One year is as far as I can make any pledge, because I fully agree that the training of the cadets, apart from any military idea at all, lays the foundation for the physical and mental manhood of the Dominion. The only thing that will be reduced is the expenditure in connection with the annual camps. The other training the boys receive in the collegiate institutes, in the public schools, in the high schools and in the universities will be carried on as usual.

Mr. STEWART (Leeds): I was greatly pleased to hear the minister speak so highly of this branch of the service. He is conversant with what is done in his own town, and I know something about the matter myself. I believe that cadet training is one of the most valuable services we can render the youth of the country. Has the minister considered the possible very serious effect, upon all the training throughout the rest of the year, of the knowledge of these boys that they cannot look forward to the outing which the camp usually affords them? I am afraid it will tend to demoralize their training throughout the rest of the year.

Mr. GRAHAM: My hon. friend knows the attitude I have always taken in regard to cadet training. I should not think that that knowledge would have any serious effect, because the training of the boys outside of the camps is about over for the year. At least, it is pretty well advanced. And as I have hinted, we are only asking that the boys shall make a sacrifice for this year.

Item as amended agreed to.

Clothing and necessaries, $361,400.

Mr. MURDOCK: I move that this vote, No. 92, be reduced by $21,000.

Amendment agreed to, and item as amended agreed to.

Customs dues, $25,000.

Mr. GOULD: Why the difference of $15,000 between this vote and the vote of last year? Are we right in assuming that this indicates a difference between the respective fiscal policies of the two political aggregations?

Mr. GRAHAM: I would not like to say it is or it is not. I have not had time, really, to investigate.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: What does "Customs dues" mean?

Mr. GRAHAM: It is to pay the customs dues on imported clothing, stores, supplies for the manufacture of munitions, etc., at the Quebec arsenal.

Item agreed to.

Dominion arsenal, Lindsay, $25,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I think this item and the next one—No. 97, Dominion Arsenal, Quebec—had better stand. There will be some discussion on these two arsenal votes.

Mr. CHAPLIN: How is it that the minister is able to make such a large reduction in the case of one arsenal while in the other there is practically no reduction at all?

Mr. PARENT: One was a war measure.

Mr. CHAPLIN: I would like the minister to answer.

Mr. GRAHAM: We have closed the Lindsay arsenal; we have only a number of caretakers there. As a matter of fact two arsenals will more than supply the requirements for the militia of Canada.

Mr. CHAPLIN: The minister knows very well that the Lindsay arsenal is manufacturing small arms ammunition. What is the present stock of small arms ammunition and how long would it last?

Mr. PARENT: We give no secrets to Germany.

Mr. CHAPLIN: I would like the minister to answer.

Mr. GRAHAM: I do not know that it would be proper to say how much ammunition we have on hand, but I can assure the hon. member that we have a sufficient quantity. With the Quebec arsenal working, there will be plenty of ammunition for the needs of Canada for a few years to come—perhaps a great many years.

Mr. CHAPLIN: I do not think the minister has answered the question fairly.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. CHAPLIN: He has not answered my question as to the small arms ammunition. I think he can give us more information as to how much small arms ammunition is on hand. The minister also knows that the Quebec arsenal is manufacturing the heavy ammunition.

Mr. GRAHAM: I may be wrong, but I think it would not be advisable to make public either the amount of ammunition or the amount of arms.

Mr. GUTHRIE: That is a strange position. That information has been given every year in this House for the last five years.

Mr. GRAHAM: I have not had time to look at Hansard.

Mr. CHAPLIN: A few days ago the Prime Minister made a very strong address in this House complaining of the amount of large ammunition that had been brought from the Old Country; yet the minister is proposing a vote to run the Quebec arsenal, which makes ammunition of the same size.

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the resolution carry? Carried.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Oh, no; it is not carried. I ask that these two items stand. I think the minister will make more progress if he takes up some other items and accedes to the reasonable request which has been made with regard to these votes for arsenals. Of course, if the minister does not take that view, we will have to discuss them.

Mr. BUREAU: Let one stand and discuss the two under one.

Mr. GUTHRIE: No; let them both stand, and take up items which we can get through without very much discussion.

Mr. CHAPLIN: If the minister will let the matter stand and obtain the information, I shall be satisfied. The information has been produced here before, and I see no reason why it should not be given now. Otherwise, I will move an amendment to the item.

Mr. HALBERT: I live not far from Lindsay, and I know it is reported that there is a proposal to sell the arsenal there to the railway company. Can the minister give us any information on that point?

Mr. GRAHAM: There was a suggestion in that regard; I referred it to the Railway Department, and just a day or two ago I received a note that was not very encouraging. But I may say I have been approached within the last two weeks as to the probability of a private company being able to purchase or rent the property. That matter is now under negotiation.

Mr. HALBERT: Has any ammunition been shipped out of Lindsay from that arsenal? Has any ammunition ever been manufactured and shipped out?

Mr. GRAHAM: I cannot say, but I think there has been.

Mr. HALBERT: I have been given to understand there never was any ammunition shipped from there.

An hon. MEMBER: That is right.

An hon. MEMBER: Graft.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: Political ammunition.

Mr. GRAHAM: I will get the information. We will let these two items stand.

The CHAIRMAN: Items 96 and 97 stand.

Engineer services and works, $610,000.

Mr. MURDOCK: I move that this vote be reduced by $50,000.

Mr. POWER: May I ask where this $50,000 is to be taken from?

Mr. GRAHAM: The engineer services are for the maintenance of military buildings, rifle ranges and that kind of thing. It is possible that no service may be neglected, but it is impossible to say at what point the reduction will be made. Small amounts might be deducted from a great many of the different items.

Item as amended agreed to.

Maintenance, military properties, $235,000.

Mr. HANSON: There is a very large and valuable military property in the heart of the city of Fredericton which is now being used for no useful purpose except that a portion of the barracks is leased to the New Brunswick Liquor Commission. A portion of the property consists of what is known as the Officers' Square. It is right in the heart of the city, on the main street, and has been allowed to get into a very dilapidated condition. There is not even a caretaker to look after it. Would any portion of this vote be used to maintain that square in a tidy and decent condition, in harmony with its surroundings?

Mr. GRAHAM: That would probably come under the general vote. In reference to properties generally owned by the Militia Department I would say, and I think my predecessor made the same sort of statement, that the Government owns a great deal of property throughout the whole country that was devotetd to military purposes during the war. It is possibly not a good time to sell these properties now. I admit that a great many people would accept them at a price, but so far any offers that have been made have not met with the approval of the department. Every day we have requests for the properties in different parts of Canada, and at the conclusion of the session I hope to get a report on all these properties and then if the Governor in Council sees fit to offer any of them for sale, I shall be prepared to submit a list of properties that I think might be dispensed with if a proper price could be got. I think it was in reference to the Fredericton property that I was waited on a few days ago and asked if some other use might not be made of a portion of it. I have asked my officers to make a report on that.

Mr. HANSON: I do not think anybody has been asking the Government to sell the property to which I refer. I think there would be very great objection if the department were to sell it, as it has always been considered one of the beauty spots of the city. It is practically a little public park right in the heart of the city, and the property is now being neglected, no care being taken of it. When I was home at Easter the boys were playing ball on it, and it is becoming disfigured. There should be a caretaker to look after it and keep it tidy and clean, otherwise it will be a disfiguration to the city. It would entail the expenditure of only a very moderate sum, and I would like to know if this will be done.

Mr. GRAHAM: I will refer the remarks of my hon. friend to the Engineering branch of my department and get their views on the matter. If it can be done under this estimate, we will be glad to help out.

Mr. CHAPLIN: At the same time that the minister is getting the views of his officers regarding that matter, he might get their views regarding four or five hundred acres of land belonging to the Militia Department in the county of Lincoln. I have on different occasions called the attention of the department to the way in which some land in that county is being neglected by the department. It is good land, and a good price could be got for it; and it is possible the Militia Department will never use it again. It is growing up in weeds, and is a menace to the whole countryside in one of the best districts in the country.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The minister's statement that it is not a good time to sell these properties would indicate that it is the Government's policy to dispose of practically everything in the nature of military property. It has just been intimated to the House that negotiations are on foot to dispose of the Lindsay arsenal. The training of the cadets is to be cut out, the annual training of the militia is to be dispensed with—

Mr. GRAHAM: I shall have to correct my hon. friend. The annual training of the militia is not to be dispensed with, but only slightly reduced.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The estimate for the navy is also reduced, if the minister has his way. In fact, it would appear that everything in the nature of national defence is to be materially reduced, if not entirely dispensed with. It must have been encouraging for the minister to hear the hon. member for Centre Winnipeg approve of the policy which the Government are advocating at the present time.

Mr. GRAHAM: Which he did not do.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I could not help but think, as I listened to the arguments which were advanced, of the example we shall be setting to the youth of this country. Instead of cultivating and developing a vigorous spirit among the youth of our country, what sort of a spirit are you likely to develop by cutting down these essential features of national defence? I notice an increase of $35,000 in this particular item. The Government are bound to reduce, so that they will be ineffective for any useful purpose, the items for important and essential features of national defence, while the non-essential items are being increased. The reductions that are being made in the essential features of national defence are such as to cripple the service and make it absolutely useless. I do not expect the Government will take any notice of any protest which may be lodged, but as a citizen of this country, as a representative of the people, and as the father of growing boys in this country, I refuse to countenance any such policy as this. I have altogether too much respect for the traditions of our country especially in this age, after such a splendid example having been set to the people of the world by those who participated in the late war to have any sympathy at all with those who would claim that now it is the duty of Canada to blaze the way, as it were, for the rest of the world in becoming a spineless people who will stand for anything rather than defend ourselves against any emergency which may develop in the future.

That is the policy which is to-day being advocated by the Government of this country. The minister to-night, after bringing down his estimates, calmly gets up and informs the House that he cannot move to reduce the items, so his colleague sitting next to him gets up and moves to reduce item after item that would serve a useful purpose, but when it comes to the non-essential items, such as the one now before us they are being increased. There is no move on the part of his colleague to reduce this item.

Why is it that the non-essentials are being maintained, and even increased, while the essentials are being so absolutely impaired as to be of no effective service whatever? Some hon. members may say "Oh, but see the time we are taking up in discussing these estimates." I suppose as time passes a feeling of apathy will come over the House and the remark will be made "What is the use of this anyway"? As one member of Parliament, I absolutely refuse to countenance any such policy as is recommended here; and I say—and I am most emphatic in my view—that the day is not far distant when the policy the Government is now advocating will be conclusively shown to be just as foolish and just as shortsighted as the policy which was advocated early in 1914, when we were on the verge of the Great War.

I was somewhat amazed to hear the terms in which the Prime Minister referred to the policy of the party of which he was a member at that time. I could not help but recall, as he was arguing that the policy his party advocated was the right one, a statement made by the late Colonel Roosevelt in 1917 when he said: "The only reason the war has not been brought to this country is because of Britain's navy and the British and French armies." The policy of this Government undoubtedly is "Somebody will take care of us; it won't be necessary for us to make any sacrifices in the event of any trouble arising. We have the British navy back of us and after all nothing may happen."

But there is a duty imposed upon every citizen of Canada. His first duty is to see that he maintains, and perpetuates to the utmost of his power, and bequeaths to his children unsullied, the heritage which has been handed down to him—a heritage secured at great sacrifice by those who have gone before. We cannot afford to place that heritage in jeopardy because of the fact that it might cost something to maintain it. This is the first duty of our citizens, but it is a duty which this new Government has lost sight of. I am afraid the Government is attempting to carry out some promises made before the election by the policy it is now advocating. I protest as vigorously as I can against what has already been done and what is proposed to be done.

I am surprised that the member of the Government who is now sitting to the right of the Minister of Militia is not, if he intends to be consistent, attempting to reduce this item in some way, because he has clearly indicated to the House that the Government proposes to dispose of these properties. He has intimated that negotiations are on foot to dispose of the arsenal at Lindsay and this is not a good time to sell some of these properties. Why were these properties purchased? What use have they been put to in the past? Will the minister now tell us what properties the Government is negotiating to dispose of in addition to the arsenal at Lindsay? Will he tell us what the arsenal at Lindsay has cost. The minister is also going to dispose of, or disperse, the navy; the submarines are going to be sunk, they are not going to be put into use at all; and he is going to maintain an arsenal down on the St. Lawrence. Why, if he does that, in the event of trouble occurring, a submarine may come up the St. Lawrence some night and blow the whole thing up. If there is one place where there should not be an arsenal it is the city of Quebec. The policy of the Government is to place in jeopardy the very establishment needed for the manufacture of ammunition in this country. I ask the committee to consider well what it is doing. I must say that I am surprised that the Minister of Militia, whom I have known for many years, would be a party to such proceedings, that he would allow himself to be made the mouthpiece of a party that is endeavouring to put into effect in Canada any such policy as this.

Item agreed to.

[Mr. Sutherland.]

Ordnance Arms, Lands, etc., $75,000.

Mr. MURDOCK: I move that this item be reduced by $9,000.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Would it not be well to hear from the minister in charge of these estimates as to what the Government's policy is in regard to this item? Which minister is enunciating the Government's policy—the one who has introduced the estimates, or the one who has moved that they be reduced?

Item as amended agreed to.

Pay of Staff, $265,000.

Mr. MURDOCK: I move that this item be reduced by $10,000.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I move in amendment that the item be reduced by $25,000.

The CHAIRMAN: It has been moved that the vote be reduced by the sum of $25,000.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Last Mountain): Let us understand this. The Minister of Labour has moved to reduce the item by $10,000. That is an amendment to the resolution. The member for South Oxford has moved in amendment to the amendment that the item be reduced by $25,000.

The CHAIRMAN: The order in which these amendments may be put to the committee is left to the discretion of the chairman. Usually the amendment calling for the largest reduction is put first. Mr. Sutherland's amendment is not put in the form of an amendment to the amendment, but as an amendment to the item under consideration.

Mr. CHAPLIN: It stands to reason that if these reductions are carried out there will be no necessity for the staff. If you are going to do away with all the clerks what reason is there for keeping the staff?

Mr. GOULD: That is a point I have endeavoured to stress.

Amendment (Mr. Sutherland) negatived.

Amendment (Mr. Murdock) agreed to.

Item, as amended, agreed to.

Permanent force, $5,500,000.

Mr. GOULD: Is the Royal Canadian Artillery included in the permanent force?

Mr. GRAHAM: Yes.

Mr. GOULD: Could the minister tell me the number of officers who are now in the permanent force, who never had any experience before the war, and are now in the rank and file?

Mr. GRAHAM: There are not a great many. It must be remembered that there are certain distinct branches, and we have, in the several portions of the Dominion, men especially qualified to perform the duties, and the fact that they were not overseas in many cases is not their fault at all. Every man we have there has been recommended during the past year or two in the reorganization of the staff. There is a large reduction in this item, and it is hoped that during the year, perhaps in a few weeks or months, we will fully carry out the reorganization. It means a reduction in the staff of the permanent force of about 500 men all told of different ranks.

Mr. GOULD: The reason which prompted me to ask the question was, I confess, information I had gleaned around the city. Not alone in the House is there some opposition to these appropriations for militia and defence, but around the city there is opposition, and when you get in conversation with people you often find individuals who are well acquainted with military conditions, not alone in Ottawa but throughout the country. I have been prompted to ask the question on account of information I received in that way. When the minister expressed the idea that these men possessed technical knowledge, a case came to mind which I wish to cite. It is that of an individual on the permanent force living in Ottawa at the present time who confessed that he was unable to handle a rifle well enough to fire a salute at a military funeral, and I wondered why such men as that were kept in the permanent force. I do not see what position they could fill, and I do not think the country should be asked to pay for the services of men who make such confessions. That is one of the reasons why I protest, from a military point of view, at least, on behalf of those who object to money being taken from the people for the supposed services of men who have no greater qualifications than the gentleman I have mentioned. I ask the minister, in all sincerity, to look into his department, and to weed out of the permanent force of Canada those whom I have in the past called parasites and whom I think I have rightly named.

Mr. SHAW: Could the minister indicate the number of officers in the permanent force, as compared with the number in other ranks?

Mr. GRAHAM: I hope to be able to get the information in a few moments for my hon. friend, but I cannot lay my hands on it just now. I am labouring under the disability of not having my deputy beside me. We have that information somewhere, and if I cannot get it to-night I will furnish it at a later date.

Mr. CHAPLAIN: A few days ago, in discussing this item, the member from East Hamilton (Mr. Mewburn), former Minister of Militia, pointed out in this House that a very large sum of money could be saved, and I think this is the item in regard to which he referred. Has the minister taken the suggestion of the ex-Minister of Militia into consideration in reference to this matter? I listened very attentively to what the hon. member from East Hamilton had to say. If we intend to make a real saving in this Militia Department, there is the place to make it, and I would like to know why some of our friends from the West, who are so anxious to save money, do not move a resolution in regard to some of these items. I have not seen any resolutions coming from them to reduce any of the items.

Mr. GRAHAM: This is following some of the lines suggested by the hon. member from East Hamilton to which reference was made, but it is not so easy to carry them all out. For instance, if I were to propose to abolish the military district where my hon. friend (Mr. Chaplin) lives I would be met by a strong protest. I have stowed away carefully the remarks of the member for East Hamilton, and the department has decided to give them full consideration. Some of the suggestions were very sweeping, and I am not sure that they would be altogether practicable. However, after investigation, possibly, they might be. I think the hon. member suggested that the Toronto and London districts might be amalgamated. The Toronto district is a very large one and in my opinion, from the information I have received, one man could not handle that district. The suggestions of the hon. member from East Hamilton will certainly be considered when the session is over.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I desire to call attention to the significant silence of certain members who sit on this committee now and who sat here a year ago when these matters were under discussion. The hon. member from Quebec South (Mr. Power) was in the House until a few minutes ago. He has now left the Chamber, and I call the attention of the House to the fact that when this item was under discussion a year ago the amount which was asked in the estimates was six and a half millions, the hon. member from Quebec South moved that it be reduced by two million dollars, and every hon. member who then sat on this side of the House, in opposition, voted for that reduction. I think my hon. friend from Assiniboia (Mr. Gould) was one of them—I am sure he was. The silence of these hon. members on this occasion rather staggers me. I thought they were serious. From their remarks last year one would judge they were serious. But a year has passed and the vote to-day standing at five and a half million is practically going unchallenged by those hon. members who moved last year for a reduction of $2,000,000. I certainly am not going to move for a reduction of the item. I believe it is just and proper and should be retained. What think you, Mr. Chairman, of 30 or 40 hon. members of this House who sat in opposition last year, and solemnly voted to reduce the item by $2,000,000, who have not the courage on the present occasion to move to reduce the item by a single cent?

Mr. HALBERT: I do not wish to let the remarks of the hon. member from South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) go unchallenged. So much has been said that I desire to say that I, as one from the province of Ontario, appreciate the action of the minister in starting off in the right direction in endeavouring to reduce the expenditure of the Dominion of Canada at the present time. That is one thing which we all want. I was in this House, and I may have supported a reduction of $2,000,000 in this estimate last year. I could not say whether I did or not, as I have not the estimate before me. The minister has already reduced this item by $755,000, thus showing that he is starting in the right direction, and as is said, "Well begun is half done." But since the militia estimates and other estimates too have been brought down in this House, we have witnessed something that, to my knowledge, has not happened in the House of Commons in the Dominion of Canada since confederation, and that is the Government desiring to reduce expenditure and the Opposition emphatically pounding and abusing the Government for doing so. At this time, I think the people of this Dominion are looking to the Government to reduce expenditures as much as possible under present conditions, and they will appreciate any reductions. I am of opinion also that the same feeling would have prevailed throughout the country had the Conservative party been in power.

We have heard a good deal about the cadets not getting their drill; but in Canada there are other boys than those whom we want to train as boy scouts and cadets, boys whom we want to train up to be good citizens of this country. Only to-day I received a letter from a man whose only son and support went overseas and made the supreme sacrifice. This man, who is over sixty years of age, is, through misfortune, unable to earn his living, and to-day he is without his only son whom he raised and upon whom he depended for support. My room-mate, the hon. member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell) is on the Pension Committee where such matters are being discussed, and I think we ought to be fair to the people who have made the supreme sacrifice and to their dependents before we start building up more militarism in this country.

Some people are not very consistent. We had the hon. member for Lincoln (Mr. Chaplin) saying that, in his constituency, there was militia property that was growing up with weeds, and wanting to know what was going to be done with it, and then we had the hon. member for South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland) finding fault with the Government for trying to do something with property that was not of use. Why not sell the property and turn the money into the treasury of the country, or give it to the dependents of those men who went overseas and made the supreme sacrifice instead of using this money to send our young men to the camps to be trained for militarism?

A day or so ago I had a letter in regard to the family of a man who enlisted, but who did not get overseas. This man was in a camp training, and owing to the effects of an electrical storm he died, leaving a widow with nine of a family dependent upon her. According to the law, the Pension Committee cannot give anything to the widow. If this property is of no use, why not sell it and give the money to those people to help them out? I am in favour of making any reduction possible, not only in this estimate, but in other estimates as well. I am not against the militia of this country, but if we can save a little on the estimates this year, it is our duty and the duty of the Government to be faithful to the people who sent us here and to reduce the estimates if we possibly can.

Item agreed to.

Salaries and wages, $225,000.

Mr. SHAW: In connection with the preceding item, Royal Military College, $345,000, I was under the impression that the Minister of Militia, in his opening address on these estimates, mentioned that he proposed to reduce this particular item.

The CHAIRMAN: That has been carried.

Mr. WARD: It is up to the Chairman to give the members an opportunity to speak on the items.

The CHAIRMAN: If any hon. member wishes an opportunity to speak, he will be given an opportunity if he rises in his place.

Mr. WARD: We were not given an opportunity to speak on that item.

Mr. SHAW: I think we have a right to rely on the statement of the minister that a reduction would be made. I move that we reconsider the item, Royal Military College.

Motion agreed to.

Royal Military College, $345,000.

Mr. SHAW: I understood that in the opening remarks made by the minister on these estimates, he stated that he proposed to reduce this particular item. I may be mistaken in that view, but I should like to be advised by the minister.

Mr. GRAHAM: My hon. friend is perfectly right. I did suggest that this item might be reduced by $10,000. That expenditure of $10,000 is a very small item, and I must say that I have had many vigorous protests by men from both sides of this House and from every group in this House saying that the Royal Military College was an institution that drew its students from all parts of the Dominion. If the House wishes me to move a reduction in the face of those protests, I am willing to do so; but unless the House wishes that, I would rather not. If hon. gentlemen from all groups could know the protests that I have received from all quarters, I think they would say that I have acted wisely in not making this reduction. I think I should make this explanation to the committee.

Mr. GUTHRIE: It would be well for us to get this item through as quickly as possible. Otherwise, we may have some more changes before the item carries.

Item agreed to.

Schools of instruction, $140,000.

Mr. MURDOCK: I move in amendment that this item be reduced by an amount of $50,000.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I should like to have some information with regard to the instruction that is given.

Mr. HANSON: And where these schools are.

Mr. GRAHAM: There is a School of Military Engineering at Chatham; gunnery staff course; ordnance officers' course; Artillery College, Woolwich; officers' class in artillery college; inspection of ordnance machinery; master gunners' course at Woolwich; armament artificers' course, Woolwich; laboratory course, etc. I have a long list.

Item as amended agreed to.

Topographic Survey, $45,000.

Mr. HANSON: I am informed that this is one item in the militia estimates that might very well be cut out for one year at least. What explanation has the minister in regard to it?

Mr. GRAHAM: The following is the statement which has been prepared by the officers of the department:

Particulars of Topographic Survey referred to under "General Purpose", page 1.

Established in 1902 on the advice of the Imperial Authorities for the purpose of producing reliable topographic maps of Canada, primarily for military purposes, but also sold to the public, who appreciate them for various civil uses. With the exception of isolated areas mapped by the Geological Survey, these are the only topographic maps produced in Canada. Up to 1913 the completed drawings of the map sheets were sent to the War Office for reproduction and printing, but this plan was found unsuitable and a complete photo litho printing plant was established at Ottawa as part of the Survey division, and has been operating successfully from 1914 to date, printing all maps and diagrams required. The Survey division is thus enabled to do all the work involved in producing first class maps, from the initial survey to printing the map.

Besides the regular series of 1" and ½" maps a large number of other maps and diagrams have been produced,—larger scale maps of camp areas, various maps, diagrams, lantern plates, etc., for the use of troops in training, schools of instruction, Royal Military College, etc. Original plates of all maps, etc. are preserved and reprints made as required.

The 1" maps show all water features, boundaries and nature of timber. County, township and city boundaries, concessions and lots are indicated. All public roads, railways, bridges, settlements, factories, forges and houses (wood or stone) at time of survey. The relief of the ground surface is shown by contours at 25 ft. vertical intervals and the elevation at many road corners.

The area surveyed and mapped to date is shown on the attached index maps.

	Sq. miles
Total area mapped	32,000
Surveyed, not mapped	5,500
Partly surveyed	5,000

In addition to making surveys and printing maps as above, the Survey division acts as a School of Instruction in Surveying for N.C.O's and men of the Permanent Force, with the object of selecting the best men to fill vacancies in the staff of the Survey division as they occur, and also to provide a nucleus of trained men in the Permanent Force for a Field Survey section. Ten men are at present under instruction (since January 1st) at Ottawa in theoretical work. They will be attached to survey parties as assistants for the summer, for practical work in the field.

The total at present consists of twenty-nine, all technical men,—surveyors, topographers, lithographic map draughtsmen, map engraver, litho-photographer, lithographer and transferrer, litho-printer, office clerks and two helpers. Twenty-one of the above are permanent civil servants, who are paid from civil government salaries.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I agree that this is one of the important votes in the militia estimates. It is not for the value of the map as a map. I believe that, at the rate they are going, the map will be completed in about two hundred years. There are portions of Canada already completed. These maps are very useful for automobilists, etc., as road maps, and a small amount is received by way of revenue by the Government through the sale of them. This is one of the most important parts of the military education. Map drafting and map reading are two very important elements in military instruction, and it is for that purpose that this vote is carried from year to year, far more than for the purpose of issuing a topographic map of Canada, important as that may be, if we can ever complete one. I was under the same impression as my hon. friend (Mr. Hanson) two or three years ago when I questioned the item, but General Sir Arthur Currie and Major General MacBrien explained fully to me the real object of the vote. It is to carry out the training of officers in order that they may instruct non-commissioned officers and men in the important subject of map drawing, and perhaps in the equally important subject of map reading. I do think, though, that the question of topographic surveys in this country is far too extended. I believe that in no fewer than four, and possibly five, departments we are making surveys and drafting maps, all of which should be done in the Department of Militia, where there are trained engineers and officers, who are quite competent to do that work and are now under pay. The expense would be very greatly reduced if survey work and the drafting of maps, now done by different departments, were carried out by the officers of the Militia Department. I made this suggestion to the Minister of the Interior (Mr. Stewart) when his estimates were going through, and I trust that some one department of government will take the matter up and consolidate those various activities.

Mr. GRAHAM. My hon. friend is right. That matter has been considered, and at present we have a committee of officers from the various departments to look into the question and see whether there is not some way by which the work can be concentrated in one department. Each department, I imagine, thinks it is best fitted to do the work, but I agree that the standard of map the Militia Department produces shows that that department has facilities equal to, if not better than, those of other departments.

Mr. ARTHURS: The remarks of the member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) would apply to geodetic surveys, but I cannot see any possible reason why the vote should be carried this year for topographic survey work. Map reading, from a topographic viewpoint, is easy; any schoolboy can do that. From the military viewpoint it is the geodetic map that is required.

Item agreed to.

Training areas, $15,000.

Mr. CHAPLIN: What is this amount for?

Mr. GRAHAM: We have cut the item in two this year. It is for the purpose of purchasing any right of way that juts into training areas. We have no expenditure in view, but if it should occur that a piece of land juts into a training area the vote is provided so that we may be able to purchase it. The probabilities are that not a dollar will be spent.

Item agreed to.

Transport and Freight, $200,000.

Mr. CHAPLIN: My remarks in regard to other items apply to this one. This is a case where the works are gone but the overhead remains. If you are going to do away with a large percentage of military camps what is the necessity for $200,000 for transport and freight? Surely the item can be cut down.

Mr. GRAHAM: Last year the whole of the vote was expended but $2,000.

Mr. CHAPLIN: But you are cutting down your camps at least 30 per cent, and it stands to reason than an item of this kind should be reduced. I would suggest that the minister get busy now and make a substantial reduction.

Mr. HANSON: I move that this item be reduced by $60,000.

The CHAIRMAN: Is it the pleasure of the committee to adopt the amendment.

Amendment negatived.

Mr. SPENCER: I move in amendment that the item be reduced by $10,000. That is the reduction the minister volunteered to make a few days ago.

Mr. GOULD: When the estimates were before the House at an earlier stage I cited several items from the Auditor General's report. I referred particularly to an item with respect to transportation and travelling expenses of staff. A good deal of travelling was done by officers around Saskatchewan, as I pointed out before; and I mentioned certain items of theatre tickets and various other things which these officers evidently seemed to think the people of the country should pay for. In the vote for transport and freight, which includes these travelling expenses, no reduction is made from the amount voted last year. I used Military District No. 12 as an illustration; if the same conditions obtain in all the other districts in proportion to size, then a huge sum of money is wasted in that manner. If these officers believe they have the right to spend the people's money in this way, then it is our duty at this moment to reduce this vote by the amount which in our opinion, is being wasted in that manner. Now, there is an amendment before the committee—

Mr. CHAPLIN: Move another one.

The CHAIRMAN: Order. It is moved by Mr. Spencer that vote No. 110, transport and freight, be reduced by the sum of $10,000. Is it the pleasure of the committee that the amendment carry?

Mr. GRAHAM: No.

Mr. RYCKMAN: The vote for annual drill has been reduced by thirty per cent. Is there any proportionate reduction of transport and freight?

Mr. GRAHAM: This vote is for transportation and travelling expenses of officers of headquarters and district staff, officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the permanent and active militia on change of station or travelling on duty, except duties connected with annual drill, cadet services, etc. It has nothing to do with the annual drill. Last year the whole amount of the vote was expended within $2,000. I ask the committee to put the item through as it is; any amount that can be saved out of the appropriation surely will be. What effect it would have to reduce the item by $10,000 when it has not anything to do with the other reductions, I am not in a position to say at this moment.

Mr. GOULD: I was rising to my feet when the hon. member got up who presented the resolution for a reduction of $50,000. I had in mind the soft impeachment of the hon. member for South Wellington and it was my intention to move in amendment that this vote be reduced by $25,000, an action which would be consistent with the statement I had previously made regarding these expenditures. I believe it would be well if it should be understood throughout the country that the people do not want these joy rides which go under the name of " staff rides "; at least, they do not want the excesses which these men indulge in when taking these staff rides. I believe the House would do well to give these gentlemen—gallant gentlemen, let us call them—a lesson by asking them to reduce their lavish expenditures by some $25,000, and I offer that as an amendment.

Mr. GRAHAM: There is already an amendment to reduce the item by $10,000. I think the item should not be reduced, for the reasons I have given. I thoroughly understand my hon. friend's impression with regard to certain things that took place; I have had some particulars in that regard brought to my mind during the last few days. But that is a very exceptional case, and I am sure it will not occur again. Money expended in that way is certainly not expended as, I presume, Parliament intended it should be. But I would ask the hon. member not to press his amendment, because I am not sure of what its effect would be on the work of the department. This was one of the amounts that was fully expended last year; it has reference to services not connected with others which have been reduced. I assure my hon. friend that the performance to which he has referred is not likely to occur again.

Mr. GOULD: I am quite satisfied with the explanation of the hon. minister; I am sure he will look into these things and bring the matter to the notice of those who, we think, have erred.

Amendment (Mr. Spencer) negatived.

Item agreed to.

Mr. GRAHAM: I think we have done pretty good work. There is an item of war claims, but I would not like to press it to-night. It is a very large vote, and I would also like to have the member for East Hamilton (Mr. Mewburn) here when it is discussed. He is chairman of the War Graves Commission, which met recently and decided upon a course to be followed in the erection of memorial monuments. He is better posted on the details than anyone else, and I should like to have him here to explain what this commission is doing and what it proposes to do.

Progress reported.

ROYAL ASSENT

Mr. SPEAKER: I have the honour to inform the House that I have received the following letter:

OTTAWA, 18th May, 1922.

Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that the Right Honourable Sir Louis Davies acting as deputy of the Governor General will proceed to the Senate Chamber on Friday the 19th of May, at 4 p.m., for the purpose of giving the Royal Assent to certain bills.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servants,
(Sgd) F. L. C. PEREIRA, for Governor General's Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Fielding, the House adjourned at 12.15 a.m. Friday.

Ottawa, May 19, 1922.

The House met at three o'clock.

IMMIGRATION ACT AMENDMENT

Mr. JOSEPH ARCHAMBAULT (Chambly and Vercheres) presented the second report of the Special Committee to which were referred Bills Nos. 16 and 17 for consideration, recommending that the committee be granted leave to sit while the House is in session, and moved concurrence in the report.

Mr. MEIGHEN: It is not usual to ask for concurrence in a report the very day it is presented, especially a report on bills of this kind. None of us knows what the amendments are.

Mr. SPEAKER: The motion only asks for leave for the committee to sit while the House is in session.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I have no objection to the motion providing the report itself is only to the effect that the committee have leave to sit while the House is in session.

Mr. ARCHAMBAULT: That is the only purpose of the motion.

Motion agreed to.

INQUIRY FOR RETURN

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. L. H. MARTELL (Hants): I should like to ask the Government when I may expect a return to an order of the House which I moved for some time ago relating to solicitors' bills in the province of Nova Scotia.

Hon. W. S. FIELDING (Minister of Finance): I will call the attention of the Minister of Justice to the matter, and will give my hon. friend the information at a later date.

SUPPLY

PUBLIC WORKS

The House again in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Public Works—Chargeable to income—Harbours and Rivers—Prince Edward Island, $39,700.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Will the minister tell us what amount was spent upon these services last year?

Hon. J. H. KING (Kootenay, Minister of Public Works): It was $35,925.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Was there any expenditure last year from the vote for "Harbours and rivers generally—repairs and improvements, $14,000"?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes, the sum of $3,742.20 was expended.

Mr. GUTHRIE: How was the $14,000 made up, may I ask? Was it put in because that amount was in the estimates last year, or does it consist of items that have been submitted by various officers of the department?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): It is a general contingency vote carried from year to year and is used during the year for repairs that become necessary from time to time. We really cannot tell in advance what these repairs may be.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The point that was drawn to my attention was this. While the amount of $14,000 is put in for Prince Edward Island that sum is very seldom, if ever, spent. Last year the total expenditure was only some $3,000 odd. It has been intimated to me that the other items cover very well, very liberally, all the expenditure that is likely, or is possible, in Prince Edward Island under this vote for the next twelve months. Someone, I understand, has gone over the requirements of the Island with a good deal of care, and has put in a separate item for each possible work that may be necessary during the next twelve months. Therefore, I am told, the item of $14,000 will not be required—it never, or seldom, is required and the committee could save that money by striking the item out of the estimates this year.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The item of $14,000 is for contingencies that may occur. It is true that last year the expenditure was only $3,742, but I do not think the present item should be disturbed; it is apparently the amount the staff think should be carried for a contingency of that kind.

Mr. GUTHRIE: But this amount of $14,000 is not recommended by any engineer of the department, or anyone who has examined the situation; I understand it is just put in as a sort of "cover all" charge; you may need it and you may not. My information is that some officer of the department has gone very thoroughly over the harbours and rivers of Prince Edward Island; that he has set out in detail what is required; and that he has been very generous in his estimate and has covered all the requirements in the various items totalling the sum of $39,700. Now the $14,000 is seldom, if ever, spent. In this case it is not likely to be spent at all; I would suggest to the minister under these circumstances it would have a better appearance if he agreed to the item of $14,000 coming off; or that $10,000 of the amount come off, leaving $4,000 for little incidentals that might possibly crop up.

Mr. FIELDING: There is a similar provision, I think, in the case of most of the other provinces. It is really an emergency item; it is not a thing that can be specified at the beginning of the year. And even if the money was not spent last year, circumstances might make it very desirable that it should be disbursed this year.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I understand the probable necessities of the other maritime provinces are much greater than those of the province of Prince Edward Island; in the case of New Brunswick there is a contingency vote of $40,000. I understand that quite often it is necessary to spend a good portion of the vote for a province, to repair damages caused by storms. But I am told that the officer who made up the estimate went over all these works and that he has taken possibilities as well as probabilities into his consideration. Now the expenditure under this item is about $2,000 to $4,000 annually. My point is that it is hardly worth while voting the $14,000 when there is no likelihood of spending the money. Something might arise eventually demanding an expenditure, —something did occur last year because $3,000 was spent. Under the circumstances I think it would be very reasonable to put in a sum of $4,000 for contingencies, and reduce the vote by $10,000.

Mr. HUGHES: It is quite evident from the remarks of the hon. member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) that he is not very well acquainted with maritime province conditions; he comes from a part of the country where the conditions would not enable him to have very much knowledge in regard to matters of this kind. Owing to the fact that the province in question is an island it contains quite a number of harbours, and in those harbours are important public works. No man can foretell when a storm may come up and inflict very great damage on a number of these works. Therefore a prudent government, one having the interest of the country at heart, will most naturally and necessarily have an amount of this kind to provide for such contingencies. The necessity for the expenditure may not arise for years; but at any time storms may occur resulting in very great damage, and it would be very vital to have that damage repaired with the utmost promptitude. Really it is true economy to have the money available for that purpose; therefore this item has appeared in the estimates for many years. It is not a new vote, and if the money is not wanted it will not be expended, and no harm will be done. I think that if my hon. friend understood the conditions as they actually exist in Prince Edward Island, he would not object to this vote.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The storm which my hon. friend fears might happen and do considerable damage, might occur anywhere; but we could always make provision for cases of that kind. Suppose you had an earthquake, or a heavy storm, and damage to the amount of $50,000 or $100,000 was done; that could immediately be taken care of.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): In what way?

Mr. GUTHRIE: By Governor General's warrant. It has been done in the past, time and again. This system of warrants is designed to take care of unforeseen sudden expenditure, and there is no object in continuing the vote of $14,000. The minister might just as well put it in at $100,000 or $150,000. Experience has shown that $2,000 or $3,000 is necessary. Granting that you may be called upon to make a heavy unforeseen expenditure when the House is not in session, it is always open to the minister to go to the Governor General and get a warrant, and come down at the next session of parliament, as has been done time and again, and ask for the money.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I do not think there should be any misunderstanding regarding this vote. It is in the usual form and was carried last year and the year previous. It is a vote for contingencies which may arise, which cannot be foretold. A similar vote was passed the other day in regard to the province of Nova Scotia, $60,000 for contingencies. In regard to this particular vote, I am told that $2,200 has already been required as expenditures which should be made under that vote this year. Beyond that, we have no knowledge as to what will be required. It is a usual vote, not only in this department but almost in every department, for unforeseen expenditures.

Mr. SINCLAIR (Queen's, P.E.I.): I desire to correct a statement made by the hon. member for South Wellington. When reviewing this vote he conveyed the impression that the whole requirements had been given in detail within the province of Prince Edward Island for those expenditures. His information is somewhat astray. I know that he would not willingly convey an incorrect impression to the committee, but if he were fully acquainted with the conditions in that province, as some of us are, he would know that this vote is merely to provide for expenditures that cannot be avoided, in the way of repairs. Many new works have been delayed in the past years, owing to heavy demands for expenditure, for reasons of which we are all well aware. Looking at the vote from the departmental standpoint, the policy has been to cover these votes by one general vote, and not by Governor General's warrant, as suggested by the hon. member. I think the committee will readily see that the proportion of this vote is not too great, when the expenditures in Prince Edward Island are considered, as compared with the other maritime provinces.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I do not know whether the principle is a good or a bad one. I find the estimates show contingent votes for harbours and rivers, which run into a very large sum of money. For Nova Scotia we voted $60,000 for contingencies, not knowing how the money is going to be spent. For Prince Edward Island we are asked to vote $14,000; New Brunswick, $40,000; Quebec, $75,000; Ontario, $65,000; Manitoba, $15,000; Saskatchewan and Alberta, $20,000 between them; and British Columbia, $95,000—all these votes for contingencies. That is a very substantial amount of money, and there are no particulars given—none can be given, the circumstances have not arisen for the expenditure of even a fraction of it. Why can we not remove this large amount of money from the estimates, and, if money is necessary during the twelvemonth, get it as we did in other cases, by Governor General's warrant?

Mr. FIELDING: Is it not unfortunate that when my hon. friend (Mr. Guthrie) was in a better position to influence this item, he did not apply these principles? He has selected a regrettable moment to do it. He should have done it when he had the power.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I do not know that it is regrettable. I bring it up at the present time, and if I did not notice it or my attention was not called to it last year, it has certainly been called to it this year.

Mr. FIELDING: Evidently.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Not by a man far from Nova Scotia, but by a gentleman from Nova Scotia, who pointed out the item. If the principle is wrong it is a good time to correct it; if it is right, let us confirm it.

Mr. CARROLL: Who was my hon. friend's informant?

Mr. GUTHRIE: It is none of my hon. friend's business.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The fact that I did not call attention to it last year, or the year before, is no reason for saying, if it is wrong, that we should not put it right now. Here is an item of $375,000 for repairs generally, and we do not know where the money is going, or whether it is going to be spent or not. I ask the House to consider the question of wiping out all the items for contingencies, and if the money is required, get it by Governor General's warrant.

Mr. CARROLL: The hon. member from South Wellington apparently has a stricken conscience and I challenge him to name a man from Nova Scotia of outstanding ability—

Mr. DUFF: Or in any other province.

Mr. CARROLL: Or in any other province—who objects to any item in the Public Works' estimates which have been presented to this parliament. When I ask him to suggest the name of any person in that province who objects to the estimates that have been brought before this House, he says it is none of my business. It is my business, and it is the business of this committee, and I challenge my hon. friend from South Wellington to name a man from the province of Nova Scotia who objects to the estimates that have been brought down by the Minister of Public Works.

Item agreed to.

Harbours and rivers—New Brunswick, $66,700.

Mr. LEGER: I see an item here "Portage river—repairs to breakwater $1,200". In what county is Portage river?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): In Kent county.

Mr. BAXTER: I understand there are two Portage rivers in adjacent parishes. Perhaps they are in adjacent counties. I would like to know the parish. I have had an inquiry about it.

Mr. LEGER: Parish of Carleton, Kent County.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I have not the parish. Portage river is a small stream entering the Northumberland straits about five miles from Point Sapin and six miles north of Kouchibouguac, population 150.

Mr. HANSON: Has any policy been arrived at with respect to the question of provincial wharves on tidal waters in New Brunswick? If I understand the matter aright, the scheme adopted by my hon. friend's friends of the provincial government of New Brunswick is to unload upon the Dominion treasury the maintenance and upkeep of all the public wharves that have been built in that province since the beginning of time, and thus relieve themselves of a burden which they voluntarily took upon themselves in days gone by. If the minister will question the officials of his department, he will find that a very prodigal policy has been pursued in the past by both governments with respect to building public wharves in New Brunswick in tidal waters, which wharves, for the most part, have been built purely for political purposes. This was especially true on the river St. John during the regime of the Laurier government down to 1911 when a former member of this House represented that constituency as a supporter of that government. If you will travel up and down the river St. John in the counties of Queen's and Sunbury, you will find two or three wharves in the same locality, one built by the Dominion, one by the province and another by one or the other as a high water wharf or a low water wharf, as the case may be. At the present time, all are in a state of disrepair, and the provincial government have refused to carry out the policy which was instituted twenty-five or thirty years ago with respect to building these wharves, and to keep their wharves in repair. Similarly, during the war, owing to the exigencies of the finances of the country, the Dominion authorities allowed many of their wharves to fall into disrepair—one could very well understand that. But lately, an effort has been made on the part of the provincial authorities by the Foster government to unload on the Dominion all the upkeep and maintenance of these provincial wharves in tidal waters. Just the other day, Hon. Mr. Foster was a visitor to Ottawa. I do not know that his visit to the capital synchronized with the vacancy which has recently occurred in the Senate or not, but he paid a visit to Ottawa, and on his return to New Brunswick he announced that the Dominion authorities had agreed to take over from the province all the provincial wharves in tidal waters. I should like to have from the minister a statement as to what policy has been decided upon in that regard. I would point out to him also the duplication of services by the two governments in the past, and, having regard to that, would ask what is proposed to be done in the future. While I am on my feet I should like to point out to the minister that, in this appropriation of $66,700, there is not one dollar for the repair of a single Dominion wharf in the water of the St. John river or its tributaries, although many important wharves are to be found in that locality.

Mr. COPP: Will the hon. member kindly state how many Dominion wharves are on that river?

Mr. HANSON: If I had time, I could recall them; but at the very least, there must be a dozen. In my constituency of Sunbury, there is one at Oromocto, one at Mangerville, one at Burton and one at Sheffield, a very important wharf.

Mr. MORRISSY: Is there on the St. John river one wharf owned by the Dominion government?

Mr. HANSON: Yes.

Mr. MORRISSY: There is not one. I was eight years in charge of the wharves there, and there is none.

Mr. HANSON: I will not take any back seat to the hon. gentleman. I have already pointed out four in the county of Sunbury, and if I had time to think of them, I could point out half a dozen more. There is a public wharf at Gagetown, a very important point on the river St. John, where during the season of navigation, a very large quantity of produce and lumber is shipped each year. That is a Dominion wharf. I know that because I was instrumental in having some minor repairs done to that wharf last year by the Dominion authorities.

In these estimates there is not a dollar for a single wharf on the St. John river, although there are at least a dozen in that locality. There is not a single dollar for a wharf in the bay of Fundy waters, except at three points in the county of Charlotte. The entire vote is being appropriated for the north shore counties, and that is not a fair distribution. With respect to the appropriation of $40,000 generally for harbours and rivers in New Brunswick, I do not object to the principle of that blanket appropriation, except to make this observation—that, in times gone by, a very much larger appropriation was inserted in the estimates, and it was used as occasion required, not altogether on business principles. I do not, however, object to the amount of $40,000 in the estimate this year, if the minister will say that attention will be given to those Dominion wharves where, I know, attention is required.

Mr. COPP: Does my hon. friend object to wharves in tidal waters of New Brunswick being taken over by the Dominion government the same as has been done in the case of wharves in other provinces?

Mr. HANSON: If that is a general policy that has been adopted by this Government—

Mr. COPP: My hon. friend misunderstands me. The wharves in the other provinces have not been taken over by this Government; they have been maintained by the Dominion government for many years, and the province of New Brunswick is the only province in the whole Dominion that has been compelled to keep up wharves in tidal waters. Does my hon. friend object to the province of New Brunswick being treated in the same manner as the other provinces?

Mr. HANSON: I do not understand that to be the case. If my hon. friend will, on his authority as a minister of the Crown, state that that is the case, then I would submit that New Brunswick should be placed in no different position from that of any other province. But if that be not the case, I will object to hon. gentlemen opposite loading on to the Dominion the burden which the province of New Brunswick voluntarily assumed, and which it should keep up because it voluntarily assumed the burden.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Representations have been made during the last two or three years to the Dominion government by the provincial government of New Brunswick, asking that this government take over and control the wharf service in New Brunswick. Heretofore there has been a dual service, which apparently came into vogue many years ago. The matter was under consideration by the late government and, I believe, it had reached a certain stage where an order would probably have been presented with that idea in view. The policy was not adopted; but for the information of the committee, I may say that recently I have had representations from the government of New Brunswick following up the representations which they made in 1919 and 1920; the matter is receiving consideration, but the final decision has not been reached.

Mr. CHAPLIN: How much of last year's estimate of $118,000 was spent, and how much of last year's estimate of $40,000 was spent?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Of the $40,000, $11,600 odd was spent.

Mr. CHAPLIN: How much was spent of the total?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Amount spent, $71,964.

Mr. HANSON: Who is the engineer in charge of the Public Works Department in New Brunswick?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Mr. Stead.

Mr. HANSON: Has the agency at Chatham been closed?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. HANSON: And the whole coast line, including the river St. John, is now under his jurisdiction?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. HANSON: I do not see anything in the estimates this year for any construction on the island of Grand Manan. This is the largest island in the bay of Fundy, with the largest population, and there are works there that undoubtedly require attention.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I understand that there was no report from the engineer, when the estimates were prepared, as to the necessity for any construction there.

Mr. HANSON: What are the instructions given to the engineer? Does he voluntarily make a report, or is he requested to go over the situation?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): He voluntarily reports from time to time upon the requirements of his district.

Mr. GRIMMER: There is a vote of $1,500 for Leonardville and $1,700 for Welchpool, both for "repairs to wharf." Are these wharves in Charlotte county?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): They are both in Charlotte county.

Mr. GRIMMER: Have any representations been made to the department, on behalf of the people of Grand Manan and the neighbouring islands, urging the necessity for the construction of breakwaters in all or any of these islands?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I shall be glad to look into the question and give my hon. friend the information. I have not the facts at the moment.

Mr. GRIMMER: I should be very much surprised to learn that no representations of this kind have been made to the department, for I believe that it was generally understood, prior to the last election, that in the event of the present administration being returned to power construction would be proceeded with at once on breakwaters at some or all of these islands.

Mr. HANSON: The promise was made.

Mr. GRIMMER: Well, at any rate, the people generally understood that. Now, the people have carried out their part of the programme, and it rests with the Government to fulfil any promises that may have been made on their behalf. These islands form a part of the constituency which I have the honour to represent, and they are isolated from the mainland. The island of Campobello and Deer island are situated five miles from the nearest point on the mainland out in Passamaquoddy bay and the island of Grand Manan is twenty miles away from the mainland out in Atlantic ocean. The people of these islands depend entirely on fishing for a living. Any hon. member who knows anything at all about this industry is aware of the hardships and the disadvantages generally which those who are engaged in it have to endure. The village of Castalia, on the island of Grand Manan, was at one time a prosperous fishing community, but owing to the disadvantages under which the people laboured the young men went over to the United States where they could engage in their occupation under more favourable conditions. The heavy seas and storms from the Atlantic, beating upon the island, have destroyed the waterfront. The people, in the event of a storm, have to moor their boats two miles from home, and this entails a serious hardship upon them. Nature has provided a splendid foundation for a breakwater and all that is required is for the Government to carry it to completion. The people believe that the young men will come back if they are given an opportunity to engage in the industry under proper conditions. The breakwater could be completed at little expense and it would carry out any promises that may have been made to the people. At Woodwards Cove some years ago the government undertook the construction of a breakwater and completed one section, and the people are desirous of having the work carried to completion. On Deer island, at the cove above Wilson's Beach, which is the central part of the island, the fishermen work under more favourable circumstances. They do not require a great breakwater, as they have a magnificent cove in which to moor their boats. But the fishermen to-day have to carry their fish along the beach to the houses, the water being too shallow for them to moor their boats near shore. They are anxious to have the department of Public Works do at least a week's dredging so that they may have ample mooring accommodation. The work would cost comparatively little and would meet the requirements of those who engage in fishing in that part of the country. The upper portion of Deer island, as far back as the oldest inhabitants can recollect, has never received its due share of public works. The people desire to have a wharf or a breakwater there. Either would be satisfactory to them, and it is imperative that the construction be begun at as early a date as possible in order to enable the fishermen to carry on their industry. Only a small amount would be necessary to provide permanent facilities, and the people have been wanting the work done for a considerable time now. I see that for Nova Scotia the estimates provide $182,680 while for New Brunswick the amount is only $66,700, just about one-third. Surely the Government can afford to implement the promise they made the people in that portion of Charlotte county. I should be gratified if the minister would give me definite assurance that these new public works, which would not cost a great deal and which are absolutely necessary if these people are to carry on their business, will be provided.

Mr. HANSON: I would call the attention of the minister and of the committee to the character of the campaign carried on by the Liberal candidate in Charlotte county, New Brunswick, during the last election.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. HANSON: The item is not carried. As hon. gentlemen are aware who know the geography of that locality, a very large portion of the population of the county depends on the fishing industry for a livelihood. I am intimately acquainted with the place, as it happens to be my native county, and I have lived there a good many years. During the last general election, Mr. W. F. Todd, the defeated Liberal candidate in Charlotte county, carried on a campaign throughout the island parishes, and promised a wharf or breakwater at practically every fishing hamlet in the county.

Mr. MICHAUD: Did the hon. gentleman (Mr. Hanson) make any promises of a similar kind in his county?

Mr. HANSON: No, I did not make any.

Mr. MICHAUD: What about the Transcontinental railway? The hon. member for York-Sunbury wanted the divisional point, which is in my town transferred to his own town, and he campaigned for that change.

Mr. HANSON: I would point out to the minister and the House that what I have referred to was a straight bid for votes on a bribery principle. We have heard of such cases in days gone by in connection with our election campaigns. I would point out further that no attempt whatever has been made to implement what the Liberal candidate so lavishly promised on that occasion. Some of those promises, I have no doubt, were made in good faith; others undoubtedly were made with the intent and purpose of influencing the electors. That practice has a degenerating influence on our public life, and—

Some Hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. HANSON: Some of my hon. friends opposite laugh, I suppose because it has been such a common practice by them in the past, especially in New Brunswick. I would point out to the minister that some of these promises were made by Mr. W. F. Todd, the Liberal candidate in my constituency, and have not been fulfilled, I think the minister would be doing a duty to the people down there if he would endeavour to have those promises redeemed.

Mr. COPP: Were the wharves and breakwaters which my hon. friend says were promised, necessary to the county of Charlotte, which he speaks of as being his native county?

Mr. HANSON: Some few were; most of them were not.

Mr. COPP: Unfortunately Mr. Todd is not here to defend himself against this very serious charge. But my hon. friend was not content with making this charge against Mr. Todd alone; he says that all the members of this House from the province of New Brunswick took the same course during their respective campaigns.

Mr. HANSON: I did not say that. I said that that course had been pursued in the past by hon. gentlemen from New Brunswick.

Mr. COPP: Members of this House at present?

Mr. HANSON: No.

Mr. COPP: While making allowance for the fact that my hon. friend is a young member of this House, yet I feel it is neither fair nor courageous on his part—and I think the House will agree with me—to make these charges against his opponents without bringing evidence to substantiate them. My friend Mr. Todd was a member of this House for many years, and several hon. members will recall the splendid reputation which he enjoyed. Before my hon. friend charges his opponents with making, during the course of his campaign, promises verging on bribery, he should at least have the courtesy and courage to bring some evidence before this committee upon which he bases his charges. On the contrary he has not offered the slightest evidence in support of what he alleges.

Mr. HANSON: Mr. Chairman, I have great pleasure in bringing to your notice a specific instance. Just previous to the general election Mr. Todd arrived at Grand Manan, accompanied by a number of henchmen, including Mr. B. M. Hill, chief engineer of highways for New Brunswick. They not only told the people of Grand Manan that they would build them a motor speedway, but Mr. Hill, I am informed, actually went around among the electors—and, be it known, Mr. Hill was defeated in the provincial arena—and engaged men to work upon that road, ostensibly to make a survey, but practically to go to work on the road. That was all very well until election day; we have never heard about the matter since.

Mr. COPP: My hon. friend, just as I expected, has shifted his ground entirely. He transfers his charge from Mr. Todd to Mr. Hill, the superintendent of local highways in New Brunswick. My hon. friend knows, as does everyone else in New Brunswick, that Mr. Hill is an employee of the local government there. No doubt he went down to the county of Charlotte for the same purpose that he has visited all the other counties in the province, to build highways; and he has helped to build many magnificent highways in New Brunswick. But the building of provincial highways has nothing whatever to do with the construction of breakwaters and wharves in the county of Charlotte.

Mr. HANSON: The money out of which Mr. Hill proposed to build the highways was to come from the federal grant, which certainly has a very important bearing on Dominion politics.

Mr. COPP: That is all expended by the local government under the superintendence of Mr. Hill.

THE ROYAL ASSENT

SITTING SUSPENDED FOR ROYAL ASSENT TO BILLS

A message was delivered by Colonel Ernest J. Chambers, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, as follows:

Mr. Speaker, His Honour the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General desires the immediate attendance of this Honourable House in the Chamber of the Honourable the Senate.

Accordingly, the House went up to the Senate.

And having returned,

Mr. SPEAKER informed the House that the Deputy of His Excellency the Governor General had been pleased to give in His Majesty's name the Royal Assent to the following bills:

An Act for granting to His Majesty certain sums of money for the public service of the financial years ending respectively the 31st March, 1922, and the 31st March, 1923.

An Act for the relief of Wentworth Barnes.

An Act for the relief of Hazel McInally.

An Act for the relief of Edward Lovell.

An Act for the relief of Elizabeth Lillian Sharpe.

An Act for the relief of Percival Andrew Jamieson.

An Act for the relief of Frederick Henry Gill.

An Act for the relief of Blanche Elizabeth Macdonell.

An Act for the relief of Frank Charles Butt.

An Act for the relief of Edward Sidney John Turpin.

An Act for the relief of Albert Bethune Carley.

An Act for the relief of Ernest Zufelt.

An Act for the relief of Harry Johns Leach.

An Act for the relief of Nellie Berry.

An Act respecting The Burrard Inlet Tunnel and Bridge Company.

An Act respecting The Kettle Valley Railway Company.

An Act respecting La Compagnie de Chemin de Fer de Colonisation du Nord.
An Act respecting The Interprovincial and James Bay Railway Company.
An Act respecting The Canada Trust Company.
An Act to incorporate Canadian General Insurance Company.
An Act to amend the Penitentiary Act.
An Act for the relief of Ethel Turner.
An Act for the relief of Walter Michie Anderson.
An Act for the relief of Mary Elizabeth Fredenburg.
An Act for the relief of Sheriff Elwin Robinson.
An Act for the relief of Rhoda Renfrew McFarlane Brown.
An Act for the relief of Abraham Leibovitz.
An Act to incorporate British National Assurance Company.
An Act respecting the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.
An Act respecting Prudential Trust Company, Limited.
An Act respecting The T. Eaton General Insurance Company.
An Act respecting Aberdeen Fire Insurance Company.
An Act respecting Armour Life Assurance Company.

SUPPLY

PUBLIC WORKS

The House resumed in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Mr. HANSON: The Secretary of State (Mr. Copp) challenged me to give a list of the places where those supporting him had made definite promises to carry out public works in the county of Charlotte prior to the last election. I have in my hand a list of those places.

Mr. COPP: I did not say anything about those who were supporting me.

Mr. HANSON: I will let you have a list anyway. The first place as to which Mr. Todd, and those supporting him, made such a promise, and the most important public work to which he had relation, was the completion of the breakwater at Castalia, Parish of Grand Manan. Mr. Todd was there and personally looked over the ground and told the people he would have the breakwater carried to completion. The second place was at Welshpool—

Mr. COPP: Did my hon. friend say Castalia?

Mr. HANSON: Yes Castalia, Parish of Grand Manan. At Welshpool Mr. Todd personally promised that dredging would be done forthwith. The third place where a promise of a public work was made, was at the upper end of Deer island, near Lord's cove where he personally—

[Mr. Speaker.]

Mr. GOOD: Has my hon. friend any objection to the members in this part of the Chamber hearing his statement? We cannot hear him at all in this quarter.

Mr. HANSON: I shall be delighted to oblige my hon. friend. As I say the third promise related to a wharf or breakwater at the upper end of Deer island, just beyond Lord's cove. Mr. Todd promised a wharf or a breakwater; I am not sure that he did not promise them both. The fourth place was at Seeley basin, in the parish of Pennfield, where a wharf site was actually located before the 6th December. I dare say, if I had the time, I could give my hon. friend a dozen other places.

Mr. COPP: Is my hon. friend speaking from hearsay, or was he present and heard the statements referred to?

Mr. HANSON: The hon. member knows I was not there.

Mr. COPP: My hon. friend is repeating what somebody told him.

Mr. HANSON: I am speaking from information which I know to be correct.

Mr. COPP: I would like the hon. gentleman to give a little further information.

Mr. HANSON: I do not know, Sir, that you have any right to cross-examine me.

Mr. COPP: I am not cross-examining my hon. friend. Apparently he is a hostile witness and a cross-examination of that type of witness is sometimes dangerous. However, I would like my hon. friend to be kind enough—he having volunteered very valuable information to the committee in regard to the attitude of Mr. Todd during the last election campaign regarding the construction of wharves and breakwaters or both, in his county—to state whether the public works suggested by Mr. Todd as being desirable are necessary for the inhabitants of the particular localities mentioned.

Mr. HANSON: They are not in the estimates and therefore in the opinion of the Government they cannot be necessary. If my hon. friend wants an answer I would refer him to the officers of the Public Works Department who are the technical advisers of the Government. It is not my duty, it is not even my privilege, to advise my hon. friend.

Mr. COPP: My hon. friend apparently misunderstood my question.

Mr. HANSON: I do not think so.

Mr. COPP: My hon. friend is a native of Charlotte county and he has a very close acquaintance with its requirements, as well as with the requirements of the county of York which he represents. I would like, therefore, if he would be good enough to tell the committee whether, in his opinion, the construction of the public works in question is necessary for the benefit of the inhabitants of the respective localities referred to? If he says it is, I am sure the Minister of Public Works will give the matter his very careful consideration?

Mr. HANSON: I will put this proposition to the minister: If I answer his question will he undertake to carry out the recommendation that I make? Then I will answer his question.

Mr. COPP: I am very deeply interested in the information my hon. friend has given to the committee. It is the first I have heard with respect to these localities requiring accommodation of the kind referred to. I would be very glad indeed if my hon. friend would inform us whether these works are absolutely necessary. If they are, I will be very glad, seeing that I represent the province of New Brunswick, to give the matter my very best consideration, and see if something can be done to meet the requirements in question.

Mr. GRIMMER: As the representative of the county of Charlotte I will answer the question and say that, I think these works are absolutely necessary. They should be built in the interest of the people of the county, and any promises that were made at the last election should be carried out. If Mr. Todd made the promises referred to I think he was perfectly right in doing so; the works are really needed by the people, the fishermen and others, who carry on their occupations in those localities. I will back the minister up if he will undertake these works and carry them to completion. However, as no amounts have been provided in the estimates I can see no chance of this being done.

Mr. DUFF: There is the sum of $40,000 in the estimates.

Mr. HANSON: That will not go far towards building a breakwater in Castalia.

Mr. FIELDING: I am a little interested whenever I hear of any one breaking a contract and not keeping faith. Now if anybody, either Liberal or Conservative, promised to build wharves or piers, or anything of the kind, as a means of getting votes, that is wrong, that is bribery—call it what you like—and therefore I cannot excuse it. But I am going to ask my hon. friend from York-Sunbury (Mr. Hanson) as to the nature of these promises. Did I understand correctly, that Mr. Todd promised that these things would be done if Mr. Grimmer was elected?

Mr. HANSON: The question of the hon. minister answers itself.

Mr. FIELDING: He does not allege that any such promise was made; therefore there was no breach of contract.

Mr. CHAPLIN: I call attention again to the very large item of $40,000 in these estimates. The total estimate is $66,000. There is an amount of $40,000 unspecified. I do not think it is good business to put such a large amount for unspecified work in the estimates. I noted what the minister had to say in regard to a similar item for Prince Edward Island. I wish to point out that the total estimates in respect to Prince Edward Island were $40,000 and the unspecified amount was $14,000. In the other case, the total amount was $66,000 and unspecified $40,000, a disproportionate amount.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I do not want to delay the estimate, but following up what the hon. member for Lincoln (Mr. Chaplin) has stated, I think the minister should consider the objection. See the opportunity it gives the minister, if the vote goes through as it stands. Last year $11,000 was spent and $29,000 not spent. If similar conditions exist this year the minister will have under that general vote $29,000. For his own protection he should change this system. Every government heeler in New Brunswick will be after him to spend this money. At least, I venture the opinion that some will be after him. They will be chasing the minister, and all sorts of reports will come to him that $2,000 should be spent here, $3,000 another place, and $5,000 another place. Parliament has nothing to say in regard to the expenditure, we are leaving it in the hands of the minister to say when and where he will spend the money. He will undoubtedly be importuned and for his own protection it would be far better if the amount were reduced. There is no emergency that cannot be taken care of by Governor General's warrant, and the minister should welcome my suggestion. I know that this system has obtained in the past, why not correct it for the future? I ask the minister if he will not announce a reduction of $10,000 in the total vote of $66,000. We have an item, "Contingencies, improvements and repairs generally, $40,000." We are asked to give the money without knowing whether it is going to be spent, or where. It is an improper principle.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I will cite a few items of expenditure last year under this vote, and my hon. friend will see the fallacy of his argument when he says that a Governor General's warrant be passed on every occasion of this kind. We find that at Chance Harbour $100 was spent; at Cognac, $18; Leonardville Wharf, $25.20; Mill Point, $543.77. Many items, large and small, come up for consideration and conditions occur from time to time where the engineers or the officials are required to report on certain matters and make expenditures. I think the hon. member will see how cumbersome it would be if we had to obtain Governor General's warrants on every occasion of this kind. A contingent vote to take care of unforeseen conditions is not unusual in the Public Works Department or in any other department. The vote last year was the same amount as this year; I have not the information as to the preceding year, but I imagine the vote was somewhat similar. The expenditures vary from year to year, as one can well understand, and I see no reason why the vote should be reduced. It will not be expended if it is not required.

Mr. GOOD: What was the total expenditure in these items last year, and what need is there for having a much larger expenditure this year?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The total expenditure last year was $11,666, out of a vote for contingencies of $40,000. I would not and could not advise the committee that the expenditure would be the same as last year. No one can foretell that. I see no reason to change the vote.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I see the point in what the minister says, that there is a lot of small payments which have to be made, but I think $10,000 or $15,000 would be sufficient for all purposes. I wish to test the matter and take the view of the committee, and for that purpose I am going to move to reduce the item. I do not desire to reduce it in respect of New Brunswick only, and I want to avoid making a motion as each item comes up, and my amendment will be simply to take the feeling of the committee upon this question. I move that the item of $40,000 for repairs and improvements generally be reduced to $20,000. That will allow the minister a very substantial amount and a large margin, to carry on incidental repairs.

Mr. FIELDING: The amendment of my hon. friend, I think, shows a failure to appreciate the very spirit and purpose of the resolution. It is an emergency vote for something that cannot be anticipated. The most we can say is that it may not be needed. The past experience has shown that when it was not needed it was not spent, but, surely, it is well to have a margin of safety in that case, and the figures the minister brings down are precisely the same as last year's. I think it would be a mistake to depart from the rule laid down in the past; I do not think the hon. member has shown any good reason for reducing the vote.

Amendment (Mr. Guthrie) negatived: Yeas 24; Nays 79.

Item agreed to.

Harbours and rivers—Quebec, $396,980.

The CHAIRMAN: Is it the pleasure of the committee that this appropriation be taken up in detail item by item?

Some hon. MEMBERS: No.

Mr. STEVENS: Surely my hon. friends are not going to ask the committee to pass a batch of details consisting of probably forty different items, without a word from the minister. I am surprised that the minister himself did not offer to give to the committee an explanation of some of these items. How much of the total appropriation of $423,160 of last year was spent? How much of the appropriation of $75,000 of last year for harbours and rivers generally was spent?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The total expenditure from last year's appropriation was $254,557.56. Of the appropriation of $75,000 for harbours and rivers generally last year, the expenditure was $62,881. That in itself shows that these items vary from year to year. In Quebec last year we practically expended the sum set aside for contingencies.

Mr. STEVENS: The minister and the Government will note that, out of an appropriation of about $423,000, only $254,000, or very little over one-half, was spent. The minister is asking this year, on the policy and plea of retrenchment and economy, an increase of about $142,000 over the expenditure of last year. We ought to have an explanation of this very large increase.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I do not think my hon. friend would suggest that the estimates and expenditures made last year should govern and rule the committee this year. The estimates are prepared in the department on the knowledge and advice of the officials of the department. We have not found it necessary to ask for as large a sum as was asked for last year. This year we are asking for $396,980 against $423,100 last year. My hon. friend says that, as the expenditure last year was only $254,000, we should further reduce the amount this year. I do not think he is competent—and I know, as minister, with the time at my disposal, I am not competent—to advise the committee that that should follow. I am taking the advice of the officials of my department, and this would seem to be a reasonable amount for expenditures in the province of Quebec. It is well known to hon. members that, during the war period, undoubtedly, and wisely so, public works were not maintained as they should be in normal times, and the Department of Public Works at this time finds it necessary to make more extensive repairs than probably would have been necessary if the ordinary repairs had been carried on from year to year.

Mr. STEVENS: The minister is enunciating a policy of extensive and increased expenditure on public works. He states that during the war there was retrenchment, and that now is the time for expansion. We were led to believe, by the oft-repeated and widely advertised declarations of the Government that this was to be a period of retrenchment.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I think my hon. friend has misunderstood me. I merely stated that, owing to the fact that public works were allowed to fall into disrepair during the war period, it is found necessary now to make larger expenditures on these works in order that we may retain what we have. To do otherwise, would be false economy.

Mr. STEVENS: Surely we could run over these items quickly, and the minister could give us a brief explanation of the reasons for them. The first item, Anse aux Gascons wharf, is a revote of $29,000, only $20,000 of the appropriation of last year of $49,000 having been expended. We should have an explanation of that. And some of the other items are very large.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The $29,000 asked for Anse aux Gascons wharf covers a contract entered into last year. The contract price was $49,000, and the expenditure in 1921-22 was $20,000, so that a revote this year of $29,000 is required to carry out the contract entered into in 1921-22.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Is the appropriation for repairs and reconstruction of the wharf at Gaspé in the same situation? The appropriation last year was $34,000, and we are asked for a revote of $20,000 this year. Was that under contract?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I think there was a contract for the wharf extension and repairs at Grosse Isle quarantine station, but I am not sure. How far has that work been proceeded with?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The vote asked is for repairs to the flooring, replacing of mooring posts in the eastern wharf and extension of eastern wharf. Of the appropriation of $50,000 last year, $15,000 was expended, and the amount lapsed is $9,000. This revote of $26,000 is to complete the work.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Was $15,000 the total expenditure last year on this work?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Last year's appropriation was $50,000?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Then the total cost of this work when completed is going to be only $41,000 instead of $50,000?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Item agreed to.

Harbours and rivers—Ontario, $398,800.

Mr. MANION: How much was spent of last year's estimate amounting to $644,700?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Altogether, $408,000.

Mr. MANION: What percentage was spent of the vote of $65,000 for harbours and rivers generally?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The amount spent was $44,263.

Mr. BLACK (Huron): Does the minister intend to put anything in the supplementary estimates for Goderich harbour? He will remember that a deputation waited upon him a few weeks ago. This is the only harbour between Port McNicoll and Sarnia, and last year 22,000,000 bushels of grain passed through it. The harbour should be dredged to enable big boats to turn round. Sometimes vessels have remained in the harbour for as long as ten days getting unloaded.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The representations made by my hon. friend and by the deputation are receiving consideration, but I am not in a position to advise as to what will be put in the estimates.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The question of the Goderich harbour has been before the House many times during the last ten years. The position became rather acute four or five years ago. It was felt that during the war the expenditure would hardly be justified. My recollection is that what is required in Goderich harbour will take a considerable amount of money. I believe that the expenditure is urgently needed. My hon. friend from South Huron (Mr. Black) knows the situation better than I do, but I have heard the matter discussed by various delegations, and I know something about the railroad that runs through the city of Guelph where I live and which is dependent for a large part of its trade on the grain that comes through the Goderich harbour. This harbour, I think, is the only one for large boats on the shores of Lake Huron, from Port McNicoll all the way down. It requires a considerable course of dredging. The chief expenditure is needed for something in the nature of a sea wall to make the harbour safe in stormy weather. At present it is the only port where a ship can put in in stress of weather on the whole of that side of lake Huron, and it is of considerable consequence to mariners in general to have the harbour properly built up and developed, apart altogether from the question of shipping. Goderich is reached now both by the Grand Trunk and by the Canadian Pacific railways. There are large elevator systems in the locality and a tremendous amount of grain passes through the port. I hope, therefore, that the Government will take the matter up, and when the supplementary estimates come down I shall certainly join with my hon. friend from South Huron in endeavouring to convince the Government that a substantial expenditure should be made there.

[Mr. Manion.]

Mr. LEGER: Why do you not make a motion to that effect?

Mr. DUFF: I see that we are discussing votes for Ontario, and it is rather strange that the member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) does not move an amendment to reduce the item for the expenditure of $65,000 on harbours and rivers.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I have explained why.

Mr. DUFF: Since he is appearing before the House as the great economist he might very well do that. He is not only backing up the member for South Huron in urging the necessity for expending this large amount of $398,000 odd in Ontario, but he wants the Government to spend more. Now, if that vote were asked for New Brunswick or British Columbia, or some other province, my hon. friend would be on his feet immediately, telling the Government that they were spending too much money. It strikes me that a great deal depends on whose ox is gored, and the hon. member for South Wellington seems to be the most inconsistent gentleman in this House.

Mr. GUTHRIE: It will not take long to reply to my hon. friend. I am not making any motion in respect of this $65,000 for harbours and rivers generally, in Ontario, for the reason that I have given to the committee. I merely wished to test the opinion of the committee once for all, and apply it to all the items in the estimates. That would save time, and it is final and definite enough for me. I do not object to any expenditure on rivers and harbours in any part of Canada where the expenditure is warranted; I have not once objected to such expenditures in these items. I have however, objected to money being voted for the Government to spend without Parliament knowing how it is to be expended, and that objection was well founded, notwithstanding the vote of the committee.

Mr. DUFF: It is all very well for the hon. member to get up, now that he is in opposition, and be so pious politically: He was not quite so pious a few days before the election, however. He got contracts let in the city of Guelph for some $300,000 for militia supplies that were not needed.

Mr. GUTHRIE: For how much?

Mr. DUFF: Nor was he so pious in other things. He should be the last gentleman to rise in his place in this House and declare that there should not be one dollar expended without minute details as to how it will be disposed of. The whole trouble with the hon. gentleman is that he is not acquainted with the facts. With regard to the votes in the different provinces for harbours and rivers generally, I do not suppose it would be parliamentary for me to say that my hon. friend's attitude is due to ignorance on his part.

The CHAIRMAN: Order.

Mr. DUFF: I do say, however, that it is due to lack of knowledge. And that is the whole trouble with him. Now, I know very little about the province of Ontario, but I can conceive the possibility that instead of $65,000 being required for harbours and rivers in that province in the year 1922, the Government may have to spend $150,000. The money, I presume, is voted in order that the public works on the Great Lakes may be repaired when they are destroyed by storms such as we had last night. In the vote for Nova Scotia the committee will see, on page 38 of the Estimates, a sum of $60,000 provided for harbours and rivers generally. Those hon. members who went home late last night and experienced the disagreeable weather we had then, must certainly have realized, if their thoughts were either on the Pacific or on the Atlantic, that some damage was being wrought by the storm on those two great bodies of water. This morning I received telegrams from my own constituency informing me that several public works along the shore were washed away last night; and knowing the nature of those works, I should judge that it would take at least $50,000 to repair them. Of course, the member for South Wellington does not know anything about that; he is a sea lawyer more or less, and he is only arguing this afternoon from hearsay.

Mr. MARTELL: The hon. gentleman's remarks are not complimentary to sea lawyers.

Mr. DUFF: Perhaps not, but the hon. member's arguments are advanced only for the sake of opposition to the votes. The minister is quite right in putting these votes in the estimates, because it is impossible for himself or his officials to know just how much will be required in British Columbia, Nova Scotia, or any other province. It is good business to have these estimates provided, and it has always been done. The hon. member, I repeat, is objecting only for the sake of opposition and not because he knows what he is talking about.

Mr. BLACK (Huron): I do not always agree with my hon. friend from South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie), but I insist that a larger vote should be placed in the estimates for Goderich harbour than is provided. The Board of Trade at Goderich told me they estimated it would take $400,000 to fix the wharf, but they are only asking this year for about $100,000 to do necessary dredging so that boats can unload as they come in. I have a photograph showing eleven boats laden with grain all waiting to come into the harbour. Some are held back a week at a time.

Mr. FOURNIER: How much grain was handled at Goderich last year?

Mr. BLACK (South Huron): Twenty-one million bushels of grain was brought into Goderich harbour last year.

Mr. GOOD: As one of the members from Ontario who supported the amendment to reduce the previous vote, I wish to say to my hon. friend from Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) that I did not do so from a spirit of opposition, but for the reason that the vote last year was only one-third of the amount set apart and to be voted this year. Consequently it seems to me that without some justification for the increased expenditure we ought to cut it down.

Mr. DUFF: Is the hon. member satisfied with my explanation?

Mr. GOOD: With reference to the item for Ontario of $65,000, if it could be shown it was not needed I would be only too glad to support an amendment to reduce it.

Mr. DUFF: It is impossible to show that it is not needed.

Mr. GOOD: I understand, in respect to the $65,000 item, that last year nearly the whole amount was spent, so perhaps it is reasonable to infer that at least as much will be needed this year. That is the only basis upon which I refrain from objecting to this vote.

Mr. MALCOLM: The remarks of the hon. member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) in regard to Goderich harbour, are very well timed, and I thoroughly agree with his request to the Minister of Public Works to consider the needs of that harbour. Goderich is the one point on lake Huron where the western grain is distributed to the millers of Ontario, and on that account alone deserves the support of this Government. But I would point out to my hon. friend from South Wellington that Goderich is not the natural harbour of refuge for lake Huron. Many old members will recall the awful storm of 1914 when much tonnage and many lives were lost on the Great Lakes. As a result the government of the day started to build a harbour of refuge farther north on the shore of lake Huron, Goderich being a little too far south to supply that needed shelter. Such a harbour of refuge is absolutely necessary for the safety of our mariners, and should be taken into favourable consideration by the minister. The losses on lake Superior and the other Great Lakes recently amply justify the need of more shelter.

I would point out to some members coming from inland ridings that those of us representing ridings with extensive lake frontage realize that these emergency expenditures to which the hon. Minister of Finance referred are at times entirely inadequate. My hon. friend from Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) referred to harbours destroyed in the recent storm. His remarks apply to lake harbours as well. Wharves that have been allowed to run down during the war years are now in a perilous condition, and in my riding to-day I do not think the wharves can be put in shape for half the emergency vote for the whole province. Therefore I think members from inland ridings should be tolerant of this emergency vote, and also of the vote for Goderich harbour because of the fact, as I have stated, that it is the only grain distributing harbour on the Great Lakes for a large part of Ontario.

I shall be glad to support the minister if he brings forward any vote in his supplementary estimates for a harbour of refuge north of Goderich, because we know that the men on the Great Lakes at the present time have not the protection which they should have against the severe storms which occasionally overwhelm them. If we had another storm similar to that of 1914 there would be again a great loss of life, and this we should prevent if possible by the construction of a harbour of refuge.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): I think my hon. friend referred to the fact that 21,000,000 bushels of grain comes to Goderich harbour. Is any of that grain unloaded for transportation to other destinations, or is it all distributed to the millers in that section of the province?

Mr. DRUMMOND: As one of those well acquainted with the conditions surrounding Goderich harbour and the adjacent country, I must take exception to the statement of my hon. friend with regard to Goderich harbour as a distributing point. Goderich is the distributing centre for grain for six or seven counties in the western part of Ontario, and I would urge the hon. minister to increase the grant so that these counties may be benefited.

Mr. BOYS: Unfortunately I was called out when the hon. minister stated the total expenditure for last year. I notice the total appropriation for public works charged to income this year is $9,817,319.77; the amount asked last year for this service was $10,871,362.08. Can the minister tell me what the total expenditure was last year in connection with public works charged to income?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): My hon. friend is in error. The votes last year for public works totalled $13,188,000, and the amount expended was $10,283,000.

Mr. BOYS: I thank the hon. minister for the answer, but I do not quite see how I am wrong. I hold in my hand the estimates for 1922, and on page 38 I see the amount to be voted is $10,871,362.08. Of course, I am not including the supplementaries. I suppose that accounts for the difference?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. CARRUTHERS: I would draw the attention of the Minister of Public Works to a really urgent case which has developed in my riding during the past two weeks, and I am afraid that if something is not done in the way of provision in the Supplementary Estimates the wheels of industry in that part of my constituency will be at least retarded if not entirely tied up. I have reference to the harbour at the town of Little Current, on the north channel of Georgian bay. As hon. members no doubt are aware, we have a large coal dock at that point handling from 100,000 to 200,000 tons of coal per annum, coal which is shipped in during the session of navigation and carried northward over the Algoma Eastern railway to the various industries on that line. Up to two years ago boats of about 10,000 tons burden could carry the coal to the dock, but owing to the lowering of the water in lake Huron, probably due to the Chicago drainage canal and other causes, the channels of that lake are becoming so low that boats of large draft can no longer go through them. In this connection I should like to read a letter I have received from Mr. G. A. Montgomery, and of which no doubt the minister has a copy in his department:

Dear Sir,—The Steamer Collier owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company, Cleveland, O., loaded with approximately 5,500 tons of coal for the Spanish River Pulp & Paper Mills, struck while coming to our dock at Little Current on Sunday, April 23rd. The point where the steamer grounded was in mid-channel just off Gibbons Point. Captain Wilson who was in charge of the vessel, claims he was on the ranges when the boat grounded. Steamer was drawing eighteen feet six, but there was only abount eighteen feet two or three inches of water. Damage to the vessel consisted of thirteen frames bent and three plates sprung. This is the seventeenth trip that Capt. Wilson has made to Little Current and he states the Collier was on exactly the same course as followed by him on previous trips. The Collier is being repaired at Little Current by stopping up the leak with concrete. The Harbour Master at Little Current has been notified of the grounding and I understand he has, in turn, notified the Marine Department.

Following that, I received yesterday and the day before three or four telegrams. Here is one I received from the Soo:

Would appreciate anything you can do in removing danger of navigation at Little Current. Grounding of the steamer Collier already reported to you will have serious effect upon our business. Vessel owners making strenuous objections sending their boats to our dock on account of navigation difficulties that point.

I have also a telegram from the mayor of Little Current, as follows:

On last trip steamer Collier aground in centre of channel. Bottom badly damaged. Something must be done at once or coal dock will have to close to large steamers.

The minister, I think, received a wire yesterday from the owners of the boat at Cleveland, reading as follows:

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 16, 1922.

Steamer Collier entering Little Current channel April 23rd struck rock obstruction damaging eleven plates and frames to such extent boat obliged come down light. For drydocking cost of repairs approximately ten thousand dollars. Very necessary obstruction be removed. Considerable pressure is brought upon us from time to time move coal into Little Current as some Canadian owners have refused to carry coal to that place account of constant liability of damage.

A. E. R. SCHNEIDER,
Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company.

I might say in passing that the Espanola Pulp and Paper Company consumes some 150 tons of coal every twenty-four hours throughout the year. They get all their coal from that dock, so you can see what this means to them. If something is not done to remove this obstruction, that immense industry and other industries along the north shore will have to close down. I trust that the minister will have this matter attended to immediately. I might even suggest that the Government dredge, which I believe is now fitting out at Midland, on the Georgian Bay, be taken up to Little Current to do the work, so that these boats can get in. It will be a serious national loss if this work is not done.

Item agreed to.

Harbours and rivers—Manitoba, $28,500.

Mr. LEADER: I think this item is very modest in comparison with appropriations that have been made for similar work in some of the other provinces. I think it is entirely inadequate to take care of the situation that has developed in Manitoba. The other day I brought to the attention of the House the fact that the Assiniboine river had overflowed, and that considerable damage had been done. The Prime Minister assured me that this matter was engaging the attention of the Government, that they were endeavouring to find out the actual extent of the damage, and would report later. We really do not know the extent of the damages yet, but the Canadian Pacific Railway has made an estimate, and their figures go to show that from fifteen to twenty thousand acres of arable land have been flooded. We also read in the press that hundreds of men have been engaged night and day trying to stem the waters of the Assiniboine. I believe it is the duty of the Government to compensate these men for the work they have been forced to do, and to reimburse them for any damage they have suffered. I would suggest that the minister ascertain the extent of the actutal damage as near as he can, and bring in a supplementary estimate to cover it. I might say for the benefit of the House that the overflowing of the Assiniboine river has been a political question in our constituency.

Mr. CALDWELL: Any promises made?

Mr. LEADER: There have been promises made in the past, and I would suggest to the Government that they do not wait until the eve of an election before compensating these people for the damages they have suffered. The damage has already been done, and now is the time to take care of it. I was told that last fall engineers had gone over the ground and had made some observations, with what object I do not know; but that is all we have heard about it. I should like to read an extract from a letter signed by "Observer" to the editor of the Daily Graphic, a paper published in Portage la Prairie:

> The Assiniboine river is under the Dominion government, not the provincial government. This was duly evidenced during two different elections run by the late government at Ottawa, when they with great earnestness, foresight and sympathy put large gangs of men on the work of building a dyke along the Assiniboine river. The activities, however, appeared to cease on each occasion immediately after the election day was passed.

