* JAGANNATH, a famous temple of Asia, in the E. Indies, in a territory between the kingdom of Orissa and that of Bengal, which contains great numbers of deer and antelopes, that are exceeding tame, because no animals are killed here by the natives. The temple is seated on a plain, about a mile from the sea, and is visited by vast crowds of pilgrims from all parts of India. The nights are spent in music and songs of praises to the idol, which is nothing but a deformed black stone, with two large diamonds to represent eyes. The idol itself is never removed, but its representation is carried in procession in a vehicle four stones high, and there are 200 people to draw it. Some zealots will fall flat on the ground, and think it an honour to be crushed to pieces by the wheels. Lon. 100. 45. lat. 19. 50.

* JAGUANA SANTA MARIA-DEL-PORTO, a town of America, in the island of Hispaniola, belonging to the Spaniards, 150 miles from St. Domingo. Lon. 306. 15. lat. 16. 25.

* JAJIC, a large river of Tartary, which separates it from Turkistan, and has its source in mount Caucasus, and falls into the Caspian Sea. It is full of large fish, whose spawn being salted, is called caviar, which is transported into Europe.

JATEZA, a town of Turkey in Europe, in the province of Bosnia, 50 miles N. E. of Bosnia Seralo, with a strong citadel, and seated on the river Plena. Lon. 33. 35. lat. 45. 5.

* JAKUTSKOI, a town of the Russian empire, in Siberia, seated on the river Angara, whose source is in the lake of Baikal, about 8 miles distant. It was rebuilt about 100 years ago, and has very strong fortifications. Most provisions are plenty here, and the land about it is very fruitful in corn. They have a sort of beeves, without horns, covered with very long hair. The country-people live in huts covered with earth, at the top of which there is a hole to let out the smoke, and the fires are made in the middle thereof. Both men and women are robust, large, and have pretty good features, going naked in the summer-time, but in the winter they have long coats, made of sheeps skins, fastened on with girdles tipt with iron. They never wash themselves, nor pare their nails, which makes them look like so many devils. Their religion consists in worshipping dead deer and sheep, which are spitted upon poles, and placed before their doors. The musk-deer are here to be met with, and are in shape like bucks without horns. Lon. 129. 30. lat. 60. 44.

JAKOFFS, a people of Africa, between the rivers Gambia and Senegal, whose country is vastly large. They all go naked, and are much blacker and handsomer than other negroes, having very good features.

* JAMA, a strong fort of the Russian empire, seated on a river of the same name in Ingria, 13 miles N. E. of Narva. Lon. 47. 6. lat. 59. 17.

JAMAGOROD, a strong town of the Russian empire, in the province of Ingria, seated on a river of the same name, 12 miles N. E. of Narva. Lon. 47. 0. lat. 59. 15.

JAMAICA, an island of America, discovered by Christopher Columbus, in 1494, being 350 miles N. of the continent of America, 37 S. of the island of Cuba, and 50 W. of Hispaniola, and is about 160 miles in length, and 50 in breadth. It is of an oval figure, and grows narrower from the middle, till it terminates in two points at the extremities of the island.

island. It contains upwards of 4,000,000 of acres, and is divided by a ridge of hills which run nearly from E. to W. from sea to sea. Here abundance of fine rivers take their rise, and flow from both sides in gentle streams, refreshing the valleys as they glide along, and furnishing the inhabitants with sweet and cool water. They are well stored with fish, of various kinds, not known in Europe, but they are exceeding good. However, they have eels and craw-fish in great plenty, not unlike ours. None of these rivers are navigable, but some of them are so large that the sugars are carried upon them in canoes from the remote plantations to the sea-side. They are so numerous, that it is impossible to describe them all, and some of them run under ground for a considerable space, particularly the Rio-Cobre, and the Rio-Pedra. The mountains, and indeed the greatest part of the island, are covered with woods, which never lose their verdure, but look green at all times of the year, for here is an eternal spring. There are a thousand different kinds of trees adorning the brow of every hill, irregularly mixing their different branches, appearing in a gay confusion, and forming groves and cool retreats. Among these are the lignum vite, the cedar, and the mahogany trees. In the valleys there are sugar-canes, ginger, orange and lemon trees, star-apples, guavas, citrons, mammees, and others, which make the country look like a paradise. But, to balance this, there are dreadful alligators in the rivers, guanoes, and galliwasps in the fens and marshes, and snakes and noxious animals in the mountains. The longest day is about 13 hours, and about nine in the morning it is so intolerably hot, that it would be difficult to live, if the sea-breezes did not arise to cool the air. Sometimes the nights are pretty cool, and there are great dews, which are looked upon as unwholesome, especially to new comers.
There are two springs, or seasons, for planting grain, and the year is distinguished into two seasons, which are the wet and dry; but the rains are not so frequent as they were formerly, which is supposed to be owing to the cutting down the woods. The months of July, August, and September, are called the hurricane months, because then they are most frequent, and there is lightning almost every night. There is not above a third part of the island inhabited, for the plantations are all by the sea-side.

Here and there are some natural, or large plains, where the original natives used to plant their Indian corn, and which the Spaniards made use of for breeding their cattle, but these are now quite bare and barren. The gentlemen's houses are generally built low, being only one story, on account of the hurricanes and earthquakes, and the negroes' huts are made of reeds, which will hold only two or three persons. The common drink is Madeira wine, or rum-punch. The common bread, or that which serves for it, is plantains, yams, and cassava-roots. The yams are like potatoes, entirely of a much larger size, and more coarse. Hogs are plenty, and their mutton and lamb pretty good; but the servants generally feed upon Irish salt-beef, and the negroes have herrings and salt-fish. The common dress here of the men is, linnen drawers and waistcoats, thread stockings, and handkerchiefs tied round the head; but, upon publick occasions, the gentlemen wear wigs, silk-coats and waistcoats, trimmed with silver. The negroes go naked, except a pair of breeches or a petticoat; but many of the women will not agree to wear these last, for they have no sense of shame. The ladies are richly dress'd, and the servant maids wear linnen-gowns.
The current-coin is all Spanish-money, for that of the English is kept as a curiosity. The general produce of this island is, sugar, rum, ginger, cotton, indigo, pimento, chocolate, several kinds of wood, and medicinal drugs. They have some tobacco, which is but indifferent, and used only by the negroes, who can scarce live without it. They have no sorts of European grain, but they have Indian corn, Guinea-corn, and pease of various kinds, but none like ours, with variety of roots. Fruits are in great plenty, such as Seville and China oranges, common and sweet lemons, shadocks, citrons, pomegranates, mammees, foursops, papas, pine-apples, custard-apples, star-apples, prickly pears, allicada-pears, melons, pompions, guavas, and many other sorts. The common distempers are, fevers, fluxes, and the dry gripes.
There are four negroes to a white man, and of the former there are about 100,000, besides a mixed breed, between the blacks, whites, and mulattoes. This island was taken by the English in 1656, the command of Pen and Venables. St. Jago was the capital town, but now Kingston claims that privilege.

JAMANA, a town of Asia, in Arabia the Happy, seated on the river Aftan, about 150 miles W. of El Catif. It is the capital of a principality that lies between Hngiaz, Onan, and Arabia Deserta.

JANOWITZ, a town of Bohemia, in the circle of Kaushim, famous for a battle here between the Swedes and Imperialists, when the last were beaten in 1645. It is 45 miles S. E. of Prague, and subject to the house of Austria. Lon. 32. 43. lat. 49. 45.

JAPAN, a large country in the most eastern part of Asia, with the title of an empire. It is composed of several islands, in the principal of which are Niphon and Saikokf, or Saccok. It was discovered by the Portuguese in 1542, being cast upon shore by a tempest. The whole empire is divided into seven principal countries, which are subdivided into 70 provinces. It is the richest country in the world for gold, and the air and water are very good. It produces a great deal of rice, which they reap in September; millet, wheat, and barley, which they get in in May. Cedars are common, and so large that they are proper for the masts of ships and columns for temples. They have a large quantity of porcelain, silk, and skins, as also red pearls, which are not less in esteem than the white. In short, Japan is accounted one of the best countries in Asia. The inhabitants are naturally ingenious, and have a happy memory; but their manners are diametrically opposite to those of the Europeans. Our common drinks are cold and theirs are all hot; we uncover the head out of respect and they the feet; we are fond of white teeth and they of black; we get on horseback on the left side and they on the right; and they have a language so particular that it is understood by no other nation. They value their lives so little that when a lord makes a feast, the domesticks dispute who shall have the honour of cutting open their bellies before the guests. The sciences are highly esteemed among them, and they have several schools at different places. Those that they study most are arithmetick, rhetoric, poetry, history, and astronomy. Some of their schools at Meaco have each 3 or 4000 scholars. They treat the women with a great deal wives as he pleaſes. On the other hand, bawdy-houſes are very frequent, and they tolerate ſins againſt nature.

Thoſe that have too many children make no ſcruple of deſtroying ſome of them; and there are many women who kill them before they are born, eſpecially if they ſuſpect they are of the female ſex.
The Japaneſe are naturally good ſoldiers, and ſaiſel at ſhooting with a bow; however, as they inhabit nothing but iſlands, they are ſeldom at war with their neighbours. They formerly carried on a trade with the neighbouring countries; but now all communication with others is forbid, eſpecially with Chriſtians, for they do not look upon the Dutch to be ſuch. Their emperor is called Dairo; and in the minority of one of them in 1150, when they had civil wars, one of the competitors for the crown aſſumed the eccleſiaſtical government, retaining the ſame title; while the other, who ruled in civil affairs, was called Cubi; and things have remained on the ſame footing to this day. The Dairo is the chief emperor, and conſers the dignity upon the other as if he was his vaſſal. He reſides at Meaco; and has no lands, but he has a right of ſelling titles and dignities; and the idolatrous prieſts make great contributions. He wears a black habit, and a cap upon his head: his feet muſt never touch the ground, nor muſt he ever be expoſed to the rays of the ſun.
He never curſ his hair, nor his beard, nor his nails; and all his viſuals muſt be dreſt in new veſſels. When he goes abroad he is carried by 14 men in a litter, ſurrounded with curtains, ſo that he may ſee and not be ſeen. He has generally 12 wives, who has each a palace, with ſinging and dancing women for his diverſion. He has alſo an unlimited number of concubines. His palace is adorned with 365 idels. The religion of the whole country is Paganism; but there are two different ſects. There is no country in the world where there are more convents than here; but the women are not chaſte, for they have the ſecret of taking drugs to render themſelves barren. There were once a great number of Chriſtians in different parts of the empire; but in 1638 they underwent great perſecutions, inſomuch that they were all rooted out of Japan. The cauſe of this was the oppoſition of the prieſts; the haughty behaviour of the Portugueſe, they not allowing ſeveral wives; and the perſuaſions of the Dutch, who told them that their emperor would become a ſlave to the Pope. The emperor of Japan is a ſovereign monarch, and all the petty kings are his vaſſals. His army generally conſiſts of 100,000 foot, and 20,000 horſe, which with theſe maintained by his vaſſals amount to 268,000 foot, 38,000 horſe, and 2000 vaſſals. His ordinary revenue is immense, but it is hard to ſay what it is exactly. The palace of the emperor is at Jedo, in the iſland of Nippon, and it is the capital of whole. The only Europeans that trade with Japan are the Dutch; and whenever their ſhips arrive they take away their guns, ſails, and helms, and carry them on ſhore till they are ready to return back. In the abſence of the ſhips the factors are ſhut up in a ſmall peninſula, and are not ſuffered ſo much as to have a lighted candle in their houſes in the night time. The merchandiſes which the Dutch carry to Japan are ſpices, fu-gar, ſilks, linen and woollen cloth, elephants teeth, and haberdaiſhery wares; for which they receive gold, ſilver, cabinets, and other japanned and lacquered ware. The Japaneſe have neither tables, beds, nor chairs; but they ſit and lie on carpets and mats in the manner of the Turks.

JAVA, an island of Asia, in the East-Indies, lying to the S. of the Equator. It is generally known by the name of Great Java, to distinguish it from Bali, by some named the Lesser Java; and is about 420 miles in length, and of a very different breadth. The N. coast has a great many commodious creeks, bays, harbours, and towns, with many little islands near the shore. In former times it had as many petty kings as there were large towns; but now it has two kingdoms only; one of which is under the jurisdiction of the king of Mataram, and the other under the king of Bantam. The inhabitants are a barbarous, proud, and fierce people, of a brown complexion, flat faces, short coal-black hair, large eye-brows, and large cheeks, with small eyes, and large eye-lids. The men are very robust and strong limbed, and very proper for war; but the women are small. The men wear a piece of calicoe wrapt two or three times round their middles; and the women wear them from their armpits down to their knees; but all other parts are bare. The men have two or three wives, and several concubines, according to their abilities. Those living near the sea-side are generally Mahometans; but within land they are Gentooes, abstaining from flesh of all kinds. It is a very fertile island, and has very high mountains, reaching to the clouds, particularly the pepper mountain on the S. side of the island. It has likewise impenetrable forests and wildernesses; but to the N. between Batavia and Bantam, is a very populous country, full of rice fields, and all sorts of tame and wild animals. Here also is plenty of salt and pepper, besides most sorts of fruits proper to the climate. They have also plenty of hogs, bees, and sheep, with other tame creatures. They have likewise fowl, both wild and tame, in great abundance; and in the woods there are large tigers, rhinoceroses, and other wild beasts; and in the rivers there are crocodiles. The air is as temperate and healthy as any part of the East-Indies. The most agreeable season begins in May, with the eastern breezes, and a very serene sky till November; and then the rains begin which lay the low grounds under water, and kill the insects, and continue till May. In March they begin to sow, and in July the sugar and rice begin to ripen; but September and October are the best months for all sorts of fruits. It has a river which rises in the mountains, and dividing itself into many branches, waters the circumjacent country, which afterwards reunite and pass through the midst of Batavia, dividing into two parts. This island is mostly under the dominion of the Dutch; and, besides the native Javanese, it is inhabited by Chinese, Malayans, Amboynese, Topasses, Bugassés, Timoreans, and many other people, brought from distant countries by the Dutch, who have such large fleets here that they command the coast of Asia and Africa. In 1740 the Dutch pretended that the Chinese were going to make an insurrection, and upon that account disarmed them; and yet after that barbarously massacred them all, to the number of 20,000 men, women, and children, and seized their effects. Lon. from 123 to 134. lat. S. from 6. to 8. It is to the S. of the island of Sumatra, from which it is only separated by the straits of Sunda. Batavia is the capital settlement of the Dutch.

ICELAND, a large island to the N. of Europe, about 400 miles in length, and 150 in breadth. For two months together the sun never sets; and in the winter it never rises for the same space, at least not entirely. The middle of this island is mountainous, stony, and barren; but in some places there are excellent pastures, and the grafs has a fine smell. The ice, which gets loose from the more northern country in May, brings with it a large quantity of wood, and several animals, such as foxes, wolves, and bears. Mount Hecla is the most noted mountain, and is a volcano, which sometimes throws out sulphureous torrents. The inhabitants believe that some of the souls of the damned go to this mountain, and that others are confined to the ice that is near this island.
 Their houses are scattered about at a distance from each other, and many of them are deep in the ground, but they are all miserable huts, covered with skins.
 Many of the inhabitants profess Christianity; but those that live at a distance are Pagans. They are mostly clothed with the skins of beasts. The Danes trade with the natives for hides, tallow, train oil, whalebone, and sea-horses teeth, which are as good as ivory. They are said to live 100 years, without either physicians or medicines. Lat. from 64. to 67.

IDA, a famous mountain in the island of Candia, of great note in ancient history.
 It is now nothing but a great monstrous ugly barren mountain quite bare on the top, without the least shadow of a land-skip, grotto, or spring. All the cattle that are bred on it are a few paltry horses, some sheep, and half-starved goats.

IDA, a mountain in Natolia, famous for the judgment of Paris, who was to determine, whether Juno, Pallas, or Venus was most beautiful? He determined it in favour of the last, and gave her the golden apple.

JEDDO, the capital town or city of the islands of Japan, where the emperor resides. It is open on all sides, having neither walls nor ramparts, and the houses are built with earth, and boarded on the cut-side, to prevent the rain from destroying the walls. In every street there is an iron-gate, which is shut up in the night, and a kind of custom-house, or magazine, to put merchandizes in. It is a large place, being 9 miles in length, and 6 in breadth, and contains 1,000,000 inhabitants. A fire happened in 1658, which, in the space of 48 hours, burnt down 100,000 houses, and in which a vast number of the inhabitants perished. The emperor's palace, and all the rest, were reduced to ashes; but they are all rebuilt again. The royal palace is in the middle of the town, and is defended with walls, ditches, towers, and bastions. Where the emperor resides, there are three towers, nine stories high, each covered with plates of gold; and the hall of audience is supported by pillars of massy gold. Near the palace are several others, where the relations of the emperor live. The empress has a palace of her own, and there are 20 small ones for the concubines. Besides, all the vassal kings have each a palace in the city, with a handsome garden, and stables for 2000 horses. The houses of the common sort are nothing but a ground-floor, and the rooms are parted by folding-screens; so that they can make the rooms larger or smaller at pleasure. It is seated in an agreeable plain, at the bottom of a fine bay; and the river, which crosses it, is divided into several canals. Lon. 157. 55. lat. 35. 32.

JERSEY, an island in the English Channel, 12 miles from the coast of Normandy in France, and 25 from the coast of Brittany, subject to the English. It is about 30 miles in circumference, and is difficult of access, on account of the rocks, sands, and forts erected for its defence. It contains 12 parishes; and the chief town is St. Hilary, in the S. part of the island. It lies extremely well for trade in time of peace, and to annoy the French privateers in time of war. It is well watered with rivulets, and produces but little corn; but is pretty well stocked with fruit-trees. They have a noted manufactory for woollen-sockings and caps, and are still governed by the ancient Norman laws, the courts of England having no jurisdiction here.

JERSEY NEW, an English settlement in N. America, bounded on the W. by Pennsylvania, on the S. by Maryland, on the N. by New-York, and on the E. by the ocean; and is about 140 miles in length, from N. to S. and 60 in breadth, from E. to W. The governor and council are appointed by the king, and their representatives are chosen by the freemen. The chief towns are Burlington, Perth-Amboy, and Elizabeth-town. It is divided into E. and W. Jersey; and the produce of both is Indian corn, wheat, pease, beans, barley, oats, horses, black cattle, furs, and pipe staves. They send to the Caribbee islands bread, corn, flower, salt, beef pork, and fish; and, in return, receive rum, sugar, and the other produce of those islands. To England they send furs and skins; for which they have furnitures and cloaths in return.

* JERVENLAND, a small canton of Europe, in Livonia, and in the district of Estroonia, subject to the Russians. The castle of Wittestein, and the town of Oberhahlen, are the principal places.

JERUSALEM, an ancient and famous town of Asia, formerly capital of Judea, after David had conquered the Jebuzites. It was taken by Nebuchadnezzar, in the eleventh year of the reign of Zedekiah, and the Jews were led captive to Babylon. It was afterwards taken by the Romans, and ruined, together with the Temple, 70 years after the birth of Christ, being one of the most remarkable sieges in history. The emperor Adrian built a new city, near the ruins of ancient Jerusalem. It was taken by the Persians in 614, and by the Saracens in 636. In 1099 it was retaken by the Latins, who founded a new kingdom, which lasted 88 years, under 9 kings. Saladin, king of Egypt and Syria, got possession of it in 1187. The Turks drove away the Saracens in 1117, and have kept possession of it ever since, who call it ELKODS, that is, The Holy City. It is now inhabited by Turks, Arabs, Jews, and Christians. It stands on a high rock, with steep ascents on every side, except to the N. It is almost surrounded with valleys encompassed with mountains, so that it seems to stand in the middle of an amphitheatre. It is at present about three miles in circumference, and includes Mount Calvary, which was formerly without the walls. The only thing that renders it considerable is the great resort of pilgrims, for the inhabitants accommodate them with lodgings and provisions, which is their chief business. A Bashaw, with a guard of Janissaries, always resides here, to protect them from the insults of the Arabs. The church of the Holy Sepulchre, which the pilgrims chiefly come to visit, is a large structure, with a round nave, which has no light but what comes through the top, like the Rotunda at Rome. The dome is covered on the out-side with lead, and within with cedar wood. The opening of the dome is closed with a net of wire, to hinder the birds from coming into the church. In the middle of the nave, and directly under the opening of the dome, is the Holy Sepulchre, which is placed on a chapel, whose door is 3 feet high, and 2 broad. It is so small, that it will hold but three persons on their knees at a time. At the entrance on the right hand is the place where the body of our Saviour was laid, and not in the middle as many have thought. The table which he was laid on at first, is two feet and a half high from the pavement, which is now covered with white marble, because the Christians who came up to visit it were all for carrying away a small bit. This chapel is cut out of the rock; and there are three holes in the roof, to let out the smoke of the lamps, which are 44 in number, and always kept lighted. The whole is covered with white marble both within and without; and, on the out-side, there are 10 fine columns of the same. It is covered with a platform, the middle of which is exactly above the three holes, and forms a small dome, 6 feet in height, covered with lead, and supported with 12 columns of porphyry, placed by pairs on the platform, and so making 6 arches, having 3 lamps under each. Before the gate of the sepulchre, there is a silver lamp, so large, that two men cannot fathom it. The Turks have had a mind several times to carry off this lamp, and send it to Mecca. We have not room to mention other particulars; and therefore we shall only take notice, that every year, on Good-Friday, all parts of our Saviour's passion are solemnized and acted. They have first a sermon, and then every one takes a lighted taper in his hand, with crucifixes and other things to begin the procession. Among the crucifixes, there is one as large as the life, exceedingly well done, being covered with thorns, and besmeared with blood. They visit first the pillar of flagellation; next the prison; afterwards the altar of the division of Christ's garments; then they advance to the chapel of desolation, and from thence to Mount Calvary, leaving their shoes at the bottom of the stairs. Here are two altars; one where our Lord was supposed to be nailed to the cross; and another where it was erected, and where they set up the crucified image, which finishes the ceremony: only, they pull out the nails, take down the body, and wrap it in a winding-sheet. It is 102 miles S. W. of Damascus, 45 from the Mediterranean Sea, and 250 N. E. of Grand Cairo. Lon. 57. 0. lat. 31. 50.

JESSELMERE, a town of Asia, in Indostan, and capital of a province of the same name, in the dominions of the Great Mogul. It is 185 miles N. of Amadebad. Lon. 90. 15. lat. 26. 40.

IMENSTADT, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, 15 miles S. of Kcm-pen, and 18 E. of Lindaw. Lon. 27. 45. lat. 47. 25.

IMMERETTA, a province of Asia, between Mount Caucasus and the Black Sea. The province of Guibel and Georgia being part of the ancient Colchis. It is a very mountainous country, though there are some fruitful valleys and plains, producing corn, wine, and pastures. The inhabitants are a sort of Christians, but extremely ignorant and vicious. They are tributary to the Turks; and, as some say, are obliged to find them 80 girls and boys every year, from the age of 15 to 20. Cotatis is the capital town, and is in the hands of the Turks.

IMOLA, a town of Italy, in the territory of the Church, and in Romagna, with a bishop's see, and is a very handsome populous place. It is seated on the river Santerno, 9 miles N. W. of Faenza, 20 S. E. of Bologna, 22 S. W. of Ravenna, and 45 N. by E. of Florence, Lon. 29. 18. lat. 44. 28.

IMPERIAL, a pleasant town of S. America, in Chili, 10 miles from the S. Sea, and on the river Cauten, 98 miles from Conception, to which the bishop has retired since this town was taken by the Savages. It is seated on a craggy rock, in a charming country. Lon. 305. 0. lat. 38. 40.

* IMPERIAL, a title given to certain towns in Germany, who have a right to govern themselves by their own laws, and are immediately under the protection of the emperor, having a sitting and a right of voting in the diets of the empire.

* INDIES, a vast country of Asia, which received its name from the river Indus. It is seated partly in the temperate, and partly under the torrid zone, and consequently the air must be very different. Towards the N. it is pretty temperate; but towards the S. on the contrary it is very hot; and it rains almost constantly for three months in the year, which renders the heats more supportable, but contributes to fertilize the ground, which produces abundance of rice, millet, cotten, figs, pomgranates, oranges, lemons, citrons, cocoa nuts, and many other fruits, of which there are none in Europe but what have been transplanted from thence. There are mines of gold and silver, several sorts of precious stones, borax, and salt-petre. They fish for pearls in the seas and in the rivers. This country produces several sorts of animals; animals, as well domestic as wild, such as elephants, rhinoceroses, camels, dromedaries, buffaloes, lions, tigers, leopards, panthers, and a vast number of monkeys. The trade is exceeding great, and it chiefly consists of indigo, salt-petre, silk, cotton, and precious stones; but more especially in a prodigious quantity of calicoes, chintz, and other stuffs of various kinds. The Europeans had little or no intercourse with the Indies till the year 1498, when the Portuguese discovered a way by sea round the Cape of Good-Hope; and they soon began to make settlements therein, and became very powerful, till the Dutch drove them away from many of their factories. The Indians are generally Gentoos or Idolaters, though there are a great number of Mahometans. In the places that depend upon the Europeans some of them are become Roman Catholics. Many of the Idolaters believe in the transmigration of souls, and will not kill or eat any thing that has life, not even the most noxious insects or animals. Their principal priests are brachmans; and there are faquires, who make their principal devotion consist in the choice of the most troublesome postures, which they never leave till they quit the world. Some pass several years without lying down either night or day, resting only upon a cord which is stretched out: others shut themselves up in a cave several days together, without eating or drinking: some hold their arms lifted up so long that they can never stir them afterwards. In short, others put burning coals upon their heads, and let them lie there till the fire reaches the very bones. Sometimes these faquires go in a body, followed by a great number of disciples; and they often make a merit of killing Christians. It was a great custom among the Gentoos for the women to burn themselves with their deceased husbands; but it is not so frequent as it was formerly, because the Mahometans will not allow it. Instead of tobacco, which they smoke in Europe, the Indians amuse themselves with chewing leaves of Ar-rack, and betel-nuts, with lime, as they pretend, to preserve their teeth; and at their entertainments they always present mixtures of this kind, which renders their lips red, and their teeth black. The people of Proper-India, as well as those of China, who ought to know bet-ter, prostrate themselves on the ground, with great devotion, that the sun and moon when eclipsed may not be devoured by a certain dragon, to which they imagine the defect of light is owing. The Indies is divided into four large parts, namely, In-dostan, the peninsula on this side the Ganges, that beyond it, and the islands of the Indian sea, the principal of which are, Ceylon, Sumatra, Java, Borneo, the Celebes, the Maldives, the Moluccas, and the Marians. Some writers make Tonquin and China a part of the E. Indies, especially with regard to trade, but very improperly. When the Spaniards first discovered America they called it the W. Indies, on account of its riches, which is the reason why these parts we are speaking off are called the E. Indies. The Indians are generally well made and robust, but they don't love labour, nor do they make good soldiers. They are very fond of women, but in other respects they are civil, kind to strangers, and very ingenious. With regard to their complexion, they are of an olive colour in the northern parts, and in the southern quite black. There are many different languages in the E. Indies, but the Mahometans generally understand Arabick, because the alcoran is written in that language.

INDOSTAN, PROPER INDIA, or the empire of the Great Mogul, is bounded on the W. by Persia, on the S. by the western peninsula, on the E. by the eastern peninsula, and on the N. by several kingdoms of independant Tartary. It is a vast country, and is at least 1200 miles in length. It is very fertile in all sorts of corn, and all the commodities of the E. Indies are to be met with here. The inhabitants are more humane with regard to strangers, and not so great enemies to the Christians, as the Turks; they dress much in the same manner, and take several wives, being much addicted to luxury. Genghisian, a Tartarian prince, who died in 1226, and whose conquests surpassed those of Alexander and the Romans, seized on this empire in the 13th century. Tamerlane 200 years afterwards became master of it, and his descendants are now upon the throne. The Great Mogul was the richest prince in the world, especially in diamonds and precious stones, till Kouli Khan the last king of Persia deprived him of all his riches. The government is despotic, and the Great Mogul is master both of the lives and for-

tones of his subjects. He often takes away lands that any one has cultivated, and gives worse in their room. His revenue is said to amount to near fifty millions sterling a-year, and he has an army of 70,000 men. The provinces are governed by Omars, some of whom are called Nabobs, and he generally bestows upon them lands sufficient to maintain their dignity and their troops. Their revenues are so considerable, that these governors are like so many petty kings; but they are obliged to make large presents to the Great Mogul, and to make their court to him; otherwise all their riches would be taken from their families after their death. There are no fixed laws with regard to their succession, which produces many intrigues and quarrelling among the sons to obtain the throne. The empire of the Mogul contains 20 provinces; namely, Cathmire, Cabul, and Aycud to the N. Siba and Patna on the east side of the Ganges, and which contain several provinces. Those that lie to the S. are Bengal, Ferer, Candih, Baligate, Talinga, Baglana, and Guzurat. The eastern provinces are Tata, or Sinda, or Multan. There are six in the middle, between the river Indus and the Ganges, namely, Pengab or Lahor Delli, Agra, Asmer, Malva, and Halabas. To these 20 provinces may be joined the kingdoms of Golconda and Carnate, which are tributary to the Great Mogul. However, it may be observed that he is not absolute master of all these countries, for there are many petty princes, called Rayahs, who are the descendants of the ancient kings of this vast country. Some of these Rayahs acknowledge the Great Mogul, and others are independant of him, and make war against him. All the cities and towns, as well as other particularities, will be taken notice of in their proper places.

INDUS, or SINDE, a great river of Asia, which rises to the N. beyond the kingdom of Cashmire, runs almost directly S. passing by Atch, Multan, Buckor, and other lesser towns, and falls by several mouths into the ocean, one of which passes by Tatta. Kouli Khan not long since made this the boundary of the Persian empire, between Indostan and Persia.

 - IPSWICH, a town of Suffolk, with 3 markets, on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, and 3 fairs, on May 4, for lean cattle and toys; on July 25, for fruit and toys, and on September 14 for butter and cheese, which lasts a week. It is seated on the river Orwell, near the place where the fresh and salt water meet. It is a place of great antiquity, and was once surrounded with a wall, the traces of which are yet to be seen. It is divided into 4 wards, containing 12 parish-churches, with a Presbyterian, an Independant, and a Quakers meeting-house, and has a handsome guild-hall, two hospitals, a free-school, with a good library, several alms-houses, and a custom-house, with a good quay. It is governed by a bailiff, 12 aldermen, and 24 common-council, and sends 2 members to parliament. It consists of about 4000 houses, which are pretty good and lofty. The streets are tolerably wide and well paved: but no manufacture is carried on here of any consequence; yet being a sea-port, and its quay being pretty large and convenient, it drives a good maritime trade, and was formerly noted for building of ships, but it is much decayed from what it was. It is noted for being the birth-place of cardinal Wolsey. It is 20 miles N. E. of Colchester, 44 S. of Norwich, and 72 N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 51. lat. 52. 12.

• IRAC, a large country of Asia, divided into Irac-Arabi, and Irac-Agemi. Irac-Arabi, or Babylonian Irac, is watered by the rivers Tigris and Euphrates, and takes its name from the desert of Arabia which lies to the W. of it. It is almost all under the dominion of the Turks, and Bagdad is the capital town.

• IRAC-AGEMI, or PERSIAN-IRAC, lies between Ghilan, Tabristan, the territory of Heri Sablestan, Farsitan, Laurestan, and Turcomania. It is under the dominion of the Persians, and Isfahan is the capital town.

• IREBY, a town of Cumberland, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on February 24, and September 21, for horses and harned cattle. It is seated in a valley, at the spring-head of the river Ellan, and many Roman antiquities have been dug up here. It is at present a good town, and is divided into the higher and lower. It is 10 miles N. E. of Cockermouth, 15 S. S. W. of Carlisle, and 289 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 30 lat. 54. 55.

IRKEN, JERKIN, or Yarkan, a rich, populous, and large town of Asia, in Great Tartary, and capital of Little Bucharja, with a cattle. It is the staple town of all the trade that is carried on between the Indies and the N. part of Asia. The Calmucks are masters of it, and never disturb any one on account of their religion. IRELAND, one of the British Islands, lying to the W. of that of Great Britain. It is bounded on the E. by St. George's Channel and the Irish Sea, which separates it from England and Wales; on the N. E. by a channel about 15 miles broad, which separate it from Scotland; and on all other sides by the ocean. It lies between Lon. 6. 45. and 11. 10. and between Lat. 51. 15. and 55. 15. being about 278 miles in length, and 155 in breadth. It is divided into 4 large provinces; namely, Ulster to the N. Leinster to the E. Munster to the S. and Connaught to the W. and these again are subdivided into counties and baronies. The air is mild and temperate, being cooler in summer, and warmer in winter than in England; though it is not so clear and pure, nor so proper in summer for ripening corn and fruits. It is more moist than it is in England; for which reason, strangers at first are very liable to loosenesses and colds; but this quality is pretty much mended, and will be more so, when the bogs and morasses come to be drained. In general, it is a fruitful, level country, and well watered with lakes and rivers: and the soil, in most parts, is very good and fertile; even in those places, where the bogs and morasses have been drained, there is good meadow ground. It produces corn, pastures, hemp, and flax, in great plenty; and there are so many cattle, that their beef and butter is transported into divers countries; and not only the English, but other ships frequently come to be victualled here. They have large quantities of excellent wool, which is not of so great advantage to them as it would be, if they were allowed to manufacture it: however, by a late act of parliament, they are permitted to send their woollen-yarn into England: but it is to be feared that will not prevent them from selling their wool to the French in time of peace, as they have done hitherto, which enables them to sell their woollen manufactures cheaper than us in foreign markets. The principal riches and commodities of Ireland are, cattle, hides, tallow, suet, butter, cheese, wood, salt, honey, wax, furs, hemp, and, more especially, fine linen-cloth, which they have brought to great perfection, and their trade in it is vastly increased. It is said by some, that there are mines of iron, silver, and lead: but if there are, they are not worked, and consequently of no benefit. The most remarkable thing is, that there are no venomous creatures in this country; and, if they are brought thence, they certainly die. Several attempts have been made to introduce frogs; but whether they have succeeded in it, or not, we cannot pretend to say. This country is exceeding well situated for foreign trade, on account of their many secure and commodious harbours. Their laws differ but little from those of England; and their established religion is the same. However, as this kingdom is subordinate to that of Great Britain, all their acts of parliament must be approved of by the King in council: and an act of the British parliament can repeal or alter any of their laws. They can also appeal from a sentence of their courts to the courts of law, and to the house of peers, in Great Britain. The members that serve in parliament are for life, unless upon a demise of the King of Great Britain. The Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, as well as the council, are appointed from time to time by the King. There is usually a body of 12,000 men kept in pay on the Irish establishment, and are generally all English. They are not quartered in public houses, but lodge in barracks built for that purpose. There are a great number of Roman Catholics in this country, whose religion is tolerated; besides a great number of Dissenters in the N. of Ireland. Dublin is the only university in the kingdom; and that consists of one college, in which there are about 600 students. The common people are so poor, and it is so hard for them to get a livelihood, that they frequently go into other countries to seek their fortunes; and particularly, great numbers go over to the plantations in America. That part of the inhabitants, called the Wild Irish, were formerly as savage as the native Americans; and, like them, they lived in huts, making a fire in the middle of them: but it is to be hoped, that all the rude and barbarous customs, so common among them, will in a short time entirely cease. It has been common for the nobility and men of fortune to reside in London; but the inhabitants of Dublin, by providing plays and other polite diversions, endeavour to keep them at home as much as possible. The number of houses in Ireland were computed to be 357,669, in 1744. But in 1753 they were found to be 595,439. There are also 2293 parishes, 260 baronies, and 118 boroughs.

* IRON-ACTON, a village in Gloucestershire, 10 miles N. E. of Bristol, with two fairs, on May 25, and September 13, for cattle and horses.

IROQUOIS, a people of N. America, inhabiting near and about the lake Ontario, between the French and English settlements: and they sometimes side with either of the nations, as their interest prompts them; though, in general, they are said to be more friendly to the English, and are commonly known by the name of the Five Indian Nations. Their country is very cold, and their religion very superstitious. The use of spirituous liquors has much altered their manners, and they are extremely addicted to dancing and sports. Their wit is lively enough; but they are somewhat given to melancholy, and are extremely idle. When the Iroquois go to war, they paint themselves with various colours, and particularly their faces. They are divided into several tribes; and there are two colonies of them among the French, who are said to be converted to Christianity.

IRTISS, a large river of Asia, in Siberia, which rises in the hills of the country of the Calmucks; and running from the S. to N. E. falls into the Oby, near Tobolsk. The N. W. shore is low pasture ground; on the other side, there are a prodigious number of black bears, wolves, and red and grey foxes, besides the best grey squirrels in all Siberia. This river abounds with fish, particularly sturgeons, and delicate salmon.

IRWIN, a sea-port town of Scotland, in the balliwick of Cunningham, seated at the mouth of a river of the same name, on the Frith of Clyde, 15 miles E. of the Isle of Arran, and 63 W. by S. of Edinburgh. Lon. 14. 40. lat. 55. 36.

ISABELLA FORT, a fortress of the Austrian Netherlands, seated on the W. side of the river Schelde, opposite to Antwerp. Lon. 21. 45. lat. 51. 50. There is another fort of the same name, 2 miles S. W. of Sluys, in Dutch Flanders.

* ISABELLA ST. an island of the S. Sea, and the largest of the Isles of Solomon. It was discovered by the Spaniards in 1568, * ISABAGAS, a town of Africa, in Barbary, in the kingdom of Morocco, and province of Escura. The inhabitants are good-natured and civil to strangers, for they will not let them pay any thing for their entertainment. It is seated in a country abounding in cattle; and the honey is very white, and in great esteem.

ISCHIA, an island of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, about 15 miles in circumference, lying on the coast of the Terra-di-Lavoro, from which it is three miles distant. It is full of agreeable valleys, which produce excellent fruits: likewise mountains, on which grow vines of an exquisite kind; also fountains, rivers, and fine gardens.

* ISCHIA, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and capital of an island of the same name, with a bishop's see, and a strong fort. Both the city and fortress stand upon a rock, which is joined to the island by a strong bridge, and the rock is about 7 furlongs in circumference. The city is like a pyramid of houses piled one upon another, which makes a very singular and striking appearance. At the end of the bridge, next the city, are iron-gates, which open into a subterraneous passage, thro' which they enter the city. They are always guarded by soldiers who are always natives of the island. However, this place is now much gone to decay, on account of the dangers in stormy weather. Lon. 31. 30. lat. 40. 50.

* ISENSTEIN, a small town of the Netherlands. It is seated on the river Iffel, 4 miles from Utrecht. Lon. 22. 32. lat. 52. 4.

ISLE-DE-DIEU, a small island of France, in the sea of Gascony, and on the coast of Poitou, from which it is 14 miles W.
Lon. 15. 30. lat. 45. 45.

ISLE-DE-FRANCE is one of the 12 general governments of France; bounded on the N. by Picardy; on the W. by Normandy; on the S. by the government of Oileannois; and on the E. by that of Champagne. It is about 90 miles in length, and as much in breadth, and is watered by the rivers Seine, Marne, Oise, and Aisne. The air is temperate, and the soil fertile, and it abounds in wine, corn, and fruits. It contains 10 small districts; and Paris is the capital city.

* ISLE OF BEEVES, an island of N. America, in the Gulph of Mexico, and in the Bay of Campeachy, about 17 miles in length, and 3 in breadth. It is fertile in several places, and abounds in cattle, and excellent fruits.

* ISLE-JOURDAIN, a town of France, in Lower Armagnac, with the title of a county. Lon. 18. 43. lat. 43. 40.

Suabia, and in Algow. It is seated on the river Isny, 17 miles N. E. of Lindau, and 62 S. W. of Augsburg. Lon.
27. 45. lat. 47. 33.

* ISNIC, a town of Turkey in Asia, and in Natolia, with a Greek archbishop's see. It is the ancient Nice, famous for the first general council held here in 325.
There is now nothing remaining of its ancient splendour but an aqueduct. The Jews inhabit the greatest part of it; and it is seated in a country fertile in corn and excellent wine. It is 75 miles S. E. of Constantinople. Lon. 47. 44. lat. 47.
15.

ISOLA, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Farther Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is seated near the sea, 15 miles S. E. of St. Severino.
Lon. 35. 8. lat. 39. 1.

* ISONA, a town of Spain, in Catalonia, and in the viguery of Lerida. It is seated near a mountain, at the source of a rivulet that falls into the Nogueira Pallaveſa.

ISPAHAN, a celebrated town or city of Asia, and capital of Persia. It is seated in the province of Irac-Agemi; and it is thought by some to be the finest city in the East. It stands in the middle of a plain, and is surrounded on all sides with mountains, at eight miles distance, which rise gradually, in the form of an amphitheatre. There is no river except a small one, called Senderut, which supplies almost all the houses with water.
It is 20 miles in circumference, with well-built houses and flat roofs, on which they walk, eat, and lie, in the summertime, for the sake of the cool air. Here are a great number of magnificent palaces; and that of the king is 2 miles and a half in circumference. There are 160 mosques, 1300 large caravanſeries, above 260 publick baths, a prodigious number of coffee-houses, and very fine bafars and streets, in which are canals, planted on each side with trees. The streets are not paved; but they are always clean, on account of the dryness of the air; for it seldom rains or snows here. The inhabitants are computed to be above 1,000,000. But, what with intestine broils, and civil wars, this kingdom is almost torn to pieces; by which the principal towns are greatly depopulated. There are three large suburbs; and that called Julfa is inhabited by Armenians, Hafenabth by Goergians, and Kebrabath by Pagans. Though it is at a distance from the sea, it carries on a great trade, the people of several nations resorting there for the sake of traffick, and the English E. India company, till the troubles of Persia arose. Kouli Khan seemed resolved to remove his court to Meshed; and since that time there has been no encouragement for any to settle there. It is 270 miles S. by E. of Cabbin, 265 N. E. of Buserah, 300 S. of the Caspian Sea, and 1400 S. E. of Constantineple. Lon. 70. 30. lat. 32. 25.

ISSEL, a river of the United Netherlands, which rising in Westphalia, runs N. by Doelberg, and afterwards by Zutphen, Deventer, and Campen, and soon after falls into the Zuider-Zee by two mouths.

ISSEL, the Less, a river of the United Provinces, which running W. through Utrecht and Holland, passes by IJelstein, Montfort and Gouda; it then turns S. and falls into the Maese, a mile and half above Rotterdam.

ISSOUDEX, a considerable town of France, in Berry. It carries on a considerable trade in wood, cattle, cloth, hats, and stockings. It is seated partly on a plain, and partly on an eminence. It is 17 miles S. W. of Bourges, and 135 S. of Paris. Lon. 19. 40. lat. 46. 57.

ISSOIRE, an ancient town of France in Auvergne. It is seated on the river Couze, near the Allier, 13 miles S. of Clermont, and 32 N. of St. Flour. Lon. 20. 55. lat. 45. 34.

ISSEE, now Ajazzo, a town of Cilicia, in Natolia, with a harbour, on the Levant Sea, a little to the N. of Scanderoon. Near this place, in a difficult pass between the mountains and the sea, Alexander the Great fought the second battle with Darius. Lon. 54. 0. lat. 36. 56.

ISTRIA, a peninsula of Italy, in the territory of Venice, and lying on the N. part of the Gulph of Venice. It is bounded by Carniola on the N. and on the E. S. and W. by the sea. The air is unwholesome, especially near the coast; but the soil produces plenty of wine, oil, and pastures; there are also quarries of fine marble. One part of it belongs to the Venetians, and the rest to the house of Austria. Capo d'Istria is the capital town.

ITALY, a large peninsula of Europe, having the Alps to the N. which separates it from France and Savoy; and it is surrounded on all other sides by the Mediterranean Sea. It is the most celebrated country in Europe, it having been formerly the seat of the Roman empire, and at present of the Pope. It is so fine and fruitful a country, that it is commonly called the garden of Europe. The air is temperate and wholesome, except in the territory of the church, where it is very indifferent. The soil is fertile, and produces wheat, rice, wine, oil, oranges, citrons, pomegranates, all sorts of fruits, flowers, honey, and silk; and in the kingdom of Naples there are cotton and sugar. The forests are full of all sorts of game, and on the mountains there are fine pastures, which feed a great many cattle. Here are also mines of sulphur, iron, several quarries of alabaster, jasper, and all kinds of marble. Italy is a mountainous country, for besides the Alps, which bound it on the N. there are the Appennines, which run quite across it from E. to W. as well as mount Vesuvius, which is a volcano, and vomits flames; besides several others. The principal rivers are, the Po, the Tiber or Tivere, the Arno, the Adda, and the Adige. The lakes are, the Lago Maggiore, the Lago di Como, di Guardia, di Lugano, di Perugia, d' Iseo, di Bolsena, di Bracciano, di Celano, and several others which are less. As Italy represents the form of a boot, from hence it is divided into three parts; and the top of the boot contains ancient Lombardy; in the upper part of the leg are the territories of the church and of Tuscany, and the small of the leg and foot make the kingdom of Naples; to these may be added a fourth part, which comprehends the islands of Italy, of which Sicily, Sardinia, Corfica, and the isle of Lippary, are the principal. Others divide the foot in this manner, saying, the top of the boot comprehends the republick of Genoa, Piedmont, the Milanese, the republick of Venice, the dutchies of Mantua, Ferrara, Parma, and Modena; the calf of the leg includes the Marca or Marche of Ancona, and Abruzzo Ultra; the spur comprehends the Capri-nata; the heel the Terra d' Otranto; the sole the Basilicata; the buckle the city of Naples, with the isle Prenta and Ichia; the dutchy of Tuscany and the

that the English went to cut logwood, but they have been driven from the latter by the Spaniards.

JUDEA. See PALESTINE.

JUDENBURG, a handsome and considerable town of Germany, in the circle of Austria, and capital of Upper Styria, with a handsome castle; the publick buildings with the 1700 are very magnificent. It is seated on the river Mur, 33 miles W. by N. of Graz, and 100 S. W. of Vienna. Lon. 32. 55. lat. 47. 20.

JUDORNE, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Brabant. It was near this town that the duke of Marlborough gained that signal victory over the French in 1706, called the battle of Ramillies. It is seated on the river Cote, 13 miles S. E. of Louvain, and 10 N. of Namur.

* IVER, a village in Buckinghamshire, 3 miles S. W. of Uxbridge, with one fair, on July 11, for cattle, sheep, and hogs.

IVES, ST. a sea-port town of Cornwall, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and one fair, on Saturday before Advent-Sunday, for horses, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops. It is seated on a bay of the same name, which being unsafe, it is only frequented by fishermen, for the taking of pilchards. However, it is a corporation, and sends two members to parliament. It is 7 miles N. E. of Penzance, 28 W. N. W. of Helfstone, and 27 S. W. by S. of London. Lon. 11. 20. lat. 50. 15.

IVES, ST. a town of Huntingdonshire, with a market on Mondays, the largest in England for cattle, except Smithfield, and two fairs, on Whit-Monday and October 10, for all sorts of cattle, and cheese. It is an ancient, large, and handsome place, seated on the river Ouse, over which is a fine stone bridge. Here was a priory, which is now in ruins. It has one large church, 2 dissenting, and a Popish-meeting, with about 500 houses; the streets are pretty wide, and tolerably well paved. It is 6 miles E. of Huntingdon, 17 S. W. of Ely, and 57 N. by W. of London. Lon. 17. 23. lat. 52. 20.

* JUGON, a town of France, in Brittany, and in the bishoprick of St. Brieux, seated on the little river Arqueon, 12 miles from the sea.

* JUGORA, a considerable province of Muscovy, depending on the government of Archangel. It has the title of a duchy, and is inhabited by a kind of Tartars, who are very savage, and much of the same disposition with the Samoïdes.

* IVICA, capital town of the island of the same name, in the Mediterranean Sea, between the kingdom of Valentia in Spain, and the island of Majorca. It has a good harbour, and the English gained possession of it in 1706. Lon. 19. 20. lat. 38. 42.

IVICA, an island of the Mediterranean Sea, between the island of Majorca and the kingdom of Valentia in Spain, about 60 miles in circumference. It is mountainous, but fertile in corn, wine, and fruits; and it is most remarkable for the great quantity of silk that is made here.

* IVINGE, a town in Buckinghamshire, with a small market, on Fridays; it is seated in a barren soil, 5 miles S. W. of Dunstable, and has two fairs, on April 6, and October 27, for cows, sheep, and hogs. Lon. 17. 0. lat. 51. 47.

It is subject to the King of Sardinia, and is seated on the river Doria, between two hills, 20 miles N. of Turin, 20 W. by S. of Verceil, and 32 E. by N. of Suza. Lon. 25. 23. lat. 45. 12.

JURGANTZ. See URGANTZ.

* IVRY, a town of France, in Normandy, with a Benedictine abbey. In a plain, near this place, the battle of Ivry was fought, in 1590. It is seated on the river Eure, 10 miles from Dreux, and 37 from Paris. Lon. 19. 10. lat. 48. 48.

JUTLAND, a large peninsula, which makes the principal part of the kingdom of Denmark. It is bounded on the S. E. by the dutchy of Holstein, and is surrounded on the other sides by the German ocean and the Baltic Sea. It is about 180 miles in length, from N. to S. and 50 in breadth, from E. to W. The air is very cold, but wholesome, and the soil is fertile in corn and pastures, which feed a great number of hoifes and heeves, which are sent to Germany, Holland, and elsewhere. This was anciently called Cimbrian Chersonese, and it is supposed to be the country from whence the Saxons came that conquered England. It is divided into two parts, called N. and S. Jutland: the latter is the dutchy of Sleswick, and lies between N. Jutland and the dutchy of Holstein; and the duke of that name is in possession of part of it, whose capital town is Gotorp; for which reason the sovereign is called the duke of Holstein-Gottorp.

Here is a feat, which belonged to the late prince of Wales.

KEXHOLM, that part of Finland which borders upon Russia, and there are some geographers who would have it depend on Carelia. The lake Ladoga crosses it, and divides it into two parts; and by the peace of the North, in 1721, the Swedes were obliged to abandon the best part to the Russians, only keeping the worst, and most northern. In general it is full of lakes and marshes, thinly inhabited, and badly cultivated.
The lake is 120 miles in length, and full of fish.

KEXHOLM, or CARELOGORON, a town of Russia, in a territory of the same name, not very large, but well fortified, and has a strong castle. The houses are built with wood. It formerly belonged to the Russians, after which the Swedes had possession of it for a whole century, but it was retaken by the Russians in 1710.
There is a considerable salmon-fishery near it. It is seated on two islands, on the N. W. Side of the lake Ladoga, 60

- LADRONE ISLANDS, are islands of the S. Sea, about 1800 miles E. from Canton in China. They were first discovered by Magellan, a Portugeze, who found out the S. W. passage to the E. Indies in 1520. He touched first at the island of Guam, where the natives stole some of his goods, which caused him to give these islands the name of Ladronc, or Thievish Islands. They have one fruit here which seems to be peculiar to these parts, which Dampier calls the bread-fruit; it grows on trees as high as the largest apple-trees, and in the same manner as apples. It is as large as a penny loaf, and is round, with a thick, tough rind. The natives use it instead of bread, and they gather it when it is full grown, but not ripe, and then they bake it in an oven. When the black crust is scraped off, the inside is soft, tender, and white, like the crumb of a penny loaf; for there are no seeds or stones in the inside.

Its principal trade consists in corn and wine; and it is very advantageously seated on a mountain, 20 miles N. E. of Soissons, 30 N. W. of Rheims, and 77 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 21. 17. lat. 49. 34.
 - LAOS, a kingdom of Asia, beyond the Ganges; bounded on the N. by China; on the E. by Tonquin and Cochin-China; on the S. by the kingdom of Cambodia, and on the W. by the kingdom of Siam, and by the territories of the king of Ava. This country is full of forests, and abounds in rice, fruits, and fish. The inhabitants are well-made, robust, of an olive complexion, and mild; but very superstitious, and much addicted to women. Their principal occupation is tilling the ground, and fishing. The king is absolute, and has no other law than his own will. He shows himself but

- twice a-year, and has a large revenue from elephants teeth found in his dominions. Their religion is a kind of Idolatry, and much the same as in China. Langion is the capital town.
- LAPLAND, a large country, in the N. part of Europe, and in Scandinavia, lying between Norway, Sweden, Russia, and the sea. It is divided into Danish, or N. Lapland; Swedish, or S. Lapland; and Russian, or E. Lapland. It is extremely cold; and, in some places, they never see the sun for three months in the year; and the country is all covered with snow the greatest part of the year. It has properly speaking neither spring nor autumn, the seasons change so suddenly. The sky is generally serene, and the air healthy, it being subject almost to continual winds. They sow no corn; but they have good pastures, which fatten their cattle speedily. This country is full of rocks and mountains; and the principal animals are foxes, martens, bears, elks, wolves, castors, ermins, and rain-deer. This last is the most useful animal they have; for it serves to draw the sledges over the snow with surprising swiftness; likewise, the skin serves them for cloathing, and their flesh for food. Their huts are made with poles, about 14 feet high, and they fix one end in the earth in a circle about 12 feet broad; these poles meet at the top, and form a sort of cone; and the out-sides are covered with the skins of rain-deer and rags: they are open at the top, to let cut the smoak; and here they pass their winter. They are very poorly clad, and often lye upon the snow. When they have a mind to change their habitations, they take away the skins and rags, and leave the poles standing. Their chief merchandizes are dried cod and other fish, and the skins of rain-deer; they have also some furs. They are of a short stature, with a large head, broad fore-head, blue eyes, short flat noses, and short, strait, coarse black hair. They are a rude brutal sort of people, though some of them have embraced Christianity, which has not mended their morals. They live a great while without the assistance of physicians, and their hair never turns grey. Instead of bread they make use of dried fish, which they reduce to powder. They are very fond of spirituous liquors, and are never sober when they can purchase them. They seldom stay long in one place, but goe about LEERWICK, a town of Scotland, in Mainland, one of the isles of Orkney. These did belong to the king of Denmark, till a king of Scotland married one of the daughters. Here the Dutch begin to fish for herrings every year. Len. 17. 5. lat. 61. 20.

LEEWARD ISLANDS. See CARIBBEES. LEWE, a fortified town of the Netherlands, in Brabant, feated in a morafs, on the river Geet, 10 miles E. of Louvain. Lon. 22. 3. lat. 50. 53.

LEFFINGEN, a village of the Netherlands, near Ostend, which was a post of general Earl, in 1768, to keep up a communication between the besiegers of Lisse, and the grand army of the confederates. The duke of Vendosme could not drive them away without attacking them in form.

LEGNORNO, or LIVORNO, a strong, handsome, and very considerable town of Italy, in the duchy of Tuscany, and in the Pisano, with one of the most famous harbours in the Mediterranean Sea, which causes it to be visited by a prodigious number of strangers. It is a free port, and the merchandizes which are brought there are never visited, for the officers of the city take great care that trade may meet with no interruption. The Greeks and Armenians have churches of their own, and every other religion is undisturbed, and the Jews have a very handsome synagogue here, as well as schools. They are very rich, and so well protected, that it is a proverb here, That a man may as well beat the Great Deke, as a Jew. The number of inhabitants are computed at 40,000, among whom there are 18,000 Jews. The streets are wide and strait, and almost all the houses are of the same height, but the N. side of the town is best built. There are so many canals, that some have given it the title of New Venice. It is a strong place, and there is a garrison of 2500 men. Near the harbour there is a large building, called Li-Bagni, in which they shut up every night the Turkish slaves, and the galley slaves. At a little distance there is a light-house, on a small island, on the top of which are lighted every night above 30 lamps. In the great square is the statue of duke Ferdinand I.

it stands on a pedestal, and at the four corners there are statues of bronze, of a Colossian size, which are in chains, and represent so many slaves. The air here was very unhealthy, till the marshes about it were drained. The commodities that we import from hence are, silk, wine, and oil. In 1731 this city suffered greatly by an earthquake. It is 10 miles S. of Pisa, 45 S. W. of Florence, 20 S. by W. of Lucca, and 145 N. W. of Rome. Lon. 28. o. lat. 43. 33.

* LEGNANO, a town of Italy, in the territory of Venice. It is fortified and feated on the river Adige, in the Veronete, 25 miles below Verona.

LEICESTER, a capital town of Leicestershire, with 3 markets, on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays, and 4 fairs, on May 12, and July 5, for horses, cows, and sheep; on October 10, for horses, cows, sheep, and a great deal of cheese; and on December 8 for horses and cows, but it is inconsiderable. It is pleasantly feated on the river Sour, over which there are two bridges. It is a corporation, containing three parish-churches, and sends two members to parliament, having the title of an earldom. It has a very spacious market-place, the streets are paved, and great quantities of stockings are wove in this town. It is 24 miles S. by E. of Derby, 32 N. of Northampton, and 99 N. W. by N. of London. Lon. 16. 30. lat. 52. 40.

* LEICESTERSHIRE, an English county, 33 miles in length, and 30 in breadth, bounded on the S. by Northamptonshire, on the W. by Warwickshire and Derbyshire, on the N. by Nottinghamshire, and on the E. by Lincolnshire and Rutlandshire. It contains about 18,700 houses, 112,200 inhabitants, 92 parishes, and 11 market-towns, of which none but Leicester sends members to parliament, which, with two for the county, make only 4. The principal rivers are, the Sour, the Ey, the Wreake, the Sence, the Swift, and the Welland. The air is very good, and the soil, in the southern parts, very fruitful; and in the rich meadows they feed great numbers of cattle and sheep. The northern part is more barren and stony, and has many rocks of lime-stone with which the natives improve the ground, as well as coal-pits. It yields the same commodities as the other counties, but is noted for plenty of beans, whence the inhabitants have got the name of Bean-bellie. It is separated from Warwickshire by an old Roman way, called Watling-street, which runs cross the kingdom, Leicester is the principal town.

L E I G H, a town of Lancashire, of little or no account, for the market is almost come to nothing, and there are no fairs. It is 7 miles N. of Warrington, and 184 N.W. of London. Lon. 15. 0. lat. 53. 30.

* L E I G H T O N, a village in the W. riding of Yorkshire, 10 miles E. of Sheffield, with one fair, for pedlars ware, on June 24.

* L E I G H T O N, a village in Huntingden-shire, 5 miles N. of Kimbolton, with 2 fairs, on May 12, and October 5, for all sorts of cattle.

L E I G H T O N - B U Z Z A R D, a town in Bedfordshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and 4 fairs, on January 25, Whit-Tuesday, July 26, and October 24, for cattle. It is seated on a branch of the river Ouse, over which it has a bridge which leads into Buckinghamshire. It is a very large town, and its market is considerable for fat cattle. It is 18 miles S. of Bedford, and 39 N. W. of London. Lon. 16. 55. lat. 51. 50.

L E I N I N G E N, a town of Germany, in the palatinate of the Rhine, 7 miles S. W. of Worms. Lon. 25. 25. lat. 49. 30.

L E I N S T E R, a province of Ireland, bounded on the E. by the Irish Sea, on the W. by Connaught, from which it is separated by the river Shannon, on the N. by Ulster, and on the S. by the Ocean. It is about 112 miles in length, and 70 in breadth. The chief rivers are, the Barrow, the Boyne, the Liffy, the Nuer, the Urrin, or Slane, and the Inny. The air of this province is temperate, and the soil is fruitful in corn and pastures, which feed cattle that yield milk, of which they make plenty of butter and cheese. The chief commodities are, cattle, horses, sea-fowl and fish. It contains 11 counties, 1 archbishoprick, 3 bishopricks, 122,901 houses, 858 parishes, 90 baronies, and 53 boroughs. The chief place is Dublin, which is capital of the kingdom. The inhabitants are more civilized than in other parts, being chiefly descended from the English.

L E I P S I C K, a rich, large, strong, and celebrated town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in Misnia, or Meissen, with a castle and a famous university. It is a handsome place, neat, and regularly built, and the streets are lighted in the night; it carries on a great trade, and has a right to stop and sell the merchandizes designed to pass thro' it; and the country, 75 miles round, has the same privilege. There are 3 great fairs every year, at the beginning of the year, Easter, and Michaelmas, which last 15 days each. There are 6 handsome colleges belonging to the university, besides the private colleges. The town-house makes but an indifferent appearance, but the exchange is a fine structure. It was taken by the king of Prussia in 1745, and ransomed, but he is now in possession of it again. It is seated in a plain, between the rivers Saale and Mulde, near the confluence of the Pleyffe, the Elster, and the Barde, 37 miles S. of Wirtemberg, 40 N. W. of Dresden, 65 S. by E. of Magdeburg, and 250 N. W. of Vienna. Lon. 30. 30. lat. 51. 19.

L E I R I A. See L E R R A.

L E I T H, a sea-port town of Scotland, in the county of Mid-Lothian. It is seated on the Forth, 2 miles N. of Edinburgh, and may be called the port of that city. Lon. 14. 35. lat. 56. 0.

* L E L A N T, a village in Cornwall, 5 miles N. of Penzance, with one fair, on August 15, for horses, oxen, sheep, and a few hops.

L E M A N, a lake of Swisserland, sometimes called the lake of Geneva, being 60 miles in length, and 12 in breadth, and, as some say, 400 fathoms deep in particular places. It has the appearance of a sea, and contains a great variety of excellent fish, particularly trouts and perch. In summer it has something like a tide, occasioned by the melting of the snow, from whence streams run down from the Alps, in the heat of the day. The river Rhone runs through it, and is much higher in the summer for the reason just mentioned, as are all the lakes and rivers in Swisserland.

L E M B E R G, a town of Poland, capital of Red-Russia, seated in the palatinate of Lemburg, on the river Pelten, between Caminice and Cracow, that is, 90 miles N. from the former, and 150 E. from the latter; it is also 212 S. of Warsaw. It is pretty well fortified, and defended by two citadels, one of which is seated on an eminence, without the town. The square, the churches, and the publick buildings are magnificent, and it is a large, rich, and trading place. It has a Roman-catholick archbishop, and an Armenian,

This city was reduced to the last extremity by the rebel Cossacks and Tartars, and was forced to redeem itself with a large sum of money. In 1672 it was besieged in vain by the Turks, but, in 1704 was taken by storm, by Charles XII. king of Sweden. Lon. 42. 21. lat. 49. 51.

* LEMBRO, an island of the Archipelago, on the eastern coast of the peninsula of Romania, about 22 miles in circumference, with a town of the same name, and a harbour. Lon. 43. 45. lat. 40. 25.

* LEMBURG, a palatinate of Red Russia, in Poland, bounded on the W. by Upper Poland, on the N. by the palatinate of Belez, on the E. by Podolia and Moldavia, and on the S. by Moldavia and Upper Hungary. It is divided into four territories, which take their names from the capital towns.

LEMGOW, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and county of Lippe, 20 miles N. of Paderborn, and as many S. of Minden. Lon. 26. 15. lat. 52. 5.

LEMNOS, one of the principal islands of the Archipelago, now called Stalimene. It lies at the entrance of the Dardanel, and has a town of the same name, which is capital of the island. It is about 25 miles in length, and 15 in breadth, and belongs to the Turks. The soil is pretty fertile, especially in corn and wine, and it is famous for an earth called Terra Sigillata, formerly in greater esteem among physicians than it is at present. It contains about 75 villages, whose inhabitants are almost all Greeks, and are very industrious. Lemnos or Stalimene is but a small town, which stands on a hill, on the top of which there is a castle, near the sea. It is the see of a Greek archbishop, and is 20 miles S. E. of mount Athos, whose shadow covers it a little before sun-set, and 55 N. W. of Metelin. Lon. 43. 3. lat. 40. 3.

* LEMO, a small river of Italy, which rises in the territory of Genoa, where it washes Gavi, and passes on to join the Orba in the Alexandrino.

* LEMPTA, a large country of Africa, in the Zaara or Desert, lying to the N. of Negroland. The inhabitants are of a savage, brutal disposition.

LEMSTER, or LEOMINSTER, a town of Herefordshire, with a market on Fridays, and 6 fairs. on February 13, Tuesday after Mid-lent Sunday, and May 13, for horned cattle and horses; on July 10, for horned cattle, horses, wool, and Welch butter; on September 4, for horned cattle, horses, and butter, and in November for horned cattle, hops, and butter. It is seated on the river Lug, which waters the N. and E. sides of the town. It contains one parish-church, 400 houses, 6 wards, and the principal officer is a bailiff. It is of great note for its fine wool, has several good inns, and sends two members to parliament. It is 24 miles W. by N. of Worcester, 14 N. of Hereford, and 136 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 50. lat. 52. 20.

LENA, a large river of the Russian empire, in Tartary, which takes its course N. from the latitude of 55, and falls into the Frozen Ocean, running almost parallel to the Jenisy.

LENCICIA, a strong town of Poland, and capital of a palatinate of the same name, with a fort, seated on a rock. The nobility of the province hold their diet here. It stands in a morass, on the banks of the river Bfura, 37 miles S. E. of Gnesna, 75 W. of Warsaw, and 110 N. by W. of Cracow. Lon. 37. 0. lat. 52. 12.

* LENNHAM, a town in Kent, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on June 6, for cattle and horses, and on October 23, for horses and some other things. It is seated on an eminence, 10 miles E. of Maidstone, 18 W. by S. of Canterbury, and 47 E. S. E. of London. Lon. 18. 20. lat. 51. 18.

* LENOX, a county of Scotland, bounded on the S. by the river Clyde, on the N. and W. by Argyleshire, and on the E. by Mentieth and Sterlingshire. Near the rivers it is fertile in corn, but the other part is mountainous, which however feeds a great number of sheep. It is remarkable for the lake called Lough-Lomund, which is 24 miles in length, and 8 in breadth. It contains 30 small islands, 3 of which have churches, and many of the rest are inhabited. The famous Crampian mountains begin at this lake, and run northwards towards Aberdeen. Dumbarton is the county-town. This shire sends one member to parliament.

LENS, a town of France, in Artois, whose fortifications are demolished. It was ceded to France by the treaty of the Pyrennees,

- renes, and is 3 miles N. E. of Arras, 10 N. W. of Douay, and 15 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 20. 30. lat. 50. 28.
- LENTINI, or LEONTINI, an ancient town of Sicily, in the valley of Noto. It was greatly damaged by an earthquake in 1693, and is seated on a river of the same name, 17 miles S. W. of Catania, and 20 N. W. of Syracuse. Lon. 32. 50. lat. 37. 18.
- * LENTON, a village in Nottinghamshire, 3 miles S. W. of Nottingham, with two fairs, on Wednesday in Whitsun-week, and on November 11, for horned cattle, sheep, and hogs.
- * LENYAER, a village of Glamorganshire, 3 miles S. W. of Nottingham, with two fairs, on Wednesday in Whitsun-week, and on November 11, for horned cattle, sheep, and hogs.

and very considerable Europe, and in Lithuania, a bishop's see and a town on the top of a mountain of a sugar-leaf, and

and is divided into four towns, surrounded by as many walls, and commanded by a castle, which is on the top of the mountain. The harbour is very small, and may be shut up with a chain; the entrance being but 50 feet wide. It was taken by the Venetians from the Turks, in 1637, but was afterwards evacuated, and the castle of Bonali was demolished by the Venetians in 1699, in consequence of the treaty of Carlowitz. It was near this town that don John of Austria obtained the famous victory over the Turkish fleet in 1571. The produce of the adjacent country is, wine, oil, corn, rice, Turkey-leather, and tobacco. The wine would be exceeding good if they did not pitch their vessels on the inside, which renders the taste very disagreeable to the Turks who are not used to it. The Turks have 6 or 7 mosques here, and the Greeks have two churches. It is seated on the gulph of Lepanto, 112 miles N. W. of Athens, and 350 S. W. of Constantinople. Lon. 39. 48. lat. 38. 34.

LERIA, or LEIRIA, a strong town of Portugal, in Estramadura, with a castle, and a bishop's see. It contains about 3500 inhabitants, and was formerly the residence of the kings of Portugal. It is 30 miles S. of Coimbra, and 60 N. of Lisbon. Lon. 9. 45. lat. 39. 40.

* LERICI, a town of Italy, with a harbour, on the eastern coast of the gulph of Specia, in the territory of Genoa. Lon. 27. 30. lat. 44. 5.

LERIDA, an ancient, large, and strong town of Spain, in Catalonia, with a bishop's see, an university, and a strong castle. This place declared for king Charles after the reduction of Barcelona, in 1705, but it was retaken by the duke of Orleans in 1707, after the battle of Almanza. It is seated on a hill, on the river Segra, and in a fertile soil, 12 miles S. W. of Balaguer, 42 N. W. of Tarragona, 85 W. of Barcelona, and 200 N. W. of Madrid. Lon. 18. 10. lat. 41. 31.

LERINS, the name of two islands in the Mediterranean Sea, lying on the coast of Provence, in France, 5 miles from Antibes; that near the coast is called St. Margaret, which is guarded by invalids, state-prisoners being sent here. It was taken by the English in 1746, but Marshal Belleisle retook it in 1747. The other is called St. Honorat, and is less than the former, but has a Benedictine abbey.

LE

* LERNICA, was formerly a large city, in the island of Cyprus, as appears from its ruins; but it is now no more than a large village, seated on the southern coast of that island, where there is a good road, and a small fort for its defence.

* LERO, or LEROS, an island of Asia, in the Archipelago, and one of the Sporades, remarkable for the birth of Patroclus, according to some authors. Lon. 44. 40. lat. 37. 0.

LESBOS. See METELIN.

LESCAR, a town of France, in Gascony, and in the territory of Bearn, with a bishop's see. It is seated on a hill, 3 miles N. W. of Pau, 12 N. E. of Oleron, and 42 S. E. of Bayonne. Lon. 17. 5. lat. 43. 23.

LESCARD, a town in Cornwall, with a market on Saturdays, and 6 fairs; viz. on Shrove-Monday, Monday-evening before Easter, Holy-Thurday, August 15, September 21, and December 10, for horses, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops. It is seated in a level, and is an indifferent large town, being a corporation, and sends 2 members to parliament. It had formerly a castle, now in ruins, and has a good free-school, and a considerable manufactory of yarn, which is chiefly sold at Exeter. It is 29 miles W. by S. of Exeter, and 221 W. by S. of London. Lon. 12. 50. lat. 50. 33.

LESSINES, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Hainault, seated on the river Dender, and famous for its linen-manufacture. It is 6 miles N. E. of Ath, 17 N. W. of Mons, and 22 S. W. of Brussels. Lon. 21. 28. lat. 51. 41.

* LESTOFF, or LEOSTOFF, a town of Suffolk, with a market on Wednesdays, and two fairs; on May-Day, and Michaelmas-day, for petty chapmen. It is seated on the sea shore, and is an indifferent place, whose church is near half a mile from it. It is concerned in the fisheries of the N. Sea, cod, herrings, mackerel, and sprats. It has a church, and a dissenting meeting-house; likewise, for its security, six 18 pounders, which they can move as occasion requires; but it has no battery. The town consists of 500 houses; but the streets, though tolerably paved, are narrow. The coast is here very dangerous for strangers. It is 7 miles S. of Yarmouth, 28 E. by S. of Norwich, and 11; N. E. of London. Lon. 19. 20. lat. 52. 37.

LESTWITHEL, a town of Cornwall, with a market on Fridays, and three fairs; viz. on June 29, August 24, and November 2, for horses, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops. It is seated on the river Foy, not far from its fall into Foy-haven. Formerly ships came as far up as the town; but the channel is now stopped up. However, it is a corporation, and sends 2 members to parliament. They also keep courts here belonging to the stannary; and the gaol is likewise here. It is governed by a mayor, 6 capital burgeses, and 17 common-council men. The town consists of about 100 houses; but the streets, though paved, are bad. It is 30 miles W. N. W. of Plymouth, 26 S. W. of Launceston, and 230 W. by S. of London. Lon. 12. 35. lat. 50. 32.

LETRIM, a county of Ireland, in the province of Connaught; which is 44 miles in length, and 17 in breadth. It is bounded on the E. and N. E. by Cavan and Fermanagh; by Sligo and Roscommon on the W. and S. W. and by Longford on the E. and S. E. It is a hilly country, with rank grass, which feeds a great number of cattle. The chief town is Letrim, seated not far from the river Shannon. It contains 4001 houses, 21 parishes, 5 baronies, 2 boroughs, and sends 6 members to parliament; viz. 2 for the county, 2 for James-Town, and 2 for Carrick.

LETTEN-LAND, or LETTONIA, is the S. part of Livonia. It is bounded on the N. by Estonia; on the S. by Courland; on the E. by Muscovy; and on the W. by the Gulph of Riga. It is subject to Russia.

LETTERE, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Principato, with a bishop's see. It is a trading place, and is seated at the back of a mountain, 12 miles N. W. of Salerno, and 20 S. E. of Naples. Lon. 32. 5. lat. 40. 52.

LEVANT: This word properly signifies the EAST; but it is generally used, when speaking of trade, for TURKEY IN ASIA; comprehending Natolia, Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Barka, the Island of Candia, and the adjacent parts. The LEVANT SEA means, The Eastern part of the Mediterranean.

LEUCATE, an ancient town of France, in Lower Languedoc, whose fortifications have been demolished. It is seated near a lake of the same name, 15 miles N. E. of Perpignan. Lon. 20. 44. lat. 43. 40.

LEUCHSTENBERG, a town of Germany, in the palatinate of Bavaria. It is seated on a mountain, near the river Pircimpt, 50 miles N. W. of Ratibon, and 55 N. E. of Nuremberg. Lon. 30. 20. lat. 49. 36.

LEUE, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Brabant. It is seated on the river Gheet, near the confines of Liege, 10 miles E. of Louvain. Lon. 22. 33. lat. 50. 55.

LEVERPOOL, a town of Lancashire, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs; viz. on July 25, and November 11, for horses and horned cattle. It is commodiously seated on the river Mersey, where there is an excellent safe harbour for ships. It is much increased and beautified of late, being, next to London and Bristol, the most trading town in England. Here is a handsome town-house, supported by stone-pillars and arches; and underneath it is the Exchange for merchants. The houses are generally new, and built with brick, after the manner of London. It contains three churches, besides several meeting-houses for Dissenters; and the New Church is said to be one of the finest in England. At the east end of the town is a wet dock, with iron flood-gates, which will hold a great number of ships. It is a corporation, and sends two members to parliament; and is 15 miles W. of Warrington, 30 W. by S. of Manchester, and 185 N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 35. lat. 53. 25.

* LEVIN, a lake in the county of Fife, in Scotland, in which there is an island, wherein MARY Queen of Scots was kept prisoner.

* LEUK, a town of Swisserland, almost in the middle of the Valais, remarkable for its natural strength; for the assembly of the States that often meet there; and for its baths, whose water is so hot, that it will boil an egg. Lon. 25. 30. lat. 46. 12.

* LEVONTINA, or LEVINERTHAL, a valley of Swisserland, whose inhabitants depend on Milan for Spirituals, and on the canton of Uri for Temporals.

LEWARDEN, a handsome, rich, populous, large, and strong town of the United Provinces, capital of Oostergow, Westergow, Sevenwolden, and West-Friesland. It was the usual place of residence of the Stadtholder; and in buildings, as well public as private, is very magnificent. It has several canals, which run through the streets, and are a great assistance to their trade, which is very considerable; especially as these canals are continued not only to the sea, but to the most considerable towns in the province. It is 27 miles W. of Groningen, 60 N. of Deventer, and 65 N. by E. of Amster- dam. Lon. 23. 17. lat. 53. 12.

* LEWENTZ, a town of Upper Hungary, in the county of Gran, and on the river of the same name, where the Turks were defeated in 1644. It is 10 miles N. of Gran, and 25 N. E. of Newhaufel. Lon. 36. 54. lat. 48. 15.

LEWES, a town of Sussex, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs; viz. on May 6, for horned cattle; on Whit- Tuesday, for horned cattle, and horses; and on October 2, for sheep. It is seated on an eminence on the banks of the river Ouse, and sends two members to parlia- ment. It is a large place, with hand- some houses, 2 streets paved, and 6 parish churches built with flint-stone. It is the best town in the county, and is inhabited by substantial tradesmen, as well as some who live on their fortune. It is governed by a headborough and constable, and con- tains about 1500 houses built with brick and flint-stone, and about 6200 inhabi- tants. It is 50 miles E. of Chichester, and 50 S. of London. Lon. 17. 40. lat. 50. 30.

LEWIC, a town of the Netherlands, in Brabant. It was taken by the French in 1678, and rendered back by the treaty of Nimeguen. It is seated in a morass, 10 miles from Louvain, 5 from Tillemont, and 3 from St. Tron. Its sluices render it very strong. Lon. 22. 45. lat. 50. 50.

LEWISBURG, a town of N. America, and capital of the island of Cape Breton. It was taken by the English in 1745, but rendered back to France by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. It was taken again by the English, on July 26, 1758, when all the garrison were made prisoners of war, consisting of upwards of 2600 men. There were likewise 11 men of war in the harbour, which were either taken, sunk, or destroyed. Lon. 316. c. lat. 46. 50. The fortifications are now de- molished.

* LEYBORN, a considerable village in the N. Riding of Yorkshire, a mile and a half N. of Middleham, with four fairs; viz. on the second Fridays of February, May, October, and December, for horned cattle and sheep.

LEYDEN, a town of the United Provinces, in Holland, and capital of Rheinland; and, next to Amsterdam, is the largest place in the province. It is seated in a country full of gardens and meadows, which are surrounded with a great number of ditches and canals, near the an- cient bed of the Rhine, which now looks like a canal. It is about four miles and a half in circumference; and its ditches are bordered with rows of trees. It has 8 gates, and contains 50 islands, and 145 bridges, the greatest part of which are made with free-stone. The principal church is a superb structure, whose high roof is supported by three rows of columns; and the rest of the public buildings are very handsome. There are several large hospitals, and an university which generally has about 2000 students, though there is but two colleges; for the scholars board in the town, and have no habits to distinguish them from other people. The school consists of a large pile of brick-building three stories high; in the uppermost of which, the famous ELZEVIER had his Printing-Office. Adjoining to the schools is the physic-garden, where the professor reads lectures in botany. The library contains curious manuscripts; and the theatre for anatomy is the finest in Europe. Here are manufactures of the best cloths and stuffs in Holland, there being no less than 1600 workmen who are employed in them. This city is famous for being the birth-place of John of Leyden, a taylor by profession, who, in 1533, set up to be a King; his followers were a kind of Anabaptists, who committed many outrages; but, the year after, they were punished for their rashness and rebellion, and John himself was tortured till he died. It is 4 miles E. from the sea, 15 S. E. of Harlem, 25 W. of Utrecht, 20 S. W. of Amsterdam, and 15 N. of Rotterdam. Lon. 22. 0. lat. 52. 10.

LIBANUS, the name of mountains of Turkey in Asia, which lye between proper Syria and Palestine, extending from W. to E. from the Mediterranean Sea as far as Arabia. The summits of these mountains are so high, that they are always covered with snow; but below are very pleasant and fruitful valleys. They were formerly famous for the great number of cedars growing therein; but now there are scarce any remaining. Geographers distinguish into them Libanus and Antilibanus; the latter of which lies on the S. side of the valley, rising near the ruins of Sidon, and terminates at others in Arabia, in lat 34. They are separated from each other at an equal distance throughout, and form a basin, or country, called by the ancients Cœlo Syria. LIBAU, a sea-port town of Courland, lying on the Baltic Sea, where it has a harbour. It consists of wooden houses, belongs to the Duke of Courland, and is 35 miles N. of Memel, 75 W. of Mittau, and 40 S. W. of Goldengen. Lon. 59. 2. lat. 56. 27.

LIEGE, an ancient, populous, large town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and capital of a bishopric of the same name. Here the river Maese or Meuse is divided into three branches, which, after having passed through the streets under several bridges, unite again. Formerly the inhabitants would not submit to the bishop; but, after he had built two fortified castles, they were forced to submit. The old castle is in the town, and still subsists; and though the new, which is on the other side, was demolished since 1714, yet the fortifications on the side of the city are still standing. This town has 10 large suburbs, in which are a great number of religious houses and churches; which last, with those in the city, make 100 in all.

The cathedral contains many reliques, and has a chapter, whose canons must be all Gentlemen, or Doctors, or, as some say, Princes and Cardinals, or otherwise of great note. The publick structures are, the bishop's palace, the town-house, the seminary of the Jesuits, and the arsenal. On the sides of the river, there are fine walks, where the ladies often divert themselves. It is commonly said of this city, That it is the Hell of Women, because they are obliged to live a laborious life; the Purgatory of Men, because they are almost all governed by their wives; and the Paradise of Monks, on account of their rich benefices. Here is also a famous university, and a convent of English nuns. This place is about 4 miles in circumference, and has 150 streets, and 16 gates. They make a great many fire-arms here, which are transported to different countries. It was bombarded in 1691, and delivered up to the French in 1701. The allies retook it in 1702; and the French besieged it again in 1705, but were obliged to raise the siege at the approach of the Duke of Marlborough. In March 1734, a fire happened here, which consumed the bishop's palace, with all the furniture and writings. The bishop is one of the most considerable ecclesiastical princes of Germany, and has an annual revenue of 300,000 ducats. It is seated in a very pleasant valley on the river Maese, 12 miles N. E. of Huy, 15 S. W. of Maestricht, 30 N. of Namur, 62 S. W. of Cologne, 65 N. of Luxemburg, and 65 N. E. of Mons. Lon. 23. 15. lat. 50. 36.

LIEGE, the bishopric of, is bounded on the N. by Brabant and Guelderland; on the E. by the dutchies of Limburg and Juliers; on the S. by Luxemburg and Ardennes; and on the W. by Brabant and the county of Namur. It is fruitful in corn and fruits, and contains mines of iron, lead, and pit-coal, besides quarries of marble. The bishop is elected by the chapter, composed of 60 canons; and the capital is of the same name.

LIERS, a village of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and bishopric of Liege. A battle was fought here in 1746, between the Allies commanded by Prince Charles of Lorraine, and the French commanded by Count Saxe. It is 10 miles N. of Liege, and 10 S. of Maestricht. Lon. 21. 25. lat. 50. 41.

LIMA, a city of S. America, in Peru, of which it is capital, with an archbishop's see, and an university. It gives its name to the principal audience of Peru, and is surrounded with brick walls, fortified with several ramparts and bastions eight yards high. The streets are handsome, and as straight as a line, but the houses are generally only one story high, on account of the earthquakes. However they are pretty enough, and well adorned, having long galleries on the front. One part of the roofs are covered with coarse linen cloth, and the others only with reeds, which is not inconvenient, because it never rains here; however, the richest inhabitants cover theirs with fine mats, or beautiful cotton-cloths. There are trees planted all round their houses, to keep off the heat of the sun. What the houses want in height they have in length and depth, for some of them are 200 feet long, and proportionably broad, so that they have 10 or 12 large apartments on the ground floor. The royal palace is very handsome, and in the middle there is a fountain of bronze, adorned with the image of Fame, which spouts out water. On the E. and

W. sides are the publick structures, which are well built. The river which crosses Lima forms canals or streams which run to most of the houses, and serve to water their gardens, as well as for other uses. All the churches and convents are extremely rich, and many images of the saints are of massy gold, adorned with jewels. This city is 4 miles in length, and 2 in breadth, and is divided into 3 parishes, and yet it contains but 28,000 inhabitants, whereof 9000 are Spaniards. They make use of mules to draw their coaches with, and of these there are about 5000. It is the seat of the viceroy, and contains several courts, as that of the viceroy, of the archbishop, of the inquisition, of the crusado, and of the wills. Earthquakes are here very frequent, and some have done this city a great deal of damage, particularly that in 1746, by which it was almost destroyed; and, if it was not for this, it would be a perfect paradise, there being plenty of corn, wine, oil, sugar, fruits, and flax. The inhabitants are so rich, that when the viceroy, who was duke of Palata, was sent from Spain to Peru in 1682, and made his publick entrance into this city, the inhabitants paved the streets he was to pass through with ingots of silver. The inhabitants of Lima are very debauched, but at the same time extremely superstitious, and they have a strong belief in the power of charms. About a fourth part of the city are Monks and Nuns, who are not a jot more chaste than the rest; and if any one happens to rival a monk, he is in danger of his life, for they always carry a dagger under their frocks. The Nuns are such libertines, that it is hard to find any free from the French disease, of which they sometimes die for want of good physicians. The greatest sinners think they atone for all their faults by hearing a mass, and kissing the robe of St. Francis or St. Dominic, and then they return to their former practices. It is seated on a large, pleasant, fertile plain, on a small river, near the sea. Lon. 300. 50. lat. S. 12. 15.

LIMA, the audience of, a large province of S. America, in Peru, lying on the S. Sea, with a large valley, and a river of the same name. It is bounded on the N. by the audience of Quito, on the E. by the mountains called the Andes, on the S. by the audience de los Charcos, and on the W. by the S. Sea. There are several animals in this province, which are very fierce and dangerous, especially near the mountains, but that which they call a lion is not one, for it is more like a wolf, and never attacks mankind. However, there are very large tawney tygers, which are as wild and fierce as those of Africa.

* LIMAGNE, a territory of France, in Lower Auvergne, lying along the river Allier, being about 37 miles in length from N. to S. It is one of the most fertile and fine plains in France, and is very populous.

LIMALE, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Brabant, seated on the river Dyle, 13 miles S. E. of Brussels. Lon. 22. 5. lat. 50. 45.

LIMBURG, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, and capital of a dutchy of the same name. It was taken by the French in 1675, by the Imperialists in 1702, but afterwards was ceded to the Austrians, the fortifications having been first demolished. It is seated on a mountain, near the river Vese, 17 miles S. of Aix-la-Chapelle, and 15 S. E. of Liege. Lon. 23. 43. lat. 50. 40.

LIMBURG, the dutchy of, a province of the Austrian Netherlands, bounded on the N. and E. by the dutchy of Juliers, on part of the E. by the territory of Aix-la-Chapelle, and on the S. and W. by the territory of Liege, from which it is separated by the river Maese. It is about 50 miles in length, and 23 in breadth. It contains some of the best iron mines in the Netherlands, and the soil is good for corn and pastures.

LIMERICK, a town of Ireland, in the county of the same name, and province of Munster, with a bishop's see. It is an elegant, rich, and populous place, of great strength, partly seated on an island of the river Shannon, and may be reckoned two towns, which are joined together by a handsome stone-bridge. It is strong both by nature and art, and is strengthened by a wall and a castle, and the river serves instead of ditches. The castle and the cathedral stand in the upper town, and both have little draw-bridges. It stands 50 miles from the sea, but as the river has neither bar, rock, nor sand-bank, ships may come up as far as the walls, which renders it a trading place. It underwent two sharp sieges, in 1690 and 1697, and at last was obliged to surrender to King William III. but the garrison were at liberty to retire where they

- they pleased. It is 27 miles S. of Galway, 45 N. of Cork, and 100 S. W. of Dublin. Lon. 9. 5. lat. 52. 35.
- LIMERICK, a county of Ireland, in the province of Munster, 48 miles in length, and 23 in breadth, bounded on the N. by the river Shannon, on the W. by the ocean, on the S. by the counties of Kerry and Cork, and on the E. by that of Tipperary. It contains 17019 houses, 130 parishes, 10 baronies, 3 boroughs, and sends 8 members to parliament, 2 for the county, 2 for Limerick, 2 for Killmannock, and 2 for Atkinton. It is a fertile country, and well inhabited, though the W. parts are mountainous. Limerick is the capital town.
 - LIMINGTON, a town in Hampshire, with a market on Saturdays, and 2 fairs, on May 12 and October 13, for horses, cheese, and bacon. It is seated on a hill, near the sea, and sends 2 members to parliament. It is 14 miles S. W. of Southampton, and 85 S. W. of London. Lon. 15. 50. lat. 50. 45.
 - LIMNEVADY, a town of Ireland, in the county of Londonderry, and province of Ulster, 14 miles N. E. of Londonderry. Lon. 10. 19. lat. 55. 5.
 - LIMOGES, an ancient and considerable town of France, in the province of Guienne, and capital of Limosin, with a bishop's see. It is a trading place, and its horses are in great esteem. It is seated on the river Vienne, 50 miles N. E. of Perigueux, 70 S. E. of Poitiers, and 110 E. of Bourdeaux. Lon. 18. 57. lat. 42. 48.
 - LIMOSIN, a province of France, bounded on the N. by La Marche, on the E. by Auvergne, on the S. by Quercy, and on the W. by Perigord and Angoumois. It is divided into the Upper and Lower, the former of which is very cold, but the latter more temperate. It is covered with forests of chestnut-trees, and contains mines of lead, copper, tin, and iron, but the principal trade consists in cattle and horses.
 - LIMOURS, a town of France, in Hurepois, with a royal castle, out of repair. It is in the diocese of Paris, and is 20 miles S. W. of that city.
 - LIMOUX, a strong, populous town, in Lower Languedoc, and capital of the county of Razes. It is a trading place, and is seated on the river Aude, 57 miles W. by S. of Narbonne, and 50 S. E. of Toulouse. Lon. 19. 56. lat. 43. 5.
 - LIMPURG, a barony of Germany, in the - circle of Franconia, included almost entirely within Suabia, and seated to the S. of Hall in Suabia. It is about 15 miles long, and 8 broad. Gaildorf and Shonburg, near which is the castle of Limpurg, are the principal places.

- LIMPURG, a town of Germany, in the electorate of Triers, or Treves, and in Wetteravia, formerly free and imperial, but now subject to the electorate of Treves. It is seated on the river Rhon, 10 miles N. E. of Nassau, and 20 N. of Mentz. Lon. 25. 48. lat. 50. 18.
 - LINCHANENT, a town of N. America, in New-Spain, and in the territory of Jucatan, 10 miles from Selem. Lon. 289. 45. lat. 20. 40.

 - LINCOLN, the capital town of Lincolnshire, with a market on Fridays, and 2 fairs, on the second Tuesday after April 12, July 5, first Wednesday after September 12, and November 12, for berries, cattle, and sheep. It is pleasantly seated on the side of a hill, on the river Witham, which divides into several streams, and waters the lower part of the city, over which there are divers bridges. It had formerly 50 churches, which are now reduced to 14, besides the cathedral, or minster. It is well built, and well inhabited, and the shops are well furnished with commodities. It is a bishop's see, whose diocese is the largest in England. The cathedral is one of the most superb structures of this kind in England, and the country to the N. may be seen for 50 miles distance. The great bell, called Tom of Lincoln, requires 15 able men to ring it. It has the title of an earldom, and sends 2 members to parliament. It is a county of itself, whose liberties extend 20 miles in circumference. It is 32 mile N. E. of Nottingham, 21 S. of Kington upon Hill, and 128 N. of London. Lon. 17. 3. lat. 53. 13.
 - LINCOLNSHIRE, a county of England, 77 miles in length, and 44 in breadth, bounded on the E. by the German Ocean, on the W. by Nottinghamshire, on the N. by Yorkshire, and on the S. by Rutlandshire, Northamptonshire, and Cambridgeshire. It contains 4590 houses, 24,340 inhabitants, 631 parishes, and 51 market-towns, whereof 5 send members to parliament, which, with 2 for the

into three parts, Lindsey, Kesteven, and Holland; the air of this last is unwholesome and foggy, on account of the fens and large marishes. The soil of the N. and W. parts is very fertile, and abounds in corn and pastures. The E. and S. parts are not so proper for corn, but then they supply them with fish and fowl in great plenty, particularly, ducks and geese.
Lincoln is the principal town.

lat. 34. 0.

LINTZ, a very handsome town of Germany, capital of Upper Austria, with two fortified castles, the one upon a hill, and the other below it. Here is a hall, in which the states assemble, a bridge over the Danube, a fine Jesuits college, and several manufactures, besides which they make a great deal of gun powder. The French became masters of it in 1741, but the Austrians retook it in 1742. It is

LIPARI, an island of the Mediterranean Sea, to the N. of Sicily, to which it is, as it were, annexed. It is the largest of the seven islands of the same name, and is about 15 miles in circumference. It abounds in corn, bitumen, sulphur, al-lum, and mineral waters, and more especially in figs and grapes. The names of the others are, Stromboli, Pare, Rotto, Panaria, Salme, Volcano, Fenicusa, Ali-cor, and Ufrica, of which two or three emit flames of fire, which may be seen a great way at sea.

* LIPARI, a very ancient and strong town, and capital of an island of the same name,

name, in the Mediteranean Sea, (with a bishop's see. It was ruined by Barbarossa in 1544, who carried away all the inhabitants into slavery, and demolished the place; but it was rebuilt by the emperor Charles V. Lon. 33. 0. lat. 38. 35.

LISSA, a village of Silesia, 16 miles from Breslau, remarkable for a battle fought between the Prussian and the Austrians, on the 15th of December 1757, when the latter were entirely defeated.

LITCHFIELD, a town or city of Staffordshire, with two markets, on Tuesdays and Fridays, and three fairs; viz. on Shrove-Monday, for cattle, sheep, bacon, cheese, and iron; on May 12, for sheep and cattle; and on Friday before November 8, for geese and cheese. It is a city and county of itself, and is seated in a pleasant champaign country. It is divided from the clove and cathedral, which are joined together by 2 bridges and cause-ways. It is well-built, indifferently large, and contains 3 parish-churches, besides the cathedral, which is a handsome structure. Here is a free grammar school and two hospitals, and it is much frequented by the better sort of people.

It is 15 miles N. W. of Tamworth, 14 S. E. of Stafford, and 118 N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 55. lat. 52. 43.
This, together with Coventry, is the see

LITHUANIA, a large country of Europe, which now makes part of Poland, with the title of a grand dutchy. It is bounded on the S. by Volinia, and part of Red Russia; on the W. by Upper Poland, Polachia, Ducal Prussia, and Samogitia; on the N. by Livonia and Moscovia, which also bounds it on the E. It is about 300 miles in length, and 250 in breadth, and is watered by several large rivers, the principal of which are, the Nieper, the Dwina, the Neman, the Pripee, and the Bogg. It is divided into 8 palatinates; namely, Troki, Min-ski, Novogrodec, Brestia, Wilna, Mscislaw, Vitepsk, and Poloesk. It is a flat country, like Poland; and the land's are very proper for tillage. The soil is not only fertile in corn, but it produces honey, wood, pitch, and vast quantities of wool.
They have also excellent little horses, which they never shoe, because their hoofs are very hard. Their rivers likewise yield great plenty of fish. The inhabitants resemble the Poles in many respects; but they speak a different language, have particular customs, and other privileges. The peasants are more miserable than those of Poland; and they observe neither holidays nor Sundays. The prevailing religion is the Roman-Catholick: however, there are a great number of Lutherans, Calvinists, Socinians, Arians, Greeks, Jews, and Turks, who are all tolerated.

LIVONIA, a large province of the Russian empire, with the title of a dutchy. It is bounded on the N. by the Gulph of Finland; on the W. by that of Riga; on the S. by Courland; and on the E. partly by Plescow, and partly by Novogorod. It is about 250 miles, from N. to S. and 150 from E. to W. The land is so fertile in corn, that it is called the granary of the N. and would produce a great deal more, if it was not so full of lakes. The fish that abound here are salmon, carps, pikes, flat fish, and many others. In the forests there are wolves, bears, elks, rain-deer, stags, and hares. The domestick animals are very numerous; but the sheep bear very bad wool. Here are a great number of forests, which consist of birch trees, pines, and oaks; and all the houses of the inhabitants are built with wood. The merchandises which they send abroad are flax, hemp, honey, wax, leather, skins, and potashes. The Swedes were formerly possessed of this province; but they were obliged to abandon it to the Russians after the battle of Pultowa; and it was ceded to them by the peace of the North, concluded in 1722, which was confirmed by another treaty in 1742. It is divided into 2 provinces, viz. Letonia and Estonia, and two islands called Oescl and Dagho, which are again subdivided into several districts. The Czar Peter perceiving the inhabitants did not like the change, he compelled them to abandon their country, and drove many of them as far as the Caspian Sea; but being persuaded to recal them, most of them perished before the edict was published; so that he was obliged to re-people it with other nations.

LOANBO, a small island of Africa, on the coast of Angola. It is 12 miles in length, and three quarters of a mile in breadth. It has a town of the same name, which is capital of the kingdom of Angola, in S. Guiney, with a very good harbour, a fort, and a bishop's see. It is large and handsome, considering the country, and may contain about 3000 houses, built of stone, and covered with tiles. Besides these, there are a vast number of negroes huts made of straw and earth. The Jesuits have a college here, and there are several other religious houses; but they have no fresh water. They have a prodigious number of slaves, insomuch that the Jesuits alone have at least 2000. It belongs to the Portuguese. Lon. 30. 0. lat. S. 8. 45.

LOANGO, a considerable kingdom of Africa, in S. Guiney, lying on the sea-side, being about 250 miles in length, and 183 in breadth. The king and his court reside in a town of the same name; and it is pretended that the natives are converted to Christianity, at least the greatest part of them. The land is so fruitful, that they have three crops of millet in a year; and there are a great number of trees from whence they draw palm-wine. Their principal trade consists in elephants teeth, copper, tin, lead, iron, and slaves. Before they were converted, they circumcised their children, without knowing why. The women cultivate the ground, sow, and get in the harvest. The inhabitants are black, well-made, mild, and tractable. This country produces several kinds of fruits; and, it is said, is subject to the Portuguese. Lon. 29. 15. lat. S. 3. 0.

LOMBARDY, a name given to part of Italy, and which comprehends almost all the ancient Cisalpine-Gaul. It lies towards the N. and is divided into the Upper and Lower; Upper Lombardy is the western part, and comprehends Piedmont, with its dependencies, and the duchies of Montferrat and Milan.
Lower Lombardy, which is the eastern part, comprehends Parma, Modena, Mantua, Ferrara, the Bolognese, the territories of the church, the Paduan, Vicentin, the Veronese, the Bressan, the Cremase, and the Bergomese.

* LOMBARDS, a people which some say took their name from their long beard or, as others, from the long halbeards, which they call Barden. They dwelt at first in the country now called the Middle Marche of Brandenburg, but were invited into Italy by the emperor Justinian, to serve against the Goths; and to reward their services he gave the Norica, and part of Upper Pannonia in 548, from hence in 578 they passed into Italy, and their chief was declared king by the army at Milan, in 570. This kingdom subtended by the name of Lombardy till 772, when Charlemain took Desiderius king of the Lombards, and became master of its territories, which, besides the countries just mentioned, included all the territories of Venice, the bishoprick of Trent, part of Tirol, the country of the Gaisons, the republick of Genoa, and Tuscany.

LOMBEZ, a small but pleasant town of France, in Gascony, in the Comingee, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Seve, 27 miles S. W. of Toulouse, 25 S. E. of Auch, and 20 N. W. of Rioux. Lon. 18. 33. lat. 43. 33.

LOMOND, a large lake of Scotland, in the county of Lenox, which is 20 miles in length, and 8 in breadth, and which comprehends 30 isles, many of which are inhabited. It abounds in fish, and in particular a fine kind of eels, called Pollac.

LONDON, the metropolis of Great Britain, is very ancient, but was neither built by Brute nor king Lud, as some dreaming authors pretend; nor yet was it in being in the time of Julius Caesar, though it is mentioned by Tacitus as a place of considerable trade, in the reign of Nero, and hence we may conclude it was founded about the time of Claudius, and the year of Christ 42. It is said, but with no great certainty, that it was surrounded with a wall by Constantine. It had 7 gates by land, namely, Ludgate, Aldergate, Cripplegate, Newgate, Aldersgate, Moorgate, and Bishopgate: of which the three first were taken down in September of this present year, 1760. On the side of the water there were Dowgate and Billingsgate, long since demolished, as well as the postern-gate near the tower, and the greatest part of the walls. In the year 1670 there was a gate erected, called Temple-Bar, which determines the bounds of the city westward. This city has undergone great calamities, of various kinds, but the most last were most remarkable; that is, the plague in 1665, which swept away 68,596 persons, and the fire in 1666, which burnt down 13,200 dwelling-houses; in memory of this last there is an obelisk erected, called the Monument, near the place where it began, which is one of the most remarkable structures in the city. The tower of London is very ancient, but the founder is uncertain; however, it is said William the conqueror built that part of it called the White Tower: it is surrounded by a wall, and partly by a deep ditch, which enclose several streets, besides the tower, properly so called: this contains the great artillery, a magazine of small arms for 60,000 men, and the large horse armoury, among which are 15 figures of kings on horseback. Here are the jewels and ornaments of the crown, as well as the other regalia; the mint for coining of money, and the menagerie for strange birds and beasts. The circumference of the whole is accounted about a mile. There is one parish-church, and it is under the command of a constable and lieutenant. In Thames-street, near the tower, is the custom-house, which is a large, stately structure, where the king's customs are received, for all goods imported and exported: and opposite thereto, as well as a great way down the river, there is a delightful prospect of a grove of ships, laden with commodities of various kinds. London-bridge is a little farther to the West, which was to greatly admired for having fine houses on each side; but they are now taken down to render the passage more commodious, and lately the middle arch is widened, and the whole bridge is beautifying. The stone gate-house, which commanded the passage into London from Surrey and Kent, built near the entrance of the bridge, is also taken down. Gresham-college, in Bishopgate-ward, is built round a court 14 feet square, with bricks, and covered with slate. There are professors, with salaries, appointed to read lectures here, in the different faculties, but now they seldom or never have any auditors. It formerly had a fine library, and was the museum of the Royal Society. The bank of England began to be erected in 1692, and in 1733, about a year after it was finished, a marble statue of William III. was set up in the hall. The Royal exchange, in Cornhill, is generally allowed to be the finest structure in rly structure of this kind in the world. It was first built by Sir Thomas Gresham, in the years 1566 and 1567, but being burnt down in 1666, it was rebuilt, in a grander manner, with Portland stone; it was finished in 1669, and cost 66,000l.

 The quadrangle within is 144 feet long, and 117 broad, and there are piazzas on the outside of the walls, and over them are 24 niches, 18 of which are filled with the statues of the kings and queens of England. In the middle of the area is the statue of Charles II. in a Roman habit. The tower and turret of the lantern is 178 feet high. In the place where stocks-market was held is the mansion-house, for the lord-mayor to reside in; the first stone of which was laid in October 1739: it is a noble and magnificent structure, but too heavy, and too large for the use for which it was designed. Bowchurch is admired for the beauty of its steeple, and that of Wallbrooke, behind the mansion-house, for its curious architecture.
 Guildhall, in Cheapside, is the townhouse of the city, and the great hall is 153 feet long, 50 broad, and 58 high, and will hold near 7000 people. Besides the two giants, it is embellished with the pictures of Edward the confessor, King William, Queen Mary, Queen Anne, George I. Queen Caroline, and of his present Majesty. Blackwell-hall in Bassishaw-ward is famous for being the greatest mart for woollen-cloth in the world. Sion-college stands by London wall, and has a library appropriated to the use of the London Clergy; and under it there is an alms-house, consisting of 10 poor men and as many women, each of whom are allowed six pounds a-year. St. Paul's cathedral is allowed to be the finest Protestant church in the world, and was built after a model done by Sir Christopher Wren; its length from E. to W. is 465 feet, and, including the portico, 500; and the height, from the ground to the top of the cross, 344 feet. In Warwick-lane is the physicians college, where two of the fellows meet twice in a week, to give medicines to the poor, gratis; the structure is very fine, but it is in a manner hid. Surgeons-hall is in the Old-Bailey, and is built in the modern taste, since the surgeons company separated from that of the barbers. Christ's Hospital was formerly a house of the Grey-friers, and was founded by Edward VI. for the entainment and education of the poor children of citizens, of both sexes: a mathematical school was founded here in 1673, and a writing school in 1694, and the charity has been otherwise en-creased, by a great many noble benefactions. Doctors Commons is not far from St. Paul's, and is a spacious, commodious structure, with several handsome courts, where the judges of admiralty, court of delegates, court of arches, &c. meet. Near it is the herald's college, to which belong three kings at arms, namely, Garter, Clarencieux, and Norroy, with six heralds, four pursuivants, and eight profctors. It is a spacious building, with convenient apartments, a good library relating to heraldry, and the coats of arms are kept of all the families of note in England.

 Near Temple Bar are the inner and middle temple, which are both inns of court, for the study of the law. The Temple church was founded at first by the Knights Templars, in 1185, and it is now one of the most beautiful Go-thick structures in England. There are twelve other inns of court, which it would be too long to dwell upon. They have now begun to build a stone-bridge over the Thames, at Black-Friers. The sessions-house is in the Old-Bailey, where they hear and determine criminal causes eight times a year. Fleet-prison is by Fleet-market, and Bridewell by Fleet-ditch, which is an hospital, and a house of correction. St. Bartholomew's hospital is near W. Smithfield, and contiguous to Christ's hospital, and it is designed for the relief of the sick and lame: the buildings have been greatly enlarged of late. The Lock-hospital is in Kent-street, Southwark. The small-pox hospital in Cold-bath-fields, the lying-in hospital in Brownlow-street, and another in Aldersgate-street. Besides these, there are St. Thomas's and Guy's hospitals, in Southwark, St. George's hospital at Hyde-park corner, Middlesex hospital in Tottenham-court-road, and the London hospital at Mile-End.
 Add to these Bedlam, or Bethlehem hospital, for mad-people, in Lower Moor-fields, and St. Luke's, for the same purpose, in Upper Moorfields. To which add the magnificent structure in Lamb's Conduit-fields, called the Foundling-hospital. Westminster is generally reckoned part of London, though under a distinct government, and has long been famous

mous for the palaces of our kings, the seat of our law-tribunals, and of the high court of parliament. It is named from its abbey, formerly called a Minster, and from its W. situation in regard to St. Paul's. The abbey is a truly venerable pile of building, in the Gothick taste, where most of our monarchs have been crowned and buried. It was founded before the year 850, but the present fabrick was erected by Henry III. It is 489 feet in length, and 66 in breadth at the W. end, but the cross stile is 189 feet broad, and the height of the middle roof 92 feet. At the E. end is the chapel of Henry VII. which is so artificially wrought, that Leland calls it the miracle of the world. The screen or fence is entirely brass, and within are the figures of Henry VII. and his queen, of solid brass, gilt with gold: but the magnificent monuments in the abbey are so numerous, that it would require a volume to describe them. Westminster-hall is near the abbey, and is one of the largest rooms in Europe, whose roof is not supported by pillars. Here the law-courts are kept, and adjoining are the houses of the lords and commons. Westminster bridge, over the Thames, is universally acknowledged to be a master-piece of art, and superior to any thing of this kind hitherto erected. The new buildings in the liberty of Westminster are increased to a prodigious degree, insomuch that they reach as far as Marybone to the N. Piccadilly to the S. and Hyde-park wall to the W. among them are several magnificent squares, as those of Hanover, Grosvenor, Barclay, and Cavendish. St. James's, Soho, Leicester, Golding, and Bloomsbury are old squares. To these may be added the magnificent square called Lincolns-Inn-Fields, and several others of less note, both in the city and suburbs. As there are several spots of ground within the city very proper to build squares on, it is hoped the magistrates will take this affair into consideration, to prevent their rich citizens from removing to the court end of the town. There were two exchanges in the liberties of Westminster, of which one called New Exchange is pulled down, and the other is not worth notice. Lately the Number of houses in the cities of London and Westminster, and their liberties, were computed at 122,370, which, multiplied by 10, the number of people in each house, the inhabitants will amount to 1,229,300. But, if there is no more than 2 persons in a house, the total will be 983,300, that is 16,560 less than a million. As to the number of parishes, there are 97 within the walls, 16 without, 19 in the out-parishes of Middlesex, and 11 in the city and liberties of Westminster, which, added together, make 143. The number of meeting-houses, for Protestant-dissenters, of all denominations, is upwards of 100, besides which there are 5 Jewish synagogues. The publick schools are, that of St. Paul, merchant-taylors school in Canon-street, mercers-chapel school in Cheap-side, the charter-house, the royal school in Westminster, and St. Martin's school near the King's Mews. The trading part of the city of London is divided into 89 companies, but some can hardly be called so, because they have neither charters, halls, nor liveries. Of these there are 12 principal, of one of which the lord-mayor is usually free, and they are, the mercers, grocers, drapers, fishmongers, goldsmiths, skinners, merchant-taylors, haberdashers, salters, ironmongers, vintners, and cloth-workers. The city magistrates are, the lord-mayor, 26 aldermen, 202 common-councilmen, a recorder, 2 sheriffs, a chamberlain, a common-fergeant, and a town-clerk. The city and liberties of Westminster are governed by a high-steward, an under-steward, a head-bailiff, a high constable, and 14 burgeses. Places for diversion are, Vauxhall, Ranelagh-gardens, Marybone-gardens, the two play-houses, the opera-house, and occasionally the little theatre in the Hay-market. Learned bodies of men, besides the clergy, are, the royal society, the college of physicians, and the society of antiquarians. The finest repository of rarities is, sir Hans Sloane's museum, now kept in Great Ruffel street. In general, London, Westminster, and Southwark, are seated on the banks of the Thames, and from Ratcliff cross in the E. to Northumberland-house in the W. there is a gradual ascent to the principal streets. The hackney-coaches are about 800, and the sedan-chairs very numerous. There are 22 prisons, 42 markets, 27 squares, of all sorts, and the common firing is pit-coal, commonly called sea-coal, of which there is consumed upwards of 600,000 chaldrons every year. This renders the air gross, but then it has a salutary effect, in preserving the city city from pestilential distempers, and the same has been observed of some cities of Germany: whereas, when wood was the chief fuel, the plague returned every 10 years. It is 400 measured miles S. by E. of Edinburgh, 225 N. W. of Paris, 690 N. by W. of Madrid, 750 N. W. of Rome, 660 W. N. W. of Vienna, 334 S. E. of Dublin, and 190 W. S. W. of Amsterdam. Lon. 17. 35. lat. 51. 30.

LONDONDERRY, a town of Ireland, in a county of the same name, and province of Ulster, with a bishop's see. It is not very large, nor are its fortifications very strong, and yet it is remarkable for a long siege which it sustained against the forces of king James II. in 1689, when he was in possession of almost all the rest of the kingdom. It is a modern place, which was built by a company of London adventurers in the reign of James I. and is become the capital of the county. It consists of only two streets, which cross one another in the middle, but they are neat and well paved, and the houses are several stories high, being mostly built of free-stone. It has a handsome church, a fine market-place, and its harbour is bordered with a quay. At the siege above mentioned, when all the commanding officers were dead, they chose Mr. Walker, a clergyman, for their head, who performed wonders by his bravery and conduct, insomuch that they were obliged to raise the siege, on July 31, after having lain 6 weeks before it, and thrown near 600 bombs into the town. It is seated on the river Mourne, near its mouth, 5 miles S. of the lake or bay of Loughfoyle, 50 W. of Carrickfergus, and 104 N. W. of Dublin. Lon. 9. 55. lat. 54. 52.

● LONDONDERRY, a county of Ireland, 32 miles in length, and 30 in breadth, bounded on the W. by Donnegal, on the N. by the Ocean, on the S. and S. W. by Tirone, and by Antrim on the E. It contains 13,489 houses, 38 parishes, 4 baronies, 3 boroughs, and sends 3 members to parliament, 2 for the county, 2 for Londonderry, 2 for Colerain, and 2 for Newtown-Amivady. It is a fruitful champagne country, and has a capital town of the same name.

LONGFORD, a county of Ireland, 25 miles in length, and 16 in breadth, bounded on the E. and S. by Westmeath, on the N. and N. W. by Letrim and Cavan, and on the W. by the river Shannon. It contains 5038 houses, 24 parishes, 6 baronies, 4 boroughs, and sends 10 members to parliament, 2 for the county, 2 for Longford, 2 for Granard, 2 for Lanefborough, and 2 for St. John's-Town. It is a small, but rich and pleasant country, and the principal town is of the same name.

LONG-ISLAND, is an island of N. America, in the colony of New-York, which is separated from the continent by a narrow channel, and is about 100 miles in length, and 12 in breadth, containing Queen's-county, Suffolk-county, and Richmond-county. There is a fine plain in the middle of the island, called Salisbury-plain, on which they have horse-races, and gentlemen come to it from the neighbouring parts, as those in England do to New-Market. The produce of this island is chiefly provisions for the mouth, such as wheat, Indian-corn, salt-bee, pork, fish, and strong-beer, which they send to the Caribbee Islands, and, in lieu of them, receive sugar, rum, cotton, and indigo.

LONGISLAND, a town of Turkey in Europe, in the Morca, anciently called Olympia, which was famous for being the place where the Olympic games were celebrated, and for the temple of Jupiter Olympus, which is not above a mile and half from it. It is now but a small place, and is seated on the river Alpheus, 10 miles from its mouth, and 50 S. of Lepanto. Lon. 39. 35. lat. 37. 30.

* LONGTOWN, a town in Cumberland, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on Whit-Thursdays, for horses and linnen-yarn, and on Thursday after November 22 for horses, horned cattle, and linnen-cloth. It is seated on the borders of Scotland, 12 miles N. of Carlisle, and 316 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 45. lat. 55. 15.

LONGUEVILLE, a town of France, in Upper Normandy, and in the territory of Caux, seated on the small river Lee, 17 miles N. of Rouen. It has the title of a duchy. Lon. 18. 45. lat. 49. 46.

LONGWY, a town of France, on the frontiers of the duchy of Luxemburg, with a castle, and it is divided into the old and new towns. This last was built and fortified by Lewis XIV. It is seated on an eminence, 15 miles S. W. of Luxemburg, 15 N. E. of Montmedi, and 167 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 23. 26. lat. 40. 52.

LONSDALE, or KIRKBY LONSDALE, a town of Westmoreland, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on Holy-Thursdays for horned cattle, and on December 21 for woollen cloth. It is seated on the river Len, in a pleasant and rich valley of the same name. It is a large well built town, has a handsome church, and a fine stone-bridge over the river. It is well inhabited, and is the best town in the county, except Kendal. It is 10 miles S. E. of Kendal, 29 S. of Applebee, and 231 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. S. lat. 54. 10.

* LONS-LE-SAUNIER, a town of France, in the Franche Compté, seated on the river Solvan, 20 miles from Dole, and 22 from Chalon. Lon. 23. 15. lat. 46. 36.

LOO, a town of the United Provinces, in Guelderland, 8 miles W. of Deventer, where the prince of Orange has a fine palace. Lon. 23. 35. lat. 52. 13.

LOOTS, a town of Germany, in the bishoprick of Liege, 16 miles W. of Maastricht. Lon. 22. 47. lat. 50. 52.

* LOOTS, a county of Germany, in the bishoprick of Liege, bounded on the S. by Halbay, on the N. by Campigne, on the W. by the dutchy of Brabant, and on the E. by Limburg. It had formerly its own counts, but the family is now extinct. Loots is the capital town.

LOCHABAR, or LOCABAR, a county of Scotland, bounded on the N. by Inverness, on the E. by Fife, Arbroath and Athol, on the S. by Leny, and on the W. by the Western Ocean. It is a mountainous country, and is so barren, that it does not produce corn enough for the inhabitants; but there are large forests, a few mines of iron, and good pastures. The sea, the lakes, and the rivers, yield plenty of fish. In the eastern part there are two large lakes, one of which has the same name as the county, and is 16 miles in length, communicating with the Irish Sea by a long channel. The other is about 10 miles long, and communicates with it by a channel, 3 or 4 miles in length.

LOAA, a town of Spain, in the kingdom of Granada, on the confines of Andalusia, 15 miles N. of Malaga. Lon. 12. 45. lat. 37. 0.

LOBA, a town of Spain, in the province of Andalusia, seated on the river Guadalquivir, 28 miles N. E. of Seville. Lon. 12. 15. lat. 37. 20.

LOBA, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and county of Hebenstem, in Thuringia, 30 miles N. of Saxgotha. Lon. 23. 20. lat. 51. 30.

* LORVUS, an ancient town of Africa, in Barbary, and in the kingdom of Tunis, with a castle, and fine remains of antiquity. It is seated on a pleasant plain, fertile in corn. 150 miles S. W. of Tunis. Lon. 26. 35. lat. 35. 35.

LORCA, an ancient town of Spain, in the kingdom of Mercia. It is a poor place, though seated in a fertile country, upon an eminence, near the river Guadalatin, 30 miles W. of Carthageua, and 35 S. W. of Mercia. Lon. 16. 32. lat. 37. 25.

* LOREN, a town of Germany, in Suabia, and in the dutchy of Wirtemberg, seated on the river Remms, 20 miles N. W. of Esslingen. It had formerly a very rich abbey, but its revenues are now employed in maintaining the university of Tubingen.

LORENO, a town of Italy, in the territory of Venice, and in the Polesina, seated on the river Adige, 20 miles E. of Rovigo. Lon. 30. 25. lat. 45. 5.

LORETTO, a town of Italy, in the Marca, or Marche of Ancona, with a bishop's see. It is small, but very well fortified, and is the place which contains the casa santa, or the house of Nazareth, in which they pretend Jesus Christ was brought up; they tell us that it was carried by angels into Dalmatia, and from thence to the place where it now stands. The inner part of this house or chapel is very old, but it is surrounded by a marble wall, and within a church built of free-stone. The famous lady of Loretto, who holds the infant Jesus in her arms, stands upon the principal altar; this statue is of cedar-wood, three feet high, but her face can hardly be seen on account of the smoke of the numerous lamps round about her. She is clothed with cloth of gold, set off with jewels, and the little Jesus is covered with a shirt. He holds a globe in his hand, and is adorned with rich jewels. There are prodigious numbers frequently go in pilgrimage to Loretto, particularly at Easter and Whitsuntide, among whom there are many of the first distinction. Every pilgrim, after having performed his devotion, makes the virgin a present proportional to his ability, whence it may be readily concluded, that this chapel must be full of immense riches. cost 40,000 ducats. Lewis XIII. of France, and his queen, sent her two crowns of gold, enriched with diamonds.
Besides these crowns, they sent an angel of massy silver, holding in his hand the
one and the same place may be converted to several uses, politicians have often met here to consult about peace or war, or to make alliances. The palace where the governor lodges stands near the church, and the ecclesiasticks who are employed in it lodge in the same palace, where they receive the pilgrims of high distinction. As for the town itself, exclusive of the chapel, it is neither very considerable nor very agreeable, nor does it contain above 300 inhabitants, who are almost all shoemakers, taylors, or sellers of chaplets. The environs of this town are very agreeable, and in fine weather the high mountains of Croatia may be seen from hence. It is seated on a mountain, 3 miles from the gulph of Venice, 12 S. E. of Ancona, 20 N. E. of Fermo, and 112 N. E. of Rome.

Draguignan, 12 from Freigus, 10 from Aix, and 430 S. by E. of Paris. Lon.

LOTH, the N. part of Argyleshire, in Scotland, bounded on the N. by Lochabar, on the E. by Broadalbine, on the S. by the rest of Argyleshire, and on the W. by the sea.

LOMBARDY, a sovereign state of Europe, bounded on the N. by Luxemburg and the archbishoprick of Treves, on the E. by Alsace and the duchy of Deux-ponts, on the S. by Franche Compte, and on the W. by Champagne and the duchy of Bar. It is about 100 miles in length, and 75 in breadth, and abounds in all sorts of corn, wine, hemp, flax, rapeseed, game, and fish, with which it carries on a great trade, and in general all the necessaries of life. There are fine meadows and large forests, with mines of iron, silver, and copper, as also saltpits. There are a great number of rivers, of which the principal are, the Maso or Meuse, the Moselle, the Seille, the Meute, and the Sarre. It is divided into three parts, the duchy of Lorraine, properly so called, which was heretofore a sovereign state, the duchy of Bar, which formerly belonged to the dukes of Lorraine, but afterwards came under the government of France, and the third comprehends the three bishopricks of Mez, Toul, and Verdun, which have belonged to France ever since the year 1552. In 1733 the emperor of Germany being at war with France, this last got possession of the duchy of Lor-rain, and when there was a peace made, in 1735, it was agreed, that Stanislaus King of Poland, father-in-law to the King of France, should possess these duchies, and that after his death they should be united for ever to the crown of France. It was also then agreed, that Francis Stephen, duke of Lorraine, and the emperors son-in-law, should have the Grand Duchy of Tuscany as an equivalent for Lorraine. After the death of the great duke of Tuscany, in 1737, King Stanislaus and the duke of Lorraine took possession of their respective dominions, and the cession was confirmed and guaranteed by a treaty in 1738. The inhabitants are laborious and valiant, and the religion is the Roman Catholic.

They have but little trade with strangers, because they have no navigable rivers, and because they have all necessaries within themselves: but what little trade they have consists of corn and linnen-cloth. Nancy is the capital town.

* LOT, a river of France, which has its rise in Gevaudan, and falls into the Garonne at Aiguillon. It begins to be navigable at Cahors.

LOTHIAN, a county of Scotland, bounded on the N. by the Frith of Forth, on the E. by the German ocean, on the S. by Clydesdale, Tweeddale, and Mers, and on the W. by Sterling. It is the best part of Scotland, upon all accounts, the air being more mild, the land more fertile, and the country more populous than in other parts. To the S. there is a long chain of mountains, which are dry and barren, and have several names, in different places. The most considerable of these mountains is Pentland, which is very high, and the most considerable rivers are, the Avon, the Amond, the Lyth, the two Eiks, and the Tyne. The LOUISA, or DEGERBY, a town of Sweden, pleasantly seated on a commodious harbour, on the gulph of Finland. In 1745 it was made a frontier-town against the Russians.

LOUISIANA, a large country of N. America, divided almost in the middle by the river Mississippi, which runs N. and S. It is a very fruitful country, and is claimed by the French, but unjustly; however the present war will, in all probability, take away this bone of contention, and then we shall know to whom it belongs. As for the bounds they are not settled, and therefore it is to no purpose to say any thing about them. The English assert that Carolina, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, may extend as far westward as they think fit, and therefore their present design is to prevent the French from settling in these parts.

LUBEC, a sea-port town of Germany, in Lower Saxony, capital of Wagria, with a bishop's see. It is a free, imperial, Hanziatick town, and the streets are handsome, large, and neat. The houses are all built with free stone, and have large apartments, with spacious cellars. The doors of the houses are so high and so wide, that a cart loaded with hay may pass through them. The town-house is a superb structure, and has several towers. On the ground-floor is the hall of audience, which is well furnished, and where the senate assembles regularly three times a-week. Above is another large hall, where the deputies of the Hanziatic League formerly held their assemblies. Here is also a fine exchange, which was built in 1683. The senate is composed of 20 persons, 4 of which are burgo-masters, the other consist of the nobility, men of letters and merchants. Add to these a syndic, a prothonotary, and 4 secretaries. The inhabitants are all Lutherans; and there are 21 preachers, whose chief has the title of Superintendent. There are five large churches and palaces, one of which is the cathedral, whose body is of an extraordinary length. There are several curiosities in it; such as, an handsome statue of the Virgin Mary, a curious clock, and prodigious large organs. There were formerly 4 convents; and, in that of St. John, there are still 22 protestant girls, under the government of an abbess. That of St. Mary Magdalen is turned into an hospital; that of St. Ann is made a house of correction; and of the monastery of St. Catherine they have made an handsome college. In the great hospital there is always a considerable number of poor men and women. Besides these, there are 14 other hospitals, one for lunatics, a pest-house, and 4 others for sick persons. LUCCA, a town of Italy, capital of a republic of the same name. It is about 3 miles in circumference, and is surrounded with a wall and other modern fortifications. It is an archbishop's see, and the churches are very handsome. The inhabitants have a considerable manufacture of silks, and gold and silver stuffs, in which they drive a great trade; for this reason it is called Lucca the Industrious. They oblige all travellers to leave their arms at the city-gate, and will not suffer any one to wear a sword within it. It is seated in the middle of a fruitful plain, surrounded with pleasant hills, near the river Secchio, over which there are two bridges. It is 10 miles N. E. of Pisa, 37 W. of Florence, 20 N. E. of Leghorn, and 135 N. by W. of Rome. Lon. 28. 10. lat. 43. 50.

• LUCCA, the republic of, is a small territory of Italy, lying on the Tuscan sea. It is about 10 miles in length, and 20 in breadth. The soil does not produce much corn; but there is plenty of wine, oil, silk, wool, and chestnuts; their oil in particular is in high esteem, and the common people usually eat chestnuts instead of bread. It is a sovereign state, under the protection of the emperor, whose government is aristocratic. The head of this republic has the name of Gonfalonier, who has the executive power, together with a council of nine members, who are changed every two months; but the legislative authority is lodged in a senate of 200 of the principal persons, who ballot for the choice of all officers. The usual revenues amount to about 30,000 l. per annum, and they can raise and pay 10,000 men upon occasion.

It is bounded on the E. by the cantons of Underwald, Switz, and Zug; and on all other sides by the canton of Bern. The inhabitants are all Roman Catholics; and they can send 16,000 men into the field. It is 50 miles in length, and 20 in breadth; and has its great and little council, its avoyers, and two courts of justice, the one criminal, and the other civil. They have plenty of fish, on account of the lake of the same name, on which it stands. Lucern is the capital town.

LUCERNE, the capital town of the canton of Lucern in Switzerland. It is divided into two by one of the branches of the river Rus, which falls into the lake. They are united by 4 covered bridges, embellished with paintings. This place is encompassed about with a single wall; and is rich and populous, and drives a great trade with the merchants of Germany and Italy. The most remarkable things are, the organ of the great church, which is very fine, and of an extraordinary size; and the skeleton of a giant, which is in the town-house. It is seated on the lake Lucern, 30 miles S. W. of Zurich, 35 E. of Bern, and 45 S. E. of Basle. Lon. 25. 51. lat. 47. 55.

• LUCIA Is. one of the Canibee Islands, in America. It is 22 miles in length, and 21 in breadth. It is partly hilly, and part consists of plains well watered with rivulets, and furnished with timber, having several good bays, and commodious harbours. The English lay claim to this island, and it was given to the duke

Duke of Montague in 1722, who planted it; but the French drove the planters away from it. However, we do not find they have made much advantage of it themselves, there being but few French inhabitants. There are two high mountains, by which this island may be known at a considerable distance. It is about 70 miles N. W. of Barbadoes, and 21 S. of Martinico. Lon. 316. 40. lat. 13. 50.

LUCONIA, or MANILLA, the chief of the Philippine Islands, in Asia, lying in the S. Sea. It is 400 miles in length, and 100 in breadth. It is not so hot as might be expected, because it is well watered by large lakes and rivers, and the periodical rains, which lay all the plains under water. There are several volcanos in the mountains, which occasion earthquakes; and there are variety of hot baths. The produce of this island is, wax, cotton, wild cinnamon, sulphur, cocoa nuts, rice, gold, horses, buffaloes, and game. The inhabitants are a mixture of several nations, besides Spaniards; and they all produce a mixed breed, distinct from any of the rest. The blacks have long hair, and good features; and there is one tribe, who prick their skins, and draw figures on them, as they do in most other countries where they go naked. To this island the Spaniards bring all sorts of commodities; such as, silver, from New Spain, Mexico, and Peru; diamonds, from Golconda; silks, tea, Japan and China ware, and gold dust, from China and Japan. The Spaniards send 2 large ships every year from hence to Aquapulco in Mexico with merchandises, and return back with silver. The Spaniards have an inquisition here, but it does not affect the natives and the Mahometans. In 1743, near this island, admiral Anson took the large Aquapulco ship, which was loaded with a vast deal of treasure, which he brought to England in 1744. Lon. from 137. 0. to 141. 35. It is pleasantly seated among some hills, and is a pretty good town, with a large market-house. It is 13 miles S. of Bedford, and 20 N. by W. of London. Lon. 17. 10. lat. 51. 58.

LUTTRE, a town of Germany, in the duchy of Brunswick, remarkable for the battle given at it, on the 10th of July, 1530, by the emperor, and the king of France. It is 12 miles N. W. of Osnabruck, and 17 S. of Hildesheim. Lon. 20. 5. lat. 52.

* LUTTENBERG, a small territory of Germany, in the duchy of Saxony, and in the duchy of Lüneburg. It lies on the confines of the counts of Hildesheim, and is now incorporated with the duchy of Gumbergen. Its principal places are Lutterburg and Othroel.

LUTTERWOLTH, a town of Leice^rshire, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs; viz. on April 21, for horses, cows, and sheep; and September 16, for the same, and cheese. It is seated on the river Swift, in a fertile soil, and is a pretty good place, adorned with a large handsome church, which has a fine lofty spire-steeple. Here the famous Wickliff, the first reformer, was reborn, who died in 1384; but was dug up and burnt for an heretick 40 years afterwards. It is 11 miles S. of Leicester, and 84 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 18. 28. lat. 52. 26.

LUTZEN, a town of Germany, in Upper Saxony, famous for a battle fought here in 1632, when Gustavus Adolphus, king of Sweden, was killed. It is seated on the river Elster, 12 miles W. of Leipzig, and 8 S. E. of Merseburg. Lon. 30. 12. lat. 51. 20.

LUTZENSTEIN, a town of Germany, in Lower Alface, capital of a district of the same name, for which the Elector-Palatine does homage to the French. It has a strong castle, and is seated on a mountain, 30 miles N. of Straßburg. Lon. 7. 22. lat. 48. 55.

LUXEMBURG, a considerable and very strong town of the Austrian Netherlands, and capital of a dutchy of the same name. It was taken by the French in 1684, who augmented the fortifications so much, that it is one of the strongest places in Europe. It was ceded to the house of Austria by the treaty of Utrecht in 1713. It is divided by the river Elbe into the upper and lower towns; and the former is almost quite surrounded with rocks; but the lower is seated on a plain. It is 25 miles S. W. of Treves, 100 W. of Mentz, and 37 N. of Metz. Lon. 23. 50. lat. 49. 40.

LUXEMBURG, the dutchy of, is one of the 17 provinces of the Netherlands. It is bounded on the E. by the archbishopric of Treves; on the S. by Lorraine; on the W. partly by Champagne, and partly by the bishopric of Liege, which likewise, with part of Limburg, bound it on the N. It lies in the forest of Ardenne, which is one of the most famous in Europe. In some places it is covered with mountains and woods, and in general it is fertile in corn and wine; and here are a great number of iron-mines. The principal rivers are, the Moselle, the Sour, the Ourte, and the Semois. It belongs partly to the house of Austria, and partly to the French; and Thionville is the capital of the French part.

* LUXEUIL, a town of France, in the Franche-Comté, near a famous Benedictine abbey of the same name, and is remarkable for its mineral waters. It is seated at the foot of mount Vosgue, 15 miles W. of Vesoul, and 7 from the abbey of Lour. Lon. 24. 4. lat. 47. 50.

LIZZANA, a town of Italy, seated on the confines of the duchies of Mantua and Guastalla, near the place where the river Crostolo falls into the Po. It is pretty strong, and is remarkable for a battle fought here between the French and Spaniards in 1702, and each side claimed the victory. It is 12 miles S. of Mantua. Lon. 28. 25. lat. 45. 8.

* LUZI, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Calabria, near the river Craté, 3 miles S. of Besigniano.

LYCONIA, an ancient name of a province of Natolia, whose capital was Iconium, now called Cogni.

LYCHAM, or LITCHAM, a town of Norfolk, whose market is now dispersed; but it has one fair, on November 1, for toys. It is seated on a common, and is a straggling place. It lost its market on account of a fire, which happened above an hundred years ago. It is 24 miles W. of Norwich, and 92 N. N. E. of London. Lon. 13. 30. lat. 52. 45.

LYCIA, an ancient name of a province of Natolia, lying on the Mediterranean Sea, between Caria and Pamphylia.

LYDIA, an ancient name of a province of Natolia, lying N. of Caria, in which was the city of Philadelphia.

LYESSE, a town of the French Netherlands, in Hainault. It is 15 miles E. of Landrecy, and 22 S. of Mons. Lon. 21. 35. lat. 50. 14.

LYME, a sea-port town of Dorsetshire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on February 2, and September 21, for cattle. It is seated on the sea-shore, and has a good well-known harbour. It is so called from a little river which runs through the middle of the town, and falls into the sea. It is a large well-built corporation-town, is a place of good trade, and sends two members to parliament. The Duke of Monmouth landed here with a handful of men in 1685, which were soon increased to 6000, and he then was proclaimed King; but he was defeated by King James's army, taken prisoner, and beheaded. It is 28 miles E. by S. of Exeter, 23 W. by N. of Dorchester, and 144 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 30. lat. 50. 40.

LYNN-REGIS, a town of Norfolk, with two markets, on Tuesdays and Saturdays, and a fair of six days, proclaimed February 14. It is a handsome, large, well-built corporation-town, and sends 2 members to parliament. It is encompassed with a wall and a deep trench; and there are two small rivers that run through its streets, over which there are about 15 bridges. It is a trading place, on account of its commodious harbour. It is governed by a mayor, recorder, high-steward, 12 aldermen, and 18 common council-men. Formerly it was well fortified; but has now only a battery of 10 guns. It has two churches, a very large chapel, and two dissenting meeting houses. Here are about 2000 houses, mostly pretty good ones, built with brick: the streets are narrow, but well-paved; and it has a very good market-place, LYONNOIS, a large province of France.

It is bounded on the N. by Burgundy; on the E. by Dauphiny, Bresse, and the principality of Dombes; on the S. by Vivarais and Velay; and on the W. by Auvergne, and a small part of Bourbonnois. It comprehends Lower Lyonnois, Beaujolois, and Forez; and it produces corn, wine, fruits, and more especially excellent chestnuts. The principal rivers are the Saone, the Rhone, and the Loire.
Lyon is the capital town.

LYONS, a large, rich, handsome, ancient, and famous town of France, being the most considerable in the kingdom, next to Paris, with an archbishop's see, an academy of sciences and belles lettres, and an academy of arts and sciences, settled here in 1756. It is seated in the center of Europe, on the confluence of the rivers Rhone and Saon, and on the side of it are two high mountains; and the mountain of St. Sebastian serves as a bulwark against the N. winds, which often blow here with great violence. It contains about 100,000 inhabitants, and above 5000 houses, which, in general, are high and well-built; and it has six gates, and as many suburbs. The townhouse, the arsenal, the amphitheatre built by the ancient Romans, the hospital, and the numerous palaces, are worthy a traveller's attention. The cathedral is a superb structure, and the canons, that compose the chapter, are all persons of distinction. It is a place of very great trade, which is extended not only through France, but to Italy, Switzerland and Spain; and there are four celebrated fairs every year, which are frequented by great numbers of people. It derives vast advantages from the rivers it stands upon; and is 15 miles N. of Vienna, 60 N. W. of Gre-noble, 70 S. by W. of Geneva, 100 S. of Dijon, 120 N. of Avignon, 150 N.

* LYPEZE, or LIEN, a town of Upper Hungary, and capital of the county of Lypeze. It is seated on the river Gran, 5 miles above Bittritz.

* LYPER, the county of, in Upper Hungary, lying between the counties of Arva, Turosc, Bistritz, Gomar, Lepus, and mount Crapach, which separates it from Poland. Lypeze and Saitta are the principal towns.

* MABRA, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Algiers, and province of Centantine. It is seated on the gulph of Pena, to the W. of the town of that name.

MACAO, a town of China, in the province of Canton, seated in an island at the mouth of the river Tac. The Portuguese have been in possession of the harbour 150 years; and formerly they had a great trade here; but now they have only a torr, with a small garrison.
The houses are built after the same manner as in Europe. The Chinese are more numerous than the Portuguese, which last are a mixed breed, for they take any women to their wives. Here is a Portuguese governor, as well as a Chinese mandarin, to take care of the town and the neighbouring country.

* MACASSER, a considerable kingdom of Asia, in the E. Indies, and in the island of Celebes, under the Torrid Zone. The heat would be insupportable, if they had not breezes from the N. and if the rains did not fall some days before and after the full moons, and during the 2 months that the sun passes over their heads. In the mountains there are quarries of very fine stone, as well as mines of gold and copper. The soil is extremely fertile, and there are ripe fruits at all times of the year. There is a great number of monkeys, whose natural enemies are the serpents; and it is pretended, that some of them are so large, that they will swallow a monkey whole. The Macassers are large, robust, courageous, and greatly addicted to war. They are Mahometans by profession, and the flattest nosed women are the greatest beauties.
They never swaddle their children, but put them quite naked in baskets as soon as they are born. They have neither lawyers nor attorneys; but every one pleads his own cause; and the Lex Talionis is rigidly observed amongst them.

* MACASSER, a large, strong, and handsome town of the island of Celebes, and the capital of the kingdom of the same name, where the lang resides. The houses are all of wood, and supported by thick posts, and they have ladders to go up into them, which they draw up as soon as they have entered. The roofs are covered with very large leaves, that the rain cannot penetrate. It is seated near the mouth of a large river, which runs through the kingdom from N. to S. Lon. 135. 30. lat. S. 5. 0.

* MACARSKA, a town of Dalmatia, and capital of Prim regia, with a pretty good harbour, and a bishop's see. It is seated on the Gulph of Venice, 25 miles S. E. of Spalatro, and 27 N. W. of Narenta. Lon. 35. 52. lat. 45. 42.

MACCLESFIELD, a town in Cheshire, with a market on Mondays, and five fairs; viz. on May 6, June 22, July 11, October 2, and November 11, for cattle, wool, and cloth. It is seated at the edge of a freshet of the same name, upon a high bank, near the river Bollin. It is a large handsome town, with a fine church, which has a very high spire-steeple. It has manufactures in mohair, twill, handkerchiefs, buttons, and thread. Of late there have been several small silk-mills erected here. It is 36 miles E. of Chester, and 151 N. W. of London. Lon. 17. 28. lat. 53. 15.

MACEDONIA, a province of Turkey in Europe. It is bounded on the N. by Servia and Bulgaria; on the E. by Romania, and the Archipelago; on the S. by Livadia, and part of Albania; and on the W. by Albania. Salonica is the capital town.

MACERATA, a considerable, handsome, and populous town of Italy, in the territory of the church, and in the Marca of Marche of Ancona, with a bishop's see, and an university. It is near the mountain Chaina, 12 miles S. W. of Loretto, and 20 S. W. of Ancona. Lon. 31. 12. lat. 43. 17.

* MACERON, a town of France, in Britanny, and chief place in the duchy of Retz, seated on the river Tern, 21 miles from Nantz. Lon. 15. 48. lat. 47. 7.

MACHIN, one of the Malacca Islands, in the Indian ocean, about 20 miles in circumference, and is the most fertile of them all. It likewise produces the best cloves, and is in possession of the Dutch, who have there an inviolable fort built on it. Lon. 147. 30. lat. 0.

MACHIAN, a promontory of Spain, in the Bay of Biscay.

MACHINLETH, a town of Montgomeryshire, in N. Wales, with a market on Mondays, and 5 fairs, on May 16, June 26, July 9, September 18, and November 5, for sheep, horned cattle, and horses. It is seated on the river Douay, over which there is a large stone bridge which leads into Merionethshire. It is 32 miles W. of Montgomery, and 183 N. W. of London. Lon. 13. 40. lat. 52. 34.

MACKERAN, or MACKERAN, a province of Persia, bounded on the N. by Sigistan, on the E. by Tatta in Indostan, on the S. by the ocean, and on the W. by the province of Kerman. The capital town is of the same name, and is 100 miles N. W. of Tatta. Lon. 83. 35. lat. 26. 0.

* MACOCO, a kingdom of Africa, in Ethiopia, lying to the E. of Congo, and S. of the equator. The Portuguese carry on a trade with the inhabitants for slaves, elephants teeth, and copper. It is but little known.

* MACON, an ancient town of France, in Burgundy, and capital of Maconnais, with a bishop's see. It is remarkable for its good wine, and for the councils that have been held here. It is seated on the declivity of a hill, near the river Soane, 37 miles N. of Lyons, and 188 S. E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 23. lat. 46. 20.

* MACONNOIS, a territory of France, in Burgundy, between Beaujeu, Chalonnais, and Bresse. It is fertile in good wine, and was united to the crown of France in 1476.

* MACRE, a river of Africa, which runs across the kingdom of Tripoli, and falls into the Mediterranean Sea a little to the E. of Lebeda.

* MIVERY, an ancient town of the island of Samo in the Archipelago.

MACRO, or MACRONISSA, an island of the Archipelago, near the coast of Achaia, 25 miles E. of Sufinea.

* MACROSA, a small island in the Red Sea, near the coast of Abex, and city of Eracco, or Arhiko.

MADAGASCAR, an island lying on the eastern coast of Africa, about 500 miles in length, 200 in breadth, and 2000 in circumference. It was discovered by the Portuguese in 1492. The inhabitants are generally black, and are treacherous, savage, and cruel. Their hair is long long and curled, at least on the coasts, for they seem to have had a great many Arabs among them, with whom they are mixed; and there are some likewise of a yellowish complexion, who have better features than the rest. It is a populous country, but they have no cities or towns, but a great number of villages at small distance from each other. Their houses are thatched huts, with doors so low, that a boy of 12 years old cannot enter them without stooping. They have neither windows nor chimneys, and the roofs are covered with reeds or leaves. Their furniture consists of a few baskets, to put their necessaries in, and they can change their habitations when they please. Those that are destitute in the best manner have a piece of cotton-cloth, or silk, wound round their middle, but the common sort have scarce sufficient to hide their nakedness. Both men and women are fond of bracelets and necklaces, and they adorn their bodies with blinking grease or oil. Their beds are only mats spread upon boards, and a piece of wood or stone serves them for a bolster. There are a great many petty kings, whose riches consist in cattle and slaves, and they are always at war one with another. The first horse that was ever seen in this island was brought over from the E. Indies by a Frenchman. It is hard to say what their religion is, for they have neither churches nor priests. They have no rules relating to marriage, for the men and women cohabit together for some time, and then leave each other as freely again. Here are a great number of leopards, crocodiles, camellions, and other animals common to Africa. They have corn and grapes, and several sorts of excellent honey; as also minerals and precious stones. The inhabitants are generally circumcised, but for what reason is hard to say. The French have attempted to settle here, but have all been driven from hence. There is no doubt to be made but there must be different sorts of soil and productions in different parts of so large an island, but there is only some parts on the coasts yet known. The famous Avery, a privateer, formerly had his station in a harbor of this island, as well as others, and thence sent first English in a number of war-fleets to suppress them. They were to prevail once, as not to be afraid of any enemies, either by sea or land. Lat. S. from 12. 0. to 26. 0.

MADERA, an island of the Atlantick Ocean, in the form of a triangle, 240 miles N. by E. of Teneriff, 360 from Cape Can- tin, on the coast of Africa, and 300 N. of the island of Ierto. It was disco- vered, according to Mr. Ovington, by an English gentleman, in 1344, and was conquered by the Portuguese in 1471. They set fire to a forest with a design to warm themselves, which continued burn- ing for several years; and the ashes rendered the soil extremely fertile, espe- cially in wine, which it now produces in great quantities, and keeps it in the hottest climates under the Torrid Zone. For this reason the inhabitants of the Canibbee Islands that can afford it drink little else, and the Madeira wine that is brought to England is thought to be worth little, unless it has first been a voyage to the W. Indies. The air is temperate, pure, and serene, and they have oranges, bananoes, and other sou- thern fruits. They have also plenty of cattle and game, but they have no ve- nerable creatures. This island is well watered and peopled, and the inhabi- tants are good natured, but greatly ad- dicted to pleasure. Funchal, or Fun- chal, is the capital town. Lon. 0. lat. from 20. 0. to 31. 0.

MADIA, or MAGIA, a valley of Swit- zerland, on the confines of the Milanese, and the Upper Vallais. It is long and narrow, being between high mountains, and it is watered throughout its whole length by a river of the same name. It is the fourth bailwick of the swiss in Italy, and has a town of the same name, seated on the river.

MADRASS. See GEORGES, ST.

MADRE DE POPA, a town and convent of S. America, in Terra Firma, seated on the river Grande, 12 miles E. of Car- thagen. It is a place much resorted to by pilgrims of America, as Loretto is in Europe, and the image of the virgin Mary is said to have done a great many miracles, in favour of the sea-far- ing people. Lon. 71. 27. lat. 11. 0.

MADRID, the capital town of Spain, in New-Castile, and the place where the king's usually resides. It was formerly an inconsiderable place, belonging to the archbishop of Toledo, and the purity of the air is one of the causes to draw hither. Indeed the Rivers are very dirty, especially in the summer, for they empty all their runnals into the sea; how- ever, the hot days of the summer render them dry. It is very populous, and

Some pretend that the number of inhabitants amount to 300,000. The houses are all built with bricks, and the streets are long, broad, and strait; being adorned at proper distances with handsome fountains. There are above 100 towers or steeples, in different places, which contribute greatly to the embellishment of the town. It is seated in a large plain, surrounded with high mountains, but it has no wall, rampart, or ditch. The royal palace is built on an eminence, at the extremity of the town, and as it is but two stories high it does not make any extraordinary appearance. A fire happened in 1734, which almost reduced it to ashes, and it was a long time in rebuilding. The finest square in Madrid is the Plaza Mayor, which is surrounded with 300 houses, 5 stories high, and of an equal height. Every stage is adorned with a handsome balcony, and the fronts are supported by columns, which form very nice arches. Here the market is held, and here they have their famous bull-fights. However, it is observable, that the very finest houses have no glass-windows, they being only lattices. Most travellers observe that the streets are generally nasty, and have a very bad smell. Casa-del-Campo is a house of pleasure, a little above half a mile from Madrid, with very fine gardens, pleasant walks, and a great variety of uncommon animals. It is seated beyond the river Manzanares. Teen Kairo is on this side the river, next the town, and is a proper place to retire to in the heat of summer, there being a great number of fish-ponds, grottoes, tents, groves, and hermitages, which yield a very pleasant sight; as for the building, it is more like a monastery than a house of pleasure. When the inhabitants build a house the first stage belongs to the king, who may either sell, or let it, as he pleases. Philip IV. built a large and magnificent bridge over the river, which river being exceeding small, has occasioned great many troubles. It is 13 miles S. W. of Aledo, 265 N. E. of Lisbon, 100 S. W. of London, 675 S. W. of Paris, and 750 W. of Rome. Lon. 14. 30. lat. 41. 26.

MANDRA, a province of Asia, in the peninsula on this side the Ganges, bounded on the E. by Tanjour and Marava, on the S. E. by the sea, on the W. by the Balagate mountains, which separate it from Malabar, and on the N. by Visapour and Carnate. The places of most note on the sea-shore are, Manaper, where the Dutch have a factory, and Tutucori, which has a good, safe harbor. The inhabitants are Gentoos, and are of a thievish disposition, treating the women as slaves. It produces a great deal of rice, elephants-teeth, and the animals are different from those in Europe. With regard to manufactures, it produces a great deal of cotton-cloth, but none fine; but the Dutch have a pearl fishery, which brings them in a large sum every year. The natives are blacks, with long hair.

MADURA, a town of Asia, and capital of a province of the same name, in the E. Indies. It is 130 miles N. of Caye Comorin, and 300 S. W. of Fort St. George. Lon. 05. 58. lat. 10. 5.

MAEST, or MEUSE, a large river which rises in France, and in Bassigni, near a village called Meuse, from whence it passes through Foul and Verdun, Champain, Luxemburg, the county of Namur, the bishoprick of Liege, and the United Provinces, falling into the sea between Brille and Gravfande.

to the Dutch by Spain, by the treaty of Munster. The town-house and the other publick buildings are handsome, and the place is about four miles in circumference, and strongly fortified. It is governed jointly by the Dutch and the bishop of Leige; however it has a Dutch garrison. The inhabitants are noted for making excellent fire-arms, and some say that in the arsenal there are arms sufficient for a whole army. Both Papists and Protestants are allowed the free exercise of their religion, and the magistrats are composed of both. It is situated on the river Meuse, which separates it from Wyck, and with which it communicates by a handsome bridge. It is 15 miles N. of Liege, 55 N. of Brussels, and 48 S. W. of Cologne. Lon. 23. 20. lat. 50. 50.

MAGADOXO, the capital town of a kingdom of the same name, in Africa, and on the coast of Ajan. It is situate near the mouth of a river of the same name, and is a large place, defended by a citadel, and has a good harbour. The inhabitants are Mahometans. Lon. 67. 50. lat. 5. 0.

* MAGDALEN-HILL, a place in Hampshire, near Winton, where there is one fair, on August 2, for cheese, leather, and horses.

* MAGDALENE'S CAVE, a cove of Germany, and in Carinthia, 10 miles E. of Gorz. It appears like a chasm in a rock, and at the entrance torches are lighted to conduct travellers. It is divided into several apartments, or halls, with a vast number of pillars formed by nature, which give it a beautiful appearance they being as white as snow, and almost transparent. The bottom is of the same substance, insomuch that a person may fancy himself to be walking among the ruins of an enchanted castle, surrounded with magnificent pillars, some entire and others broke.

MAGDEBURG, a large, ancient, strong, handsome, and trading town of Germany, in Lower Saxony, and capital of a duchy of the same name. The fortifications are by some thought to surpass those of most towns in the empire. There were several hundred houses burnt to the ground, which have been rebuilt by French refugees. There is a handsome palace, a fine arsenal, and a magnificent cathedral; which contains the superb mausoleum of Otto the Great. Among many other pretended reliques, they shew the ladder on which the cock was perched when Peter denied his master, the lantern of Judas when he betrayed Jesus Christ, a tub of the whale which swallowed up Jonas, and four palm-tree branches which were used when Christ made his triumphal entry into Jerusalem. It is seated on the river Elbe, 40 miles W. of Brandenburg, 42 N. W. of Wittenburg, and 125 S. E. of Hamburg. Lon. 20. 50. lat. 52. 18.

MAGDEBURG, the duchy of, a territory of Germany, in the east of Lower Saxony, bounded on the S. by the Old Marche of Brandenburg, on the E. by the Middle Marche, on the S. by the provinces of Anhalt and Halberstadt, and on the W. by the duchy of Brunswick. It is about 60 miles in length, and 30 in breadth, and belongs to the king of Prussia. The capital town is of the same name.

MAGDELANA, a large river of S. America, which rises under the equator, and running N. through Terra Firma, unites with the Orino, and then is called Rio Grande, and falls into the N. Sea below Mordre de Papa.

MAGELLAN, a famous strait of S. America, discovered in 1520 by one Magellan, a Portuguese in the service of Spain, since which time it has been sailed thro' by several navigators. As the passage was dangerous and troublesome, they have now found out another to the S. Sea, round Cape Horn. The inhabitants on each side are of a copper colour, with long black hair like the rest of the native Americans; and both men and women go stark naked in the coldest weather, though they have a sort of a garment, in the form of a carpet, which they sometimes wrap about their bodies; on their heads they have caps of the skins of fowls, with the feathers on, and on their feet they tie pieces of skins. They never wear the garment but when they are sitting down, even in the most excessive cold weather. The Spaniards call the country to the N. of this strait Terra Magellanica, and reckon it a part of Chili. They had a fort and a garrison upon this strait, but they were all shewed to death for want of provisions.

that call here. The pine-apple is the best in the world, and the manjostane is a delicious fruit, in the shape of an apple, whose skin is thick and red. The ramboutan is of the size of a walnut, with a very agreeable pulp, and the durian, though it has not a pleasant smell, yet has a very delightful taste. They have plenty of cocoa-nuts, and their shells will hold an English quart; besides lemons, oranges, limes, sugar-canes, and mangoes. There is but little corn, and sheep and bullocks are scarce, but pork, poultry, and fish, are pretty plentiful. The religion of the natives is a mixture of Mahometanism, and they are mightily addicted to juggling, which some mistake for conjuration. The inland inhabitants are a savage, barbarous people, who take great delight in doing mischief to their neighbours. The Dutch have a factory in the town of Malacca, which they took from the Portuguese in 1640. Lon. 119. 45. lat. 2. 12.

MALAGA, an ancient, rich, and strong town of Spain, in the kingdom of Granada, with two castles, a bishop's see, and a good harbour, which renders it a trading place. It is frequented by the English and Dutch, who bring their vessels there to load them with fruits and wine. It is seated on the Mediterranean Sea, at the foot of a craggy mountain, 85 miles S. of Cordova, 62 S. W. of Granada, 83 S. E. of Seville, and 255 S. of Madrid. Lon. 13. 40. lat. 36. 45.

MALDEN, a town of Essex, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on Lady-day and September 8, eight days each, for toys. It is seated at the mouth of the river Chelmer, and is a very ancient place. Here are still to be seen intrenchments thrown up by the Danes, with the ruins of an old abbey and manastery; and several curiosities have been dug up here, as ancient coins, Saxon armour, iron cups, &c. The town-hall is an ancient edifice, and was formerly a castle, belonging to the king. Here was Cromwell's head quarters, and several battles have been fought near this place. This town is governed by 2 bailiffs, 8 aldermen, and 18 common-council. It has 2 very old churches, 3 meeting-houses, and about 1000 houses, which are but indifferently built, and the streets are narrow, and not paved. The town has two bridges, over the rivers Chelmer and Black-water, and, having a commodious harbour, carries on a considerable trade, chiefly in corn, coals, iron, wine, brandy, and rum, of which the people import great quantities. It is 9 miles E. by N. of Chelmsford, and 38 E. N. E. of London. Lon. 13. 25. lat. 51. 41.

MALO, ST. a sea-port town of France, in Bretagne, with a bishop's see. It has a large well-frequented harbour, but difficult of access, on account of the rocks that surround it. It is a rich, trading place, and of great importance, and is defended by a strong castle. It was bombarded by the English in 1693, but without success. However, in June 1758, they landed men in Cancall-Bay, who went to the harbour by land, and destroyed above 100 ships, great and small, by setting them on fire; and then they retired to the ships again, without loss. It is seated on an island united to the main land by a causeway. It is chiefly inhabited by seafaring men, who in time of war fit out a great many privateers to cruise upon the English. It is 17 miles N. W. of Dol, 42 N. by W. of Rennes, 95 N. of Nantz, and 205 W. of Paris. Lon. 15. 38. lat. 48.

MALPARTIDO, a town of Spain, in the province of Etremsadura. The Duke of Berwick retired to this place in 1706, after the Allies had taken Alcantara.
It is 14 miles S. of Placentia. Lon. 11.
35. lat. 39. 20.

MALPAS, a town in Cheshire, with a market on Mondays, and three fairs, on March 25, July 25, and December 8, for cattle, linen, woollen-cloth, hardware, and pedlars ware. It is seated on an high eminence not far from the river Dee, on the edge of the county, and is an handsome place, containing three streets, an hospital, and a grammar-school. It is 12 miles S. E. of Chester, and 157 N. E. of London. Lon. 14.
40. lat. 53. 5.

MALPLAQUEF, a village of the Netherlands, in Hainault, famous for a battle fought here between the Allies and the French. See BARENGIES.

MALTA, an island of the Mediterranean Sea, between Africa and Sicily. It is 20 miles in length, and 12 in breadth.
It was formerly reckoned a part of Africa, but now belongs to Europe. It was anciently little else than a barren rock; but there has been brought from Africa such quantities of soil, that it is now become a fertile island. However, they sow but little corn, because they can purchase it cheap in Sicily; but they cultivate large quantities of lemon, cotton trees, and vines which produce excellent wine. The heat is so excessive, both day and night, that the water breeds great numbers of gnats, which are the plague of the country. The number of the inhabitants are said to be about 90,000; and they are much such sort of people as those of Sicily.
The common people speak Arabick, but the better sort Italian. After the taking of Rhodes, the emperor Charles V. gave this island to the grand master of the order of St. John of Jerusalem, and it is extremely well fortified. It was attacked by the Turks in 1566, who were obliged to abandon it with the loss of 30,000 men. The knights of Malta formerly consisted of eight nations; but now they are but seven, because the English have forsaken them. They are obliged to suppress all pirates, and are at perpetual war with the Turks and other Mahometans. They are all under a vow of celibacy and chastity; and yet they make no scruple of taking Grecian women for mistresses. It is about 60 miles S. of Sicily, and 200 E. of Tunis in Africa.

MALTA, or rather VALETTA, an exceeding strong and very considerable town of the island of Malta, of which it is the capital, and is well fortified. It is a bishop's see, is the residence of the grand master and knights of the order, and has a magnificent hospital. It is divided into three parts, which are so many settlements, consisting of solid rocks, and separated from each other by channels, which are capable of receiving large fleets. The streets are spacious, and the houses are built with white stone, which are got out of the rocks, of which the island consists. The whole island contains 26 parishes, and between 30 and 40 villages. It is seated on the fertile facing Sicily. Lon. 31. 10. lat. 35. 54.

MALTON, a town in the N. Riding of Yorkshire, with two markets, on Tuesdays and Saturdays, and three fairs; viz. on the Saturday before Palm Sunday, for horses and horned cattle; on Saturday before Whitsunday, for sheep, hares, and powder; and on October 15, for pots and small ware. It is seated on the river Derwent, over which there is a stone-bridge, and is composed of two towns, the New and the Old, each containing three churches. It is well inhabited, accompanied with good inn, and sends two members to parliament. It is 24 miles N. E. of York, and 211 N. by W. of London. Lon. 17. 5. lat. 54. 8.

MALVA, a province of Asia, in the dominions of the Great Mogul. It is very fertile; and Rampoure is the capital town.

MALVASTA, a small island of Turkey in Europe, lying on the eastern coast of the Morea, which is remarkable for its excellent wines. The capital is seated on the sea-side, at the foot of a rock, on the top of which there is a strong fort. The rich wine, called Malmsey, is brought from hence. It is the see of a Greek archbishop; and is 20 miles S. E. of Mistra, and 75 S. of Scio, or Athens. Lon. 21. 13. lat. 36. 09.

MAMERS, an ancient town of France, in Maine, seated on the river Diève. Lon. 78. 2. lat. 48. 20.

MAN, an island in the Irish Sea. It is about 30 miles in length, and 8 in breadth. It contains 17 parishes, and the chief towns are Ruthen, Douglas, and Peel. The soil is good, and produces more corn than is sufficient to maintain the natives. The air is healthy, and the inhabitants live to a very old age, and are a mixture of English, Scots, and Irish. The Duke of Athol is their governor, and is styled KING IN MAN. They have a bishop, called the Bishop of Sodor and Man; but he is not a lord, nor has he a seat or voice in the British parliament. The commodities of this island are wool, hides, and tallow; but it is most noted for running of goods, which they dispose of either in England, Scotland, or Ireland; for it is only 12 miles S. of Scotland, 20 N. of Anglesea in Wales, 35 W. of the coast of Cumberland, and 40 E. of the coast of Ireland. Lon. 15. 5. lat. from 54. 20. to 54. 26.

* MAGACIA, an ancient and considerable town of Turkey in Asia, and in Naxos, with a castle; as also, handsome bazars, mosques, and hospitals, and was known to the ancients by the name of Magnesia. It is seated in a fertile country, at the foot of a mountain. Lon. 45. 15. lat. 38. 45.

MANAR, an island of Asia, in the East-Indies, and on the eastern coast of the island of Ceylon. The Portuguese got possession of it in 1560; but the Dutch took it from them in 1638. Lon. 98. 20. lat. 9. 0.

* MANAR, a town of Asia, in the E. Indies, and in the peninsula beyond the Ganges. It is capital of a small kingdom, and is seated on the river Menan, on the confines of Siam.

MANCHA, a territory of Spain, in the province of New Castile, lying between the river Guadiana and Andalusia. It is a mountainous country; and it was here the famous Don Quixote was supposed to perform his chief exploits.

MANCHESTER, a town in Lancashire, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs; viz. on Whit-Monday, September 21, and November 6, for horses, horned cattle, bedding, cloth, and toys. It is seated between the rivers Irk and Irwell upon a stony hill, and is a place of great antiquity. are the college, the market-place, and the collegiate church; which last has a small choir, of excellent workmanship.
It has an additional church, which was begun in Q. Anne's reign, and finished in 1723. It sends no members to parli-

MANGATOR, a sea-port town of Asia, in the peninsula on this side the Ganges, and on the coast of Malabar. It is one of the most considerable places in the kingdom of Canary, and has a most excellent road for the ships to anchor in, while the rainy season lasts. It is seated on a rising-ground, and is inhabited by Gentooes and Mahometans. They are of a tawney complexion, with long black hair, and go half naked. On their festival days, they carry their idols in triumph, being placed in a waggon, adorned on all sides with flowers.
There are several sharp crooked iron-hooks fastened to the wheels, upon which the mad devotees throw themselves, and are crushed to pieces. They expose their criminals quite naked on the sands, where they die a most miserable and lingering death. It is the greatest place for trade of any in the kingdom; and the Portuguese have a factory here for rice, and a pretty large church frequented by black convents, but the priests are a shameless set of men, who will not scruple to pimp for any stranger. The fields near this place bear two crops of corn in a year; and the higher grounds produce pepper, be-tel-nuts, sandal wood, iron, and steel.

The houses are meanly built along the sides of the rivers; and it has scarce any defence against an enemy. Lon. 92. 45.

MANTUA, the dutchy of, is a country of Italy, lying along the river Po, which cuts it into two parts. It is bounded on the N. by the Veronese; on the S. by the dutchies of Reggio, Modena, and Mirandola; on the E. by the Ferrarese; and on the W. by the Cremonese. It is about 50 miles in length, and 27 in breadth; and it is fruitful in corn, pastures, flax, fruits, and excellent wine. Charles IV. the last Duke of Mantua, being a vassal of the empire, took part with the French, in the dispute relating to the succession of Spain; for which reason, he was put under the ban of the empire, and died at Venice in 1708. He having no heirs, the Emperor kept the Mantuan in his own hand, and the Duke of Savoy had Montserrat, which were confirmed to them by subsequent treaties. After the death of the Emperor, in 1740, his eldest daughter, now

M A

Empress-Queen, kept possession of the Mantuan; and the governor of the Milanese has the administration of affairs. The Mantuan comprehends the dutchies of Mantua, Guastalla, and Sabioneta; the principalities of Castiglione, Solferina, and Bosolo; likewise the county of Novellara. The principal rivers are the Po, the Oglio, and the Minchio; and the principal town is of the same name.

MANTUA, the capital town or city of the dutchy of the same name, in Italy. It is seated on an island in the middle of a lake. It is very large, having 8 gates, 21 parishes, 40 convents and nunneries, a quarter for the Jews to live in, and above 16,000 inhabitants. The streets, are broad and straight, and the houses well built. It is very strong by situation as well as by art, and there is no coming at it but by two causeways which cross the lake; for which reason, it is one of the most considerable fortresses in Europe: and the Allies, in 1735, though their army was in the dutchy, durst not undertake the siege. It was greatly noted for its silk, and silk manufactures, which are now much decayed. The air in the summer-time is very unwholesome. The famous poet VIRGIL was born at a village near this city. It is seated on the river Minchio, and is an archbishop's see, and an university. It is 35 miles N. E. of Parma, 20 W. of Verona, 35 N. of Modena, 90 N. by W. of Florence, and 220 N. by W. of Rome. Lon. 28. 22. lat. 45. 10.

MARACAYBO, a rich and considerable town of S. America, and capital of the province of Venezuela. It carries on a great trade in skins and chocolate, which is the best in America; and they have likewise very fine tobacco. It was taken by the French buccaners in 1666 and 1678. It is seated near a lake of the same name. Lon. 307. 50. lat. 10. c.

MARACAYBO, a lake in S. America, which is 100 miles in length, and 200 in breadth, and runs into the N. sea. It is well defended by strong forts, which, however, did not hinder Sir Henry Morgan, a buccanier, from entering it, and plundering several Spanish towns that were seated on the coast. He also defeated a squadron that was sent out to take him.

MARLOW, a town of Buckinghamshire, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair, on October 29, for cattle, cheese, and hops. It is seated on the river Thames, over which there is a bridge into Berkshire, and is a pretty good place, which sends two members to parliament. It is 17 miles S. of Aylesbury, and 31 W. of London. Lon. 16. 50. lat. 51. 34.

MARLY, a palace belonging to the King of France, between Versailles and St. Germain. It is seated in a valley, near a village and a forest of the same name. It is greatly noted for its fine gardens and water-works, and there is a curious machine on the river Seine, which not only supplies them with water, but also those of Versailles. It is 10 miles N. W. of Paris. Lon. 19. 46. lat. 48. 52.

MARMADE, a town of France, in Guienne, and in Agennois. It carries on a great trade in corn and wine, and is seated on the river Garonne, 30 miles S. E. of Bourdeaux, and 350 S. by W. of Paris. Lon. 17. 50. lat. 48. 35.

MARMORA, the name of four islands in Asia, in the sea of the same name. The largest is about 30 miles in circumference, and the soil of them all produces corn, wine, and fruits. The sea of Marmora is a large gulph, which communicates with the Archipelago, and with the Black Sea by that of Constantinople, being 120 miles in length, and 50 in breadth, and all ships must pass thro' it that sail to Constantinople from the Mediterranean. It was anciently called the Propontis.

MARNE, a river of France, which has its source in Bassigny, and runs N. W. thro' Champagne to Chalons, and from thence passes to Meaux, Lagny, and Charenton, and falls into the Seine a little below it.

* MARNHAM, a village in Nottinghamshire, with one fair, on September 1, for horned cattle, horses, hogs, and merchandize.

MARO, a small town of Italy, on the coast of Genoa, and in a valley of the same name, with the title of a marquifate. It is 8 miles N. W. of Oneglia, and 48 W. S. W. of Genoa. Lon. 25. 25. lat. 44. 2.

* MAROGNA, a town of Turkey in Europe, in Romania, with a Greek archbishop's see. It is seated near the sea, 70 miles S. W. of Adrianople, and 150 S. W. of Constantinople. Lon. 43. 16. lat. 40. 56.

MAROSCH, or MERISH, a river which rises in the Carpathian mountains, runs S. through Transylvania, and afterwards turning W. passes into Hungary, and falls into the river Teyse at Segedin.

MARBURG, a strong and considerable town of Germany, in the Upper Rhine, and in the landgravate of Hesse-Cassel, with an university, a castle, a palace, a handsome square, and a magnificent town-house. It is seated on the river Lahn, in a pleasant country, 15 miles S. of Waldeck, 45 N. by E. of Francfort, and 47 S. W. of Cassel. Lon. 26. 28. lat. 50. 42.

* MARBURG, a handsome town of Germany, in Lower Styria, seated on the river Drave, with a castle. It is 25 miles S. W. of Gratz, and 60 N. E. of Laubach. Lon. 33. 45. lat. 46. 42.

MARR, a county of Scotland, bounded on the N. by Buchan and Bamff, on the E. by the German Ocean, on the S. by Mers and Gowry, and on the W. by Badenoch and Athol. The chief town is Aberdeen.

MARSAL, a town of France, in Lorraine, remarkable for its salt-works. It is seated in a marsh of difficult access, which, together with the fortifications, render it an important place. It is seated on the river Selle, 17 miles N. E. of Nanci. Lon. 24. 18. lat. 48. 46.

MARSALA, an ancient and strong town of Sicily, in the valley of Mazara. It is well peopled, and is built on the ruins of the ancient Lilybœum. It is 53 miles S. W. of Palermo, and 12 N. of Mazara. Lon. 30. 12. lat. 37. 52.

* MARSAN, or MOUNT - MARSAN, a town of France, in Gascony, and capital of a small territory of the same name, fertile in wine. It is seated on the river Miduse, 25 miles from Dax. Lon. 16. 56. lat. 44. 0.

MARSAQUIVIR, or MARSALQUIVER, a strong and ancient town of Africa, on the coast of Barbary, and in the province of Beni-Arax, in the kingdom of Tremesen, with one of the best harbours in Africa. It was taken by the Spaniards in 1732. It is seated on a rock near a bay of the sea, 3 miles from Oran. Lon. 17. 25. lat. 35. 40.

MARSEILLES, a strong sea-port town of Provence, and the most rich and trading place therein. Here is a good harbour, where the French galleys are stationed, for it will not admit large men of war. It is divided into the old town and the new, and in the old the houses are not so well built as in the other. They are separated by a street which is bordered by trees on each side, and it is said to contain 100,000 inhabitants. It is one of the most trading towns in France, to which its harbour contributes, which has a chain crosses its mouth. Without the walls is the castle of Notre Dame, which is very well fortified. It is a bishop's see, and there is a French academy, it having been noted at all times for men of learning. In 1660 Lewis XIV. built the citadel and fort St. John to keep the inhabitants in awe, because they pretended to be free. The Jesuits have a very fine observatory here, and in the arsenal, built not long ago, there is arms for 40,000 men. There are publick schools, where young men are taught navigation. In the house of discipline they weave gold, silver, and silk brocades. They reckon 2000 country-houses round about Marseilles, where the inhabitants go in the summer-time to take the air. The publick buildings are very handsome, and the finest drugs are brought hither from all parts of the world. A ship from Sayde in 1720 brought the plague to this place, of which a vast number of the inhabitants died. It is seated on the shore of the Mediterranean, 15 miles S. of Aix, 13 N. W. of Toulon, 40 S. E. of Arles, and 422 S. by E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 2. lat. 43. 18.

* MARSH, a village of Cambridgeshire, in the Isle of Ely, with two fairs, on Whit-Munday for household goods, and on October 27 for cheese.

MARSHFIELD, a town of Gloucestershire, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on May 24, and October 24, for horned cattle, sheep, horses, and cheese. It is seated on the Cotswold hills, and is a small place, lying on the road from London to Bristol, from which it is distant 12 miles E. and it is 103 W. of London. Lon. 15. 15. lat. 51. 30.

* MARSÌ, the dutchy of, a small territory of Italy, and in the Farther Abruzzo, which lies about the lake Celano.

MARSICO NUOVO, a small, rich, and handsome town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Principato, with a bishop's see. It is seated at the foot of the Appennines, near the river Agri, 6 miles from Marsico Vecchio, 27 miles S. W. of Cirenza, 50 S. E. of Salerno, and 70 S. E. of Naples. Lon. 33. 24. lat. 20. 42.

MARSTAND, an ancient, staple town of Sweden, in Gothland, now gone to decay, it having but 20 burghers.

MARTELA, a town of Italy, in the patrimony of St. Peter, and in the dutchy of Caffro. It is seated on a lake of the same name, otherwise called Bolsenna, from whence the river Marta proceeds 35 miles N. of Rome. Lon. 30. 15. lat. 42. 20.

MARTABAN, a province of Asia, in the kingdom of Pegu, lying on the gulph of Bengal. The soil is fertile in rice, and all sorts of fruits, and there are wines of all kinds. The capital town is of the same name, and was a rich, trading place, before they sunk ships at the entrance of the harbour to choke it up, which it has done effectually; besides which the whole country is ruined by the terrible wars between the kings of Pegu and Siam, and the former was taken and killed by a people called Barmais, who conquered the whole kingdom, and brought it under subjection. It is 3 miles S. of Pegu. Lon. 115. 25. lat. 15. 35.

MARTEL, a town of France, in the province of Guienne, and in Querci. It is seated on the river Dordogne, 18 miles E. of Sarlat. Lon. 18. 18. lat. 45. 0.

MARTHA, ST. a province of S. America, on the coast of Terra Firma, bounded on the N. by the N. Sea, on the E. by Rio-de-la-Hacha, on the S. by New-Granada, and on the W. by Cartagena, being 300 miles in length, and 200 in breadth. It is a mountainous country, and the land is very high. Here the famous ridge of mountains begin, called the Cordillera-de-los-Andes, which run the whole length of S. America, from N. to S. It is extremely hot on the sea-coast, but within it is cold on account of the mountains. It abounds with the fruits proper to the climate, and there are mines of gold and precious stones, as also salt-works. The Spaniards possess but one part of this province, in which they have built Martha, the capital. The air about it is wholesome, and it is seated near the sea, having a harbour surrounded with high mountains. It was formerly very considerable, when the Spanish galleons were sent thither, but it is now come almost to nothing. Lon. 303. 24. lat. 11. 20.

* MARTHA, ST. OF SIERRA NEVADA, a very high mountain, in New-Spain. Some say it is 10 miles in circumference at the bottom, and 5 high. However the top is always covered with snow in the hottest weather, and the French

- affirm they can perceive it from the island of St. Domingo, which is 370 miles distant from it. Lon. 503. 0. lat. S. 0.
- MARTHA'S VINEYARD, an island of N. America, near the coast of New England, 80 miles S. of Boston. The inhabitants apply themselves chiefly to their fisheries, in which they have great success. Lon. 307. 0. lat. 41. 0.
- MARTIGUES, a sea-port town of France, in Provence, with the title of a principality. It is seated near a lake 12 miles long and 5 broad, which is navigable throughout, and from whence they get excellent salt. It is 20 miles N. W. of Marseilles. Lon. 22. 45. lat. 43. 28.
- MARTIN, ST. a small but strong town of France, in the isle of Rhee, with a strong citadel and a harbour. It is fortified after the manner of Vauban. The island lies near the coast of Poitou, 15 miles W. of Aunis. Lon. 16. 35. lat. 45. 40.
- MARTIN, CAPE, a promontory of Valencia, in Spain, in the kingdom of Valencia. It is near a town called Denia, and separates the gulph of Valencia from that of Alicante.
- MARTIN, ST. an island of America, and one of the Caribbees, lying on the gulph of Mexico, to the N. W. of St. Bartholomew, and to the S. W. of Anguilla. It is 42 miles in circumference, and has neither harbour nor river, but has several salt-pits. After various revolutions it is at length in possession of the French and Dutch, who possess it conjointly. Lon. 375. 0. lat. 18. 15.
- MARTINICO, a considerable island of N. America, and one of the Caribbees. It is about 40 miles in length, and 100 in circumference. The French have had it in possession ever since 1635, and there are many high mountains covered with trees, as well as several rivers and fertile valleys, but they will not bear either wheat or vines; however the former is not much wanted, for those that are born here prefer cassava to wheat bread. It produces sugar, cotton, ginger, indigo, chocolate, aloes, pimento, plantains, and other tropical fruits. It is extremely populous, and the governor-general of the French Caribbee Islands resides here. It has several safe and commodious harbours, which are all well fortified. The principal places are, Fort-royal, Fort St. Peter, Fort-trinity, Fort-marigot, and Fort-du-

- MARTINSBERG, a Benedictine abbey, and the most considerable in all Hungary. It stands upon a very high hill, and the convent is built like a castle, and is surrounded with a large heath, in which there were formerly villages and churches. It was taken by the Turks in 1594, who could not keep it above two years. It is in the palatinate of Raab, which lies at the confluence of the rivers Raab and Danube.
- MARTIN'S TOWN, a village in Dorsetshire, with one fair, on November 22, for bullocks, sheep, and toys.
- MARTOCK, a village in Somersetshire, with one fair, on August 21, for hogs and pedlars ware.
- MARTORANO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is 8 miles from the sea, and 15 S. of Cosenza. Lon. 34. 12. lat. 39. 8.
- MARTOREI, a town of Spain, in Catalonia, situate at the confluence of the rivers Noya and Lobragat, over which there are two bridges. It is 12 miles N. W. of Barcelona. Lon. 19. 20. lat. 41. 20.
- MARTOS, a town of Spain, in Andalusia, and in Cordova, with a fortress seated on a rock, 8 miles S. of Anduxar.
- MARYLAND, an English settlement in N. America, lying at the N. end of Chesapeake-bay, which divides it into two parts, called the eastern and western shores. It is bounded on the N. by Pennsylvania, on the E. by another part of Pennsylvania and the sea, on the S. by Virginia, and on the W. by the Aligany mountains. It is 140 miles in length, and as much in breadth. At first when it was settled it was almost all covered with trees, except in some few spots, which were old plantations of the original inhabitants. It resembles Virginia in all things, and the planters live in houses dispersed about the country, and generally near the rivers, for the convenience of putting their hogheads of tobacco readily on board the ships. The governor and proprietor of this country is the lord Baltimore, and the council is appointed by him, but the house of representatives is chosen by the freeholders. There are more Papists here than in any of the other settlements, because the first proprietors were of that religion.

MARVESJOLO, a handsome town of France, in Languedoc, and is a great trading place. It is seated on a pleasant valley, on the river Colange, 10 miles N. W. of Mende, and 300 S. of Paris. Lon. 20. 58. lat. 44. 35.

MARVILLE, a town of Lorraine, in the dutchy of Bar. It is seated on the river Oschin, on the confines of Luxemburg, three miles E. of Jametz.

* MARY HILL, St. a village of Glamorganshire, in S. Wales, with one fair, on August 15, for cattle.

MARZA, a place in Sicily, in the Val di Noto, near which is a pit full of salt-water, which being dried up in summer, leaves a great deal of salt, of which the inhabitants make considerable profit.

* MARZA SIROCCO, a small gulph on the S. side of the isle of Malta. The Turks landed here in 1565, when they went to besiege Valetta, for which reason the grand master ordered three forts to be built, two at the entrance of the gulph, and one on the point of land that advances into the middle of the gulph.

* MARZILLA, a handsome town of Spain, in the kingdom of Navarre, and on the road from Madrid to Pampluna, seated near the river Arragon.

MASANDERAN, a province of Asia, in Persia, bounded on the N. by the Caspian Sea, on the W. by Khilan, on the S. by Irac-Agemi, and on the E. by Astrabad. Farabad is the capital town.

MASBATE, an island of Asia, and one of the Philippines, almost in the center of the rest. It was taken by the Spaniards in 1569, and is 75 miles in circumference. The natives are tributary to the Spaniards. Lon. 137. 0. lat. 13. 0.

* MASCALATE, a town of Arabia the Happy, and capital of a province. It is 50 miles from the gulph of Balfora, and 125 E. of Babia.

MASCAREGNE, or the ISLE OF BOURBON, an island of Africa, to the E. of Madagascar, and 250 miles N. of the Cape of Good Hope. It is almost oval, and is about 30 miles long, and 25 broad. The French made a settlement here in 1672, and it is the place where the ships of the E. India company stop to take in fresh water and provisions. The air is wholesome, the mountain full of game, and the river abound with fish. It has no noxious animals, but hurricanes are very frequent and violent. There is not the least sign of any inhabitants having been here before the French. Lon. 73. 30. lat. S. 20. 36.

* MASCATE, a town of Asia, on the coast of Happy Arabia, with a castle seated on a rock. It is built at the bottom of a small bay, and was fortified by the Portuguese about the year 1650, but from a misbehaviour of the governor, the Arabs took it from them, and put all the garrison to the sword except 18 who turned Mahometans. It is very strong both by nature and art, though the buildings are very mean. The cathedral built by the Portuguese is now turned into a palace for the king. There are neither trees, shrubs, nor grass to be seen on the sea-coast near it, and there are but a few date-trees in a valley at the back of the town, and yet they have all things in plenty. The weather is so hot from May to September, that no people are to be seen in the streets from 10 in the morning till 4 in the afternoon. The bazars or market-places are covered with the leaves of date-trees, laid on beams which reach from the house-tops on one side to those on the other. The roofs are all flat, and they lodge on them in the summertime. The horses and cattle are used to eat roasted fish, as well as the sheep; notwithstanding which the beef and mutton are both good. Their religion is Mahometanism, and yet they will suffer any one to go into their mosques, contrary to the custom of the Turks. The mens garments are a pair of breeches which reach to the ankles, and a loose vest on their backs, with very large sleeves, which is fastened to their bodies by a gash, and they have a large turban, carelessly wreathed about their heads, with a dagger stuck in their girdles. In cold weather they use a sort of a loose coat, made of camels wool without sleeves. The women's dress is much the same, only the vests fit their bodies better. The product of the country is honey, dates, fine brimstone, coffee, and ruinos, a root that dyes red. Lon. 75. 28. lat. 23. 0.

MASCON. See MACON.

* MASCONVILLE, a town of France, in the county of Fois, seated on the rivulet Rive, 3 miles from Pamiers, and 10 from St. Lizier, with a rich Benedictine abbey.

• MASSAFRA, a strong town of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terra d'Otranto, with a bishop's see. It is seated at the foot of the Appennines, 20 miles S. of Naples. Lon. 34. 55. lat. 40. 50.

MASSACHUSET COLONY, a sub-division of New England in N. America, bounded on the N. by New Hampshire, on the E. and S. by the sea, and on the W. by Connecticut and New York, being about 100 miles in length, and 40 in breadth. It produces plenty of Indian corn, flax, and hemp, and they have manufactories of leather, linen, and woollen cloth, besides there is no want of beef, pork, fowls, and fish. They have mines of copper and iron, and the chief trade is with the Caribbee Islands, to which they send provisions, and have sugar and molasses in return. The king appoints a governor, and the representatives for the people the council of the upper house. This is the most powerful colony in N. America, and is well provided with sailors and soldiers, which they can raise in case of necessity. With regard to religion they are independents, but of late there are many of the church of England, they being not so rigorous as formerly.

MASSERANO, a town of Italy in Piedmont, and capital of a small territory of the same name, with the title of a principality. The prince of this district holds it as a fief of the church. It is seated on a mountain 20 miles N. W. of Verceil, and 45 N. E. of Turin. Lon. 25. 40. lat. 45. 32.

• MASSINGHAM, a village in Norfolk, with two fairs, on the Thursday before Easter, and November 8, for horses.

• MASTICO, or CARO MASTICO, a cape on the south side of Scio, one of the islands of the Archipelago.

MASTRICHT. See MAESTRICHT.

MASULAPATAN, a populous town of Asia in the E. Indies, and on the coast of Coromandel, in the dominions of the Great Mogul. It carried on a great trade, and most nations in Europe had factories here, but the English have now left it, and even the Dutch themselves have not above a dozen people here to carry on the chintz trade. The inhabitants are Gentoos, who will not feed on any thing that has life; and they had a famous manufacture of chintz, which is greatly decayed since the English set off buying any. The Great Mogul has a custom-house here; and the adjacent countries abound in corn, tobacco, and timber for building. It is seated on the W. side of the Bay of Bengal, 200 miles N. of Fort St. George. Lon. 99. 0. lat. 16. 30.

MATACA, or MANTACA, a commodious bay in America, on the N. coast of the island of Cuba. Here the galleons usually come to take in fresh water in their return to Spain. It is 35 miles from the Havannah. Lon. 29. 0. lat. 25. 0.

MATAMAN, a country of Africa, bounded by Benguela on the N. by Monometopa on the E. by Caffaria on the S. and by the Atlantic ocean on the W. There is never a town in it, and the inhabitants live in miserable huts, it being a desert country, and but little visited by the Europeans.

MAURICE, an island of Africa, 500 miles E. of the island of Madagascar. It is about 37 miles in circumference, and has an excellent harbour. There are very high mountains, covered with green trees all the year. The sea near the shore abounds with fish, and there are both sea and land tortoises, which are extremely large.
There are also cows, sea-calves, and one sort of fish so large that, as they say, it is sufficient for a ship's company. There are birds of divers kinds, and very singular, which are so tame they may be taken

MECCA, an ancient and very famous town of Asia, in Arabia the Happy. It is seated in a barren place, in a valley, or rather in the middle of many little hills, about a days journey from the Red-Sea.
It is a place of no strength, having neither walls nor gates, and the buildings are very mean. That which supports it is the resort of a great many thousand pilgrims annually, for the shops are fearfully open all the year besides. The inhabitants are poor, very thin, lean, and swarthy. The hills that are about the town are very numerous, and all consist of a blackish rock, and some of them are half a mile in circumference.
On the top of one of them is a cave, where they pretend Mahomet usually retired to perform his devotions, and hither they affirm the greatest part of the alcoran was brought him by the angel Gabriel. The town has plenty of water, and yet there is little garden-stuff; but there are several sorts of good fruits to be had, such as grapes, melons, water-melons, and cucumbers. Likewise there are plenty of sheep brought thither to be sold to the pilgrims. It stands in a very hot climate, and the inhabitants usually sleep on the tops of their houses, for the sake of coolness. The temple of Mecca has 42 doors, and its form much resembles the royal exchange in London, but is near ten times as large.

It is open in the middle, and the ground is covered with gravel, except in two or three places that lead to the Beat-Allah through certain doors, and these are paved with flint stones. There are cloisters all round, and in the sides there are little rooms or cells for those that live a monastick life. The Beat-Allah stands in the middle of the temple, is a square structure, and each side is about 20 paces long, and about 24 feet high. It is covered all over from top to bottom with a thick sort of silk, and above the middle it is embroidered with letters of gold, each letter being about two feet in length, and two inches broad. The door is covered with silver-plates, and there is a curtain before it thick with gold embroidery. This Beat is the principal object of the pilgrims devotion, and it is open but two days in the space of six weeks, namely, one day for the men, and the next for the women.
Within there is only two wooden pillars in the middle to support the roof, with a bar of iron fastened thereto, on which hang three or four silver lamps. The walls on the inside are marble, and covered with silk, unless when the pilgrims enter. About 12 paces from the Beat is the sepulchre of Abraham, as they pretend, and they affirm that he crested the Beat-Allah. The tomb is handsome enough, and not unlike those of people of fashion in England. When they have performed their devotions here, they repair to a gibel or hill, which however is not large enough to contain them all at once, for there are no less than 70000 pilgrims every year.
When certain ceremonies are over they then receive the title of hadgies or saints, and the next morning they move to a place where they say Abraham went to offer up his son Isaac, which is about two or three miles from Mecca; here they pitch their tents, and then throw seven small stones against a little square stone building. This, as they affirm, is performed in defiance of the devil. This done every one buys a sheep, which is brought for that purpose, eating some of it themselves, and giving the rest to the poor people who attend upon that occasion. Indeed these are miserable objects, and such starved creatures, that one would almost think they would devour each other. After all one would imagine that this was a very sanctified place, and yet a renegado who went in pilgrimage thither affirms there is as much debauchery practised here as in any part of the Turkish dominions. It is 25 miles from Jedda, the sea-port town of Mecca, and 220 S. E. of Medina. Lon. 53. 30. lat. 21. 45.

Mechlin, or Malines, a handsome town of the Austrian Netherlands, and capital of a district of the same name, with an archbishop's see. It is a large and well-built place, with clean, well-paved streets. It consists of several small islands made by artificial canals, over which there are a great many bridges. The cathedral-church is a superb structure, with a very high steeple, in which are harmonious chimbes. There is a very large house, in which are brought up 800 or 1000 young girls. It is a place of great trade, and they found a great many cannons and mortars here, as well as all sorts of arms. It is very famous for its fine lace, and they brew a sort of beer, which is sent into the neighbouring provinces. The territory of this town is a lordship, which comprehends two small districts, containing 9 small towns of little consequence, and some villages. It submitted to the duke of Mailborough in 1706, and was retaken by the French in 1746. It is 10 miles N. W. of Leuven, 10 N. E. of Brussels, 15 S. E. of Antwerp, and 27 E. of Ghent. Lon. 22. 5. lat. 51. 2.

Mexicoacan, a province of N. America, in New-Spain, bounded on the N. by Panuco, on the E. by Proper-Mexico, on the S. by the S. Sea, and on the W. by New-Galicia. It is about 200 miles in circumference, and is very rich, abounding in all the necessaries of life. It has also mines of silver, copper, and great plenty of cocoa-nuts, besides a great deal of silk. Valladolid is the capital town.

Mechlenburg, a dutchy of Germany, in Lower Saxony, bounded on the N. by the Baltick-Sea, on the E. by Pomerania, on the S. by Brandenburg, and on the W. by the dutchies of Holstein, Lauenburg, and Mecklenburg, being about 100 miles in length, and 60 in breadth. It is thought to be one of the most fruitful countries in Germany, for it abounds in corn, pastures, and game; and is very well seated on the Baltick for foreign trade. It is subject to a duke, who, by a decree of the Aulic council, is not permitted to tax his subjects above a certain sum. It takes its name from a town which was very flourishing formerly, but now is reduced to a little village.

Mecon, a river of Asia, in the peninsula beyond the Ganges, which, rising in the N. runs S. through the Kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia, and falls into the ocean in lat. 10. 0.

* Mecran, a province of Persia, on the confines of Indostan, which is very little known.

Medelin, a town of Spain, in Estremadura, seated in a fertile country, on the river Guadiana, 20 miles E. of Merida. Lon. 12. 42. lat. 38. 46.

Medelpadia, a maritime province of Sweden, on the gulph of Bothnia, which is full of mountains and forests. Sundevald is the capital town.

Medenblick, a town of the United Provinces, in W. Friesland, seated on the Zuyder-Zee, with a good harbour. It has a house belonging to the E. India company, and sends deputies to the States of the province. It is 9 miles N. of Hoorn, and 22 N. E. of Amsterdam. Lon. 22. 28. lat. 52. 47.

Medewi, a famous medicinal spring of Sweden, in E. Gothland, in a pleasant situation, 3 miles from Wadstena.

Media, formerly a kingdom of Asia, which was bounded on the E. by Hyrcania and Parthia, on the S. by Proper Persia and Susiana, on the W. by Assyria and Armenia, and on the N. by the Caspian-Sea. Ecbatana was the capital town, which some take to be Tauris, and others Cassin. It is supposed to contain Shirvan, Aderbeizan, and the western part of Irac-Agenii, provinces of Persia.

Medina Talmari, a famous town of Asia, in Arabia, between Arabia Deserta and Arabia the Happy, celebrated for being the burying-place of Mahomet. It is but a small, poor place, and yet it is walled round, and has a large mosque, but nothing like the temple at Mecca. In one corner of this there is a place 14 paces square, with great windows, and brass gates. In the middle of it is the tomb of Mahomet, which is enclosed with curtains like a bed. Some affirm there are 3000 lamps about it, but an eye-witness declares there is not too. The tomb is not exposed to any, except the eunuchs who are appointed to take care of it, and to light the lamps. The story of its being suspended in the air by a loadstone is now well known to be a fable. Provisions are brought to this place out of Nubia, across the Red-Sea, in odd sort of vessels, whose sails are made of mats; it is called the city of the prophet, because here he was protected by the inhabitants when he fled from Mecca, and here he was first invested with regal power. The time of his death was in 637; but the Mahometan era begins in 622, from the time of his flight. It is seated on a plain, abounding in palm trees, 220 miles N. W. of Mecca. Lon. 57. 30. lat. 25. 0.

MEDINA-CRISTI, an ancient town of Spain, in Old-Castile, and capital of a considerable dutchy of the same name. It is seated near the river Xalon, 15 miles N. E. of Siguenza, and 75 S. W. of Saragoissa. Lon. 15. 26. lat. 41. 15.