I have read that just to warn the Government that now is the time to take action, instead of waiting until the eve of an election. I want to plead for the settlers in my constituency, and I hope that the Government will see fit to help them in their extremity.

Mr. CHAPLIN: What was the actual expenditure under this item last year?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): For harbours and rivers generally, $6,341. The total expenditure last year was $27,000.

Mr. FORKE: I am very glad that the hon. member for Portage la Prairie (Mr. Leader) has brought up this question of the overflowing of the Assiniboine river, because I had intended to bring it up myself. I am interested in the matter because the Assiniboine river has been overflowing its banks right down through the constituency of Brandon, and has done quite a lot of damage at Virden. The banks have also overflowed at Brandon, and a great deal of inconvenience has been caused, not only to the farmers in the district, but to the people in the city of Brandon itself. I do not know just exactly what the law is and what the responsibility of the Dominion government would be in this matter, but I know that the Department of the Interior have had officers out there taking levels and looking into the matter, and I think something ought to be done. I have no doubt that this year the damages that have occurred to the farmers amount to something over half a million dollars. It is a serious thing. The loss is not so very serious to the province as a whole, but it is very serious to the people who live in that fertile valley. I do hope the minister will look into the matter and that something will be done. I have much pleasure in endorsing the remarks of the hon. member for Portage la Prairie.

Mr. BANCROFT: I would like to ask the minister about certain necessary work required in the region of Icelandic river. Has the minister decided to do any thing about that?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I have not that information here, but I will look into it and advise my hon. friend as to any recommendations to be made.

Mr. BANCROFT: I would like to ask one other question. I notice an item with respect to repairs to the wharf at Selkirk and it looks as though part of the work might have been done last year. Is the work under contract now, and if not will the contract for it be let by tender?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): No there is no contract. There was an amount voted last year for re-construction but there has been no expenditure.

Mr. BANCROFT: Is it the custom of the department to carry out these works by contract?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): By contract wherever possible.

Mr. BANCROFT: I would like to see the minister do something about the work needed at Icelandic river. I think it is very necessary and would not involve a large expenditure. I notice that the estimate for Manitoba is about the only one that is cut down out of the estimates for all the provinces. I think the minister could reasonably carry out the work referred to this year without incurring any great expenditure.

Mr. LEADER: I would like to ask the minister whether any money was paid out last year in the Portage la Prairie district in connection with the dyking of the Assiniboine river, and if so can he give us the date of that expenditure?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I do not think there was any expenditure last year on works of that kind.

Item agreed to.

Harbours and rivers—Saskatchewan and Alberta, $20,000.

Mr. KENNEDY (Edmonton): How is this money to be spent?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): This amount is required to make provision for repairs and improvements to harbours and rivers under the control of the Public Works Department in Saskatchewan and Alberta. These are reported on by the district engineer, are under his control, and the expenditure is made as the necessity may arise.

Mr. KENNEDY (Edmonton): In that case it is simply a contingency vote.

Mr. KING Kootenay): Yes a contingency vote.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Was anything spent last year?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The sum of $3,332 was expended last year.

Mr. CHAPLIN: I see the minister in this particular case has adopted the principle which I laid down in the case of several other provinces, and has reduced the item from $52,500, at which it stood last year, to $20,000. How can he justify his action in respect to the other provinces?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I imagine that this estimate, as in the case of the estimates for other provinces, has been made by the officials employed to do the work. It is they who have supplied this information.

Item agreed to.

Harbours and Rivers—British Columbia, $193,480.

Mr. STEVENS: I am not going to object to this vote. However, I wish to ask the minister if it would be permissible under this vote to bring up a matter which does not appear in the Estimates but to which I would like to direct the attention of the committee—I refer to the matter of dry dock facilities at the port of Vancouver. Some objection to the bringing of it up may be raised on almost any item, but as the amount does not appear in the estimates I must call attention to it in connection with some vote or other.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): My hon. friend had better bring it up when we come to consider capital expenditure.

Mr. STEVENS: With all due deference to the minister it is not a capital expenditure. I only wish to have a definite understanding that I can bring the matter up under some item. It is quite customary, in dealing with the estimates, to permit discussion of certain matters in connection with particular items.

[Mr. Leader.]

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I have no objection to discussing it. Perhaps it would suit the hon. gentleman if the discussion took place on dry docks—that would be under capital expenditure.

Mr. STEVENS: I am satisfied so long as that is the understanding.

Item agreed to.

Dredging—Maritime provinces; Ontario and Quebec; Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta; British Columbia, $1,480,000.

Mr. STEVENS: I wonder whether the minister will be good enough to give us a brief statement of what this expenditure covers. I know that it deals with the general dredging vote of the various provinces, and it is one, I think, there should be no objection to; but it would be interesting to the committee to have a brief statement respecting this very large sum, including what amount was spent last year?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): This amount is chiefly for the operation of the various departmental dredging plants in the various provinces, covering their maintenance, the wages paid, and the supplies necessary to keep the plants in operation.

Mr. STEVENS: These supplies are all purchased by tender, are they not, and is that policy to be continued?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes I think so.

Mr. BOYS: Is this a vote for contingencies, or is it based on certain definite items?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): There is a small contingent vote of some $30,000 I think.

Mr. BOYS: I do not wish the minister to go into detail. I desire to bring a matter to the attention of the department. I think it has been mentioned two or three times in the past, and I suppose, strictly speaking, it would come under the heading of dredging. A boat was sunk at the wharf at Big Bay point on lake Simcoe, nine miles from Barrie. I understand it still lies there. It is privately owned, but it is beside the government wharf, and very seriously interferes with navigation. I do not know whether the minister considers it his duty to provide money to remove a boat sunk under those conditions, but from the standpoint of the use of a government wharf, it must be got rid of, if the wharf is to be used. I do not know whether the Government have ever considered what is to be done in that connection.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): That would be a matter for the Marine Department.

Mr. GARDINER: Are there any dredging operations carried on at Port Nelson, and, if so, does this vote include an amount for that dredging?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Not by the Public Works Department; it is Railways and Canals, and I am not conversant with that.

Mr. SALES: Will the minister tell us where dredging takes place in Saskatchewan?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I do not think there is any dredging in Saskatchewan.

Mr. SALES: Will the minister cut out the word "Saskatchewan?"

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I would hardly think that would be wise. I am not sure, but there might be some dredging required there. I understand that is the usual heading.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): What is the reason for the increase in this amount?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): With regard to this increase, we have the report of Chief Engineer Cameron. The present amount includes the operation of the dredge Plamonder which was carried on last year under the appropriation for harbours and rivers Saskatchewan-Alberta. This represents an additional item this year.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): How much?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): There is the additional amount of $45,850, for rebuilding dredges Nos. 201 and 210. The former is a 12-foot hydraulic dredge employed in keeping open the channel at the mouth of the river at lake Winnipeg. The latter is to rebuild the dredge which the department has operated for some years at Winnipegosis on lake Winnipegosis.

Mr. SPEAKMAN: Is this vote purely for the purpose of assisting navigation, or does it include any appropriation for reclamation or drainage work?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Navigation, I think.

Mr. BAXTER: What about dredging in the maritime provinces?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): There is dredging at the following places: Bathurst, in Gloucester county; Bayswater, in Royal county; Campbellton, in Restigouche, and Kennebecasis in Royal, lower St. Louis in Kent county, Millidgeville bay, St. John county, Miramichi bay, Northumberland county, Shediac in Westmoreland, St. Louis river in Kent county, Richibucto harbour in Kent county, and Richibucto cape in Kent county, Moulies river in Kent county, Shediac island in Westmoreland county, Summerville in Royal, Wilson's beach in Charlotte county, and St. Andrews in Charlotte county.

Mr. McBRIDE: Is any of this $400,000 going to be spent in Shuswap lake?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I think not any of this amount.

Mr. McBRIDE: I have had an experience of over twenty years in connection with steamboat work in British Columbia and I do not know of any place more urgently in need of dredging than Shuswap lake. Nothing has been done there now for nearly ten years. The wharf is practically useless and, such as it is, steamboats cannot get near it except at high water. Shuswap lake has a shore mileage of nearly 800 miles and there is practically no road in that vicinity. The people are almost entirely dependent upon the water to get in and out from the farms, and I think something should be done to relieve the situation.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The matter has been under consideration. To carry on the work suggested would mean the construction of a new dredge at that point, and the matter has not been finally decided.

Mr. STEVENS: There is a dredge dismantled on the lake at the present time. All it requires is a scow to work with the dredge. I am almost certain I saw a dredge at Chase or Shuswap last year.

Mr. SIMPSON: Will the minister consider the matter of dredging the St. Mary's river, so as to deepen the channel to correspond with that on the American side, and of improving the entrance at the government wharf at Sault Ste. Marie? I understand one of the Canadian Pacific steamers grounded there a short time ago, and it was detained there some fifteen hours while trying to get into the government wharf.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The only amount that will be spent from this appropriation at that point will be small. No large expenditure will be made.

Mr. SIMPSON: I hope the minister will consider, when he is making up the supplementary estimates, the question of the government wharf at that point.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): If we might refer again to the item for dredging, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, I understood the minister to say that the increase was due to the repairing of a couple of scows and some other work, I did not catch what it was. Would the minister give us the actual amount covering these items?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I will just read the details again. The present amount includes the operation of one dredge, Plamonder, which last year was commenced under the appropriation, harbours and rivers for Saskatchewan and Alberta. This represents an additional item this year. There is also an additional amount asked for of $45,850, for rebuilding dredges Nos. 201 and 210. The former is a 12-foot hydraulic dredge employed in keeping open the channel at the mouth of the Red river. Those are the two items.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): This entire increase then will go to work in Manitoba?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. McBRIDE: Is it not possible to apply some of this $400,000 to dredging at Shuswap lake, to build a dredge and hopper scow? I know the work is very urgent.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I should be very glad to give the matter consideration. If I remember aright, the information which I had in the department was that this meant a very large expenditure for new equipment. The matter will be further considered, and I shall be glad to go into it with my hon. friend.

Mr. McBRIDE: The Dominion engineer, Mr. Doncaster, and I went over the ground, and we came to the conclusion that the plant required to do the work would cost about $37,000, not a very large sum.

Item agreed to.

Roads and bridges—Burlington channel—to complete new bridge, $20,000.

Mr. ANDERSON: What has the Burlington channel bridge cost to date?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The amount of the contract was $228,896. There is also inspection and contingencies amounting to $19,004.

Item agreed to.

Edmonton—repairs to bridge, $12,000.

Mr. KENNEDY (Edmonton): What is this bridge, and what are the specific repairs?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): This was a bridge built during the territorial days in the province of Alberta.

Mr. KENNEDY (Edmonton): Is that across the Saskatchewan?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The province is to carry a portion of the cost. On April 10, 1911, an arrangement was made with the city of Edmonton and the Edmonton, Yukon and Pacific Railway Company—Canadian Northern—that the cost of maintenance and repairs should be borne equally by the city of Edmonton, the Edmonton, Yukon and Pacific Railway Company, and the Department of Public Works.

Item agreed to.

Telegraph and telephone lines—Saskatchewan and Alberta, $7,800.

Mr. EVANS: With regard to the item "telegraph lines generally," there is an old telegraph line that was built away back in the eighties which is still intact, running from Humboldt to Fort Pitt in Saskatchewan. This line is of no earthly use. It runs through the fields and is in the way of the farmers. Last year, at a cost of some hundreds of dollars, part of it was removed to the road allowance. It runs all the way alongside the Canadian Northern main line which is equipped with telegraph service. The old line is never used, and it is only a source of expense. There are two or three line repairers and two or three telegraph operators, all getting fair wages, I believe, and they could be used for some other useful purpose. What is the policy of the minister in regard to this line? It might as well be taken down and the material used or sold localy in the construction of telephone lines.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The policy of the department is to withdraw from any field where other service is being given. The Dominion telegraph and telephone service is not intended to serve the more closely settled places, but rather to reach out into fields where private enterprise would not go. I would be glad if my hon. friend would discuss the matter he speaks of with me, and if it is possible for us to withdraw from that field, we would be glad to do so, and to dispose of what plant and equipment we have.

Mr. SALES: It has been possible for the last fifteen years to withdraw the service which my hon. friend (Mr. Evans) speaks of. I used to live near this line, and it is of no earthly use.

Mr. MacKELVIE: The minister stated a moment ago that it was not the policy of the Government to continue telephone lines in sections where other lines were in operation. Does that policy apply to the Okanagan district in British Columbia?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): My hon. friend knows there are always local conditions to be considered when discussing the advantages of any public service. We have been giving some consideration to the situation, but I am not in a position to say that the Government are prepared to abandon their lines in that district.

Item agreed to.

British Columbia—telegraph and telephone lines, $23,000.

Mr. McBRIDE: I am sorry that this estimate is reduced from last year. If there is anything that induces people to stay in a rural district—and make their home there—it is an adequate telephone service. I think the minister should have increased rather than decreased the vote.

Item agreed to.

Public Works—Miscellaneous, $984,200.

Mr. STEVENS: This item contains many miscellaneous votes. It refers to a drydock, and immediately connected with that are subsidies to five dry docks. Was the contract entered into by the Government with the Burrard Dry Dock Company properly drawn, and in accordance with the provisions of the Dry Dock Subsidies Act?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. STEVENS: I desire to bring to the attention of the committee very briefly a matter of great importance. I may give a very brief history of the drydock situation at Vancouver. I notice, by the way, that the minister is apparently not listening. I should like to engage his attention if he will be kind enough to listen to me, because this is a very importnat matter. About the year 1912, or 1913, the first attempt was made to provide for a drydock in the port of Vancouver under the Dry Dock Subsidies Act; but the outbreak of the war prevented that scheme from being proceeded with. Recently, within the last two years, the Wallace Shipyards, one of the oldest shipbuilding concerns on the Pacific coast, which is a successful organization that has been operating for thirty years, and Mr. J. J. Coughlin, whose firm constructed a number of ships of about eight thousand tons each, during the war, combined and made application, under the Dry Dock Subsidies Act, for a subsidy for the construction of a 15,000-ton dry dock in Vancouver. Under the act they had to comply with certain conditions, and these were all carefully observed. Ultimately, about a year and a half ago, I think an Order in Council was passed authorizing the Minister of Public Works to enter into what is known as the Subsidy Contract. The Subsidy Contract was finally signed, after a great deal of checking up by the officials of the department and the chief engineer. That contract was in every sense a compliance with the act. I have not been able to learn of a single objection to it so far as the law is concerned. Recently, most unexpectedly, the minister has announced that this dry dock is not to be proceeded with. I desire to lay before the committee some very pertinent reasons why the work should be undertaken. A short time ago I asked the minister for some information. He gave me certain facts and stated that he had no information on the other points, which I am now able to supply. I asked regarding the various ports of Canada. One of my questions was as to the tonnage in the major ports of the Dominion. The minister replied that he had no information on this point. I cannot understand why that statement should have been made, because I was able to get the information subsequently from the reports of the Customs Department. I will give the tonnage of the ports and point out to the committee that the port which has the largest tonnage in Canada is the only one that is absolutely without any dry dock facilities. The following are the figures:

Port	Total	Inwards	Outwards
Victoria, B.C...	8,325,722	4,168,992	4,156,730
Vancouver, B.C.	12,383,807	6,112,624	6,271,183
St. John, N.B..	2,719,394	1,359,711	1,359,683
Montreal, P.Q..	11,401,883	5,596,499	5,805,384
Quebec, P.Q...	3,656,198	1,829,879	1,826,319
Halifax, N.S...	4,424,777	2,227,216	2,197,557

Now, of all these, which are the major ports of Canada, the port of Vancouver has the largest tonnage. It exceeds Montreal by almost one million tons. But it is only fair to state that Montreal is closed for five months of the year while Vancouver is open the year round. That, however, does not alter the fact that the tonnage, inwards and outwards, in the port of Vancouver exceeds any other port in Canada, some of them by two, three or four million tons. I have a return showing the dry dock facilities of all these ports and will briefly refer to that. The figures are:

	Length ft.	Breadth at entrance ft.	Depth over sill ft.
Victoria	450	65	28
Victoria (being built)	1,150	135	40
Prince Rupert	600	110	32
Halifax	567	89	28
St. John	1,150	133	42
Quebec, Lorne	600	57	25
Champlain	1,153	120	40
Montreal	601	110	31

It will be seen from this that every port except Vancouver has dry dock facilities, although they all have very much less tonnage than that port.

Now I come to the point. The contract for the dry dock that we have asked for in Vancouver was entered into by the then Minister of Public Works, on behalf of the government of Canada, under the Drydocks Subsidies Act, which was passed in 1910. Under that act any company may make application to the Dominion government for a subsidy—in this case amounting to 4 per cent on $2,500,000—providing certain regulations and provisions are complied with. This company complied with every detail of the requirements of the act. The government of the day went carefully into the matter, not just prior to the election but a year ago last January, if I am not mistaken, and an Order in Council was passed authorizing the construction of the dock. During the interim engineers of the department checked the plans, and corrections and changes were made; for instance, the dock was changed from a graving to a floating dock, until finally the subsidy contract itself was signed, as I have already stated.

We cannot understand why the minister should, without any reason so far as I can see, arbitrarily cancel this contract for a dry dock in the port of Vancouver, the tonnage of which exceeds that of any other port in Canada. It is useless to say that a dry dock at Victoria will serve the tonnage entering and leaving the port of Vancouver. I am not criticizing Victoria, Prince Rupert or any other port on the Pacific coast, but I want the House to understand that Vancouver is the point of discharge for ocean ships. But a great deal of our repair work is done on the oriental side of the Pacific at Hong Kong, Shanghai, and other ports, because those also are ports of discharge, and ships being then again empty, repairs are done there which should and might properly be done in Vancouver.

I have a telegram here from the Vancouver Board of Trade, dated May 18, 1922, addressed to myself, which I should like to read. It is as follows:

> At a mass meeting held last evening attended by over twelve hundred citizens of the Lower Mainland representing the centres of Vancouver, New Westminster, Port Moody, North Vancouver, Point Grey, West Vancouver, Chilliwack, Cloverdale, Surrey, Abbottsford, Mission, Langley, Soluth Vancouver, together with representatives of over eighty organizations in the city of Vancouver called together by the Mayor of Vancouver and President of the Board of Trade to discuss the telegram received from the Honourable Doctor King intimating that your Government had decided not to continue the work on the Vancouver drydock, unanimously passed the following resolution.
>
> This mass meeting does here and now register a most emphatic protest against the action of the Government in refusing to continue with the work of providing a drydock for Vancouver. The meeting further resolved to request the Dominion government to immediately reconsider their decision and that the Honourable Doctor King be urged to come to Vancouver at the earliest moment for investigation purposes with a view to providing this much needed utility. Letter follows.

The hon. member for Burrard (Mr. Clark) who has been called away by the death of his sister, would like to make a few remarks in regard to this item, and if the minister will permit, under this or some other item, further discussion of this matter when he has given consideration to what I have already said, his courtesy will, I am sure, be appreciated.

At six o'clock the Speaker resumed the Chair, and the House toook recess.

After Recess

The House resumed at eight o'clock.

PRIVATE BILLS

THIRD READING

Bill No. 5, respecting the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.—Mr. Knox.

CONSIDERED IN COMMITTEE—THIRD READINGS

Bill No. 21, to incorporate Buffalo and Fort Erie Public Bridge Company.—Mr. German.

Bill No. 50, to incorporate The Sisters of Saint Mary of Namur.—Mr. Demers.

Bill No. 72 (from the Senate), for the relief of Joseph Robert Lloyd Beamish.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 73 (from the Senate), for the relief of Clarence Robinson Miners.—Mr. White.

Bill No. 74 (from the Senate), for the relief of Mary Eleanor Menton.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 75 (from the Senate), for the relief of Harvey Easton Jenner.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 77 (from the Senate), for the relief of Alexander Lawrie.—Mr. Gordon.

Bill No. 81 (from the Senate), for the relief of Alexander Frederick Naylor.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 82 (from the Senate), for the relief of Margaret Yallowley Jones Conalty.—Mr. Jacobs.

Bill No. 84 (from the Senate), for the relief of Daisy Mary Nicholson.—Mr. Macdonald (Pictou).

Bill No. 86 (from the Senate), for the relief of Edwin Dixon Weir.—Mr. Rankin.

Bill No. 87 (from the Senate), for the relief of Henry James Bristol.—Mr. Boys.

Bill No. 88 (from the Senate), for the relief of Florant Brys.—Mr. Macdonald (Pictou).

Bill No. 89 (from the Senate), for the relief of Catherine Rudd.—Mr. Ryckman.

Bill No. 90 (from the Senate), for the relief of Norman Edward Harris.—Mr. Ryckman.

Bill No. 91 (from the Senate), for the relief of Maria Amy Drury.—Mr. Stewart (Hamilton).

SECOND READINGS

Bill No. 94 (from the Senate), for the relief of George Daly.—Mr. McMaster.

Bill No. 95 (from the Senate), for the relief of Wrae Elizabeth Snider.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 96 (from the Senate), for the relief of Oliver Kelly.—Mr. Rankin.

Bill No. 97 (from the Senate), for the relief of Vera Hamlin.—Mr. Ryckman.

Bill No. 98 (from the Senate), for the relief of George Drewery.—Mr. Stewart (Hamilton).

Bill No. 99 (from the Senate), for the relief of Kate Holmes.—Mr. Hocken.

Bill No. 100 (from the Senate), for the relief of Ernest Hull.—Mr. Duff.

Bill No. 101 (from the Senate), for the relief of Leslie George Dewsbury.—Mr. Church.

Bill No. 102 (from the Senate), for the relief of John Douglas Stewart.—Mr. Sheard.

Bill No. 104 (from the Senate), for the relief of Helen Garrett.—Mr. Ryckman.

Bill No. 105 (from the Senate), for the relief of Arthur Leslie Smith.—Mr. Ryckman.

SUPPLY

PUBLIC WORKS

The House in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Public Works—miscellaneous, $984,200.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Before six o'clock the member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) had spoken on the matter of dry dock accommodation at Vancouver. He requested that an opportunity be also given the member for Burrard (Mr. Clark) at a later date to discuss the same subject. I am rather anxious that we should proceed with Supply, but I may tell my hon. friend that an opportunity will be given the member for Burrard, possibly under the Supplementary Estimates, if that is satisfactory.

Mr. STEVENS: The committee will realize that the request I have made on behalf of the hon. member for Burrard is not without good reason. As I intimated, he has been called away by the death of a member of his family, and I have asked that he be allowed on another occasion to discuss the matter because he is very anxious to present his views upon it. I have no desire to interfere with the progress of the estimates, but it is somewhat difficult to know under just what item the matter can be again taken up. If the minister can give me an assurance, that is all I require.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): There will be no difficulty about the matter.

Mr. LADNER: I have received a very strong telegram conveying the views of the people of the lower mainland, and, I think I may safely say, of the province of British Columbia, in regard to this question. One of the features of the election campaign was the unanimity of both parties on the point that above all things the dry dock in Vancouver would be proceeded with, no matter what party was returned to power. We heard that on many occasions, although there were vague rumours from the East that perhaps some thing might happen in the event of the present Government being returned to office. Now, a dry dock is a business necessity. The member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) went into the details of this particular matter. I shall not do so, but in a word, I would urge upon the minister the importance of proceeding with this work. Ships leave this port for China, Japan, New Zealand, Australia, California, Mexico, South America and various places on the Pacific, and yet it is the only port of any considerable size in Canada without dry dock facilities. It is contended that sooner or later Victoria will have a dry dock that will provide for all our needs; but if I understand the situation rightly it will be four or five years before that dock is completed. The dock which it was contemplated to build at Vancouver would be completed, we understood, within a comparatively short time. I hope the Government will realize what it means to the people of Vancouver to have this dock built. We have guarding that great port, on the top of Crown mountain, two peaks having the appearance of crouching lions. They watch over the harbour, and I want to warn my hon. friends in the Government that these silent figures may make themselves heard before long. My hon. friends may hear their roar in a short while when the provincial elections come on. However, that is another side of the question; I am simply emphasizing the importance, from a purely business point of view, of proceeding with the construction of this dry dock. All the important organizations and public bodies throughout the lower mainland are at a loss to understand why the government of a great country like this can cancel a contract for such an undertaking in a city like Vancouver, the possible maximum liability being only about $112,000 a year. When we consider the large amount of money spent in other portions of the country, and realize the necessity of completing this project, the committee will readily appreciate the difficulty of explaining the Government's action to the people in that part of Canada.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): This matter will undoubtedly come before the committee again, and I shall not take up time to-night discussing it. I will reserve my remarks until a later date. I am glad that the information in regard to the port of Vancouver has been submitted to the House; hon. members will have an opportunity of learning just the amount of business that passes through that port. I shall not discuss the question at this juncture.

Mr. HOEY: I was not in the House when the items for Manitoba were being considered, and there is a matter I should like to refer to. I received this morning, from a reeve in the municipality of Lac du Bonnet, a letter on behalf of the mail carriers in that district. He informs me that they are unable to reach their destination owing to the dilapidated state of a certain bridge on the Winnipeg river. It would seem from this letter that this is a matter that ought to receive the immediate attention of the department. I shall be glad to hand the communication to the minister at any time.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I shall be pleased to have the information, although I do not know of any Dominion bridge in that vicinity.

Mr. HOEY: The matter comes within the purview of the Dominion department inasmuch as the mail carriers cannot reach Bird river and Littonia in their gasoline launches.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): How much money was spent on the National Gallery of Canada last year, and what accounts for the increase this year?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Of the vote of $40,000 last year, some $39,000 was spent. An expenditure of $50,000 is estimated for this year. The work is carried on under a board authorized by statute, who undertake the care of works of art and see to their exhibition in various parts of the country.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): According to the Auditor General's report, the amount spent last year was $19,982.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): That was the year before; the expenditure last year was $39,000.

Mr. THURSTON: A little further down I notice there is an item for river gauging and metering. Last year the appropriation was $23,450; this year it is $63,200. Why this increase?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Eleven thousand dollars was spent last year. We are asking for $23,000 this year.

Item agreed to.

Graving docks, locks and dams, etc.—Working expenses, etc.
Graving docks (a)	$103,400
Harbour and river works, etc. (b)	60,500
Collection of Public Works revenues	5,000
	$168,900

Mr. GUTHRIE: Is this money spent for repairs?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Maintenance, repairs and operation.

Mr. GUTHRIE: It is about the usual vote?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Item agreed to.

Telegraph and Telephone Lines—
Prince Edward Island and mainland	$ 7,000
Land and cable telegraph lines, Lower St. Lawrence and Maritime Provinces, including working expenses of vessels required for cable service	225,000
Saskatchewan	78,400
Alberta	121,500
British Columbia—mainland	102,000
British Columbia—Vancouver Island District	126,000
Yukon System (Ashcroft-Dawson)	279,000
Telegraph and telephone service—generally	10,000
	$948,900

Mr. GOOD: Is this money spent for maintenance, construction or operation?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Maintenance and operation.

Mr. GOOD: What is the general proportion between the operating expenses and the line maintenance cost?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Under the second item, land and cable telegraph lines, lower St. Lawrence and maritime provinces, including working expenses of vessels required for cable service, I find: Expenditure on staff, $130,000; repairs and supplies, $95,000; making a total of $225,000 for last year.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): There is an item for Alberta telegraph and telephone lines of $121,000 odd. Do those lines pay?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): No, they do not.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Are those telegraph lines along the railway?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): They are not along the railway lines except in northern British Columbia, where they follow the Grand Trunk Pacific. With regard to the Alberta expenses, I find: expenditure on staff, $71,000; repairs and supplies, $95,000.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): What I want to know is where the lines are.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): We will probably get on better if I answer one question at a time.

Mr. GOOD: The answer is quite satisfactory. I do not wish the minister to divide the expenses in each item; I merely want a rough approximation as to the relation between the operating and maintenance costs.

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the resolution carry?

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): No. I should like the minister to answer my question.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The lines are located as followers: Onion lake-Edmonton line, 222 miles; Peace river line, 754 miles; Fort McMurray, 245 miles; Lac La Biche line, 78 miles; telephone lines (scattered), 126½ miles; or a total of about 1,425 miles in Alberta.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Are these lines used for commercial purposes, as, if so, they would be a source of revenue?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes, they are used for commercial purposes, and they are a source of revenue.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Does this vote represent the deficit? Is there a counter entry representing the revenue from these lines?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): A revenue account is kept in the department, but this vote is for operation and maintenance only.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Then the revenue account does not come under this estimate at all?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): No.

Mr. CARMICHAEL: The provincial government of Saskatchewan owns and controls all telephone lines within the province. Has the Dominion Department of Public Works control of any telephone lines there? If so, where are those lines located?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Qu'Appelle-Onion lake, 490 miles; Battleford-Isle la Crosse, 298 miles; Moosejaw-Wood Mountain, 212 miles; making a total of 1,000 miles.

Mr. CARMICHAEL: That is mileage that was built by the department and is still being operated by it?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): Yes.

Mr. HODGINS: Is any money necessary for the maintenance of the Ontario lines?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I have not the Ontario mileage. It is comparatively small.

Item agreed to.

St. John harbour—improvements, $850,000.

Mr. BAXTER: I would like to ask whether the vote for St. John harbour is to be devoted entirely to the construction of Courtenay bay or whether the minister can hold out any hope that the very much needed work of extending the Negro Point breakwater to Partridge Island will be carried on this year.

I do not wish to take up much time, because I think the minister has some knowledge at all events of the gravity of that situation, and I am sure the officers of his department understand it thoroughly. The Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) was recently in St. John, and I am sure that from a personal inspection he too, has been impressed with the necessity of this work. The work of course, is necessarily a local one, because you cannot build a breakwater without a locality, but it is a most important work, not alone from the standpoint of the city which is in its vicinity, but from the viewpoint that the federal government has expended millions of dollars in digging out to a depth sufficient to float very large ocean steamships, a large space of territory between the breakwater and the present wharves. The government has also spent a large amount of money in providing very modern and first-class piers, but the outer berth at these piers is utterly impossible of utilization and the other two berths that lie between the piers can only be used under advantageous weather conditions. It means, that in the port of St. John, while we have very excellent though limited accommodation, we cannot count on being able to take advantage of that accommodation at all times during the winter. If there is a storm from the south of even moderate severity, it renders these berths simply impracticable for shipping and since the large dredging operations in Courtenay bay, I think the undertow on the west side has been increased. I am not asking to stop any work in St. John harbour, but I would like very much to have the minister show an ability to hold out some hope that this very pressing necessity might be grappled with before next fall.

I believe the department once had under consideration, not an expensive means of doing the work, but a comparatively inexpensive means. At first the engineers insisted on having large granite blocks which would have to be quarried at some distance and brought, at a great cost to the site, but I know that more recently representations have been made that the stone of which Partridge island is composed would be perfectly good, if taken off in sufficiently large quantities, and by a very simple device it would be possible to transport that stone by means of an overhead cable and drop it into this gap, reducing the cost of construction to a minimum. I do not want to elaborate on how this thing can be done but I would like to know that the necessity of doing the work in what I might call the immediate future is engaging the attention of the Government, and I would also like to know whether the Government thinks it can see its way clear to carry on this work.

Mr. MacLAREN: Might I add a word on the same subject? I would not urge the minister to undertake at the present time a work that is not imperative, but when a work is in my view absolutely imperative I would take the opportunity, as I do now, of impressing upon him the importance, not exactly of undertaking a new work, but the completion of an old work, and that is the extension of the Negro Point breakwater to which my colleague has just referred, to the adjacent island known as Partridge island. I am quite aware that the minister is familiar with the geography of the area I have mentioned, and it is at the request of the Board of Trade of St. John that I am bringing this matter for ward. I understand that the Board of Trade have also communicated with the minister direct in regard to this matter? Why do I urge this? I urge it for the protection of the wharves, of the shipping, and of the work in Courtenay bay—for the protection of all three. During stormy weather, as happened on more than one occasion last winter, the wharves on both sides of the harbour suffered considerable damage. Not only that, but several steamers suffered damage from being pounded against these wharves during the gale. Furthermore, gales have the result of washing sand into the area of Courtenay bay which is now being dredged for the provision of extensions for the Atlantic service, the sand coming in as the dredging is being done. I would therefore urge the minister to undertake this work as it is imperative to save property, as well as loss in connection with the work that is actually going on. The object, I think, will be clear to the House. The extension of the breakwater will prevent the seas washing into the harbour under the influence of winds coming from certain directions. I also should be pleased if the minister could give us some encouraging statement regarding this matter.

Mr. KING (Kootenay): This amount of $850,000 is for the continuation of the work in Courtenay bay, and an amount of $65,000 will be required for maintenance and general repairs within the harbour. No provision has been made by the Government for the extension of the breakwater to which my hon. friends from St. John have been referring. Undoubtedly that is a work of great importance to the harbour and it will also involve a very considerable expenditure, but it is not the purpose of the Government to proceed with it this year.

Item agreed to.

Otttawa Parliament buildings, $700,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Will this vote complete the work?

Mr. GOOD: Would the minister tell us what this money is for?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): First, let me say in reply to my hon. friend from South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) this vote will not complete the buildings. In answer to my hon. friend from Brant (Mr. Good), I will give the details of this expenditure.

General conditions—salaries of staff maintenance of plant, upkeep of staff		$ 8,000
Roadways		52,650
Carpentry and doors		9,000
Post Office fittings		10,000
Stone carving and modelling for interior		35,000
Pointing stonework, etc.		4,000
Painting and decorating		10,000
Electrical work, including maintenance		18,000
Special lighting fixtures		25,000
Bronze work, vestibules, handrail and standards		11,500
Wrought iron works, outside light standards, etc.		10,000
Main Tower—
Amount required for cutting stone	$111,025
Required for erection if plans received so work can be started in April	136,956
Amount for setting stone stair	5,000
Amount for steel work	2,000
		254,981
Balance due Subs. on contracts and extras		66,000
Furniture		150,000
Miscellaneous to cover contingencies		35,869
Total		$700,000

Mr. GUTHRIE: Will the minister tell us the amount spent to date on these buildings?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The amount expended up to 31st March was $10,275,269.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Has the minister any estimate of what it will cost to complete the work?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): It will cost probably in the vicinity of another million.

Mr. RYCKMAN: Has any provision been made for the payment of the fees of the architect, Mr. John Pearson?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): If Mr. Pearson undertakes new work, such as the completion of the tower, that would have to be provided for. Probably my hon. friend is referring to some accounts now outstanding with Mr. Pearson. That matter is under consideration by the department, and we are hoping for an adjustment, but we have not made provision at present for the fees that are claimed by Mr. Pearson.

Mr. RYCKMAN: I would like to make an appeal to the minister. I am not instructed in this matter by the architect, nor do I hold any brief for him, but it does seem to me that he is entitled to remuneration. This building is a magnificent structure, as we all know, and the original contract called for an expenditure of $5,000,000. We know that an agreement was entered into; it has been referred to by many who are familiar with its terms—they are common property. Such a magnificent building could never have been put up for the sum of $5,000,000, especially in the times that have elapsed since the contract was first contemplated. The Dominion government entered into a contract to remunerate Mr. John Pearson at a certain rate, a rate I am familiar with. On a maximum expenditure of $5,000,000 he was to be paid 4½ per cent, in my opinion a very moderate amount. The original estimate of $5,000,000 was expended, and by reason of the enhanced cost of everything entering into the construction, a larger outlay was necessary. Mr. Pearson was asked by the committee having the work of construction in charge, to do the necessary additional work; and I am sure the minister must be aware that even if no bargain whatever was entered into as to this extra work Mr. Pearson would be entitled, as a matter of law to remuneration for whatever he did upon the instructions of that committee. I have no doubt the Department of Public Works has already had legal advice in the matter, and I am satisfied that the legal advisers of the Grown have told the minister that the Crown is under obligation to the architect. Now that we have such a magnificent building I submit it is derogatory to the grace and the dignity of the Crown that this matter should become a subject of common talk, and that hardship should have been caused to the architect. He is entitled to a very large sum of money, but by reason of not having his claim satisfied or, seeing that there is a dispute, receiving a substantial sum on account, he has had to undergo hardship. I repeat it is not in accordance with the grace and dignity of the Crown that there should have been anything of the kind. I submit, therefore, to the minister that a payment should be made to the architect at once, and that this matter should be taken up in a business way and a settlement arrived at. If it is impossible for the Crown to reach a settlement with Mr. Pearson, then he should be given a fiat in order to enable him to take proceedings for the recovery of his claim.

Mr. MARTELL: Will my hon. friend tell me who is responsible for the condition which obtains?

Mr. RYCKMAN: I will answer my hon. friend by saying this: If I had undertaken to do this work, and if the appropriation, under the contract as at first contemplated, was exhausted, and my employer told me to proceed and spend twice as much I would ask him for the payment of something on account. I would remind that employer of the provisions of the arrangement under which I was first employed and to which he was quite willing to agree when the contract was first undertaken. I have found Mr. Pearson to be a reasonable man. Furthermore, I am sure he does not have the least idea that I am saying one word on his behalf to-night; but I must say to the minister that I have heard this matter greatly talked about.

Mr. MARTELL: May I ask my hon. friend another question?

Mr. RYCKMAN: My hon. friend may ask any question he likes and I will answer it to the best of my ability, but I would like now to conclude what I have to say. I have heard of it since I came to Ottawa, and I heard of it in the East and in the West. Surely, if this is a business government, they should get to work and reach some modus vivendi with the architect, and carry on until the building is completed. If an arrangement cannot be made with the architect, discharge him, get some other architect and go ahead. The statement that the late government was to blame is no answer. I am not trying to excuse them for any blame that may rest upon them in connection with this matter. I believe if this thing goes on, it will result in a scandal if this magnificent building which we admire so much, in which there is a spirit which cannot be found elsewhere, be left in an uncompleted condition.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. RYCKMAN: My hon friends have taken a meaning out of my remarks which pleases them more than it occupies my mind. I was thinking of the nobility of this building and how it must impress every one who comes within its precincts. I say that it is a pity to have it go abroad that, by reason of this letter, which in law I submit is no defence, they are going to have a wrangle with the architect, that the building is not going to be completed, things are to remain at a standstill and the country is to suffer.

Mr. MARTELL: Was there not a contract let by the late government? If so, why was it that a dispute occurred between them and the architect? Why is my hon. friend so impatient and in such a hurry for the present administration, before they have had an opportunity to fully consider the case, to rectify a mistake made by the late government? The nobility of the building is not sufficient justification for the payment of enormous fees.

Mr. RYCKMAN: I think it would be well if the hon. member directed this question to the Minister of Public Works. My hon. friend is giving the matter a twist as I said nothing to warrant his remark. I have not suggested that one cent more than a fair and just remuneration should be paid. My point is that there is money owing, and if there is money owing, it should be paid.

Mr. MARTELL: I presume my hon. friend is a lawyer, and if so, he must know that a person is bound by a written contract. If the architect guaranteed with the government of Canada to erect this building at a certain maximum cost, then why should he be paid for more than that cost?

Mr. RYCKMAN: I have seen the letter and the letter shows that my hon. friend's premises are incorrect.

Mr. BAXTER: I would ask the hon. member for Hants (Mr. Martell) if he thinks there is a written contract which would justify the previous government in refusing to make a payment to the government architect, why he prefaces his remarks by an attempt to make it appear before the country that the late government did something wrong? Is it so absolutely necessary to sneer at the late government and belabour it on every occasion?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): I think the committee should understand the position which exists today in regard to the Parliament Buildings, and the payment of the amount claimed by Mr. Pearson. When the buildings were first started an arrangement was made whereby a committee of this House, appointed by the leaders of the two parties, undertook to carry on the construction of this building. Up to date that work has been performed by this committee. Arrangements with the architect were made with the knowledge of the committee, and when the cost began to exceed $5,000,000, a claim was made by Mr. Pearson for further commission. An investigation was made by that committee and they recommended that he should be paid a commission on some $2,000,000, in addition to the five million that had been expended. That is the recommendation that is before the Public Works Department to-day. As hon. members may understand, many members of the committee that acted up to December of last year are not now in Parliament, and there is to-day no committee. As far as the Public Works Department is concerned, we have certain recommendations and minutes coming from this committee which suggests a fair settlement with Mr. Pearson. Mr. Pearson has not seen fit to accept the suggestion of that committee. He is contending for a larger commission, rightly or wrongly. Up to date commissions have been paid, to Mr. Pearson, to the amount of some $289,000 and to Mr. Marchand some $52,000, making a total of $342,000 paid in architects' commissions. The hon. member from East Toronto (Mr. Ryckman) suggested that the Government should issue a fiat. As far as we are concerned we have no great objection, if that is the wish, to issue a fiat, and let Mr. Pearson go to court. It is true suggestions have been made that we should get together and arrive at something that would be equitable and fair. Personally, I take the position, as far as the Department of Public Works is concerned, that in taking over this work that was formerly under the control of a committee of Parliament, we must, at least, accept their suggestion in matters with which they had been dealing up to the time the committee ceased to exist. That is the position of the claim to-day. It is receiving further consideration. I may, in the course of a few days, make some recommendation to the Government in regard to it.

Mr. MANION: What is the intention of the Department of Public Works regarding the tower? An item appeared in the press stating that it was the intention not to proceed any further with the building of the tower. Is the minister ready to make a statement with regard to that?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): It is not proposed to continue the construction of the tower this year. We may ask to have plans prepared with a view to going on next session.

Mr. RYCKMAN: I was not in any sense levelling an attack at the present minister who has been in his office such a short time. I was hoping that I would have from the minister an assurance—which I think the minister has given me, and which I hope I can take as an assurance—that this matter will be taken up and remedied at as early a date as possible.

Mr. GARDINER: Can the minister give us any information as to why the building has cost so much more than was intended in the first place?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): The building is more elaborate and much larger than intended in the first place, and we are all familiar with the increase in cost of material and supplies generally. I think that would account for the great increase in cost.

Mr. GOOD: Is that item of $700,000 for work that has been done or that is to be done?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): That is to be done.

Mr. GARDINER: Were there any specific contracts entered into between the government and contractors with regard to this building?

Mr. KING (Kootenay): There is a contract with the firm of Peter Lyall and Sons on a percentage, or force account basis.

Item agreed to.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Department of Health—the administration of the acts respecting Food and Drugs, Honey and Maple Products, and Opium and Narcotic Drugs, $115,565.

Mr. MANION: Will the minister explain the large increase in this estimate from $80,000 to $111,565?

Hon. H. S. BELAND (Minister of the Department of Health): There is an increase in this estimate of $31,565, which is accounted for, first by the payment of seven officials who live outside of Ottawa and who formerly were paid out of civil government. They consist of one analyst in the Montreal laboratory, one analyst at Halifax, two analysts at Winnipeg, two analysts at Vancouver, and one senior inspector of food at Vancouver. That will account for $19,565 of the increase. The remaining $12,000 of the increase is due to the naturally increasing work in connection with the enforcement of the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act.

Mr. MANION: We are all interested in regard to the habit-forming character of the different drugs, and I should be pleased if the minister would give to the committee a brief sketch of the work that is going on in his department in its endeavour to eliminate the drug habit in this country.

Mr. BELAND: This work is being followed very closely. Though the quantity of narcotics entering into Canada through ordinary, permitted channels has immensely decreased during the last three years, I am sorry to convey to the committee the information that the illicit introduction of opium and its derivatives, such as morphine, heroin and cocaine has considerably increased. The smuggling in of opium is carried on particularly on the western coast, whilst the illicit introduction of other drugs, such as cocaine for example, is carried on especially through eastern ports. I may, if I am permitted for a moment, give to the committee the number of prosecutions and convictions by provinces and also by professions and nationalities entered during the year just ended:

Province	Doctor	Druggists	Veterinary Surgeons	Other illicit dealers	Chinamen.
British Columbia	4	0	0	11	300
Alberta	3	0	1	28	59
Saskatchewan	0	0	0	15	73
Manitoba	0	6	0	9	0
Ontario	2	0	0	12	52
Quebec, not including Montreal	7	0	0	4	10
Montreal	3	5	3	82	123
New Brunswick	4	0	0	1	9
Nova Scotia	0	0	0	1	8
Prince Edward Island	0	0	0	0	0
Total of prosecutions and convictions	23	11	4	163	634

That makes a total during the last year of 835 convictions. This will convey to the committee the extent of the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs in Canada. For this reason, it is the intention of the department to follow up as closely as possible and to prosecute illicit dealers in the year just commencing.

Mr. McKENZIE: Did I understand the minister to say that he got a conviction in each prosecution?

Mr. BELAND: Those are all convictions.

Mr. McKENZIE: I was thinking the minister must have had his own magistrate.

Mr. MARCIL (Bonaventure): Are the convictions followed by fines or imprisonment?

Mr. BELAND: In those cases the sentence is fine or imprisonment.

Mr. HOEY: Have any Japanese been convicted of dealing in narcotics during the past year?

Mr. BELAND: There is no record of any Japanese being prosecuted.

Mr. MANION: I should like to ask the minister a rather pertinent question; in fact, perhaps, somebody might call it impertinent. The statement is often made, in the press of a certain type at least, that the drug habit in this country is increasing —and I think I am right in stating that it is increasing, according to the number of prosecutions which the minister has mentioned—by virtue of the fact that temperance or prohibition measures have been taken in different provinces of this Dominion. I presume that such men as Doctor Amyot, the deputy minister, and other able officers in this department, have opinions on the matter which they have expressed to the minister. I am sure that the committee will be pleased to have a statement from the minister on the subject.

Mr. BELAND: My hon. friend is imposing a considerable task upon me. I am indeed not in a position to furnish any information in this regard. Whether the use of alcohol would tend to abate to any extent the illicit desire for drugs, it is not for me to say. My impression, however, is that it makes no difference.

Mr. STEVENS: The minister could ascertain from the provincial returns whether there was a smaller percentage of prosecutions for the illicit use of drugs in British Columbia and in Montreal or Quebec than elsewhere. These two provinces are what are known commonly as "wet" territories, and if the prosecutions there were markedly less than elsewhere the suggestion would have some foundation, that the use of alcohol has a restrictive effect on the use of drugs.

Mr. BELAND: I am afraid that if that were true, British Columbia would be amply justified in having indulged in the liquor trade, because the number of convictions in the matter of drugs is a good deal larger there than elsewhere. But I do not believe that the liquor habit and the drug habit have very much relation to each other. It is true that in British Columbia the liquor traffic is permitted under certain legislative regulations, and it is equally true that it is in that province that the largest number of convictions for the illicit use of drugs have taken place. But the large number of convictions against illicit traders in narcotics in British Columbia would, I should think, naturally result from the geographic situation of that province. I presume that there is a larger number of Chinamen in Vancouver and Victoria than in any other city in the Dominion, and the proximity of these places to the Orient would perhaps account for the greater extent of the trade.

Mr. MANION: I do not wish to be understood as making the statement that the increase in the use of drugs is due to any corresponding decrease in the use of alcohol. I simply state that a portion of the press frequently makes that statement, and I thought in all seriousness that perhaps some of the officials of the department might have given a positive opinion on the matter. The minister, I think, did state that there was an increasing use of these drugs, which I take it include not only opium but morphine, cocaine and the various other habit-forming drugs, and possibly the number of prosecutions may be due to a stricter enforcement of the law. I may have misunderstood the minister, but I thought he said that it was the opinion of the department that the use of these drugs is on the increase. If that is the case—and the minister nods his head—would he be willing to give the opinion of some of his officers as to the cause of the increase? Or has any such opinion been expressed to him by the officers of the department?

Mr. BELAND: I am unable to give any reasons for the apparent increase. As my hon. friend, who is conversant with medical matters, knows, it is very difficult to say whether the use of narcotics has really increased. Apparently it has, and this may be due to the fact that the department has been very closely prosecuting the illicit traders. But we have no report in the department that assigns any reasons for the increase. Possibly, as in some other lines, the traders have found it very profitable to deal in these drugs, and the habit has spread among some of our compatriots, and is practised by more foreigners than in previous years. I can only say that it is most regrettable that the trade should have reached such proportions, and that is one reason why we shall require a little more money to bring to the enforcement of this act as much activity as possible.

Mr. STEVENS: I wish to bring to the attention of the minister a matter which I think is very important. The committee will have noted that in the number of prosecutions a very large percentage were aliens. I believe that a very considerable proportion of them were orientals. In British Columbia, where we realize, more than any other part of the country does, the connection between Canada and the Orient in the supplying of these drugs, and where we have been right up against the problem, so to speak, we have been asking that those found guilty and convicted in our courts shall wherever possible be de ported. Nothing is so feared by a criminal practising in Canada as deportation back to the land whence he came. That is true generally speaking. There is nothing that the Chinaman in particular dreads so much as deportation. If the Minister of the Interior (Mr. Stewart) were in his place I would address a few remarks to him, but I trust that my hon. friend (Mr. Beland) will renew his conferences with him on this point. One of the heaviest blows that could be struck at the traffic would be a vigorous campaign of deportation. As the law now stands it requires that those prosecuting shall notify the municipal clerk who in turn notifies the immigration authorities. I am not criticising the law, but it does strike me that the Department of Health could, as it were, short circuit this red tape by having the representations made direct to the Immigration Department, who could actively take the matter up. As matters stand now, the Immigration Department does not act until the charge is laid by the municipal authority, whereas, if the Health Department, co-operating with the Immigration Department, were to notify immediately a prosecution was made, then the immigration authorities could follow the matter up. And if the Government would instruct the immigration authorities to take vigorous action it would go a long way towards remedying the evil.

Another matter I wish to refer to is the spread of the drug habit. From our experiences and careful investigations made, I think that the chief cause lies in the profit which is made by unscrupulous—I was going to say fiendish—traffickers. They are the root of this business, and it is encouraging to see the efforts made by the department of my hon. friend to prosecute these traffickers. But I think another step could be taken with pronounced effect. I have some papers on this point, but they are not under my hand at the moment. As, however, the minister will no doubt have full information in his department, what I say will be quite intelligible to him. Nearly all the civilized nations of the world, realizing that this traffic is getting a firmer grip upon their peoples, have entered into an international convention to restrict the traffic. As I understand it, the main source of supply for opium is the Orient, and for the derivatives of opium—

Mr. BELAND: Cocaine and morphine.

Mr. STEVENS: Those come chiefly from Germany, although to a certain extent from France also.

Mr. BELAND: That is right.

Mr. STEVENS: Here we have the two major sources of supply. I think Canada might very well initiate steps to prevent the exports of drugs generally from those countries to Canada except under strict regulations. Germany has been a serious offender in this respect. I do not know that the government of Germany wilfully permits the export of these drugs, but at the same time she has been neglectful in the matter, and I think we might very properly make strong representations not only to Germany but to all the other countries which participated in this international convention, to control the export of these drugs as effectively as possible. As a matter of fact, I think the minister will agree with me when I say that if we could control the manufacture and export of these drugs we would go a long way towards solving the problem. India and China are undoubtedly sources of supply. In the old Chinese government at Pekin we had a very sympathetic ally in the control of opium exports, but I am afraid that what we might call the de facto government at Canton is not attempting to control these exports at all so far as we can learn. Very strong efforts ought to be made not only by Canada but by the other signatories to the convention to curtail, and, if possible, prevent the production and export of drugs.

Mr. MANION: Before the minister replies to the remarks of my hon. friend from Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens), may I add a word or two? Perhaps not having the papers under his hand my hon. friend has expressed his opinions a little differently from what he really wished to do, because after all, as the minister well knows, morphine particularly, as well as cocaine to a lesser extent, are very useful drugs if properly handled.

Mr. STEVENS: Yes.

Mr. MANION: Perhaps there is no drug more useful, generally speaking, than opium and its derivatives, and I presume that my hon. friend really suggests the prohibition of illegitimate exportation—

Mr. STEVENS: Undoubtedly.

Mr. MANION: —because the prohibition of legitimate exportation of drugs from those countries might interfere very materially with the practice of medicine. As I understood him, the danger really comes from the smuggling of these drugs into Canada, and if some method were adopted which, instead of prohibiting, would secure strict registration of such exportations to our country, these records could be given to our customs officers, who could pass them on to the officers of my hon. friend's department, and the same result would be achieved. In regard to the suggestion made by the hon. gentleman as to the deportation of peddlers of these drugs, I think it is very good.

Mr. BELAND: The committee will have an idea of how the legitimate trade in drugs has decreased in this country when I quote the figures for cocaine importations for 1919, 1920 and 1921. In 1919 we imported 12,000 ounces; in 1920, 6,900 ounces; in 1921, only 3,300 ounces. So in the last three years the legitimate importations have dropped from 12,000 ounces to 3,000 ounces. The same applies to morphine and to gum opium. One reason why these drugs are being absorbed in larger quantities is no doubt because through illicit trading they are sold a good deal cheaper. During the last three or four years the rigid enforcement of the law has prevented drug addicts from buying these narcotics so easily as they used to, and as illicit traders were in a position to offer the drugs at a cheaper price, the committee will readily understand that a much larger consumption has taken place.

I agree largely with what my hon. friend from Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) has said about deportation. It can be readily understood that if Chinamen who indulge in the illicit trade in narcotics, especially opium, were deported, others would be deterred from taking a similar risk, and the trading would be very much restricted. That is a matter for the special consideration of the Minister of the Interior and also of the Government generally.

The control of export from the country of origin is perhaps a more serious matter. It would be possible for the signatories to the convention entered into in 1912, and ratified by Canada in 1919, to enter into negotiations with the view of ascertaining the exact quantity of drugs exported from every country. That would be perhaps a very useful step to take.

Mr. STEVENS: I believe the convention contains a provision for exactly that course to be pursued, and what I am urging is that the Government should take advantage of it.

Mr. BELAND: Every country which is a party to that international convention undoubtedly would be ready to supply this Government with figures of the exact export trade in all these narcotics. But my hon. friend will realize also that there exists in those countries an export trade which is outside the law.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The minister gave the total number of convictions as 835. Does that cover all convictions in Canada, not only those that have taken place through the efforts of the Department of Health, but through the ordinary channels of the enforcement of criminal law?

Mr. BELAND: No. The total number of convictions is 1,765, which includes provincial and municipal prosecutions followed by conviction. The total number of convictions secured through federal prosecution is 835.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The total number of convictions, including those which have resulted through the ordinary channels of criminal prosecution, is 1,765. It is most significant that of the 835 convictions, no less than 634 are convictions of Chinese residing in Canada. So the total number of convictions of citizens of all other nationalities, Canadians and others, is only 201. This would lead one to conclude that this illicit traffic in drugs is, to the extent of at least sixty or sixty-six per cent, due to the presence in this country of a substantial Chinese population. I was inclined to think that during the past five years there had been a very large increase in the number of convictions that had taken place in Canada on account of the traffic in illicit drugs. When I was in the Department of Justice the matter was brought to my attention on more than one occasion, and though I cannot give the figures from memory now, I am inclined to think the increase in the number of convictions in the last five years has been very, very rapid. From an examination of the figures given us to-night, I think we may fairly assume that a very large part of that illicit traffic is conducted by people whose presence in this country is no great asset, in my humble opinion. I sincerely trust that the department will continue its good work. It is doing an excellent work in this respect, as are also the mounted police and the provincial police, but I am just a little bit afraid from what I read in the papers published in the United States, particularly in New York, that the traffic is on the increase and not on the decrease, both in Canada and the United States at the present time.

Item agreed to.

Quarantine—salaries and contingencies of organized districts; Public Health and other districts; Tracadie and D'Arcy Island lazarettoes; Public Health Act, $273,500.

Mr. MANION: Would the minister give a brief explanation of how this money is expended?

Mr. BELAND: We have in Canada eight quarantine stations: Halifax, Louisburg, North Sydney, Charlottetown, St. John, Chatham, Grosse Isle and Victoria. The two lazarettoes are, one at Tracadie, N.B., and the other at D'Arcy island, B.C. By far the most important quarantine station is that of Grosse Isle. Before dealing with that, I might give the committee the number of lepers in Canada. At Tracadie there are 14, and at D'Arcy island 5.

Mr. MacLAREN: Did the fourteen cases of leprosy at Tracadie originate in New Brunswick.

Mr. BELAND: No, not all of them. They come, I presume, from all over eastern Canada. Last year we had one case from Toronto, and two years ago two cases from Regina and Swift Current.

Mr. CHAPLIN: What were their nationalities?

Mr. MacLAREN: As the minister knows, in the area about Tracadie there have been cases of leprosy developing for the last one hundred years. Is there any diminution in the number of cases from New Brunswick? I take it from the figures that there has been some diminution in the number of cases during the last twenty-five years.

Mr. BELAND: While that information is being looked up, answering my hon. friend from Lincoln, most of the leprosy cases, if not all, are Scandinavians.

Mr. GOULD: There is a decrease of $2,440 in this item. That seems to be drawing the line pretty fine. We expect there will be an immigration policy this year, and some of the moneys at least in connection with immigration will have to be expended under this item. I wonder if the minister could explain just how the conclusion was arrived at that $2,440 should be the amount deducted from last year's estimate?

Mr. BELAND: The decrease is very small indeed, and at the present moment I am not in a position to say how it was arrived at. It is a trifling matter. I suppose that a few attendants that are not considered absolutely necessary are going to be dispensed with.

Item agreed to.

Immigration Medical Inspection, $50,000.

Mr. MacLAREN: Is the minister now in a position to answer my question of a few minutes ago?

Mr. BELAND: Yes. In 1897 we had 32 patients; in 1910, 22 patients; and in 1922, only 14 patients. My hon. friend will see that the number is decreasing.

Mr. MacLAREN: I might fairly refer to the peculiarly fortunate conditions under which these cases of leprosy have been cared for and attended to during many years. Nearly all the cases arising in New Brunswick have been among the French Canadians, and they are cared for by a community of nuns. It is particularly satisfactory that during this long period these men have been maintained in such comfortable circumstances, and under such careful and faithful attendants.

Mr. ANDERSON: At what ports is medical inspection carried out?

Mr. BELAND: Medical inspection is being carried out in different ports, the most important by far being that of Quebec. Then come the ports of Montreal, St. John, North Sydney, Halifax, Vancouver, Victoria, Prince Rupert and Portland. As to the inspection that has taken place during the year which ended March 31, 1922, the number of examinations is as follows: Quebec, 41,256; St. John, 8,964; Halifax, 7,400; Montreal, 797; North Sydney, including Sydney, 452; Vancouver, 1,628; Victoria, 1,538.

Mr. GOULD: I would ask the minister if this vote is to cover expenses connected with immigrants who may have contracted diseases on board ship?

Mr. BELAND: That is right.

Mr. GOULD: I ask the question because there was a person from my own electoral district who was detained on Partridge island and who, in consequence of being so detained, was unable to reach home in time to get in a fair amount of crop, or at any rate such as he deemed necessary. It developed that he was not suffering from any contagious disease and I wondered what the attitude of the authorities was in a case of that nature?

Mr. BELAND: Do I understand my hon. friend to say the man was detained at the quarantine station on Partridge island?

Mr. GOULD: Yes.

Mr. BELAND: Well, that is the course followed, and it is proper. Sufferers from contagious disease are detained there for a certain period, and the contacts also, until they are entirely cured and for a certain number of days thereafter. That is in accordance with a regulation of the department in order that the infected persons may not carry contagion elsewhere.

Mr. GOULD: The man to whom I refer developed no contagious disease but was detained on Partridge island for weeks. In consequence he did not get as large an area of land under crop as he had intended or desired.

Mr. BELAND: He must have been in contact with some contagious disease on board ship and was therefore held under observation for what we call the period of incubation.

Mr. IRVINE: I would like to ask the minister if an immigrant coming across and refusing to be vaccinated is kept in quarantine?

Mr. BELAND: Yes, he will be kept in quarantine if he refuses to be vaccinated.

Mr. IRVINE: Is there any difference in that regard between a person travelling first class and a person travelling third class?

Mr. BELAND: No there is no difference.

Mr. ANDERSON: Is there any arrangement between Canada and the United States as to immigrants coming via the latter country?

Mr. BELAND: My hon. friend doubtless refers to transatlantic travel. We have an arrangement with the medical inspectors of the Medical Inspection Department of the United States for the examination of immigrants who are destined for Canada, and most of the time, I think, we have a representative at New York. We have no regular medical inspection between the United States and Canada, I mean for those travellers or immigrants, who come from the former country and are recognized as American citizens; because we take it for granted that having been admitted by the United States inspectors after inspection, the conditions would be such as to entitle them to admission into Canada. The only inspection, as my hon. friend is doubtless aware is the civil inspection, and in case of doubt the persons would be stopped at the border, or else turned over to our medical inspectors either in Montreal or Toronto.

Item agreed to.

Venereal Diseases, $200,000.

Mr. GARDINER: Will the minister give us some information as to what action the Department of Health is taking in regard to this item?

Mr. BELAND: For a number of years an appropriation of $200,000 has been voted for the combatting of venereal diseases throughout Canada, which campaign has been carried on in co-operation with the provinces. The idea has been to leave the matter almost entirely with each provincial government to organize its own campaign, this amount to be divided amongst the different provinces pro rata to their population. The campaign is now well under way. It has been organized and carried on in all the provinces, with the exception of Prince Edward Island, which has not availed itself of the provisions of the grant. The whole amount has been expended, with the exception of $4,686. I think the work has been carried on very effectively.

Item agreed to.

LABOUR

Labour—unemployment relief, $100,000.

Mr. STEVENS: I want to thank the hon. minister for his courtesy in holding this over when I was absent the other day. I understand this item was originally voted by Parliament as supplementary to the grant for the enforcement of the statute, chapter 21 of the Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, because of there being a number of offices, in addition to the joint offices, that were solely under the control of the Dominion Federal Labour Department, but that, as time progressed and the co-ordination was brought about, this vote would become unnecessary. I understand there has been a reduction of some 26 offices, and it appears to me that, with this reduction, and with the more efficient co-ordination of the provincial and dominion work under this act, for which another vote has been passed, this $100,000 would scarcely be necessary this year.

Hon. JAMES MURDOCK (Minister of Labour): If my hon. friend will look at another item authorized by statute, he will find on the same page, "Organization and co-ordination employment offices, $150,000." That amount is fixed by statute. The hon. member from Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) will probably recall the fact that the other day we passed in the supplementary estimates $400,000 for the last fiscal year on account of unemployment relief, or a total of $500,000, made up of the $100,000 voted last year, and two Governor General's warrants of $200,000 each. In addition to the $100,000 the committee is being asked to vote for this fiscal year, we estimate that at the present moment we are in debt about $1,260,000, or considerably over a million. I am not in a position to give the exact figures, although within the next few days we will try and estimate those figures as accurately as possible, for the purpose of presenting them in the Supplementary Estimates.

Mr. STEVENS: I am not objecting to the item for unemployment relief, but the item in the estimates is to supplement the amount provided by statute. I am informed that this was for the purpose of maintaining certain offices, in addition to labour offices, jointly maintained by the provinces and the Dominion. If it is for unemployment, let us put it under unemployment, and eliminate this reference to the Co-ordination Act altogether. I do not want to labour the point or to embarrass the minister.

Mr. MURDOCK: The hon. member has the wrong item. He is speaking of No. 269, and we are dealing with 273. We passed No. 269 on the 21st April.

Mr. STEVENS: I was under the impression we were at 269—employment offices—and it was that point I wished to bring up. I recall the item now. It was agreed that under this general item we could bring up various questions. I would bring my hon. friend back to No. 269, and suggest that this provision for maintaining special offices, outside of those under the Co-ordination Act, should, at least, be eliminated as soon as possible. I will not say that it should be eliminated from these estimates, but steps should be taken to eliminate it, and bring it under the Co-ordination Act.

Mr. MURDOCK: I agree with the hon. member entirely. Steps have been taken in that direction to the extent, I think, that in all of the joint offices that we have now in any province we are not paying any more than 50 per cent of the cost of such employment offices.

Mr. STEVENS: How many extra offices are there outside of those under the Co-ordination Act?

Mr. MURDOCK: I think there are only two, one in Moncton, New Brunswick, and one in Chatham, New Brunswick, but even at that we are on a fifty-fifty basis.

Mr. IRVINE: Can the minister tell me if the $1,200,000 that we are in debt was due to the unemployment relief given last year?

Mr. MURDOCK: It was on account of the provisions contained in P.C. order 191, but a great deal of it, especially in Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia, will be on account of the excess cost of winter construction of public works, the bills for which have not yet come through from the municipalities and the provinces to the federal government, and the figures that I gave on that account are simply estimated as accurately as we can do it at the present moment.

Mr. IRVINE: If unemployment cost $1,200,000 last year, plus the $500,000, which has been given, how does the minister expect to be able to get through this spring with $100,000?

Mr. MURDOCK: If conditions next winter prove anything like the conditions of unemployment during the past winter, we could not possibly get through with that amount at all, but it is reasonable to be optimistic, and to hope that, before another year rolls around, conditions will have improved materially, and that all men in Canada who desire work and are willing to work can find it.

Item agreed to.

SEVERAL DEPARTMENTS

Soldiers' land settlement—advances to soldiers settling upon the land and cost of administering the Soldier Settlement Act, including salaries, $12,000,000.

Mr. MANION: I would like to suggest to the minister (Mr. Stewart) that, with all the goodwill in the world, we shall have to hold this item up for a while. This question would involve some discussion, and I should be glad if the minister would hold it over to some other day and take up some other items, on which, perhaps, less information would be required.

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): I can give the hon. member all the information.

Mr. STEVENS: As a matter of fact, the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) had no idea that this item was coming on to-night, and I think he would like to be present when it is being discussed. It is a very important item. We might take up any of the ordinary items the minister has and slide them through.

Item stands.

Pensions—pension to Madam Fabre, $1,000.

Mr. SPENCER: Why is this so much larger than the others?

Mr. FIELDING: This lady is the widow of a former commissioner at Paris. I could not tell my hon. friend exactly why, but the item is the same as has been voted for a number of years.

Item agreed to.

Expenses under the Canada Temperance Act, $35,000.

Mr. HANSON: May we have some explanation of this item?

Mr. COPP: This is for the purpose of providing for elections that may be carried on in certain localities during the coming year. We have no definite knowledge that there will be any elections.

Mr. CALDWELL: Elections or plebiscites.

Mr. COPP: Plebiscites in different places.

Mr. MANION: This has nothing to do with federal elections?

Mr. COPP: No.

Item agreed to.

To provide for the purchase of 650 copies of the Parliamentary Guide, $1,950.

Mr. CALDWELL: In past sessions we had alphabetical lists of members, giving constituencies and post offices addresses. Will these be issued this year?

Mr. FIELDING: They have been issued already. I have a copy here.

Item agreed to.

Expenses under the Naturalization Act, $50,000.

Mr. SPENCER: What is the reason for this increase?

Mr. GUTHRIE: The reason is that there are probably more investigations under the Naturalization Act now than there were during the past couple of years. During the war the applications accumulated, and I believe that certificates are being granted more freely now.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That is practically the explanation.

Mr. HANSON: There are quite a number of applications in my part of the country that should be investigated. I know that in certain parts of New Brunswick people are applying for naturalization on grounds that really do not commend themselves to reason.

Mr. COPP: I cannot give the details as to the different localities. Investigations are being held throughout Canada. In 1915 the Royal Northwest Mounted Police investigated 16 applications; in 1917, 18; in 1918, 199; in 1919, 5,437; in 1920, 6,258; in 1921, 7,424; and in 1922, from January 1 to March 31, 1,121.

Mr. HANSON: These investigations are carried on chiefly by the Mounted Police?

Mr. COPP: Entirely so.

Item agreed to.

To provide for the administration of the Business Profits War Tax Act, 1916, and the Income War Tax Act, 1917, and amendments. Appointments for the purpose and an additional salary of $4,000 for the Commissioner of Taxation may be made without reference to, and notwithstanding, the provisions of the Civil Service Act, $2,200,000.

Mr. IRVINE: Does the Business Profits Tax bring in as much as it costs to administer it?

Mr. FIELDING: I regret I cannot give that information offhand. It is not available to-night.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Are you sure we shall need the money this year? The Budget has not been brought down yet.

Mr. FIELDING: I think we shall need it on the general principle that what we have we hold.

Mr. CALDWELL: I see that there is $4,000 for a commissioner who may be appointed without reference to the Civil Service Act. What is the idea?

Mr. FIELDING: This is a repetition of a vote adopted last year by the late government. Mr. Breadner was in the department at $6,000. His salary has been increased to $10,000. He is in charge of the Income Tax branch of the department.

Mr. CALDWELL: I am not so much concerned about this particular item, but I was wondering whether it was establishing a precedent.

Mr. FIELDING: If it be a precedent it was established last year.

Mr. CALDWELL: I do not feel a bit easy about continuing precedents set last year.

Mr. FIELDING: Well, sometimes it is inconvenient to make changes.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The Minister of Finance has himself set one this year.

Mr. WARD: How much does it cost to collect the income tax?

Mr. FIELDING: I cannot give the information now, but I have no objection to allowing the item to stand. If my hon. friend is very anxious to be informed on the point I can get the information and submit to him later.

Mr. WARD: It is an important question. We have been told on many occasions that it costs more to administer the act than we receive in returns. If that statement is not true, then it ought to be corrected in the House.

Mr. FIELDING: Having regard to the vast sum collected, I think it will be found that the expense incurred in the collection is a reasonable one. However, if the hon. gentleman desires more definite information I will give it to him later.

Item agreed to.

Purchasing Commission—salaries and contingencies, $72,000.

Mr. HANSON: Who compose the Purchasing Commission?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Mr. Lafleche is the chairman; I am not sure who the other officers are.

Mr. CALDWELL: It seems that every department has a purchasing agent, and there is besides a general purchasing commission. What is the need for an agent in each department?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: This commission was appointed by the late government.

Mr. CALDWELL: That does not make it unassailable.

An hon. MEMBER: "What we have we hold."

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Yes, I presume we are acting on that theory. I do not think all the departments have purchasing agents.

Mr. CALDWELL: I believe that all have.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Only two or three.

Mr. CALDWELL: Is it the policy to continue the purchasing agents in those departments that have them, in addition to the general purchasing commission?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Those departments that have agents will retain them, yes.

Item agreed to.

Public Archives, $70,570.

Mr. SPENCER: What accounts for the increase?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It is a statutory increase.

Item agreed to.

Salaries and expenses of the Paris agency, $42,500.

Mr. CALDWELL: What is the Paris agency?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The agency is looked after by a Commissioner General, corresponding to the High Commissioner in London.

Item agreed to.

Amount required to meet expenses of the Lake of the Woods Control Board, $15,000.

Mr. SPENCER: What is the Lake of the Woods Control Board?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It is a board established by statute to regulate matters pertaining to the lake of the Woods, and has been in existence for a number of years.

Mr. SPENCER: What are its duties?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It has to do with the regulation and control of the flow of water as between the provinces, and also as between Canada and the United States, and it settles all questions of controversy that may arise between the various interested parties.

Item agreed to.

Canadian Representation in the United States, $60,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Could not that stand? It requires some discussion.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Yes.

Item stands.

Salaries and Expenses, Passport Office. $30,000.

Mr. HANSON: Is it the intention of the Government to continue the passport regulations? I notice the vote is the same as last year.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The intention is to continue the regulations. I think it is necessary to do so for a time, at least.

Item agreed to.

To provide for Canada's contribution towards the maintenance of the Permanent Secretariat of the League of Nations, $150,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: May I ask that this item stand, too?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: All right.

Item stands.

Patent Record, $45,000.

Mr. SPENCER: Has that to do with the patent office?

Mr. ROBB: Yes.

Mr. SPENCER: Do not the patent fees meet the cost of the office?

Mr. ROBB: Yes, I think the office is self-sustaining.

Mr. CALDWELL: If that is so, why is it necessary to ask for this vote of $45,000?

Mr. ROBB: We must vote the money so that the fees received may be credited back.

Item agreed to.

Legislation—Senate—salaries and contingent expenses, $166,205.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Why this increase of $6,170.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I am told that it represents statutory increases.

Mr. CALDWELL: Does the Senate come under the Civil Service Commission?

Item agreed to.

House of Commons—

Salaries	$243,155
Expenses of committees, extra sessional clerks, etc.	77,000
Contingencies	46,885
Publishing Debates	60,000
Estimates of the Sergeant-at-Arms	179,350
	$606,390

Mr. GUTHRIE: Are the two increases in these items statutory increases?

Mr. SPEAKER: Yes.

Item agreed to.

Chinese immigration—salaries and contingencies, $35,000.

Mr. SPENCER: What is the reason for the increase?

Mr. STEVENS: Is this increase for the appointee to China that I asked about?

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River: What is the work done under this item?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): This covers the inspection and work necessary at the coast to take care of the Chinese immigration.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): The levying of poll taxes, and so on?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): That is a part of it.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Have the regulations governing Chinese immigration been modified, and if so, in what respect?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Not so far, but I have a number of suggestions to make regarding Chinese immigration that will require legalizing by Order in Council.

Mr. STEVENS: I understand the minister has promised to make an announcement later in regard to that.

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Yes.

Item agreed to.

Exhibitions, $115,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: What is the explanation of this increase of $25,000?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): We put on exhibits of Canadian products at a number of the large exhibitions in the United States, at Tampa, for instance.

Mr. CALDWELL: To induce immigration?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Yes. I am told good results are obtained.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Is it only in the United States that this is done?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Practically, so far, although we intend to have an exhibit in London.

Item agreed to.

Relief of distressed Canadians, $20,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Why the increase?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): This is the usual vote applicable wherever we find distressed Canadians outside of Canada. I think last year's vote was overexpended.

Mr. HANSON: The increase has nothing to do with the change of government?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Does my hon. friend suggest that there would be more distress abroad in consequence of the change?

Item agreed to.

St. John immigration buildings, $25,000.

Mr. CALDWELL: Why the decrease?

Mr. HANSON: Is this for the construction of the buildings?

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): There are more ships landing at Quebec this year than ever before, and probably a great majority of the immigrants from the Old Country will land at Quebec.

Item agreed to.

STEAMSHIP SERVICES

Mail subsidies and steamship subventions—Canada and Newfoundland, steam service or services between, $35,000.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): These mail subsidies are of interest to many members in this part of the House, and I would ask the Government to hold these items over.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: We might hold one or two for the purpose of discussion, if that is agreeable to my hon. friend, or any particular ones that he is interested in he could ask to have held.

Mr. HANSON: This item, I presume, is for the Reid-Newfoundland Company?

Mr. ROBB: Yes.

Mr. HANSON: I presume the Government has noticed in the press that service on the Reid-Newfoundland line has been suspended, and it may be some considerable time before it is renewed. There ar other lines running between the maritime provinces and Newfoundland. Has the Government given any consideration as to whether some assistance should be given to some of these other lines in lieu of the subsidy that will not be earned by the Reid-Newfoundland Company now that it is held up? There is quite a serious situation down there. There is a block at North Sydney, I understand.

Mr. GARDINER: Are any of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine plying between Canada and Newfoundland?

Mr. ROBB: No, not just now.

Item agreed to.

Canada and the West Indies or South America, or both, service or services between, $340,666.66.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Mr. Chairman, I would ask that this vote, also the vote for steamship service between Canada and South Africa on the Atlantic, and the vote for the service between Canada and Australia or New Zealand on the Pacific, be allowed to stand.

Items allowed to stand.

Victoria, Vancouver, way ports and Skagway, steamship service between, $25,000.

Mr. McBRIDE: What companies are getting these subsidies?

Mr. ROBB: I regret that I am not able to give the information to my hon. friend, because I find that the details respecting all these services have been sent back to the office of the deputy.

Mr. STEVENS: Perhaps I may be allowed to answer the question. It is largely a Canadian Pacific service, and a very excellent one, plying regularly between these points and carrying mail.

Mr. SPENCER: Are subsidies paid to the Canadian Pacific company?

Mr. ROBB: We have to pay a subsidy for a service between certain ports along this coast, otherwise there would be no communication of the kind whatever, and it is an advantage to the country to have such a service.

Item agreed to.

Vancouver and ports on Howe Sound, steam service between, $5,000.

Mr. CALDWELL: Before this item passes I would like to ask a question: I realize that possibly I am not in order in bringing forward such a matter on this item, but the fact is that the Pension Committee, of which I am a member, sits afternoons and evenings when the House is in session, and I may not be here when the items referred to by my hon. friend from Bow River (Mr. Garland) are taken up. I would like to ask the minister if the Government has any intention of subsidizing a line of steamers between St. John, N.B., and Cuba, at any future time, and I want to state my reasons for asking the question. Last year I took up with the government the matter of seeing if some arrangement could not be made to facilitate the shipping of potatoes to Cuba, due to the fact that the United States tariff on potatoes, and other farm produce going to that country, is such that the market there is practically closed to us. The farmers of New Brunswick to-day are realizing only 40 cents a barrel for their potatoes, whereas the cost to them of raising those potatoes is $2 a barrel. On the average that is what it cost them to produce potatoes last year. Now, when the farmer is only getting 40 cents a barrel it means that he realizes but $120 for a car after the payment of freight, whereas the expense of landing these potatoes in Cuba is $550 a car, which is rather a hard situation for the farmers, as every hon. member must admit. These potatoes are shipped from St. John by boat, and I would like to know whether the Government would not consider the desirability of providing better facilities for handling them at the port of St. John, and of granting a subsidy to a line of steamers whereby we might get our potatoes to market at a reduced rate and in that way, so to speak, lessen the cost of production. I would like the Government to consider what might be done to meet the existing situation. It was proposed last year that the Government Merchant Marine should put on a line of steamers between St. John and Cuba, but it would be necessary that the vessels should be fitted up in such a way that potatoes could be carried without injury. The necessity of this arises from the fact that the holds of the ships are so arranged that when loaded with potatoes the sacks in the lower tier get crushed by the sacks in the tier above. The facilities between decks should be such that no injury would result from this cause. I got the Dominion Merchant Marine to handle shipments on their boats in 1920, but when landed in Cuba some were in very bad condition due to the fact that the potatoes in the top tiers had crushed those in the lower tiers so badly that they were not marketable. I took the matter up last year with the Department of Marine and they told me the reason they would not be able to meet our wishes was because there were not enough potatoes offering at the port of St. John to enable such cargoes to be carried at a profit. Well, the reason for that is that our potatoes were going via Boston where there are better facilities for handling them than at the port of St. John. The Minister of Public Works agreed this session, as the result of a resolution I introduced into the House to endeavour to provide export facilities at the port of St. John. When that has been attended to we shall need some adequate means of transporting our potatoes to Cuba so that they may be landed there at a reduced rate of freight and without injury, thus enabling our farmers to realize a larger amount than they at present receive.

Mr. ROBB: If my hon. friend will give me a memorandum on the subject I shall be pleased to take the matter up with the department.

Mr. IRVINE: I was under the impression that these subsidies were for mail carrying steamers alone; is that correct?

Mr. ROBB: No.

Mr. IRVINE: I cannot see the connection between potatoes and mail?

Mr. ROBB: I may say to my hon. friend that we have an arrangement with these different lines that are subsidized that they shall carry the mails free.

An Hon. MEMBER: Not all.

Mr. ROBB: There may be some exceptions but as a general rule where these vessels go to points to which the mails are not otherwise carried, we have an arrangement whereby they will carry the mails free.

Mr. MARTELL: Has the minister any control over the freight rates charged by boats that receive government subsidies. I have had several complaints from farmers in the county of Hants stating that they are charged exorbitant freight rates, particularly on potatoes and turnips, by the Royal Mail Packet Company, which plies between Halifax and the West Indies.

Mr. ROBB: The rates charged are subject to the approval of the minister. If my hon. friend will send me any complaints he has received we will take the matter up with the company and ascertain whether they are charging any rates other than those agreed upon.

Mr. MARTELL: I sent some complaints to the minister yesterday, and they are still coming in.

Item agreed to.

Miscou and Shippegan Islands and Mainland, Steam service between, $3,300.

Mr. HANSON: That seems to be a new item. I am not objecting at all, because I think the people who live on these islands are entitled to a great deal of consideration. These islands are on the Baie des Chaleurs and rather isolated. Could the minister tell us who is operating the steamships?

Mr. ROBB: As I stated a few moments ago, I sent the details back to the deputy for some further information. I am not able to give an answer now, but will give it later on.

Mr. STEVENS: The hon. minister could give the information on items 170 and 171.

Mr. ROBB: I could give it any time.

Mr. HANSON: I am not objecting.

Item agreed to.

Newcastle, Neguac and Escuminac, calling at intermediate points on the Miramichi river and bay, steam service between, $5,000.

Mr. HANSON: There is an increase in this item. This service is on the north shore of the Miramichi, below Newcastle, away from the line of railway, and I think the subsidy is a very fair one. We might have some explanation later on as to the increase. I have not understood that the service was poor, or that any improvement was required. Therefore, we should have some explanation.

Mr. ROBB: The president of the company, Mr. Snowball, I think, came to me and showed me the balance sheets of last year and the year previous, which showed a loss, and he stated that unless they got an increase they would have to discontinue. He wanted more than we allowed, but he consented to go on.

Item agreed to.

Mulgrave, Arichat and Petit de Grat, steam service between, $10,000.

Mr. CALDWELL: There are three services out of Mulgrave. Does this money go to the one steamship company for putting on one service?

Mr. FIELDING: Mulgrave is a terminal point, and the steamers from that point go to different districts.

Mr. CALDWELL: Is it the one steamship company?

Mr. ROBB: No, a different service.

Item agreed to.

Quebec, Natashquan and Harrington, and Bras d'Or and other ports on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, steam service between, $85,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: We would like some information on this?

Mr. ROBB: This is a considerable increase. The service will extend 300 miles further east, giving a service to Canadian ports, and bringing back to Canadian ports business that now goes to Newfoundland.

Mr. IRVINE: Are any of the Canadian Merchant Marine vessels employed on this service?

Mr. ROBB: No.

Mr. GUTHRIE: What service are we going to get? What ships are employed? This is an enormous increase, from $50,000 to $85,000.

Mr. ROBB: We are putting on new ships and a new service, giving an increased service over that of last year, between Harrington and the other points.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Will the hon. minister allow it to stand?

Mr. ROBB: Yes.

Item stands.

St. Catherine's Bay and Tadoussac, winter steam service between, $2,000.

Mr. HANSON: What about the winter service at that point?

Mr. ROBB: This is a new service. These people are completely isolated during the winter, so that they have no way of getting the mail sent in.

Mr. HANSON: How are they going to do it?

Mr. ROBB: The mails are carried by dog trains down to a certain point, and there will be a ferry service across from St. Catherine to Tadoussac.

Mr. GUTHRIE: What is the meaning of "winter steam service"?

Mr. ROBB: It means that the service will apply only in the winter time, when the mails cannot get in otherwise. In the season of navigation, there is another service.

Item agreed to.

St. John and St. Andrews, N.B., calling at intermediate points, steam service between, $4,000.

Mr. HANSON: This is a service that cannot be justified on the ground that it carries mail. The boat is a local freight boat owned by a firm at Black harbour, and travelling between St. John and St. Andrews. I do not want to be taken as opposing this appropriation; but I should like to know the justification for the subsidy, because this boat does not carry a single mail bag.

Mr. ROBB: If my hon. friend desires that the item stand, we shall allow it to stand for further information.

Mr. HANSON: Let us have the information later on. I would not ask that the item stand.

Item agreed to.

St. John and Digby, steam service between, $15,000.

Mr. HANSON: This is a Canadian Pacific service, which is very well patronized. The boat is a good one, which carries a large tourist traffic in the summer. What is the justification for the apparently large increase? I do not see any necessity for an increase on this service which has been established for many years. This boat carries also a considerable quantity of freight.

Mr. ROBB: I will allow this item to stand if my hon. friend so desires. My recollection is that this is an increased service.

Mr. HANSON: There is a daily service now. Is the company putting on two trips a day?

Mr. ROBB: Perhaps the item had better stand until I have the information.

Item stands.

St. Stephen, Deer Island, and Campobello, steam service between, $2,000.

Mr. HANSON: This is a very inadequate service; in fact, it is not a steam service at all. The boat is a gasoline one. Possibly there have been applications for an improved service. In the winter time the boat is not fit for passenger service.

[Mr. Guthrie.]

Mr. ROBB: There may have been applications for an increased service. Many applications have been made for increased services and increased subsidies. We propose to make a thorough review during the coming season and perhaps, we shall correct the services, increasing some and reducing others.

Mr. CALDWELL: This service could be very well increased.

Item agreed to.

Sydney and Whycocomagh, steam service between, $7,000.

Mr. HANSON: This appropriation is nearly doubled. We ought to have some explanation.