MEDINA-DEL-CAMPO, a large, rich, and ancient town of Spain, in the kingdom of Leon. The great square is very fine, and adorned with a superb fountain. It is a trading place, and enjoys great privileges, and is seated in a country abounding with corn and wine, 37 miles S. E. of Zamora, 25 S. W. of Valladolid, and 75 N. W. of Madrid. Lon. 13. 15. lat. 41. 22.

MEDINA-DEL-RIO-SECCO, an ancient and rich town of Spain, in the kingdom of Leon, with the title of a dutchy. It is seated on a plain, where there are fine pastures, 35 miles N. W. of Valladolid, and 25 S. E. of Leon. Lon. 13. 2. lat. 42. 8.

MEDINA SIDONIA, a very ancient town of Spain, in Andalusia, with an old castle, 37 miles N. W. of Gibraltar, 58 S. W. of Seville, and 25 E. of Cadiz. Lon. 12. 20. lat. 36. 25.

MEDINA DE LAS TORRES, a very ancient town of Spain, in Extremadura, with an old castle, and the title of a dutchy. It is seated on the confines of Andalusia, at the foot of a mountain, near Bajadoz.

MEDITERRANEAN SEA, the name of the sea between Asia, Africa, and Europe, which communicates with the ocean by the Streights of Gibraltar; and with the Black Sea, by those of the Dardine's. There is no description of it can be so clear, as that which may be gained by viewing a map thereof. There is no tide in it, or at least so small, that it is scarcely perceptible. Some have puzzled themselves by endeavouring to find out the cause of its keeping to the same level; but the evident reason is its evaporation by the sun, and the particles that are brushed off by the blowing of the winds.

MEDNIKI, a town of Poland, in the province of Samogitia, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Warwitz, 40 miles E. of Memel. Lon. 41. 0. lat. 55. 40.

* MEDOC, a district of France, in Bourdeaux, lying on the river Garonne, famous for its oysters. It has a fort of the same name.

* MEDUA, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Algiers, seated in a rich country abounding in corn, fruits, and flocks of sheep. It is 175 miles S. W. of Algiers. Lon. 21. 12. lat. 33. 25.

MEDWAY, a river which rises in Ashdown Forest, in Suffex; and running N. E. passes by Pendhurst, Tunbridge, Maidstone, and Rochester in Kent; beyond which it is divided into two branches by the Isle of Sheppy, and then falls into the mouth of the Thames. The eastern branch, called the Swale, runs to Milton and Feverham, where there are the finest oysters in the world. In the western branch, near Chatham, is the station of the royal navy, where most of the first and second rate men of war are laid up. In 1665 the Dutch came up the Medway, and burnt the men of war, which occasioned Sheerness to be built at its mouth, to defend the entrance.

* MEDZIBOZ, a town of Poland, in the fourth part of the Palatinate of Volhinia. It is seated on the north bank of the river Bog.

* MEEN, ST. a town of France, in Bretagne, and in the diocese of St. Malo, with a rich Benedictine abbey.

MELCK, a ſmall but ancient town of Germany, in Lower Austria, with a celebrated Benedictine abbey, feated on a hill, and well fortified. It is 47 miles W. of Vienna. Lon. 33. 25. lat. 48. 15.

MELCOMB-REGIS, a town of Dorſetſhire, with two markets, on Tuſdays and Fridays, but no fairs. It is feated on an arm of the ſea, and is joined to Weymouth, they both being incorporated into one body; and there is a handſome bridge of timber, over which they paſs from one into the other. Melcomb is feated in a flat, and has a market-place, with good ſtreets, and yards for their merchandizes. In Weymouth the chapel ſtands on a ſteep rock, and there are 60 ſteps to go up to it. The united towns have a church, and about 400 houſes. They are governed by a mayor, ſeveral aldermen, and a recorder; and each ſends 2 members to parliament. The ſtreets are broad and paved; and they have an excellent harbour, and two forts; by which they carry on a pretty good foreign trade. It is 8 miles S. of Dorcheſter, and 132 W. S. W. of London. Lon. 15. 3. lat. 50. 40.

* MELDELA, a town of Italy, in Romania, belonging to its own prince. It is 8 miles from Forli, and 8 from Ravenna. Lon. 29. 45. lat. 44. 20.

MELILLA, an ancient town of Africa, in the kingdom of Fez, and in the province of Garet. It was taken by the Spaniards in 1496, who built a citadel here; but it returned back to the Moors. It is seated near the sea, 75 miles from Tremesen. Lon. 15. 38. lat. 34. 48.

MELINDA, a kingdom of Africa, on the coast of Zanguabar. The capital town is of the same name, which is seated at the mouth of the river Quilmanci, in an agreeable plain. It is a large, populous place, in which the Portuguese have 17 churches, 9 convents, and ware-houses, well provided with European goods.
They exchange these for gold, slaves, elephants teeth, ostrich feathers, wax, aloes, fena, and other drugs. The country produces plenty of rice, sugar, cocoa nuts, and other tropical fruits.
It is surrounded on all sides with fine gardens, and has a good harbour, defended by a fort; but the entrance is very dangerous, on account of the great number of shoals and rocks which are hid under water. The inhabitants consist of Christians and negroes, which last have their own king and religion, and the number of both is said to amount to 200,000. Lon. 56. 35. lat. S. 3. 0.

* MELLERAVE, a rich abbey of France, in the diocese of Nantz.

* MELLI, a kingdom of Africa, in Negrolan^d, which lies along the banks of a river that runs into the Niger. It is bounded upon the N. by Ghinea; on the S. by mountains and deserts; on the W. by large woods and forests reaching to the sea-shore; and on the E. by Gago.
There is a town of the same name, which contains about 6000 families, and where the king resides. This country abounds with corn, flesh, and cotton; and the religion of the country is a kind of Mahometanism. They are said to be the most civilized of all the negroes, and to be addicted to trade. Some assert, that this kingdom is tributary to Tombut.

* MELLINGEN, a town of Swisserland, in the bailiwick of Baden, which, since 1712, depends on the cantons of Zurich and Bern; and yet the inhabitants are Roman Catholics. It is seated in a fertile country on the river Rufs.

MELNICK, a town of Bohemia, seated at the confluence of the rivers Elbe and Mullau, and subject to the house of Austria. It is 20 miles N. of Prague.
Lon. 32. 18. lat. 50. 22.

* METOUR, an handsome town of Africa, in Upper Egypt. It is seated on the river Nile, from whence it makes an handsome appearance, and here is a remarkable mosque. Lon. 49. 30. lat. 27.

* MENES, an ancient town of France, and capital of the Gexaudan, with a bishop's see. The fountains, and the steeples of the cathedral church, are the most remarkable things in it. It is very populous, and is seated on the river Lot, 35 miles S. W. of Puy, 70 N. of Albi, and 210 S. by E. of Paris. Lon. 21. 9. lat. 44. 31.

MENDELISHAM, a town of Suffolk, with a market on Fridays, and one fair, on Holy-Thursdny, for cattle. It is seated in a dirty country among the woodlands, and is a small place, but has an handsome church. It is 13 miles E. of Bury, 16 N. by W. of Iptwich, and 75 N. E. of London. Lon. 13. 47. lat. 52. 22.

MENHIP-HILLS are in the county of Somerset, in the neighbourhood of Wells, and contain lead-mines.

* MENEROULIN, S. E. an ancient and considerable town of France, in Champagne, and the chief of Argonne, with a castle seated on a rock. It has undergone several sieges; but now the fortifications are demolished. It is seated in a morass, between two rocks, on the river Ains, 25 miles N. E. of Chalons, 22 W. of Verdun, 37 S. E. of Rheims, and 110 E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 34. lat. 49. 10.

MENIN, a handsome town of the Netherlands in Flanders, which was taken by the French in 1667, who fortified it very strongly. It was taken by the allies in 1706, and was added to the house of Austria by the treaty of Utrecht; but was retaken by the French in 1744, who demolished the fortifications. It was restored to the house of Austria by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, and is seated on the river Lys, 10 miles N. of Liège, 17 N. E. of Armentier, 7 S. W. of Courtray, 3 S. E. of Ypres, and 140 N. of Paris. Lon. 20. 44. lat. 50. 49.

* MENTON, a town of Italy in the principality of Monaco, with a castle. It is seated near the sea, 5 miles from Monaco, and 3 from Ventimiglia. Lon. 25. 10. lat. 43. 46.

MENTZ, a considerable town of Germany, in the circle of the Lower Rhine, and capital of the dominions of the elector of Mentz, with an university, and an archbishop's see. The archbishop is arch-chancellor of the empire, keeper of the archives, and director of the general and particular assemblies. He has also a right to convoke the electoral college. The cathedral, the palace of the archbishop, and the other public structures, are very handsome; but the private houses are mean, and the fortifications are of no great strength. This is most probably the place where printing was first invented. It has been several times taken and retaken, and is seated on the Rhine, where there is a bridge of boats, 20 miles N. W. of Worms, 20 S. W. of Francfort, 75 E. of Triers, 87 N. by E. of Strasburgh, and 85 S. by E. of Cologne. Lon. 26. 2. lat. 49. 54.

MENTZ, the archbishoprick of, a country of Germany, in the circle of the Lower Rhine, and lying upon that river. It is bounded on the N. by Wetteravia and Hesse, on the S. by Franconia and the palatinate of the Rhine, and on the W. by the electorate of Triers. It is about 50 miles in length, and 20 in breadth, and is very fertile, especially in good wines, and is well peopled. It is divided into two parts, namely, the Rinraw, which lies towards Franconia, and which comprehends the bailiwicks of Hoefel, Steinheim, Afschaffenburgh, the county Konichstein, and part of that of Reineck. We must not confound the archbishoprick of Mentz with the electorate; for this is much more extensive, and the greatest part of it lies about the Rhine, between the Palatinate and Triers. Mentz is the capital town.

MEOTIS PALUS, a sea in the Turkish dominions, now called Zabach.

MEPPEN, a town of Germany in the circle of Westphalia, which depends on the bishop of Munster. It is seated on the river Enis, 15 miles N. of Lingon, and 50 N. W. of Munster. Lon. 25. 3. lat. 52. 45.

MEQUINENZA, an ancient town of Spain in the kingdom of Arragon, which is strongly defended by a good castle. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Ebro and Segra, in a fertile and pleasant country, 35 miles N. W. of Tortosa, and 180 N. E. of Madrid. Lon. 17. 55. lat. 41. 22.

MEQUINEZ, a city of Fez in the empire of Morocco, 66 miles to the W. of Fez. It is seated in a delightful plain, having a very serene and clear air; for which reason the emperor chuses this place to reside in rather than Fez. It is now the capital of the whole empire, to which the bashaws and alcaids resort with the tribute and presents every two or three years. In the middle of the city the Jews have a place to themselves, the gates of which are locked every night; and there is an alcaid to guard them, and to protect them against the common people, who otherwise would plunder them. It is death for them to curse or lift up a hand against the meanest Moor, inasmuch that their boys kick them about at their pleasure. They are obliged to wear black cloaths and caps, and to pull off their shoes whenever they pass by a mosque. Close to Mequinez, on the N. W. side, stands a large negro town, which takes up as much ground as the city, but the houses are not so high, nor so well built. The inhabitants are all blacks, or of a dark tawny colour; and from thence the emperor recruits the soldiers for his court. The palace stands on the S. side, and it is guarded by several hundreds of black eunuchs, who are cleanly dressed, and their knives and scymetars are covered with wrought silver. The houses are very good, but the streets are exceeding narrow, and hardly any of the windows are to be seen, except little holes to look out at. The light comes in at the inside of their houses, where there is a square court-yard open at the top, with pillars supporting galleries and painted wooden ballustrades round the inside of the house, almost like some of our inns. In the middle of the yard there is a fountain, if the house belongs to a person of any consideration. They are flat at the top, so that in many places they can walk a great way upon them. The women live in the upper apartments, and often visit each other from the tops of the houses. The women, when they go abroad, have their heads covered with their outward garment, which comes down close to their eyes; and underneath they tie a piece of white cloth, to hide the lower part of their faces. They are quite covered all over,

over, except their legs, which are generally naked; but within doors they appear in their hair, and have only a single fillet over their foreheads. The Moors are unwilling to let their women be seen; however, when there is none of their own people near, they will unveil, and behave wantonly before Europeans. As to their customs and manners, they are much the same as those of other Mahometans. Lon. 11. 35. lat. 34. 0.

MERAN, an handsome trading town of Germany, in the Tirol, and capital of Erschland. It is seated on the river Adige, 3 miles S. E. of Tirol, and 12 N. W. of Bolzand. Lon. 28. 28. lat. 46. 35.

MERF, a town of Wiltshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and three fairs; viz. on May 6, August 24, and September 29, for cattle, hogs, cheese, and peccars ware. It is seated near large hills, on one of which there is a beazon; but it is a place of no great account. It is 24 miles W. of Salisbury, and 102 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 10. lat. 51. 16.

* MERDIN, a town of Asia, in Diarbeck, with a castle which passes for impregnable, and an archbishop's see. There are several handsome palaces; and the country about it produces a great deal of cotton. It belongs to the Turks, who have a Bathaw, and a good garrison here. It is 45 miles S. E. of Diarbekir. Lon. 57. 5. lat. 36. 14.

MEREZ, a town of Poland, in Lithuania, seated at the confluence of the rivers Beresino and Merez. It is 30 miles N. of Grodno. Lon. 41. 35. lat. 54. 0.

MERIDA, a strong town of Spain, in Estremadura, built by the Romans before the birth of Christ. Here are fine remains of antiquity, particularly a triumphal arch; but it is not now what it was formerly. It is seated in an extensive, delightful, and fertile plain, 47 miles E. of Elra, and 45 S. by E. of Alcantara. Lon. 12. 15. lat. 38. 45.

MERIDA, a town of N. America, in New Spain, and capital of the province of Yucatan, where the bishop and the governor of the province reside. It is inhabited by Spaniards and native Americans. It is 30 miles S. of the sea, and 10 N. E. of Campeachy. Lon. 289. lat. 20. 10.

* MERIDA, a town of S. America, in the Kingdom of New Granada. It is seated in a country abounding with all kinds of fruits, 100 miles N. E. of Pampeluna. Lon. 309. 17. lat. 8. 30.

MERTONESHIRE, a county of North-Wales, 47 miles in length, and 25 in breadth. It is bounded by Carnarvonshire and Denbighshire on the N. by Montgomeryshire on the S. E. and by the Irish Sea on the W. It contains 2500 houses, 17,100 inhabitants, 37 parishes, 5 market-towns, and sends but one member to parliament, who is for the county. It is watered by several rivers, the chief of which are the Dee, and the Douay. The air is sharp, on account of the high barren mountains, which are extremely steep; however, this county feeds large flocks of sheep, many goats, and large herds of cattle; besides which, there is plenty of fish of several sorts.

MERKE, a river of the Austrian Netherlands, which rises in Brabant, and running N. by Breda, afterwards turns W. and falls into the sea, opposite to the island of Overflackee in Holland.

* MERLOU, or MELLO, a town of France, in Picardy, with a palace or castle, to which belong very superb stables. It belongs to the house of Luxemburg. Lon. 20. 0. lat. 49. 10.

MERNS, a county of Scotland, bounded by Mar on the N. by the German Ocean on the E. by Angus on the S. and by Gowry on the W. It is fruitful in corn and pastures; and the place of the chiefest note is the strong castle of Dunnet.

MERO, a strong town of Asia, in the peninsula beyond the Ganges, and in the Kingdom of Pegu. It is 180 miles W. of Pegu town. Lon. 111. 35. lat. 17. 0.

* MEROU, a town of Asia in Persia, and in Korassan. It is seated in a delightful fertile country, which produces salt, 112 miles S. W. of Bokara, and 270 N. E. of Nishabour. Lon. 81. 0. lat. 37. 40.

MERS, a county of Scotland, bounded on the N. by Lothian, on the E. by the German ocean, on the S. by Northumberland and Tiviotdale, and on the W. by Tweedale. It is very fruitful in corn and grass, and abounds with seats of persons of quality. The chief place is the town and castle of Duns.

MERTOLA, a strong town of Portugal in the province of Alentejo. It was taken from the Moors in 1239, and is seated near the river Guadiana, 60 miles S. of Evora, and 100 S. E. of Lisbon. Lon.
10. 20. lat. 37. 30.

* MERU, a town of France in Picardy, and in the diocese of Beauvais, with a castle. It is seated near the source of a brook that falls into the river Oise.

MERUF, the north branch of the river Maese, on which the city of Rotterdam, in Holland, is seated.

MERVILLE, a town of French Flanders, seated on the river Lis, 10 miles from Cassel, and 24 S. W. of Menin. Lon.
20. 18. lat. 50. 38.

* MESA-DE-ASTA, formerly a large town of Spain in Andalusia, seated on the river Guadaleta, between Arcos and Xeres de la Frontera; but it is now nothing except a large heap of ruins. It was here that the Arabs conquered Roderic, the last king of the Goths, and by that victory became masters of Spain in 713.

MESCHED, a considerable town of Asia in Persia, and in the province of Korassan.
It is fortified with several towers, and is famous for the magnificent sepulchre of Iman Rifa, of the family Ali, to which the Persians pay a great devotion. It is seated on a mountain near this town, in which are found fine Turkey stones. It is 120 miles S. E. of the Caspian sea.
Lon. 77. 0. lat. 37. 0.

arbeck, a province of Turkey in Asia, supposed to be called Padan Aram in scripture.

* MESSA, a town of Africa in the kingdom of Merocco, and in the province of Sus. It is composed of three fortified towns, which lie in a triangle, and are at a small distance from each other. It has a temple which is built with large fish bones instead of timber. It is seated at the foot of Mount Atlas, near the ocean, in a country abounding with palm trees, 40 miles W. of Sus. Lon.
8. 40. lat. 29. 20.

* MESSIN, a province of France, between the dutchies of Luxemburg, Lorraine, and Bar. It is fertile in wine, corn, and fruits, and is watered by several rivers, the principal of which are the Moselle and the Sarte. Metz is the capital town.

MESSINA, an ancient, large, handsome, and strong town of Italy in Sicily, and in the Val-di-Demona, with a citadel, feveral forts, a fine spacious harbour, and an archbishop's see. It is at present about 5 miles in circumference, and has four large suburbs. The public buildings and the monasteries, which are very numerous, are magnificent, and it contains about 6000 inhabitants. The harbour, whose key is above a mile in length, is one of the safest in the Mediterranean, and is in the form of a half-moon. It is 5 miles in circumference, and extremely deep. The entrance is difficult, on account of the gulph Charybdis, which is near it; but there are always good pilots who conduct the ships in without any danger. The viceroy of Sicily resides here 6 months in the year; and it is a place of great trade in silk, oil, fruit, corn, and excellent wine, especially since it has been declared a free port. It submitted to the Spaniards in 1713, but was retaken by the emperor in 1720. In 1735 the Spaniards got possession of it again, and gave leave to the Turks to have a consul here. It is seated on the sea-side, 110 miles E. of Palermo, 52 N.
E. of Catania, 185 S. by E. of Rome, and MESTRE, a town of Italy in the dogado of Venice, 16 miles N. E. of Padua. Lon. 20. 25. lat. 45. 35.

METELIN, an island of the Archipelago, anciently called Lesbos, to the N. of Scio, and almost at the entrance of the gulph of Gueftro. The foil of this island is very good, and the mountains are cool, being covered with wood in many places. The women of this island have always been noted for their freedom; and though now they are not so bad as they were formerly, they yet go with their breasts quite naked. This island produces good wheat, excellent oil, and the best figs in the Archipelago; nor have their wines lost any thing of their ancient reputation. It is subject to the Turks, and Castro is the capital town, where a cadì has the civil administration, and an aga of the Janissaries commands the soldiers; for it is under Turkish government. Lon. from 43. 52. to 44. 0. lat. from 37. 0. to 39. 15.

METHWOLD, a town of Norfolk, with a market on Tuesdays, and one fair, on April 25, for cattle and toys. It is 17 miles W. of Thetford, and 79 N. N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 7. lat. 52. 36.

METLING, a strong town and castle of Germany, in the circle of Austria and dutchy of Carniola, seated on the river Kulp, 55 miles S. E. of Laubach. Lon. 33. 35. lat. 45. 58.

* METRO, a river of Italy, in the territory of the church, that runs into the dutchy of Urbino, washes Fassambrone, and falls into the gulph of Venice, near Fano.

METZ, an ancient, large, and strong town of France, and capital of the territory of Messin, with a citadel, a parliament, and a bishop's see, whose bishop assumes the title of a prince of the empire. The cathedral church is one of the finest in Europe, and the square called Coffin, and the house of the governor, are worth seeing. The Jews live in a part of the town by themselves, where they have a synagogue. The sweetmeats they make here are in high esteem. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Moselle and Seille, 25 miles N. E. of Toul, 25 N. W. of Nancy, 37 S. of Luxemburg, and 48 S. W. of Friers. Lon. 23. 51. lat. 49. 7.

MEUDON, a handsome palace of the king of France, seated on a hill which stands in a plain, on the banks of the river Seine, 5 miles S. W. of Paris, from whence there is a fine prospect of the neighbourhood of Paris.

* MEULAN, an ancient town in the Iso of France, built in the form of an amphitheatre, on the river Seine, over which there are two handsome bridges. It is 20 miles N. W. of Paris. Lon. 19. 32. lat. 49. 1.

MEURS, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, seated on the river Rhine, 15 miles N. of Duffeldorp, and subject to Prussia. Lon. 23. 40. lat. 51. 22.

MEUSE. See MAËSE.

* MEWAPI, a considerable town of Japan, in the island of Nippon, with a palace where the king sometimes resides. It is seated on a hill, at the foot of which there are vast fields, which yield wheat and rice, and in which there are fine orchards, full of excellent plumbs.

* MEXAT-ALI, a noted town of Asia, in Persia, and in Irac-Arabi. It is famous for the superb and rich mosque of Ali, to which the Persians go in pilgrimage from all parts. However, it is not so considerable as it was formerly. It is 45 miles S. W. of Bagdad. Lon. 62. 32. lat. 31. 40.

* MEXAT-OCEM, a considerable town of Asia, in Persia, which takes its name from a mosque dedicated to Ocem, the son of Ali. It is seated in a fertile country, on the river Euphrates. Lon. 62. 40. lat. 32. 20.

MEXICO, a town of N. America, capital of New Spain. It was a flourishing place before the Spaniards entered into the country, and was seated on an island in a salt-water lake, to which there was no entrance, but by three causeways above two miles in length each. It contained about 80,000 houses, with several large temples, full of rich idols, and three palaces, where the emperor of Mexico resided. It was taken by Ferdinando Cortez in 1521, after a siege of three months. As the Mexicans defended themselves from street to street, it was almost ruined, but afterwards rebuilt by the Spaniards. It now contains about 35,000 houses, built of stone and brick, to which they have added a suburb of 3000 houses, inhabited by the native Americans. It is a very handsome place, with large, clean, wide streets, in which are a great number of magnificent structures, palaces, churches, and convents. It is the usual residence of the vice-roy of

New-Spain, and has a royal audience, a tribunal of the inquisition, a mint, an archbishop's see, an university, and a printing-house. It is a common saying, that there are four beautiful things to be seen at Mexico, namely, the women, the rich habits, the coaches and horses, and the streets. The goldsmiths here are immensely rich, and it carries on a great trade to Europe by St. John de Ulva, and to Asia by Acapulco. This place was overflowed by an inundation in October 1629, in which 40,000 persons were drowned. This obliged the Spaniards to make a great conduit through a mountain, in order to empty the lake, which being done, part of the town became seated on dry land, without walls, or any other defence. Mexico is supplied with sweet water by an aqueduct of three miles in length, which is carried along on arches, under which people may walk. The Spaniards do not make a tenth part of the inhabitants, the other nine being Negroes, Mulattoes, native Americans, and a mixture of them all. It is 200 miles E. N. E. of St. John de Ulva, on the N. Sea, and 200 N. by E. of Acapulco on the S. Sea. Lon. 27 5. 0. lat. 20. 0.

Mexico, a large country of N. America, otherwise called New-Spain, which is bounded on the N. by New Mexico, on the E. by the gulph of Mexico and the N. Sea, and on the S. and W. by S. America and the S. Sea, being above 2000 miles in length, and from 60 to 600 in breadth. It is divided into 23 provinces, the principal of which is that of Mexico, and contains many mines of gold, silver, iron, and allum, besides Indian-corn, cabbage-trees, chocolate, nuts, vanellas, plantains, pine-apples, cochineal, and several other fruits, gums, and drugs, proper to the climate. Before the Spaniards came here they had no animals, of any sort, exactly like those in Europe, but they had a sort of dogs which did not bark, but howled much like wolves, and also tigers, bears, elks, or moose-deer, pecarics, warrees, beavers, opossums, armadillos, guanoes, flying squirrels, racoons, crocodiles, manattes, monkeys, parrots, macaws, pelicans, cormorants, and great variety of other birds, snakes, scorpions, and other insects. It is governed by a Spanish viceroy, who is changed every five years, and all the people are Papists, or at least profess to be so, an account of the inquisition. The Spanish clergy are very numerous, and there are a great number of monasteries and nunneries; however, none of them are very famous for the holiness of their lives. They have but a few fortified towns, and the best of the sea-ports have been taken and plundered by a few Buccaneers. In general it is a most barren country, intermixed with many rich valleys; but the highest mountains are near the coast of the S. Sea, many of which are volcanoes. The eastern shore is a flat, level country, full of bogs and morasses, that are overflowed in the rainy season, which is at the same time as our summer. The hills between the mountains and the flat country are best inhabited, because there the air is most temperate. The revenues of the crown are vastly great, which arise from the fifth part of the gold and silver, and from the duties and customs, as well as the lands, which are held of the crown.

MEXICO, New, otherwise called the New Kingdom of Granada, a large country of N. America, discovered by the Spaniards in 1503. It is bounded on the W. by the Vermeil Sea, on the S. by New-Spain, on the E. by Florida, and on the N. by an unknown country. The air is very temperate, and the soil is generally fertile. It is inhabited by a great number of people, whose languages and customs are very different; some wander about, and some dwell in towns and villages. The principal of the Spanish colonies are, those of St. Barbe and Santa Fe, the capital town. It is said there are many silver mines.

* MEXICO, the gulph so called, is part of the sea of Mexico, and lies between the S. coast of Florida, and N. of the audience of Mexico, and the island of Cuba.

* MEYENFELD, a handsome town in the country of the Grisons, in the league of the Ten Jurisdictions, and chief place of the Fifth Community. It is seated on the Rhine, in a pleasant, fertile country, especially in excellent wine, 15 miles N. E. of Coire. Lon. 27. 15. lat. 47. 10.

MEZIERES, a town of France, in Champagne, with a citadel. It is seated on the river Meuse, partly on a hill, and partly on a valley, 12 miles N. W. of Sedan, 3 S. E. of Charleville, and 127 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 23. lat. 49. 46.

* MEZO, a town of Asia, in Proper Natolia,

- tolia, which formerly was the see of a bishop; it is 25 miles E. of Malazzo.
- * MEZUMA, a town of Africa, that was formerly in Cefarian Mauritania; it is still of some account, and is seated in the province of Tenez, between the city of that name and that of Mostagan.
 - * MEZURADA, a cape of Africa, on the coast of Guinea, between Cape Palmas and Tagrin.
 - * MEZURATA, a Cape of Africa, in the Kingdom of Tripoly, in Barbary, which lies W. of the gulph of Sidra, near Colbena.
 - * MEZZAR, a town of Biledulgerid, in Africa, and capital of a territory of the same name, which lies between Tschort, Zeb, Tegorara, and the Saari, or Desert.
 - * MEZZANO, a small lake of Italy, in the duchy of Castro, a province in the territory of the church. It is near Petuliano, and is the source of the river Olpita, which washes the ruins of Castro, and falls into the Fiera.
 - * MIA, or MIJAN, a large town of Japan, in the province of Owry, seated on the S. coast of the isle of Niphon, with a fortified palace. Lon. 153. 55. lat. 35. 0.
 - * MICHA, a cape of Dalmatia, which advances into the gulph of Venice, near the town of Zara.
 - * MICHAEL, ST. a strong town of the island of Malta, otherwise called the Isle of Single, from the name of the grand master who built it. It is seated on a rock, and separated from the firm land by a ditch.
 - * MICHAEL, ST. a town of N. America, in New-Spain, and in the province of Mechoacan. It is very populous, and is 100 miles from Mexico. Lon. 274. 40. lat. 21. 35.
 - * MICHAEL, ST. or MITCHEL, a borough-town of Cornwall, which has neither markets nor fairs, but sends two members to parliament. It is 3 miles S. W. of St. Columb, and 281 W. by S. of London. Lon. 12. 0. lat. 50. 25.
 - * MICHELONIA, a country of Regal-Prussia, which is a part of the circle of Culm, and is separated from the other part by the river Dribentz. It takes its name from the castle of Michelow.
 - * MIDDLEBURG, a large, handsome, rich, and strong town of the Netherlands, capital of the island of Walcheren, and of all Zealand. The squares and publick buildings are magnificent, and it is a

- trading place, particularly for wines. It has a communication with the sea by a large canal, which will bear the largest vessels. It is 20 miles N. E. of Bruges, 30 N. W. of Ghent, 35 W. by N. of Antwerp, and 72 S. W. of Amsterdam. Lon. 21. 18. lat. 51. 30.
- * MIDDLEBURG, a town of the Netherlands, in Flanders, which belongs to the prince of Bienghien. Lon. 20. 55. lat. 51. 12.
 - * MIDDLESEX, an English county, 20 miles in length, and 14 in breadth, bounded on the N. by Hertfordshire, on the E. by Essex, on the S. by the river Thames, which separates it from Surry, and on the W. by Buckinghamshire. It is one of the least counties in England, but much the richest, and pays more taxes to the government than any ten besides. It contains 11,000 houses, 126 parishes, besides London, and 4 market-towns. It sends 8 members to parliament, 4 for London, two for Westminster, and 2 for the county. The air in general is healthy, and the soil fertile, which can hardly be otherwise, considering that they never want dung to manure the land. See LONDON.
 - * MIDDLEWICH, a town of Cheshire, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on July 25, and Holy-Thurday, for cattle. It is so called because it stands between Nantwich and Northwich. It is seated on the river Croke, and is a large place, containing several streets and lanes, but is of chief note for its salt-pits, and making fine salt. It is 18 miles E. of Chester, and 156 N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 5. lat. 53. 13.
 - * MIDHURST, a town in Suffex, with a market on Thursdays, and three fairs, on May 25, Whit-Tuesday, and October 18, for horned cattle and horses. It is seated on a small river, which almost surrounds it, and is a pretty large place, sending two members to parliament. It is 11 miles N. by E. of Chichester, 29 E. of Winchester, and 52 W. by S. of London. Lon. 16. 45. lat. 51. 0.
 - * MIDLAM, a town in the N. riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Mondays, and a fair on November 6 and 7, for sheep. It is seated on the river Youre, not far from Bishopstale-chafe, and is 10 miles S. of Richmond, 56 N. W. of York, and 255 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 16. 0. lat. 54. 15.

MILAN, a town or city of Italy, and capital of a duchy of the same name. It is seated in a delightful plain, between the rivers Adda and Ticin, and from one to the other there are two canals cut, which render it a trading place. It is about 10 miles in circumference, and is called by the Italians Milan the Great. The chief inhabitants are rich, and descended from the most ancient houses. It is a good place to live in, on account of the vast quantities of provisions which are brought from all parts, and because there is more freedom in their manner of living than elsewhere. There are a great number of fine houses, and superb palaces, but that of the governor is the most magnificent. All the fortifications consist in high walls, which is the reason of its having been taken so often; for it has been besieged 40 times, and taken 22. There is a citadel in the middle of the city to keep it in awe, and there is a large square before it, where great numbers of the better sort go to walk. The principal gate is defended by two towers, built with large stones, and after having crossed a large ditch, there is another wall, which is thick, high, and flanked with several towers. Behind it is a covered gallery, supported by brick pillars, on which there are 200 pieces of cannon. Near to this is the palace of the ancient dukes of Milan, which is a brick building, and in the great hall there are several sorts of arms, very ancient and very valuable, being sufficient to arm 10 or 12,000 men. Milan has 25,000 inhabitants, 22 gates, 230 churches, 96 parishes, 90 religious houses, 100 fraternities, 120 schools, and 10 hospitals, which maintain 9000 poor or sick people, at the publick expence, and there are often 4000 in the grand hospital. The cathedral church is the finest structure therein, it being 500 feet long, 200 broad, and 400 high. Though it is not so large as St. Peter's at Rome, yet it far surpasses it in the number and excellence of its sculptures, and the beauty of its ornaments. It is cased both within and without with white marble. The roof, which is vastly high, is supported by 160 columns of white marble, which are so large, that three men can scarce fathom one of them. There are 600 statues, each of which cost above 1000 crowns, and the cross which adorns the great altar cost above 200,000 crowns. This church, which may be looked upon as the eighth wonder of the world, is dedicated to the virgin Mary, and to St. Thekla. The college of St. Ambrose has 16 professors, who read lectures every day, and a fine library belongs thereto, which, besides a prodigious number of manuscripts, contains 45,000 printed books. Its superb gallery is adorned with rich paintings, which deserve to be taken notice of by travellers. The most considerable commerce of the inhabitants is in wine, corn, cheese, saffrages, hard-ware, silk, and cotton-stuffs, all sorts of artificial flowers, paper, pens, silver-smiths work, and more particularly in cloths, and lace of gold and silver. Notwithstanding the largeness of the place, it is governed only by a president and 12 senators. It is the see of an archbishop. It is 35 miles N. W. of Castel, 70 N. of Genoa, 65 N. W. of Parma, 72 N. E. of Turin, 75 N. W. of Mantua, 145 N. W. of Florence, and 270 N. W. of Rome. Lon. 26. 36. lat. 35. 25.

* MILAN, the duchy of, a considerable country country of Italy, bounded on the N. by the Swiss and Grisons, on the E. by the republic of Venice, and by the duchies of Parma and Mantua; on the S. by the duchy of Parma and the territory of Genoa, and on the W. by Piedmont and Montserrat, being 150 miles in length, and 78 in breadth. The soil is every where fertile in corn, wine, fruits, rice, and olives; there are also plenty of cattle. The rivers are, the Seccia, the Tesin, the Adda, and the Oglio. There are likewise several lakes, the three principal of which are, the Lago Maggiore, which is about 50 miles in length, and 5 in breadth; it has its source in Switzerland, and is very advantageous to trade: Lago di Como has its source in the country of the Grisons, and is about 35 miles in length, and 5 in breadth; it abounds in very good fish, particularly excellent trouts: that of Lugano is not above 20 miles in length, and it empties itself into the river Tresa, which falls into the Lago Maggiore. They have cut, with much labour and charge, several canals, that the trade of Milan might be carried on more readily, and to bring provisions thither. The two principal are, the Grand Canal, or Il-Naviglio-Grande, which reaches to the river Tesin, and the Small Canal, or Il-Naviglio-Minore, which joins the Adda. The Milanese had dukes of their own, whose house is extinct above two centuries ago. The French and Spaniards have had bloody wars about this duchy, but the house of Austria has got possession of it. In 1741 the French and Spaniards laid claim to it again, or, more properly, the French supported the pretensions of the Spaniards; but the duke of Savoy, solicited by Great Britain, prevented their gaining their ends, and the queen of Hungary, out of gratitude, gave part of this duchy to the duke, in 1743. There are as many provinces or districts as there are large towns, and formerly they counted 17; but the Swiss having got 4 bailiwicks, they are now reduced to 13 provinces, which the queen of Hungary and the duke of Savoy possess between them. The names of them are, the Proper Milanese, the Pavese, the Lodisano, the Cremonese, the Comasco, the county of Anghiera, the Valicse, the Sefia, the Novarense, the Vigavanese, or the county of Vigevano, the Alexandrino or Alessandrino, the Lomilino, the Tortonenso, and the territory of Bobbio.

MILAZZO, a handsome and strong town of Sicily, in the Val-di-Demona, with a harbour. It is divided into the upper and lower town. The upper is very strong, and the lower has a fine square, with a superb fountain. It is seated on a rock, on the western banks of a bay of the same name, 17 miles W. of Messina, and 20 N. W. of Patta. Lon. 33. 10. lat. 38. 32.

MILBORN-PORT, a town in Somersetshire, which has no market, but has two fairs, on June 5, and October 23, for a few cattle and toys. It is seated on a branch of the river Parret, on the confines of Dorsetshire, and sends two members to parliament. It is 32 miles W. by S. of Salisbury, 55 E. by N. of Exeter, and 115 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 3. lat. 51. 5.

* MILBOERN, a village in Dorsetshire, with one fair, on December 30, for bullocks, horses, and cheese.

MILDENHALL, a town in Suffolk, with a market on Fridays, and one fair, on October 10, for wood. It is seated on a branch of the river Ouse, and is a large, populous place, having distinct streets, called rows, as big as some little towns. It stands in a bleak place, and has a handsome church, with a high steeple. It is 16 miles N. by E. from Newmarket, 12 N. W. of Bury, and 68 N. N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 11. lat. 52. 25.

MILITO, an ancient town of Italy, in the Farther Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is 5 miles from the mouth of Metranno, and the city of Nicotera.

MILFORD-HAVEN, a large, safe, and commodious harbour of S. Wales, lying on a bay of the Irish Sea, which is capable of containing above 1000 sail of ships at one time, without any danger of running foul of each other. It has 13 roads, 16 creeks, and 5 bays, each of which have their particular names; and it is now fortifying, by order of the government.

* MILIANE, a large and ancient town of Africa, in the kingdom of Tremesen, with a castle that commands it. It is seated in a country fertile in oranges, citrons, and other fruits, which are the best in all Barbary. Lon. 20. 10. lat. 35. 45.

* MILKESHAM, a village in Wiltshire, with one fair, on July 16, for horned cattle, sheep, and horses.

* MILLAW, or MILAUD, a town of France,

It is

France, in Guenne, and capital of the Upper Marche of Rouergue. It was dismantled in 1629; and is seated on the river Tarn, 60 miles N. W. of Montpellier, and 142 S. of Paris. Lon. 20. 46. lat. 44. 10.

MIL0, an island of the Archipelago, about 50 miles in circumference, with a harbour, which is one of the best and largest in the Mediterranean, and which serves as a retreat for all vessels that go to, or come from the Levant. It consists of a hollow spongy rock, soaked with sea-water, with a mixture of iron and sulphur; whence proceed the internal heat, burning spots of ground, and hot baths. It produces excellent fruits, delicate wine, and abounds in very good cattle, especially in goats, and has mines of iron and sulphur. In the spring the fields are enameled with anemones of all sorts. The inhabitants, who are all Greeks, except the Cadi, are good sailors; but they are much addicted to pleasures and debaucheries. The women paint their faces very remarkably, and are of a loose disposition. Salt is so cheap here, that it may almost be had for nothing. This island is remarkable for plumous allum, which is found in large lumps, and is composed of threads as fine as the softest silk, silvered over, and shining very prettily; it has the same taste as rock allum, and is a true salt, which differs only from the common salt, by being stinging. There is a Waiwod, who is a Greek, and three consuls, who can depose the Cadi, when he fails in his duty. Here are likewise two bishops; one of the Greek, and the other of the Latin church. There is a town of the same name, in the eastern part of the island, which is a very dirty place, and contains about 5000 inhabitants. It is 60 miles N. of Candia. Lon. 42. 45. lat. 56. 45.

MILTENBERG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia, and electorate of Mentz. It is seated on the river Maine, 18 miles S. of Aschaffenberg. Lon. 46. 40. lat. 49. 46.

MILTHORE, a village in Westmoreland, with one fair, on May 12, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep.

MILTON, a town in Dorsetshire, with a market on Tuesdays, but no fairs. It is an ancient place, and was only eminent for its abbey, which is now in ruins. It is 14 miles N. E. of Dorchester, and 117 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 7. lat. 50. 50.

MILTON, a town of Kent, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair on July 24, for toys. It is seated on a creek of the Medway near the life of Sheppy, and is of great note for its excellent oysters. It is 14 miles N. of Maidstone, and 40 E. of London. It is governed by a constable, has one church, and about 120 houses, built with wood work and brick. The Streets are narrow but paved. Lon. 18. 25. lat. 51. 25.

MILVERTON, a town in Somersetshire, 13 miles E. of Dulverton, with three fairs, viz. on Tuesday in Easter-Week, July 25, and October 10, for cattle.

MINCIO, a river of Italy, rising in the Lago de la Garda, which runs south through the dutchy of Mantua, and falls into the Po at Borgo Forte.

MINDANAO, a large island of Asia in the E. Indies, and one of the Philippines. It is 180 miles in length, and 120 in breadth. It is a very mountainous country, full of hills and valleys, and the mould is generally deep, black, and fruitful. The sides of the hills, and valleys, are stony, and yet there are tall trees thereon of kinds not known in Europe, some of the mountains yield very good gold, and the valleys are watered with variety of rivulets. The libby trees produce the sago, which the poor people eat, instead of bread, three or four months in the year. It produces all sorts of fruits proper to the climate; besides plenty of rice, some affirm that there are nutmegs and cloves, but none of the trees that bear them appear near the coast. They have horses, beeves, buffaloes, goats, deer, monkeys, guanoes, lizards, and snakes; but they have neither lions nor tygers. Their hogs are very ugly creatures; and they have all great knobs growing over their eyes; however, their flesh is sweet. Their fowls are ducks, hens, pigeons, parrots, paroquets, turtle-doves, and bats as large as kites, besides many small birds. The air is temperate, they having breezes by day, and cooling land-winds at night. The winds are easterly one part of the year, and westerly the other; while the former blow, it is fair weather; but while the latter, it is rainy, stormy, and tempestuous. The inhabitants are of a mean low stature, with small limbs and little heads. Their faces are oval, with flat foreheads, black small eyes, eyes, short low noses, and pretty large mouths. Their hair is black and straight, and their complexion tawny, but more inclining to yellow than that of other Indians. The women are very desirous of the company of strangers, especially white men. The chief trades are goldsmiths, blacksmiths, and carpenters, and they can build pretty good vessels for the sea. Their distempers are as in other places, except the leprosy, which is very common here. The sultan has a queen, besides twenty other women, and all the men have several wives; for their religion is Mahometanism. Their houses are built on posts, from 14 to 20 feet high; and they have ladders to go up out of the streets. They have but one floor, which is divided into several rooms, and the roofs are covered with palm-tree leaves. Those that have been far up in the country say, that the people are all blacks, and go quite naked. The principal town, of the same name, is pretty large, and is seated on the eastern coast. Lon. 140. 40. lat. 7. 0.

MINDELHEIM, a town of Germany in the circle of Suabia, and in Algow, with a castle. It is capital of a small territory which lies between the river Iller and Lech, and belongs to the house of Bavaria. It was taken by the Imperialists after the battle of Hochstet, who erected it into a principality in favour of the duke of Marlborough, but it returned back to the house of Bavaria by the treaty of Rastat. It is 33 miles S. E. of Ulm. Lon. 28. 15. lat. 48. 5.

MINDELHEIM, a district of Germany in Suabia, lying between the bishopric of Augsburg and the abbacy of Kempren, which is 20 miles in length, and 16 in breadth.

MINDEN, a considerable town of Germany in the circle of Westphalia, and capital of a territory of the same name. It is seated on the river Weser, where there is a bridge over it, which renders it a trading place. It belongs to the king of Prussia, who has secularized the bishopric. It is 27 miles E. by S. of Osnabrug, 37 W. of Hanover, and 37 N. of Paderborn. Lon. 26. 40. lat. 52. 22.

* MINDEN, the principality of, in Germany, lies in the circle of Westphalia, to the N. of the county of Ravensberg, and along each side of the river Weser. It is about 22 miles square, and Minden and Peterthagen are the principal places. It was formerly a bishopric, but is now se-cularized, and ceded to the elector of Brandenburg, by the treaty of Westphalia.

MINDORA, an island of Asia in the E. Indies, and one of the Philippines. It is 50 miles in circumference, and is separated from Luzonia by a narrow channel. It is full of mountains, which abound in palm trees, and all sorts of fruits. The inhabitants are idolaters, and pay tribute to the Spaniards to whom this island belongs. Lon. 135. 0. lat. 13. 0.

MINEHEAD, a sea-port town in Somersetshire, with a market on Wednesdays, and one fair on Whit-Wednesday, for pedlars wares. It is seated on the sea-shore, and has a very good harbour for ships of large burthen. It carries on some trade to Ireland, and sends two members to parliament. It is 71 miles N. N. E. of Exeter, 26 W. of Bridgewater, and 167 W. by S. of London. Lon. 13. 55. lat. 51. 18.

* MINGRELA, a famous town of Asia in the E. Indies, and in the kingdom of Visapour. 20 miles N. by E. of Goa. It is called by some Vingrela, and is famous for the cardamoms which grow near it. The Dutch have a factory near it; and there is a road where ships come to anchor near this place. Lon. 89. 40. lat. 16. 10.

MINGRELIA, a province of Asia, which makes part of Georgia, bounded on the W. by the Black Sea, on the E. by Mount Caucasus and Imuretta, on the S. by a part of Georgia, and on the N. by Circassia. It is a country covered with trees, and has scarce any ground fit for tillage. The rains are very frequent, and the air is very unwholesome for strangers. There are plenty of vines that run up the trees, whose trunks are extremely thick, but the grapes make excellent wine. There are good pastures, which feed a great number of herds. The Mingrelians are well made, especially the women; and they are great thieves, haughty, perfidious, cruel, drunkards, and shameless. They make no scruple of marrying their nieces, and sisters-in-law. If a husband catches his wife with a gallant, they make the matter up for a pig, which they eat all three together. They think it a charity to make away with new-born children, when the parents cannot maintain them. Their common business is hunting; and they think themselves rich if they have a horse, a good dog, and a falcon.

They have nei-ther towns nor villages; but they have a prince that is tributary to the Persians. They sell boys, girls, and young women to the Turks, and will steal them from each other for that purpose.

MINHO, a river of Spain, which has its source in Galicia, near Castro del Rey. It runs S. W. and passes by Lugo, Orense, and Tey. After which it divides Galicia from Portugal, and falls into the Atlantic sea at Caminha.

MINIATO, Sic. a town of Italy in Tuscany, and in the Florentine, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Arno, 20 miles S. W. of Florence. Lon. 23. 50. lat. 43. 40.

* MINORBINO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terra di Barri, with a bishop's see, though it is but a small place. It is 20 miles N. W. of Cerenza. Lon. 33. 45. lat. 41. 8.

MINORCA, a considerable island of the Mediterranean sea, lying 50 miles to the N. E. of the island of Majorca, being the least of the Balearics. It is about 30 miles in length, and 12 in breadth, and is chiefly valuable for its excellent harbour. It is a mountainous country, with some fruitful valleys, where there are excellent mules. Citadella is the capital, besides which there are Port-Mahon, Laor, and Mercadal. It was taken by the English in 1708, and confirmed to them by the treaty of Utrecht; but it was invaded by the French in 1756, and taken by them on June 29, after two months siege of St. Philip's castle. Lon. from 21. 30. to 22. 0. lat. from 39. 0. to 40. 0.

* MINORI, a town of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Principato, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the gulph of Salerno, between the town of that name and Amalfi.

* MINSINGEN, a town of Germany in the circle of Suabia and duchy of Wirtemberg, with a handsome castle. Lon. 27. 10. lat. 48. 22.

MIŃSKI, a town of Poland in Lithuania, and capital of a palatinate of the same name, with two citadels, one of which is seated in a morass, and the other commands the town. It is 17 miles S. E. of Wilna. Lon. 35. 32. lat. 53. 32.

* MIŃSKI, the palatinate of a territory of Poland in Lithuania. It lies between the duchies of Novogrodeck, Wilna, Wi-tepsk, Mscislaw, and the territory of Rohadzow. It is pretty fertile, and there are forests containing vast numbers of bees, whose honey makes part of the riches of the country. There are many Jews, who have the same rights as the native inhabitants, who are employed in trade and the practice of physick. The capital town is of the same name.

* MIOLANS, a fortress of France, in the duchy of Savoy and valley of Barcelonetta. It is seated on a craggy rock, 6 miles N. E. of Montmelian. Lon. 33. 35. lat. 45. 35.

MIQUELETS, a name given to the Spaniards, who live in the Pyrenean mountains on the frontiers of Catalonia and Arragon, who live by robbing.

* MIRANDO DE DOURO, or DUERO, a strong town of Portugal, and capital of the province Tra-los-Montes, with a bishop's see. It is well fortified, and is seated on a rock near the confluence of the rivers Douro and Fresna. 37 miles N. W. of Salamanca, 32 S. E. of Braganza, and 208 N. by E. of Lisbon. Lon. 11. 55. lat. 41. 30.

MIRANDA DE EBRO, a town of Spain in Old Castile, with a strong castle. It is seated in a country that produces excellent wine, on both sides the river Ebro, which runs through it under an handsome bridge. It is 35 miles S. of Bilbao, and 160 N. of Madrid. Lon. 14. 25. lat. 42. 52.

* MIRANDE, a town of France in Gascony, and capital of the county of Astarac. It is seated on a mountain near the river Baese, 15 miles S. W. of Auch, and 380 S. W. of Paris. Lon. 17. 56. lat. 42. 33.

MIRANDOLA, a town of Italy, and capital of a duchy of the same name, which lies between the duchies of Mantua and Modena. It is a pretty large place, and well fortified, and has also a strong citadel and a fort. It has been several times taken and retaken; and last of all by the king of Sardinia in 1742. It is 17 miles N. E. of Modena, 22 S. E. of Mantua, 25 W. of Ferrara, and 85 E. of Milan. Lon. 28. 40. lat. 44. 52.

* MIRANNEAU, a town of France, in Poitou, and capital of a small district. It is 123 miles S. W. of Paris. Lon. 17. 40. lat. 46. 47.

MIRROBERT, a considerable town of France in Lorraine, and capital of the bailiwick of Vofes, famous for its violins, and fine laces. It is seated on the river Maldon, 27 miles S. of Nanci, and 30 S. E. of Toul. Lon. 23. 52. lat. 48. 15.

* MIREMONT, a town of Franco in Perigord, near the river Vizere, about 15 miles E. of Bergerac, and 20 from Pétigieux. Near it there is a remarkable cave, or cavern, called Cluscau, very famous in this country.

MIREPOIX, a town of France in Upper Languedoc, with a bishop's see, and title of a marquifate. It is feated on the river Gers, 15 miles N. E. of Foix, and 40 S. E. of Touloufe. Lon. 19. 32. lat. 43. 7.

MISENO, a cape of Italy near Naples, which is in the Terra-di-Lavoro, between Puzzolo and Cuma. On it there are the ruins of the ancient Misenum, which was a bishop's fee.

* MISITRA, a very ancient and celebrated town of Greece, capital of the Morea, and in the province of Sacania, with a Greek archbishop's see, and a castle which paffes for impregnable. It is divided into four parts, the castle, the town, and two large suburbs. The church is one of the finest in the world, and the Turks have turned it into a superb mosque, near which is a magnificent hospital. There are fine remains of antiquity. There are a great number of Christians, and so many Jews, that they have three fynagogues. It was taken by the Venetians in 1687; but the Turks retook it. It is feated on the river Vasilpotamo, 100 miles S. W. of Serines, and 92 S. by E. of Lepanto. Lon. 40. 20. lat. 37. 10.

MISNIA. See MEISSIN.

* MISSILIMAKINAC, an isthmus of N. America, in New France, about 300 miles in length, and 50 in breadth, where the French have a settlement. It is a long mile from the Lake Illinois. Lon. 292. 0. lat. 45. 35.

MISSISSIPPI, a large river of N. America, whose source is unknown: it paffes S. through Louisiana, a delightful country inhabited by savages, and runs above 2000 miles, till it falls into the gulph of Florida. The French lay claim to some part of the country it runs through, but that is now disputing by Great Britain. The supposed richness of these parts, gave rise to the French bubble in 1719, which ruined as many families as that of the South Sea did in England in 1720.

* MISSOURI, a large river of N. America, and the most rapid yet known: it falls into the Mississippi, and the savages who inhabit its banks, are called Missourites by the French.

MITTAE, a strong town of Poland, in the dutchy of Courland. It was taken by the Swedes in 1701, and by the Russians in 1706; and had a strong castle, which was the residence of the duke of Courland. It is feated on the river Beldeiau, 45 miles E. of Golding, 20 S. W. of Riga, and 240 N. of Warsaw. Lon. 41. 45. lat. 56. 40.

MOAB. See MOUAB.

MOCHA, or MOKHA, a considerable town of Asia in Arabia Felix. It is surrounded with walls, consisting of half stone and half earth; and there are four gates, but no ditch, and several towers, with guns mounted on some of them. They are inhabited by soldiers, who patrole in the night, and in the day keep on the harbour and near the bazar to prevent disorders. The women, except a small number of the common sort, never appear in the streets in the day-time; but they visit each other in the evening. When they meet any men in the way, they stand close up against the wall to let them pass. Their habit is much like that of other women of the East, and over all they wear a large veil of painted callico, so thin that they can see through them without being seen. They have also little bukins of Morocco leather: some of the women of quality are very handsome, and not browner than the Spanish women. They are much addicted to gallantry when they have an opportunity; but it is very dangerous for the Europeans to be concerned with them. This town carries on a great trade, especially in coffee; and the number of inhabitants are reckoned at 10000, without comprehending the poor Aramians, or the Jews which inhabit the suburbs. It is feated in a sandy country, and there are several palm trees round about it, which are watered with wells dug for that purpose. The sands are so hot, and the reflexion of them from the sun is so great, that it impairs the sight of foreigners who go there for trade, unless they take a great deal of care. It is feated near the straits of Babel-Mandel, and is 500 miles S. of Mecca. Lon. 62. 0. lat. 14. 0.

MODBURY, a town in Devonshire, with a market on Thursdays, and one fair on April 23, for horned cattle, cloth, and shoes. It is feated in a bottom between London.

MODENA, an ancient town of Italy, and capital of the Modenese, with a strong citadel, and a bishop's see. It is seated between the rivers Secchia and Panaro, and is a large handsome place, and pretty well fortified. There are several piazzas and a great number of fountains, but the streets are very narrow. The cathedral, several of the churches, and some of the monasteries, are handsome structures; and the ducal palace, though not quite finished, is richly furnished, and contains fine paintings. The citadel is very considerable, and very regular, but has been taken several times, particularly by the king of Sardinia in 1742. The number of inhabitants are said to be 40000; and they make here the best masques for masquerades in all Italy. It is seated on the canal, which is cut between the above-mentioned rivers, 22 miles N. W. of Bologna, 30 S. W. of Parma, 34 S. of Mantua, and 60 N. by W. of Florence. Lon. 23. 52. lat.
44. 34.

MODENESE, or the territory of Modena, is bounded on the W. by the duchy of Parma, on the N. by the duchies of Mantua and Mirandola, on the E. by the Bo-lognese, and a part of the Ferrarese, and on the S. by part of Tuscany and the republic of Lucca. It is about 50 miles in length, and 40 in breadth; and the soil is very fertile in corn, wine, oil, and fruits of different kinds. It also feeds a great number of cattle. In times of war the duke cannot raise above 15000 foot and 4000 horse; and these being insufficient to defend his dominions, he has been obliged to forsake them twice, and leave his poor subjects to be ill used by the French armies. Likewise, in the last war, he was obliged to abandon them again, because he had taken the side of Spain against the queen of Hungary and her allies.

MONTEA, a town of Sicily, in the valley of Noto, seated on a river of the same name, 25 miles S. of Syracuse. Lon.
33. 34. lat. 36. 43.

MONON, an ancient, handsome and strong town of Greece, in the Morea, with a very safe and commodious harbour, and a bishop's see. It is seated on a promontory, advanced into the sea of Sapi-enza, 15 miles from Coron, and 95 S.

W. of Napoli-di-Romania. Lon. 39. 20.
lat. 36. 53.

* MODZIR, a town of Poland, in Lithuania, capital of a district of the same name. It is seated on the river Przpeic, in a fertile and well cultivated country.
Lon. 46. 45. lat. 52. 5.

* MOGADOR, an island and castle of Africa, in the kingdom of Morocco, near Cape Ozem. There are mines of gold and silver in one of the mountains. Lon.
S. o. lat. 31. 35.

* MOGUL, GREAT, the dominions of, a large empire of Asia, bounded on the N. by the mountains of Imaus, which separate it from Great Tartary; on the E. by the river Aracan; on the S. by the gulph of Bengal, the peninsula of Malabar, and Coromandel, and on the W. by Persia and Candalar. This is commonly called Indostan: besides which he has several kingdoms and territories in the above-mentioned peninsula. Tamerlane was the founder of it; but of all his conquests there remains nothing to the family but Indostan, which is, at least, 2500 miles in length, and immensely rich, as likewise fertile in all sorts of corn, silks, and cottons; and all kinds of merchandize, which come from the E. Indies, are to be met with here. The Great Mogul is an absolute monarch, enjoying a vast revenue, and keeping on foot an army of 200000 men, with 500 elephants, magnificently harnessed. When a Mahometan subject dies, all his effects belong to him. The emperor himself is a Mahometan; and there are a great number of governors under him, some of which have the title of Nabob. The particular provinces will be mentioned in their proper places. The original people, who made the conquest, are a sort of vagrant Tartars, living to the north of Indostan.

MOHATZ, a town of Lower Hungary in the county of Baraniwar, famous for two battles fought near it in 1526 and 1687.
It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Danube and Corasse, 17 miles N. W. of Effeck, and is subject to the house of Austria. Lon. 36. 8. lat. 45. 50.

MOHAWK COUNTRY, belongs to one of the five nations of the Iroquois, in alliance with the English. It lies in N.
America, between the Lake of Ontario and New York.

M O

MOHILA, or MOELIA, one of the Comoraiflands, in the sea between the N. end of the island of Madagafcar, and the continent of Africa. The inland parts are mountainous and woody, and there are villages scattered here and there, whose houses are made of reeds and straw. The people are blacks, with great heads, large lips, flat noses, sharp chins, and strong limbs. They go quite naked, except only a few leaves to hide their nakedness. Their skins are cut and pricked, so as to make several figures on all parts of their bodies. Some of the inhabitants are Mahometans, who have a few wretched mosques, built with wood and straw without, but matted and neat within. It produces plenty of provisions and animals, such as buffaloes, goats, tortoises, or turtles, hens, large harts, camels, rice, pease, honey, cocoa-nut, plantains, oranges, lemons, cucumbers, pumpkins, cucumbers, tamarinds, and sugar-canes. There are several fine streams, and the grass and trees are green all the year; so that, in short, it is a kind of paradise. The cattle here are called buffaloes, because they have a great bunch on their shoulders; but in other respects they are not like those of the E. Indies, and they have a great number of birds, whose names are not known in Europe. Lon. 61. 5. lat. S. 12. 0.

MOHILOF, a large and strong town of Poland, in Lithuania, and in the palatinate of Mscislaw. It is populous, well built, and passes for one of the strongest places in Poland, having a considerable trade. Near this place the Swedes obtained a victory over the Russians in 1707. It is seated on the river Nieper, 35 miles S. of Orsa, and 52 S. W. of Mscislaw. Lon. 49. 20. lat. 50. 28.

* MOISSAC, an ancient town of France in Quercy, with a secular abbey. It is rich, and agreeably seated on the river Tarn, near the Garonne. Lon. 19. 2. lat. 44. 8.

MORA, an ancient town of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terradi-Lavoro. They pretend to shew here the ruins of Cicero's house. It is seated on the gulph of Venice, 7 miles E. of Bari. Lon. 35. 25. lat. 41. 5.

* MOLD, a town of Flintshire in N. Wales, 5 miles S. of Flint, with five fairs; on Feb. 13, March 21, May 12, Aug. 2, and Nov. 22, for cattle.

MOLDAVIA, a province of Turkey in Europe, bounded on the N. by the river Niefter, which separates it from Podolia, on the S. by the Danube, which divides it from Bulgaria, on the W. by Black Russia, Transilvania, and Walachia, and on the E. by Beifarabia, being 270 miles in length, and 210 in breadth. The principal rivers are the Pruth, the Molda, and the Bardalach. The soil is rich, and it abounds in good pastures, which feed a great number of horses, oxen, and sheep; and it produces corn, pulse, honey, wax, many European fruits, with plenty of game, fish, and fowls. The inhabitants are Christians of the Greek church, and Jassy is the principal town. The Turks oblige the prince, who is appointed by them, to pay a large tribute, and to raise a large body of troops, at his own expence, in time of war.

* MOLDAW, a river of Turkey in Europe, which has its source in Transilvania, and running on the confines of Proper Walachia and Moldavia, falls into the Seret at Taugorod.

MOLDIVIA ISLANDS, are a cluster of small isles S. W. of the island of Ceylon in the E. Indies. They lie from lat. 7. 2. N. to 11. 0. S. and are all low, sandy, and barren, bearing no sort of corn, nor little else except cocoa-nuts. The trees are not so high nor so thick as those of the continent, but their fruit is more pleasant; with these trees they build vast sets of the burthen of 50 tons, and from them they have all their resin. They also make oil with the fruit for their kitchens and lamps. The seas about these islands produce abundance of fish; but their chief trade is in coaries, a small shell fish, whose shells serve instead of money. The religion of the inhabitants is Paganism and Mahometanism, and the king resides in an island that lies in lat. of 4 deg. N. The number of these islands are so many, and so near each other, that they never could yet be exactly numbered. The inhabitants are very poor, and generally go naked; nor indeed is it scarce possible they should be otherwise, they not having money or commodities to purchase cloaths.

MOUR, a river in Surry, which runs underground from Boxhill, near Dorking, till it comes near Leatherhead, where it appears again.

MOLINA, a strong town of Spain in New Castile, seated on the river Gallo, in a territory abounding in pastures, 35 miles S. E. of Siguenza, and 88 N. E. of Madrid. Lon. 15. 55. lat. 50. 58.

* MOLISE, a territory of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, lying between the Terra-di-Lavoro, Hither Abruzzo, the Capitinata, and the Farther Principato. It is in the form of a triangle, whose sides are 39 miles in length. It is a mountainous country, but yet is fertile in corn, wine, saffron, and silk. The capital town is of the same name.

MOLISE, a town of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and capital of a territory of the same name. It is thin of people, and daily runs to decay. It is 50 miles N. E. of Naples. Lon. 33. 10. lat. 41. 40.

MOLLEN, a strong town of Germany in Lower Saxony, and in the duchy of Lauenburg. It belongs to the city of Lubeck, and is seated on the river Stekinens, 16 miles N. of Lauenburg. Lon. 28. 5. lat. 54. 0.

* MOLOME, an abbey of France in Champagne, and in the diocese of Langres. It is of the Benedictine order, and is reckoned very rich.

* MOLSHEIM, a town of France in Alsace, seated on the river Bruch, 8 miles from Straßburg. There is an handsome char- treuse, which, with the Jesuits house, takes up a good part of the town. It is 248 miles E. of Paris. Lon. 25. 10. lat. 48. 32.

MOLUCCA ISLANDS lie in the E. Indian sea under the Line, of which there are five principal, namely, Ternate, Tydor, Machian, Motyr, and Bachian. The largest of them are hardly 30 miles in circumference. They produce neither corn, rice, nor cattle, except goats; but they have oranges, lemons, and other fruits; and they eat sago instead of bread: however, they are most remarkable for spices, especially cloves. They have large snakes, which are not venomous, and very dangerous land crocodiles. At present they have three kings; and the Dutch, who are very strong there, keep out all other European nations, being jealous of their spice trade. Their religion is idolatry, but there are many Mahometans. They were discovered by the Portuguese in 1511, who settled upon their coasts; but the Dutch drove them away, and are now masters of them all.

MOLWITZ, a town of Silesia in the province of Grotzka, remarkable for a battle which the Prussians gained over the Austrians in April 1741. It is 40 miles S. of Breslaw. Lon. 34. 20. lat. 50. 26.

MOMBAZA, or MONBAZA, a town of Africa, in an island of the same name, with a castle and a fort. It is seated on the eastern coast of Africa, opposite to the country of Mombaza in Zanguebar, 70 miles S. of Melinda, and subject to Portugal. Lon. 65. 35. lat. 44. 0.

MOMBAZA, a country of Africa in Zanguebar, subject to the Portuguese, from whence they export slaves, gold, ivory, rice, flesh, and other provisions, with which they supply the settlements in Brazil. The king of this country being a Christian, had a quarrel with the Portuguese governor, took the cattle by assault, turned Mahometan, and murdered all the Christians in 1631; but in 1729 they became masters of this territory again.

MONA, an island of Denmark, in the Baltic-Sea, seated to the S. W. of the Isle of Zealand, from whence it is separated by a narrow channel. Lon. 30. 5. lat. 55. 20.

MONACO, a small, but handsome and strong town of Italy, in the territory of Genoa, with a castle, a citadel, and a good harbour. It is very strong by nature, being seated on a craggy rock, and has its own prince, under the protection of France, who keep a garrison here, so that they may be said to be masters of it. The rock stretches out into the sea, and is 3 miles S. W. of Ventimiglia, 5 N. E. of Villa Franca, and 8 N. E. of Nice. Lon. 25. 8. lat. 43. 48.

MONAGHAN, a county of Ireland, in the province of Ulster, 32 miles in length, and 22 in breadth, bounded on the N. by Tyrone, on the E. by Armagh, on the S. by Cavan and Louth, and on the W. by Fermanagh. It is full of woods and bogs, and a third part of it is taken up by Lough Earne. It contains 9587 houses, 24 parishes, 5 baronies, and one borough, and sends 4 members to parliament, 2 for the county, and 2 for Monaghan.

* MONASTER, an ancient town of Africa, in the kingdom of Tunis, pleasantly seated feated near the sea, 70 miles S. E. of Tunis. Lon. 28. 40. lat. 36. 0.

 MONGHAM, a village in Kent, with one fair, on October 29, for cattle and pedlars ware.

MONJUIC, or MONTJOY, a castle of Spain, in Catalonia, which stands a mile W. of Barcelona, and was taken by the English in 1705.

 MONGUIS, or MUNGALS, a people who inhabit a country to the N. of China, and are of the same original as those who accompanied Tamerlane in the conquest of India, Perù, and other countries, and are called in most histories Moguls. It is a country very little known, except that part of it which the caravans pass through in travelling from Moscow to China. They are generally of a middle size, but strongly made, with large, flat faces, flat noses, and their eyes black and large. Their complexion is tawney, their hair black and coarse, like horse hair, and they cut it close to the head, leaving only a tuft at the top. They have very little beard, and wear very large shirts, and calice drawers. There are two sorts of these people, whose language, religion, and customs, are very different. Those of the East have fixed habitations, but they have little or no religion. Those of the West wear garments of sheep-skins, which they fasten about their loins, with leather girdles. Their boots are very large, and they have caps on their heads bordered with fur. The women wear the same sort of garments, and are fairer than the men. They dwell in tents, or little moveable houses, and live entirely on the produce of their cattle, which are, horses, camels, cows, and sheep. They change their commodities for rice, sugar, bohea-tea, tobacco, cotton cloth, and several sorts of household utensils, they not having the use of money. The religio religion of the Monguls of the West is that of Dali-Lami, which is full of ceremonies, not unlike popery; and they tell their beads as the Papists do, but they know nothing of Christ.

* MONHEIM, a town of Germany, in Bavaria, 10 miles from Weissemburg, and 8 from Donawert. Lon. 28. 22. lat. 48. 53.

MONIKEDAM, a town of the United Provinces, in N. Holland, seated on the Zuyder-zee, 8 miles N. E. of Amsterdam, and sends a deputy to the States. Lon. 22. 25. lat. 52. 29.

* MONKTON, a village in Kent, with two fairs, on July 22, fat hogs, and on October 11, for toys.

MONLUZON, a town of France, in Lyonnois, and in the dutchy of Bourbon. It is 45 miles S. of Bourges, and 150 S. of Paris. Lon. 20. 16. lat. 46. 22.

* MONMORILLON, a town of France, in Poitou, seated on the river Cartempe, over which there is a handsome bridge. It is 22 miles from Poitiers. Lon. 18. 30. lat. 46. 28.

MONMOUTH, the county-town of Monmouthshire, with a market on Saturdays, and 3 fairs, on Whit-Tuesday and September 4, for horned cattle, and on November 22, for horned cattle, fat hogs, and cheese. It is pleasantly seated at the confluence of the rivers Wye and Munow, which almost surround it, and over each of which there is a bridge. It was formerly surrounded with a wall and a ditch, and in the midst of the town there is a castle, in ruins. At present it contains two parish-churches, and that called Monk's church is a very curious structure. It sends only one member to parliament. It is 25 miles W. of Gloucester, 52 N. of Bristol, and 127 W. by N. of London. Lon. 14. 55. lat. 51. 47.

MONMOUTHSHIRE, an English county, 53 miles in length and 22 in breadth, bounded on the N. E. by Herefordshire, on the S. E. by the river Severn, which separates it from Gloucestershire and Somersetshire, and on the W. by Brecknockshire and Glamorganshire. It contains 6000 houses, 58,340 inhabitants, 127 parishes, and 7 market towns. It sends only 3 members to parliament, that is, one for Monmouth, and two for the county. The principal rivers are, the Rimney, the Ebbwith, the Uik, and the great river Wye. The air is healthy and temperate, and the soil fruitful, especially in the valleys, and the hills feed cattle, sheep, and goats. Monmouth is the principal town.

MONOMOTAPA, a kingdom of Africa, bounded on the N. by Monocmugi, and on the other sides by unknown countries. It is watered by several rivers, of which Zambeza is the chief. The air is temperate, and the soil fertile in rice and sugar-canes, which last grow without cultivation. There are a great many ostriches and elephants, with several mines of gold and silver. The houses are built of wood, and covered with plaster, but they have very few towns, of which Monomotapa is the chief. The inhabitants are negroes, who have as many wives or women as they can get. Their religion is Paganism; however, they believe in one God that created the world. The army of the king consists only of foot, for they have no horses in the country. The Portuguese had a settlement here in 1560, but they were all murdered, or forced away, soon after. It lies on the sea-shore, in the southern part of Africa, between 15 and 23 degrees of S. lat.

MONOPOLI, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples and Terra-di-Barri, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the gulph of Venice, 22 miles S. E. of Barri, and 8 E. of Polignano. Lon. 35. 2. lat. 41. 10.

MONS, an ancient, large, handsome, rich, and very strong town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Hainault. It was surrounded with a triple wall, and the fortifications were very fine, as are likewise the publick buildings. There is a chapter, consisting of 30 ladies of distinction, who have the liberty of leaving the community when they intend to marry. They have several manufactures, and a good trade. It was taken by the allies in 1709, and by the French in July 1746, but was rendered back by the treaty of Aix la-Chapelle, after the fortifications were demolished. It stands partly on a hill and partly on a plain, in a marthy soil, on the rivers Haine and Trouille, by which the country about it may be overflowed when they please. It is 17 miles N. E. of Tournay, 10 N. of Maybeuge, 30 N. E. of Cambrai, and 57 W. of Namur. Lon. 21. 34. lat. 50. 25.

MONSANTO, a town of Spain, in Estremadura, which is a frontier place, and strongly fortified. It was invested by the the Confederates in 1704, who on that occasion gained a considerable victory over the Spaniards. Lon. 10. 5. lat. 39. 50.

all the trade. This is carried on by land with the Negroes, to whom they send large caravans, who travel over vast deserts, almost destitute of water. They carry with them woollen manufactures, silk, salt, and other things, and, in return, they have slaves, gold, and elephants teeth. Out of the slaves the emperor recruits his cavalry. They also send large caravans to Mecca every year, partly out of devotion, and partly for trade, consisting of several thousand camels, horses, and mules. Their commodities are woollen manufactures, Morocco leather, indigo, cochineal, and ostrich feathers, in return for which they have silks, muslins, calicoes, coffee, and drugs. In the deserts there are lions, tygers, leopards, and serpents of several kinds. The fruits are dates, figs, almonds, lemons, oranges, pomegranates, and many others. They have also flax and hemp, but little timber. The naval force consists chiefly of rovers, who now and then take large prizes, especially those belonging to Saltee. The emperor is absolute, his will being a law, and he often exercises very great cruelties. His usual taxes are, one tenth of the goods of his Mahometan subjects, and six crowns a year of the Jews; but the emperor often breaks thro' these rules, and seizes what he pleases. He can bring 100,000 men into the field, half of which are foot, and half horse, but they are poorly armed, and know little of the art of war.

MOROCCO, the capital city of the kingdom of Morocco, in Barbary. It is seated in a very large plain, on the river Niffis, 250 miles S. by W. of Fez, 125 N. W. of Sus, and 15 from mount Atlas. It was surrounded by a strong wall, fortified with towers and some bulwarks, and encompassed with deep ditches. The number of houses were reckoned formerly to be 100,000, all with flat roofs, but they are now greatly diminished, inso-much that the greatest part of the city is unpeopled. The irruptions and robberies of the Arabs hinder them from cultivating the lands about it, inso-much that there is nothing but vines, date-trees, and some other fruits. There were three temples or mosques in this place, which were of a prodigious size, and the emperor's palace was so large, and took up so much ground, that it resembled a small city. A late traveller affirms, that the inhabitants now are not above 25,000, and that the houses go to ruin every day, without being rebuilt. This may happen in part from the removal of the court from hence, which is now at Mequinez. Lon. 10. 50. lat. 30. 32.

MORON, a town of Spain in Andalusia, seated in a pleasant fertile plain, and in the neighbourhood there is a mine of precious stones. It is 30 miles S. E. of Seville. Lon. 12. 15. lat. 37. 0.

MORFETH, a town of Northumberland, with a market on Wednesdays, and two fairs, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday se'nnight before Whit-Sunday, for horned cattle, sheep, and horses; and on Wednesday before July 22, for a few horned cattle. It is seated on the river Wenfpeck, and is a handsome thorough-fare-town, which has a castle still standing, and it sends two members to parliament. The market is very large for corn, cattle, and provisions. It is 41 miles S. of Berwick, 23 N. of Durham, and 291 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 20. lat. 55. 15.

MORS, a town and castle of Germany in Westphalia, seated near the Rhine, and belonging to the duchy of Cleves. It is 17 miles N. W. of Dusseldorp, and 12 S. E. of Gueldres. Lon. 24. 15. lat. 51. 23.

gundy, lying along the river Yonne. It produces nothing but rye and wine; but there are good pastures, which feed a great number of cattle, in which they carry on a considerable trade.

MORVEDRO, an ancient town of Spain in Valencia, built on the ruins of the an-

MOSAMBIQUE, a kingdom of Africa, lying on the coast of Zanguebar, and the most considerable thereon. Vafques de Gama, landing on this coast in 1497, the Portuguese took an occasion to settle there, and seized on the town of Mo-sambique, the capital of the country, and have kept possession of it to this day. It is bounded on the N. by Quiloa, on the E. by the ocean, on the S. by the river Zambeze, and on the W. by Moneemugi. The king, who is a Mahometan, still supports his dignity, tho' he has lost his capital. The air of this country is very unwholesome, whence it is but thin of people; and the Portuguese themselves would not stay there if the trade was not very large.

MOSAMBIQUE, the capital town of a kingdom of the same name, lying on the eastern coast of Africa in Zanguabar. It is seated on a small island about 3 miles in length, and half as much in breadth.
It is a large, handsome, rich, and well-fortified town, having a strong citadel which defends the harbour. It is the same to the Portuguese, as the Cape of Good Hope is to the Dutch; for which reason there is generally a good garrison; but the Portuguese governor is changed every three years. They have built feveral churches and monasteries, and they trade with the natives for gold, elephants teeth, and slaves. Their ships always call here in going to the E. Indies; and the harbour is so commodious, that whole fleets may winter here, and rest their vessels, as well as provide themselves with all necessaries; and they have a large hospital for sick sailors. Lon. 57.

MOSCOW, the empire of. See RUSSIA.

MOSCOW, the dutchy of, a province of the western part of the Russian empire, bounded on the N. by the province of Tweer, on the E. by Nise Novogorod, on the S. by Rezan, and on the W. by Smolentko. It takes its name from the principal town.

Moscow, a town or city of the Russian empire, in the dutchy of Moscow, of which it is the capital. It is divided into four parts, of which that in the middle is called Kitaigorod, and is surrounded with a strong wall of red stones, and it contains the royal palace. The church of the Annunciation has a vast vault, wherein are the tombs of the Czars. It has nine towers, and is covered with gilded plates of copper, as are all the other churches. This part also contains the military school, the printing-house, the library, the mint, and the apothec-ary's magazine, belonging to the emperor, wherein the drugs are kept in fine vessels of porcelain or chryystal. The second part called Czargorod, is in the form of a half-moon, and is surrounded by a wall of white stone. Here the people of distinction have their palaces; and there is likewise a foundery of great guns.
The third is named Zemlergorod, and is surrounded with ramparts. Here the meaner sort of people live, where they expose to sale wooden houses, which may be transported from one place to another. The fourth part is called Streliz-za-Slaboda, because it was formerly inhabited by Strelitzes, a sort of soldiers.
Besides these there is a large suburb, where the German soldiers lodge; and there are many rich inhabitants, who have handsome houses, inasmuch that the suburb may be said to make a better appearance than the city. In general, Moscow contains 2000 churches, two of which are for the Lutherans, and one for the Calvinists. The ordinary houses are but one story high, and fo wretchedly

wretchedly furnished, that a fire cannot do any great damage. In 1737 there was a fire which consumed 30000 houses in 18 hours time. This city is now going to decay, since an order has been published, that no more houses shall be built except on old foundations; and this was done in favour of Peterburg. There is such a crowd of beggars and vagabonds here, that there is no going out in the night without a guard. Peter the Great has cut a canal from Moscow to Peterburg. It is 440 miles N. of Caffa, 460 S. E. of Peterburg, 800 E. of Stockholm, 600 N. E. of Constantinople, 2100 N. E. of Vienna, and 1400 E. N. E. of London. Lon. 58. 0. lat. 55. 56.

MOSCOWA, a river of the Russian empire, which has its source in the duchy of Moscow, and running E. through that province, passes by the city of Moscow, and falls into the river Oeka a Kolumna.

MOSELLE, a large river, which has its source in the mountains of Vauze, on the confines of Alsace; and having crossed Lorrain, and one part of Luxemburg, and the archbishopric of Triers, or Treves, falls into the Rhine at Coblentz. It receives several streams as it passes along, and the places it runs by are Remont, Eipinal, Toul, Metz, Thionville, Treves, Mont-Royal, Traerbach, and Coblentz.

MOSKITO-COUNTRY lies in N. America, between 13 and 15 degrees of latitude, being bounded on the N. and E. by the N. sea, on the S. by Nicaragua, and on the W. by Honduras. The Spaniards have no settlements in this country, because when they first invaded Mexico they massacred a great part of the inhabitants, which gave those that escaped such an aversion to them, that they will join with any Europeans against the Spaniards. These people are tall, well-made, raw-boned, lusty, strong, and nimble of foot, with long faces, straight combs black hair, stern looks, hard features, and dark copper-coloured skins. They are very ingenious in throwing all sorts of darts, and they never go abroad without a lance in their hands. Their chief employment is to strike fish, turtles, and manates, inasmuch that one or two of these in a ship are able to maintain 100 men.

MOSUL, or MOSUL, a town of Turkey in Asia, and in Diarbeck. It is seated on the western bank of the river Tygris, nearly opposite to the place where Nineveh formerly stood. It is a large place, surrounded with high walls, but the houses are ill-built, and in several places gone to ruin; however, it has a strong castle and a citadel. It is a place of great trade, particularly in cloth and all sorts of cottons and silks. At some distance from Mosul there is a mosque, in which they pretend the prophet Jonah lies. The inhabitants are generally Mahometans; but there are a great number of Nestorian Christians, who deny the doctrine of the Trinity. In 1743 it was besieged by the Persians, but to no purpose. It is 130 miles S. E. of Diarbe-

* MUNDIGORS, the name of a people who live on the sides of the river Gambia in Africa, and who are of a jet black colour, strong, and well made. When this country was conquered by the Portuguese, some of that nation settled here; and by colabating with the negro women, are become almost as black as they. They still retain a sort of bastard Portuguese language, and they have a priest sent over every year from one of the Cape Verde islands, to christen and marry. They are greatly offended at being called Negroes, thinking that name only belongs to slaves.

MUNDBERKINGEN, a town of Germany in Suabia, seated on the river Danube, 25 miles S. W. of Ulm. Lon. 27. 18. lat. 48. 15.

MUNGATS, or MUNKATS, a town of Upper Hungary, with a bishop's see, and an impregnable castle, seated on a high rock, 50 miles N. E. of Tokay. Lon. 39. 35. lat. 48. 30.

* MUNIA, or MENIE, an ancient and considerable town of Africa in Egypt, seated on the river Nile, 140 miles S. of Cairo. The vessels that go down the Nile are obliged to stop here and pay certain duties. There are several mosques, and a great number of Granite pillars. Lon. 49. 55. lat. 26. 15.

MUNICH, a town of Germany, and capital of the electorate and dutchy of Bavaria, where the elector commonly resides. It is surrounded by thick walls, bulwarks, and deep ditches, but otherwise is not a very strong place. The houses are high, and the streets large and spacious, there being canals running through many of them. The electoral palace is seated at the extremity of the town, and contains 206 windows, 20 large halls, 1 courts, 9 galleries, 16 kitchens, and 12 cellars. It is thought to be one of the most magnificent, large, and commodious palaces in Europe. After the battle of Hochstet, the duke of Marlborough carried away a great many fine pictures from hence into England. In 1720 this palace was set on fire, and did immense damage; however, it was rebuilt some time after. The cabinet of curiosities, the library, the arsenal, and the elector's gardens, deserve the attention of a traveller. The cathedral church contains 24 large columns, 25 chapels, and 30 altars; but the two steeples, and the tomb of one of the emperors, are of black marble, adorned with statues of bronze, and are the most remarkable things belonging to it. The Jesuits church is embellished on the inside with Mosaic work, and the college has 800 windows on one side only. This place has often been taken and retaken in the wars of Germany; and particularly in 1742, it was forced to submit to the Austrians, and the inhabitants were obliged to pay 25000 francs by way of contribution. It is seated on the river Iser, 15 miles S. E. of Augsburg, 62 S. of Ratibon, 90 S. by E. of Nuremberg, 175 S. W. of Prague, and 212 W. of Vienna. Lon. 29. 15. lat. 48. 2.

MUNSTER, the bishoprick of, lies in the circle of Westphalia in Germany, and is very considerable, being 120 miles in length, and 80 in breadth. The river Ems runs through the middle of it, from E. to W. It is bounded on the N. by the counties of Bentheim and Steinfurt, on the E. by the bishopricks of Osnabrug and Paderborn, on the S. by the county of Mark, and on the W. by the dutchies of Cleves and Zutphen, and is at present subject to the elector of Cologne. The capital town is of the same name.

MUNSTER, a large, rich, populous, and famous town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, capital of the bishoprick of the same name, whose bishop is one of the sovereign princes of the empire. It contains 9 gates, 5 abbeys, 6 parishes, and many valuable houses of both sexes.

It is defended by a strong citadel, which stands distinct from the city, and was free and imperial till 1661; and to keep the inhabitants in awe, this citadel was built. In 1533 a taylor, called John of Leyden, made himself master of this city, and drove away the bishop and magistrates: but it was taken from him in 1536, after 14 months siege, when he was tortured to death with red-hot pincers. The famous treaty was concluded here in 1648, which put an end to the religious wars of 30 years continuance. It is seated on the river Aa, 70 miles N. by E. of Cologne, 77 S. by W. of Bremen, 77 N. MUNSTER, one of the four provinces of Ireland, which is bounded on the E. and S. E. by the province of Leinster, on the W. by the Western Ocean, on the N. by the province of Connaught, from which it is separated by the river Shannon, and on the S. and S. W. by the ocean. It is about 135 miles in length, and 120 in breadth. The chief rivers are the Sure, the Audluffe, the Lee, the Bande, the Leane, and the Cashon. There are a great many bays and harbours, and many rich towns, and the air is mild and temperate. Some places are mountainous, but the valleys below are embellished with corn fields. The most general commodities are corn, cattle, wood, wool, and fish. It contains 5 counties, namely, Tipperary, Waterford, Cork, Limerick, and Kerry; as also one archbishoprick, 5 bishopricks, 109,743 houses, 740 parishes, 63 baronies, and 26 boroughs. The principal town is Waterford, though Limerick is a remarkable place.

• MURANO, an island of Italy, with a town of the same name, which they call a second Venice, and which the Venetians frequent for pleasure. It is only a quarter of a mile from Venice. Lon. 30. 1. lat. 45. 32.

MURCIA, a kingdom in Spain so called, bounded on the N. by New Castile, on the E. by the kingdom of Valencia, on the W. by Andaluja and Granada, and on the S. by the Mediterranean-Sea. It is about 62 miles in length, and 58 in breadth, and its principal river is Segura. The soil is dry because it seldom rains, and therefore it produces little corn or wine, but there is plenty of oranges, citrons, lemons, olives, almonds, mulberries, rice, pulse, and sugar. It has also a great deal of silk. It was taken from the Moors in 1265. The air is very healthful, and the principal town is of the same name.

MURCIA, a large, handsome, and populous town of Spain, capital of a kingdom of the same name, with a bishop's see. It contains 6 parishes and a superb cathedral, the stairs of whose steeple are so contrived, that a man may ride up to the top either on horseback or in a coach. It is seated in a pleasant plain, which abounds in fine gardens about the city, in which are the best fruits in Spain. It is seated on the river Segura, 27 miles N. of Carthagena, 37 S. W. of Alicant, 112 S. of Valencia, and 212 S. E. of Madrid. Lon. 16. 59. lat. 37. 48.

MURET, a town of France, in Gascony, and in the county of Comminges. It is seated on the river Garonne, 10 miles S. of Toulouze. Lon. 19. 5. lat. 43. 30.

MURO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Basilicata, with a bishop's see. It is seated at the foot of the Appennines, 12 miles S. E. of Conza, and 22 S. W. of Cirenza. Lon. 33. 10. lat. 40. 45.

MURRAY, a county of Scotland, bounded on the N. by the German Ocean, on the E. by Bamf, on the S. by Mar and Badenoch, and on the W. by Inverness. The climate and soil of this country is the best in all the N. of Scotland, and the inhabitants boast they have 40 clearer days than any of their neighbours. It is in general a champaign, low county, intermixed with pleasant hills. The soil is a mixture of sand and clay, which is very fruitful when manured. The principal rivers are, the Ness, the Spey, the Nairn, the Pindorn, and the Lossie. The chief town is Inverness. The rivers abound with fish, particularly salmon.

• MURHART, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and dutchy of Wirtemberg, with a Benedictine abbey. It is seated on the river Mur, 8 miles from Hall. Lon. 27. 26. lat. 49. 8.

MUSLEBOROUGH, a sea-port town of Scotland, in the shire of Lothian, seated on the frith of Forth, at the mouth of the river Esk. It is remarkable for a victory obtained here by the English over the Scotch, in the reign of Edward VI. It is 6 miles E. of Edinburgh. Lon. 14. 50. lat. 56. 0.

MUSTAGAM, a sea-port town of Africa, in the Kingdom of Algiers, with a good castle and a harbour, 140 miles W. of the city of Algiers. Lon. 17. 35. lat. 36. 30.

* MOURAS, a village of Carmarthenshire, in S. Wales, with one fair, on August 21, for cattle, sheep, and pedlars ware.

MUZACRA, a sea-port town of Spain, in the kingdom of Granada, with a strong castle seated on a mountain. It is 27 miles N. of Almeri, and 62 S. W. of Cartagena. Lon. 16. 18. lat. 36. 34.

MUYDEN, a town of Holland, seated on the river Vecht, on the S. coast of the Zuyder-zee, 7 miles E. of Amsterdam. Lon. 22. 20. lat. 52. 19.

MYCENE, formerly the capital town of a famous kingdom in Morea, which is now reduced to a small village.

MYCONE, an island of the Archipelago, about 30 miles in circumference. The harbour is very open, and deep enough for the largest ships, where they may ride secure from the N. wind. There are about 500 sea faring men in the island, which belong to about 150 vessels of all sorts, and they are accounted pretty good sailors. The soil is dry, and the mountains are of a great height. The inhabitants lose their hair soon after 20 years, and yet they are a comely, handsome people. Water is very scarce in the summer-time, but in the town there is a large well, which is the only one in the island. This place contains about 3000 inhabitants, but for one man there are four women, who are often seen lying among the hogs in the open streets. In this island there are plenty of partridges, quails, woodcocks, turtle-doves, rabbits, and wheatears; besides which there are excellent grapes and delicious figs. Almost all the inhabitants are Greeks, who have fifty churches in all; but there are many chapels, and some monasteries. Two or three European nations have consuls here, and yet there are very few ships frequent it that carry on much trade. The habits of the women are very disagreeable, and yet an ordinary suit of the better sort will cost 200 crowns; but then these cloaths generally last their life-time. Lon. 43. 26. lat. 37. 28.

* MYDRIM, a village of Carmarthenshire, in S. Wales, with one fair, on March 12, for cattle, horses, and flannel.

MYSIA, formerly a country of Asia Minor, now called Natolia, which had Treas on the W. Phrygia on the E. and the Propontis to the N.

- town of the Netherlands, capital of the county of Namur, with a strong castle, several forts, and a bishop's see. The most considerable forts are, Fort-William, Fort-Maefe, Fort-Coquelet, and Fort-Espinor. The castle is built in the middle of the town, on a craggy rock. It was besieged by king William in 1695, who took it in the sight of an army of 100,000 French, though there was 60,000 men in garrison. Namur is now a barrier town, and has a Dutch garrison. The bishop's palace is a superb structure. It was ceded to the house of Austria in 1713, but it was taken by the French in 1746, and rendered back by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. It is seated between two mountains, at the confluence of the rivers Maefe and Sambre, 12 miles S. W. of Huy, 15 N. of Dinant, 30 S. W. of Liege, 32 S. W. of Bruffels, 30 S. by W. of Louvain, 37 E. of Mons, and 150 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 32. lat. 50. 25.
- NAMUR, the county of, a province of the Netherlands, lying between the rivers Sambre and Maefe, bounded on the N. by Brabant, on the E. and S. by the bishoprick of Liege, and on the W. by Hainault. It is pretty fertile, and has several forests, marble-quarries, and mines of iron, lead, and pit-coal, being about 30 miles in length, and 20 in breadth. Namur is the capital town.
- NANCY, a town of France, in Lorraine, seated on the river Meuse, in the center of Lorraine, of which it is the capital. It is divided into the old town and the new, and the first, though irregularly built, is very populous, and contains the ducal palace. The streets of the new are as straight as a line, and is adorned with handsome buildings, and a very fine square. The primatial church is a magnificent structure, and in that of the Cordeliers are the tombs of the ancient dukes. These two towns are separated by a canal, and the new was very well fortified, but the king of France has demolished the works. It has been taken and retaken several times, particularly by the French. It was ceded to France by the treaty of Vienna in 1736, who is to enjoy it after the death of king Stanislaus. It is 10 miles E. of Toul, 25 S. E. of Metz, 62 S. E. of Luxemburg, and 75 W. of Strasbourg. Lon. 23. 52. lat. 48. 21.
- NANFIO, an island of the Archipelago, a little to the N. of the island of Santorino, which which is 16 miles in circumference, and has no harbour. The mountains are nothing but bare rocks, and there are not springs sufficient to water the fields. The inhabitants are all Greeks, and are an idle sort of people, whose trade consists in onions, wax, and honey. There are a vast number of partridges, whose eggs they destroy every year, to preserve the corn, which has not the desired effect, for there are always great numbers of them. The ruins of the temple of Apollo are yet to be seen, which consist chiefly of marble columns. Lon. 43. 55. lat. 36. 15.

NANGASACKI, a large and famous town of Japan, in the island of Ximo-Fisen, with a well-frequented harbour. The inhabitants are very debauched, and they carry on a great trade with the Chinese and Dutch. The Dutch are never suffered to come into the city, unless when their ships arrive, and then they deliver up their guns, helms, and sails, as pledges of their good behaviour. Lon. 151. 0. lat. 32. 36.

NANKING, a city of China, and capital of the province of Kiangnan. It is the largest in China, being 17 miles in circumference, and is about three miles distant from the great river Yang-tse-Chiang, from which there are canals cut, so large that vessels may enter the town. This place is greatly fallen from its ancient splendour, for it had a magnificent palace, which is quite destroyed, as well as many ancient monuments, and a third part of the city itself is quite desolate. The streets are narrow, but handsome and well paved, and on each side are shops, neatly furnished. The publick buildings are mean, except a few temples, the city-gates, and a tower of porcelain 200 feet high. They have several manufactures in silk and wool. The number of the inhabitants are said to be 1,000,000, without comprehending the garrison of 40,000 men, and here the physicians have their principal academy. It is 600 miles S. E. of Peking. Lon. 137. 0. lat. 32. 46.

NANSAWUND, a county of N. America, in Virginia, so called from a river of that name which runs through it.

NANTES, an ancient, rich, and very considerable town of France, in Bretagne, with a bishop's see, an university, and a mint. It is one of the most considerable places in the kingdom, and contains the richest merchants. It was formerly the residence of the dukes of Bretagne, where they built a very strong castle on the side of the river, and which is strongly fortified. There are several parishes, and a great many religious houses, and the cathedral contains the tombs of the ancient dukes. There are several fine bridges over the river Loire, on which it is seated, and on which there are vessels come full of rich merchandizes. The suburbs are so large, on account of the number of people that come from all parts to settle here, that they are much larger than the city. The Spaniards trade here with wine, fine wool, iron, silk, oil, oranges, and lemons, and they carry back cloth, stuffs, corn, and hardware. The Dutch send there salt-fish, and all sorts of spices; and in return have wine and brandy. The Swedes bring copper, and the English lead, tin, and pit-coal. It was in this place that Henry IV. promulgated the famous edict of Nantes, in 1598, and which was revoked in 1685. It is 37 miles S. W. of Angiers, 67 N. by W. of Rochelle, and 217 S. W. of Paris. Lon. 16. 6. lat. 47. 13. The territory of Nantes lies on both sides the Loir, and feeds a great number of cattle. Large vessels can come no higher than port Launai, which is 12 miles from Nantes.

* NANTGLIS, a village of Denbighshire, in N. Wales, with two fairs, on May 6, and October 27, for cattle.

NANTUA, a town of France, in Bugey, with a rich Benedictine priory. It is seated on a large lake of the same name, 22 miles S. E. of Bourg-en-Bresse. Lon. 23. 18. lat. 46. 8.

NANTUCKET, an island of N. America, in New-England, whose inhabitants chiefly apply themselves to the whale-fishery. It is 80 miles S. of Boston. Lon. 307. 35. lat. 41. 0.

* NAOPURA, a town of Asia, in Indostan, and in the kingdom of Decan, seated on the river Tapti. Its territory produces the best rice in all the E. Indies. Lon. 91. 30. lat. 21. 20.