Mr. ROBB: My recollection is that this boat showed very bad earnings during the last two years, and that the company were about to discontinue the service altogether, a service which was necessary for the people of this district. Otherwise, they would have no way of getting their produce to market.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Will the minister let this stand?

Mr. ROBB: I will.

Mr. CALDWELL: The minister tells us that they threathened to discontinue the service. Is this let by contract? Has the minister any guarantee of continuity of service where a subsidy is granted?

Mr. ROBB: These services are voted each year, and sometimes we give these companies contracts covering a term of years. But when they come forward with a statement showing that they are making great losses, it is often cheaper to cancel a contract than to attempt to make them carry out a contract when they are unable to do it.

Mr. CALDWELL: I am finding no fault with the increase of the subsidy, if that is found necessary on account of their producing a statement of their earnings. Has the department any guarantee of continuity of service for a definite time? When liberal subsidies are granted, there should be more than a yearly contract.

Mr. ROBB: There are in many cases. There are but few defaults.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I should like this to stand for further information.

Mr. McKENZIE: I am able to give the committee any quantity of information about this service, which must be about a hundred years old. The boat is a good many years old; but the company are getting a new steel boat this year, and that is the cause of the increase. The new boat is costing them something like $40,000, whereas the old boat was not so expensive. The old boat was getting a subsidy of only $4,000. The distance between Whycocomagh and Sydney is eighty miles. The boat is on the road all the time, going one day and coming back the next, going back and forth continuously, making calls all the way along the Bras d'Or lake. There is no railroad on that side of the island, and this boat answers the purpose. There are many wharves on the lake, and the boat carries freight and passengers back and forth. We could not get along without the service.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The minister stated that he had statements from the company showing that they were losing money. I think the committee ought to have those statements in order to see how the matter stands. The minister might let this item stand over until he can furnish the committee with the statements.

Mr. McKENZIE: I do not see why this item should stand any more than any other item. If the hon. member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) thinks that, because this service is in my constituency, he is doing a great thing by holding over this estimate, we might stay here for a while and get the information. This item has been passed yearly for the last twenty years since I came to this House, and I never before heard a request that it should stand over. There should be no trouble in getting these statements showing that they were losing money, because I was present in the office when the captain of the boat and the president of the company made them to the minister. If the hon. gentleman thinks he is doing a great service to his country by stopping this item simply because the service is in my riding, I suppose he can do that; but it is a long lane that has no turning.

Mr. GUTHRIE: My hon. friend is assuming a great deal. He says that we are stopping an item because it refers to a service in his riding. I do not think that anyone knew, when the request was made, that the matter referred to my hon. friend's riding. Certainly I did not know. But here is an increase from $4,000 to $7,000. The minister says he has explanations which he will bring forward. We simply ask that the item stand, entirely apart from the fact that it refers to the riding of the Solicitor General. The hon. gentleman need not get angry.

Mr. McKENZIE: I am not angry; there is no reason why I should be. Only protests or arguments from a gentleman would make me angry.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): The committee is entitled to the information; I think the item should stand.

Mr. STEVENS: We have been doing very nicely and we have asked that just four items out of some forty be allowed to stand. I do not think the request is unreasonable.

Mr. LAPOINTE: The temper of the committee is getting bad.

Mr. STEVENS: We have not made the request for the purpose of humiliating my hon. friend (Mr. McKenzie), who is beyond that, anyway.

Item stands.

Sydney and Bras d'Or Lake ports and ports on the east and west coasts of Cape Breton, steam service between, $14,000.

Mr. HANSON: How many services are there in connection with this item?

Mr. ROBB: There are quite a number of them; different services around points where there is no railway communication.

Item agreed to.

To provide for a Canadian Exhibition in France, $50,000.

Mr. STEVENS: What are the particulars?

Mr. ROBB: Last year Senator Beaubien arranged with France that in consideration of Canada giving free transportation to their products over our railways France would give in return free transportation and certain other concessions to an exhibit of Canadian products throughout that country. To take advantage of that arrangement it is well that we should take steps now, while the same government are in office in France, and before they forget the matter. We propose to send an exhibit of Canadian agricultural and industrial products to France.

Mr. STEVENS: Personally, I have no desire to delay the vote at all. In fact I am wholly in favour of it, and I state frankly that I think it will be of great benefit to those Canadians who are interested in the French market. I think that an exhibition of a Canadian train in France would be of great advantage to us. We should do all we can to promote trade between the two countries, and I heartily endorse the vote. I know a good deal about it and I am entirely in favour of the scheme.

Mr. GUTHRIE: How is the $50,000 arrived at?

Mr. ROBB: It is purely an estimate. The negotiations with France were carried out by Senator Beaubien. It may require more than $50,000 but we are putting in this item in the hope that we shall receive some assistance from the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

Mr. IRVINE: I understand that France imports very little farm produce from any country. What are her agricultural imports from Canada?

Mr. ROBB: We can obtain that information, but my hon. friend is wrong. France has bought considerable amounts of Canadian products, and we hope to be able to increase the sales. If France were buying all the products we have to sell, it would be unnecessary, of course, to send an exhibit there and advertise our products. It is because we wish to increase Canadian business in that market, particularly our agricultural products, that we are taking this matter up.

Mr. STEVENS: Agricultural products, or implements?

Mr. ROBB: Both; I hope my hon. friend does not object to our selling agricultural implements in France.

Mr. IRVINE: It is because I doubt the existence of that market that I ask the question.

Mr. ROBB: There are other business men in Canada who hold a different opinion from my hon. friend.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Will the Government get some assistance from the Canadian Manufacturers Association?

Mr. ROBB: We hope they will contribute in part to the expenses. We will arrange for the train and for a suitable building in which to display our products. We may possibly also arrange for a permanent exhibition there, and those who are interested may contribute by supplying products.

[Mr. Stevens.]

Mr. IRVINE: It seems rather strange that we should put a tariff on French goods and France impose one against us in order to keep out trade, and then we should turn round and spend $50,000 in order to get trade in.

Mr. ROBB: It is not the policy of this Government to keep trade out or to discourage it.

Mr. SHAW: Is the minister considering a mutual arrangement with France for a reduction in the tariff? The money would be better spent in that way than, perhaps, under this item.

Mr. ROBB: If my hon. friend will have patience possibly some day we will give the information he desires.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I understood that France imported very few agricultural products; in fact, my information was that the French law prohibited their importation. At the present time I am informed that France produces all the agricultural commodities she requires. I understood, though, that there is a chance of doing business there in manufactured goods. It is probably more particularly for that purpose that this exhibition is to be held. I am not opposing the grant, but I was curious to know how this $50,000 was made up—whether the exhibitors were charged a certain amount and the Government was contributing the balance; and also whether agricultural products are to be put on exhibition as well as manufactured goods.

Mr. ROBB: The item was arrived at, as already explained, purely by estimate. We propose to have an exhibition of agricultural products, minerals, manufactured goods—in fact, everything Canada produces that we think can be sold in France. My hon. friends must keep in mind that France is one of the great tourist countries of the world, and therefore the exhibits Canada shows will be seen by the people of other nations.

Item agreed to.

Progress reported.

ADJOURNMENT—BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Mr. MACKENZIE KING moved the adjournment of the House.

Mr. GUTHRIE: May I inquire whether my hon. friend has considered the question of sitting on Saturdays? A number of members on both sides of the House have been discussing it during the last day or two, and I think myself that the time has come when we should deal with it. I should also like to know the business for Monday.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I assume from my hon. friend's remarks that he hopes the Government will do everything in its power to expedite the work, so as to bring the session to a close as soon as possible. Certainly the Government has under consideration what may be possible towards that end. The coming week the House does not sit on Wednesday and Thursday. Some suggestion was made by an hon. member two or three days ago that we might sit on Saturdays, but there seemed to be considerable difference of opinion at the time, and for the Saturday of next week the suggestion did not seem to meet with general approval. The Government would be only too glad to sit on Saturdays if that course were generally approved by the House.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The House will sit on Friday?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Yes; and if between now and Tuesday it should appear that there is a general sentiment in favour of sitting on Saturday I am sure the Government will be glad to meet the wishes of hon. members in that regard. After the following Wednesday we will resume sittings in the evening. If there is any sentiment in favour of sitting on Saturdays we shall be glad to consider the advisability of doing so.

Mr. HANSON: I hope the Government will not sit next Saturday. After that date I should have no objection.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: We will be all ready to sit next Saturday if there is any agreement to do so.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): May we take it that the custom established by the Government at the commencement of the session of rising at eleven o'clock is not to be abandoned?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Oh, no, I do not think it will be abandoned. If there is a disposition on the part of members to get through the balance of the work of the session by not speaking at too great length, I do not see why we should not adjourn at eleven o'clock as usual; but if for any reason there is a tendency to delay matters unduly, the Government will probably feel justified in continuing the sittings a little later than eleven o'clock to get through a good day's work. When we can get through reasonably by eleven o'clock, we shall be glad to do so.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I am asking the question because several members leave towards eleven o'clock under the impression that the House will rise at that hour, but lately we have been sitting until twelve o'clock or later.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: As to the business for Monday, we will take what remains of naval and militia estimates, mounted police, soldiers' land settlement, adjustment of war claims, fisheries, and any other estimates on the list.

Motion agreed to, and the House adjourned at 11.55 p.m.

INDEX

FIRST SESSION—FOURTEENTH PARLIAMENT, 1922

Abbreviations:—1r., 2r., 3r.,=first, second, third reading. Admn.=Administration. Amdt.=Amendment. Com.=Committee. Dept.=Department. Div.=Division. Govt.=Government. M.=Motion. Neg.=Negative. Qu.=Question. Ref.=Reference. Rep.=Report. Res.=Resolution. Sec.=Section.

Abattoirs. See also Cold Storage; Health of Animals; Meat and Canned Foods
Maritime provinces in, M. 992, 1023

Accountants. See House of Commons; Senate

Accounts. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act; Finance; Public Accounts

Accredited Herds. See Health of Animals

Acme Grain Company, default of, 2834

Acoustics. See House of Commons

Actions. See Escheats Act Amdt.

Active Militia. See Militia; National Defence

Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670

Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 10, 15, 50, 98, 122, 173, 211, 260, 303, 326
Mover (Mr. McMurray) 10; Seconder (Mr. Mercier) 15
Speakers, Messrs: Baldwin, 60; Baxter, 98; Beaubien, 280; Brown, 332; Campbell, 356; Carmichael, 155; Church, 116; Crerar, 50; d'Anjou, 306; Denis (St. Denis), 348; Dickie, 341; Drayton, 195; Evans, 300; Forke, 76; Gouin, 140; Harris, 307; Hughes, 224; Irvine, 211; Johnson (Moosejaw), 112; Kennedy (Edmonton), 142; King (Mackenzie), 38; Ladner, 321, 326; Lewis, 149; Logan, 105; Macdonald (Pictou), 186; MacKelvie, 159; MacLaren, 353; MacLean (Prince), 335; Maclean (York), 63; McBride, 316; Manion, 263; Marler, 243; Meighen, 19; Neill, 169; Pritchard, 250; Putnam, 309; Raymond, 253; Robitaille, 320; Ross, 95; Ryckman, 284; St. Père, 281; Sexsmith, 293; Sheard, 294; Speakman, 80; Stansell, 359; Stevens, 230; Stork, 330; Turgeon; 273; Warner, 349; Woods, 92; Woodsworth, 84
Motion agreed to, 362; acknowledgment of address by Governor General, 746-7

Adjournments. See House of Commons

Adjustment of War Claims. See War Claims

Administration of Justice. See Justice

Administration of Oaths of Office bill, 1r., 6

Admiralty Act Amdt. bill (Deputy Registrar and Deputy Judge) 1r., 245-6; 2r., com., 2822; 3r., 2823

Admiralty Court vacancy at Quebec, 1275

Adulteration of Food. See Food; Health

Advertising. See American Magazines

Aerial Patrol. See Air Service

Aeronautics, control of. See Air Board Act

Aeroplanes. See Air Service

Age of consent. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Agents Provacateur. See National Defence; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Ages, Population by. See Population

Agricultural bloc in United States, 69, 210, 988. See also Budget; Customs; United States

Agricultural Commodities. See Farm Products

Agricultural Fairs. See Exhibitions

Agricultural Fertilizers. See also Fertilizers
Inquiry as to legislation, 3041
Speaker's ruling, 1282

Agricultural Fertilizers, Regulation and Sale of, bill. Res. 3043; 1r., 3044; 2r., 3044; ref. to Com. on Agriculture, 3044; com., 3194; 3r., 3195. Senate amdts., 3607

Agricultural Implements, 2185, 2217, 2360, 2464, 2564, 2620
Brantford factories, closing of, 2375
Duties on, reduction, 2115, 2175, 2206, 2217, 2230, 2360, 2375, 2381, 2484, 2534, 2592, 2731, 3118-3120, 3141. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Customs Tariff
Drawbacks and refunds, 2175, 3122
Ploughs, 3121, 3229
M. (Mr. Johnston — Last Mountain) to reduce, 3121, 3229
Imported from United States, 2413-14, 2486
By United Grain Growers, 3118-19
International Harvester Company, 2382
Massey-Harris Company, 2175
Price of, 1476, 2188. See also Address; Budget
At home and abroad, 2452, 2620
Protection, 2697
Manufacturers, and, 2575
Raw Materials for, 302, 309, 766. See also Customs Tariff
Raymond, Mr., and, 254, 255, 2705. See also speeches on Budget
Repair parts, 1901
Standardization of parts, 2406
Tariff, and, See Address; Budget; Customs Tariff

Agricultural Institute, 657, 969

Agricultural Instruction Act, 651-2, 994, 1012
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 1032

Agricultural Labourers. See Immigration; Labour; Unemployment

Agriculture. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Accredited herds, 995, 2556, 2734-43
Diseases, 968. See also under this title, Health of Animals
Valuation, 1000
Animal diseases. See Animal Contagious Diseases; Health of Animals
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Bounty to, 1698
Bovine Tuberculosis. See under this title. Health of Animals
Butter. See also Oleomargarine
Accumulation in England, 997
Colouring of, 1778
Imported, qu. 613, 803
New Zealand, from, qu. 614
Protection against oleomargarine, 177. See also Oleomargarine
Vitamines in, 1781

Agriculture — Con.
Cattle. See also Live Stock
Embargo on. See Cattle Embargo
Free carriage of, 1029
Cold storage, 818, 992, 998, 2557
Abattoirs, maritime provinces, 992-3, 1023
Quebec, 1471
Warehouses, 3521
Commissioner of, qu. 609, 645, 3501. See also Marshall, Mr. Duncan
Committee on. See Agriculture and Colonization
Competition, 2698
Conditions and prospects, 16, 53, 78, 81, 85, 113, 150, 231, 252, 300, 2147, 2149, 2153, 2156, 2163, 2216, 2403, 2885. See also speeches on Address; Agriculture Estimates; Budget
Statement by Manitoba Agricultural College, 2332
Contributions to railway tonnage, 1927. See also Freight Rates; Wheat Board
Dairying. See that title
Depression in, 1475, 2147. See also Address; Budget
Department
Calgary live stock branch, qu. 607
Comparison of average salaries, 750
Dominion Apiarist, 592
Estimates, 1018, 1718, 3520
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, appointment of, 3501. See also that title
Salaries and contingencies, 588, 644, 3504
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 590, 3520. See also under this title, Entomology Diseases of Animals. See under this title, Accredited Herds; Health of Animals
Entomology, 813
Exhibitions, 993, 1026, 3521. See also that title
Experimental and illustration Farms, 795, 2557, 3521
Buildings, expenditure on, 1264
M. (Mr. Sutherland) to reduce item, 812
Mont Laurier, 994
Saunders, Dr. C. E., Dominion Cerealist, gratuity to, 590, 3522
Export figures, 2446, 2638
Farm labourers, 79, 87, 251, 1153
Harvest excursions to West, 337
Immigration of. See Immigration
Unemployment. See Unemployment
Fertilizers. See Agricultural Fertilizers; Fertilizers
Fruit Industry. See that title
Importance of, 2386. See Address; Budget
International Institute of, 657, 969

Agriculture — Con.
Health of Animals, 967. See also under this title, Accredited Herds
Bovine tuberculosis, 2556
Hog cholera, 1007, 1028
Alderson claim, 1004
Tuberculosis, 3521. See also Animal contagious Diseases
Japanese engaged in, 345-6. See also Oriental Aliens
Lecturers, 1023
Live Stock. See that title
Manitoba Agricultural College, statements on, 2332
Markets, 251, 2149. See also Address; Budget; Cattle Embargo; Wheat Board
Military and agricultural expenditures, comparison, 1137
Mixed farming, 2592
Potatoes. See that title
Root Vegetables. See that title
Saunders, Dr. C. E., Dominion Cerealist, gratuity to, 590, 3522
Seed, Feed, and Fertilizer Control, 1011
Seed Grain, 3522
Stock-grazing and feeding, 1718. See also Live Stock.
Unemployment, and, 2158, 2331. See also Labour; Unemployment
Wheat Board. See that title

Agriculture and Colonization, Committee on Bouchard, Mr., substituted for Mr. Stein, 2035
Canadian Council of Agriculture Memorandum ref. to, 377
Constitutionality of Wheat Board, Law Officers' opinion, 940
McCoig, Senator, attendance of, 1900, 2406
Reports
Inquiry as to, 1929
Second and third, 657
M. to concur in, 703, 726, 776
Amdt. (Mr. Meighen) to refer back, 779
M. as amended, agreed to, 786
Third, concurred in, 786
Fourth, concurred in, 865
Fifth, M. to concur in, 2915
Amdt. (Mr. Sutherland), 2951; neg. 2969
See Wheat Board, for further proceedings
Standardization of parts of agricultural machinery, 2406

Air Board, qu. 366. See also Militia and Defence; National Defence

Air Board — Con.
Aeronautical research, 3499
Biggar, Col. O. M., resignation of, 1726
Civil aviation, 1722. See also Air Force
Estimates, salaries, etc., 1722
Expenditure, details of, 1728

Air Board Act, 1919, Amdt. bill (Compensation for death or injury)
Res. 2357, 2820; 1r., 2821, 2r., com., 3r., 2826

Aircraft Limitation. See Limitation of Armaments

Air Force. See also Air Board; Militia, National Defence
Aeroplanes, danger of attack from, 2085-98
Civil Aviation, and, 1047, 1722
Aerial patrol, High River, Alta., 1048; qu. 1066, 1723
Camp Borden, 1728
Co-operation with provinces, 1722
Customs patrol, Vancouver, B.C., 1730
Forest patrol, 1047
High River station, 1048; qu. 1066, 1723
Railway Belt, B.C., 1730
Gasoline for aeroplanes. See Gasoline
Pensions, Widowed mothers, 1305

Air Service. See Air Force

Aird, Sir John, 1128

Alberta
Dry areas, 1042
Harbours and rivers, 2004
Indian schools. See Indians
Meeting of defeated candidates, 2858
Public buildings, 1254
Second homesteads, 1042
Soldier's Civil Re-establishment hospitals, 1344

Alcohol. See also Customs Tariff; Opium and Narcotic Drugs; Prohibition; Special War Revenue Act
Country doctors and, 2177
Retail druggists, for, ques. 1213, 1400; 2114, 2176-7, 2191

Alderson Claim. See Agriculture, Health of Animals

Aldred, Mr. J. E., 1128

Ale. See Liquor; Special War Revenue Act; Taxation

Algoma Steel Corporation, rails, 1689

Aliens. See also Immigration; Labour; Unemployment
Deportation of. See Immigration Act Amdt.; Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Enemy property, custodians of 1672, qu. 1904
C.P.R. shares held by, 1672
Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu. 3363
Prince Rupert, 3606, 3601
Fisher & Oughton, qu. 1773, 3601, 3606
Thorsch, Mr., qu. 1772
Williams & Manson, qu. 1772, 3601, 3606
Lord Kitchener, news of his death, and, 2155
Oriental Immigration. See Oriental Aliens
Taxation of, 2155
Women of Alien Birth. See Dominion Franchise Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Allan, Sir Montagu, 872. See also Banks, Merchants Bank

Alliances, Political, 2095, 2097. See also Nationalists; Progressive Party
"Morganatic alliance", 2095, 2344

Alpine Club, grant to, 1053, 1387

Alternative Vote. See Proportional Representation

Aluminum Company of America, 71, qu. 728
Cedar Rapids power, qu. 1375

Amalgamation of Departments. See National Defence Bill

Ambassador, Canadian, at Washington. See Canadian Representation

American Bankers' Association, 2189

American Magazines, importation and competition, 3109

Amherst, N.S.
Car repair contracts, 1702
Drill hall, 1238

Ammunition. See Militia and Defence

Anaesthetics, use of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Anderson, Mr. R. K. (Halton)
Budget, 2364. Tribute to Finance Minister; taxation and the cost of living, 2364; tariff; import and excise duties; free trade; origin of protective policy in United States; population, increase of; tariff reductions; a two and a half per cent budget; sales tax increase, 2365; party without definite fiscal policy; 2366; revenue and protective tariffs in England and United States; Fordney tariff, 2367; reciprocity with United States; British and American investment in Canadian industries, 2368; home manufacture; trade with Great Britain and United States, 2369; home market; difficulties due to war; debt and deficits, 2370; economy and expenditure; civil service; militia and naval service, 2371; taxation; railways; emigration; dumping clause, 2372; beet sugar; the amendment, 2373
Burlington channel bridge, 2007
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 954
Halifax and St. John quarantine stations, 1241
Halton county
Highways — Dundas Street, qu. 1065
Post offices, 1247
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021-2
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, 3014
Orders in Council, qu. 935
Overseas service — categories, 3317
Penitentiary Act Amdt, 790
Pensions, commutation of, 1281
Public buildings
Rentals, 1259
Water, 1266
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, care and medical examination of patients, 1281
Steel rods, refund of duties, 1774

Andrews, Mr. A. J., K.C.
Winnipeg Strike correspondence, 2042

Anglo-French Relations. See Genoa Conference; Limitation of Armaments

Anglo-Japanese Treaty, 168. See also Japan; Limitation of Armaments

Animal Contagious Diseases Act
Administration, 967, qu. 3362

Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill (Compensation for slaughtered animals), 1r., 1283; 2r., com., 2102; com., 2734; 3r., 2806

Animals, Cruelty to. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Annexation, 2550
"Annexationists of the prairie provinces", 1020

Annual Drill. See Militia

Annuities Branch, Salaries, etc., 776

Anti-Conscription, 22. See also Military Service Act Amdt.

Anti-Dumping. See Budget; Customs; Fruit; Trade

Appeal Cases. See Judges' Act Amdt.

Appeal Judges, Saskatchewan. See Judges Act Amdt.

Appeals from Provincial Courts. See Supreme Court Act Amdt.

Apples. See Fruit

Appropriation Acts
1. Bill No. 26 (Interim Supply — for $53,-901,669.17 for 1922-23). Res., 362, 598; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 599
2. Bill No. 85 (for 1921-22, for $9,623,-792.61 and 1922-23 for $88,517,204.53). Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 1842-3
3. Bill No. 202 (for 1922-23 for $175,766,-646.71). Res. 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3607

Appropriations not required. See Estimates

Archambault, Mr. Joseph (Chambly and Verchères)
Bankruptcy Act, trustees for Montreal district, 1183
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine ships in Montreal harbour, qu. 2637
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth). See under this title, Immigration-Criminal Code
Health Dept. correspondence relating to drugs, 1289, 1377
Immigration-Criminal Code bills (Mr. Woodsworth)
Special Com. Reports, 1988, 2519, 3156, 3280
Isle Perrot bridge, qu. 1377
Military Service Act Amdt., 642
Montreal Harbour Commission, employees, 1289
Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. bill (Residence), 1062
Newspaper censors, 1069
Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289, 1377
Point of order — relevancy, 1890
Pratt vs. Delphine, 302
Railway Commission, Chief Traffic Officer, ques., 1377, 2215, 2457

Archambault, Mr. Joseph — Con.
St. John harbour, qu., 1401
Trent canal, total expenditure, qu. 1376
Victoria bridge tolls, qu. 1377
War claims, details of estimates, qu. 1288
Welland canal, total expenditure, qu. 1376

Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Archives. See Public Archives

Arctic Ocean, patrol. See Naval Service

Arctic Regions, Mounted Police in, 3497

Arichat, port physician, qu. 1773

Armaments. See Limitation of Armaments

Armorial Bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601

Armouries. See also Militia and Defence
Fittings and alterations, 1261, 1288
Quebec, in, qu. 1287

Army and Navy Veterans, Oriental immigration, 1514

Arsenals. See Militia

Arthur Young & Company, 1490. See also Civil Service, Classification

Arthurs, Mr. James (Parry Sound)
Canadian Transit Company Bill, 1771
Cash Bonus to Soldiers, 403; M., 429
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Fishing schooner race, 3514
Geodetic survey, 1986
Labour Dept.
Nova Scotia strike, 584
Salaries, 575
Temporary clerks, 567
Naval Service, cruisers, qu. 2039
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3440-53
Postal receipts, qu. 938
Railway Act Amdt. (Crowsnest pass) 3959
Reading of documents, 560
Returned soldier hikers, qu. 3153
Rural mail routes, qu. 3152
Soldiers' settlement, building loans, 3475
Transcontinental railway, 919

Articles. See League of Nations

Artillery. See Militia; Royal Canadian Artillery

Artisans, Immigration of. See Immigration; Labour

Ascension Day Adjournment. See House of Commons

Asiatic Exclusion League of Canada, Oriental Immigration, 1514

Asiatics. See also Immigration; Oriental Aliens
British Columbia in, 171, 183

Assiniboine River Floods, 1842, 2003, 3545
Relief measures, inquiry, 3491

Assistant Chief Electoral Officer. See Chief Electoral Officer

Athletics. See Cadet Camps

Atlanta, Ga., Penitentiary, 1278

Atlantic-Pacific, Canadian ports. See British Preference; Steamship Services

Atlantic Sugar Refineries, drawback, 2850

Audibility of Debates. See House of Commons

Audit, Supreme Court pre-audit, 1275

Audit Act. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt.

Auditor General
Contingencies, 3504
Salaries, 793

Auditor General's Report, 380, 424
Public Works, expenditure of previous year, 1270
Ref. to Public Accounts Committee, 1462

Aurora, warship. See Naval Service

Australia
Immigration policy, 1536
Preservation of Industries Act, 2411, 2648
Reciprocal trade with, 33, 174, 2110, 2802
Correspondence tabled, 9
Steamship services. See Steamship Services
Trade relations with, 2592

Automobiles. See also Taxation
Duty on, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2232, 2574
Drawbacks, refunds, 2850
Excise sales tax, 2116, 2177, 2186, 2206, 2230, 2260, 2346-7, 2388, 3272-3, 3276
Amended, 2857
Ford car, cost in Detroit and Canada, 2186
Ford Motor Company, 3273
Duty paid by, qu. 3599
Output, 3273
Protection and profits, 2232, 2696
Imports, qu. 1633

Automobiles — Con.
Industry, protection of, 2696, 2730, 3132
Number of, by provinces, 2566
Refund of taxes, 3600
Results of protection of industry, 2696
Theft, penalty, 2831
Value, $1,000, to be admitted free for settlers, 2116

Aviation. See Air Board; Air Force

Bachelor Tax. See Taxation

Backus, Mr. E. W. See also Lake of the Woods Repeal Bill
Lease of timber areas, 2805; qu. 2992

Bacon, production. See Agriculture; Live Stock
Conference on, 1025

Baddeck, N.S.
Public Buildings, 1238
Wharf, 1269, 1765

Baie des Chaleurs railway service. See Gaspé Railways

Baker, the late Colonel G. H., M.P.
Memorial to, 1929
Appointment of Special Com., 2101
Second report, 3490

Baldwin, Mr. W. K. (Stanstead)
Address in reply, 60; congratulations to mover and seconder; Miss Macphail, income tax collections, 60; attitude of leader of Opposition, 60-61; conscription, 61; leader of Opposition, 62
Armouries, 1288
Budget, 2250. Public debt; sugar control; railways; economy, 2250; naval service; development of natural resources, 2251; geographical difference; party promises; water power development; St. Lawrence river waterway, 2252; tariff; Progressive party; Hon. Alexander Mackenzie; Sir John Macdonald and protection, 2253; wartime wages and prices; immigration, national spirit; inequalities of taxation, 2255
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1832

Balkan States, credit to. See Loans; Roumania

Ballantyne, Hon. C. C. See Banks; Ministers and Directorships

Bancroft, Mr. L. P. (Selkirk)
Icelandic river improvements, 2004
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3463
Pensions for lightkeepers, 1496
Selkirk wharf, 2004

Banff, Windermere road, 1051, 1682

Banking and Commerce, Committee on
Bouchard, Mr., substituted for Mr. Stein, 2035
Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, ref. to, 1210
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, ref to, 1210
Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill, ref. to, 1210

Bankruptcy Act, qu., 703

Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bills
1. Bill No. 45 (Mr. Jacobs — additional grounds for petition in bankruptcy) 1r., 821; ref. to Com. on Banking and Commerce, 1395
2. Bill No. 56 (Mr. Ethier — court to which petition shall be presented) 1r., 1132; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1662
3. Bill No. 107 (Sir Lomer Gouin) 1r., 2035; 2r., com., 3025; 3r., 3026
Sections and Subjects discussed:
Avoidance of general assignment of book debts, 3025
Court of bankruptcy, 3026
Judges to be assigned by chief Justice, 3026
Senate amendments, concurrence in, 3611
Suspension of payment, notice of, 3025
Winding up Act, 3026

Banks and Banking. See also Finance; Loans; Taxation
American Bankers' Association, 2189
Bank Act, revision. See Address; Budget
Bank balances and real wealth, 2497
Chartered banks, returns, 865
Cheque tax, 2117, 2177, 2329, 2852, 2856, 3258
Circulation, deposits, loans, etc., qu. 1901
Circulation, tax on, 2117, 2626
Commerce, 1085-7
Credit system, 1290. See also Financial Credits
Credits, 1071, 2729. See also Loans
Currency, issue of, 2501
Deposits, ratio to capital, 2728
Gold in Canadian banks, qu. 2971
Grain trade, financing of, 2246

Banks and Banking — Con.
Income tax payments by, qu. 1400
Interest, 1291, 3601
Alleged violation of Bank Act, 2627
Interlocking directorates, 2503
Loans to directors, 1093
Merchants', 1085, 1092, 1121, 3604
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Amalgamation, 2727
Ballantyne, Hon. C. C., 1085
Independent inquiry by Parliament, 2396
Macarow, Mr. D. C., case against, qu. 2305
Merger, 158, 237, qu. 367, 872, 1085, 2727
Montreal Bank and, 1085
Royal Trust Company, and, 1085
Montreal Bank, 1071-85, 1129
Canadian Pacific, and, 64-66
Unemployed and, 87
Montreal City & District Savings Bank, 1087
Municipalities, withholding credit from, 2627
Nationalization of, 2325-8
New banks, starting, 2501
Number, reserves, deposits, loans, property, qu. 1182
Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill. See that title
Penny Banks, depositories for money received, 1132
Profits, circulation, interest, etc., qu. 3598
Refusal to advance money to school board, 2627
Royal Bank, 1087
Special War Revenue taxation. See that title
Note circulation, payments on, qu., 1400
System, revision of, 138, 158, 223, 237, 352, 2501, 2506. See also Budget; Irvine

Barclay, Mr. A. J., qu., 963-4

Barkhouse, Captain, 1748

Barnet, Major. See Soldier Settlement Board

Barnjum, Mr. Frank J., Forest Protection, 1049

Battlefields Commission, 119, 771. See also War Graves

Battlefields Memorials. See also War Memorials
Estimates, 2098, 2975

Baxter, Mr. Charles W., Appointment of successor, qu., 2457

Baxter, Hon. J. B. M. (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
Address in reply, 98. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 98; Conservative party, campaign literature, 99; natural resources of western provinces, 100; maritime provinces, 101; tariff and reciprocity, 102; railway situation; Canadian ports, 104; economy in expenditure; industrial depression, 105
Audibility of debates, 708
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 493, 712
Budget, 2340. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff; per capita taxation; expenditure, 2341; Progressives and Government; duties on coal, boots and shoes; platform of 1919; failure of Government to implement pledges, 2343; reciprocity with United States; morganatic alliance, 2344; platform of Canadian Council of Agriculture; the amendment, 2345; Wheat Board; Crowsnest pass agreement; redistribution; taxation of luxuries; automobile tax, 2346; tariff proposals as they affect farmer and labourer; trade with Germany, 2347
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill, 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt bill, 3007
Date of coming into force, 3008
Canadian National railways
Government ownership and operation, 1965
Immigration, and, 2165
Intercolonial, 1967
Menus, cost of printing, qu., 1931
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3538, 3603, 3606
Civil Service — Mr. Martell, 3101
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Fines, payment to municipalities, 2832
Half-breed scrip, 3217, 3221
Pool-selling and book-making, point of order, 2973
Customs tariff operation, 769
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, Lunenburg, qu., 1902, 2458, 2584
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 956
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases bill, 3468-74
Dredging, maritimes provinces, 2006
Enfranchisement of foreign-born wives, M. (Mr. Euler) 492
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 2826

Baxter, Hon. J. B. M. — Con.
Fisheries
Deputy Minister of, 2166
Markets, 2166
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2817
Freight Rates
Special Com. on third report, 3577
Sub-amdt., 3586
Harbours and Rivers, New Brunswick, 1991
St. John harbour improvements, 2013
Hudson bay railway, 1970
Hudson, Government cutter, qu., 3598
Immigration, maritime provinces and, 2165
Interior Dept., salaries, 454
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426, 546
Labour Dept., 494, 495
Mildred McColl, patrol boat, qu., 3598
Military expenditure and policy, 1149, 2094
Militia and Defence
Arsenal, Quebec, 2094
Expenditure and policy, 1149, 2094
Ministers and Directorships, M. (Mr. McMaster) 1117
Monopolies and excess profits, 3276
Monuments, historic sites, qu., 469
National Defence bill, 2809
Negro Point breakwater, 2013
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt.
Appeal, restriction of right, 3021
Deportation, 3024
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2016
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 789
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3441
Railway policy, 1965
Rideau Hall, coal supply, 1757
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 840
St. John, in, 736
St. John terminal facilities, 848-9
St. John Valley railway, 3039
Savoy, J. Clovis, qu., 3363
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3408
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. — Insurance, 3253
Spruce bud worm, 815
Wharves in New Brunswick, transfer of, qu., 2305

Beatty, Mr. E. W., President of C.P.R., 126, 127, 1128
Labour costs, 2317

Beaubien, Mr. A. L. (Provencher)
Address in reply, 280; congratulations to mover and seconder, aims of Progressive party, 280
Boy Scouts, 773

Beaubien, Mr. A. L. — Con.
Canadian National railways — wrecks caused by defective cars from United States, 1708
Immigration — Ukrainians, 3061

Beck, Sir Adam, 63, 71, 92, 123, 124, 134, 633, 1327, 1937. See also Hydro Electric; Maclean, Mr., (York); St. Lawrence Waterway

Beef, Imports of, qu., 610

Beer. See Liquor; Taxation

Beet Sugar. See Budget; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.; Special War Revenue

Behring Sea Patrol, 1736. See also Naval Service

Béland, Hon. H. S. (Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Minister in charge of the Department of Health)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3479-84
Canadian Red Cross Society bill, 3151, 3386
Canteen funds, disposal, 3329, 3308
Cash grants to soldiers, 394
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 441
Chaudière Valley floods, 3492
Conservation Commission, 456-7
Election promises, 402
Health, department of
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289, 1377
Estimates, 2017
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021
Quarantine, 2021
Salaries, 775
Venereal diseases, 2022
Insurance claim of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349. See also under this title Returned Soldiers Iusurance
Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, M. (Mr. Archambault) 1289, 1377
Enforcement of Act, 2017
Prohibition and, 2018
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. bill, 775, 1841, 2823, 3013
Appeal, 3020
Deportation, 3024
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3402, 3439-64
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1339, 1349-50, 3336
Appeals, 3341
Charges against, 3041

Béland, Hon. H. S. — Con.
Pension Commissioners. — Con.
Discretion, 392
Memorandum of Chairman, 2994
Representation of Quebec, 1350
Pensions
Commutation, 392
European War and active militia, 1353, 1361
Expenditure under report of Special Com., 3523
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1307
Pensions, Insurance, etc., Special Com.
Appointed, 496
Final report, 3355
Shaw, Mr., 3326
Returned Soldiers, alleged ill-treatment of children of, 2639
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3319, 3358, 3388, 3398, 3437
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept.
Amalgamation or abolition of, 1341
Employers' Liability compensation, 1348
Estimates, 1279, 1339
Hospitals, 1348
Nurses' salaries, 1342
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Pensions, 1349, 1353, 1361. See also under this title, Pensions
Royal Commission on Pensions, 388. See also under this title, Pension Commissioners
Staff, 405, 1343
Reduction of, 3602
Salary increases, 385, 388, 401, 405, 551
Waddington, Mr., 385, 398
Unemployment relief, 1352, 3528
Vocational loans, 1346
Vocational training, 1281
War service gratuity, interest on, 1347
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Dept. bill, 3597, 3609
Soldiers' homes, establishment of, 1348
Unemployment relief, 1352, 3528

Belgium, free trade and, 2525

Bell Telephone Company, rates increase, 132

Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504

Belley, Hon. Mr., and conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Benefit Societies. See Insurance Act Amdt. bill

Bertrand, Mr. T., qu., 937

Betting. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Beverages, Tax on, 2594, 2857. See also Budget; Taxation

Bienfait, Briquetting plant at, qu. 6$4, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Expenditure and results, 2712-15

Big Bay Point, Lake Simcoe, removal of sunken vessel, 2005

Big Bras d'Or wharf, 1765

Big Interests and Liberal party, 242, 2431, 2678, 2682. See also speeches on Budget

Biggar, Colonel O. M.
Resignation from Air Board, 1726. See also Chief Electoral Officer

Biggar, Mr., W. H., K.C., qu. 728

Biggs, Hon. F. C., 63

Bills. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker
For Public Bills See their individual titles;
For private Bills, See Private Bills Discussed

Binder Twine, 257, 265, 2405 2575
Brantford factory, 2375. See also Budget

Binders. See Agricultural Implements

Binette, Mr. Joseph (Prescott)
Campaign funds, qu. 1508
L'Orignal wharf, qu. 1212
Quebec riots, compensation for damage, qu. 1508
St. Lawrence river waterway, communication with Imperial Govt., qu. 1508

Biological Board. See Marine

Bird, Mr. T. W. (Nelson)
Budget, 2704. Political expediency; difficult to modify protective system, 2704; divergence of views of Mr. McMaster and Mr. Raymond; historic Liberalism represented by Progressive party, 2705; revival of Liberal spirit; attitude of Opposition towards Progressives; alleged inaccuracies, 2706; statement as to direct and indirect taxation; tariff a secondary revenue producer; sales tax; free trade and revenue, 2707; inheritance tax; protection and farmers, 2708; labouring man; competition under free trade;

Bird, Mr. T. W. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian wheat in England; workingman and protection, 2709; small industries and trusts, 2710; Wheat Board; protection and flagwaving; obstacles to united nationhood, 2711
Civil Service salaries, 554
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2786
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 526
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 838

Birnie, Mr. Alexander, and others, petition of, 1929

Black, Mr. George (Yukon)
Alien enemy property, qu. 1904
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3004
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3483
Civil Service list, qu. 727
House of Commons
Law Branch, qu. 2304
Senate, and,
Chief Accountants, qu. 2583, 2803
Expenditure, qu. 2583
McPherson, Mr. Duncan, superannuation, qu. 2805
Migratory Birds, 1686
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1520
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3464
Pensions Committee, final report, 3334
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 838
Senate and House of Commons
Chief Accountants' salaries, ques. 2583, 2803
Yukon Territory
Administration of justice, 1275
Suggested union with British Columbia, 1275
Mining and mineral discoveries, 1276
Parcel post, 2802
Radio-telegraph service, 1749
Silver discovery, 1276

Black, Mr. William (South Huron)
Budget, 2448. Disappointment at proposals of Finance Minister; the tariff; jokers in budget; protection with an excise tax; boots and shoes; building materials and agricultural implements; exorbitant prices charged; manufacturers' rebate on raw materials; loss of population, 2449; immigration; railway situation; national railways; change of management necessary; merchant marine; civil service; mem-

Black, Mr. William — Con.
Budget — Con.
bers taking up too much time with speeches; trade relations with United States; export of cattle, 2450; immigration, 2450
Goderich harbour improvements, 2000
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2000

Black, Mr. W. J., Deputy Minister of Immigration
Appointment of, 3500. See also Immigration

Blackfoot Reserve. See Indians

Blake, Late Hon. Edward
Letter to West Durham electors, 2677
Malvern speech, 2655, 2677
Withdrawal from leadership of Liberal party, 2655, 2657, 2677

Bland, Mr. C. H., Civil Service Commission, qu. 1773

Blankets. See Customs Tariff

Blind
Canadian National Institute for, grant, 3540
Soldiers. See Pensions Committee

Blood Indian Reserve. See Indians

Board of Commerce, 1118
Constitutionality of. See Wheat Board
Cost, report, qu. 2583
Salary of secretary, 1715

Board of Pension Commissioners. See Pension Commissioners

Board of Railway Commissioners. See Railway Commission

Boivin, Mr. George H. (Shefford)
Business of the House
Questions requiring tabulated answers, 1132
Canadian National railways
Board of management, 1698
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
St. Malo shops, 1699
Cheque tax, 3261
Criminal Code, revision, 1717
Debates Committee, first report concurred in, 1258
Debates, Official, Unrevised Index, 3359
Health of Animals
Hog cholera, 1007
Inspection of dairy herds, 1007
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
Unemployment, rail and car repair contracts, 1699

Bolshevism, 1290. See also Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Bona fide Contractors. See Wheat Board bill

Bonds. See also Finance; Loans
Five year maturities, qu. 2993
Non-taxable Victory bonds, qu. 2971
Sale by public tender, 1468
Tax-exempt, 2567, 2725

Bonus. See Civil Service; Soldiers

Bookmaking. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Bootlegging. See Liquor

Boots and Shoes, 3238. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Customs
Felt shoe industry, 3239
Price and labour costs, 2350
Protection of industry, 207-208
Tariff on, 102-103, 152-3, 159, 2341-2, 2465, 2488-9, 2632, 2685, 3236, 3237
M. (Mr. Shaw) to reduce duty, neg. 3238

Borden, Camp
Air force and civil aviation, 1728

Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert
Appointment to Limitation of Armaments Conference
M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 373
Imperial Conference of 1918, 1864
Naval defence, on, 1864, 1876
Quebec Harbour, 1475
Report on reduction of naval armaments, 9, 42, 1737, 1743
Withdrawal from directorships, 1089

Bouchard, Mr. George J. (Kamouraska)
Introduction, 1929

Boucher, Mr. Aimé (Yamaska)
Naval policy, 2078
Sorel shipyard, men employed May 1921, qu. 1062

Bounties
Linen yarn, 3128
Steel, 304-5, qu. 3360
Sugar beet industry. See Inland Revenue

Bourassa, Mr. J. B. (Levis)
Levis lightkeepers, qu. 2583

Bovine Tuberculosis. See Animal Contagious Diseases

Bowen, Mr. Fred W. (Durham)
Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu. 937

Boy Scouts Association, 772

Boys, Mr. W. A. (South Simcoe)
Big Bay point, Lake Simcoe, wreck, 2005
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Canada Gazette, expenditure Public Works, 1268
Coal, importation for public buildings, 1763
Dredging, 2005
External Affairs, salaries, 412
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2002
Militia-Naval Service, officers, 421
National Defence bill, Air Force, 677
Naval Service
Militia, and, deputy ministers, 421
Niobe, sale of, 2068
Patronage — rural postmasters, 3083
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 790
Pensions Board, appeal, 390
Pensions, disability cases, 389
Public Buildings
Coal importations for, 1763
Ottawa
Elevator attendants, 1267
Expenditure on, 1268
Public works
Appropriations and expenditures, 2002
Estimates, 695, 698
M. to reduce, 695
Expenditure, monthly statement of, 1268, 1271
Riley's army, qu. 3364
Soldiers' land settlement, 2132

Brantford
Agricultural implement industries, 255, 2375. See also Budget; Raymond
Meighen, Hon. Mr., speech at, 256

Breadner, Mr. R. W., Commissioner of taxation, salary, 2024

Brethen, Mr. G. A. (East Peterborough)
Accredited herds, 1000
Agriculture — Deputy Minister, 653
Automobile tax, 3276-7
Budget, 2693. United Grain Growers and agricultural implement business; income tax — who pays? 2693; economy; reduction in cost of government; national debt; domestic loans; reciprocity, 2694; sales tax; excess profits, 2695; luxury tax; unimproved land values; automobile tax; protective tariff and automobile industry, 2696; Ford car; protection of agricultural implements, 2697; home market; prices

Brethen, Mr. G. A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
fixed in markets of world; ability of agriculture and live stock industries to meet world competition, 2698
Customs Dept., estimates, 763
Grants to live stock associations, 1027
Live stock trade with South America, 647
Manufacturers, protection of, 2696, 3232
Oleomargarine, 3430
Woollen clothing and blankets, 3135

Brewing. See Inland Revenue

Bridges. See also Public Works
Burlington Channel, 2007
Edmonton, 2007
Edmundston, 1239-53
False Creek, 3516
Grand river, York, Ont., qu. 1287
Isle Perrot, federal contribution, qu. 1377
Ottawa, lighting, 1267
Quebec, 1068
Red Deer river, 1964
Victoria, tolls, qu. 1377

Bridgetown, post office accommodation, 1245

Briquetting. See Bienfait; Lignite

Bristol, Hon. Edmund (Centre Toronto)
Budget, 2407. Congratulation to Finance Minister; nothing for trade or agriculture, a "stand pat" budget; protection against competitors; wages and production costs in Germany, 2407; German exports to Canada, 2408; protection of industries in Great Britain; Safeguarding of Industries Act; United States tariff, 2409; protection against German competition; equalization of conditions; duty valuation based on Canadian selling price; safeguarding of French industries, 2410; Australian Industries Preservation Act; Tom Moore on German labour conditions; protection of Canadian industries, 2411; industrial development and tariff legislation in United States; iron and steel, comparison of English and American prices; steel rails; Germany underselling United States; nails; protection of Nova Scotia coal and steel industry, 2412; tariff revision long overdue, 2413; western farmer and tariff and freight rates; United States farmer opposed to free trade; tariff against Canadian agricultural products; protection against United States commodities;

Bristol, Hon. Edmund — Con.
Budget — Con.
free trade; agricultural implements, importation from United States; effect of tariff reduction on implement factories; American factories in Canada; trusts and combines; woolens, 2415; free trade means destruction of Canadian industries and home markets; harmony between eastern and western Canada, 2416; deflation; building costs, coal; railway wages and freights; the amendment, 2417
Canadian ships damaged during war, 1183
Welland canal, 2748
Co-operation with the United States, 2751
Grain transportation, 2750

British Admiralty, war claims, 1752

British Board of Trade, relief of distressed seamen, 1676

British-Born
Disabilities under Immigration and Naturalization Acts, 1389-91

British Columbia
Aerial patrol of forests, 1724, 1730
Asiatics in. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Banff-Windermere road, 1051, 1682
Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008
Canada Temperance Act, 1017
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733, 2997. See also that title
Canadian National branch lines, 331
Coal mines in, 178
Coastal services, qu. 3152
Dairymen's Association, 1794
D'Arcy Island, lazaretto, 2021
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1156-63, 1353
United Farmers, and, 1354
Fisheries. See also Quebec Fisheries
Cost and revenue, 2306
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 851, 863
Transfer to, 2042
Freight rates. See Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Fruit industry, 162, 225, 3417-3424
Tariff and. See Budget; Customs
Fuel Oil, 178, 344, qu. 728
Competition with coal, 2312
Liquor traffic, 2018. See also under this title, Canada Temperance Act

British Columbia — Con.
Natural resources, 328. See also Natural Resources
Old age and mothers' pensions, 1375
Oliver, Hon. John, 322
Criticism by Vancouver Sun, 2236-7
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 2017. See also that title
Oriental Aliens. See also that title
Competition with, 171, 173, 183, 316-19, 332, 344
Immigration, 167, 872, 967, 2310, 3104
Res. by Legislature, 1511, 1513
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1509
Population, 1512
Voting, 172
Post offices, revenue from, qu. 824
Potlach Indian Institution, qu. 1377. See also Indians
Public buildings, improvements, etc., 1255
Railway Belt
Forestry, 1046
Survey, 1043
Railway mail service, 2797
Union for judicial purposes with Yukon, 1275

British Columbia House, London, purchase of, 3537

British Empire Steel Corporation, 200, 1106, 1130. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Business profits tax, qu. 1067
Compensation for loss, 1082

British Goods, Importation. See British Preference; Customs; Trade

British-Japanese Treaty See Limitation of Armaments

British Market. See British Preference; Cattle Embargo; Trade

British Ministry of Shipping
Account, 2975
Hospital ship, claim for loss of, 2976

British North America Act, powers under See Quebec Fisheries

British Preference, 2111, 2201, 2529, 2624-5. See also Budget; Customs; Trade
Canadian Seaports, and, 2688
M. (Mr. Logan) 493, 707
Amdt. (Mr. Lewis) 772; withdrawn, 726
Further reduction of duties, 2113
Goods imported via United States, qu. 375
Sugar, 2116

British Shipping Board, credit, 2975

British Subjects, Wives of alien birth. See Dominion Elections Act

British Valuation. See Customs, Valuation

Brockville and Westport Railway. qu. 704

Brown, Hon. George, on political pledges, 2482

Brown, Mr. J. L. (Lisgar)
Address in reply, 332; reciprocity, live stock industry, 333; cattle embargo, 334
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. 2735
Automobiles, refund of taxes, 3600
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 721
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Canals, traffic through, qu. 705
Canned foods, marking, 3050
Civil Service, economy in, 423
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2833
Experimental farms, 808
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Inaudibility of debates, 1751
Labour Dept. — economy, 568
Militia and Defence
Estimates, 587
Quebec arsenal, 2095
Naval policy, 2069
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal of, 1674
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1803
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3018
Pensions Committee — final report, 3342
Political alliances, 2095
Prince Rupert Dry Dock Co., claim, 3516
Public Works estimates, 696
Rideau canal, 2765, 2767
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 840
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1207
St. Peter's Indian reserve, qu. 472
Soldier land settlement, 2134
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 449
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, staff, 1345
Statistics, accumulation of, 580
Wheat Board bill, 3180
Wheat Board — point of order, 2949
Woollen goods, duty on, 3232

Brussels Financial Conference, 1138, 1292

Bryce, Dr. Peter, H., pamphlet, 1224

Bud Moth. See Forestry

Budget. See also Ways and Means
Date of
Announcement, 1721
Inquiry, 1018, 1463, 1503
Debate, on, 2104, 2171, 2216, 2256, 2307, 2358, 2407, 2459, 2519, 2523, 2585, 2640, 2692, 2842, 2859
Amendments
Crerar, Mr., 2473-4; Speaker's ruling 2520-23
Drayton, Sir Henry, 2179, neg. 2912
Divisions
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) neg. 2912
Corrected division list, 2972
Motion (Mr. Fielding) for Ways and Means Com., 2104; agreed to, 2913
Ruling of Mr. Speaker on Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2520-23
Probable time for conclusion of, 2639
Speeches of Finance Minister, 2104, 2842
Speakers, Messrs: Anderson, 2364, Baldwin, 2250; Baxter, 2340; Bird, 2704; Black (Huron) 2448; Brethen, 2693; Bristol, 2407; Caldwell, 2660; Campbell, 2729; Cannon, 2909; Chaplin, 2616; Charters, 2561; Church, 2392; Coote, 2724; Crerar, 2459; 2522; Denis (Joliette) 2887; Drayton, 2127; Drummond, 2272; Elliott (Waterloo) 2348; Fansher, 2229; Fielding, 2104, 2842; Findlay, 2893; Fortier, 2274; Gardiner, 2624; Garland (Carleton) 2300; Good, 2429; Gouin, 2654; Gould, 2711; Guthrie, 2874; Hocken, 2675; Hoey, 2331; Hughes, 2225; Irvine, 2495; Jacobs, 2513; Johnston (Last Mountain) 2220; Kellner, 2280; King (Huron) 2301; King (Mackenzie) 2537; Kyte, 2358; Ladner, 2276; Laflamme, 2895; Lanctôt, 2567; Lapierre, 2628; Lapointe, 2585; Lavigueur, 2398; Leader, 2510; Lewis, 2256; Logan, 2684; Lovett, 2270; Lovie, 2451; Low, 2445; MacKelvie, 2196; Maclean (Halifax) 2859; Maclean (York) 2321; Macphail, Miss, 2384; McBride, 2635; McConica, 2698; McCrea, 2314; McKenzie, 2604; McMaster, 2417; McMurray, 2474; McQuarrie, 2233; McTaggart, 2545; Malcolm, 2387; Manion, 2261; Marcil, 2905; Meighen, 2523; Millar, 2294; Milne, 2239; Morrison, 2699; Motherwell, 2548; Neill, 2307; Prevost, 2577; Putnam, 2282; Raymond, 2373; Robb, 2179; Sales, 2574; Speakman, 2881; Spencer, 2629; Stansell, 2290; Steedsman, 2721; Stevens, 2646; Stewart (Argenteuil) 2216; Stewart

Budget — Con.
Debate on — Con.
(Humboldt) 2597; Sutherland, 2481; Tolmie, 2591; Turgeon, 2188; Ward, 2400; Warner, 2204; White, 2352; Woods, 2183; Woodsworth, 2242
To continue from day to day, 2101
Resolutions, 2218
Amended, 2854

Building
Costs, 2416. See also Housing
Trades
Conference, 582-3
Freight rates affecting, 133

Buildings. See Public Buildings

Bukowinians. See Immigration

Bull Durham Tobacco, comparative prices, 2546

Bureau, Hon. Jacques (Minister of Customs and Excise)
Agriculture Committee Report, Wheat Board, 726
Civil Servants, appeal, 3079
Customs dept.
Drawbacks, 766
Estimates, 762, 1674
Officials, 764
Valuation of imports, 3413
Dominion Elections Act Amdt., 2810
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Estimates, accounts chargeable to current and past year, 1675
Export liquor warehouses, 768
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 641
National Defence Bill, Senate amdts., 2807
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal, 1674
Parliament, fall session, 3609
Public ownership, 1331
Quebec Harbour — Park St. Charles, 1470
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1332
Total trade, statement of, 1376

Bureau of Standards, 235, 1372

Bureau of Statistics. See Statistics

Burlington Channel, Bridge, 2007

Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008

Burstall, Major General Sir Henry, retirement, 742-3, 1145, qu. 1211. See also National Defence Bill

Business Profits War Tax. See Taxation

Butter. See Agriculture; Dairying Industry; Oleomargarine

By-Elections. See House of Commons

Bylot Island, Mounted Police, 3497

Byng, Lord, Governor General. See References in Address

Cabinet. See Ministers and Directorships
Personnel of, 241

Cables, Submarine, ques. 3151-2, 3360

Cadets. See Militia and Defence

Cahill, Mr. Frank S. (Pontiac)
Canadian Pacific railway bill, 1860
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1449
Montreal, Joliette and Transcontinental railway, 1577
Royal Canadian Navy, 1893
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1208
Vancouver and Fraser Valley railway, 798

Calder Act. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement Act

Calder, Hon. Senator J. A., 1393

Calder, Senator, United States
St. Lawrence river waterway 1206

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. (Victoria and Carleton, N.B.)
Abbatoir and cold storage plants in maritime provinces, 992
Agriculture
Cold storage facilities, 992-3
Department — salaries, 750
Exhibitions, 993
Fertilizer inspectors, 592
Lecturers, 1023
Saunders, Dr., resignation of, 591
Spruce bud moth, 595, 2668
Air Board Act Amdt. bill, 2821
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2734-8
Blankets, duty on, 3131
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 856
Budget, 2660. Congratulations to Finance Minister; Minister of Justice applauded by Opposition; fallacy of the home market argument; wheat and potatoes; reciprocity with United States; Mr. Chaplin; taxation; inconsistency of

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Prime Minister; sales tax burdensome to people least able to bear it, 2661; duty on clothing and silk goods; failure of budget to carry out Prime Minister's ideas; drawbacks and untaxed exports, 2262; a protectionist budget; tools of production; agricultural implements, prices in Canada and United States; fertilizers and the tariff, 2663; Maine and New Brunswick prices, 2664; cost of growing potatoes; reductions of duty on farm machinery; prospect of Liberals implementing tariff planks, 2665; Finance Minister's disavowal of tariff planks of Liberal platform, 2666; free trade; export duty on pulpwood and round logs; Canadian resources used to develop American industries, 2667; spruce bud moth; import and export duties, payment of, 2668; amendment; tariff revision; recent additions to Conservative party, 2669
Business of the House — concurrence, 1842
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. (Pilotage) 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Canadian National railways
Directors, 2791
Public ownership, 1939
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3539, 3602, 3604
Privilege, question of, 3602
Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509
Commissioner of Taxation, salary, 2024
Cotton fabrics, 3127
Damage by floods in New Brunswick, 3492
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2813
New polls to be established, two months prior to election day, amdt., 2815
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, qu. 704
Edmundston public building, 1240
Farm machinery, cost of, 769
Fertilizer Act Amdt., 775, 3041, 3194
Fertilizers
Duty on, 3140-3141
Inspectors, 592
Tariff and, 2664
Transportation rates on, 1022
Fisheries
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways in salmon rivers, 2167
Pollution of streams, 2168
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 2818
Fishing Schooner race, 3510

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Forests
Destruction by spruce moth, 1049, 2668
Protection by fire towers, 1048
Gasoline tractors, 2123
Grading machines, 3126
Harness, duty on, 3137
Home brewing, 3141
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2791
Indians
Devon Band, proposed removal, 1216
Expenditure, 1225
Tobique reserve, illegal cutting of timber, 1233
Insurance returns, 3254
Manufacturers — free traders, 3140
Militia and defence — annual drill, concurrence, 1842
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1257
National Defence bill, 745
Naval Service, sale of Niobe, 2065
Penitentiary Act Amdt. 789
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3445-56
Pension Board, staff, 1351
Pensions
Committee on, report, 2996, 3310-24
Commutation of, 1281
Disabilities, 390
Widowed mothers, 1312, 3324
Potatoes, 2661, 2666
Inspection and sale of, 2744. See also under this title Root Vegetables
Shipment to Cuba, 2028
Privilege, Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3602
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Quebec Harbour Commission — Parc St. Charles, 1469, 3197
Root Vegetables, inspection and sale, 2744, 3486
Potato grades, 3370
St. John and Quebec railway, 1293-6
St. John, N.B., terminal facilities, M. 639. 844, 850
Saw-mill machinery, 3127
Senate indemnity, 3509
Silk fabrics, duty, 2662, 3137
Soldiers
Disabilities of, 392
Insurance, 3321
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Hospitals, 1342-8
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Salaries, 1342
Vocational loans, 1346
Vocational training, 1281

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Soldier land settlement, 2133, 3408
Land purchase, irregularities charged, 2142
Payment of municipal taxation by Govt., 1257
Taxes, collection of, 2134
Steamship service, St. John and Cuba, 2028
Steel plates, delivery of, 3508
Sydney pilotage district, 3508
Widowed mothers, pensions, 1312, 3324
Woollen goods, duty on, 3129

Calgary
Buildings, rental of, 1254
Free freight outlay, qu. 704
Live stock branch, qu. 607
Milk inquiry, cost of, qu. 823
Post office building, 1254
Trades and Labour Council, unemployment, 1082

Calydor, sanitarium, 1279

Cameras, prices in Canada and United States, 2547, 2624

Cameron, Mr. Alex., qu. 606

Campaign Funds and Literature. See Elections

Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834

Campbell, Mr. Milton N. (Mackenzie)
Address in reply, 356. Financial position of western farmer, 356; railway and freight problems, 357; maritime provinces and Confederation; financial condition of country, 358
Automobiles, protection of industry, 2730
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2729. Liberal pledges and promises; platform of 1919, 2729; statements of Prime Minister at Yorkton, Sask.; the budget a repudiation; the tariff, automobile industry, 2730; Sir John Macdonald's view of protection; guiding principle of national policy; Mr. Meighen and agricultural implement duties, 2731; tractors and farm machinery: cotton and woollen clothing; protection and the farmer; protected interests and campaign funds; betrayal of the people, 2732
Cadet services, expenditure, 1137
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy — Essex) for Special Com. 1426
Dominion lands, surveys, 1037
Experimental farm, Canora, 805

Campbell, Mr. Milton N. — Con.
Housing credits, 3524
Immigration
Highland family, alleged unjust treatment, 2145
Holland, from, 2145
Medical inspection, 759
Indians
Bryce, Dr. Peter H., pamphlet, 1224
Saskatchewan reserves, qu. 608
Linen yarn from Canadian flax, bounty, 1361
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Public Works Dept.
Filing clerks, 693
Officials, 692
Saskatchewan Indian reserves, qu. 608

Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu., 397

Camp Borden, Air Force and Civil aviation, 1728

Camps, Militia. See Militia and Defence, Annual Drill

Canada Status of, 1337, 2324. See also Speeches on Address; Budget; Limitation of Armaments; Naval Service

Canada-Australia-New Zealand steamship service, 3034

Canada Car and Foundry Company, 1696
Car repair contracts, 1696
Amherst shops, 1702
Port Arthur, 1696

Canada Cement Company, 200, 2297, 2300

Canada Gazette
Expenditure, Public Works Dept., 1268

Canada Grain Act. See also Grain and Grain Trade
Administration of, 2834
Constitutionality of, 2837
King v. Manitoba Grain Company, decision, 1132, 1841, 1932
Inquiry (Mr. Meighen) 1770

Canada-Mexico trade, qu. 606, 699, 700, 2989

Canada-Newfoundland Steamship service, 2027

Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bills
1. (Exemption from Pilotage Dues) — Res. 1335, 1487; 1r., 1489; 2r., com., 2819; 3r., 2820; Senate amdts. 3437
2. (Appointment of Harbour Masters) — Res. 1578, 3009; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3010

Canada Steamship Company
Life-saving equipment, qu. 1284

Canada Temperance Act
Expenses under, 3499
Plebiscite, 2024

Canada Temperance Act Amdt. Bills
1. (Provincial legislation) 1r., 1017; withdrawn, 2733
2. (Provincial government control of liquor importation) 1r., 2733; 2r., com., 2997; 3r., 3009
Senate amendments
Concurrence, 3614
Non-concurrence in, 3608
Conference, 3613
Subjects and items discussed:
Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 3000, neg. 3006
Carriage or transportation, Amdt. (Mr. Mitchell) 3008
Date of coming into effect, Amdt. (Mr. Shaw 3007; withdrawn, 3008

Canada-West Indies-British Guiana service, qu. 2356

Canada-West Indies, South America service, 2027, 3026

Canada's Contribution. See League of Nations; Naval Service

Canadian Air Board. See Air Board

Canadian Council of Agriculture. See also Progressive Party; Wheat Board
Agricultural figures, 2649
Fiscal policy and proposals, 2508-9
Memorandum on Wheat Board referred to Agriculture Com., 377. See Agriculture and Colonisation Com.
Platform, 2345
Tariff criticisms and proposals, 2509, 2552. See also speeches on Budget

Canadian Deep Waterway and Power Association, 1320. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Canadian Expeditionary Force. See also Pensions; Soldiers Civil Re-establishment Canteen Funds. See that title
First contingent, qu. 1376
Medical inspection, 3317. See also Pensions
Repatriation of dependents, 1711
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and, qu. 2038

Canadian Ford Company. See Automobiles

Canadian Forestry Association. See Forestry

Canadian Freighter. For names of Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels. See Vessels

Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 882, 2888. See also Canadian National Railways; Naval Service; Shipbuilding; Steamship Services
Canada-Newfoundland service, 2027
Coal from Japan, 2312, 2406
Cost of, 245, 247, qu. 469. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Dominion Steel Corporation, contract for steel plates, 1677
Employees at Montreal, qu. 2992
Employees' wages, qu. 3598
Inquiry as to sale of, 3104
Insurance, qu. 605
Lake marine, qu. 3362
Loans to, 3035
Lumber cargoes for Orient, 2311
Ocean and river service, 3507. See also Marine
Ocean freights. See British Preference
Outstanding claims, qu. 606
Ownership and operation of, 3037
Passenger traffic, qu. 939
Potatoes, shipment to Cuba, 2028
Prince Rupert Drydock and Engineering Co. claim, 3514
Shipments by. See St. John terminal; Steamship Services
Ships in Montreal harbour, qu. 2637
Subsidized steamship services, 3027, 3506
Welland canal, 2756-9
Vessels. See also that title
Britisher, steamer, 3514
Canadian Exporter, wreck, qu. 1210
Canadian Freighter, qu, 963
Number of, qu. 469
Scottish, steamer, 3514

Canadian Government Railways, 873. See also Canadian National Railways
Deficits, qu. 607
Dining car service, qu. 2040

Canadian High Commissioner. See High Commissioner

Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1237

Canadian Manufacturers' Association, 170. See also Budget; Manufacturers
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Tariff, and, 2546

Canadian Mission, Colonel Delphine, 303

Canadian National Institute for the Blind
Grant, 3540

Canadian National Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

Canadian National Railways. See also Address; Budget; Freight Rates; Railways; Transportation
Accounting, 1908-18
Advances
$7,000,000, — 2779
$42,800,000, — 1905-33-69
Amalgamation of system, delay, 2585
Amount required for, 381
Annual report, 1928
Annual statement by Minister of Railways, 873; Canadian Government railways; 873; Grand Trunk system, 877; estimates, 879; freight rates, 879; reorganization, 880; Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 882; summaries, 882
Board of Directors. See under this title, Directors
Bond sale in New York, 58
Branch lines, 1472, 1476, 1956
Bengough extension, 2770
British Columbia, 331
Eastern Maine railway, 1293
Hanna-Medicine Hat, 1965
Kamloops-Kelowna, qu. 937, 1134, 2797
Policy of Government, 1135
Business methods, 1692
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and, 3036
Canadian Northern railway, 123
Acquisition of, 2614
Advances to, qu, 471
$42,800,000, — 1905-33-69
Agriculture, contribution to freight tonnage, 1927
Arbitration, 204
Bonded indebtedness, 190, qu. 368
Assumption by Dominion Govt., 2458
Co-ordination, 1907
Deficit, 191, 1907
Electrification of, 1317. See also Electrification
Federal subsidies, qu. 1504
Guarantee bill, 1914, legal expenses, 1667
Indebtedness of western provinces, 229
Insurance, qu. 471
Invasion of Ontario by, 202
Liabilities, qu. 368
Loans and subsidies to, 189-90, 204, qu. 1504, 1921
Mackenzie-Mann
Amounts paid to, qu. 935
Subsidy, qu. 607

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Canadian Northern Railway — Con.
Mileage, qu. 368
Operating deficit, 1905
Responsibility for loans, 204. See also under this sub-title, Loans
Rorketon branch line, 2139
Subsidiary lines, 202
Taking over of, 190, 1907
Canadian Pacific railway, competition with, 65. See also Address; Budget; Railways
Car and locomotive contracts
Canadian Locomotive Company, 2794
Eastern Car Company, 2794
Car repairs. See under this title, Rail and Car Repair Contracts
Carey, Mr., 2858
Coal
Importations, qu. 926, qu. 2213
Purchases, qu. 2306
Consolidation, 6. 11, 28, 72, 73, 89. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Dams impeding ascent of fish, 2168
Deficits, 1905-69, 1920
Corrected statement, 1919
Dining car and restaurant service, qu. 2040
Menus, cost of printing, qu. 1931
Rivers and Melville, Sask., restaurants, qu. 2038
Directors, Board of, 1924, 2194, 2791
Appointment of, 1936
Connection with supply companies, 2792
Hanna, Mr. D. B., 1924, 1959, 1962
Labour costs, and, 2317
Interested in other companies, 1129
Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 1924
Public ownership, sympathy with, 2852
Representation of employees, 2798
Statement of Prime Minister, 2792
Drayton-Acworth report, 45-46
Edith Cavell road, Jasper Park, 1052
Electrical operation, 1206, 1323. See also Electrification; St. Lawrence river waterway; and under this title, Public Ownership
Electrification, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 627
Estimates, 1905
Fraser, Mr., right-of-way agent, 1134
Freight
Careless handling of, 1965
Rates. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates
Advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Coal from maritime provinces, 1763
Quebec and, 1472-5
Special Committee, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1213

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Grain leakages, qu. 1401, qu. 1930
Grain shipments, 2194. See also Grain and Grain Trade
Grand Trunk Pacific railway, 189, 196, 203, 342, 1921
Advances, qu, 471, qu. 2037, 3520
$15,900,000, 1969
Branch lines, 3520
British Columbia in, 331
Cost of to the country, 196
Estimated, 205
Subsidiary lines, 203
Grand Trunk railway, 29. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Acquisition, 190, 235, 1922, 2612, 2616
Administration of, 64
Advances to, qu. 471, qu. 2037
$25,750,000, 1969
American mileage, 191, 204
Amount required, 381
Annual statement of Minister of Railways, 877
Arbitration, 128, 205, 2779
Comments of English newspapers, 374, 821
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C., payments to, 2772
Bonded security, advances, qu. 935
Coal, qu. 606
Deficit, 191. See also Annual Statement under this title
Employees
Pension rights and status, M. (Mr. Boys) 863, 1382, 2041, 3437
English stock-holders, 64, 123
Financial statement, 1933
Government ownership, 125. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Kelley, Mr. H. B., 205
Mortgage trust deed, legal expenses, 1667
Officials, salaries, qu. 728
Portland terminal, 353, 920. See also British Preference and Canadian Seaports
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Hotels, 2806
Immigration, 1927, 2147, 2165. See also that title
Industrial councils, 1061
Insurance, qu. 471, qu. 610
Intercolonial railway, 106-111, 274, 312, 1967, 2688. See also Logan; Macdonald (Pictou)
Administration, 275
Domination by Canadian Northern railway, 193-194
Employees, enlistment of, 3518
Freight rates, 275, 355. See also that title

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Intercolonial railway — Con.
Gaspé and Bonaventure counties, in, 623
Gulf shore and Caraquet railway, qu. 1504
Local management, 313-314, 192
Management, inquiry, 407-8
Moncton headquarters, 313, 355, 2289
Operation of, 107, 192
Passes on, 315
Patronage system, 106
Pension fund, qu. 938
Provident fund for employees, 2769
Repairs to cars, qu. 1212
Snow-cleaning, 313
Investigation proposed, 1908-17
Labour conditions, 2315
Mail contracts, qu. 2038, qu. 2213
Mail service, qu. 2799
Montreal, employees, 1288
National Transcontinental. See under this title Transcontinental
Overbuilding, 2569
Passenger traffic, qu. 927
Pension fund, qu. 938
Prince Edward Island railway, 1249
Public confidence, 1928
Public ownership and operation, 1907, 1933, 2193. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Purchases in anticipation of requirements, 1912
Quebec Oriental and Quebec Western railways, 623
Quebec terminals, 1475
Rail and car repair contracts, 1912, 1925, 1958, 2399
Board of management and, 1688-1710
Defective American cars, 1708
Steel cars, 1702-6, 1709
Rates. See Freight Rates; Railways
Regional control, 1923, 2196
Representation at meeting of steamship companies, qu. 2584
Revaluation, 1925
Right-of-way and lease agent, qu. 1633
Rolling stock repairs, 1212. See also under this title Rail and Car Repairs
St. John and Quebec Railway, qu. 1774
M. (Mr. Caldwell) 1293, neg. 1296
Securities, qu. 3154
Shops
Moncton, 1709
Rivière du Loup, 1690
St. Malo, 1699
Transcona, 1705, 1708
Steel cars, qu. 2213
Repairs, 1702-1709

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Telegraphs, qu. 3360
Ties, ques. 934, 2209
Purchases of in Quebec, qu. 1659
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Toronto railway viaduct, qu. 1660
Transcontinental railway, 111, 125, 278, 919, 1921, 2493
Cost, 2193
Enlisted men, allowance to, 3518
Freight rates, Quebec and, 1472-5
Grain shipments by, 2194
Lease of Eastern division, legal expenses, 1667
Opposition of Canadian Pacific to, 545, 2194
St. John valley, 3039
Unification, 1907, 1923-5, 2585. See also under this title Consolidation; Public Ownership
Water supply, Ste. Anne-St. Pierre, qu. 2213
Working expenditures, 2779

Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Canadian Northern Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Canadian Pacific Railway, 146, 191. See also Address; Canadian National Railways; Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway; Freight Rates
Advance in price of stock, 129
Beatty, Mr. E. W., 126, 127, 1128
Labour costs, 2317
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, 1606, 1856
Coal lands, transfer of, qu. 2214
Competition with Grand Trunk, 64. See also that title
Cost, 2193
Dams impeding ascent of fish, 2167
Directors, voting trust, 1936
Electrical operation, 71, 1206. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill. See that title
False creek bridge, removal, 3516
Freight Rates. See that title
Immigration and, 351
Indian Department, payment to, 3518
Labour conditions, 2315
Mail contracts, ques. 2040, 2213
New England states, connection with, 1294
Palais station, Quebec, 1068
Public ownership, 1937, 2329
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688-1710
Rates, See Freight Rates

Canadian Pacific Railway — Con.
Shares held by custodians of alien enemy property, 1672
Success of, 123
Transcontinental railway, opposition to, 2194

Canadian Patriotic Fund bill
Res. 3156, 3366; 1r., 3366; 2r., com., 3477; 3r., 3484

Canadian Press, Limited, 772

Canadian Red Cross Society bill
1r., 3151; 2r., com., 3387; 3r., 3388

Canadian Representation in the United States, 1383, 2026, 2864, 2990
International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Printing of report, 3601
Limitation of Armaments Conference. See that title

Canadian Seaports, trade through, 104. See also British Preference; Steamship Services; Trade

Canadian Towing and Wrecking Co., 1677

Canadian Transit Company. See Private Bills Discussed

Canadian Vickers. See Vickers

Canadian Wheat Board. See Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board

Canadian Wheat Board Bill. See also Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board
Res. 3174; 1r., 2r., com., 3179; com., 3379; 3r., 3387
Amdts:
(Mr. Johnson, Moosejaw) 3178
(Mr. Maclean, Halifax) 3180
(Mr. Johnson-Mr. Robb) agreed to, 3383

Canadians
Distressed, relief for, 2027
Emigrating. See Immigration

Canalization. See St. Lawrence River Waterway; Welland canal

Canals. See also Railways and Canals; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Chambly, improvements, 3518
Frankfurt, 1189
Georgian Bay, 1184, 1199, 1200-1209, 1319, 1397-8

Canals — Con.
Lachine
Widow of late James Innes, allowance, 2779
Manchester, 1189
Ontario-St. Lawrence, 2779
Quebec, 2779
Rideau, 2764
Construction of storehouse at Ottawa, 2764
Expenditure on, 2860
Improvements, 2769
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1183. See also that title
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2767
Soulanges
Improvements, 2768
Roadway, 2768
Traffic through, qu. 705
Panama, Suez and Soo canals, 1203
Trent
Estimates, 2764
Nassau dam, qu. 2457
Total expenditure on, qu. 1376
Welland, qu. 827, 1184, 1205, 1207, 2747
Contracts for sections 3 and 4, qu. 3600
Co-operation with United States, 2749-51
Estimates, 2747
Amdt. (Mr. Millar) to reduce vote by $4,000,000, 2758
Port Colborne elevator, claim of Mr. J. A. Jamieson, 1687
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1321. See also that title
Tonnage, qu. 936
Total expenditure on, qu. 1376
Water power rights, 2747. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Cancellation of Leases. See Dominion Lands

Canned Fish. See Fisheries Act Amdt.; Meat and Canned Food

Canned Goods, Marking of. See Meat and Canned Foods

Canneries, Inspection. See Meat and Canned Foods

Cannes Conference, 1716. See also Genoa Conference
Submarines, 1845

Canning Licenses. See British Columbia Fisheries; Fish and Fisheries

Cannon, Mr. Lucien (Dorchester)
Budget, 2909. Defeat of Tory party; administration facing serious situation; Progressive party; reasons for Cannon, Mr. Lucien — Con.

Budget — Con.
Liberal victory; tribute to Prime Minister; platform of 1919; restoration of constitutional liberty; responsibility for conduct of public officials; responsible government and commission control, 2910; Canadian National Railways; a word to the West; Quebec the friend of the West; provincial autonomy, 2911; railways; Liberalism, hope of the West; division amongst Progressive forces, 2912
Canadian National Railways, public ownership. 1936-42
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases bill, Senate admts., 3615
Limitation of Armaments, 3166
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, payments to, 2772
Militia, arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2092
Naval policy, 2085
Point of order, parliamentary committee, 3354
Public Works estimates, preparation of, 1270
Royal Canadian Navy, 1887-90,

Canteen Funds, undistributed, disposal of, qu. 2215, 3290, 3308, 3328, 3331, 3334, 3346, 3350

Capital Ships. See Limitation of Armaments

Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway, 1183, qu. 1504

Carey, Mr., and Canadian National Railways, 2358

Caribou. See Hudson Bay Railway

Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3538, 3603, 3606

Carmichael, Mr. A. M. (Kindersley)
Address in reply, 155. French language; western opinions, 156; financial and economic outlook in the West, tariff question, 157; freight rates; grain speculation, banking conditions, 158
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, amdt. 1606
Deputy Minister of Finance, 753
Experimental farms, 800

Carmichael, Mr. A. M. — Con.
Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. 3486
Justice Dept. — Private secretary, 1669
Kindersley post office building, 1254
Militia, annual drill, 1177
Public buildings, Saskatchewan, 1253
Telephone lines, Saskatchewan, 2012
Wheat Board, 3181

Carroll, Mr. William F. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
Burstall, Sir Henry, 743
Canadian Transit Company, bill, 1771
Cold storage, 819
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 957
Dominion Elections Act, Amdt. 2812
Fuel oil, 178
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward Island, 1991
Indians, Sydney reserve, 1215
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Labour dept. increases, 568
Labour men and unions, 228
National Defence bill, 743
Nova Scotia Miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 499, 532
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1800
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt., appeal, 3024
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3442
Pensions Committee, final report, 3316
Pensions — Royal Commission, 3327
Unemployment situation, 1076
Steel rails contracts, 1076
Sydney steel workers, 1076

Carruthers, Mr. John (East Algoma)
Civil Service — patronage, 3086
Little Current harbour improvements, 2002

Cars. See also Railways
Governor General's, 1688
Repairs, See Canadian National Railways
Shortage of. See Freight Rates

Cartier Square militia stores shed, qu. 2038

Carty, Captain, qu. 1062

Carvell, Hon. F. B. See Railway Commission

Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. (Charlevoix-Montmorency)
Budget, 2670. Congratulations to Prime Minister upon title of Imperial Privy Councillor; Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; budget proposals; abnormal conditions, 2670; principles of the Liberal party; platform of 1919; Opposition amdt. not to be taken seriously; theories and arguments of the official Opposition and Progressive party; the golden mean; moderate protection, 2671; sales tax; inequality of income tax; burden borne by small wage-earners; proposed exemption of heads of large families; tax on cigarettes and cigars; exemptions from sales tax, 2672; cheque tax; leaf tobacco; tariff reductions; automobile tax, 2673; Borden and Meighen Governments responsible for present conditions; Canadian National Railways, management, board of directors, deficits; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; public debt; economy; Purchasing Commission; Civil Service Commission, 2674; reduction in civil service; public works in Charlevoix-Montmorency; Canada's future, 2675 Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. — Con.

Budget — Con.
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 956
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway bill, 1356
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 642
Steamship service, Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 3035
Superintendent of Lighthouses, Quebec, qu. 2584

Cash Grants to Soldiers. See Soldiers' Bonus

Cassels, Professor Gustavus, 1292

Cattle. See also Agriculture, Accredited herds, Health of Animals; Live stock industry
British embargo on. See Cattle Embargo
Decline in prices of, 77. See speeches on Address; Budget
Diseases of. See Animal Contagious Diseases Bill
Exported to United States, 2450, 2695
Fordney tariff and. See United States, Fordney
Markets for, 977

Cattle Embargo, 93, 334, 361, 970, 973, 979, 985, 989, 992, 1002, 1031, 1283, 2182, 2571, 2597. See also Live Stock Industry
Alleged statement of Hon. Mr. Larkin, High Commissioner, 1020, 1463, 1502
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1283
Removal of, 2597

Cedar Rapids power, 71, qu. 728, qu. 1375. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Census of 1921, 20, 56. See also Immigration; Population; Redistribution; Statistics
Agricultural assets and liabilites, 2159
Completion of, 1363
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, 1366
Appointment of, 1368
Payment of, 1367-9
Irregularities, 1363, 1365, 1367
Population, by ages, qu. 1632
Redistribution, and, 1363-71
Registration of Canadians, 1363
Report of Commissioner, 1366
Verification of figures, 1366

Central Vermont Railway. See Grand Trunk Railway

Chair rulings of. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Chairman of Committees. See Deputy Speaker

Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497

Chambly Canal. See Canals

Champlain, steamship, qu. 1400

Chaplin, Mr. James D. (Lincoln)
Agriculture Dept.—salary increases, 657
Boots and shoes, duty on, 3237
Budget, 2616. Ross rifle, war wagons and equipment; acquisition of Grand Trunk; congratulations to Finance Minister; reciprocity treaty, 2616; tariff proposals; automobile tax; tax on soft drinks, grape juice, 2617; consumption of farm produce in Canada; discrepancy as to agricultural exports; padded figures; non-agricultural commodities included in statement of exports, 2618; value of home market; agricultural implements, 2619; home and foreign trade in; prices in Canada and abroad, 2620; trend of tariff legislation in United States; Mr. Crerar's prophecy, 2621; farmers' platform; alleged effect of protective tariff; statement that consumer pays $4 for every dollar of revenue collected, 2622; export freight rates, 2623; cost of collecting customs duties; prices of kodaks in Canada and United States; political pledges; speech of late Hon. J. Israel Tarte, 2624
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771

Chaplin, Mr. James D.—Con.
Cash bonus to soldiers, 402
Cheque tax, 3260
Dominion lands, temporary employees, 1036
Experimental farm employees, 652
Ford automobiles, 3274
Government printing, 1972
Hamilton-Queenston highway, qu. 471
Harbours and Rivers
Manitoba, 2004
New Brunswick, 1993, 1997
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Interior Dept., salary increases, 457
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia and Defence
Arsenals, 1979
Lindsay, 2086
Quebec, 2091
Military property in Lincoln county, 1980
Pay of staff, 1982
Permanent force, 1983
Staff reduction, 420
Junior clerks, 416, 419
Transport and freight, 1986
Mutual insurance, 3255
Orders in Council, qu. 934
Printing and stationery supplies, 454
Privy Council officials, 410
Public buildings
Maritime provinces, 1244
St. Catharines post office, 1246-50
Rail and car repair contracts, 1709
St. Thomas-Niagara Falls highway, qu. 936
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Salaries and officials, 398-9
Salary increases, 386
Welland canal, construction, 2753

Charges of Management. See Finance

Charlevoix-Montmorency public works, 2675

Charlottetown, quarantine station, 2021

Chartered Banks. See Banks and Banking

Charters, Mr. Samuel (Peel)
Budget, 2561. Speech of the Minister of Agriculture; Wheat Board; Liberal pledges; introduction of national policy; the amendment; Government's failure to implement promises, 2561; Mr. Murphy at Milton; Government by Order in Council; business and luxury taxes; profiteers; inaction of Minister of Labour, 2562; sales tax; Civil Service Commission; patronage; the tariff; protection and free trade, 2563; statement of Finance Minister;

Charters, Mr. Samuel — Con.
Budget — Con.
manifesto of Progressive party; tariff changes; agricultural implements; fruit industry, 2564; pessimistic view of present day conditions; reciprocity; rural population; rural school attendance; value of farm lands; farm production, 2565; automobiles; Ontario Government immigration literature, 2566; future of Canada, 2567
Long Branch rifle range, qu. 372

Cheques. See Special War Revenue; Taxation

Chevrier, Mr. E. R. E. (Ottawa)
Civil Service
Absence through sickness, 3509
Bonus, 3531
Commission, 3064
Pensions Com., final report, 3337
Senate indemnity, 3509

Chief Architect's Branch. See Public Works

Chief Electoral Officer
Assistant, salary of, 3538
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3539, 3603, 3606
Report of Fourteenth General Election, of 1921, 1258
Report, printing of, 871
Residential qualification, 1297

Children
Dependent. See Income War Tax Act
Health of. See Daylight saving; Health
Immigration. See that title
Infant mortality in cities, 2634
Miners of, in Nova Scotia, 529
Oleomargarine, effect on health, 178. See also that title
Pensions to. See Pensions Com. report
Save the Children fund, 3516
School attendance, 2565. See also Education
Soldiers of Alleged ill-treatment, 2638
Education. See Pensions Com.
Provision for, 3315-16

China
Commissioner of Immigration in, ques. 2026, 2214
Dr. Tsur, Chinese Consul General, 1776
Eggs, importation from, 177
Treaties with. See Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty; Far Eastern Treaty

Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty, 3161

Chinese Immigration. See Oriental Aliens

Chippewa electrical development, 72, 1327. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Chisholm, Mr. A. W. (Inverness)
Civil Service, officials receiving more than deputy ministers, 1508
Inverness pier, 1766
Margaree breakwaters, 1767

Church, Mr. Thomas L. (North Toronto)
Address in reply, 116. Congratulations to Speaker; standing of different parties, 116; race and religious differences, 118; Speech of Hon. Ernest Lapointe; Battlefields Commission, 119; taxation methods, 120; unemployment and housing, 121; Good roads; public ownership, 122; Hydro-electric, 123, 131; public ownership of railways, 133; work of Sir Adam Beck, 134; radial railways, 134; St. Lawrence river waterway, 135; German trade; Senate reform; Civil service reform, 138; Conservative and Liberal gains and losses, 138-139; combines; ties with mother land; High Commissioner, 139
Alienation of natural resources, qu. 2992
Backus, Mr. E. W., lease of timber area, 2805
Blind soldiers, pensions, 3310, 3358, 3404
Bonds, sale of by public tender, 1468
Budget, 2392. Tariff not a political question; Tories and Radicals; Conservatives and protection; national policy; home market, 2392; the Progressives; United Farmers' platform; Liberals and free trade; protection and the growth of cities and towns ;tariff increase world wide; protectionist budgets of Liberal governments; tariff reduction and sales tax increase; Progressives and big interests, 2393; farmers and other producers highly organized; time for consumers to get together; tax burden on urban population; cigarette and tobacco taxes; railway problem; Canadian Pacific and Crowsnest pass agreement; trade with Germany, 2394; trusts, combines and war profiteers; tax evaders; taxation in Ontario; war time amusement tax; cheque tax; protest of Toronto and other municipalities, 2395; posterity should pay; Wheat Board; cost of living; Bank Act; Merchants Bank, 2396; judges serving on political com-

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Budget — Con.
missions; prison reform; civil service, 2397; St. Lawrence river waterway, 2398
Business of the House, Mondays and Wednesdays, 1462
Cadet corps, 1147, 1973
Canadian battlefields, 119, 771
Canadian Exporter, wreck, qu. 1210
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3038
Canadian National Railways, 68
Carey, Mr., 2858
Directors' sympathy with public ownership, 2858
Canadian representation in the United States, 2990
Civil Service retirement fund, income tax, qu. 937
Coal, price of, qu. 2039
Combines Investigation Act, qu. 1902
Committee speeches, relevancy, 555-6
Criminal Code — poolselling, bookmaking, etc., 2973
Cruisers, armed, on Detroit river, qu. 2214
Customs receipts, qu. 470
Daylight saving, qu, 372
M. (Mr. Kay) 946
Disability soldier cases, 3318
Elevators
Ontario, in, 2978
Terminal, qu. 3152
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 489
Federal subsidies to Ontario, qu. 2214
France, trade relations with, 2990
Freight Rates
Crowsnest pass agreement, 2563-94
Railway Act Amdt. bill (suspension of agreement) 3594; amdt. 3595
Special Com. on, third report, 3560-4
Fuel, price of, qu. 1774
"General" Macdonald's army, reception of, 2256
Government office building in Ottawa, 1252
Haney, Mr. M. J., contracts, 1375
Hueston, Captain, inquiry into death of, qu. 2993
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Judges' Act Amdt. 546
Judges and commissions, qu, 366, 2397
Labour dept., policy, 464-5, 559
Lake of the Woods control, 2805
Joint board, qu. 2970
Lambton, steamer, loss of, 3365
Life-saving stations, qu. 367
Merchant lake marine, qu. 3362
Merchants Bank case, qu. 367, 2396, 3604
Case against D. C. Macarow, qu. 2305

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Military expenditure and policy, 1177
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 1177, qu. 1285
Arsenals, Quebec, 2093
Cadet services, 1147, 1973
Expenditure and policy 1890-1913, qu. 1285
Annual drill, proposed reduction, 1613
First Canadian contingent, qu. 1376
Ministers and directorships, 1125
National Defence bill, 742
Naval policy, 2043
Naval Service
Navy men, travelling expenses, qu. 3156
Royal Canadian Navy, 1894, 2043
Patronage, appointments to penitentiary, 1277
Penitentiary inmates, qu. 3362
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3442-62
Amdt. (Blind soldiers) 3358, 3404
Pensions
Evidence, 3357
Mothers, qu. 1375
Old age, qu. 1375
Pensions Committee final report, 3309
Postal affairs, qu. 368
Post Office, drop letter rate, 1250
Prince of Wales Leinster regiment (Royal Canadians) qu. 1065
Prison reform, 1277, 2397
Inspection by Grand juries, qu. 1773
Jail farms, qu. 1773
Youthful offenders, qu. 1773
Provincial commissions, Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell and Mr. Justice Latchford, qu. 3600
Public buildings
Flags, 1260
Maritime provinces, 1244
Ontario, 1246-51
Rental and purchase of, 1262
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1467, 1482
Railway Act Amdt. bill (special passenger rates) 1460
Rental and purchase of buildings, 1252
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3391
Ritchie, Mr. Hugh, qu. 3361
St. Lawrence river waterway, 135, 2398
Correspondence with United States, 2357
International Joint Commission report, 2357
M. (Mr. Church) 1183
Toronto
Customs house, qu. 470
Harbour improvements, 1467

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Toronto — Con.
Public buildings, 1246-7
Railway viaduct, qu. 1660
Steam railway freight, qu. 936
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 2990
Welland canal, qu. 827
Construction, 1687
Tonnage, qu. 936

Cigars and Cigarettes, tax on. See Budget; Inland Revenue; Taxation; Tobacco

Civil Aviation. See Air Force

Civil Pensions. See Pensions

Civil Service. See also Supply. For individual departments, See their titles. For references generally, see speeches on Address; Budget
Absence through sickness, 3509
Amalgamation of departments. See National Defence bill
Appointments, 337, 2559, 3065, 3098
Members, and, 3074-3077
Recommendations of. See under this title, Patronage
Outside service, post offices, 3073-4
Procedure, 573
Soldiers, 3380, qu. 3361. See also Soldiers
Bonus, qu. 472, qu. 606, 733, 1258, 2397-8, 2513, 2801, 2805, qu. 3364, 3531
Announcement by Prime Minister, 1503
Appropriation, 3528
Inquiry as to payment of, 2996
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, nurses, 1342
Withdrawal of from certain civil servants, qu. 3598
Calder Bill. See Public Service Retirement Act
Classification, 455, 466, 494, 693, 3067, 3089
Appeals against, qu. 1508
Arthur Young Company, 1490
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773, qu. 1904
Board of Hearing, 1491
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214
Militia dept., 416
Post Office, money order branch, qu. 1285
Printed copies of, qu. 1930
Responsibility for, 1491
Commission
Abolition of, recommended, 2563, 2674-5
Appointments agriculture dept., 2599
Appraisers, Paris and London, 1068
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773, qu. 1904

Civil Service — Con.
Commission — Con.
Census enumerators, appointment, 1368
Commissioners
Annual salary and travelling expenses, qu. 364-5
Appointment of, 2659
Cost of, qu. 364-5
Employees
Number of, qu. 364
Salaries, 3093
Estimates, 3102
Exemptions, 3078-9
History of and legislation creating, 3065
Jurisdiction, 736-7
Salaries over, 2801
Militia dismissals, 423
Officials and employes, qu. 364-5, 3093
Organization branch, qu. 935
Putnam, Mr., C.V., qu. 935, 3090
Powers of, 553, 554
Report, qu. 826
Salaries and contingencies, etc., qu. 364-5, 386, 3091, 3509
Secretary, qu. 826
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and. See that title
Deputy ministers, qu. 3364
Increase in salaries, 2805
Militia and Naval Service. See National Defence
Dismissals, 3083-3090
Economy in, 401, 423, 2057-61, 2371. See also Address; Budget
Examination, 871
Hours, 2321, 2371,
Income tax department, 1663
Industrial councils, 1061
List, qu. 727
Married women employed in, qu. 1658
Memorandum of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 555
Militia services amalgamation, 418-19. See also National Defence
Overmanning of, 2371, 2450, 3099. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Patronage and, 199, 2563, 3073, 3080, 3094, 3096
Promotions, 576, 3066
Public Service Retirement Act. See that title
Qualifications, 3070
Reduction of, 2674-5
Reform, 138, 3075
Reorganization, 2061. See also under this title, Classification
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1490
Sherbrooke post office inspector, 1507

Civil Service — Con.
Responsibility, 3076
Retirement. See also Public Service Retirement Act
Fund, qu. 826
Income tax, qu. 937
Lightkeepers, 1496
Rural postmasters, 3079, 3095-6
Salaries and remuneration, 552, 2243, 2321, 2397, 2513, 2805, 3075, 3081, qu. 3364
Employees receiving less than $600, qu. 1067
Hours and, 2321, 2371
Officials receiving more than deputy ministers, 1508
Paying of. See Interim Supply
Recommendations, 550
Reductions, 2690-1
Salaries of $960 and less, qu. 1660, 1775
Statement of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 555
Tariff Commission, appointment of, 1663
Temporary employees, 1036. See also individual departments
Vacancies, filling of, 792. See also under this title Appointments

Clark, Mr. J. A. (Burrard)
Alien enemy property, custodians of, 3601
Messrs. Fisher & Oughton, Prince Rupert, qu. 1772, 3606
Ammunition, shipment from Great Britain, 1337
Income tax collections, 1919-20-21, qu. 1063
Militia and Defence, expenditure and policy, 1335
National Defence bill, 678
Naval Service — Royal Canadian Navy, 1878, 2061
Northwest Rebellion, pensions of Mounted Police, 3523
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1523
Quebec Harbour, appropriations for, 1486
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3443-55
Pensions Com., 391
Final report, 3327
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3400
Revenues from imports, qu. 827
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Doctors Lovering and Taylor, qu. 1211
Industrial disputes, 679
Northwest Rebellion, pensions and claims, 3523
Royal Canadian Navy, 1878, 2061
Vancouver
Drydock, 3542
Harbour work, 1485
Terminal railway, 1485
War, preparation for, 1335

Clark, Dr. Michael, 295

Clarke Trading Co., transport of supplies, 1681

Classification. See Civil Service

Clay Products, 1234

Closure, application of. See Interim Supply

Clothing, duty on, 2186, 2465, 2662. See also Budget; Taxation

Coal. See also Fuel; Mines; Natural Resources; Railways
Anthracite importations, qu. 2356, 2686
Bituminous, 2686
British Columbia, mines in, 178
By products of, 3525
Canadian, 2687
Use of in public buildings, 1759
Canadian National Railways
Imported for, qu. 926, qu. 2213
Purchases, qu. 2306
Canadian Pacific lands, transfer of, qu. 2214
Competition
Fuel oil, 2312
United States Mines, with, 2612
Conservation of supply by power development, 1188. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Drumheller mines, 85
Duty on, 2342
Investigation of low grade, 3525
Freight rates. See also that title
Manitoba from, 1763
Japan from, qu. 963, 2312, 3406
Labour. See also that title
Canmore employers and miners dispute, 1058
District No. 18 Board, 1058
Drumheller mines, 86
Employers and miners' dispute, 1058
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Nova Scotia Miners' strike, 1054. See also that title
Oriental aliens, 2312. See also that title
Cumberland mines, in, 2407
Wages in Nova Scotia, 1078. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Lands
Transfer by Canadian Pacific, qu. 2214
United States in, purchase of, 2611
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, qu. 604, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Utilization Board, 1233, 3524

Coal — Con.
Lightboats, for, qu. 606
Mineral development, 686
Mining industry, protection, 2312
Montreal requirements, 630
Nova Scotia, 2412
Freight charges on, 193, 194
Miners. See that title
Powdered, 2713-5
Price of, 465, 1758, 1774, qu. 2037, qu. 2039
Effect of freight rates on, 132-133
Reduction in, 1490, 1494
Public buildings, heating, 1758
Importation for, 1763
Railways
Canadian National Railways, qu. 926, 2213
Purchases for, qu. 2306
Grand Trunk Railway, qu. 606
Royalties, qu. 375
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1316
Smoky river, lease of coal lands, 3465
Supply, control, 71
Transportation. See Freight rates
Waterpowers and, 2182

Coats, Mr. R. H. See Statistics, Bureau of

Cocaine. See Opium

Cocoa and Chocolate. See Customs Tariff

Cockshutt, Lieut. Governor, 1128

Cockshutt Plough Company, Minister of Justice and, 242

Codling Moth. See Entomology

Coinage. See also Currency Act Amdt. bill
Nickel coin blanks, qu. 3152
Nickel, five cent piece, 1132
Silver, millesimal fineness, 1132

Cold Storage. See Agriculture

Collective Bargaining, 2322

Colonial Status. See Naval Service; Prime Minister's Conference

Combines, 139. See also Address; Budget; Trusts

Combines Investigation Act, qu. 1902

Commerce. See Board of Commerce; Trade

Commercial Travellers. See Budget; Income War Tax Act Amdt.

Commissioner of Agriculture. See Agriculture; Marshall

Commissions
Judges serving on, qu. 366, 546, 2397

Committee of Supply. See Supply

Committees. See House of Commons

Commodity Rates. See Freight Rates; Railways; Transportation

Commodity Tax. See Taxation

Companies Act, Privy Council appeal, legal expenses, 1671

Compensation. See Animal Contagious Diseases amdt.

Compensation for Injuries. See Air Board Act Amdt.

Compulsory Enfranchisement. See Indian Act Amdt.

Compulsory Legislation. See Wheat Board

Compulsory Military Service. See Military Service Act 1917 Amdt. bill

Con Rein, sinking of, M. (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 1382, agreed to, 1384

Concurrence. See Supply

Condensed Milk tax on, 2492, 3264-71, 3409

Confectionery, tax on, 2177, 2641, 2676, 2852, 2857

Confederation, basis of, 154
Maritime provinces and, 228. See also Intercolonial Railway

Conferences
Brussels Financial, 1138, 1292
Building trades, 582-3
Cannes, 823, 1716, 1845
Genoa, 7, 58, 156, 212, 582, 1292, 1463, 1675, 1715-6, 1845, 2035, 2337
Expenses, 1715
Europe, in, 1336
Imperial, 1864. See also under this title Prime Ministers'
International Labour, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Printing of report, 3601
Limitation of Armaments, 7, 1283, 1731, 1737, 1844-95
Borden, Rt. Hon. Sir Robert, report
M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 373
National Industrial, qu. 1375
Postal, 7, 15
Potato growers, 3367
Prime Ministers', 1624, 1864, 1883, 2042, 2082
Trades Union, Rome, 1060

Conferences — Con.
Washington. See under this title, International Labour; Limitation of Armaments

Connaught rifle range, qu. 3153

Connor, James, dismissal of, 1674

Conscription, 22, 61, 90-91, 2570, 2685. See also Military Service Act, 1917, Amdt.

Conservation Commission, transfer of employees, 3495. See also Interior Dept.; White, Mr. James

Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 1210; 2r., com., 3r., 3042

Consortium to re-establish Russian trade, 1463

Constitutional Development. See Address; Conferences; League of Nations; Naval Service

Constitutionality of Wheat Board. See Wheat Board

Consular Agents. See Trade and Commerce

Consular Certificates. See Customs; Trade and Commerce

Contagious Diseases. See Animal Contagious Diseases; Health; Immigration; Penitentiary Act Amdt.

Contingency Vote. See Departments; Estimates; Supply

Coolie Labour. See Oriental Aliens

Co-operative Pooling. See Wheat Board

Co-ordination. See Militia and Defence; National Defence

Coote, Mr. G. G. (Macleod)
Agriculture dept., travelling expenses, 657
Automobiles and parts, imports, qu. 1633
Automobile tax, 3276
Banks
Circulation, deposits, loans, etc., qu. 1901
Number, reserves, deposits, loans, etc. qu. 1182
Board of Commerce, cost, report, qu. 2583
Budget, 2724. The amendment; party politics a curse, 2724; the budget a disappointment; national debt; tax exempt bonds; conscription of wealth during war time, 2725; taxation of implements of production; oil and well-drilling machinery; western problems; grasshoppers, 2726; cattle industry; amalgamation of Merchants' Bank and Bank of Montreal, 2727; banking system, ratio of deposits to capital; credit; distribution of products; Wheat Board; tariff a geographical question; treatment of western Canada, 2729

Coote, Mr. G. G. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian National railways, freight rates advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2833
Customs, dumping clause, 3419, 3423
Dominion notes, qu. 3153
Esquimalt dry dock, 3541
Felt shoe industry, 3239
Forestry, aerial patrol at High River, 1050
Grasshoppers, 2726, 3520
Immigration
Child, 2161
Farmers, 3064
Italian, 2171
Policy, 2161
Indians
Blood reserve, 1219, 1224
Land leased, qu. 2969
Education, schools in Alberta, 1237
Insurance premiums, tax, 3258
Lambton, loss of, 3508
Live stock industry, 991, 2727
Macleod post office, qu. 2804
Penitentiaries, inmates, foreign and native, 1279
Ploughs, duty on, 3123
Prince Rupert Drydock Co., claim, 3514
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., Chairman, 2773-5
Langley, Hon. George, statement, 2773
Redistribution, 1370
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Macleod, 2584
Steel bounties, qu. 3360
Tariff inquiry, 1920-21, cost, report, publication, qu. 2215
Threshing machines, 3125
Total trade, 1900-1921, qu. 1633
Tree-planting on prairies, 1051
Unemployment figures, qu. 3362
Vancouver dry dock, 3544
Wheat Board, 2729, 3182, 3189

Copp, Hon. A. B. (Secretary of State)
Alien enemy property, custodians of, 1672, 3601
Prince Rupert, 3606
Alleged election promises in Charlotte County, N.B., 1994
Archives Branch, Dr. Doughty, 702
Canada Temperance Act, 2024
Civil Service
Commission, 3102
Examinations, 872
Harbour and Rivers, New Brunswick, 1992
Lusitania reparation claims, 3599
Moncton car shops, 1709
Naturalization Act, Amdt. bill, 3104, 3436
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Provincial wharves, New Brunswick, 1992
Public Service Retirement Act Amdt. bill, 1661, 3025, 3148
Rail and car repair contracts, 1708
Secretary of State dept.
Estimates, 701, 1671, 2977, 3499
War claims, adjustment of, 1672, 2977
Privilege, correction of report in Montreal Gazette, 1721

Corporation Control. See Railways

Corporation-Owned Railroads in United States, 67-70. See also Railways, Public ownership

Correction of Division List. See House of Commons Divisions

Correspondence, quoting from. See Speaker's Rulings

Cost of Living, 2349, 2359, 2396, 2578. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service Bonus; Labour; Nova Scotia Miners; Unemployment
Labour Gazette and, 1057
Prices, deflation of, 1216-18
Purchasing power of money, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603
Sales tax, and, 2676. See also that title
Tariff and, 2882. See also speeches on Budget
Taxation on, 2364. See also Speeches on Budget
Wages based on, 1303

Cotton Industries
Duties, 2469, 3127. See also Customs Tariff
Wages, hours, etc., qu. 1903

Coughlin Shipbuilding Company, 3542

County Courts, establishment in Quebec, 3496

County Fairs. See Agriculture, Exhibitions

Courtenay Bay, qu. 365. See also St. John Harbour

Courtney, B.C., post office building, 1258

Cow Bay wharf, 1766

Cream Separators. See Agricultural Implements

Credits. See Banking; Finance; Financial Credits; Housing; Loans; Roumania and Greece; Unemployment

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. (Marquette, Leader of the Progressive party)
Address in reply, 50. Congratulations to Speaker, Miss Macphail, mover and seconder of Address; speeches of Prime Minister and leader of Opposition, 50-51; election campaign, 51; negotiations between Government and Progressives, 51; attitude of Progressive party, 52; condition of agriculture; wheat marketing, 53; production costs; transportation costs; freight rates; tariff revision, 54; Sir Lomer Gouin; railways, public ownership, 55-56; immigration, burden of taxation, 56-57; soldiers' re-establishment, 57; Limitation of Armaments; Genoa Conference; economy, need for; burden of taxation, 58; redistribution; proportional representation, 59
Adjustment of war claims, 1672
Agricultural exports, figures used in budget debate, 2638
Agriculture
Condition and prospects, 53, 2156, 2471
Dept., salary increases, 588
Agriculture and Colonization Com.
McCoig, Senator, attendance before, 1901
Wheat Board report, 780. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Alien enemy property, 1672
American magazines, 3113
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2102
Audibility of debates, 708
Board of Commerce, 1715
British Columbia, and, 2234-9
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 716
Budget, 2459. Congratulations to Prime Minister; tribute to Finance Minister; difficult and perplexing problems; unsatisfactory financial position; debt and taxation, 2459; railway expenditures; revenue and expenditure; discrepancy between income and outgo, 2460; limit of taxation about reached; economy; new taxation; reorganization of departments and elimination

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
of duplication; new administration buildings; overlapping of Dominion and provincial expenditures, 2461; sales tax, inequitable and unsound; cheque tax; tax on foreign insurance companies, 2462; co-ordination of financial policy; overlapping of taxation; reciprocity with United States; valuation and marking goods; valuation of currency, 2463; trade with Germany; a protectionist budget; no statement of government policy; agricultural implements, 2464; inconsistencies in agricultural machinery schedule; government failure to implement pledges; clothing; boots and shoes; household equipment, 2465; tariff reductions counterbalanced by sales tax increase; tariff platform of 1919; Liberal resolution of 1921; tariff proposals not what country requires; discrimination against United States, 2466; tariff legislation before Congress; American factories in Canada; opposition to protection in United States, 2467; Progressive party unalterably opposed to protection; development of natural resources; home market fallacy; manufacture of rubber goods; cotton; raw material and finished product; protection sectional and selfish; movement of population; exodus of Canadian workmen; maritime provinces under protective policy, 2469; rural depopulation in Ontario; prairie provinces; Vancouver and free port proposal, 2470; agriculture prospers in spite of protection; development of west; prosperity from 1900 to 1912 not due to tariff; export of natural products, 2471; tendency of economic thought in Europe; trade begets friendship; the amendment, 2472; no constructive proposal; amdt. to amdt. proposed, 2473
Business of the House
Budget (amdt. to amdt., Sir Henry Drayton) 2473, 2507, 2522
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2640
Easter adjournment, 820
Empire and Ascension Days, adjournment, 1905
Government orders, Monday and Wednesday, 1461, 1720
Privilege on Orders of Day, right to raise, 2638*

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan to, 3036
Canadian National Railways
Deficits, 1920
Canadian Northern, 1907
Immigration, 1927
Public ownership and operation, 1920
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689, 1707, 1925
Revaluation of, 1925
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1772
Civil Service
Commission, 3078
Patronage, 3080, 3096
Cold storage warehouse, Montreal, 819
Crowsnest pass agreement, 3595
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1414-20-29, 1433, 1454
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Customs
Drawbacks, 766
Dumping clause, 3423
Estimates, 762
Officials, 764
Debates, Official Report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Dominion Iron and Steel Co. contract for steel plates, 1678
Elevators, terminal, administration, 2980. See also under this title, Grain Inquiry Commission
Emigration, record of, 2158
Estimates, accounts chargeable to current or past year, 1675
Freight Rates
Crowsnest pass agreement. See under this title Crowsnest
Immigration and, 2157
Genoa Conference, 1715
Cannes Conference, 823
Reported subscription of Canada to consortium, 1463
Governor General's cars, 1688
Grain and grain trade. See also under this title Wheat Board
Manitoba Court of Appeal, decision, 1933
Russia, competition in wheat market, 2157
Grain Inquiry Commission, 49, 2982, 2895
Secret session at Fort William, 2983
Hyndman Commission, 2982
Immigration
Central European, 2157
Policy, 2156
Railways, and, 1929, 2157

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1394
Intercolonial Railway, maritime management, 193
Interior Dept., economy, 455
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Justice Dept., contingencies, 1668
Labour
Estimates, 579180
Technical education, 459
Liberal party, negotiations with, 34-35, 51
Limitation of Armaments Conference, 9, 3167
Militia and Defence
Co-ordination of services, 417
Expenditure and policy, 1593
National Defence bill, 739-40
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Naval Service
Empire defence contribution, 2081-2
Fleet 420
Policy, 2081
Nova Scotia miners, 508
M. (Mr. Irvine) 542
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3429
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation of M. (Mr. Neill) 1821
Ploughs, duty on, 3121-3122
Political inquesting, 404
Population, need of increased, 2158
Privilege, questions of Agricultural figures used in budget debate, 2637
Member's right to raise on Orders of day, 2638
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1652
Public ownership, 1920, 1923
Rail and car repair contracts, 1684, 1707, 1925
Railway Act Amdt. bill (Crowsnest pass) 3595
Railway policy 1920, 1923
Responsibility as leader of Opposition, 73
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 835
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 444
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Salary increases, 398, 404
Discussion out of order, 398, 404
Speaker, election of, 4
Speaker, Mr., death of father, 496
Steamship services
Canada-Australia-New Zealand, 3034
Canadian Govt. Merchant marine, subsidies, 3032
Revision of, 3034
West Indies, 3032

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Steel industry, subsidies to, 1692
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974
Tariff, immigration and, 2157
Tractors, duty on, 3124
Treaties of peace with Hungary and Turkey, bill, 3490
Union Government, resignation from, 2490
United Grain Growers, Limited, 2489
Terminal elevator, 2983
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2750
Wheat Board, 377, 2922
Fixation of prices, 2588
Proceedings in Committee, 2934
Wheat Board bill, 3186, 3191, 3384, 3386

Crime. See also Criminal Code; Penitentiaries
Foreign immigration and, 1392-4

Criminal Code
Reprinting and revision, 1278, 1717

Criminal Code Amendment Bills
1. Criminal conspiracy and sedition (Mr. Woodsworth) 1r., 364; 2r., 493, 865; com,. 865, 1388; ref. to Special Com., 1395, 1503; report, 1988. For further stages, see Immigration Act Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth)
2. Newspaper ownership (Mr. Jacobs) 1r., 821
3. Scrip Frauds (Mr. Kennedy, Edmonton) 1r., 1062; 2r., 3211-3217; com., 3217; 3r., 3221
4. Age of consent; automobile theft; bribing police commissioners; carrying animals by railways; carnal knowledge; clerk of peace, Quebec; indecent assault; protection of English hall marks; recovery of penalties from corporations by civil process; retention of fines by municipalities in Ontario (Sir Lomer Gouin) 1r., 1841; 2r., com., 2830, 2973; 3r., 2974; Senate amdts., 3607

Subjects and sections discussed:
Age of consent, 2830-1
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Conveyance of cattle, 2831-34
Feeble-minded person, carnal knowledge of, 2973
Game of chance, 2973
Pool-selling, bookmaking, 2973

Criminal Conspiracies. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Cronyn, Mr. Hume, reference to. See Pensions Committee, final report

Crowsnest Pass Agreement. See Freight Rates

Crude Oil. See Fuel Oil

Cruelty to Animals. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Society for prevention of, 2831

Cruisers, armed, on Detroit river, qu. 2214

Cuba
Shipment of potatoes to, 2028
Steamship service to. See that title

Cultivators. See Agricultural Implements

Cumberland, B.C.
Mines, 2407
Voting in, 180

Currency. See also Banks and Banking; Finance; Money
Gold standard, 1291
Valuation for customs, 2113, 2173, 2389, 2420, 2463, 2599, 2641, 2859, 2875, 2884, 2897, 3223-4. See also Customs Act Amdt.

Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. bill, Res. 1132, 3042; 1r., 3043; 2r., com., 3r., 3043

Currie, General Sir Arthur, 1986

Customs Act and the Department of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill (Dumping clause; consular certificates; valuation for duty; currency) 1r., 2r., com., 3222; 3r., 3477

Customs and Excise. See also Budget; Customs Act; Customs Tariff; Imports and Exports; Taxation; Trade
Automobiles, tax on. See Automobiles
British goods imported, qu. 966
Via United States, qu. 375
Collections, New Brunswick, qu. 607
Consular certificates, 2114, 3477, 3522. See also Customs Act Amdt.
Department
Connor, Mr. James, gratuity, 1674
L'Assomption and Montcalm excise officers, qu. 1774
Montreal employees, 1288
Organization, 1674, 2808
Printing, 1674
Salaries, 762
Veit, Mr. A. E., J. M., qu. 1773
Drawbacks, qu. 764, 828, 1067, 2175, 2186, 2662-3, 2840-50, 2895, 3141. See also Budget Speeches; Customs Tariff
Ford Motor Co., 2850
Payments of, 1922, qu. 2356, 2849-50

Customs and Excise — Con.
Drawbacks — Con.
Sugar on, 2850, 3251, 3476-7
Steel rods, refund, qu. 1774
Dumping clause, 304, 2184, 2197, 2275, 2494, 2641, 2879, 3188, 3410-13, 3477. See also Address; Budget; Customs Tariff
Duties
Cost of collecting, 239, 240, 2623-4
Fruit, 164. See also under this title, Dumping clause
Fuel oil on, 178
Militia dept., 1978
Per capita payment, 2691
Rebates of, 2175. See also under this title, Drawbacks
Valuation for, 2172. See also Currency
Excise tax
Alcohol for retail druggists, qu. 1400, 2114. See also Alcohol; Special War Revenue
Ale, beer, porter and stout, 2852
Beer brewed for private use, 2856
Beet sugar, 2117, 2855. See also Budget; Special War Revenue
Tobacco, 2115
Canadian raw leaf, 2853
Cigarettes, 2852
German goods, valuation. See Currency; Customs Act; Germany; Imports
Imports and exports
By countries, 2109
Marking and valuation of, 2113, 2174, 2410, 2463, 2879, 2897, 3413. See also Currency; Customs Act; Customs Tariff
Amended regulation, 2854, 3413
Revenue, qu. 827. See also Imports and exports
1911 to 1922, qu. 1661
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373
Liquor export warehouses, qu. 1211
Liquor imported, excise duties, qu. 828
Marking Act, 2641, 2877-80
Prohibited goods, 3476-7
Receipts, qu. 470
Revenue, qu. 614, qu. 827
Tariff bill, 3476-7. See also Customs Tariff
Tariff resolutions, 2118
Amended, 2854
Toronto customs house, qu. 470
Valuation for Duty. See Currency, Customs Act
Wines and spirits
Exportation of, 2854
In bond, 3229

Customs Tariff, 1907, Act Amdt. bill (Marking of imported goods; duties; amended rates; drawbacks; prohibited goods) Res. 1r., 2r., com., 3476; 3r., 3477

Customs Tariff Items
Adzes, cleavers, etc., 3127
Agate ware, 3118
Anti-dumping clause. See under this title, Dumping
Blankets, 3128, 3132, 3231
M. (Mr. Spencer), 3234, neg. 3235
Book and coated papers, 3108
Boots and shoes, 3236
M. (Mr. Shaw) to reduce, neg. 3238
Changes in. See also Tariff revision
Chinese. See that title
Cigarettes, 3107
Cigars, 3107
Clothes wringers, etc., 3140
Coated papers, 3108
Cocoa, 2116, 3106
Cotton fabrics, 3127
Cultivators, harrows, etc., 3120
Dairy tinware, 3118
Drugs, 3114
Dumping clause, 304, 2184, 2197, 2275, 2494, 2641, 2879, 3188, 3411-13, 3477. See also Customs Tariff Act Amdt.
Fishing hooks, etc., 3140
Flannels, 3137
Fruit and vegetable grading machines, 3126
Gasoline, 3115
Glass bottles, etc., 3117
Harness and saddlery, 3137
Hatters' bands, 3139
Hatters' plush, 3141
Incubators, etc., 3126
Iron and steel tubing, 3118
Linen yarn, 3128
Magazines, 3108
Marking Act, repeal, 3104
Milking machines, 3126
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Paper invalid cups, 3115
Paper milk bottle caps, 3113-14
Ploughs, etc., 3121, 3229
M. (Mr. Johnston) to reduce, 3121, 3229
Portable and traction engines, 3231
Pump parts, 3127
Sawmill machinery, 3126
Settlers' effects, 3140
Silk cloth, 3137
Street rollers, 3126
Sugar, 3107
Threshing machines, parts, 3124
Tools, 3127
Tractors, 3123

Customs Tariff Items — Con.
White cotton fabrics, 3128
Window shades, etc., 3127
Wool and cotton yarns, 3127
Wool and woollen goods, 3233
Woollen clothing, 3235

Dairy Cattle. See Agriculture, Accredited Herds; Live Stock

Dairying Industry. See also Address; Budget; Oleomargarine
British Columbia Dairymen's Association, 1794
Butter. See that title under Agriculture
Competition with other countries, 178
Duties on utensils, reduction in, 2115, 2205, 3118
Exports and imports, 209
Grading of products, 655-6
Implements, reduction of duties on, 2115, 2205, 3118
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740. See also Agriculture, Accredited Herds, Health of Animals
National Dairy Council and oleomargarine, 1791
Oleomargarine, 1791, 2205. See also that title

Dalrymple, Mr. J. E., qu. 728

Dandurand, Hon. Senator, 1128

d'Anjou, Mr. Emmanuel (Rimouski)
Address in reply, 306; parliamentary rights of French language, 306; economy in Government expenditure, 307
Military expenditure and policy, 1593

D'Arcy Island lazaretto, 2021

Dartmouth, N.S. air station, 1724

Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dimissal of, 1902, 2458, 2584

Davies, Mr. C. C. (North Battleford)
Wheat Board, participation certificates, funds, qu. 2304

Davies, Right Hon. Sir Louis, K.C.M.G., Deputy of the Governor General, 3610

Daylight Saving, 227, qu. 372
House of Commons, and, 1282
M. (Mr. Kay) for legislation to prohibit, 942, 943
Amdt. (Mr. Duff) 959; Neg. 1314

Deathbed Cases. See Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt.

Debates. See House of Commons

Debeaux, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306

Debt, Public. See Address; Budget; Finance; Loans; Public Debt

Deceased Soldiers. See Soldiers
Insurance claims of heirs, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act
Widowed Mothers. See Pensions

Dechene, Mr. A. M. (Montmagny)
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1801

Deep Sea Racing. See International Deep Sea Racing

Deep Waterway and Power Association. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Defence. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service

Deficits. See Canadian National Railways

Deflation of Credit. See Finance

Deflation and Inflation of prices. See speeches on Address and Budget

Delinquents. See Juvenile delinquents

Delphine, Colonel, 303

Delta, Manitoba, protective works, 3545

Demers, Captain, 1492

Demers, Mr. M. J. (St. Johns and Iberville)
Income tax, Montreal office, qu. 607

Demobilization. See also Militia, Annual Drill; War Claims
Estimates, 1171
Expenditure, 1155, 1163, 1171

Denis, Mr. J. Arthur (St. Denis)
Address in reply, 348. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; immigration; Laurier-Fielding tariff, 348
Lamontagne, Mr. Ernest, qu. 824

Denis, Mr. Jean J. (Joliette)
Budget, 2887. Tribute to Finance Minister; budget proposals generally satisfactory; extravagance of Union Government; acquisition of Railways; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; credits to Balkan states; revenue and expenditure, 2888; Progressive party; compromise and co-operation Canada a hard country to govern; Wheat Board; freight rates, 2889; railway

Denis, Mr. Jean J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
deficits made good by East; free trade, 2890; tobacco industry, protection of, 2891
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
Ministers and Directorships, 1113
Solders' insurance, 3321

Denmark, Expedition to Ellesmere Island, 1751

Dennis Building, Halifax, qu. 3360

Department of National Defence bill. See National Defence

Departmental Expenditure. See Supply

Departmental Law officers, 683, 2572

Dependency. See Pensions, Widowed Mothers

Deportation. See Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt.; Oriental Aliens

Depreciated Currency. See Currency; Customs

Deputy Ministers. See Militia Estimates; National Defence Bill; Naval Service
Salaries of, 752

Deputy Registrar. See Admiralty Act Amdt. bill

Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, appointment, 5

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees (Mr. George N. Gordon)
Election of, 363
Rulings and statements of. See also House of Commons; Marcil; Speaker
Amendments
Already covered, 3147-8
Anticipatory, 2973
Increasing charge on revenue, 3404
Member having already spoken, cannot move, 3558
Moved separately, 3401
Previous, 3148
Bills
Casting vote of Chairman, 3473
New sections proposed, 3445
Private
Com. may not refer back, 1747
Relevancy, 1858
Public
Amdt. dealt with by another amdt. on order paper, 2973

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees — Con.
Rnlings and Statements of — Con.
Chair
Decision given, final, 3354
Member may not criticise ruling, 555, 2974
Ruling of non-debatable, 1898
Debate
Inaudibility of, 1755
Member speaking given opportunity to answer questions, 1889
Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1361
Debates, Official Report of
Insertion of documents not read, 1539, 3526
Decorum, courtesy to member speaking, 2090
Language, "Breach of duty", 3354
Members
Desiring to speak, must rise, 1985
May ask question but not make statement, 2489
May not criticise ruling of Chair, 555, 2974
Must put question without argument, 2340
Not in order in discussing ruling of Chair, 555, 2974
Speaking, need not answer questions unless willing, 2318, 2619, 2710
Opportunity to answer, 1889
To rise if vote desired, 3456
Ministers
Not required to answer questions, 2777
On item, may discuss general policy, 555
Motions
Amdt. to Amdt. in supply, 1579
Involving charge on revenue, must be made by minister, 3404
Non-debatable
That committee rise, 1181
Supply, in, 1579
Two, amending same item, 1982
Questions to be put without argument, 2340, 2489
Railway Commission, salaries not included in vote, 2776-8
Reference to judges and high officials, 2778
Relevancy, 404, 406, 671, 736, 1470, 1476, 1898, 3141
Cash bonus to soldiers, discussion, 404
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, bill, 1603
Grain Inquiry commission, 2988
Hudson Bay railway, 2780

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees — Con.
Rulings and Statements of — Con.
Senate, indemnity, 3509
Supply
General policy of department, 560
No question before com. on which to base discussion, 1900
Relevancy, 1135, 2089, 3527, 3545
Lindsay arsenal, 2089
Militia and Defence items to be discussed separately, 1139-40-42
Penitentiaries, 1279
Quebec arsenal, 2095
Quebec riots, 2090
Rails and car repair contracts, 1698
Railway commission, estimates, 2776-8
Railways and Canals, 1135
Two motions, amending same item, 1982
Vote
Casting of, by Chairman, 3473
Desire for in com. to be indicated by members rising, 3456

Derelicts. See Marine and Fisheries

Desbarats, Mr. J. B. See National Defence

Deserted Wives. See Pensions

Deslauriers, Mr. Hermas (St. Mary)
Aluminum Electric Co., qu. 728, qu. 1375
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773
Boon, Mr. W. R., qu. 728
Canada-West Indies steamship service, qu. 2356
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, employees at Montreal, qu. 2992
Canadian National Railways
Electrification, M. 627
Champlain steamer, sale of, qu. 1400
Civil Service
Classification, printed copies of, qu. 1930
Commission, Mr. Putman, 3090
Imperial council, qu. 2803
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., qu. 1065
Militia and Defence, permanent force, qu. 2637
Montreal Harbour Commission
Paint purchases, qu. 602
Policemen, qu. 2992
Tugs, qu. 600
Occupational diseases, protection against, M., 1378
Personal explanation, Civil Service estimates, 3365
St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, qu. 2804
Veit, Mr. A. E. J. M., qu. 1773

Destructive Insect and Pest Act, qu. 472, 3520. See also Entomology

Detective Firms, American, 670

Detroit River
Armed cruisers on, qu. 2214
Regulation of navigation, 1498. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Deville, Dr. E. C., 1044, 1048

Dickie, Mr. C. H. (Nanaimo)
Address in reply, 341. Women and the franchise, 341; Pacific and Great Eastern railway; Grand Trunk Pacific and railway problem, 342; coal and fuel oil; Japanese and the fisheries, 344: returned soldiers, problems, 345; depletion of British Columbia fisheries, 346; dry dock at Esquimalt; British Columbia tariff views, 347
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway bill, 1603
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1828
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1523

Digby, N.S., pier, 1760

Digby-St. John Steamship Service, 3035

Dinosaurs, purchase of specimens, 1237

Directors, Board of. See Canadian National Railways

Directorships. See Ministers and directorships

Disability Soldier cases. See Pensions Committee

Disallowance of Ontario legislation, qu. 2805, qu. 2992

Disarmament. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service Conference on. See Limitation of Armaments

Diseases
Infectious. See Penitentiary Act Amdt.
Occupational, of workmen. See that title

Disfranchisement. See Dominion Elections Act

Distressed Canadians, relief of, 2027

Divisions. See House of Commons

Dockyards. See also Naval Service
Halifax and Esquimalt, 1752

Doctors. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.
Payments to, 2572
Reported engaged on Newfoundland-Labrador boundary case, qu. 704, 2572

Doherty, Hon. Manning, 334, 974, 987. See also Cattle Embargo
Visit to England, papers, 1283, 1334

Domestic Loans. See Loans

Domestic. Servants, Immigration of. See Immigration

Domicile of Voter. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics. See Statistics

Dominion Coal Company. See Nova Scotia Miners

Dominion Elections. See Elections of 1921; Proportional Representation

Dominion Elections Act
Abuses under, 184-5
Amendments, qu. 470
Campaign funds, qu. 1508
Enfranchisement of women of alien birth M. (Mr. Euler) 473, agreed to, 493
Removal from statute books, 184
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1296, agreed to, 1301

Dominion Elections Act Amdt. (Alien women; Domicile of voter)
1r., 1796; 2r., com., 2809; 3r., 3817
Subjects and sections discussed:
Election day, public holiday Amdt. (Mr. Neill) 2812
Elector's residence, change of, 2809
New polls, establishment of Amdt. (Mr. Caldwell) 2815
Senate amdts. concurred in, 3486

Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, 2419-20. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Contract for steel plates, claim for damages, 417, qu. 704, 1677-80, 1689, 2170
Legal expenses, 3497
Delivery of seel plates, 3508

Dominion Lands
Contingencies, 1037
Estimates, 1035
Forest reserves. See Forestry
Homestead entry, 1041
Reclamation by drainage, 1051
Salaries, 1035
Sale of, qu. 376

Dominion Lands — Con.
Sub-agencies closed, qu. 1181
Surveys, 1037
Dr. Deville, 1044
M. to reduce, vote, 1039
Reduction of vote by $30,000, 1044-6

Dominion Lands, Notices of Cancellation of Leases bill
1r., 3151; 2r., com., 3465; 3r., 3475
Senate amdts., non-concurrence; free conference 3613; concurrence, 3616

Dominion Lands and Parks
Canadian National parks, 168, 1051
Visitors to, 1052
Migratory birds, 1684
Wolves, destruction of live stock by, 990, 998

Dominion Notes. See Finance

Dominion Observatory, Ottawa Building, 1265

Dominion Police. See National Defence; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Dominion Public Buildings. See Public Buildings

Dominion Statistician. See Statistics

Dominion Textile Company, 200, 583, 1106, 1130

Dorchester Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Doughty, Dr. A. B., 702

Douglas Credit System. See Finance; Irvine

Doukhobors. See Immigration

Drainage. See Dominion lands

Drawbacks. See Customs

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry L. (West York)
Address in reply, 195. Provincial prejudices; Mr. Macdonald of Pictou; Minister of Finance and railways, 196; financial outlook; election, popular support of parties, 197; redistribution, campaign literature, 198; public works and unemployment; Halifax patronage committee, 199; Minister of Labour and trusts and combines; Sir Charles Gordon; Canada Cement and Dominion Textile Companies, 200; British Empire Steel Corporation, 200-1; position of Prime Minister and Mr. Crerar; railway policy, 201; Canadian Northern in Ontario, 202; railway

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Address in reply — Con.
lines in United States, 204; national ownership, 205; Sir Lomer Gouin and the big interests, 206; proposed King-Crerar alliance; leader of Opposition and insult to Quebec; 207; tariff present and former, 208; reciprocity; Fordney tariff, 209; imports and exports of agricultural commodities, 209; reciprocity, 208-211
Adjournment, item stands, 596
Admiralty Act Amdt. bill, 2822
Agricultural implements, drawback, 3122
Air Board, 1728, 1735
Air Board Act Amdt. bill, 2821
Alcohol tax, 1213
American magazines, 3110
Auditor General's office, 793
Budget, date of, inquiry, 1018, 1463, 1503
Budget, 2127. Loans; congratulations to Minister of Finance; financial situation; revenue, 2171; optimism and work; taxes, estimated revenue from; trade agreements; customs and currency valuations, 2172; German competition, 2173; marking of goods; income tax; tariff changes, 2174; agricultural implements, drawbacks, 2175; alcohol for druggists, 2176; beet sugar industry; new taxation, 2177; trade with United States; unemployment, 2178; political honesty; amdt. proposed, 2179
Business of the House
Members, payment of, 3611
Canada Grain Act, administration, 2834
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill, 3010
Pilotage, 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Senate amendments, 3608
Canadian Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3477-86
Census
Completion of, 1363
Cost, 1363
Civil service bonus, 3530
Coal for public buildings, 1759
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, 2831
Fines to municipalities, 2832
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com. 1442
Amdt. 1444. See also under this title Freight Rates
Customs Act and Dept. of Customs bill, 3477
Customs and Excise Dept., employees, 765

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Customs tariff
Book and coated papers, 3108
Cigars, 3107
Cocoa, 3106
Drugs, 3114
Gasoline, 3116
Marking Act, 3105
Pump parts, 3127
Wool and Woollen goods, 3129, 3130, 3233
Customs Tariff Act Amdt. bill, 3476
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 957
Anonymous letters, 944
Drayton-Acworth report, 126
Elevators, terminal, 2978
Estimates
Accounts chargeable, current or past year, 1675
Discussion of general policy, 767
Exchequer Court, estimates, 1274
Finance Dept.
Charges of management, 770
Salaries, 753
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 3011
Fishing tackle, 3140
Freight rates, Special Com., third report, 3555
Amdt. 3559. See also under this title Crowsnest pass
French trade treaty, 3224
German goods, valuation, 2172, 3227
Grain
Inquiry Commission, 2984-6
Shipment of via Quebec, 1466
Grand Trunk arbitration, newspaper comments, 821
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 1765
Health dept. estimates, 775
Housing, 774
Immigration facilities at Quebec, 1466
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3485
Inland Revenue
Alcohol for druggists, 3242
Sugar beet, tax on, 3242
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Insurance Dept. 792
Interim Supply, 373, 378, 383, 598
Interior dept.
Economy, 456
Salaries, 452
Typewriters, 455
Justice dept.
Appropriations exceeded, 1279
Contingencies, 1669
Labour dept.
Appointments, 462
Salaries, 548

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
League of Nations, 3174
Secretariat, Canada's contribution, 3990
Loans, 2127
New Canadian, 1133
Special Loans bill, 3476
Meat and Canned Foods bill, 3149
Militia and Defence
Amalgamation of services, 419
Naval Service, 422
War claims, adjustment, 2974
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 3199
Naval service, 1737
New departmental buildings, Ottawa, 3541
Non-productive assets, 1467
Nova Scotia miners, 509, 512
M. (Mr. Irvine 540)
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3489
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2824
Penitentiaries, inmates, increase in number, 1279
Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill, 3043
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3404, 3439-64
Pensions
Commutation of, 390
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Prime Minister, secretaries, 411
Printing plants, tax, 3410
Public Accounts, delay in closing, 1264
Public buildings
Coal for, 1759
Expenditure, 1260
Public Service Retirement bill, 3148
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1465-86, 3195
Quebec harbour, Parc St. Charles Co., 1470
Railway Commission, statement of Mr. Carvell, 2774
Redistribution
Census and, 1363, 1369
M. (Mr. Shaw), 1769
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3389, 3397, 3438
Revenue and Audit Act, 3042
St. Lawrence river waterway, correspondence, 2207
Sales tax collections, 1921-22, qu. 1212
Saskatchewan, export of liquor, 3000, 3002
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Capital expenditure, 1279
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Soulanges canal, 2768
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Cheque tax, 3258
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974
Supreme Court, pre-audit, 1274

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Tariff Commissioner, appointment, 1664
Transcontinental railway, 917
Transportation Costs, Special Com. See under this title, Crowsnest pass; Freight Rates
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, bill, 3547
United States, operation of railways in Canada, 192
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 2822
Vickers, Limited, 2975-7
War claims
Adjustment of, 2974, 2977
Exchange, 1758
War Graves Commission, 774
Weston post office building, 1259

Drayton-Acworth report, 46, 125, 130

Dredges and Dredging. See also Marine; Public Works
Estimates, 2005
Plamonder, 2006
Port Nelson, 2006
Quebec harbour, 1483
Red river channel, 2007
St. Lawrence river ship channel
De Beaujeu bank, 1495
New elevator dredge, 1495
St. Marys river, 2006
Shuswap lake, 2006

Druggists, alcohol for, 2114. See also Alcohol

Drumheller mines, 85, 1058

Drummond, Mr. J. D. F. (West Middlesex)
Beet sugar industry, 2273, 3251
Budget, 2272. Progressives, attitude towards; public debt; duty on beet sugar, 2272; tariff, duty on agricultural implements; farmers not asking special privileges, 2274
Goderich harbour, improvement, 2002

Drury, Hon. E.C., and Drury Government, 63, 125, 127, 134, 334
Lake of the Woods, control. 2991. See that title
Land tax, and, 2491

Dry Docks
Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008
Esquimalt, 347
Appropriation, 3541
Pacific Coast on, 2401
Subsidies to, 2008
Vancouver, 2005, 2008, 3542

Drysdale, Mr. Justice, retirement of, 1275

Duff, Mr. William (Lunenburg)
Air Board, qu. 366
Air Force and civil aviation, 1724
Banff-Windermere road, 1683
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 857
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. (Pilotage) bill, 2819
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine
Cost, etc., qu. 469
Subsidized steamship services, 3031
Canadian national parks, expenditure, 1681
Canned fish, marking of tins, 3048
Civil Service
Commission, qu. 364
Overmanning, 3099
Patronage, 3094
Rural postmasters, 3095-6
Con Rein, sinking of, 1384
Courtenay Bay works, qu. 365
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) amdt. 959
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation contract, 1677
Fishing schooner race, 1384, 3513
Flags, cost of, qu. 599, 1264, 1268
Halifax terminals, qu. 364
Harbours and rivers
Expenditure, details of, 1272
Ontario, 2000
International deep sea racing
M. for encouragement, 1384, 3513
Marine and Fisheries
Capt. O'Hara, 1490
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Migratory birds, 1685
Military and naval expenditures, reduction, 1139
National Defence bill, 740
Naval policy, 2052
Naval Service
Aurora, cruiser, 2053
Royal Canadian navy, qu. 366, 1848, 1871, 2052
Navigation off Newfoundland coast, aids to, 1498
Nova Scotia pensioners, qu. 615
Public buildings, flags, qu. 599, 1264, 1269
Toronto harbour works, qu. 365
Tourist traffic, 1683
Unemployment, 1683
War service badge, 1754
Wooden ships, qu. 364

Dumping Clause. See Customs and Excise

Duties. See Customs and Excise; Customs Tariff

Dynevor Hospital, 1218

Easter Adjournment. See House of Commons

Eastern Car Company, car repairs, 1706

Eastern La Have Transportation Company. See Con Rein

Eastern Maine Railway, 1293

Economic Depression, 6, 10, 85, 157, 237-8, 3299. See also speeches on Address; Budget

Economy in Administration, necessity for, 7, 52, 97, 122, 455-6. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Civil Service; Supply

Eddie, Captain, 1493

Edison, Mr. T. A., credit system, 2505

Editorial Committee, 1235-6

Edmonton
Indian school, proposed, 1227-9. See also Indians
Post office building, alteration, 1254

Edmundston
Post office, qu. 608
Public building, 1239, 1242

Education
Indians. See that title
Orientals in British Columbia, 317. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Rural schools in Ontario, 2385, 2565
School boards, refusal of bank to advance money to, 2627
School lands, 339
School system, 2385
Taxes in school districts, 2714

Eggs
Chinese, importation of, 177
Cold storage in, 2562
Exportation, 813
Imported into Canada, qu. 612
Inspection and standardizing, 177, qu. 727, 811-812

Eight-Hour Day. See Daylight Saving; Labour

Election Day. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill

Election of Speaker. See Speaker

Election of 1921
Campaign, 21, 40-41, 51, 61, 99, 140, 198, 265, 288. See also Address; Budget; Proportional Representation

Election of 1921 — Con.
Campaign — Con.
Brantford at, 255, 256
Charlotte, N.B., county in, 1997
Funds, and protected interests, 2437, 2732
Literature, 99
Statements by Sir Lomer Gouin, 140
Chief Electoral Officer, report, 1258
Deposits refunded, qu. 1067
Liberal pledges, cash grants to soldiers, 102, 400. See also Liberal Convention; Soldiers' Bonus
Maritime provinces in, 315-316
Minority government, 197. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Number of votes cast, 197
Pledges and promises, 243. See also Liberal Convention; Soldiers' Bonus
Rail and car repair contracts, prior to, 1688
Results, 61, 142, 186, 197, 2282, 2654, 2851, 2909-2910,
By provinces, 46
Returning officer, Carleton, 3538, 3602, 3604
Unit of representation, 198
Voters, failure to vote, 1112
Women, 1113

Electoral System. See Proportional Representation

Electric Power. See also Aluminum Company; Hydro Electric; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Water Powers
Campbell river, 1355
Railways and, 1940

Electrical storm in the West, 3493

Electrification of Railways, 133, 630. See also Canadian National Railways; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
M. (Mr. Deslauriers) withdrawn, 639

Elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board

Elk Island Park, fencing, 1051

Ellesmere Island
Danish expedition to, 1751
Royal Canadian Mounted Police at, 3497

Elliott, Mr. William (South Waterloo)
Budget, 2348. Tribute to Minister of Finance; tariff proposals a step in the right direction; national debt; revenue and expenditure; civil service; United States tariff; development of natural Elliott, Mr. William — Con.

Budget — Con.
resources, 2348; markets, building up of industry at expense of agriculture; high cost of living, unemployment; labour conditions; boots and shoes; labour cost; woollen cloth, labour cost, 2350; woollen clothing, price and labour cost, 2350; permanent tariff commission; claims for tariff protection, 2351
Galt post office building, 1247

Embargo
Cattle. See Cattle Embargo
Manure, exportation of, 1021

Emigration. See Immigration

Empire, British
Foreign policy and defence, 1629. See also Limitation of Armaments; National Defence bill; Naval Service

Empire Day adjournment. See House of Commons

Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058

Employment Service. See Labour

Enemy Debts. See Treaties with Hungary and Turkey

Enemy Property. See Aliens, Enemy Property

Enfranchisement
Indians of. See Indian Act Amdt. bill
Women of alien birth. See Dominion Elections Act

English River water powers. See Lake of the woods

Entomology, 813. See also Destructive Insects
Spruce bud moth, 1049

Escheats Act Amdt. bill (Time in which action must be brought)
1r., 2456; 2r., com., 2826; 3r., 3026; Senate amdts. 3486

Espionage. See Labour; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Esquimalt. See also Naval Service
Dry dock; 347, 596-7
Appropriation, 3541
Royal naval college at 2047, 2203, 2450

Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill. See Private Bills Discussed

Essence de l'Erable, qu. 1774

Estimates. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Interim Supply; Speaker; Supplementary Estimates; Supply. For departments, See their titles
Accounts chargeable to current or past year, 1675
"Appropriations not required", 1269
Classification and preparation, 569
Comparison with last year, 384
Consideration of, 3526
Details of, 1347
Government economy in, 381-382
Information not up to date, 1267
Items, reading of, 3545
Main
Comparison with last year, 381
Tabled, 363
One-fourth vote. See Interim Supply
Supplementary, tabled, 1258, 3463
War claims, details of, qu. 1288

Ethier, Mr. J. A. C. (Laval-Two Mountains)
Bankruptcy Act Amdt bill, 1132, 1662
Indians, Oka agent, 1217

Euler, Mr. William D. (North Waterloo)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 781
Alien Birth, women of, enfranchisement, M., 473, 480
Canadian National Railways
Canadian Northern deficit, 1906
Public ownership operation, 1948
Re-valuation, 1926
Civil Service, promotions, 576
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 950
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1788
Quebec public utilities, 1912
Railway policy, 1948

European Credits. See Loans

European War. See War

Evans, Mr. John (Saskatoon)
Address, 300. Agriculture in a deplorable state; rates on grain; railway consolidation, 300; tariff and trade prevention, 301; national policy a failure, 302: freer trade relations, 303; protected combines; railway question, 304; tariff views of different parties; returned soldier farmers, 305
Agricultural implements
Dumping clause, 2360
Importation by United Grain Growers, 3118, 3119
Agriculture dept., professional men, 588
American magazines, 3113

Evans, Mr. John — Con.
Apple industry, 3417
Armorial bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601
Beef hides, 3138
Blankets, duty on, 3130
British preference and Canadian ports, M. (Mr. Logan) 711
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1963
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1608
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Crowsnest pass agreement
Telegram of Mr. Motherwell to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Customs
Drawbacks, 765, qu. 828, 1067
Dumping clause, 2360, 3417
Fruit-growers, protection, 3417, 3425
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2795
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Immigration
Medical inspection, 759
Money qualification, 3058
Unrestricted, 3062
Live stock industry, 989
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Naval policy, 2072
Post office salaries, 2801
Railway policy, 1963
Saskatoon post office building, 1253
Soldiers' land settlement, 305, 2132
Steamship subsidies, qu. 614
Welland ship canal, 2758

Excess Profits tax. See Taxation

Exchange. See also Finance
Claim by British Admiralty for refund, 1752
Foreign, 2264
Rate of, 286
Soldiers' money on, 3339, 3348

Exchequer Court of Canada
Admiralty, vacancies, 1275. See also Admiralty Act
Estimates, 1274

Excise Taxes. See Customs and Excise; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.; Special War Revenue Act

Exemptions. See Income Tax Act; Special War Revenue Act
Pilotage dues, from. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.

Exhibitions, 2582. See also Agriculture; Live Stock; Trade and Commerce

Exhibitions — Con.
Agricultural. See that title
Canadian National, 2990
Estimates, 2026
France, in, 2031, 2990
Grants to, 649, 977, 3521
London, 2027
Tampa, Florida, 2026

Expenditure. See Finance; Public Expenditure

Experimental and Illustration Farms. See Agriculture

Explosives Act, 1234

Export Liquor warehouses. See Liquor

Exports. See that title under Imports and Exports; Trade

Ex-service Men, representative. See Pensions Committee

External Affairs, Department of
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Doherty, Hon. Manning, 1283
Papers and memorandum, 1334
Salaries and contingencies, 411, 3509
War claims, adjustment of. See War claims

Fafard, Mr. J. Fernand (L'Islet)
Butter imports, qu. 614
Canadian National railways, water supply, qu. 2213

Fair Wage Clause. See Labour

False Creek, removal of bridge, 3516

Fansher, Mr. B. W. (East Lambton)
Beet Sugar industry, 2232, 3246, 3251
M. to reduce duty, 3248
Budget, 2229. Fiscal policy; tariff revision; encouragement of native industries; agricultural implements; sales tax; business profits tax; protected industries, 2230-1; automobiles, duty and tax; beet sugar industry, 2232
Customs drawbacks, qu. 2356

Far Eastern Treaty, 3160. See also Limitation of Armaments

Farm Implements. See Agricultural Implements

Farm Lands, value of, 2565

Farm Products
Consumption in Canada, 2650. See also Budget
Decline in prices, 6, 11, 77, 93, 95, 113, 150, 225, 231. See also Address; Agriculture; Budget; Live stock
Fordney tariff, effect of, 209. See also United States, Fordney tariff
Exchange value of, 2576
Importation, 209
Trade in, 226. See also Trade

Farmers
Block in United States, 69, 210, 988. See also Address; Budget; Trade; United States
Eight-hour day and, 227. See also Daylight Saving
Geographical advantages, 297-9
Immigration of, 145, 225. See also that title
Income tax returns, 226, qu. 1063, 2241, 2631. See also Income Tax
Labour, 79, 87, 251, 337, 1153. See also Address; Budget; Immigration; Labour; Unemployment
Loyalty of, 526
Need of encouragement, 252
Profits, comparison of, 2333
Protection and. See Agricultural Implements; Budget
Remedial legislation, 157
Representation in Parliament. See Progressives
Sons, exemption from military service, 440, 448-9, 2685. See also, Military Service Act Amdt.
Transportation problems. See Freight rates
Want of confidence in future, 143
Western, 146-7, 357
And wheat marketing. See Wheat Board
Grievances, 2652

Farmers' Movement and Party. See Progressive Party

Federal Civilian Force. See National Defence bill; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Federal Elections Act. See Dominion Elections Act

Federal Representation by provinces, in 1877, qu. 1183

Federal Subsidies. See Subsidies

Feed Control Act, 1011

Female Suffrage. See also Dominion Elections Act
Failure of women to vote, 1113

Fertilizers. See also Agricultural Fertilizers bill
Cost of, 770
Duty on, 3140-3141
Freight rates on, 1022
Ground limestone, 1024
Inspectors, 592
Natural, exportation of, 1019
Tariff and, 2664

Fiduciary Interest. See Ministers and Directorships

Fielding, Hon. W. S. (Minister of Finance)
Agricultural implements, duty on, 3120, 3141. See also under this title, Customs Tariff
Alcohol for druggists, duty on, 2114, 3241
Alleged election promises, Charlotte, N.B. 1997
American magazines, 3108-3111
Appropriation Acts, 363, 598-9, 1842-3, 3607
Auditor General's office, 793
Auditor General's report
Public Works, expenditure of previous year, 1270
Referred to public Accounts Com., 1462
Automobiles, 2850, 2853, 3275. See also under this title, Special War Revenue Act
Refund of taxes, 3600
Value up to $1,000 for settlers, 2116
Banks
Circulation, tax on, 2117
Interest rates, 3602
Beet Sugar. See under this title, Sugar
Board of Commerce, 1715
Boy Scouts, 772-773
British Columbia government, criticism, 2237
Budget, inquiries as to date of, 1018, 1463, 1503
Budget Speech, 2104; Financial position of Dominion, 2104-17; economy, income and expenditure, 2104; public debt, 2106; loans, 2107; trade, 2108; trade agreements and negotiations; tariff revision, 2110-14; British preference; trade with United States, 2111; Marking and valuation; currency, 2113; certificate of trade or consular agent; tariff reductions, 2114; new taxation, 2116; financial situation; tariff resolutions, 2118

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Supplementary statement, 2842. Acknowledgement of tributes and congratulations, 2842; attitude of Progressives towards Budget, 2842; step in right direction; Liberal policy as declared in 1921, supported by Progressive members; a policy of moderation; tariff and sales tax, 2843; land and inheritance taxes; tariff proposals; tariff revision of 1897; predictions of bankers and manufacturers; trade revival; reduction in duties, 2844; change in policy of Sir John Macdonald; British preference; Sir Charles Tupper; reciprocity; "no truck or trade with Yankees"; opposition of Conservative party to trade arrangement; Liberal party ready to discuss question; value of United States market; Windsor Hall speech, 2846; industrial condition of Germany, 2847; depreciated currency; value of mark and commodity prices; trade with Germany; treaty of Versailles; valuation of currency, 2848; increased taxation effect of currency valuation on Italian trade; a protectionist budget; downward revision; Progressives would not have been able to do more; direction in which Liberal party is looking, 2849; drawbacks and refunds; Ford motor company; Atlantic Sugar refineries; goods in transit; manufacture for export, 2850; Opposition amdt.; Liberal platform of 1919; verdict of electors; proposed changes in budget proposals; amended resolutions, 2851; tax on confectionery; soft drinks; ale, beer, porter and stout; cigarettes; fertilizers and dried beet pulp; cheque tax, 2852; bond and stock transfers, 2853; beet root sugar; raw leaf tobacco; receipts; cigars; automobiles; depreciated currency, 2853
Business of the House. See also under this title, Estimates; Supply
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2473-74, 2522
Civil government items, 374
Daylight saving, 1282
Member interrupting, must ask permission, 255-6
Privilege, right to raise on Orders of the day, 2638
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Business of the House — Con
Special loan bill, 3151
Supplementary estimates, 3365
Supply, concurrence, 1842
Business profits war tax, 1658, 2024
Canadian battlefields, 772
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3156, 3366, 3477-86
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1747, 1771
Cattle embargo, reported statement of Mr Larkin, 1023
Chartered banks, returns, 865
Cheque tax, 2117, 2852, 3258
Cigars and cigarettes, tax on, 2852, 3239, 3240
Commissioner of Taxation, salary, 2024
Confectionery, tax on, 2852
Congratulations to on fortieth year of public life, 3279
Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 3042
Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. bill, 1132, 3042
Currency, depreciated, valuation for customs, 2113, 2849, 2853
Customs Act and Dept of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill, 3222, 3476, 3477
Depreciated currency, 3223, 3224, 3410
Dumping clause, 3225, 3411
German goods, valuation, 3229
Invoices certificates, 3221
Wines and spirits in bond, 3229
Customs drawbacks, 2850, 3141
Customs Tariff
Blankets, 3128, 3131, 3136, 3234
Book and coated papers, 3108
Boots and shoes, 3238
Cigars, 3107
Cocoa, 3106
Cotton, fabrics, 3128
Gasoline, 3106, 3115, 3116
Glass bottles, 3117
Grading machines, 3126
Hatters' bands, 3140
Invalids' wheel chairs, 3115
Marking Act, 3105
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Paper invalid cups, 3115
Paper milk bottle caps, 3114
Ploughs, 3121, 3229
Pumping machinery, 3127
Reductions, 3239
Saw-mill machinery, 3126
Silk, 3127
Tools, 3127
Tractors, 3123

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, claim, 2170
Dumping clause, 3225, 3411.
Estimates. See also under this title; Supply
Accounts chargeable to current year, 1675
"Appropriations not required", 1269
Items, urgent, 409
Procedure, 409
Tabled
Main, 363
Supplementary, 1258, 2465
Fabre, Madame, pension, 2024
Fertilizers, duty on, 2852, 3141
Finance Dept.
Charges of management, 770
Deputy minister, 753
Estimates, 751, 1663, 3495
Legal expenses, railways, 1667
Loans, 771. See also under this title, Loans,
Unforeseen expenses, 771
Fire prevention, 794
Fiscal year, ending of, 1210. See also under this title, Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act
Fisheries, reduction in duties on, 2116
Fishing schooner race, 3512
France-Belgium trade treaties, 3223
Girl guides, 774
Governor General's Secretary's office, 751
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1998
Nova Scotia, expenditure in 1921-22, 1269
Prince Edward island, 1989-90
Housing, 774
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 865
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Imports, marking and valuation of, 2113, 2849, 2853, 3229
Income tax
Cost of collection, 2025
Legislation, 3104
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3278-9, 3359, 3484
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Alcohol for druggists, 2114, 3241
Cigars and cigarettes, 3239, 3240
Home brewing, 3141
Sugar beets, 2117, 2853, 3242, 3248
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3143, 3607
Insurance officials, 791
Insurance premiums, tax, 3253, 3255, 3477
Interim Supply, 373, 378, 383, 598
Bill, 362, 598-9

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Labour and capital, 2117
Liberal platform of 1919, tariff plank, 2529, 2851
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3142, 3607
Loans, 771, 2107
New Canadian, 1131, 1133
Special loans bill, 3476
Merchants' Bank, inquiry, 3604
Nova Scotia miners, 497
M. (Mr. Irvine) 543
Nova Scotia Supreme Court, vacancy, 3437
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1814
Penny Bank Act Amdt., bill, 1132, 3043, 3148
Pensions to Imperial forces, 864
Personal statement, correction, 681
Private Bills Com., substitution of names, 2355
Public Accounts, closing of, 1210, 1264-66
Public buildings
Flags, 1265
Generally, expenditure, accounts not closed, 1263-66
New, 1256
Public Works estimates, 696, 697, 750
Rail and car repair contracts, 1697
Railways, annual statement, 926
Reciprocity with United States, 2111, 2845-6
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3320, 3392, 3395
Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 3042
Root vegetables, inspection and sale of, 2744
St. Lawrence river waterway, 786
Co-operation with the United States, 2755
Sales tax, 2116, 2843, 2851. See also under this title, Special War Revenue Act
Save the Children fund, 3516
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldiers' Bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 442
Special loans bill, 3476
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Automobiles, 3275
Ford company, 3276
Cheque tax, 3258
Insurance premiums, tax, 3253, 3255, 3477
Matches, 3263
Mineral waters, 3278
Receipts, 3262
Sales tax, 2116, 3264, 3269
Amdt. (Mr. Speakman) 3271
Condensed milk, 3268, 3409
Job printing, 3409
Steamship services, 2029

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Sugar
British preference increased, 2116
Excise duty on beet sugar, 2117, 2853, 3242, 3248
Supply bills, 362, 598-9, 1842-3, 3607
Supply, concurrence, 1769, 1842
Tariff Commission, 1663
Tariff reductions, 2114, 2844, 2851, 3123
Tariff revision, 2110-14, 2844, 2849
Taxation, increases in, 2116, 2843, 2848, 2851-3
Tobacco, duties on, 2115, 2852-3, 3107, 3239
Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3142, 3607
United States
Reciprocity with, 2111, 2845-6
Visit to Washington, 2112
War claims, exchange, 1754
War Graves Commission, 774
Wrangel island, 1750

Filled Milk and cream, qu. 963. See also Milk; Oleomargarine

Films, Educational. See Trade and Commerce

Finance. See also Banks; Budget; Financial Credit; Loans
Additional currency issue, qu. 3155
Bank deposits, qu. 3155
Bank notes in circulation, qu. 3155
Banking conditions, 158
Bonds
And stock, transfers, tax, 2853
Tax-free, maturing, qu. 826
Canada's financial position, soundness of, 2497
Commitments, 208
Credit Systems. See Financial Credit
Department
Charges of management, 770, 1663
Deputy Minister, 751
Estimates, 1662
Expenditure, economy in, 1475
Dominion Notes, qu. 705, qu. 935, qu. 3153, qu. 3154
Expenditure, monthly statement of, 1271
Legal expenses, 1667
Paper Control inqury, 1673
Salaries, 751, 3504
Unforeseen expenses, 771
Estimate of wealth and production, 2497
Excise profits and watered stock, 2714
Financial position of country, annual statement of Minister, 2104-2118
Gold reserve, qu. 3154, qu. 3155
Gold standard and credit system, 219

Finance — Con.
Grain trade, 2246
Loan department, 220
National wealth, 222. See also Natural Resources
Per capita wealth, 2630
Sinking funds, 1663

Financial Conference, Brussels, 1138, 1292

Financial Credit, 208, 219, 221, 2497-8. See also Banks; Finance; Loans; Money
Banks and, 1290, 2501, 2714
Brussels Conference, 1138, 1292
Community power, use of for private interest, 1291, 2501
Control of, 222, 1292, 2445, 2500
Germany in, 2500
Credit systems, 2634
Attempts to inaugurate
Guernsey Island, 2505
St. Louis Municipal currency, 2506
Definition of Credits, 2503
Douglas system, 220, 222, 2502
Financial organizations, consolidation, 2245-6
Gold standard and, 219, 1291, 2506
Greece and Roumania, qu. 1400
Industrial stagnation and unemployment, 1291. See also Industrial depression
Inflation and deflation, 2502
Loans, 1292. See also that title
M. (Mr. Irvine) for Parliamentary Com., 1289, 1396
National credit power, 1291, 2499
Private monopoly of, 2501
Purchasing power, 1292
Restricted, 2629-30
Scientific inquiry and experimentation, 1289
Sociological laboratory, 1290
Systems, 2282

Financial Depression and Outlook. See speeches on Address; Budget

Findlay, Mr. J. W. (South Bruce)
Budget, 2893. Protection and blind party-ism; reciprocity, 2893; Ontario farmer not a protectionist; Progressives in Ontario; Laurier naval policy; tariff reductions; public morality and political honour; pledges and promises; Senate reform, 2894; debt and increased taxation; expenditure; reduction of sessional indemnity; drawbacks; protective budget, 2895
Potlach, Indian institution, 1578
Indians serving gaol sentences, 1721

Fines, payable to municipalities, 2832. See also Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Finney, Colonel John, 1189

Fire
Insurance. See Insurance
Losses, railways from, 628
Prevention, 794. See also Air Service; Forestry; Insurance

First Contingent, training, qu. 1376

Fiscal Changes. See Budget; Tariff resolutions; Taxation

Fiscal Year. See Consolidated Revenue Act Amdt. bill

Fish and Fisheries. See also Marine and Fisheries
Boats admitted as settlers' effects, 2116
British Columbia. See also that title
Depletion of, 346
Orientals engaged in, 167, 171, 344. See also Oriental Aliens
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 851, 863
Salmon traps, 346
Transfer, 2042. See also Quebec Fisheries
Canning. See Meat and Canned Foods Act
Canning and curing licenses, 3010
Deep sea, conservation and development, 2169
Department of Fisheries, 2166
Dry salting, 3010
Estimates, 2166
Fish culture, 2169
Fishermen's supplies, 2690
Fishing schooner race. See International Deep Sea Racing
Fishing vessels, pilotage, 2819
Fishways in rivers, 2166
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
Guardians, salaries, 2166
Hatcheries, 2169
Herring, dry salting, 3010
Herring, in Alaska, 70
Improved methods, Gulf and Gaspesian coasts, qu. 1401
International deep sea racing. See that title
Licenses. See Quebec fisheries
Lobster, 1399, 2817, 2996
Market, 2166
Mildred McColl, patrol boat, qu. 3598
Officers and guardians, salaries, 2166
Orientals. See Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Patrol service, 2166
Boats, qu. 1503, qu. 3598
"Phalarope", qu., 1503

Fish and Fisheries — Con.
Pollution of streams, 2168
Prince county, illegal fishing, qu. 371
Protection service. See Marine; National Defence; Naval service
Publicity and marketing, 2169
Quebec, transfer of, 142. See also Quebec Fisheries
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Rope, twine, etc., duty on, 2359
Salmon, 1399, 2817, 2996
Dry salting, 3010
Sardines, export, qu. 1182
Supplies, reduction in duties, 2116, 2359
Tariff reductions on implements of, 2191
Transportation, 2166
Vocational loans to fishermen, 1346

Fisher and Oughton, Messrs. See Aliens

Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bills
1. Protection of Salmon and Lobster Fisheries. 1r., 1399; 2r., com., 2817; com., 2996; 3r., 2997
2. Salmon Curing and Herring Drying. Res. 2306, 3010; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3013

Fisheries Protection Service. See Marine; National Defence bill; Naval Service

Fishing Schooner Race. See International

Flag-Waving, 1265, 1386, 2711

Flags
Cost of, qu, 599
For public buildings, 1260, 1264, 1268

Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 634. See also Canadian National Railways, Directors

Flax
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim of, 2834
Canadian bounty on linen yarn from, 1361

Flour
Exports to United States, 209
Insurance on mills, 3255

Flynn, Mr. Harry, and soldiers' bonus, 394, 402

Fontaine, Mr. J. E. (Hull)
Gatineau Point-Rockliffe ferry, qu. 1399, qu. 1661
Old age pensions, M., 1303
Post Office
Classification, 3089
Employees receiving $600, qu. 1067
Married women, qu. 1658
Money Order branch, qu. 1285

Food and Drug Act, administration, 2017

Food and Drugs. See Health; Meat and Canned Foods

Food Inspection, 820

Foot and mouth Disease. See Cattle Embargo

Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214

Foran, Mr. W., See Civil Service Commission

Ford Car. See Automobiles

Ford, Mr. Henry, credit scheme, 2505

Fordney Tariff. See Budget Speeches; United States

Foreign-Born wives of British subjects. See Dominion Election Act Amdt.

Foreign Currency. See Customs, Marking; Currency
Inflation. See Customs and Excise Dept. bill

Foreign Fraternal Societies. See Insurance Act Amdt.

Foreign Loans. See Loans

Foreign Markets. See Trade

Foreign Monetary Standards. See Customs; Currency

Foreign Warships. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill

Foreigners. See also Aliens
Crime and, 1392, 2517
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Immigration. See that title
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1388-94
Textile industries, engaged in, 2518

Forest, Mr. Médard, qu. 2355

Forestry. See also Natural Resources; Research; Timber
Aerial patrol, 1047, 1722
Gaspe, 1733
High River, Alta., qu. 1066, 1048, 1723
Railway belt, B.C., 1730
Fire losses, 628
Fire towers, 1048
Forest area under federal control, 1048
Protection of timber in West, 1046
Pulpwood and round logs, duty, 2667

Forestry — Con.
Spruce bud moth, 1049, 2668
Tree culture in West, 1046
Turtle Mountain reserve, qu. 615

Forke, Mr. Robert (Brandon)
Address in reply, 76. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, mover and seconder, 76-77; reciprocity with United States; marketing of farm products, 77; tariff revision; railway problems, 78; taxation burdens; immigration, 79
Agriculture, condition and prospects, 2149
Assiniboine river floods, 2004, 3546
Boy Scouts, 773
Cigarettes, tax on, 3241
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special com., 1424
Distribution of labour and goods, 2149
Fishways, 2168
Freight rates, 1424
Harbours and rivers, Manitoba, 2004
Immigration policy, 2148
Indians
Education, Elkhorn school, 3537
Oak lake and Pipestone, 1223
Militia and defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2086
Naval policy, 2079
Progressives, patriotism, 720
Rideau canal, 2765
Soldier land settlement, taxes, 2134
Soldier Settlement Board, qu. 469
Transportation, 2149
Woollen goods and blankets, 3234

Fort Churchill. See Hudson Bay Railway

Fort George, 119

Fort Mississauga, 119

Fort Qu'Appelle Sanitarium, 1345

Fort William
Car repair contracts, 1696-1705
Grain overages, qu. 1210
Terminal elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade

Fortier, Mr. H. A. (Labelle)
Agricultural exhibitions, 993
Budget, 2274. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Government policy; amendment; revenue requirements and taxation, 2274; income tax; suggested concession to heads of families; population, suggested methods of increasing; railways and public ownership, 2275; economy in public expenditure, 2276
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 961

Fortier, Mr. H. A. — Con.
Demonstration farm at Mont Laurier, 994
Military Service Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 643
Ministers and directorships, 1123
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1798

Fournier, Mr. C. A. (Bellechasse)
Carty, Captain, qu. 1062
Chief Architect's branch, Public Works, qu. 963
Civil Service Commission, qu. 826
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1904

Four-Power Treaty. See Limitation of Armaments

France
Canadian exhibition in, 2031
Exhibition train from, 2990
Industries, protection of, 2410
Post war conditions, 2643
Trade relations with. 2990. See also Trade
Trade treaty with, 2110

Franchise. See also Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Extension of, 2242
Public ownership, and, 1944

Fraser River Fisheries. See British Columbia, Fisheries

Fraser Valley Railway. See Vancouver and Fraser Valley

Fraternal Benefit Insurance. See Insurance Act Amdt.

Frauds, Scrip, prosecution for. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Fredericton
Military property, 1980
Officers' square, 1980

Free Freight outlay, qu. 704

Free Trade. See Address; Budget

Freight, careless handling of, 1965

Freight Rates. See also Address; Budget; Canals; Railway Commission; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Transportation
Advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Calgary, free outlay, qu. 704
Coal from maritime provinces, 1763
Comparison between freight and duty, 2175

Freight Rates — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, 146, 176, 350, 1412. See also under this title, Excessive. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Special Com. to inquire into effect upon Railway Rates
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for, 1213, 1402
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) 1444; neg. 1457
M. agreed to, 1458
Named, 1502
Reports
First, 1657
Second, 1719
Third, 3546
M. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) for adoption of, 3548
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton, 3559; neg. 3586
Amdt. (Mr. Baxter) 3586; neg. 3586
M. agreed to, 3588
Position of Ministers of Agriculture and Interior on, 242
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 3588; 2r., com., 3595; 3r., 3597
Rule 11, suspension of, 1502
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Excessive, 33, 47, 54, 78, 83, 131-132, 275, 350, 2219, 2314, 2453. See also under this title, Crowsnest Pass Agreement, and Speeches on Address; Budget
Export, 2633
Fertilizers, on, 1022
Immigration and, 2157
Lumber industry, 234, 2311
Norris, Premier, reported statement of, 1213
Quebec, and, 1472, 1473
Railway labour, and, 2315
Regulation by water carriage competition, 1688
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1204. See also that title
Subsidized steamships, 2028
Wheat on, 235. See also Wheat Board

French, early pioneers in West, 2912

French-English Canadians, unity between, 168-9. See also Address

French Language, 155
Civil Service classification, qu. 1930
Parliament in, 155, 244, 306, 356
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1351
Soldier Settlement Board, Sherbrooke, qu. 1658

Fruit Industry, 220, 2564
Apple-growing, 171, 967
Importations, qu. 612
Protection of, 225, 2197
Baxter, Mr. Charles W., appointment of successor, 2457
British Columbia in, 2593. See also that title
Competition with United States, 2903
Dumping clause, 2280, 2310, 2372, 2593, 2641, 2879 2903. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Freight rates. See Crowsnest pass agreement
Fruit Commissioner, qu. 2457
Grape juice, tax on, 2594, 2617
Okanagan Valley, 162. See also British Columbia
Oriental Aliens engaged in, 1535. See also that title
Protection. See Budget; Customs, Dumping clause
Tariff, 2197
Transportation. See Freight Rates
Trees, protection from insects. See Entomology

Fuel. See also Coal; Mines; Natural Resources
Oil, 344, qu. 728
Competition with coal, 2312
Importation, 178
Tank at Louise Basin, 1484
Tariff against, 1761
Peat, 1235
Price, 1490, qu. 1774. See also Coal

Further Legislation. See House of Commons

Futures, trading in. See Wheat Board

Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary and duties, qu. 3599

Galicians. See Immigration

Galt post office building, 1247

Gambling. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Game. See Migratory Birds; Dominion Lands and Parks

Games of Chance. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Gaols. See Prisons; Penitentiaries

Garbage Feeding. See Hog Cholera

Gardiner, Mr. Robert (Medicine Hat)
Budget, 2624. New national policy, 2624; fiscal plank; substantial reduction of customs tariff; British Preference; free food stuffs; machinery for conversion of natural resources and raw materials; time to be allowed for industrial readjustment; claims for protection to heard in public; parliamentary committee on tariff; tariff commission, 2625; effects of tariff; exploitation of the people; tariff increases prices but not values; tariff reductions; revenue; land tax; inheritance tax; excise tax on manufactured goods; sales tax, 2626; circulation tax; bank interest violation of Bank Act; withholding of credit from municipality; unemployment; an inequitable budge 2627

Gardiner, Mr. Robert — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian National Railways
Branch lines, 1964
Bridge over Red Deer river, 1964
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1859
Cheque tax, 3260
Civil Service bonus, 1258
Dominion lands, oil leases, 1046
Fishing tackle, 3140
Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 3486
Port Nelson dredging, 2006
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3438
Rural mail delivery contracts, 2800
Seed Grain Commission, 1011
Steamship services, 2027
Tar Sands, 1236
Timber wolves, 1001
Venereal diseases, 2022
Wheat Board, 785

Garland, Mr. E. J. (Bow River)
Additional currency issue, qu. 3155
Aerial forest patrol, High River, Alta., 1048, qu. 1066, 1723
Agriculture Com. report — Wheat Board, 783
Agriculture dept. — Mr. Duncan Marshall, 651, 652
Bank notes in circulation, qu. 3155
Boy Scouts, 773
Business of the House — eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine
West Indian trade, 3928; amdt. 3031
Canadian National railway, securities, qu. 3154
Criminal Code Amdt. (Half breed scrip) 3216
Dominion lands, surveys, 1038, 1044
M. to reduce vote, 1039

Garland, Mr. E. J. — Con.
Dominion notes, qu. 3154
Dredging, 2006
Fish culture, 2169
Forest aerial patrol, High River, Alta., qu. 1066, 1048, 1723
Gold reserve, qu. 3154, qu. 3155
Immigration of children, 2148, 3063
Indians
Blackfoot reserve, pasture lands, qu. 2215
Greater production, 1224, 1288
International boundaries, 1033
Mixed farming, 983
National gallery, 2011
Naval Service
Niobe, sale of, 2043, 2067
Royal Canadian Navy, 2043
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 522
Parliament, fall session, 2608
Pensions Com., report, 3349
Post office, ruling respecting newspaper or magazine subscriber, qu. 3599
Redistribution, meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 3497
Enlistment in Canadian Expeditionary Force, qu. 2038
Soldiers' land settlement, homestead rights, 2135
Steamship services, 2027, 3028, 3506
Amdt., 3031
Tax-free bonds, qu. 826
Telegraph and telephone lines, Alberta, 2012

Garland, Mr. W. F. (Carleton)
Budget, 2300. Congratulations to Finance Minister; war expenditure; Canada Cement Company; income tax; tariff on agricultural implements; British preference; Mr. Fielding's trip to Washington; trade with United States; civil service dismissals; bonus; superannuation, councils, 2300; sales tax, 2301
Canada-Great Britain postal rate, qu. 3364
Civil Service
Bonus, qu. 472, qu. 606, 2300, 3531
Withdrawal from certain civil servants, qu. 3598
Commission, salaries, 407
Councils, 2300
Increase to deputy ministers, bonus, salaries, qu. 2805
Remuneration, qu. 3364
Retirement fund, qu. 826
Superannuation, 2300
Connaught rifle range, qu. 3153
Egg inspection, 811

Garland, Mr. W. F. — Con.
Exhibitions, prizes, 654
Experimental farms, 811
Grand Trunk, salaries of officials, qu. 728
Highways
Ottawa-Kingston, qu. 1904, 2794
Ottawa-Pembrooke, qu. 1661, 2794
Ottawa-Prescott, tree planting, qu. 2039
Mail contracts
Gascons-Quebec, qu. 2213
Lachenaie, qu. 2805
Militia dept. shed, Cartier square, Ottawa, qu. 2038
Poultry inspection, 656, 807
Rideau canal, 2766

Gas and electricity, inspection, 1373

Gascons-Quebec mail contract, qu. 2213

Gasoline, price of, 2106, 2296, 2313, 3115

Gaspé Peninsula
Aerial forest patrol, 1733
Fisheries, qu. 1401
Railways, M. (Mr. Marcil) for papers, 623

Gatineau-Point-Rockliffe ferry privilege, qu. 1399, qu. 1661

Gauvreau, Mr. C. A. (Témiscouata)
Acoustics of the Chamber, 3613
Canadian National Railways
Intercolonial
Pension fund, qu. 938
Repairs to cars, qu. 1212
Rivière du Loup shops, qu. 1181, 1690
Indemnity of members, 3613
Juvenile delinquents, qu. 469
Lighthouse boats, fuel for, qu, 606, qu. 1183
Lighthouses and wireless telegraphy, qu. 370
Prison reform, 1279
Privilege — alleged statement of Miss Macphail, 3221
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690
Rivière du Loup arsenal, qu. 1181, 1690

Gendron, Mr. R. M. (Wright)
Dennis building, Halifax, qu. 3360

General Election. See Election of 1921

"General" Macdonald's Army. See also Riley's Army; Unemployment
Government action in regard to, 2458
Reception of, 2256

Genoa Conference, 7, 58, 156, 212, 582, 2337. See also Address; Budget; Conferences
Canadian delegation to, expenses, 1715, 2864

Genoa Conference — Con.
Cannes conference, documents, 823
Tabled, 865
Correspondence with Govt. of Italy, 1905, 2035
Gordon, Sir Charles, 58, 582
Dominion Textile Company, and, 583-4
Money vote for, 1675
Montpetit, Professor, 582
Reported subscription of Canada to consortium, 1463
Submarines, 1845

Geodetic Survey
Estimates, 1033
Ottawa building, 1265

Geological Survey. See also Mines and Minerals
Anthropological division
Potlach institution, qu. 1377. See also Indians
Camsell, Mr. Charles, 1262
Co-ordination of survey work, 1236
Estimates, 1233, 1236
Maps, 1237
Publications, 1237
Reduction of vote, 1237-62
Specimens, purchase of, 1237

George, Right Hon. Lloyd, 2203, 2337
Empire defence, responsibility of dominions for, 1630

Georgian Bay Canal. See Canals

German, Mr. W. M. (Welland)
Freight rates, Special Com., third report, 3587-8
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3441
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1319
Trenton Harbour bill, 3494

German Goods, valuation of. See Budget; Customs Act Amdt.