NAPLES, an ancient, large, rich, and trading town of Italy, and one of the finest in the world, being capital of a kingdom of the same name, with an archbishop's see, an university, and four castles. It is seated on the sea-coast, surrounded with strong walls, regular bastions, strong towers, deep ditches, and several fortified castles. It is 15 miles in circumference, and has 7 large suburbs, suburbs, in which, and the city, they reckon 300,000 inhabitants. There are three forts, which were built on purpose to keep the city in awe, one of which, called St. Elmo, stands on a high hill, and is said to be impregnable; the castle d' Ovo defends the harbour, and is seated on the sea, upon a rock; the other is Castel Nuovo, which stands near the sea-side, at a small distance from the royal palace. In this is the governor's palace, an arsenal, and the richest cabinet of curiosities in Europe. The streets of Naples are large, straight, and paved with free-stone. The houses are all built with stone, generally in the modern taste, and very well furnished. There are a great many palaces, on account of the nobility who chuse to reside here. That of the king is extremely large, and magnificently furnished. The convents and churches are surprizingly magnificent, and it is a doubt whether those at Rome surpass them or not. The finest of all is the cathedral, and the chapel where the blood of St. Januarius is kept. It is built in the modern taste, and is remarkable, as well on account of the statues of bronze, as the fine paintings contained therein. Here they make excellent soap, fine cloths, and all sorts of stuffs; and their wine and oil are excellent, and in great plenty. The air is pure, serene, and healthy, and the weather in winter is very mild. In short it would be a perfect paradise, if they were not liable to frequent earthquakes, and those in 1702, 1703, 1706, and 1744, were very terrible. The harbour is large enough to contain 500 vessels, where they may ride secure, without being endangered by the violence of the waves, which break against the mole. At the extremity of this there is a very fine light house, and near it there is a spring of sweet-water. It is 208 miles S. E. of Rome. Lon. 31. 45. lat. 40. 55.

NAPLES, a kingdom in the S. part of Italy, which has undergone a great many changes. The Normans became masters of it in the eleventh century; and the sovereigns were called counts, then dukes, and afterwards Kings of Puglia: but in 1282, Peter III. king of Arragon, caused all the Normans to be massacred; and this massacre was called the Sicilian Vespers. After this Puglia was joined to Sicily, whence the sovereigns had the title of, The King of the Two Sicilies, for about 260 years past. It has been called the kingdom of Naples, from the city of that name, which is the capital. The French entered it again in 1504, but were driven away, and then it became under the dominion of Spain; but the archduke Charles, afterwards the emperor Charles VI. got possession of it in 1706. In 1736 it was given to Don Carlos, by the treaty of Vienna, who was lately in possession of it, but is now king of Spain, and was succeeded by his second son. This kingdom is a fief of the church, and the king pays to the pope every year a purse of 70,000 crowns of gold, and a white hackney. This kingdom is a sort of a peninsula, and is bounded on three sides by the Mediterranean sea, and on the N. by the territory of the Church. It is about 250 miles in length, and 70 in breadth. The Appennine mountains cross the whole country from E. to W. and divide it into two parts, like two amphitheatres. The soil contains a great mixture of sulphur, of which there are a great many mines, and several volcanoes. The heat of the country is greatly owing to this; and for this reason the fruits become perfectly ripe. These are oranges, lemons, citrons, pomegranates, almonds, dates, capers, bay-berries, and figs. Besides these they have sugar, aniseed, pepper, and manna. The wine that is produced here is excellent; and the best of this is called Lacrymæ Christi. This country is not less rich in flax, hemp, cotton, olive, honey, wax, iron, and allum: likewise deer, fish, and fowls, are very common. The Neapolitan horses are in high esteem here. As this kingdom has been peopled by different nations, one may readily conclude, that this mixture has produced strange effects; for the Neapolitans have not only the vices of the original natives, but those of several other foreign nations. Those who live in the country are greatly addicted to hunting, and are very fond of hories; but those in the cities, pass their time in going to shews and spectacles. The ladies are greatly addicted to gallantry; and though their husbands are jealous, they find means to deceive them. The common people are so inclined to knavery and theft, that, in Calabria, one would think the seventh commandment was quite forgot. There was a time when Italy swarmed with vagabonds, called banditti, who made robbing a business. Some of these companies were so bold and formidable, that if they intended to murder any one, he seldom escaped. This was carried so far, that not only travellers were assassinated in their inns; but they sent letters to persons of quality, requiring them to lay such a sum of money in a certain place, unless they were willing to be murdered. But now this terrible race of men is quite extirpated, and the roads are free from robberies. The Jews were banished out of this kingdom till the reign of Charles V; but in 1740, the late king allowed them to enter it again for the sake of trade; however, in 1743, and 1744, a terrible plague happening, the churchmen persuaded the king, that it was upon account of the Jews, and so they were expelled the kingdom again. The kingdom of Naples is divided into four large provinces, namely, Terra-di-Lavoro, Abruzzo, Puglia, and Calabria, which are all subdivided into several districts.

NAPOLI DI ROMANIA, a sea-port town of Turkey in Europe, and in the Morca. It is seated at the bottom of a bay of the same name, on a small point of land which advances thereunto. It has a large harbour, with a narrow mouth, through which one ship only can enter at a time. It is a large place, inhabited by 60,000 Greeks, besides those of different nations. It is an archbishop's see, and is very strong both by nature and art. It is 60 miles S. W. of Setines. Lon. 40. 55. lat. 37. 30.

NAPOLI-DI-MALVASIA, a sea-port town of Turkey in Asia, and in the Morca. It is seated on a rock, or little island at the entrance of the gulph of Napoli-di-Romania. It is vastly strong, and defended by a good citadel; has a fine harbour, as also a long wooden bridge which joins it to Terra-firma. It gives name to that excellent wine, called, in French, malvoisie, and, in English, malmsey. It was anciently noted for the temple of Æsculapius, and is 40 miles S. E. of Napoli-di-Romania. Lon. 41. 5. lat. 36. 51.

• NARA, a rich and handsome town of Japan, in the island of Niphon, with a magnificent castle. It is 25 miles from Meaco. Lon. 150. 50. lat. 36. 10.

• NARBART, a town of Pembrokehire in S. Wales, with a market on Wednesdays, and five fairs, viz. on March 21, June 4, July 5, Sept. 26, and Dec. 11, for cattle, horses, and sheep. It is seated on a hill, and is a petty good town, with an old castle, 12 miles N. E. of Pembroke, and 199 W. by N. of London. Lon. 12. 49. lat. 51. 50.

NARBONNE, an ancient and large town of France in Lower Languedoc, with an archbishop's see, and famous for its honey. It is seated on a canal cut from the river Aude, which being but 5 miles from the sea, there are vessels come up it laden with merchandises, which render it a place of great trade. It is a very ancient place, being built in the time of the Romans, and the ruins of a capitol, an amphitheatre, and several other buildings still remain. It is divided into the city and the town, which are joined together by a bridge, with houses on each side, in which the richest merchants live. There are several churches and convents, and the metropolitan-church has a handsome steeple. It is 15 miles N. E. of Perpignan, 47 S. W. of Montpellier, and 75 E. by S. of Toulouse. Lon. 20. 41. lat. 43. 11.

NARBOROUGH, an island of S. America, in the S. Sea, and on the coast of Chili. It is so called because Sir John Narborough refreshed his men here, when he was sent to the S. Sea in the reign of king Charles II. Lon. 273. 0. lat. S. 45. 0.

NARDO, a pretty populous town in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terra d'Otranto, with the title of a duchy and a bishop's see. It is seated in a plain, 20 miles N. W. of d'Otranto, and 27 S. of Brindisi. Lon. 35. 45. lat. 40. 36.

NARENDA, a town of Turkey in Europe, in Dalmatia, and in the Herzegovina, with a bishop's see. It is seated on a gulph of the same name, 60 miles N. E. of Ragusa, and 53 S. E. of Spalatro. Lon. 36. 2. lat. 43. 28.

NARNI, a very ancient, rich, and handsome town of Italy, in Sabina, and in the territory of the church, with a bishop's see. It contains a great many noble families, and is seated on the river Nera, 20 miles S. W. of Spoleto, and 40 N. E. of Rome. Here are the ruins of a marble bridge, built by Augustus, one of whose arches was 150 feet high, and 200 broad, as also an aqueduct that brings water 15 miles, from a spring.

NARVA, a strong town of the Russian empire, in Livonia, with a castle, and a harbour. It was taken by the Muscovites from the Danes in 1553, by the Swedes in 1581, and they defeated the Muscovites near it in 1700; but it was retaken by the Russians in 1704, by storm, and the inhabitants were sent to Astrachan. It is seated on the river Narva, 95 miles S. W. of Wiburg, and 172 N. E. of Riga. Lon. 46. 35. lat. 59. 8.

NARVAR, a town of Asia, in Indostan, and capital of a province of the same name. It is 80 miles S. of Agra. Lon. 96. 40. lat. 25. 6.

NASEBEY, a village in Northamptonshire, near which the parliament gained a decisive victory over the Royalists, in 1645. It is 12 miles N. of Northampton. Lon. 16. 45. lat. 52. 20.

NASSAU, a town of Germany, in the circle of the Upper Rhine, and capital of a county of the same name, the house of whose sovereign is divided into several branches. It is seated on the river Lahn, 12 miles S. E. of Coblentz, 20 N. W. of Mentz, and 50 S. E. of Bonn. Lon. 25. 30. lat. 50. 13.

NASSAU, a county of that name in Germany, and in the upper circle of the Rhine. It is bounded on the N. by Westphalia, on the E. by the county of Solmes, on the S. by the territory of Mentz, and on the W. by the electorate of Triers. It is a very fertile country, and contains mines of iron, copper, and lead.

NATA, a sea-port town of S. America, in the government of Panama. It is seated in a pleasant, fertile country, on the bay of Parita, 70 miles S. W. of Panama. Lon. 299. 10. lat. 8. 20.

NATAL, a country of the E. coast of Africa, to the N. of that of the Hottentots, or at least it is so supposed; but the English call the inhabitants Wild-bushmen, because they live in caves, and in the holes of rocks. The natives are of a middle stature, with strong limbs, woolly hair, and black skins. Their features are good, not having flat noses and thick lips, like the other Negroes. They are a lazy people, and their chief employment is husbandry. They plant their fields with Indian corn, of which they make bread, and another small grain, no larger than a mustard-seed, of which they brew their drink. They have no arts nor trades, for every one builds his own house, and does his own work. They go naked, only they have a short apron to cover their nakedness. They have caps made of tallow, about nine or ten inches high, in which they resemble the Hottentots. The women have short petticoats, which reach down to the knee, and when it rains they cover their bodies with a cow-hide. Both men and women have a piece of cow-hide cut in the form of a tail, which reaches from the waist to the ground. Every man may have as many wives as he can purchase, for here they are all bought. In general, they are a very civil sort of people, and very kind to strangers, as two Englishmen experienced who were cast away upon the coast, and had wives and cattle given them gratis. The said animals are, elephants, lions, tigers, bullocks, hogs, rabbits, and many others. There are also abundance of sea-horses, of a monstrous size, with hides like elephants, and some call them water-elephants. The elephants herd together in troops, of 1000 or 1500 each. They are seen grazing in the morning and evening, but in the heat of the day they retire into the woods. They have also deer, and fowls of various kinds, as also a vast number of wild birds, whose names are unknown.

* NATANGEN, or NATANGERLAND, a territory of Regal Prussia, lying along the river Pregel. It is divided into four parts, Natanga Proper, Bartenland, Sudavia, and Calindia. Brandenburg is the capital town.

* NATOLIA, a country of Asia, formerly called Asia Minor. It is the most westerly part of Turkey in Asia, and is a large peninsula, which extends from the river Euphrates as far as the Archipelago, the Sea of Marmora, the Straits of Galipoli, and of Constantinople, which separate it from Europe on the W. It is bounded on the N. by the Black Sea, and on the S. by the Mediterranean. It is a vast country, whose air is temperate and wholesome, and the soil generally fertile. It is crossed by a chain of mountains, formerly called Taurus, from E. to W. and is watered by a great number of rivers. It comprehends Carimania, Albojulia, Amata, and Natolia Proper, which see.

* NATOLIA PROPER, a province in Natolia, tolia, to which the Turks give the title of a Beglerbeglic. It extends from the Black Sea to the mouth of the river Aly, and along the Mediterranean Sea as far as the coast of the Isle of Rhodes, comprehending most of the western part of this peninsula. The towns are, Cutay the capital, Bourfa, Nicea, Scutari, Arguri, Magnesia, Smyrna, and Milazzo.

NAVARINO, a strong, large, and populous town of Turkey in Europe, in the Morea, and in Belvidera, with an excellent, large harbour, which is defended by two forts. It is seated on a hill near the sea, 8 miles N. E. of Modon, and 17 N. W. of Coron. It is accounted the best town in the Morea. Lon. 39. 26. lat. 37. 2.

NAVARRÉ, a kingdom of Europe, lying between France and Spain, and is divided into the Upper and Lower. The Upper belongs to Spain, and is bounded by the Pyrenees, being about 75 miles in length, and 60 in breadth. The air is more mild, temperate, and wholesome, than in the neighbouring province of Spain; and though it is a mountainous country it is pretty fertile, abounding in game of all sorts, and in iron mines. The inhabitants are polite, handy, lively, and laborious. It is divided into five districts, whose capital towns are, Pampeluna, Estella, Tudela, Olita, and St. Guesca. Lower Navarre belongs to France, and comprehends but one merindade or district, whose capital is St. Jean-Pied-de-Porte. It is separated from Spanish Navarre by the Pyrenees, and is a mountainous, barren country, about 20 miles in length, and 12 in breadth. The French king takes the title of king of Navarre from hence.

NAVARRÉINS, a town of France, in Gascony, and in the territory of Bearn, seated on the river Gave, in a fertile plain, 16 miles S. E. of Bayonne. Lon. 16. 50. lat. 43. 20.

* NAVENBY, a village in Lincolnshire, with two fairs, on August 18 and October 17, for horses, sheep, and hogs.

NAVIDAD, a sea port town of Mexico, in N. America, and in the province of Mechoacan, seated on the S. Sea, 150 miles W. of Mexico, and subject to Spain. Lon. 267. 35. lat. 19. 0.

NAUMBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in Misnia-Meisen, with a bishop's see, which has been secularized. It is seated on the river Sala, 37 miles N. E. of Erfort, 55 S. by W. of Wittenburg, and 60 W. of Dresden. Lon. 29. 55. lat. 51. 12. It is capital of the county of Saxe-Naumburg, and is subject to a prince of the same name.

* NAUMBURG, the dutchy of Saxe-Naumburg, a small district of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and territory of Meisen, about 17 miles in length and 12 in breadth. The principal town is of the same name.

* NACKOW, a town of Denmark, in the isle of Laland, with a harbour commodious for trade. There is a plentiful fishery here, and the land produces fine pastures. It is 55 miles S. W. of Copenhagen. Lon. 29. 12. lat. 54. 50.

NAXOS, or NAXIA, a considerable island of the Archipelago, 25 miles in length, and 88 in circumference. The whole island is covered with orange, olive, lemon, cedar, citron, pomegranate, fig, and mulberry trees; and there are a great many springs and brooks. This island has no harbour, and yet they carry on a considerable trade in barley, wine, figs, cotton, silk, flax, cheese, salt, oxen, sheep, mules, and oil. They burn only oil of mastic, though olive-oil is exceeding cheap. It is inhabited both by Greeks and Latins, and they live in great dread of the Turks; for when the meanest of their ships appear here, they always wear red caps like galley-slaves, and tremble before the lowest officer; but, as soon as they are gone, they put on their caps of velvet. The ladies are so vain, that when they return out of the country, they have 40 women in their train, half on foot and half on asses, one of whom carries a napkin or two, another a petticoat, another a pair of stockings, and so on, which is a very ridiculous sight to strangers. There are four archbishops sees in this island, and a great many villages, which are so thin of people, that the whole island does not contain above 3000 inhabitants. The highest mountain is Zia, which signifies the mountain of Jupiter; however there are but few antiquities, except some small remains of the temple of Bacchus. Some say they have mines of gold and silver, however there is one of emery, which is so common here, and so cheap, that the English often ballast their ships therewith.

* NAXOS, or NAXIA, a considerable town, and capital of the isle of Naxos, ever against the title of Paros, with a castle and two archbishops sees, the one Greek

NEATH, a town of Glamorganshire, in S.
Wales, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs, on Trinity-Thursd.ay, July 13, and September 12, for cattle, sheep, and hogs. It is seated on a river of the same name, over which there is a bridge, where small vessels come to load coals, which are here in great plenty. It is an ancient and pretty large town, governed by a Port-Reve, who is sworn in by the Deputy-Constable of the castle of Neath. On the other side of the river are the ruins of a fine monastery, but the house belonging to it, being a large structure, is kept in good repair. It is seated near the Bristol channel, 32 miles N. W. of Landaff, and 168 W. by N.
of London. Lon. 13. 35. lat. 52. 42.

ca, in the kingdom of Tremecen, built by the Romans, and is seated in a fertile soil, 10 miles from the sea.

NEEDHAM, a town of Suffolk, with a market on Wednesdays, and a fair on October 28, for toys. It is seated on the river Orwell, and consists of a long, wide, poor street. It has some trade in Suffolk-blues, and cloths, and the poorer fort of women are employed in spinning and weaving bone-lace. It is 10 miles N. W. of Ipswich, and 71 N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 41. lat. 52. 18.

NEEDLES, two capes or points at the W. end of the Isle of Wight, which are very difficult to pass, on account of the sands and rocks.

• NEFIN, a village of Carnarvonshire, in N. Wales, with three fairs, on April 4, the Saturday before Whitsuntide, and August 25, for cattle.

• NEFTA, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Tunis, and province of Zeb, lying on the road from Barbary to Negro-land. It is very populous. Lon. 26. 0.
lat. 33. 0.

NEGAPATAN, a town of Asia, in the peninsula on this side the Ganges, and on the coast of Coromandel. It was first a colony of the Portuguese, but was taken from them by the Dutch. The original natives are Idolaters, and the factory purchase very little besides tobacco and long linnen cloths: however, the Dutch have built a fort here. It is 20 miles S. of Trankabar. Lon. 97. 45. lat.

NEGROES-ISLAND, an island of Asia, and one of the Philippines, lying between those of Panay and Cebu. It is subject to Spain.

NEGROLAND, or NIGRITIA, is a tract of land in Africa, through which the river Niger is supposed to run, but this is uncertain. It has the great desert called Zara on the N. and stretches far to the S. but the inland parts are very little known. However, the Europeans have many settlements on the western coast, and the Portuguese have some on the eastern, where they barter European goods for slaves, gold-dust, and elephants teeth.

NEGROPONT, an island of Turkey in Europe, and the largest in the Archipelago. It was anciently called Euboea, and is near the N. coast of Livadia, from which it is separated by a strait, over which there is a bridge. It is about 90 miles in length, and 25 in breadth, though in some places it is much narrower. The Turks took it from the Venetians in 1466. It abounds in corn, wine, fruits, flesh, fish, and fowls, and is remarkable for the irregularity of the tides, which however do not rise above a foot. Lon. from 41. 32. to 42. 55. lat. from 38. 0. to 39. 16.

NEGROPONT, a large and strong town of Turkey in Asia, and capital of the island of that name, with a harbour, which is commonly the station of the Turkish ships. The walls of the town, in which the Turks and Jews reside, are about two miles and an half in circumference, but the suburbs, where the Christians live, are much larger. The Captain-bashaw resides here, who commands the whole island. The bridge, taken notice of above, reaches from this city to the continent. It has a Greek archbishop's see, and provisions here are very cheap. It was taken from the Venetians in 1469, by the Turks, after six months siege, at the cost of 40,000 men. The Venetians attempted to retake it in 1683, without effect. It is seated on a strait of the same name, 30 miles N. E. of Setines or Athens, 112 S. E. of Larissa, and 260 S. W. of Constantinople. Lon. 42. 3. lat. 48. 30.

* NERAVAND, an ancient town of Asia, in Persia, famous for a battle fought near it between the caissif Omar and Yez Derud, king of Persia in 1638, when he lost that kingdom. It is 35 miles from Hamadan. Lon. 83. 50. lat. 34. 10.

NEIDENBURG, a town of Poland, in Regal Prussia, and in a county of the same name, with a castle upon a mountain; it is seated in a very delightful country.

NEISSE, a handsome town of Germany, in Silesia. It is surrounded with thick walls and deep ditches, and most of the houses are well built. The bishop of Breslau generally resides here, who has a magnificent palace. The air is very wholesome, provisions cheap, and the inhabitants carry on a considerable trade in linnens and wine. This place suffered greatly in 1729, by an inundation, and by a fire. It was taken by the Prussians in 1741, who augmented the fortifications after the peace in 1742, and built a citadel, to which they gave the name of Prussia. It is seated on a river of the same name, 35 miles S. E. of Breslau, and 27 N. E. of Glatz. Lon. 35. 10. lat. 50. 32.

NEIVA, a river of Muscovy, on which the city of Petersburg is seated. It separates Carelia from Ingria, and running W. falls into the gulph of Finland. It rises from the lake Ladoga.

NELLENBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and capital of the landgravate of the same name. It is 20 miles N. of Constance, and 20 N. E. of Schaffhausen. Lon. 26. 40. lat. 47. 59.

NELSON, an English settlement in N. America, on the W. side of Hudson's Bay, being seated at the mouth of the river Nelson, 600 miles N. E. of Rupertfort, and 250 S. E. of Churchillfort. It belongs to the Hudson's Bay company, and they carry on a great trade there in beaver and other skins. It is seated on the W. side of the bay. Lat. 57. 25.

* NEOTS, ST. a town of Huntingdon-shire, with a market on Thursdays, and four fairs, on Holy-Thurday, June 30, August 1, and December 17, for all sorts of cattle. It is a large, well built town, seated on the river Ouse, over which there is a stone-bridge. It is adorned with a handsome church, which has a fine steeple, and the market is very considerable. It is 17 miles W. N.
W. of Cambridge, and 56. N. N. W. of London. Lon. 17. 14. lat. 52. 10.

* NEPI, an ancient town of Italy, in the patrimony of St. Peter, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Triglia, 10 miles S. W. of Magliano, and 20 N. of Rome. Lon. 30. 2. lat. 41. 12.

NERAC, a handsome town of France, in Gascony, with a large castle. It is the second town of Basadois, and is 10 miles W. of Agen, and 380 S. by W. of Paris. Lon. 17. 58. lat. 44. 10.

NERICA, a province of Sweden, bounded on the N. by Westmania, on the E. by Sunderland, and on the S. W. by Gothland. Orebo is the capital town, and the only considerable place in it.

* NERINSKOI, a strong town of Siberia, and capital of the province of Dauria, in Asia. It is pretty strong, is provided with several brass guns, and has a large garrison of Daurian Cossacks. It is seated among high mountains, and yet there is low ground enough to feed a great number of camels, horses, and cows.
Here are great quantities of red and white pines, which have a fine smell, besides rosemary, thyme, matjoram, lavender, and several unknown plants; but their only fruits are red and black currants. The people that live near it are all idolaters, and subsist on their cattle and sable hunting. They all live in huts composed of poles fixed in the ground, and joined together at the top, only there is a hole there to let out the smoke, and the fire is in the midst of the huts, which they sit round upon turves.

They are all idolaters, and are very strong, with broad faces. Both men and women dress in the same manner, and both ride on horseback. Their common drink is water, but the better sort have Bohem-tea, which they boil in mares milk and water. They have also a sort of spirits drawn from mares milk, and their arms are bows and arrows. Lon.
134. 59. lat. 51. 30.

NERO, an island of Asia, in the E. Indies, and the second of the Banda Islands. The Dutch have a fort here, called Fort-Naiffau, which serves in part to command the navigation of those seas. They have large serpents which are not ve-nomous, and the mountains are covered with trees, in which are birds of a very singular kind. Lon. 146. 50. lat. S.
4. 30.

* NESLE, a town of France, in Picardie, with the title of a marquise. It is seated on the river Lingon, 8 miles N.
E. of Roye, 17 W. of St. Quintin, and 70 N. by E. of Paris. Lon. 20. 34. lat.
49. 45.

NETHERLANDS, a large country of Europe, which was anciently called Belgick-Gaul, and which comprehended all that tract of land lying between the Rhine, the Maese, and the Schelde, from the ocean as far as Alsace. In the 5th century the Franes, a people of Germany, coming to settle in Gaul, founded a new kingdom to which they gave the name of France, but the country we are now speaking of was not comprehended therein. In the 9th century the sons of the emperor Lewis the pious having divided the dominions of their father among themselves, for he possessed Germany, France, and Italy; a new kingdom was then formed, comprehending Germany and France, which extended from the Mediterranean Sea to the ocean, and contained a part of the Netherlands.
It was called Lotharia, but did not long subsist, for it was soon divided into two, and that which was seated near the Mediterranean was called the kingdom of Burgundy, but that to the N. had the name of Austrasia. Neither did this last continue long, it being divided into small provinces under different names, which still depended on the empire of Germany, and were called Lower Germany. In process of time the house of Burgundy purchased many of them, and was about to form them, with Burgundy, into a kingdom; but Charles the Hardy, the last duke of Burgundy, being killed by the Swifs in 1477, his part of the Netherlands fell to his daughter Mary, he having no male issue, and she marrying the emperor Maximilian, the Netherlands fell to the house of Austria. Some time after the emperor Charles V. reunited them all under the title of the circle of Burgundy, making it a part of the Roman empire. This circle was then composed of 17 provinces, namely, Brabant, Limburg, Luxemburg, Guelderland, Flanders, Artois, Hainault, Holland, Zealand, Namur, Zutphen, Friesland, Mechlin, Utrecht, Overysel, Groningen, and Antwerp. After his death his dominions were divided between his brother Ferdinand I. and his son Philip II. so that the Netherlands fell to the share of Philip, and were united to Spain. This monarch was desirous of founding a fifth monarchy, and made choice of the Netherlands to begin his projects in. But foreseeing that he could not make this country a seat of war by sea and land, while the inhabitants enjoyed their ancient privileges, he undertook to deprive them of them. For this purpose he sent the duke d'Alba, well known for his cruel disposition. This duke went from place to place, exercising unheard of cruelties, in order to obtain his ends. After he had murdered above 100,000 people, and had executed near 2000 by the hands of the common hangman, seven of these provinces were determined to throw off the yoke, and an agreement was made at Utrecht in 1579. Spain endeavoured for 70 years together to reduce them to their obedience, but all in vain; and from this time the Seven United Provinces became a free and independent republick, which was confirmed by the treaty of Westphalia in 1648. After all these vicissitudes the Netherlands had yet another to come, which happened at the death of Charles II. king of Spain, in 1700; for then the Spanish provinces fell to the share of the house of Austria, and thence came the denomination of the Austrian Netherlands and the United Provinces. To the Austrians belong the counties of Artois, Flanders, Hainault, and Namur, the dutchies of Luxemburg, Limburg, Guelderland, Brabant, and Mechlin, as also the marquifate of Antwerp; all which provinces see in their proper places. The French have also some part of the Netherlands. The Netherlands in general are bounded by the N. Sea, which gives the inhabitants the means of trading to all parts of the world; on the E. by Germany, West-Friesland, the territories of Munster, Cleves, Juliers, and Triers, and on the S. by France and Lorraine. As the situation is dangerous, they have raised up dykes on the side of the sea, and on the other side there are numerous fortresses to oppose the invasion of their enemies. It is about 300 miles in length on the side of the ocean, and about 140 on the S. side. It is full of large cities, towns, and villages, which put it upon a par with the largest kingdoms. The harbours are not so deep as might be expected, on account of the tide, which brings in large quantities of sand, mud, and shells; besides, it is so cold, that they are frozen up in the winter. In this country there is an inlet of the ocean 75 miles in length and 250 in circumference, called the Zuyder-zee, and within this the merchant-ships take in their loading. The principal rivers are, the Schelde, the Maese, the Rhine, and the Moselle. The Austrian Netherlands are about 100 miles in length, and 150 in breadth, and the air is temperate, being neither too hot nor too cold. The soil produces no wine, but a great deal of corn and rich pastures, as well as several fine fruits. There are scarce any hills, but there are very fine forests, which supply wood for building, and for fire. In fine weather it is a good country to travel in, for you are scarce out of one city but you come near another; however, in the rainy season, the roads are almost impassable. In several places they cultivate a great deal of flax and hemp, and they have fine manufactures of linnen and lace, particularly lawns, cambricks, Mechlin and Brussels lace. They also make very rich tapestry, and have still good woollen manufactories, especially camblets and light stuffs. Their numerous rivers and navigable canals are of great advantage to trade, as the carriage is so exceeding cheap. This country country has often been the theatre of war, which has not had such terrible consequences as in other places, for the inhabitants always grow the richer by it. Their principal application is to trade, and there is scarce a city or town which has not very flourishing manufactories.

- NETTUNO, a handsome town of Italy, in the Campagna of Rome. It is but thinly peopled, though seated in a fertile soil, and the inhabitants are almost all hunters. It is seated at the mouth of the river Loricina, 15 miles S. W. of Vilitri, and 27 S. E. of Rome. Lon. 30. 52. lat. 41. 30.
- NEUBURG, a handsome town of Germany, capital of a duchy of the same name, in the dominions of the Elector Palatine, seated on the Danube, 5 miles W. of Ingolstadt, 12 E. of Donawert, 20 N. E. of Oiburg, and 45 N. by W. of Munich. Lon. 28. 40. lat. 48. 40.
- NEUBURG, a town of Germany, in the Brisgau, seated near the Rhine, between Balle and Brissac, being 12 miles N. of the former, and as much S. of the latter. It is subject to the house of Austria. Lon. 25. 17. lat. 47. 54.
- NEUBURG, a town of Germany, in Lower Austria, seated on the Danube, 5 miles from Vienna, with a famous monastery. Lon. 34. 22. lat. 48. 20.
- NEUBURG, a town of Germany, in the duchy of Wirtemberg, seated on the river Entz, with a castle. It is 25 miles W. of Stuttgart. Lon. 27. 11. lat. 48. 5.
- NEUBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Bavaria, and capital of the duchy of the same name, subject to the Elector Palatine. It is 28 miles N. E. of Augsburg, and 40 S. W. of Ratibon. Lon. 28. 50. lat. 48. 45.
- NEUBURG, a strong town of Denmark, on the eastern coast of the isle of Funen. It is very famous for its harbour, and is 53 miles S. W. of Copenhagen. Lon. 28. 36. lat. 55. 30.
- NEUBURG, a town in Polish Prussia, in Little Pomerania, which has the river Weichsel on one side, and morasses on the other. It was taken by the burghers in 1458, who drove out the Polish garrison, and admitted the knights of Jerusalem; but was taken from them by the Poles in 1464.
- NEUBURG, the duchy of, in Germany, and in the circle of Bavaria. It is about 50 miles in length on the side of the river Danube, and about 8 in breadth. The capital town is of the same name. This is the western part, but the eastern lies between Bavaria and the Upper Palatinate; it is about 17 miles long, and as much broad, but has no remarkable town, there being nothing but villages.

- NUENSTADT, a town of Germany, in the duchy of Wirtemberg, seated on the river Kocher, 12 miles N. E. of Hailbron. Lon. 26. 55. lat. 49. 20.
- NEVERS, a considerable town of France, and capital of Nivernois, in Orleanois, with the title of a duchy, an ancient castle, and a bishop's see. It is built in the form of an amphitheatre, and contains several fine buildings. It is seated on the river Loir, over which there is a handsome bridge, and at the end of it a fine, large causeway, which reaches to the town. It is 15 miles N. of Moulines, 25 S. E. of Bourges, and 75 S. E. of Orleans. Lon. 20. 49. lat. 46. 59.
- NEUFCHATTEAU, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the province of Luxemburg, 20 miles N. E. of Sedan. Lon. 22. 55. lat. 50. 0.
- NEUFCHATTEAU, a town of France, in Lorraine, and capital of the chatellenie of Chatenoi. It is a handsome, populous, trading town, having an abbey of the nuns of St. Clair, a commandery of Malta, and several convents of monks and nuns. It is seated in a bottom, in a soil fertile in corn, wine, and all the necessaries of life, on the river Mouzon, 25 miles S. W. of Nanci, 17 S. W. of Toul, and 150 E. by S. of Paris. Lon. 23. 20. lat. 48. 20.
- NEUFCHATEL, a sovereign county of Swisserland, bounded on the W. by the Franche Comte, on the N. by the bishoprick of Basle, and on the E. and S. by the cantons of Bern and Friburg, being about 40 miles in length, and 20 in breadth. It had its own counts for a long time, and the last of these dying in 1694, without issue, it came to Mary of Orleans, dutchess of Nemours, his only sister, who died without issue in 1703; there were then 13 competitors, but, at an assembly of the States in 1707, they unanimously chose the king of Prussia for their sovereign, who has placed a governor therein. It is well peopled, and contains three cities, one town, 90 villages, and about 3000 houses, dispersed in the mountains. The inhabitants are all Protestants, except two Roman-Catholic villages, and in 1709 they they entered into a strict alliance with the cantons of Bern, Friburg, Soleure, and Lucern. The air is healthy and temperate, but the soil is not every where equally fertile; however, there are large vineyards, which produce white and red wine, which last is excellent. The pastures on the mountains feed a great number of all sorts of cattle, and there are plenty of deer in the forests, besides large trouts, and other good fish in the lake and river. The people are ingenious, polite, active, industrious, and laborious.

NEUCHÂTEL, an handsome town of Switzerland, capital of a county of the same name. There are several ancient ruins near it, which shew its former extent, and there are two large churches, besides a castle, where the governor resides. It is seated on a lake of the same name, 17 miles in length, and 5 in breadth, and the side of the harbour is the usual walk of the inhabitants. It has a grand and little council; the first is composed of 40 persons, with two masters of the keys; the little council consists of 24 members, comprehending the mayor, who is president. These two councils assemble regularly every month. The Ecclesiasticks likewise assemble once a month, to consult on affairs belonging to the church, and to fill up the places of ministers that die. They chuse a dean every year, who is president of the general assemblies, which are called Estates, and sometimes he is continued in this dignity. It is 37 miles N. of Lausanne, 25 W. of Bern, and 17 N. W. of Friburg. Lon. 24. 45. lat. 47. 5.

NEUCHÂTEL-EN-BRAY, a town of France, in Normandy, and in the territory of Bray. It is commodiously seated on the river Aiques, 20 miles S. E. of Dieppe, 22 N. E. of Rouen, and 75 N. W. of Paris. Lon. 19. 5. lat. 49. 45.

* NEUHAUS, a strong town of Bohemia, in the circle of Bechin, with a castle. Lon. 32. 56. lat. 49. 8.

NEUHAUSEL, a small, but very strong town of Upper Hungary. It is seated on the river Neutracht, in a marshy plain, 15 miles N. of Komora, 20 S. E. of Leopoldstadt, and 32 S. E. of Presburg. Lon. 36. 10. lat. 48. 1.

NEWIN, or NEWIN, a town of N. Wales, in Carnarvonshire. It is seated on the shore of the Irish Sea, opposite Pwllheli, and is a very poor town. It has a very small market, and three fairs, on April 4, Saturday before Whitfuntide, and August 25, for cattle. It is 22 miles S. W. of Carnarvon, and 214 N. W. of London. Lon. 12. 50. lat. 53. 0.

NEVIS, an island of America, and one of the Charibbees, divided from the E. end of St. Christopher's by a narrow channel. It has but one mountain, which is in the middle, and is very high, and covered with large trees up to the top. Here are springs of fresh water and a hot bath, much of the same nature as those of Bath in England. It is a very small island, but very fruitful, and is a colony of the English. Lon. 315. 33. lat. 17. 50.

* NEUMARK, a town of Germany, in Silesia, and in the principality of Breslau, 32 miles S. E. of Lignitz, and 15 W. of Breslau. Lon. 24. 35. lat. 51. 5.

NEWBURY, a town in Berkshire, with a market on Thursdays, and four fairs, on Holy-Thursdays, for horses and other cattle; on July 5, for horses, cows, and hogs, and on August 24, and October 28, for cheese and horses. It is commodiously seated on the river Kennet, and is a large, well frequented corporation, with a handsome market-house. It was built out of a Roman town called Spina, which is now a village adjoining thereto. It is 16 miles W. of Reading, 59 E. of Bristol, and 56 W. of London.
Lon. 16. 10. lat. 51. 27.

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE, the county-town of Northumberland, with two markets, on Tuesdays and Saturdays, and two fairs, on August for nine days, and on October 29 for nine days, for horned cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, linnen, and woollen cloth; and various other goods. It is seated on the N. bank of the river Tyne, over which there is a bridge, and on the S. side of a considerable ascent. It is a corporation, containing four parish-churches, besides one at Gatehead, and has a handsome exchange, and a custom-house.
It is surrounded with a strong wall, through which there are seven gates, and had a castle, which is now in ruins. It is rich, populous, and carries on a great trade both by sea and land; but it is principally noted for its coals, with which it loads many thousand ships in a year, that are carried to London and other parts. It is 14 miles N. of Durham, 94 N. of York, 63 S. by E. of Berwick, 60 E. of Carlisle, and 276 N. by W. of London. It sends two members to parliament. Lon. 16. 25. lat.

NEWCASTLE UNDER LYNE, a town in Staffordshire, with a market on Mondays, and five fairs, on Easter-Monday, Whit-Monday, July 6, first Monday in September, and November 6, for cattle.
It is seated on a rivulet, and is a large place, with broad, paved streets; but the buildings are low, and many of them thatched. It had four churches, now reduced to one, and the castle from whence it had its name, is quite demolished. It holds pleas for actions under 40 pounds, and sends two members to parliament. It is 15 miles N. of Stafford, 33 S. S. E. of Warrington, and 149 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 23.
lat. 53. 0.

ry, 17 miles in length, and 6 in breadth, 28 miles E. S. E. of Vienna, and 20 S. by W. of Preburg.

NEWFOREST is a part of Hampshire, lying on the English channel, opposite to the isle of Wight. It was made by William the conqueror, who caused 36 churches, and all the houses belonging thereto, to be pulled down, that there might be no obstruction in hunting the game. It is now appropriated by act of parliament for the production of oaks, to be employed in building the royal navy.

NEWFOUNDLAND, a large island lying on the eastern coast of N. America, between 47 and 52 degrees of latitude. It is a mountainous, barren country, and is much colder than England, it being covered with snow five months in the year. It seems to have no inhabitants of its own, but in the summer-time it is visited by a kind of savages called Eskimaux, who are of a different race from the other Americans. However, it has several commodious bays and harbours, and there are 4 or 500 English families who continue there all the year, besides the garrisons of St. John's, Placentia, and other forts. However, in the fishing season, it is resorted to by at least 10,000 people every year, on account of the fishing-banks to the E. of this island, for here they cure the cod, which is carried not only to England, but to all parts of Europe. Since the treaty of Utrecht the French have no other places except these on the N. part of the island, where they cure their fish. It is 350 miles in length from N. to S. and 200 in breadth, at the base, from E. to W. There is great plenty of venison, fish, and fowls, but very little corn, fruit, or cattle, upon which account the inhabitants have not only their cloaths and furniture, but provisions from England.

* NEWHAVEN, a town of Sussex, whose market is dispersed, but has one fair, on October 10, for pedlars ware. It is seated at the mouth of the river Ouse, and is a small place, chiefly inhabited by maritime people. It has a quay on the E. side, where ships may ride secure in foul weather. It is 7 miles S. of Lewes, 9 S. E. of Brightonstone, and 57 S. of London. Lon. 17. 35. lat. 50. 58.

* NEWHAVEN, a village in Derbyshire, with one fair, on October 30, for sheep, cattle, and horses,

* NEWICK, a village in Suffex, with one fair, on June 1, for cattle and pedlars ware.

NEWMARK, a town of Transilvania, seated on the river Merish, 40 miles N. of Clausenburg, and subject to the house of Austria. Lon. 41. 0. lat. 47. 35.

NEWMARK, a town of Germany, in the palatinate of Bavaria, 30 miles N. W. of Ratibon. Lon. 29. 5. lat. 49. 20.

NEWMARKET, a town which is partly in Cambridgeshire and partly in Suffolk, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on Whit-Tuesday, and October 28, for horses and sheep. It consists of one well-built street, seated upon the great road, and full of inns. It has one parish in Suffolk, and another in Cambridgeshire, but the market-place and all the street is in Suffolk. It is chiefly noted for its races. It is 14 miles E. of Cambridge, 14 W. of Bury, and 60 N. by E. of London. Lon. 18. 0. lat. 52. 16.

* NEWMARKET, a small town of Flintshire, in N. Wales, 4 miles N. E. of St. Asaph, with 4 fairs, viz. on the last Saturday in April, the third Saturday in July, the fourth Saturday in October, and the second Saturday in December, all for cattle.

NEWNHAM, a town in Gloucestershire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on June 11, and October 18, for horses, and sheep. It is a corporation, and is seated on the W. side of the Severn, 8 miles S. W. of Gloucester, and 106 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 7. lat. 51. 48.

NEWPORT, a town of Hampshire, in the Isle of Wight, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and one fair, on Whit-Monday, for old horses and toys. It is seated almost in the middle of the island, and is a large, populous, and well-frequented town, governed by a mayor and burgesses. This town sends two members to parliament. It has one church, built with stone, and four streets, which are paved, and contain about 500 houses, built with brick and stone. The number of the people amounts to about 2500, but it has no manufactory. It is 4 miles from the channel, which separates it from the main-land, and small vessels come up the creek to the very quay, which is of great advantage to its trade. It is 17 miles S. of Southampton, and 85 S. W. of London, Lon. 16. 10. lat. 50. 50.

NEWPORT, a town in Shropshire, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, on Saturday before Palm-Sunday, May 28, and July 27, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep; and on December 10, for the same, and fat cattle. It is seated on a plain, near the borders of Staffordshire, and has a handsome free-school and a market-house. It is 17 miles E. of Shrewsbury, 10 W. of Stafford, and 134
N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 9. lat. 52.

NEWPORT, a town of Monmouthshire, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, viz. on Holy Thursday, Whit-Thursday, Aug. 15, and Nov. 6, for cattle. It is seated on the river Uik, over which there is an handsome bridge; and it has a good harbour, or port, from whence it has its name; and it had a strong castle, which is now demolished.
It is 19 miles S. S. W. of Monmouth, 12 N. E. of Cardiff, and 151 W. by N.
of London. Lon. 14. 35. lat. 51. 40.
NEWPORT, a town of Pembrokeshire in S. Wales, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair on July 27, for cattle, horses, and sheep. It is seated at the foot of a high hill, and near the sea-shore, and is an ill-built place, but has an handsome church, and the ruins of a castle. It is governed by a mayor, 12 aldermen, a recorder, two bailiffs, and six constables.
It has one church, with about 150 houses, with broad paved streets. The Ne- veru, a fine navigable river, runs by the end of the town, and empties itself into Bristol channel. It is 18 miles N. E. of NEWPORT-PAGNEL, a town of Bucking- hamshire, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, viz. on April 22, June 23, Oct. 22, and Dec. 22, for cattle.

It is seated on the river Ouse, over which it has two bridges, and is noted for the bone-lace that is made here. It has an old church, and two meeting-houses, and the streets, tho' they are in general composed of but indifferent houses, are pretty well paved. It is 14 miles E. N.

fairs, on Easter-Tuesday, and Nov. 17, for horses.
NEWSOM, a town of Upper Hungary, with a large castle. It is a handsome place, and at its upper end stands an handsome tower. In the castle there is a church, which is covered over with copper, and there are many figures of carved wood, and some reliques. Near this town are the greatest copper-mines in all Hungary; but the ore, after it is taken out of the mine, is melted 14 times before it is fit for use. It is seated on the river NEVLAND, a town in Suffolk, with a market on Fridays, and one fair on Oct.

2, for horses, cattle, and toys. It is seated on the river Stour, in a rich bottom, and is a pretty large place, with a woollen manufacture. It is 16 miles S. W. of Ipswich, and 54 N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 30. lat. 52. 5.

NEYTRACHT, a town of Upper Hungary, capital of a county of the same name, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Neitra, 40 miles N. E. of Pretsburg. Lon. 36. 35. lat. 48. 28.

* NIAGARA, a considerable river of N. America, in the country of the Iroquois. It proceeds from the Lake Erie, and runs to the Lake Ontario. In this river there is a large cataract, which has been reported to have been the greatest in the world, and that the mist which this occasions, may be seen at 15 miles distance; but this is a great mistake: however, the waters fall from a rock 140 feet high, and make a noise like thunder heard at a great distance. There was a strong fort built on this river by the French, which was taken by the English in 1759.

NIABANO, a town of Italy in the duchy of Parma, 37 miles W. of Parma. Lon. 27. 35. lat. 45. 5.

NICARAGUA, a large river of S. America, in a province of the same name, whose western extremity lies within 5 m. of the S. sea. It is full of dreadful cataracts, and falls at length into the N. sea.

NICARAGUA, a maritime province of N. America in Mexico, bounded on the N. by Honduras, on the E. by the N. sea, on the S. E. by Costa Rica, and on the S. W. by the S. sea, being 400 miles in length from E. to W. and 120 in breadth from N. to S. It is one of the most fruitful and agreeable provinces in Mexico, and is well watered with lakes and rivers. The air is wholesome and temperate; and this country produces plenty of sugar, cochineal, and fine chocolate. There are some trees so large, that 12 men, hand in hand, can hardly embrace them. One of the lakes is 200 miles in circumference, which has an island in the middle, and, as some say, has 2 tides. Leon de Nicaragua is the capital town.

NICARIA, an island of the Archipelago, between Samos and Tine, being about 50 miles in circumference. There are a chain of high mountains run through the middle, which are covered with wood, and supply the country with springs. The inhabitants are very poor, and of the Greek communion; however, they have a little wheat, and a good deal of barley, figs, honey, and wax. Lon. from 43. 55. to 44. 12. lat. from 27. 0. to 28. 46.

NICASTRO, a town of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Farther Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is 16 miles S. of Cosenza. Lon. 33. 34. lat. 39. 15.

NICE, an ancient, handsome and considerable town on the confines of France and Italy, and capital of a county of the same name, with a strong citadel, a bishop's see, and a senate, which is a kind of a democracy. It has been several times taken by the French, and last of all in 1744, but was rendered back after the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. It is very agreeably seated, 4 miles from the mouth of the river Var, 83 miles S. by W. of Turin, 83 S. W. of Genoa, and 83 E. of Aix. Lon. 24. 57. lat. 45. 12.

NICE, a county and province in the dominions of the duke of Savoy, bounded on the E. by the territory of Genoa, and Proper Piedmont, on the N. by the marquisate of Saluces and Dauphiny, on the W. by Provence and the Mediterranean sea, and on the S. by the principality of Monaco. The inhabitants supply Genoa with a great deal of timber for building ships, and carry on a great trade in linen cloth, paper, oil, wine, and honey. Nice is the capital town.

NICE, an ancient town of Asia in Natolia, now called Iznik, with a Greek archbishop's see. It is famous for the great general council, assembled here in 528, who endeavoured to suppress the doctrines of Arius. It was formerly a large, populous, well-built place, and now is not inconsiderable. See ISNIC.

* NICHABURG, a town of Persia, and the largest and most rich of Corassan, famous for a mine of Tutkah stones in its neighbourhood. It is 37 miles from Meshed. Lon. 74. 52. lat. 35. 20.

NICHOLAS, ST. a town of France in Lorraine, with a handsome church, dedicated to St. Nicholas, to which they go in pilgrimage from all parts. It is seated on the river Meurte, 5 miles S. E. of Nancy, 8 N. W. of Luneville, and 185 E. of Paris. Lon. 24. 0. lat. 48. 40.

NICOBAR ISLANDS, the name of several islands in Asia, lying at the entrance of the Gulph of Bengal. The natives are tall and well-proportioned, with long faces, black eyes, black lank hair, and dark copper-coloured skins. They are said to be a harmless good sort of people, and go quite naked, except a cloth to hide what decency requires them.
They have not much religion, for they have neither temples nor idols; nor does there seem to be any great superiority among them. They are excellent swimmers, and sometimes they will overtake ships under sail. They live in little huts, having no towns, and the country is almost covered with wood. They have no corn, but a fruit which serves them instead of bread, and they catch plenty of fish. They are ready to supply the ships that stop there with provisions, for they have hogs and poultry enough; and in return they take iron, linen, and tobacco. They are 300 miles from the peninsula beyond the Ganges, between 109 and 111 degrees of longitude, and between 7 and 10 of latitude. The largest of these islands, which gives name to the rest, is about 40 miles in length, and 15 in breadth.

- NICORAS, an island of the Atlantic ocean, and one of the most considerable of those of Cape de Verde; and it lies between Santa Lucia and St. Jago.
It is of a triangular figure, and is about 75 miles in length. The land is stony, mountainous, and barren; but there are a great number of goats in a town of the same name, in a valley inhabited by the Portuguese. Lon. 334. 0. lat.

- NICORO, ST. is the most considerable, strongest, and best peopled of the isle of Tremeti, in the Gulph of Venice, to the E. of St. Domino, and to the S. of Capparata. It has a harbour, defended by several towers, and a fortress, in which is an abbey, with a very handsome church. Lon. 37. 12. lat. 42. 7.

NICOMEDIA, a town of Turkey in Asia in Natolia, now called Nicait, or Schiriz.
It was formerly a very large place, as appears by the ruins, and now it contains 30,000 inhabitants, who consist of Greeks, Armenians, and Turks. The ruins of the ancient structures, and fine palaces are very considerable; however, it is still a place of consequence, and carries on a trade in silk, cotton, glass, and earthen ware. It is the see of a Greek archbishop, and is 35 miles N. W. of Ispic, and 50 S. E. of Constantinople. Lon. 47. 28. lat. 40. 46

- NICOROLI, a town of Turkey in Europe, and in Bulgaria, famous for being the place where the first battle was fought between the Turks and the Christians in 1396; and where the emperor Sigismund lost the day, and had 20,000 men killed. It is seated on the river Danube, 33 miles S. W. of Retzig, and 150 N.
W. of Adrianople. Lon. 43. 18. lat.
43. 46.

- NICOPOLI, or GLANISE, an ancient town of Asia in Armenia, built by Pompey the Great on the river Cerauna, 265 miles from Erzerum, and 225 from Cogni. Lon. 57. 30. lat. 38. 15.

NICOSIA, a strong town of Asia, and capital of the island of Cyprus, where a Turkish bashaw resides. It is delightfully seated between the mountain Olym-pus and a chain of mountains. It was formerly well fortified by the Venetians, but now their works are all in ruins.
It is about 31 miles in circumference; and there are plantations of olives, almonds, lemons, oranges, mulberries, and Cypress trees, interspersed among the houses, which give the town a delightful appearance. The church of Santa Sophia is an old Gothic structure, which the Turks have turned into a mosque, and destroyed the ornaments.
It is 100 miles W. of Tripoli, and 160
S. W. of Aleppo. Lon. 31. 10. lat.

• NIBAU, or NIBOW, an handsome town in Switzerland, and capital of a baili-wick of the same name in the canton of Bern, with an handsome castle. The situation is low on the Lake Bienna, 15 miles

- miles N. W. of Bern, and 60 S. W. of Zurich. Lon. 24. 55. lat. 47. 12.
- * NIÉBLA, an ancient town of Spain in Andalusia, seated on the Rio Tinto, 40 miles W. of Seville. Lon. 11. 45. lat. 37. 20.
 - * NIEMECZ, a strong town of Moldavia, on the confines of Transylvania, between Socozwa and Croslandt, being 25 miles from each. Lon. 44. 31. lat. 46. 53.
 - NIEMEN, a large river of Poland, which rises in Lithuania, where it passes by Bielica, Grodno, and Konno: afterwards it runs thro' part of Samogitia, and Ducal Prussia, where it falls into the lake called the Curisch-haft, by several mouths, of which the most northern is called the Rufs, being the name of a town it passes by.
 - * NIENBURG, a rich and strong town of Germany, in the dutchy of Brunswick-Lunenborg, with a strong castle. It carries on a considerable trade in corn and wool, and is seated in a fertile soil on the river Weser, 30 miles N. W. of Hannover, and 37 S. E. of Bremen. Lon. 27. 1. lat. 52. 44.
 - * NIEN-CLOSTER, a town of Germany, in Lower Saxony, in the bishoprick of Schwerin, 3 miles E. of Wismar. It is the chief of a bailiwick, and was ceded to the Swedes by the treaty of Westphalia.
 - NIENHUIS, a town of Germany in Westphalia, and in the bishopric of Paderborn, seated on the river Lippe, 20 miles E. of Lippeladt. Lon. 26. 0. lat. 51. 40.
 - NIEPER, a large river of Europe, and one of the most considerable of the North, formerly called the Boristhenes. Its source is in the middle of Moscow, running W. by Smolensko, as far as Orsa, and then turns S. passing by Mohilow, Bohaczow, Kiow, Czyrkassy, the fortrefs of Kudak, Dessau, and Oczakow, falling into the Black Sea; as also in its course it divides Little Tartary from Budziac Tartary.
 - NIESTADT, a town of Germany in the circle of Lower Saxony, and dutchy of Mecklenburg, 16 miles S. of Schwerin. Lon. 29. 11. lat. 53. 40.
 - NIESTADT, a town of Germany in the middle marche of Brandenburg, seated on the river Fuhr, 25 miles N. E. of Berlin. Lon. 31. 50. lat. 52. 46.
 - NIESTER, a large river of Poland, which has its source in the Lake Nicster, in the palatinate of Lemburg, where it passes

- by Halicz. Then it separates Podolia and Oczakow Tartary, from Moldavia and Budziac Tartary, and falls into the Black Sea at Belgorod, between the mouths of the Nieper and the Danube.
- NIGER, is supposed to be one of the largest rivers in Africa; but its source is uncertain, as also the place where it falls into the sea. In general it is supposed to rise in Abyssinia, or, as others say, in the Lake Bunou, running from thence thro' several unknown kingdoms into that of Tombute; but whether it terminates here or not, there is no certain account. However, some think it runs westward from thence, and takes the name of Senegal, falling into the Atlantic Ocean; but of this nothing certain can be affirmed till further discoveries are made. Some call it the Nile of the Negroes, and the Senegal resembles that river, by its overflowing every year, after the rainy season, in Abyssinia, as does also the river Gambia.
- NIKOPING, a town of Denmark, and capital of the island of Falster, or Heltzer, with a strong fort, in the Baltic sea. It is 48 miles S. W. of Copenhagen. Lon. 22. 58. lat. 54. 50.
- NIKOPING, a town of Sweden in the province of Sunderland, west of the Baltic sea, 50 miles S. of Stockholm. Lon. 34. 5. lat. 58. 50.
- NILE, a great river of Africa in Egypt. Its source is at the foot of a high mountain in the province of Goyam in Abyssinia, and it runs first N. E. and afterwards turns directly E. and enters the great lake Dambia, running through it, and passing among the rocks the right of it is almost lost. Then it runs towards the S. and then towards the W. passing towards its source, which it leaves 25 miles to the E. forming a sort of peninsula: after this it runs thro' the remaining part of Abyssinia into Nubia, and then into Egypt, till it arrives at Cairo: a little below which it divides itself into two great branches, which, with the Mediterranean sea, forms the island called The Delta. The ancients reckoned 11 mouths of the Nile, of which 7 were considerable; but at present there are only two that are navigable at all times; and those are at Rosetta and Dametta. In the middle of this river, between Old Cairo and Gize, is seated the island of Rodda, which is almost as long as Old Cairo. It is 500 paces in breadth in the middle; and the front of the Mokias takes up all the breadth of the southern part. This is the work of the Saracens, and derives its name from its use, for it signifies measure. In reality they observe there every day, by means of the graduated column, the increase or decrease of the waters of the Nile; and it is by that, that the public cryers regulate the proclamations they make of these events, at different hours, through the city. On some places of this river there are rocks, from whence the water falls down 290 feet at least, and these are called the cataracts of the Nile. It overflows regularly every year, from the 15th of June to the 17th of September, when it begins to decrease. The fertility of Egypt depends upon the overflowing of the Nile; and they reckon it will be a bad year, when it is less than 14 cubits, and above 18, but 16 cubits is the proper height; and when this happens they make public rejoicings throughout the Delta. This river affords plenty of fish, and it breeds a great number of crocodiles, which are very large and very dangerous. Different authors give different accounts of the just height of the inundation; but that is not very material to an English reader. The Delta, or Lower Egypt, is always overflowed; and when the waters are almost gone off, they sow it with rice, which delights in watery grounds. During the inundation the little towns, standing upon eminences, look like so many islands; and they go from one to the other by boats. In Cairo there is a canal called Khalis, which is opened when the water is high enough; from thence it is conveyed into reservoirs and cisterns, and is afterwards distributed into the fields and gardens, as occasion requires. This inundation of the Nile is caused by the periodical rains which fall every year between the tropics, and more particularly in Abyssinia, which is full of high mountains.

NIMEGUX, a large, handsome, and strong town of the Netherlands, and capital of Dutch Guelderland, with a citadel, an ancient palace, and several forts. It is noted for the peace concluded here in 1679. It has a magnificent town-hofe, and the inhabitants are greatly addicted to trade. It is seated on the river Va-hal, or Wahal, between the Rhine and the Maese, 35 miles S. E. of Utrecht, 40 N. W. of Cologne, 20 S. E. of Gunslerdam, and 70 N. E. of Antwerp.

NIMRO, a sea-port town of China, in the province of Chekiang, whose walls are 5074 geometrical paces in circumserence, and has a street which runs thro' it as strait as a line. The walls are good, being built of free stone, but are not strong enough to resist cannon balls.
 There are two great arches thro' the walls, for the passage of barks in and out of the city. The streets are very narrow, and appear more so on account of penthouses which are over the shops. In sailing up to Nimpo, the ships pass by a town called Tin-hie, which is of an oblong square, and is commanded by a citadel, built on a very high rock, by the foot of which all vessels must necessarily pass. The Chinese merchants of Siam and Batavia, go thither yearly to buy silks; and they have a great trade to Japan, it being but two days fall distant from it, carrying thither silks, stuffs, fu-NIO, an island of the Archipelago, between Naxos to the N. Annago to the E. Santerino to the S. and Sikino to the W. It is about 35 miles in circumference, and is fertile in wheat; but there is very little wood, or oil, nor are there any palm-trees to be seen. The inhabitants are almost all Greeks, and thieves by profession. This island is celebrated by the ancients for the tomb of Homer, who is said to have died in one of the harbours.

 Lon. 43. 28. lat. 36. 35.

NIONS, a town of France in Dauphiny, and in the bailiwick of Buis, 10 miles W. of the town of that name. There is a nunnery in this place, and it had formerly a castle, which is now in ruins.
 It is seated on the river Rhone, over against the town of Valence, and is considerable. It is supplied to the Rhone, and is 22 miles from Valence.

NIPON, a large island of the East-Indies,

- NIVES, an ancient, large, and flourishing town of France in Languedoc, with a bishop's see, and an academy. There are several monuments of antiquity, of which the amphitheatre is the principal. It was built by the Romans, and is the most entire of any in Europe. The maison quarrée, or the square house, is a piece of architecture of the Corinthian order, and one of the finest in the world. The temple of Diana is, in part, gone to ruin. It was taken by the English in 1417. The inhabitants were all Calvinists; but Lewis XIV. demolished their church in 1685, and built a castle to keep them in awe. It is seated in a delightful plain, abounding in wine, oil, game, and cattle. It is 12 miles N. W. of Arles, 20 S. W. of Avignon, 27 N. E. of Montpellier, and 75 N. E. of Narbonne. Lon. 22. 1. lat. 43. 50.
- NISSA, or NESSAVA, a town of Turkey in Europe, in the province of Servia, seated on the river Moravia. It was burnt by the Imperialists in 1689, and is 20 miles E. of Precop, and 130 S. E. of Belgrade. Lon. 40. 30. lat. 45. 22.

NORFOLK, an English county, 60 miles in length, and 34 in breadth, bounded on the S. by Suffolke, on the N. and E. by the ocean, and on the W. by Cambridgefhire. It contains 47, 180 houses, 283,080 inhabitants, 660 parishes, and 33 market-towns. The principal rivers are, the Ouse, the Waveney, the Yare, and the Thyn. The air is sharp, but healthy, but the soil is various, being fat in some places, and in others light and sandy. It is full of heaths, and near the sea are rich marshes, fit for grazing cattle. However, in general it is one of the largest and most fruitful counties in England, and the inhabitants are noted for being fond of law. The productions are much the same as in other counties, only they have more sea-fish and water-fowls, on account of the vicinity of the sea. Norwich is the principal town.
 They send 12 members to parliament, that is, 10 for Norwich, Lynn-Regis, Yarmouth, Thetford, and Castle-Rising, and 2 for the county.

NORMANDY, a province of France, bounded on the N. by the English channel, on the E. by Picardy and the Ifle of France, on the S. by Perche and Maine, and one part of Bretagne, and on the W. by the ocean. It is about 150 miles in length, 80 in breadth, and 600 in circumference.

It is one of the most fertile, and brings in the largest revenue of the kingdom. It abounds in all things except wine, but they supply that defect by cyder and perry. There are vast meadows, fat pastures, and the sea yields plenty of fish. It contains iron, copper, and a great number of rivers and harbours. It carries on a great trade, is very populous, and comprehends a vast number of towns and villages. It is divided into the upper and lower; the upper borders upon Picardy, and the lower upon Bretagne. The inhabitants are ingenious, and capable of understanding arts and sciences, but they are very fond of law. The Normans, a people of Denmark and Norway, having entered France under Rollo, Charles the Simple ceded this county to them in 912, which, from that time, was called Normandy. Rollo was the first duke, and held it in chief of the crown of France, and several of his successors after him, till William, the seventh duke, conquered England in 1066, from which time it became a province of England, till it was lost in the reign of king John, and was reunited to the crown of France; but the English still keep the islands on the coast of Normandy.

NOTTGAW, a country of Germany. See BAVARIA.

NORTHALERTON, a town in the N. Riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Wednesdays, and three fairs, on February 13, May 4, and October 2, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep. It is seated on a small brook, which, a mile below, runs into the river With, and is a large, well built place, sending two members to parliament, and has a good trade. It is 37 miles N. of York, 33 S. of Durham, and 229 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 23. lat. 54. 20.

It is seated on the river Nen, over which it has two bridges, and had walls, which are now demolished; as also a large castle, which is ruined likewise. It had seven churches, which are now reduced to four, and the great one, called Allhallows, stands in the middle of the town, and is adorned with a handsome portico. It was in a great measure destroyed by a fire in 1675, but was soon rebuilt, with a handsome, spacious market-place; and, in general, is a well-built, handsome town, where the assizes are kept, as well as the quarter-sessions, and sends two members to parliament. It has the title of an earldom, a good free-school, two alms-houses, an infirmary, and a gaol. It is 50 miles W. of Cambridge, 30 S. E. of Coventry, 32 S. of Leicester, and 67 N. W. by N. of London. Lon. 16. 40. lat. 52. 15.

* NORTH-PETHERTON, a village in Somersetshire, with one fair, on May 1, for shoes and toys.

NORTH-SEA is a name given to the gulph of Mexico, in contra-distinction to the South-Sea, on the W. side of the Isthmus of Darien; and hence the ocean to the N. of it has been called by the same name.

* NORTH-TAWTON, a village in Devonshire, with two fairs, on October 2, and December 17, for cattle.

NORTHUMBERLAND, a county of England, 74 miles in length, and 45 in breadth, bounded on the E. by the ocean, on the W. by Cumberland, and part of Scotland, on the S. by the county of Durham, and on the N. by the river Tweed, which separates it from Scotland. It contains 22,740 houses, 126,440 inhabitants, 460 parishes, 12 market-towns, and sends 6 members to parliament, 2 each, for Newcastle, Morpeth, and Berwick, and two for the county.

The air is sharp, and very cold in the winter, from the snow lying on the tops of the hills, which are at a distance from the sea. But the land on the sea-coast is plain and fruitful, and the great plenty of coals that this country produces is generally known. Newcastle is the principal town.

NORTHUMBERLAND, a county of N. America, in Virginia, lying at the mouth of the river Potomack.

* NORTH-WALSHAM, a village in Norfolk, with one fair, on Holy-Thursday, for hories, lean cattle, and petty chapmen.

Northwich, a town of Cheshire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on August 2, and December 6, for cattle, drapery-wools, and bedding. It is seated near the river Dane, and is a handsome place, but is chiefly noted for its brine-pits and salt-works. It is 20 miles N. E. of Chester, and 159 N. W. of London. Lon. 12. 3. lat. 53. 18.

* NORTHWOOD, a village in Norfolk, with one fair, on November 30, for cattle and toys.

* NORTON, a village in Devonshire, with two fairs, on March 10, and October 10, for cattle.

NORWAY, the kingdom of, is the most western part of Scandinavia, and is bounded on the N. and W. by the ocean, on the E. by Swedish Lapland, and on the S. by the Categate-Sea, which separates it from Denmark. It is divided into Norway Proper, and its dependencies. Norway Proper comprehends four general governments, namely, Aggerhuys, Berghen the capital, Drontheim, and Wardhuys. The dependencies of Norway are, Iceland, and the Isle of Ferro. It is a cold, barren country, and the ground is covered with snow for nine months in the year. It is full of woods and mountains, and produces oak-planks, deal-boards, pitch and tar, besides iron and copper-mines. The summer is very short, but then they sow and reap in six weeks time, and yet it does not produce corn sufficient for the natives, and those that come there for trade. They have a very great fishery, and they dry their cod upon the rocks, without salting it, which is well known by the name of stock-fish, and is sent all over Europe. There is a high chain of mountains runs between Norway and Sweden, called the Dofrine Hills, which are neither inhabited nor cultivated. It had its own kings till the year 1387, when it was united to Denmark, and in 1525, it embraced the Lutheran religion. It has a viceroy, who has an absolute power, and lives at Berghen. The people are robust, courageous, inured to labour, and good sailors.

NORWICH, a town or city of Norfolk, and the capital of that county, with three markets, on Wednesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays; and three fairs on the day before Good-Friday, St. Faith's, the Tuesday after St. Michael, and Maudlin, or St. Mary Magdalen, for horses, sheep, lambs, and petty chapmen. It is a very ancient place, and has undergone great calamities, however, it is now a large, handsome, populous, and well frequented city, surrounded with walls. It is seated on the river Yare, which runs through part of it, and over which there are several bridges. It has 12 gates, and 36 parish-churches, besides the cathedral, which is a handsome structure, with a lofty spire-steeple. Every part is not inhabited within the walls, for there are many gardens and orchards, and several of the churches are covered with trees. It is a city and county, and sends two members to parliament, and is also a bishop's see, where the bishop has a palace, as also the duke of Norfolk. It is governed by a mayor, a recorder, 12 aldermen, 2 sheriffs, and 21 common-council, and, besides the above churches, it has 5 dissenting meeting-houses, and a Romish chapel. There are here about 8000 houses, the streets are pretty wide, and there is a very spacious market-place. Here is a fine old castle, used as a prison, and from thence a person may have a view of the whole city. Here is also the ruins of a castle called King's, who lived in the reign of Edward VI. and did much damage to the city: a new play-house, a place called Vauxhall, and many other curious gardens for the resort of the gentry. It has a large and flourishing manufactory, in the worsted way, as camblets, crapes, &c. for which it has a great trade, both at home and abroad. It is 43 miles N. of Ipswich, 42 E. of King's-Lynn, and 109 N. E. by N. of London. Lon. 19. c. lat. 52. 40.

NOTO, an ancient, large, and handsome town of Sicily, and capital of the Val-di-Neto. It was entirely ruined by an earthquake in 1693; but the inhabitants built another town at some distance from it, which they call Noto Nuovo. It is 10 miles S. W. of Modica, and 22 S. W. of Syracuse. Lon. 32. 35. lat. 36. 50.

NOTO, VAL DI, one of the three valleys or provinces into which Sicily is divided, and it lies between the sea, Val-di-Demona, and Val-di-Mazara. Noto is the capital town.

NORTBURG, a town of Russia, in the province of Ingria, seated on an island in the lake Ladoga, at the place where the river Nieva proceeds from this lake. It is strong, has a good citadel, and was capital of the province before Peterburg was built. It is 25 miles E. of Peterburg. Lon. 40. 15. lat. 60. c.

NOTTINGHAM, the county town of Nottinghamshire, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Fridays, and four fairs, on Friday after January 15, May 7, and on Thursday before Easter, for horses and horned cattle, and on October 2, 3, 4, for the same, and plenty of cheese. It is delightfully seated on the river Leane, which, at a mile's distance, falls into the Trent, over which there is a stone bridge, as also another over the Leane. It contains 3 parish-churches, and 4 meeting-houses, with handsome streets, well-built houses, and a very spacious market-place. It is remarkable for its vaults or cellars, cut into a rock. It had a strong castle, which stood on a steep rock, and on the ruins of it is a handsome palace, belonging to the duke of Newcastle, which is accounted one of the finest seats in England, and is the chief ornament of the town. Its chief manufacture is in wove stockings, tho' they make a great deal of malt and earthen ware. Most of the houses in the market-place, and principal streets, have their front supported by lofty stone columns, which make a very handsome appearance, and at the same time afford shelter in bad weather. The streets are well paved, and from their situation on a rock, are always clean. Heavy goods are brought hither from London by sea, and thence up the river Trent; and many coal pits, within three or four miles of the town, afford plenty of fuel, at little expence. It is governed by a mayor, recorder, 6 aldermen, 2 sheriffs, 18 common-council, 2 chamberlains, and 2 coroners; and is 16 miles E. of Derby, 32 S. W. of Lincoln, and 122 N. by W. of London. NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, a county of Eng- land, 47 miles in length, 20 in breadth, and is bounded on the E. by Lincoln- shire, on the W. by Derbyshire and Yorkshire, on the S. by Leicestershire, and on the N. by Yorkshire. It con- tains 17,454 houses, 168 parishes, and 9 market-towns, and sends 8 members to parliament, viz. Nottingham 2, East Retford 2, Newark-upon-Trent 2, and 2 for the county. The air is good and healthful, but the soil is different; that to the E. near the rivers being fertile in corn and pastures, and that to the W. more barren, a great part of it being taken in by the forest of Sherwood, fa- mous for Robin Hood and his compan- ions. This has several coal-mines, is full of game, and the soil is sandy. Besides these, it produces a soft sort of alabaster, which, being burnt, is used for making of floors in the upper rooms.

 - NUBIA, a kingdom of Africa, bounded on the N. by Egypt, on the E. by the Red-Sea, and part of Abyssinia, on the W. by the kingdoms of Tagua, Gaoga, and the desert of Gorham. The river Nile runs through it, on the banks of which, and those of the other rivers, it is pretty fruitful, but in other places barren, sandy, and in want of water. To the W. of the Nile is the desert of Bahouda, which is five days journey over, being the usual road from Egypt to Abyssinia. Money is of no use in this country, in the way of trade, it being all carried on by way of exchange. Their bread and drink is made of a small round feed called Doda, or Sett, which is very ill tasted. Their houses have mud walls, being very low, and covered with reeds. The habit of the better sort is a vest without sleeves, and they have no coverings for their heads, legs, and feet. The common people wrap a piece of linnen-cloth about them, and the children go quite naked. They are a stupid, debauched sort of people, having neither modesty, civility, nor religion, though they profess to be Mahometans. The productions of this country are, gold, elephants teeth, civet, and sandal-wood, and they send a great many slaves into Egypt. The principal towns known to the Europeans are, Daogola and Sennar.

- NUITS, a town of France, in Burgundy, famous for its excellent wines. It is seated at the foot of a mountain, 15 miles S.W. of Dijon, 10 N.E. of Beaune, and 150 S. E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 28. lat. 47. 10.
- NUMANTIA was anciently a considerable town of Spain, in Old Castile, then called Celtiberia. The inhabitants were greatly celebrated for maintaining this town 12 years, when besieged by the Romans. The men, when they could hold out no longer, for want of provisions, killed their wives and children, and afterwards themselves, burning every thing that was valuable among them. After this Scipio Africanus demolished this place, in the year of Rome 620. The ruins of it are still to be seen at Puente-Guaray, on the river Duero, 4 miles above the town of Souza. Lon. 15. 0. lat. 42. 0.
- NUMIDIA, anciently a large country of Africa, to the S. of mount Atlas, which had formerly its own kings. It is now called Biledulgerid.
- NUNEVTON, a town of Warwickshire with a market on Saturdays, and one fair, on May 14, for horses, cow, and sheep. It is seated on the river Auker, and was formerly noted for its abbey, and has at present a good free-school. It is 8 miles N. by E. of Coventry, 29 S. of Derby, and 100 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 16. 10. lat. 52. 33.
- NUNSY, a village in Somersetshire, with one fair, on November 11, for cattle.
- NUREMBERG, or NURNEBURG, one of the most handsome, strong, and flourishing towns of Germany, and capital of Franconia, being a free, imperial city. It is seated in a sandy, barren soil, and yet the inhabitants are so industrious, that they have brought this republic into a very flourishing state, and are almost as happy as possible. It is a large place, and is two miles and 468 paces in length, and one mile and 36 paces in breadth, and about 6 miles in circumference. It is surrounded by high walls, flanked with 365 towers, as also with a deep ditch. The river Pegnitz runs through the middle, and divides it into two parts. It turns 160 wheels, as well belonging to mills as other machines; and over it there are 12 stone-bridges. There are also 128 capital streets, and 400 smaller; 12 huge fountains, and 130 small, besides 107 wells. This city also contains 16 churches, 44 religious houses, 10 market-places, 21,000 houses, and 25,000 families. Among the public buildings the churches of St. Sebald and St. Lawrence deserve the greatest attention, they being very handsome structures. The arsenal is one of the best in Germany, and the town-house is greatly admired by travellers. The townsmen are divided into 8 quarters, each of which has a captain. The government is aristocratical; and, by the authority and prudence of the magistrates, every thing is well regulated. The great council is composed of 200 persons, and the supreme council of 34 patricians, and of 8 of the most reputable tradesmen. The burghesses have two excellent qualities; they are very industrious and the best workmen in arts. Their maps and prints are in high esteem, as well as their musical and mathematical instruments; nor are they less curious in clock-work, and in the several manufactures of iron, steel, ivory, wood, and alabaster. The best toys are made here, which are commonly known in England by the name of Dutch toys; and they have also a famous academy for painting. The anatomical theatre and the publick library are also worth notice. With regard to the cleanliness of their streets, and the neatness of their houses, they imitate the Dutch; and though they formerly kept to their old habits, they now follow the most fashionable modes. Though their religion is the Lutheran, the church of the Holy Ghost has variety of reliques, as also the imperial crown, the imperial sceptre, the globe of the empire, the sword of St. Maurice, the imperial mantle, the white robe of the emperors called the Dalmatick, the golden surplice, the mantle of the choir, and the gloves, the slippers, and the hereditary crown of the emperor Rodolph II. All these rarities are placed in a chest, which is suspended by a rope in the dome, and they are never taken down but at the coronation of the emperor, or when any person of high distinction wants to see them. The ancient and superb castle, or palace, which the inhabitants bought of the Burgaves, is still standing, at the extremity of the city. Here are four Latin schools, besides a famous college or university. No

Jews are suffered to lodge a single night here; nor can they enter the city at all without paying a certain tax. They have in process of time obtained a considerable territory, which is about 30 miles in diameter, and 100 in circumference, and in which are two large forests. Their manufactures are conveyed all over Europe by the means of two large fairs. The houses are all built of free-stone, and are 4 or 5 stories high. It is seated almost in the center of Germany, 55 miles N. W. of Ratibon, 90 N. by W. of Munich, 62 N. of Augsburg, and 250 W. by N. of Vienna. Lon. 28. 43. lat. 49. 26.

• ORISAGNI, an ancient town of the island of Sardinia, with a good harbour, and an archbishop's see. It is pretty large, and well fortified, but thinly inhabited on account of the unhealthy air. It is seated on the western coast, on a bay of the same name, 42 miles N. W. of Cagliari, and 27 S. of Boza. Lon. 26. 33. lat. 39. 55.

• ORIXA, a kingdom of Asia in Indostan, lying on the gulph of Bengal. It is divided from the ancient kingdom of Golconda by a ridge of mountains, the end of which runs a little way into the sea. The prince of this country is a Gentoo, who is tributary to the Great Mogul, and pays to the value of 12,000 pounds yearly. This kingdom abounds in corn, cloth, cattle, deer, and antelopes; bears and monkeys are very numerous, and very tame: there are also water-fowls, partridges, pheasants, and other birds, in great plenty, but none dares to kill them but the prince. It is watered with several rivers which run into the sea, and there are a great many stone bridges over them, where great numbers of beggars attend to ask alms in the name of their god Jagranai. There are several good towns and harbours on the sea-coast; and they have different manufactures in different places, which have been, or will be, taken notice of in their order.

• ORLAMUND, a town of Germany in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in Thuringia, belonging to the duke of Saxe-Cotha. It is seated on the river Sala, over against the mouth of the river Orla, from whence it took its name. It is 50 miles S. W. of Leipzick. Lon. 29. 1. lat. 50. 50.

• ORLANDO, a cape on the northern coast of Val di Demona in Sicily, 15 miles W. of Patti.

• ORLEANOIS PROPER, is a province of France, bounded on the N. by Upper Beauce, on the E. by Gatinois, on the S. by Sologne, and a part of Blaisois, and on the W. by Dunois and Vendomois. It is divided by the river Loire into the upper and lower, and is a very good plentiful country.

• ORLEANS, a town of France, the capital of Orleanois, an ancient, large, handsome, pleasant, and one of the most celebrated towns or cities of France, with an university, the title of a duchy, and a bishop's see. It is surrounded with walls, and fortified with forty towers; the streets are large and clean, and most of them terminate at the key, for the convenience of trade. The most superb structure is the cathedral, though a Gothic building, which had the finest steeple in France, till it was damaged in the time of the civil wars. There are 22 parishes, and a great many churches and religious houses. The bridge was built of stone, and was supported by sixteen arches. On it was the statue of the Virgin Mary in bronze, holding that of Jesus Christ in her arms, as if going to be laid in his tomb. On one side of her was the statue of Charles VII. on his knees, and on the other Joan of Arc, called the Maid of Orleans, dressed in armour. Every year, on the 12th of May, they make a solemn procession in memory of her. Her story is well known; and that the first exploit she performed was the raising the siege of Orleans. But the bridge has been since rebuilt, and was opened in August 1760; and now the French boast that it is the finest bridge in the world. This town carries on a prodigious trade in wine, corn, and brandy, which is occasioned by its advantageous situation on the river Loire. It is 32 miles N. E. of Blois, 65 N. E. of Tours, and 67 S. W. of Paris. Lon. 19. 34. lat. 47. 54.

• ORLEANS FOREST, is in the neighbourhood of the town of that name, and contains 100,000 acres of land, planted with oak and other valuable trees. It is one of the most considerable of all France.

• ORLEANS NEW, a town of N. America, and capital of Louisiana, seated at the mouth of the river Mississippi. It was built in the time of the regency of the duke of Orleans, and is the residence of the governor. Lon. 290. 50. lat. 30. 0.

• ORLEANS ISLAND, and TOWN, are seated in N. America in Canada, and a little to the E. of Quebec. Lon. 304. 35. lat. 47. 6.

• ORLETON, a village in Herefordshire, with one fair on April 24, for horned cattle.

• ORMOND, is the north division of the county of Tipperary in Ireland, with the title of a duchy.

• ORMSKIRK, a town of Lancashire, with a market market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, viz. on Whit-Monday and September 3, for horned cattle and horses. It is seated near the river Douglas, not far from the large meer of Merion, and is a handsome place. It is 30 miles S. of Lancaster, and 190 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 49. lat. 55. 37.

* ORMUS, a small island of Asia, at the bottom of a gulph of the same name, at the entrance of the gulph of Persia. There is neither sweet water nor grass upon it, but only a kind of salt sulphureous soil. It was taken by the Portuguese in 1507, who fortified it; and it was afterwards frequented by a vast number of merchants, who were extremely rich. In 1622 the Persians, by the assistance of the English, conquered this place, and demolished the houses, which were 4000 in number, containing 40,000 inhabitants. Some time after the Persians rebuilt the fort, and placed a garrison in it; but they could never bring it to be such a place of trade as it was before; however, it is the key of the Persian gulph, as well on account of the importance of the place, as the commodiousness of the harbour. The heat in this island is sometimes so excessive, that the inhabitants would be stifled if they did not put themselves in water up to the neck for some hours. However, it is now almost deserted, for it produces nothing but salt, which sometimes is two inches deep upon the surface of the earth. Lon. 73. 0. lat. 27. 30.

* ORSE, a river of France in Normandy, which has its source at the village of Aunon, and falls into the sea, 8 miles below Caen.

ORONOCO, a river of S. America, which rises in Popayan near the S. Sea, and, running E. communicates with the Rio Negro, and by that with the river of the Amazons; for 1000 miles have been known to pass that way a few years ago, which is a late discovery, for it was denied before. After this junction it runs N. E. through Terra Firma belonging to the Spaniards, and falls into the North Sea in 9 degrees of N. lat. through several mouths. The only town of any note it passes by in its course is St. Thoma, not far from the mouth.

ORONOTA, a town of Spain in New Castile, near the frontiers of Estramadura, 22 miles E. of Placentia, and 50 W. of Toledo. Lon. 13. 6. lat. 39. 40.

OROFESA, a town of S. America in Peru, seated at the foot of the mountains, 108 miles from Lima, and 150 N. E. of Tortosi. Lon. 311. 35. lat. S. 20. 0.

ORSA, a town of Poland in Lithuania, and in the palatinate of Witepsk. It is fortified and defended by a good castle, and is 50 m. W. of Smolensko, and is seated at the confluence of the rivers Orsa and Nicper. Lon. 49. S. lat. 54. 38.

OROWA, a town of Hungary in the Banat of Tamiswar, seated on the north side of the Danube, almost opposite to Belgrade, and is subject to the Turks. Lon. 39. 35. lat. 45. 30.

OROV, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia and duchy of Cleve. It was taken by the French in 1672, who demolished the fortifications. It now belongs to the King of Prussia, and is 20 miles S. of Cleve. Lon. 24. 18. lat. 51. 28.

ORTA, or ORTI, a town of Italy in the patrimony of St. Peter, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Tiber, or Tevera, 10 miles E. of Viterbo, and 33 N. of Rome. Lon. 30. 2. lat. 40. 22.

ORTEGAL, a cape or promontory of Spain in the province of Galicia. It is the most northern promontory of that kingdom, and is 30 miles N. E. of Ferrol. Lon. 8. 0. lat. 44. 3.

* ORTENBURG, a town of Germany in the circle of Austria, and in Carinthia. It is seated on the south bank of the river Drave, over against its confluence with the Lifer, and is the chief place of a county. Lon. 31. 10. lat. 46. 30.

ORTIZ, a town of France, and one of the principal places in Norm. It is seated on the declivity of a hill near the river Gave, 17 miles from Paris. Lon. 16. 55. lat. 42. 32.

ORTON, a town of Westmoreland, with a market on Wednesdays, but no fairs. It is seated in a healthy country, which is quite destitute of wood, and is but a small place. It is 12 miles S. W. of Appleby, and 233 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 15. lat. 54. 28.

* ORTENAU, a country of Germany in the circle of Suabia, which lies along the Rhine, and separates it from Alsace. It is bounded on the S. by Bichaw, and on the N. by the margravate of Baden, and on the E. by the duchy of Wirtemberg. It contains three imperial towns, namely, Gifenburg, Gengenbach, and Zell; it belongs partly to the house of Austria, partly

ORVIETO, a town of Italy in the patri-mony of St. Peter, with a bishop's see, and a magnificent palace. In this place there is a deep well, into which mules descend, to fetch up water, by one pair of stairs, and ascend by another. It is feated on a craggy rock, near the confluence of the rivers Pagli and Chianna, 15 miles N. of Viterbo, and 50 N. by W. of Rome. Lon. 29. 45. lat. 42. 42.

ORWELL, a river of Suffolk, which rising in the middle of that county, runs S.
E. by Ipswich, and falls into the ocean at Landguard fort.

OSACA, a large, handsome, and famous town of Japan, with a large and magnificent fortified castle. It has a harbour, and is one of the most populous and trading places in Japan. Here they proclaim the hours of the night by the found of different instruments of music.
Lon. 152. 30. lat. 35. 50.

OSERKO, or OORO, an island in the gulph of Venice, belonging to the Venetians, having that of Cherso to the N. and to which it is joined by a bridge. The capital town is of the same name, with a bishop's see. Lon. 33. 5. lat. 45. 0.

OSTIMO, an ancient town of Italy in the march or marche of Ancona, with a rich bishop's see, and a magnificent episcopal palace. It is feated on the river Musone, 10 miles S. W. of Ancona, and 110 N. E. of Rome. Lon. 31. 12. lat.
43. 20.

OSMA, an ancient town of Spain in Old Castile, with a bishop's see, and an university. It is almost gone to ruin, and is feated on the river Duero, or Douro, in a plain abounding in all the necessaries of life, 80 miles N. by W. of Madrid, and 112 N. by E. of Toledo. Lon.
15. 2. lat. 41. 34.

OSNABRUG, a town of Germany in the circle of Westphalia, and capital of a bishoprick of the same name, with an university and a castle. It is rich, and the castle is well fortified; being the residence of the bishop who has brought this place under his power. It is remarkable for a treaty of peace concluded here between Germany and Sweden in 1648, in favour of the Protestant religion. The Protestants have two of the churches. The beer of this place is highly esteemed in Germany. It is feated on the river Haze, 35 miles N.
E. of Munster, 45 S. W. of Bremen, and 75 W. of Hanover. Lon. 25. 48.

lat. 52. 28.

* OSNABRUG, the bishoprick of, a province of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, bounded on the N. by Lower Munster, on the S. by Upper Munster, on the E. by the territory of Minden, and on the W. partly by Munster, and partly by Lingen. It is remarkable that this bishoprick is possessed by the Papists and Protestants alternately, according to the tenour of the treaty of Westphalia.
The Protestant bishop is always chosen by the house of Brunswic-Lunenbourg, and the Catholic by the Papists. The present bishop is the elector of Cologne; however, the inspection and administration of ecclesiastical affairs belongs to the elector of Cologne, as metropolitan; but the civil affairs are always governed by the Protestant bishop in his turn. It is 40 miles in length, and 30 in breadth, and is divided into 7 bailiwicks; and it abounds in cattle, but more especially in hogs. Osnabrug is the capital town.

OSORNO, a town of S. America in Chili,

Lon. 27. 0. lat. 44. 50.

OSTALERIC, a town of Spain in Catalonia, It had a castle which was very strong, but was taken by the French and demolished in 1695. It is feated on the river Tordera, 24 miles N. E. of Barcelona.
Lon. 20. 20. lat. 24. 44.

OSTREND, a very strong sea-port town of the Netherlands in Austrian Flanders, with a good harbour, and a magnificent town-house. It is not very large, but is very well fortified. It was formerly much more considerable, before the long siege of the Spaniards, which continued from 1631 to 1663, when it was almost entirely reduced to ashes. The Dutch lost 50,000 men, and the Spaniards 80,000.
Isabella Eugenia, governess of the Netherlands, made a vow she would not shift her smock before Ostend was redeemed; but before the town was taken quite changed its colour. However, the ladies of the court, to keep her in countenance, had theirs dyed, that theirs might be like that of their mistres. This place was taken by the Dutch in 1706, but restored to the Emperor in 1723. In 1723 an E. India company was established here, but it was entirely suppressed by treaty in 1731. It was taken by the French in August 1745, after ten days siege, but was rendered back by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. It is 70 miles W. of Bruges, 8 N. E. of Newport, 22 N. E. of Dunkirk, 58 N. W. of Brussels, and 175 N. of Paris. Lon. 20. 23. lat. 51. 17.

OSTIA, an ancient and celebrated town of Italy, in the campagna of Rome, seated at the mouth of the river Tiber, with a bishop's see. It was very famous in the time of the Romans, but the air being very unwholesome, it is now very thin of people, and gone to decay; and the harbour is choked up. There is another Ostia, over against the former, but it does not contain above 8 or 10 houses. It is 12 miles S. W. of Rome. Lon. 20. 58. lat. 41. 47.

OSTIACKS, a people of Asia, in Siberia, who inhabit the banks of the river Obi. They are heatlens, and worship idols made of wood and earth, some of which are dressed in silks, in the fashion of the Russian ladies. Their idols are placed before their huts, which are made of barks of trees, and are as contemptible as can be imagined. They have as many wives as they can maintain, and make no scruple of marrying their nearest relations. These people are very poor, and very lazy, and in the summer-time they live mostly upon fish. They are of a middle size, with broad faces and noses, and yellowish, or red hair. All their garments, from top to toe, are made of fish-skins, for they have neither linen nor woollen; and indeed they might almost as well go naked. Their greatest diversion is deer-hunting, and they go together in crowds, with a weapon like a large knife, fastened in a gash. They have a sort of princes among them, in one of whose houses that was visited there were four wives. One of these had a red cloth coat on, and was set off with all sorts of glass beads. There was no other furniture than cradles and chests, made of barks of trees, sowed together. Their beds consisted of wood-shavings, which as soft as feathers, and their children lie naked upon them in cradles. They all take tobacco, and swallow the smoke, which puts them into such disorders, that they foam at the mouth. They can neither write nor read, nor do they cultivate the land; nor yet do they seem to have the least knowledge of times past. They have neither temples nor priests, and their boats are only made of barks of trees, sowed together. In winter they live entirely under ground, and there is no other entrance into their caves than a hole at the top. When they lie naked round the fire, as is their custom, the snow will drive in upon them, and partly cover them, which they take little or no notice of.

OSTIGLIA, a town of Italy, in the duchy of Mantua, subject to the house of Austria. It is seated on the river Po, 15 miles E. of Mantua. Lon. 29. 5. lat. 45. 0.

It is a mountainous country, abounding in olives, figs, and wine; and there is a kind of spider called a tarantula, whose bite is venomous, and cannot be cured but by the sound of musical instruments, to which the patients dance. It is often visited by locusts, and by Algerine pirates, who carry all the people they can catch into slavery. But, to keep them off, they have built a vast number of forts upon the coasts, in which are garrisons. Notwithstanding this there are a great many towns, and the capital is of the same name.

OTRANTO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and capital of the Terra d'Otranto, with a commodious harbour, an archbishop's see, and a strong citadel, where the archbishop resides. It was taken by the Turks in 1480, who did a great deal of mischief, but it is since re-established. It has also greatly suffered by the pirates. It is a large, handsome place, and is seated on the gulph of Venice, 37 miles S. E. of Brindisi, and 60

S. E. of Tarento. Lon. 36. 10. lat. 40. 21.

ORICOLI, a town of Italy, in the territory of the church, and in the duchy of Spoleto. It is seated on a hill, a mile and an half from the river Tiber, and 35 N. of Rome. Lon. 30. 50. lat. 42. 25.

ORTONA, or ORTONA, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Higher Abruzzo, with a bishop's see. It is thin of people, and is seated on the gulph of Venice, 10 miles N. of Lanciano, and 43 E. of Aquila. Lon. 33. 5. lat. 42. 22.

* OTTEBY, a village in Devonshire, with three fairs, on Tuesday, Tennight before Easter, on Whit-Tuesday, and August 15, for cattle.

ODENARDE, a rich and strong town of the Netherlands, in Austrian Flanders, in the middle of which there is a considerable fort. The river Schelde runs across this place and its environs, whose soil is very fertile, and forms a large chatellany. They have here a manufacture of very fine linnen, and curious tapestry. This town was besieged by the French in 1708, but they were obliged to raise the siege, by the duke of Maltherough, who entirely routed their army, and took 5000 prisoners. It is 12 miles S. of Ghent, 15 N. E. of Tournay, 27 W. of Brussels, and 20 N. W. of Mons. Lon. 27. 16. lat. 50. 49.

OXFORD, the principal town of Oxfordshire, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, but no fairs. It is a city, a bishop's see, and an university, and besides the cathedral, it has 13 parish-churches. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Isis and Cherwell, on an eminence almost surrounded with meadows, except on the E. side. The whole town, with the suburbs, is of a circular form, 5 miles in circumference. It consists chiefly of two spacious streets, which cross each other in the middle of the town. The university contains 20 colleges, and 5 halls, several of which stand in the streets, which give the city an air of magnificence. In short, if it be taken altogether, there is not such another group of buildings, nor such another university in the world; which all travellers that have seen it confess. In point of situation it has much the advantage of Cambridge for health and pleasure, and it is governed by a mayor and aldermen, in subjection to the chancellor and vice-chancellor of the university. It sends 4 members to parliament, 2 for the university, and 2 for the city, and has the title of an earldom. It is 60 miles E. by N. of Bristol, 25 W. S. W. of Buckingham, 52 W. S. W. of Bedford, 80 N. by W. of Chichester, 20 S. of Coventry, 87 S. of Derby, 57 N. E. of Salisbury, and 55 W. by N. of London. Lon. 10. 20. lat. 51. 45.

OXFORDSHIRE, a county of England, 47 miles in length, and 29 in breadth, bounded on the E. by Buckinghamshire, on the W. by Gloucestershire, on the S. by Berkshire, and on the N. by Warwickshire and Northamptonshire. It contains about 10,000 houses, 114,000 inhabitants, 280 parishes, 12 market-towns, and sends 10 members to parliament, namely, 2 for the county, 4 for the city and university of Oxford, 2 for Banbury, and 2 for Woodstock. The air is sweet, mild, pleasant, and healthy, for which reason it contains several gentlemen's seats; and the soil, though various, is fertile in corn and grass, and the hills are shaded with woods. It is also an agreeable sporting country, there being abundance of game.

Oxes, a river of Asia, much taken notice of in ancient histories, but does not rise in the N. of them, as most writers affirm; for, according to the best and latest maps, made by those who have been upon the spot, it ran a course of about 260 miles, from the Caspian Sea to the Lake Aral, whose dimensions have lately been discovered, and is but very lately known to the Europeans; but, as it passes through a desert country abounding with sands, the inhabitants diverted its course, that the old channel can hardly be discovered.

OSY, a town of France, in Boulonnois, capital of a county of the same name. The English were in possession of it till Calais was taken from them. It is 5 miles from Gravelines, and 5 from Calais. Lon. 19. 35. lat. 51. 0.

OSWIEZIS, a town of Little Poland, seated on the river Weichsel, near the borders of Silecia; the houses are built of wood, and the town is covered on one side with a great morass, and on the other it is defended by a castle, whose walls are made of wood. It is 32 miles W. of Cracow. Lon. 36. 35. lat. 50. 10.

PACAMORES, a government of America, in Peru, and in the audience of Quito. The air is temperate, and it abounds in corn, cattle, and mines of gold.

PACEM, a town of Asia, in the island of Sumatra, in the E. Indies, in the Kingdom of Achem. Lon. 10. 0. lat. 5. 2.

PACHACAC, a valley of S. America, in Peru, celebrated for its pleasantness and fertility, but more for a magnificent temple built by the Incas of Peru, to the honour of their god. When the Spaniards conquered Peru they found immense riches therein. It is 10 miles S. of Lima.

PACUSIA, a small island in the Mediterranean Sea, near the coast of Epirus, and in European Turkey. It lies to the S. of Corfu, and to the W. of the gulf of Astu. It is subject to Venice.