German Mark, decline in value of. See Budget; Currency, depreciated

Germany. See also Budget; Customs Tariff; Imports; Trade
Agents of manufacturers in Canada, 2647
Commercial development, 2643
Competition with, 2114, 2140, 2173-4, 2203, 2412, 2420, 2487, 2878
Credit control, 2500
Exports to Canada, 2408, 2421, 2863
Pocket-Knives, valuation of, 2876
Financial situation, 2499, 2642
Indemnity, payment in goods, 2500

Germany — Con.
Industrial condition, 2499, 2847
Labour conditions in, 3227. See also Labour
Mark, value of, 2417, 2644, 2848. See also Budget; Currency, depreciated
Paper money, 2499
Proposed loan, 2500
Reparations paid to Allies, qu. 375
Tariff wall against goods, 174
Trade relations with, 138, 2183, 2263, 2287, 2347, 2394, 2421-22, 2464, 2487, 2848, 2876
Foreign, 2644
Wages and production costs, 2407, 2499, 2884
War debts, 174
Working hours, 2499

Gervais, Mr. Théodore (Berthier)
Inglis boiler works, qu. 732

Gillen Board. See Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Girl Guides, grant, 774

Glanders. See Health of Animals

Glass
Customs duties on, 3117
Industry, occupational diseases. See Labour

Globe, Toronto, imaginary speeches of Mr. Meighen, 207

Goderich Harbour improvement, 2000

Gold
Central reserves and gold held in Canadian banks, qu. 2971
English hall marks, protection of. See Criminal Code
Refining. See Charges of Management
Reserve. See Finance
Standard, 1291

Gold and Silver Marking Act, administration of, 1372

Good, Mr. W. C. (Brant)
Agate and granite ware, 3118
American magazines, 3108, 3113
Automobiles, tax on, 3273, 3277
Beet sugar industry, 3250
Blankets, duty on, 3234-5
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 722
Budget, 2429. Tariff record of Liberal party; repudiation of tariff plank of 1919 platform; history of fiscal legislation, 2429; inception of protective

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.

Budget — Con.

policy; position of Liberal party on tariff question in seventies; Liberal convention of 1893; condemnation of protection system; campaign of 1911, 2430; reciprocity agreement; Liberal protectionists; the "great apostacy"; the "interests"; possible explanation of Liberal attitude, 2431; expediency of compromise; geographical considerations; examination of protective system without reference to locality or occupation; social versus individual advantage, 2432; trade a form of co-operation, not competition; protectionist philosophy; political boundaries and tariff walls, 2433; tariffs for revenue and protection; "plucking the goose with the least squawking"; direct and indirect taxes; protection by boundary dather than by tariff; encouragement of infant industries; protection of all industries impossible; favourable trade balance; international trade; cheap foreign labour; real and nominal wages; retaliatory tariffs, 2435; diversified industry; decadence of agriculture; effect on manufacturing industries; free raw material and lower labour costs; free trade and advantage to manufacturers; competition against old established industries, 2436; protective tariffs and monopoly; price-fixing combinations; has protection assisted Canadian manufacturers?; the system corrupting, demoralizing and indefensible; contributions to campaign funds; national existence and integrity, 2437; economic self-sufficiency; sentiment in favour of protection; public opinion distorted; quotation from Mr. J. A. Hobson, 2438; consumers not organized to protect themselves; Canadian Manufacturers' Association propaganda; objects of protection; how has the policy worked out?, 2439; loss of population; indictment of system by United Farmers of Ontario; war profiteering; revenue raising expedients, 2440; excess profits tax; no promise of relief in budget; taxes on consumption; sales tax, 2441; income and inheritance taxes; ability to pay, 2442; property tax; taxation of land value; 2443; increased production; booms and depressions; public works; credit control, 2445

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.

Business of the House

Estimates, consideration of, 3527

Mondays and Wednesdays, 1720

Business profits war tax, qu. 1657

Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1961

Cattle embargo, 991-992

Chamberlin, Mr. R. S., grant to, 3498

Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509

Coated papers, duty on, 3108

Condensed milk, tax, 3269

Contingencies, expenditures for, 415

Cotton fabrics, duty on, 3128

Debates, inaudibility of, 1755, 1996

Ford motor company, 3273

German importations, value of, 3228

Governor General's cars, 1688

Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2001

Hydrographic survey, 1746

Immigration

Passports, 3064

Salaries, 3499

Income war tax act, 3278

Indians

Medical attention, 1220

Six Nation reserve, 1222

Lambton, loss of, 3507

Live stock industry, 992

Military expenditures and policy, 1144

Naturalization expenses, 1671

Naval defence, obligation of Canada, 1745

Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1836

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3019

Pool selling, bookmaking, etc., 2973

Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3515

Proportional Representation, M. for adoption, 1633

Public buildings, Ottawa

Elevator attendants, 1267

Expenditure, 1268

Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1485

Quebec harbour, parc St. Charles, 1470

Rail and car repair contracts, 1705

Railway policy, 1961

Root vegetables bill, potato grades, 3376

Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 843

Senate indemnity, 3509

Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 436

Steamship subsidies, contracts, 3034, 3506

Supply, discussion, method of, 1142

Tariff amendments, 3238-9

Telegraph and Telephone lines, 2012

Tools, tax on, 3127

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.
Unemployment
Causes of, 3526
Military expenditures, 1144
Relief, 3526
Wheat Board bill, 3187
Woollen goods, duty on, 3130

Good Roads. See Highways

Gordon, Sir Charles, 58, 200, 239, 1128
Genoa conference, 1715

Gordon, Mr. George N. (West Peterborough.)
See also Deputy Speaker
O'Connor, Mr. W. F., K.C., payments, qu. 2037

Gouin, Hon. Sir Lomer (Minister of Justice and Attorney General)
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Address in reply, 140. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; statements made in last general election, 140; Order in Council government, 141; Quebec fisheries; results of general election, 142
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3025
Senate amdts. 3611
Budget, 2654. Fiscal policy, protection and free trade; issue of the election campaign; Liberals not free traders; history of tariff legislation; Hon. Alex. Mackenzie; Mr. Blake's Malvern speech, 2655; principles which have inspired Liberal party; fiscal policy of Government found in speeches of Prime Minister and Finance Minister, 2656; budget proposals in consonance with declarations of leaders, 2657; expenditure and debt; revenue necessities; manufacturing important factor in developing Canada, 2657; late Sir Wilfrid Laurier on encouragement of Canadian industries; progress of manufacturers since 1870; exodus during last ten years; investment in industrial establishments, 2658; grievances of the West; proposals for tariff reduction; strict economy needed; immigration policy; the amendment; no deception of electors, 2659; budget proposals consistent with Liberal promises
Canada Grain Act
Decision of Manitoba Court of Appeal, 1133, 1841, 1932
Chamberlain, Mr. R. S., grant to, 3497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills, 1841, 2830, 2973, 3607

Gouin, Hon. Sir Lomer — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt. bills — Con.
Half-breed scrip, 3219
Mr. Woodsworth
M. for reference to Special Com., 1503
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases bill, 3468-75
Senate amdts. 3615
Exchequer court
Admiralty vacancies, 1275
Estimates, 1274
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth)
M. for ref. to Special Com., 1502
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 424, 2830
Judges, Quebec, 3497
Justice department of,
Estimates, 1274, 1668
Litigated matters, 1276
Salaries, 451, 4395
Yukon territory, 1275
King v, Manitoba Grain Company, decision, 1133, 1841, 1932
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276
Nova Scotia Supreme Sourt, vacancy, 3437
Pecuniary Claims Convention with United States, 1276
Penitentiaries
Estimates, 1276
Inmates, foreign and native, 1279
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 545, 787
References to, 21, 26, 55, 206, 207, 239, 242, 243, 1128, 2679, 2682, 2718. See also Budget; Ministers and Directorships
Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 3042
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Estimates, 2129
Pensions, 2131
Soldiers' civil re-establishment bill, 3597
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2974
Supreme court estimates, 1274
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux expenses, 1669
White, Mr. James, employment of, 3496
Yukon territory, 1275

Gould, Mr. O. R. (Assiniboia)
Agriculture department
Officers, 650
Professionnal men, 589
Air force and civil aviation, Saskatchewan, 1724
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Bank, loans to directors, 1093
Bee-keeping, 592
Bienfait briquetting plant. See under this title, Lignite
Blankets, duty on, 3129

Gould, Mr. O. R. — Con.
Budget, 2711. Congratulation to Finance Minister; grievance of the West and its solution; briquetting plant at Bienfait, 2712-15; farmers and the income tax; excessive profits and watered stock; banks and credit, 2714; liquor exportation from Saskatchewan; banking system, 2716; cheque tax; national debt, 2717; taxation; Sir Lomer Gouin and protection; tariff on implements of production, 2718; inconsistent attitude of Conservatives towards tariff; a disappointing budget; failure of Government to carry out platform of 1919; similarity of Liberal and Progressive platforms, 2720; Liberals will not implement pledges, 2721
Civil service economy, 793
Clothes wringers, 3140
Criminal Code, carriage of calves, 2831
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Defence branches, amalgamation, 423
Departments, economy in, 458, 793
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion lands, surveys, 1041
Electrical storm in the West, 3493
Elevators, complaint of unfair dealing, 2987
Entomology, qu. 472, 590, 817
Export liquor warehouses, 768, 2716
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Grain Growers' Grain Company, 2489
Grasshopper plague, qu. 472, 590, 817
Harbours and rivers, expenditure, 1272
Harness, hides, prices, 3139
Immigration, medical inspection, 2022
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3143
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 546
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, qu. 604, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Utilization board, 3524
Live stock, diseases, 650
Military district No. 12, 1176, 1602, 1987
Military expenditure and policy, 1148, 1175, 1610
Militia and Defence
Annual training, 1175, 1600-10
Customs duties, 1978
Permanent force, 1982
Saving in, 418
Temporary clerks, 587
Transport and freight, 1987
Ministers and directorships, 1091
Ministers, salary increases, 1093
Ocean and river service, 3508
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3017

Gould, Mr. O. R. — Con.
Public Works, average salary, 750
Quarantine, 2021
Raw materials, duty on, 3131
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 839
Steamship subsidies, 3506
Woodmen of the World, 1905
Woollen goods, 3137

Government Departments
Co-ordination of, 180-181. See also National Defence
Payment to each other for services rendered, 1724

Government, Federal, responsibility for unemployment, 1069-94. See also Address; Budget; Unemployment

Government, group system of. See Proportional Representation

Government-Owned Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Government Printing. See Printing; Publications

Governor General
Cars, 1688
Deputy of the Governor General, 3610
Secretary's office, 751
Speech on opening of Parliament; new appointment as Governor General; world-wide economic disturbances and industrial depression; unemployment; decline in prices of farm products; Customs tariff revision; co-ordination of government railway systems, 6; immigration, 6-7; re-establishment and medical treatment of soldiers; natural resources of western provinces; co-ordination of defence forces; limitation of armaments; Genoa conference; Postal conference; need for economy, 7
Address in reply. See that title
Warrants, 1990
Canadian Expeditionary Force, repatriation of dependents, 1711
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, contract for steel plates, 1677
Dominion lands and parks, 1681
Expenditure by, 1353
Genoa Conference, 1716
Penitentiaries, 1670
Unemployment relief, 1719
Welland canal construction, 1687
Yukon territory, 1681

Grading of Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Graham, Hon. George P. (Minister of Militia and Defence and Minister of the Naval Service)
Air Board
Aeronautical research, 3499
Biggar, Colonel O. M., resignation, 1727
Estimates, 1722
Expenditure, details of, 1731
Air Board Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 2357, 2820
Air Force and civil aviation, 1722
Customs patrol, Vancouver, 1730
Forest patrol, British Columbia, 1730
Barkhouse, Captain, 1748
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Behring sea patrol, 1736
Business of the House
Debate on naval service estimates, 1742-5, 1900
Canadian institute for the blind, 3541
Canadian Northern, Sir Richard McBride, 202
Civil service salaries, 553
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1411-14
Fisheries protection service, 678, 1747
Ford Motor Company, 3277
Government departments, payment to each other for services rendered, 1724
Gwatkin, General, 422. See also under this title, National Defence
Hydrographic survey, 1746
Insurance Act Amdt., 3147
Insurance premiums, tax, 3257
Militia and Defence
Adjustment of war claims, 2974
Air force 1722
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Amalgamation, saving, 417-18
Ammunition, reserve of, 2086
Annual drill, 1151, 1179, 1578
Arsenals
Lindsay, 1979, 2085
Quebec, 1979, 2091
Cadet services, 1972, 1978
Classification, 416
Civil Service Commission, and, 423
Defence forces, 1135
Director of assigned pay, 586
Engineer services and works, 1980
Estimates, 1711, 2974, 3498
Expenditure and policy, 1339
Reductions proposed by Minister, 1578
MacBrien, General, reported utterances of, 1662
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Permanent force, 1136-52, 1982
Royal military college, 1985
Schools of instruction, 1985

Graham, Hon. Geo. P. — Con.
Militia and Defence — Con.
Temporary employees, 417
Topographic survey, 1985
Transport and freight, 1987
War claims, adjustment, 2098
Ministers and directorships, 1109
Money, purchasing power of, 1151-3
Municipal taxation, payment of by government, 1257
National Defence bill, 363, 417, 547
National Defence bill (No. 27) 644, 657, 668, 733, 746
Air Force, 678
Concurrence in Senate Amdts. 2806
Militia estimates, 421
Services, transfer to, 1747
Naval policy, 2043-72
Naval service
Estimates, 418, 420, 1735, 1843
Fisheries protection service, 678, 1747
Niobe, sale of, 2043-65
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 2043, 2058, 3365
Postponement of debate, 1972
Reduction of naval armaments, 1737
Ships to be taken out of commission, 1740
Trawlers, 1844
War claims, adjustment, 1752
War medals, 1754
Niagara River Bridge Company bill, 1486
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Parents, support of by children, 1308
Pelagic sealing treaty, 1844
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3358
Pensions
Northwest Rebellion, 3523
Widowed mothers', M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Radiotelegraph service, 1736, 1749
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., criticism of, 2778
Rideau canal, 2766
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 831
Salaries, 775
Royal Canadian navy. See under this title, Naval Service
Royal naval college, Esquimalt, 2048
Salaries Act Amdt. bill, 363, 746
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3358
Special Loans bill, 3358
Supply, discussion, method of, 1142
Survey and map work, co-ordination of, 1986
War claims, exchange on, 1752
War memorials, 2098, 2100

Graham Miss Nora, qu. 599

Graham, Mr., agent at Regina, 682

Grain and Grain Trade. See also Address; Agriculture; Budget; United Grain Growers; Wheat Board
Acme Grain Company, default of, 2834
Banks and, 2246. See also that title
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834
Canada Grain Act
Administration of, 2834
Constitutionality of, 2837
Decision of Manitoba Court of Appeal, 1132, 1841, 1932
Inquiry, 1770
Canadian National railways, grain leakages, 1401, 1930
Canadian Wheat Board, advance, 3541. See also Wheat Board
Car demurrage, 2981
Elevators
Private, 2981
Licenses to, 2838
System of, 114, 233
Terminal, 2980
Excess overages, qu. 609, qu. 1401, 2837
Fort William
Inspector, 2983
Port Arthur, and, overages, qu. 1210
Government, 233, qu. 3152
Grain Commission, and, 2980
Maintenance and equipment of, 2978
Quebec, 1466, 1471, 1474, 1483
United Grain Growers, 2983
Freight rates on grain, 146. See also Freight Rates
Grades, mixing of, 2839, 2981
Grain Board. See Wheat Board
Grain Growers and oleomargarine. See Oleomargarine
Grain Inquiry Commission, 49, qu. 705, 777, qu. 1181, 2839, 2842, 2982
Hyndman Commission, 2982
Secret session at Fort William, 2983
Terminal elevators, 2980
Grain leakages on Canadian National railways, 1401, 1930
Handling of. See under this title, Elevators; Transportation
Long hauls to market, 146-7
Manitoba Court of Appeal, decision. See under this title, Canada Grain Act
Mixing grades, 2839, 2981
In transit, 2838
Montreal harbour, shipment of grain through, 1489
Oats, price of, 225

Grain and Grain Trade — Con.
Overages, qu. 609, qu. 1401, 2837, 2838, 2980
Per capita production, 2159
Price fixed in Liverpool, 1203-08
Production and shipment, 1203
Quebec, shipment of grain through, 1466, 1471, 1472
Russia, competition of, 2157
St. Lawrence river waterway, 269, 1183, 1317, 1325. See also that title
Sample market, 2838
Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., 2989
Screenings, recleaned, 2490
Selling without growers' permission, 2989
Shipment. See under this title, Montreal; Quebec; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Shrinkage and leakage in transit, 232. See also under this title, Elevators
Speculation in, 158. See also Wheat Board Bill
Transcontinental railway, 2194
Transportation, 235, 300. See also Freight Rates; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Welland Canal
Water by, 69-70. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
United Grain Growers, terminal elevator, 2983
Wheat
Marketing, 2915, 2951, 2969. See also Wheat Board
Production and cost, 2333

Grain Growers Grain Company, alleged contribution to political organization, 2488

Grand Anse, C.B., mail service, qu. 938

Grand Manan, wharves and breakwaters, 1993

Grand River bridge, qu. 1287

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Grand Trunk Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Grape Juice, tax on, 2117, 2594, 2617

Grasshopper Plague, qu. 472, 2726, 3520

Gravel, Mr., Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Great Britain
British Preference. See that title
Free trade and, 2526. See also speeches on Budget

Great Britain — Con.
Imports from, qu. 966. See also Imports and Exports; Trade
Income tax reductions, 2860
Investment in Canadian industries, 2368
Merchant Marine, 2379
Protection of industries, 2408-9
Tariff legislation, 2267
Trade with. See British Preference; Trade

Great Lakes, life-saving service, qu. 367

Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Great Lakes Tidewater Association, 1319. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Great War Veterans' Association. See also Canadian Patriotic Fund Bill; Returned Soldiers
Cash grants to soldiers, policy on, 394. See also Soldiers Bonus
Charges against Pensions Board, 3041. See also Pensions
Housing credits, 3524
Immigration, 2155
Oleomargarine, 1798
Oriental immigration, 1514

Greece
Commission on credit to, 303
Loan, qu. 1400

Grey, Lord, letter to Governor General on military protection, 1136

Griffenhagen and Associates, 1490. See also Civil Service, Classification
Montreal post office, 1633
Post office inspectors, 1507

Grimmer, Mr. R. W. (Charlotte)
Charlotte County, Mr. Todd's election promises, 1997
Grand Manan, Campobello and Deer islands, wharves and breakwaters, 1993-7
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1993
Patrol boat Phalarope, qu. 1503
St. George public building, 1240
Sardines, price for export, qu. 1182

Grosse Isle quarantine station, 2021

Guernsey Island of, credit system, 2505

Gulf of St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Company, qu. 1400

Gutelius, Mr. F. P., 192

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh (South Wellington)
Air Board
Biggar, Col. O. M., resignation of, 1726
Expenditure, 1725
Details of, 1730
Air Service, forest patrol, 1047
Ammunition, shipment from Great Britain, 1154-68-73
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2735
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3025
British Ministry of Shipping, claim, 1752
Budget, 2874. Amended resolutions, 2874; depreciated currency, valuation of, 2875; trade with Germany; pocket knives; effect of Minister's proposal, 2876; marking of goods, effect of repeal; German aluminum goods; German agents seeking orders in Canada; Canadian valuation of German goods; favourable position of German manufacturers; anti-dumping clause; fruit industry, 2879; marking of goods; government by Order in Council, 2880
Burstall, Sir Henry, 742-3
Business of the House
Point of order, bill ref. to Com., 1395
Saturday sittings, 2032
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2997
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian National Railways, enlisted men, allowance, 3519
Census, completion of, 1364
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Carriage of calves, 2831
Scrip frauds, 1396
(Mr. Woodsworth) 1395
Criminal Code, revision, 1717
Criminal Code and Statutes, reprinting of, 1717
Demobilization, 1155
Expenditure for, 1163
Vote, 1171
Departmental solicitors, 683
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Women of foreign birth, enfranchisement, 476
Dominion lands and surveys, 1035, 1038
Topographic survey, 1043, 1986
Dominion observatory building, 1266
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women M. (Mr. Euler) 476
Escheats Act. Amdt. bill, 2829, 3026
Finance, loans, 771
Govt. departments, payments to each other, 1726

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh — Con.
Govt. publications, demand, 1374
Gwatkin, Major-General, 742
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1997
Amdt. to reduce item by $20,000, 1998
Nova Scotia, expenditure, 1269
Ontario, Goderich, 2000
Prince Edward Island, 1988
Quebec, 1999
Hospital ship, claim for loss of, 2976
Immigration Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393
Immigration of farm workers, 3052
Indian Affairs, officials, 683
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 2830
Labour dept., salary increases, 564
Linen yarn bounty, 1362
Military expenditures, 1138
Militia and Defence
Ammunition,
Reserve of, 2086
Shipment from Great Britain, 1154-73
Annual drill, 1154, 1155
Artillery ammunition from Great Britain, 1154-73
Liberal attitude in 1920, 1921, and 1922, 1154
Arsenals, Lindsay, 2085
Cadet services, 1972, 1977
Expenditure and policy, 1594
Permanent force, 1983
Reduction of staff, 586
Topograpric survey, 1043, 1986
War claims, adjustment of, 2976
Ministers and directorships, 1094
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 1488
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1256
Munitions, shipment from Great Britain, 1154-73
National Defence, Department of, bill, 659, 738, 1747
Bill should be preceded by resolution, 547
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval policy, 2051
Naval service
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Gift of ships to Canada, 2050
Royal Canadian navy, 1846, 1972
Royal naval college, 2049
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2020
Parliament buildings, 2014
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 787
Pilotage, administration of, 1499
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim of, 3503
Progressive party, attitude towards redistribution, 1364

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh—Con.
Public buildings
Expenditure, 1261
Improvements, repairs, etc., 1238
Ontario, 1251, 1259
Public Service Retirement Act, 3025
Public Works estimates, 964, 747
Contingency vote, 748
Reductions, 698
Quebec harbour advances, 1473
Redistribution and the census, 1364
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Dept.
Amalgamation or abolition of, 1340
Statutes
Printing of, 1972
Revision of, 1717
Steamship services, 2020, 3505
Survey and map work, proposed co-ordination, 1033, 1986
Toronto harbour improvement, 1474
War claims, adjustment
Naval service, 1752
Vickers, 2976
War medals, 2977
War memorials, Vimy, 2100
Warlike stores, sale of, 1171
Wheat Board, 2968
Wrangel island, 1751
Yukon territory, 1034
Radiotelegraph service, 1750

Gwatkin, Major-General, 421, 422, 742, qu. 1211. See also National Defence bill

Halbert, Mr. Robert H. (North Ontario)
Campbell, Mr. Alex., qu. 606
Cattle embargo, Mr. Doherty, 989
Customs tariff, ploughs, 3231
Doherty, Right Hon. C. J., qu. 704
Hatters' plush, duty on, 3141
Labour dept., employees, 566
Lake of the Woods bill, 2309
Lindsay arsenal, 1979
Military expenditure and policy, 1179
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1179
Expenditure and policy, 1597, 1617, 1984
Permanent force, 1984
Plough parts, duty on, 3123, 3231
Riordon Company, taxes, qu. 607, qu. 927
Root Vegetables bill, potato grades, 3373-4

Half Breed Scrip, Frauds, 148-9. See also Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Halifax. See also Naval Service
Dennis building, qu. 3360
Fortifications, 1581
Ocean terminals, qu. 364
Ocean tonnage, 2008

Halifax — Con.
Patronage committee, 199
Port of. See British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Public buildings, expenditures, 1244
Quarantine station, repairs, 1238, 2021

Halkett, Mr. Andrew, 3051

Hamilton
Post office building, 1246-51, 1258
Queenston-Hamilton highway, qu. 471

Hammell, Mr. W. J. (Muskoka)
Parry Sound lighthouse inspector, qu. 827

Haney, Mr. M. J., contracts, 1375

Hanna, Mr. D. B., 192-3, qu. 471. See also Canadian National Railways, Directors

Hanna-Medicine Hat line, 1965

Hansard. See House of Commons, Debates

Hanson, Mr. Richard B. (York-Sunbury)
Alcohol for druggists, 3242
Business of the House, Saturday sittings, 2033
Canada Temperance Act, 2024
Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway Co., 1183, qu. 1504
Coal
Anthracite, importations, qu. 2356
Public buildings, for, 1763
Defence, deputy ministers, 419
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Edmundston public building, 1239, 1251
Election promises in Charlotte County, N.B., 1994
Experimental farms, 795
External Affairs, contingencies, 3509
Graham, Miss Nora, qu. 699
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1765
Expenditure, 1269
High Commissioner, 414
Indians, Devon band, removal, 1215
Insurance premiums, tax, 3256
International operation of railways, 192
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Justice department, contingencies, 1669
Labour investigators, 462
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 647
Matches, tax on, 3262
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia and defence
Military property at Fredericton, 1980
Transport and freight, M. to reduce item by $50,000, 1987

Hanson, Mr. Richard B. — Con.
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1256
Naturalization Act, 2024
Nickel coin blanks, qu. 3152
Nova Scotia
Coal strike, 461
Supreme court vacancy, 3436
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3451
Pension Board, appeals, 391
Post Office Dept.
Printing and stationery, 691
Reorganization, 2800
Rural delivery, 2800
Provincial wharves, New Brunswick, 1991
Public buildings, Maritime provinces, 1243
Public Works estimates, 693
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Reid Newfoundland railway, 2027
Root Vegetable bill, 3369
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 735
St. John and Quebec railway, 1295
Acquisition by Canadian National railways, qu. 1774
St. John terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 847
St. Lawrence river waterway, survey, 2768
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept.
Salary increases, 391
Vocational loans, 1346
Soldiers' homes, establishment of, 1348
Sorel shipyard, qu. 605
Statistics, Dominion Bureau of, 1363
Steamship services, 2029, 3506
War trophies, director, 702
Wharves in tidal waters, qu. 2209
White slave traffic, suppression of, 3497

Harbour Masters. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.

Harbours. See St. Lawrence River Waterway. For individual Harbours, see their titles
Advances to. See Montreal, Quebec and Harbour Commission bills

Harbours and Rivers
Alberta, 2004, 3547
British Columbia, 2005, 3547
Esquimalt, 3541
Estimates, 1269, 1765, 1988, 3541
Expenditures on, 1465
Lake Huron, harbour of refuge, 2002
Little Current, 2002
Manitoba, 2003, 3545

Harbours and Rivers — Con.
Montreal Harbour Commission, employees, 1289. See also Montreal Harbour Commission bill
New Brunswick, 1991
Amdt. (Mr. Guthrie) to reduce item by $20,000, 1998
Provincial wharves, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1765, 3545
Expenditure, 1921-22, 1269
Ontario, 1999
Port Arthur and Fort William, 3541
Prince Edward Island, 1270, 1988
Quebec, 1998, 3545
Quebec Harbour Commission, 1283. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
St. John
Expenditure, qu. 1401
Improvement, 2013
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2004, 3547
Shuswap lake, wharf, 3547
Toronto, 3541

Harding, President, 69
St. Lawrence River Waterway, 133, 1184

Hardy, Hon. Senator, A. C., 2695

Harris, Mr. Joseph H. (East York)
Address in reply, 307. Liberals and Progressives, 307; immigration; railway policy; 308; manufacturers and raw material, 309
Aliens, taxation of transient, 2155
Customs department, secretaries, 764
Foreigners, 2155
Hog cholera, garbage feeding, 1007-9, 1028
Immigration
Policy, 2154
Undesirable, 2154
Insurance premiums, tax, 3258
Lord Kitchener's death, foreigners and, 2155
Militia and defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2085
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3464
Pensions Com., final report, 3350
Public buildings, Ontario, repairs, 1250

Harvest Excursions, 337

Hatfield, Mr. Paul L. (Yarmouth and Clare)
Canned goods, marking, 3050
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Rural postmasters, 3080

Hatters' Bands, Plush, and bindings, 2855, 3139, 3141

Hawaian Islands, Japanese immigration, 1515

Health. See also Immigration; Indians; Tuberculosis
Department
Estimates, 2017
Salaries, etc., 775
Diseases, infectious of prisoners. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill
Honey, 2017
Housing, and, 121. See also Housing
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021. See also Immigration
Narcotic drugs, 2017. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. bill
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Quarantine, 2021
Unemployment, 86-87
Venereal diseases, qu. 935, 2022

Health of Animals. See Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases

Hearst Publications, 3111

Herring, Dry-salting. See Fisheries Act Amdt. bill

Hides, price of, 2623, 3138

High Commissioner in London, 58
British Columbia house, purchase of, 3537
Cattle embargo, and. See also that title
Alleged statement on, 1020, 1463
Income and taxation, 139
Salaries, etc., 413

High Cost of Living. See Cost of Living

High River, Alta.
Aerial Forest patrol, 1050, qu. 1066, 1723

Highways, 63, 75, 122
Banff-Windermere, 1051, 1681
Biggs, Hon. F. C., 63
Dundas Street, Halton county, qu. 1065
Edith Cavell, 1051
Grand Circle tour, 1683
Hamilton-Queenston, qu. 471
Indian reserves, 1216
Isle Perrot bridge, qu. 1377
Ontario, qu. 372
Ottawa-Kingston, qu. 1904, 2794
Ottawa-Pembroke, qu. 1661, 2794
Ottawa-Prescott, treeplanting, qu. 2039
Road materials, investigation, 1234
Road projects, submitted, qu. 2040
St. Thomas-Niagara Falls, qu. 936
Soulanges canal road, 2768
Tourist traffic and, 1682
Transcontinental, 319, 2636

Highways — Con.
Transportation, 1939
Unemployment relief, 1082
Windermere road, 1051, 1681

Hikers. See Macdonald's Army; Riley's Army

Historic Sites, 119. See also Battlefields Monuments, qu. 469

Hocken, Mr. H. C. (West Toronto)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 785
American magazines, importation of, 3108-09, 3112
Budget, 2675. Expected modifications in budget proposals, 2675; taxes on cheques, confectionery and cigars; sales tax and cost of living; dissatisfaction of Agrarian party with budget; tariff record of Liberal party; pledges and promises broken, 2676; reduction in agricultural implement duties; protection and the maintenance of industries; record of Conservative party; inconsistencies of Liberals; Mr. Blake's Malvern speech; his letter to West Durham electors, 2677; unrestricted reciprocity; commercial union; Mr. Fielding's disavowal of tariff items of Liberal platform; concealment of views on public questions; reciprocity; government created by big interests, 2678; big business behind Sir Lomer Gouin, 2679; Proposed coalition of Agrarians and Liberals; national railways; responsibility for railway building, 2680; effort to form Liberal-Progressive government; progressives and reactionary factions in government; Minister of Marine and Fisheries; conflicting opinions in Liberal ranks; national railways; speech of Minister of Justice; full value for support of big interests; protection; diversified industries, 2682; relief from burdens not to be had through tariff reduction; feeling between East and West; rural depopulation of Ontario; agricultural conditions; manufacturers in unsatisfactory position, 2683; amenities of rural life, 2684
Canada's credit, 1919
Canadian National railways, deficits, 1919
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2811
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1298
Empire-Ascension Days, adjournment, 1905
Finance, deputy minister's salary, 752

Hocken, Mr. H. C. — Con.
Fishing schooner race, 3513
Income taxes, qu. 705
Labour dept.
Mr. Harrison, 575-6
Promotions, 576
McDonald, Mr. John N., qu. 3361
Military expenditure, 1137
Military hospitals, expenditure, 1261
Public buildings
Expenditure, 1261
Flags, 1265
Water, 1266
Public works estimates, 747, 748, 1261
Reciprocity, Mr. Putnam, 2286
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 833
St. Lawrence river waterway
M. (Mr. Church) 1314
Welland canal, and, 2754
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 388, 398
Toronto Suburban railway, qu. 2456
Welland ship canal, 2754

Hodgins, Mr. A. L. (East Middlesex)
Animal contagious diseases, 2103
Telegraph and telephone lines, 2013
Water powers, surveys, 1051

Hoey, Mr. R. A. (Springfield)
Budget, 2331. Financial obligations; precarious position of agriculture; Canadian workman, purchasing power; unemployment, 2331; Western Canada; statements prepared by Manitoba Agricultural College staff; wheat production and cost, 2332; farmers' profits compared with those of other businesses, 2333; probable permanency of conditions; rural discontent; the solution, 2334; drastic tariff reductions; lower freight rates, wider markets; tendency to lean on government, 2335; protection and the agricultural industry; Fordney tariff; opportunity for reductions in Canadian tariff; Genoa Conference; Mr. Lloyd George and spirit of nationalism; source of revenue; development of basic industries, 2337; the amendment, 2338; broken promises; tariff commission; redistribution; party system of government, 2339
Census, completion of, 1365
Cost of living, 1175, 2331
Gordon, Sir Charles, 584
Immigration statistics, 756-7
Labour dept., salaries, 551

Hoey, Mr. R. A. — Con.
Military expenditure and policy, 1175
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1175
Quebec arsenal, 2097
Ministers and directorships, 1111
Rail and car repair contracts, 1705
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Winnipeg river, bridge, 2011

Hogs
Cholera. See also Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases bill; Health of Animals
Compensation, 1028
Extermination of, 2594
Grading, 2594

Holiday on Election Day. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill

Holland, immigration from, 2144

Holland, Lee, order for deportation of, 1283

Holland, Major, death of, 2821

Holstein Cattle trade with United States in, 2695

Holt, Sir Henry, 1128

Home Brewing. See Inland Revenue

Home . Markets. See Budget; Markets; speeches on Address

Homesteads. See Dominion Lands; Immigration; Soldiers' Land Settlement
Re-entry, 1041

Honey, 2017

Honorary Advisory Council of Industrial and Scientific Research. See Industrial and Scientific Research

Horse Power. See Electric Power; Water Power

Horse Racing, Federal control of, 2596

Horses. See Live Stock

Hose, Captain. See Naval Service

Hosmer, Mr. Charles R., 1128

Hospital Ships
Claim by British Ministry of Shipping for loss, 2975
Exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act

House of Commons. See also Deputy Speaker; Speaker
Acoustics, 1053, 1751, 3544, 3612. See also under this title, Audibility of Debates
Adjournments
Easter, 546, 820, 823
Empire day and Ascension day, 1760, 1769, 1905
To discuss matter of urgent public importance
M. (Mr. Irvine) Nova Scotia miners, 497; withdrawn, 545
Audibility of debates, 385, 411, 658, 708, 1053, 1578, 1721, 1751, 1755, 1996, 2831, 3544, 3613
Bills, money, to be preceded by res, 547
Business of the House
Budget debate, probable date of conclusion, 2639
Daylight saving, 1282
Further legislation, 2996, 3041, 3103, 3151, 3364-5
Government orders, Mondays and Wednesdays, 1460, 1719
Private members', 1719
Public accounts, closing of, 1210
By-elections. See under this title Vacancies
Chamber, acoustics. See under this title, Acoustics; Audibility of Debates
Committees, Select Standing, 8, 323. For proceedings and reports, See titles of the several Committees
Changes in, 497, 545, 596, 871, 1398
Powers of, 326
Criminal Code, reprinting of, 1717
Debates
Audibility of. See under this title Acoustics; Audibility of Debates Official Report of Committee
Appointed, 325
First report, 1132, 1258
Second report, 3359
Incorporation of documents not read, 1539, 3526
Tabulated statements in answer to questions, 1132, 1660
Decorum
Conversation, 1755, 2640
Courteous bearing to member speaking, 2090
Deputy Speaker, election of, 363. See also that title
Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 5
Divisions
Budget
Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Crerar), ruling of Mr. Speaker on, 2523

House of Commons — Con.
Divisions — Con.
Budget — Con.
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton), neg. 2912
Correction of division list, 2971; Corrected list, 2972
M. (Mr. Fielding) for Com. of Ways and Means, agreed to, 2913
Crowsnest Pass Agreement
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) and amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) 1457-8
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, amdt. (Mr. Neill) neg. 1163
Freight Rates, amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) to M. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) for adoption of third report of Special Com. on Transportation Costs, 3586
Lake of the Woods Regulation bill, 3435
Ministers and Directorships, M. (Mr. McMaster) neg. 1131
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and Importation, discontinuance of, M. (Mr. Neill) neg. 1840
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) and amdt. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil) 1577
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) neg. 843
Soldiers' Bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) neg. 450
Estimates, 2026. See also that title
Discussion of particular item on M. to go into Com. of Supply, 1337
Expenditure, qu. 2583
Expense of sittings and cost per hour, 1476, 2170, 2635
Hansard. See under this title, Debates, Official Report of House of Commons and Senate Act, 1088. See also Ministers and Directorships
Indemnity
Payment of, 361
Proposed reduction, 2513, 2690, 2895, 3613
Internal Economy Commission, 8
Members
Attendance of, 2513
Deceased
Baker, the late Colonel G. H., memorial to, 1929
McGibbon, Mr. Peter (Argenteuil) 39
New
Election and introduction of Bouchard, Mr. Georges (Joseph) 1929
King, Hon. J. H., 496
Ouimet, Joseph Rodolphe, 323
Private, business of, 1719

House of Commons — Con.
Members — Con.
Speeches, length of, 2450, 2635
Ministers and directorships. See that title
Motions
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2473, 2507
Speaker's ruling, 2519
Non-debatable
That Com. rise, 1181
Oleomargarine (Mr. Neill) time fixed for discussion, 1719
Redistribution, M. (Mr. Shaw) opportunity for discussion, 1719
Supply in, 1579
Orders for returns. See under this title, Returns
Orders of the Day
Right of member to raise qu. of privilege, 2638
Pairs. See under this title, Divisions
Petitions, Birnie, Mr. Alex. and others, 1929
Privilege
Baxter, Hon. Mr. — Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3492
Caldwell, Mr. — Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3602
Copp, Hon. Mr. — Correction of report respecting War claims, 1721
Crerar, Hon. Mr. — Budget debate, agricultural figures quoted in, 2637
Deslauriers, Mr. — Correction of speech, 3365-6
Fielding, Hon. Mr. — Clerk Assistant, 687
Gauvreau, Mr. — Statement of Miss Macphail, 3221
Hoey, Mr.—Denial of newspaper reports. 2458
Johnston, Mr. (Last Mountain) — Charge that Progressives are delaying budget debate, 2692
Kay, Mr. — Wheat Board, 872
Maclean, Mr. (York) — Crowsnest pass agreement, 3608
Right of member to raise qu. on orders of the day, 2638
Questions
Lengthy answers to, 1660
Tabulated statements in official report of debates, 1132
Returns
Inquiry for, 1283, 1988, 2042
Questions requiring tabulated answers, 1132
Rules, suspension of Rule 11, 1502
Senate, and, expenditure, qu. 2583
Sergeant-at-Arms
Parliamentary messengers, qu. 1376, 1335

House of Commons — Con.
Sittings
Eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Saturday, 1905, 2032, 2458
Suspended, 3611-14
Wednesday at 3 p.m., 49
Wednesday evenings, 1905, 2033, 2170
Speaker. See that title
Speeches, length, 2450, 2635
Staff
Chief accountant, salary, qu. 2583, qu. 2803
Chief of stationery division, 3608
Law branch, 2304
Organization, 3221
Amended, 1335
Reading room, assistant curators, 1335
Stenographers and messengers, pay, qu. 1376
Statutes, reprinting of, 1717
Supply
Amendment to amendment, 1579
Discussion of particular item of estimates on M. to go into Supply, 1337
Motion, movers of, 1579
Motion for, latitude in discussion, 2238
Vacancies
Kamouraska, 1459

House of Commons and Senate Act Amdt. bill. See Ministers and Directorships; Salaries Act Amdt.

Housing, 121, 219, 774, 3524. See also Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment
Building costs, 2417
Returned soldiers, for, 271, 3304, 3314, 3321-22, 3329, 3332. See also that title
Shortage of, 1072
Unemployment, and, 3524

Howe, Hon. Joseph, 1387

Hubbs, Mr. John (Prince Edward)
Alcohol tax, retail druggists, 1213

Hudson, Mr. A. B. (South Winnipeg)
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1444
Immigration-Criminal Code bills, 3283
Lake of the Woods repeal bill, 3199, 3210

Hudson's Bay Company
Northwest country and, 148
Supplies to northern Indians, 1712

Hudson Bay Railway, 2602
Completion of, 2779

Hudson Bay Railway — Con.
Hudson Bay
Navigability and fishery resources of, 2781, 2779-99
Port Nelson, 1970
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1208, 1325
Senate committee, report, 2781

Hueston, Captain, inquiry into death of, qu. 2993, 3314

Hughes, Mr. J. J. (King's P.E.I.)
Address in reply, 224. Reciprocity and class legislation, 224; immigration and unemployment, 225; Prince Edward island markets and government inspection; income tax, administration of Act, 226; sales tax; daylight saving; eight-hour day and farmers, 227; labour unions; railways and the maritime provinces, 228
Administration, economy in, 3077-8
Budget, 2225. Financial situation, debt, expenditure, economy; borrowings, 2225; the amendment, 2226; income tax, comparison with systems in other countries, 2227; sales tax; extravagant war expenditures, 2228; Wartime Elections Act, 2229
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1925, 1956
Canned goods, inspection of, 3049
Civil Service Commission, 3076
Civil Service, economy, 2060
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 955
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward island, 1989
Income tax, comparison with systems in other countries, 2227
Military expenditures and policy, 1143
Militia, annual drill, 1144
Montague, P.E.I., post office building, 1264
Railway policy, 1956

Humane Society, Criminal Code Amdt., 2831

Humphrey, Mr. L. W. (West Kootenay)
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1526
Pension Board, charges against, 2994
Postal revenue, qu. 2040
Remuneration of railway employees — Mr. McCrea, 2316

Hungary, Treaty with, 3359, 3490, 3547. For Bill, See Peace Treaties

Hutterites. See Immigration

Hydro Electric, 632, 1326, 1937, 2327, 2747. See also Electrification; Maclean, Mr. (York); St. Lawrence River Waterway; Water Powers
Commission, 1937
Difference with Ontario Government, 1080
Power development in Ontario, 63, 71, 131, 1950
St. Lawrence river waterway, 136, 1188-9. See also that title

Hydrographic Survey, 1736, 1746. See also Naval Service

Hyndman Commission. See Grain Inquiry Commission

Ice-breakers
Claim of Canadian Towing & Wrecking Co., 1677
Repurchase of, 1490
Thunder Bay, at, 1677
Vickers company contract, 320

Iceland, immigration from, 2144

Immigration, 6-7, 56, 79, 80, 82, 88, 145, 164, 182, 236, 282, 297, 311, 336, 348, 2243, 2254. See also Address; Budget; Census; Labour; Oriental Aliens; Unemployment
Advantages, 2516
Agents,
Bonus to, 3062
Promises by, 3058, 3063
Agricultural labourers, 297, 2143, 2161, 2193, 2514, 3053-5
Agriculture, condition and prospects, 2147
Alien enemies, 2146
Asiatic. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Attitude towards the immigrant, 2151, 2157, 2160
British, 2144, 2150, 2515
Artisans, 2258, 2516
Ex-service men, qu. 3152
Buildings, repairs, etc., 1757
Bukowinians, 2159
Canadian National railways, and, 1927
Canadians emigrating, qu. 1182. See also under this title, Emigration
Central European, 2154-8, 2166, 2477
Child, 2144, 2148, 2153, 2161, 2163, 3063
Chinese, 2026. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Commissioner at Canton, qu. 1901, qu. 2214

Immigration — Con.
Classes prohibited after May 9, 2514
Crime, and, 1392-4, 2517
Deportation. See Immigration-Criminal Code Bills (Mr. Woodsworth)
Aliens trafficking in drugs, 2019
Desirable, 3057
Domestic servants, 2143, 2514, 3053-4
Doukhobors, 167, 2160
Eastern Canada, 2165
Eastern Europe, 80
Emigration from Canada, 2260, 2372, 2516, 2865. See also Population
Canadians, qu. 1182
Exodus from Canada, 2478, 2516
Losses through, 2516
Record of, 2158
Europe, from, 308. See also under this title, Central European Follow up policy, 2160
Foreign-born and crime, 1392-4, 2517
Galicians, 2159
Great Britain, from, 2480
Growth of wealth under, 13
Highland family, alleged unjust treatment of, 2145
Holland, 2144
Holland, Lee, deportation of, 872, 1282
Household workers, 2143, 2514, 3053-4
Hutterites and Mennonites, qu. 723, 2160, 3060
Icelandic, 2144
Industrial centres, from, 236
Inspection, 2143
Investigation of conditions in Europe, 1711
Italian, 2171
Japanese. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Land, speculation in, 2152-9
Language qualification, 2515
Literature, Ontario Government, 2566
"Man with the sheepskin coat", 2151, 2153, 2518
Manitoba Liberal Convention, res. 2478
Maritime provinces, and, 2165
Meals for immigrants, qu. 2971
Medical inspection, 2021, 2143
Mennonites, qu. 723, 2160, 3060
Emigration to Mexico, qu. 732, 2160
Mentally unfit, 2145
Minister's statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2148, 2208, 3058
Montreal Board of Trade res. 2517
"Nomination system", 3056
Oriental, 319, 2143. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Asiatic, 173, qu. 732
British Columbia in, 167

Immigration — Con.
Oriental — Con.
Chinese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Japanese, restriction of, qu. 1289, qu. 1399
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Oriental Aliens, 319. See that title
Poland, 2145
Policy
Criticisms, 2579
Minister's statement, 17, 2143, 2476, 2481
Physically fit, 3055-6
Printers, 3055
Problems of, 350
Qualifications, 2479
Quebec, facilities at, 1465
Racial groups, 236
Assimilation, of, 2517
Rate of, 269
Reception of the immigrant, 2151, 2157, 2160
Regulations, 249-250, 2148, 2215, 2513-14
Res. of Manitoba Liberal Convention, 2478
Restricted, 167, 2513-14, 3056
St. John immigration buildings, 2027
Scandinavian, 2144
Shandro's plan, 2153
Sifton, Sir Clifford, and, 268
Undesirable, 1389, 2154
Ukrainians, 3061
Unemployment, and, 151, 182, 225, 1071. See also that title
Union of Canadian municipalities resolution, 236, 2155
United States, from, 658, 2147, 2150, 2162, 2477. See also that title
Work, lack of, 251. See also under this title, Unemployment

Immigration Act
Disqualification of British-born under, 1389-91

Immigration Act Amdt. bills
1. Trial by jury, deportation, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1r., 364; 2r., 493, 864
Ref. to Special Com., 1388-94, 1502
Additions to Special Com., 1719
Special Com. reports, 1988, 2519, 3104, 3156.. See also Criminal Code bill (Mr. Woodsworth)
Final report, 3280
M. (Mr. Woodsworth) to refer back, 3282-83
Amdt. neg. 3286
M. (Mr. Archambault) to concur
M. agreed to, 3286
(Subjects and sections discussed)

Immigration Act Amdt. bills — Con.
Trial by jury — Con.
Arrest without warrant, 1390
Assumption of powers of government, 1391
British subject, naturalization of, 1391
Decision of immigration authorities, 1389
Deportation of British subject without trial, 1390
Domicile, 1389
Enemy aliens, 1389
Foreigners, 1392
Organized Government, disbelief in, 1389
Overt acts and thoughts, 1390
Prohibited or undesirable classes, 1389
Repeal of provisions of 1919 Act, 1392
Retroactive legislation, 1391
Trial by jury, 1388
2. Intending Immigrants to make written application. (Mr. Neil) 1r., 2207

Immigration and Colonization Department
Civil government estimates, 3499
Contingencies, 3051
Deputy Minister, qu. 2970
Estimates, 1711, 2026 2143, 3499
Representative at Canton, China, qu. 1901, qu. 2214
Salaries, etc., 754, 3502

Imperial Conference. See also Conferences; Prime Minister Conference
Naval defence, 1864

Imperial Convention of Teachers, grant, 1673

Imperial Council, qu. 2803

Imperial Defence. See National Defence bills

Imperial Forces, pensions. See Pensions

Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237

Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, 2517

Implements. See Agricultural Implements

Imported Goods, marking of. See Budget; Customs; Imports

Imports and Exports. See also Budget; Customs; Germany; Trade
Agricultural figures, 209, 2618-19
Automobiles and parts, qu. 1633. See also that title
British goods, qu. 966
Via United States, qu. 375
By countries, 2109
Coal for public buildings, 1759
Duties, 2668. See also Customs

Imports and Exports — Con.
Exports
Decrease, 2579
Fiscal years, 1876-77 and 1921-22, qu. 1376
Restriction of exports, 2883
United States, to, 209. See also United States
1911-1922, qu. 1661
Germany, from, 2421, 2644. See Germany
Marking, 2113, 3476-7. See also Customs
Meat, of, qu. 610
Quantity, and, value of, 2182
Revenue from, qu. 827
Statement for last three years, 2109
Structural steel, qu, 1931
Valuation, 2113, 3413
For duty, amended regulation, 2854

Income Tax. 2174, 2220, 2691, 2693. See also Address; Budget; Taxation; Ways and Means
Administration of, 226, 2024
Aliens, non-residents, 1301
Amount collected, qu. 366
Average, by classes, 2298
Banks, payments by, 1400
Branch, appointments to, 1663
By provinces, qu. 705, qu. 1340
Civil Service retirement fund, qu. 937
Classification of taxpayers, 1063
Collections, 60
In 1919-20-21, qu. 1063
Manufacturers, from, 60
Commercial travellers, 2174, 3484. See also Income War Tax Act Amdt.
Comparison with systems of other countries, 2227
Exemptions, 2275
Farmers, and, 352, 2714
Great Britain, reductions in, 2860
Inequalities, 2672
Inquiry for legislation, 3103
Montreal office employees, qu. 607, 1288
Payments by grades, qu. 3362
Revenue and classification of taxpayers, 1063, qu. 1399
By provinces, qu. 705, qu. 1340
Winnipeg, qu. 1340
Riordon Paper Company, qu. 927
St. John, N.B., office, qu. 826
Systems in other countries, 2227
Widows and widowers, 2174

Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
Res. 3478; 1r., 3359-3360; 2r., com., 3484; 3r., 3486
Sections and subjects discussed:
Banks not entitled to deductions, 3485

Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill — Con.
Sections and Subjects discussed — Con.
Exemptions, 3359
Children, 3484
Forms, 3486
Non-resident aliens
M. (Mr. German) 1301, agreed to, 1303
Taxation of American citizens, 3485
Travelling expenses of trainmen and commercial travellers, 3485

Indecent Assault. See Criminal Code

Indebtedness. See Budget; Finance; Loans; Public Debt

Indemnity of Members. See House of Commons

Index, Unrevised Edition. See House of Commons, Debates

Indian Act Amdt. bill (Enfranchisement of Indians; Ownership of land)
1r., 2991; 2r., com., 3191; 3r., 3194

Indian Affairs, Department of
Estimates, 1214, 1712, 3536
Salaries, etc., 681

Indians
Agents. See also under this title, Reserves
Oka, 1217
Sturgeon Falls, qu. 1285
Agitation and unrest, 1223
British Columbia, 1713
Lands, 330
Legal expenses, 3536
Bryce, Dr. Peter H., pamphlet, 1220, 1224
Complaints, 1223
Destitute, relief for, 1712-14
Edmonton school, proposed, 1227-9, 3536
Education, 1227, 1715, 3536
Edmonton school, 1227-9, 3536
Elkhorn school, 3537
Morley school, 1218, 3536
Red Deer school, 1229
Round Lake school, 3537
Stony reserve, qu. 965, 1218, 1227, 3536
Enfranchisement. See Indian Act Amdt.
Expenditure, 1216, 1225
Field and garden seeds, 1712
Food allowance, 1220
General expenses, 1226, 1712
Greater production campaign, 1216-20, 1224, 1288
Half-breed scrip frauds, 148-9. See also Criminal Code
Health, 1220, 1230
Hospitals and medical attention, 1218-24, 1713

Indians — Con.
Janse brothers, land in Ermineskins reserve, 1713
Lafferty, Dr. J. D., 1225
Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and northwest, 1218
New Brunswick, 1215
Nova Scotia, 1214
Number in Canada, 685
Ontario and Quebec, 1216
Potlach Institution, qu. 1377, 3191
Indians serving gaol sentences for, 1578, 1721
Reserves
Blackfoot, 1224
Greater production, 1288
Pasture land, qu. 2215
Blood, 1219
Land leased, qu. 2969
Devon band, proposed removal, 1215
Ermineskins, 1712
Keeseekoose-Saskatchewan, qu. 608
Oak lake and Pipestone, 1223
Oka, Indian agent, 1217
St. Peters, qu. 472
Saskatchewan, qu. 608
Six Nation, 1220-1
Stony, 1218
Education, qu. 965, 1227, 3536
Sydney
Medical attendance, qu. 2216
Proposed transfer, 1215
Tobique, illegal cutting of timber, 1233
Settlers. See Indian Act Amdt. bill
Smallpox and other diseases, 1714. See also under this title, Health
Treaty No. 11, 1219, 1227
Tuberculosis, 1714
Yukon, 1226

Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372

Industrial Conference. See National Industrial Conference

Industrial Depression, 6. 10, 52, 85, 105, 210, 212, 218, 219, 223, 235. See also Address; Budget; Trade

Industrial Disputes. See Labour
Investigation Act, 1054, 1058. See also Nova Scotia Miners

Industrial Re-establishment. See Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment

Industrial Warfare. See Nova Scotia Miners

Industries. See also Address; Budget; Trade
Basic and secondary, 2384
Boot and shoes, cost of labour, 2350

Industries — Con.
Canadian, encouragement, 2658. See also Budget
Exhibitions of industrial products in France, 2031
Financial credit, M. (Mr. Irvine) 1289, 1396
Home, 2149, 2229. See also Budget
Key, 2379
Infant, encouragement, 2434
Manufacturing, 2377
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Protection and maintenance of, 144, 2677, 2409-11
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1318
Subsidizing, 2402
United States, branches in Canada, 2389, 2546
Woollen, cost of labour, 2350

"Industry and Humanity", reference to, 253, 534

Infant Mortality, 1380, 2634

Infectious Diseases. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill

Inglis Boiler Works, qu. 732

Inheritance Tax. See this title under Taxation

Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill (Excise duties changed). Res. 3239; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
Sections and subjects discussed:
Alcohol for druggists, 3241
Beet sugar, 3246
Amdt. (Mr. Fansher) negatived, 3252
Cigars and cigarettes, 3239
Home brewing, 3141, 3142, 3252
Molasses, 3242
Raw leaf tobacco, 3241
Sugar, 3242

Inquiry for Returns. See House of Commons, Returns

Insect Pests. See Agriculture; Destructive Insect and Pest Act; Grasshoppers

Inside Service. See Civil Service

Inspection and Sale of Root Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Insular Dominions. See Limitation of Armaments

Insurance
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu. 605
Canadian National railway, qu. 471, qu. 610

Insurance — Con.
Claims of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance
Fire prevention, 794
Foreign companies, tax, 2462
Fraternal benefit societies, 3143
Mutual companies, 3477. See also Special War Revenue
Premiums, tax on, 2117
Returned Soldiers, 3306, 3313. See Pensions; Returned Soldiers Insurance bill
Beneficiaries, 3328
Returns. See Special War Revenue bill
Soldiers, etc., 791
The People's Insurance Act, Great Britain, 1304
Unemployment, 1069-84
Sickness, and old age, qu. 1375
Woodmen of the World, 1905

Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; com., 3143; 3r., 3148; Senate admts. 3607

Inter-Allied Permanent Committee on Disabled Soldiers, 3403

Intercolonial Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Interest, 1921. See also Banks; Finance; Loans; Money

Interim Supply. See also Estimates; Supply
Committee, 378, 598
One-fourth vote suggested, 373
Position of Opposition last year, 378-385

Interim Supply Bill. See also Appropriation Acts
Res. 378; 598; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 599

Interior Department
Canadian National parks, 1681
Conservation Commission employees, transfer to, 452-3
Dominion lands and parks, 1681
Estimates, 452, 1033, 1270, 1680, 3517
Forbes, Mrs. E. S., compassionate allowance, 3517
Migratory Birds, 1684
Nelson, Mr. Frank, salary, 3517
Printing and stationery, 1680
Statistics, 1366
Topographical maps, qu. 1632
Yukon territory
Administration of, 1681
Expenditure, 1275

Interlocking Directorates, 2503. See also Ministers and Directorships

Internal Economy Commission. See House of Commons

International Boundary Commission, 1033

International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373

International Deep Sea Racing, M. (Mr. Duff) 1384, 3510

International Disarmament Conference. See Limitation of Armaments

International Harvester Company, 2382

International Institute of Agriculture, 969

International Joint Commission, 70. See also Electrification; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Report on St. Lawrence river waterway, 136, 1185, 1191, 1193, 1197, 1199, 1206, 1315, 1396, 1469
Welland canal, 1688

International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070

International Operation of Railways. See under Canadian National Railways, Grand Trunk lines in United States

International Opium Convention, qu. 1066

International Waters. See Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence

Intoxicating Liquor. See Canada Temperance Act; Liquor

Inverness Pier, 1766

Invoice Certificates. See Customs Act Amdt.

Ireland-Halifax cable, qu. 3360

Iron and Steel Industry. See also Steel
Structural steel importations, qu. 1931

Irrigation
Preservation of forests and, 1723
Southern Alberta, 761

Irvine, Mr. William (East Calgary)
Address in reply, 211; death of Prime Minister's brother; congratulations to Mr. Speaker, important matters contained in Speech from Throne, 211; industrial problems; social evolution, 212; complicated political system, 213; Labour party, 214; party system of government, 215; origin of parties, 216;

Irvine, Mr. William — Con.
Address — Con.
official Opposition; speeches of Prime Minister and leader of Opposition, 217; co-operation in government; production, consumption and unemployment, 218; unemployment insurance; industrial disturbance, 218; housing; gold standard and credit system; 219; protection and wages; home markets, 221; credit systems, 222; trade competition, 223; industrial problems — British labour party, 224
Agriculture and unemployment, 3058
British Empire Steel Corporation, 1082
Budget, 2495. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; taxation; public debt; chasing the financial blue-bird; colossal lie upon which budget is based; credit proposal to meet expenditures and debt; panic of national leaders, 2496; soundness of Canada's financial position; bank balances and real wealth; estimate of wealth and production, 2497; difference between production and consumption; average income of Canadian bread-winner; purchasing power, 2498; credit question at centre of national problems; Germany's industrial and financial position, wages, working hours; paper money, 2499; payment of indemnity in goods; proposed German loan; control of credit, 2500; the banking system; starting a new bank; issues of new money; issue of currency by Govt.; interest; private monopoly of social credit; indebtedness of Canada, 2501; inflation and deflation; under consumption; shut off interest taps of financiers; the Douglas system, 2502; definition of credit; ability to produce and deliver goods; a social asset; banking and interlocking directorates, 2503; regulation of prices, 2504; schemes proposed by Mr. Henry Ford and Mr. T. A. Edison, 2505; practical attempts to inaugurate credit system; island of Guernsey, 2505; St. Louis municipal currency; the gold basis; collapse of financial system; investigation of banking system, 2506; taxation of consumer; the amendment; attitude of Opposition; amendment to the amendment, 2507; attitude of Progressives; Farmers' platform; fiscal policy of Canadian Council of Agriculture; speech of leader of Progressive party; tariff proposals of Canadian Council of Agriculture, 2509; tax on unimproved land values; inheritance tax, 2510
Debate, M. for adjournment, 2448, 2451, 2455
Business profits war tax, 2024
Calgary live stock branch, qu. 607
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian Government railways, deficits, qu. 607
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1953
Canadian Patriotic Fund Act, 3478-84
Customs department, estimates, 769
Ex-service men, qu. 3152
Financial credit, M. 1290
Free freight outlay, qu. 704
Gold in central reserves and chartered banks, qu. 2971
Immigration-Criminal Code bills (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393, 3285
Immigration, medical inspection, 2022, 3060
Labour department
Employment specialist, 461
Statisticians, 462
Wage investigators, 463
Labour and unemployment, 3060
Loans, five year maturities, qu. 2993
Mackenzie-Mann subsidies, qu. 607
Military expenditure and policy, 1150, 1617
Ministers and directorships, 1120
Non-taxable bonds, qu. 2971
Nova Scotia miners
M. to adjourn House to discuss, 497, 539; withdrawn, 545
Quarantine. immigrant refusing vaccination, 2022
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3456
Pensions Com., final report, 3345
Prime Ministers' Conference, naval defence, 1745
Rail and car repair contracts, 1705
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 836
Shoe industry, protection, 3238
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 436
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 1617
Tariff against France, 2032
Unemployment
Insurance, 1081
National Conference, 1082
Public works and highways, 1082
Relief, 2023
Situation, 1080
Standing committee, 1082
War, causes and effects of, 1618

Isle Perrot bridge, See Bridges

Italy
Genoa Conference, correspondence, 1905, 2035
Immigrants from, 2171
Trade, effect of currency valuation, 2849

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. (George Etienne Cartier)
Air Board, 1722
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734
Archives branch, 703
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill (petition in bankruptcy) 1395
Budget, 2513. Immigration, restrictive regulations; certain classes of immigration prohibited after May 9; agriculturists; farm labourers and domestic servants, 2514; discrimination in favour of British immigrants; language qualification; attempt to secure farmers bound to fail, 2515; artisan class should be admitted; immigration of the last ten years; exodus; loss of a million people; advantages of immigration; immigration into the United States, 2516; resolution of Montreal Board of Trade; curious notions in regard to immigration; Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire; assimilation of races; foreign-born and crime, 2517; Miss Macphail's objection to sheepskin coats; foreigners engaged in textile and other trades; government by Order in Council, 2518
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, amdt., 3000, neg. 3006
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3104
Census
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, appointment of, 1368
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3498
Cigars and cigarettes, tax, 3240
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, (Mr. Jacobs) 1395
Criminal Code revision, 1717
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 477
"Foreigners and crime" propaganda, 1392, 2517
Grecian and Roumanian loans, qu. 1400
Immigration, 2513-2517
Department of, 3500
Deputy Minister, Mr. W. J. Black, qu. 2970, 3500
Dutch, 2144

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. — Con.
Immigration — Con.
Lord Kitchener's death, foreigners and, 2155
Meals for immigrants, 2971
Immigration Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1391, 1392
Insurance premiums, taxation, 3254-5
Linen yarn bounty, 1362
Lusitania reparation claims, qu. 3599
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425
Palestine, mandate over, 1716
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Saskatchewan liquor export, 3000
Steamship subsidies, qu, 614
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974

Jamieson, Mr. J. A., claim of, 1687

Japan
Army reduction, 1610
Coal, importation from, 2406. See also Coal
Immigration from. See Oriental Aliens
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Rights and disabilities of Canadians in, qu. 1289, 1511, 2208
Treaty with, 1510. See also, Limitation of Armaments

Jasper Park, Edith Cavell road, 1051

Jelliff, Mr. L. H. (Lethbridge)
Air force and civil aviation, High River, 1734
Customs tariff, woollen clothing, 3235
Irrigation, Southern Alberta, 761
Lighthouses and lightkeepers, 1497
Live stock, loss through wolves, 990, 1001
Rotary rod weeders, duty on, 3121
Sales tax, 3272
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, salary increases, 406

Job Printing. See Special War Revenue, Sales Tax

Joggins, breakwater, 1767

Johnson, Mr. R. M. (Moosejaw)
Address in reply, 112. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; position of Progressive party, 112; agricultural conditions, 113; marketing of grain, 114; tariff; natural resources of western provinces; public ownership of railways, 116
Agriculture, retirement of Dr. Saunders, 590, 3522
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2103, 2737

Johnson, Mr. R. M. — Con.
Canada Grain Act
Constitutionality of, 2837
Overages, 2838
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3009
Canadian National railways. Bengough extension, 2770
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 472, 2951. See also under this title, Wheat Board bill
Advance to, 3541
Customs, dumping clause, 3419
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases bill, 3469
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Freight rates, Quebec and, 1472
Goderich harbour, grain shipment through, 2002
Government publications, 1374
Grain companies, default of, 2837
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 427
Justice dept, estimates, 1668
Labour dept.
Temporary clerks, 567
Wage investigators, 462-3
Lignite Utilization Board, 3526
National Defence bill, 2808
Portable and traction engines, 3231
Public buildings
Heating, 1759
Western provinces, discrimination against, 1254
Quebec harbour advances, 1471
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2762
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity, 590, 3522
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, Fort Qu'Appelle sanitarium, 1345
Threshing machines, 3124-25
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2762
Wheat Board bill, 3177, 3180, 3182, 3188, 3384
Amdt. 3178

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred (Last Mountain)
Accredited herds, diseases, 968
Air force and civil aviation, 1724
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Budget, 2220. Congratulations to Finance Minister; reciprocity; financial situation, 2220; revenue and expenditure; debt; war obligations; profiteering; failure to tax wealth; tariff reductions; sales tax, 2221; income tax; immigration; increased production, 2222; markets; trade with United States; Wheat Board; amendment, 2223; failure of Government to propose progressive policy, 2224

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu. 469
Cultivators, etc., duty on, 3120
Customs Act, valuation, 3415
Dominion lands, sale of, qu. 376
Hudson bay railway, 1970
Immigration
Deputy Minister, 757
Officials, 760
Implement parts, duty, 3120
Lighthouses and lightkeepers, 1497
Militia and Defence, pay of staff, 1982
Ministers and Directorships, 1120
Ottawa public buildings, 1252
Ploughs, etc., duty on, 3121
M. to reduce, 3121
Printing Bureau, plant and publications, 1971
Privilege, Progressives and delay in budget debate, 2692
Redistribution and the census, 1370
Rural and urban population, qu. 376
War memorials, 2101

Joint Industrial Councils. See Labour

Jones, Mr. George B. (Royal)
Canadian National railways, coal importations, qu. 2213
Grand Anse, C.B., mail service, qu. 938
Le Blanc, Dr. B. A., Arichat, qu. 1773
St. John terminal facilities, 848

Judges. See also Bankruptcy Act Amdt.; Exchequer Court; Justice; Supreme Court
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Admiralty, local judge in, 1274
Gravelbourg, Sask., appointment at, 3496
Judges Act, Ministers and Directorships, 1088
Nova Scotia Supreme Court vacancy, 3436
Political commissions, on, 2397
Provincial commissions, on, qu. 366
Latchford, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu. 3600
Riddell, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu. 3600
Salaries, 2512, 3496
Yukon territory, 1275

Judges Act Amdt. bill (Saskatchewan Court of Appeal
Res. 424; 1r., 429; 2r., com., 546; 3r., 547
Senate amdts., 2830

Judicial Districts. See Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill

Justice
Administration of
Exchequer Court, 1274

Justice — Con.
Administration of — Con.
Litigated matters, 1276
Pecuniary Claims, 1276
Penitentiaries, 1276
Supreme Court, 1274
Yukon territory, 1275
Civil Government, 1668
Estimates, 1274, 1668, 3495
Minister of, directorships and, 242-3. See also Ministers and Directorships
Pecuniary claims convention with United States, 1276
Prisons and penitentiaries, inspection of by Grand Juries, 1279
Salaries and contingencies, 451
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux, expenses, 1669

Juvenile Delinquents
Prison farms for, qu. 1773
Special schools for, qu. 469
16, 17, and 18 years old, qu. 1773

Kamloops
Model city, 318
Post office building, 1255

Kamloops-Kelowna Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Kamouraska, vacancy, 1459

Kay, Mr. W. Fred (Missisquoi)
Agricultural implements
Standardization of parts, 2406
Appearance of Senator McCoig before Com. on Agriculture, 2406
Agriculture and Colonization Com. reports
McCoig, Senator, attendance of, 1900
M. for concurrence in fifth report, 2915
Wheat Board, 657, 703, 726, 776, 865, 1929
Baker, the late Col. G. H., M.P., memorial to, 2101
Daylight saving, M., 942-3
Privilege, Wheat Board, 872
Reference to, 1282

Kelley, Mr. Howard G., qu. 729

Kellner, Mr. Donald F. (East Edmonton)
Air force and civil aviation, 1723
Animal contagious diseases, compensation, 2806
Budget, 2280. Congratulations to Minister of Finance, 2280; attitude of Progressives to old parties; little change in policy indicated by budget proposals; new taxes; principle of taxation; depression throughout the country, 2281; position

Kellner, Mr. Donald F. — Con.
Budget — Con.
of the farmer; workingman and business man; labour and capital; public debt; credit system, 2282
Canteen funds, undistributed, qu. 2215
Criminal Code Amdt. (Scrip frauds) 3216
Immigration regulations, compliance with, qu. 2215
Soldier land settlement, 2141
Soldiers' pay, exchange on, qu. 826
Winnipegosis wharf, 3545

Kemp, Sir Edward, ammunition shipment from Great Britain, 1169

Kennedy, Mr. Donald M. (West Edmonton)
Address in reply, 142. Constituency of West Edmonton, 141-142; conditions in western Canada; tariff question, 143; protection of industries, 144; immigration, 145; Wheat Board; freight rates on grain; Crowsnest pass agreement, 146; soldier settlers, 147; railways, western provinces, natural resources, 147-8; half-breed scrip, 148
Air force and civil aviation, 1724
Banks, income and note circulation taxes, qu. 1400
Criminal Code Amdt. bill (Scrip frauds) 1062, 1395, 3213, 3220
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, contract for steel plates, 1680
Edmonton bridge, 2007
Harbours and rivers, Alberta and Saskatchewan, 2005
Indians, 1232
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 499
Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3515
Public buildings, furniture, etc., 1758
Public Works dept., average salary, 749
Rural mail contracts, subletting, 2801
Steamship subsidies, fair wage clause, 3506
Steel industry, 769

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred (Glengarry and Stormont)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2737
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3005
Liquor, export of, 3005
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, wheat carriage, 3039
Customs
Drawbacks, 769
Officials, 765
Valuations, 3416

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred — Con.
Dairy Grading Act, 652
Director of Commercial Intelligence, 700
Immigration figures, 758
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425
Railway finances, qu. 471
Sugar beet industry, 3245

Kennedy, Hon. William C. (Minister of Railways and Canals)
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan to, 3035
Canadian National railways
Annual statement, 873
Branch lines, Bengough extension, 2771
Canadian Northern, advance to, 1905
Consolidation, 1963
Deficits, 875-86
Corrected statement, 1919
Directors, 2791
Appointment of new board, 2772, 2794
Representative of employees, 2794
Freight, careless handling of, 1965
Grand Trunk Pacific
Advances to, 3520
Branch lines, 3520
Intercolonial, employees' provident fund, 2769
Kamloops-Kelowna railway, 1135
New board of directors, appointment, 2772, 2794
Rolling stock, repairs, 1212
St. John and Quebec railway, 1295
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Transcontinental, allowance to enlisted men, 3518
Canadian Transit Co. bill, 1772
Canals. See also under this title, St. Lawrence
Rideau, 2769
Soulanges, 2768
Trent, 2764
Welland, 2747
Construction, 1687
Port Colborne elevator, Jameson claim, 1687
Crowsnest Pass Agreement. See under this title, Freight Rates
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 638
Freight Rates, M. for Special Com., 1213, 1402-3, 1502
Gaspe railways, 627
Governor General's cars, 1688
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 1970, 2798
Ottawa-Kingston highway, 2794
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689

Kennedy, Hon. William C. — Con.
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement at Calgary, 2775
Motherwell, Hon. Mr., alleged statement, 2774
Representation of labour, 2776
Railway estimates, 407-8, 1133, 1905, 1933, 2747
St. John valley railway, 3039
St. Lawrence river waterway, surveys, 2768
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2768
Shipbuilding, cost of, 3508

Key Industries Act, 2424

Kindersley, post office building, 1254

King, Hon. J. H. (Minister of Public Works)
Big Bay point, sunken vessel, removal of, 2006
British Columbia govt., reply to criticism of, 2237
Courtenay Bay, 2014
Customs dumping clause, 3418
Introduction, 496
National gallery, 2011
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1547
Public buildings
Appropriations and expenditures, 1921-22, 1259
Calgary, 1254
Coal for, 1758
Edmundston, 1240
Flags, 1264
Furniture purchases, 1757
Galt, 1247
Generally, expenditure, 1260
Halifax expenditures, 1244
Hamilton, 1246-51, 1258
Heating, 1758
Kamloops, 1255
Maritime provinces, 1243
Montagu, P.E.I., 1264
Ontario, 1245
Ottawa, 1252
Dominion observatory, Geodetic survey, 1266
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, 1267
New departmental, architects' designs, 3541
Water, 1266
Parliament buildings, 2014
Architects' fees, 2014-16
Furniture, purchase of, 1757
Tower, 2016
Quebec, 1245

King, Hon. J. H. — Con.
Public Buildings — Con.
Rentals, 1259
Rideau hall, fuel and light, 1756
St. Catherines, 1258
St. John quarantine station, 1240-1
St. George public building, 1240
Saskatoon, 1253
Swift Current, 1253
Toronto, 1246-7
Victoria, 1255
Weston, 1260
Public Works
Dredging, 2005
St. Marys river, 2006
Drydocks,
Esquimalt, 3541-2
Vancouver, 1255, 2005, 2010
Harbours and rivers, 1988
British Columbia, 2005
Icelandic river improvements, 2004
Manitoba, 2004
New Brunswick, 1991
Provincial wharves, 1992
St. John, 2014
Nova Scotia, 1765
Expenditure, 1269
Inverness pier, 1760
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Ontario, 1999
Goderich, 2000
Prince Edward Island, 1270
Quebec, 1998
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2005
Selkirk, wharf, 2004
Shuswap lake wharf, 3547
Winnepegosis wharf, 3545
Public Works dept.
Employees transferred, 696
Estimates, 692, 747, 749, 1238, 1270, 1755, 1988, 3541
River guaging and metering, 2011
Roads and bridges, 2007
Edmonton, bridge, 2007
St. John, N.B.
Harbour improvement, 2014
Terminal facilities, 849-50, 851
Telegraphs and telephones, 2012
Humbolt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Yukon radio-telegraph service, 1750

King, Mr. J. W. (North Huron)
Budget, 2301. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Progressives from Ontario; fiscal policy; small percentage of land under cultivation; drift towards the cities; infant industries; reciprocity with the United States; tariff proposals, 2302; friendly relations between Canada and United States, 2303
Grand Trunk railway, employees pension rights and status, 2041

King, Mr. J. W. — Con.
Budget — Con.

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie (Prime Minister; Secretary of State for External Affairs; President of the Privy Council
Acoustics of the Chamber, 3613
Address in reply, 38. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, mover and seconder, 38; welcome to Lord Byng; late Mr. Peter McGibbon; Miss Macphail, 39; remarks of the leader of the Opposition; followers of Mr. Meighen in present Parliament, 40; campaign literature and election results, 40-41; natural resources of western provinces, 41; treaties; Imperial Conference, Limitation of Armaments, 42; customs tariff revision, 43-44; position at Liberal Convention, 44; railway situation; government ownership, 45-46; marketing of wheat, 46-47; railway freight rates; party formation and names, 47; negotiations with Progressive party, 48; Liberal administration, 48-49; Mr. Stewart (Argenteuil) and Mr. Motherwell, 49
Ammunition, artillery, shipment from Britain, 1154, 1156, 1163, 1165, 1172
Annual drill, 1155, 1165
Demobilization expenditure for, 1155-65
Annuities, 776
Armorial bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601
Assiniboine river floods, 1842
Auditor General's report, 424
Australia, reciprocity with, 9, 2803
Banff-Windermere road, 1681
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Ethier) 1662
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Jacobs) 1395
Board of Commerce, 1715
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert
International disarmament conference, papers, 1283. See also under this title, Limitation of Armaments
British Columbia house, London, purchase, 3537
Budget, 2537. Conflicting amendments evidence of wisdom of budget proposals, 2537; taxation, re-adjustment of; speeches of Progressive and Op-

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Budget — Con.
position leaders; extreme points of view; amendment to amendment; a protectionist budget; repeal of protectionist legislation; reduction of duties; effort to carry out Liberal policy; protection versus free trade not the issue, 2538; tariff revision; amendment; no constructive suggestions; Sir Henry Drayton's tariff proposals of 1920, 2539; platform of National Liberal Conservative party; trade with the mother country; disregard of political honour; promised revision of tariff, 2540; pledges of Liberal party; Liberal Convention of 1919; chart, 2541; statement of policy last session; budget consistent with campaign utterances; no deception of electorate, 2542; Mr. Meighen's London speech; Liberal handbook, 2543; tariff revision on basis of revenue; duties on instruments of production and necessaries of life; pledges fulfilled; tribute to Finance Minister; stability and confidence, 2544
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Customary procedure, 7
Debates on naval service estimates, 1899
Easter adjournment, 546, 821, 823
Eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Empire and Ascension days, adjournments, 1769, 1905
Estimates, 569, 2167, 3527
Govt. orders on Monday and Wednesday, 1460
Legislation to be introduced, 2996, 3041, 3102, 3103, 3365
Mines and Minerals Com., 1398
Mondays and Wednesdays, 49, 1719, 2169
Order of, 374
Private members', 1719
Prorogation, 3365
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660
Quotations from anonymous letter, 1480
Saturday sittings, 2033, 2458
Wednesday sittings, 49
Evening, 2169
Canada Grain Act, Manitoba Court of Appeal decision, 1770
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, Senate amdts. 3613-4
Canadian Expeditionary Force, repatriation of dependents, 1711

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3104
Coal importations, from Japan, 2406
Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian National parks, 1681
Canadian National railways
Amalgamation of system, 2585
Co-ordination, 73
Directors, sympathy with public ownership, 2858
Canadian offices in England, co-ordination, 414
Canadian representation in the United States, 1384
Canadian Wheat Board bill. See under this title, Wheat Board
Cattle embargo, alleged statement of High Commissioner, 1463
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., claim of, 3498
Chief Electoral Officer, report, 871
Civil Service
Appointments, 573-4
Bonus, 733, 1258
Appropriation, 3528-36
Inquiry as to payment, 2996
Economy, 424
Salaries, 552
$960 and less, 1660
Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509
Coal
Importation from Japan, 2406
Mined by Orientals, 2407
Con Rein sinking, 1384
Contingencies, vote for, 415
Criminal Code Amdt. (Half-breed scrip) 3220
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth) 865, 1719
Criminal Code and statutes, reprinting, 1717
Crowsnest pass agreement. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal of, 2458
Death of brother, Dr. MacDougall King, 211, 224, 230, 276
Debates, Official Report, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Debeau, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306
Deputy Speaker, election, 363
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1334
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion Lands, cancellation of leases bills, Senate amdts., 3614
Editorial Committee, 1236

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 487
Esquimalt dry dock, 597
Estimates, classification of, 569, 2167, 3527
External Affairs
Salaries, 412, 3509
Secretaries, 411
Fielding, Hon. Mr., congratulations to, 3279
Financial credit, M. (Mr. Irvine) 1293
Freight Rates (Crowsnest pass agreement)
Special Com., ref to
M. (Mr. Kennedy), Essex) 1213, 1432-8, 1453-4
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3588
Reports, 3546, 3560
"General" Macdonald's army, 2256
Genoa Conference, 582, 823, 1715
Cannes documents tabled, 865
Correspondence tabled, 865
With Italy, 2035
Reported subscription to consortium, 1463
Grand Trunk Arbitration
British newspaper article, 374, 822
Grand Trunk railway, pension rights and status of employees
M. (Mr. Boys) 863, 1382, 2041, 3437
High Commissioner
Alleged statement re cattle embargo, 1463, 1502
Office of, 414
House of Commons. See also under this title, Business of the House
Organization, amendment of, 1335
Sittings suspended, 3611-14
Staff, 3221
Immigration
Chinese, 3437
Investigation of conditions in Europe, 1711
Oriental. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 864, 1388, 1394, 1719
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Indians
Estimates, 1712
Potlach institution, 1578
Number serving gaol sentences, 1721
Interim Supply bill, 379
Interior dept., printing and stationery, 1680
International Disarmament. See under this title, Limitation of Armaments
International Labour conference, 3437, 3490
Report and printing of, 3601
Japan
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Rights of Canadians in, 1289, 2208

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Labour dept. estimates, 564, 569, 577
Lake Huron marine allowance, 1930
Lake of the Woods repeal bill, 3206, 3211, 3435
League of Nations
Permanent secretariat
Canada's contribution, 2990
Expenses, 3173
Protocols of proposed amdt. to covenant, 2583, 2692, 3171
Limitation of Armaments, 786
Papers, 1283
Report tabled and ordered printed, 596
Res., 3157
Treaty tabled, 9
Liquor importation, 733. See also under this title, Canada Temperance Act
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 639
Ministers and directorships, 1098
Ministers' secretaries, 413
Munitions, shipment from Britain, 1154-65-72
National Defence bill, 547, 662, 680
Natural resources transfer to western provinces, 1017
M. (Mr. Meighen) for correspondence 1509
Provincial governments, correspondence with, tabled, 1769
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval defence, 1873-1899
Naval service
Gift of ships to Canada, 2051
Royal Canadian navy, 1873-1899
Newmarket, speech at, 35
Norris, Premier, statement on freight rates and natural resources, 1213
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 536, 597
Occupational diseases, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 1381
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3427-35
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill), time for discussion, 1719
Oriental aliens, 872, 967, 3104
Immigration
Chinese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1554, 1573-6
Japanese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Parliament, fall session, 3608
Pensions, Insurance, etc.
Special Com., appointed, 496-7
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3504

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Prime Ministers' Conference, 5
Correspondence, 1068
Naval defence, reported statement of Lord Lee, 1742
Opportunity for discussion of, 2042
Proceedings tabled, 8
Prime Ministers' secretaries, 411
Privy Council
Estimates, 410
Private secretaries, 410
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1655
Public buildings appropriations, 1259
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Quebec fisheries, 8
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3588
Railway Commission, Hon. Mr. Motherwell, 2774, 3491
Redistribution, 733
Bill to be introduced next session, 3608
Meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
M. (Mr. Shaw), opportunity for discussion, 1719, 1769
References to, (Sir Henry Drayton, "jilting Quebec") 206, 1365, 1754, 2969. See also Address; Budget
Regional Bureau of the International Catalogue of Scientific literature, 3528
Returned soldiers. See also under this title, Pensions; Soldiers
Announcement of Govt.'s policy, 2637
Unemployment of, 2458. See also under this title, Unemployment
Returns, inquiry for, 1283
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Industrial disputes, and, 666
M. (Mr. Woodsworth), 834
Macleod detachment, reported removal of, 2585
Russian relief, 3516
St. Lawrence river waterway
Co-operation with United States, 2760
Correspondence with United States Govt., 2357, 2583, 2760, 2767
Tabled, 2256
International Joint Commission, report, 2357
Treaty with United States Govt., 2207, 2760
Save the Children Fund, 3516
Soldiers' bonus, 396
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 431, 437
Speaker, Mr.
Bereavement of, 496
Congratulations to, 3489
Election of, 1

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Steamship services, 2027
Tariff commissioner, appointment of, 1666
Tourist traffic, 1682
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, 3490, 3547
Unemployment. See also under this title, Returned Soldiers
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Federal, provincial and municipal obligations, 1073-9
Insurance, 1073
Relief, 1719
Returned soldiers, 2458
Situation, 1073-9
Unemployment Service Council, recommendations, 2803
Vancouver dry dock, 3544
War memorials, 2099
Washington conference papers, 1283. See also under this title, Limitation of Armaments
Wheat Board, 378, 783, 2921, 3179
Concurrence in report of Special Com., delay, 2306
Constitutionality of, opinion of Law Officers, 940
Wheat Board bill, 3190, 3383
Wrangel island, 1751
Russian claim to, 2208
Yukon territory, administration of, 1681

King-Crerar Alliance, negotiations, 48, 206. See also references in Address

King v. Manitoba Grain Company, decision. See Canada Grain Act

Kingston
Election petition, 2692
Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Klim, competition with milk, 981

Knives, German production of. See Budget; Customs Act; Currency; Guthrie; Stevens

Knox, Mr. Andrew (Prince Albert)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Coal royalties, qu. 375
Customs tariff, ploughs 3230
Easter adjournment, 546
Experimental farms, 800
Hudson bay railway, 2750, 2779
Mines dept., field work, 690
Natural resources of western provinces, 457-8
Northwest rebellion, pensions for Mounted Police, 3523

Knox, Mr. Andrew — Con.
Port Nelson, examination of masters and mates, 1491
Rideau canal, 2769
Riordan Company, taxation, qu., 372
Royal Canadian Mounted Police pensions Inadequate, 2131
Northwest rebellion, 3523
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1495
Welland ship canal, 2750

Kodaks, prices in Canada and United States, 2547, 2624

Kootenay, Burlington channel bridge, 2007

Kyte, Mr. George W. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
American magazines, 3109
Budget, 2358. Congratulations to Finance Minister; testimony of opposition to wisdom of Minister's proposals, 2358; tariff an issue no longer, burden of taxation; revenue tariff; sales tax; the workingman; cost of living; articles which do not pay the tax; interpretation of customs law; fishermen's rope; lumber; technical ruling of officials; agricultural implements, 2360; revenue tariff; England's tariff policy; protective duty counterbalanced by excise tax; origin of protective tariff in United States, 2361; manufacturers and war profits; propaganda of Canadian manufacturers; alleged reconstruction committee, 2362; election campaigns of 1896 and 1911; reciprocity with United States; increase of population under Liberal and Conservative rule; immigration, 2363
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia, civil pensions, 3499
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Rail and car contracts, 1693, 1694
Unemployment at Sydney, rail orders in advance, 1691

Labour. See also Civil Service; Housing; Immigration; Industrial Disputes; Oriental Aliens; Returned Soldiers; Shipbuilding; Unemployment
Administration, 1058
British labour party, 224
Bureaux, 3314
Canadian Government Merchant Marine Wages, qu. 3598
Canadian National railways
Representation on Board of directors. See Canadian National Railways, Directors

Labour — Con.
Canadian Pacific, conditions on, 2315
Capital and, 2117, 2191, 2250, 2282. See also Speeches on Budget
Coal. See also N. S. Miners
Canmore and Drumheller, miners' dispute, 1058
Competition with foreigners, 2154, 2435
Orientals, with, 317, 345. See also Oriental Aliens
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Conditions, 2350
Cost of living, 1175, 1303, 2331. See also that title
Costs, 2317, 2349-50
Cotton industry, wages, hours, etc., qu. 1903
Lower, 2436
Department
Annuities branch, 776
Bertrand, Mr. T., qu. 937
Classification, 494
Director of Technical Education, 578
Estimates, 1053, 1719, 1970
Officials and economy, 464-5
Printing bureau, 1970
Salaries and contingencies, 458, 493, 548
M. (Mr. Stevens) to reduce item, 562, 579, agreed to, 581
Statistical branch, 1366
Technical education, 459, 460, 578
Temporary clerks, 548
Wage investigators, 462
Departments employing organized and unorganized labour, qu. 2303
Distribution of, 2149
District No. 18, board, 1058
Economic injustice to, 2323
Eight-hour day, 184, 2311. See also Daylight Saving
Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058
Espionage, 670-9
Exodus of workmen, 2469
Fair wage clause, 1469, 1486, 3506
Farms, on, 79, 87, 251, 337, 1153. See also Address; Budget; Immigration
Genoa Conference. See that title
Germany, conditions in, 2411. See also Germany
Hours, 2317. See also under this title, Eight Hour Day
Housing, 219. See also that title
Immigration of farm workers and domestics, 2480, 3053-4. See also Immigration
Industrial centres, 236
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1054, 1058

Labour — Con.
Industrial disputes, Mounted Police and, 667, 679. See also Royal Canadian Mounted Police
M. (Mr. Woodsworth)
International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Report, printing of, 3601
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour Gazette, 1053, 1057
Leaders, 2118
McAdoo award, 1707
Mounted Police and, 670. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth): National Defence bill
Nova Scotia miners. See that title
Occupational diseases, protection against M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 829, 1378, withdrawn, 1382
O'Dell, Mr., on cost of labour in boot and shoe industry, 2350
Old age pensions, 1303. See also that title
Organized, 2321, 2324
Oriental, 2330. See also Oriental Aliens
Party, composition of, 214
Public ownership and, 130
Quebec harbour commission, wages of employees, 1465, 1469, 1486
Railway, 2315
Canadian National, 2315
Representation on board of directors. See Canadian National Railways, Directors
Canadian Pacific, 2315
Costs, 2317
Wages, 357, 1707, 2315, 2417. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Railway Commission, representation on, 2776
Skilled, protection of, 2379
Specialization of, 2149
Strike-on-the-job, 1054
Strikes, 2320, 2322
District No. 18, miners' strike, 1058
Nova Scotia miners. See also that title
Gillen board, 1054
Railway employees, 2324
Winnipeg, 841, 1068
Cost of trials, qu. 1182
Literature, 837
Trades Union Conference, Rome, 1060
Unemployment. See also that title
Agriculture and, 2158, 2331
Calgary Trades and Labour Council, 1082
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Relief, 1719, 1970, 2022, 3526
Situation, 1069
Steel workers, Sydney, 1076
Trades and Labour Congress, and, 1081

Labour — Con.
Unions, 228, 2295, 2317-8, 3059
International, 2317
Unorganized, 2628
Unrest, 14, 17, 90. See also Address; Budget
Wages
Average income, 2498
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, qu. 3598
Fair wage clause, 1469, 1486, 3506
Germany, in, 2407
Investigators, 462
Protection, and, 2298
Quebec Harbour Commission, employees, 1465, 1469, 1486
Railway, 357, 1707, 2315, 2417
Shops, 1707
Real and nominal, 2435

Labour Gazette, 1053-7
Cotton industries, wages and hours, qu. 1903

Labrador Boundary, qu. 704, 2572

Lachenaie, Que., mail service, qu. 2805

Ladner, Mr. L. J. (Vancouver South)
Address in reply, 321, 326; four parties in politics, 321; Liberal party in British Columbia; Hon. John Oliver, 322; national railway, 326; returned soldier problems, 327; natural resources of prairie provinces, 328; British Columbia claims, 329
Belgium, trade with, 3223
British Columbia house, London, purchase of, 3538
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 720
Budget, 2276. Tribute to Minister of Finance; Budget of sixteen years ago; promises and policy of Liberal party, 2277; the amendment; tariff changes; British Columbia industries and protection, 2298; danger of Japanese competition; results of protective policy; weakness of budget; trade with Germany, 2279; sales tax; dumping clause and fruit industry, 2280
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3608
Canneries, inspection of, 3048
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1448
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2818
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 3191
Labour estimates, increase, 495
Oleomargarine
Further legislation, inquiry, 3041
Importation, 654

Ladner, Mr. L. J. — Con.
Oleomargarine — Con.
Manufacture and importation of, 1797
Regulations under Act, qu. 1902
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2824, 3014
Appeal, 3023
Penalty, whipping, amdt., 3015, 3020
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1528
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444-56
Pensions Com., final report, 3339
Potlach Indian institution, qu. 1377, 3191
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1650
Vancouver dry dock, 1255, 1484, 2010
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 2822

Lafferty, Dr. J. D., 1225

Laflamme, Mr. J. N. K. (Drummond-Arthabaska)
Budget, 2895. World war and its consequences; motion and amendment; opposition arguments; Liberal platform of 1919; pledges and promises, 2896; Agrarian party; amendment to the amendment; standard of public life; currency valuation; dumping clause; marking of goods, 2897; insufficient reasons given for vote to defeat Government, 2898
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1944
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 643
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1566

Lafortune, Mr. D. A. (Jacques-Cartier)
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 959

Lake Marine. See Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; Grain; St. Lawrence river Waterway

Lake of the Woods
Control board, 2025
Joint board, 2805, qu. 2970

Lake of the Woods Regulation Act, 1921, Repeal bill
1r., 2991; 2r., com., 3199; 3r., 3435

Lambton, steamer, wreck of, 1497, 3365, 3507

Lamontagne, Mr. Ernest, qu. 824

Lanctôt, Mr. Roch (Laprairie-Napierville)
Annual drill, 1154
Budget, 2567. Beer tax; war and taxation; tax free bonds, 2567; commercial patriotism; national railways, 2568;

Lanctôt, Mr. Roch — Con.
Budget — Con.
responsibility for overbuilding of railways; proposal to sell system to Canadian Pacific; freight rates, 2569; public ownership will lead to ruin; war and conscription, 2570; preparation for war; naval service; militarism; cattle embargo; public debt, 2571; parliamentary counsel; Hon. C. J. Doherty, reported engagement in Labrador - Newfoundland boundary case; payments to, 2572; departmental lawyers; co-ordination of law branches, economy, 2573
Civil Service classification, appeals, 1508
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., contract, 1678
Farm labour, cost of, 1163
Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214
Lawyers, employment of by department of Justice, 1678
Manure, exportation of, 1018
Military expenditure and policy, 1153
Militia and defence
Military districts, 1775
Officers and men at headquarters, 1775
Militia council, qu. 2039
Naval council and officers, qu. 1774

Lands. See also Dominion Lands; Natural Resources
Accessible for homesteads, 87
Location of. See Criminal Code, Scrip frauds
Percentage under cultivation, 2302
Private ownership of, 1927
Public. See Natural Resources
Right of Canadians to hold in Japan, 2209
Settlement, 182-3. See also Soldier Land Settlement
Speculation in, 2404. See also Immigration
Undeveloped, settlement of, 236
Unimproved values, tax on, 2191. See also Budget; Taxation
Unoccupied, 2603
Western, cost to the immigrant, 2157

Langley, Hon. George, statement respecting Railway Commission, 2773

Lapierre, Mr. E. A. (Nipissing)
Budget, 2628. Congratulations to Finance Minister; the great unorganized body of wage-earners; clerks, book-keepers, commercial travellers and office assistants; cheerful acceptance of burden of citizenship; union government; day of reckoning; debt; curtailment of expenditure, 2628; restoration of pur-

Lapierre, Mr. E. A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
chasing power; adjustment of tariff to financial exigencies; retail trade and prices, 2629
Georgian Bay canal, 1199
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1199
Sturgeon Falls
Indian agent, qu. 1285
Postmaster, qu. 1285
Sudbury mail contract, qu. 1285

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest (Minister of Marine and Fisheries)
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 857
Budget, 2585. Congratulations to Finance Minister, 2585; leader of Opposition; amendment; no violation of Liberal platform; political pledges and honour, 2586; a Liberal budget; no political party in favour of free trade; campaign bogeys; an academic question; protection an economic heresy; national as opposed to individual interest; geographical considerations, 2587; United States farmers and protection; Wheat Board, fixation of prices; financial and economic consequences of war; tariffs of Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Spain, 2588; Government tariff proposals, 2589; Liberal platform of 1893; reciprocity; not free trade but freer trade; revenue tariff; protection and revenue features of tariff legislation; exaggerated statements as to Canada's condition, 2590; hatred and class war; the future; fair play for the government, 2591
Business of the House, questions, 1660
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bills
Harbours and harbour masters, 1578
Pilotage dues, 1487, 2819, 3009
Coolie labour on British ships, 2043
Criminal Code Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 865
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Dominion Iron and Steel Co.
Contracts, steel plates, 1677
Damage action against Govt., settlement of, 2170
False Creek bridge, 3516
Fisheries. See also under this title, Marine and Fisheries
Department of, 2166
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2167
Marketing, 2109
Protection service, 678

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest — Con.
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 2306, 2817, 2996, 3010
Fishing schooner race, 1387, 3510
Genoa Conference, expenses, 1715
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 864
International deep sea racing, 1387, 3510
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 428
Lambton steamer, loss of, 1497, 3365, 3507
Limitation of Armaments, 3169
Marine and Fisheries. See also under this title, Fisheries
Biological board, 3051
Capt. Demers, 1492
Department, estimates, 1489, 1676, 2166
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Icebreaking, 1677
Life saving service, 1494
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
Lambton, steamer, wreck of, 1497, 3365, 3507
Marine agencies, 1496
Marine signal service, 1499
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Navigation schools, Capt. Eddie, 1493
Ocean and river service, 1494, 3507
Pilotage, administration of, 1496
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
Port Dalhousie, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Dredges, 1494
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Wrecks, investigation, 1492
Meat and Canned Foods Act, 3045, 3149
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 640
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, amdt. to amdt. to reduce vote by $400,000, 1579; agreed to, 1631
Quebec arsenal, amdt. to reduce vote by $50,000, 2091
Montpetit, Prof., 582
Montreal Harbour Commission
Employees, 1289
Revenue, 1465
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 1488, 3199
Naval Service
Niobe, sale of, 2067
Transfer of services to Marine and Fisheries, 3611
Navigation, Rainy river lights, 1499
Pilots and pilotage, administration, 1499
Fees, regulation of, 1500
Prince Rupert Dry dock and Engineering Co., claim, 3514

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest — Con.
Quebec fisheries, 377
M. (Mr. Marcil) 619, 622
Quebec harbour
Parc St. Charles Co., Limited, 1470
Revenue and expenditures, 1471
Quebec Harbour Commission
Papers, 1584
Political patronage, 1477
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1464-86, 3195
Fair wage clause, 1469
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3399
Steel plates
Contracts, 1677
Delivery, 3508
Trenton harbour bill, 3493
Vancouver
Ballantyne pier, 1485
Drydock, 1485
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 1929, 2821, 2996

Larkin, Hon. P.C. See High Commissioner

L'Assomption and Montcalm
Excise officers, qu. 2355
Lightkeepers, qu. 1904, qu. 2215

Latchford, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu, 366, qu. 3600

Laurier, Sir Wilfrid. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Canadian military responsibilities, 1629
Canadian Northern loan, 1957
Canadian ports and German submarines, 2089
Conscription and. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill
Grand Trunk lines in United States, 191
Monument, qu, 936
Naval policy, 1849
Old age pensions, 1305
Railway administration, 202
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1333, 1398

Laurier-Fielding Tariff, 141, 144, 208, 290. See also Address; Budget

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. (Quebec County)
Budget, 2398. Tribute to Finance Minister; extravagance and mismanagement of former government; public debt; unfair treatment of province of Quebec, 2398; no confidence in public ownership of railways; transcontinental railway; Champlain market station; St. Malo repair shops; car repairs, 2399; St. Charles river improvements; wharf at Ste. Pétronille;

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. — Con.
Budget — Con.
wharf at St. Grégoire de Montmorency; expenditure and economy, 2400
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1938
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 643
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1474

Law, Bowman B., M.P., the late, memorial tablet, 2835

Law Officers
Departmental, 1678, 2573
Opinion of. See Canada Grain Act, constitutionality

Leader, Mr. Harry (Portage la Prairie)
Accredited herd system, 2739-41
Animal Contagious Diseases Act, qu. 2739, 3362
Assiniboine river floods, 1842, 2003, 3545
Budget, 2510. Finance Minister's proposals disappointing; tariff reductions counterbalanced by sales tax increase; better trade relations with United States; apology for having voted against reciprocity; rejection of treaty a disaster; live stock industry; little difference between two old parties; origin of Progressive party; promises and performance of Liberals; the amendment; broken promises of Conservatives; Mr. Meighen's declarations on tariff policy; salaries of Ministers and judges, 2512; proposed reduction in indemnities of Senators and Members; Civil Service bonus; shortening of session; absence of members from House, 2513
Harbours and rivers, Manitoba, 2003
Health of animals, tuberculosis, 3522
Immigration, Hutterites, 3060

League of Nations. See also Limitation of Armaments
Article X of the Covenant, 3170
International Labour Conference, 1060
Permanent secretariat, 2026
Canada's contribution, 2990
Protocols of proposed amendments to covenant, 2583, 2692, 3171

Leases, Cancellation of. See Dominion Lands

Leblanc, Dr. B. A., Arichat, qu. 1773

Lee, Lord, of Fareham, 1852. See also Limitation of Armaments

Legal Expenses, 1668. See also Justice; Law Officers
Companies Act, appeal, 1671
Departmental counsel, 1678, 2572-3
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., damage claim, 1677
Employment of outside lawyers, 1678
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux, 1669

Legal Officers, concentration of, 683, 2572-3

Léger, Mr. A. T. (Kent, N.B.)
Canadian National railways, purchase of ties, qu. 2209
Experimental farms, 806, 808
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1991
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495
Migratory birds, 1685
Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1792
Richibucto repair works, qu. 375
St. John income tax office, qu., 826

Legislation. See also House of Commons; Senate
House of Commons, 2026
Printing, 1972
Senate, 2026

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe. See Speaker

Lemieux Agreement with Japan, 1459

Lepers, Number of, 2021

Lesueur, Mr. R. V. (West Lambton)
Sugar beet industry, 3243-4

Letter Carriers. See Post Office

Letters, Anonymous, quoting from, 943-944

L'Evénement, Quebec, 1480

Levis
Gravel, Mr., resignation from Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477
Lightkeepers, qu., 2583

Lewis, Mr. Arthur J. (Swift Current)
Address in reply, 149. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; common platform in politics, 149-50; real conditions in the West; Great War burdens, 150-151; unemployment; wider markets, agricultural and economic conditions, 151-152; tariff and protection; natural resources of western provinces, 153-154; consolidation of railways, 155
Blankets, duty on, 3233
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) Amdt. 722

Lewis, Mr. Arthur J. — Con.
Budget, 2256. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Progressive party and government; fiscal policy; free trade; similarity of Liberal and National policies, 2257; forty-four years of protection; tariff for revenue; reductions in tariff and increases in sales tax, 2258; economy; Welland canal; St. Lawrence river waterway; emigration and race suicide; cigar and cigarette duties; automobiles; luxury tax, 2260; British preference; reciprocity with United States, 2261
Canadian National railway, public ownership, 1954
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Canned fish, marketing, 3049
Cattle embargo, 1020
Cigars and cigarettes, duty, 3239
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1368
Dominion Election Act, residential qualification, 1301
Dominion lands, 1036
Experimental farm, Swift Current, 796, 3521
Grand Trunk Pacific branch lines, 3520
Gravelbourg, Sask., appointment of Judge, 3496
Indians, education of, 1230
Mines dept., field work, 690
Mixed farming, dairying, 996
Naval service, 1737
Royal Canadian navy, 1852, 2065
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal of, 1676
Paper cups, 3115
Pilotage dues, 1500
Post Office estimates, 692
Proportional representation
M. (Mr. Good) 1645
Public Works estimates, 692
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689
Railway policy, 1954
Railways, branch lines, 1688, 3520
Residential qualification, 1301
Royal Canadian navy, 1852, 2065
Saskatchewan liquor export, 3000
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406
Soldier settlement, land purchase, 2140
Swift Current
Experimental farm, 796, 3521
Post office building, 1253
Tractors, duty on, 3123
Welland canal construction, 1688, 2260, 2749

Liberal Convention of 1919. See also Address; Budget
Cash grants to soldiers, 393, 397, 429

Liberal Convention of 1919 — Con.
Old age pensions, 1305
Platform, 25, 2529, 2541, 2896, 2910
Tariff, 2466, 3235
Mr. Fielding's disavowal, 2666
Res. of 1921, 2466
Position of Mr. King, 44-45

Liberal Party
Administration of railways before 1911, 189
Appointments, 138
Big interests and, 242. See also Big interests; Ministers and Directorships
Caucus, 1338
Fiscal attitude, 2430. See also Address; Budget
Gains and losses, 138-9. See also Elections of 1921
Government, 188
History of, 2430, 2548-9. See also Speeches on Budget
Interpretation of Liberalism, 26
Opposition in, and Estimates, 378-385

Library of Parliament
Joint Committee on, 211, 326
Salaries, 3517
Staff, 3091-2

Life-Saving Service. See Marine and Fisheries

Lights and Light-Keepers. See also Marine and Fisheries
Fuel for lightboats, qu. 1183
L'Assomption and Montcalm, qu. 1904, qu. 2215
Lévis, qu. 2583
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495, 1677, 3508
Maintenance and repairs to lighthouses, 1498
Parry Sound inspector, qu., 827
Pensions of lightkeepers, 1496
Salaries and allowances, 1497
Superintendent, Quebec district, qu. 2584
Wireless telegraphy, qu., 370

Lignite. See Coal

Limitation of Armaments, 7, 10, 20, 42, 58, 1143, 1174, 1179. See also Military Policy; Militia and Defence; National Defence
Air service, 1731
Approval of treaties signed at Washington, 786, 3157
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert, 1283
Report of, 1737, 1743
Canada's representation, 43

Limitation of Armaments — Con.
General Smuts, 1283
Naval armament, reduction of, 1737, 1844-5. See also National Defence; Naval Service
Naval holiday, 1737
Report tabled and ordered printed, 596
Sherman, General William T., 1336
Submarines, 1845
Treaty tabled, 9

Lindsay Arsenal. See Militia and Defence

Linen Yarn
Bounty, 1361
Dominion Linens, Limited, 1362
Duty, 3128

Ling, Mayor. See Nova Scotia Miners

Liquor. See also Alcohol; Canada Temperance Act; Inland Revenue; Special War Revenue
Ale, beer, porter and stout, tax on, 2117, 2852, 2857
Beverages, containing 2½ per cent proof spirit, 2857
Bootlegging, cost to country, 2282
Confiscation of, 2997
Export, 2716
Warehouses in Saskatchewan, 767-8, qu., 1211, qu. 1660, 2997
Government, sale of, 1017
Importation, 733. See also Canada Temperance Act
British Columbia into, 1017
Excise duty on, qu. 828
Saskatchewan into, qu. 2037, 2303
Quebec government, and, 71
Sales tax on ale, beer, etc., 2117, 2852, 2857

Little Current
Harbour improvement, 2002
Tugboat, 3086-7

Live Stock, 333, 971, 2511. See also Accredited herds; Address; Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases Act; Budget; Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals
Animals, cruelty, to. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Associations, grants to, 1027
Bacon, 1025
Bovine tuberculosis. See Animal Contagious Diseases bill
Carload and free freight policy, 1029
Commission men, 1031
Competition, 2695, 2698
Destruction by wolves, 990, 998

Live Stock — Con.
Estimates, 1018
Exhibitions, 3521. See also Agriculture
Feed shortage in western Canada, 1030
Fordney tariff, effect on, 2453-4. See also that title
Garbage feed, 1029
Grants to exhibitions, 3521
Hog cholera, compensation, 1028
Hogs, grading, 1025
Industry, 334. See also Cattle Embargo
Marketing in United States, 94
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
National live stock records, 1026
Pure bred sires, 1032
Sheep-raising, 2592
Stallion clubs, 1031
Stockgrazing and feeding, 3522
Stockyards, 1030
Trade with South America, 647
Tuberculosis, 2595

Lloyd George. See George, Lloyd

Lloyds, steel plates, delivery, 3508

"Loafing-on-the-Job". See Industrial Disputes; Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Loan Companies, 2299
Proposed taxation of, 2299
Renewal of loans, 1476

Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; Com., 3142; 3r., 3142; Senate amdts., 3607

Loans. See also Finance; Special Loans bill, 2107, 2171
Domestic, 2694
Five-year maturities, qu. 2993
German, proposed, 2500
Grecian, qu. 1400
Morgan, Messrs, J. P., & Co., 1131
New Canadian, $100,000,000, announcement of, 1131, 1133
New York, 2107-27
Roumanian, qu. 1400
Soldiers, to. See Soldier Settlement
Special Bill. See Special Loans bill
$100,000,000, 1292, 1131

Lobster Canning. See Meat and Canned Foods

Lobster Fisheries. See Fisheries Act Amdt. bill

Local Council of Women, Hamilton, Oleomargarine, 1835

Logan, Mr. Hance J. (Cumberland)
Acoustics of Chamber, 708, 3612
Address in reply, 105. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 105. Intercolonial railway, management and operation, 106; history of the Intercolonial; 107; separate operation necessary, 111
British preference
And Canadian seaports, M. 493, 707, 725
Goods imported through United States, qu., 375
Budget, 2684. Mr. Hocken's flirtation with Progressives; official Opposition; Bourbons; decline of Conservative party; optimism should give place to despair; the amendment; platform of 1919; changed conditions, 2684; public promises; conscription of farmers by Union Government; tariff; not sufficient time for investigation; boot and shoe industry; problem of unemployment, 2685; leader of Progressive party; revenue necessities; transportation; income, inheritance and land taxes; no question of free trade or protection; revenue tariff; incidental protection; not a protectionist budget; anthracite and bituminous coal; suggested duty on anthracite; bituminous coal duty, 2686; distinction between revenue and protective tariffs; importance of Canadian coal industry; imports; valuation of imports for duty purposes, 2687; British preference and Canadian seaports; direct shipments; transportation question as it affects the maritime provinces; South African railways, 2688; Intercolonial railway; sales tax; exemptions, 2689; fishermen's supplies; economy; civil service salary reductions; indemnity of members; equality of sacrifice; Opposition and budget; compromise on tariff issue; reciprocity; a united Canada, 2691
Canadian National railways
Intercolonial, 106-111, 2688, 2689
Employees, enlistment, 3519
Rail and car repair contracts, 1702, 1925
Revaluation, 1926
Transcontinental, enlisted men, allowance, 3518
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3478
Coal
Anthracite and bituminous, suggested duty on, 2686
Investigation of low grade, 3525
Public buildings for, 1759

Logan, Mr. Hance J. — Con.
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Lignite Unitilization board, 3525
National defence, 422
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 523
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 790
Pensions, widowed mothers, 1310
Prison reform, 1278
Rail and car repairs, 1702, 1708, 1925
Unemployment
Canadian coal miners, 1759
Rail and car repair contracts, 1702

Logan, Mr. R. S., 728

Long Branch rifle range, qu., 372

Long Sault. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

L'Orignal wharf, 1212

Louisburg quarantine station, 2021

Lovering, Dr., qu. 1211

Lovett, Mr. L. J. (Digby-Annapolis)
Bridgetown post office accommodation, 1245
Budget, 2270. Waste of time in useless discussion; slow progress of Nova Scotia, 2270; freight rates and trade restrictions; reciprocity; emigration; sectional interests, 2271; public debt; financial chaos; taxation; tariff reductions, 2272
Civil Service patronage, 3084
Rural postmasters, 3080

Lovie, Mr. W. J. (Macdonald)
Bovine tuberculosis, Carman, Man., deputation, 2743
Budget, 2451. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff reductions not sufficient; handicap upon agriculture, 2451; farmer cannot pass on taxation; manufacturer beneficiary of protection; agriculture the basic industry; implements sold cheaper in foreign countries than in Canada; agricultural depression, 2452; injustice of protective tariff to farmers; freight rates reduction; marketing of wheat; export markets; reciprocity with United States; effect of Fordney tariff on live stock industry; potatoes and poultry products; garden truck; Kubanka wheat; freight rates; statement of Mr. Sandford Evans; wheat and commodity prices, 2454; war profiteering;

Lovie, Mr. W. J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
income tax; religious institutions penalized, 2455
Civil Service bonus, 3535

Low, Hon. Thomas A. (South Renfrew)
Budget, 2445. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff views of Mr. Good; serious problems confronting government; effort to reduce expenditure, 2445; the tariff; the home market; agricultural production; ratio of exports to domestic consumption; agricultural implements; reciprocity agreement; railways, 2446; freight rates; history repeating itself; cheap transportation for the West; national ills and financial burdens; progressive immigration policy, 2447; settlers from the United States, England and northern Europe and countries

Lucas, Mr. W. T. (Victoria, Alta.)
Canada Grain Act, car demurrage, 2981
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1861
Elevator overages, qu. 609
Immigration, Mr. Shandro's proposed colony, 2159
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1519

Lumber. See also Tariff resolutions; Timber
Cargoes for the Orient, 2311
Dressed on one side only, duty, 2360
Freight rates on, 175, 234, 2311. See also that title
Japanese, acquisition of timber in British Columbia, 2310
Machinery and tools, reduction in duties, 2116
Orientals in industry. See Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)

Lusitania reparation claims, qu. 3599

Macarow, Mr. D. C. See Merchants' Bank

Macbrien, General, 1151, 1169, 1179, 1617
Reported utterances, 1662
Topographic survey, 1986

Macdonald, Mr. E. M. (Pictou)
Address in reply, 186. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker and previous speakers, 186; results of election, 186-7; Mr. Meighen's political campaign, 186-8; responsible government once more restored; public ownership of railways, 188; Canadian Northern and government railways 190; Grand Trunk lines

Macdonald, Mr. E. M. — Con.
Address — Con.
in United States, 191; Intercolonial railway management, 192; deficits on railways, 194; financial burdens, 195
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 783
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill (pilotage) 1487
Canadian National railways, 190
Coal
Importations, qu., 926
Purchases of, qu., 2306
Insurance, qu., 471, qu., 610
Operation, 66
Public ownership, 1924
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3480
Civil Service classification, 494-5
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1440-2
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion notes and gold reserve, qu., 705
Freight Rates, Special Com., on, third report, 3570
Grand Trunk, coal for, qu., 606
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 427, 429
Labour dept., temporary employees, 566
Naval defence, 1743
Naval service
Reduction in, 1743
Royal Canadian navy, 1870, 2062
Rail and car repair contracts, 1706
Redistribution of 1914, 1369
Reference to, 2536
Royal Canadian navy, 1870, 2062
War claims, loss of hospital ship, 1753
Washington disarmement conference, 1743
Yukon territory
Administration, cost of, 1681
Population, and expenditure, qu., 2456

Macdonald, "General", army of, 3315
Reception of, 2256

MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C., payments to, 2772

MacInnes, Mr. W. W. B., Immigration Commissioner in China, qu. 1901, qu. 2214

MacKelvie, Mr. John A. (Yale)
Address in reply 159. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; boots and shoes, tariff on, 159-160; statements of Mr. Meighen and Sir Lomer Gouin, 160; Tory party, 161; tariff revision, 162; fruit-growing in British Columbia; protective tariff and fruit; railway situation, 166; immigration; Orientals in British Mackelvie, Mr. John A. — Con.

Address — Con.
Columbia, 167; natural resources; soldiers' re-establishment; attitude of Sir Lomer Gouin, 168; unity between French and English-speaking Canada, 168-9
Budget, 2196. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff; fruit-growing industry; Liberal platform of 1919, 2197; promises and performances; British preference, 2198; reciprocity; dumping clause, 2199; fruit growing industry, 2200; taxation; retrenchment; militia expenditure; cadet training, 2202; naval service; German trade and competition, 2203; the amendment, 2204
Cadet training, 2202
Canadian National railways, Kamloops-Kelowna line, 1134
Customs, dumping clause, 2199, 3422
Dominion lands, sub-agencies closed, qu., 1181
Entomology, codling moth, 814, 816
Fruit growers, protection, 2197, 2200, 3422
George, Rt. Hon. Lloyd, 2203
Interior dept., publicity agent, 454
Militia, expenditure and policy, 2202
Naval college, Esquimalt, 2047, 2203
Naval service, 2203
Royal Canadian navy, 2047
Oriental Aliens, M., (Mr. McQuarrie) 1534
Telegraphs and telephones, Okanagan district, 2008

Mackenzie and Mann, 189. See also Canadian National Railways
Loans to, 189-190
Subsidy, qu. 607, qu., 935

MacLaren, Mr. Murray (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
Address in reply, 353; national railway system; Grand Trunk railway and Portland terminus, 353; Intercolonial railway, 354; natural resources of Prairie Provinces, 355; returned soldiers, 356
American magazines, 3110
Biological Board, 3051
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 721
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, steamship services, and, 3033
Canadian National railways, Intercolonial employees, 3519
Canadian Red Cross Society, 3387
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771

MacLaren, Mr. Murray — Con.
Canned goods, marking, 3048
Cold storage, 3521
Edmundston public building, 1240
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1273
Immigration
Medical inspection, 3052
Officials, 756
Imports of British goods, qu., 966
Inter-allied permanent commission, 3403
Military expenditure and policy, 1149
Militia estimates, 588
Naval policy, 2053
Negro point, breakwater, 2013
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3403, 3442
St. John Ambulance Association, 3387
St. John harbour, 2013
Submarine cables, qu., 3151, qu., 3360
Tracadie lazaretto, 2021
West Indies subsidies steamship services, 3033

MacLean, Mr. A. E. (Prince, P.E.I.)
Address in reply, 335. The Prime Minister and Prince Edward Island, 335; Progressive and Liberals; potato trade, 336; harvest excursions; civil service; railway situation in Prince Edward Island, 337; Intercolonial railway; tariff; natural resources and Prince Edward Island, 338-9
Census enumerators, 1366
Civil Service Commission, 364
Hog cholera, 1029
Illegal fishing, Prince county, qu., 371
Migratory birds, 1684
Rail and car repair contracts, 1710
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Theshing machines, 3125
Tormentine reef, buoy, 1490
Unemployment, Canadian National railways, 1710

Maclean, Hon. A. K. (Halifax)
Budget, 2859. Amended resolutions; effect of taxation on trade; depreciated currency; Germany, trade with; debt and revenue necessities, 2859; income tax expenditure, reduction of, 2860; economic problems and proposed remedies; Progressive party not an occupational group; class organization; restriction of output; consequences of the war; European recovery; interdependence of nations; international trade; international politics, 2862; German rehabilitation; reparation payments; restriction of German exports, 2863; Canadian representation at Genoa Conference; reciprocity with the United States; tariff legislation of Congress; Canadian representation at Washington; business conditions, 2864; emigration; reconciliation of adverse interests; Maritime Provinces commercial relation with rest of Canada, 2865; Ontario and Quebec, industrial development; Prairie Provinces, 2866; British Columbia; depression of trade; exchange value of commodities; primary products low in price; manufactured products abnormally high, 2868; wages, labour conditions and production; deflation of manufactured products; effect of taxation on prices; amendment, 2869; Liberal platform of 1919; tariff revision vertically and horizontally; chart and compass; Prime Minister's utterances at convention and in campaign, 2870; protection and free trade, 2871; United States competition; compromise on fiscal policy; tendency in United States towards reduction of tariff, 2872; imports and interests, 2873

Maclean, Hon. A. K. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Ownership and operation of, 3036
Subsidized steamship services, 3029
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1420-6. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases bill, 3469
Freight Rates, Transportation costs, Special Com., Third report, 3456
M. for adoption of, 3548-55
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3143, 3145
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 3142
Naval policy, 2055
Naval service
Royal Canadian navy, 2055
Royal Naval college, 2055
Public buildings, alleged discrimination against western provinces, 1254
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1464
Rideau canal, 2764
Welland ship canal, 2763
Wheat Board powers, 781
Wheat Board bill, 3175, 3180, 3380, 3385
M. Com. rise, neg., 3383

Maclean, Mr. William F. (South York)
Address in reply, 63. Public ownership of utilities; hydro-electric developments, 63; public ownership of railways, 64;

Maclean, Mr. William F. — Con.
Address — Con.
competition of C.P.R. with government-owned railways, 64-66; corporation-owned railways in United States, 67; water transportation, 69-70; electrical developments, 71; transportation and marketing of wheat, 72; co-ordination of government railways, 73; railway grades and duplication; community centres, 75; goods roads, 75-76
Alien enemy property, 1672
Blake, Hon. Edward, 2655
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 723
Budget, 2321. Mr. McCrea and organized labour, 2321; war profiteering; pulp and paper industry; speculation in paper stocks; collective bargaining, 2322; farmers and strikes; the farmers' bloc in United States Congress; economic injustice to labouring population; railways, public ownership; consolidation of national railways, 2323; strikes of railway employees; organization of capital, labour and industry; Canada's status; federation of dominions with written constitution; court of last resort; the war and defence, 2324; scientific methods of destruction; race aggression; transportation; bill of rights of Canadian public services; nationalization of transportation communications, banking, marketing, waterways, finance, 2325; post office, express, telegraph and telephone services, cables; community centres, 2326; St. Lawrence river waterway; water-borne competition with railways, 2327; national banking system of United States; watered stock; co-ordination of railways, 2328; opposition to public ownership from Canadian Pacific Railway; new taxation; soft drinks; cheque tax; immigration, 2329; Oriental labour; redistribution, 2330
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Canadian National railways
New board, appointment of, 2722
Shares held as alien property, 1672
Census
Completion of, 1365
Enumerators, 1366
Cheque tax, 3259

Maclean, Mr. William F. — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, 175-6. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 953
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 632
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 491
Freight Rates, Special Com., on, third report, 3564
Grand Trunk lines in United States, 191
Hydro-electric Commission and Ontario Govt., 1080
Hydro-electric power developments in Ontario, 1937
Manufacturers and profiteering, 3275
National Defence bill, 680
Prison reform, 1278
Privilege — Crowsnest pass agreement, 3608
Public ownership, 1933
Quebec fisheries, 622
Railway Act Amdt. bill (Crowsnest pass agreement) 3595
Railway policy, 1933
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Returned Soldiers'
Bonus, 3290
Early announcement of government's policy, 2637
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3319, 3392
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 831
St. Lawrence river waterway
M. (Mr. Church) 1326
United States, co-operation with, 2752-55
Sugar beet industry, 3249
Toronto and York county, representation, 1365
Traffic charges on boat services, 182
Unemployment situation, 1080
Water-power rentals, 2747
Welland canal, 2747
Co-operation with United States, 2752-55
Wheat Board, 2967

MacLennan, Mr. Justice, Admiralty Court at Quebec, 1275

Macleod, Alberta
Post Office, revenue, building, qu., 2804
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, detachment at, 2584

MacPhail, Miss Agnes C. (Southeast Grey)
Alleged statement, denial of, qu. 3221
Annual drill, 1174

MacPhail, Miss Agnes C. — Con.
Budget 2384. Liberal party and protection; no material gain in budget proposals; argument of Mr. Raymond; basic and secondary industries; effect of protection, rural depopulation, 2384; protection of industries at expense of agriculture; rural schools; United States farmers demanding protection; unsatisfactory school system; farmers' credits; high transportation costs; taxation of all for the benefit of the few, 2385; proof that farming does not pay; importance of agriculture in development of Canada; trade and national greatness; high protection and revenue; the manufacturer the principal beneficiary, 2386; infant industries; cotton and woollen goods; discrimination against goods used by common people in favour of luxuries; direct and indirect taxation; national expenditure, 2386
Immigration
Child, 2153
"Man with the sheepskin coat", 2153
Policy, 2153
Military expenditure and policy, 1174
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 533
References to. See Address; Budget
Rural population, movement towards cities, 2153, 2384
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Supervisor of expenditure, 405

McAdoo Award, 2315, 2317. See also Canadian National Railways

McBride, Mr. T. G. (Caribou)
Address in reply, 316. Oriental question in British Columbia, 316-17, 319; soldier settlement, 318; unemployment; transcontinental highway, 319; Oriental immigration, 319
Budget, 2635. Length of speeches; free trade; tariff on farm implements and mining machinery; dumping clause, 2635; transcontinental highway, 2636
British Columbia and Progressive party leader, 2239
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3039
Loan to, 3036
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3482
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1746, 1770
Chinese, arrival of at Vancouver, 3437, 3604
Civil Service
Bonus, 3533-5
Commission, 3072

McBride, Mr. T. G. — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt., branding of cattle, 2833
Customs, dumping clause, 2635, 3419
Debates, inaudibility of, 1053
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases, bill, 3465
Dredging, Shuswap lake, 2006
Elevators at Vancouver, 2980
Experimental farms, 804-5
Fuel oil, tariff against, 1761
Grain Inquiry Commission, 2984
Housing, 774
Hudson bay railway, completion, 2797
Immigration, Chinese, 3437, 3604
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3485
Kamloops-Kelowna railway, qu., 937, 3797
Kamloops post office building, 1255
Lambton, steamer, loss of, 3507
Militia and Defence
Cadet services, 1978
Lindsay arsenal, 2088
Quebec arsenal, amdt. to reduce item by $110,000, 2091
Milking machines, 3270
Naval Service, Royal Canadian navy, 1854
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1531
Pensions Com., report, 3351
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 3196
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2762
Shuswap lake
Dredging, 2006
Wharf, 3547
Soldier land settlement, 2142
Steamship services, 2027
Telegraphs and telephone lines, 2008
Woollen blankets and clothing, 3135

McCoig, Senator, leave to attend Agriculture Com., 1900, 2406

McConica, Mr. T. H. (Battleford)
Agricultural exhibitions, 984
Agriculture Com., report, Wheat Board, 748. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Budget, 2898. Amendment; political promises; tariff revision, 2898; tribute to Finance Minister; old and new taxes; reciprocity, 2899; Sir George Foster's trip to Australia and China; treaty of 1854; abrogation; efforts at renewal; trade routes; acquisition of railways in United States, 2900; trade complications; wheat market; manufacturers of Eastern Canada, 2901; purchasing power of West; position of the farmer; changed conditions, 2902; self-

McConica, Mr. T. H. — Con.
Budget — Con.
contained country or world power; production costs in United States; hothouse industries; competition with United States; fruit industry; debt; financial problem of the United States after Civil War; work; opportunities multiplying; high protection, 2964; substantial reduction of tariff; congratulations to Prime Minister, 2905
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, 1856
Amdt. (Mr. Carmichael) 1609
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1772
Dominion Iron and Steel Co. contract, 1678
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 428
Live stock industry, 985
Mixed farming, 985
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 525
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2753
Soulanges canal, 2769
Welland ship canal, 2743, 2753
Wheat Board, 3183
Point of order, 2935
Wheat Board bill, 3381

McCrea, Mr. Francis N. (Sherbrooke)
Budget, 2314. The railway situation; high freight rates; deficits, 2314; Government ownership; international labour unions; McAdoo award; eight hour day; labour costs in general, 2317; remuneration of railway employees; specialization of work; strikes; thrift and industry, 2316; reduction of labour costs necessary; incorporation of labour unions; formation of labour board; walkouts and lockouts should be made illegal; arbitration for settlement of labour disputes, 2319; civil service, 2320
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1857
Organized labour, 2321-2

McDonald, Mr. Angus (Timiskaming)
Multigraph machines in departments, 1508
Population by ages, qu., 1632
Quebec Harbour Commission, wages of employees, 1465
Unemployment, 2318

McDonald, Mr. John N., qu., 3361

McGiverin, Mr. Harold B. (Ottawa)
Civil Service
Bonus, 1503, 3529

McGiverin, Mr. Harold B. — Con.
Civil Service — Con.
Commission, 3071
Ottawa, Gas Company bill, 1657
Pensions Com., final report, 3331

McKenzie, Hon. D. D. (Solicitor General)
Admiralty Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2822
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2735
Baddeck wharf, repair to, 1765
Big Bras d'Or wharf, 1765
Budget, 2604. Group representation in Parliament; Progressives; duties of citizenship, 2604; public men; tribute to Finance Minister, 2605; Liberalism in Nova Scotia; one change of government in fifty years; Hon. George Murray, 2606; Right Hon. Sir John Thompson; opposition criticisms; responsibility of former government for public debt, 2607; methods of collecting revenue; new taxes; war debt; extravagance; unfit men mobilized; patronage, 2608; Ross rifle; purchase of military equipment; amendment; no suggestion to offer; Liberal platform of 1919; trade with United States, 2610; reciprocity; transportation facilities; purchases of railways in United States; seaports at New London and Portland; purchase of coal lands in United States, 2611; competition with Canadian mines; taking over of Grand Trunk, 2612; Liberal opposition to proposal, 2613; Canadian Northern railway; Grand Trunk Pacific; verdict of the people, 2614; campaign promises made good; record of Liberal party; administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 2615; time to restore prosperity, 2616
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim of, 2837
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill
First reading, 1017
Withdrawn, 2733
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, (No. 132) 2733, 2997
Date of coming into effect, 3007
Senate amendments, 3608
Canadian National railways
Amalgamation, 916
Public ownership, 1939
Criminal Code Amdt. bill., 2831
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2809
Concurrence in amdts., 3486
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Dominion franchise, 1300

McKenzie, Hon. D. D. — Con.
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, 3473
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2826, 3026
Senate amdts. concurred in, 3486
Grain trade, alleged abuses of, 2840
Harbours and rivers, Nova Scotia, 1765
Interruptions, point of order, 558
Lake of the Woods regulation bill, 2991, 3202
Opium and Narcotic drugs, prosecutions, 2017, 3019
Public buildings, Ontario, 1248-51
Statutes, arrangement with Mr. W. J. O'Connor for revision, 1718
Sydney-Whycocomagh steamship service, 2031
Transcontinental railway, 917
Wheat Board, point of order, 2933

McKillop, Mr. Hugh C. (West Elgin)
Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu., 3362

McLachlan, Mr. J. B. See Nova Scotia Miners

McMaster, Mr. A. R. (Brome)
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734
Audibility of debates, 411
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Boy Scouts, 773
Budget, 2417. The Tariff a tax; German competition; purchasing power of the mark in Germany; working hours and conditions; production costs; Mr. Bristol's speech "made in Toronto"; prosperity of the United States; tendency towards free trade, 2418; Nova Scotia coal and steel industries; Dominion Iron and Steel Co.; watered stock; free trade in Australia; western farmers and protection; congratulations to finance Minister; inflation and depreciated currency; German competition, 2420; German imports and exports; cheap labour; international hatred and bitterness; treatment of French Canada after siege of Quebec, 2421; spirit of international peace and comity; trade with Germany; German rehabilitation necessary for stabilization of world conditions; fiscal policies of Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, 2422; free trade Great Britain; the big industries; the Safeguarding of Industries Act; history of free trade movement in England; the carrying trade of Great Britain and the United States, 2424; budget proposals; sales tax, 2425; cumulative payment by consumer; tariff reductions; Liberal McMaster, Mr. A. R. — Con.

Budget — Con.
party and tariff; revisions of 1904 and 1907, 2426; reciprocity agreement of 1911; Liberal platforms of 1893-1919, 2427; abuses of protection; price-fixing by manufacturers; tyranny of the trusts; collars and silk stockings; the new feudalism; the amendment, 2428; Liberal party stands for progress and freedom, 2429
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Customs dumping clause, 3418
Depreciated currency, 2420, 3411
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, 3467-75
Empire defence, Canada's responsibility, 1629
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 483
Essence de L'Erable, qu. 1774
German valuation of goods, 3227
Girl guides, 774
Immigration figures, 758
Insurance premiums, tax, 3257
MacBrien, General, utterances of, 1662
Militia and defence, expenditure and policy, 1628
Ministers and Directorships, M., 1084, 1128
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Point of order, reading of documents, 560
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1648
Public Accounts Com., first report, 1460
Railway Act, 1919, Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Root Vegetables bill, 3376
Sales tax, 3265
Special War Revenue, flour, 3265
Voting when paired, explanation, 1462
Wheat Board, 2957, 3185
Wheat Board bill, 3189, 3380
Amdt, 3384; agreed to, 3385

McMurray, Mr. E. J. (North Winnipeg)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech moved, 10. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; Miss Macphail; Lord Byng, 10; abnormal conditions at home and abroad; financial burdens; state-owned railways; agriculture unprofitable; tariff revision, 11; natural resources of western provinces, 11-12; seat for Hon. Mr. Stewart; unemployment; returned soldier problems; forest and mineral wealth, 12; immigration; wider markets, 13; War-time Elections Act; labour troubles; harmony between races, 14

McMurray, Mr. E. J. — Con.
Andrews, Mr. Alfred J., 1068, qu., 1182
Budget, 2474. Serious financial conditions, 2474; national debt; railroad deficits; legacy of the war; no constructive proposals; shifting the burden; production of wealth; Canada's future, 2475; immigration policy of former Liberal government; development of the West; prosperity interrupted by war; aggressive immigration policy needed, 2476; immigrants from central Europe; settlers from United States, 2477; exodus from Canada; statement of Lord Shaughnessy; declaration of Manitoba liberal convention; qualifications of the immigrant; criticisms of immigration policy answered; conditions in West improving, 2479; immigrants from the British Isles; foreigners and Canadian national life; the labour argument; policy of the United States; Canada's problems less than those of other countries, 2480; probable results of active immigration policy, 2481
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1439
Lake of the Woods Repeal bill, 3205
Natural resources, prairie provinces, 1017
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1527
Winnipeg strike, cost of trials, qu., 1182

McPherson, Mr. Duncan, superannuation of, 2805

McQuarrie, Mr. William G. (New Westminster)
Asiatic immigration, qu., 732. See also under this title, Oriental Aliens
British Columbia fisheries, M., 851
Budget, 2233. Progressive party' attitude towards Government; tariff reductions, 2233; reciprocity; British Columbia, protection of farms, mines and fisheries, 2234; free trade; immigration; unemployment; the amendment; pledges and moral code of the Liberal party; "political trickery"; Hon. John Oliver, Premier of British Columbia, criticism of by Vancouver Sun; alleged purchase by provincial government of warehouse site from President of Liberal Association; Vancouver World; resignation of provincial Attorney General, 2237; Minister of Public Works; national debt, 2238

McQuarrie, Mr. William G. — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, coal mined by Orientals, 2407
Carriage of mails, qu., 825
Census enumerators, payment of, 1367
Civil Service bonus, 733
Patronage, 3084
Salaries $960 and less, qu., 1660, qu., 1775
Condensed milk tax, 3269
Exhibitions, grants to, 1026
Indians, New Westminster agency, 3536
Oliver, Hon. John, criticism by Vancouver Sun, 2026, 2236-37
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3018, 3016
Oriental aliens, 872, 967, 3104
M. for exclusion or, 1509
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3445
Quebec fisheries, M. (Mr. Marcil) 169, 622. See also under this title, British Columbia Fisheries
Small manufacturers, 2710
Vancouver and Fraser Valley railway, 798
Widowed mothers, pensions, 3293

McTaggart, Mr. Neil H. (Maple Creek)
Budget, 2545. Congratulation to Finance Minister; budget proposals disappointing; speeches of leaders; debt, taxation, idle factories; unemployment; abandonned farms; readjustments in economic structure; downward revision of the tariff; failure of protection, 2545; sales tax; suggestion from Canadian Manufacturers Association; protectionist budget; revenue; investment of American capital in Canadian industries; abuse of Customs tariff by United States companies, 2546; duty on cigarettes, cameras; comparative prices in Canada and United States, 2547; tariff reduction; ability to compete with outside industries; Progressive party, 2548
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3006
Customs revenue, 770
Dominion lands, surveys, 1041
Saskatchewan, liquor export, 3006

Machinery. See Agricultural Implements

Madawaska customs collections, qu., 607

Magazines, American, imports of, 3109

Magna Charta, 1388

Mail Carriers. See Post Office

Mail Contracts. See Post Office

Mail Services. See Post Office; Railways; Steamship Services

Malcolm, Mr. James (North Bruce)
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 719
Budget, 2387. Tariff and taxation proposals of Minister of Finance, 2387; consideration given to all sections of country; sales tax; stamp and stock transfer taxes; automobiles tax; the tariff, 2388; United States tariff; reciprocity; British preference; American branch industries and export trade; marking and depreciated currency acts, 2389; income tax; effect on capital; confiscation; enterprise should not be discouraged; immigration, 2390; emigration; the farmer and industrialism; problems of prairie provinces; markets; transportation costs; fiscal policy, 2391
Goderich harbour improvement, 2001
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2002
Lake Huron, harbour of refuge, 2002
Soldier Settlement Act, 1919, Amdt., 2035

Management, Charges of. See Finance

Manion, Hon. Robert J. (Fort William and Rainy River)
Address in reply, 263. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; speech of Mr. Raymond, 263; different tariff policies of Liberals, 264; election campaign, 265; record of Union Government, 266; defeat of Union Government, 267; immigration; national debt and railway problem, 268; natural resources; St. Lawrence river waterway, 269; race and creed bigotry, 270; soldiers' re-establishment and pensions, 271; housing; tariff and protection, 272; railway rates, 273
Agriculture, subsidies to, 1698
Budget, 2261. Congratulations to Finance Minister; loans; Liberal and Progressive platforms, 2261; resolution moved by Minister of Finance while in opposition; the tariff, 2262; farmers and the budget; trade with Germany, 2263; foreign exchange; protective legislation in the United States; tariff for revenue; free trade not possible, 2265; sectional demands; Wheat Board; Crowsnest pass agreement; St. Lawrence river waterway; the home market; sales tax, 2266; Great Britain and tariff legislation; 2267; free trade

Manion, Hon. Robert J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
and protection, 2268; advisory tariff board or commission; cheque tax, 2269; receipt tax; the amendment, 2270
Burstall, Sir Henry, 743
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, claims qu., 606
Canadian National railways
Grain leakages, qu., 1401, 1930
Orders in anticipation of requirements 1698
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3481
Canadians emigrating, qu., 1182
Census, remarks by Mr. Johnston (Last Mountain) 1370
Civil Service Commission, 3087
Cost of living, 1057
Daylight saving, 948-9, 961
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1366
Dominion lands and surveys, 1037, 1039
Election pledges, cash bonus to soldiers, 403
Empire and Ascension days, 1760
Employment offices, 1058
Fisheries estimates, discussion, 2166
Forest protection, 1048
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 1999
Health, department of, 2017
High Commissioner's office, 414
Immigration
Estimates, opportunity for consideration, 2162-4
Physically fit, 3055-6
Policy, 756
Immigration dept., labourers, 3054
International Labour Conference, 1060
Labour Gazette, 1057
Labour, technical education, 460
Militia and defence
Arsenals, Quebec, 2093
Expenditure and policy, 2092
Officials, 586
Staff reduction, 422
Naval service staff, 418, 422
Navigation lights in Rainy River, 1499
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017, 3016
Prohibition, and, 2017
Parliament buildings, tower, 2016
Patronage, rural postmasters, 3083
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 788
Pension Board, 392, 1350
Regulations, change, 2995
Pensions
European war and active militia, 1361
Widowed mothers, 1311
Pensions Committee, final report, 3302-3

Manion, Hon. Robert J. — Con.
Point of order, general policy, 556
Public building, location of services in, 1757
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696, 1698
Returned soldiers, alleged treatment of children of, 2638
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3394, 3400
Revenue and protective tariffs, 719, 2265
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1200
Co-operation with United States, 2760
Grain transportation, 2758
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 445
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Estimates, details of, 1347
Expenditure, 1340
Hospital staff, 1345
Salary increases, 387
Soldiers' disabilities, 392
Unemployment relief, 1352
Vocational loans, 1346
Soldiers, land settlement, 2023
Statistics, co-ordination of work in, 1366
Steel industry, subsidies to, 1697
Tariff, permanent advisory board or commission, 2269
"Tories and militarists", 1598
Unemployment
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696
Situation, 1074
Vancouver and Fraser Valley bill, 798
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2758
Wheel chairs for invalids, 3115
Wrangel island, 2208

Manitoba
Agricultural College, western agricultural conditions, 2332
Court of appeal decision on Canada Grain Act, 1770, 1841, 1932-3. See also Wheat Board
Flags on public schools, 1265
Forestry in, 1046
Harbours and rivers, 2003
Liberal Convention, res. on immigration, 2478
Natural resources, control of, 24, 1018. See also Western Provinces
Norris, Premier, on freight rates and natural resources, 1017, 1213
Unemployment conference, 1069
University of, percentage of students of foreign extraction, 2151, 2157
White Mud river fishway, 2167

Manufactured Goods, tax on. See Customs Tariff

Manufacturers. See also Canadian Manufacturers' Association
Eastern Canada in, 2901
Income tax paid by, qu., 1063-4
Production of wealth by, 2378
Progress since 1870, 2658
Propaganda, 2362
Protection of, 55, 102-3, 144, 153, 303, 343, 2435-2440. See also Speeches on Address; Budget
Sales tax. See Special War Revenue

Manure, exportation of, 1018. See also Fertilizers

Maple Products. See also Health

Maple Products Act, administration of, 2017

Maps, Topographical. See Dominion Lands and Surveys

Marcil, Hon. Charles (Bonaventure)
Air force and civil aviation, 1733
Budget, 2905. Twenty-two years of parliamentary life; interest in the West; 2905; Liberal party and western development; a united Canada; hardships of pioneers, 2906; conditions and advantages of the western railways; market for the farmers; employment for the workingman; reciprocity; opposition of manufacturers; 2907; trade relations with United States; tariff reductions; British preference; development of St. Lawrence waterway; better understanding between East and West; the amdt., 2908
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Sub-amendment (Mr. Crerar), 2473
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1938
Canadian representation in the United States, 1383
Canned goods, marking, 3050
Census enumerators
Appointment of, 1371
Payment of, 1368
Census figures, verification, 1366
Civil Service
Commission, 3072
Patronage, 3074
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Debates, official report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2813
Fisheries, Gulf and Gaspesian coasts, qu. 1401
French-Belgian treaty, 3223

Marcil, Hon. Charles. — Con.
Gaspe railways, M. for papers, 623
House of Commons staff, stenographers and messengers, qu., 1376
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393
Insurance claims of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349
Meat and canned foods, 3047
Montreal Harbour Commission, Capt. Landry, 1481
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1800
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 3019
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444
Pension Commissioners, Quebec representation, 1350-1
Pensions, widowed mothers, 3293
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1656
Quebec fisheries, 377, M., 493, 616
Receipt tax, 3262
References to, 1298
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3395
Root Vegetables, potato bags, 3377
Rulings as Acting Speaker:
Member moving res. has right to close debate, 540
Member withdrawing motion, 545
Relevancy, 3539-40, 3542
Res. involving charge on revenue, 3476
Supply, point of order, 1337
Vocational loans to fishermen, 1346

Marcile, Mr. J. E. (Bagot)
Bankruptcy Act, qu., 703
Dominion Elections Act, qu., 470
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, qu., 377

Marconi Company, 1736, 1749

Margaree breakwater, 1767

Marine and Fisheries. See also Canada Shipping Act Amdts.; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; Fish and Fisheries; Naval Service. For vessels, see that title
Barkhouse, Captain, 1748
Biological Board, 3051
Demers, Captain, 1492
Deputy Minister of Fisheries, 2166
Derelicts, removal, Windsor, N.S., 1493
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Estimates, 1489, 1676, 2166, 3507
Examination of masters and mates, 1490

Marine and Fisheries — Con.
Life-saving
Equipment, qu., 1284
Services, 1494
Stations, qu., 367
Lighthouse and coast service. See that title
Little Current tug boat, 3086
Marine agencies, 1495
Marine signal service, 1499
Meteorological service, 1501
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Newfoundland coast, 1498
Rainy river lights, 1499
Navigation schools, 1492
Ocean and river service, 1676, 3507
Expenditure, 1494
Murphy, Capt. Frank, compensation, 3508
Relief of distressed seamen, 1676
Steel plates, 3508
O'Hara, Captain, 1490
Pilotage
Administration of, 1499
Exemption from dues. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.
Prince Rupert Drydock Co., claim, 3514
Publicity and marketing division, 2169
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Removal of obstructions from navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, maintenance, 1494
Select Standing Com. on, changes, 1398
Steamers and icebreakers, 1489
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Sorel shipyard
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed, 1062
War claims, adjustment of, 1677
Wrecking plants, subsidies, etc., 1493
Wrecks, investigation, 1492
Lambton, 1497

Maritime Provinces
Coal fields, 108, 2611. See also Coal
Condition prior to Confederation, 107
Intercolonial and, 107, 192. See also that title under Canadian National Railways
Natural resources, 340. See that title
Public buildings, 1243
Railways, 131
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1316

Mark, value of. See Currency, depreciated; Germany

Marketing of Wheat. See Wheat Board

Markets, Foreign, 221. See also Trade
Necessity for, 2149. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Reciprocity and. See that title
Restricted, 343

Marking Act. See Customs

Marking of Goods. See Budget; Customs Tariff

Marler, Mr. Herbert (St. Lawrence-St. George)
Address in reply, 243; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; unity of purpose in government; elections and the province of Quebec, 244; government by co-operation; railway situation, 246; merchant marine, 247; tariff revision, 248; Liberal tariff views; immigration, 249, 250
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 246-247
Insurance, qu., 605
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 486
Mines and Minerals, Com., on, 1398
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444-55
Pensions Committee
First report, 726
Final report, 3286, 3348
Adoption of, 2253
Meetings, 3335
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3393
Soldiers' Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3408
Speech on tariff before election, 240
Vickers, dry dock, qu. 936

Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 647, 754, 1012, 1032. See also Agriculture
Cattle embargo and, 1032

Martell, Mr. L. H. (Hants)
Agricultural exhibitions, 995-6
Barkhouse, Capt., 1748
Biological Board, Mr. Halkett, 3051
British Empire Steel Corporation, taxation, qu., 1067
British Preference and Canadian seaports, 719
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, passenger traffic, qu. 939
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1859
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771
Canned lobsters, inspection, 3048
Civil Service
Inside service, 580-1
Overmanning, 3081, 3100
Patronage, 3087

Martell, Mr. L. H. — Con.
Coal transportation on national railways, 1763
Cold storage, 818, 996
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 951
Departmental law officers, 683-4
Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway bill, 1163
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2818
Fisheries Protection service, 678, 1747
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Food inspection, 820
Income tax, qu., 366
Indians Sydney reserve, medical attendance, qu., 2216
Labour department salaries, 549
Legal costs, 2772
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C. Halifax, payments to, 2772
Marine and Fisheries
Capt. O'Hara, 1491
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
Ocean and river service, 3507
Select Standing Com., on, 1398
Wrecks, investigation, Capt. Demers, 1492
Meighen, "the King-maker", 35
Military expenditure, 1137, 1141
Militia dept., officials, 741
Motion transferred, 942
National Defence bill, 665, 737
Nova Scotia miners, 524
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3489
Opium and Narcotic Drugs bill, 3022
Parents, support of by children, 1310
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2015
Pelagic Sealing treaty, 1844
Pensions
Limitation of time for application, 2995
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1309
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3445-62
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim, 3504
Removal of derelict in channel at Windsor, N.S., 1493
Royal Canadian navy, 1855, 1890
St. John terminal facilities, 849
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, staff, 1343
Steamship services, freight rates, 2028, 3032
Welland ship canal, 2749
West Indies steamship services, 3032
Wheat Board, 3182
Windsor, N.S.,
Lease of wharves to C.P.C., 2749
Wreck at, 1493
Women and the franchise, 483

Massey-Harris Company, 1106, 2175. See also Agricultural Implements

Masters and Mates. See Marine and Fisheries

Matapedia Valley. See Quebec Oriental Railway

Match Industry, Occupational diseases. See Labour

Matches
Bill respecting, 1r., 3598
Tax on, 3262

Maybee, Mr. M. E. (Northumberland, Ont.)
Baxter, Mr. Charles, successor to, qu., 2457

Meat and Canned Foods Act, administration of, 967

Meat and Canned Foods Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3044; 1r., 2r., 3050; com., 3050, 3149; 3r., 3150

Meat Inspection, 226. See also Animal Contagious Diseases; Cattle Embargo

Meat Products. See also Live stock

Meats, Cold storage. See Agriculture

Medical Advisory Board. See Pensions Committee

Medical care. See Indians

Medical Examinations. See Returned Soldiers Insurance Act

Medical Inspection. See Immigration

Medicines. See also Opium and Narcotics
Duties, reductions in, 2116

Mediterranean of America, 1202. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur (Leader of the Opposition)
Abattoir inspectors, 969
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Address in reply, 19. Congratulations to mover and seconder; Miss Macphail; New Prime Minister; Limitation of Armaments conference, 19-20; census returns; expansion of trade, 20; Liberal speeches and campaign literature; Sir Lomer Gouin and Mr. Mitchell, 21; natural resources of western provinces, 22; tariff revision, 24; Liberal platform; speeches of Sir Lomer Gouin, 26; Hon. Walter Mitchell; the Prime Minister on the tariff, 26-27; Mr. Raymond, 27; Mr. Marler, 28; public ownership; 30; wider markets; Minister of Agriculture, 32; reciprocity pact; reduction of freight rates, 33; Liberal administration; negotiations with Progressives, 34; Mr. Crerar, 34-35; Newmarket speech; Union Government negotiations, 35; Mr. Gardiner's statement, 36; responsible government, 37; Orders in Council, 37-38

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Agricultural implements, duty, 3119
Agriculture Com. report, 726, 776, 1929. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Agriculture dept., Mr. Duncan Marshall, 645
Air Board, 1722
Details of expenditure, 1728
Estimates, 1722-35
Alien property, custody at Prince Rupert, 3606
Alpine Club, 794, 1053
Archives, 702
Assiniboine river floods, relief measures, 3491
Australia, reciprocity with, 9, 10, 2802
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Birthday, congratulations on, 3102
Borden, Sir Robert, correspondence, 373
International disarmament conference, 1283
Budget, 2523; Tribute to Finance Minister; financial position; debt; taxation and fiscal policy; moderate protection, 2524; free trade principles; the Netherlands, Belgium, 2525; Great Britain; abandonment of protection would mean disaster to Canada; ability to compete abroad; reciprocal trade; peculiar situation of Canada; United States an intermediary between us and the outside world, 2526; east and west routes of trade; reciprocal arrangement with United States; rejection of Reciprocity treaty; Fordney tariff, 2527; American farmers and competition in home market, 2527; free trade in wheat; results seen in United States tariff legislation; amendment, 2528; Liberal pledges broken; brazen apostacy; British preference; microscopic reduction in duties; Liberal platform of 1919, 2529; Finance Minister should have declared his position; tariff; general reduction and detailed adjustment, 2530; voters betrayed; contract broken; revised policy of Liberal party; declaration of Prime Minister; promised reductions in duties on food, 2531; clothing, building materials; failure to implement pledges, 2532; responsibility of Progressive party; invitation to Government to abandon pledges; grant to returned soldiers; Mr. Crerar's position, 2533; amendment to amendment; failure of Progressives to achieve their desire; responsible government; agricultural implement duties; 2534; Opposition votes for government; freight rates; faults of the budget; German and Austrian trade; exchange; inflation of currency; marking of imports, 2535; Government by Order in Council; dumping clause; possible tariff reductions; sales tax; Mr. Raymond and agricultural implement duties; Hr. Macdonald (Pictou) and steel and coal duties, 2536; special platforms for individual constituencies; Government's difficulties of their own creation, 2537

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Budget — Con.
Budget amendment, 2338
Building trades, 583
Business of the House, 373
Amdt. to amdt., (Mr. Crerar) 2522
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Daylight saving, 1282
Debate on naval service estimates, 1742, 1900
Debates, Official, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Decorum, 2090
Delay in proceeding with, 7
Further legislation, inquiry, 2996, 3102, 3365
Government orders on Mondays and Wednesdays, 1461, 1720
Privilege, right of member to raise on orders of the day, 2638
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660
Supplementary estimates, 3364
Wednesday, hour of sitting, 49
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill (Pilotage) 1487
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, Senate amdts., 3614
Canadian National parks, 1053
Canadian National railways
Accounting, 1918
Amalgamation of system, delay, 2585
Canadian Northern, 1907
Deficits, 1918

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Canadian National railways — Con.
Estimates, 1907-54
Minister's annual statement, 912
Canadian offices in England, co-ordination, 414
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1747
Cash grants to soldiers, 393, 394, 2533
Liberal pledge, 400
Relevancy, 404
Cattle embargo, 985
Alleged statement of High Commissioner, 1022, 1463
Census enumerators, appointment, 1368, 1372
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497
Chinese customs tariff, 3168
Civil aviation, 1722
Civil Service Act, 1368
Civil Service
Classification, Arthur Young Co., 1491
Economy, 2057
Marine and Fisheries department, 1491
Militia services, organization of, 423
Reorganisation of, 2061
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1491
Russell, Mr. T. A., superannuation of, 1667
Coal for public buildings, 1758
Committees, changes, 497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Half-breed scrip, 3103, 3211, 3219
Mr. Woodsworth Special Com., second report, 1988
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 104-11-21-24-49-53. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Customs
Drawbacks, 766
Dumping clause, 2535-6, 3119, 3413, 3421
Estimates, 763
Valuation for duty, 3225, 3414
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 948
Debates, Official Report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Defence, preparation for, 1621. See also under this title, National Defence
Demobilization, military hospitals, 1262
Deville, Dr., 1044, 1048
Dinosaurs, museum specimens, 1237
Director of commercial intelligence, 700
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1283, 1334
Dominion Elections Act, 470
Dominion Iron & Steel Company
Contract for steel plates, 1677
Damage action against Govt., 2170

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Dominion lands
And surveys, 1044
Homestead re-entry, 1042
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, bill, 3466-75
Senate amdts., 3614
Editorial Committee, 1235-6
Election campaign, 21, 187
Election of Speaker, 2
Election promises, 21
Liberal handbook, 400
Ellesmere Island, 1751
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 479
Estimates
"Appropriations not required," 1269
Information not up-to-date, 1267
This year's accounts charged to previous years, 1715
Exemption of farmers' sons, 440
Experimental farms, expenditure, 1264
Extra-territorial rights, 1068
False creek bridge, 3516
Finance, deputy minister, 751
Fire prevention, 794
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Freight rates. See also under this title Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Crowsnest pass agreement, 3589
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3589
Special Com., ref. to, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1213
Third report, 3589
Gasoline tax, 3116
Gaspé railways, 627
Genoa conference, expenses, 1715
Geological survey, co-ordination of survey work, 1236
German goods, valuation, 3225
Government departments, payments to each other, 1724
Grain Inquiry Commission, 50
Grand Trunk Railway
Arbitration, British newspaper article, 375
Financial statement, 1933
Harbours and rivers
Expenditure for 1921-22, 1269
Prince Edward Island, 1270
High Commissioner
Alleged statement of, 1022, 1463
Office, 414
Hydrographic survey, 1746
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1503, 1988
Immigration — Criminal Code bills, 3284

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Immigration dept., 3051
Black Mr., appointment, 3500
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 755
Work of, 760
Immigration of Hutterites, 2160
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Income tax
Comparison with systems in other countries, 2228
Naturalization, and, inquiry as to legislation, 3103
Non-resident aliens, M. (Mr. German) 1303
Income War Tax Act. Amdt., 3359
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 3192
Indian Affairs
Estimates, 681, 684, 1712
Indians
Agitation and unrest, 1223
Complaints, 1223
Expenditure, 1216
Hospital grants, 1218
Medical attention, 1218
Six Nation reserve, 1222
Soldiers Settlement Board, 1222
Stony reserve school, 1229
Insurance department, 792
Interim Supply bill, 380
Interior Department
Conservation Commission employees, transfer, 457
Estimates, 3517
Printing and stationery, 1680
International Labour Conference, 3437
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 424, 428
Justice dept. salaries, 452
Labour department
Duplications, 577
Salaries 550
Lake of the Woods Repeal bill, 2991, 3200, 3207, 3435
Lawyers, employment in Justice dept., 1679
League of Nations, 3162, 3171, 3174
Limitation of Armaments, 43
Loyalty of western Canada, 1023
McCoig, Senator, attendance before Com. on Agriculture, 1900
Marine and Fisheries
Life-saving service, 1494
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Steamers and icebreakers, 1490
Marler, Mr., and railway situation, 28, 247
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, appointment, 3501
Meat and canned foods, 3045, 3050

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 640
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, proposed reduction of vote, 1620-9
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2091, 2096
War claims, adjustment of, 417
Mines department
Additional officials, 689
Estimates, 686
Ethnologist and ornithologist, 687
Ministers and directorships, 1104
Montreal Harbour Commission, 1489
National Defence bill, 663, 674, 734, 738, Senate amdts., 2807
Natural resources, transfer to western provinces, 41-42
M. for correspondence, 1509
Naturalization Act Amdt. bill, 3436
Naval defence, 1862-1900
Naval policy, 2056-81
Naval service, 1738
Empire defence, contribution to, 2081
Niobe, sale of, 2065
Royal Canadian navy, 1741, 1862-1900, 2056
Empire defence, needs of, 1741
Minister's proposals, criticism of, 1741
Staff, 418
Nelson, Mr. Frank, 3517
Norris, Premier, reported statement, 1213
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 503, 524-539, 544, 597, 1054
Nova Scotia Supreme Court, vacancy, 3437
Ocean and river service, expenditure, 1494
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3426-32
Orders in Council, government by, 663, 2535-6
Ore-dressing plant, 1235
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1561, 1567, 1575
Paper milk bottle caps, 3114
Parliament buildings, lighting, 1755
Parliament, fall session, 3609
Peace and war, 1621
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 789
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1350, 1351
Charges against, 3041
Representation of Quebec, 1351
Pensions
European war and active militia, 1353
Expenditure under report of Special Com., 3522

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Ploughs, duty on, 3123, 3125
Amdt. (Mr. Johnston, Last Mountain, 3230
Political alliances, 2097
Political promises — Mr. Hoey, 2338
Portage la Prairie exhibition, qu., 1391
Post Office estimates, 691
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3504
Prices, deflation of, 1216
Prime Minister, private secretaries, 410, 412
Prime Ministers' Conference, 1629
Correspondence, 1068
Naval defence, 1742
Lord Lee, reported statement of, 1742
Report, reference to, 5
Prince Rupert Dry Dock & Engineering Co., 3514
Privy Council, increases, 410
Promises of Union Government, 2339
Public buildings
Coal for, 1758
Flags, 1264, 1268
Generally, expenditure, 1262
Heating, 1758
Maritime provinces, 1243
Ontario
Alleged neglect by former government, 1249
Appropriation and expenditure, 1245-59-60
Ottawa
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, 1267
Water, 1266
Public expenditures, 1249
Public Works
Classification, 693
Estimates, 692, 697, 699, 747
Public buildings, 1755. See also under this title, Public Buildings
Salaries, 749
Quebec fisheries, M. (Mr. Marcil) 377, 493 622
Quebec Harbour Commission
Inquiry for papers, 1283
Political patronage, 1477
Resignation of former commissioners, 1477-8
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1477
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Railway Commission
Chairman, alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 3491
Freight rates, 193

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Railway estimates, 409
Railway policy of Government, inquiry, 407
Railways, annual statement of minister, 921
Raymond, Mr., and the tariff, 255, 2536-7
Reciprocal trade with Australia, 10, 2802
Inquiry for correspondence, 9
Reciprocity with the United States, 2845
Redistribution, 733, 3611
Census, and, 1364, 1367, 1371
Resolution should embody bills, 3179
Returns, inquiry for, 1283
Rideau hall, fuel and light, 1756
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 734
Amalgamation with Dominion Police, 673
Estimates, 2129
Ruling of Chair, 3354
St. John quarantine station, 1241
St. John terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 844
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity to, 3522
Secretary of State, estimates, 701
Seed grain advances, 1053
Seed grain commission, 1011
Soldier land settlement, 3294, 3296
Estimates, 2135
Homestead rights, 2135
Land purchase, irregularities charged, 2139
Taxes, collection of, 2135
Soldiers' bonus, 393, 394, 400, 404, 436, 2533
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Hospitals, 1262
Medical treatment, 392
Parliamentary Com., 393
Salary increases, 385
Unemployment relief, 1352
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment bill, 3597, 3609
Sorel shipyards, dismissal of employees, 1283
Speaker, Mr., bereavement of, 496
Speaker's election, 2
Statistics, co-ordination of work, 580, 1366
Statutes, revision of, 1718
Steamship subsidies, 3505
Steel, structural, importation, qu., 1931
Stefansson expedition, 1750
Supply. See also under this title, Estimates
Concurrence, 1769
Method of discussion, 1142
Motions in, 1579
Latitude in discussion, 2238
Supreme Court estimates, 1274
Tariff Commissioner, appointment of, 1663
Tariff revision, 2540
Tourist traffic, 1682

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Tractors, duty on, 3124
Trade and Commerce officials, 700-01
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, 3490
Trial of Indian Lebeaux, expenses, 1669
Unemployment
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Canadian coal, use of by railways, 1759
Insurance, 1080
Policy of government as to, 3491
Relief, 1719
Situation, 1079
Welland canal, 2750
United Grain Growers, agricultural implements, 3120
United States, discriminatory legislation 1303, 2527-8
Washington conference. See also under this title, Naval Service
Empire naval defence, 1744
Papers, 1283
Welland canal, 2750
Western provinces, natural resources. See Natural Resources
Wheat Board, 2915, 2924, 2953, 3175, 3184, 3190, 3381, 3386. See also under this title, Agriculture Committee
Concurrence in report of special Com., delay, 2306
White, Mr. James, employment of, 3495
Winnipeg strike, Mr. Alfred J. Andrews, 1069
Wrangel island, 1750
Yukon territory
Administration of, 1681
Expenditure, 1275
Radiotelegraph service, 1749

Melchior, Dr., on value of German mark, 2645

Mellish, Mr. Justice, 1275

Melville, Sask., railway restaurant, qu., 2038

Members. See House of Commons

Memorials, War. See Baker, Lieut. Col.; Battlefields; Historic Sites; War Graves Commission; War Memorials

Mennonites. See Immigration

Merchant Marine. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Merchants' Bank. See that title under Banks and Banking

Mercier, Mr. Paul (Westmount-St. Henri)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, seconder, 15. Change of government; Baron Byng of Vimy, 16; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; encouragement of agriculture, commerce and industry, 16-17; immigration; labour, 17; financial burdens; political parties, 18
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 638
St. Lawrence river waterway, 786, 1333
M. (Mr. Church) 1396

Meredith, Sir Vincent, 1128

Messengers and Stenographers, qu., 1376

Metal File Cabinets, 1252

Metals. See Mines and Minerals

Meteorological Service, magnetic observatory, 1501

Mexico
Postal rate to, qu., 3364
Trade with, 699, 700, 2989

Mewburn, Hon. S. C. (East Hamilton)
Ammunition shipment from Great Britain, 1169
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Hamilton post office building, 1246
Military expenditure and policy, 1152, 1579
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1152, 1579
Expenditure and policy, proposed reduction, 1579
Services co-ordination, 416
National Defence bill, 665, 666, 737, 744, 745
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, industrial disputes, 667
Royal commission on pensions, 386

Michaud, Mr. Pius (Restigouche and Madawaska)
Audibility of debate, 385
Criminal Code Amdt., fines, payment, 2832
Customs revenue, qu., 607
Damage by floods in New Brunswick, 3492
Edmundston
Post office, qu., 608
Public building, 1242
German reparations, qu., 375
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
St. John terminal facilities, 847
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2753
Welland ship canal, 2753

Migratory Birds, 1684

Military Forces, preparedness. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Servicee

Military Hospitals, 1261, 1341, 1344, 3287-9, 3345. See also Pensions Com. report; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 1339-48

Military Service. See also Pensions Com.
Medical inspection, 3317

Military Service Act, powers under, 780

Military Service Act, 1917, Repeal bill (Mr. Woodsworth
1r., 424; order for 2r., stands, 493; M. for 2r., 639; Mr. Speaker rules bill out of order, 644

Militia and Defence. See also National Defence bill
Adjustment of War claims, 1155, 2098, 2974
Air force, 1722
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Ammunition, 2085
Shipment from Great Britain, 1156-63, 1337
Small arms, 1979
Annual drill, 1137, 1139, 1144, 1146, 1151, qu., 1285, 1335, 1578, 1610, 2835
Amdt. (Mr. Power) to reduce vote by $1,100,000, 1174, 1578
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Lapointe) to reduce vote by $400,000, 1579; agreed to, 1631
Expenditure for 1911-21, qu., 1287
Armouries
Fittings and alterations, 1261
Quebec, qu., 1287
Arsenals
Danger of attack by aeroplanes, 2085-98
High explosive shells, 1170
Lindsay, 1165, 1171, 1979
Site, purchase of, 2087-8
Quebec, 1165, 1171, 1978-9, 2085
Amdt. (Mr. Lapointe) to reduce vote by $50,000, 2091; agreed to, 2098
Amdt. (Mr. McBride) to reduce vote by $110,000, 2091; neg., 2098
Customs duties, 1978
Rivière du Loup, qu., 1181
Burstall, General Sir Henry, retirement of, qu., 1211. See also National Defence
Cadet camps, 1147, 1973, 2202
Militarism, 1974
Cadet services
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce vote by $100,000, 1972; agreed to, 1978

Militia and Defence — Con.
Civil pensions, 1711, 3499
Clothing and necessaries, M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by, $21,000, 1978
Defensive forces, 1135
Demobilization expenditure, 1155, 1163
Department
Estimates, 415, 586, 1578, 1610, 1972, 2974, 3498
Reductions, 1174, 1578, 1631, 1972-87, 2091-98
Salaries and contingencies, 415, 586, 1985
District auditors, 1145
Engineer services and works
M. Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $50,000, 1980
Expenditure
Policy and, 1174, 1335, 1578, 1610, 2202. See also under this title, Arsenals, Naval Service
Reductions proposed by minister, 1578
Reduction of, 1135
1890-1913, qu., 1285
1911-22, qu., 1287
First Canadian Contingent, qu., 1376
General staff, 1145
Generals, 1145
Gwatkin, General, retirement of, qu., 1211. See also National Defence
Lindsay arsenal. See under this title, Arsenals
Long Branch rifle range, qu., 372
Lord Grey on military protection, 1136
MacBrien, General, 1151
Reported utterances of, 1662
Maintenance of military properties, 1980
Military districts, 1580, 1775
District No. 12, 1602
London, 1983
Toronto, 1983
Military holiday, 1146, 1338
Military hospitals, 1341. See also that title
Militia council, qu., 2039
Montreal ordnance stores building, 1245
Munitions. See also under this title Ammunition
Shipment from Great Britain, 1154-63
Officers and men at headquarters, 1775
Ordnance arms and lands
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $9,000, 1982
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Pensions. See also that title
European war and active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Permanent force, 1136, 1147, 1152, 1580, 1982
Estimates, 1982