PACIFIC OCEAN, otherwise called the S. Sea, which lies between Europe and America, and is supposed to be 10,000 miles in breadth, and is named from being supposed to be free from storms and tempests.

but this many sailors have found to be a mistake to their cost.

PACTOLUS, a river of Natolia, in that part of it anciently called Lydia, celebrated by the poets for its golden sands. It has its source in the mountain Molis, passes by Sardis, and soon after falls into the Sarabar.

• PACY, an ancient town of France, in Normandy, seated on the river Eure, 8 miles from Vernon. It carries on a great trade. Lon. 19. 3. lat. 49. 1.

PADAN-ARAN, a country mentioned in scripture, whose present name is not certainly known; for some take it to be Mesopotamia, that is, the country that lies between the rivers Euphrates and Tigris, and others Syria in general, or rather Assyria.

PADANG, a town of Afo, seated on the W. coast of the island of Sumatra, in the E. Indies. It has a harbour, and is in possession of the Dutch. Lon. 119. 45. lat. S. 1. 5.

PADERBORN, an ancient, populous, and large town of Germany, in Westphalia, capital of a small territory in possession of its bishop, who is a prince of the Empire. It takes its name from the rivulet Padera, which rises on the top of a mountain, from which run three streams, which unite in the middle of the town. The cathedral is magnificent, and it has a chapter, into which none can gain admittance unless he has studied at an university in France or Italy, though there is a college here. The French garrison was put into it in 1742, but it now belongs to the elector of Cologne. It is 27 miles S. W. of Minden, 20 N. W. of Coësl, and 42 E. by S. of Munster. Lon. 26. 28. lat. 51. 46.

• PADERBORN, the bishoprick of, is a small district of Germany, in Westphalia, bounded by the counties of Lippe, Rittburg, and Waldeck; and by Helle, the abbey of Corvey, and by the duchies of Westphalia and Brunsvick. It is about 32 miles in length, and 20 in breadth. In the middle of it there are high mountains, where there are iron mines; but the rest of the country is fertile in corn and pastures. However, it is most remarkable for its bacon and venison; and the elector of Cologne is now sovereign.

• PADHAM, a village of Lancashire, with two fairs, on May 8, and September 20, for coopers, and other wooden ware.

PADRON, a town of Spain, in Galicia, which is seated on the river Ulla, 12 miles S. of Compostella. Lon. 9. 18. lat. 42. 40.

PADSTOW, a town in Cornwall, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on April 18, and September 21, for hoes, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops. It is seated on the N. coast of the county, and is a place of some trade to Ireland, from which it is not above 24 hours sail. It is 36 miles W. of Launceston, and 231 W. by S. of London. Lon. 12. 15. lat. 50. 40.

PADUA, an ancient, large, and celebrated town of Italy, with an university and a bishop's see. It is also capital of the Paduano, but is much less considerable than it was formerly, for it now contains no more than 30,000 inhabitants, whereas it formerly had 100,000, and many of the houses are gone to ruin; however, the hall where justice is administered is a superb structure. The cathedral church and the college of the university are in that part called the old town; and there are piazzas under all the houses, where persons may walk without being exposed to the weather. The garden of the university is curious, on account of the number of plants. Here a student may take his degrees, let him be of what sect of Christianity he will; nay, though he should be a Jew or a Turk. The patron of this city is St. Antony, who lies in the cathedral; they have such a veneration for him, that the beggars do not ask charity in the name of God, but for the love of St. Antony. The Jews live in a distinct part of the city, and the neighboring mountain produces excellent wine and oil, with delicious fruits. It was taken by the Venetians in 1706. It is seated on the rivers Brentae and Bachiellone, in a fine plain; and is about 7 miles in circumference, 25 miles S. E. of Vicenza, 225 S. W. of Venice, and 225 N. of Rome. Lon. 29. 10. lat. 45. 24.

PADUANO, a small province of Italy, in the territory of Venice, bounded on the E. by the Dogado, on the S. by the Polestio di Rovigo, on the W. by the Veronese, and on the N. by the Vicentino. Its soil is well watered, and is one of the most fertile in Italy, being about 40 miles in length, and 35 in breadth. Padua is the capital town.

PALATINATE, a considerable province of Germany, divided into the upper and lower. The Upper Palatinate is also called the Palatinate of Bavaria; see BAVARIA. And the Lower Palatinate, or Palatinate of the Rhine, is an electorate. It is bounded on the N. by the archbishopricks of Mentz and Triers, on the E. by the circles of Franconia and Suabia, and on the W. and S. by Albia-na. It is about 100 miles in length and 70 in breadth, and the principal rivers are the Rhine and the Neckar, besides several other smaller streams. It is not a very rich country, though there are very fine vineyards, fertile fields, handsome forests, good gardens, and the rivers and lakes abound in fish; besides, there are cattle, game, and wild-fowl; without mentioning timber, which is very common: however, there are neither mines, nor salt-works. In general, the Lower Palatinate has suffered more by the preceding wars, with France, than all the provinces of Germany put together, during the space of 30 years; for the French have plundered the country, and demolished some of its fine towns, more than once. The present Elector-palatine is Philip Theodore of Sultzbach, who is a Roman-Ca-tholick, and arch-treasurer of the empire. The Papists, Calvinists, and Lutherans, have an equal right of toleration in this country; but the religion of the Elector inclines him to oppress the Protestants; inasmuch that there is no country in Germany carries more complaints

plaints to the diet upon that subject than this. This Palatinate consists of 13 bailiwicks, namely, Heidelberg, Mosbach, Bretten, Roxberg, Utzberg, Neustadt, Gemersheim, Lautern, Altzey, Oppenheim, Bacherach, Strömberg, and Bockelheim. These are all comprehended in the circle of the Lower Rhine; but, on the eastern side of that river, the Elector possesses the principality of Simern, and the bailiwicks of Kautznach, and Kuckberg. Besides these, the present Elector is Governor of the duchy of Neuburg in the Upper Palatinate, and the towns of Veldenz and Lautick, with the bailiwick of Stridick in the circle of the Upper Rhine; as also the marquisate of Baden Zimmern, the duchies of Jülich and Berg, and the lordship of Ravenstein. The revenue of the Elector is about 300,000 Rix-dollars, and in time of peace he maintains a body of about 6000 men.

PALERMOLE, a town of Sicily, in the Val-di-Noto, 80 miles S. W. of Messina. Lon. 32. 46. lat. 37. 7.

PALISZUOLU, a town of Italy, in the territory of Venice, and in the Bresian. It is seated on the river Oglio, over which there is a stone-bridge, 30 miles N. E. of Milan, and 25 N. by W. of Cremona. Lon. 21. 47. lat. 45. 30.

PALENCIA, a town of Spain, in the kingdom of Leon, with a rich archbishop's see. It had an university, but it was removed to Salamanca. It is seated in a fertile soil, on the river Carion, on the frontiers of Castile, 42 miles S. W. of Burgos, 62 E. of Leon, and 115 N. by W. of Madrid. Lon. 15. 28. lat. 42. 10.

PALERMO, an ancient, large, populous, rich, and handsome town of Sicily, in the Val-di-Mazara, with an archbishop's see, and a harbour. It was the seat of the ancient kings, and is 12 miles in circumference. It is a place of great trade, whose streets are handsome, and houses superb, being well fortified, and populous. The publick buildings, squares, churches, and fountains, are extremely fine. The fountain that is in the great square is thought to be the best in all Italy. The number of the inhabitants is above 20,000, and the harbour is very large, but the vessels are not always very safe. There is a magnificent pile built near the E. side, which the viceroy resides for six months in the year, and his presence draws a great number of the nobility to this place. The last king was crowned at Palermo in July 1735. This city has suffered greatly by earthquakes, particularly in 1693; and it was greatly damaged by a fire in 1730, when a magazine of powder was blown up, containing 400 tons. It stands in a pleasant, fruitful country, on the N. coast of the island, and at the bottom of the gulph of the same name, 110 miles W. of Messina, 172 S. by W. of Naples, and 245 S. of Rome. Lon. 31. 15. lat. 38. 10.

PALESTINE, a country of Turkey of Asia, and in Syria. It was anciently called the country of the Philistines, and, before that, the Land of Canaan, and lies along the Mediterranean Sea. At present they bestow the name of this territory likewise on Judea, and therefore, taking in the whole extent, it is bounded on the N. by Mount Libanus, on the E. by Mount Hermon, which separates it from Arabia Deserta, on the S. by Arabia Petrea, and on the W. by the Mediterranean Sea. It was called Palestine from the Philistines, who inhabited the E. coast, and Judea from Judah, as also the Holy Land, because it was the scene of the birth and sufferings of Jesus Christ. At present it is a poor, barren country, which perhaps may be owing to the indolence of the inhabitants, for formerly it was cultivated, and flowing with milk and honey. About Jerusalem the country is mountainous and rocky, which however serves to feed sheep and cattle.

PALESTRINA, a town of Italy, in the Campagna di Roma, with a bishop's see. It is the capital of a principality of the same name, and the bishop is one of the six cardinals. It was anciently famous for the temple of Terence, being then called Procellae, and seated on the top of a mountain, the ruins of which may yet be seen. The present place is built to the S. of the same mountain, 25 miles E. of Rome. Lon. 30. 30. lat. 41. 51.

PALESTRINA, is one of the largest and most populous of the islands called the Lagunes, very near Venice, and where the most considerable of the noblemen have houses of pleasure. It is 15,000 paces in length, and 400 in breadth, and the principal harbour has also the same name.

PALMA, or PALMA NOVA, a very strong town of Italy, in the territory of Venice, and in Friuli. It is a very important place, for the defence of the Venetians against the Austrians and Turks, and was built in 1593, for that very purpose. They have cut a canal near this place, which is very advantageous for the trade of it. It is seated on the sea-side, 10 miles S. E. of Udino, 10 N. W. of Aquileia, and 55 N. E. of Venice. Lon. 31. 0. lat. 46. 2.

PALMA, an island in the Atlantick Ocean, and one of the Canaries. It is 36 miles N. W. of Gomera, and about 75 in circumference. It abounds in wine and fugar, and has a handsome town of the same name, which carries on a trade in wines to the W. Indies and other parts. Their best vines grow in a soil called the Brenia, where they make 12,000 butts of wine every year, which is well known by the name of palm-wine. It has plenty of cattle, and all sorts of fruits. In 1625 a volcano broke out in this island, with a most violent earthquake; the flame was seen for six weeks together, and a great quantity of ashes were thrown as far as Teneriff. It was conquered by the Spaniards in 1460. Lon. 357. 0. lat. 28. 30.

PALMAS, CAPE, a promontory in Africa, on the Ivory Coast of Guinea. Lon. 9. 35. lat. 4. 30.

* PALMELA, a town of Portugal, in Estramadura, with a castle built on a rock. It is seated on the river Gadaon, 5 miles N. of Sctoval, and 17 S. E. of Lisbon. Lon. 9. 27. lat. 38. 30.

PALI-

PALMYRA, formerly a magnificent city of Asia, in the deserts of Arabia, of which Xenobia was queen, who held it out a long time against the Romans, but was at length taken captive, and led in triumph through the streets of Rome. Several English gentlemen have taken a journey from Aleppo, to take a view of its magnificent ruins; and particularly Mr. Wood, an ingenious gentleman, went thither on purpose, properly attended, to take draughts of those curious antiquities, which have since been published in a very pompous manner, and are well worth the notice of the curious. This part of the desert is usually mentioned by geographers by the name of the Desert of Palmyrene, or Tadmor. It is 200 miles S. E. of Aleppo. Lon. 56. 35. lat. 33. 0.

PALOS, a town of Spain, in Andalusia, with a pretty good harbour. It is remarkable for being the place from which Christopher Columbus set sail to discover the new world in 1492. It is seated at the mouth of Rio Tinto, 50 miles S. W. of Seville. Lon. 11. 32. lat. 37. 8.

PALOS, CAPE, a promontory of Spain, in the kingdom of Murcia, to the S. of a town of the same name, and which separates the bay of Carthagea from that of Alicant, 20 miles E. of Carthagea. Lon. 16. 55. lat. 37. 40.

PALOTA, a town of Lower Hungary, and in the county of Alba Regalis, taken by the Emperor from the Turks in 1687. It is 40 miles S. W. of Buda. Lon. 35. 55. lat. 47. 30.

* PALUDA, a town of Asia, in the government of Ezerum, seated near the Euphrates. It is inhabited by Mahometans and Christians, and it is believed the Armenian characters were first invented here. Lon. 57. 0. lat. 38. 35.

* PALUS MEOTIS, the ancient name of a gulph between Europe and Asia, to the N. of the Black Sen, which is now called the Sea of Zabachi, and sometimes the Sea of Asoph.

PAMIERS, a handsome town of France, in Upper Languedoc, and in the territory of Foix, with a bishop's see. It is not so considerable now as formerly, nor is it peopled in proportion to its extent. It is seated on the river Ariege, 8 miles N. of Foix, and 37 S. of Touloufe. Lon. 19. 15. lat. 43. 8.

* PAMPFELONNE, a town of France, in Languedoc, 12 miles from Alby. Lon. 19. 56. lat. 44. 7.

PAM-

PANPELUNA, a town of Spain, and capital of the kingdom of Navarre, with a very strong citadel, and a rich bishoprick. Its squares are handsome, and adorned with shops full of rich merchandize; there is a famous hand-mill here, very useful in case of a siege. It is seated in a very fertile plain, on the river Arga 42 miles S. of Bayonne, 83 S. E. of Elbao, and 167 N. E. of Madrid. Lon. 16. 10. lat. 42. 42.

PAMPLEUNA, a town of S. America, in the kingdom of New Granada, famous for its mines of gold, and numerous flocks of sheep. It is 150 miles from Santa-Fe, and 200 S. of Maticacibo. Lon. 308. 55. lat. 6. 30.

PAMPHYLIA, the ancient name of a country of Asia, in Natolia, which is now called Carmania and Cay-Bay, between Lycia and Cilicia, on the S. coast, to the N. of the Mediterranean Sea; but Carmania is of much larger extent.

• PAN, or PAHAN, a town of Asia, in the E. Indies, and in the peninsula of Malacca. It is capital of a kingdom of the same name, remarkable for the great number of elephants, and for the plenty of pepper it produces.

PANAMA, a rich and handsome town of S. America, capital of an audience of the same name, with a bishop's see, whose bishop is the primate of Terra-Firma. It is surrounded with a stone-wall, and other fortifications, and the publick buildings are very handsome. All the merchandizes of Chili and Peru are brought to this place, particularly all the gold and silver, and all the commodities brought from Europe. The ships unload at a small island, 3 miles from this place, because the water is so shallow it will not admit them to come nearer. Old Panama was burnt by Sir Henry Morgan, a buccancer, and the present town is four miles distant from it, and has a more advantageous situation. It is the seat of a governor and a bishop, and is seated on a bay of the same name. Lon. 207. 20. lat. 3. 40.

PANARI, one of the Lipari Islands, lying in the Tuscan Sea. It is very inconsiderable, the soil being barren, and it is but 5 miles in circumference. It is 8 miles N. of Lipari, and 70 N. of the island of Sicily, being subject to the King of the two Sicilies. Lon. 32. 35. lat. 39. 0.

PANARO, a river of Italy, which rises in the Appennines, crosses the valley of Figliano, and running on the confines of the Modenesse and Polognesse, waters Final, and falls into the Po at Bendeno, 10 miles above Ferrara.

PANAY, an island of Asia, and one of the Philippines, lying between those of Paragea and Negro. It is 240 miles in circumference, and is the most populous and fertile of them all. It belongs to Spain, and is watered by a great number of rivers and brooks, and produces a great quantity of rice. Holla is the capital town. Lon. from 137. 20. to 139. 0. lat. from 10. 0. to 11. 30.

• PANGA, a large town of Africa, in the kingdom of Congo, and capital of the province of Banba, which is 90 miles along the coast. Lon. 32. 0. lat. S. 6. 30.

• PANGO, a province of Africa, in the kingdom of Congo, bounded on the N. by Sundi, on the E. by the river Barbola, and the Mountains of the Sun, on the S. by Dembo, and on the W. by Betta. It has a town of the same name, seated on the river Barbola.

• PANORMO, an ancient town of Turkey in Europe, and in Romania, seated in the peninsula S. of Carida. There is another town of the same name, on the coast of Epirus in Greece, about 20 miles N. of Butrinto, and in Canina. Lon. 58. 5. lat. 40. 13.

PANSWICK, a town of Gloucestershire, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on Whit Tuesday, and September 19, for horned cattle and sheep. It is commodiously seated, in a wholesome air, and has the conveniency of wood, water, and stone for building; and is 7 miles S. of Gloucester, and 94 W. by N. of London. Lon. 15. 20. lat. 51. 40.

• PANTALARIA, an island in the Mediterranean Sea, between Sicily and the main-land of Africa, about 17 miles in circumference. It is near the coast of Tunis, and abounds in cotton, fruits, and wine; but the inhabitants are obliged to bring all their corn to Sicily, as it belongs to the King of the two Sicilies. Lon. 30. 0. lat. 36. 55.

PANUCO, a town and province of N. America, in New Spain, lying to the N. of Mexico, with a bishop's see. There are veins of gold, and salt-works, which are the principal revenue of the inhabitants. It is seated near the mouth of a river of the same name, at a small distance from the gulph of Mexico. Lon. 277. 30. lat. 24. 0.

PAPA, a small but strong town of Lower Hungary, in the county of Velprin. It was taken from the Turks in 1683, after resisting the siege of Vienna, and is subject to the house of Austria. It is seated on a mountain, near the river Marchaltz, 10 miles W. of Alba-Regalis, 25 S. of Raab, and 95 W. of Buda. Lon. 35. 45. lat. 47. 20.

PAPHLAGONIA, was formerly a county of Galatia, in Asia Minor, and was bounded by Proper Galatia on the S. by Cappadocia on the E. by Bithynia on the W. and by the Euxine Sea on the N. It now makes part of the province of Amasia, though some geographers call it Romi, and others Bolli.

PAPHOS. See BAPFA.

PAPOU, ST. a town of France, in Upper Languedoc, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Lembe, 8 miles E. of Castel Naudari, 15 N. W. of Carcassone, and 35 S. E. of Toulouse. Lon. 19. 46. lat. 43. 20.

PAPOUS, or the TERRA OF PAPOUS, a county lying in the E. Indian Ocean, near the line between the Grand Moluccas and New Guinea. Nothing is known of it but the coast, and there it appears to be a barren, inhospitable country, averse to trade; for which reason it is seldom visited by Europeans.

PAPPENHEIM, a town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia, and capital of a county of the same name, with a castle where the counts reside. It is seated near the river Altmal, 17 miles N. W. of Neuburg, and 32 S. of Nuremberg, and is subject to its own count. Lon. 28. 30. lat. 48. 53. The count of Pappenheim is hereditary marshal of the empire, and performs his office at the coronation of the Emperor.

* PARA, a fort of S. America, in Brasil, and in a captainship of the same name, seated near the mouth of the river Amazons, and to the E. of the eastern branch of it. It was an old fort of the Dutch, but has lately been rebuilt. Lon. 389. 0. lat. S. 1. 30.

PARACOVA, a large island of Asia, in the E. Indian Ocean, lying between the Philippines and the sea of Borneo, which has a king tributary to Borneo. The Spaniards have a fort here. Lon. from 131. 40. to 135. 0. lat. from 10. 0. to 11. 0.

PARAGUAY, a large country of S. America, bounded on the N. by that of the Amazons, on the E. by Brasil, on the S. by Patagonia, and on the W. by Peru and Chili. The territories of the missions of Paraguay not only contain the province of that name, but part of Santa Cruz de la Sierra, Tucuman, and Buenos Ayres. The temperature of the air is good, though somewhat moist, and in some parts it is rather cold than hot. The soil in many places is fertile, and produces not only the vegetables and fruits peculiar to America, but also those of Europe which have been introduced here. The chief articles of their trade are, cotton, tobacco, some sugar, and the herb called Paraguay. Every town gathers annually 2000 arabs of cotton, 25 pounds weight each, which the native Americans manufacture into cloth. There are also great quantities of tobacco produced, but the chief article is the herb paraguay, which only grows in this country, and the infusion of it is drunk in all the Spanish provinces of S. America, instead of tea and chocolate. It is now about a century and a half since the Jesuits entered this province, and the inhabitants consist of Guaranees, which the impolitic Portuguese drove from their native country by their oppressions; as also of the natives of Tape. According to a very exact account in 1734, there were 32 towns of the Guaranees, inhabited by 30,000 workmen. The missions of Paraguay are surrounded on all sides by savage Americans, some of which live in friendship with those towns, and others harass them by frequent incursions; for which reason every town has its magazine, in which are their fire-arms and other weapons. The militia is composed of all that are able to bear arms, and they are formed into companies, each of which hath proper officers. They have also schools in each town, where the common people are taught reading and writing, as well as music and dancing. The churches are large, well built, finely adorned and enlightened, and each has a choir of mule, composed of instruments of all sorts. The houses are as well built and furnished as most of the Spanish houses in Peru; the greatest part of which indeed have mud-walls, and are covered with tiles; but there are some of brick and stone. There is a sort of a nunnery in every town, where women are confined who are loose livers, and where those who have no family retire when their husbands are absent. The Guaranees are so profuse and negligent, that the priests are obliged to take all the manufactures off their hands when they are ready for sale, otherwise they would waste and destroy them. The Jesuits manage all the trade themselves, because they will not suffer the subjects to converse with other people. They have lately thought proper to throw off their obedience to the Spanish king, and have set up one out of their own body; but the Spaniards are now taking measures to dethrone him, and to recal the Jesuits.

PARAIBA, a town of S. America, in Brasil, in the captainship, and at the mouth of a river of the same name. The Dutch got possession of it in 1635, and fortified it with a slight rampart; but the Portuguese retook it soon after. The soil is pretty fertile, and produces sugar-cane and a great number of trees of Brasil-wood. Lon. 300. 42. lat. S. 6. 50.

PARAIBA, the most northern province of Brasil, in S. America, lying between Rio-Grande to the N. and the river Tamarack to the S. the ocean to the E. and Figueras to the W. It is subject to Portugal.

PARANA, a province of Paraguay, in S. America, bounded on the S. and E. by a great river of the same name, and on the N. by the province of Guaray. It is in the hands of the Jesuits, who have prevailed upon the people to forsake their dwellings in the woods, and to live in towns, where they are formed into societies, and are instructed in the Christian religion. The Jesuits have thrown off their subjection to the king of Spain, as they have done in other parts of Paraguay.

* PARAY-LE-MONIAL, a town of France, in Burgundy, seated on the river Bourbince, 190 miles S. of Paris. Lon. 21. 47. lat. 46. 27.

* PARCHIM, a pretty considerable town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and dutchy of Mecklenburg. It is seated on a small river which falls into the Elbe, in a country which is indifferently fertile, and the inhabitants make a shift to maintain themselves by their manufactures and trade. It is 12 miles N. E. of Neisfadt, and 20 S. E. of Schwerin. Lon. 20. 50. lat. 53. 36.

PARAÑO, a place of the king of Spain, in New Castile, 5 miles from Madrid, on the road to the Escorial, with a fine park and gardens. It is a large, square building, flanked with four towers, and the principal front has a handsome square before it. The rooms are embellished with fine pictures, among which are the kings of Spain in their ancient habits.

PARENZO, a small, but strong town of Italy, and in Istria, with a bishop's see and a good harbour. It is seated on the gulph of Venice, 25 miles S. of Cabodi-Istria, and 60 E. of Venice. It submitted to the Venetians in 1267. Lon. 31. 21. lat. 45. 23.

* PARGA, a strong town of the territory of Venice, on the coast of Albania, over against the island of Corfu, with a commodious harbour. It is inhabited by Greeks and Albanese, and is seated on a rock. Lon. 38. 22. lat. 39. 28.

PARIA, or NEW ANDALUSIA, a country of S. America, and in Terra Firma, being bounded on the N. by the N. Sea, on the E. by Surinam, on the W. by New Granada and Caraccas, and on the S. by Guiana. The N. part is called Cumana. The sea-coast is most inhabited, on which there are several towns.

* PARIMA, a lake of S. America, much talked of by former geographers, but it is now no where to be found.

* PARILLA, or SANTA PARILLA, a town of S. America, in Peru, and in the audience of Lima. It is seated in a valley on the river Santa, and on the sea-shore. It is 50 miles from Truxillo, and 150 N. of Lima. Lon. 300. 0. lat. S. 9. 0.

PARIS, the capital town or city of France, which is one of the largest and most populous in Europe. It is divided into three parts, which are, the town, the city, and the university; and there are 20 cantons, called quarters, wherein are 967 thoroughfare streets, 85 thro' which there are no passages; 50,000 houses, of which 500 are very large, and are called hotels; 52 parishes, and 20 churches, besides 20 chapter and collegiate churches; as also 80 churches and chapels which are not parochial; 3 abbeys of men, and 5 of women; 53 convents and communities of Monks, and 70 nunneries and communities of women, which make 134 in all. There are also 3 ecclesiastical jurisdictions, and 31 secular; 57 colleges, of which 10 are made great use of, 15 seminaries, 26 hospitals, 12 prisons, 50 publick squares, 56 publick fountains, 30 quays, 12 markets, 30 bridges great and small, 3 gardens and publick 100 watch, for the safety of the city, whose gates are guarded by 177 men, and about 800,000 inhabitants, of which near 200,000 are servants. This enumeration will not be surprising, when it is considered that Paris is surrounded by 7 large suburbs. The streets are pretty clean, and people may walk in safety as well in the night as by day, on account of the great number of lamps, which burn till morning. As soon as day appears, some hundreds of carts, like those of our nightmen in London, carry off the filth from before the doors of the houses, and carry it out of the city. In the day there are a Corps de Gard in every street, to take care of the publick safety; and in the night there are horse and foot which patrolle through the streets to prevent disorders. Paris is an archbishoprick, and Notre Dame is the metropolitan church; it is a superb structure, supported by 120 columns; the body of the church is 174 feet in length, 60 in breadth, and 100 in height; the towers or steeples are also very fine. The university at Paris is the most ancient in Europe, it having been founded by Charlemagne in 790; it is composed of three colleges, of which that for divinity is called the Sorbonne.

There are several famous academies, namely, the French academy, those of inscriptions and belles lettres, of sciences, of painting, of sculpture, of architecture, and of surgery. There are also several publick libraries, the principal of which are, those of the King, of Mazarin, and of St. Victor. The King's gardens are full of all sorts of plants; and there is a cabinet containing a vast number of curiosities. There are a great number of manufactures, of all kinds, and the hospitals are well endowed; the principal of these are, the Hotel-Dieu, the General hospital, the Salpetriere, the hospital for foundlings, and for mad-folks. The most remarkable buildings are, the Louvre, the palace of the Thuilleries, the royal palace of Luxemburg, the hotel of invalids, the hotel of the city, or town-house, the Bastille, the hall where the courts of justice sit, the Val-de-Grace, the cathedral, and the church of St. Sulpice. The principal squares are, the Place Royal, wherein is the equestrian statue of Lewis XIII. the Place of Vendome, wherein is the equestrian statue of Lewis XIV. and the Place de Victoires, where Lewis XIV. is represented in his coronation dress, having at his feet four nations in chains, and victory putting the crown on his head. The parliament is the most famous in the kingdom, whose jurisdiction has the greatest extent. There are also a board of accounts, a court of aids, a mint, and a treasury. The chateau is an old castle, wherein the chief magistrates administer justice. Paris is very pleasantly seated on the river Seine, that runs through the middle of it. The principal bridges are, the Pont-Neuf, whereon is the equestrian statue of Henry IV. and Pont-Royal. It is 70 miles PARMA, an ancient, rich, populous, and handsome town of Italy, capital of the dutchy of the same name, with a citadel, a bishop's see, and an university. It has a magnificent cathedral, and the largest opera-house in Europe, which has seats for 8000 people; but as it required a vast number of candles, which occasioned great expence, they contrived another which has room for 2000 spectators. The dome and the church of St. John are painted by the famous Correggio, who was a native of this place. Don Carlos, king of the two Sicilies, carried away the library to Naples, which contained 18,000 volumes, and a very valuable cabinet of curiosities, as also the rich collection of medals.

The citadel, which is very near the city, is built in the same taste as that at Antwerp. In 1734 there was a bloody battle fought here; and, in 1741, by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, the dutchies of Parma, Placentia, and Guastalla, were given to Don Philip, brother to Don Carlos above-mentioned. It is 30 miles S. E. of Cremona, 35 S. W. of Mantua, 65 N. W. of Modena, and 30 S. E. of Milan. Lon. 29. 27. lat. 44.

PARMA, the dutchy of, a province of Italy, bounded on the N. by the Po, on the N. E. by the Mantuan, on the E. by the dutchy of Modena, on the S. by Tuscany, and on the W. by the dutchy of Placentia. The air is very wholesome, on which account the inhabitants live to a great age. The soil is very fertile in corn, wine, oil, and hemp; the pastures feed a great number of cattle, and the cheese they did make, were in very high esteem; some of these were so large that they weighed 200 pounds each. Here are inconsiderable mines of copper and silver, and plenty of truffles, which many are very fond of.

PARNASSUS, now called PARNASSO, a famous mountain of Turkey in Asia, and in Livadia, near the ruins of Delphos. It has two heads, one of which was formerly very famous for being consecrated to Apollo and the Muses, and the other to Bacchus. It is the highest in Greece, and from the top there is a prospect as far as Corinth. The Turks call it Licoura.

PARNAY, a small but very strong town of the Russian empire in Livonia, with a castle. It has been taken and retaken several times, and is seated near the mouth of the river Pernau, 50 miles S. W. of Revel, and So E. of Riga. Lon. 42. 2. lat. 58. 26.

PAROS, an island of the Archipelago, and one of the Cyclades, about 10 miles in length, and 8 in breadth. The soil is well cultivated, and the pastures feed a great number of flocks. Their trade consists in wheat, barley, wine, pulse, sesamum, and callicoes. It did produce a great deal of oil, but the Venetian army burnt all the olive trees. They have a great number of partridges and pigeons, which they sell very cheap. The inhabitants have been always accounted people of good sense; and this island has been so famous for its marble, that the best carvers would make use of no other; likewise those excellent statues Phidias and Praxiteles, were natives of this island, which was anciently dedicated to Bacchus, on account of its excellent wines. It lies near that of Naxia, and Paros is the capital town. The Arandelia were brought from hence.

* PAROS, an ancient town of the Archipelago, and capital of the isle of Paros, which was anciently the largest and most powerful town of the Cyclades; but it is at present little or nothing to what it was. The walls of the castle are built of ancient pieces of marble, and most of the columns are placed long-ways; some of them that stand upright, support cornices of an amazing size. The natives make their houses with marble, which they find ready cut to their hands; but they never trouble their heads about placing the pieces in a regular manner. Likewise their fields are enclosed with friezes, altars, and basso-relievos; however, the English, French, and Venetians, have carried away the finest pieces they could meet with. The inhabitants are so ignorant now, that, instead of great sculptors, and skilful architects, they have nothing but carvers of mortars and salt-sellers. It is a bishop's see, and is seated on the western coast of the island. Lon. 43. 11. lat. 37. 3.

PARTENAY, a town of France in Poitou, and capital of a small district called Gattine. It carries on a considerable trade in cattle and corn, and it is seated on the river Tonne, 15 miles S. of Thouars, and 15 N. of St. Mamein. Lon. 17. 16. lat. 46. 40.

PARTENKIRK, a town of Germany, in the circle of Bavaria, 40 miles S. W. of Munich. Lon. 28. 35. lat. 47. 30.

PARTHIA, anciently a province of Asia. The greatest part now lies in Irac-Agemi, and the other in Khorassen in Persia.

* PARTNEY, a village in Lincolnshire, 10 miles E. by N. of Spillby, with three fairs on Aug. 25, Sept. 18 and 19, and Oct. 18 and 19, for cattle, and all sorts of cloathing.

PAS, a town of the French Netherlands in Artois, 12 miles S. W. of Arras. Lon. 20. 5. lat. 50. 15.

PASLAY, a town of Scotland in the county of Renfrew. It is finely seated, and is the best town in the county, and has been formerly noted for its magnificent abbey. It is 6 miles W. of Glasgow. Lon. 13. 15. lat. 55. 45.

* PASSAIO, a cape or promontory of S. America in Peru, lying under the equator. Lon. 293. 35.

* PASSAGE, a sea-port town of Spain in the province of Biscay, and in the territory of Guipuzcoa. It is a station of the Spanish men of war, and where the French burnt several of them in the last war between France and Spain. It is a little to the E. of St. Sebastian, and 60 miles E. of Bilbao. PASSARO, a cape of the island of Sicily, and one of the most remarkable. It is in the Val-di-Noto, to the E. of the town of that name, and it joins the eastern coast of this island to the southern. In the neighbourhood of this place the English and Spanish fleets had an engagement in the year 1735, when the Spaniards were defeated.

* PASSARO, a cape on the coast of Thessaly in Greece, between the gulph of Amiro, and that of Zeton.

* PASSARVAN, a town of Asia in the E. Indies, and in the island of Java. Lon. 154. 30. lat. S. 7. 30.

PASSAU, an ancient, handsome, and celebrated town of Germany in Lower Bavaria, with a bishop's see, and a fort. The houses are well-built, and the cathedral is thought to be the finest in all Germany. It is divided into four parts, namely, the town of Passau, Innstadt, Iltzstadt, and the quarter wherein the bishop's palace is seated. The three first are fortified; but the last, which is only a suburb, has nothing but an old castle, wherein the bishop generally resides. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Inn and Iltz, both which fall into the Danube, and it is 62 miles E. by S. of Ratibon; 80 E. by N. of Munich, and 135 W. of Vienna. Lon. 31. 9. lat. 48. 26.

* PASSAU, the bishoprick of, is a territory of Germany in Bavaria, and lies between Lower Bavaria, Austria, and Bohemia. Its largest extent is no where above 20 miles, and has no considerable place except Passau, the capital.

* PASSEWALK, a small town of Germany in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in the territories of the elector of Brandenburg. It is seated on the river Ucker, and is famous for its excellent beer. It is 15 miles from Prenzlau, and 15 from Torgelov. Lon. 31. 50. lat. 53. 36.

PASSIGNANO, a town of Italy, in the territory of the Church, and in Perugia. It is seated on the lake Perugia. Lon. 29. 50. lat. 43. 12.

PASTO, or ST. JUAN DE PASTO, a town of S. America in Popayan, seated in a fine pleasant valley, watered by several rivers. It is 120 miles N. of Quito, and subject to Spain. Lon. 303. 0. lat. 1. 30.

* PASTRANA, a town of Spain in New Castile, with the title of a duchy. It is seated between the rivers Tajo and Tajuna, 32 miles E. of Madrid. Lon. 15. 4. lat. 40. 26.

PATAGONIA, the most southern part of S. America, whose bounds are not well determined. All that we know of the inhabitants is, that they are a savage barbarous people, of a copper colour, like the rest of the Americans, with coarse black hair, and no beards. They are mightily addicted to painting themselves, and make streaks on their faces and bodies. They go almost stark naked, having only a square garment, in the form of a carpet, made of the skins of several animals, and sewed together, which they sometimes wrap round them in extreme cold weather; and they have also a cap of the skins of fowls on their heads. Sir John Narborough has given the best account of them; for former voyagers represented them as monstrous giants of eleven feet high, whereas they are no taller than the other Americans. The women, as in other places, are very fond of necklaces and bracelets, which they make of sea-shells. This country abounds with an animal, called camel-sheep by some authors, but their true name is guanacoos. They partake of the nature of a camel, though they have no hump, and they were formerly made use of to carry burthens. They have also a bird like an ostrich, but not so large, and they differ from the African ostriches in having three toes, whereas these have but two.

* PATAN, a kingdom of Asia in the East Indies, and in the peninsula of Malacca, and on the eastern coast between the Kingdoms of Siam and Paha. The inhabitants are partly Malometans, and partly Gentoos; but they are all very voluptuous. The air is very wholesome, though it is very hot, and they have no seasons but the winter and summer. The former is more properly the rainy season, and contains the months of November, December, and January. The woods are full of elephants, and many wild animals. Some voyagers pretend that this country is governed by a queen, who never marries, but may have as many gallants as she pleases. They have some trade with the Chinese, and the principal town is of the same name, which is one of the strongest in these parts, having a well defended harbour. Lon. 119. 35. lat. 7. 33.

PATMOS, an island of the Archipelago, between Nicaria and Samos. It is considerable for its harbours, but its inhabitants are not much the better for them, because corsairs have obliged them to quit the town, which was near the harbour of Scala, and to retire to a hill on which St. John's convent stands. This convent is a citadel, consisting of several irregular towers, and it is a substantial building, seated on a very steep rock. The whole island is nothing but a rock, very barren, and without wood: however, it abounds with partridges, rabbits, quails, turtles, pigeons, and snipes. All their corn does not amount to 1000 barrels in a year. It is 18 miles in circumference, and there are scarce 300 men in it; but then there are twenty women to one man, who expect that all strangers that land in this island, should carry some of them away. This is the island in which St. John wrote his Revelations, as is supposed; and to his memory there is an hermitage on the side of a mountain, where there is a chapel which is not above 8 paces long and 5 broad. Over-head they shew strangers a chink in the rock, thro' which they tell you that the Holy Ghost dictated to St. John. Lon. 44. 15. lat. 37. 20.

PATNA, a town of Asia in the dominions of the Great Mogul, and capital of a territory of the same name to the N. of the kingdom of Bengal, where the English and Dutch have factories for salt-petre, borax, and raw silk. It also produces large quantities of opium. The town is large, but the houses are built at a distance from each other. It is seated in a fertile pleasant country, 400 miles E. of Agra. Lon. 103. 15. lat. 25. 25.

PATOMAC, a large river of N. America in Virginia, which rises in Allegany mountains, separates Virginia from Maryland, and falls into Chesapeake-Bay. It is a broad river, and is navigable for near 200 miles.

PATRANA, or PASTRANA, a town of Spain in New Castile, with the title of a duchy. It is seated between the rivers Tajo and Tajuna, 32 miles E. of Madrid. Lon. 20. 46. lat. 40. 36.

PATRAS, an ancient and flourishing town of Turkey in Europe, and in the Morea, capital of a duchy, with a Greek archbishop's see. It is pretty large, and populous, and the Jews, which are one third part of the inhabitants, have four synagogues. There are several handsome mosques and Greek churches. The Jews carry on a great trade in silk, leather, honey, wax, and cheese. There are Cyprus trees of a prodigious height, and excellent pomegranates, citrons, and oranges. It has been taken and retaken several times; but the Turks are now masters of it. It is seated on the side of a hill near the sea-side, 20 miles S. W. of Lepanto, and 85 N. W. of Misitra. Lon. 39. 32. lat. 38. 20.

• PATRICA, a town of Italy in the territory of the Church, and in the campagna of Rome, towards the sea-coast, and 8 miles E. of Ostia. About a mile from this place there is a hill, called Montedi-Livano, which some have thought to be the ancient Lavinium, founded by Æneas.

PATRIMONIA-DI-ST. PÉTRO, or the PATRIMONY OF ST. PETER, is a province of Italy in the territory of the Church. It is bounded on the N. by Orvietano, on the E. by Umbria and Sabina, on the S. by the Campagna-di-Roma, and on the S. W. by the sea, being about 35 miles in length, and 30 in breadth. Besides the proper patrimony, it contains the duchy of Bracciano, and the district of Ronchione. Viterbo is the capital town.

PAVIA, an ancient and celebrated town of Italy, in the duchy of Milan, and capital of the Pavese, with a celebrated university, and a bishop's see. It is defended by strong walls, large ditches, good ramparts, excellent bastions, and with a bridge over the river Tesin. In the center of the town there is a strong castle, where the ancient dukes of Milan resided. There are a great number of magnificent castles, and some colleges.
 It was taken by the duke of Savoy in 1706; by the French in 1733; by the French and Spaniards in 1745; but it was retaken by the Austrians in 1746. It • PEGNAFEL, a town of Spain in Old Castile, remarkable for its palace, castle, fortifications, and its cheese, which are said to be the best in Spain. It is seated on the river Douro, 17 miles S. E. of Valladolid. Lon. 13. 55. lat. 41. 32.

• PEGNA-MACOR, a town of Portugal in the province of Beira, with a strong castle. It is 40 miles N. W. of Alcantara. Lon. 11. 10. lat. 39. 52.

PEGNARANDA, a town of Spain in Old Castile, and capital of a duchy of the same name. It is 35 miles S. W. of Olmedo. Lon. 12. 57. lat. 40. 52.

PEGNITZ, a river of Germany, which rises in the E. part of the circle of Franconia, near a town of the same name in the marquisate of Culmbach. It runs across the territory of Nuremberg, waters the town of that name, and soon after falls into the river Regnitz.

PEGU, a considerable kingdom of Asia in the E. Indies, lying on the S. E. of Bengal. It is bounded on the N. by the kingdom of Ava, on the W. and S. by the ocean, and on the E. by the kingdoms of Laos and Siam. It has a town of the same name, 70 miles within land, and was a strong place, above 20 miles in circumference; but at present not one twentieth part is inhabited; for it was ruined by the inhabitants of Barma, whose king is a potent prince. The product of this country is timber for building, elephants, elephants teeth, bees-wax, sticklac, iron, tin, petroleum, very fine rubies, and small diamonds. They have also saltpetre, and plenty of lead, of which they make their money. It is very fruitful in corn, roots, pulse, and fruits, and wild game is very common. They have also good fish, pork, and poultry. They wear no European commodities but hats and ribbands; but they have cottons, silks, and silver from Bengal, and the neighbouring countries. The government is arbitrary, for the king's will is a law; and yet he does not often abuse his power. He has a large handsome stone palace at Ava, with four gates, each of which is appropriated for people to pass through upon different occasions. None but ambassadors pass through the E. gate, which is also called the Golden Gate. The inhabitants are but thinly clad, and the best among them wear neither shoes nor stockings. The Barmacs go almost naked, and make figures on their skins like the ancient Picts, by pricking them in with a bodkin, and rubbing them over with charcoal. The women are much whiter than the men, and are small, but in good case, and well proportioned. They wear petticoats, which are open before; and this part of the dress was said to be invented by a queen of this country, to draw the men off from unnatural vices. The women are very fond of strangers; and any man may have a wife for the time he stays there. The wife goes to market, dresses the victuals, takes care of her husband's cloaths, and sells his goods by retail. If she proves false, the husband may sell her for a slave; and if he goes astray, she will give him a dose of poison. There are a vast number of temples in this country, but most of wood, which are varnished and gilded. The priests have ground allowed them, which they cultivate for their subsistence; and they are said to be strict observers of morality. They are called Taiapins, and inculcate charity as the highest virtue, affirming that religion to be best which teaches men to do most good. They have idols in their temples in a sitting posture, like ears. They have various sorts of music, but the pipe and tabor are esteemed the best. They have one instrument shaped like a galley, with about 20 bells of different sizes; and when they strike them with a stick they make no bad music. When any happen to be shipwrecked on the coast, if they repair to the temple they will be taken care of, and supplied with what they want. In the low flat part of the country that is liable to be overflowed, they build their houses upon stakes; and then in times of inundations they communicate with each other by boats. The king of Ava, who resides at the palace above-mentioned, is now master of Pegu. Lon.

PEISE, a town of Germany in the circle of Lower Saxony, and duchy of Brunswick. It is famous for a battle fought here in 1552, when Maurice, elector of Saxony, and the margrave of Brandenburg were killed. It is 20 miles W. of Brenswick. Lon. 27. 50. lat. 52. 35.

PEIKIN, the capital city of the empire of China in Asia, where the emperor generally resides. It is an exact square, and is divided into two parts; namely, that which contains the emperor's palace, which is in the new city, or the Tartar city, because it is inhabited by Tartars ever since they conquered this empire; the other, called the Old City, is inhabited by the Chinese. The circuit of both these together, is 52 Chinese lys, each of which contains 240 geometrical paces. The gates of this city are high and well arched, supporting buildings of nine stories high; the lowest of which is for the soldiers when they come off guard. The gates are nine in number; and before each there is an open space, which serves for a parade. The streets are as strait as a line, most of which are three miles in length, and about 120 feet wide, with shops on both sides; but the houses are poorly built, and are only a ground-floor. It is surprising to see what numbers of people there are in the streets, and not one woman among them; and there is always a great confession, occasioned by the vast numbers of horses, camels, mules, asses, waggons, carts, and chairs, without reckoning the several mobs which gather about jugglers, ballad-singers, and the like. Persons of distinction have always a horseman, who goes before them to clear the way. All the riches and merchandizes of the empire are continually pouring into this city. There are always hackney-horses and chairs in various parts, which stand ready to be hired for a trifle; and the owners of them know every street and house where any considerable person lives. All the great streets are guarded by soldiers, who patrol night and day with swords by their sides, and whips in their hands, to chastise those who make any disturbance, or to take them into custody.

The little streets have lattice-gates at their entrance into the great streets, which are shut up at nights, and guarded by soldiers, who suffer no assemblies in the streets at that time, and examine all that pass along. The emperor's palace is of vast extent, and surrounded with a brick wall, with pavilions at each corner, that are encompassed by galleries supported by columns. But it would be endless to give an account of the different apartments, with their ornaments and furniture, as well as of the different magazines, and rich commodities that are kept therein; not to mention the supreme courts of justice, which are six in number, and are only to be controlled by the emperor, and the grand council. Those who have computed the compass of this city a different way, observe, that it is 20 miles in circumference, and that the number of inhabitants is, at least, two millions; that the walls are so high that they cover the town, and are broad enough for several horsemen to ride a-bread; and there are strong towers a bow-shot distant from each other. The walls of the emperor's palace, including that and the gardens, are about 2 miles in length; and the architecture of the structures is entirely different from that of the Europeans, for they are covered with tiles of a shining beautiful yellow. The temples, and the towers of this city, are so numerous, that it is difficult to count them. The country about it is plain, but sandy, and not very fruitful, and yet provisions of all kinds are exceeding plentiful, they being, as well as the mer-chandizes, brought from other parts by the means of canals cut from the rivers, and which are always crowded with vessels of different sizes. An earthquake, which happened here in 1737, buried above 100,000 persons in the ruins of the houses, which were thrown down. Lon. 134. 16. lat. 39. 54.

PEMERIDGE, a town of Herefordshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on May 12, and Nov. 22, for horned cattle. It is a small place, seated on the river Arrow, 15 miles N. W. of Hereford, and 130 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 45. lat. 52. 18.

PEMBROKE, the capital town of Pembrokehire in S. Wales, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, on May 14, Trinity-Monday, July 10, and September 25, for cattle, horses, sheep, and cloth. It is commodiously seated on the innermost creek of Milford-Haven, over which there are two handsome bridges. It is a place of good account, and is inhabited by substantial people. It is surrounded with a wall with three gates, and has a strong castle, seated on a rock. It is a corporation, with well built houses, two churches, and the title of an earldom, sending one member to parliament. It is 10 miles S. E. of Haverford-west, and 214 W. by N. of London. Lon. 12. 25. lat. 51. 45.

PEMBROKESHIRE, a county of S. Wales, 37 miles in length, 18 in breadth, and is surrounded on all sides by the sea, except on the E. where it is bounded by Carmarthenshire and Cardiganshire. It contains 4320 houses, 25920 inhabitants, 145 parishes, 5 market-towns, and 16 castles, besides blockhouses. It sends 3 members to parliament, one for the county, one for Pembroke, and another for Haverford-west. The principal rivers are the Hen, the Gwrla, the Gwin, and the Nevern, besides several others of less note. The hills are barren, but the soil in the valleys and bottoms near the sea, are exceeding fertile: however, on many of the mountains there are sheep, goats, and cattle. The principal town is Pembroke.

 feated under a hill called Perith-Fell, near the rivers Eimont and Lowther. It was formerly strengthened with a castle, and is now a pretty large well-built place, inhabited by tradesmen, particularly tanners. It has a handsome church, and a spacious market-place, and is 13 miles S. of Carlisle, 50 N. of Lancaster, and 232 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14.
 19. lat. 54. 35.

PENRYN, a town of Cornwall, with three markets on Wednesdays and Fridays, for corn, and on Saturdays for provisions; and three fairs, on May 1, July 7, and Dec. 21, for horses, oxen, sheep, and a few hops. It is a corporation, feated on a creek of Falmouth-Haven, and is a considerable place, and sends two members to parliament. It is governed by a mayor, four aldermen, and a town-

* PENSHURST, a village in Kent, with one fair, on July 1, for pedlars ware.

PENNSYLVANIA, one of the principal plantations of the English in N. America. It is bounded on the E. by Delawar river, and partly by the ocean; on the W. by the northern part of Chespeak Bay, which separates it from Maryland; on the N. by several Indian nations; and on the S. by Maryland. However, here it must be observed, that the northern and western bounds are not yet determined, because the countries are in dispute between the English and French; and therefore, there is no saying any thing certain about them, till the present war is terminated. It is well watered by the Delawar, and other navigable rivers, on which large ships come up into the heart of the province. The produce of this country is corn, cattle, timber, pot-ashes, wax, skins, and furs; and they carry to the Caribbee Islands salted beef, pork, hoes, pipe staves, and fish, taking in return sugar, rum, and molasses. From England they have cloathing, furniture, hardware, and all sorts of tools. The principal inhabitants are Quakers, who, by their peaceable behaviour had no quarrel with the native Americans for a long while; but these having, of late, been set on by the French, have ravaged their back settlements, and killed or taken prisoners many of the inhabitants. Thus they were at length reduced to a strange dilemma; for by their principles they are not allowed to resist their enemies, and yet they did not care to sit still and be knocked on the head: upon this they sent over to their brethren in England, to know what they must do; who sent them this general answer, That if they did not care to fight, they might leave the country. This, or more cogent reasons, at last obliged them to grant supplies for carrying on the war. Philadelphia is the capital town.

• PENNEBART, an ancient county of France in Bretagne, that gives title to a duke and peer. It comprehends the territories of Guingamp, Moncontour Roches-Enard, Lanuz, and Juven.

It is seated on the river Tet, over which there is a handsome bridge, partly in a plain, and partly on a hill, 37 miles S. of Angouleme, 50 S. W. of Limoges, and 65 N. E. of Bourdeaux. Lon. 18. 18. lat. 45. 18.

PERSES, idolaters of Asia, and in Persia, now scattered into different parts, but chiefly in the East Indies. They are worshippers of fire, or at least they look upon that as an emblem of the Supreme Being. They are otherwise called Guebres. One object of their worship lies about 10 miles from Baku, which is seated to the W. of the Caspian Sea. Among other temples there is a small one, in which the Guebres now worship, there being a large hollow cane near the altar, from which a blue flame constantly proceeds. They affirm this has continued time out of mind; and they come in pilgrimage to it from their present settlements. They wear very little cloathing, mark their foreheads with saffron, and have a great veneration for a red cow.

PERSPOLIS, is supposed to be anciently the capital city of Persia, properly so called. It was taken by Alexander the Great, who was persuaded when in liquor, by the courtizan Thais, to set it on fire. It is thought to be the same as is now called Kilmanar, of which there are magnificent ruins still remaining. Some travellers that have seen them, think they far exceed any thing of this kind in the world. There are inscriptions, in characters, and in a language that now cannot be read; and which shew that this place must be extremely ancient; almost all parts of the ruins are full of sculptures, representing men and beasts. It is 50 miles N. E. of Schiras, and 200 S. E. of Ispahan. Lon. 71. 35. lat. 30. 30.

PESHORE, a town of Worcestershire, with a market on Tuesdays, and three fairs, on Easter Tuesday, June 26, and Tuesday before November 1, for cattle and horses. It is seated on a plain, on the river Avon, over which there is a bridge; and it is in the great road from London to Worcester. It contains about 300 houses, and has 2 parish churches; but it is somewhat decayed since the dissolution of its abbey. It is 9 miles E. S. E. of Worcester, and 102 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 35. lat. 52. 18.

PERSIA, a large kingdom of Asia, which consists of several provinces, which, at different times, have had their particular kings; the inhabitants call it Iran, for the word Persia is derived from that part of it called Pars or Fars, of which Schiras is the capital. It lies between 61 and 86 degrees of longitude, and between 25 and 45 degrees of latitude. It is bounded on the N. by Little Tartary, the Caspian Sea, Carasin, or Carasin, and Great Bokaria; on the S. by the Persian Gulph and Sea, on the W. by Turkey in Asia, and on the E. by Great Bokaria and the empire of the Great Mogul. It is about 1225 miles in length from E. to W. and 900 in breadth from N. to S. It is divided into 16 large provinces, namely, Shirvan, Aran, Adirbijan, Khilan, Masanjeran, Asterabad, Jorjon, Khorasan, Bag-Ageni, Segetan, Candahar, Sabistan, Khuzistan, Pars, Kerman, and Makian. The chief rivers, besides the Tygris and the Arax, are, Khar, Arax, Kozil, Ufan, Hindmeed, Ilmend, Bendamir, Kaion, and Kaika. No country in the world bears a more different character than this; for in the N. and E. parts it is mountainous and cold, in the middle and S. E. parts sandy and desert, in the S. and W. level and extremely fertile, though for several months it is very hot. The soil produces all sorts of pulse and corn, except oats and rye. They have cotton in great abundance, and, among other domestic animals, have camels and buffaloes, and their herds are very numerous. In several places napha, a sort of bitumen, rises out of the ground, and they have mines of gold, silver, iron, Turkey-stones, and salt; but the two first of these are not worked, on account of the scarcity of wood. They have a great deal of cotton-cloth, some pearls, and a great quantity of silk, besides manufactures of silk, and very fine carpets. They have also all sorts of fruits, excellent wine, and a great number of mulberry trees, with the leaves of which they feed the silkworms. Likewise dates, pistachio-nuts, and trees which produce manna, besides rhubarb; but this is brought out of Tartary. They have large flocks of sheep and goats, and the tails of the former are of a monstrous size. With regard to religion, they are generally Mahometans, of the sect of Hali, but Kouli Khan being of the sect of Omar, obliged all the Persians to conform thereto; but since his death it may be presumed that many of them profess their former religion again. This delightful country is now torn to pieces by intestine broils, there being several pretenders to the crown; but how these troubles will terminate there is no possibility of guessing. More particulars will be taken notice of when each province is described. Ispahan is the capital town.

PERSIQUE GULPH, a large gulph of Asia, between Persia and Arabia Felix. The entrance near Ormus is not above 30 miles over, but within it is 180 in breadth, and the length from Ormus to the mouth of the Euphrates is 420 miles.

PERTH, a town of Scotland, and capital of a county of the same name. It is a handsome place, agreeably seated on the river Tay, near two small forests. The tide comes up as far as this place, and is navigable for very small vessels, for which reason it has some trade. The shire of Perth sends one member to parliament. It is 30 miles N. of Edinburgh. Lon. 14. 25. lat. 56. 25.

PERTHAMBOY, a sea-port town of N. America, in New Jersey, seated on a bay of the American Ocean, at the mouth of the river Raritan, 25 miles S. W. of New-York, and subject to Great Britain. Lon. 303. 35. lat. 40. 45.

PERU, a large country of S. America, bounded on the N. by Popayan, on the W. by the S. Sea, on the S. by Chili, and on the E. by a ridge of prodigious high mountains, called the Cordilleras-de-los-Andes, being about 1500 miles in length from N. to S. and 125 in breadth from E. to W. between the Andes and the S. Sea; but in other places it is much broader, and according to some 300 miles. It never rains in this country, and they hardly know what lightning and thunder is, unless towards the top of the above mountains; for, while the mathematicians from France were there to measure a degree of latitude, while they were making their observations, they not only saw it lighten, but heard the thunder below them, for they were above the clouds. All the tops of these mountains are covered with snow to a very great height, and there are several volcanoes, which burn continually: sometimes such torrents of water will fall down from thence, that will overflow the whole country for a certain space. There happened one in December 1742, that in some places the flood was 60 feet high, and in others above 120; it carried away an infinite number of cattle, threw down 600 houses, and drowned 8 or 900 persons: in its course it removed pieces of rock 12 feet in diameter, and forced them 30 yards from the places where they first lay. Some thought this water proceeded out of the rock, but others more judiciously concluded it came from the melting of the snow. The best houses in this country are made of a sort of reeds like bamboo-canes, and covered with thatch, or palm-leaves. However, they have a sort of galleries or balconies, but there is no walking along the floors without making the whole structure groan. It is not at all probable that this country ever was so populous as the Spaniards have represented, for the villages are at 30 miles distance from each other, and are all near the sea; and there is the highest probability that they were all much in the same state they are now. There are large forests on the sides of the mountains, which advance near the sea-side, but none of their trees are like those in Europe.

The birds that are therein are much superior to those of Europe for the beauty of their plumage, but then their notes are very disagreeable. There are few birds near the sea-side, and the monkeys also get at a distance from it. The bird called the Toucan, which is remarkable for having a bill as large as its body, is called the preacher by the Spaniards, though it is as mute as a fish. It has been generally said there are lions here, but that which they call so is more like a wolf than a lion, and he never attacks mankind. But the tygers are as large and as fierce as those of Africa, though not of the same colour; however, it is happy for the inhabitants that there are but a very few of them.
Serpents are very common, and several sorts of them are dangerous; particularly the rattle-snake, which does not get away from men like the rest. There are several insects like those in Europe, but they are vastly larger. The earthworms are as long as a man's arm, and as thick as his thumb; likewise there are spiders covered with hair, and large as a pigeon's egg. The bats are of a monstrous size, and will suck the blood of horses, mules, and even of men who sleep in the fields; and they have entirely destroyed the great cattle which the missionaries had introduced into a country N. of Peru. The famous bird called a Centor or Conder is perhaps the largest in the world, for it makes nothing of carrying off a sheep, and some affirm it will carry off a whole buck.
The animal called the Guanaco is peculiar to S. America, for none have ever been found in N. America, nor any other country; it is commonly called a camel-sheep, and has something of the shape of a camel, without any bunches on its back; there are two sorts of them, and one is covered with a very fine reddish wool or hair, which is a valuable commodity. They are but small in comparison of a camel, and they were used to carry burthens of about fifty pounds weight, before horses were introduced. Peru is inhabited by the Spaniards who conquered it, and by the native Americans. These last that live among the forests form as it were so many small republics, which are directed by a Spanish priest, and by their governor, assisted by other original natives, that serve as officers. They have no distrust, for they leave the doors of their huts always open, though they have cotton, callibashes, and a sort of aloes, of which they make thread, and several other small matters which they trade with, and which might be easily stolen. They go naked, and paint their bodies with a red drug, called rocu. The same man is of all trades, for he builds his own hut, constructs his own canoe, and weaves his own cloth: but if a large house is to be built for common use, every one lends a helping hand. Their skins are of a red copper colour; and they have no beards, nor hair on any part of their bodies except their heads, where it is black, long, and coarse. Those that are not much exposed to the weather, are of a lighter colour than the rest. The natives who live at Quito seem to be of a different temper; for they are all extremely idle, and so stupid, that they will sit whole days together upon their heels without sitting or speaking. Their garment is a sort of a sack, with holes to put their arms thro'; and this is given them by their masters as part of their wages. From a mixture of the native Americans and the Spaniards, there arises a third kind, called Mestices, who are illegitimate: however, they have all the privileges of a Spaniard, and are the persons who carry on all trades; for the Spaniards think it beneath them to meddle with any thing of this sort: these behave in a more tyrannical manner over the real Americans, than even the Spaniards themselves, inasmuch that the governor is obliged to repress their insolence. It was said above that it never rains, but this must be understood of the south parts; for in the north, where the mountains are not so high, it often rains excessively; inasmuch that those who go thither in search of gold, are often carried off by the unwholesomeness of the climate. Those that travel over the Andes, where they are passable, find it so cold that they are often frozen to death; and if they are aware of a storm coming, they have no other way to save themselves, than by killing their horses and getting into their bellies. They have a great number of fruits, plants, and trees, not known in Europe; however, some of their physical drugs are brought over, which are of excellent use, and are well known in druggists shops, particularly the Jesu's bark, and Peruvian balsam. The Spaniards have introduced many herbs, plants, and trees from Europe, which thrive here very well, and the fruits they produce are very delicious. This country is divided into five great audiences, which are Quito, De los Reyes, and De las Charcas, which will be taken notice of in their proper places. I believe we hardly need take notice of the mines of gold and silver, and the prodigious riches that are brought from thence, because they are so generally known.

PERUGIA, a town of Italy in the pope's territories, and capital of Perugia. It is an ancient, handsome, populous, and large city, with a strong citadel, an university, and a bishop's see. The churches, and many other buildings, as well public as private, are very handsome. It is seated on a hill, 8 miles N. W. of Assise, 25 W. by N. of Nocera, and 75 N. of Rome. Lon. 30. 1. lat. 43. 6.

PERUGINO, a province of Italy, in the territory of the Church, bounded on the W. by Tuscany, on the S. by Orvietano, on the W. by the duchies of Spoleto and Urbino, and on the N. by the county of Citta Castellana. It is one of the smallest provinces in the territory of the Church. The air is very pure, and the soil fertile in corn and good wine; besides, the lake Perugia supplies them with plenty of fish. The capital town is Perugia. The lake is 8 miles from the city, and is almost round, being about 5 miles in diameter, and in it there are three islands. This province is about 25 miles in length, and near as much in breadth.

PESARO, a town of Italy in the territory of the pope, and duchy of Urbino, with a bishop's see. It is a large place, whose streets are paved with bricks. The castle is very well fortified; the harbour is excellent; and the cathedral church is magnificent. The environs are remarkable for producing good figs, of which they send large quantities to Venice. It is seated on an eminence at the mouth of the river Foclia, on the gulph of Venice, 17 miles N. E. of Urbino, and 130 N. E. of Rome. Lon. 30. 33. lat. 43. 36.

PRESAVA, a very strong town in the kingdom of Naples, and in Hither Abruzzo. It is seated at the mouth of a river of the same name, which falls into the gulph of Venice, 8 miles from Citta-di-Petra, 10 S. E. of Atri, and 100 N. E. of Naples. Lon. 31. 55. lat. 42. 22.

• PEST, a town of Upper Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name. It is seated on the Danube, in a fine plain, over-against Buda, 75 miles S. E. of Presburg. Lon. 37. 0. lat. 47. 24.

• PETAGUET, a territory of S. America, in Brasil, bounded on the N. by Dele, on the E. by the sea, on the S. by the captainship of Rio grande, and on the W. by Tupuys. It contains mines of silver.

• PETAW, an ancient town of Germany, in the circle of Austria, and in Styria.
It is a handsome place, and is seated on the river Drave, 35 miles N. E. of Scilly, 108 S. of Vienna, and 150 E. by S. of Salzburg. Lon. 34. 4. lat. 46. 40.

• PETCHELI, a province of Asia in China, and the chief in the whole empire, being bounded on the E. by the sea, on the N. by the great wall; on the W. by Chan-si, and on the S. by Chan-tong and Honan. It contains Peking, which is the principal city of the whole empire, on which 140 towns depend, besides a vast number of villages. The air is temperate, unless when the wind blows from the N. and there is a rainy season in the latter end of July, and the beginning of August; but it seldom rains any other time. The soil is fertile, and produces all sorts of corn, and there are plenty of cattle, pulse, and fruits. They have also mines of pit-coal, which is their only fuel. There is great variety of animals, of which a sort of cat is most remarkable, it having long hair about its neck and head. All the riches of China are brought into this province, and particularly to Peking, where the emperor resides.

• PETERBOROUGH, a town or city of Northamptonshire, with a bishop's see, a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on July 10, and October 2, for all sorts of stock-wrought timber, and cheese. It is seated on the river Nen, over which there is a bridge that leads into Huntingdon-shire, in marshy ground. It is not a large place, for it has but one parish church besides the cathedral; but the market-place is spacious, and the streets regular. It sends two members to parliament. The cathedral was formerly a monastery, and is a majestic structure, full of curious work, and has a large choir. It is 38 miles S. of Boston, and 76 N. by W. of London. Lon. 17.

20. lat. 52. 33.

• PETERSBURG, a large handsome city of Russia and in Ingria, built by Peter the Great, czar of Muscovy, in 1703, and is the capital town of the whole empire.
It is of prodigious extent, and contained not long ago 60,000 houses, great and small. It is seated in an island, which lies on the middle of the river Neiva, where the land has been considerably raised. The fort has six bastions, and opposite to it, on terra firma, is a crowned work. The fort has two gates, at the entrance of which is the figure of the czar holding two keys, and within is a black eagle crowned, holding in his claws a sceptre, and an imperial globe. A little farther is the chapel of St. Nicholas, who is the chief patron of Russia.
Within this fort or citadel is the church of St. Peter and St. Paul, with a high steeple, and it is designed for the burying-place of the royal family. The roof of the steeple is very finely gilt all over, and there are chimneys which go every hour. In an arm of the river, which is between the crowned work and the fort, the emperor's galleys are laid up during the winter season. On this side the fort there are two quarters, called the Slabod of the Germans, and the Slabod of the Muscovites. In the first there are the summer and winter palaces, the houses belonging to the admiralty, a church, and a dock for building ships: in the other Slabod is the palace of the empress, where she formerly resided. Beyond the forts are the Slabods of the Tartars and Finlanders; and in both there are very superb structures. In 1716 they began to cut canals in the island, to make Petersburg resemble Amsterdam; but the czar did not live to see this project executed. There are built here many palaces, a college, a military school, and an exchange. The work of this place is, that it is not high enough to escape inundations, which sometimes have occasioned the loss of vast sums of money. When the merchants perceive a flood is coming on, they make dykes before their houses, to keep out the water. At first provisions were scarce, and the trade was small, because the lakes Ladoga and Onega had not depth enough to carry large vessels; but Peter the Great remedied this inconveniency in 1720, by cutting a canal from the lake Ladoga, of about 75 miles in length, 70 feet wide, and 10 in depth. Ten years were employed in this work, but it was not finished till the next reign; and now Peterburg may readily be supplied with provision. Trade flourishes greatly here, because it is the seat of the emperors, and because foreigners have the same privileges as the natives of the place. All religions are tolerated, and there are packet-boats, by which intelligence is conveyed to different places. The inhabitants also carry on a trade with the Chinese and Persians. They have woollen and linen manufactures here, paper-mills, powder-mills, places for preparing saltpetre, blimitene, and elaboratories for fireworks. Here are also yards for making ropes, cables, and tackling for ships: a foundery, where cannon and mortars are cast; as also a printing-house. And here it will be proper to mention the new road that is made between Peterburg and Moscow, in a strait line across the forests, planted with trees on each side, and which is 555 miles in length. It was finished in 1718; and at the end of every 5 miles there are posts set up of 8 feet high, which serve to direct travellers. This road is divided into 24 posts, or stations, at each of which there are at least 20 horses, kept ready saddled and bridled. Some streets of this city are regular and well built; and among the most elegant structures may be reckoned the great chancellor's house, that of the vice-chancellor, count Gallowin's, and some others. They are mostly brick plastered over; and though the climate is so very cold, yet they have more windows than they generally have in England. An Italian architect, who has been settled here many years, has contributed not a little to the beauty of the city. The summer palace, and gardens, lie to the E. where there are fine walks, and choice statues. Near it is the theatre, which was erected in the room of the wooden one, burnt down to the ground. The exhibitions are French comedies, and Italian operas; and all foreigners of distinction are invited to partake of these diversions, as well as to balls, masques, rados, and concerts, which are frequently given at court. There are 20 Russian churches, and 4 Lutheran, besides those of the Calvinists, Dutch, English, and Roman Catholics; and the number of inhabitants are now reckoned at 100,000, most of whom came to settle here from other countries, there being not many original Russians among them. It is 355 miles N. W. of Moscow, 750 N. E. of Vienna, 525 N. E. of Copenhagen, 500 N. E. of Stockholm, and 1250 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 47. 58. lat. 54. 56.

PETERSFIELD, a town of Hampshire, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on July 10, and Dec. 11, for sheep and horses. It is seated on the river Loddon, on the road from London to Portsmouth, and is a pretty handsome town. It is 18 miles N. E. of Portsmouth, 18 S. E. of Winchester, and 55 S. W. of London, and sends two members to parliament. It is governed by a mayor and constable, and has one church built with stone. It contains about 200 houses, formed into a long paved street, and the inhabitants amount to about 1000. Lon. 10. 30. lat. 51. 5.

PETERSHAGEN, a town of Germany in the circle of Westphalia, and principality of Minden, with a castle. It is seated on the river Weser, 3 miles from Minden, and 37 W. of Harover. It belongs to the king of Prussia. Lon. 26. 36. lat. 52. 20.

PETERWARADIN, a fortified town of Slavonia, and one of the strongest frontier places the house of Austria has against the Turks. It is seated on the river Danube, between the Save and the Drave, 35 miles N. W. of Belgrade. Lon. 37. 35. lat. 45. 20.

PETHEBERTON, a town in Somersetshire, with a market on Thursdays, and one fair, on July 5, for cattle and lambs. It is seated on the river Parret, 18 miles S. by W. of Wells, and 155 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 35. lat. 51. 10.

PETIGLIANO, a town of Italy in Tuscany, and in the Sienaese. It is seated near the confines of the duchy of Castro, 8 miles W. of Castro, and 45 S. E. of Sienna. Lon. 29. 20. lat. 42. 53.

PETIGUAVAS, a sea-port town of America, in the island of Hispaniola, seated on a bay at the W. end of the island, and subject to France. It is 200 miles E. of Port-Royal in Jamaica, and 200 W. of St. Domingo. Lon. 301. 35. lat. 18. 5.

- PHAROS, a small island in the Mediterranean Sea, opposite to Alexandria in Egypt, which, with the continent, forms a spacious harbour, with which it has a communication by a stone causeway and bridge. It formerly had an exceeding high tower built upon it, called the Pharos, from whence the island took its name. On the top of it were lights for the direction of ships. Lon. 48. 50. lat. 30. 40.
- PHARSALUS, was anciently a town of Thessaly, now Turkey in Europe, a little to the S. of Larissa, in the plains of which some suppose the decisive battle was fought between Caesar and Pompey; but this is not certain.
- * PHASIS, or FACHS, a large and famous river of Asia, which crosses Mingrelia, and falls into the Black Sea.
- PHASANTS ISLE. See FAISANTS.
- PHENICIA, a country of Turkey in Europe, which extends from Arabia Deserta to the Mediterranean Sea, and is bounded on the N. by Proper Syria, and on the S.

by Palestine. This country is comprehended partly by the beglerbeglic of Tripoly, and partly by that of Damascus. The principal towns are Tripoly, Damascus, and Babec. It is but a small territory, and yet has been greatly celebrated for being the inventor of letters and navigation, and was the first which we have any account that traded with England for tin. But tho' it was a small territory, it frequently sent colonies to different parts of Europe and Africa, where they founded considerable towns.

PHILADELPHIA, 2^d ancient town of Asia in Natolia. It is seated at the foot of the mountain Tmolus, from whence there is a fine view over an extensive plain. The Greeks retain its ancient name, but the Turks call it Allahijar. It contains 7 or 8000 inhabitants; among whom are about 2000 Christians, who have four churches; and it has a Greek archbishop's see. It is 40 miles E. S. E. of Smyrna. Lon. 46. c. lat. 38. 45.

PHILADELPHIA, the capital town of Pennsylvania in North America, and in a county of the same name. It is an oblong square, two miles in length, and one in breadth; and the high street runs from the middle of one front to another. In the center of the town is a square of ten acres, surrounded by the town-house, and other public buildings. In each quarter there is another square of eight acres. The high street is 100 feet wide, and parallel to it there are eight streets, which are crossed by twenty more at right angles, all of them being 30 feet wide. It is seated between the rivers Delawar and Schuylkill, which are close to it at each end; and there is a fine quay next to the Delawar, to which ships of 4 or 500 tons may come up. There are wet and dry docks for building and repairing ships, magazines, warehouses, and all manner of conveniences for importing and exporting merchandizes. The houses are most of them built with brick; but there are many more still wanting to compleat the plan. The town-house was erected in 1752, in which there are large rooms for the assembly and supreme court. The public offices are kept in the wings. The other public buildings are the court-house, two Quakers meeting-houses, two for the Presbyterians, and one for the Baptists. There are also a church for the English service, one for the Dutch Lutherans, one for the Dutch Calvinists, and one for the Moravians; besides a mafs-house, an academy, a Quaker's school-house, the city alm's-house, the Quaker's alm's-house, the hospital, the prison, and the workhouse. In the year 1749, the dwelling houses were carefully computed, and found to be 2076. Lon. 393. 35. lat. 40. 30.

PHILIPPVILLE, a small but handsome and strong town of the French Netherlands, in Hainault. It is seated on an eminence, 25 miles S. E. of Mons, 12 N. W. of Charlemont, and 125 N. by E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 5. lat. 50. 8.

PHILIPPI, an ancient town of Macedonia, seated on the confines of Romania, 10 miles from the gulph of Contesia, and 67 E. of Salonichi. It was enlarged by Philip, the father of Alexander the Great, who gave it his own name. It was near this place, commonly called the plains of Philippi, where Cassius and Brutus, two of the assassins of Cæsar, were defeated by Mark Anthony and by Augustus. It is still in being, and is an archbishop's see, but it is greatly decayed, and badly peopled. However, there is an old amphitheatre, and several other monuments of its ancient grandeur. Lon. 42. 30. lat. 41. 0.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, are islands of Asia, in the E. Indian sea. They were discovered by Magellan in 1519. The air is very hot and moist, and the soil is very fertile in rice, and many other useful vegetables and fruits. The trees are always green, and there are ripe fruits all the year. There are a great many wild beasts and birds, quite unknown in Europe. The inhabitants are not all of one original, and the best of the island are subject to the Spaniards, particularly Mindanao, Manila, Leyta, Ibalao, Paragway, Mindoro, and Sebu; besides which there are a vast number of small islands. Lon. from 132. c. to 135. 0. lat. from 1. 0. to 23. 8.

* PHILIPPINES, NEW, otherwise called PARAOS, are islands in the E. Indian Sea, between the Moluccas the old Philippines, and the Marianes. There are about 87 in all, between the Equinoctial line and the tropic of Cancer; but they are but little known to the Europeans.

PIEDMONT, a country of Italy, with the title of a principality, bounded on the N. by Vallois, on the E. by the dutchy of Milan and the dutchy of Montserrat; on the S. by the county of Nice and the territory of Genoa, and on the W. by Dauphiny and Savoy. It comprehends eleven small provinces, Piedmont Proper, the valleys between France and Italy, the valley of Saluzza, the county of Nice, the marquisate of Susa, the dutchy of Aost, the Canavese, the lordship of Versail, the county of Aill, and the Langes. It was formerly a part of Lombardy, but now belongs to the king of Sardinia, and lies at the foot of the Alps, which separate France from Italy. It is 175 miles in length, and 40 in breadth. It contains many high mountains, among which there are rich and fruitful valleys, which are as pleasant and populous as any part of Italy. In the mountains there are mines of several kinds, and the forests afford a great deal of game. The Piedmontese have more sense than the Savoyards, but then they are not so sincere. They are generally strongly attached to the Roman-catholic religion; and they carry on so great a trade in raw silk, that the English alone have purchased to the value of 200,000 pounds in a year. Besides this, they have corn, rice, wine, fruits, hemp, flax, and cattle. Their sovereign is the king of Sardinia, who generally resides at Turin, which is the capital of this country. The valleys between France and Italy are inhabited by the Vaudoise, who are Protestants. Towards the end of the last century the French king persuaded the duke of Savoy to drive them out of the country, in consequence of which 20,000 of them retired to Germany, England, and Holland, and yet they are not all extirpated, though they are obliged to have a Roman-catholic church in every parish.

PIZA, an ancient, large, handsome, and strong town of Italy, in Tuscany, and capital of the Pisan, with an university, an archbishop's see, and three forts.
The territory lies near the place where the river Arno falls into the sea, but is very small, and yet is enriched with feveral fine productions; there is curious marble, good alabaster, lapis lazuli, ultramarine, vitriol, and salt-works. The town is seated on the river Arno, at a small distance from the sea, in a very fertile plain. That river runs through Pisa, and there are three bridges thereon, of which that in the middle is constructed with marble; on this bridge the inhabitants every year have a mock-fight, like that at Venice. This town is so far from having as many inhabitants as it can contain, that grass grows in the principal streets. The cathedral is a magnificent structure, and on the right side of the choir is the leaning tower.

tower, so much talk'd of. In the great square, which is before St. Stephen's church, is a white marble statue, representing the duke Cosmo the Great. - PLASSENDAL, a fortress of the Austrian Netherlands, 3 miles S. E. of Ostend, seated on the canal which goes from thence to Bruges.
- PIATA, a rich and populous town of S. America, in Peru, and capital of the province of Los-Charcas, with an audience, and an archbishop's see. It has mines of silver, which they have left off working, since those of Potosi have been discovered. It is seated on the river Chimao, 500 miles S. E. of Cusco, and 200 W. of Quito. It was built by the Spaniards, and may contain about 300 families. Lon. 314. S. lat. S. 20. 10.
- PIATA, a large river of S. America, which has its source in the audience of Los-Charcas, in Peru, and crossing Paraguay, falls into the N. Sea. It is exceeding broad, and near its mouth it is no less than 150 miles over. It gives its name to a province in Paraguay, whose principal towns are, Santa Fe, Buenos Ayres, Corrientes, and Santa Lucia. There is also an island of this name in Peru, on the coast of the audience of Quito. It is about 5 miles in length, and 4 in breadth, and is surrounded by high craggy rocks.
- PIATA was anciently a town of Beotia,

- in Greece. It was seated at the foot of Mount Cithæron, to the S. W. of Thebes, and to the N. of Megara. It was famous for its temple, dedicated to Jupiter, and for a victory gained by Paufanias with a handful of Greeks over the Persians, when the general was killed, with the flower of his troops.
- PLAVEN, or PLAWEN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and dutchy of Mecklenburg, on the confines of the marche of Brandenburg.  - PLUVIERS, a town of France, in Orleansois, and in Beauce. It is 20 miles N. of Orleans. Lon. 19. 55. lat. 48. 10.
 - PLYMOUTH, a sea-port town of Devonshire, with two markets, on Mondays and Thursdays, and two fairs, on January 23 and September 21, for horned cattle and woollen-cloth. It is seated on the river Plime, and near the Tammer, where they fall into the sea. It contains two parish churches, and is one of the most important places in the kingdom, being a place of great strength, and very well fortified. It is also a station for building and buying up men of - war belonging to the royal navy, being capable of containing a vast number of ships. It is a corporation, and has four charity-schools, an hospital, and a work-house, and sends two members to parliament. It is governed by a mayor, 12 aldermen, a recorder, and 24 common-councilmen. Besides the above churches, there is one about half a mile out of the town, and a chapel in the dock-yard. The town consists of about 800 houses, but indifferently built, with about 600 houses at the dock, most of which are new buildings. The streets are paved. It is 43 miles S. W. of Exeter, and 216 W. by S. of London. Lon. 13. 7. lat. 50. 26.

- PLYMOUTH, a sea-port town of N. America, in New-England, and capital of a county of the same name. It is seated at the S. end of Plymouth-bay, and is the first town that was built in New-England. Lon. 506. 33. lat. 41. 25.
- PO, a large celebrated river of Italy, which has its source at mount Viso in Piedmont, and on the confines of Dauphiny. It runs through Piedmont, Montserrat, the Milanese, and duchy of Mantua. From thence it runs on the borders of the Parmezan, and a part of the Modenese, and having entered the Ferrafese, it begins to divide at Talaruolo, and proceeds to discharge itself in the gulph of Venice by four principal mouths. As it passes along it receives several rivers, and often times overflows its banks, doing a great deal of mischief; the reason of which is, that most of those rivers descend from the Alps, and are increased by the melting of the snow.
- POCKINGTON, a town in the E. riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, on February 21, April 25, July 23, and October 23, for cattle, cheese, cloth, and leather ware. It is seated on a stream which falls into the Derwent, and is but a small place. It is 14 miles S. E. of York, and 183 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 55. lat. 53. 40.

Prussia and Lithuania, on the E. by Lithuania, on the S. by the palatinate of Lublin, and on the W. by that of Mazovia. It is about 28 miles in length, 70 in breadth, and the principal rivers are the Bog and the Naew. Beldko is the capital town.

PODOLIA, a province of Polish Russia, bounded on the N. by Volhonia and the Ukraine, on the S. by Moldavia and Pokusha, and on the W. by Red-Russia.
 The river Neister runs along the southern borders, and the Bog crosses it almost entirely from W. to E. It consists of 1,000 fields, which would be very fertile if they were well peopled and cultivated; but the many inroads of the Tartars hinder both. It is divided into the Upper and Lower, and Kaminiak is the capital of the former and Bracklaw of the latter.

POITIERS, an ancient, large, and considerable town of France, capital of Poi-tou, with a bishop's see, four abbeys, a mint, and an university famous for law.
 It contains 22 parishes, 9 convents for men, and 12 nunneries; and the Jesuits have an handsome college here. There are several Roman antiquities, and particularly an amphitheatre, which is partly demolished, and hid by the houses.
 There is also a triumphal arch, which serves as a gate to the great street.
 However, this place is not peopled in proportion to its extent. Near this place, Edward the Black Prince gained a decisive victory over the French, taking King John and his son Philip prisoners, in 1356, whom he afterwards brought over into England. It is seated on a hill on the river Clain, 52 miles S.
 W. of Tours, 110 S. W. of Orleans, and 120 N. by E. of Bourdeaux. Lon.

 18. 0. lat. 46. 35.

POITOU, a province of France, bounded on the N. by Bretagne, Anjou, and part of Touraine; on the E. by Touraine, Berry, and Manche; on the S. by Angoumois, Saintonge, and the territory of Aunis; and on the W. by the sea of Gascony. It is divided into the Upper and Lower; and is fertile in corn and wine, and feeds a great number of cattle, particularly mules. It was in possession of the Kings of England for a considerable time, till it was lost by the unfortunate Henry VI. Poitiers is the capital town.

* POIX, a town of France, in Picardy, in the bishopric of Amiens, with a priory, and the title of a principality.
 It is seated on a river of the same

* POLANA, a town of Italy, in Sicily, and in the Val di Demona, seated near the sea.

POLAND, a large kingdom of Europe. It is bounded on the W. by the Baltic Sea, Brandenburg, and Silesia; on the S. by Hungary, Transylvania, and Meldavia; and on the N. and E. by the dominions of Russia. It is divided into three large parts, namely, Great Poland, Little Poland, and the duchy of Lithuania, each of which is again divided into several palatinates, or provinces. The government of Poland is monarchical and aristocratical, and is the only kingdom in Europe which, at present, is elective. The king is elected by a general diet called together by the archbishop of Gnesna, who is the chief of the republic during the interregnum. This diet is held in the open field, in a kind of large hall crect-ed

ed for that purpose, above a mile from Warsaw. When he is chosen he is obliged to take an oath, that he will maintain the privileges of the republick called the Pacta Conventa. After his coronation he may dispose of the vacant benefices, and the offices both civil and military. He has a settled revenue of 140,000 l. a year, and cannot, by his own authority, raise any new taxes or charge any law. The aristocracy of this republick consists in the senate and general diet. The senate is composed of the bishops, great officers, palatines, and governors of towns, who, with the king, regulate the affairs of the kingdom, and prevent him from doing any thing against the liberty of the country. The general diets, which are assemblies of all the nobility, ought to be held every two years; but they meet oftner when there is any important affair on the carpet. Before a general diet is held, the king sends circular letters to the palatines, declaring what the affairs are that the assemblies are to deliberate upon. Upon this there is a particular diet in every palatinate, wherein nothing can be determined without a general consent; for if one gentleman opposes the opinion of the assembly, it is obliged to break up; and that palatinate, from this time, can have no voice in the general diet. There likewise they must be all unanimous; for one senator, or nuncio, can stop the proceedings of the whole. The Poles, or Polanders, are large, well made, and robust, and the nobility are kind to strangers, and generally speak several languages. The burghers, or citizens, can have no estates, but the houses in the towns, and a little land for about three miles round them. The peasants are poor, miserable, and clownish; and as they possess nothing, they contribute nothing to the support of the government. They are slaves to the gentlemen, who treat them just as they please. It is not said they have so much a year, but that they have to many peasants under them. The air is generally cold, and they have but little wood; however it is so fertile in corn in many places, that it supplies Sweden and Holland in large quantities. There are large pastures, and they have a large quantity of leather, furs, hemp, flax, saltpetre, tallow, and wax. There are so many bees, especially in Lithuania, that their common drink is mead, or metheglin. They have mines of salt, which are of a great depth, out of which they dig rock-salt. The prevailing religion is the Roman Catholic, which the king must always profess: however, there are Lutherans, Calvinists, and a great many Jews. There are three universities at Cracow, Vilna, and Konniburg; two archbishopsricks, and fifteen bishopsricks. The principal rivers are the Nieper, the Vistula, the Bug, the Niemen, the Neister, and the Bog, and Cracow is the capital town, but Warsaw is the general residence of the king. POLRAON, an island of Asia in the E. Indian Ocean, and one of those which produced nutmegs. The inhabitants were once under the protection of the English, but they were driven from thence by the Dutch, and the natives were very barbarously treated. It is 60 miles S. of the island of Seram, and 120 S. E. of Amboyna. Lon. 146. 0. lat. S. 4. 0.

POLESIA, a name given to the palatinate of Bizescia in Lithuania. See BRZESCIA.

POLESINO, DI ROVIGO, a province of Italy, in the republick of Venice, bounded on the N. by the Paduana, on the S. by the Ferrarese, on the E. by the Dogado, and on the W. by the Venetia. It is about 42 miles in length and 17 in breadth, and is very fertile in corn and pastures. Rovigo is the capital town.

PORICABRO, a small island in the Archipelago, and one of the Cyclades, being about 20 miles in circumference. The inhabitants are very poor, subsisting only a few villages, a castle, and a harbour; but in general there is nothing but barren rocks and mountains. It lies between Milo, S. Iino, Pares, and Antiparos. Lon. 43. 0. lat. 36. 36.

PORCASCARO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hitter Principate, with a bishop's see. It is now almost ruined, and is situated on a gulph of the same name, 55 miles S. E. of Salerno, and 28 S. E. of Naples. Lon. 15. 13. lat. 40. 7.

PORCARIANO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terra-di-Pauli, with a bishop's see. It is a populous place, and is seated on a crony rock, near the sea, 20 miles S. E. of Capri. Lon. 24. 58. lat. 40. 15.

 nate in the great duchy of Lithuania, bounded on the N. by Muscovy, on the E. by the palatinate of Weteplk, on the S. by the river Dwina, and on the W. by Livonia. It is a barren country, full of wood, and had formerly its own dukes. The capital town is of the same name.

POLOCKZI, a town of Lithuania, capital of the palatinate of the same name, with two castles. It is large and well fortified, and was taken by the Muscovites in 1563, but the Poles retook it the same year. It is seated on the river POMERANIA, a province of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, with the title of a duchy. It is bounded on the N. by the Baltick Sea, on the E. by Prussia and Poland, on the S. by the marche of Brandenburg, and on the W. by the duchy of Mecklenburg; one part belongs to the king of Prussia, and the other to the Swedes. It is watered by several rivers, of which the Oder, the Pene, the Rega, the Perlant, the Wipper, the Stolp, the Lupa, and the Lebo, are the most considerable. The air is pretty cold, but this is compensated by the fertility of the soil, which abounds in pastures and corn, of which a great deal is transported into foreign countries. It is a flat country, containing several lakes, woods, and forests, and has several good harbours, particularly Stetin and Stralsund; being about 250 miles in length, and 75 in breadth. It has suffered greatly in the late wars, otherwise it might have been much richer than it is. They have a custom here of eating all their flesh after it is dried in the smoke. It is divided into the Hither and Farther Pomerania, and the river Pene divides the territories of the kings of Sweden and Prussia in this duchy.

* POMPELLA, a district of Poland, bounded on the N. by the Baltick Sea, on the E. by Prussia, on the S. by Poland, and on the W. by Farther Pomerania. Dantzick is the capital town.

* POMESANIA, a country of Ducal Prussia, which extends from E. to W. from the river Passerg as far as the Vistula, between Regal Prussia, which bounds it on the W. and N. and partly on the E.
 It is a pretty large country, and full of lakes and morasses.

PONSERRERIA, a town of Italy, in the duchy of Monterrat, subject to the king of Sardinia. It is seated on the S. side of the river Po, 35 miles E. of Turin. Lon. 25. 22. lat. 45. 0.

PONDICHERRY, a large, handsome, and strong town of Asia, in the peninsula on this side the Ganges, and on the coast of Coromandel. It is in a low situation, and the ships anchor about a mile and an half from it; nor can the boats or canoes come nearer it than a musket shot, on account of the breakers, so that the blacks come in flat-bottomed boats to carry the men and merchandises to the fleet. The fort is built 200 paces from the sea, and is very irregular; it is built with bricks, and covered with fine plaster, which looks like white marble. The governor and other officers lodge in the fort, and there are some French houses about it pretty well built, but only one story high. The hurts of the blacks lie here and there, and the walls are of bamboes mixed with the branches of trees. The French are greatly addicted to women, from whom they catch diseases that render them pale, livid, and meagre, with a frightful aspect. However, several of the French are married to a sort of Portuguese women, who are of a mixed breed, being a kind of Mulattres. The country about it is barren, and consequently most of their provisions are brought brought from other places. Their trade consists in cotton-cloths, silk, pepper, salt-petre, and other merchandizes that are brought from Bengal. With regard to the religion of the natives, the most numerous are the Gentoos, but there are Mahometans or Moors, who hold a great many ridiculous opinions. The Gentoos are of different sects, and that of the brahmins are priests. The custom of women's burning themselves with the bodies of their dead husbands was very common, but of late is much discountenanced. The slaves or servants are very numerous, and their chief food is rice; however, most of them are afflicted with the French disease, and their wives are common both to the Gentoos and Moors. These wretched people will sell their sisters, daughters, or wives, for a trifle; and they on their parts are very fond of the white men. This place was beneged in 1748, by admiral Boscawen, but the periodical rains obliged him to desist. It is 61 miles S. of Fort St. George. Lon. 98. 7. lat. 11. 56.

• POOL, in Montgomeryshire. See WELCH POOL.

POOL, a sea-port town of Dorsetshire, with two markets, on Mondays and Thursdays, and one fair, on the first Thursday in November, for toys. It is surrounded on all sides by the sea, except on the N. where there is an entrance through a gate. It formerly was nothing but a place where a few fishermen lived, but in the reign of Henry VI. it was greatly enlarged, and the inhabitants had the privilege to wall it round; and it was also a county of itself, and sent two members to parliament. Since that time it is much decayed, though the two markets are still kept up. It is governed by a mayor, a senior bailiff, four other justices, and an indeterminate number of burgessees. The town consists of a church and about 600 houses, with broad paved streets; and has a manufactory of knit hose. It is 47 miles W. S. W. of Winchester, 24 E. of Dorchester, and 110 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 29. lat. 50. 45.

POPA MADRE, a town of S. America, in Terra Firma, where there is a convent and chapel dedicated to the virgin Mary, and where there is her image, to which the Spaniards in those parts go in pilgrimage, especially those who have been at sea. It is seated on a high mountain, 50 miles E. of Carthagena. Lon. 301. 35. lat. 10. 15.

POPAYAN, a province of S. America, in the kingdom of New Granada, between the audience of Panama, that of Quito, and the S. Sea, being 400 miles in length and 300 in breadth. A chain of barren mountains runs through the country from N. to S. and near the sea the soil is so soaked with almost continual rains, that there are few care to reside there, except for the sake of the gold that is to be met with in great plenty in the sands of the rivulets. This bewitching metal brings many in search of it, though it is a great doubt whether they ever return back alive or not. For this reason the savage Americans are still masters of a great part of it, who are continually annoying the Spaniards.

POPAYAN, the capital town of a province of that name in S. America, with a bishop's see, a Spanish governor, and where the courts of justice are held. The inhabitants are almost all Creoles. It is 220 miles N. E. of Quito. Lon. 304. 30. lat. 2. 25.

POPE, the territories of, in Italy. It is commonly called the territory of the church, and depends upon the holy see, the Pope being lord both in spirituals and temporals. It is about 400 miles in length, on the coast of the Adriatick Sea, from the kingdom of Naples to the territory of Venice. It is more narrow from N. to S. being not above 80 miles in breadth from the gulph of Venice to the Tuscan Sea. The subjects of the Pope have the same manners, good or bad, as the rest of the Italians; but, as the Pope styles himself the vicar of Christ, one would imagine his subjects should be the happiest people in the world: however, the case is directly contrary; for the government is so absolute, and so severe, that, after they have paid all their taxes, they have hardly sufficient left to live upon. Most travellers have taken notice of the great poverty of the Pope's subjects, which sufficiently shews what sort of a master they are under. The Pope engrosses all the corn in the country, paying but half the value of it; but when it is sold to the poor people, an extravagant price is always required. Even the bakers are obliged to buy their corn out of the Pope's magazines, and have less measure than what it was bought in by. The Pope's territories are divided into 12 provinces, which are separated by the Appennine Mountains, some being to the E. and some to the W. of them; their names are as follow: the campagna di Roma, the provincia del Patrimonio, the duchy of Castro, the province of Orvieto, the Perugia, the duchy of Spoleto, the province of Sabina, the marche of Ancona, the duchy of Urbino, Romagna or Romandiola, the Bolognese, and the Ferrarese. The Pope is a sovereign prince, but is not content with that, pretending to be the vicar of Jesus Christ upon earth. His ministers of state in church affairs are 70 cardinals, being the number of the 70 disciples of our Saviour. These cardinals elect the Pope, which election is determined by the plurality of voices; but then he that is chosen must have two thirds of the votes, for fear of a schism. The Christian princes should give no directions to the cardinals in this case, and yet the crowned heads pretend to have an exclusive voice; that is to say, the cardinals ought not to elect one whom they declare against. Formerly when the Pope died, the cardinals were liable to be solicited to follow the views of particular persons, which caused the election to be put off for a long time; but they have now remedied this inconvenience, and have built a palace for that purpose, called the Conclave. Therefore, as soon as the Pope is dead, the cardinals are obliged to repair thither immediately, and to continue shut up till they have chosen another. The election of the new Pope is immediately followed by his coronation; and this ceremony is performed in the Lateran church, where they put a triple crown on his head. Formerly every cardinal had some hopes of being Pope; but, for above 200 years past, the Italian cardinals have been only in possession of this high dignity. Though the Pope may give a cardinal's hat to whom he pleases, yet he is often obliged to pay some regard to the recommendation of crowned heads. The provinces which depend on the holy see are governed by legates, but, besides the 12 above mentioned, there is one at Avignon in France, and another at Benevento in the kingdom of Naples. There are few countries where the Pope has not ambassadors, who are called Nuncios; there is generally one at Vienna, Paris, Lisbon, Madrid, Warsaw, Switzerland, Venice, Brussels, and Cologne; and these nuncios are cardinals. They have the title of Legates a Latera. The title given to the Pope is His Holiness, and the cardinals have that of Eminence. The datarie's office is the chancellery of the Pope, and the decrees issued from thence are called apostolick briefs. All the ecclesiasticks, and all the religious orders who profess the Roman catholic religion, are under the Pope; and every one of these orders has its general at Rome, by whom the Pope is acquainted with every thing that passes in the world. As there is scarce a religious house that has not a greater revenue than they spend, and as they are all desirous of supporting the Pope's authority, we may readily judge that he never wants money. It has been computed, that the common revenue which the Pope receives amounts to above twenty millions sterling. However it is difficult to know what he receives besides this, from the benefices which he confers, the dignities to which he nominates, the first fruits, the dispensations, the indulgences, the beatifications, and many other things of this kind. There was a time when his holiness had an army of 20,000 men on foot, and there is little doubt to be made, that in case of necessity he could raise three times as many. He also fits out, from time to time, a few galleys against the Turks. However, at present his forces are far from being formidable, either by sea or land. About 600 years ago the Pope could raise an army of 100,000 men, under pretence of a war in the Holy Land, but in this enlightened age he would find few willing to engage in such an expedition. The Pope has a particular government of Rome, which is one of the highest and most gainful offices in his disposal. The Roman-catholick religion is the only one allowed throughout the Pope's dominions, and yet there are about 10,000 Jews settled at Rome, who are obliged to go every Sunday to hear a sermon on the controverted points; but it does not appear that they make many converts. The inquisition at Rome is called the Holy Office, and it is more mild than in other countries. Among the different congregations composed of cardinals, one of the principal is that of the propaganda fide, which has been established to bring about the conversion of pagans and hereticks. It has a printing-house belonging to it, where books are printed in all languages, and it is also a school, where missionaries are brought up, and sent into all parts of the world. The Pope's guard consists of Swiss, who are all all and robust. The soldiers who patrol through the city every night are called Barries, and the chief Barricello. The Pope's relations are called his Nephews, and the custom of enriching them is called Nepotism.