Militia and Defence — Con.
Permanent force — Con.
Expenditure, 1140
Royal Canadian Artillery, 1982
Strength of, 1136
Ten years' service or more, qu., 2637
Prince of Wales Leinster regiment, qu., 1065
Quebec arsenal. See under this title, Arsenals
Rental of buildings, 1764
Royal Military College, 1985
Schools of instruction
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $50,000, 1985
Service overseas, 1140-80
Shed on Cartier square, Ottawa, qu., 2038
Staff, 661
Pay of, amdt., (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $10,000, agreed to, 1982; amdt (Mr. Sutherland) to reduce item by $25,000, neg., 1982
Tobin, Lieut. Col., and 29th Battalion, 1975
Topographical maps, qu., 1632
Topographic survey, 1985
Training areas, 1986
Training camps, qu., 2584
Transport and freight, 1986
Amdts. (Mr. Hanson) to reduce by $60,000 and (Mr. Spencer to reduce by $10,000, 1987
War claims, adjustment of, 1155, 2098, 2974
Warlike stores, 1137, 1154-63
Sale of, 1171-3

Milk. See also Dairying Industry
Competition with Klim, 981
Condensed, tax, 2492, 3264-5, 3271, 3409
Filled milk and cream, qu., 963
Herds supplying. See Accredited herds
Paper caps for bottles, 3114
Products, taxation, 3263-4

Milking Machines, 3270

Mill Feeds, adutleration of, 1012, 2490. See also Grain and Grain Trade

Millar, Mr. John (Qu'Appelle)
Agricultural implements, price of, 1476
Agriculture
Condition and prospects of, 1475, 2163
Plant pathologist, 593-4
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2736
Banks, interest rates, 3601
Beet sugar industry, 3251
Budget, 2294. Congratulations to Finance Minister; war indebtedness; failure

Millar, Mr. John — Con.
Budget — Con.
to meet larger proportion of cost during the war; public debt; revenue and expenditure; encouragement of basic industries; agriculture bled white, 2294; monopolies and political contributions; labour unions; extracting profits from the consumer, 2295; insufficient tariff reductions; agriculture languishing; price of gasoline; Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Meighen on the tariff, 2296; the tariff and mergers; increased prices of textiles; white lead, protective duty added to price; sales tax, the poor man hit, 2297; free food, boots and shoes; protection and wages; average income tax by classes; cost of fostering home industries, 2298; income tax, introduction of; loan companies, 2299
Canadian National railways
Branch lines, 1476, 2772
Freight, careless handling of, 1965
Census
Completion of, 1363
Registration of Canadians, 1363
Civil Service, overmanning, 401
Dairy industry, 980
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 485
Estimates, 401
Expenditure, necessity for economy in, 401, 1475
Export liquor warehouses, Saskatchewan, 767, qu., 1211
Legality of, qu., 1660
Fish culture, 2169
Fishing schooner race, 3513
Fort William-Port Arthur terminal elevators, qu., 1210
Hudson bay railway, completion of, 2784
Immigration
Foreigners, loyalty of, 2163
German, 3052
Policy, 2163
Indians
Education and health, 1228
Round lake school, 3537
Liquor
Export warehouses, 767, qu., 1211, qu., 1660, 3001
Importation into Saskatchewan, qu., 2037, qu., 2303
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 3142
Loan companies, renewal of loans, 1476
Parsons, W. Reuben, qu., 3362

Millar, Mr. John — Con.
Quebec harbour advances, 1475
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1198
Grain transportation, 2756
Saskatchewan liquor export. See under this title, Liquor
Soldier land settlement, land purchases, 2139
Terminal elevators, overages, qu., 1210, 2837
Welland canal
Estimates, amdt. to reduce vote by $4,000,000, 2758; neg., 2764
Grain transportation, 2756
Wheat Board bill, 3385, 3181
Woollen goods, duty on, 3136

Milling Combines, 304, 2633. See also Wheat Board

Milne, Mr. Robert (Neepawa)
Agriculture dept., officials, 654
Budget, 2239. A six country; new fiscal policy needed; amendment; no solution; loss of faith in political parties, 2239; economy; tariff inconsistencies; unfairness as between manufacturer and farmer; free raw materials and protected product; sales tax, 2240; farmers and the income tax; agriculture the mainstay of the country, 2241
Fishways in White Mud river, 2167

Milton, speech of Hon. Mr. Murphy, at, 2562

Mineral Resources Bureau. See Imperial Mineral Resources

Mineral Waters, tax on. See Taxation

Mines and Minerals. See also Coal; Geological Survey; Natural Resources
Assay office, Vancouver, 1236
Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1237
Clay products, 1234
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237
Lignite Utilization Board, 3524
Machinery and tools, reduction in duties, 2116
Mineral rights. See Soldiers' Settlement Act Amdt.
Miners' strike, district No. 12, 1058
Mines dept.,
Estimates,, 685, 1233
Salaries, 685
Statistical branch, 1366
Topographical maps, qu., 1632
Ore dressing plant, 1236

Mines and Minerals — Con.
Publications, 1234-6
Resources, 12
Investigation of, 1234
Reduction in vote, 1236-62
Road and materials, 1234
Select Standing Com., 1398
Tar sands, 1236
Yukon, mineral discoveries, 1276

Ministers and Directorships, 241-243
M. (Mr. McMaster), 1084; neg., 1131
Bank directors, 1091
Bank of Montreal, 1129
Board of Railway Commissioners Act, 1088, 1101
Borden, Sir Robert, 1089
Directors of large corporations, names, 1128
Government's attitude, 1095-1117, 1124
Great Britain, practice in, 1089-99, 1107-1128
House of Commons and Senate Act, 1088, 1100, 1111, 1113, 1129
Interlocking directorates, 1086, 1100, 1115, 1129
Judges' Act, 1088
Merchants' Bank, 1085, 1096, 1121
Practice in other countries, 1090, 1096, 1101, 1114
Tariff beneficiaries, 1088
White, Sir Tomas, 1089, 1102

Ministers of the Crown
Salaries, 1093, 2895
Trips to Europe, 14

Minority Candidates. See Elections

Minority Government. See Elections

Minors, sale of drugs to. See Opium and Narcotics

Miscou-Shippegan Islands, service, 2029

Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 46, qu., 471

Mitchell, Mr. Walter (St. Antoine)
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3002
Carriage or transportation, amdt., 3008
Canadian National railways
Deficits, 1910
Investigation proposed, 1908-17
Public ownership and operation, 1907
Rails and car repair contracts, 1694, 1709, 1961
Reference to by Mr. Meighen, 21, 207

Monckton Papers, purchase of, 1673

Moncton
Intercolonial headquarters, 313, 355, 2289
Railway shops, 1709

Money. See also Banks and Banking; Currency; Finance
Gold standard, 1291
Purchasing power of, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603, 2629. See also Address; Budget
Mark, German. See Germany

Money Bills. See Appropriation; Supply

Montpetit, Professor. See Genoa Conference

Montreal (city)
Bank of. See Banks
Canadian National railways' employees, 1288
Census figures, 1366
Clerks of the peace. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Cold storage warehouse, 819
Customs and excise employees, 1288
Foreigners, immigration of, 1392-4
Income tax office, qu., 607, 1288
Merchants' Association, 1392
Ordnance stores building, repairs, 1245
Post office employees, 1288
Post offices, business done, qu., 1065
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, staff, 1342
Suburban steam service, 135
Wages of workmen, 1465

Montreal (port). See also British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu., 2631
Employees, qu., 2992
Expenditure to date, 1488
Facilities, 1472, 1473
Grain shipments through, 1489
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Revenue, 1465
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1183-1209, 1315-34

Montreal Gazette
Canadian National railways, 1923
King-Crerar alliance, 206
Montreal Harbour Commission, resignation, 1481

Montreal Harbour Commission, 1289, 1335. See also Quebec Harbour Commission
Employees, 1289
Harbour master, Capt. Landry, 1481
Paint purchased, qu., 602
Policemen, qu., 2992
Resignation of commissioners, 1478-81
Tugboats, qu., 600

Montreal Harbour Commission Advances bill
Res., 1335, 1488; 1r., 1489; 2r., com., 3r., 3199

Monty, Hon. Mr., and conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill

Monuments. See also Battlefields; War Memorials
Historic sites, 119, qu., 469
New Brunswick, historic sites, qu., 469
Parliament hill, qu., 936

Moore, Mr. Tom, and immigration, 3053

Moosejaw public building improvements,

Morgan, J. P., & Company, 1131, 1133

Morganatic Alliances. See Alliances

Morin, Mr. L. S. René (St. Hyacinthe-Rouville)
Canadian Northern railway, qu., 368
Wheat Board, 2926

Morphine. See Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Morrison, Mr. John (Weyburn)
Budget, 2699. Comparative prices of wheat and farm implements in Saskatchewan and North Dakota; shifting burden of taxation, 2699; exports of farm implements; competition in foreign markets; protection of industries; customs tariff inadequate to raise revenue, 2700; excise duty on manufactured goods; expense of running the Government; to much overhead, 2701; comparative development of Canada and the United states; freight rates and Crowsnest pass agreement, 2702; export rates on manufactured goods and agricultural products; prices of hides, wool, boots and shoes and clothing; exchange value of wheat and commodities, 2703
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3005
Crowsnest pass agreement, 2702
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1425-6
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 836
Sales tax collections, qu., 375
Saskatchewan liquor exports, 3005
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 435

Morrissy, Mr. John (Northumberland, N.B.)
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1992
Provincial wharves, 1992

Mothers, Widowed, pensions to. See Pensions

Motherwell, Hon. W. R. (Minister of Agriculture)
Abattoir inspectors, 969
Accredited herds, 649, 999
Diseases, 969
Valuation, 1003
Adulteration of mill feeds, 1012
Agricultural Fertilizers bill, 1282, 3041, 3043, 3195
Agricultural Instruction Act, 1013
Agricultural lecturers, 1024
Agriculture department
Deputy Minister's salary, 653
Employees, 651
Estimates, 644, 1718, 3504, 3520
Lynton, Mr. T. J., 588
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 645, 651, 1013
Officials, 654-5
Professional men, 589
Salary increases, 588, 657
Saunders, Dr., 590
Alderson claim, hog cholera, 1004
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2102, 2734-43, 2806
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Budget, 2548. Fulfilment of election pledges; Liberal platform of 1893, 2548; tariff pledge; British preference; reciprocity, defeat of, 1911; free trade, 2549; unrestricted reciprocity; cry of annexation; opposition of manufacturers to proposal, 2550; Canada's tragic mistake; protection; infant industries; protection for the farmer, 2551; not a protectionist budget; a substantial step in right direction; Liberal platform of 1919; revision of Progressive platform, 2552; excise duty on manufactured articles; revenue, 2553; free trade and revenue duties; motor cars; Mr. Crerar's pre-election statements; gradual reduction of tariff, 2554; elimination of protective feature; Regina speech; time inopportune for drastic action, 2555; Department of Agriculture; accredited herds; tuberculosis in cattle, 2556; cold storage; experimental farm system, 2557; staff; Civil Service Commission, 2559; patronage, 2560
Canada Temperance Act Amdt bill, 2998
Carvell, Hon. F. B., 2773, 2774, 2778-9
Cattle embargo, 970, 979, 1021
Cattle, free carriage of, 1029
Cold storage, 818, 998, 1024, 2557, 3521

Motherwell, Hon. W. R. — Con
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2834
Dairies, inspection of, 1006
Dairy produce, grading, 652, 656
Dairying industry, 982
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 3520
Entomology
Botanical section, 816
Insect pests, 815
Exhibition grants, 649, 979
Experimental farms, 795, 799, 804, 812, 1014, 2557
Illustration farms, 3521
Fertilizers
Inspectors, 692
Manure, exportation of, 1021
Grasshoppers, 3520
Health of animals. See also under this title, Accredited Herds
Contagious diseases, 967
Hog cholera, 1008
Compensation, 1028
Tuberculosis, 2556, 3521
Hogs, grading of, 1025
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2784
International Institute of Agriculture, 969
Klim, competition with milk, 981
Liquor, export of, 2998
Live stock industry, 978
Feed shortage in western Canada, 1030
Grazing and feeding, 1719, 3522
National live stock records, 1027
Provincial governments, overlapping, 997
Stockyards, 1030
Wolves, destruction by, 998-999
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
Mixed farming, 998
Oleomargarine, 654
Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1804
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3358, 3425-32, 3487
Pure bred sires, 1032
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement in regard to, 2773, 2774, 2778-9
Root Vegetables, sale and inspection of, 1282, 2724, 3142, 3194, 3369, 3486
Rust investigations, 594
Saskatchewan liquor export, 2998
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity to, 3522
Seed Grain Commission, 1011
Spruce bud moth, 595
Wheat Board, 377, 2940
Wheat Board bill, 3382
Wool industry, 997

Motor Cars, Theft of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Motor Trucks for transportation, 134

Mounted Police. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Moving Pictures. See Trade and Commerce

Mowing Machines. See Agricultural Implements

Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu., 3363

Municipal Prison Farms, 1277. See also Prison Reform

Municipal Taxation, payment of by Government, 1256

Municipalities
Unemployment relief, 1069

Munitions. See Guthrie; King, Mackenzie, Militia and Defence; War

Munro, Mr. E. A. (Fraser Valley)
Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1793
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1537

Murdock, Hon. James (Minister of Labour)
Building trades, 583
Canmore and Drumheller coal miners' dispute, 1058
Civil Service, report of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 554
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1054
Cost of living, 1058
Employment offices, 1058
Gordon, Sir Charles, 584
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
International Labour Conference, 1060
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour department
Classification of employees, 494, 575
Director of technical education, 578
Economy and work, 465
Estimates, 1970, 3526
Outside employees, 493, 494
Permanent and temporary employees, 460-1
Staff and salaries, 458-9, 562, 575
Statistical work, 580
Wage investigators, 462
Labour Gazette, 1058
Militia and Defence
Cadet services, M. to reduce item by $100,000, 1972

Murdock, Hon. James — Con
Militia and Defence — Con.
Clothing and necessaries, M. to reduce item by $21,000, 1978
Engineer services and work, M. to reduce item by $50,000, 1980
Ordnance arms, lands, etc., M. to reduce item by $9,000, 1982
Pay of staff, M. to reduce item by $10,000, 1982
Nova Scotia miners, 46, 1054
Labour department officer, 585
M. (Mr. Irvine) 505
Printing Bureau, 1970
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696, 1701
Unemployment relief, 1074, 1719, 2022, 3526
Policy of government, inquiry, 3491
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696
Whitley councils, 1061
Winnipeg strike, correspondence with Mr. Andrews, 2042

Murphy, Hon. Charles (Postmaster General)
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Militia expenditure and policy, 1582
National Defence bill, 677
Post Office department
Employees
Bonus, 2801
Salaries, 691, 2801, 3504
Estimates, 1711, 2799
Inspectorates, reorganization, 1507
Outside service, 2799
Railway mail service, 2800
Reorganization, 2800
Rural mail delivery contracts, 2800, 2801
Subletting, 2802
Yukon, parcel post, 2802

Murray Bay-Tadoussac service, 3035

Musk Ox in northern Canada, 2785

Mutton, imported, qu., 610

Mutual Insurance. See Insurance

Nanaimo, B.C Post office revenue, qu., 2040

Nanton, Sir Augustus, 1128

Narcotic Drugs. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289

Nassau Dam, qu., 2457

National Battlefields Commission. See Battlefields Commission

National Debt. See Public Debt

National Defence. See also National Defence bills
Department of
Ashton, Major General, 661
Burstall, Major General Sir Henry, 661, 742
Canadian air force and civil aviation, 1722
Currie, Sir Arthur, 659, 743
Elmsley, Major General, 661
Gwatkin, Major General, 742
MacBrien, Major General, 661, 742
Morrison, Sir Edward, 661
Naval students in armories, physical drill, 1741
Services, co-ordination, 91, 97, 1747

National Defence, Department of, bills respecting
1. No. 15. 1r., 363-4; order for 2r., discharged, 547-8
2. No. 27. Res., 644, 657; 1r., 2r., com., 681; com., 733; 3r., 787; Senate amdts., 2806
Sections and subjects discussed:
Air Service, 658, 677
Amalgamation of services, 658
Appointment of officer to exercise powers of deputy, 737
Controller, 741
Defence Council, 746
Deputy Minister, 737
Desbarats, Mr. J. B., 737
Federal laws, enforcement of, 680
Holder of position abolished may be appointed to another, 741
Militia, 658
Naval Service, 658
Officers, retirement of, 661, 742
Officials, 736
Orders in Council, 661
Powers of Minister and deputy, 746
Regulations, 746
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 658
Secret service, 670-9
Services included, 733

National Gallery, 2011

National Industrial Conference, unemployment insurance, qu., 1375

National Livestock Records, 1026

National Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

National Railways. See Canadian National Railways

National Status. See Canada

National Transcontinental Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Nationalists, 187
Conservative alliance with, 2095. See also Naval Service
Naval policy and, 1849, 1877

Natural Resources. See also Forestry; Mines and Minerals
Alienation of, 2245, 2992
Coal lands, 3465, See also Coal
Development, 269
Foreign ownership of, 2243. See also United States
Investigation of mineral resources, 1234
Northern Canada, in, 2779-99
Water powers, 1051. See also that title
Western provinces of, 88, 89, 100, 116, 154, 168, 223, 229, 339
Aerial patrol, 1722
Agreement with Government of Manitoba, 1018
Claims of prairie provinces, 1017
Conference with premiers, 1017
Tabled, 1769
Norris, Premier, reported statement, 1213
Transfer of, M. (Mr. Meighen) for correspondence, 1509

Naturalization. See also Dominion Elections Act

Naturalization Act, 1388, 1390
Disabilities of British-born under, 1389-91
Expenses, 1671, 2024
Further legislation, inquiry, 3103

Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. bills
1. Residence (Mr. Archambault) 1r., 1062
2. Method of application (Mr. Copp) 1r., 3436

Naval Armaments. See Limitation of Armaments

Naval College. See under Naval Service, Royal Naval College

Naval Defence. See Naval Service

Naval Fortifications. See Limitation of Armaments

Naval Service. See also Marine; National Defence
Aurora, qu., 827, 1736, 2051
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1898. See also that title

Naval Service — Con.
Canadian navy, members stranded, 3365
Cruisers and destroyers, expenditure, qu., 2039
Department
Deputy Minister. See National Defence
Estimates, 1843, 1862, 2043
Reduction in, 2371
Naval council and officers, qu., 1774
Salaries, 418, 1735, 1745
Dockyards, Halifax and Esquimalt, officers, 1752
Fisheries protection service, 665, 678, 1736, 1740, 1747
Gift of ships to Canada, 2050
Hydrographic service, 1736, 1746
Naval college, 2047, 2203, 2458
Naval defence
Contribution of dominions, 1742
"Five trawler policy", 1741-5
Naval policy, 2043-84
Naval volunteers, 2058
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Pensions, widowed mothers, 1305
Protection of fur seals, 1844
Radiotelegraph service, 1736, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, qu., 366, 1843, 1862
Aurora, cruiser, qu., 827, 1736, 2051
Debate postponed, 1742-5, 1900, 1072
Dreadnoughts, contribution of, 1876
Esquimalt naval station, 1740
Estimates, 2043
Gift of ships to Canada, 1880-7, 2050
Halifax, protection and service at, 1740
Naval reserve force, 1739
Naval volunteer force, 1740
Niobe and Rainbow, 1736
Patricia, 1736, 2051
Patriot, 1736, 2051
Policy adopted, in 1913, 1876
Resolution of 1909, 1873
Ships to be taken out of commission, 1740
Submarines, 1845
Training, 1740
Travelling expenses, qu., 3156
Trawlers, 1740
Units, cost, etc., qu., 965
Warships and torpedo boats, qu., 827
Royal Naval college, Esquimalt, 2044
Closing of, 2047, 2203, 2458
Tidal surveys, 1736
Transfer of services to Minister of Marine and Fisheries, 3611
War claims, adjustment of, 1752
War service badge, 1754

Navigation. See also Marine
Aids to, 1498
Detroit river, 1498
Life-saving equipment, qu., 1284
Rainy river lights, 1499
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1183
Schools of, 1492

Navy. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; National Defence; Naval Service; Royal Canadian Navy

Neill, Mr. Alan W. (Comox-Alberni)
Address in reply, 169. Congratulations to preceding speakers; Miss Macphail, 169; comparison of parties; British Columbia and protection, 170; Mr. Crerar, 170-171; Orientals in British Columbia, 171; personal position and platform, 172-3; unemployment; wider markets, 174; railway rates, 175; the tariff; free trade and protection, 176; Chinese eggs, 177; butter and oleomargarine, 177-8; coal mines in Vancouver Island; fuel oil importations, 178; Hon. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Clements; vote in Cumberland district, 179; railways and government ownership, 180; necessaries and luxuries, 182; immigration, 182-3; Asiatics, competition with; soldier settlement, 183; inheritance tax; eight hour day; old age pensions; removal of Dominion Elections Act from statutes, 184
British Columbia
Coastal services, qu., 3152
Fisheries, cost and revenue, 2306
Fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 860
Post offices, qu., 824
Public buildings, 1258
British Columbia house, London, purchase of, 3537
Budget, 2307. Free trade and protection: a question of geography, 2307; the tariff, a compromise; economic position of British Columbia; support of government during session; expenditures in Vancouver and Victoria; rural constituencies neglected, 2309; political arguments for Conservative members; fruit industry and dumping clause; Oriental aliens; exclusion of, 2310; acquisition of British Columbia timber areas by Japanese; immediate action demanded; the workingman and the eight hour day; lumber industry and freight rates, 2311; protection of coal mining industry against fuel oil; importation of coal from Japan; fishing industry; reduction in gasoline practically no benefit to fishermen; dairy industry; fruit industry; dumping clause; industries of Comox-Alberni, 2313; country districts suffering injustice; views of constituents, 2314
Canadian Freighter, Japanese coal imports, qu., 963
Civil Service reform, 3100
Courtney post office building, 1258
Criminal Code, carriage of calves under three weeks' old, 2831
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1438
Debates, official report, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Debeaux, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2811
Election day a public holiday, 2812
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women M. (Mr. Euler) 485
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1354, 1439, 1602-6
Amdt. 1156, neg., 1163
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3012
Fuel oil, British Columbia, qu., 728, 2312
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
House of Commons, accoustics, 3544
Immigration
Methods, 3057
South-eastern Europe, from, 3057
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Intending immigrants to make application) 2207
Indians, medical attention, 1219
International Labour Conference, qu., 824
Japanese in British Columbia, 2310. See also under this title, Oriental Aliens
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 521
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and importation, M., 1777, 1836
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3016
Oriental Aliens
Japanese, acquisition of timber areas in British Columbia, 3210
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1539
Paper mills, 3113
Pensions Com., final report, 3332
Point of order
Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1360
Rule 19, offensive words, 1361

Neill, Mr. Alan W. — Con.
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, fair wage clause, 1469
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt., 3407
Special War Revenue Act
Sales tax, 3269
Stumping powder, 3268
Statistics, co-ordination of, 581

Neill, Mr. C. E., 1128

Nelson post office revenue, qu., 2040

Neutrals and Non-Combatants. See Limitation of Armaments

New Brunswick
Floods, 3492
Harbours and rivers, 1991
Amdt. (Mr. Guthrie) to reduce vote, 1998
Immigration and, 2165
Public buildings, 1239
St. John and Quebec railway, 1293, qu., 1774
Salmon rivers, fishways, 2167
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment staff, 1344
Wharves
Provincial, 1991
Tidal waters in, qu., 2209
Transfer of, qu., 2305

New London, Conn., seaport, 2611

New York Central Railway, 128

New Zealand
Butter. See Oleomargarine
Government ownership of railways, 181

Newfoundland
Canada-Newfoundland steamship service, 2027
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Reid-Newfoundland railway, 2027
Trade between Prince Edward Island and, 226

Newfoundland-Labrador Boundary
Reference to Privy Council, 1276
Doherty, Hon. C. J. reported engagement of, 2572
White, Mr. James, technical adviser, 3495

Newmarket, speech of Prime Minister at, 34-35

Newspapers
Censors, 1069
English, comment on Grand Trunk arbitration, 374, 821
Extracts. See Speaker, Rulings

Niagara Power Development, 134. See also Electrification; St. Lawrence river waterway

Nickel. See also Coinage

Nickel Coin Blanks, qu., 3152

Nickel Currency. See Currency Act Amdt.

Niobe and Rainbow, 1736. See also Naval Service

Non-Taxable Bonds. See Bonds; Finance

Norman Dam. See Lake of the Woods

Normand, Hon. Dr., references to. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Norris, Hon. T. C., Premier of Manitoba
Natural resources, 1017
And freight rates, reported statement on, 1213

North Sydney quarantine station, 1238, 2021

Northern Islands and Waters
Patrol. See Naval Service
Policy respecting, 1750

Northwest Rebellion
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, pensions. See Pensions
Smith, Mr. Leo, pension to, 3523

Notices of Cancellation. See Dominion Lands

Nova Scotia
Admiralty, local judge in, 1275
Air station at Dartmouth, 1724
Coal industry, protection of, 2412
Coal strike, 461. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 1269, 1765
International deep sea racing. See that title
Liberal party in, 2606
Migratory birds, resolution of legislature, 1684
Pensioners in, qu., 615
Public buildings, 1238
Shipbuilding, 1387
Supreme Court, vacancy, 3436
Unemployment, 1075-6

Nova Scotia Miners, qu., 605, 1054. See also Labour
Inquiry, 597
McLachlan correspondence, qu., 704
M. (Mr. Irvine) 497, 539, 545

Noxious Gases and Chemicals, use of. See Limitation of Armaments

Observatory. See Dominion Observatory

Occupational Diseases. See Labour

Ocean
Ports, 1464-86
Tonnage, 2008
Vessels
Quebec, 1471
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1183-95, 1205

Ocean and River Service. See Marine

O'Connor, Mr. James, Snowflake, Man., dismissal, 1674

O'Connor, Mr. W. F., K.C.
Payments to, qu., 2037
Revision of statutes, 1718

Official Report of Debates. See House of Commons

O'Hara, Captain, 1490

Oil. See also Natural Resources
Duty on oil drilling machinery, 2726
Fuel Oil, 344, qu., 728
Competition with coal mining industry, 2312
Importations, 178
Tank at Louise basin, 1484
Tariff against, 1761
Leases, speculation in, 1046
Mackenzie and Peace river, cost of surveys, 1044

Okanagan Valley, fruit growing, 163. See also Budget; Customs, Dumping clause; Fruit

Old Age Pensions, 184, 1070, qu., 1375. See also Pensions
And mothers' pensions, qu., 1375
M. (Mr. Fontaine) 1303-5

Oleomargarine, 2205. See also Agriculture; Butter; Dairying
British Columbia Dairymen's Association, res., 1794
Children fed on, 178
Competition with butter, 177
Further legislation, inquiry, 3041
Great War Veterans' Association, 1798
Importation and Manufacture, qu., 613, qu., 1506
Discontinuance of, M. (Mr. Neill) 1720, 1776, neg., 1840

Oleomargarine — Con.
Local Council of Women, Hamilton, 1835
Materials, importation of, qu., 704, qu., 727, 3270
National Dairy Council, and, 1791
Regulations under Act, qu., 1702
Retail Merchants' Association and, 1797

Oleomargarine Act, 1919, Amdt. bill (Extension for one year)
Res., 3358, 3425; 1r., 3435; 2r., 3487; com., 3489; 3r., 3489

Oliver, Hon. John, Premier of British Columbia, criticism of by Vancouver Sun, 2236, 2237

One-Fourth Vote. See Interim Supply

Onion Grades, 2744. See also Root Vegetables

Ontario
Alienation of natural resources, qu., 2992
Canals, 2779. See also that title
Flags on public schools, 1265
Harbours and rivers, 1999
Historic battle sites, 119-120
Hydro Electric Power Commission. See that title
Public buildings, 1245
Appropriations not required, 1259
Improvements, repairs, etc., 1258
Rural population, loss of, 301. See also Budget; Population
Taxation of, 131
Water powers. See Lake of the Woods

Ontario Athletic Commission, cadet camps, 1973

Ontario Temperance Act. See Canada Temperance Act

Opium and Narcotic Drugs. See also Health
Chinese, 2018
Cocaine, 2019
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1377
Enforcement of Act
Prosecutions, 2017
Japanese, 2017
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Morphine, 2019
Oriental traffic in, 1529, 2017. See also Oriental Aliens
Production and export of, 2019
Prohibition and, 2017
Smuggling, 2020

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill
Res., 1841, 2823; 1r., 2826; 2r., com., 3013; 3r., 3025; Senate amdts., 3607

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. — Con..
Sections and subjects discussed:
Appeal, restriction of right, 3020
Dealing in drugs, 3013
Deportation, 3013, 3024
Penalties, 3013, 3014, 3020
Whipping, 3015

Opposition. See also Progressive Party
Attitude of, 60-61. See also Speeches on Budget
Position of. See Interim Supply
Representation in Parliament, 40
Status of leader of, 73

Orchards, protection of. See Entomology; Fruit Industry

Orders in Council, qu., 935
Canadian National railways, management, 192
Government by, 38, 141, 660, 662, 2518, 2536, 2562, 2880
Intercolonial railway operation, 107
Number passed, qu., 934, qu., 935

Ordnance Lands, local improvements fronting, 1681

Orient, trade with, 85. See also Trade

Oriental Aliens, 967
Australian legislation, 1536
Birth rate, 317
British Columbia in, 167, 171, 316, 332, 855
Resolution of legislature, 1513
Restrictive legislation, 1510
Canadians, disabilities in Japan, 1511, 2208
Chinese, 1510, 2026 3437
Arrival of at Vancouver, 3604
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2020
Coal mined by, 2407
Coolie labour on British ships, 2042
Demands for exclusion of, 1513
Education, cost of, 317
Fisheries, engaged in, 345, 855
Franchise and, 483, 485
Fruit growing and, 1535. See also Fruit Industry
Gentlemen's agreement, 1511
Immigration, 319, 2161. See also that title
Chinese. See also under this title, Chinese Restriction of, M. (Mr. Stevens) 1776
Inquiry for opportunity to discuss, 967, 1461, 3104
Japanese
Restriction of, M. (Mr. Stevens) 1776

Oriental Aliens — Con.
Rights of Canadians in Japan, 1511, 2208
Minister's statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2148
Written application by intending immigrants, 2207
Japan, treaty with, 1511
Japanese, qu., 1399, qu., 1459, 1510
Acquisition of timber limits in British Columbia, 2310
Competition in British Columbia, 2279
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017. See also that title
Labour, competition with, 317
Land occupation by, 1534
Number in Canada, 1512
Motion (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1509
Amdt. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil) for "effective restriction", 1567; agreed to, 1577
Canada's right to legislate, 1550
"Effective restriction", 1567
Opium and Narcotic drug traffic, 1529, 2017

Osler, Sir Edmund, 1128

Ottawa
Cartier square Militia dept., shed, qu., 2038
Daly building, purchase of, 1252
Daylight saving, 1282
Dominion observatory and geodetic survey building, 1265
Local improvements fronting ordnance lands, 1681
New departmental buildings, 3541
Noon gun, 1756
Ottawa Gas Company bill. See Private Bills Discussed
Ottawa-Kingston highway, qu., 1904
Parliament buildings, 2014. See also that title
Proposed donation of Rideau canal to, 2764
Public buildings, 1245, 1252, 1265, 1755
Char service, 1756
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, including roads and bridges, 1267
Rental of buildings in, 1252, 1764
Rideau hall, maintenance, 1756
Telephone service, 1757
Water, 1266

Ouimet, Mr. Joseph Rodolphe (Vaudreuil-Soulanges)
Introduction of, 323

Outside Service. See Civil Service

Overages. See Grain and Grain Trade; Elevators

Pacific and Great Eastern Railway, 342

Pacific Naval Powers. See Limitation of Armaments

Pairs. See House of Commons, Divisions

Palais Station, Quebec, 1068

Palestine, mandate over, 1716

Panama Canal, 191, 1326-9. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Panet, Mr. L. C., appointment as Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 5

Paper Control Inquiry, 1673

Paper ror magazines, taxation, 3108

Parc St. Charles, 1469, 3197. See also Quebec Harbour Commission

Parent, Mr. George (Quebec West)
Appraisers, Paris and London, 1068
Civil Service examinations, 871
Insurance premiums, 3253
Labour dept., organized and unorganized labour, qu., 2303
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 641
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Quebec bridge, 1068
Quebec riots, qu., 1508
Royal Canadian Artillery, qu., 370

Parents, support of by children, 1310. See also Pensions; Widowed Mothers

Paris Agency, 2025

Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

Parliament
Fall session, 3608
Opening of, 1
Prorogation of, 3616
Representation of provinces in 1877, qu., 1183

Parliament Buildings
Architects' fees, 2014
Cost to date, 2014
Estimates, 2014
Furniture, purchase of, 1757
House of Commons Chamber, accoustics, 1751, 1755, 1996, 3613. See also that title
Lighting, 1755
Tower, 2016

Parliament Hill monuments, qu., 936

Parliamentary Counsel, 2572

Parliamentary Guide, 2024

Parliamentary Procedure. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Parliamentary Restaurant
Com. appointed, 326
Loss in, 184

Parry Sound
Lighthouse inspector, qu., 827
Postal receipts, qu., 938

Parsons, Mr. W. Reuben, qu., 3362

Party Representation, 214

Party System of Government, 2339. See also Address; Budget

Party System of Politics, 117-118, 214, 215. See also Address; Budget

Passenger Rates. See Railway Act Amdt. bills

Passport Office, 2066

Patent Record, 2026

Paternalism. See Pensions Committee

Patricia, warship, qu., 827. See also Naval Service

Patriot, warship, qu., 827. See also Naval Service

Patriotic Fund. See Canadian Patriotic Fund

Patronage, 2608. See also Budget; Civil Service; Speeches on Address
Appointments to penitentiary, 1277
Census enumerators, appointment of, 1368, 1372
Civil service, 1663
Civil Service Commission, 2559, 2563
Intercolonial railway and, 106
Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Peace River block, 330

Peace Treaties. See Limitation of Armaments; Treaties

Pears, Vice Admiral Sir Edmund, 2061

Pearson, Mr. John A., Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Pearson Institute, Toronto, 3457

Pease, Mr. E. L., 1128

Peat. See also Fuel; Natural Resources
Committee, 1505
Deposits, experiments and production, qu., 1505
Investigational work, 1235

Pecuniary Claims Convention with United States, 1276

Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 1844

Penitentiaries. See also Justice; Prisons
Appointments, 1277
Death of inmates, qu., 3362
Dorchester, prison reform, 1278
Estimates, 1276
Supplementary, 1670
Infectious diseases. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill
Inmates
Foreign and native, 1279
Increase in number, 1277, 1279, 1670
Inspection by grand juries, 1743. See also Prison Reform
Kingston, overcrowding, qu., 3362
Patronage, appointments, 1277
Population, increased, 1277, 1279, 1670
Prison reform. See that title
St. Vincent de Paul, employees and number of convicts, qu., 2804

Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, (Infectious diseases) 1r., 545; 2r., 787; com., 787; 3r., 967

Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill
Res., 1132, 3043; 1r., 3043; 2r., com., 3r., 3148

Penny Banks, depositaries for money received, 1132

Pension Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3358, 3402; 1r., 3405; 2r., com., 3439; com., 3459; 3r., 3463; Senate amdts., 3612
Sections and subjects discussed:
Application for pension, 3445
Blinded men, 3456
Bonus payments continued, 3451
Deserted mothers, 3439
Disability at or prior to discharge, 3452
Disability attributable to, incurred or aggravated during military service, 3453
Pension to widow, 3447
Power to cancel pension of prostitute, 3451

Pension Act Amdt. — Con.
Sections and subjects discussed — Con.
Residents in Canada, 3446
Time within which application must be made, 3445
Total and helpless disability, 3446
Widowed mother, 3439

Pension Commissioners, Board of
Amalgamation with Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept., 1339-40
Charges by G.W.V.A. against, 2994, 3041. See also Speeches on Address
Memorandum of Chairman in reply, 2994
Royal Commission to investigate, 3156, 3304, 3312, 3327, 3336, 3345, 3352, 3355-6
Expenditure, 1349
Imperial pensions, 1347-51
Medical examinations, 1343
Salaries and contingent expenses, 1339, 1349
Secondary boards, 1350
Staff, 1351

Pensions. See also National Defence bill; Railways
Civil, 1711
Commutation of, 390, 1281, 1349
Crimean war, 3315
Disabilities, 390
European war and active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Fabre, Madame, 2024
Fenian raid, 3315
Grand Trunk railway employees, 2041. See also that title under Canadian National Railways
Imperial Forces, M. (Mr. Ladner) 864, 1347-51
Increased, 184
Investigation. See under this title, Roya Commission
Lightkeepers, 1496
Maternity benefits, 1070
Mothers, qu., 1375
Deceased soldiers, of, M. (Mr. Power) 1313
Northwest rebellion, 3523
Nova Scotia, payment in, qu., 615
Old age, 184, 1070, qu., 1375
M. (Mr. Fontaine) 1303, agreed to, 1305
Returned soldiers, 320, 327. See also Returned Soldiers
Royal Commission on, suggested, 386. See also Pensions Board
Sickness, 1070
South African war, 3315
Total expenditure on, 1349

Pensions — Con.
Widowed mothers, 1312, 3324
M. (Mr. Power) 1305, 1313
Widows, 1070
Wrenick, Mrs., 3457

Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment of Returned Soldiers
Special Committee appointed, 496-7
Change in names, 596
First report, 726
Final report, 3286
M. (Mr. Marler) for adoption, 3286
Amdt. (Mr. Shaw) to refer back, 3308; Withdrawn, 3349
Recommendations, expenditure under, 3522

Pilotage
Administration of, 1499
Dues, exemption from, 1500. See also Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill
Fees to pilots and regulation of, 1499

Pleuro-Pneumonia. See Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals

Ploughs, duty on. See Agricultural Implements

Pocket-Knives, Competition, 2646, 2876. See Budget; Currency, depreciated; Customs Act; Germany

Police Commissioners, bribing of. See Criminal Code

Political Alliances, "Morganatic", 2095. See also Nationalists; Progressive Party

Political Contributions, by Monopolies, 2295. See also Election of 1921

Political Patronage. See Patronage

Polls. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Pollution of Streams, 2168

Pool Selling. See Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Population. See also Budget; Census; Immigration
By ages, qu., 1632
Drift towards the cities, 2153, 2302
Increase under Liberal and Conservative govts., 2362, 2365
Loss of, 2439-40, 2449
Rural. See under this title, Rural
Ten years, in, 2516
Need of increased, 2148-58, 2275

Population — Con.
Oriental in Canada, 1512. See also Oriental Aliens
Rural, 2564-5
Decline in, 2153, 2156, 2158, 2384, 2439-40, 2449, 2683
Loss in Ontario, 2369, 2683
Movement to cities and towns, 2153, 2302, 2403
Urban, and, qu., 376
Infant mortality and, 2634
Slow growth of, 2158
Yukon territory, 1681

Pork Imports, qu., 611

Port Arthur
Canadian Towing and Wrecking Co. claim, 1677

Port Dalhousie, 1493

Port Hood breakwater, 1768

Port Nelson, dredging, 2006

Portage La Prairie
Assiniboine river floods, 1842, 2004
Exhibition grant, qu., 1931
Post office revenue, qu., 2040

Porter, Mr. E. G. (East Hastings)
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3457
Trenton harbour bill, 3494
Wrenick, Mrs., pension, 3457

Portland Terminus, 2611
Competition with Canadian ports, 104, 2611. See also Grand Trunk Railway; British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)

Ports, United States in preference to Canadian, 353-4

Postal Conference, 7, 15

Postmasters. See Civil Service; Post Office

Post Office
Department
Appointments, 3073
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Classification, 3089
Employees receiving salary of $600, qu., 1067
Estimates, 1711
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary and duties, qu., 3599
General superintendent of postal service, 1711
Married women employees, qu., 1658

Post Office — Con.
Department — Con.
Money Order branch, qu., 1285
Outside service, estimates, 2799
Postal employees, 3075
Printing and stationery, 1741
Salaries and contingencies, 69, 3504
Drop letter rate, 1250
Letter rate, Canada-Great Britain, qu., 3364
Mail, carriage of, qu., 825
Mail contracts
Canadian National railways, qu., 2038
Canadian Pacific railway, and, qu., 2040, qu., 2213
Gascons-Quebec, qu., 2213
Grand Anse, qu., 938
Lachenaie, qu., 2805
Richmond and Wolfe, qu., 1505
Rigaud-St. Rédempteur, 1776
Sudbury, qu., 1285
Money orders tax, 2857
Montreal
Employees, 1288
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary, qu., 3599
Post offices and business done, qu., 1065
Postal receipts, qu., 938
Postmasters
L'Assomption-Montcalm, 1775
Sturgeon falls, qu., 1285
Post offices in British Columbia, qu., 824
Railway mail service, 2797
Reorganization, 2799
Revenue, qu., 2040
Richmond and Wolfe post offices, qu., 1507
Ruling respecting newspaper or magazine subscription, qu., 3599
Rural mail routes, qu., 3152
Savings banks, reduction in interest rate, qu., 1932
Sherbrooke inspectorate, qu., 1507
Subsidized steamships and carriage of mails, 2028
Toronto, revenue, qu., 368, 1250

Potatoes
Conference of growers, 3367
Cost of growing, 2665
Duty on, 239, 2601
Grading machines, 3126
Market for, 225
Marking and grading. See Root Vegetables
Prices of, 94
Shipment to Cuba, 2028
Shipping cost. See St. John Terminal Facilities
Trade with United States, 336. See also Budget

Potlatch Institution. See Indians

Poultry Industry, 226, 807

Power, Mr. C. G. (Quebec South)
Admiralty Court, vacancy at Quebec, 1275
Cash grants to soldiers, 394
Fishing schooner race, 3510
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C. (Halifax) payments to, 2772
Militia
Annual drill, amdt. to reduce vote by $1,100,000, 1173, 1174, neg., 1631
Engineer services and works, 1980
Expenditure and policy, annual training, 1611
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3402, 3443
Pensions
Mothers of deceased soldiers, M., 1313
Widowed mothers, M., 1305, 1312
Point of order — not permissible to read evidence to controvert member, 3540
References to, 1339
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3396
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 398

Power Development. See Electrification; Hydro Electric; St. Lawrence River Waterway

Prairie Provinces
"Annexation of", 1020
Forestry in, 1046
Natural resources. See Western Provinces

Pratt vs. Delphine, 302

Preference, trade. See British Preference; Trade; United States

Premiums, Insurance tax on. See Special War Revenue

Prescriptions, refilled. See Opium and Narcotics

Preservation of Industries Act, 2648

President Harding, St. Lawrence river waterway, 1326

Press. See also Canadian Press; Newspapers
Censors, 1068

Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3503

Prevost, Mr. Jules E. (Terrebonne)
Bertrand, Mr. T., qu., 937
Budget, 2577. Tribute to Finance Minister, his difficulties and responsibilities; the Prevost, Mr. Jules E. — Con.

Budget — Con.
tariff, 2577; proposals in harmony with Liberal policy; new taxes; inheritance of debts from former governments; effort to lower cost of living; economy, 2578; national debt; militia or naval expenditure; expansion of external trade; decrease in exports; restoration of normal conditions, 2579; Canadian market insufficient for natural products and manufactured goods; trade with Great Britain and the United States; Fordney tariff; transportation; interior systems of communication, 2580; direct intercourse with foreign countries; duty of the department of Trade and Commerce; consuls and trade agents; information; trade commissioners; qualifications, 2581, fairs and exhibitions; serious problems; the future; new political groups; development of Canadian national spirit, 2582
Civil Service Commission report, qu., 826
Dominion Elections Act, residential qualification, 1298
Imports and exports, 1911-1922, qu., 1661
Militia and Defence
Annual drill
Expenditure 1911-21, qu., 1287
Armouries in Quebec, qu., 1287
Expenditure 1911-22, qu., 1287
Stationery, purchase of by Government, 1288

Pribyloff Islands, protection of fur seals, 1844

Prices. See also Budget; Cost of Living; Finance; Trade
Price-fixing combinations, 2428, 2437
Regulations of, 2504

Prime Minister's Bereavement, reference to death of brother. See King

Prime Ministers' Conference, 42. See also Naval Service
Anglo-Japanese Treaty, 168
Correspondence, 1068
Empire naval defence, 1629, 1883, 2082
Canada's contribution, 1742
Resolution respecting, 1742
Opportunity for discussion of, 2042
Report, 5
Tabled, 8
Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Prince County, illegal fishing, qu., 371

Prince Edward Island
Harbours and rivers, 1270, 1988
Migratory birds, resolution of legislature, 1684
Natural resources, 339
Potato-growing, 225, 337
Public lands, 229
Railway, 229, 337, 1249. See also Canadian National Railways

Prince of Wales Leinster regiment, qu., 1065

Prince Rupert
Alien property, custodians of, 3601
Post office building, 1257
Post office revenue, qu., 2040
Prince Rupert Dry Dock & Engineering Co., 3514
Rental of buildings, 1257
Vessels constructed at, qu., 606

Princess Mary, marriage of, 39

Printers, immigration of, 3055

Printing. See also Printing Bureau; Publications
Canadian National menus, qu., 1931
Customs and excise, 1674
Joint Committee on, 211, 326, 1132
Public archives, 1673

Printing Bureau
Government printing, 1373
Government publications, distribution of, 1971
Legislation, 1972
Plant
New, 1970
Repairs and renewals, 1970
Statutes, 1972
Supreme Court reports, 1274

Printing and Stationery
Criminal Code, 1717
Interior, 1680
Post Office department, 1711
Statutes, 1717

Prison Reform, 1277-8; qu., 1773, 2397
Atlanta penitentiary, 1278
Dorchester penitentiary, 1278
Inspection by grand juries, qu., 1773, 2397
Jail farms, 1277-9; qu., 1773
Youthful offenders, qu., 1773

Prisoners, Contagious diseases of. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill

Pritchard, Mr. John (North Wellington)
Address in reply, 250. Congratulations, etc., parliamentary groups and class representation, 250; manufacturers and the tariff, 251; agricultural conditions, 252
Experimental farms, 806, 810

Private Bills, Committee, 374
Bouchard, Mr., substitution for Mr. Stein, 2035
Vien, Mr. substitution for Mr. Ouimet, 2355

Private Bills Discussed
Canadian Pacific Railway Company
Amdt. (Mr. Carmichael) 1606, 1856
Canadian Transit Company, 1746, 1770
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490, 3495
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co., 1353, 1439
Amdts. (Mr. Neill) 1156, neg. 1163; 1354, neg. 1357; 1602, neg. 1606
Fraser Valley and Southern Railway Company, 1577
Montreal, Joliette and Transcontinental Railway Company, 1577
Niagara River Bridge Company, 1486
Ottawa Gas Company, refund of fees, 1657

Private Bills Undiscussed. See Journals of the House

Private Secretaries. See Privy Council

Privilege, questions of. See House of Commons

Privy Council
Appeals, 139
Salaries and contingencies, 410

Proclamation. See Canada Temperance Act

Progressive Party, 295. See also Address; Budget; Canadian Council of Agriculture; Crerar; United Grain Growers; Wheat Board
Alleged split, denial, 2458
Alliances of, 2095-7
Attitude towards Government, 2233, 2507, 2842
Big interests and, 2393-4
Budget debate and, 2692
Canadian Pacific, and, 130
Class legislation and, 224. See also Address; Budget
Liberal negotiations with, 34, 48, 51, 240-1
Oleomargarine, attitude on, 2380. See also that title

Progressive Party — Con.
Ontario in, 2301, 2893-4
Origin of, 2512
Platform, revision, 2552
Redistribution, attitude towards, 1364-70

Prohibition. See also Canada Temperance Act; Liquor
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017

Property, alien enemy. See Aliens

Proportional Representation, 59. See also Dominion Elections
M. (Mr. Good) for adoption of alternative vote method, 1633
Residential qualification, 1301

Prorogation of Parliament, 3616

Proscription. See Criminal Code (Scrip frauds)

Protection, 143, 228. See also Address; Budget
Boots and shoes, 102
Manufacturers and, 2435-40. See also Budget
Policy of, 1088
Tariff and, 170, 2110. See also Tariff

Protocols. See League of Nations

Provinces. See also Natural Resources. For individual provinces, See their titles
Air Force and civil aviation, 1722
Unemployment relief, 1069
Western. See that title

Provincial Rights, infringement. See Lake of the Woods bill

Ptomaine Poisoning. See Meat and Canned Foods

Public Accounts. See also Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act
Committe, report, 1460, 3359
Date of closing, 1264-66
Non-productive assets, 1467

Public Archives
Estimates, 702, 1673, 2025
Monckton papers, purchase of, 1673

Public Buildings, 1755. See also their respective titles; Public Works; Supply
Alberta, 3545
Appropriations and expenditures for 1921-22, 1259-60
Chambers, Mr., 1244
Char service. See Ottawa

Public Buildings — Con.
Coal, importation of, 1759
Estimates, 1238, 1258, 1755
Expenditure, accounts not closed, 1262-66
Fittings, supplies and furniture, 1757
Flags, qu., 599, 1264
Generally, 1260-5
Heating, 1755-1758
Immigration, repairs, 1757
Maritime provinces generally, 1243
New, 1255, 2461
New Brunswick, 1239
New departmental designs, 3541
Nova Scotia, 1238
Ontario, 1245-59, 1258, 3544
Alleged neglect of, 1248
Ottawa, 1245-52, 1265, 1755. See also that title
Parliament buildings. See that title
Penitentiaries, 1277
Quebec, 1245
Rental and purchase of, 1764
Calgary, 1254
Ottawa, 1252
Prince Rupert, 1257
Waterbury, Mr., retirement of, 1244

Public Debt, 2106, 2225, 2370, 2496, 2501, 2895. See also Address; Budget; Finance; Loans
Taxation and, 2459

Public Expenditure, 1249, 2276, 2860
Capital expenditure on harbours and rivers, 1472
Comparison by departments, 1137
Debt, and, 2557
Dominion and provincial overlapping, 2461
Economy in, 1475. See also Address; Budget
In 1877 and 1922, qu., 1211
Income and, 2104
Reduction of. See Address; Budget; Militia and Defence; Naval Service

Public Harbours. See Harbours

Public Health. See Health

Public Lands. See Dominion Lands and Parks; Natural Resources

Public Ownership. See Address; Budget; Canadian National Railways; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway

Public Service Retirement Act Amdt. bill (Extension for one year)
Res. 1661, 3025; 1r., 2r., com., 3025; com., 3148; 3r., 3149

Public Services, nationalization of, 2324, 2328. See also Address; Budget; Canadian National Railways

Public Works. See also Public Buildings; Supply
Bridges. See that title
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal of, ques., 1902, 2458, 2584
Department
Carty, Captain, 1062
Chief Architects' Branch, qu., 963
Estimates, 1238, 1755, 1988, 3531
Estimates branch, 1270
Expenditures, 1249
Minister, selection of from British Columbia Government, 2238
Salaries, etc., 692, 747
M. (Mr. Boys) reduce item, 695, 699
Harbours and rivers. See that title
Miscellaneous, 2008
New public buildings, 1256
Quarantine stations, 1238-45
Public buildings. See that title
Roads and bridges, 2007
Burlington, 2007
Edmonton, 2007
Telegraphs and telephones, 2007, 2012
Unemployment relief, 1082
Yukon territory, expenditure in, 1275

Publications, Government. See also Editorial Committee
Co-ordination and economy, 1374
Demand and distribution, 1344, 1971
Geological survey, 1237
Mines, 1234-6
Printing and translation, 1373. See also Printing Bureau
Printing, unnecessary, 1374

Publicity Agent. See Labour

Pulp and Paper Industry, 2322. See also Natural Resources; Paper Control
British Columbia in, 175
Export duty on pulpwood, 2667

Purchasing Commission, 2674
Coal, for public buildings, 1758
Estimates, 2025
Goods purchased, origin of, 2042
Suggested abolition of, 2674
Warlike stores, sale of, 1173

Purchasing Power of Money, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service; Cost of Living; Money

Putman, Mr., C. V., qu., 935

Putnam, Mr. Harold (Colchester)
Address in reply, 309. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 309; Progressives and the party spirit, 310; leader of the Opposition; immigration; tariff; railway problems, 311; Intercolonial railway, 312; elections and campaign literature, 315

Budget, 2282. Election issues and results; congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff reductions; no time for drastic changes; Liberal platform of 1919, 2283; interprovincial trade; geographical, physical and climatic difficulties, 2284; reciprocity with the United States, 2285; tariff reductions, 2286; trade with Germany; sales tax; the amendment, 2287; political pledges and promises, 2288; Liberal platform of 1919; record of the Opposition party, 2288; Union government; public honour; War Time Elections Act; tariff commission; intercolonial railway; promise of Mr. McCurdy to restore headquarters to Moncton, 2289; the Progressives, 2290
Canadian National railways, ties, qu., 934
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3478
Civil Service, returned soldiers, 3088
Condensed milk, tax on, 3265
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425-34
Rural postmasters, 3080

Quadruple Pacific Treaty, 3160

Qualification of Voters. See Dominion Elections Act

Quarantine. See also Health; Immigration
Detention at Partridge Island, 2021
Estimates, 2021
Immigrant refusing vaccination, 2022
Stations
Grosse Isle, repairs, 1245
Halifax, repairs, 1238
North Sydney, repairs, 1238
St. John, repairs, 1239-40
William's Head, improvements, 1255

Quebec (City)
Admiralty, local judge in, 1275
Arsenal, 1979, 2085, 2091
Customs dues, 1978
Canadian National railway terminals, 1475
Champlain market station, 1475, 2399
Newspapers, political policies of, 1480
Palais station, 1068
Plains of Abraham, 1467
Riots, 676, 3089
Compensation for damage, qu., 1508

Quebec (Port). See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Appropriations for, 1486
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert and, 1474
Elevators, 1471, 1483
Grain shipments through, 1466, 1471
Harbour Commission, 1283, 1464. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Parc St. Charles Co. Ltd., proposed payment to, 1469
Political patronage, 1478
Revenue and expenditure, 1471

Quebec (Province)
Attitude of towards Opposition, 168-9, 187, 206-7, 290. See also Budget; Speeches on Address
Attitude towards West, 2912
Board of Pensions Commissioners, representation, 1350
Canals, 2779. See also that title
Census figures, 1366
Chaudière valley floods, 3492
Conscription and. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill
Election issues and results, 245
Fisheries, 142
Transfer to province, M. (Mr. Marcil) 377, 493, 616, 623
Order in council tabled, 8
Request for order in council, 5
Harbours and rivers, 1998
Harmony with, 14, 270, 291, 362, 2421
Public buildings, improvements, 1245
Public expenditure in, 1468
Public ownership and, 71. See Address; Budget
Superintendent of lighthouses, qu., 2584
Unfair treatment, alleged, 2398

Quebec and Western Railway. See Canadian National Railways; Gaspé Railways

Quebec Battlefields Commission, 119

Quebec Chronicle, 1477

Quebec Harbour Commission
Gravel, Mr. 1477
Inquiry for return, 1283
Tremblay, General, 1477
Watson, Major-General Sir David, 1477

Quebec Harbour Commission bill (Further advances)
Res. 1464; reported, 1486; 1r., 1486; 2r., com., 3195; 3r., 3198

Quebec, Oriental and Atlantic Railway. See Canadian National Railways; Gaspé

Questions. See their several titles. For rulings, See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Questions Passed as Orders for Returns
Accounts branch, Dept., of Militia and Defence (Mr. Vien) 2994
Animal diseases, compensation for, (Mr. Sutherland) 940
Armouries (Mr Baldwin) 1288
Army Service Corps (Mr. Lanctôt) 1905
Auditing, payments for, (Mr. Vien) 2993
Bankruptcy Act, Montreal district trustees (Mr. Archambault) 1183
Binder twine and rope (Mr. Gordon) 1905
Blackfoot reserve, greater production (Mr. Garland, Bow River) 1288
British Columbia fisheries (Mr. Neill) 2306
Calgary, Government office buildings, (Mr. Shaw) 939
Canadian National railways, coal purchase (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 2306
Canadian Northern, payments from, 1914 (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry), 615
Chief Architect's branch employees, (Mr. Fournier) 1067
Civil Service
Appeals against classification (Mr. Lanctôt) 1508
Bonus and statutory increases (Mr. Lanctôt) 939
Number and salaries paid, 1912 and 1922 (Mr. Séguin) 1832
Officials receiving more than deputy ministers (Mr. Chisholm) 1508
Permanent employees, 1920-1922, (Mr. Demers) 706
Coal importations
Canadian National by, (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 2306
Government, by, (Mr. Logan) 939
Doherty, Right Hon. C. J., amounts paid to since 1855, (Mr. Lanctôt) 472
Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific, amounts paid to since 1914, (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry) 615
Halifax dry dock, (Mr. Stevens) 706
Harbours, improvements and expenditures, (Mr. Church) 828
From 1900 to 1921 (Mr. McBride) 372

Questions passed as Orders for Returns — Con.
Homestead pre-emptions, areas, (Mr. McTaggart) 732
Hotels owned and operated by Canadian National railways (Mr. Coote) 2806
Military districts (Mr. Lancôt) 1775, 2305
Militia and Defence
Buildings occupied (Mr. Lanctôt) 2305
Officers and men at headquarters (Mr. Lanctôt) 1775, 2305
Ministers' trips to Europe (Mr. Lanctôt) 1402
Multigraph machines (Mr. McDonald, Timiskaming) 1508
Montreal
Canadian National railways, employees (Mr. Archambault) 1288
Customs, Income Tax, Post Office, employees (Mr. Archambault) 1288
Drydock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Parry Sound customs collections (Mr. Arthurs) 967
Postmasters
L'Assomption-Montcalm (Mr. Séguin) 1775
Richmond-Wolfe (Mr. Tobin) 1508
Prince Rupert dry dock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Quebec dry dock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Quebec Harbour Commission, advances to Sir Henry Drayton) 615
Railway systems, purchase of bonds (Mr. Baxter) 828
Rental of public buildings (Mr. Lucas) 615
St. John drydock, (Mr. Stevens) 706
School lands, sale of (Mr. Spencer) 1661
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Pensions, 615
Stationery, purchase of, (Mr. Prevost) 1288
Trade agents (Mr. Prevost) 1661
Transcontinental railway, amounts paid, (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry) 165
Vancouver drydock, 706 (Mr. Stevens)
Victoria, drydocks, 706 (Mr. Stevens)
War
Advances to Imperial Government (Mr. Vien) 1288
Material furnished British Govt. (Mr. Vien) 1067

Race and Religious Differences, 14, 270, 291-2, 362, 2421

Race Disqualification. See Dominion Elections Act M. (Mr. Euler)

Racing, Fishing schooners. See International

Radial Railways. See Hydro-Electric

Radiotelegraph Service, 1749

Radium. See Nanaimo and Esquimalt Railway

Rail Contracts. See Railways

Rails, Steel, bounty on, 304-5

Railway Act, 1919, Amdt. bills
1. Return Tickets. (Mr. Jacobs) 1r., 821; 2r., ref. to Railway Com., 1395
2. Special passenger rates (Mr. Church) 1r., 1460; 2r., 1719
3. Transportation Costs. (Crowsnest pass agreement (Mr. Kennedy, Essex.) 1r., 3588; 2r., com., 3595; 3r., 3597

Railway Commissioners, Board of. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates; Railways
- Applications to, 201-202
- Board of Railway Commissioners Act, 1088, 1101
- Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu., 937
- Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement at Calgary, 2775
  - Statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2773, 3491
- Chairman of, 233. See also under this title, Carvell
- Chief Traffc Officer, qu., 1377, qu., 2215, qu., 2457
- Coastal boat service, and, 182
- Commodity rates, 234
- Drayton-Acworth report, 125
- Freight rates, 234, 276, 2773. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement
- Intercolonial rates, 193, 312
- Norris, Premier, reported statement of, 1213
- Official report of proceedings, 2776
- Rates. See also Freight Rates
  - Grain on, 300
  - Increases, 131
- Recommendations to by Drayton-Acworth report, 126
- Tenure of office, 2777

Railway Transportation Costs, Special Committee on. See Freight Rates

Railways. See also Canadian National Railways; Speeches on Address; Budget
- Advances to, qu., 471
- Annual statement by Minister of Railways, 872
- Branch lines, 1688
- Canada Car Company, 1696

Railways — Con.
- Canadian in United States, 312
- Canadian National railways. See that title
- Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment, No. 1, 1060
- Car demurrage, 2981
- Car repairs, 1688, 2399
- Car shortage, 166
- Caraquet and Gulf shore, qu., 1504
- Carriage of mails by, qu., 825. See also Mail Contracts
- Co-ordination of, 2328. See also Address; Budget
- Deficits, 2314, 2890
- Drayton-Acworth report, 45-46, 1921
- Duplication and waste, 125
- Eight-hour day and, 228, 2316-17
- Electric and steam locomotives, 630, 1188
- Electrification of, 70, 1317, 1323, 1326, 1330, 1940
  - M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 627. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
- Expenditure on in last 25 years, 111
- Exploitation, 2245. See Budget; Speeches on Address
- Freight and commodity rates, 131, 175, 233, 234, 261, 273, 357. See also Freight Rates
  - Coal on, 193
  - Legislation, qu., 934
  - Tonnage into Toronto, qu., 936
- Government-owned, administration in United States, 67
- Harvest excursions, 337
- Labour conditions, 2315. See also Labour
- Loans and subsidies to, 1921
- Mileage in 1877, qu., 1183
- Nationalization of, 235. See also Address; Budget
- New Zealand, 181
- Overbuilding of, 202, 2569
- Paralleling of existing lines, 203
- Passes in maritime provinces, 315
- Passenger rates. See Railway Act Amdt. bills
  - Increase, 132
- Policy, 201, 1905, 1920, 1933
- Prince Edward Island, cost of, 229
- Problems. See Address; Budget; Freight Rates
- Provincial obligations, 229
- Public ownership, 2570. See also Budget; Canadian National Railways; Freight Rates; Speeches on Address
- Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
- Shipping facilities. See St. John terminal facilities

Railways — Con.
Steel rails
Bounty on, 304-5
Purchase of, 1912
South Africa, 2688
United States, purchase in, 2611. See also Canadian National Railways; Grand Trunk
Vote for, saving in, 384
Wages, 2317, 2417. See also Labour
Water transportation competition, 69. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Western provinces, indebtedness for, 229

Railways and Canals. See also Canals
Department
Estimates, 1133, 1687, 1905, 1933, 2747, 3035, 3518
Salaries and contingencies, 407, 1133
Governor-General's cars, 1688
Loan to the Canadian Goverment merchant Marine, 3035
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Surveys and inspections, 2779
Welland ship canal. See that title under Canals

Rainbow. See Naval Service

Rankin, Mr. J. P. (North Perth)
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1770
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 791

Rates, Special. See Railway Act Amdt. bills

Raymond, Mr. W. G. (Brantford)
Address in reply, 253; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; Liberal party and big interests, 253; Mr. Church and Toronto; Mr. Meighen's reference, 254; election campaign, 255; Mr. Meighen's election manifesto, 255-6; attitude of Brantford manufacturers, 257-258; binder twine industry; liberty of the franchise, 258; War Time Elections Act; manufacturers and taxation, 258; basic and key industries, 259; tariff policy to build up country, 260; transportation rates, 261; national railway system; Liberal party and big interests, 262
Budget, 2373. Tariff; "Liberal protectionist"; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2373; amendment; duties of members; Liberal party and protection; free trade, 2374; agricultural implements; reduction of duty on; Brantford factories closed; binder twine factory, 2375; basic industry argument; manufacturing industries and Raymond, Mr. W. G. — Con.

Budget — Con.
production of wealth, 2377; United States competition, 2378; key industries; Great Britain's mercantile marine; world trade; protection for the skilled labourer; United States tariff; capital, 2379; Progressive party and oleomargarine; Wheat Board, 2380; revenue tariff giving incidental protection; duty on binders, 2381; International Harvester company; principles of the two old parties; history of Liberalism; Toryism and tyrannical power, 2383
Customs duties on agricultural implements, 3230-1
References to, 27, 255, 263, 2384, 2536, 2705

Receipt Tax. See Special War Revenue Act Amdt.

Reciprocal Trade. See Reciprocity

Reciprocity. See also Trade
Australia with, 9, 33, 2900
United States with, 33, 53, 77, 94, 102, 208, 224, 278, 333, 2201, 2234. See also Address; Budget; United States

Red Cross. See Canadian Red Cross; Canadian Patriotic Fund bill

Redistribution, 59, 198, 283, 2330, 2339, 3611. See also Proportional Representation
Announcement of Prime Minister, 3608, 3611
Census, completion of, 1363-71
Former, 1369
Inquiry, 733
M. (Mr. Shaw) opportunity for discussion of, 1719, 1769
Meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
Progressive party, attitude towards, 1364-70

Re-establishment. See Pensions; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Reed, Mr. William S. (Frontenac)
Mixed farming, Kingston fair, 992

Refills. See Opium and Narcotics

Regina, Speech of Hon. Mr. Motherwell at, 2555

Regional Bureau, International Catalogue of Scientific Literature, 3528

Reid-Newfoundland Railway, 2027

Relief Work. See Canadian Patriotic Fund; Unemployment

Rental of Buildings. See Public Buildings

Reparations. See Germany; War Claims

Repatriation Expenses, 3503

Representation. See also Census; Proportional Representation; Redistribution
Unit of, 198

Research. See also Industrial and Scientific Research
Promotion of, 235. See also Natural Resources
Research Council, lignite plant, 1233

Residence Qualification. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Resources. See Natural Resources

Restaurant. See Parliamentary Restaurant

Retail Merchants Association of Canada
Oleomargarine, resolution on. See that title
Oriental immigration, 1513

Retirement Fund. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement

Returned Soldiers. See also Canadian Patriotic Fund bill; Pensions; Soldiers; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Unemployment
Alleged ill-treatment of children of, 2638
Blind, 3358
M. (Mr. Church) 3404
Pensions, 3310
Cash bonus to. See Soldiers' Bonus
Civil Service salaries, 549
Disabilities, 386 See also Pensions
Government's policy, early announcement of, 2637
Housing, 271. See also that title
Insurance, 3294. See also Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt.
Pension regulations, 327
Repatriation, 3403
Special Committee on. See Pensions
Tubercular, 318. See also Hospitals
Unemployed
Hikers, qu., 3153
Inquiry as to Government's policy, 2458
Unemployment, 3290, 3304, 3307, 3331, 3335, 3339, 3345-7, 3356. See also that title

Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3358, 3388; 1r., 2r., com., 3402; com., 3437; 3r., 3439

Returning Officers. See Baxter; Caldwell

Returns. See House of Commons

Revenue, 2171-2. See Address; Budget; Consolidated Revenue Act
Expenditure and. See Public Expenditure
In 1877, qu., 1211

Revenue Act. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act

Revenue Bills
1. Customs Act and the Department of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 2r., com., 3222; 3r., 3477
2. Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. bill
Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3476; 3r., 3477
3. Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
Res., 3278; 1r., 3359-3360; 2r., com., 3484; 3r., 3486
4. Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill
Res., 3239; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
5. Special War Revenue Act, 1915, Amdt. bill
Res., 3252; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477

Rice Jones, Mr. Cecil, statement of, 2489-2490

Richibucto, repair works, qu., 375

Rideau Canal. See Canals

Rideau Hall, fuel, maintenance, etc., 1756

Riddell, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu., 366, qu., 3600.

Right of Appeal. See Opium and Narcotic Act Amdt.

Riley's Army, qu., 3364. See also "General" Macdonald's army

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand (St. James)
Canadian National railways
Canadian Northern, subsidies, qu., 1504
Public ownership, 1942
Canadian navy, qu., 965
Cost of living, purchasing power of the dollar, 1177
Dominion Elections Act, residential qualification, M., 1296
Exports and imports, 1876-77 and 1921-22; qu., 1376
Military expenditure and policy, 1176
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 1177
Expenditure and policy, 1584

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand — Con.
Montreal Gazette editorial comment, 1584
Montreal post offices, business done, qu., 1065
Peat, deposits and experiments, qu., 1505
Railway mileage, in 1877, qu., 1183
Railway policy, 1942
Representation of provinces in 1877, qu., 1183
Revenue and expenditure in 1877 and 1922, qu., 1211
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1195
Topographical maps, qu., 1631

Riordon Company
Income tax, 60
Collections, qu., 372; qu., 607; qu., 927

Ritchie, Mr. Hugh, qu., 3361

River St. Lawrence ship channel. See Marine and Fisheries; St. Lawrence

Rivière du Loup
Arsenal, qu., 1181, 1690
Car shops, qu., 1181, 1690

Roads. See Highways; Public Works

Roads and Bridges. See Bridges; Highways; Public Works

Robb, Hon. J. A. (Minister of Trade and Commerce)
Budget, 2179. Reforms long overdue; the amendment; tariff reductions; Liberal platform of 1919, 2180; war time extravagance; restoration of confidence; economy; markets; Mr. Fielding's visit to Washington, 2181; trade with Great Britain and United States; cattle embargo; imports and exports, quantity and value of; uniform development; coal and water power, 2182; tariff policy; German trade; marking of goods, 2183
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Car demurrage, 2981
Complaints of unfair dealing, 2987
Canadian exhibition in France, 2031
Canadian Wheat Board, advances, 3541. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Census
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, 1366
Payment of, 1369
Registration of Canadians, 1363

Robb, Hon. J. A. — Con.
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1363
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490
Elevators
Licenses to private, 2838
Ontario, in, 2978
Terminal, maintenance and equipment, 2978
Government publications, 1373
Demand and distribution, 1374
Grain Inquiry Commission, 50, 2982
Implements, agricultural, duty on, 3120
Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1372
Linen yarn bounty, 1361, 3128
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3429, 3488
Pratt vs. Delphine, 303
Redistribution and the census, 1363-71. See also under this title, Census
Statistics, co-ordination of work, 1366
Steamship services, 2027, 3505
Canada, Australia, New Zealand, 3034
Canada, West Indies, South America, 3026
Freight rates, 2028
Quebec and north shore ports, 3034
St. John-Cuba, 2028
Trade and Commerce department
Director of commercial intelligence, 700
Estimates, 1361, 2834, 2978, 3026, 3505, 3541
Officials, 700
Trade commissioners and agents, 2989
Trade with Mexico, 700
Wheat Board, 50
Wheat Board bill, 3174-5, 3184, 3188, 3380, 3383, 3386

Robb, Mr. W. D., qu., 728

Robertson, Hon. Senator, 505
Statement on Civil Service, 555

Robertson, P. L. Company, refund of duties, qu., 1774

Robinson, Mr. E. W. (Kings, N.S.)
Root Vegetables bill, potato grading, 3378

Robitaille, Mr. Clement (Maisonneuve)
Address in reply, 320. Public ownership of railways; Wheat board; returned soldiers' pensions, 320

Rockefeller Foundation, 61

Rods. See Steel

Rome, International Institute. See Agriculture

Root Vegetables, Sale and Inspection of, bill
Res., 2743; 1r., 2747; 2r., ref. to Com. on Agriculture, 2972; com., 3142, 3194, 3367; 3r., 3487

Ross, Mr. A. E. (Kingston)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3482
Militia expenditure, policy, 1587
Niobe, sale of, 2068
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3450
Pensions Com., final report, 3343
Soldiers' civil re-establishment
Hospital staffs, 1345
Nurses, salaries of, 1342
Venereal diseases, qu., 935

Ross, Mr. Thomas E. (North Simcoe)
Address in reply, 95. Congratulations to Miss Macphail; decline in prices of farm products, 95; soldier settlers, 96; re-establishment; economy in administration; increase in sessional indemnity, 97

Ross Rifle, 2609, 2616

Roumania, loan to, qu., 1400, 2888

Round Table, 3170-1

Routhier, the late Sir Adolphe, 1275

Royal Assent, 722, 1988, 1995, 3617

Royal Canadian Artillery, qu., 370, 1982

Royal Canadian Mounted Police. See also National Defence bill
Amalgamation with Dominion Police, 675
Barracks, Fairmont, improvements, 1255
Buildings, 2129
Canadian expeditionary force, in, qu., 2038
Detachments in Arctic regions, 3497
Discontinuance of, qu., 377
Enlistments from A and B squadrons in Canadian expeditionary force, qu., 2038
Estimates, 2129
Income tax office, Hamilton, 1253
Indians, relief to destitute, 1715
Labour espionage and, 670
Lethbridge, Drs. Lovering and Taylor, qu., 1211
Macleod detachment, removal of, 2584
Naturalization, investigations, 1671, 2024
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act, reports, 1289, 1377
Pensions, 2131
Northwest rebellion, 3523
Removal from British Columbia, 173, 184, 327, 522

Royal Canadian Mounted Police — Con.
Salaries, 775
Secret service, 670-9
Unorganized territories in, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) to confine to, 829; neg. on div., 843
Winnipeg strike, 671
Zaneth, Corporal, 671

Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Royal Military College, 1985

Royal Naval College, 2047, 2203, 2458

Royal Trust Company, 1085

Rubber Goods, manufacture, 2469

Rubber Industry, occupational diseases. See Labour

Rulings. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Rural Depopulation, 301, 2470. See also Address; Budget; Census; Population

Rural Mail. See Post Office

Rural Postmasters. See Civil Service; Post Office

Russell, Mr. T. A., 1663, 2695

Russia
Competition in wheat market, 2157
Consortium to re-establish trade, 1463
Public ownership, 1942
Re-establishment of business in, 1463
"Save the Children Fund", 2516
Wrangel Island, 1751

Ryckman, Mr. Edmond B. (East Toronto)
Address in reply, 284. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 284; economy in government; Mr. Church's record, 285; protective tariff; Great Britain and the tariff, 286; protection for farmers, 287; Liberal tariff and election campaign, 288; speeches of Prime Minister and Minister of Justice, 289-90; Sir Lomer Gouin and Quebec attitude, 291; sectionalism in politics, 292
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2093
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3006
Canadian National railways, consolidation, 1962
Cigars and cigarettes, tax on, 3241
Dominion lands and surveys, 1038

Ryckman, Mr. Edmond B. — Con.
Dominion Textile Company, 584
Lambton, loss of, 3508
Mines department, economy, 688-9
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2014
Public buildings, heating, 1761
Sales tax, 3269
United States tax on German goods, 3411

Ste. Agathe Sanitarium, 1342

Ste. Anne Hospital, 1342

Ste. Anne de la Pocatière, water supply, qu., 2213

St. Catherines Post office building, 1246-50

St. Charles Park. See Parc St. Charles

St. Charles River Improvements, 2400

St. George, N.B., public building, 1240

St. John, N.B.
Cold storage, 3521
Courtenay bay, 2013
Harbour, qu., 1401
Improvements, 2013
Immigration buildings, 2027
Income tax office, qu., 826
Negro Point breakwater, 2013
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Port. See British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Quarantine station, 1239-40, 2021
Terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 639, 844; withdrawn, 851

St. John Ambulance Association, 3387

St. John and Quebec Railway
Acquisition by Canadian National, qu., 1774, qu., 1293
M. (Mr. Caldwell) 1293; neg., 1296

St. John River
Pollution of by United States mill owners, 2168
Wharves on tidal waters, qu., 2200

St. John Valley Railway, 3039

St. Lawrence River Ship Channel
De Beaujeu bank, dredging, 1495
Elevator dredge, 1494
Maintenance and operation, 1494
Pilotage dues, 1499
Self-propelling hopper barge, 1495
Sorel shipyard, 1494. See also that title

St. Lawrence River Waterway, 70, 121, 134, 137, 269, 2266, 2327, 2398. See also Address; Budget; Canals; Quebec Harbour Commission; Transportation; Waterpowers; Welland Ship Canal
Calder, United States Senator, 1206
Climatic conditions, 1187
Coal, conservation of supply, 1188
Co-operation with United States, 2750, 2767
Correspondence with United States Government, 2207, 2583, 2755, 2760, 2767
Tabled, 2256
Cost, 269, 1191, 1195-99, 1203-07, 1315, 1320, 1329
Deep Waterways Association, 1206-8
Electric power development, 1188, 1205, 1317, 1319, 1321, 1326, 1397
Export of power, 1203
Niagara river, 1322, 1327
Electrification of locomotives and railways, 133, 1188, 1317, 1323, 1326, 1330. See also Electrification; Railways
Finance, 1189, 1195, 1318, 1320
Finney, Col. John, 1189
Freight rates, 1204
Georgian bay canal, 1199, 1204, 1209
Grain production and shipment, 1203
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association, 1319
Harding, President, 133, 1184
History of project, 1185
Imperial Government, communication with, qu., 1508
Industrial development, 1318
Information available, 1195
International Joint Commission, 1191, 1199, 1206, 1315-21, 1469
Report, qu., 377
Distribution of, 2357
International partnership, 1191, 1199, 1209, 1315, 1332, 1396
Land adjacent to development, 1200
Long Sault, 1199
Manchester ship canal, 1190
M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1314, 1396
Navigation, 1195
Negotiations, inquiry, 786
New York state commission, 1197
Progress report, 2969
Ocean steamers, 1193-95, 1205
Opportunity for further discussion, 1462
Opposition to project, 1184, 1193, 1199, 1202, 1206, 1209
Proposed bond issue, 1318, 20
Public ownership, 1189, 1318-31
Support of western states, 1184

St. Lawrence River Waterway — Con.
Surveys and investigations, estimates, 2765
Taschereau, Premier, 1191
Ten Eyck, Congressman, letter re acquisition of land adjacent to development, 1200
Traffic through Panama, Suez and Soo Canals, 1203
Transportation, 1186, 1201, 1208, 1315, 1325, 1327
Treaty with United States, 2207, 2760, 2767. See also Welland Ship Canal
United States and, 1396
Water power, 629, 1188, 1197, 1199, 1205
Welland canal, 1205, 1207

St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Co., 1400

St. Louis, Municipal currency, 2506

St. Malo Car shops, 1699, 2399

St. Père, Mr. Edouard C. (Hochelaga)
Address in reply, 281. Immigration, 281, 282; Public ownership of railways; Race harmony, 284; Tariff; unemployment, 282; Wheat Board, 283
Canadian Navigation Company, qu., 1284
Cotton industries, wages and hours, qu., 1903
Parliament hill monuments, qu., 936
Warships and torpedo boats, qu., 827

St. Peters' Reserve. See Indians

St. Pierre water supply, qu., 2213

St. Thomas-Niagara Falls Highway, qu., 936

St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Sabotage. See Labour; Nova Scotia Miners; Strikes

Safeguarding of Industries Act, 2409, 2423-4

Salaries. See Civil Service

Salaries Act and the Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. bill; 1r., 363; 2r., com., 746; 3r., 787

Sale and Inspection of Root Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Sale of Agriculture Fertilizers. See Agricultural Fertilizers

Sales, Mr. Thomas (Saltcoats)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2103

Sales, Mr. Thomas — Con.
Binder twine, 257, 2575
Budget, 2574. Sales Tax; Canada a dear country to live in; burden on the poor man; automobiles, 2574; protection; binder twine; success of a free trade industry; agricultural implement manufacturers; successful competition in other markets, 2575; infant industries; farming conditions; distribution and marketing; exchange value of farm products; intermediary between producer and consumer, 2576; bleeding the victims white, 2577
Canada Grain Act, 2838
King vs. Manitoba Grain Co., decision, 1132
Licenses to private elevators, 2838
Canadian National railways, restaurants at Rivers and Melville, Sask., qu., 2038
Customs
Dumping clause, 3420
Officials, 764
Dredging, Saskatchewan, 2006
Elevators
Excess overages, qu., 1401
Private, 2981
Terminal, 2839
Exhibitions, 982
Experimental farms, 799, 807
Grain Commission, 2839
Grain, selling without growers' permission, 2989
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2008
Mixed farming, 981
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2761
Saskatchewan Elevator Company, 2989
Welland canal, grain transportation, 2761
Wheat Board, 3181
Wheat Board bill, 3386

Sales Tax, 2297, 2425, 2661, 2843. See also Budget; Special War Revenue; Taxation
Automobiles, 2177
Collections, qu., 375
Confectionery, 2177
Exemptions, 2672, 2689
Dried beet pulp, 2858
Fertilizers, 2858
Increase, 2365
Lumber, 2177
Regulations, 2858

Salmon Canning. See Fisheries Act Amdt.; Meat and Canned Foods

Salmon Fisheries. See Fisheries

Sanitarium. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Sardines, export of, qu., 1182

Saskatchewan
Aerial patrol, 1724
Canada Temperance Act Amdt., 2997. See also that title
Dry areas, 1042
Harbours and rivers, 2004
Indian reserves, qu., 608
Liquor
Export of, 2977
Warehouses, qu., 1211; qu., 1660
Importations, qu., 2037; qu., 2303
Public buildings, improvements, 1253
Second homesteads, 1042
Wheat marketing, 115. See also Wheat Board

Saskatchewan Court of Appeal. See Judges Act Amdt. bill

Saturday Sittings. See House of Commons, Sittings

Sault Ste. Marie, Algoma Steel Co. rail contracts, 1704

Saunders, Dr. C. E., resignation of, 590, 3522

Savard, Mr. Edmond (Chicoutimi-Saguenay)
Canadian National railways, right of way and lease agent, qu., 1633

Save the Children Fund, 3516

Savoy, Mr. J. Clovis, qu., 3363

Sawmill Machinery, 3126

Scandinavia
Immigration, 2144
Trade relations with, 2990

Schools. See also Education
Closing in West, 152
Lands, 339. See also Dominion Lands; Natural Resources
Nova Scotia in. See Nova Scotia Miners
Refusal of banks to advance money to, 2627

Scientific Research. See Research

Scott, Mr. Frank, qu., 728

Scrip Frauds. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Sea-Going Vessels. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Seals, destruction by. See British Columbia Fisheries

Seaports, Canadian. See British Preference

Secondary amendments. See House of Commons; Speaker

Secord Case. See Criminal Code (Scrip Frauds)

Secret Proceedings. See Prime Ministers' Conference

Secret Service. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Secretariat. See League of Nations

Secretary of State department
Adjustment of War claims, 1672, 2977
Estimates, 601, 1670, 3499
Public archives, 1673

Sedition. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Seduction. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Seed Grain
Advances, 1053
Freight on, 3522
Purchasing Commission, 1011

Séguin, Mr. P. A. (L'Assomption-Montcalm)
Forest, Mr. Médard, customs officer, qu., 2355
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary, qu., 3599

L'Assomption and Montcalm
Excise officers, qu., 1774
Employment and dismissal of, qu., 2355
Lightkeepers, qu., 1904, qu., 2215
Postmasters, 1775
Tobacco experimental station, 1776

Select Standing Committees. See House of Commons

Selective Conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Senate
Amendments concurred in:
Agricultural Fertilizers bill, 3607
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, 3607
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 3486
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 3486
Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 3607
Loan Companies Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3607
National Defence Department bill, 2806
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act bill, 3607

Senate — Con.
Amendments concurred in — Con.
Trust Companies Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3607
Amendments, non-concurrence:
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3611
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3608
Dominion Lands, Cancellation Leases bill
Concurrence, 3616
Conference, 3614
Chief accountant, salary, qu., 2583, qu., 2803
Expenditure, qu., 2583
Free conferences with, 3613, 3616
Indemnity, proposed reduction, 2513, 3509
Reform, 138, 2894
Salaries and contingent expenses, 2026

Senate and House of Commons Act. See Salaries Act Amdt.

Senn, Mr. Mark C. (Haldimand)
Corn-borer, destruction by, 818
Grand River bridge, York, Ont., qu., 1287

Sergeant-at-Arms. See House of Commons

Serums. See Accredited Herds; Agriculture

Sessional Indemnity. See House of Commons; Members

Settlers. See Immigration

Sexsmith, Mr. Edward J. (Lennox and Addington)
Address in reply, 293. Change in administration; agriculture; railway problems, 283; soldier settlement, 294
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2812
Soldiers bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 447

Sexual Offences. See Criminal Code

Shaughnessy, Lord
National railway scheme, 89-90, 127
On immigration, 2478

Shaw, Mr. Joseph T. (West Calgary)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 782
Banff-Windermere road, 1683
Blankets, duty on, 3136
Boots and shoes, M. to reduce duty, 3238
Calgary, post office building, 1254
Canada-Australia, steamship service, 3034
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3003
Date of coming into effect, 3007; Withdrawn, 3008
Canadian National railways
Representation at meeting of steamship companies, 2584
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Coal lands, transfer of by Canadian Pacific Railway Company, 2214

Shaw, Mr. Joseph T. — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt bill, fines, 2832
Expenditure, comparison by departments, 1137
Explosives Act, 1234
Freight rates, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1444-8
Grain companies, security of, 2837
Indians
Education, 1227, 3536
Stony Reserve school, qu., 965, 1218, 1227, 3536
Military and other expenditures, 1137
Militia and defence
Expenditure and policy, 1590
Permanent force, 1983
War medals, 2976
Ministers and Directorships, 1126
Naval service, 1738
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 3022
Pensions Com., final report, 3305
Amdt., 3349, 3358
Prime Ministers' Conference, naval defence, 1742, 1745
Railway Commission, Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2775, 2779
Redistribution
Inquiry as to intention of Government, 3611
M. (Mr. Shaw), opportunity for discussion, 1719
Reply to leader of Opposition, 3611
Royal military college, 1985
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Alberta hospital, 1345
Tariff commissioner, 1665
Tariff, reciprocal arrangement with France, 2032
Tourist traffic, 1683
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 2989
War memorials, 2101
Wheat Board, 3182
Wrangel island, 1751

Sheard, Mr. Charles (South Toronto)
Address in reply, 294. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; defeat of Meighen Government due to taxation, 294; Progressive party; railway problem, 295, 296; immigration; tariff and protection, 297
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, docking of horses, 2833
Soldier Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 386

Sheep Industry. See Agriculture; Live Stock

Shelburne wharf, 1768

Shellfish. See Meat and Canned Foods

Shells. See Ammunition

Sherbrooke
Post Office inspector, qu., 1507
Soldier Settlement Board employees, qu., 1658

Sherman, General William T., war, 1336

Shibley, Mr. A. D., Secretary-Treasurer of Union of Canadian Municipalities, 1392

Ships and Shipbuilding. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Labour; Limitation of Armaments; Marine; Naval Service; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Steamship Services; Unemployment; Vessels
British Ministry of Shipping, claim for hospital ship, 1752
Canada Shipping Act. See that title
Canadian navigation companies, life-saving equipment, qu., 1284
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Coolie labour, 2042
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., steel plates, 1677
Drydocks. See that title
International deep sea racing. See that title
Nova Scotia, 1387
Pilotage dues, 1499. See also Canada Shiping Act
Registration of, 1493
Sorel shipyard, 2169
Dismissal of employees, qu., 605, 1283
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed, qu., 1062
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Steel plates, cost of delivery, 3508
Vickers Company, elevator dredge, 1494
Wooden ships constructed at Victoria, B. C., qu., 364

Shuswap Lake
Dredging, 2006
Wharf, 3547

Siberia, Service of Mounted Police, in, qu., 2038

Silk Fabrics, duty on, 2662, 3137

Silver. See also Coinage; Mines and Minerals
Coins. See Currency Act Amdt. bill
Discovery in Yukon, 1276
English hall marks, protection of. See Criminal Code

Simpson, Mr. T. E. (West Algoma)
Dredging, St. Mary's river, 2006
Good roads, Ontario, qu., 372
Lambton, wreck of, 1497, 3508
Rail and car repair contracts, 1703
Receipt tax, 3262
Sales tax, workmen's clothing, 3272
Sault Ste. Marie wharf, 2006
Unemployment
Insurance, 1075
Rails and car repair contracts, 1704

Sinclair, Hon. J. E. (Queen's, P.E.I.)
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward island, 1990
Root Vegetables bill, potato grades, 3375

Single Tax, 2191. See also Budget; Taxation

Six Nation Reserve. See Indians

Slaughter Houses, Inspection. See Meat and Canned Foods

Smuts, General, International Disarmament Conference, 1283

Socialism, 1290

Soft Drinks, tax on, 2329, 2617, 2852, 2857. See also Taxation

Soldier Land Settlement, 83, 96, 147, 183, 252, 294, 305, 318, 327, 345, 3294, 3298, 3307, 3333, 3338. See also Address; Budget; Pensions Committee
Abandoned farms, 2132
Building loans, 3475
Cost and results, 2159
Estimates, 2023, 2131
Expenditure, statement of, 2132
Foreclosure, 2132
Homestead rights, 2132
Inflated values, 2133
Land speculation, and, 2136
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1257
Revaluation of land, 2136-42
Taxes, collection of, 2134

Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bills
1. Mineral rights. (Mr. Malcolm) 1r., 2035
2. Consolidation of Indebtedness. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil)
Res. 3358, 3405; 1r., 3409; 2r., com., 3475; 3r., 3476

Soldier Settlement Board, qu., 608
Amounts loaned, etc., qu., 469
Estimates, 2023, 2131-43
Comparison with last year, 382

Soldier Settlement Board — Con.
Loans, 147
Sherbrooke office employees, qu., 1658
Six Nation Indians, 1221

Soldiers. See also Pensions Returned Soldiers; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Unemployment
Bonus, 394, 402, 1618, 2533, 3337
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 429; neg. 450
Exchange on pay, qu., 826
Homes, establishment of, 1348
Insurance, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill
Land settlement. See that title
Pensions, 271. See also Pensions

Soldiers' Aid Commission, 3315-16

Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 168, 271, 1617
Building requirements, 1261
Calydor sanitarium, 1279
Department, decrease in activities of, 1340
Doctors, 1343, 1351
Employers' Liability, compensation, 1348
Estimates, 1279, 1339
Expenditure on, 266
Reduction of, 1339
Hospitals, 1262, 1341, 1344, 1348
Nurses, salaries of, 1342
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 396, 1339, 1349. See also Pensions
Ste. Agathe sanitarium, 1342
Ste. Anne hospital, 1342
Salaries, 385, 1339
Reduction of vote, 1339-46
Waddington, Mr., 385, 398
Staff, reduction of, 3602
Tubercular patients, treatment of, 1344
Unemployment relief, 1347, 1352, 3524
Vocational loans, 1346
Fishermen, to, 1346
Vocational training, 1281, 1340
War Service gratuity interest, 1346

Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department bill (Report of Re-establishment and Pensions Committee)
1r., 3597; 2r., com., 3609; 3r., 3610

Soldiers' Re-establishment and Pensions Committee. See Pensions Committee

Sorel Shipyard
Dismissal of employees, qu., 605. 1283
Estimates, 2169
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed in May 1921, qu., 1062

Soulanges Canal. See Canals

South America Steamship service. See Steamship Services

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Marcil Rulings and statements of
Acoustics of Chamber
Member speaking from centre of Chamber, 632
Member speaking from front seat, 3286
Agreement between Whips as to 11 o'clock adjournment, 173
Amendments, 3284
Imposing tax, cannot be moved by private member, 722
Secondary amendments (amdts. to amdt.) 2473-4, 2519
Baker, the late Col. G. H., M.P., memorial, 1929
Bills
Introduction by unanimous consent, 3597
Military Service Act Amdt., 644
Money, must be preceded by res, 548
Private
No sponsor, first reading postponed, 2102
Refund of fees, 1577, 1657
Reference from Com. of Whole to Special Com., 1395
Repealing legislation, 644
Second reading on day of introduction, 1460
Trade or money, to be preceded by res., 1282
Chair to be addressed, 2415
Clerk Assistant, correctness of record, 1843
Committees
Leave to sit while House in session, 1988
Motion in advance of report of, 1901
Refund of fees, 1577
Special, members opposed to principle of bill not to be chosen, 1502
Congratulations to on 25th anniversary, 3489
Criminal Code and statutes, reprinting of, 1717

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux — Con.
Rulings and Statements — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, suspension of Rule 11, 1502
Daylight saving, discussion in order, 944
Debate
Closed by mover, 835, 1295, 1836
Relevancy
Criticism of British Columbia Government during Budget debate, 2238
Hon. John Oliver, quotation from Vancouver Sun, 2236
Debates, Official Report
Insertion of documents, 942
Decorum, conversation in Chamber and lobbies, 2640
Election of, 1, 4
Kingston election petition, 2692
Language, "False" or "falsely", 3603
Libellous statements reflecting on honour of Canada, 822
Letters, anonymous, 944
Library of Parliament, 3517
Salaries, 3517
Members
Customary to speak from seats, 632, 3286
May speak only once on motion for 3r., 3487
Must address Chair, 2415
Must address other members in third person, 165
Payment of, 3611
Speaking, not to be interrupted, 2361
Motions
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar on Budget) 2473-4, 2519
For concurrence in, notice required, 703
In advance of report of Com., 1901
Non-debatable, 865
Notice given in Votes and Proceedings, 378
Ministers and Directorships, seconder, 1084, 1094
Private members, involving expenditure, out of order, 844
Re-drafted, in order, 844
Newspaper extracts, 821
Orders of the Day
Arguments not permissible, 822, 1721, 1842, 2256, 2995, 3492, 3601
Member may make personal explanation or ask question, 3602-3
Question not debatable, 3602
Reading newspaper extracts, 303, 374-5
Right of members to raise question of privilege on, 2638

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux — Con.
Rulings and Statements — Con.
Pairs, 1463
Petitions, irregular, 1929
Privilege
Member may make personal explanation or put question, 3602-3
Member must confine himself to question, 3366
Must affect honour of member, 3493
Right of member to raise on Orders of the day, 2638
Prorogation of Parliament, 3610
Questions
Argumentative, 2805-2806
Discretion of Ministers respecting, 1775
Standing as orders for returns, 1660, 1775
Reading of letters, 948
Resolution
Adopted, binding on Government, 639
Affecting civil rights of provinces, 829
Money, should originate with Government, 639
Must be positive, 644
Royal Assent, 1988
Rule 11, suspension of, 1502
Senate, free conference, 3613
Sergeant-at-Arms to prevent disorder in lobby, 3606
Supply
Concurrence, 1843
Discussion of particular item on motion, 1337
Redress of grievances before going into Com., 1337
Tedious repetition, 944
Unanimous consent, 703, 726, 3597
Bill, introduction of, 3597
Vacancies
Kamouraska, 1459
War memorials, 2100
Wheat Board, point of order, 2935, 2949

Speaker, Mr., Bereavement of, 496, 596

Speakman, Mr. Alfred (Red Deer)
Address in reply, 80. Co-operation necessary; agricultural prosperity, 81; tariff for revenue; taxation forms; immigration, 82; unemployment; soldier settlement, 83
Agriculture, subsidies to, 1698
Budget, 2881. Alleged selfishness of prairie provinces; Budget as it affects the West; protection, 2881; tariff and cost of living; textile industry; protection and prices; price of agricul-

Speakman, Mr. Alfred — Con.
Budget — Con.
tural products set by export market; policy of give and take, 2882; tariff as means of taxation; commodity tax fundamentally wrong; restriction of export market and reduction of prices, 2883; excise duty on protected goods; depreciated currency; cost of manufacturing in Germany, 2884; agriculture and lower costs of production; transportation; marketing; compromise; reciprocity, 2885; attack on the Progressive party; the amendment; political morals, 2886; idealism in politics, 2887
Dredging, 2006
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, 490
Estimates, reclassification, 455
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Imperial Mining Resources bureau, 1237
Indians
Education, 1715
Red Deer school, 1229
Militia, purchasing agents, 587
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1833
Pensions
Committee
Expenditures, 3523
Final report, 3297
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1309
Promotions and salaries in Civil Service, 577
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
Sales tax, 3269, amdt., 3269
Soldier settlement
Board, qu., 608
Revaluation, 2141
Special Com., work of, 2141
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406

Special Loans Bill
Res., 3252, 3358; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3476-77

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill
Res., 3252, 3409; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
Subjects and sections discussed:
Automobiles, 3272-3
Cheques, stamp tax, 3258
Condensed milk, 3264-3271, 3409
Drawbacks, 3263
Excise tax of two and a half per cent, 3263
Insurance premiums, 3253
Lumber, 3263
Matches, 3262
Receipt tax, 3262

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. — Con.
Subjects and Sections discussed — Con.
Sales tax, 3409
Condensed milk, 3264-71, 3409
Exemptions, 3263, 3410
Job printing, 3409
Taxation under, 2116, 2857. See also Taxation

Speech from the Throne. See Address

Spence, Mr. David (Parkdale)
Egg inspectors, qu., 727
Entomology, 913-14
Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur, 406
Militia expenditure and policy, 1592
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3463
Root Vegetables bill, 3142, 3194, 3367
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, royal commission, 406
Stamp tax on cheques, 3260

Spencer, Mr. Henry E. (Battle River)
Agriculture, condition of, 2158
Banks, circulation, interest, qu., 3598
Blankets, duty on, 3128, 3132
M. to reduce, 3234
Budget, 2629. Congratulations to Finance Minister; public men, 2629; Mr. Fielding and the Liberal platform of 1919; conditions in Canada; restricted credit; purchasing power; home market; per capita wealth; labour troubles; after affects of war; statement of Mr. W. Bell; private financing of public production, 2630; capital investment in agriculture and manufacturing; foreign and home markets; returns from agricultural and industrial enterprise; farmers and the income tax; agricultural products; prices and cost of production, 2631; prices of hides and boots and shoes; woollen goods; profits of textile industries, 2632; profits of milling industry; food, shelter, and clothing; Mr. Stewart (Argenteuil) on the tariff; driving capital out of business; conscription of wealth, 2633; no radical taxation proposed; credit system; urban development and infant mortality, 2634
Calgary milk inquiry, qu., 823
Canadian National railways
Dining car service, qu., 2040
Mail contracts, qu., 2038, qu., 2213
Canadian Pacific railway
Bill, 1608
Mail contracts, 2040

Spencer, Mr. Henry E. — Con.
Census, agricultural assets and liabilities, 2159
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1423
Dominion notes, qu., 935
Fabre, Madame, pension, 2024
Farming industry, 809, 2158, 2159
Grain, per capita production, 2159
Grain Growers' Grain Co., alleged contributions to political organizations, 2488
Immigration
Central European, 2158
Land speculation, 2159
Pamphlets, 759
Policy, 2158
Imported liquor, excise duty, qu., 828
Income tax-payers, qu., 3362
Livestock industry, 984
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 590
Militia and Defence
Transport and freight, amdt. to reduce item, 1987
Mixed farming, 983
Naturalization Act, 2024
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 515
Population
Rural, decline in, 2158
Slow growth of, 2158
Post office saving banks, interest, qu., 1932
Soldier settlement, cost and results, 2159
Steamship services, 2027
Welland canal, qu., 3600
Wheat Board, 3185
Wheat Board bill, 3380

Sportsmen's Patriotic Association, cadet camps, 1973

Spruce Bud Moth, 595, 815, 2668. See also Entomology

Stamp Tax. See Special War Revenue Act

Standard of Living. See Oriental Aliens

Standard of Valuation. See Customs

Standard Time. See Daylight Saving

Standards, Bureau of, 235, 1372

Stanfield, Dr., Bienfait briquetting plant, 1234

Stansell, Mr. J. L. (East Elgin)
Accredited herd system, 995, 999
Address in reply, 359. Definition of party names; farmers and protection, 360;

Stansell, Mr. J. L. — Con.
Address — Con.
defeat of late government; economy; cattle embargo; railway situation, 361; racial differences, 362
Agriculture dept., estimates, 994
Budget, 2290. "Grit and "Tory"; suggested identity of Liberal and Progressive policies, 2290; tribute to the Minister of Finance; attitude of Progressives, 2291; sales tax; income tax, 2292; constructive criticism; tariff and the masses; protection; adjustment of tariff to changing conditions; revenue, 2292; encourage maximum production; sales tax; increase of burden upon consumers, 2293; income tax,; taxes passed on to consumers, 2294
Canned milk industry, 3264
Civil service patronage, 3087
Commissioner of Agriculture, qu., 609
Experimental farms, 809
Freight rates, Special Com. report, 3596
Live Stock industry, 994
Ministers and directorships, 1124
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1825
Railway Act Amdt. (Crowsnest pass) 3597

State-Owned Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Stationery. See Printing and Stationery

Statistics. See also Census; Population; Trade
Concentration of, 580
Dominion Bureau of, 1363
Dominion Statistician, Mr. R. H. Coats, 1364-71

Statutes
Printing of, 1972
Revision of, 1717

Steamship Services, qu., 614. See also Trade and Commerce
British Columbia coastal, qu., 3152
Canada-Australia-New Zealand, 3034
Canada-Newfoundland, 2027
Canada-West Indies-British Guiana, qu., 2356
Canada-West Indies-South America, 2027, 3026
Charlottetown-Pictou-New Glasgow, 3506
Charlottetown-Victoria-Halliday's Wharf, 3506
Competition with railways, 182
Freight rates, 2028
Halifax-Canso-Guysboro, 3507

Steamship Services — Con
Mails, carriage of, 2028
Miscou-Shippegan Island, 2029
Mulgrave-Arichat-Petit de Grat, 2029
Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 3035
Newcastle-Neguac-Escuminac, 2029
Pelee Island and mainland, 3034
Pictou-Mulgrave-Cheticamp, 3050
Port Mulgrave-St. Peters-Irish Cove, 3507
Quebec Natashquan-Bras d'Or, 2029, 3034
St. Catherines Bay-Tadoussac, 2029
St. John-Bay of Fundy-Minas Basin, 3507
St. John-Bear River, 3507
St. John-Cuba, 2028
St. John-Digby, 2030
St. John-St. Andrews, 2030
St. Stephen-Deer Island-Campobello, 2030
Sydney-Bras d'Or lakes, 2031
Sydney-Whycocomagh, 2030, 3035
Vancouver-Howe Island, 2027
Victoria-Vancouver-Skagway, 2027

Steedsman, Mr. James (Souris)
Budget, 2721. Inconsistencies of the tariff; implement duties; opportunities for manufacturing in British Columbia, 2721; prairie farmers paying tribute to manufacturers and fruit growers; cost of wheat production beyond market value; farming unprofitable, 2722; survey of conditions in West; boot and shoe industry, 2723
Tractors, 3124
Turtle Mountain reserve, qu., 615

Steel. See also Railway estimates; Rail repairs
Bounties, 304-5, qu., 3360
British Empire Steel Corporation. See that title
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, contract for ship plates, 1677, 2170
Drawbacks, 2175
Industry, subsidies to, 1692, 1696
Plates, 1677, 2170
Delivery of, 3508
Prices, 2411-12
Rails
Competition with Germany, 2412
Contracts for, 1688
Price of, 1680-1709, 2412
Purchases of, 1913
Unemployment, 1077
Rods, refund of duties, qu., 1774
Steel plates, 1677
Damage claim of Dominion Iron and Steel Co., 1677
Settlement of, 2170
Structural, importation of, qu., 1931

Stefansson Expedition, 1750

Stevens, Hon. H. H. (Vancouver Centre)
Address in reply, 230. Death of Prime Minister's brother; debate on address opportunity for vigorous discussion, 230; importance of aids to agriculture; marketing of wheat, 231; Wheat Board, 232; elevator facilities, 233; freight rates on commodities, 234; bureau of standards, industrial and scientific research, 235; immigration, 236; Bank Act, revision of; unemployment, 237; the tariff question; customs taxes, cost of collecting, 239; tariff, platform of Liberal Convention; speech of Mr. Marler, 240; survey of ministers, 241; Minister of Justice and big interests, 242; minister and directorships, 242-3
Air board, 1722
Air Force and civil aviation
Customs aerial patrol, Vancouver, 1730
Forest patrol in Railway Belt, 1730
Archives, book binder, 703
British Columbia house, purchase of, 3537
Budget, 2640. Tariff announcement will allay alarm of manufacturing interests; cheque tax, 2640; discriminatory tax on confectionery; repeal of anti-dumping clause; fruit; marking act and depreciated currency clause, 2641; German situation; depreciated currency, 2642; post war industries and commercial development of Germany; position of France; reparations; physical suffering; Germany's budget deficits; issues of paper currency; unemployment; comparison of conditions in 1915 and 1921, 2643; Germany's foreign trade; adverse balance; Canada's imports from Germany; purchasing power of the mark; internal and external value; Mr. Maynard Keynes; Dr. Melchior; situation in France, 2645; Austria, Hungary; prohibitory tariffs in central Europe; German exports to Canada; pocket knives, 2646; German goods, method of distribution; agents of German manufacturers in Canada, 2647; sale of brokers' goods; enormous profits of German manufacturers; congratulations to Prime Minister on recently bestowed honour; Australian Preservation of Industries Act; direct and indirect taxation, 2648; inaccurate statements issued by Canadian Council of Agriculture; Mr. Crerar's figures

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Budget — Con.
as to agricultural exports, 2649; consumption of agricultural products in Canada, 2650; taxation of capital; income tax — who pays?; per capita payment of customs duties, 2691; grievances of western farmers; technical and not fiscal problems, 2652; the tariff; business profits and taxation; United Grain Growers; watered stock, 2653; business principles enunciated in Grain Growers' report, 2654
Canadian exhibition in France, 2031
Canadian National railways, deficit, 1919
Canadian Pacific railway bill, 1858
Cash grants to soldiers, Liberal pledge, 399, 433
Chinese immigration
Agent in China, 2026, qu., 2214
Estimates, 2026
Civil service bonus, inquiry, 2996
Coal, Canmore and Drumheller miners' dispute, 1058
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053, 1054
Congratulations to Mr. Fielding, 3279
Customs Act, depreciated currency, 2642, 3224, 3410
Dredging, 2005
Shuswap lake, 2006
Dumping provision, 2641, 3412
Employment offices, 1058
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 487
Fisheries, salmon canners' license fees, 1748
Ford automobile company, 3274
Forests, depletion of, 1046
Fraser Valley and Southern Railway, 1577
Fruit growers, protection, 2641, 3423-4
German valuation of goods, 2642-48, 3226
Government publications, 1373
Grain Inquiry Commission, qu., 705; qu., 1181, 2842
Harbours and rivers
British Columbia, 2005
Quebec, 1998
Hides, price of, 3138
Immigration
Commissioner of at Canton, China, qu., 1901, 2026; qu., 2214
Foreigners admitted as farmers, 1068
Industrial and scientific research, 235, 1372
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Interior dept., economic adviser, 455
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Job printers, taxation, 3264

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Labour department
Employees, 460, 468
Estimates, 571
M. to reduce item, 562, 579
Salary increases, 562
Liquor importation, 733
McCoig, Senator, attendance before Agriculture Com., 1901
McInnes, Mr. W. W. B., qu., 1901, 2026; qu., 2214
Marine and Fisheries
Eddie, Capt., 1492
Ice-breaker, repurchase of, 1490
Lightkeepers, salaries, 1497
Navigation schools, 1492
Steamers and ice-breakers, 1490
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 754
Mennonite emigration, qu., 732
Mexico, trade with, 699
Militia and Defence
Purchasing agents, 416-17
Training camps, qu., 2584
National Defence bill, 739
National Liberal-Conservative platform, trade, 2540
Naval Service
Royal Canadian navy, 1882-91
Royal Naval college, closing of, qu., 2458
Niagara River Bridge Company bill, 1486
Northwest rebellion, pensions for Mounted police, 3523
Nova Scotia miners strike, 1054
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 775, 3017
Oriental aliens, and, 2018
Prohibition, and, 2018
Oriental aliens
Immigration
Chinese, restriction, M. for papers, 1776
Japanese, restriction, M. for papers, 1776
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1548, 1573
Pilotage dues, 1500
Point of order
M. in advance of report of Com., 1901
Right of member to complete speech, 3540
Unfinished statement of member ruled out of order, not debatable, 3603
Post office, railway mail service in British Columbia, 2799
Public buildings, heating, 1758
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Railway Commission, Hon. F. B. Carvell, statement, 2777

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3393
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldier settlement, 2024
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 433
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Pension Board officials, 404
Salary increases, 386
Special War Revenue Act, exemptions, 3263
Standards, bureau of, 235, 1372
Steamship services, 2027
Atlantic and Pacific, Canadian ports, 3026
Unemployment
Relief, 1061, 2022
Employment offices, 2023
Tariff and, 3527
Vancouver drydock, 2005, 2008
Vancouver Harbour Commissioners bill, 2996
War, payment of cost of, 2405
Wheat Board, 2931
Point of order, 2933
Proceedings in Agriculture Com., 2931
Special Com. report, delay in concurrence, 2306
Women, the franchise and, 485
Yukon radiotelegraph service, 1749-50

Stewart, Hon. Charles (Minister of the Interior; Superintendent General of Indian Affairs; Minister of Mines)
Alpine Club grant, 1053
Assiniboine river floods, 3491
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Budget, 2216. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; review of agricultural and industrial conditions from introduction of national policy, 2216; prosperity following change of government in 1896; reciprocity; depression of 1914; agricultural implements; tariff reductions; public debt; war conditions, 2217; railways, 2218; tariff proposals; markets; freight rates, 2219; United States, trade with; taxation; sales, income tax, 2220
Canadian national parks, 1501
Chinese. See also under this title, Immigration; Oriental Aliens
Arival of at Vancouver, 2026, 3604
Criminal Code Amdt. (Scrip frauds) 3220
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Deville, Dr., 1045
Dinosaurs, museum specimens, 1237
Dominion lands
Homestead re-entry, 1041
Reclamation by drainage, 1051
Salaries of staff, 1035

Stewart, Hon. Charles — Con.
Dominion Lands — Con.
Surveys, 1037
Expenditure, 1045
Mackenzie-Peace river districts, 1044
Reduction of vote by, $30,000, 1044
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases, bill, 3151, 3465-74
Senate amendments, 3615
Editorial Committee, 1235
Electrical storm in the West, 3493
Emigration, record of, 2160
Explosives Act, 1234
Forbes, Mrs. E. S., compassionate allowance, 3517
Forestry, 1046
Spruce bud moth, 1049
Tree planting on prairies, 1051
Geological museum specimens, 1237
Geological survey
Co-ordination of survey work, 1236
Reduction of vote, 1237-62
Immigration, 3054
Agents, bonus to, 3063
British artisans, 2208
Chinese, 2026, 3604
Doukhobors, 2160
Hutterites, 2160, 3060
Italian, 2171
Medical inspection, 3052
Mennonites, 2160, 3060
Ministers' statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2208
Policy of department, 3051-2
Reception of immigrant, 2160
Shandro, Mr., proposed colony, 2159
Unemployment, 2143, 3058
Immigration and Colonization, estimates, 754, 758, 2143, 3499
Immigration — Criminal Code bills, 3284
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 2991, 3192
Indian Affairs Dept., estimates, 681, 685, 1214, 3536
Indians
Blood reserve, 1221
Devon band, proposed removal, 1216
Education, 1227, 1231, 3536
Edmonton school, 1231, 3536
Stony reserve, 1228, 3536
Expenditure, 1216
General expenses, 1226
Greater production, 1224
Health, 1228
Hospital grants, 1218
Medical attention, 1218
Potlach institution, 3192

Stewart, Hon. Charles — Con.
Indians — Con.
Six Nations, 1221
Enfranchisement, 2991
Soldier Settlement Board, 1221
Sydney reserve, proposed transfer, 1215
Interior department
Employees, transfer to, 457
Estimates, 3517
Printing and supplies, 454
Salaries, 452
International boundaries, 1033
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Utilization board, 3524
Mines and Minerals
Clay deposits, investigation of, 1234
Estimates, 685
Investigation of resources, 1234
Reduction of vote, 1236-62
Officials, 687
Ore-dressing plant, 1235
Tar sands, 1236
Nelson, Mr. Frank, 3517
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1565
Amdt. "effective restriction", 1567, 1574
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim of, 3503
Public buildings expenditure, 1262
Research council, 1233
Seat for, in Quebec province, 12
Seed grain advances, 1055
Soldier settlement, 2024
Estimates, 2131-42
Land purchases, irregularities, 2140
Taxes, collection of, 2134
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3405, 3475
Water powers, surveys, 1051
Wheat Board bill, 3189
Yukon territory government of, 1034

Stewart, Mr. C. Wallace (Humboldt)
Budget, 2597. Progressive amendment, 2597. Amendment; does not express progressive view; budget proposals; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2598; the average citizen and public affairs; taxation; revenue; debt; economy; reciprocity with the United States; direct taxation; freer trade; marking and valuation of currency acts, 2599; tariff reductions; agricultural implements; sales tax; undue burden on people with small incomes, 2600; political pledges; constructive criticism; income tax; business profits tax; inheritance tax; land tax; estimated revenue from, 2601; conditions of Stewart, Mr. C. Wallace — Con.

Budget — Con.
western farmers; need of wider markets; Wheat Board; transportation; Hudson Bay railway; branch lines, 2602; purchasing power; re adjustment of taxation; immigration; unoccupied lands, 2603
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2602, 2789
Insurance premiums, tax on, 3255
Macphail, Miss, alleged statement of, 3221

Stewart, Major Duncan, qu., 823

Stewart, Mr. H. A. (Leeds)
Brockville and Westport railway, qu., 704
Canadian Ford company, taxes, qu., 3599
Canadian National railways, passenger traffic, qu., 927
Condensed milk, tax, 3271
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 955
Militia and defence, cadet services, 1978
Nova Scotia miners, McLachlan correspondence, qu., 704
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1791
Returned Soldiers Insurance bill, 3391-2

Stewart, Hon. John A. (Lanark)
Alcohol for retail druggists, qu., 1400
Canadian National railways
Board of management, 913
Minister's statement, 912
Public ownership and operation, 1956
Rail and car repair contracts, 1914, 1958
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1427-32
Genoa Conference, 582
Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific railways, qu., 2037
Intercolonial railway management, 408
Labour department
Director of technical education, 577
Policy, and building trades, 582
Publicity agent, 466
Supplies clerk, 585
Public Works estimates, 698
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690, 1694, 1700. See also under this title Canadian National Railways
Railway Commission, alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2777
Railways
Administration, 408
Co-ordination, 408
Freight rates, legislation, qu., 934
Policy, 1956

Stewart, Hon. John A. — Con.
Railways and Canals dept., salaries, 1134
Rideau canal, 2764
Soulanges canal, 2768
Trent canal, construction and betterments, 2764
Unemployment, car repair contracts, 1690
Welland ship canal, 2747

Stewart, Mr. T. J. (West Hamilton)
Hamilton post office building, 1251
Mineral waters tax, 3278
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1835
Stamp tax on cheques, 3261

Stock, Transfer, tax, 2117

Stockyards. See Live Stock

Stony Reserve. See Indians

Stork, Mr. Alfred (Skeena)
Address in reply, 330. Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific railways in British Columbia, 331; oriental question, 332
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 962
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3013
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1516
Prince Rupert post office building, 1257

Strike-on-the-Job. See Nova Scotia Miners

Strikes. See Labour; Unemployment

Sturgeon Falls
Indian agent, qu., 1285
Postmaster, qu., 1285

Submarine Cables, qu., 3151-2, qu., 3360

Submarine Construction. See Limitation of Armaments

Submarines, 1845. See also Naval Service

Subsidies. See also Steamship Services
Canadian Northern, 189-190, qu., 1504, 1921
Federal, Ontario, qu., 2214
Provinces to, 330
Steel companies to, 1692-96. See also Steel

Sudbury mail contract, qu., 1285

Suez Canal, 191. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Sugar
Atlantic refineries, refund, 2850
Beet industry, 2177, 2232, 2273, 2373, 3246, 3251
M. (Mr. Fansher) to reduce duty, 3248

Sugar — Con.
British preference increased, 2116
Excise duty on, 2116-7, 2232, 2273, 2853-5, 3267. See also Budget Speeches; Inland Revenue

Superannuation. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement Act

Supervisor of Expenditure. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Supplementary Estimates. See also Estimates;; Supply
Tabled, 1258

Supply. See also Interim Supply
Committee of, 378, 385, 429, 451, 493, 548, 598, 644, 681, 747, 791, 873, 967, 1018, 1040, 1133, 1163, 1214, 1339, 1361, 1489, 1578, 1662, 1722, 1747, 1843, 1905, 1933, 2010, 2043, 2129, 2747, 2834, 2975, 3026 3051, 3495

Supply, Committee of Amendments
Cash bonus to soldiers, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 429; neg., 450-1
Defence Forces, remarks of Mr. Clark on motion for Supply, 1335
Bills. See Appropriation Acts
Concurrence, 1769, 3489, 3547
Estimates. See that title
Procedure, motion to reduce vote, 1579
Subjects and items discussed
Agriculture, 588, 644, 1018, 3504
Cold storage, 818, 3521
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 3520
Entomology, 813
Experimental farms, 795, 799, 3521
Fruit, 967
Health of animals, 967, 3521
Livestock, 971, 1018, 3521
Seed, Feed and Fertilizer Control, 1011
Stock-grazing and feeding, 1718
Air Board, 1722
Air Force and Civil Aviation, 1722
Annuities, 776
Assay Office, Vancouver, 1236
Auditor General's Office, 793
Board of Commerce, 1715
Boy Scouts Association, 772
Canada Temperance Act, 3499
Canadian National parks, 1051, 1681
Canadian National railways
Advances
Canadian Government railways ($7,000,000) 2779

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Canadian National railways — Con.
Advances — Con.
Canadian Northern ($42,800,000) 1905, 1933
Grand Trunk ($25,750,000) 1969
Grand Trunk Pacific ($15,900,000) 1969
Grand Trunk Pacific ($800,000) 3520
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Canadian Representation in United States, 2026, 2990
Canals
Chambly, 3518
Ontario-St. Lawrence, 2779
Quebec, 2779
Rideau, 2764, 2769
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2767
Soulanges, 2768
Staff and repairs, 2779
Trent, 2764
Welland ship canal, 1687, 2747
Civil aviation, 1722
Civil Service
Bonus, 3528
Commission, 3064
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Customs and Excise, 762, 1674
Distressed Canadians, relief of, 2027
Dominion lands, 1035, 1051
Dominion lands and parks, 1681, 3517
Employment offices, 1058
Exhibitions, 2026
External affairs, 411, 3508
Finance, 770
Charges of management, 1663, 3495
Paper Control inquiry, 1673
Tariff commissioner, 1663
Forestry protection, 1046
Geodetic survey, 1033
Geological survey, 1233, 1236
Genoa Conference, 1715
Girl guides, 774
Governor General's Secretary's Office, 751
Grain Inquiry Commission, 2982
Harbours and rivers. See also under this title. Public Works.
Nova Scotia, 1269, 3545
Prince Edward Island, 1270
Health, 775
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021
Quarantine, 2021
High Commissioner's office, 413
House of Commons, 2026
Housing, 774

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Immigration, 754, 1711, 2143, 3051
Adjustment of war claims, 1711
Chinese, 2026
St. John immigration building, 2027
Salaries, 3499
Indians, 681, 1215, 3536
British Columbia, 1713
Destitute, 1712-14
Education, 1715, 3536
Field and garden seeds, 1712
General expenses, 1712
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Insurance, 791
Interim. See Interim Supply
Interim Supply bill, 378, 598
Interior, 452, 1033
Dominion lands and parks, 1681, 3517
Migratory birds, 1684
National parks, 1051, 1681
Printing and stationery, 1680
Yukon, administration of, 1681
International Labour Conference, 1060
Joint Industrial councils, 1060
Justice, 451, 1274
Civil government, 1668, 3495
Exchequer court, 1274
Litigated matters, 1276
Supreme court, 1274
Yukon territory, 1275
Labour, 458, 493, 548, 1053
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Unemployment relief, 1970, 2022
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2025
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Utilization board, 3524
League of Nations, Permanent Secretariat, 2026
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495, 1677
Live stock, 971, 1018, 3521
Marine and Fisheries, 1676, 3051
Deep sea fisheries, conservation, 2169
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2166
Investigation into wrecks, 1492
Life-saving service, 1494
Lighthouse and coast service, 1405, 1677
Salaries and allowances, 1497

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Marine and Fisheries — Con.
Marine signal service, 1499
Meterological service, 1501
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Navigation schools, 1492
Ocean and river service, 3507
Pilotage, administration of, 1499
Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3514
Registration of shipping, 1493
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Salaries of officers and guardians, 2166
Sorel shipyard, 1494, 2169
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Steamers and icebreakers, 1489
War claims, adjustment, 1677
Wrecking plants, subsidies, 1493
Militia and Defence, 415, 586, 1163, 1578, 1601, 1922, 2974, 3498
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Annual drill, 1163, 1578, 1610
Arsenals
Lindsay, 1979, 2085
Quebec, 1979, 2091
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Cadet services, 1972
Civil government, 415, 586, 3498
Civil pensions, 1711, 3499
Clothing and necessaries, 1978
Customs duties, 1978
Engineer services and works, 1980
Maintenance of military properties, 1980
Ordnance arms, lands, etc., 1982
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Permanent force, 1982
Reductions, 1174, 1578, 1631, 1972-87, 2091-98
Royal Military College, 1985
Salaries and wages, 1985
School of instruction, 1985
Staff, pay of, 1982
Topographic survey, 1985
Training areas, 1986
Transport and freight, 1986
War claims, adjustment of, 2098, 2974
Mines and Geological Survey, 1233, 3524
Mines and Minerals, 685, 1234
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval Service, 418, 1735
Dockyards, Halifax and Esquimalt, 1752
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Hydrographic survey, 1746

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Naval Service — Con.
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 1972, 2043
Salaries and contingencies, 1745
War claims, adjustment of, 1752
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276
Paris agency, 2025
Parliamentary guide, 2024
Passport office, 2026
Patent record, 2026
Penitentiaries, 1670
Pensions, 3522
European war and active militia, 1349
Madame Fabre, 2024
Post Office, 691, 1711
Outside service, 2799
Printing and stationery, 1711
Printing Bureau, 1970
Privy Council, 410
Public Archives, 702, 2025
Public health, 2017
Public Works, 692, 747, 1238
Dredging,, 2005
Harbours and rivers, 3541
British Columbia, 2005, 3547
Manitoba, 2003, 3545
New Brunswick, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1269, 1765, 3545
Ontario, 1999
Prince Edward Island 1270, 1988
Quebec, 1998, 3545
St. John harbour improvements, 2013
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2004, 3547
Miscellaneous, 2008
Public buildings
Alberta, 1254, 3545
British Columbia, 1255
Fittings, supplies and furniture, 1757
Generally, 1260-4
Immigration buidings, 1757
Lighting, etc., 1755
Maritime provinces generally, 1243
Ontario, 1245-68, 3544
Ottawa, 1265
Parliament buildings, 2014
Rents, repairs, etc., 1238, 1265, 1764
Rideau hall, 1756
Quarantine stations, 1238-45
Halifax, 1238
St. John, 1238-45
Williamshead, 1255
Quebec, 1245
Saskatchewan, 1253

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Public Works — Con.
Telephone service, 1757
Roads and bridges, 2007
Telegraphs and telephones, 2007, 2012
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Railway Commission, 2773
Railways and Canals, 407, 3518
Arbitrations and litigation, 2772
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan, 3035
Canadian National railways, 1933. See also that title
Canadian Northern advance, 1905, 1933
Canals. See under this title, Canals
Governor Generals cars, 1688
Grand Trunk arbitration, 2779
Hudson Bay railway, 1970
Intercolonial, 2767
Port Colbourne elevator, 1687
Railway policy, 1905, 1933
Salaries and contingencies, 1133
Surveys and inspections, 2779
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 775, 2129
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 1972, 2043
Secretary of State, 701
Civil government, 1670
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Public archives, 1673
War claims, adjustment of, 1672, 2977
Seed Grain advances, 1053
Senate, 2026
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 385
Capital expenditure, 1279
Employers' liability compensation, 1348
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Pensions
European war, active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Salaries, 1339
Unemployment relief, 1347, 1352, 3524
Vocational loans, 1346
War service gratuity, interest on, 1346
Soldier settlement, 2023, 2131
Statutes, reprinting, 1717
Steamship services, 2027, 3026, 3505
Supplementry estimates, 1662
Taxation, business profits, income, 2024
Trade and Commerce, 699, 3541
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Dominion Bureau of statistics, 1363
Gas and electricity, inspection, 1373
Gold and Silver Marking Act, administration, 1372

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Trade and Commerce — Con.
Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373
Linen yarn bounty, 1361
Printing of publications, 1373
Steamships services, 2027, 3026, 3505. For individual services see that title
Terminal elevators, 2978
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 1373, 2989
Unemployment relief, 1061, 3524-6
Victorian order of nurses, 772
War Graves Commission, 774
Water powers, 1051
Wheat Board, 3541
Yukon territory, 1034, 1275

Supreme Court
Cameron, Mr. E. R., K.C., estimate and expenditure, 1274
Decision. See Wheat Board
Estimates, 1274
Library, 1274
Reports, 1274

Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill (Appeal from provincial courts of final resort) 1r., 2456; 2r., com., 3r., 2974

Survey and Map Work. See also Interior Department
Co-ordination of, 1986

Surveys. See also Dominion Lands; Geodetic; Geological; Topographic
Water power resources, 1051

Sussex public building, 1239

Sutherland, Mr. Donald (South Oxford)
Accredited herds, diseases, 1001
Adulteration of mill feeds, 1011, 2490
Agricultural implements, duty, 3134
Agricultural Instruction Act, 1012-1013
Air Force and civil aviation, 1731
Alderson claim, 1002-3
Beet sugar industry, 3251
Blake, late Hon. Edward, 2657
Budget, 2481. After war conditions; tribute to Finance Minister, 2481; election promises not carried out; breach of faith; the amendment; leader of Progressive party making excuses for Government; Hon. George Brown and violation of political pledges, 2482; statement of Prime Minister; Liberal declarations in favour of free trade;

Sutherland, Mr. Donald — Con.
Budget — Con.
Finance Minister chastises colleagues; opposing views in government party, 2483; a policy to suit every constituency; tacit understanding between Progressives and Liberals; public statements as to fiscal policy of Liberal party; Mr. Fielding and protection; duty on agricultural implements, 2484; reciprocity agreement; attitude of United States towards Canada; proposed duties under reciprocity, 2485; importation of agricultural products from the United States; world tendency to increase tariff barriers; valuation of currency, 2486; trade with Germany; labour costs; marking of goods; United States legislation to prevent unfair competition; industrial development of the West; sectionalism; two-party system;, 2487; Progressive party, origin and policy; record of the old Tory party; Union government tariff policy; Wartime Elections Act; tariff concessions to western Canada; Grain Growers' Grain Company contributions to political organizations, 2488; resignation of Mr. Crerar from Union government; statement of Mr. Rice Jones; Mr. Crerar's salary as president of United Grain Growers, 2489; oleomargarine; recleaned screenings; adulteration of mill feed, export duty on dairy produce; Mr. Rowell and Mr. Clark on tariff proposals of Union government; protective policy; Premier Drury and land tax, 2491; tax on unimproved land values; free trade; sales tax; condensed milk, 2492; railway situation; debt; inheritance from former Liberal government; Transcontinental railway, 2493; dumping clause; value of German mark; economy in administration, 2494; amendment, 2495
Cattle
Embargo, 1002, 1031
Free carriage of, 1029
Freight on, 1010
Stockyards, 1030
Condensed milk tax, 2492, 3266
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1437, 1455
Customs revenue, qu., 614
Drainage tiles, 3270-1

Sutherland, Mr. Donald — Con.
Experimental farms, number of, 797, 801, 805, 813, 1015
M. to reduce item, 812
Farm tractors, duty on, 769
Feed Control Act, 1011
Filled milk and cream, qu., 963
Freight on hay for stock, 1007
Health of animals, Alderson claim, 1002-3-5
Hides, price of, 3139
Hog cholera, 1009
Alderson claim, 1005
Immigration
Bonus to agents, 3062
Unemployment and, 3058
Imports into Canada, qu., 610; qu., 612; qu., 613
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 1032
Meat and Canned Foods Act, 3050
Militia and Defence
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2091
Quebec and, 1982, 2087-97
Expenditures and policy, 1981
Military properties, 1981
Naval Service, co-ordination with, 420
Pay of staff, M. to reduce item, 1982
Milk herds, tuberculosis, 1006
National Defence, department of, 1732-4, 1981
Naval policy, 2073
Royal Canadian navy, 2073
Oleomargarine
Importation of materials, qu., 613; qu., 704; qu., 728
Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1816
Materials for, 3270
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3432, 3487
Parliament buildings, purchase of furniture, 1756-7
Pensions Board investigation, 3156
Pensions Committee, 3348-9, 3357
Final report, 3351
Sales tax, 3270
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 447
Stallion clubs, 1031
Standard of living, 3139
Sugar beet industry, 3267
Wheat board, 2947
Wool, duty on, 3132-35

Sutherland, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu., 366

Swift Current post office building, 1253

Sydney, N.S.
Pilotage district, 3508
Reserve. See Indians

Sydney, N.S. — Con.
Steel workers, unemployment, 1076
Unemployment contracts for steel rails, 1688

Tadoussac-Murray Bay steamship service, 3035

Tampa Exhibition, 2026

Tar Sands. See Mines and minerals

Tariff, 1290. See also Budget; Customs; Trade. For items discussed See Customs Tariff
Amended resolutions, 2854
Australia, preferential treatment, 2110
Automobiles, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2230. See also Budget
Book paper for magazines, 2855
Canada-West Indies trade agreement, 2110
Changes, 2174, 2851
Cigarettes, 2855
Commission, proposed permanent, 2269, 2339, 2351, 2625
Commissioner, 1663
Salary, 3504
Comparison with Laurier-Fielding tariff, 208
Dumping clause, 2184, 2197. See also Speeches on Budget
Duty on boots and shoes, 159-160
Fordney. See United States
France, 2032
Fruit, 2197. See also that title
Fuel oil, 344, 1761
Immigration and, 2157
Inquiry, 1920-21, cost, etc., qu., 2215
Legislation, history of, 2184, 2429-30, 2655
Liberal policy. See Liberal Convention of 1919
Ministers and Directorships, 1088
Prohibitory Central European, 2646
Reduction, 2111, 2114, 2286, 2844
Resolutions, 2118. For items See Customs Tariff
Amended, 2851, 2874
Bill, 3476-7
Revision, 2110-14
Former, 2426
Necessity for. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Shoe manufacturers and, 141. See also Boots and Shoes
Tractors, 2115. See also Budget
Unemployment and, 3527
Valuations for duty, 3413-15

Taschereau, Premier, and St. Lawrence river waterway, 137, 1191

Taxation, 2496. See speeches on Budget; Revenue Bills
Amusement, 2395
Automobiles. See under this title, Sales tax
Bachelor, 82
Bank circulation, 2117
Beer, ale, etc., 2117, 2567, 2852, 2857
Bond and stock transfers, 2117, 2853
Bonds held in United States non-taxable, 1133; qu., 2971
Breadner, Mr. R. W., Commissioner, salary, 2024
Burdensome, 2242, 2248, 2600, 2661. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Urban population on, 2394
Business profits, qu., 1657, 1658, 2024, 2172-9, 2281, 2562, 2653
Administration of, 2024
British Empire Steel Corporation, qu., 1067
Canadian Ford Company, qu., 3599
Cheque tax, 1036, 2117, 2177, 2269, 2329, 2462, 2640, 2676, 2852, 2856, 3258
Protests against, 2395
Classification of income tax-payers, 1063
Condensed milk, 2492, 3264, 3271, 3409
Confectionery, 2177, 2641, 2676, 2852, 2857
Commodity tax, 2883
Consumer of, 2507
Customs. See Customs Tariff; Tariff
Debt and, 2459. See also Public Debt
Direct and indirect, 2386, 2402, 2648, 2707
Effect on trade, 2859
Estimated revenues from, 2172
Evasions, 2395
Excess profits, 2441, 2695
Express money orders and travellers cheques, 2856
Garbage collection tax in Ontario, 1256
Income, 2442, 2686. See also that title
Administration of, 2024
Banks, payments by, qu., 1400
Forms, 3485
Members of provincial legislature, 3486
Railway men and commercial travellers, 3485
Revenue and classification, 1063; qu., 1399-1400
Inequalities, 2255
Inheritance tax, 184, 2442, 2510, 2601, 2626, 2686, 2708, 2844
Insurance
Foreign companies, 2462
Premiums, 2117, 3253

Taxation — Con.
Land values, 2191, 2405, 2443, 2492, 2510, 2626, 2686, 2695-6, 2844,
Estimated revenue from, 2601
Loan companies, 2299
Luxuries, 2260, 2561, 2696
Modification of, 230. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Municipal, payment of by Government, 1256, 1257
Mutual insurance companies, 3477. See also under this title, Insurance
New, 2116, 2177, 2329
Non-taxable bonds, 1133, 2971
Overlapping, 2463
Per capita, 2341
Post Office money orders, 2857
Principle of, 2281
Property, 2443
Provincial, payment to British Columbia govt., 1714
Receipts, 2270, 2853-7
Riordon Company, qu., 372; qu., 607
Sales tax, 2220, 2843. See also Special War Revenue bill
Ale, beer, etc., 2117, 2567, 2852, 2857
Automobiles, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2260. See also Automobiles; Budget
Collections, qu., 375
Confectionery, 2117, 2641, 2676
Exempted goods, 2126
Beet pulp dried, 2852
Fertilizers, 2852
Goods on which tax was collected, 1921-22, 1212
Increase, 2393
Mineral waters, 2117
Soldier settlement, municipal taxes, 1257
Special War Revenue Act. See that title
Stocks and bonds, 2856
Stock transfers, 2117, 2853
Telegrams and cables, 2117, 2178, 2856
Transient aliens, 2155

Taylor, Dr., qu., 1211

Technical Education. See Labour

Telegraphs. See also Wireless

Telegraphs and Telephones
British Columbia, 2008, 2012
Canadian National lines, qu., 3360
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Lower St. Lawrence and maritime provinces, 2012
Prince Edward Island, 2012
Public buildings, Ottawa, 1757
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2007, 2012

Telegraphs and Telephones — Con.
Telegrams and cables, tax on, 2117, 2178, 2856
Yukon, cost of, 1275, 2012

Telephones. See Telegraphs and Telephones

Temperance. See Canada Temperance Act

Ten Eyck, Congressman, 1396

Terminal Elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade

Terminal Facilities. See St. John

Territorial Waters, Fishing beyond. See Fisheries Act Amdt.

Territories, Unorganized. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Textile Industry, 2882. See Speeches on Budget
Foreigners engaged in, 2518
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Profits, 2632

Thompson, Colonel Andrew, soldiers' bonus, 403, 432

Thompson, Colonel J. T. C. See Pensions Board

Thompson, Mr. T. H. (East Hastings)
Dairy inspection, 1009
Dairy produce, grading of, 655-6
Stamp tax on cheques, 3261

Three Rivers Clerk of the Peace. See Criminal Code

Threshing Machines. See Agricultural Implements

Thunder Bay, icebreaking, 1677

Thurston, Mr. John J. (Victoria, Ont.)
Immigration, travelling expenses, 757
Militia and Defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2085
River-gauging and metering, 2011
Trent canal, Nassau dam, qu., 2457

Tidal Fisheries. See Quebec Fisheries

Tidal Survey. See Naval Service

Timber. See also Lumber
Acquisition of British Columbia areas by Japanese, 2311
Gaspé, in, 625
Illegal cutting on Tobique reserve, 1233
Lease of Ontario areas, 2805; qu., 2992
Protection of. See Forestry

Tobacco
American Tobacco Company, 2547
Bull Durham, comparative prices, 2546
Cigarettes, duties on, 2394, 2547, 2852-3
Cigars, duties on, 2115, 2853, 2857
Duties, 2115, 2394, 2546, 2891
Experimental station at L'Assomption, 1776
Imperial Tobacco Company, 2546
Industry, protection, 2891
Raw leaf, 2115, 2673, 2853

Tobin, Mr. E. W. (Richmond and Wolfe)
Canadian National railways, purchase of ties, qu., 1659
Oleomargarine, importation and manufacture, qu., 1506
Richmond and Wolfe
Post offices, qu., 1507
Postmasters, qu., 1508
Rural mail routes, qu., 1505

Tobin, Lieut. Col., Vancouver, letter of, 1975

Tobique Reserve. See Indians

Todd, Mr. W. F., election promises in Charlotte, N.B., 1994

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. (Victoria City)
Accredited herd system, 2738
Agricultural exhibitions, 650
Agriculture
Cattle embargo, 973-4
Dept., Mr. T. N. Lynton, 588
Live stock industry, 971
Livestock trade with South America, 648
Salaries, 656
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734-43
Bovine tuberculosis, 2738
Budget, 2591. Duration of previous Parliament; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2591; tariff and agricultural implements; trade relations with Australia; agricultural conditions; mixed farming, 2592; wool and sheep raising; dumping clause; British Columbia fruit industry; United States competition, 2593; tax on temperance beverages; fruit juices; grading hogs for the British market; extermination of hog cholera, 2594; United States system of dealing with disease; eradication of bovine tuberculosis, 2595; horse racing, Federal control of and revenue from, 2596; cattle export; embargo; new taxes; amendment, 2597;
Cold storage, 818
Entomology, orchard protection, 816

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. — Con.
Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway bill, 1156, 1161, 1353, 1355, 1604
Esquimalt dry dock, 597
Experimental farms, British Columbia, 796
Fisheries dept., 2166
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Fruit growers, protection, 2593, 3424
Health of Animals
Diseases, 968, 2594, 2738
Tuberculosis, 2594, 3521
Hog cholera, 2594, 2738
Horse-racing, federal control, 2596
Immigration of Japanese, 1289, qu., 1459
Marine and Fisheries
Examination of masters and mates, 1491
Lightkeepers' salaries and allowances, 1497
Ministers' secretaries, 413
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1785
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2825, 3017
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1567
Oriental immigration
Japanese, 1289, qu., 1399, qu., 1459
Patronage, civil service, 3083
Victoria post office building, repairs, 1255-8

Topographic Maps, qu., 1631

Topographic Survey, 1043

Tormentine Reef, buoy, 1499

Toronto
Campaign advertisement, 198-199
Cheque tax, 2395, 2329
Customs house, 198-9, 1246-51
Harbour improvements, qu., 365, 1187, 1467, 1471, 1474, 3541
Imperial convention of teachers, 1673
International yacht race, 3513
Post Office, qu., 108-9, 368
Building, 1246-51
Revenue, 1250
Power plant, public ownership, 123
Prison reform, municipal farms, 1277
Railway facilities, 66
Viaduct, qu., 1660
Railway grades, reduction of, 74
Rate increases, 131
Representation of, 1365
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment staff, 1343
Steam railway freight, qu., 936
Street railway
Public ownership, 1937
Service, 63
Toronto Suburban railway, qu., 2457
Transportation commission, 130
Unemployment, 86

Toronto Electric Light Company, 123

Tourist Traffic
Banff-Windermere highway, 1681
Highways, 1681. See also that title
Visitors to Canadian National parks, 1052

Town Planning, Banff, 1052

Townsend, United States Senator, 1206

Tracadie Lazaretto, 1240, 2021

Tractors, 769, 2354, 3123. See also Agricultural Implements
Value $1,400 and less to be free, 2115

Trade and Commerce, 2108. See also Customs and Excise; Exports; Imports; Speeches on Budget; Tariff
Agreements and negotiations, 2110, 2172
Agricultural implements, in, 2620-1. See also that title
Australia, with, 9, 174-5. See also Steamship Services
Austria, with, 2535
Bills to be preceded by resolution, 1283
British Preference and Canadian seaports. See British Preference
Canada-Mexico, qu., 606, 699-700, 2989
Canadian ports by, 104. See also British Preference
Channels of, 336-7
Competition, 223. See Speeches on Budget
Consular agents, repeal of Act of 1921, 3222, 3477
Consular certificates, 2114, 3222, 3477
Department
Canada Grain Act, administration, 2834
Estimates, 1361, 2834, 2978, 3026, 3541
Salaries, etc., 699
Elevators, terminal, maintenance and equipment, 2978
Exchange value of commodities, 2868
Expansion, 2021
Export. See St. John Terminal Facilities
Exports and imports, 1876-77 and 1921-22, qu., 1376. See also Imports
Foreign. See also Germany
France-Belgium, 3223
Freight rates, effect on, 276
Germany, with, 138, 2203, 2279, 2535, 2859. See also Customs; Germany; Speeches on Budget
Great Britain, 2540. See also British Preference
And United States, 2369
International, 2862
Interprovincial, 2284

Trade and Commerce — Con.
Italian, effect of currency valuation on, 2849
Mexico, with, qu., 606, 699-700, 2989
Necessity for revival, 105. See also Budget; Industrial Depression; Speeches on Address
Potatoes. See that title
Russian, consortium to re-establish, 1463
Southern Pacific dominions, 2990
Steamships Services. See that title
Total
1876-77 and 1921-22, statement, 1376
1900-1921, qu., 1633
Statement, 1376
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 1373, 2114, 2581, 2989
United States with, 2223, 2449-50. See also that title
West Indies. See St. John Terminal Facilities; Steamship Services

Trades and Labour Congress
Oriental immigration, 1514
Unemployment insurance, 1081

Transatlantic Traffic. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Transcontinental. See Canadian National Railways

Transportation, 2580, 2611. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Cattle, free carriage of, 1029
Commodity and freight rates, 234
Costs. See Freight Rates
Farm products of, 231
Fish, 2166
Loss of, 175
Maritime provinces in, 106-111, 2687-8
Nationalization, 2325. See also Canadian National railways
Problems. See Budget; Speeches on Address. See also that title
St. Lawrence River Waterway, 269
M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1203-8
Tonnage rates, 234
Water, 1939

Trawlers. See Naval Service

Treaties. See also Conferences
Anglo-Japanese, 168
Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty, 3161
Far Eastern, 3160
Four Power. See Limitation of Armaments

Treaties — Con.
France-Belgium, 3223
Hungary and Turkey, 3490, 3547
Tabled, 3359
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Japan, with, 1511
Lemieux treaty with, 1459
Limitation of Armaments, 3158
Peace treaty with Germany, Lusitania claims, 3599
Pelagic Sealing, 1844
Prevention of use of noxious gases and chemicals, 3159
Protection of neutrals and non-combatants at sea, 3159
Quadruple Pacific, 3160
Versailles, 2848

Treaty of Peace with Hungary and Turkey bill
1r., 3490; 2r., com., 3r., 3547

Tree Planting. See also Forestry
Provincial highways, qu., 2039

Tremblay, General, Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Trent Canal. See Canals

Trenton Harbour bill
Res., 3436, 3493; 1r., 2r., com., 3494; 3r., 3495

Trépanier, Alderman, of Montreal, 1392

Trial by Jury, 1388. See also Criminal Code Amdt.

Trusts and Combines, 2395, 2414. See also Address; Budget
Minister of Labour and, 200

Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; com., 3r., 3142; Senate amdts., 3607

Tsur, Dr., Chinese-Consul General, 1776

Tuberculosis. See also Health; Hospitals
Bloc areas, 3521
Bovine, 2556, 2595, 3521. See also Animal Contagious Diseases bill
Indians, 1225, 1228
Returned Soldiers. See Pensions; Returned Soldiers' Insurance; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment hospitals, 1344

Tupper, Sir Charles, and maritime union, 107-108

Turgeon, Mr. Onésiphore (Gloucester)
Address in reply, 273. Congratulations; maritime provinces and the Intercolonial, 274-276; government ownership of railways, 277; tariff questions, 278; natural resources of western provinces, 279
Budget, 2188. Mr. Fielding's visit to Washington; Fordney tariff; relations with the United States, 2189; public debt; income and business profits taxes; economy; British preference; duties on farm implements, 2190; fishing industry; lumber; alcohol for medicinal purposes; sales tax; taxation of land values, 2191; Liberal platform of 1919; capital and labour; immigration, 2192; railways; Transcontinental; opposition of C.P.R., 2193; board of directors; grain shipments, 2194; public ownership; Intercolonial, 2195; regional control of Canadian National railways, 2196
Canadian National railways
Board of directors, 2194
Hanna and Mitchell, Messrs., salaries, qu., 471
Public ownership, 2193
Transcontinental
Grain shipments, 2194
Opposition of Canadian Pacific to, 2194
Canadian Pacific railway, cost, 2193
Civil Service patronage, 3082
Immigration, agricultural workers, 2193
St. John terminal facilities, 848
Single tax, 2191

Turkey, Peace Treaty with, 3359, 3547

Turtle Mountain Forest reserve, qu., 615

Ukrainians. See Immigration

Ultra Vires, Canada Grain Act, 1132

Undesirables, deportation of. See Criminal Code; Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Unemployment, 1290, 2331, 2627. See also Address; Budget; Canadian Patriotic Fund bill; Housing; Immigration; Labour; Returned Soldiers
Agricultural conditions and, 2158
Banff-Windermere road, 1052, 1682
Canada, number in, qu., 3362
Cities, in, 86

Unemployment — Con.
Continuance of, 237
Credit system, 219
Economic causes, 1081, 3526
Employment offices, Co-ordination Act, 1058, 2022
German competition and, 2178. See also Germany
Farm labourers, 2331. See also that title
Housing, 219. See also Housing
Immigration and, 225, 2143
Importations and, 210
Insurance, 88, 218, 1070, 1081
Land settlement and, 182-3
Military expenditures, 1144
National conference proposed, 1082
Nova Scotia miners, 1759. See also Labour
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Policy of Government, inquiry, 3491
Proposed order steel rails to relieve, 1691
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690, 1912
Relief, 1061, 1719, 1970, 2022; qu., 3152
Camps, 86
Expenditure for, 86, 2023
Report of Ontario Government commission, 218
Returned soldiers, 2458, 3311, 3329-30. See also that title
Hikers, qu., 3153
Riley's army, qu., 3364. See also "General" Macdonald's Army
Seasonal, 87-88
Soldiers, 3524. See also Returned Soldiers
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, relief, 1347, 1352
Standing Committee, proposed, 1082
Toronto, aid to, 121, 199
Unemployment Service Council, recommendations, 2803
Unemployment situation, 1069-84
Welland canal, 2750

Unimproved Land Values, tax. See Taxation

Union of Canadian Municipalities
Foreigners, immigration of, 1392
Immigration, 2155

Unions. See Labour

United Farmers of Alberta
Loan system, resolution, 220

United Farmers of British Columbia, 1354
Oriental immigration, 1514

United Farmers of Ontario, 63
Platform, 2393
Protection and, 2440

United Grain Growers' Limited, 2489, 2653
Agricultural implements, 304, 2693, 3119
Crerar, Mr., and, 2489
Political organizations, contribution to, 2488
Report, 2654

United Mine Workers. See Nova Scotia miners

United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada, 1902

United States. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Air Service, 1726
American Bankers' Association, resolution, 2189
Amicable relations with, 91
Bonds held in, non-taxable, 1133
Canadian exports to, 209. See also Exports
Canadian-owned railways in, 312
Canadian representation in, 2990
Coal and steel industries, 2419
Coal, importations from, 124, 1759. See also Coal
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Duty on Canadian apples, 164. See also Fruit
Duty on Canadian potatoes and wheat, 239. See also Root Vegetables
Emigration to, 2516. See also Immigration
Factories in Canada, 2413-14, 2467
Farmers, competition with, 2527
Farmers' bloc, 69, 210, 988, 2323. See also under this title, Fordney
Flag, 1265
Fordney tariff, 53, 93-94, 209, 272, 343, 2112, 2178, 2189, 2219, 2336, 2367, 2409, 2527, 2580
Effect of, 2454
Grand Trunk mileage in, 191
Immigration from, 236, 2147. See also that title
Comparison, 3056
Figures, 758
Years' residence in Canada, 236
Imperial pensioners in, 1347
Importations, duty on, 208-209
Importations of British goods through, qu., 375
Income tax, non-resident aliens, 1304
Industries developing Canadian resources, 2667
Insurance companies, tax. See Special War Revenue Act
Investment in Canadian industries, 2368, 2546
Iron and steel industry, 2412-13
Magazines, imports, 3109

United States — Con.
Medical inspection of immigrants for Canada, 2022
Military expenditure, 1622
Oriental immigration, 1515
Pecuniary claims convention with, 1276
Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 1844
Railway difficulties, 67-70, 129, 1917-18
Railways
Lines in Canada, 204
Purchase of, 2611
Reciprocity, 77, 102, 2111, 2201, 2285, 2368, 2463, 2485, 2511, 2527, 2616, 2694, 2846. See also Address; Budget
St. Lawrence and Welland canals, 2749
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1184, 1315 1396. See also that title
Treaty, consideration of proposed, 2207
Steel prices, 2412
Tariff discrimination, 2466
Tariff legislation, 113, 988, 2487, 2620-1, 2864. See also under this title Fordney
Trade, 2111, 2178, 2610,. See also under this title, Reciprocity
Cattle, 2695
Relations, 2908
War operations, 1336
Washington
Hon. Mr. Fielding's trip to, 2112, 2189, 2300
Wrangel Island, 1751
Russian claim to, 2208

Unopposed Motions for Papers
Algoma Indian lands, timber leases (Mr. Simpson) 942
Appraisers, Paris and London, (Mr. Parent) 1068
Avignon, Que., post office (Mr. Marcil) 829
Bonaventure
Mail contract (Mr. Marcil) 829
Post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Caisse, Mr. J. J., Montreal post office (Mr. Marcil) 828
Canadian Expeditionary Force, 112th Battalion band instruments (Mr. Martell) 372
Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk insurance (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 828
Canadian Northern bonds (Mr. Stevens) 2458
Canadian ships, damage during war (Mr. Bristol) 1183
Caraquet and Gulf shore railway (Mr. Hanson) 1183
Carleton, Que., post office (Mr. Marcil) 829
Cattle embargo, Hon. Manning Doherty (Mr. White) 616

Unopposed Motions for Papers — Con.
Civil Service bonus, (Mr. Garland, Carleton) 828
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal (Mr. Baxter) 2584 Dominion Iron and Steel Co., contract (Mr. Caldwell) 616
Extra-territorial rights (Mr. Meighen) 1068
Fisheries
Establishment of independent department (Mr. Martell) 372
Transfer to British Columbia (Mr. McQuarrie) 2042
Fort Edward lands (Mr. Martell) 372
Genoa conference (Mr. Boys) 1905
Grand Trunk Railway Company 1921 loan, (Mr. Putnam) 828
Griffenhagen and Associates report (Mr. Séguin) 1633
Holland, Lee, deportation (Mr. Meighen) 372
Hudson Bay, St. John parish patents (Mr. Garland, Carleton) 829
Hudson, Govt. cutter (Mr. Baxter) 3600
Immigration
Foreigners admitted as farmers (Mr. Stevens) 1068
Western lands, on, 616 (Mr. Stevens)
Indian agency, Bear river, N.S., (Mr. Lovett) 828
Inverness Railway and Coal Co., (Mr. Chisholm) 372
Kootenay flats (Mr. Humphrey) 286
Legal costs, payments (Mr. Martell) 2971
McQuarrie, John C., dismissal of, 377
Mail contract, Rigaud-St. Rédempteur (Mr. Ouimet) 1776
Migratory Birds Convention, infraction, (Mr. Martell), 377
Nanaimo County judge (Mr. Neill) 2042
Nautical assessors (Mr. Church) 1633
Newspaper censors (Mr. Archambault) 1068
Nova Scotia
Barristers, payments (Mr. Martell) 707
Miners, McLachlan correspondence (Mr. Stewart, Leeds) 616
Order of Grain-Baggers (Mr. Stevens) 2806
Page, Mr. H. W. A. claim (Mr. Neill) 2042
Palais station, Que. (Mr. Parent) 1068
Parc St. Charles Company (Mr. Marcil) 372
Paspebiac post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Post Office department (Mr. Séguin) 3600
Purchasing Commission, origin of goods (Mr. Raymond) 2042
Quebec
Bridge (Mr. Parent) 1068

Unopposed Motions for Papers — Con.
Fisheries (Mr. Marcil) 616
Harbour Commission (Mr. Meighen) 372
Sardines for export (Mr. Grimmer) 1183
Shigawake post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Sorel shipyards, dismissals, (Mr. Hanson) 377
Tobacco experimental station L'Assomption (Mr. Séguin) 1776
Tug Pekin (Mr. Maclean, Prince) 1289
Victory bonds, (Mr. Putnam) 942
Winnipeg strike (Mr. McMurray) 1068
Yukon territory
Royalty on minerals (Mr. Black) 616
Transfer of mineral claims, (Mr. Black) 616

Universal Postal Union, 3173

Universities, Physical drill and military training, 1615

Unrestricted Reciprocity, Hon. Edward Blake on, 2677

Urban Population, loss of. See Immigration; Population

Vancouver
Anti-Japanese riots, 1511-16
Assay office, 1236
Ballantyne pier, wages of workmen, 1465, 1469
Board of Trade drydock, 2009
Customs aerial patrol, 1730
Drydock, 1255, 1484, 2005, 2009, 3542
Board of Trade telegram, 2009
Expenditure in, 2309
Free port, proposal, 2470
Harbour, 1473. See also Vancouver Harbour Commission bill
Mounted Police barracks, Fairmont, 1255
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Post office building repairs, 1255
Railway duplication at, 74-75
Shipment of grain from, 235
Sun, criticism of Hon. John Oliver, 2237
Unemployment conference, 1069
Unemployment relief camps, 86

Vancouver, Fraser Valley and Southern Railway Company, 798

Vancouver Harbour Commissioners Act Amdt. bill (Port Warden and Shipping Master) 1r., 1929; 2r., com., 2821; 3r., 2996

Vancouver Island coal mines, 178

Vancouver Sun, criticism of Hon. John Aliver, 2236-7

Vegetables. See also Root Vegetables
Dumping clause, 2372. See also Speeches on Budget
Production of near Montreal, 1019

Versailles, Treaty of, 2848

Vessels. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding
Aurora. See Naval Service
Britisher, 3514
Canadian Exporter, wreck of, qu., 1210
Canadian Farmer, 2311
Canadian Freighter, qu., 963, 2311
Canadian Inventor, 2312
Canadian Prospector, 2311
Canadian Winner, 2311
Champlain, qu., 1400
Con Rein, 1382
Foreign ships of war, exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act
Hudson, Government cutter, qu., 3598
James Whalen, 1677
Lambton, wreck of, 1492, 3507
Mildred McColl, 3598
Niobe, sale of. See Naval Service
Ocean-going, 1471. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Patrician. See Naval Service
Patriot. See Naval Service
Pekin, 1289
Phalarope, patrol boat, 1503
Plamonder, dredge, 2006
Quebec, in and out of, 1471
Scottish, 3514

Vickers Company, 320, qu., 936
Claim, 2975
Elevator dredge, 1494

Victoria, B.C.
Drydock, 2009. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Govt. expenditure in, 2309
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1497
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Post office building, 1255
Wooden ships constructed at, qu., 364

Victoria Bridge. See Bridges

Victoria Memorial Museum
Geological specimens, 1237
Potlach institution, 1377. See also Indians

Victorian Order of Nurses, 772
Unemployment, relief of, 86

Victory Bonds. See also Finance
Exempt from taxation, 263
Five year maturities, qu., 2993

Vidal's Point Park, 1052

Vien, Mr. Thomas (Lotbinière)
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 948
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases bill, 3467
Senate amdts., 3615
Duty on apples, 164
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1161
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Military expenditure and policy, 1145
National Defence bill, 661
Mounted police, 675
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3451
Point of order, Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1360
Rail and car repair contracts, 1695
Royal Canadian Navy, 1868-89
Soldiers' bonus, 440
War, advances to Imperial Government, 1288
Wheat Board, 2969

Vimy Memorial, 2098

Vitamines, 1781

Voters, qualification of. See Dominion Election Act; Euler; Rinfret

Wabana Ore, 2412-13

Waddington, Mr., 398

Wage Cuts. See Nova Scotia Miners

Wage Investigators. See Labour

Wages. See Labour; Unemployment

Wallace, Mr. J. A. (Norfolk)
Tuberculous cattle, 2742

Wallace Shipbuilding Company, 3542

War. See also Militia and Defence
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Canadian and United States armies, operations, 1336
Claims, adjustment of, 1155, 1672, 1677, 2098, 2977
British Admiralty, 1752
Details of estimates, qu., 1288
Hospital ship, claim for loss, 1082, 2975
Militia and defence, 2974
Naval service, 1752
Repatriation, dependents of soldiers, 1711

War — Con.
Conscription and, 2570. See also that title
Conscription of wealth, 2725
Debts, 90, 174. See also Address; Budget; Public Debt
Demobilization, expenditure for, 1155, 1163, 1171
Equipment, 2616
Expenditures, 2228
First Canadian Contingent, qu., 1376
Foreign ships, exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act
Imperial War Graves Commission, 2099
Indebtedness, 2294
Kemp, Sir Edward, 1169
Laws of. See Limitation of Armaments
Medals, 1752, 2975
Mewburn, Hon. S. C., 1169
Mobilization of unfit men, 2608
Munitions, shipment of from Great Britain, 1154-63
Newspaper censors, 1068
Overseas ministry, 1169
Pensions. See that title
Preparation for, 1335. See also Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service
Profiteering, 2221, 2247, 2395, 2440, 2455. See also speeches on Budget
Reparation claims, Lusitania, 3599
Results, 91, 2588, 2861-2, 2895
Scandals, 90
Taxation and, 2567. See also that title
War memorials Commission, 2098

War Finance Corporation, 54

War Graves Commission, 774, 2098

War Measures Act, 662, 663, 1362

War Purchasing Commission, sale of warlike stores, 1171

Ward, Mr. W. J. (Dauphin)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2738
Apple-growing industry, 3419
Boy Scouts, 773
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 863
Budget, 2400. Congratulations to Finance Minister; reactionary and mysterious budget, 2400; the tariff; protection and indirect taxation; drydock on Pacific coast; purpose and principle of protection; invisible government; Canadian manufacturers a Bourbon; free trader when purchasing; pro-

Ward, Mr. W. J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
tectionist when selling; raw material and finished product, 2401; subsidizing of one industry means penalizing of another; immense wealth and dire need; results of indirect taxation; cumulative effect of tariff taxation, 2402; agricultural conditions in western Canada; rural depopulation, 2403; railway situation; land speculation; expenditures on agriculture contrasted with amounts paid to manufacturers; exports the source of wealth, 2404; Professor Ely on taxation; national debt; speculators and unearned increment; tariff from cradle to grave; land tax; payment of war costs; binder twine industry, 2405; basic industries, 2406
Canadian National railways
Directors, employees, represented, 2794
Yorkton branch line, 2139
Experimental farms, 811
Fisheries
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2168
Generals Burstall and Gwatkin, retirement, qu., 1211
Income tax, cost of collection, 2025
Rail and car repair contracts, 1695
Rideau canal, 2767
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, estimates, 2130
St. John terminal facilities, 848
Soldier land settlement, 2136
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, employees, 3602
Supply, opportunity for members to speak, 1985
Welland ship canal, 2764

Warlike Stores. See Ammunition; Militia and Defence

Warships and Torpedo Boats, qu., 827

Wartime Elections Act, 14, 258, 350, 352, 473, 2229, 2289, 2488. See also Dominion Elections Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Warner, Mr. D. W. (Strathcona)
Address in reply, 349. Progressive point of view; farmers not asking for special privileges, 349; excessive freight rates; immigration problem, 350; protective tariff and the manu-

Warner, Mr. D. W. — Con.
Address — Con.
facturers, 351; banking system, 352; Wartime Elections Act, 350, 352
Agricultural fairs, 651
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2204. Tariff, disappointment at proposals of Finance Minister, 2204; small reductions; oleomargarine; dairying industry; protective duties on woollen goods and shoes; income tax; lack of purchasing power, 2205; british preference; agricultural implements; sales taxes; automobiles and the tariff, 2206
Canadian representation in United States, 2025
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1429
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Exhibition grants, 983
Experimental farms, 809
Forestry, aerial patrol at High River, 1050
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2797
Indian education, Edmonton school, 1231
Northwest rebellion pensions, 3523
Oleomargarine, Manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1829
Pensions Com. final report, 3338

Washington
Canadian representation in. See Canadian Representation in United States
Conference. See International Labour Conference; Limitation of Armaments
Visit of Finance Minister to, 2112, 2181, 2189, 2300

Water-Borne Traffic. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Water Powers, 71, 124, 2182. See also Hydro Electric; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Aluminum Company of America, Cedar Rapids, 71; qu., 728; qu., 1375
Canals, on, 2747
Development of, 223
Electric energy, 133. See also Electrification
Exportation from Niagara district, 137, 1188
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2025
Joint board, 2805; qu., 2970
Regulation Act, 1921 Repeal bill, 2991, 3199, 3435
Niagara river power development, 137, 1188
Railway electrification, 1940. See also Electrification

Water Powers — Con.
St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, on, 629
St. Lawrence river, M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1205, 1314. See also that title
Surveys, 1051
Welland canal, 2747

Water Transportation, 70, 73-74. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Canals in United States, 68

Waterways. See Canals; International Joint Commission
St. Lawrence river, 1183. See also that title

Watson, Major General Sir David, 1477

Ways and Means, Committe of, 362, 599, 1842, 2104, 2854, 3104, 3246, 3409, 3476, 3604, 3607
Amended resolutions, 2854
Interim Supply bill, 599
M. for (Mr. Fielding) 2104
Resolutions, 2118; amended, 2854
Supply bill, 3607

Wednesday Sittings. See House of Commons

Welland Ship Canal. See Canals

West Indies
Canada-West Indies trade agreement, 2110
Subsidized steamship services and freight rates, 3026, 3032
Trade with. See St. John Terminal Facilities

Western Provinces. See Budget; Natural Resources; Speeches on Address
Agricultural depression, 1475
Flags on public schools, 1265
Marketing of grain, 114. See Wheat Board
Natural resources, 7, 12, 22, 41, 148, 279, 328, 1017. See also that title
Interest of other provinces in, 23, 340, 355, 1017
Public buildings, alleged discrimination against, 1254

Weston post office, 1259

Westport Railway. See Brockville and Westport

Wharves. See also Harbours and Rivers; Public Works
Baddeck, 1269
L'Orignal, qu., 1212
Provincial, New Brunswick, transfer, qu., 2305

Wharves — Con.
Provincial wharves and tidal waters, 1991
Sault Ste. Marie, 2006
Selkirk, 2004
Tidal waters in, 1991, qu., 2209

Wheat. See also Agriculture; Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board
Competition with Russia, 2157
Cost of production, 114
Dumping of. See Customs, dumping clause
Duty on, 239
Early seeding in West, 115
Exports to United States, 209
Fordney tariff and, 210. See that title under United States
Free trade in, 2528
Freight rates on, 300. See also Freight Rates
Kubanka, 2454
Marketing, 46-47, 53, 115, 151, 231, 2453. See also Budget; Speeches on Address; Wheat Board
Prices of, 152
Shipments through Vancouver, 235
Transportation, 233. See also Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
United States demand for, 333

Wheat Board, 31, 283, 338; qu., 472, 1118-20. See also Agriculture and Colonization Com.; Budget; Grain and Grain Trade; Grain Commission; speeches on Address
Agriculture Com. report of:
Amdt. (Mr. Sutherland) to M. for concurrence in, 2951; neg., 2969
Concurrence in report, delay, 2306
Canadian Council of Agriculture memo, 377
Constitutionality of, opinion of Law Officers, 940
Fixation of prices, 2588
Kay, Mr. privilege, 872
Participation certificates, qu., 2304
Re-establishment of, demand for, 72, 115, 146, 152, 158, 232

Wheat Board Bill. See Canadian Wheat Board Bill

White, Mr. James
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276, 3495

White, Mr. J. F. (London)
Budget, 2352. Congratulations to Finance Minister; election pledges, promises and arguments; tariff proposals; proposed permanent tariff commission, White, Mr. J. F. — Con.

Budget — Con.
2352; western agriculture; freight rates; climatic conditions; Wheat board; agriculture and protection; importation of farm produce; wider markets; free trade; farm tractors; tariff and manufacturers' profits; trade with Germany; unemployment, 2354
Experimental farms, 810
Lake Huron, marine allowance, qu., 1930
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 406

White, Sir Thomas, resignation of directorships, 1089, 1102

White Lead, duty on, 2297

White Slave Traffic, Suppression of, 3497

Whitley Councils, 1061

Widowed Mothers, Pensions. See Pensions' Committee

Wife Disertions. See Pension Act Amdt. bill

Wilson, Mr. G. C. (Wentworth)
Highways, approved, qu., 2040

Windermere Road, 1051, 1682

Windsor, N.S. removal of derelict in channel, 1493

Windsor, Ont., Canadian Transit bill. See Private Bills Discussed

Wines and Spirits. See Customs Act Amdt. bill

Winnipeg
Strike, 1068
Andrews, Mr. Alfred J., 1068
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 671-9
Trials, cost of, qu., 1182
Unemployment, 86

Winnipeg River. See Lake of the Woods

Winnepegosis Wharf, 3545

Winter Ports in Canada. See Intercolonial Railway

Wireless Telegraphy. See also Radio
Lighthouses and, qu., 370
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., qu., 1063

Wives, Foreign-born, of British Subjects. See Dominion Elections Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Wolves, destruction of livestock by, 990, 998-999

Women
Alien born. See Dominion Elections Act
Representation in Parliament. See Macphail, Miss
Voting in last election, 185

Wooden Ships, qu., 364

Woodmen of the World, 1905

Woods, Mr. R. J. (Dufferin)
Address in reply, 92. Congratulations to Miss Macphail, 92; changes in political parties; attitude of Progressive party; greater markets for farm products, 93; tariff revision; farmers not concerned with politics, 94
Budget, 2183. Tariff; history; classification; reductions; sales tax; added burden to consumer; dumping clause, 2184; free raw materials and high duties on finished products, protection on farm implements, 2185; duty on clothing, woollens, etc.; automobiles; Ford car; effect of 25 per cent duty; drawback system; farmers and protection, 2186; speeches of the Prime Minister in 1920; manufacturers free traders in raw materials; protection as it affects the consumer, 2187; agricultural implements, 2188
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3004
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 953
Militia and Defence
Annual training, 1582
Expenditure and policy, 1582
Sales tax, 3264

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. (Centre Winnipeg)
Address in reply, 84. Economic disturbance, 84-85; demand for markets; home market; unemployment, 85; unemployment insurance, 88; production, factors of; equipment; transportation question, 89; tariff revision; national debt and taxation; war fortunes and war scandals, 90; Defence department; relations with United States; war legacies, 91; reconstruction, 92
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2242. Conservatives and Liberals, origin and policy; extension af franchise to ordinary people; agriculture and business interests not identical; labour view; sales tax unduly burdensome to family man, 2242; civil service pay;

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. — Con.
Budget — Con.
immigrants to pay taxes and feed the railways; an administration bankrupt in ideas; no economic changes proposed; drifting and borrowing; "mortgaging the homestead"; foreign ownership of natural resources, 2243; concentration of wealth; railway exploitations; alieniation of lands and resources, 2245; mergers and watered stock; consolidation of financial organizations; grain trade and, 2246; the Great War and profiteering; financing, 2247; burden of taxation; repudiation; capital levy; income tax, 2448; profits and property rights vs. human welfare; labour and capital, 2250
Cadet camps, 1973
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, employees' wages, qu., 3598
Canadian National railways
Directors, representation of employees, 2798
Steel cars, qu., 2213
Civil Service, 3075
Bonus, 3533
Industrial councils, 1061
Patronage, 3097
Salaries, 2243
Criminal Code Amdt. (Sedition and Criminal Conspiracies) 364, 865, 1395, 3104
Debates, inaudibility of, 1755
Disarmament, 1143
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Immigration Act Amdt. (Bill 16) 364, 864, 1388, 3104
Immigration, British artisans, 2208
Immigration-Criminal Code bills
Report of Special Committee, 3281
M. to refer back, 3282
Income tax, taxpayers, qu., 1399-1400
International Labour Conference, 3601
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour
Industrial engineer, 494
Mounted Police and, 670-1
Military policy and expenditures, 1143
Military Service Act repeal bill, 424, 639
Ministers and Directorships, 1127
Mounted Police in unorganized territories, M., 829, 841
National Defence bill, 670
Naval Service, Royal Canadian navy, 1854
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 516; qu., 605

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. — Con.
Oriental labour on British ships, 2042
Post Office employees' salaries, 2801
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, fair wage clause, 1486
Railway Commission, representation of labour, 2776
Russian relief, 3516
Save the Children Fund, 3516
Unemployment
Relief, 3526
Returned soldiers, 2458
Situation, 1069-84
Unemployment Service Council, 2803
Winnipeg strike, Andrews correspondence, 2042

Wool. See also Agriculture; Livestock
Blankets, duty on, 3128
Duty on, 2415
Prices of, 985, 997
Woollen clothing, prices and labour cost, 2205, 2350, 2632. See also Speeches on Budget

Workmen. See Labour

Workmen's Compensation Act, 88, 1381

Wrangel Island, 1750, 1751
Russian title to, 2208

Wrecks. See Marine and Fisheries; Ships and Shipbuilding

Yacht Racing. See International Deep Sea Racing

York County, Ont., representation, 1365

Yorkton, Sask., Speech of Prime Minister at, 2730

Young, Arthur and Company, qu., 365, 1490

Yukon Territory
Administration of
Cost, 1681
Justice, 1275
Expenditure, 1275
Expenses, population, qu., 2456
Government of, 1034
Mineral discoveries, 1276
Parcel post, 2802
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Telegraph line, 1749
Union for judicial purposes with British Columbia, 1275

Zaneth, Corporal, 671