It is noted for its strong wines, and there is a large quantity exported from hence into England; whence all red wines that come from Spain or Portugal are called Port wines. It is seated on the declivity of a mountain, near the river Duro, which forms an excellent harbour. It is 30 miles S. of Brague, 60 N. of Coimbra, and 147 N. of Lisbon. Lon. 9. 34. lat. 41. 0.

PORTO BELLO, a sea-port town of N. America, on the northern coast of the isthmus of Panama, and to the N. of Terra Firma, with a very large, secure, and commodious harbour. It is a very unhealthy place, and is inhabited chiefly by Mulattoes. This was taken by Admiral Vernon in 1742, who abandoned it again, after he had demolished the fortifications. At the time of the great fair it is crowded with rich merchants, who pay exceeding dear for their lodgings. For when the Spanish galleons are here, it is so called. It is 70 miles N. of Panama, and 300 W. of Cartagena. Lon. 257. 30. lat. 9. 33.

PORTO CAVALLO, a sea-port town of S. America, in Terra Firma, and on the Caracas coast. Here the English met with a resistance when they attacked it by sea and land in 1743, and lost a great many men. Lon. 310. 5. lat. 10. 30.

PORTO FARINO, a sea-port town of Africa, in Tunis. It is seated to the W. of the ruins of Carthage, and 30 miles N. of Tunis, being subject to the dey of that place. Lon. 26. 35. lat. 36. 30.

PORTO FERRATO, a handsome town of Italy, in the Isle of Elba, with a good citadel. It is very strong, and is seated on a long, high, steep point of land, to the W. of the bay of the same name, which has two forts. It belongs to the great duke of Tuscany, who always keeps a good garrison there. It is 45 miles W. of Orvieto. Lon. 28. 12. lat. 48. 55.

PORTO GALFETO, a sea-port town of Spain, in the Bay of Biscay, seated on a small river near the sea, 8 miles N. of Bilbao. Lon. 14. 24. lat. 43. 26.

* PORTO GRUARO, a town of Italy, in the republick of Venice, and in Friuli. It is seated on the river Lema, 15 miles W. of Marano, and about 3 from the ruins of Concordia, with a bishop's see.

PORTO HERCOLE, a sea-port town of Italy, in the duchy of Tuscany, and in the state del Piesidii, with a good castle, and a harbour almost filled up, but is defended by two forts.

* PORTO LONGONE, a small but very strong town of Italy, and in the Isle of Elba, with a good harbour, and a fortress upon a rock, almost inaccessible. The king of Naples has a right to put a garrison therein, though the place belongs to the prince of Piombino. It is seated on the E. end of the island, 8 miles S. W. of Piombino. Lon. 28. 15. lat. 42. 45.

* PORTO PEDRO, a sea-port town of Spain, in the Mediterranean Sea, and in the island of Majorca. Lon. 20. 46. lat. 39. 27.

PORTO RICCA. See JUAN DE PUERTO RICCA.

PORTO SANTO, an island of the Atlantick Ocean, on the coast of Africa, and the least of those called the Madciras. It is about 15 miles in circumference, and produces but little corn; however there are oxen and wild hogs, and a vast number of rabbits. There are trees which produce the gum, or resin, called Dragon's Blood; and there is likewise a little honey and wax, which are extremely good. It has no harbour, but there is good mooring in the road. It belongs to the Portuguese, and is 300 miles W. of the coast of Africa. Lon. 2. 30. lat. 32. 30.

* PORTO SECURAO, a government of S. America, on the eastern coast of Brasil, bounded on the N. by the government of Rio dos Hilios, on the E. by the N. Sea, on the S. by the government of Spiritu Santo, and on the W. by the Tupicks. It is a very fertile country, and the capital town is of the same name. It is built on the top of a rock, at the mouth of a river, on the coast of the N. Sea, and is inhabited by Portuguese. Lon. 341. 45. lat. S. 17. 0.

PORTO VECCIO, a sea-port town in the island of Corsica, in the Mediterranean Sea. It is seated on a bay on the eastern coast of the island, and is 12 miles from Bonifacio, and 40 N. of Sardinia. Lon. 27. 5. lat. 41. 25.

PORTO VENEREO, a town of Italy, on the coast of Geneva, at the entrance of the gulph of Spetia. It is seated on the side of a hill, at the top of which there is a fort. It has a good harbour, and is

PORT ROYAL, a sea-port town of America, in the island of Jamaica. It was once one of the finest sea-port towns in America, abounding in riches and trade; but in 1692 it was destroyed by an earthquake, in 1702 by fire, in 1722 by an inundation of the sea, and in 1744 it suffered greatly by a hurricane. It is now but a small place, and yet it consists of three handsome streets, with several cross lanes, and a fine church. Not many years ago there was a yard built here for the king's naval stores, and for workmen employed about men of war. It is built on a small neck of land which jets out several miles into the sea, and is guarded by a very strong fort, which has a line of near 100 pieces of cannon, and a garrison of soldiers. The harbour is one of the best in the world, and 1000 ships may ride therein, secure from every wind that can blow. It is 6 miles E. of Spanish-town, and as much by water S. E. of Kingston. Lon. 300. 35. lat. 17. 30.

PORT ROYAL, an island in N. America, on the coast of S. Carolina, which, with the neighbouring continent, forms one of the most commodious harbours in the British plantations. It is 15 miles in length, and the town on the N. shore is called Beaufort. It is about 100 miles S. of Charles-town. Lon. 297. 25. lat. 31. 45.

PORT ROYAL, in Nova Scotia. See ANAPOLIS.

PORT ST. MARY'S, a sea-port town of Spain, in the kingdom of Andalusia. The English made a descent here, in 1702, with a design to besiege Cadiz, but they were obliged to reembark their troops without doing any thing to the purpose. It is 10 miles N. E. of Cadiz. Lon. 13. 5. lat. 36. 32.

PORTSMOUTH, a sea-port town of Hampshire, with two markets, on Thursdays and Saturdays, and one fair, on July 10, for silver-smiths, mercers, cabinet-makers, linnen and woollen drapers, milliners, cutlers, shoemakers, hatters, ready made cloaths, and bedding. It is one of the most secure and capacious harbours in England, being defended by a numerous artillery, both on the sea and land-side, and has very good fortifications. A great part of the royal navy is built here; and here are some of the finest docks, yards, and magazines of naval stores, in Europe. It is seated in the Isle of Portsey, being surrounded by the sea except on the N. side, where there is a river which runs from one arm of it to the other. It is much resorted to on account of the royal navy, whose usual rendezvous is at Spithead, which is at the E. end of the Isle of Wight, and opposite to Portsmouth. There is a draw-bridge over the river, and there is always a good garrison. It is governed by a mayor, 12 aldermen, and burgeses, and sends two members to parliament. It has one church, and two chapels, one in the garrison, and one in the common, for the use of the dock, and others, besides several meeting houses of the dissenters. The houses of Portsmouth amount to about 2000, and the inhabitants to about 12,000. It is 20 miles S. E. of Winchester, 18 S. by W. of Petersfield, and 73 S. W. of London. Lon. 16. 29. lat. 50. 48.

PORTUGAL, the most western country of Europe, about 310 miles in length, and 150 in breadth. It is bounded on the W. and S. by the ocean, and on the E. and N. by Spain. Though Spain and Portugal are in the same climate, yet the air of the latter is much more temperate than that of the former, on account of the neighbourhood of the sea. Corn is not very plentiful in this country because the inhabitants are not much addicted to husbandry; for this reason they import Indian corn from Africa, which is made use of by the peasants instead of wheat. There are a great number of barren mountains, and yet they have plenty of olives, vineyards, oranges, and lemons, as also nuts, almonds, figs, and raisins. They have some horned cattle, whose flesh is generally lean and dry. They also make a great deal of salt with the sea-water, especially in the bay of St. Ubes, from whence a great deal is exported. Their foreign trade consists either of the exportation of the produce of their own country, or in the merchandize which they receive from their plantations and settlements in various parts of the world, such as sugar, tobacco, rum, cotton, indigo, hides, Brazil and other woods for dyeing, many drugs of different sorts, and excellent in their kinds. Besides these, they have gold, silver, diamonds, and other precious stones from America, which bring them in immense riches. The horses of Portugal were formerly in great esteem, but now they are so fond of mules, that if they were to raise an army, they would want horses for the troopers. Towards the frontiers of Spain there are mountains in which they formerly got gold and silver, and the river Tagus, or Tajo, was noted for its golden sands; but now the Portuguese do not think them worth minding. There are also mines of iron, tin, lead, quarries of marble, and some precious stones. The principal rivers are, the Tajo, the Douro or Douro, the Guadiana, the Minho, and the Munda or Mondego. Portugal is divided into six provinces, namely, two in the middle called Estremadura and Beira, two on the N. which are En-tra Minho e Douro, and Tra-los-Montes, also two on the S. called Alentejo and Algarve. The principal business of the Portuguese is trade, and the merchants have all the virtues and all the vices common to people of that profession. Learning is upon the decline, and the academies and schools are gone to decay. The military art is almost forgot, they having enjoyed so long a peace.

 The Portuguese women are fruitful enough, and if they had not sent so many colonies abroad, this country would have been full of people. The ladies are addicted to gallantry, for which reason the men are jealous of their wives, and allow them but very little liberty.
 The government is monarchical, and yet there is a great deal of difference between the sovereignty of the king of Portugal and that of the king of Spain; for the authority of the Pope here is very great. Besides this, the king is always obliged to live in good understanding with the states of the kingdom, which are, the clergy, nobility, and what is called the third state. Likewise, the authority of the kings is bounded by the fundamental laws of the kingdom, for he cannot raise any more taxes than were settled in 1674, nor can he appoint a successor when there is any failure in the royal line. One would think the Portuguese should abound in gold, silver, and jewels, but they are naturally indolent, and so fond of luxury in every sense, that they spend all their wealth in the purchase of foreign merchandises. No other religion is allowed here but the Roman catholick, and they have 3 archbishops, and 10 bishops, besides a patriarch. They have three severe inquisitions, and yet these are a great number of concealed Jews, and even among the grandees of the court. The authority of the Pope is so great, that the King cannot confer any benefice without his consent. Besides these, there are three orders of ecclesiastical knights, who enjoy great revenues, and who would be very formidable, if the King was not grand-master. In 1580 there was a failure in the royal line, and then Philip II. king of Spain got possession of the crown; but in 1640 there was a great revolution, and John duke of Braganza obtained the crown, whose descendants have enjoyed it ever since. Lisbon is the capital town, where the King was lately assassinated, as is generally believed at the instigation of the Jesuits; but he escaped with life, and was soon after cured of his hurt by an English surgeon.

 However, all the Jesuits not imprisoned were shipped off to Italy soon after.

POSEGA, a very strong and considerable town of Hungary in Sclavonia, and capital of a county of the same name. It was taken from the Turks by the Imperialists in 1687. The county is included between the rivers Save and Drave, having the county of Craitz, on the W. and Walpon on the E. The town is seated in a fertile country on the river Ori-ana, 65 miles N. E. of Jaicza, 125 S. by W. of Buda, and 108 W. of Belgrade.

POSEN. See BOLZANO.

POSNANIA, or POSEN, a handsome and considerable town of Great Poland and capital of a palatinate of the same name, with a good castle, and a bishop's see.
 The cathedral is magnificent, and it is a trading place, seated in a pleasant plain, surrounded with agreeable hills. It is seated on the river Warta, 27 miles W. of Gnesna, 45 N. W. of Calish, and 127 W. of Warsaw. The palatinate is bounded on the N. by Pomerania, on the E. by Pomerella, and the palatinate of Calish, on the S. by the same palatinate and Silesia, and on the W. by Silesia and the marche of Brandenburg.
 Lon. 35. 6. lat. 52. 26.

POSTDAM, or POTSDAM, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, with a palace belonging to the king of Prussia. It is seated in an island 10 miles in circumference, which is formed by the rivers Spree and Havel. The palace is very curious, and finely built upon a delightful spot, 12 miles W. of Ber-

- POST-DOWNS, a village in Hampshire, with one fair on July 26, for cheese, bacon, and horses.
 - POTENZA, a town of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Basilicata, with a bishop's see. It was almost ruined by an earthquake in 1694. It is seated near the source of the river Basento, 12 miles S. W. of Cirenza, and 8 S. E. of Naples. Lon. 35. 30. lat. 40. 40.
 - POTOSI, a very rich, populous, and considerable town of S. America in Peru, and in the province of Los Charcas. There is the best silver mine in all America, which is in a mountain in form of a sugar-loaf. Silver is as common in this place as iron in Europe; however, it is almost exhausted; at least they get but little from it in comparison of what they did formerly; and the mountain itself is said to be little better than a shell. The country about this place is too naked and barren, that they are obliged to get their provisions from the neighbouring provinces. Some that have been there lately affirm, that it still brings in a great revenue to Spain. It is seated at the bottom of the mountain of Potosi, 300 miles S. E. of Africa. Lon. 313. 10. lat. S. 20. 40.
 - POTTON, a town of Bedfordshire, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, on the third Tuesday in January for large horses, on Tuesday before Easter, first Tuesday in July, and on Tuesday before October 29, for cattle in general. It is pleasantly seated in a sandy, gravelly, barren soil, and is watered with a small brook. It is 12 miles E. of Bedford, and 43 N. by W. of London. Lon. 17. 20. lat. 52. 6.
 - POULTON, a town of Lancashire, with a market on Mondays, and three fairs, on February 2, for horned cattle, on May 3, and July 25, for horned cattle and small ware. It is seated on the river Fild, near the Wire, and the market is good for corn and other provisions. It is 18 miles S. W. of Lancaster, and 209 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 35. lat. 55. 50.
 - POURSLUC, a town of Asia in the East-Indies, and in the kingdom of Siam, 300 miles N. of Siam. Lon. 117. 35. lat. 28. 0.
 - POURZAIN, a town of France in Lower Auvergne, and on the frontiers of Bourbonnois. It is seated on the river Si-

 - PRABAT, a town of Asia in the East-Indies, and in the kingdom of Siam, 100 miles N. of Siam. Lon. 118. 35. lat. 16. 0.
 - PRAGUAS, a town of Italy in Piedmont, 7 miles W. of Turin, and subject to the king of Sardinia. The French writers say it is in Upper Dauphiny, and in the Briançonois, and that it was ceded to the king of Sardinia by the treaty of Utrecht. Lon. 24. 35. lat. 44. 45.
 - PRAGUE, a handsome, large, famous town or city in Germany, and capital of the kingdom of Bohemia. It comprehends three towns, namely, the Old, the New, and the Little Town, and is about 15 miles in circumference. It is built upon seven mountains, from the top of which there is a very fine prospect, and it contains a great number of houses and inhabitants, inso much that it can send 50,000 men into the field, without meddling with artificers, or perceive any great loss of them. There are above 100 churches, and as many palaces. The river Moldaw, or Muldaw, runs through the town, and separates the Old from the New. There is a handsome bridge over it built with freestone, and supported with 18 arches. It is 1770 feet in length, and 35 in breadth, having a strong tower at each end, and five statues at each side. The Old Town is seated near the Muldaw, and is very populous; the houses are high, and the streets narrow. There are two large structures, one of which is the old palace, where the ancient kings resided. The finest ornament of this part is the university, frequented by a great number of students. The jesuits have a magnificent college here; and it is here the Jews reside, where they have nine synagogues, and consist of 90,000 persons, till they disoblige the King of Prussia, who drove them all from it. The New Town surrounds the Old, and contains fine structures, handsome gardens, and large streets. In the church of St. Peter and Paul, there is a large column broken in three pieces, which they pretend the devil brought from St. Mary's at Rome. The Little Town was built on the spot where there was a forest, and there

there was a forest, and there

there is a poplar tree yet standing, which they affirm has grown there above 1000 years. The principal buildings are the Royal Castle, the Radthin, and the Straw-house: in the first, the elector of Bavaria received the homage of the inhabitants as king of Bohemia in 1741. It contains a hall, 100 paces long and 40 broad, without any pillar to support the roof. The palace called Radthin, is the place where the prince Drahomire was swallowed up alive in 921. In the Straw-house they shew the place where the Swedes entered the city in 1648. It contains 52 palaces of the nobility, but many of them have suffered in the late war. Prague was taken by storm in November 1641, for the elector of Bavaria, then emperor; but marshal Bellesse was obliged to leave it in December 1742. In 1744 this city was bombarded and taken by the king of Prussia, and he made the garrison of 16,000 men prisoners of war; but he was obliged to abandon it the same year. It was besieged again by the king of Prussia in 1757, but to no purpose. It is PRATOLINO, a palace of Italy, in the duchy of Tuscany, a little to the north of Florence. It was a country seat of the great duke's, and is very richly furnished. The gardens are extremely fine and pleasant, and the grottoes are very well contrived, as well as the waterworks. Most travellers are of opinion that it is one of the most delightful places in Italy, especially in the summer-time. Lon. 28. 59. lat. 43. 50.

* PRATS DE MOLA, a small strong town of France in Roussillon, seated on the river Tre, in the middle of mountains, with a very strong castle. This town is built in the form of an amphitheatre, and is 22 miles S. E. of Mont-Louis.
Lon. 20. 10. lat. 42. 26.

PRECOF, a town of Turkey in Europe, and in Little Tartary, seated at the entrance of an isthmus which joins Little Tartary to Cim Tartary. It is now greatly de-cayed, it having been plundered twice by the Russians in their late wars with the Turks. Lon. 55. 15. lat. 46. 40.

* PRECOPIA, a town of Turkey in Europe, and in Servia, seated on the river Morave, 20 miles W. of Niisa, and 45

* PIERREY, a town of France in Nivernois, in the election of Nevers, with a chapter and a chatellany.

PIEMESLAW, a large populous town of Red Russia in Poland, with a strong castle, and a Greek and a Latin bishop's see. It is seated on the river Sana, 27 miles W. of Lennburg, and 110 S. E. of Cracow. Lon. 50. 35. lat. 40. 0.

PREMONTRE, an abbey of France in Picardy, in the wood of Voy, and territory of Cousy, which is the chief of the order of that name.

* PRENSLOX, a town of Germany in Upper Saxony, and in the marquisate of Brandenburg. It is the capital of the Ukraine Marche, and is seated on the lake Ucker, near the river of the same name, 50 miles N. of Berny.

PRESBERG, a strong and considerable town of Hungary, of which it is capital, with a strong castle seated on a hill, where the crown of Hungary is kept.
The archbishop of Strigonia resides here, who has very handsome gardens belonging to his palace. Here the jesuits have part of a church, and a fine apothecary's shop full of rarities: but its houses are very mean. The Lutherans have also a church here. It is seated on the Danube in a fine plain, abounding in wine and cattle, 32 miles E. of Vienna, 72 W. of Buda, and 60 S. E. of Znaim.
Lon. 35. 14. lat. 48. 12.

PRESCOR, a town of Lancashire, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on June 12, and November 1, for horned cattle, horses, small wares, and toys. It is but a small place, but the market is pretty good for corn, cattle, and provisions. It is 8 miles E. of Liverpool, 9 voio. It appears by an inscription that it is the ancient Rufæ, and its territory has the name of Cæsa Rufaria. It is 28 miles N. of Naples. Lon. 32. 35. lat. 41. 12.

PRESEDI, a small territory of Italy in Tuscany, and in the Senese. The proper name of it is Lo St. to Degli Preddi; and it includes 6 fortresses, seated on the coast of Florence, and which the kings of Spain relieved for themselves when they ceded Sienna to the grand duke. The fortresses were designed to facilitate the communication between the Milane and the king of Naples. The emperor was possessed of four, and the Spaniards of the other two; but in the war of 1734, the Spaniards got possession of them all; and in 1735 they were ceded to the king of the Two Sicilies by treaty. The names are, Orbiello, Telamone, Porto Hercole, Porto San-Stephano, Monte Philippo, and Portoloneore.

Principato, and part of the Terra di Lavoro, on the W. and S. by the Tuscan Sea, and on the E. by the Basilicata. It is about 60 miles in length, and 30 in breadth, and the soil is fertile in wine, corn, oil, and fluffron; and they have a great deal of silk, besides several mineral springs. The capital town is Salerno.
The Farther Principato is bounded on the N. by the county of Molise, and the Terra di Lavoro; on the W. by the Tuscan Sea; on the S. by the Hither Principato; and on the E. by the Capitinata. It is about 37 miles in length, and 30 in render the air cold, and the soil is not very fertile either in corn or wine, but it produces chefnuts, and pastures in great plenty. Benevento is the capital town.

PROBENTIS. See MARMORA.

PROVENCE, a province in the S. part of France, bounded on the N. by Dauph-ny, on the S. by the Mediterranean Sea, on the W. by the river Rhone, which separates it from Languedoc, and on the E. by the Alps and the river Var, which separates it from the dominions of the king of Sardinia. It is 138 miles in length, and 100 in breadth.

The air of this country is very different; for near the Alps and Dauphny it is cold, on the sea-coast it is hot, and in the middle it is temperate. In that which is called Upper Provence, the soil is fertile in corn and pastures; but in Lower Provence the soil is dry and sandy. It however produces wine, oil, figs, almonds, pruens, and pomegranates, along the sea-coast from Toulon to Nice.
There are orange and citron trees which grown in the open fields. There are also many medicinal plants, mineral waters, and mines of several kinds; and as there are several good harbours, the inhabitants carry on a considerable trade.
It has no considerable river except the Durance, and Aix is the capital town.
They trade to Italy with cloth, druggets, and ferges, besides honey, pruens, figs, salted eels, capons, olives, anchovies, and oils; as also in cotton manufactures of Marseilles, shirts, shifts, linen, and woollen stockings, all which manufactures and commodities bring in great sums of money. To Spain they send linen of all kinds, brocaded and other silks, box combs, hardware, camblets, and woollen stuffs, besides many other things. They have also a very great trade with Turkey, whither they carry their own manufactures, as well as those of other countries.

PROVIDENCE, a plantation or colony of New England, which, with Rhode Island, constitutes a charter government, independent of any other part of New England. It is inhabited chiefly by Quakers, with some few of the church of England; and though it is small, is in a flourishing condition. Lon. 307. 5.
lat. 41. 30.

PROVIDENCE, an island of the American ocean, and one of the least of those of Bahama; but it is the best of those that are planted and fortified by the English.
It belongs to the crown, and is a station for creditors. It is seated on the E. side of the gulph of Florida, 200 miles E. of the continent of that name. Lon.

PRUSA. See BURSA.

PRUSSIA, a large country of Europe, bounded on the N. by the Baltick Sea, on the E. by Lithuania and Samogitia, on the S. by Poland, and on the W. by Brandenburg, Pomerania, and Castubia, and is about 500 miles in length, and 100 in breadth where it is narrowest. It is a very fertile country, and produces a great deal of flax, hemp, and corn. There are a great number of domestic animals, besides game, which is very common; and the sea, rivers, and lakes, supply them with great plenty of fish; besides the common game there are elks, wild asses, and uris, in the forests. These last are of a monstrous size, and have some resemblance to beavers. Their hides are extremely thick and strong, and they sell them to foreigners at a great price. One of the most remarkable productions of this country is yellow amber, which is got along the sea-coast, particularly in the circle of Samland. There are also mountains of white sand, covered with oaks and pines; and there they find a viscous substance, which being exposed to the air, turns to yellow amber: but the greatest part proceeds from the sea, and when the wind begins to blow, the peasants run to the sea-side, and fish for amber with great iron rakes, of which the whitest is in the highest esteem. There are two large lakes, besides the rivers Viitula and Pregel. The inhabitants are of a good constitution, laborious, robust, and good soldiers. There are a great number of mechanics; but the principal business of the inhabitants is husbandry, and feeding of cattle.

Prussia is divided into two parts, Ducal Prussia, otherwise called Polish Prussia, and Regal Prussia, or rather the kingdom of Prussia, because it was made an hereditary kingdom by the emperor in 1706. Polish Prussia comprehends the palatinate of Pomerania, of which Dantzick is the capital; the palatinate of Culm, of which Thorne is the principal town; the palatinate of Marienburg, whose principal town is of the same name; and the territory of Weimland, whose principal place is Braumberg. Regal Prussia is divided into three great circles, and each of these circles contains three small provinces. The circles are those of Samland, Nafangen, and Hockerland, which see. The inhabitants are generally Protestants, after the confession of Augsburg, though there are a great number of the reformed, and Roman Catholics, who live in harmony with each other. There are two orders of knighthood; the first of which is the Black Eagle, instituted by Frederick I. in 1701, the day before his coronation. The chain of this order is composed of cyphers of the king's name mixed with eaglets. The mark of the order is a star with 8 points, enamelled with azure; and in the middle there are the letters F. R. At the four corners of the escutcheon there are four spread eagles. The ribband is orange, which is a symbol of the house of Orange. Besides, the knights have an embroidered star on their breasts, in the middle of which there is a black eagle, holding a laurel crown in his claw. Their number is never to exceed 30. The other order is that of Merit, founded by his present majesty in 1740. The mark is a golden cross with 8 points, enamelled with azure; and on the uppermost point there is the letter F. crowned; on the three lowermost points the motto is, FOR MERIT; on the four other points, which form a St. Andrew's cross, there are so many spread eagles in gold. This star is fixed to a black ribband which they put about their necks, and it hangs down to their breasts.

PRUTON, a river which rises in Red Russia, and in the mountain of Krapach, crosses part of the palatinate of Lemberg, afterwards runs through all Moldavia, and falls into the Danube, a little below Anipoli.

* PULO CONFOR, the name of several islands of Asia, in the E. Indian Sea, the principal of which is of the same name, and is the only one that is inhabited. It is about 13 miles in length and 9 in breadth, but in some places it is not above a mile over. The soil of these islands is blackish, and pretty deep, only the hills are somewhat stony. The trees are not very thick, but they are large and tall, and fit for any use. The principal fruits are mangoes, a sort of grapes, and bastard nutmegs. The animals are hogs, lizards, and guanoes, and there are birds of various kinds, not known in these parts. The inhabitants are small of stature, of a dark complexion, with small black eyes, thin lips, white teeth, little mouths, and black, straight hair. Their chief employment is to get tar out of very large trees, that grow here. They are very free of their women, and will bring them on board the ships, where they are kept by the sailors while they stay.

They are idolaters, but of what kind is not known; however, they have images of elephants in their temples, as well as horses. Lon. 125. 15. lat. S. 36.

in the E. Indian Sea, near the continent of Malacca, which belongs to the Dutch, and where they have a fort.

* PULO TIMON, an island of Asia, in the E. Indian Sea, on the eastern coast of the peninsula of Malacca. It is pretty large, covered with trees, and the valleys are very pleasant. It is often touched at for taking wood, water, and other refreshments, and there is great plenty of green turtles. Lon. 122. 15.
lat. S. 12.

* PULO WAY, an island of Asia, in the E.
Indian Sea, near that of Sumatra. It is the largest of all those that form the entrance of the channel of Achem, and is peopled by men that are banished from Achem. Lon. 113. 30. lat. 5.

PULTOWAY, or PULTAVA, a fortified town of Poland, in the Ukrain, famous for a battle fought between the czar Peter the Great, and Charles XII. king of Sweden, wherein the latter was defeated, himself wounded, and obliged to fly into Turkey. There were 8000 men left on the field of battle, and the remaining 16,000 were obliged to surrender at discretion. This happened on June 27, 1709. Pultoway is fortified with a castle, and surrounded by a morass. But after the said battle it was entirely pillaged by the Russians, who found a large treasure, hid by Mizeppa general of the Cossacks, who had retired there for refuge. It is 100 miles S.
W. of Belgorod. Lon. 55. 10. lat.

• PUR L'ÉVÊQUE, a small town of France, in Quercy, and in the election of Cahors. Lon. 18. 54. lat. 44. 35.

• PWLLNELLY, a town of Carnarvonshire, in N. Wales, with 4 fairs, on May 13, August 19, September 24, and November 11, all for cattle. It is seated on the sea-side, in the S. part of the county, 6 miles E. of Newin, between two rivers, and is a pretty large and indifferently well built baily-town, which has a good market on Wednesdays, for corn and provisions. Lon. 12. 0. lat. 52. 50.

PYRAMIDS OF EGYPT, in Africa, formerly counted one of the seven wonders of the world. They are built upon a rock, at the foot of the high mountains which accompany the Nile in its course, and which separate Egypt from Lybia. Various have been the conjectures how and when they were built, yet no two authors agree exactly about them; however this is certain, that they are extremely ancient, and that there is no account in any author of credit, when or for what reason they were founded, though most imagine they were designed for tombs, and yet there is no entrance into two of them, nor there are three in all. However, there are many more than these, at a greater distance in the desert, of which very little notice is taken by travellers. The principal pyramids are E. S. E. of Gize, a village seated on the western shore of the Nile. There are four of them that deserve the attention of the curious; for though there are 7 or 8 others in the neighbourhood, they are nothing in comparison of the former: the two most northerly pyramids are the greatest, and are 500 feet in perpendicular height. The plain they stand on is a continual rock, which however is almost covered with moving sand, in which there are great numbers of shells and petrified oysters, which is the more surprising, as the Nile never rises high enough to overflow this plain; besides, there are no shell-fish of any sort in that river. The most northern of these great pyramids is the only one that is open; and those who enter it, and climb up to a sort of room, find a tomb, or sarcophagus, which shews by its dimensions, that men were of the same size then as now. The external part is chiefly built of great square stones, of an equal size; but they have all the figure of a prism, that they may adhere to each other the closer; for they have neither lime nor lead, nor cramps of any metal. This pyramid is three hours journey from Old Cairo, and the entrance into it is on the N. side. The opening leads successively to five different passages, which, though running upwards and downwards, and horizontally, tend all towards the S. and terminate in two chambers, the one underneath, and the other in the middle of the Pyramid. In the upper chamber there is the sarcophagus just mentioned; it is of granite, and if you strike upon it with a key it sounds like a bell. The ascent to the top of the pyramid on the cut-side are by steps, which are the height of each stone, the lowermost of which is 4 feet high, and 3 broad, but they were not originally designed for this purpose. The base of the N. side of it is 695 feet, and as the pyramid is exactly square, the other sides must be of the same length. If we imagine four equilateral triangles, mutually inclining till they all meet in a point at the top, we shall then have a true notion of the dimension and figure of this pyramid; the perimeter of each triangle comprehending 2079 feet, and the peri-

PYRENEAN MOUNTAINS, or PYRE-NEES, are the mountains which divide France from Spain; and are the most celebrated in Europe, except the Alps.
 They reach from the Mediterranean Sea, as far as the ocean, and are about 212 miles in length. They have different names, according to the different places wherein they stand. Some think they are as high as the Alps; but the passages over them are not so difficult, whatever some travellers may think who have not crossed the former.

PYRNA, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in Misnia. It is a pretty good place, and has a castle upon a mountain called Sonnenstein, which has been sometimes made use of as a prison of state. Near it is a very fine quarry of stone, which is transported to different places by means of the river Elbe, on which it is seated 10 miles S. E. of Dresden. Lon. 31. 35. lat. 51. 5.

PYRMONT, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, on the confines of the duchy of Brunfwick. Here is a castle kept by a governor under the counts of Waldeck; and at a little distance from it there are mineral waters, well known to all Europe. They are often frequented by persons of the highest rank; and even the king of Prussia has been here to drink the waters. The Protestants of this place have the free exercise of their religion. It is 40 miles S. W. of Hanover. Lon. 26. 35. lat. 52. 0.

• Pysscz, a town of the kingdom of Bohemia, in the circle of Prachin, seated on the river Atto way near the Muldaw.
 It was taken by the Imperialists in 1619, and is 55 miles S. of Prague. Lon. 32.

 seated on the western banks of the Nile, between Efseny and Dan-der. It is remarkable for a great number of valuable and ancient monuments.

QUAKENRUGGE, or QUAKENBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and in the bishoprick of Osnab-brug, subject to the house of Brunfwick.
 It is seated on the river Hase, 20 miles N. W. of Osnaburg; and 35 S. W. of Bremen. Lon. 25. 45. lat. 52. 45.

QUANGSI, a province of China, bounded on the N. by Koo Tchrau and Hu-Quang, on the E. by Yunan and Quantong, on the S. by the same and Tonquin, and on the W. by Yun-nan. It produces great plenty of rice, being watered by several large rivers. The southern part is a flat country and well cultivated; but the northern is full of mountains covered with trees. It contains mines of all sorts; and there is a gold mine lately opened. They have a particular tree of whose pith they make bread; and there are little insects which produce white wax. Among other animals there are porcupines and rhinoceres. The capital town is Quic-ling.

QUANG-TONG, a province of China, bounded on the N. by Quang, and Hu-quang, on the E. by Kiang-Si, and Fokien; on the S. by the ocean; and on the W. by Ton-quin. This province is diversified by valleys and mountains; and yields two crops of corn in a year. It abounds in gold, jewels, silk, pearls, tin, quick-silver, sugar, brass, iron, steel, salt-petre, ebony, and several sorts of odoriferous wood; besides fruits of all sorts, proper to the climate. They have lemons of the size of a man's head; and another sort which grows out at the trunk of the tree, whose rind is very hard, and contains a great number of little cells full of an excellent yellow pulp. They have a prodigious number of ducks, whose eggs they hatch in ovens; and they have a remarkable tree, whose wood is almost as hard and as heavy as iron; and is therefore called iron wood. The mountains are covered with a sort of oisiers which creep along the ground, and are so tough that they make baskets, hurdles, mats, and ropes of them. Canton is the capital town.

• QUARTEN, a town of Swisserland, with a bailiwick near the lake Vallenstadt, 5 miles E. of Glaris. This bailiwick is not very great, and it is common to the Cantons of Glaris and Switz.

QUEBEC, a handsome and large town of America,

America, and capital of Canada, the principal French settlement. The first place taken notice of upon landing here, is a square of an irregular figure, with well built houses on one side; on the back of which is a rock; on the left it is bounded by a small church, and on the right are two rows of houses, parallel to each other. There is another between the church and the harbour; as also, another long row on the side of the bay. This may be looked upon as a kind of a suburb, and between this and the great street there is a very steep ascent, in which they have made steps for the foot passengers to go up. This may be called the Upper Town, wherein is the bishop's palace; and between two large squares there is a fort where the governor lodges. The recolets have handsome houses over against it, and on the right is the cathedral church, over against them there are well built houses; in the fort there runs two streets, which are crossed by a third, and between these is a church and a convent. In the second square there is two deicents to the river of St. Charles. The hotel dieu is in the midway, and from thence there are small houses, which reach to the house of the intendant. On the other side of the Jesuit's college, where the church stands, there is a pretty long street in which is a nunneiy. Almost all the houses are built of stone, and there are about 7000 inhabitants; the fort is a handsome building, but it was not quite finished a few years ago. Quebec is not regularly fortified; but they are endeavouring to make it stronger every year. However, it cannot easily be taken, for the harbour is flanked with two bastions, which at high tides, are almost level with the water. A little above one of the bastions is a demi-bastion, which is partly taken out of the rock, and above it, on the side of the gallery of the fort, is a battery of 25 pieces of cannon: still above this is a square fort, called the citadel, and the ways from one fortification to another, are difficult to pass. To the left of the harbour, on the side of the land, there are large batteries of cannon, and some more are besides these, there are several other fortifications, not very easy to be destroyed. In 1711, the English made an attempt to take it, but without success: Captain Boscawen, on account of the loss of the general, who contrary to the advice of his pilot, went too near the Seven Isles, and so lost his largest ship, and 3000 of his best soldiers. It is about 300 miles N. W. of Boston, in New-England. On October 13, 1759, after the above was written, it was taken by the English, under the command of general Wolf, who lost his life in the battle, after he had the satisfaction to know our troops were victorious. Admiral Saunders commanded a squadron of men of war, and did immense service in reducing this place; there being not a man in the navy, but what was active on this occasion, not excepting the sailors belonging to the transport vessels. After this valuable acquisition, all Canada came under the jurisdiction of the crown of Great-Britain. Lon. 307. 47. lat. 46. 55.

It is seated in a pleasant valley, between two chains of the high mountain called Cordillera-de-los-Andes, on much higher ground than the rest of Peru that is habitable, being above 300 yards higher than the level of the sea, according to very exact observations. It is 1000 yards in length, and 1200 in breadth, with a bishop's see. There are several religious communities, and two colleges, which are a sort of universities, under the direction of the Jesuits and the Dominicans. It contains about 35,000 inhabitants, of which one third are original Spaniards. All sorts of merchandizes and commodities are exceeding dear, partly on account of the difficulty of bringing them hither. It is the seat of the treasurer of the kingdom, as well as of the other officers. Lon. 302. 15. lat. S. o. 35.

QUITO, a province of Peru, in S. America, lying between two chains of the high mountain called Cordillera-de-los-Andes. The lands are generally well cultivated, and there are a great number of towns and villages inhabited by the Spaniards or native Americans. Every village is adorned with a large square, and the church stands on one side of it. The streets are generally strait, and respect the four corners of the world; and indeed all the roads are laid out in a line, crossing each other, inasmuch that the aspect of the country has the appearance of a large garden. It might be imagined this is a very hot country, but it lies so high, and so near the mountains covered with snow, that the air is very temperate. There are no noxious animals, for the tygers and serpents are below in the forests. They might have plenty of wine here, if Lima had not an exclusive privilege of making it themselves. They have no vicunas or guanacoës here, but they have an animal of the same kind, called by the natives Lamas, which is like a small camel, and can carry 50 pounds weight. They have all sorts of materials proper for dying, and indigo is very plenty. They have several sorts of fruits and plants which have been brought from Spain, besides those that naturally grow there. They have also imported heeves and sheep. In the N. parts they likewise get a great deal of gold. It is commonly reckoned 400 miles in length, and 200 in breadth, but this account is not very exact.

 gomeryshire. It contains 3160 houses, 18,960 inhabitants, 52 parishes, 4 market-towns, and sends two members to parliament, one for Radnor, and one for the county. It is not a very fruitful country, being full of mountains, which renders the air very cold. It has several rivers, of which the Wye, the Terne, the Laig, and the Arrow, are the chief.

A town of Asia in Persia, the name of the same
name,

name, and of all Ghilan. It is seated in a fertile plain, surrounded with mountains.
Near 40 years ago it was surrounded by a thick wood, which rendered it extremely unwholesome; but when the Russians got possession of it, they cleared the ground for 15 miles to the southward.
No province in Persia produces such plenty of rice and silk; but the land being low, and often under water, it is swarmed with frogs, gnats, and spiders.
The women, mules, and poultry, enjoy health, when all other animals pine away with sickness. It is remarkable for producing great quantities of box-trees, which the camels are fond of, though it is immediate death if they are not prevented from eating it. It is seated on the S. W. coast of the Caspian Sea, and 5 miles from it, being also 120 N. of Casbin. Lon. 68. 25. lat. 37. 28.

REVEL, a large, rich, and strong town of the Russian empire, in Upper Livonia, and capital of Esthonia, with a good harbour and a bishop's see. It is surrounded with high walls and deep ditches, and is defended by a castle and good bastions. The houses are well built, and there are very fine gardens about the town. There is a college with four professors, and in 1733 two churches were allowed to the Proto-stants. It is now a place of great trade, since the Russians had it in possession, and there are two great fairs every year, in May and September, frequented by English and Dutch merchants. The Russians seized on this important place in 1711, without the loss of a man, because most of the inhabitants were dead of the plague. It is seated on the coast of the gulph of Finland, partly in a pleasant plain, and partly on a mountain, 75 miles S. E. of Abo, 100 W. of RHODES, an island of Asia, on the S. side of Anatolia, and in the Mediterranean Sea, being about 40 miles in length, and 15 in breadth. The air is good, and the soil pretty fertile, but badly cultivated. It is famous for having been the residence of the knights of Jerusalem till the year 1522, when the Turks got possession of it. The principal town is of the same name, which is an archbishop's see, and has a good harbour, with a narrow entrance between two rocks, on which there are two towers built to defend the passage. It was in this place, as is generally believed, that the famous colossus stood, which was of bronze, and 70 cubits high. It was reckoned one of the seven wonders of the world, for a ship with all its sails might pass between the legs. It was thrown down by an earthquake; and when the Saracens became masters of this island in 665, they knocked it in pieces, with which they loaded 900 camels. The knights of Jerusalem took it from the Saracens in 1309, and kept it till it was taken from them by the Turks as above. It is the only town in the island, and is looked upon as an impregnable fortress, being surrounded with triple walls and double ditches. It is inhabited by Turks and Jews, for the Christians are obliged to live in the suburbs, they not being suffered to be within the walls in the night-time. Lon. 46. 0. lat. 36. 24.

ROME, a famous city of Europe, which was founded 750 years before the birth of Christ. It was formerly three times as large as it is at present, and yet it is one of the largest and handsomest cities in Europe. It has 28 gates, 300 towers, as many churches, 6 bridges over the Tiber, and about 150,000 inhabitants. There are a great many monuments of the ancients; such as baths, obelisks, amphitheatres, cirques, columns, mausoleums, aqueducts, fountains, catacombs, pagan temples, and triumphal arches, besides a prodigious number of fine statues. The pope has three superb palaces, namely, that of the Vatican, which stands by St. Peter's church, where he resides in winter. They reckon 560 apartments in it, and 3 galleries, one above another. The garden has delightful walks, groves of orange tree, water-works, and many other fine ornaments. His summer house is built on Mount Cavallo; and the third is the palace of the Lateran, which is near the church of St. John, where they crown the popes. St. Peter's church is the largest in all Christendom; and it is cruciform within and without with marble. It is 840 feet in length, 725 in breadth, 300 in height, and 2467 in circumference; 23 popes have died since it began to be built; and it has cost twenty-three million of crowns. In the great square before this church, there is an obelisk of granite, 80 feet in height without the pedestal, which is 82 feet high. The church of St. John Lateran is the cathedral of the bishop of Rome, and adjoining to it is the Scala Santa, which has 28 steps of white marble, on which every one must ascend on their knees, because they pretend it is the same Christ went up in the palace of the high priest Caiphas. The Rotonda is very remarkable for having no pillar; and it was a temple of the ancient Romans, called the Pantheon. It is now dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and all saints; but about two years ago the roof unhappily fell in, to the great damage of that ancient structure. The library of the Vatican is the largest and most complete in the world, especially since that of Heidelberg was carried to Rome above 100 years ago. There is a vast number of manuscripts in all languages, and of all ages, besides excellent pictures by the best masters. Rome is divided into 14 wards, called Rione; and the castle of St. Angelo is sufficient to keep the whole city in awe. It is built near the river Tiber, is flanked with 5 bastions, and detended by a great number of cannon. In the middle is a large tower, called the Mausoleum of Adrian, and was built by him for a sepulchre. Here they keep the archives and treasure of the church; and there is a subterranean passage to it from the Vatican. There are a great number of magnificent palaces, the most remarkable of which are those of Farnese and Borghese. But what is as remarkable as any thing at Rome, are the hospitals where they take care of the poor, the sick, and the unfortunate; here are not only hospitals for each particular nation, but there are houses of charity for widows, old men, women that have had husbands, and for other prostitutes. The university called the Sapienza, is not much frequented; but the Jesuit's, called the Roman College, has a pretty large number of students. Rome is said to take up as much ground as Paris within the walls; but then it is not all inhabited, for there are many gardens and vineyards. The inhabitants are said to be very polite, and very far from bigoted, though the contrary might be expected. Rome is very well supplied with water by three magnificent aqueducts, and fountains; and there is plenty of all sorts of provisions, with a great variety

- ROSETTO, a town of Africa, in Egypt, seated on the western branch of the river Nile; the Egyptians call it Raschid, and it is accounted one of the pleasantest places in Egypt. It is near two miles in length, and has not above 2 or 3 streets. Any one that sees the hills about Rosetto, would judge that they were the ancient barriers of the sea, and conclude that the sea has not lost more ground than the space between the hills and the water. They have a great manufactory of striped and other coarse linnens; but the chief business of the place is the carriage of goods from hence to Cairo; for all European merchandizes are brought hither from Alexandria by sea, and from thence carried by boats to Cairo. The Europeans have their vice-consuls and factors here, who transact business. The country to the N. has delightful gardens, full of orange, lemon, and citron trees, and almost all sorts of fruits, with a variety of groves of palm-trees; and when the fields are green with rice, it adds greatly to the beauty of the country. ROTTERDAM, a large, strong, handsome, and rich town in the United Provinces in Holland, with one of the finest harbours in the Netherlands, which renders it a place of great trade. It is the most considerable place in Holland, for largeness, for the beauty of its buildings, for trade, and for riches, next to Amsterdam. Indeed the whole city may be said to be a harbour, there is such a great number of fine deep canals, that will bear the greatest ships, and they may unload them at the very doors of the magazines. The town is governed by a regency, consisting of 24 counsellors, and 4 burgo-masters. There are a great many handsome buildings, and the town-house, the bank, those of the E. India company, and the arsenals, are very magnificent. It is more frequented by British merchants than Amsterdam, because the ice goes away sooner, and because a single tide in two or three hours will carry a vessel into the open sea. The English and Scotch have each of them a church here. Erasmus was born here, and his statue in bronze is still to be seen. It is seated on the river Maese, 13 miles S. E. of the Hague, 30 S. S. W. of Amsterdam, 9 N. W. of Dort, and 22 S. W. of Utrecht. Lon. 22. 0. lat. 51. 57.

ROTWEIL, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and in the Hesse. It is a free, imperial city, and in alliance with the Swiss cantons since the year 1375. A mile and half from this place there is a famous abbey, where they receive ceive none but noble women. It is seated on the river Neckar, near its source, and also near that of the Danube, 17 miles S. of Tubingen, 22 N. of Schaffhausen, and 37 N. of Brissach. Lon. 26. 19. lat. 48. 5.

- ROUANE, or ROANE, an ancient and considerable town of France, in Lower Forez, with the title of a duchy. It is seated on the river Loir, at the place where it begins to be navigable for boats, 42 miles N. E. of Clermont, 25 N. W. of Fures, and 215 S. by E. of Paris. Lon. 21. 44. lat. 46. 2. There is a Jesuits college here, and some convents.

ROUEN, a town of France, and capital of Normandy, with an archbishop's see, a parliament, a mint, a handsome college, an academy, two abbeys, and an old castle: It is 7 miles in circumference, and is surrounded with 6 suburbs; and in the city and suburbs there are 35 parishes, and 24 convents, for men and women. The metropolitan church has a very handsome front, on which there are two high tower steeples, from whence there is a fine view of the town and country. The great bell is 13 feet high, and 11 in diameter. The church of the Benedictine abbey is much admired by travellers. The parliament house is adorned with beautiful tapestry and fine pictures. There are a great number of fountains, tho' the houses are but ordinary; but the walk upon the quay is very pleasant, and there are 13 gates from thence into the city. The number of the inhabitants are about 60,000, and they have a great number of woollen manufactures. It is seated on the river Seine, and the tide comes up so high, that vessels of 200 tons may come up to the quay; but one of the greatest curiosities is the bridge of 270 paces in length, supported by boats, and consequently is higher or lower according to the tide. It is paved, and there are ways for the foot passengers on each side, with benches to sit upon; and coaches may pass over it at any hour of the day or night. It is often mentioned by the name of Roan by English historians, and is 50 miles S. W. of Amiens, 105 N. by W. of Orleans, 102 N. E. of Mans, and 70 N. W. of Paris. Lon. 13. 47. lat. 49. 26.

ROVERE, or ROVEREDO, a strong town of the Tyrol, on the confines of the republic of Venice. It is seated on the river Adige, at the foot of a mountain, and on the side of a stream over which there is a bridge, defended by two large towers and a strong castle. It is 10 miles S. of Trent. Lon. 23. 36. lat. 46. 12.

• RUSHLAKE GREEN, a village in Suffolk, with one fair, on October 10, for cattle and pedlars ware.

RUSSE, a river of Russia, otherwise called NIEMEN, which see.

RUSSIA, the empire of, is a large country, partly in Asia, and partly in Europe, bounded on the N. by the Frozen Sea; on the S. by Great Tartary, the Caspian Sea, and Persia; on the E. by the sea of Japan, and on the W. by Poland and Sweden. There were three countries that had the name of Russia, namely, Red Russia, which now belongs to Poland, and has before been taken notice of, White Russia, which comprehends the great dutchy of Lithuania, which has also been described, and Black Russia, otherwise called Muscovy, which is a large country. This empire taken all together, that is, with the conquests lately made in Asia, may be likened to a square, whose sides are 2000 miles each. The seas of Russia are, the Baltick, the White Sea, the Frozen Ocean, the Black Sea near the frontiers of Turkey, and the Caspian Sea. There are also five large rivers, namely, the Nieper or Boristhenes, which runs between Lithuania and Poland, the Wega, which runs through the middle of the country, and falls into the Caspian Sea; the Don, which after several turnings runs into Little Tartary, and falls into the sea of Asoph; the Dune, which running northward falls into the White Sea, and the Oby, which running N. falls into the Frozen Ocean. It may easily be conceived, that a country of such vast extent must lie in different climates, and that the soil must be very different. The most fertile part is near the frontiers of Poland; inasmuch that the inhabitants are able to supply their neighbours with corn: the N. part is not only more cold, but very marshy, and over-run with forests, inhabited chiefly by wild-beasts. Besides domestic animals, there are wild beeves, rein-deer, martens, white and black foxes, weasels, ermins, and sables, whose skins make the best furs in the world; as also hyenas, called by the Russians Rosamacha, which signifies gluttons, for they are voracious animals; those that hunt these creatures for their skins, use no fire-arms, for fear of spoiling them. The seas, the lakes, and the rivers, supply the inhabitants with large quantities of fish, of which they dry part, and sell to the Russian monks. There are a vast number of sturgeons, and in some places they have melons which weigh 30 pounds weight; they had very few vines, before Peter the Great caused them to be planted in different places. In Russia there are also large quantities of cotton and silk, with which they make all sorts of stuffs; the other merchandizes are, skins, furs, Russia-leather, talc, tallow, hemp, Russia-cloth, honey, wax, and almost all the merchandizes of China, India, Persia, Turkey, and some European countries. It is divided into Western Russia, Eastern Russia, Muscovite Lapland, and Muscovite Tartary; which are again subdivided into several provinces, which are taken notice of in their proper places. The inhabitants in general are robust, well shaped, and of pretty good complexion; they are great eaters, and are very fond of brandy; they use bathing, but smoke no tobacco, left the smoke should dishonour the images of the saints, which they have in great veneration; however, they take a great deal of snuff made of the tobacco brought from the Ukraine. They were formerly the most ignorant, brutish people in the world, and many of them are now little better; and we see what the soldiers are, by their ravages and cruelties committed in their march towards the King of Prussia's dominions: however, they were once happily defeated, 30000 of them were slain, their military chest and most of their artillery taken. Formerly no Russians were seen in foreign countries, and they seldom or never sent ambassadors to foreign courts; but now the gentlemen are more polite, and study the interests of different nations. Their armies are always very numerous, and their victories are to be attributed more to that than to their valour. They had no men of war, nor merchant ships, before the reign of Peter the Great; and he first sent a fleet into the Baltick Sea against the Turks. They then employed their sea-force against Sweden; but a fleet of English men of war sent into the Baltick is always sufficient to keep them in awe. The empress Ann augmented her forces so much by sea and land, that in the last war against the Turks and Tartars she had considerable success. Since her reign Russia has undergone several revolutions; and the court had so little policy, that after the peace in 1739, they sent home a great number of German officers who had done very great service. Formerly the Russian women were shut up, and their dress was very ridiculous; likewise a man never saw his wife before the day of marriage: the women thought they were never beloved, unless their husbands beat them very often; but now the case is greatly altered, for they dress like the German women, and imitate their manners. Their religion is that of the Greeks, and they depended formerly on the Greek patriarch, who resided at Constantinople. When they baptize their children they plunge them into the water up to the head. They use red wine at the sacrament, and give it by spoonfuls mixed with crumbs of bread; and for eight days before the communion they eat no flesh. They will not allow Jesus Christ to be an intercessor, but say it is the virgin Mary and St. Anthony that perform this office. They have images in their churches, and they believe no man free of salvation in this life; for which reason the priests give a passport to those that are dying, addressed to St. Nicholas, who is desired to intreat St. Peter to open the gates of heaven, as they have testified that the bearer is a good Christian. The church is governed by a patriarch, and under him there are four metropolitans, and 8 archbishops. Every priest is called a Pope, and of these there are 4000 in Moscow only. Formerly he was thought a learned man who could read and write; but Peter the Great undertook to introduce arts and sciences, and in 1724 the first university was founded that ever was in Russia; and there is also an academy of sciences at Peterburg, supplied with some of the best professors in Europe. The czar is an absolute and despotick prince, and all his subjects are reckoned slaves; but this is felt most by tradesmen and peasants. There are 32 great councils, called in their language Priceddes, and each have their proper department. The name of the present empress is Elizabeth, daughter of Peter the Great; and her successor is Peter Feodorovitz, duke of Holstein-Gottorp, born in 1728. They can raise at any time an army of 300,000 men, and they generally keep 100,000 regular troops in pay. In the reign of the empress Catharine they had 240 galleys, on which they embarked 30,000 men; but the harbour of Cronstot has a very great effect; for the water being fresh, vessels cannot lie there long without rotting. The ordinary revenue of this vast empire is 20,000,000 of rubles, which is partly drawn from contributions, partly from duties on merchandizes, and partly from farms. The orders of knighthood are, that of St. Andrew, St. Catharine, and St. Alexander Newski, which are all of late institution. The punishment of their criminals is very barbarous, nor have they always the privilege of a fair trial, for they extort confessions by racks and tortures. The lowest punishment is the knout, in pursuance of which the criminal is whipt with instruments that tear his flesh, or beaten with cudgels till he is not able to stand.

RUMS, a town of Denbighshire, with a market on Mondays, and five fairs, on May 19, Friday before Whit-Sunday, August 8, September 30, and November 15, for cattle, and pedlars ware. It is seated in a vale on the river Clwyd, and had once a large castle, now in ruins. It is a large corporation, well inhabited, with a large hospital, and a free-school, and the market is the best in the vale. It is 15 miles S. W. of Holywell, 10 S. E. of Denbigh, and 183 N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 15. lat. 53. 6.

RUTLANDSHIRE, a county of England, and the least of them all, 15 miles in length, and 11 in breadth. It is bounded on the W. by Leicestershire, on the N. by Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire, and on the E. and S. E. by Lincolnshire and Northamptonshire. It contains 2360 houses, 19,560 inhabitants, 48 parishes, and two market-towns, and sends only two members to parliament, which are for the county. The air is very good, and the soil rich, producing excellent corn, and feeding a great number of cattle and sheep. The principal rivers are the Welland and the Gouth, in which are plenty of fish. The chief town is Oakham.

fairs. It is one of the cinque ports, and is a handsome well-built place, governed by a mayor and jurats, and sends two members to parliament. It has a church built with stone, and a town-hall, and consists of three streets, paved with stone.
One side of the town has been walled in, and the other is guarded by the sea. It has two gates, and is a place of considerable trade in the shipping way. From hence large quantities of corn are exported, and many of the inhabitants are fishermen. It is 34 miles S. E. by S. of Tunbridge, and 64 on the same point from London. The mouth of the harbour is of late choaked up with sand, which, if well opened, would be a good station for privateers that cruise against the French. Lon. 18. 25. lat. 51. 0.

RYEGATE, a town in Surry, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on June 3, populous, and rich, being about 70 miles in circumference. It is a place of great trade, carried on principally by the Greek Christians and Jews, the former of which have 30 churches, and the latter as many synagogues; likewise the Turks have a few mosques. It is surrounded with walls, flanked with towers, and is defended on the land side by a citadel, and near the harbour with three forts. It was taken from the Christians, by the Turks in 1431. The principal merchandize is silk. It is seated at the bottom of a gulph of the same name, partly on the top, and partly on the side of a hill, near the river Varos, 50 miles N. of Larissa, 123 S. W. of Caphia, and 270 W. of Constantinople. Lon. 40. 48. lat. 40. 41. The Christians have a consular that resides here, as also a Turkish bashaw.

SALSES, a very strong castle of France, in Rouffillon, on the confines of Languedoc. It was taken from the Spaniards by the French in 1642, and is seated on a lake of the same name, among mountains, 10 miles N. of Perpignan. Lon. 20. 35. lat. 43. 35.

• SALSETTA, an island of Asia, in the E. Indian ocean, near the peninsula on this side the Ganges, and on the coast of the Kingdom of Decan. It is 25 miles in length, and 12 in breadth, and is very fertile in rice, fruits, and sugar-canes. It belongs to the Portuguese, and the Jesuits possess the best part of it. It has a great many villages, and churches, but has no town in it, except an old one called Cora, hewn out of the side of a rock, which is extremely ancient. It is near a mile in length, and has many antique figures and columns, curiously carved in the rock; at present it has no inhabitants, but wild beasts and birds of prey. They have no trade, except in dried fish, because it is so near Bombay, being only separated from it by a channel half a mile over, which is fordable at low water. In 1694, the Arabs made a descent here, and made great ravages, burning the villages and churches, and killing the priests. They also carried away 1400 people into slavery. In 1720 the priests wanted to disturb the English; but a bomb being thrown into one of the churches, and killing a few people, made them quiet. In 1722, they wanted to be troublesome again, but after 40 of them were slain, the rest ran away. Lon. 89. 50. lat. 19. 0.

- SALTZBURG, a large, ancient, and strong town of Germany, in the circle of Bavaria, and capital of a territory of the same name, belonging to the archbishop of Salzburg, who is also its prince. It is populous, well built, and is defended by a castle, seated on a mountain. The archbishop's palace is a superb structure, which has a magnificent garden, adorned with fountains, and planted with uncommon trees. This is his summer-house, but that for winter contains 105 apartments, all richly furnished, without reckoning the halls and galleries. The houses are 3 stories high, but the streets are narrow; the university depends on the Benedictine monks. In 1737, a college was built here for young gentlemen. The cathedral is very fine, and well built, containing five organs. It is seated on both sides the river Salz, 25 miles S. of Passaw, 67 E. by S. of Munich, and 155 W. by S. of Vienna. Lon. 50. 52. lat. 47. 42. Near it there are salt-works, which bring in a great revenue.
- SALTZBURG, the archbishoprick of that name, is a country of Germany, bounded on the N. by Bavaria, on the E. by Austria, on the S. by Carinthia, and Tyrol, on the W. by the same, and by Bavaria. It is a mountainous country, and yet is pretty fertile, and contains mines of copper, silver, and iron. It is about 70 miles in length and 60 in breadth, and the principal town is of the same name.
- SALVADOR, a large town of Africa, in the kingdom of Congo, and in the province of Sogno, with a large palace where the king resides, and a Portuguese bishop. It is seated on a craggy mountain. Lon. 32. 0. lat. S. 5. 0.
- SALVADORE-St. a large, populous, and handsome town of S. America, in Brazil, with an archbishop's see, and several forts. It is the residence of the viceroy, and contains several religious houses; and the Jesuits have a large and magnificent college. The inhabitants are voluptuous, proud, ignorant, and superstitious, but carry on a considerable trade. The houses are two or three stories high, and the walls thick and strong, being built with stone. The principal streets are large, and there are many gardens, and of a great variety of fruit trees, herbs, fallads, and flowers. The chief commodities are sugar, tobacco, woods for dyers, raw hides, tallow, and train oil. It is seated on an eminence, on the bay of All-Saints, and the harbour is just below it. Lon. 339. 35. lat. S. 13. 0.
- SALVAGES, is the name of two small islands, between Madeira and the Canaries. They have no inhabitants, but there is a vast number of Canary birds.
- SALVAFAT, a town of France, in Rouergue, in the election of Ville Franche, seated near a rivulet.

- and rich. It is seated on an eminence, at the foot of the Alps, near the river Po, 22 miles S. by W. of Turin, and 15 S. E. of Pignerol. Lon. 75. 3. lat. 44. 35. The French call it Saluces, and it is subject to the king of Sardinia.
- SALUZZO, the marquisate of, is a province of Italy, in Piedmont, bounded on the N. by Dauphiny, and the province of the four valleys, on the E. by those of Savignano and Fossano, on the S. by that of Cona, and the county of Nice, and on the W. by Barcelonetta. It was ceded to the duke of Savoy in 1601.
 - SAMARANG, a town of Asia, in the E. Indies, seated on the eastern part of the island of Java, which is very populous.
 - SAMARANG or SARMACAN, an ancient, large, strong, handsome, famous, and populous town of Asia, capital of a kingdom of the same name, in the country of the Ubeek Tartars, with a castle and the famous university. The houses are built with stone, and it was the seat of a famous Tamerlane the Great. It carries on a trade in excellent fruits, and is pleasantly seated near the river Sogde, which runs into the river Amo, 120 miles E. by N. of Bokhria. Lon. 86. 35. lat. 39. 50.
 - SAMARI or TANDAY, an island of Asia, in the E. Indian ocean, and one of the Philippines, to the S. E. of Luzon; from which it is separated by a strait. It is about 320 miles in circumference, and is full of craggy mountains, among which are fertile valleys.
 - SAMARIA, formerly a town of Asia, in Palestine, now entirely destroyed, though it is said the ruins of it are still to be seen.
 - SAMBALLAS, several islands of America, on the N. coast of the isthmus which joins N. and S. America. None of them are inhabited, but they are claimed by the Spaniards who live on the isthmus of Darien. They are situated, as that with the mountains and neighbouring forests, they yield a pleasing prospect, and were found the rendezvous of privateers.
 - SAMBERE, a river of the Netherlands, which has its source at the village of Novion, in Picardy; and passing by Landrechy, Maubeuge, Thun, and Charleroy, falls into the Mae at Namur.
 - SAMBOUR, a circle is called in Regal Prussia, lying near the Golph of Courland, and is very famous for the amber which is got on the coast. It is divided - into four bailiwicks, and the principal town is Coninberg.

- SAMMELAS, a town of France, in Comminges, which was formerly a strong place, and has now a very strong castle, standing on a mountain. It is seated in a valley, on the river Save, 3 miles S. E. of Lombez. Lon. 18. 37. lat. 43. 34.
 - SAMOGITIA, a province of Poland, bounded on the N. by Courland, on the E. by Lithuania, on the W. by the Baltick Sea, and on the S. by Regal Prussia, being about 175 miles in length, and 125 in breadth. It is full of forests and very high mountains, which feed a great number of cattle, and produce a large quantity of honey. There are also very active horses, which are in high esteem. The inhabitants are clownish, but honest; and they will not allow a young woman to go out in the night, without a candle in her hand, and two bells at her girdle. Roffenna and Wonia are the principal places.
 - SAMOËDA, a country of the Russian empire, between Asiatick Tartary and Archangel, lying along the sea coast as far as Siberia. The inhabitants are so rude a people, that they can hardly pretend to humanity, except in their face and figure; for they have little understanding, and in many things, resemble voracious animals, for they will eat dead animals of every kind. They travel on the snow on sledges, drawn with an animal like a rein-deer, but with the horns of a stag. Those that have seen them affirm, that no people on the earth make such shocking figures; their stature is short, their shoulders and faces broad, with flat broad noses, great blubber hanging lips, and staring eyes; their complexion is dark, their hair long, and as black as pitch, and they have very little beards. If they have any religion at all, it is idolatry, though there has been some attempts of late to convert them. Their huts are made of birch bark sewed together, which are laid upon stakes set in the ground, and at the top there is a hole to let out the smoke; the fire is made in the middle, and both men and women lie naked round them all night. They have little regard to the nearness of kin, and take as many wives as they can keep. The stories about their conjurations are ridiculous, and not worth repeating; their only employment is hunting and fishing.
 - SAMOS, an island of the Archipelago, on the coast of Natolia, bounded on the N. by a gulph of the same name, on the S. by the gulph of Ephesus, and on the E. by the isle of Nicasia. It is about 32 miles in length, and 22 in breadth, and is extremely fertile. The inhabitants live at their ease, their taxation by the Turks being moderate. The women are very nasty and ugly, and they never shift above once a month. They are clothed in the Turkish manner, except a red coif, and their hair hanging down their backs, with plates of silver, or block tin, fastened to the ends. They have abundance of melons, lentils, kidney-beans, and excellent Muskadine, grapes. They have white figs, four times as big as the common sort, but not so well tasted. Their silk is very fine, and their honey and wax admirable. This island abounds with wild fowls, such as partridges, wood-cocks, snipes, thrushes, wood pigeons, turtle doves, and wheat ears; besides which their poultry are excellent: they have iron mines, and most of the soil is of a rusty colour; they have also emery stone, and all the mountains are of white marble. The inhabitants are about 12000, who are almost all Greeks, and the monks and priests occupy most part of the island. They have a bishop who resides at Cora. Lon. from 44. 20. to 45. 0. lat. from 37. 45. to 37. 57.

SAMOTHRACIA, now called SAMANDRACHTI, a small island of the Archipelago, between Stalimene, and the coast of Romania, and to the N. of the isle of Imbro. It is 17 miles in circumference, and is pretty well cultivated, but has no remarkable place. Lon. 44. 42. lat. 40. 34.

- SAMPFORD-PEVERIE, a village in Devonshire, with two fairs on April 21, and August 29, for cattle.
- SAMSKA, a province of Asia, in Georgia, bounded on the S. by Armenia, on the W. by Guetel, on the N. by Imneretta, and on the E. by Caker. It has a prince of its own, tributary to the Turks, but has no remarkable place.
- SAMSO, or SANSOI, an island of Denmark, in the Baltick Sea, bounded on the N. by Fionia, and on the E. by Jutland, from whence it is 8 miles distant. It is 8 miles long and 3 broad, and is very fertile and pleasant. Lon. 28. 2. lat. 55. 0.
- SAMSON-ST. a town of France, in Normandy, seated on the river Rille, 5 miles from Pontaudemer. There is another town of that name in Maine, and in the election of Mano; as also another in Angou, and election of Angiers.

- SANAA, a large, populous, and handsome town of Asia, and capital of Arabia Felix, and in proper Yemen; the air is temperate, and the days are pretty equal all the year. Its situation is very pleasant among the mountains, and there are fine orchards. It is 80 miles N. E. of Aden. Lon. 64. 0. lat. 14. 58.
- SANBACH, a town in Cheshire, with a market on Thursday, and two fairs, on Easter-Tuesday, and Thursday after September 10. for cattle and horses. It is seated on the river Medock, and is not large, but it has a handsome church. In the market-place are two square stone crosses, adorned with images. It is 26 miles E. of Chetter, and 132 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 7. lat. 53. 6.

SANDWICH, a town in Kent, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and one fair on September 4, for drapery goods, haberdashery wares, shoes and hard ware; and, it has the title of an earldom. It is a corporation and cinque port, governed by a mayor, and 11 ju-rats; and it sends two members to parliament, who are called barons. It has three churches, St. Clement's, St. Peter's, and St. Mary's, and had another called St. James's. This town consists of about 1500 houses, most of them old and built with wood, though there are a few new ones built with brick and flints. It has three long narrow streets paved, and 30 cross streets or alleys, with about 6000 inhabitants, but no particular manufactory is carried on. The town is walled round, and also fortified with ditches and ramparts; but though the walls are much decayed, four of the gates are still standing. This was once a town of considerable trade, but it is much de-cayed, on account of the harbour being choaked up with sand, that a ship of 100 tons burthen cannot get in. It is 13 miles W. of S. of Canterbury, and 72 E. by S. of London. Lon. 18. 55.

plentiful country, abounding in corn, cattle and fruit, with mines of silver in the mountains, 360 miles S. of Carthagena. Lon. 307. 30. lat. 3. 58.

• SANTA MARIA. See MARIA ST.

SANTAREN, a handsome town of Portugal, in Estramadura, seated on a mountain near the river Tajo, in a country very fertile in wheat, wine, and oil.
They get in their harvest here two months after they have sown their corn.
It was taken from the Moors in 1447, and is 20 miles S. of Syria, and 35 N.
E. of Lisbon. Lon. 9. 50. lat. 39. 12.

SANTEN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and in the dutchy of Cleves. It has a handsome church belonging to the Papists, wherein is an image of the virgin Mary, which they pretend performs a great many miracles.
Here the fine walks begin that run as far as Wesel, from which it is 5 miles distant to the N. W. Lon. 24. 8. lat.

SAN TERRE, a small territory of France, in Picardy, bounded on the N. by Cam-bray, on the E. by Vermandois, on the

the W. by Amienois, and on the S. by the river Somme. It is very fertile, and the capital town is Peronne.

SANTILLANA, a sea-port town of Spain, in the province of Asturias, of which it is capital. It is seated on the sea-coast, 55 miles E. of Oviedo, 95 N. W. of Burgos, and 200 N. W. of Madrid. Lon. 13. 2. lat. 43. 30.

SANTORINI, an island of the Archipelago, to the N. of Candia, and to the S. W. of Naphio. It is 3 miles in length, and almost as much in breadth, and is covered with pumice-stone. The soil in general must consequently be dry and barren; however, it is greatly improved by the labour and industry of the inhabitants, who have turned it into a garden. It affords a great deal of barley, plenty of cotton, and large quantities of wine, in which, and their cotton manufactures, their trade consists. Fruit is scarce, except figs, and they have neither oil nor wood. They kill their heeves but once a-year, and then they put it in pickle, which makes it very hard at length. The inhabitants are all Greeks, and are about 10,000 in number. Pyrgos is the capital town, and there are several little towns and villages. They have but one spring in the island, for which reason they preserve the rain water in cisterns, and though they are subject to the Turks, they chuse their own magistrates. Lon. 43. 33. lat. 39. 10.

SAONE, a considerable river of France, which has its source in mount Vosgue, near Dauney, runs through the Franche Comté, Burgundy, Beaujolais, and falls into the Rhone at Lyons. It passes by Gray, Chalons, and Mâcon.

SAPIENZA, an island and cape of the Mediterranean Sea, and in Turkey in Europe. It is very near the S. coast of the island of the Morea, and is very small, and hardly cultivated. The pirates of Barbary hide themselves behind it, to surprize vessels which come from the gulph of Venet, or the coasts of Sicily. Lon. 38. 50. lat. 36. 45.

SAR, a river of Germany, which rises in Alsace, and running N. enters Loreain, passing by Sarburg, Sarverden, Sarbruk, Sar-Lewis, and Wandrevange; then it enters the electorate of Trier, and falls into the Moselle a little above Trier.

SARACENS, a people which made a great noise some centuries ago, and who came from the deserts of Arabia; Sarra, in their language, signifying a desert. They were the first disciples of Mahomet, and afterwards conquered a great part of Asia, Africa, and Europe; that is, within 40 years after his death, and kept possession of Spain several hundred years. They maintained a war in the Holy Land a long while against the western Christians, and at length drove them entirely out of it; but now there are no people known by that name, for those who conquered Spain, that is, the descendants of them, are known by the name of Moors.

SARAGOSSA, a town or city of Spain, in the kingdom of Aragon, with an archbishop's see, an university, and a court of inquisition. It is said to be built by the Phenicians, and the Romans sent a colony here in the reign of the emperor Augustus, whence it had the name of Caesar Augusta, which by corruption has been changed into Saragoſſa. It is large, handsome, and well built. The streets are long, broad, well paved, and very clean; and the houses are from three to six stories high. It is adorned with many magnificent buildings, and they reckon 17 large churches, and 14 handsome monasteries, not to mention others less considerable. There are four gates into the city, corresponding with the four corners of the world. The river Ebro runs cross the place, dividing it in two; and on its banks is a handsome quay, which serves for a publick walk. The Holy-street is the largest, and so broad it may be taken for a square; and here they have their bull fights: in this street there are several noblemen's families, particularly that of the viceroi. The convents are handsome and richly adorned, as well as the churches. The cathedral church is a spacious building, after the Gothic taste; but the finest church is that of Nuestra Señora del Pilar, seated on the side of the Ebro, and is a place of the greatest devotion in Spain. They tell us the Virgin, yet young, appeared to St. James who was preaching the gospel, and left him her image, with a handsome pillar of jasper; it is still in this church, which they pretend is the first in the world built to her honour. This image stands on a marble pillar, with a little Jesus in her arms; but the place is so dark, that it cannot be seen without the assistance of lamps, which are 50 in number, and all of silver. There are also chandeliers and ca-ments of this image are the richest that can be imagined, a Roman crown being full of precious stones of an inestimable price; in short, there is scarce any thing to be seen but gold and jewels, and there are a vast number of people come in pilgrimage thither. The town-house is a sumptuous structure, adorned with fine columns; in the hall are the pictures of all the kings of Arragon, and in a corner of it is St. George on horseback, with a dragon of white marble under him.

It is seated in a very large plain, where the Ebro receives two other rivers, and over it there are two bridges, one of stone and the other of wood, which last has been thought to be the most beautiful in Europe. A victory was obtained here over the French and Spaniards in 1710, but it was abandoned by the Allies soon after. It is 97 miles W. by N. of Tarragona, 60 W. of Lerida, 137 W. of Barcelona, and 150 N. E. of Madrid. Lon.

22. 5. lat. 52. 28.

SARDINIA, an island of the Mediterranean Sea, 142 miles in length from N. to S. and 80 in breadth from E. to W. The soil is fertile in corn and wine, and there are a great number of oranges, citrons, and olives. On the coast there is a fishery for anchovies and coral, of which they send large quantities to Genoa and Leghorn. Bees and sheep are very common, as well as herbes, which are very good for labour and the road.
They are fed in the little islands about it, which abound in game, and in that of Atinania there are a great number of turtles. The air is very unhealthy, which is caused by the marshy land. The inhabitants were formerly so rude and clownish, that the Romans banished their state-prisoners to this island; but they are much more civilized since, and enjoyed full liberty till they set up an imposition at Sassari. However, as the inhabitants are not very industrious, the land is not sufficiently cultivated, nor are they much addicted to trade. It contains names of silver, lead, sulphur, iron, alum, and they make a good deal of salt. This island has undergone various revolutions; in 1708 it was taken by the English for the emperor Charles VI. and in 1720 it was ceded to the duke of Savoy, as an equivalent for that of Sicily, and of which he is now king, and has a viceroi there. Cagliari is the capital town.

SARPO, a town of Turkey in Asia, at a Natcha. It was formerly called Sars, and was the seat of the famous king Croesus. It is now gone to decay, there being but a few wretched huts. However, here is a large caravanserai, where there are handsome lodging for travellers, it lying in the great road from Smyrna to Aleppo; and the Turkish a mosque, which was formerly a Christian church. The inhabitants are very almost all shepherds, who feed their flocks in the neighboring plains. There are also a few Christians, who employ themselves in gardening, but they have neither church nor priests. Lon. 47.

SASSARI, a town of Italy, and one of the principal of the island of Sardinia, being the capital of the territory of Lugari. It has a castle and an archbishop's see, and contains about 30000 inhabitants. It is famous for a fountain called Roffel, which is said to be much more magnificent than the best at Rome. The inhabitants have the following proverb, Chi non vidde Roffel, non vidde mondo; that is, who has not seen Roffel, has not seen the world. It was taken by the French, who plundered it in 1527. It is seated in SAVOY, a sovereign duchy of Europe, between France and Italy, bounded on the N. by the lake of Geneva, which separates it from Switzerland, on the E. by the Alps, which divide it from Piedmont and Valais, on the W. by the river Rhone, which parts it from Bugey and Bresse, and on the S. by Dauphiny and a part of Piedmont. It is 83 miles in length, and 67 in breadth, and is divided into Proper Savoy, the Genevese, Chablais, Faucigny, the Tarentese, Morcenna, and a part of Bugey. The air is cold on account of the high mountains, which are almost always covered with snow; however, the soil is pretty fertile, and supplies the inhabitants with the necessaries of life, but they can supply their neighbours with nothing but chestnuts and raddishes. The mountains which are not covered with snow in winter, abound with pastures that feed a great number of cattle. There is also a great deal of game, among which are stags, fallow deer, partridges, wild-bears, bears, martlets, white hares, red and grey corvids, woodcock, and pheasants. The woods are full of fish, and the principal rivers are the Rha, the Arc, and the Aoste. This country has suffered greatly by several wars, which it has had against France, and England. The inhabitants are laborious, sober, good soldiers, and faithful subjects, and Chambery is the capital town.

* SAUVANT-ST. a town of France, in Poitou, and in the diocese of Poitiers.

* SAUVES, a town of France, in Languedoc, and in the diocese of Alais, seated on the river Vidourle, with a Benedictine abbey.

SEARBOURGH, a town in the N. riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs on Holy Thursday, and November 22 for towns. It is seated on a steep rock, near which are such craggy cliffs, that it is almost inaccessible on ever side. On the top of this rock is a green large plain, with a little well of fresh-water, springing out of the rock. It has of late been greatly improved, on account of its mineral waters, called the Scarborough Spa; of which account it is much mented in the number, and beauty of its buildings. The spring was under the cliff, part of which fell down in December 1737, and the water was lost; but in clearing away the ruins, in order to rebuild the wharf, it was recovered to the great joy of the town. Here are assemblies and balls, in the same manner as at Tunbridge. It is a place of some trade, and has a very good harbour, and sends 2 merchants to parliament. It is 42 miles N. SCHIRAS, a large and famous town of Persia, capital of Fartulan. It is 3 miles in length, from E. to W. but not so much in breadth. It is seated at the N. W. end of a spacious plain, surrounded with very high hills, under one of which the town stands. The houses are built of bricks dried in the sun, and are but low, the roofs being flat and terraissed. There are 15 handsome mosques, tiled with stones of a blewish green colour, and lined within with black polished marble. There are many large and beautiful gardens, surrounded with walls 14 feet high, and 4 thick. They contain various kinds of very fine trees, with fruits almost of every kind, besides various beautiful flowers. The wines of Schiras are not only the best in Persia, but as some think in the whole world. The women are much addicted to gallantry, and it is called an earthly paradise by some. The ruins of the famous palace called Persepolis, are at a little distance from hence; that is 30 miles to the N. E. It is 225 mile S. E. of Ispahan. Lon. 73. 35. lat. 29. 36.

SCHWARTZBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia, and capital of a principality of the same name. The castle is seated on the river Isar, 5 miles N. W. of Nuremberg, and 2 E. of Wurtzberg, subject to its own prince. Lon. 28. 2. lat. 49. 47.

SCHWETTERTZ, a strong town of Germany, in Silesia, and capital of a province of the same name, with a castle. It is the handsomest town of Silesia, next to Breslaw. The streets are large, the church is fine, and the houses well built. The fortifications are not very considerable; the royal palace is turned to a convent. All the magistrates are Roman catholics, but most of the inhabitants are protestants, who have a church without the town; as also a publick school and bells. It is seated on an eminence on the river Weistitz, 27 miles S. E. of Iagnitz, and 22 S. W. of Breslaw. Lon. 34. 23. lat. 50. 45.

SCHWETZBURT, a very strong, free and imperial town of Germany, in Franconia, with a magnificent palace where the senators meet, who are twelve in number. The environs are rich in cattle, corn, and wine, and the inhabitants are protestants, testants, but not very rich. However, they carry on a large trade, in woollen and linen-cloth, goose-quills and feathers. It is seated on the river Main, 27 miles N. E. of Wurtzburg, 45 N. W. of Nuremberg, and 22 W. of Bamberg. Lon. 28. 0. lat. 50. 4.

• SCHWENEBERG, a town of Denmark, on the eastern coast of the island of Hionia, over against the islands of Artoa and Langeland. Lon. 28. 30. lat. 55. 8.

• SCHWITZ, or SWITZ, a canton of Switzerland, which gives name to them all. It is bounded on the W. by the lake of the four cantons, on the S. by the canton of Uri, on the E. by that of Glaris, and on the N. by those of Zurich and Zug. Its principal riches consist in cattle, and the principal town is of the same name. This is a large, handsome place, seated near the lake of the four cantons, in a pleasant country among the mountains. 10 miles S. E. of Lucern, and 12 S. of Zug. Lon. 26. 16. lat. 47. 2.

• SEIATI, an island of the Archipelago, near the coast of Janna, to the N. of Negropont, and almost at the entrance of the Gulph of Salomeli. It is about 22 miles in length, and 3 in breadth. Lon. from 41. 50. to 42. S. lat. from 39. 29. to 39. 40.

SEIO, one of the most beautiful, pleasant, and celebrated islands of the Archipelago, near to the coast of Natolia, to the S. of Metelin, and to the N. E. of Samos. It is 32 miles in length, and 15 in breadth, being a mountainous country and yet pleasant enough, there being fruits of various kinds growing in the fields; such as oranges, citrons, olives, mulberries and pomegranates. There is also a large quantity of pleasant wine, which they export to the neighbouring islands; but their principal trade is in silks. They have also a small commerce in wool, cheets, furs, and mastic. Their women are better bred than in other parts of the Levant; though the dress is odd, yet it is very neat. The partridges are tame, being sent every day into the fields to get their living, and in the evening are called back with a whistle. The town called Seio, is large, pleasant, and the best built of any in the Levant, the houses being beautiful and commodious, some of which are terraced, and others covered with tiles. The streets are paved with flint stones, and the Venetians, while they had it in their possession, made a great many alterations for the better.

The castle is an old citadel built by the Genoese, in which the Turks have a garrison of 1400 men. The harbour of Seio is the rendezvous of all shipping, that goes to or comes from Constantinople, and it will hold a fleet of four-score vessels. They reckon there are 10000 Turks, 10000 Greeks, and 10000 Latins, on this island. The Turks took it from the Venetians in 1795. Seio is a bishop's see, and is seated on the sea side, 47 miles W. of Smyrna, and 210 S. W. of Constantinople. Lon. from 53. 50. to 54. 10. lat. from 38. 8. to 38. 37.

SEILLY, a cluster of islands and rocks, lying to the W. of Cornwall, which are dangerous for strangers to sail near, without a good pilot, there having been often ships wrecked upon them; and particularly Sir Cloudesley Shovel with 4 men of war, were cut away here, in the night of October 27. 1707; when there were not only a great number of common sailors, but people of distinction lost. St. Mary's is the largest and most cultivated, containing more inhabitants than all the rest put together, and who are also the richest, take wine in this, and in two or three other of the largest islands, there are various antiquities, particularly the remains of the temple of the Druids, and ancient sepulchres; but the greatest ornament of this island, is the light-house of 61 feet high, and the gallery is four. The flash lights are 11 feet 6 inches high, and 3 feet 2 inches broad. It stands on high land, and is a very fine column.

SEIRO, an island of the Archipelago, to the W. of Metelin, to the N. E. of Negropont, and to the S. E. of Seiat. It is 15 miles in length, and 8 in breadth. It is a mountainous country, but there are no mines in it. The vines make the beauty of the island, and the wine is excellent; nor do the natives want wood. There is but one village, and that is built on a rock, which runs up like a sugar loaf, and is 10 miles from the harbour of Saint George. The inhabitants are all Greeks, the Cadi being the only Turk among them. Lon. from 42. 40. to 42. 54. lat. from 39. 4. to 39. 20.

SEIACONIA, a country of Europe, between the rivers Save, the Drave and the Danube. It is divided into 6 counties, viz. Pefega, Zabiab, Creis, Warafden, Zreiar, and Walpon, and belongs to the house of Austria. It was formerly called a Kingdom, and is very narrow, not being being above 75 miles in breadth; but it is 300 in length, from the frontiers of Austria to Belgrade. The eastern part is called Ratzia, and the inhabitants Ratzians. These from a particular nation, are of the Greek church. The language of Slavonia is the mother of four others, namely those of Hungary, Bohemia, Poland and Russia.

* SCOLE, a village in Norfolk, with one fair, on Easter Tuesday, for horses and toys.

SCONE, or SCODN, a town of Scotland, in the county of Perth. It is the place where the kings of Scotland were usually crowned, and is 30 miles N. of Edinburgh. Lon. 14. 20. lat. 56. 28.

* SCORPELO, an island of the Archipelago, 5 miles E. of Sciati, and 17 N. of Negropont. It lies at the entrance of the Gulph of Salonica, and is about 10 miles in length, and 5 in breadth. It is very fertile, produces plenty of good wine, and contains 12000 inhabitants, who are almost all Greeks.

* SCOFIA, or USCAPIA, a town of Turkey, in Europe, on the confines of Bosnia, and capital of a sangiacate. It is seated on the river Vadar, over which there is a bridge of 12 arches, and it is an archbishop's see. It is 67 miles W. of Sophia. Lon. 39. 50. lat. 42. 20.

SCOTLAND, the kingdom of, is the N. part of the island of Great-Britain, which is now united to England, and both together make but one nation. It is bounded on all sides by the ocean, except the S. from which it is separated by the river Tweed, towards the E. by Cheviot-hills, and the river Esk, and Solway Frith towards the W. It is generally reckoned 380 miles in length, from Aldermouth-head, near the isle of Mull, to Buchanefs, and 190 in breadth, where it is broadest. But it is so cut by the inlets of the sea, that there is not a house 60 miles from it, besides the main land: there are 500 islands belonging to Scotland, some of which are very considerable. These are called the western islands, the Orkneys, and the Schetland isles. The air is generally wholesome, though colder than that of England; but it is purified by the winds, which are pretty strong and frequent. In the northern parts the days are very long, and in the summer solstice, the night is not above an hour and half long in the Isle of Skye. The soil is different in different parts, there being many rich and fruitful plains, though what is called the Highlands, is full of mountains and heaths. They do not want wheat, but the grain mostly cultivated is oats, as it will grow in the mountainous parts. The productions of Scotland are much the same as in England, though not in so great plenty. In the low lands there is but little timber, but in the more northern parts there are forests of fir-trees, which might afford masts for the largest men of war; but it is difficult to bring them to the sea-side. They burn coals in several parts, and in the Highlands they have plenty of wood: however, in other places they burn turf, peat, heath, broom, and furzes. They have large flocks of sheep, and plenty of horned cattle, many of which are brought to England for sale, and even as far as London, though they are generally very small. They have also a great number of horses, which, though small, will bear a great deal of fatigue. The soil produces great plenty of hemp and flax, which are manufactured in many places, and at Edinburgh particularly, they have brought all sorts of linen to the greater perfection, and export very large quantities. Some years ago, the women never appeared abroad without their plaids; but now that custom is pretty much laid aside. This was likewise the chief dress of the Highlanders, but by a late act of parliament, they have been obliged to lay them aside, and conform to the Lowland dress. No country in the world has greater plenty of fish, eggs and fowls; and a very great advantage might be made of their fisheries. They have mines of several sorts, and particularly of lead, with quarries of free-stone for building; inasmuch, that the principal towns are constructed with nothing else. They have mines of very good coal, great quantities of which are brought to London, and is known by the name of Scotch coal. With regard to what is said of their precious stones, gold and silver mines, and other uncommon productions, we shall pass over in silence. The established religion in Scotland, is the Presbyterian: however, all others are tolerated, or at least connived at. As for the rivers and lakes, we shall take notice of the principal, in their proper places. Lon. from 12. 20. to 16. 50. lat. from 54. 40. to 58. 30. This account of the latitude, is according to the best and latest map of Scotland, from which it appears, that the length SEBASTIAN, ST. a handsome, populous, and strong town of Spain, in the province of Guipuzcoa, with a good and well frequented harbour. It is seated at the foot of a mountain, and the harbour is secured by two moles, and a narrow entrance for the ships. The town is surrounded with a double wall, and to the sea side it is fortified with battions and half-moons. The streets are long, broad and straight, and paved with white flag stones. The houses are pretty handsome, the churches very neat, and the environs are very pleasant. It carries on a great trade, and is so populous, that several families are obliged to live in the same house. At the top of the mountain is a strong citadel, well furnished with cannon, having a garrison. Their greatest trade consists of iron and steel, which some take to be the best in Europe; they also deal in wool, which comes from Old-Castile. In time of war with the English, there are many privateers here, and the prizes are generally brought into the harbour. It is 50 miles E. of Bilboa, and 50 N. W. of Pampeluna. Lon. 15. 36. lat. 43. 23.

SEGOVIA, an ancient, large, rich, populous, handsome, and strong town of Spain, in Old-Castile, with a bishop's see, and a handsome castle, called Alca-zar. It is adorned with handsome structures, and there are about 7000 houses, comprehending the suburbs. It is surrounded with a strong wall, flanked with towers and ramparts. It is in this place, that the best cloth in Spain is made; and the fine Spanish wool so much esteemed in other countries, that it is one part of their trade, and another is very fine paper. The cathedral church stands on one side of the great square, and contains the statue of the Virgin Mary, in massy silver. The alcazar is seated in the highest part of the town, and is covered with lead. There are 16 rooms very richly adorned with tapestry. There is a great deal of gilding, and very fine ornaments of marble and porphyry. The royal chapel is magnificently gilded, and embellished with very fine paintings. The next most remarkable structure is the Casa de la Moneda, or the mint, whose towers are all covered with lead. It is seated in a valley, surrounded with a river, on which are mills, that are employed in coining, and by which every thing is done in an instant; for they can coin as much money here in a day, as at other places in a month. The aqueduct is a work of the Romans, and serves to bring water into the town, being 3000 paces in length, and supported by 177 arches, of a prodigious height. They consist of two rows, and one is placed above the other. It is seated on a mountain, between two hills, near the river Arayada, r, a kingdom of A- seated on a river which some suppose e Niger; but this is very uncertain, there having been no European who has travelled so far up, as to determine this assertion. However, it overflows like the Nile, and much about the same time of the year. It is 40 days before it comes to the height, when the river overflows its banks, and the channel is difficult to find by those who go up it in boats. The French once sent 30 men up this river, who rowed 1000 miles, undergoing great hardships, insomuch that only five returned back alive; their boat once stuck fast on the tops of trees, and they got it off with a great deal of difficulty. The kingdom of Senegal was formerly very considerable, but it is now reduced into a very narrow compass; it is populous and full of trees, but the soil is sandy and barren; for which reason they never sow till the rainy season comes on, in June; and they get in their harvest in September. The French had a fort and factory in an island at the mouth of this river, and they were entire masters of the gum-trade. It is called Fort-Louis, and was taken by the English on the first of May 1758, who have since sent proper reinforcements to keep possession of it, and it is a very valuable acquisition to the crown of Great Britain. See GAMBIA.

SENEZ, a wretched town of France, in Provence, with a bishop's see. It is seated in a rough, barren country, 42 miles N. W. of Nice, and 46 N. E. of Aix. Lon. 24. 17. lat. 43. 53.

SENLEIS, an ancient town of France, in the isle of France, and capital of a county of the same name, with a bishop's see. The cathedral church has a steeple, which is one of the highest in France, and the figures which adorn the front of the right wing of this church are very curious. It is seated on the side of a hill, on the river Nonett, near a large forest, 20 miles N. W. of Meaux, and 27 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 20. 15. lat. 49. 13.

• SENNAR, a large town of Africa, in Nubia, and capital of a kingdom of the same name. It is 5 miles in circumference, and is very populous, containing near 100,000 inhabitants. The houses are all one story high, flat roofed, and very ill built, but the suburbs contain only cottages, which are covered with reeds. The King's palace is surrounded with high walls, of bricks dried in the sun, and is nothing but a confused heap of buildings. The heats are so insupportable, that a man can hardly breathe in the day-time till the end of April, when the rainy season begins, and continues three months, at which time the air is extremely unwholesome. Their commodities are, elephants teeth, tamarinds, civet, tobacco, and gum-dust. There is a market every day in the week in the middle of the town, where they sell all sorts of provisions and goods; they have also a market near the King's palace, where slaves are sold; the females sit on one side, and the males on another, and the Egyptian merchants buy great numbers of them every year. Their religion is Mahometanism, but they are an ignorant, superstitious, and yet a cunning sort of people. The women of quality have slight garments of silk, and are adorned with rings of various metals, which they wear on their hair, arms, legs, ears, and nostrils, as also on their fingers. Their legs are naked, and they have only a single soal fastened to their feet with strings. Women of a lower rank, and girls, have cloaths wrapt round them from the waist to the knee, and likewise the men go almost naked. The merchandizes which are required at Sennar, are spices, paper, brass, hardware, glass-beads, and a black drug with which they colour their eye lids and eye-brows. There are a few merchants here who travel to Saquen on the Red Sea, from whence they go to Atabia Felix with their commodities, and bring those of the E. Indies back. It is seated on an eminence near the river Nile. Lon. 50. 25. lat. 13. 4.

• SENONIS, a territory of France, that lies along the river Yonne, and makes part of the government of Champagne.

SENS, an ancient and considerable town of France, in the government of Champagne, and capital of the Senonais, with an archbishop's see. The metropolitan church is a handsome structure, and the front is adorned with different figures; figures; the body of it is as large as that of Nostre Dame, at Paris. There are several convents, and a jesuits college, as also two abbeys. There are small streams run through the streets, which are useful to the inhabitants on several accounts. It is very advantageously feated for trade, where the river Vanne falls into the Yonne, 25 miles N. of Auxerre, 30 W. of Troyes, and 60 S. E. of Paris. Lon. 20. 57. lat. 48. 12.

• SERFO, or SERFANTE, an island of the Archipelago, 50 miles N. W. of Naxia, and 75 from the eastern coast of the Morea, to the S. E. of the gulph of Engia, being 8 miles in length and 5 in breadth. It is full of mountains and rocks, in which are mines of iron and loadstones. The inhabitants are so proud of their fine onions, that it never enters their heads to catch the partridges which devour their corn and grapes. They are extremely indolent, as well as their ancestors. They are all Greeks, and have but one town, called St. Nicholo, which is a poor, beggarly place. The women are very fond of strangers, and in their dances they use all sorts of lascivious postures, in order to tempt them. Lon. 42. 36. lat. 37. 10.

• SERIGNAN, a town of France, in Lower Languedoc, and in the diocese of Beziers, with the seat of an admiralty.

• SEMAZE, a town of France, in Champagne, and in the election of Vitry, feated on the river Saux, near a cold mineral spring excellent for the gravel.

• SERONGE, a large town of Asia, in the dominions of the Great Mogul, on the road from Surat to Agra. Most of the inhabitants are merchants, and deal in painted calicoes. Lon. 95. 40. lat. 24. 15.

SERPA, a strong town of Portugal, in Alentejo, on the confines of Andalusia. It is feated on a rough eminence, where there is a good castle, 3 miles from the river Guadiana, 83 S. E. of Lisbon, and 30 S. E. of Evora. Lon. 10. 28. lat. 37. 52.

• SERRA LEONE, or SIERRA LEONE, a great river of Africa, in Guinea, and on the Malagueta coast. Its source is uncertain, but the mouth of it is 10 miles wide. A little within the mouth is Bens-Island, which is very small, where the English have a factory. It is bounded by the two famous capes, called Tagrin, or Sierra Leone, and that of Vega, which form a large bay. The country about it is one of the best in Africa, and the soil is very fertile.

• SERRES, a town of Turkey in Europe, with an archbishop's see. It is in Macedonia, between Salonichi, Amphipoli, and Philippi, being a place moderately large. It is feated on the river Calicot. Lon. 40. 20. lat. 40. 54.

SERRES, a town of France, in Dauphiny, and in Viennois, and in the election of the Romans.

SERVIA, a province of Turkey in Europe, bounded on the N. by the rivers Danube and Save, which separate it from Hungary, on the E. by Bulgaria, on the W. by Bosnia, and on the S. by Albania and Macedonia. It is about 190 miles in length from E. to W. and 95 in breadth from N. to S. and is divided into four sangiacates, two of which were ceded to the Christians in 1718, who united them into one. This continued till 1739, when the Turks were victorious, and then they were abandoned to the Turks by the treaty of Belgrade. The names of them are, Belgrade, Semendriah, Scupia, and Cratowo. Belgrade is the capital town.

SERVUO, a castle feated upon a high mountain, which is about 4 miles from Trieste, and from whence there is a charming prospect. Near it is the mouth of a famous cavern, in which the sparry exudations have formed variety of figures of blue and white colours.

SETUAN, a province of Asia, in China, bounded on the N. by Chan-fi, on the E. by Koei-teheou and Yun-nan, and on the W. by the kingdom of Thebet and some other neighbouring countries.

It is divided into 10 districts, which comprehend 10 cities of the first rank, and 38 of the second and third, besides a great number of garriſons and forts.
The great river Yang-tſe-kiang runs through it, and it is vastly rich, not only on account of the great quantity of silk that it produces, but for its mines of iron, tin, and lead, as well as its amber, fugar-canes, and lapis-lazuli.
It likewise abounds in mulk, pretty small swift horses, stags, fallow-deer, partridges, parrots, and a sort of tame fowl with wool instead of feathers. As this province is far from the sea, they have no salt but what they make from brine-pits, which they dig in the mountains.

SETUFAL. See ST. UBES.

SEVENOAKS, or SENNOCK, a town of Kent, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on July 10, and October 12, for hogs and toys. It is a pretty good town, with an hospital and a free-school, and is 6 miles N. W. of Tunbridge, and about it; and it is seated between two hills, on the river Petenza, 8 miles N. W. of Tolentino, 12 N. E. of Ca-mering, merino, and 25 N. E. of Fermerino. Lon. 30. 55. lat. 43. 16.

• SEVERINO SAN, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Principato, seated on the river Sarnon. It has given its name to the house of San Severino.

SEVERN, a river of England, which rises near Plinnilliom hill, in Montgomeryshire, and before it enters Shropshire, receives about 30 streams, and passes down to Ludring, where it receives the Morda, that flows from Oswetry. When it arrives at Monford, it receives the river Mon, passing on to Shrewsbury which it almost surrounds, then to Bridgeworth, afterwards it runs thro' the skirts of Staffordshire, enters Worcestershire, and passes by Worcester; then it runs to Tewksbury, where it joins the Avon, and from thence to Gloucester, keeping a north-westerly course till it falls into the Bristol channel. It begins to be navigable for boats at Welch Pool, in Montgomeryshire, and takes in several other rivers in its course besides those already mentioned, and is the second in England.

SEVERO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Capitinata, with a bishop's see. It is seated in a plain, 27 miles W. of Manfredonia, and 75 N. E. of Naples. Lon. 32. 59. lat. 41. 40.

SEVERUS'S WALL, commonly called Graham's Dyke, in the W. of Scotland. It is a work of the Romans, and supposed to be done by the emperor whose name it bears, to prevent the incursions of the Picts and Scots. It begun at Abercorn, on the Frith of Forth, 4 miles N. E. of Linlithgow, and run W. across the country to the Frith of Clyde, ending at Kirkpatrick, near Dunbarton.

SEVILLE, an ancient, large, rich, populous, and very handsome town of Spain, capital of Andalusia, and is one of the most considerable cities of Spain. It is seated in a large plain, near the river Guadalquivir, and takes up more ground than Madrid, tho' it has not so many inhabitants; there being only 24,000 families in the city, and 3000 in the suburbs. It is of a round form, and its fortifications consist of strong walls, flanked with high towers. The Moors built an aqueduct, which is still to be seen, and is 6 miles in length. The cathedral-church is the largest in Spain, which stands in the middle of the town; its roof is extremely high, and supported on each side by two rows of stately columns; it is 75 feet in length, and 80 in breadth, and its chapels are built in the antique manner. The steeple is of very curious workmanship, and extremely high, consisting of three towers, one above another, with galleries and balconies. Besides the cathedral, there are several others, particularly those belonging to religious houses. They reckon 85 benefices, and 3500 chaplains. The convent of St. Francis is the most curious of all, and is adorned with a very handsome publick square, in the midst of which there is a fire fountain. It contains 160 Monks, besides 120 strangers of the same order, and the church is built in the Gothic taste. The cloister is supported by marble pillars, and embellished with good paintings. The university of Seville consists of many colleges, where the professors live at their ease, as they enjoy rich pensions. Near the cathedral church is the royal palace, called Alcazar, which was partly built after the antique by the Moors, and partly in the modern taste by King Pedro; it is a mile in extent, and is flanked with large square strong towers, built with stones, taken from the ancient temple of Hercules: some connoisseurs say this structure has not its equal in Europe. The exchange where the merchants meet is behind the cathedral church, and is a square building, of the Tuscan order, each front being 100 feet in length, and is 3 stories high. The suburb stands on the other side of the river, over which there is a long bridge, supported by boats; in this the house of the inquisition is placed, and in it there are publick walks, where most of the inhabitants go to take the air. The town-houfe is adorned with a great number of statues, and there is a large square before it, with a fine fountain in the middle. There are 120 hospitals richly endowed, and the physicians are ordered to spare no cost to cure their patients. The pleasant situation of Seville, near the sea, renders it one of the most trading and rich cities of Spain. The E. and W. India companies have their houses here, where they are obliged to register themselves and their merchandizes; their ships indeed stop in the harbour of Cadiz, but their loading is carried from thence to Seville. And there all the gold and silver is coined, ther market nor fair, but is remarkable for being the new mart where ships take in their loading of coals, and where they make large quantities of salt. It is seated at the mouth of the river Tyne, 10 miles E. of Newcastle, and 188 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 35. lat. 55. 0.

SHEPPEY, an island in the county of Kent, which is divided from the other part of it by a narrow channel. It lies at the mouth of the river Medway, and contains one town, called Queenborough.

SHEPTON-MALLET, a town of Somersetshire, with a market on Fridays, and one fair, on August 8, for all sorts of cattle, and cheese. It is seated under Mendip-hills, and is pretty large, being inhabited by several wealthy clothiers. It is 17 miles S. W. of Bath, and 111 W. of London. Lon. 14. 59. lat. 51. 15.

SHERBORN, a town of Dorsetshire, with two markets, on Thursdays and Saturdays, and four fairs, on Saturday after Holy-Thurday, for all sorts of cattle; on July 18, for cattle and wool; on July 26, for cattle and lambs; and on the first Monday in October for all sorts of cattle. It is very pleasantly seated and watered, and is a large, well inhabited and frequented place. It was formerly a bishop's see, and had three churches, though now but one, which is a very handsome structure, said to be the best in the county. It has also a handsome free-school, and had a castle, now in ruins. It is 34 miles W. by S. of Salisbury, 55 E. by N. of Exeter, and 118 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 0. lat. 58. 58.

SHERBORN, a town in the W. riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair, on October 6, for horses and flax. It is a small but well inhabited place, and has a famous free-school. It is seated on a river which soon falls into the Ouse, and is noted for pins and cherries. It is 14 miles S. W. of York, and 176 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 30. lat. 53. 46.

SHERBOROUGH, a fort of Africa, in Guinea, seated at the mouth of Sherborough river, which belongs to the English, and is 100 miles S. E. of Sierra Leone. Lon. 6. 35. lat. 6. 0.

SHERNESS, a fort in Kent, seated on the point where the river Medway falls into the Thames. It was built by King Charles II. after the insult of the Dutch, who burnt the men of war at Chatham. The buildings belonging to it, in which the officers lodge, make a pretty little neat town; and there is also a yard and a dock, a chapel and a chaplain. Lon. 18. 25. lat. 51. 25.

* SHERSTON, a village in Wiltshire, with two fairs, on May 12, and October 2, for oxen and fat cattle.

SHUPTON, a town in Worcestershire, tho' surrounded by Warwickshire, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on June 22, and Tuesday after October 10, for horses, cows, and sheep. It is seated on the river Stour, and is an ancient place, though not very large. It is 14 miles W. of Banbury, 7 E. of Camden, and 75 N. W. of London. Lon. 16. 0. lat. 52. 5.

SHOGLE, a town of Asia, in Syria, seated on the river Asi, anciently called Orenes, over which there is a bridge of 13 arches. It is a large, disagreeable place, but there is a good caravansary, where every traveller is supplied with a competent portion of bread, broth, and meat. It is 18 miles S. by E. of Antioch, and 45 S. W. of Aleppo. Lon. 54. 35. lat. 36. 2.

SHOREHAM, a sea-port town in Suffex, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair, on July 25, for pedlars ware. It is commonly called New Shoreham, to distinguish it from the old, which lies near it, and is now of little account. It is seated on an arm of the sea, which makes it a place of some trade, but it has no safe harbour. It is a corporation, and sends two members to parliament; and is 16 miles N. W. of Newhaven, and 50 S. by W. of London. Lon. 17. 23. lat. 50. 50. The market is now disused.

* SHOULHAM, a village in Norfolk, with two fairs, on September 19, and October 10, for cattle and toys.

SHREWSBURY, a town of Shropshire, with three markets, on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, and 7 fairs, on Saturday after March 15, Wednesday after Easter-week, Wednesday before Whitsunday, for horses, horned cattle, sheep, cheese, linnen, and cloth; on July 3, and August 12, for horned cattle, horses, hogs, cheese, linnen, sheep, and lambs wool; on October 3, and December 12, for horses, sheep, hogs, butter, cheese, and linnen. It is seated in the heart of the county, on a pleasant ascent, and on the banks of the Severn, which which almost surrounds it. It contains 5 parish-churches, besides a chapel, two of which are handsome structures, adorned with lofty spire-steeple. It is a large place, with handsome houses and good streets, full of inhabitants. It is surrounded with a strong wall, through which there are three gates, and on the E. and W. two good stone-bridges. It had an exceeding strong castle now in ruins, and it is the common mart between England and Wales, to which all sorts of Welch commodities are brought. It is a corporation, with the title of an earldom, has a large free-school, and sends two members to parliament. It is governed by a mayor, 12 aldermen, a recorder, 24 common-council men, and a town-clerk. The town is near 2 miles long, and the streets mostly broad, and paved. It is 40 miles W. of Litchfield, 21 N. W. of Bridgenorth, 40 S. by E. of Chester, 107 N. of Bristol, and 176 N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 49. lat. 52. 43.

SHROPSHIRE, an English county, 48 miles in length, 28 in breadth, and bounded by Cheshire on the N. Denbighshire and Montgomeryshire on the W. Herefordshire on the S. and Staffordshire on the E. It contains 22,380 houses, 139,680 inhabitants, 170 parishes, and 16 market-rows, 5 of which send members to parliament, which, with two for the county, make 12 in all. The principal rivers are, the Severn, which runs through the midst of the county, the Terne, the Clun, and the Rea, with several other lesser streams. The W. and S. parts are mountainous, but the E. and N. more plain and level; however, the soil is pretty fertile every where, yielding corn and pastures, besides pit-coal, iron, and the commodities of other counties. The air is sharp and cold on the tops of the hills and mountains, but in the lower parts it is temperate enough. Shrewsbury is the capital town.

* SHROTON, a village in Dorsetshire, with one fair, on September 25, for horses, bullocks, sheep, and all sorts of haberdashery ware.

SIAM, a kingdom of Asia, in the E. Indies, bounded on the N. by that of Laos, on the E. by Cambaya and Keo, on the S. by a gulph of the same name, and on the W. by the peninsula of the Malacca. It is 550 miles in length, and 250 in breadth, though in some places not above 50. It is divided into the Higher and

Lower, and the soil produces plenty of rice, cotton, and fruits, but different from those in Europe. The animals are also particular to those parts of the world. The French authors have cried it up as the finest and richest country in the world, and yet the inhabitants, both men and women, go almost naked. The better sort indeed wear rich garments; and yet those about the court are under a miserable subjection to the king, who shews himself but once a-year to the common people. He is proprietor of all the lands in the country, and no one can buy any merchandizes till he has the refusal of them. He generally keeps a numerous army, among which there are 7000 elephants, and it is said he can bring 250,000 men into the field. It is a flat country, which in the rainy season is overflowed; for which reason most of the houses are built on pillars, and they have no communication for some months but by boats. Their religion is Paganism, and in general they are an honest sort of people, thinking that doing good both to men and beasts is the principal part of their duty. Polygamy is lawful, and the sailors that have been there affirm, that the women are as amorous as any in these parts; which is no wonder, for fornication is not looked upon as a fault. There are mines of gold, silver, tin, and copper, and they have plenty of pepper, aloes, benjamin, and musk. The women are the only merchants in buying goods, inasmuch that the men are generally maintained by the industry of their wives. The Europeans that come there to trade, generally take wives for the time they stay, who are not less in esteem when the men are gone. The mandarins, that is, the principal men who daily attend the palace, are 5000 in number, and they are whipt very severely with split rattan for the least fault, which leave considerable scars behind them. Even the ladies are not exempted from this punishment; and they are so far from being ashamed of it, that they expose their backs as they go along the streets, to shew what they have undergone, thinking it an honour to be taken notice of by so great a king; however, the other parts of their bodies are covered with a thin scarf. The inhabitants are well shaped, have large foreheads, little noses, handsome mouths, plump lips, and black sparkling eyes. Both sexes go bare-headed, and the men are of an olive colour, with little beards; but the women are of a straw complexion, and some have their cheeks a little red. They have abundance of wild animals in the woods, as elephants, rhinoceroses, leopards, and tycers. Their tame cattle are, heeves, buffaloes, and hogs, of which they have plenty about their farms. Besides which, there are large and dangerous crocodiles, and serpents 20 feet long. Their temples and priests are very numerous; and these are distinguished from the laity by an orange coloured garment, and they keep their heads, beards, and eye-brows close shaved. They have schools for the education of their children, and there is scarce any among them but what can read and write. Odiam, Juthia, or Juda, is the capital town.

• SIARA, a town of S. America, in Brasil, and capital of a captainship of the same name, which lies between those of Maragnan and Rio-grande, on the N. coast. Near it there is a fort, built upon a mountain, near the river Siara. Lon. 53⁸. 0. lat. S. 3. 15.

SIRA, a province of Asia, in the empire of the Great Mogul, bounded on the N. by Naugracur, on the E. by Great Tibet, on the S. by the provinces of Gor and Janba, and on the W. by Bengal. In this country there is a large lake, from whence the river Ganges proceeds. It is very little known to Europeans.

SIBERIA, a large country which comprehends the most northern part of the Russian empire, in Asia. It is bounded on the E. by the ocean, on the S. by Great Tartary, on the W. by Russia, and on the N. by the Frozen Ocean. It is about 2000 miles in length from E. to W. and 750 in breadth from N. to S. It is to this province that the Czar sends the great men of his court into exile that have displeas'd him, as well as all other persons of whom he would purge the center of his dominions. The S. part is a very good country, which produces all the necessaries of life; but the N. part is extremely cold, almost uncultivated, and thin of people. The principal riches of Siberia consist of fine skins and furs. Tobolsk is the capital town, where the viceroy resides. The inhabitants are of three sorts, Pagans, or the natives of the country, Mahometans, and Mulcovites: the former dwell in tents in the winter, and in the summer on the banks of rivers, and their garments are the skins of wild-beasts. They have bows, arrows, a knife, and a kettle, in which all their riches consist. They make use of rein-deer and dogs, instead of horses, to draw their sledges. They have several idols, which they are sometimes displeas'd with, and will either beat or burn them. They don't all use the same ceremonies, so that they are different in different parts; but they all live in wretched huts, which they remove from place to place. Those in the southern parts are not much more polite, but they have horses with which they go a-hunting, and their houses, though poor, are not sifted from place to place. Likewise, the Mahometan Tartars, who dwell in these parts, are not so ugly as in other places. As for the Russians that are settled here, they are much the same as in their native country. It is through this vast tract of land that Russian caravans travel every year, when they carry their merchandizes to China. There are several large rivers in it, which supply the inhabitants with large quantities of fish, on which many of them chiefly live. These rivers are taken notice of in their proper places.

SIBET. See ZINET.

SICHEM, or ZICHEM, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Brabant, seated on the river Demur, and to the S. of it is a celebrated monastery. It is 18 miles E. of Mechlin, or Malines. Lon. 21. 25. lat. 51. 6.

SICILY, an island of the Mediterranean Sea, which is almost in the form of a triangle, and terminates in three points, or capes; that which is nearest Italy is called Capo del Faro, that which regards the Morea is named Capo Passaro, and the third, which points to Africa, has the name of Capo di Boco. As Sicily is an island, it can be only bounded by the sea; however, it is separated from the kingdom of Naples by a narrow strait, called the Faro; but as Messina is seated on it, it is called the Faro di Messina. This is about 5 miles in breadth, and the famous shelves called Scylla and Charybdis are near it, so much celebrated by the Latin poets. The two kingdoms of Naples and Sicily are under the same climate, and the productions are much the same, only Sicily abounds much more in corn, particularly in the vallies of Noto and Mazara;

and fruits: the valley of Demona has more forests and fruit-trees than the two others. It is said to contain one million of inhabitants, who in general have a very bad character. They formerly cultivated sciences here, and there was an university at Caranea, but now they are greatly neglected. It is said there are mines of all kinds, but it does not appear that they have any advantage from them. It is divided into the vallis just mentioned, called by them Val di Demona, Val di Noto, and Val di Mazara, which are taken notice of in their proper places. Don Carlos became king of the Two Sicilies in 1736, in consequence of the treaty of Vienna; but the king of Spain dying in 1760, he succeeded to that crown, and his third son, Ferdinand, became king of the Two Sicilies. Mount Ætna, now called Gibello, the famous volcano, is in Val di Demona. It is about 165 miles in length, and 112 in breadth; and its produce not already mentioned, is wine, oil, silk, and excellent fruits.

SIMMOUTH, a sea-port town of Devonshire, with a small market, and two fairs, on Easter-Tuesday, and Monday after September 10, for cattle. It is a small fishing town, seated on the seashore, and was formerly pretty considerable, before its harbour was choaked up. It is 12 miles S. E. of Exeter, and 157 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14 S. lat. 50. 40.

SISON, or SAYD, a sea-port town of Asia, in Syria, and in that part formerly called Palestine. It was anciently a place of great strength, had an extensive trade, and is said to be the place where glass was invented. It is still a place of some note, has a good castle, and a pretty well frequented harbour. It is also the residence of a Turkish bashaw. It is 45 miles W. of Damascus, and is seated on the sea-shore. Lon. 53. 50. lat. 33.

SIENNA, a large, ancient, and celebrated town of Italy, in Tuscany, and capital of the Siennese, with an archbishop's see, a famous university, and a citadel.
It is about 4 miles in circumference, and is surrounded with an old wall. The metropolitan church is much admired by travellers, and though it a Gothic structure, the architecture is admirable.
It is built with black and white marble, and the pavement is of Mosaic work.
It is not very populous, but the women have more freedom than in any other place in Italy. It is adorned with a great number of palaces, fountains, and superb churches; as also a magnificent hospital. The great place is round, and the houses about it are of the same height, supported by piazzas, under which people may walk in all weathers; in the middle there is a basin, which they can fill with water at any time, and represent a sea-sight with small vessels.
The Italian language is taught here with such purity, that a great many foreigners frequent it on that account. It is seated on three eminences, in a fertile soil,

SIFANTO, or SIPHANTO, an island of the Archipelago, to the W. of Paros, to the N. E. of Milo, and to the S. W. of Serphanto. The air is so good here, that many of the inhabitants live to the age of 120, and their water, fruits, wild-fowls, and poultry, are excellent, but more especially the grapes. It abounds with marble and granite, and is one of the most fertile, and best cultivated of these islands. The inhabitants employ themselves, in cultivating olive-trees, and capers, and they have very good silk. They trade in figs, onions, wax, honey, and straw-hats, and they may be about 5000 in all. Lon. 42. 50. lat. 38. 0.

SIGAN, a town of Asia, and capital of the province of Kénsi, in China, where there are a great number of palaces. It is built in the form of an amphitheatre, on the river Guei, in a pleasant country. Lon. 126. 0. lat. 35. 50.

SIGETH, a town of Lower Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name. It is seated in a morass, and has a triple wall, with ditches full of water, and is defended by a citadel, being one of the strongest places in Hungary. It now belongs to the house of Austria, and was retaken from the Turks in 1669; after it had been blocked up two years. It is 53 miles N. W. of Esbeck, and 38. W. by S. of Colocza. In some maps it is called Zigat. Lon. 36. 5. lat. 46. 35.

SIGISTAN, a province of Asia, in Persia, bounded on the N. by Sablestan, and Corasan, on the W. by Kherman, on the E. by the dominions of the Great Mogul, and on the S. by Makeran. It is surrounded with high mountains, and is but little known to the Europeans.

SIGUENZA, a very strong town of Spain, in New-Castile, with an university, an archbishop's see, and a castle, in which is an arsenal. It is surrounded with walls, and is very well fortified. The university consists of several colleges, and the most considerable structure is the cathedral church. The air is very cold in the winter, but they have a great deal of wood for firing. It is seated on a hill, at the foot of mount Atienca, 62 miles N. E. of Madrid. Lon. 15. 12. lat. 41. 6.

SILESIA, a province of Germany, with the title of a duchy. It is bounded on the N. by the marquisate of Brandenburg, and Poland, on the S. by Moravia and Hungary, on the E. by Poland, and on the W. by Lower Lusatia, and Bohemia. It is about 274 miles in length, and 100 in breadth; and some geographers pretend that there are 100 cities, 352 towns, 863 castles, 4000 gentlemen's houses, and 41618 villages. The principal rivers are, the Oder, and the Vistula, or Weisel; besides which, there are the Neisse, the Bober, the Queis, the Oppa, and the Else. There is a long chain of mountains, which separate Silesia from Bohemia, one half belonging to the one, and the other to the other, and they have their particular names. On the top of the mountain of the giants, there is a famous spring, frequented by a great number of people, partly out of devotion, and partly to drink the waters. There were mines of gold, silver, and other metals; but they have not been occupied for many years. There are also some precious stones, but too much time is required to obtain them. The highest mountain of Silesia is called Zotenberg, which is situated in the principality of Schweidnitz, and is 104 miles in circumference. The most considerable river mines at present, are at Reitstein, in the principality of Brieg. There are also mines of lead, copper, and iron, and quarries of various stones; besides antimony, salt-petre, sulphur, allum, vitriol, quick-silver, scaled earth, and other minerals. The principal manufactory is linen-cloth, and they have also some woollen manufactories, and glass-houses. They feed a great number of cattle, have large studs of horses, and plenty of game in the woods. They have but few lynxes and bears, and fewer wolves, because they give a ducat a-head for every one that is killed. They have

They have wheat, barley, oats, millet-seed, and turneps, sufficient for the use of the inhabitants; and in some places they cultivate saffron; but their wine is very bad, and therefore they turn it mostly into vinegar. Silefia is divided into the Upper and Lower. In the Upper, the inhabitants are generally Roman-catholics, speaking the Polish language, and in the Lower, they are almost all Protestants, and speak their mother-tongue. Silefia is divided into 17 small dutchies, and 7 free states, without comprehending the county of Glatz. These are taken notice of in their proper places. Part of this country was ceded to the king of Prussia in 1742, by the treaty of Breslaw; but whether it will remain in his hands at the end of the present war, cannot yet be determined.

SINAI, a mountain of Asia, in Arabia Petraea, and in a peninsula, formed by the two arms of the Red-Sea. Here the law was given to Moses, for which reason the Mahometans have it in great veneration; and here the Christians have a monastery, which formerly contained a great number of monks; and there were a great number of little chapels and cells for hermits. The monastery is surrounded with a high wall, and those that go in and out, are let down, or drawn up in baskets. Lon. 42. 35. lat. 29. 0.

SINGAPORE, a promontory of Asia, in the E. Indies, and at the S. end of the peninsula of Malacca, opposite to the island of Sumatra, which, with the Malacca coast, form the strait of Singapore. Lon. 120. 0. lat. 1. 0.

* SIND, or SINDI, a province of Asia, and the most western of the Mogul's dominions, on the sea-coast. It is bounded on the N. by Buckor, on the E. by Jerusalem, and Soret, and on the W. by Persia. Laribundar is its sea-port, and is about 15 miles from the sea, seated on a branch of the river Sindi, which is capable of receiving ships of 200 tons. It is but a village of about 100 houses, which are built with crooked sticks and mud; but it has a large stone fort to protect the ships. Tatta is the capital town of this province, of which in its proper place. This province abounds in wheat, rice, pulse; and the river Sindi overflows all the low grounds, in April, May, and June, which leaves a fat silt, that always produces a plentiful crop. The inland parts produce salt-petre, sal-amoniack, borax, opoponax, assa foetida, bezoar, lapis lazuli, and raw-silk. They have also manufactories of cotton, and silk of various kinds; and they make fine cabinets, inlaid with ivory, and finely lackered. They also export great quantities of butter, clarified and wrapt up in duppas, made of the hides of cattle. Their religion is Mahometanism, but there are 10 Gentooes to one Mussulman, who have full toleration, and keep their fasts and feasts as formerly. The ladies wear hoops of ivory, on both their arms and legs, and when they die they are burnt with them. They have large black cattle, excellent mutton, and small hardy horses. Their wild game are deer, hares, antelopes, and foxes, which which they hunt with dogs, leopards, and a small fierce creature, called a shiah-gush. They have also a great number of wild-fowls, free for any body to shoot.

Russia, bounded on the N. by Biela, on the E. by the dutchy of Moscow, on the S. by that of Severia, and the palatinate of Meislaw, and the W. by the same palatinate, and by that of Witepsk. It is full of forests and mountains, and the capital town is of the same name.

SMYRNA, a sea-port town of Turkey, in Asia, and in Natolia, being one of the largest and richest cities of the Levant.
The goodness of the harbour has caused it to be rebuilt several times, after it had been destroyed by earthquakes. It is the rendezvous of merchants from almost all parts of the world, and the magazine of their merchandizes. It contains 15000 Turks, 10000 Greeks, 1800 Jews, 200 Armenians, and 200 Franks. The Turks have 19 mosques, the Greeks 2 churches, the Jews 3 synagogues, the Armenians one church, and the Latins 3 convents. There are three bishops, one Greek, the other Latin, and the third Armenian. The streets are more open, better paved, and the houses better built, than in other towns of the continent. The street of the Franks is the finest in Smyrna, and lies all along the harbour. It is 8 days journey from Constantinople by land, 25 days from Aleppo by the caravans, 6 from Cognia, 7 from Cataya, and 6 from Satalia.

There are many merchants settle here, from most countries in Europe. The caravans of Persia, often bring 2000 bales of silk in a year, besides drugs, and cloths. The other commodities brought here, are thread made of goats hair, cotton-yarn, cotton in bags, nut-galls, wax, scammony, rhubarb, opium, aloes, tutty, galbanum, gum-arabic, gum-tragacanth, gum-ammoniac, frankincense, zedoary, and all sorts of carpets.
All the trade passes through the hands of the Jews, and they seem to have better capacities for trade than other merchants. The English and Dutch factors have Protestant chapels, and taverns are as open here as in Europe. The fortifications consist in a fort, a castle, a mountain, and an old citadel. It is feated at the bottom of a large bay, 183

SOLEURE, or SOLOTHURN, an ancient, large, handsome, and strong town of Switzerland, and capital of a canton of the same name. It is divided into two parts by the river Aar, which communicate by a bridge. The streets are large, and neat, and the publick buildings are handsome. It is very well fortified, and surrounded with deep ditches, covered ways, good ramparts, and considerable advanced works. The cathedral, and the Jesuits college, whose front was built at the expence of Lewis XIV. are superb structures. The handsome gardens in the suburbs, and the country houses in the neighbourhood, render it a delightful place to live in. It has its great and little council, the former of which consists of 100 burgeses, and the latter of 36 senators. It is seated on a badwickes. The inhabitants are Roman-catholics, and the country abounds in all the necessaries of life.

• SOLEFARA, a mountain of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terra di Lavoro. It is surrounded with other mountains, in the form of an amphitheatre;

phitheatre; and there is a cavity above a mile in length, and breadth, which smokes in the day, and flames in the night. It brings in a considerable revenue to the King of the Two Sicilies, on account of the considerable quantity of the sulphur, and allum, got from thence; all the neighbouring fields are full of sulphur, and if you dig never so little a way in the ground, the soil will smoke. Near it is a small lake, full of black thick water, which seems always to be boiling.

● SOLIHULL, a town in Warwickshire, which formerly had a market, but is now disused. * SOMBRERO, an island of Asia, in the E. Indian Sea, 30 miles N. of Nicobar. The inhabitants are mild, timorous, and very obliging to strangers. The priests are drest much in the same manner as we paint the devil, by which they keep the inhabitants in awe. It is pretended there is a plant, which shrinks into the earth when touched, because its root is a worm, which lessens as the plant grows up; but this is doubtless a fable.

SOMELPOUR, a town of Asia, in the E. Indies, and in the kingdom of Bengal, on the river Goel; near it there are fine diamonds, supposed to be washed down from the mountains of Golconda. It is 90 miles from Hugely.

SOMERSETSHIRE, an English county, 56 miles in length, and 28 in breadth, and is bounded on the N. and N. W. by the Brittol channel, and Gloucestershire, on the W. by Devonshire, on the S. by Dorsetshire, and on the E. by Wiltshire. It contains 56000 houses, 30000 inhabitants, 385 parishes, 35 market towns, and sends 18 members to parliament. The principal rivers are the Severn, which is here called a fea; the Avon, the Tor, the Parret, the Tone, the Frome, and the Ex, besides several other lesser streams. The air is generally very good, unless in the marshy parts, which are subject to agues. The soil is very fertile, except on the hills. There are a great number of hills, and mountains, which render the country uneven, except in the lower parts, which are full of bogs. It has several woollen manufactories, and Bristol is the capital town.

SOMERTON, a town of Somersetshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and four fairs, on Tuesday in Passion week, three weeks after, six weeks after, and nine weeks after, for all sort of cattle. It was formerly a considerable place, and the county took its name from hence. It is at present pretty large, but poor, though the market is considerable for corn, provision, sheep, and cattle. It is 13 miles S. of Wells, 32 S. of Bristol, and 129 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 45. lat. 51. 7.

SOULLANS, a town of France, in Poitou, and in the election of Sables d'Olonne.

SOUND, a strait between Sweden and Denmark, through which ships usually sail from the ocean into the Baltick Sea. It is about 4 miles broad, and here the Danes take toll of all merchant ships that pass into the Baltick.

* SOUPROSE, a town of France in Gascony, and in the diocese of Dax, seated in a morafs near the river Adour.

* SUR, or SOUR, a town of Turkey, in Asia, and in Syria, seated on the sea-side with an harbour. It was here that the famous city of Tyre was placed, but there is now nothing remains of it but ruins. Long. 5. 4. 30. lat. 33. 0.

SURRE, or SURF, a river of the Netherlands, which runs from E. to W. thro' Luxemburg, and falls into the river Moselle a little above Triers.

* SOURFEZ, a town of France, in Languedoc, and in the diocese of Lavour, with a Benedictine abbey.

* SOUSE, or SUZA, a strong town of Africa, in the kingdom of Tunis, and capital of a province of the same name; with a castle and a good harbour. The governor of the province resides here, and it is a place of some trade. It is seated on a rock near the sea. 65 miles S. E. of Tunis, and 175 S. W. of Bona. Lon. 28. 50. lat. 36. 0.

* SOUTERRAINS, a town of France, in Limosin, and in the election of Limoges, five miles from that city.

SOUTHAM, a town of Warwickshire, with a market on Mondays, and one fair, on July 10, for hories, cows, and sheep. It is seated in a fertile soil, and has a considerable market for cattle, though it is but an indifferent town. It is 13 miles S. of Coventry, 37 N. of Oxford, and

75 N. W. of London. Lon. 16. 19. lat. 52. 15.

SOUTHAMPTON, a sea-port town of Hampshire, with three markets on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, and two fairs, on April 25, and Trinity Monday, for hories, cattle, and leather. It is commodiously seated on an arm of the sea; and has keys for the unloading of merchandizes, which renders it a place of good trade, and is well inhabited by merchants and shopkeepers. It is large and well built, containing five parish churches, and an hospital called God's house. It is surrounded by strong walls and a double ditch, with seven gates, and several watch towers; it had a strong castle to defend the harbour, now in ruins. It is a corporation town and county of itself, with the title of an earldom, and sends two members to parliament. It is 25 miles E. by S. of Salisbury, 12 S. of Winchester, and 78 W. S. W. of London. Lon. 16. 5. lat. 50. 55.

* SOUTH-BOURNE, a village in Suffex, with one fair, on March 12, for pedlar ware.

 • SOUTH-REPRO, a village in Norfolk, with one fair, on July 25, for cattle, horses, and petty chapmen.
SOUTHWARK, a town of Surry, part of which now belongs to the city of London, and the whole is reckoned a suburb thereto, though it sends two members of parliament on its own account. The principal street runs from London-bridge to St. George's church; besides which there are three others, and two famous hospitals, namely, St. Thomas's and Guy's which are seated in that part called the borough. There are also two prisons for debt, the Kings-bench and the Marshalsea, and one for criminals, called the New-Goal. The famous bridge which joins Southwark to London, and so much cried up on account of the houses, upon it, is now greatly altered, the houses being taken down which rendered the passage over it very incommodious.
 • SOUTH-WATER, a village in Suffex, with one fair, July 8, for pedlars ware.
SOUTHWELL, a town in Nottinghamshire, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair on Whit-Monday, for horses, horned cattle, sheep, hogs and merchandises. It is an ancient place, and has a collegiate church, but is not very large. It is 10 miles E. of Nottingham, and 114 N. N. W. by N. of London. Lon. 15. 39. lat. 53. 6.
 • SOUTH-WICK, a village in Hampshire, with one fair, on April 5, for horses and toys.

SOUTHWOULD, a sea-port town of Suffolk, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs on Trinity-Monday and Bartholomew-day, which last two days each for toys. It is commonly called Sowld, and is a pretty well built place, seated on a pleasant cliff on the sea-coast; and has a harbour to the South, with a river and a draw-bridge on the West. It is a corporation, has a handsome church with a high steeple; and has some trade with small vessels to Ireland. It is strongly situated, being almost surrounded with water, especially at every high tide. It has a corporation and a recorder, with the liberty of chusing bailiffs, &c. within themselves. Besides the church, it has a dissenting meeting, and about 200 tolerable good houses, which form one pretty broad street not paved. For the security of the port, there are two batteries of four guns each. The British herring fishery being established here, is of some advantage to the town, which is but poor. Near this place stood the city of Dunwich, which were 52 places of worship, but there are now only a few houses, though it sends two members to parliament. It is 20 miles S. of Yarmouth, 32 S. E. of Ipswich, and 106 S. E. of London. Lon. 19. 38. lat. 52. 28.

SOVERAY, a town of France, in Lyonnais, and in the territory of Bourbonnois. It is seated on the rivulet Quesne, 50 miles S. E. of Bourges, and 107 S. of Paris. Lon. 20. 52. lat. 46. 32.
SPA, or SPAW, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and in the bishopric of Liege. It contains about 300 houses, and is famous for its mineral waters known all over Europe. The inhabitants are very civil to strangers, and are ready to do them all manner of good offices, but then they must be paid for their labour. It is seated in a valley, surrounded with mountains. That called the Old Spaw consists of miserable cottages, and is properly nothing but the suburb to the other. The inhabitants send out swarms of children, when strangers arrive to get what they can by begging. The houses of the New Spaw are all wood, old fashioned, dark and little, and yet it is affirmed they can make 1200 beds for strangers. The church of the capuchins and the parish church are both seated upon eminences, and look very well at a distance. The Inn called the Court of London is very large, the best in the place, and is most frequented. The name of the five principal wells are Pouchon, Geronfeld, Saviniere, Watzpotz, and Tunnellet. The inhabitants are employed in making pretty toys and other little things for strangers. Near it there are excellent fish and good game, to accommodate those that come to the wells. It is 17 miles S. E. of Liege. Lon. 23. 25. lat. 50. 32.
SPAIN, a considerable kingdom of Europe. It is bounded by the sea on the S. and N. on the W. by Portugal and the ocean, and on the N. E. by the Pyrenean mountains which separates it from France. The air is generally hot, which obliges the inhabitants to lie down after dinner, and sit up late at nights. It rains but very seldom, and sometimes there is no cloud to be seen for months together. There are a great number of mountains which are distinguished in the maps, by the name of Sierra, several of those are very high and covered with snow; and yet the valleys are seldom rendered very cold thereby. No travellers can ride any great way without passing one of these mountains, and therefore the inhabitants make use of mules as being surer footed. Some parts will not bear wheat, and in others the inhabitants are too idle to till the ground; for which reason it is not very plentiful. The inhabitants do not live much upon fish in the inland parts, because the rivers contain very few. They feed no great number of cattle, for which reason butter is very scarce, and obliges them to make use of oil in its stead. The wines of Spain are generally very good, but they are most drank in other countries, because the Spaniards are not fond of tippling. The fruits are very fine, and they have apples, pears, chestnuts, hazel-nuts, olives, figs, pomegranates, oranges, citrons, lemons, capers, and the like. They have salt enough for their own use. a few sugar canes, and some saffron. In some of the mountains there are precious stones, marble, alum, sulphur, and other minerals; particularly in Biscay, the iron mines are inexhaustible. In the Pyrenees, there are gold and silver, if it was worth their while to seek after them. There are few wild beasts in the forests, except bears. They have great numbers of sheep, which yield the finest wool in Europe, which is greatly valued in other countries. However, the Spaniards have not many woollen manufactures. The Spanish horses are very good, particularly those of Andalusia and Asturias. Also in Andalusia, there is a race of wild bulls, which they make use of in their bull-fights. In Biscay there are little hogs, which the ladies are so fond of, that they carry them about like lap-dogs. The principal rivers are five, the Tajo, the Douro, or Duero, the Guadiana, the Guadalquivir, and the Ebro; besides which, there are many of less note, over which there are 700 bridges. Several nations have made incursions into Spain at different times; but the most remarkable is that of the Saracens, or Moors, who invaded this country in the eighth century, and overrun all parts of it. But the Christians having recovered their rights by little and little, they divided it into five kingdoms, namely, that of Navarre, near the Pyrenees; that of Castile, which comprehended Leon, Asturias, Galicia, Estramadura, and Andalusia; that of Arragon, which contained Biscay, Catalonia, Valencia, Mercia, and the islands of Majorca and Minorca; that of Portugal, to which the kingdom of Algarve was joined; and, lastly, that of Granada, which the Moors kept possession of till 1492. Spain is but thinly peopled, which may be attributed to the expulsion of the Moors, particularly in 1563, and 1610; at both which times it is pretended a million of those people were drove out of the kingdom. Besides that, for these two centuries, there have been great numbers of the best inhabitants sent to people the Spanish dominions in America. Add to these the vast number of religious houses; inasmuch that the general of the dominicans, has boasted that he could bring an army of 200000 monks of his order into the field, without any great loss of them in the convents. Likewise it may be farther observed, that great numbers of the men have an aversion to marriage, and chuse rather to spend their lives in debauchery; besides, the Spanish women do not bear children after they are thirty years of age. They are very moderate in their eating, and they can make a meal of olives, a salad, a little garlick, or a few roots. They seldom invite their friends to dinner, and the women in general are very bad cooks. The men dine by themselves, and their wives and children eat together. The general vice of the nation is pride and haughtiness, and the very peasants keep genealogies of their families, like the Welch; for this reason they have gravity in their looks, and when they walk. This disposition renders them very indolent; inasmuch that there are above 1000 French at Madrid, who grow rich by the manufactures they have established there. Besides, there are a great number that come out of Languedoc and other parts, to get in their harvest for them; and who carry great quantities of small merchandises to sell. The women are generally very lean, and very amorous; they have black eyes, flat bosoms, little feet, and long sits, they sit on carpets, in the manner of taylors, as well as at home; which custom they have derived from the Moors. They are very much addicted to painting, and they are kept very much at home, through the jealousy of their husbands. Neither men nor women often change the fashion of their garments, and the men generally wear their own hair, without powder, and they have long swords by their sides.

 They generally used to be dressed in black; but since they have had a king from France, many of them imitate the French fashions, especially in the politest towns. The famous Mr. Willoughby, who travelled through Spain, on purpose to make observations, says, that they were not so abstemious as many people suppose, especially when they eat at another man's cost; that though many of them pinch their bellies, and fare hardly, it is owing to their indolence, which makes them poor. They long and ask for every thing they see, and are impertinently inquisitive. They ride altogether upon mules, carrying their portmanteaus before them, for fear they should be lost. With regard to their religion, they are the strictest Papiſts in the world, and yet for fornication and impurity, they are the worst nation in Europe. At the inns, there are a great number of common women, whose behaviour is very impudent, and immodest. They are so lazy in their shops, that they will say they have not a commodity, rather than take pains to look for it; for this reason, the best shops are kept by Frenchmen, and they are the best workmen, in all manner of businesſes; infomuch, that some have said, that if all the Frenchmen were recalled from Spain, the Spaniards would be starved to death. Spain is an absolute monarchy, and in Madrid there are feveral courts of justice, who determine all affairs that come before them; but they have each their distinct provinces, being eight in all. There is also a privy-council called the Junto, composed of the king's favourites. There are four viceroys in Spain, namely those of Arragon, Navarre, Valencia, and Catalonia; for the other provinces have only governors. The king has also five viceroys, and 55 governors in America, who are changed every five years. The revenue of the king is almost immense, but there is no knowing exactly what it amounts to. With regard to the church, there are 8 archbishopsricks, and 44 bishopricks, who have all large revenues; and the king disposes of all ec-cleſiaſtical offices. The inquisition was set up in 1477, and there are now 14 tribunals, in as many different places.

 They have a great number of offices belonging to them, besides 20000 spies which they employ. This inquisition was first designed against the Moors; but is now extended to Jews and here-ticks, and it is said there are still many of the former, in high offices about the court, notwithstanding all their vige-lance. The wild bulls already mentioned are a sort of buffaloes, and are chiefly made use of at Madrid; though there are bull-fights sometimes at other places.
 The king and all the court are present at these fights, and all the fronts of the houses are adorned with tapeſtry; likewise the balconies are taken up, by the principal ladies in the kingdom, who appear in their richest habits and jewels.
 Those that enter the lists with the bulls are called Torreadores, and are all knights, who are armed with nothing but a lance, and cannot make use of their swords, but when they are near the bulls; when one of them falls, the populace run immediately, and cut him in pieces with their swords. Some say the affairs of the kingdom are managed with greater oeconomy, since they have had a king from France; that the revenue is greatly improved; and that their navy is in a much better condition, they now being able to fit out a considerable fleet of men of war. Besides his territories in Europe, he possesses the best part of America, and is master of many rich islands in the S.
 Seas; and particularly the Philippines, from whence they import the rich mer-chandizes of the E. Indies. He also possesses several places in Africa, particularly Ceuta and Oran.

sheep and horses. It is a thoroughfare, with good accommodations for travellers, and is a corporation, which sends two members to parliament. It is 9 miles N. W. of Winchester, and 69 W. by S. of London. Lon. 16. 2. lat. 51. 12.

STOCKHOLM, the capital city of Sweden, and the usual residence of the kings of that country. It is seated near the Lake Meler, and comprehends 6 small islands, which are joined together by wooden bridges. In the suburb called Nordermalm, there is a mountain named Brunnberg, which is very high; on whose top there is a tower and a bell, which is rung when any fire happens. The Lake Meler, which is to the W. supplies the inhabitants with good water. This city contains superb palaces, whose roofs are covered with copper; and there have been several rocks blown up, to render it larger and more regular: but the suburbs are in the antique taste. The royal palace, or castle, was reduced to ashes in 1697; but it has been rebuilt much more magnificent than it was before: several hundred houses were burnt in one of the suburbs, in 1723. The arsenal is very famous, and the harbour is so large, that it will contain 1000 ships, which may there ride in safety; but that which is very troublesome is, that when the vessels come from the N. they are obliged before they can enter, to pass a long way between rocks, which render it very difficult for them to get in; besides which, it is frozen up four months in the year. There are about 30000 inhabitants, who carry on a trade in copper, iron, and naval stores. In 1739, there was an academy of sciences established here; as also of painting and sculpture, founded by Count Tessin. It is 200 miles N. E. of Copenhagen, 625 N. W. of Vienna, 625 W. of Moscow, 750 N. E. of Paris, 900 N. E. of London, and 1200 N. W. of Constantinople. Lon. 37. 5. lat. 59. 20.

STONE-HENGE, a most remarkable heap of stones, lying upon Salisbury plain, 6 miles N. of Salisbury. It consists of feveral very large stones, placed one upon another, and is supposed to have been a temple of the ancient Druids; and the rather because it is in a circular form, and seems to have been much more regular than it appears to be at present. It has puzzled a great many diligent inquirers, to account for the laying of these enormous stones one upon another; for they are so heavy, that it is thought no artifice now known, is sufficient to have raised those that lie across, to that height.
STONE-HIVE, a town of Scotland, in the shire of Mearns, with a good harbour, secured by a stone-pier. Near it was the famous castle of Dunnotyr, seated on a rock near the shore. It was formerly the residence of the hereditary Earl Marshal of Scotland, but is now in ruins.
 * STONE-HOUSE, a village in Cloucestershire, with two fairs, on May 1, and December 29, for cattle and cheefe.
STONY-STRAFORD, a town of Buckinghamshire, with a market on Fridays, and four fairs, on April 20, August 2, October 10, and November 12, for cattle. It is seated on the river Ouse, and is an ancient place, standing on the Roman highway, called Watling street.

 isle of Lewis, and one of the western islands. It has a harbour called Loch-Stornway, on the E. side of the island.
 * STORRINGTON, a village in Suffex, with two fairs, on May 12, for cattle and horses, and November 22, for cattle and pedlars ware.
STORTFORD, a town of Hertfordshire, with a market on Thursdays, and three fairs, on Holy-Thursday, Thursday after Trinity-Sunday, and October 10, for horses and cattle. It is called by some bishops Stortford, and is seated on the side of a hill, being a large, handsome, and well frequented town, with several good inns. On the E. side there are the ruins of a castle, which stood on an artificial mount. It is 12 miles N. E. of Hertford, and 29 N. of London. Lon.

STOUR, the name of several small rivers in England.
STOURBRIDGE, or STURBRIDGE, a town in Worcestershire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on March 29, for horses and cattle, and on September 8, for all sorts of cattle and sheep.
 It is seated on the river Stour, in a flat, over which there is a bridge, from whence it has its name. It is a pretty good town, and is noted for its glass-houses. It has a good free school, in which there is a library, and is 24 miles N. of Worcester, and 117 N. W.
 of London. Lon. 15. 29. lat. 52. 30.
STOURBRIDGE, or STURBICH, the name of a field near Cambridge, noted for its famous fair kept annually, on the 7th of September, and which continues a fortnight. There are a great many tradef-men go thither from London, as well as from other parts; and the commodities are horses, hops, iron, wool, leather, cheese, and many other things.

STOW, a town of Gloucester, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on May 12, for horses, cows, sheep and cheese; and on October 24, for hops, faddlers, shoemakers, and ironmonger's ware. Some call it Stow on the Would, and it is not only seated on a bleak hill, but is destitute of wood and water. It contains about 200 houses, and is 8 miles S. by W. of Camden, 67 N. by E. of Salisbury, and 77 W. by N. of London. Lon. 15. 50. lat. 51. 50.

STOW, a seat of lord-viscount Cobham, in Buckinghamshire. It is 2 miles from Buckingham, where there are the finest gardens in England, which are adorned with busts, statues, obelisks, pavilions, and temples. The statues and busts are those of several famous men, ancient and modern. It now belongs to earl Temple.

* STOWBRIDGE, a village in Norfolk, with one fair, on Saturday in Whitfun-week, which is considerable, for horses.

STOWEY, a town in Somersetshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and one fair on September 7, for cattle and toys. It is 22 miles W. of Wells, 146 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 23. lat. 51. 14.

STOWMARKET, a town of Suffolk, so called, to distinguish it from towns of the same name, in other parts of this country. It has a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on July 10, for shop-goods and toys; and on August 12, for sheep and cattle. It is seated between the branches of the rivers Gyppe or Orwell, upon a rising ground in the center of the county; and is a large handsome place, having a large church dedicated to St. Peter the Apostle, and the tower and spire are 120 feet high, in which are 8 tuneable bells. It has a Presbyterian meeting, and about 400 pretty good houses. The streets are tolerable wide, but not paved; and the town is very pleasant. Its cherries are thought to be the finest in England, and it has a large manufactory of woollen-stuffs. It is 12 miles N. W. of Ipswich, 13 E. by S. of St. Edmundsbury, and 73 N. N. E. of London. Lon. 16. 35. lat. 52. 20.

STRADELLA, a town of Italy, in the dutchy of Milan, and in the Pavese. It is a passage of great importance, which is defended by a castle. It is seated on the river Verfa, near the Po, and is 10 miles S. E. of Paris, 22 S. E. of Milan, and 47 N. W. of Parma. Lon. 16. 47. lat. 45. 5.

STRALÉN, a town of the Netherlands, in the upper quarter of Guelderland, whose fortifications were demolished by the French, in 1672. It is 5 miles S. W. of Gueldres, and 5 N. E. of Venlo. Lon. 23. 52. lat. 51. 27.

STRALSUND, a strong and rich sea-port town of Germany, in Hither Pomerania, and was formerly an important trading place. In 1678 it was forced to surrender to the Elector of Brandenburg, after 1800 houses had been burnt to ashes, in one night's time. After this the Swedes defended this place to the last extremity; and king Charles XII. in 1714, came hither after his return out of Turkey. But the crown of Sweden not being able to hold out, against five great powers that were in league against it, it was forced to submit in 1715. In 1720, it was rendered back to Sweden, but in a very poor condition. It is almost surrounded by the sea, and the Lake Francen, and has a harbour which is separated from the isle of Rugen, by a narrow strait. It is 15 miles N. W. of Grippwald, 70 N. by W. of Stetin, and 32 N. E. of Gustrow. Lon. 31. 12. lat. 54. 23.

STRANGFORD, a town of Ireland, in the county of Down, and province of Ulster; it is 9 miles E. of Down. Lon. 11. 55. lat. 54. 24.

STRANRAVER, a town of Scotland, in the shire of Galloway, 8 miles N. W. of Glenluce. Lon. 12. 15. lat. 54. 25.

STRASBURG, an ancient, large, handsome, populous, and strong town of France, in Alsace. It contains about 200 streets, part of which are very narrow, and most of the houses are built after the ancient taste. However, there are a great number of handsome buildings, such as the hotel of the Marshal of France, who is commander of the city; the hotel of the Cardinal of Rouen, the bishop's palace, the Jesuits college, the royal hospital, the hotel of Hesse Darmstadt, the arsenal, the town-house, and the cathedral. It has a wooden bridge over the Rhine, which is thought to be one of the finest in Europe; as is likewise the cathedral church, whose tower is the handfomest in Germany, and the clock is greatly admired by all travellers. Some look upon it as one of the wonders of the world, and the steeple is allowed clock not only shews the hours of the day, but the motion of the sun, moon and stars. Among other things there is an angel, which turns an hour glass every hour, and the twelve Apostles proclaim noon, by each of them striking a blow with a hammer on a bell. There is likewise a cock, which is a piece of clock-work, that crows every hour.

There are 700 steps up to the tower, or steeple, it being 500 feet high. It was a free and imperial city, but the king of France became master of it in 1681, and greatly augmented the fortifications, though before it had as many cannons as there are days in the year.
The inhabitants were formerly Protestants, and carried on a great trade ; but most of them have been obliged to embrace the Roman superstition, though there is a sort of toleration for them too. It is seated on the river Ill, which runs through it near the Rhine, and STRASBURG, a town of Regal Prussia, in Poland, and in Culm. It is a strong place, has a good castle, and is seated on the river Drigentz, 30 miles from Thorn ; as much from Plockzow, and somewhat more from Culm. It has been taken and retaken several times, in the war between the Swedes and Poles. Lon. 35. 58. lat. 33. 5.

• STRASBURG, a town of Germany, in Brandenburg, in the Ukraine Marche, and on the confines of Pomerania. It is 8 miles N. of the Lake Ucker.

• STRASBURG, a strong handsome town of Germany, in Lower Carinthia. It is seated on the river Gurck, 5 miles above the town of Gurck, and the bishop has a palace here, where he commonly resides.

STRATFORD, a town of Warwickshire, with a market on Thursdays, and three fairs, on May 14, September 25, and Thursday se'ennight after it, for cheese, hops, and cattle. It is seated on the N. side of the river Avon, over which there is a handsome stone bridge, supported by 13 great, and 6 small arches. It is a well built place, containing about 500 houses, and has a large church, with a chapel of ease, and an almshouse, and contains several good inns. It is 8 miles S. S. W. of Warwick, 19 S. S. W. of Coventry, 39 N. N. E. of Gloucester, and 98 N. W. of London. Lon. 15.

55. lat. 52. 16.

STRATHNAVER, the most northern county of Scotland, bounded on the N. by the ocean, on the E. by Cathness, on the S. by Sutherland, and on the W. partly by Ross, and partly by the ocean.

STRATONICE, anciently so called, but afterwards Adrianople, now a town of Caria, in Asiatic Turkey. There was once a famous temple dedicated to Jupiter, in which the States of Caria held their publick assemblies ; but it is now in ruins.

STRATTON, a town in Cornwall, with a market on Tuesdays, and three fairs, on May 19, November 8, and December 11, for horses, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops. It is seated between two rivulets, which here unite, and fall into the sea at a small distance. The chief riches of the inhabitants rise from the gardens and orchards, but more especially garlick. It is 18 miles N. W. of Launceston, and 211 W. by S. of London. Lon. 12. 40. lat. 51. 0.

STRAUBING, a town of Germany, in the circle of Bavaria, and capital of a territory of the same name. It is a large place, and its streets are broad, containing handsome churches and fine convents. It was taken by the Austrians in 1743, who demolished the fortifications the next year ; and it was rendered back in 1745. It is seated on the Danube, over which there is a bridge ; and it is 22 miles S. E. of Ratisbon, 40 N. W. of Passaw, and 65 N. E. of Munich. Lon. 30. 20. lat. 48. 48.

STRENG, or STRENGUES, a village of Sweden, in the province of Sudermania, or Sunderland, with a bishop's see, and a handsome college. King Charles IX. who died in 1611, is buried in the cathedral, with all his family. It is seated on the Lake Meler, 30 miles W. of Stockholm, and 35 S. W. of Upfal. Lon. 35. 15. lat. 59. 20.

* STRETTON-CHURCH, a village in Shropshire, with two fairs, on May 14, and September 24, for horned cattle, horses and sheep.

* STRONBERG, a town of Germany, in the bishoprick of Munster, and capital of a small district, which has the title of Burgraviate. It is 22 miles S. E. of Munster, and 20 N. W. of Paderborn.
Lon. 25. 55. lat. 51. 48.

STRONBOLI, the most northern of the islands

islands of Lipari, lying on the Tuscan Sea, towards the coast of Sicily. There is a volcano here, which throws out fire and flames, and renders it uninhabitable. Lon. 32. 50. lat. 39. 14.

STRONGOLI, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is seated on a very high rock, surrounded with others, 3 miles from the sea, and 7 E. of St. Severino. Lon. 35. 1. lat. 39. 20.

STROUD, a town of Gloucestershire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on May 12, and August 21, for horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs. It is seated on a river of the same name, over which there is a bridge, on whose banks there are several fulling mills. The houses are generally built with stone, and many of the inhabitants are dyers. It is governed by a constable, and four tything-men; it has one church, and about 500 houses; but the streets are narrow, tho' mostly paved. There is a large manufactory of white broad-cloth in this town, and its neighbourhood. It is 11 miles S. of Gloucester, and 93 W. by N. of London. Lon. 15. 20. lat. 51. 40.

• STRENN, a town of Upper Hungary, remarkable for its hot baths, and for the mines of copper and silver that are found in a neighbouring mountain.

STELINGEN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and subject to the duke of Furstenburg, with a castle. It is seated near the frontiers of the canton of Schaffhausen, 35 miles W. of Constance. Lon. 25. 33. lat. 47. 45.

STUIWESSENBURG, a very strong town of Lower Hungary, and capital of Eker-Redegowar. It had the title of regalis, or royal; because formerly the kings were crowned and buried here. It has been several times taken and retaken by the Imperialists, and has been in the hands of the house of Austria ever since 1688. It is seated on the river Ractza, 30 miles S. W. of Buda, 83 S. by E. of Vienna, and 162 N. by W. of Belgrade. Lon. 36. 0. lat. 47. 10.

STURMSEPER, a town in Dorsetshire, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on May 12, and October 24, for cattle and toys. It is seated on the river Stour, over which there is a handsome stone bridge, in a rich vale; however, it is not a rich place, remarkable for the ruins of an ancient castle near it, which was the seat of the W. Saxon kings. It is 22 miles N. of Dorchester, and 122 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 8. lat. 50. 55.

STRURGARD, a handsome populous town of Germany, in the circle of Silesia, and capital of the duchy of Wirttemberg. It is surrounded with walls and ditches, but stands so low, that it is impossible to make it a strong place. There is an ancient castle, with a rich cabinet of curiosities, and on the side there are very handsome gardens. The streets are narrow in the town, and the houses are generally of wood; but there are fine houses, and wide straight streets, in one of the suburbs. Here are the duke's palace, an orphan-house, and a famous college. It is seated in a plain among mountains, near the river Neckar, 30 miles N. of Baden, 42 S. E. of Heidelberg, 27 N. W. of Ulm, and 52 N. E. of Strasburg. Lon. 26. 45. lat. 48. 50.

SUABIA, a circle of Germany, bounded on the N. by the circle of Franconia, and that of the Lower Rhine, on the W. by the circle of the Lower Rhine and Alsace, on the S. by Switzerland, and on the E. by the circle of Bavaria. It comprehends the duchies of Wirttemberg, or Wirttemberg, the margravate of Baden, the principality of Howen-Zollern, that of Ottingen, that of Mindelheim; the bishopricks of Augsburg, Constance, and Coire, with several fountains, abbays, and free towns, which see in their proper places.

SUANA, or SEVANA, a town of Italy, in Tuscany, and in the Siennese, with a bishop's see. It is seated on a high mountain, near the river Flora, 40 miles S. E. of Siena; but it is thinly peopled, on a count of its bad air. It is 30 miles S. W. of Orvieto, and 64 N. W. of Rome. Lon. 31. 43. lat. 42. 47.

• SUANES, a people that inhabit the mountains of Caucasus, between the Circassian Tartars, and the kingdoms of Iauetta and Circuel. They pretend to be Christians, and are the most civilized of these mountaineers. In the summer they come to work in Georgia, and return back at the beginning of winter.

* SUAQUEM, a town of Turkey, in Africa, and capital of a Beglerbeglick. It is seated on the Red-Sea, having a well frequented harbour, in a small island, and was once a very flourishing place, but is now gone to decay. Lon. 55. 6. lat. 19. 30.

* SUBBIACO,

● SUBBIACO, a town of Italy, in the campagna of Roms, and on the frontiers of Naples, with a castle. It is feated on the river Teverone, 33 miles E. of Rome.

● SUCKERFIELD, a village in Somers-setshire, with two fairs, on Friday before Holy-Thurday, and Wednesday after October 10, for cattle.

SUDBURY, a town of Suffolk, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on March 12, and July 10, for toys. It is feated on the river Stour, over which there is a handsome bridge into Essex.
It sends two members to parliament, and is governed by a mayor, seven aldermen, and twenty-four common council.
Here are three very ancient churches, in one of which is the skull of Sir Thomas Sudbury, who was beheaded in the time of Oliver Cromwell. There is here also a Presbyterian meeting-house. This town is supposed to have been formerly much larger than at present; it now now consists of about 900 houses, and about 5000 souls. The streets are but narrow, and paved only here and there.
Sir Thomas Sudbury had a fine feat here, which is now converted into a workhouse. In this town is a large manufactory of crapes and fays. It is 11 miles S. of St. Edmundsbury, and 56 S. E. of London. Lon. 13. 25. lat.
52. 6.

SUDER KOPING, a town of Sweden, in Ostrogothia. It is 10 miles S. of Norkoping, and 90 S. W. of Stockholm. Lon. 33. 35. lat. 58. 30.

SUDERMANIA, or SUNDERLAND, a province of Sweden, with the title of a dutchy, bounded on the N. by Upland and Westermania, on the E. by the peninsula of Tarin, on the S. by the Baltick Sea, and on the W. by Neria. It is about 62 miles in length, and 42 in breadth; and it is the most populous part of Sweden. It abounds in corn, and mines of divers metals; and Nikoping is the capital town.

SUEZ, a town of Africa, in Egypt, feated at the N. end of the W. gulph of the Red-Sea, called the Gulph of Suez, and has a castle and a harbour. It is separated from the Mediterranean-Sea by an isthmus 125 miles over, which joins Asia to Africa. It is furrounded by a fandy country, and is without water. It consists of about 200 houses, and is very much crowded with people, when the Turkish galleys arrive there. However, at other times it is almost deserted; and the harbour is too shallow to admit ships of great burthen. Some think it the ancient Pofidium, and others Ar-sinoe. It is 75 miles E. of Cairo. Lon.

51. 0. lat. 29. 40.

SUFFOLK, an English county, 50 miles in length, and 25 in breadth, and is bounded on the W. by Cambridgeshire, on the N. by Norfolk, on the S. by Essex, and on the E. by the German Ocean. It contains 34420 houses, 26520 inhabitants, 575 parishes, 28 market-towns, and sends 16 members to parliament. The air is generally wholesome, but the soil is various; on the sea-coast it is sandy, and there are several small hills, which however, yield hemp, pease, and rye. The inland parts are clayey, and more full of trees. The borders towards Essex are fit for pastures, and the N. W. produces corn of all sorts. There are manufactories of several kinds, particularly all sorts of broad-cloth, stuffs, and coarse linnen. The principal rivers are, the Little Ouse, the Waveney, the Stour, the Bruton, the Orwell, or Gippe, the Deben, the Ore, and the Blyth. Ipswich and St. Edmundsbury are the principal towns.

* SUGELMESSA, or SEGELMESSA, a province of Africa, in Barbary, and in Rile-dulgerid. It is bounded on the W. by the province of Dara, on the E. by Retel, on the S. by the Kingdom of Taflet, and on the N. by Mount Atlas. It is about 100 miles in length, and the capital is of the same name. It abounds in dates, and has corn and other fruits, besides mines of iron, lead, and antimony. It is feated in a plain, on the river Ziz.
The government is in the form of a commonwealth. Lon. 16. 6. lat. 30.

SULLY, a town of France, in Orleansois, with the title of a dutchy. It is feated on the river Loire, 20 miles S. of Orleans. Lon. 20. 1. lat. 47. 45.

SULMONA, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Hither Abruzzo, with the title of a principality. It is remarkable for being the birth place of Ovid, and it is feated on the river Sora, 22 miles S. W. of Chieti.
Lon. 31. 38. lat. 42. 3.

* SULTANIA, a considerable town of Asia, in Persia, and in Irac Agemi, on the frontiers of Aderbizan. Here is a very magnificent mosque, which contains the tomb of Sultan Chodabend. It is feated on a large plain, 22 5 miles N. W. of Ifpahan, and 50 N. W. of Casbin. Lon. 69. 30. lat. 36. 26.

SULTSBACH, a town of Germany, in the palatinate of Bavaria, and near the borders of Franconia. It is a handsome place, has a fine castle, and belongs to the duke of Neuburg-Sultsbach, who is now the Elector Palatine. Lon. 29. 35. lat. 49. 30. It is 5 miles N. W. of Amberg, and 32 N. of Ratisbon.

• SULTZBURG, a town of Germany, in Brisgaw, belonging to the marquisate of Baden-Dourlac, where there is a handsome palace. It is feated in a territory fertile in good wine, 8 miles S. W. of Fribourg. Lon. 25. 15. lat. 47. 54.

SUMATRA, an island of the E. Indian Sea, and one of the three largest of the Sunda islands, lying to the W. of the peninsula of Malacca, and the island of Borneo; and it is separated from that of Java, by the strait of Sunda. It is about 750 miles in length, and 175 in breadth. This island lies nearly under the equator, and the low grounds near the sea-coast are overflowed with water, which renders it very unhealthy. Here the natives generally build their houses upon posts, to secure them from the yearly inundations. The English have several forts and factories on the W. coast, the chief of which is Bencoolen, which is now built 5 miles up the country, the place where it stood formerly being very unwholesome; and they have given it the name of Marlborough Fort. The chief commodities exported from hence are, pepper, canes, and gold dust. The chief grain here, as in most of these parts, is rice; and they have also sugar, plantains, pine-apples, cocoa-nuts, limes, citrons, oranges, melons, and pomegranates. Achin, or Atcheen, is the most remarkable place for trade, and lies at the N. W. end of the island; elephants are very plentiful here, and consequently their teeth, which are brought up by the merchants of Suia. The inhabitants on the sea-coast are chiefly Mahometans; but those in the inland country are pagans, whose partiaular worship is not certainly known. They are all of a black complexion, with long hair, and they have not the best character in the world for honesty. Lon. from 110. 0. to 121. 0. lat. N. from 5. 30. to lat. S. 5. 30.

• SUMBI, a province of Africa, in the kingdom of Angola, lying in about 11

deg. of S. lat. The inhabitants who live upon the coast are strong, large, and very superstitious; but the inland parts are very little known.

• SUMER-COURT, a village in Cornwall, with two fairs, on Holy-Thurday, and September 14, for horses, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops.

SUMEREIN, an open town of Lower Hungary, feated in the island of Schiut, made by the river Danube, and is subject to the house of Austria. It is 10 miles S. of Presburg. Lon. 35. 12. lat. 48. 7.

SUNDA ISLANDS lie in the E. Indian Sea, near the straits of Sunda. The chief of these are Bornia, Java, and Sumatra; which see.

SUNDERBURG, a town of Denmark, in the island of Alfen, with the title of a dutchy, and a castle. It is feated on a strait, called Sunderburger-Sund, 13 miles E. of Flensburg, and 17 S. E. of Apenrad. Lon. 27. 45. lat. 54. 58.

SUNDERLAND. See SUDERMANIA.

SUNDERLAND, a sea-port town of Durham, with a market on Fridays, but no fairs. It is feated on the sea-shore, at the mouth of the river Wyer, and is remarkable for its great trade in sea-coal. It is 13 miles N. N. E. of Durham, 8 S. E. of Newcastle, and 264 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 35. lat. 54. 52.

• SUNDI, a province of Africa, in Congo, which lies along the river Zaire. It is well watered by rivers, which render it extremely fertile, and in the mountains there are mines of several metals. The capital town is of the same name. Lon. 35. 30. lat. S. 4. 50.

SUNNEBURG, a town of Germany, in Upper Saxony, in the marche of Brandenburg, and in the territory of Sternberg. Of late its condition has been mending every year, and it is now in a flourishing state, with a very superb castle. It is feated on the river Darta, 50 miles E. of Berlin. Lon. 32. 45. lat. 52. 38.

SUNTGAW, or SUNTGOW, a territory of Germany, in the circle of the Upper Rhine, bounded on the N. by the river Rhine, on the E. by the Rhine, and the canton of Basle, on the S. by Franche Comté, and Porentru, and the W. by Lorrain. It is subject to France.

SURAT, a sea-port town of Asia, in the province of Guzurat, and in the peninsula on this side the Ganges. It was built in the year 1660, on the banks of the river Tapa, the then mart town being in another place; and when the English removed from it to this, others followed their example; and in a few years it became a large place, and is now said to have 200000 inhabitants.
Its trade is now very considerable; for from 1690 to 1705, the revenues arising from the custom-house, and other things, amounted to 162500 pounds. In this city there are as many different religions as in Amsterdam; for there are Mahometans of several sects, and many sorts of Gentoes, of which the Banyans are most numerous. These are either merchants, bankers, brokers, accountants, collectors, or surveyors; but there are very few handicraftsmen, except taylors and barbers. It is said there are 85 different sects among them, who never eat with each other. There are also Talapoins, who are great enemies to the Papists, and preach up morality as the best guide of human life. They live upon alms, seldom speak in the streets, and extend their charity even to birds and beasts; but it would be endless to take notice of all their different religions, and different ceremonies, only we must not forget the Perfecs, of which there are great numbers about Surat, and the adjacent countries. They were banished from Persia in the seventh century, because they would not change their religion. They never marry into any other religion, which keeps their complexion as almost as fair as that of the Europeans. Besides these, there are Jews and Armenian Christians, who are all great merchants. The fields about Surat are all plain, and the soil is fertile, except towards the sea, which is sandy and barren. All sorts of provisions are very cheap, and they have as good wheat as in Europe. They have various sorts of fowls, and plenty of antelopes in their forests, though but few deer. There are no fine buildings, but many of the houses are large; and there are caravan-series and mosques. The French have a little church near the old English factory, where they keep a few Capuchins, who practise surgery without a reward.
The English and Dutch agents make good figures here, and they always have a good understanding with the officers of state and justice. The affairs of the E. India company are managed by a president and council; and the former lives in great splendor. The Mahometan women are always veiled when they appear abroad, and their drefs is much the same as the men. The Gentoo women are bare faced, and their legs are bare up to the knee. They have feveral gold and silver rings on their noses, ears, legs, and toes. Surat, together with the citadel, was taken by the English, in April 1759, and afterwards ceded to them by the great Mogul. It is 160 miles N. of Bombay, as many S. of Cumbaya, and 375 S. W. of Agia. Lon.

90. 0. lat. 21. 10.

SURINAM, a country of S. America, in Terra Firma, in Guiana, and capital of the Dutch settlements there. It extends about 75 miles along the river of Surinnam, and it abounds in fruits, fish, game, and singular animals of different kinds.
Particularly, they have sugar, cotton, tobacco, gums, and dying woods. The woods are full of monkeys, and it is said there are serpents 30 feet long. The capital town is of the same name. Lon.
321. 35. lat. 6. 30.

* SURINOGA, a large trading town of Asia, in Japan, and in the island of Niphon. It is capital of a province of the same name, with a castle, where the emperors formerly resided. Lon. 156.
40. lat. 39. 30.

SURRY, an English county, 36 miles in length, 23 in breadth, and is bounded on the E. by Kent, on the S. by Suffex, on the W. by Berkshire, and on the N. by Middlesex. It contains 34220 houses, 205322 inhabitants, 140 parishes, and 11 market towns, and sends 14 members to parliament. The air is generally good, wholesome, and temperate. But the soil is different in different places, the middle being barren and full of heaths; but in other parts the soil is fertile and good. The principal rivers are the Thames, the Way, the Mole, and the Wandel. The principal towns are, Guilford and Kingiton, the alizes being kept sometimes at one place, and sometimes at the other.

* SURSEA, a handsome town of Switzerland, in the canton of Lucern, seated on a small lake, formed by the river Sar, 5 miles S. of Lucern; it enjoys handsome privileges.

SUS, a kingdom or province of Africa, belonging to Morocco, bounded on the W. by the ocean, on the N. by mount Atlas, on the E. by Gefula, and on the S. by the sands of Numidia and Sus. Tarradant is the capital town. It is a flat country, most of which abounds in corn, sugar-canes, and dates. In the mountainous part the inhabitants are entirely free, and are governed by their own chiefs.

SUSA, an ancient and strong town of Italy, in Piedmont, and capital of the marquifate of Susa, with a fort. There is also a rich convent, called the abbey of St. Just, and a triumphal arch erected to the honour of Augustus Cæsar. It is seated on the river Doira, among pleasant mountains and hills, and is called the key of Italy; because it is the principal passage out of France into Italy. It is 30 miles N. W. of Turin, 22 N. W. of Pignerol, and 25 N. E. of Brianzon. Lon. 24. 42. lat. 45. 6. It was taken by the French in 1704, but was rendered back to the duke of Savoy in 1707.

SUSPAL, a town of the Russian empire, and capital of a dutchy of the same name, with an archbishop's see. It is built with wood, as are most towns in these parts. It is seated on the river Cisma, 80 miles N. E. of Moscow. Lon. 59. 40. lat. 56. 6.

SUSSEX, an English county, 80 miles in length, 24 in breadth, and is bounded on the S. by the British channel, on the W. by Hampshire, on the N. by Surrey, and on the N. E. by Kent. It contains 21540 houses, 120240 inhabitants, 372 parishes, 17 market-towns, and sends 20 members to parliament. The air is often thick and foggy, and yet not unwholesome, unless it be in the low marshy lands. The soil in the middle is rich and fruitful, which renders the roads deep and dirty in the winter. It is more woody towards Kent, and has several iron mines. The sea-coast is high and chalky, being called the Downs, but the sea-shore is full of banks of sand and rocks. The chief rivers are the Arun, and the Rother, besides some small streams which fall into the sea. Chichester is the capital town.

* SUSTER, an ancient and celebrated town of Persia, and capital of Suttitan; but it is nothing now to what it was formerly. It is seated on the river Caron, 85 miles S. W. of Ispahan. Lon. 68. 35. lat. 31. 25.

SUSTEREN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and dutchy of Juliers, seated 2 miles from the river Maese, and 12 S. of Roermond or Ruremond. Lon. 23. 30. lat. 51. 9.

SUTHERLAND, a shire of Scotland, bounded on the E. by the German ocean, on the S. by the shire of Ross, as also on the W. and N. by Strathnaver and Cathness. It is a mountainous country, and sends one member to parliament.

* SUTRI, a town in the territory of the Church, and patrimony of St. Peter, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the river Puzzulo, 22 miles N. W. of Rome. Lon. 29. 50. lat. 42. 13.

SUTTON COLFIELD, a town of Warwickshire, with a market on Mondays, and two fairs, on Trinity-Monday, and on November 12, for sheep and cattle. It is seated in a fine air, but in a barren soil, and is but a small place. It is 24 miles N. W. of Warwick, and 105 N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 45. lat. 52. 36.

* SETTON, a village in Hampshire, with two fairs, on Trinity-Tuesday, for toys, and November 6, for pedlars ware.

SWABIA. See SWABIA.

SWAFFAM, a town of Norfolk, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs, on May 13, for sheep, cattle, and toys, and on July 21, and November 3, for cattle and toys. It is seated on a hill, and is a large well built place, full of inns and shopkeepers, and is one of the best towns in the county. It has one large church, one Quaker's meeting-house, and about 300 good houses; and is a genteel place, but the streets are not paved. It is 34 miles N. N. E. of Newmarket, and 94 N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 25. lat. 52. 42.

SWALE, a river of Yorkshire, which rises on the confines of Westmoreland, and running S. E. passes by Richmond and Thrusk, and falls into the river Ouse.

SWALLEY, a town of Asia, in the dominions of the Great Mogul, and in the province of Cambaya. It has a harbour where ships receive and deliver their merchandize for the merchants of Surat. It is 12 miles N. W. of Surat. Lon. 80. 50. lat. 21. 35.

SWANSEY, a sea-port town of Glamorganshire, in S. Wales, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and four fairs, on July 13, August 26, October 19, and the two following Saturdays, for cattle, sheep, and hogs. It is commodiously seated on the sea-shore, where

SWEDEN, a large kingdom, in the N. part of Europe, bounded on the N. by Danish Lapland, and by the ocean, on the S. by the Baltick Sea, and the Gulph of Finland, and on the W. by Norway, the Sound, and the Catagae, being about 800 miles in length, from N. to S. and 350 in breadth, from E. to W. It is divided into Proper Sweden, Gothland, Nordland, Finland, and Lapland. It was anciently called Scandinavia, or at least it is part of the country of that name.
We may easily conceive that the climate is not every where the same; for on the side of Muscovy, the longest day is 18 hours, 30 minutes; but farther towards the N. and near the Pole, there is but one day and one night throughout the year. In the province in which Stockholm is seated, the spring and autumn is scarce to be perceived, for the winter continues 9 months, and the summer during the remaining three. In winter the cold is excessive, and in summer the heat is almost insupportable, the air being serene all that time. Notwithstanding this, the Swedes live a long while; and it is not uncommon to see ten people at the same table, whose ages make up 1000 years. Those places that are fit for cultivation have scarce a foot of good earth, for below it is all gravel; for which reason they till the ground with a single ox, and one servant may readily manage the plough. For want of manure they burn their superfluous wood, and strew the ashes on the ground, to render it fruitful: however, this practice has of late been forbid. All their rocks are quite covered with flowers in the summer time, and their gardens have plenty of fruits. The trees are early in blossoming, because the soil is fat and sulphureous, which contributes greatly to the vegetation of plants; but yet the apples, pears, cherries, apricocks, melons, and grapes, have not so good a taste as in the more southern countries.

Their domestick animals are horses, cows, hogs, goats, and sheep. In the winter time fodder is so scarce, that the inhabitants are forced to unthatch their houses, to feed their cattle. With regard to the wild beasts, there are bears, wolves, foxes, wild-cats, and squirrels.
In winter the foxes and squirrels become grey, and the hares as white as snow.
There are also elks and rein-deer. They have several sorts of fowls, and partridges, woodcocks, and falcons, in great plenty. The silver mines are 200 yards in depth; and though they are rich, yet the people who work them have scarce wherewith to subsist, when the king's duties are paid. The mines of copper are exceeding good, and they get large quantities out of them every year, tho' not so much as formerly. Like wise the iron mines yield a great deal of iron, and they usually exchange them for the commodities of foreign countries. But since the Swedes have had manufactories of their own, foreign merchandises have been prohibited; which has reduced the iron to so low a price, that those that work in the mines can scarce get enough to live upon. The Swedes did not apply to navigation till the year 1644, when their vessels had liberty to pass through the Sound, without paying any toll. The vast quantities of the Swedish commodities brought here by the English, put them upon thinking of trade; and now they have a great number of artists and workmen, as well Germans as Scotch, who are, as it were, naturalized among them, and their manufactories are now in a pretty good condition. The innovations introduced by Charles XI. did great injury to trade; and the English, who purchased many things in Sweden, now fetch them from America. The merchandizes which the Swedes supply foreigners with, are boards, gunpowder, leather, iron, copper, tallow, skins, pitch, rosin, matts, and all sorts of wooden utensils; and on the contrary, they are obliged to purchase salt, brandy, wine, linen cloth, stuffs, tobacco, sugar, spice, and paper.
However, the trade has been greatly hurt by the Russians having seized Livonia, which was the granary of Sweden; and now, in scarce years, they are obliged to purchase corn and provisions of the Russians with ready money: befides, in 1727, their vessels were obliged to pay the same toll as other nations for passing the Sound; however, in 1731, they set up an East India company at Gottenburg; and as that harbour is without the Sound, the merchandizes brought from the East Indies come duty free. The inhabitants are of a robust constitution, and are able to sustain the hardest labour. They are much more polished than what they were; and they have several public schools and colleges, where arts and sciences are taught. Their houses are generally of wood, and have very little art in their construction. The roofs are covered with turf, on which their goats go often to feed. There is no country in the world where the women do so much work; for they till the ground, thresh the corn, and row the boats on the sea. The government of Sweden was always monarchical, and was formerly elective, but afterwards became hereditary. But after the death of Charles XII. in 1718, the states of the kingdom began to recover their ancient rights, and they elected the husband of Ulrick Eleonora, daughter of Charles XI. for king. He was landgrave of Hesse. The present king was elected in July 1743, and he is of the house of Holstein-Eutin. At the same time they re-established the authority of the assembly of the states, which consists of 1000 gentlemen, 100 ecclesiastics, 150 burgeses, and about 250 peasants. The whole country is divided into 25 governments, whose governors are called Land-Hoefding, and promise that they will govern according to the Swedish laws, reduced into a body in 1736, and conform to the instructions of the king, as also to quit the province when the king shall command them. The Swedes profess the Evangelical religion, and will not tolerate any other in their kingdom. They have one archbishop, and seven bishops, besides six superintendants, and they must be all, as well as the inferior clergy, natives of the country. It is said that the Swedes can send an army of 80,000 men into the field; for seven peasants must furnish a horseman, and three a footman. This indeed may be done within the country, but they cannot send such an army into foreign parts. They also pretend that they are able to equip 50 men of war, and yet they have not sailors to man them; for in 1719, they could not out but twenty-four vessels of the line, nor could they defend their coasts against the Russians.

SWERTIN, a town of Germany in the circle of Lower Saxony, and capital of a county of the same name, with a handsome castle, where the king resides. The cathedral is a superb structure; and in the lake near it there are twenty-six sorts of fishes. It is 12 miles N. E. of Wismar, and 37 S. E. of Lubeck. It is subject to the duke of Mecklenburg. Lon. 26. 26. Lat. 53. 46.

SWERNICK, a town of Turkey in Europe, seated on the river Dinio, on the confines of Servia and Bosnia, 80 miles W. of Belgrade. Lon. 37. 35. Lat. 44. 30.

SWINDON, a town of Wiltshire, with a market on Mondays, and four fairs, on Monday before April 5; the second Monday after May 11; and the second Monday after Sept. 11, for all sorts of cattle, hogs, and sheep; and on the second in October, for the same, and fat cattle. It is seated on the top of a hill near a rich vale, and is but a small place, though the houses are well built with stone. It is 28 miles N. of Salisbury, and 74 W. of London. Lon. 15. 45. Lat. 51. 32.

SWITZERLAND, or SWISSERLAND, a large country of Europe, bounded on the E. by the Tirol, on the W. by the Franche Comte, on the N. by Sunzaw, the Black Forest, and a part of Swabia, on the S. by Savoy, the Milanese, and the provinces of Bergamasco and Bressiano. It is about 225 miles in length, and 83 in breadth, being separated from the adjacent countries by high mountains, most of which are covered with snow. There are a great number of lakes and rivers, and some very fertile plains, which plentifully afford the necessaries of life. Switzerland is divided into 13 cantons, without comprehending their allies, namely, Lucern, Uri, Switz, Underwald, Zug, Friburg, Soleure, which are Catholics. The Protestant cantons are Zurich, Bern, Basle, and Schaffhausen. Glaris and Appenzell contain both religions. All these cantons are so many republics; and it was the cantons of Switz, Uri, and Underwald, which began to throw off the Austrian yoke in 1308. The mountains of Switzerland, commonly called the Alps, are a long chain of mountains, which begin at the Mediterranean Sea, and extend to the Adri-

Adriatick; and if it were possible for a man to travel from one to the other, his journey would be about 500 miles. There are four passages over them to go into Italy from Swisserland; the first of which is beyond the lake of Geneva over Mount Cenis, which leads to Savoy; the second begins in the country of the Grisons, and crosses Mount St. Bernard, leading to the valley of Aost, which belongs to Piedmont; the third begins in the country of the Grisons, crosses Mount Simpel-berg, and leads to the duchy of Milan; the fourth crosses Mount St. Gothard, and the bailiwicks of Italy, and terminates in the Milanese. The principal lakes are those of Constance, Geneva, Lucern, Zurich, and Neuf-Chatel. The most considerable rivers are the Rhine, the Rhone, the Aar, the Rues, and the Inn. The principal riches of Swisserland consist of excellent pastures, in which they breed and fatten their cattle. As they leave out their cattle night and day on the mountains, one would think they would be devoured by the wild beasts, and yet it is quite otherwise; for when the bees perceive a bear, or a wolf, at a distance, they form themselves into a circle, and are ready to receive the enemy with their horns. As for the goats, and thamo goats, they feed in flocks on the mountains and in the woods, and they place centinels on all sides; and when any dangerous animal draws near, a signal is given, and they all get into a place of refuge, where the savage beast dares not come. The inhabitants are all strong robust men, for which reason they are generally chosen by several nations for the military service, and even the pope has his Swiss guards. The women are tolerably handsome, and have many good qualities, and are in general very industrious. The peasants retain their old manner of dress, and are content to live upon milk, butter, and cheese; and there are some of the mountaineers who never have any bread. An account of the several cantons, and their dependencies, may be seen in their order.

SWOLL. See ZWOLL.

SYRACUSE, an ancient, strong, and famous town of Sicily, in the Val-di-Notto, with a bishop's see, and a fine large harbour, defended by a fortified castle. This city was almost ruined by an earthquake in 1697, and yet the number of inhabitants are now said to be 14,000.

Near this place, in 1718, there was a sea-fight between the Spaniards and English, in which the former were beaten, and obliged to leave Sicily; but they became masters of it again in 1735. It is very advantageously seated near the sea, 72 miles S. by W. of Messina, 72 S. W. of Reggio, and 110 S. E. of Palermo. Lon. 33. 0. lat. 37. 4.

SYRIA, or SURISTAN, a province of Turkey in Asia, bounded on the N. by Diarbeck and Natolia, on the E. by Diarbeck and the desarts of Arabia, which also, together with Judea, bound it on the S. and on the W. by the Mediterranean Sea. The Turks divide it into three beglerbeglics, namely, those of Aleppo, Tripoli, and Damascus. It abounds in oil, corn, and several sorts of fruits, as well as pease, beans, and all kinds of pulse and garden-stuff; but it would produce much more than it does, if it was well cultivated, for there are the finest plains and pastures in the world. The inhabitants have a trade in silk, camblers, and salt. Damascus, by the Turks called Scham, is the capital town.

SYRIAM, a large town of Asia in the East Indies, in the kingdom of Pegu, seated near the sea. Lon. 114. 15. lat. 16. 0.

SZUCZA, a town of Polish Prussia, in the palatinate of Culm, seated on the river Vitolula. Lon. 36. 46. lat. 53. 14.

T AATA, a town of Upper Egypt, about a mile from the river Nile. It is the residence of a governor, and there are a great many curious remains of antiquity. It makes a handsome appearance to those that sail along the river. It is 200 miles S. of Cairo. Lon. 53. 0. lat. 27. 5.

* TABACHASAN, a town of Asia in Natolia, in the country of Bozoc, otherwise called the beglerbeglic of Marafel, among the mountains, seated on the river Adena near its source, about 50 miles above the town of Adena.

TABAGO, an island of America, and one of the Caribbees, to the N. E. of the island of Trinity, and 120 miles S. of Barbadoes, being 52 miles in length, and 12 in breadth. The English formerly attempted to settle here, but were driven away by the natives. Some say it is a very fruitful country, and others that it is nothing but a rock; however, no European has settled here at present. Lon. 316. 35. lat. 11. 10.

TABARCA, an island of Africa, on the coast of Barbary, belonging to the Genoese, who fish for coral here. It is 50 miles W. of Tunis. Lon. 25. 35. lat. 36. 30.

TABASCO, an island of N. America in New Spain, and in the government of Tabasco. It is formed by a river of the same name, and by that of St. Peter and St. Paul, being about 50 miles in length, and 10 in breadth. It is near the bay of Campeachy, 10 miles from the sea, and 160 S. W. of Campeachy. Lon. 263. 0. lat. 18. 0.

* TABASCO, a province or government of N. America in New Spain, bounded on the N. by the bay of Campeachy, on the E. by Yucatan, on the S. by the province of Chiapa, and on the W. by that of Guaxaca. It is about 100 miles in length, and as much in breadth, and is very fertile in chocolate-nuts, in which its chief riches consist. The air is extremely moist, and there are showers every day for nine months in the year.

TABLE-MOUNTAIN, a mountain of Africa, being the most southern cape or promontory in that part of the world, and is near the Cape of Good Hope. The bay which is formed thereby is called the Table-Bay. Lon. 38. 40. lat. 35. 0.

TABOGA, an island of America in the S. Sea, on the Bay of Panama. It is about 4 miles in length, and 3 in breadth, and is a mountainous place, abounding with fruit trees. It belongs to the Spaniards. Lon. 291. 0. lat. S. 1. 0.

TABOR, a town of Bohemia in the circle of Bechin, where the Hussites were fortified, and Zisca their chief. It is 40 miles S. of Prague. Lon. 32. 5. lat. 49. 23.

TABRISTAN, a province of Asia in Persia, lying on the southern shore of the Caspian Sea, bounded by Astrabad on the E. and Ghilan on the W.

* TACHA, a town of Bohemia on the confines of the Upper Palatinate, near the forest of Bohemia. It is seated on the river Mies. Lon. 30. 45. lat. 49. 56.

TADCASTER, a town in the W. riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Thursdays, but no fairs. It is noted for the great plenty of limestone dug up near it; and there is a large stone bridge over the river Wharf. It is 9 miles S. W. of York, and 184 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 30. lat. 53. 52.

TADMOR. See PALMYRA.

* TADOUSAC, a settlement in N. America in New France, with a harbour. It is seated on the river St. Lawrence, 200 miles from its mouth, at the place where it receives the river Sagueni. It was taken by the English in 1629, but the French retook it in 1633. Lon. 309. 0. lat. 48. 26.

TAFALA, or TAFALLA, a town of Spain in Navarre, with a castle. It is seated on the river Cidazo, in a country producing good wine, 18 miles S. of Pampluna. Lon. 15. 55. lat. 42. 45.

* TAFILET, a kingdom of Africa, in Barbary, and in the dominions of the emperor of Morocco. It is bounded on the N. by the kingdoms of Fez and Tremecen, on the E. by the Berberies, on the S. by the desert of Barbary, and on the W. by the kingdoms of Fez, Morocco, and Sus. It is divided into three provinces, Dras, Sara, and Tuet. It is a mountainous sandy country, and yet it produces a little wheat and barley by the sides of the rivers. The inhabitants live upon camel's flesh and dates, and they breed horses to sell to foreigners. They have also ostriches and dromedaries, which last will travel 100 miles in a day. The Arabs live in tents, and the Berberies, the ancient inhabitants, dwell in villages. Tafilet is the capital town, which is a trading place, with a castle, and it is seated on a river in a plain, 520 miles S. by E. of Fez, and 275 S. E. of Morocco. Lon. 16. 6. lat. 28. 32.

TANDAYP, an island of Asia, and one of the most easterly of the Philippines. It is separated from Manilla by a narrow strait; and is 125 miles in length, and 100 in breadth. On the north coast there is a volcano, which throws out fire and flames. It belongs to Spain. Lon. 141. 45. lat. 12. 0.

• TANGRY, a village in Hampshire, with one fair on April 15, for sheep.

TANGERMUNDE, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in the old Marche of Brandenburg. It is not a large place, but is populous, and some of the electors have kept their court in an old castle here. It is seated on the river Tanger where it falls into the Elb, 22 miles N. W. of Brandenburg, and 27 N. E. of Magdeburg. Lon. 29. 45. lat. 52. 30.

TANGIER, a sea-port town of Africa, in the kingdom Fez. It was taken from the Moors by the Portuguese in 1471, and was given as a dowry to the princess of Portugal, who married Charles II. King of England; but he did not think it worth the expence of keeping, and therefore in 1633, he caused the works to be blown up, and withdrew the garrison. It is finely seated 125 miles N. of Fez. Lon. 12. 35. lat. 35. 40.

TANGER, a kingdom of Asia in Chinese Tartary, bounded on the E. by China, on the S. by the kingdom of Ava, on the W. by the dominions of the Great Mogul, and on the N. by those of the Great Khan of the Calmucks. It is divided into two parts, Tangur Proper and Tibet; this last is the patrimony of Dalai Lama, the sovereign pontiff of the Tartars. heart, and they come from all parts of India to pay him homage. He receives all their humiliations sitting upon an altar in a very handsome pagod, which stands on Mount Poutala. He salutes nobody, not even princes; only he puts his hand on their heads, after which they believe their sins are forgiven. After this pontiff dies, they believe he appears again in a new body, and always makes himself known. Lat. from 30. 0. to 38. 0.

TANJAOR, a town of Asia in the East-Indies, and on the coast of Coromandel. It is capital of a province of the same name; bounded on the N. by Gingi, on the S. by Marava, on the E. by the sea; and on the W. by the kingdom of Madura, and it is one of the best countries in the East Indies. The town is seated on a branch of the river Caveri; and the French, Danes, and Dutch, have factories here. Lon. 96. 42. lat. 11. 27.

* TANOR, a small kingdom of Asia in the East-Indies, and on the coast of Malabar. It is bounded by the dominions of the Samarin and the sea, and is about 20 miles square. It is a wholesome fertile country. Lon. 93. 0. lat. 11. 4.

TAORMINA, a sea port town of Sicily, in the Val di Demona. It is seated on a rock a small distance from the sea, and it suffered greatly by an earthquake in 1693. It is 88 miles S. of Messina. Lon. 33. 5. lat. 38. 15.

* TAPACRI, a province of S. America in Peru, and in the diocese of Plata. It is 50 miles long and 30 broad.

TAITA, a river of Asia in the peninsula on this side of the Ganges, which runs west through the kingdom of Cambiya, and falls into the sea a little below Suat.

* TAPUYAS, or TAPUYERS, and TAPINAMBOES, the names of two tribes of American savages, in Brasil. When the French attempted to settle on the coast, they went stark naked, and neither men nor women could be brought to wear garments by any means. Their bodies were painted of several colours, especially black; and the hair of the men was cut pretty close on the top of the head, but behind they wore it long. They had all holes in their under lips, in which they put a green stone. The women had long hair, but no holes in their lips; however their ears were bored, and they put white bones in the holes. They were at first reported to be giants and men-eaters; but this is found to be false.

TARANTO, a sea-port town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Terra d'Otranto. It was a strong and populous place, with an archbishop's see, and the title of a principality, and carried on a considerable trade in wool. It is seated in a peninsula, and is defended by a strong castle, but the harbour is choaked up, which has hurt it very much. This town has given name to the spiders called tarantulas, whose bite is not to be cured but by dancing. It is 40 miles S. E. of Bari, 58 N. W. of Otranto, and 145 E. of Naples. Lon. 35. 0. lat. 40. 45.

* TARAGALLA, a town of Africa, and one of the principal of the kingdom of Taflet, in the province of Dras, seated on the river Dras with a fortified castle. It is seated in a territory abounding in dates, 275 miles S. W. of Taflet. Lon. 11. 50. lat. 27. 0.

* TARARE, a town of France in Lyonsnois and in the election of Lyons. It is seated on the river Tordive, in a valley, and at the foot of a mountain of the same name. Lon. 22. 18. lat. 45. 52.

TARASCON, an ancient, populous, and large town of France, in Provence, with a well built castle, and a chapter composed of 15 canons. It is seated on the river Rhone, in a pleasant fertile county, over-against Beaucaire, with which it communicates by a bridge of boats. It is 10 miles N. of Arles, 12 S. W. of Avignon, and 375 S. by E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 20. lat. 43. 48.

TARAZONA, a strong town of Spain, in the kingdom of Arragon, and on the frontiers of Old Castile, with a bishop's see. It was taken from the Moors in 1110, and is seated partly on a rock and partly on a fertile plain, on the river Chiles, 160 miles N. by E. of Toledo; and 127 N. by E. of Madrid. Lon. 16. 6. lat. 41. 55.

TARRES, a populous town of France, in Gascony, and capital of the county of Bigorre, with a bishop's see and a castle. It is seated on the river Adour, in a plain 42 miles S. W. of Auch, 25 E. of Pau, and 112 S. by E. of Bourdeaux.

TARENTISA, a province of Savoy, with the title of a county, bounded on the N. W. by the duchy of Savoy, and Faucigny, on the S. E. by the duchy of Aoste, and the county of Maurienne.

It is a disagreeable barren country, full of dreadful mountains; and Montier is the capital town.

* TARGA, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Fez, seated on the sea-coast, with a castle built upon a rock. There is a very plentiful fishery, and it is seated in a plain surrounded by mountains and thick forests full of monkeys. It is accounted a desert; but there are good wells and fine pastures. Lon. 13. 12. lat. 35. 2.

TARGORON, a town of Turkey in Europe, and in the province of Moldavia, 50 miles S. W. of Jazy. Lon. 44. 5. lat. 47. 0.

* TARGOVISCO, a considerable town of Turkey in Europe, and capital of Wallachia. It is seated on the river Lahniza, 67 miles S. E. of Hermantact, 202 N. E. of Sophia, and 188 N. E. of Belgrade. Lon. 42. 40. lat. 45. 45.

TARIFFA, a town of Spain, in Andalusia, and in the diocese of Cadiz, with a castle. It is a poor place with few inhabitants, and is seated on an eminence on the straits of Gibraltar, 17 miles S. W. of Gibraltar, and 27 N. E. of Tangier. Lon. 12. 24. lat. 37. 56.

TARHU, a town of Asia, in Persia, and capital of Daghestan. It is seated on the west coast of the Caspian sea, among craggy rocks full of shells, and is 52 miles S. E. of Terki, and 300 N. E. of Tauris. Lon. 66. 40. lat. 44. 20.

* TARN, a river of France which has its source in Cevaudan, and falls into the Garonne below Montauban.

* TARO, or BORGO-DI-VAL-DI-TARO, a town of Italy in the duchy of Parma, and capital of the territory of Val-di-Taro. It is seated on the river Taro, 20 miles S. of Borgo-Porino, and 25 S. W. of Parma. Lon. 27. 23. lat. 44. 34.

TARO, a river of Italy, which rises in the mountains on the confines of Genoa, and running N. E. crosses Parma, where it washes Campiano, and discharges itself into the Po below Cremona.

TARONANT, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Morocco, and territory of Sus, seated near the Atlantic Ocean, 100 miles S. of Morocco. Lon. 7. 35. lat. 34. 0.

* TARRAGA, a town of Spain in Catalonia, seated on a hill near the river Cervera. It is the chief place of a viguerie, and is 15 miles from Lerida.

TARRAGONA, an ancient and strong town of Spain in Catalonia, with a harbour, a bishop's see, and an university. It was built by the Phœnicians, and it was very powerful in the time of the Romans. There are many monuments of antiquity here, namely medals, inscriptions, and the ruins of magnificent buildings. It is now surrounded with walls built by the Moors, and is also defended by regular works. It is neither so large nor so populous as it was formerly; for though there is room for 2000 houses within the walls, there is not above 500, which are all built with large square stones. It carries on a great trade, and is seated on a hill on the Mediterranean Sea, in a country abounding in corn, very good wine, oil, and flax. It is 45 miles N. E. of Tortosa, 45 W. of Barcelona, and 270 E. by N. of Madrid. Lon. 18. 58. lat. 41. 22.

* TARRING, a village in Suffex, with two fairs; on April 5, and October 2, for pedlar's ware.

TARSUS, now called TERASSO, an ancient town of Turkey in Asia, and in Carianania, which makes part of Natolia, with an archbishop's see. It was the capital of Cilicia, where St. Paul was born, but is now almost ruined. It is seated near the Mediterranean Sea. Lon. 53. 30. lat. 37. 10.

* TARTARY, GREAT, is a large extent of country, making the third part of Asia, being about 1500 miles in length from E. to W. and 125 in breadth from N. to S. It is situated between 35 and 53 degrees of N. latitude. It was anciently called Scythia, whose last king was named Ugham, and who was conquered by a rebel named Chingis Khan. He founded a new kingdom, which has since been called Tartary. European Tartary, as well as Tartary in Turkey, lies near the Black Sea, and Muscovy Tartary is near the Caspian Sea; Asiatic Tartary, of which we are now speaking, is watered by five large rivers, which serve to determine the situation of places; namely, the Obi, the Volga or Wolga, the Jenisei, the Lena, and the Amur. It is a difficult matter to give a true division of this country; for different authors give a different description, and therefore we can only take notice that the Muscovites possess a large part of this country lying beyond the river Obi; and the Chinese possess that part of Great Tartary which is separated from China by a wall. being premised, we may divide this country into three parts, which are Ruffian Tartary, Chinese Tartary, and Independent Tartary. Ruffian Tartary has no fixed bounds, but it may be near 1500 miles in length from E. to W. and 750 in breadth from N. to S. The modern maps divide it into Siberia, whose inhabitants are called Ostiacks, and who are a savage vagabond people, like the Cossacks in Europe, whose principal town is Naim. Tungusia is another part, which lies near the Jeni-fen, and Jenifekoy is the capital town.
Jakutia, or Buratia, lies near the rivers Lena and Angara, and the capital is Jakutikoy; the fourth part is called Ockotia, which lies near the eastern sea, and the river Amur runs through it, and Ochotikoy is the capital town.
There is another part lately discovered, called Kamshatka, which is contiguous to Great Tartary, and lies on a strait into which the river Amur falls. Chinese Tartary is separated from China by a great wall, and is about 750 miles in extent. It is divided into the eastern and western; and that part of it near the wall is without inhabitants. It was formerly supposed to be Cathay, whose capital was Caubalu, which is now well known to be Pekin. This is divided into several parts, which are all mentioned in their proper places. Independent Tartary comprehends all that part of it which belongs neither to Russia nor China; and is composed of several kingdoms, namely, Turkestan, Great Bocharia, Little Bocharia, the kingdom of the Calanucks, and Tibet, or Thibet, or Bouton, which is a large country, and part of Tangut. In general, the Tartars are a robust people, have a good constitution, and capable of undergoing hardships. They have broad faces, short chins, large whiskers, and noses even with their faces. They are dextrous in handling their sabres, and shooting with bows and arrows.
The men have no other business than that of going to war, and the women take care of domestic affairs. They are pagans; and they have a pontiff called Dali Lama, taken notice of in the article TANGUT, which see. As for the several lesser divisions of the Tartars, they are taken notice of in their order.

* TARTAS, a town of France in Gascony, and in the territory of Albret. It is built in the form of an amphitheatre, and on the side of a hill upon the river Midouze, which falls into the A-dour, 12 miles N. E. of Dax. Lon.

16. 47. lat. 43. 52.

TARDANT. See TARODANT.

TASSING, an island of Denmark between those of Finonia, Langeland, and Arho. It is separated from the former by a narrow canal, and contains a few towns and villages.

TASSO, an island of the Archipelago, near Roumania, at the entrance of the gulph of Contessa. It is about 35 miles in circumference, and the capital town is of the same name, which has a good harbour and several castles. It was formerly famous for mines of gold and quarries of beautiful marble.

TATTA, a town of Asia, in the dominions of the Great Mogul, and capital of the province of Sinda, otherwise called Tatta. It is a large, rich place, being about three miles in length, and one and a half in breadth; and has a large caravanfara at the end, capable of lodging 500 men and horses. All goods and merchandizes imported or exported between Tatta and Laribundar, are carried by camels, oxen, and horses.
The country about is almost level; and is overgrown with shrub and bushes, wherein the robbers lurk to attack travellers. It is about two miles from the river Indus or Sind, from whence there are canals cut to bring water to the town. Sometimes it does not rain here for three years together, which has caused so severe a plague, that 80,000 people have died of it in that city only. They have manufactures of silk and cotton, and they make chintz very fine and cheap; as also curious eablers inlaid with ivory. The Portuguese had formerly a church here, which is now abandoned; and the Gen-toes have a free toleration of their religion. Lon. 86. 0. lat. 25. 20.

TATTERSHALL, a town of Lincolnshire, with a market on Fridays; and two fairs, on May 14, and September 25, for horses, cattle, and cloth. It is feated on the river Bane, near the place where it falls into the Witham, and in a fenny country. It is but a small place, and was formerly of note for its cattle.
It is 22 miles S. E. of Lincoln, and 118 N. of London. Lon. 17. 35. lat. 53. 6.

It is ſeated in a pleaſant fertile country, and the mouth of the river Gilao, between Cape Vincent and the Strait of Gibraltar, 100 miles W. by N. of Cadiz, and 112 W. by S. of Seville. Lon. 10. 15. lat. 37. 5.

TAVISTOCK, a town of Devonſhire, with a market on Saturdays, and five fairs, on January 17, May 6, September 9, October 10, and December 11, all for cattle. It is ſeated on the river Tavey, or Tave, and was once a flouriſhing place, famous for its ſtately abbey, which is now divided into tenements. It is now a large place, and well watered, there being a brook running through ever; ſilent, and over the river there is a ſtone bridge of five arches. It has two almſ-houſes, and ſends two members to parliament. It is 32 miles W. by S. of Exeter, and 200 miles W. by S. of London. It alſo gives the title of earl to the eldeſt ſon of the duke of Bedford. Lon. 50. 0. lat. 50. 37.

TAVISTOX, a town of Somerſetſhire, with two markets, on Wedneſdays and Saturdays; and two fairs, on July 17 for buſhocks and heaves, and on July 30 for three days; the firſt for buſhocks, and horſes, and the other two for peſtles ware, and ſweetmeats. It is pleaſantly ſeated on the river Tone or Thone, among meadows; and the river is navigable for barge, within three miles of the town, where there is a handſome bridge; and it once had a caſtle, now in ruins. It is a handſome, neat, well-built place, with ſpacious ſtreets and two pariſh churches; and it has ſeveral large woollen manufactories. It is reckoned the beſt town in the county, and ſends two members to parliament. It is 57 miles S. W. of Briſtol, 32 N. E. of Exeter, and 145 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 25. lat. 51. 6.

TAURIS, or TERRIS, a town of Aſia, in Perſia, and capital of Adirbeitzan. It was formerly the capital of Perſia, and is now the moſt conſiderable next to Iſpahan; for it contains 15000 houſes, beſides many ſeparate ſhops, and about 200000 inhabitants. It is about five miles in circumference, and carries on a prodigious trade in cotton, cloth, ſilks, gold and ſilver brocades, fine turbans, and ſtagreen leather. There are 300 caravanseras and 250 moſques, the fineſt of which is that where they leave the city in going to Iſpahan. Some travellers ſuppoſe it to be the ancient Ecbatana; but of this there is no certainty. It is ſeated in a delightful plain ſurrounded with mountains, from whence a ſream proceeds, which runs through the city. It is 95 miles S. E. of Nackhvan, and 320 N. W. of Iſpahan. Lon. 04. 25. lat. 38. 2.

TRECEBA, one of the largest islands of the Azores, or western islands, lying in the Atlantic Ocean. It is about 40 miles in circumference, and is surrounded with a craggy reef, which renders it almost inaccessible. The soil is fertile, abounding in corn, wine, and fruits; and there is a great plenty of cattle, that they supply the ships therewith that call there. However, their principal trade is in wood. The inhabitants are lively and well made, and they pretend to a great deal of religion and gallantry at the same time. However, they pique themselves upon points of honour, and are extremely revengeful. It is their custom to rove about in the night-time, in quest of intrigues, and they seldom fail in finding women for their purpose. It is subject to Portugal, and Angra is the capital town.

• TERGA, an ancient town of Africa, in the kingdom of Morocco, seated on the river Ommirah, 25 miles from Azamor, in a fertile country.

* TERNEUSE, a small but strong town of Dutch Flanders, between the two branches of the river Scheld, 5 miles from Axel, and as much from Sas de Ghent.
It is very strong by situation, it being in a plain covered by sea water every 12 hours. Lon. 21. 20. lat. 51. 13.

TERRI, an ancient and considerable town of Italy, in the territory of the Pope, and duchy of Spoleto, with a bishop's see. The cathedral is a magnificent structure, and this place may contain about 12000 inhabitants; however, it was much more considerable formerly than it is now. The famous cataract of the river Velino is a mile from this place, which is seated in an island formed by the river Nera, 15 miles S. by W. of Spoleto, and 45 N. by E. of Rome. Lon. 30. 20. lat. 42. 4.

* TERRNOVA, an ancient town of Turkey, in Europe, and in Bulgaria, with an archbishop's see. It is the residence of a sangiac, and was formerly the seat of the princes of Bulgaria. It is seated on a mountain near the river Jenetra, 97 miles N. E. of Sophia, and 88 N. W. of Adrianople. Lon. 43. 28.
lat. 48. 1.

* TERROUANE, a ruined town of France, in Artois, which was ceded to France by the Pyrenean treaty. Lon. 13. 57.
lat. 50. 36.

TERRACINA, an ancient town of Italy, in the territory of the Pope, and in the campagna of Rome, and on the frontiers of Terra-di-Lavore, with a bishop's see.
It is greatly decayed on account of its unwholesome air, and is seated near the sea, on the side of a mountain in a very fertile country, 50 miles S. E. of Rome, and 55 N. W. of Naples. Lon. 30. 50.
lat. 41. 20.

TERRA DEL FUEGO, an island of S. America, lying to the S. of the straits of Ma-gellan. They now fall to the S. of it in passing to the S. Sea; and not through the straits of Magellan as formerly. It is full of mountains, whose tops are always covered with snow. As for the natives they are a hard sort of people, who go stark naked, and are of the same complexion as the other Americans.

However, they have a square mantle made of the skins of beasts, which they wrap themselves in occasionally; and they wear a cap of feathers. They live upon hunting and fishing, and their arms are bows and arrows.

TERRA FIRMA, a country of America, lying between the island of Trinidad, and the isthmus of Panama. It comprehends New Andalusia, Venezuela, Rio-de-la-Hacha, St. Martha, Cartagena, Terra Firma, properly so called, Popayan, the new kingdom of Granada, Comana, and Castilla-del-Oro; which see in their proper places.

TERRA FIRMA, Proper, generally known by the name of Darien, is bounded on the N. by the N. Sea, on the E. by the Gulph of Darien, on the S. by Popayan, and the S. Sea, and on the W. by the S.
Sea, and the province of Veragua. It lies in the form of a crescent, about the bay of Panama, and is 300 miles in length, and 60 in breadth, from the N.
Sea to the S. Sea. It is the isthmus which joins N. and S. America, and the chief towns are Panama on the S.
Sea, and Porto-Bello on the N. Sea. Notwithstanding the settlements of the Spaniards here, there are a great number of native Americans, who have preserved their independency. It is a mountainous country, and difficult to pass in the rainy season, on account of the ter-rents which fall from the mountains, which sometimes rise very considerably in a night's time; and travellers are often obliged to get upon trees, to save themselves from being drowned. The men are of the colour of red copper, with black coarse hair, black eyes, and no beards. They go quite naked, but the women have a clout, to cover what modesty obliges them to conceal. Both sexes paint their skins with several colours, and the men have a gold plate, which hangs from their noses over their mouths; but the women have a ring hanging in the same manner, which passes through the grille of their noses.
These they lay aside while they are eating. They all in general wear strings of teeth, shells, beads, or the like, hanging from the neck to the pit of the stomach. They have several animals proper to this part of America, and a few tigers, but no lions, as some have

It is seated in a large, pleasant, fertile plain, watered with streams, planted with gardens and fruit trees, whose blossoms perfume the air; and where they enjoy almost a perpetual spring. It stands at the confluence of the rivers Guadalaviar and Alhambra, 75 miles S. W. of Saragossa, 12 E. of Albarazin, and 112 E. of Madrid. Lon. 16. 40. lat. 40. 30.

TERVERE, a town of the United Provinces, in Zealand, and in the isle of Walcheren, with a pretty good harbour, and a fine arsenal, subject to the prince of Orange. It is seated on the N. E. coast of the island, 4 miles N. E. of Middleburg. Lon. 21. 10. lat. 51. 38.

TRESCIN, a town of Germany, in Silesia, and capital of a dutchy of the same name. It is surrounded on all sides by a morass, and is seated near the source of the river Vistula. At a little distance from it there is an old castle, seated on an eminence, where the ancient dukes resided. Since 1709 there is a Protestant school, and church here; and the inhabitants carry on a trade here, in leather, woollen stuffs, and Hungary wines. They make pretty good fire arms, and brew excellent beer, which they call Mignotz. It is 27 miles S. E. of Troppaw, 55 E. by N. of Olmutz, and 67 S. W. of Cracow. Lon. 36. 30. lat. 49. 46.

• TRESCOUTER, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Morocco, and in the province of Hea, near the source of the river Tschubat. It is surrounded by a craggy rock, which renders it impregnable; and the inhabitants are said to be very civil to strangers.

TESINO, a large river of Italy, which has its source in the Alps, and on Mount Gotthard, and runs through the country of the Grisons, and the Lake Maggiore; then turning S. E. through a part of the Milanese, it washes Pavia, and a little after falls into the Po.

TESSEL, an island of N. Holland, at the entrance of the Zuyder-zee, with a strong citadel, seated on the S. coast, which serves to defend Amsterdam, and it has a large commodious harbour.

• TESTINIUG, a village of Merionethshire, in N. Wales, with seven fairs, on May 24, Friday after Trinity, July 2, August 22, September 26, October 19, and November 13, all for cattle.

TEUBURY, a town of Gloucestershire, with a market on Wednesdays, and two fairs, on Ash-Wednesday, and July 22, for cattle, sheep, and horses. It is seated on the edge of the county next Wiltshire, and it is a pretty good place, with a handsome market-house, and a considerable trade; the market is large for corn, cattle, cheese, malt, yarn, wool, and provisions. It is 25 miles E. N. E. of Bristol, 10 W. S. W. of Cirencester, and 93 W. of London. Lon. 15. 10. lat. 51. 36.

TEHUACO, a large lake of S. America, in Peru, and in the province of Callao, which is above 200 miles in circumference, and it renders the towns that are seated on it extremely pleasant.

TETUAN, an ancient and pleasant town of Africa, in the kingdom of Fez, and in the province of Habata. It is pretty well built, and the inhabitants are about 15000 in number, who call themselves Andalusians, and almost all speak Spanish; but they are great pirates. Some say there are 30000 Moorish inhabitants, and 5000 Jews. The houses have no windows towards the streets, except little holes to look out at; for these are on the inside towards the court-yard, which is surrounded with galleries, and in the middle there is generally a fountain. They are two stories high, flat at the top, and the streets are exceeding narrow. The dress of both sexes are much alike; but you can see nothing of the women in the streets, but their eyes and naked legs, for they are never covered in this country. When they are at home, they visit each other from the

• TEURART, an ancient town of Africa, in Barbary, and in the kingdom of Fez, feated on a mountain near the river Za.
It was formerly one of the most important places in Africa.

• TEZZAR, an ancient and considerable town of Africa, in Barbary, and in Bilefulgerid, divided into two parts by a river. It carries on a good trade, and is feated in a country abounding in dates.

TEWESBURY, a town in Gloucestershire, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and five fairs, on March 7, May 14, June 23, September 4, and October 10, for tanned leather, and pedlars ware. It was formerly noted for its monastery, and is now a large handsome corporation, containing about 500 houfes, with a magnificent church. It is feated at the confluence of the rivers Severn and Avon, has a cotton manufactory, and sends two members to parliament. It is 15 miles S. of Worcester, 10 N. of Gloucester, and 96 W. N. W.
of London. Lon. 15. 20. lat.

TEYS, a town of Germany, in Bohemia, which belongs to the archbishop of Prague; and it is 50 miles S. W. from that city. Lon. 30. 35. lat. 49. 32.

* TEZAR, an ancient and considerable town of Africa, in Barbary, and in the kingdom of Fez, and capital of the province of Cuzi. It is well inhabited, and the Jews carry on a great trade here. It is feated on a small river, in a fertile plain, 45 miles E. of Fez; and there is a mosque here larger than that of Fez, being half a mile in circumference. Lon.
9. 40. lat. 33. 40.

* TEZUCO, a town of N. America, in New-Spain, feated on the Lake of Mexico, 15 miles from the city of that name. It is an inconsiderable place, though it is the capital of a large government. Here it was that Cortez caused a canal to be dug, where he built 18 brigantines, which he wanted to carry on the siege of Mexico. Lon. 27. 6. 10.
lat. 20. 25.

* TEZELA, a very ancient town of Africa, in Barbary, and in the kingdom of Tremecen, with a small castle strong by situation. It is feated on a large plain, abounding in wheat and barley. It is 15 miles from Oran. Lon. 18. 0. lat.
35. 25.

* TEZOTE, a town of Africa, in Barbary, and in the kingdom of Fez, and in the province of Garet. It is feated at the point of a rock, 8 miles from Metila.
Lon. 15. 40. lat. 44. 40.

* THABOR, a strong town of Germany in Bohemia, on the great road from Budweis to Prague, and in the circle of Bechin. It was built by Ziska, general of the Hussites, in 1419. It is built on a mountain of the same name, is surrounded with walls, and is of difficult access. It is 25 miles N. E. of Budweis, and 50 S. E. of Prague. Lon. 32. 45.
lat. 49. 22.

THAMES, a large navigable river of England, which rises in Cotswould hills in Gloucestershire, and receives a great many smaller streams in its passage, before it falls into the British channel. It is chiefly composed of the Thame and Isis, which last is much the largest, and it bears that name till they unite their streams. It becomes navigable at Lechlade, from whence it runs N. E. to Oxford, where it receives the Charwell; from thence it runs S. E. to Abington, and so to Dorchester, where it receives the Thame: from thence it passes by Wallingford to Reading; after which it visits Marlow and Windsor, and continuing its course, washes Brentford and Richmond, and so to London; then it proceeds to the sea, taking in the river Medway, near the mouth of it. The Thames rises near Tring in Hertfordshire, crosses Buckinghamshire, and falls into the Ins at Dorchester.

• FRANDISTON, otherwise FRANCON, a village in Suffolk, with one fair, on July 31, for sheep and toys.

FRASER, an island in the county of Kent, which is surrounded by the sea, except on the N. E. side, where it is bounded by the branches of the river Stour, which are now inconsiderable to what they were formerly. It contains several villages, and the sea-port towns of Margate and Ramsgate. It has the title of an earldom.

• FRASSO, an island of the Archipelago, on the coast of Jamboli, a province of Macedonia, at the entrance of the gulph of Contessa. It is 12 miles in length, and 8 in breadth, and abounds in all the necessaries of life. The fruits and wine are very delicate; and there are mines of gold and silver, besides quarries of very fine marble. The chief town is of the same name, which has a harbour frequented by merchants. Lon. 42. 30. lat. 40. 53.

• THAVERTON, a village in Devonshire, with one fair, on Monday after July 7, for cattle.

THAXTED, a town of Essex, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on May 27, and August 15, for horses. It is a large mayer-town, of six parishes in length, and is 20 miles N.W. of Cheshamford, 7 S. E. of Saffron-Walden, and 42 N. E. of London. Lon. 17. 53. lat. 52. 0.

• THEBAID, a large country of Africa in Upper Egypt, reaching from Fiume to the Red sea. It is the least fertile, and the thinnest of people of any province in Egypt, being full of deserts, celebrated for the retreat of a great number of Christians, who lived here in a solitary manner. It is now inhabited by Arabs, great enemies to the Turks, and thieves by profession.

• THEBES, the ancient name of a city of Upper Egypt in Africa, which is now called Luxor, and was celebrated for having 100 gates. In the war-time there were 20,000 chariots came out of it, and along the side of the river between Memphis and Thebes, there were one hundred stables, each of which could contain two hundred horses. There are now a great many magnitudes remains of the ancient city, which some travellers have been so curious as to describe.

THEBES, now called THEVE, an ancient and celebrated town of Greece, in Livadia, with a bishop's see. It is nothing now to what it was formerly, and yet it is 4 miles in circumference, but so full of ruins, that there are not above 4000 Turks and Christians that live in it. It is now famous for a fine sort of white clay, of which they make bowls for pipes after the Turkish fashion. They are never burnt, but dry naturally, and become as hard as a stone. There are two mosques in Thebes, and a great many Greek churches. It is seated between two small rivers, 25 miles N. W. of Athens, 32 S. E. of Livadia, and 280 S. W. of Constantinople. Lon. 41. 40. lat. 38. 22.

• THERMA, an island of the Archipelago, and one of the Cyclades, to the S. of the island of Zia, and to the N. of Serfanto, near the gulph of Engia, being 12 miles in length, and 5 in breadth. The soil is good and well cultivated, and they have a great deal of silk. Partridges are in such plenty, that they may be had almost for nothing. The principal town is of the same name, and is the residence of a Greek bishop. Lon. 42. 31. lat. 37. 25.

THERMOPYLÆ, an ancient pass, so called, which leads from Achaia to Theffaly, now in European Turkey. It is remarkable for the glorious stand made by Leonidas, a Lacedemonian king, who, with 4000 men, withstood a formidable army of Persians; but the former at length were all cut to pieces.

THEVALA. See JANNA.

THETTON, a town in Norfolk, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs, on May 14, August 2, and September 25, for cheese, cattle, and toys. It is an ancient town, and was formerly very famous. It is seated on the river Ouse, over which there is a bridge, and was lately chiefly noted for its company of muticians. The Lent affizes for the county are kept here, and it sends two members to parliament. It still shews a high mount, which has been walled round about, and fenced with a double rampart. It is governed by a mayor and recorder, ten aldermen, and twenty common council. It has three churches, and one Quaker's meeting, with about 400 middling houses, and the streets are indifferently wide, but dirty, and

 • THOMA-SAN, an island of Africa, lying under the equator, and in 25 deg. of longitude. It was discovered in 1499, and belongs to the Portuguese. It is almost round, and is about 30 miles in diameter. The soil is fertile, and produces plenty of sugar canes. On the same vine there are blossoms, green and ripe grapes, all the year round. It is a very unwholesome country, great number of the Portuguese dying, and few living to a great age. It consists chiefly of hills, intermixed with valleys, which are constantly filled with a thick stinking fog. However, it agrees very well with the cattle, which are larger and finer here than on the gold coast of Guinea.

THOMOND, a county of Ireland. See CLARE.

THONON, a handsome town of Savoy, and capital of Chablais. It contains a very handsome palace, and several convents of men and women. The inhabitants were formerly Protestants; but coming under the government of the duke of Savoy in 1598, that religion was extinguished. It is seated on the lake of Geneva, at the mouth of the river Duma, 20 miles N. E. of Geneva, and 12 S. W. of Lausan. Lon. 24.
 10. lat. 46. 22.

THORN, a town of Poland in Regal Prussia, and in the palatinate of Culm. It was formerly an Hanfatic town, and it still enjoys great privileges. It is large and well fortified; but it was besieged by the Swedes in 1703, when part of the fortifications, and a great number of houses, were ruined. There happened a great tumult here in 1724, between the Roman Catholics and Protestants, en

on account of the students of the jesuits; upon which the Poles sent judges here to try the magistrates for not suppressing the riot, who condemned two of the principal magistrates to be beheaded, and seven of the citizens; after which the Papists seized on the church of St. John. The Protestants have a handsome college here. It is seated on the river Vistula, over which there is a remarkable bridge, 8½ miles S. by E. of Dantzick, 15 S. of Culm, and 97 N. W. of Warsaw. Lon. 56. 57. lat. 52. 56.

the borders of Scotland, and is called North Tine. There is another which rises on the confines of Cumberland, and is called South Tine. These unite their streams at Hexham; and continuing their course eastward, divide the counties of Durham and Northumberland, and passing on to Newcastle, falls into the German ocean at Tinnou's.

- TINGTOESIS, a people of Asia, in the empire of Russia, and in Siberia. They inhabit the banks of the river Jenesea, to the E. of the Samoides, and to the S. of the N. Sea. They are said to be a good sort of people, but very little known.

TINIAN, an island lying in the E. Indian Ocean, and one of the Marianas. It was visited by commodore Anson in his cruise towards Manila, one of the Philippines. It is about 12 miles in length, and 6 in breadth, and the soil is every where dry and healthy; and being withal somewhat sandy, it is thereby the less disposed to rank and over-luxuriant vegetation. Hence the meadows, and the bottoms of the woods, are neater and smoother than is usual in these hot climates. The land rises in gentle slopes from the shore to the middle of the island, intermixed with valleys of an easy descent, and they are beautifully diversified with the mutual encroachments of the woods and lawns. The woods consist of tall and well-spread trees, and the lawns are covered with a clean uniform turf, producing fine turf-foil, and variety of flowers. There are at least 10,000 cattle here, that are all milk white, except their ears, which are brown or black. There are also a vast number of fowls, which are easily caught, and the flesh of both are exceeding good, besides plenty of wild hogs, whose flesh is delicate food. In the woods are prodigious quantities of cocca nut, with cabbages growing on the same tree, as also guavaes, limes, sweet and sour oranges, and a kind of fruit peculiar to these islands, called thimay, and by the English bread-fruit, which the sailors prefer greatly to the ship's bread. It grows on all parts of the branches, is more length than round, being covered with a rough rind. It is about 7 or 8 inches long, and is fittest for use when full grown, but not quite ripe. There are also vegetables proper for the feavy; such as water melons, dandy, lion, creeping periwain, mimi, f-uvy-grafs, and fourel. There are now no inhabitants, but there were 30000, who were taken away by the Spaniards to other islands, and particularly Guam. There are many ruins of a particular kind, consisting of two rows of square pyramidal pillars, each pillar being about six feet from the next, and the distance between the rows is 12 feet; on the top of each there is a semi-globe, with a flat surface upwards, and they are composed of sand and stone cemented together. Add to these advantages, that the climate is extremely healthful, for the rains are not continual, but fall in frequent refreshing showers. There are no streams, but the water of the wells and springs is extremely good. The principal inconvenience arises from the number of mosquitoes, and other kinds of flies; and there are likewise insects, called ticks, which fasten upon the limbs and bodies of men, and bury their heads under their skins, but the worst of all is, that the road is inconvenient, and in some seasons there is little security for a ship at anchor. Lon. 162. 0. lat. 15 8.

TINMOUTH, a sea-port town of Northumberland, seated at the mouth of the river Tine, 9 miles E. of Newcastle. It has a castle seated on a very high rock inaccessible on the sea-side, and well mounted with cannon. There is a bar across the mouth of the river, which is not above seven feet deep at low water. There are also dangerous rocks about it, called the Black-Middins; but to guide the ships by night, there are light houses set up, and maintained by the Trinity-house. Here ships take in their loading of coals, and other things which are brought from Newcastle. Lon. 16. 35. lat. 55. 0.

• TINZAUIE, a large and strong town of Africa, in Barbary, and in Biledulgerid, and province of Dras. It is seated on the river Dras, and has a strong fort. Lon. 17. 0. lat. 27. 30.

• TINZENA, a town of Africa, in Barbary, in Biledulgerid, and province of Dras, seated on a river of the same name, fertile in dates, corn, and barley, and abounding in indigo. Lon. 11. 40. lat. 26. 55.

S. by Waterford, and on the W. by Galway, Clare, and Limerick. The south parts are exceeding fertile, and well furnished with good bullings; but the north is inclinable to be barren, and it terminates in a row of 12 mountains, which are the highest in Ireland, and are called Phelem-dhe-Madina. It contains 15998 houses, 147 parishes, 10 baronies, 3 boroughs, and sends 8 members to parliament; two for the county, and two each for Clonmel, Cashel, and Feathard. The river Shure runs through all the length of it from N. to S. The most considerable places are Cashel and Carrick.

TIPRA, a kingdom of Asia, in the dominions of the king of Ava, and lying under the tropic of Cancer. It is to the E. of the dominions of the Great Mogul; but we have very little knowledge either of the country or the inhabitants.

• TIRANO, a handsome and populous town of the country of the Grisons, whose houses are well built, and near it there is a magnificent church, to which they go in pilgrimage from all parts; and every year there is a well frequented fair. It is seated on the river Adla, 17 miles S. W. of Bounio. Lon. 27. 25. lat. 46. 18.

TIRELMONT. See TILLEMONT.

• TIRNAU, a strong, handsome, and considerable town in Upper Hungary, in the county of Neitra, and on the frontiers of that of Posen. It is a large well fortified place, where the protestants have a college, and the Jesuits a handsome church. It is seated on the river Tirna, 5 miles W. of Leopoldstadt, and 22 N. E. of Presburg. Lon. 35. 50. lat. 48. 36.

TIROL, a county of Germany, in the circle of Austria, and is part of the hereditary dominions of that house, having the title of a principality. It is 150 miles in length, and 120 in breadth. There are a great many mountains in this country, and yet it produces as much corn and wine as the inhabitants have occasion for. They have rich mines of gold, silver, and copper, and it contains 28 cities and large towns, two bishopricks, 43 convents, 1230 churches, 355 castles, and 100,000 inhabitants. They never enter into foreign armies, and their militia consists of a body of some thousand men; but they can raise 20,000, when occasion requires. They never change the fashion of their garments, and they are an industrious sort of people, but very obstinate. They live to a great age, and there are many that are above an hundred. There is better hunting of shamoy goats here than in any other country; but this diversion is somewhat dangerous, on account of the rocks which they take to. This country is divided into four parts, Tirol, properly so called, the bishoprick of Trent, the bishoprick of Brixen, and four of the provinces of Sushia, which are united to the Tirol. It is bounded on the N. by Bavaria, on the E. by Carinthia and the archbishoprick of Saltzburg, on the S. by part of the territory of Venice, and by Trentino, and on the W. by Swisserland and the country of the Grisons. Inspruck is the capital town.

• TITAN, or CABAROS, an island of France on the coast of Provence, and the most eastern of the Hieres.

• TITICACA, an island of S. America, in Peru, and in the audience of Los Charcas. It lies in a lake of the same name, which is one of the largest in S. America.

• TITMONING, a town in Germany, in the archbishoprick of Saltzburg, and on the confines of Bavaria, seated on the river Saltza. It was almost rendered desolate by the plague in 1310, and it was reduced to ashes by lightning in 1571; but it has been since rebuilt.

• TIPTERY-PLACE, a village in Essex, with one fair, on July 25, for horses and toys.

• TITCHFIELD, a village in Hampshire, 6 miles E. of Southampton, with four fairs, on Saturday fortnight before Lady-day, and May 14, for toys; on September 25, for hiring servants; and on Saturday fortnight before December 27, for toys.

TITUL, a strong town of Upper Hungary in the county of Pothoz. It is a fortified place, and it is seated on the river Teisse near its confluence with the Danube, 20 miles E. of Peterwaradin, and 20 N. W. of Belgrade. Lon. 38. 20. lat. 45. 26.

TIVERTON, a town of Devonshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on Tuesday fortnight after Whitsunday, and October 10, for cattle. It is seated on the river Ex, over which there is a handsome stone-bridge; it is a corporation which sends two members to parliament. It has suffered greatly by fire, and has been almost burnt down several times; and in June 1713, 200 of the best houses were destroyed in the same manner: however, it is now built in a more elegant taste, and they have a new church erected by subscription. It has been noted for its great woollen manufacture, and is 14 miles N. N. E. of Exeter, and 165 W. by S. of London. Lon. 13. 55. lat. 51. 0.

TIVIOT, or CHIVIOT MOUNTAINS, are high hills which lie on the borders of England and Scotland, where there has been many sharp battles between the English and Scots.

* TIVIOTDALE, a county of Scotland, bounded on the E. by Mer, and part of Northumberland, on the W. by Liddisdale, on the N. by the shire of Selkirk, and on the S. by Northumberland. It derives its name from the river Tiviot that runs through it; and is fruitful in corn and pastures, and abounds in flocks of sheep. Jedburg is the principal town.

TIVOLI, an ancient and celebrated town of Italy, in the territory of the pope, and in the Campagna of Rome, with a bishop's see. There are several remains of antiquity, and a handsome palace built by the cardinal of Est; besides several more. It is well known on account of the river Teverone, on which there is a fine cascade. There are also a great number of fine gardens and handsome fountains. Near it also there is a lake called Lago di Solfataro, in which there are 16 floating islands. It is seated on a mountain in a country abounding in excellent wine, fruits, corn, and all the necessaries of life. It is 17 miles N. E. of Rome, 10 N. E. of Fiescati, and 10 N. W. of Palestrina. Lon. 30. 27. lat. 41. 57.

* TULSCATA, a considerable town of N. America, in New Spain, and capital of a province of the same name, which makes part of the audience of Mexico. The inhabitants are the native Americans and Spaniards; but it is now not so considerable as it was formerly, tho' it is the residence of an alcade-major. It is seated on a river, partly on a mountain, and partly on a plain, 62 miles S. E. of Mexico. Lon. 277. 30. lat. 19. 40.

TULASCALA, a province of N. America, in N. Spain, which extends from the North to the South Sea. It is bounded on the N. by the Gulph of Mexico, on the S. by the province of Guaxaca, and by the South Sea, and on the W. by the government of Mexico. In the western parts of this province is the mountain of Tlascala, which is 12 miles in circumference. It is well-peopled and cultivated, except on the top, which is always covered with snow. There are also other mountains covered with trees, wherein are tygers and monkeys; but no lions, as some geographers falsely pretend. The principal town is of the same name.

TOMOSKI, a considerable town of the Russian empire, and capital of Siberia. It is seated on a high hill of vast extent, at the bottom of which the river Irtysh runs; and it is inhabited by Mahometan Tartars, and Bochar, who drive a great trade on that river, and carry their goods to China. There is a large stone building here with high watch towers, which may pass for fortifications; but the houses are low and mean, and but ere stery high. Here the river Tobol joins with the Irtysh, or Irtysh, from whence the town has its name. The territory is well peopled with Russians and divers other nations. The rivers are well stocked with fish; and a sturgeon of 40 pounds may be bought for 5 stivers. There are great plenty of all sorts of wild beasts and game; such as elks, stags, deer, hares, pheasants, partridges, swans, wild geese, ducks, and storks. There is always a strong garrison by order of the government; and there are several thousand Tartars who serve on horseback upon occasions. The Tartars that live round this city for several miles are all Mahometans, but their musti is an Arabian. There are also a great number of Calmuck Tartars, who serve as slaves. The Russians commonly send their state-prisoners thither. It is 800 miles E. of Moscow, and 1000 E. of Peterburgh. Lon. 9. 20. lat. 57. 30.

TOCAT, a large and handsome town of Turkey, in Asia, and in Natolia, capital of a province of the same name. The houses are handsomely built, and for the most part, two stories high. It makes a very odd appearance, and is in the form of an amphitheatre. There are two rugged perpendicular rocks of marble, with an old castle upon each. The streets are pretty well paved, which is an uncommon thing in these parts. There are so many streams, that each

 There are about 20,000 Turkish families, 4000 Armenian families, and 400 families of Greeks. There are 12 mosques with minarets, and a vast number of chapels. The Armenians have seven churches, and the Greeks only one. Besides the silks of this country, they manufacture eight or ten loads of that of Persia, and make it into sewing silk. Their chief trade is in copper vessels, such as kettles, drinking cups, lanthorns, and candlesticks. They also prepare a great deal of yellow Turkey-leather. Tocat ought to be looked upon as the centre of trade in Natolia; for there are caravans come hither from several parts. Its territory abounds in fruit and excellent wine; and it is 162 miles W. of Erzerum, 30 E. of Amasia, 238 N. of Aleppo, and 250 from Constantinople. Lon.
 30. lat. 39. 35.

TOCAYMA, a town of S. America, in Terra Firma, and in the new kingdom of Granada. It is seated on the river Pati, in a country abounding with fruits and sugar canes. There are hot baths between two cold springs; and near it is a volcano, which vomits fire and flames. Lon. 316. 50. lat. 4. 8.

TOCRAV, a very strong town of Upper Hungary, in the county of Zimplin, with a castle. The town itself is inconsiderable; but it is greatly noted for its excellent wine. There is but one vineyard that produces it, inasmuch that it is scarce at Vienna itself; therefore we must not wonder, if there are other wines sold instead thereof. Some distance from it there are large salt-works. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Bodrog, and Teiffe, 75 miles N. W. of Great Waradin, and 90 N. E. of Buda. Lon. 38. 40. lat. 48. c.

TOKENBURG, a county of Switzerland, depending on the abbey of St. Gaul. It is in the figure of a leg, and lies among high mountains. It is fertile in corn and fruits, and is divided into the upper and lower.

TOCKINTON, a village in Gloucestershire, with two fairs, on May 9, and September 6, for cattle and pedlers ware.

TONI, an ancient town of Italy, in the Pope's territory, and in the diocese of Spoletto, with a bishop's see. It is seated on a hill, near the river Tiber, 22 miles S. of Perugia, 20 W. of Spoletto, and 55 N. of Rome. Lon. 32. 2.

 lat. 42. 47.

TOLENO, an ancient, handsome, and trading town of Spain, in New Castile, of which it was formerly the capital. It is advantageously seated on the river Tajo, which surrounds it on two sides; and on the land side it has an ancient wall built by a Gothic king, and flanked with 100 towers. It is seated on a mountain, which renders the streets uneven, and which are narrow; but the houses are fine, and there are a great number of superb structures, besides 17 public squares, where the markets are kept.
 The finest buildings are the royal castle, and the cathedral church; which last is the richest and most considerable in Spain. It is seated in the middle of the city joining to a handsome street, with a fine square before it. Several of the gates are very large, and are of bronze. There is also a superb steeple extremely high, from whence there is a very distant prospect. The Sagrario, or principal chapel, is a real treasury, in which there are 15 large cabinets set into the wall, full of prodigious quantities of gold and silver vessels, and other works. There are two mitres of silver gilt, set all over with pearls and precious stones, with three collars of massy gold enriched in like manner. There are two bracelets and an imperial crown of the virgin Mary, consisting of large diamonds and other jewels. The weight of the gold in the crown is 15 pounds. The vessel which carries the consecrated wafer is of silver gilt, and as high as a man, and is so heavy, that it requires 30 men to carry it; within it there is another of pure gold enriched with jewels. But it would be endless to take notice of the rest of the riches. There are 38 religious houses, most of which are worthy of a traveller's notice. There are also many other sacred buildings, and a great number of churches belonging to 27 parishes; and there are also some hospitals. Without the town there are the remains of an ancient amphitheatre, and other antiquities. It is an archbishop's see, has a famous university, and has several manufactories in silk and wool. It is very pleasantly seated, 37 miles S. of Madrid, 138 N.

- o. Granada, and 185 N. by E. of Seville. Lon. 14. 20. lat. 43. 6.
- TOLÉN, a town of the Dutch Netherlands in Zealand, and in an island of the same name, near Brabant, from which it is separated by a canal on which this place is seated, 4 miles N. W. of Berg-op-Zoom. Lon. 21. 42. lat. 51. 32.
- TOLENTINO, a town of Italy, in the territory of the pope, and in the Marca, or Marche of Ancona, with a bishop's see. It is the place where the relics of St. Nicholas are kept, and is seated on the river Chiento, 8 miles S. E. of St. Severino, and 88 N. E. of Rome. Lon. 31. 2. lat. 43. 10.
- TOLLER-DOWNS, a place in Dorsetshire, where there are held three fairs, on May 29 and 30; for bullocks, sheep, and horses on 29, but 30 is only for toys; on July 2, for sheep and lambs; and on September 11, for bullocks, sheep, and horses.
- TOLLERTON, a village in the N. Riding of Yorkshire, not far from York, with one fair, on August 26, for horned cattle, horses, sheep, and cheese.
- TOLLEBURG, a sea-port town of Livonia, seated on the Gulph of Finland, 60 miles W. of Narva, and subject to Russia. Lon. 43. 45. lat. 50. 0.
- TOLHUYS, a town of the United Provinces, in Guelderland, and territory of Betuwe. It is seated on the Rhine, 8 miles E. of Nimeguen. Lon. 23. 35. lat. 47. 0.
- TOLIZZIO, a town of Italy, in the territory of Venice and province of Friuli. It is a very populous place, and is 26 miles N. E. of Belluno. Lon. 30. 35. lat. 47. 0.
- TOLNA, a town of Lower Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name. It is seated on the river Danube, in a country producing excellent wine, 8 miles S. W. of Celceza, 60 N. E. of Etsch, and 45 S. of Buda. Lon. 36. 55. lat. 46. 38.
- TOLOSA, a town of Spain, in the province of Biscay, and capital of Guipuscoa. It is not large, but is the capital of the province, and is inhabited by a great number of artists, who make sword-blades, which are in high esteem. It is seated in a pleasant valley, between two rivers, Araya and Orta; over which there are two handsome bridges, near which are several natural cascades, which are a very agreeable sight. It is 37 miles S. W. of Bayonne, 47
- S. E. of Bilbao, and 45 N. W. of Pampluna. Lon. 15. 32. lat. 43. 12.
- TOLÉ, a town of S. America, in Terra Firma, and in the government of Carthagena. It is famous for the fine balsam of Tolu, which is brought into Europe from thence, and which is produced from a tree like a pine. It is seated on a bay of the N. Sea, 60 miles S. of Carthagena. Lon. 304. 40. lat. 9. 40.
- TOMAR, a handsome small town of Portugal, in the province of Estramadura, on the road from Coimbra to Lisbon. It is seated on the river Nabano, in a pleasant plain at the foot of the mountains, where there is a castle belonging to the Knights of Christ, 40 miles S. E. of Coimbra, and 65 N. E. of Lisbon. Lon. 10. 10. lat. 39. 30.
- TOMBEE, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the province of Brabant, 8 miles S. of Louvain, and 10 E. of Brussels. Lon. 22. 5. lat. 50. 45.
- TOMBELEISE, a small island, with a town of the same name on the coast of Normandy, in France, lying on a small gulph between Avranché and St. Malo. This island, as well as that of St. Michael, in which there is a monastery, are every day joined to Terra Firma at low water.
- TOMBUTO, a kingdom of Africa, in Negroland, bounded on the N. by the kingdom of Chinquella and Guber, on the E. by Cafena and Cano, on the S. by Ghana, Gago, and Isa, and on the W. by the kingdom of Cassin. The houses in this country are built like bells, with walls of hurdles plastered with clay, and covered with reeds. They are the same in the city or town of Tombuto, where there is one stately mosque built with stone, as also is the royal palace. There is a great number of weavers of cotton-cloth; and hither the cloth and other merchandizes are brought by caravans from Barbary. The better sort of women have their faces covered, their religion being Mahometanism. There are many rich merchants; and there is water conveyed to the town by canals when the river Niger is overflowed. They have great plenty of corn, cattle, milk, and butter; but the salt is brought from Tegaza, 500 miles distant, and is excessive dear. The king has 300 horsemen, besides a great number of foot, who frequently take captives, and sell them to the merchants for slaves. They will

TOMEBAMBA, a town of S. America, in Peru, in the province of Quito, where was a temple of the Sun, whose walls, as the Spaniards pretend, were covered with gold. It is 160 miles S. of Quito. Lon. 300. 35. lat. 8. 4. 0.

• TONDREIN, or TUNDERS, a town of Denmark, in the dutchy of Sleswick, and capital of a bailiwick of the same name, with a strong fort. It is seated on the river Widaw, in a fertile country, and on a bay of the German Ocean, 25 miles S. E. of Ripen, and 25 N. W. of Sleswick. Lon. 26. 45.
lat. 58. 53.

• TONGUSIANS, a people who inhabit the eastern parts of Siberia, and are subject to the Russians. They are all pignans, and chiefly subsist by grating, and hunting of fables, whose skins are very black. They live in huts, which are compesd of wooden poles; and when they remove their dwellings, they take them down, and set them up elsewhere.
They are covered all over with hair and rubbish, and there is a hole to let out the smoke left at the top. Their fire is made in the middle, and they sit all round it upon staves. Both sexes are very strong and broad faced, and they all ride on horseback, not excepting the girls. Both men and women dress alike in a sort of stock, with boots of skins on their legs, and their common drink is water. They have also a sort of brandy made of mues milk, and this is used more here than cows milk.

TONGRES, or TONGEREST, a town of Germany in the bishoprick of Liege, and in Hassay. It was anciently a very considerable place; but it was taken and dismantled by the French in 1673. It is seated on the river Jeur, 12 miles S.
W. of Maestricht, and 15 W. of Liege.
Lon. 23. 3. lat. 50. 40.

TENSBERGEN, a town of Denmark, in the dutchy of Sleswick, and capital of a territory of the same name. It formerly belonged to the duke of Holstein Gottorp; but being taken by the Danes, in 1707, they demolished the fortifications, it is seated in a peninsula formed by the river Fyde, where there is a conmodious harbour, 25 miles S. W. of Sleswick, and 58 N. W. of Hamburg. Lon. 26. 45. lat. 54. 30.

TONQUIN, a Kingdom of Asia, in the East-Indies, beyond the Ganges, bounded on the N. by the province of Yunnan in China, on the E. by the province of Canton and the bay of Tonquin, on the S. by Cochinchina, and on the W. by the kingdom of Laos; it lying between 108 and 125 degrees of longitude, and between 17 and 26 degrees latitude. It is about 1200 miles in length, and 500 in breadth, and is one of the finest and most considerable kingdoms of the East, as well on account of the number of inhabitants, as the riches it contains, and the trade it carries on. The country is thick set with villages, and the natives in general are of a middle stature and clean limbed, with a tawney complexion. Their faces are oval and flatish, and their noses and lips well-proportioned. Their hair is black, long, lank, and coarse; and they let it hang down their shoulders. They dye their teeth black; it being accounted a great ornament here. They are generally dextrous, nimble, active, and ingenious in mechanic arts. They weave a multitude of fine silks, and make curious lacker-works, which are transported to other countries. There is such a number of people, that many want employment; for they seldom go to work but when foreign ships arrive. The money and goods that are brought here by the English and Dutch put them in action, for they have not money of their own sufficient to employ themselves; and therefore

therefore one third at least must be advanced before-hand by the merchants; and the ships must stay here till the goods are finished, which is generally five or six months. They are so addicted to gaming, that when every thing else is lost, they will stake their wives and children. The garments of the Tonquinese are made either of silk or cotton; but the poor people and soldiers wear only cotton of a dark tawny colour. Their houses are small and low, and the walls are either of mud, or hurdles dawbed over with clay. They have only a ground floor, with two or three partitions, and each room has a square hole to let in the light. They have stools, benches, and chairs, to sit on; and on the side of a table is a little altar, with two incense pots thereon, which no house is without. The villages consist of thirty or forty houses surrounded with trees, and in some places there are banks, to keep the water from overflowing their gardens, where they have oranges, betels, punkins, melons, and salad herbs. In the rainy season they cannot pass from one house to another, without wading through the water, tho' they sometimes have boats. In the capital city called Cacho, there are about 20000 houses with mud walls, and covered with thatch, except a few, which are built with brick, and roofed with pan-tiles. In each yard there is a small arched building, like an oven, about six feet high, made of brick, which serves to secure their goods in case of fire. The principal streets are very wide, and paved with small stones. The king of Tonquin has three palaces in it, such as they are; and near them are stables for his horses and elephants. The house of the English factory is seated at the N. end of the city, and fronting the river, and is the best in the city. The people in general are courteous, and civil to strangers; but the great men are proud, haughty, and ambitious; the soldiers insolent, and the poor thievish. They buy all their wives, of which the great men have several; but the poor are stinted for want of money. In hard times the men will sell both their wives and children, to buy rice to maintain themselves. The women offer themselves to strangers, as wives, while they stay, and agree with them for a certain price. The poor sailors and lascars are forced to take up with the refuse of all, allowing them part of their poor commons. Even the great men will offer their daughters to the merchants, and officers, who are likely to stay six months in the country. They are not afraid of being with child; for if they are girls, they can sell them well when they are young, because they are fairer than the other inhabitants. These women are said to be very faithful, and they are trusted with money and goods by the Europeans, during their absence, and will make a great advantage with them. When a man dies, he is buried in his own ground, and if he was master of a family, they make a great feast. The first new moon in the year, that happens after the middle of January, is a great festival; when they rejoice for ten or twelve days together, and spend their time in all manner of sports. Their common drink is tea, but they make themselves merry with arrack. At their great entertainments, they give their visitants arek, folded up in a betel leaf, daubed over with lime made into mortar; they have another great feast in May or June, when their first harvest is got in. Their religion is Paganism, and yet they own a Supreme Being; their idols have human shapes, but in very different forms. They have likewise some resembling elephants and horses, and they are placed in small low temples built of timber. There are many priests belonging to them, who are not allowed the use of women, or strong drink; the language is spoken very much in the throat, and some of the words are pronounced through the teeth, and it has a great resemblance with the Chinese. They have schools of learning, and their characters are the same, or like those of the Chinese; and like them they write with a hair pencil. They have several mechanic arts or trades, such as smiths, carpenters, sawyers, joiners, turners, weavers, taylor, potters, painters, money-changers, paper-makers, workers in lacker, and bell-founders. Their commodities are gold, musk, silks, calicoes, drugs of many sorts, woods for dying, lackerd wares, earthen wares, salt, anniseeds, and worm-seeds. The lackerd ware is not inferior to that of Japan, which is accounted the best in the world. With all these merchandizes, one would expect the people to be very rich, but they are in general very poor, the chief trades being carried on by the Chinese, English, and besides English great late in one of ment, of all kingde than a led Be has a about for his men a with h There near sions. he has leys, vice. only oblig are e ward, every judic grant are t have woul scribe have small Thei who they fran of e gene dalo TONS in t the and ject * To Yon ing the tert qu ed rab ha shu Tor Tor m lish, and Dutch. The goods imported besides silver, are salt-petre, sulphur, English broad-cloth, pepper, spices, and great guns. This kingdom is an absolute monarchy, and has two kings; but one of them has no share in the government, for the prime minister is master of all the treasure and forces in the kingdom; so that the king is little more than a prisoner of state. The one is called Boua, and the other Choua, who has always a strong guard of soldiers about his palace, and many large stables for his horses and elephants. The horsemen are but few, and those are armed with bows, and long lances, or spears. There are always about 30000 soldiers near his person, ready upon all occasions. With regard to his naval force, he has only a sort of flat bottomed galleys, which are more for state than service. The soldiers go all naked, having only a cloth to cover what decency obliges them to hide; and some of them are employed in keeping watch and ward, there being a strong watch in every street. They have no courts of judicature; and therefore warrants are granted to apprehend malefactors, who are tried by single magistrates. They have various sorts of punishments, which would take up too much room to describe. At their entertainments they have neither forks nor spoons, but two small sticks of the size of a tobacco pipe. There are several eunuchs among them, who are chiefly about the court; and they are ready to procure mistresses for strangers. They have a great number of common bawdy-houses, which are generally accounted hateful and scandalous.

TORTONA, a town of Italy, in the duchy of Milan, and capital of the Tortonesi, with a bishop's see, and a good castle, feated on an eminence. It is fortified in the modern manner, and may be looked upon as a considerable frontier place. It was taken by the allies in 1744, but retaken by the Spaniards in 1745. It is feated on the river Scivia, 22 miles S. E. of Casal, 32 N. of Genoa, and 37 S. E. of Milan. lon. 26. 27. lat. 44. 53.

TORTOSA, a town of Spain in the province of Catalonia, with a bishop's see, a small university, and a castle. It is a large place, and divided into two parts, the Old Town, and the New, and they are both surrounded with a strong wall, with several modern fortifications. The castle is well fortified, is in the fashion of a citadel, and stands between the two towns. The entrance into this place is over a large bridge of boats on the river Ebro, whose head is fortified. It is adorned with modern works; it is embellished with a great number of churches and religious houses, among which the cathedral church, the royal college of Dominicans, and the convent of the Carmelites, are the most remarkable. It is feated in a country fertile in corn and fruits, and abounding with quarries and mines; for there are mines of silver and iron, alabaster, very turquoise of divers colours, and there are stones, with veins of gold. They have a great deal of milk and oil, and very fine potters ware, which resembles porcelain. It is feated partly on a plain, and partly on a hill, 45 miles S. TORTUGA, an island of America, which is pretty large and uninhabited, though formerly there was a French settlement thereon. The E. end is full of bare rugged broken rocks, which stretch a little way out to sea; at the end is a large salt pond, where the salt begins to kern in April. There have been 20 fail of shipping here that came for salt. At the W. end there is a small harbour with fresh water; and it is full of low trees. There are a few geats on it; and the turtles or tortoises come upon the sandy bays to lay their eggs, from whence this island has its name. They are of divers colours, as blackish, dark brown, light brown, dark green, light green, yellow, and speckled. This island was formerly much frequented by the Buccaneers. It lies near the coast of Terra Firma, 40 miles W. of the island of Margarita, and is about 30 miles in circumference. lon. 312. 50. lat. 11. 0.

It is feated on the river Dart, on the descent of a hill, and was formerly fortified with a castle. It consists chiefly of one broad paved street, and sends two members to parliament.

It is governed by a mayor, 18 aldermen, and a recorder. It has one church, about 300 houses, and is about a mile long. Here is a manufactory of ferges. It is 27 miles S. W. of Exeter, and 195 W. by S. of London. Lon. 13. 35. lat. 50. 27.

TOUL, a considerable town of France in Lorraine, and capital of the coulis, with a bishop's see. There are two Benedictine abbeys in the suburbs, and the cathedral is a very handsome structure. The bishop has a seminary here for students in divinity. It was formerly an imperial town of Germany, till it was taken by the French in 1552. It is seated on the river Moselle, in a plain almost surrounded with mountains, which produces a great deal of very good wine, and is 10 miles W. of Nancy, 30 S. W. of Metz, and 167 S. E. of Paris. Lon. 23. 34. lat. 48. 40.

TOULON, an ancient, strong, rich, and populous town of France, in Provence, with a famous harbour, and a bishop's see. It is one of the best places in Provence, and is covered from the north winds. It is the principal town for naval stores on the Mediterranean Sea, and is fortified with strong walls, defended with bastions. It has two moles, each of 700 paces in length, which almost surround the harbour, and leave but a narrow entrance for the ships. There are always men of war here, as well as other ships; and there is a very fine quay paved with bricks. Near the arsenal on the side of the quay, there are magazines full of naval stores. The cathedral church is remarkable for its high altar, and two fine chapels on each side, where there are several silver shrines set with precious stones. There are several other churches and convents, and a school for officers, where they are taught every thing that regards the land or sea-service. The harbour is defended by several forts, and is one of the best in Europe. It is seated on the Mediterranean Sea, and the environs are full of vineyards, orange, olive, and fig trees. It is 40 miles S. E. of Aix, 50 S. E. of Marseilles, 70 S. E. of Nice, and 430 S. by E. of Paris. Lon. 23. 37. lat. 43. 7.

and an academy of belles lettres. It is seated on the river Garonne, which divides it into two unequal parts, which communicate by a large stone bridge. It is very large, but is not peopled in proportion to its extent. The streets are very handsome, and the walls of the city, as well as the houses, are built with bricks. The metropolitan church stands in a large square, adorned with a mountain. It has several fine chapels, and the choir is very magnificent. The large steeple contains one of the most famous bells in France. There are several other churches and convents, too numerous to mention in particular. The town-house, which they call the capitol, is very magnificent. In the halls there are the pictures of all the principal magistrates; and in one there are the statues or busts of all the ancient counts of Toulouse, and other remarkable persons. In other rooms there are pictures of all the memorable events in which this place had any concern. It is a place of some trade, and is seated at the end of the canal of Languedoc, 57 miles E. of Auch, 112 W. of Montpellier, 125 S. E. of Bourdeaux, and 375 S. by E. of Paris. the river Scheld, on the confines of Hanault. Tournay and St. Amand are the principal places.

TOURNAY, a handsome and considerable town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Flanders, and capital of the Tournays, with a bishop's see. It is defended by a strong castle, and is a large trading place, with several fine manufactories, and is particularly famous for good stockings. The cathedral church, and the abbey of St. Martin, are very magnificent. It was taken by the allies in 1709, but was ceded to the house of Austria by the treaty of Utrecht; but the Dutch put in a garrison, as being one of the barrier towns. It was taken by the French in 1745, who demolished the fortifications. It is seated on the river Scheld, which divides it in two parts that are united by a bridge, 11

TOURNAI, an ancient, large, handsome, rich, and considerable town of France, capital of Touraine, with an archbishop's see, a mint, and an illustrious chapter, of which the king is abbot. It is a long place, and is seated between the rivers Cher and the Loire, which are very advantageous for the trade of this place.

which is very considerable, and it is particularly noted for a silk manufactory.
The metropolitan church is one of the largest in the kingdom, and has two lofty towers, with a curious clock, and a library full of manuscripts. The castle of this place consists of several round towers; in the middle of which is the donjon, which serves for a prison. It stands at the end of the bridge over the Loire, which is supported by 19 arches.
There are several other remarkable churches and religious houses, which are generally very handsome. The mall is one of the longest in France, and is on the side of the new walls. It is 52 miles the Alps, which divide Italy from Ger- many. It is bounded on the N. by the Thuol, on the E. by the Feltrino and Bellunese, on the S. by Vicentino, the Veronese, Bresciano, and the Lake de Garda, and on the W. by Bresciano and the Lake de Garda. Trent is the capital town.

TRFNT, a large river in England, and the most considerable next the Thames. It rises near Norton, below Moon hill, in the Moorlands of Staffordshire, and runs S. E. by Newcastle under Linc, from whence it passes through that county, and enters Derbyshire, where it runs N. E. passes by Burton, near Nottingham, and close by Newark quite thro' Nottinghamshire. Then it continues its course almost N. by Gainsborough, on the confines of Lincolnshire, and, having joined the river Ouse and several other rivers, it is called the Humber, and falls into the German Ocean below Hull.

TRFPORT, a town of France, in Normandy, and in the diocese of Rouen, with a harbour, and a Benedictine abbey.

TRFPTOW, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony and duchy of Pomerania, where they have a manufactory of stockings and woollen stuffs. It is seated on the river Rega, near its mouth, on the Baltic Sea, 43 miles N. E. of Stetin. Lon. 32. 35. lat. 54. 0.

TRFSEN, or TRFSA, a sea-port town of Sweden, in Sudermania, or Sunder- land, seated on the Baltic Sea, 25 miles S. W. from Stockholm. Lon. 34. 35. lat. 59. 0.

TRFVES, or TRFERS, an ancient, large, populous, and celebrated town of Ger- many, in the circle of the Lower Rhine, and capital of an archbishoprick of the same name, whose archbishop is an elector, and assumes the title of arch- chancellor of the empire for the Gauls, and gives the first vote at the election of the emperor, with an university. There are several remains of antiquity; and there is no town in Germany where there are more churches, of which the most remarkable is the cath- edral. It is built with such huge stones, that some would foolishly have it to be a work of the devil. It has greatly suffered in the wars, and is now neither large nor populous, nor can it hold out against an enemy. It is seated on the river Moselle, over which there is a handsome bridge, be- tween two rivers, in a fertile country abounding in wine. It is reckon- ed one of the most ancient cities in Germany, and is 20 miles N. E. of Luxemburg, 55 S. by E. of Cologne, 75 W. of Mentz, and 450 W. N. W. of Vienna. Lon. 24. 16. lat. 49. 46.

TRFVES, or TRFERS, the electorate of, a province of Germany, in the circle of the Lower Rhine, bounded on the N. by the electorate of Cologne, on the E. by Weteravia, on the S. by the electorate of the Rhine and Lorraine, and on the W. by Luxemburg. It is about 100 miles in length, but the breadth is very different. It is full of iron mines and fossils; and its inhabitants have suffered greatly in the war with France. However, near the river Rhine and Moselle, the soil is fruitful, abounding in corn and wine; and it is more populous thereabouts than in other parts.

TRFVES, a town of France, in Anjou, seated on the river Loire, with the title of a barony, and a castle.

TRFHIMIROW, a strong town of Poland in Lower Volhynia, seated on the river Boristhenes, 45 miles below Kiow. The king Stephen Batour gave this town to the Cossacks, to be their place of arms, and the seat of their council of war; but afterwards the Pol- anders took it from them, and continue to be masters thereof.

TRFVI, a town of Italy, in the pope's territories, and in Umbria, 23 miles S. E. of Perugia. Lon. 21. 10. lat. 43. 0.

TRFVICO, a town of Italy, in the king- dom of Naples and the Farther Princi- pato, with a bishop's see; it is 17 miles E. of Benevento.

TRFVINO, a strong town of Spair, in the province of Blesay, and in the district of Alava, with a citadel. It is seated on a hill, near the river Aguda, 10 miles S. W. of Vittoria. Lon. 14. 36. lat. 42. 52.

TRFVINO, or TRFVIGNO, an ancient handsome, large, and strong town of Italy, and capital of the Marca, or Marche of Trevisino, with an arch- bishop's see. It had formerly an univer- sity, which was transferred to Padua. It contains a great number of hand- some buildings, it being the residence of many noble families. It is of pretty large extent, and indifferently fortified. It is seated on the river Sile, 17 miles of N. W. Venice, and 25 N. E. of Pa- dua. Lon. 29. 36. lat. 45. 27.

TREVoux, a town of France, and capital of the principality of Dombes, with a parliament. The parliament-houfe, the Chamber of the treafury, the mint, and the governor's Houfe, are the moft remarkable buildings in this place. It is feated on the fide of a hill, on the river Soane, 12 miles N. of Lyons, and 188 S. by W. of Paris. Lon. 22. 26. lat. 45. 57.

- TRIERS. See TREVIS.

TRIVISSE, a fmall, but ftrong and ancient town of Italy, in Iftria, with a bifhop's fee, and a harbour on the gulph of Verice. It is beautifully fituated on the fide of a hill, about which the vineyards form a femicircle. Its extent is not very large, and the ftreets are narrow; but there is a large fquare, where they keep the annual fair. The harbour is fpacious, but not good; becaufe it is open to the weft and fouth weft winds. The inhabitants have a good trade in falt, oil, almonds, iron, and other minerals, brought from Lauback; and they cultivate vines, which yield good wines. They have a fair every year, in Auguft, for 20 days, which is frequented by foreign merchants, who all complain the air is unhealthy. The cathedral, and the Je- fuits church are the two beft buildings. It belongs to the houfe of Austria, and it is feated on the fide of a rock on a bay of the fame name, 8 miles N. of Cabo d'Iftria, and 72 miles N. E. of Venice. Lon. 31. 33. lat. 45. 53.

the same name, under the protection of the Grand Seignior, with a castle and a fort. It is pretty large, and the inhabitants are noted pirates. It was taken by Charles V. who settled the knights of Rhodes there; but they were driven away by the Turks in 1551. It was formerly very flourishing, and has now some trade in stuffs, fashion, corn, oil, wool, dates, ostrich-feathers, and skins; but they make more of the Christian slaves which they take at sea; for they either set high ransoms upon them, or make them perform all sorts of work. It is seated on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, in a sandy soil, and is surrounded by a wall, which is strengthened by other fortifications. It is 275 miles S. by E. of Tunis, and 550 S. E. of Algiers. Lon. 30. 45. lat. 32. 54.

TRIPOLI, a kingdom of Africa, in Barbary, bounded on the N. by the Mediterranean Sea, on the S. by the country of the Berberies, on the W. by the kingdom of Tunis, Biledolgerid, and a territory of the Cadamis, and on the E. by Egypt. It is about 925 miles along the sea-coast, but the breadth is various. Some parts of it are pretty fruitful; but that towards Egypt is nothing but a sandy desert. It had the title of a kingdom, but now is a republic governed by a dey. He is not absolute; for a Turkish bashaw resides here, who receives his authority from the Grand Seignior, and has a power of controuling the dey, and levying taxes on the people. The dey is elected by the soldiers, who make no scruple of deposing him when they please.

TRIPOLI, an ancient and considerable town of Asia, in Syria, on the coast of the Mediterranean or Levant Sea. The inhabitants are near sixty thousand in all, consisting of Turks, Christians, and Jews. There is one very handsome mosque, and all the houses have fountains belonging to them. It is defended by a good citadel, with a garrison of janizaries. Before it there is a sand-bank, which encreases so much, that some think it will cheak up the harbour; which is 2 miles W. from the town, and is made by a round piece of land united to Terra Firma by an isthmus. On each side there is a bulwark which have each 100 janizaries, and great guns to defend the entrance. This town was anciently in Phœ-nicia, whose inhabitants were so famous for navigation in the early ages of the world. It is the residence of a bathaw, or fangiack, who also governs the territory about it, in which there are a great number of mulberry trees, and other fruits, which enable them to carry on a silk manufactory in the town. It is 100 miles S. of Scanderoon, and 90 N. W. of Damascus. Lon. 56. 35. lat. 34. 15.

TRICQUIER, or TRÉQUIER, an ancient town of France, on the northern coast of Bretagne, with a bishop's see, and a small safe harbour. It is 40 miles W. of St. Malo. Lon. 14. 16. lat. 48. 54.

TRIST, an island of N. America, in New Spain, and on the south coast of the bay of Campeachy, to the W. of the island of Pert-Royal; from which it is separated by a very narrow channel. It is 5 miles in length, and almost as much in breadth; but it is not inhabited. There are fresh-water lizards, guances, and serpents.

TRIVENTO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the county of Molese, with a bishop's see. It is seated on a hill near the river Trigno, or Trano, 15 miles N. of Bogano, and 62 E. of Naples. Lon. 32. 12. lat. 31. 48.

TROIS RIVIERES, a town of N. America, in Canada, and capital of a government of the same name. The inhabitants are rich and live well, it having been the general mart of trade with the American savages, before their settlement at Montreal. It is 75 miles S. of Quebec, being seated on the river St. Lawrence, and subject to France. Lon. 302. 35. lat. 46. 45.

TROKI, a town of Poland, in Lithuania, and capital of a palatinate of the same name, which is watered by the river Niemen, and divided into four governments, named after four towns, Trocki, Grodno, Kouno, and Lida. The Muscovites took this place in 1655, and almost ruined it. It is seated on inaccessible morasses, 17 miles W. of Wilna, and 75 N. E. of Grodno. The palatinate is bounded on the N. by Vilna and Samogitia, on the E. by Vilna, on the S. by Novogrodek, and on the W. by Podlachia and Prussia. There are all palatinates, except the last. Lon. 43. 52. lat. 54. 32.

TRON, St. or St. TRAUDEN, a town of Germany, in the bishoprick of Liege, and capital of Hasbaye, on the frontiers of Brabant, with a famous Benedictine abbey. It is 12 miles from Maestricht, and 20 S. E. of Louvaine. Lon. 22. 54. lat. 50. 45.

TRONZA, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the father Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is a handsome small town, well built and very populous; and is seated near the sea, on the top of a rock, from whence there is a charming prospect. It was half ruined by an earthquake in 1638, and is 10 miles N. by W. of Nicotera, and 45 N. by E. of Reggio. Lon. 33. 35. lat. 38. 42.

TROIES St. a sea-port town of France, in Provence, and in the diocese of Frejus, with a citadel. It is seated on the bay of Grimaud, on the Mediterranean Sea, 12 miles S. W. of Frejus, 32 E. by N. of Toulon, and 38 E. of Marseilles. Lon. 24. 19. lat. 43. 16.

TROPPAU, a town of Germany, in Silesia, and capital of a duchy of the same name, with an ancient castle. It is a large, handsome, and strong town, and one of the principal in Silesia. The Prussians became masters of it in 1731, but it was restored to the queen of Hungary by treaty in 1742. It is seated on a pleasant plain on the rivers Oppa and Mohra, 40 miles N. by E. of Olmutz, and 72 S. E. of Breslaw. Lon. 33. 45. lat. 50. 4.

TROVERHOPE, a town of Wiltshire, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair, on July 25, for milliners goods. It is seated on a hill, and is a town remarkable for cloathing. It is 23 miles S. W. of Marlborough, and 97 W. of London. Lon. 13. 13. lat. 51. 24.

TROYES, an ancient, large, rich, and considerable town of France, in Champagne. Strangers that enter this place, are surprised at the largeness of the streets and number of inhabitants, when compared with other towns. The cathedral is a magnificent Gothic structure, and its front is adorned with figures in relief. The front has three large gates, upon which there is a square steep, which contains one of the greatest bells in France. There are other remarkable churches and convents, among which, the church of Magdalen is remarkable for its very high steeple; the town-house is a handsome structure, and over the gate is the statue of Lewis XIV. in white marble, which is very well done. The walks about the Mall, which is on the ramparts of the town between two rows of trees. The inhabitants carry on a considerable trade in linen and woollen cloth, hardware, and miscery goods. It is a bishop's see, has several abbeys, a public library, a mint, and an ancient castle. in Estramadura, which was taken from the Moors, about the middle of the thirteenth century. It is seated among mountains, on the side of a hill, at whose top, which is a rock, there is a strong citadel. It is near the river Almonte, 117 miles S. E. of Madrid, and 63 S. W. of Toledo. Lon. 12. 40. lat. 39. 10.

TRUXILLO, a rich and trading town of S. America, in Peru, in the audience of Lima, and in the valley of Chimo, built by Francis Pizarro in 1533. In its territory there are above 50000 native Americans, who are tributary to Spain. It is seated in a country abounding in all things, on a small river near the S. Sea, where there is a harbour, and is 200 miles from Lima. Lon. 300. 0. lat. S. S. 0.

TRUXILLO, a town of N. America, in New-Spain, and in the government of Honduras, seated on a gulph of the same name, with a good harbour. It is very strong by situation, being built between two rivers, and surrounded by thick groves. Lon. 29. 15. lat. 15. 40.

• TRIAMPA, or CIAMPA, a kingdom of Asia, bounded on the N. by the desert of Cochín-China, on the S. E. by the sea, and on the W. by the kingdom of Cambogia. The inhabitants are ignorant, have little trade with their neighbours, and are all idolaters. They believe the transmigration of the soul, and have a particular veneration for horses and elephants. Some say they look upon Confucius as the greatest man in the world, and that they observe his doctrines.

TEAM, a town of Ireland, in the province of Connaught, and county of Galway, with an archbishop's see; on which account some call it a city, but it is now reduced to a small village. It is 20 miles N. N. E. of Galway, and 25 W. S. W. of Roscommon. Lon. S. 35. lat. 53. 25.

• TURAN, a town of Asia, in the E. Indies, and one of the strongest in the island of Java, with a harbour, and a king of its own. It is seated on the N. coast of the island. Lon. 130. 20. lat. S. 5. 35.

• TURRI ST. an ancient town of France, in Languedoc, and in the diocese of Agde, with a bailiwick and a Benedictine abbey.

TUBINGEN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and the second in the dutchy of Wirtemberg, with an university, and a handsome strong castle, placed upon an eminence. Its fortifications consist in a simple curtain of walls, with a dry ditch. Besides the university, there is an illustrious school, designed for young princes and noblemen, but it is now shut up. There is still a large house called New-Bau, where a certain number of students in law are lodged and boarded gratis. In the town-house there is a very curious clock, which deserves the attention of travellers. It is seated on the river Neckar, in a country abounding in corn and wine, 20 miles S. W. of Stuttgart, 50 W. of Ulm, and 50 E. of Strasburg. Lon. 26. 46. lat. 48. 34.

TUCUMAN, a province of S. America, in Paraguay, bounded on the N. by the provinces of Los-Chicas, and Chaco, on the E. by Chaco, and Rio-de-la-plata, on the S. by the country of Chicuitos and Pampes, and on the W. by the bishopric of St. Jago. The air is hot, and the earth sandy; however, some places are fruitful enough, and the original natives have a good character. The Spaniards possess a great part of this country.

TUCUYO, a town of S. America, in Terra Firma, in the government of Venezuela, and in a valley of the same name. A river runs through the middle of the valley, where the air is good, and the soil abounds in sugar canes, cotton, and all the necessaries of life. Lon. 311. 28. lat. 7. 35.

TUNNINGTON or TOPPINGTON, a town of Bedfordshire, with a small market on Saturdays, almost disused. It has five fairs, on April 25, first Monday in June, September 4, November 2, and December 6, all for cattle. It is seated under the hills or downs, in a good soil, and is but a small place. It is 5 miles N. of Dunstable, and 35 N. W. of London. Lon. 17. 5. lat. 51. 58.

TUNELA, a handsome and considerable town of Spain, in Navarre, and capital of a merindada, with a castle. It is inhabited by a great number of the nobility, and is adorned with several handsome structures. But as it is seated on the confines of Navarre, Castile, and Arragon, a great many criminals take refuge here, to avoid punishment. It is seated on the river Ebro, over which there is a handsome bridge, in a country that produces good wine, 40 miles S. of Pampeluna, 45 N. W. of Saragozza, and 140 N. E. of Madrid. Lon. 16. 18. lat. 42. 4.

T U

- TUFRA, a town of the Russian Empire, and capital of a duchy of the same name, in Moscovite-Russia, with a strong castle. It is seated on the hill at the confluence of the rivers Wolga and Tuertza, 70 miles N. W. of Moscow. Lon. 54. 50. lat. 56. 36.
- TUERA, a duchy of the Empire of Russia, bounded on the N. and W. by the duchy of Novogrod, on the E. by that of Rostow, on the S. by that of Moscow, and the province of Rzeva. It had its own dukes for a long while; but it was taken by the Russians in 1486, who united it to their dominions.

TULLE, a considerable town of France, in the province of Guienne, and territory of Limezin, with a bishop's see. The cathedral church is famous for its spire-steeple, which is very high, and very curious. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Correfe and Solan, partly on a mountain, and partly below it, in a country surrounded with mountains and precipices; and the inhabitants are accounted a turbulent sort of people. It is 37 miles S. E. of Limoges, and 62 S. W. of Clermont. Lon. 19. 22. lat. 45. 16.

TULN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Austria, near the Wienar-wald, or wood of Vienna, with a bishop's see. It is seated near the river Tula, in a country abounding in corn and wine, 17 miles W. of Vienna. Lon. 34. 4. lat. 48. 20.

- TUMEN, a town of Asia, in the Russian Empire, and in Siberia, seated on the river Tura, 125 miles W. of Tobolski. Almost all the inhabitants are Tartars, who carry on a good trade.

TUNBRIDGE, a town in Kent, with a market on Fridays, and three fairs, on Ash Wednesday, July 5. and October 20, for bullocks, horses, and toys. It is seated on a branch of the river Medway, over which there is a bridge, and is a large well built place. But it is most noted for its mineral springs, which are 4 or 5 miles S. of the town; but in the same parish. There are now many good buildings in it, and fine accommodations; especially at the time of drinking the waters, which is in June, July, and August. There are all the entertainments and diversions here, that are to be met with at Bath or Scarborough. They have also a chapel here, where di-TUNIS, a large and celebrated town of Africa, in Barbary, and capital of a kingdom of the same name. It is seated on the point of the Gulph of Gouletta, about 8 miles from the place where the famous city of Carthage stood. It is in the form of a long square, and is 5 miles in circumference, with 10 large streets, 5 gates, and 35 mosques. The houses are all built with stone, though but one story high; but the walls are very high, and flanked with several strong towers. It has neither ditches nor bastions, but a good citadel built on an eminence, on the W. side of the city. Without the walls there are two suburbs, which contain 1100 houses. Within the walls there are 10000 families, and above 3000 tradesmen's shops. The Divan, or council of state, assembles in an old palace, and the Dey is the chief of the republic, who resides there. The harbour of Tunis has a very narrow entrance, through a small canal. In the city they have no water, but what is kept in cisterns, except one well which is kept for the Bassaw's use. In 1728 the French came before this place with a large squadron, and threatened to bombard it, on account of some captures that had been made; but the inhabitants escaped, by promising never to molest the French any more. It is a place of great trade, and is 10 miles from the sea, 275 N. by W. of Tripoli, and 375 N. E. of Algiers. Lon. 28. 26. lat. 36. 40.

lgiers, and the country try of Efab, being 300 miles in length from E. to W. and 250 in breadth from N. to S. This country was formerly a monarchy; but a difference arifing between the father and fon, one of which was for the protection of the Chriftians, and the other for that of the Turks, in 1574, the inhabitants fhook off the yoke of both. From this time it became a republic, under the protection of the Turks, who pay a certain tribute to the Bafhaw that refides at Tunis. The air in general is healthy, but the foil in the eaftern parts is but indifferent for want of water. Towards the middle the mountains and valleys abound in fruits; but the western part is the moft fertile, becaufe it is watered with rivers. The environs of Tunis are very dry, upon which account corn is generally dear.

The inroads of the Arabs oblige the inhabitants to fow their barley and rye in the fuburbs, and to enclofe their gardens with walls. However, there are plenty of citrons, lemons, oranges, dates, grapes, and other fruits. There are alfo olive trees, rofes, and odoriferous plants. In the woods and mountains there are lions, wild beeves, oſtriches, monkeys, cameleons, roe-bucks, hares, pheafants, partridges, and other forts of birds and beaſts. The moft remarkable rivers are the Guadilcarbar, Magrida, Magerada, and Caps. The form of government is ariftocratick, that is by a council, whofe prefident is the dey, not unlike the doge of Venice. The members of the Divan or council, are choſen by the Dey, and he in his turn is elected by the Divan, which is compoſed of foldiers, who have more than once taken off the Dey's head.
The Bafhaw is a Turk, who refides at Tunis, whoſe buſineſs is to receive the tribute, and proteſt the republick; the common revenues are only 400000 crowns a year, becauſe the people are very poor; nor can they fend above 40000 men into the field; nor no more than 12 men of war of the line to ſea, even upon the moſt extraordinary occations. There are generally about 12000 chriſtian ſlaves in this country, and the inhabitants carry on a great trade in linnen and woollen-cloth. In the city of Tunis alone, there are above 3000 clothiers and weavers. They alfo have a trade in horſes, olives, oil, ſoap, oſtriches eggs, and feathers. The Mahometans of this city have nine colleges for ſtudents, and 86 petty ſchools. The principal religion is Mahometaniſm, but the inhabitants conſiſt of Moors, Turks, Arabs, Jews, and Chriſtian ſlaves. However, the Turks though feweſt in number, domineer over the Moors, and treat them little better than ſlaves.

TURCOMANIA, a province of Turkey, in Afia, formerly called Armenia, or at leaſt the western part of it had that name. It is bounded on the N. by Georgia, on the E. by Erivan, and Adir-beitzan, on the S. by Diarbeck, and on the N. by Natolia. This country is divided into four beglerbeglicks, or general governments, which are thoſe of Kars, Erzerum, Van, and Tchildir.

* TURCOMANS, a people of Afia, divided into two branches, one of which inhabit the western part of Turcomania, between the river Euphrates and Tigris, having the Curds and Georgians on the E. They paſs for the richeſt ſhepherds in the Turkiſh Empire, and they dwell in fields under tents, removing from one place to another, for the ſake of paſtures to feed their flocks, which are very numerous, conſiſting of camels, ſheep, and goats. The other branch dwells near the Caſpian Sea, and they are all good horſemen, robbers, and of the Mahometan religion. The former pay a tribute to the Turks, and the latter to the Tartars.

TURIN, an ancient, populous, ſtrong, handſome, flouriſhing town of Italy, and capital of Piedmont, where the ſovereign reſides, with an archbiſhop's ſee, a ſtrong citadel and an univerſity. It is feated on a vaſt plain, at the confluence of the rivers Doria and Po. It is one of the handſomeſt towns in Italy, but the air is unhealthy in the autumn and winter, on account of the thick fogs.
One half of this place is lately built, and the ſtreets are ſtrait and clean, becauſe they are waſhed by an aqueduct. The two largeſt ſtreets are, the New-ſtreet, and that of the Po, which are enlightened in the winter time. The houses are handsome, and all built of the same height. The ducal palace consists of two magnificent structures, which are joined together by a gallery, in which are several statues, all sorts of arms, the genealogy of the dukes of Savoy, a representation of the celestial signs, a royal library, and many other curiosities. Besides these two structures, there is the palace of the prince of Carignan, the hospital of St. John, the seminary of the Jesuits, the royal hospital, and the metropolitan church of St. John; wherein they pretend to keep the cloth, in which is the print of the face of Jesus Christ. These are all superb structures. When the plague raged at Marseilles in 1720, a great number of artificers withdrew to Turin; insomuch, that there are now above 34600 inhabitants, and there are 48 churches and convents. Turin is very well fortified, and extremely strong, as the French found by experience in 1706, who then besieged it a long while to no purpose. The citadel, which is flanked with five bastions, is without doubt a master piece of architecture. There are very fine walks on the ramparts, which require two hours to pass round them. There are also very fine gardens on the side of the river Po; and the house commonly called La Charite is remarkable, as there is room for 3000 poor people. The college of the academy is very large and well built, where there are a great number of ancient inscriptions. In the royal library there are 19000 manuscripts, besides 30000 printed books; when the last king died, a present of 2000 was made to the university. It is charmingly seated at the foot of a mountain, 62 miles N. W. of Genoa, 72 S. W. of Milan, 83 S. E. of Chambery, and 280 N. W. of Rome. Lon. 25. 20. lat. 44. 50.

TURKEY, a very large empire, which is extended to part of Europe, Asia, and Africa, and is thought to be the greatest in the world. Some affirm it is 2000 miles in length, from E. to W. and 1750 from N. to S. Turkey in Europe extends from 34 deg. of lon. to 46, and from 36 deg. of lat. to 49. The mountains of Castagnas divide it into N. and S. The N. part comprehends Walachia, Moldavia, Sclerabia, Croatia, Bosnia, Dalmatia, Servia, Bulgaria, and Romania, or Rumenia. The S. part contains ancient Greece, in which are 7 large provinces, called Albania, Epirus, Macedonia, Janina, Livadia, the Morea, and the islands of the Archipelago. Turkey in Asia comprehends 5 large parts, namely Natolia, Georgia, Turcomania, Diarbeck, and Suisitan, or Syria; some reckon Arabia and Armenia, but these parts have little dependence on the Grand Seignior. In Africa they possess Egypt, and a small part of Abyssinia and Barbary; likewise, there are other countries in Asia and Europe, which they are not masters of alone, but conjunctly with other princes, and Constantinople is the capital of all Turkey. See each article. In general the Turks are very sober in eating, lovers of rest and idleness, and consequently not very fit to undergo fatigues; besides, the frequent use of bathing cannot but weaken them, and render them effeminate. Their behaviour with regard to women is known to all the world, for there is nothing but their poverty that sets any bounds to their wives, and concubines; though indeed their wives, properly so called, are no more than four in number. They are charitable towards strangers, let their religion be what it will, and no nation suffers adversity with greater patience than they. The Grand Seignior is absolute master of all the goods and possessions of his subjects, insomuch, that they are all little better than slaves. The titles he assumes are God upon Earth, the Shadow of God, the Brother of the Sun and Moon, the Disposer of Crowns, and the like. The Grand Viceroy is the chief next the Emperor, but it is a dangerous place, for he often deposes them, and takes off their heads just as he pleases; and here it may be observed, that though the Grand Seignior has such prodigious power, he seldom extends it to those that live a private life, for these may remain as quiet as in any other part of the world. It is commonly observed, that his Bishaws, governors, and officers of state, are the children of Christian parents, which are commonly taken in war, or purchased; however, this is not so universally true as was formerly. The Turks have always very numerous armies on foot, the chief of which are the Janizaries, who have been bred in the Seraglio, and have been used to military discipline from their infancy. Of these they have always 25000, and there may be about 100000, that have that name. The religion of the Turks has great affinity to that of the the Jews; for they believe in one God, and that his great prophet is Mahomet, as the Jews affirmed Moses to be. They observe the same rules in eating and drinking, and they hold hogs flesh in great abhorrence as well as the Jews.

The chief difference consists in ablutions, frequent prayers, and repeated bath-ings; for with regard to plurality of wives, they are very much alike, only the Jews conform in a great measure, to the customs of the country which they inhabit, in that respect. We shall say nothing of the trade in general, because in so extensive an empire it must be quite different in different parts. However, we may observe that the Turks themselves are not very industrious, and that the numerous Christians and Jews that live among them, are most addicted to traffick and mechanic employments.
Their Grand Seignior's chief revenues arise from customs and other duties on merchandizes, besides a capitation tax on all Christians within his dominions.

alabaster, and porphyry, besides hot baths and mineral waters. Many parts of it are fruitful in corn and wine, and produce plenty of citrons, oranges, pomegranates, and other fruits. The inhabitants are lovers of peace, apply themselves to trade, and have established divers manufactories, particularly of silks, stuffs, fine earthen ware, and gilt leather.
They are much visited by foreigners, on account of their politeness, and because the Tuscan language is the purest in all Italy. This duchy is divided into three parts, namely the Florentino, the Pisane, and the Sieneze, to which some add the islands. The last duke of Tuscany, of the house of Medicis, died in 1737, without leaving any heirs male; after which, by virtue of the treaty of London, concluded in 1718, the Emperor Charles VI. promised Tuscany, as a fief of the empire, to Don Carlos Infant of Spain, as being the nearest male heir. But that prince, impatient to become master of it, obliged the Florentines in 1732, to pay him homage, before the death of the grand Duke, and without the consent of the Emperor. A war being kindled in Italy, Don Carlos became master of the kingdoms of Naples and Sicily; and their possession was confirmed to him by the peace concluded in 1735. But he was obliged to renounce his right to Tuscany, in favour of the emperor now reigning, then duke of Lorraine; and which was ceded to him as an equivalent for the duchy of Lorraine, which he had given up to France. He now keeps a council of regency in Tuscany, who have the administration of affairs, and is composed of several members.
The annual revenues of this country may be about 300000 scudies, but the sovereign cannot send above 30000 men into the field, and at sea he has no more than 30 galleys, which he is obliged to keep to defend this country against the Turkish pirates. The revenue arises from a tenth part of the yearly value of every house, the tenth of all estates that are sold, the ground-rents of the houses in Leghorn, and other places, 8 per cent. out of women's tortures when they are married, and five shillings a head on all cattle that are sold, besides which, there is almost a general excise on all sorts of provisions.

TYRRE, a sea-port town of Turkey, in Asia, and in Syria, as also in that part formerly called Phœnicia, which was once a place of exceeding great trade. It is also famous for a shell fish, which dyes a fire purple, and was hence called the Tyrian dye. It is now nothing but a heap of venerable ruins; but it has two harbours, that on the N. side being exceeding good, and the other is choaked up by the ruins of the city. The country about it is naturally good, being watered with pleasant springs, but it is now neglected. It is 60 miles S. W. of Damascus. Lon. 50. 30. lat. 35. 0.

TYRNAW, a town of Upper Hungary, and in the palatinate of Trentschin, which is a large place, and well fortified, where the Protestants have a college. It is 33 miles N. E. of Presburg, and subject to the house of Austria. Lon. 35. 35. lat. 48. 35.

TYRONE, a county of Ireland, in the province of Ulster, which is 46 miles in length, and 37 in breadth, bounded on the N. by Londonderry, on the E. by Anagh, and Lough Neagh, on the S. by Fernanagh, and the W. by Donnegal. It is a tough and rugged county, and yet it is tolerably fruitful. It contains 12083 houses, 30 parishes, 4 baronies, 4 boroughs, and sends 10 members to parliament; 2 for the county, and 2 each, for Dungannon, Strabinn, Clogher, and Augher. The principal town is Dungannon.

viding it into the Upper and Lower and then crosses the lake of Geneva, running through part of France, and afterwards falls into the Mediterranean Sea. The inhabitants are Roman Catholics, and are of a tawney complexion. They are subject to fevers and to a swelling in the throat, called Bronchocele. Those who speak German resemble the Swifs, and the rest are like the Savoyards. They are all naturally hardy, enterprising, grave, severe to enemies, and affable to strangers. The air is not very healthy on the sides of the Rhone; but is much better near the mountains. The whole is subject to the extremis of heat and cold; and it is surrounded on all sides by very high mountains covered with snow and ice, which never melt. However, the soil is fertile in corn, wine, and all sorts of fruits; and that called Muscadine wine is in very high esteem. There are also mineral waters, a great great deal of game, and some mines. Upper Valais comprehends 30 parishes and 7 communities, and Lower Valais 25 parishes and 6 departments, called Banieres. There are good pastures on the lower part of the mountains in the summer time; and their harvest continues from May to October, according to the different situation of the places.

VALENCIA, a province of Spain, with the title of a kingdom, bounded on the E. and S. by the Mediterranean Sea, on the N. by Catalonia and Arragon, and on the W. by New Castile and the Kingdom of Murcia. It is about 162 miles in length, and 62 in breadth, and is the most populous and pleasant country in Spain; for here they enjoy almost a perpetual spring. It is watered with a great number of streams, which render it fertile in all the necessaries of life, especially fruits and wine. There are very rugged mountains in which there are mines of gold, silver, and al-

lum. The inhabitants are very civil, and much more gay than in other parts of Spain; and the women are more handsome.

VALENCIA, a town of Spain, and capital of the province of the same name, which is commonly called a kingdom. It is a large place, containing about 12,000 houses within the walls, besides those in the suburbs, and in the pleasure-gardens round about it, which amount to much the same number. It is an archbishop's see, and has an university, founded in 1492. It was taken from the Moors in the thirteenth century, who were all obliged to leave it. The inhabitants are very civil, agreeable in conversation, and are more addicted to gaiety than the other Spaniards. The women are the most beautiful in the kingdom, and are also the most gallant. The city is very handsome, very agreeable, and adorned with very fine structures. The cathedral church has a steeple 130 feet high, and one side of the choir is encrusted with alabaster, and adorned with very fine paintings of scripture history. The high altar is covered with silver, and lighted with fourteen silver lamps. The university consists of several colleges, and the Jesuits have one of their own. The palace of the viceroy, that of Ciuta, the monastery of St. Jerom, the exchange, and the arsenal, are all worthy of the notice of travellers. It is not very strong, tho' there are bastions along the walls, and likewise a certain number of brass cannon. It is a very populous place, and has several good manufactories of cloth and silk, which are carried on with great success and industry; for even the very children are employed in spinning silk. There are several remains of antiquity, and it is charmingly seated on the river Guadalvir, over which there are five bridges. It is 53 miles from the sea, where there is a harbour 110 miles N. by E. of Murcia, 138 S. by E. of Saragossa, 77 S. W. of Barcelona, and 165 E. by S. of Madrid. It was taken by the earl of Peterborough in 1705, and lost again two years afterwards. Lon. 17. 30. lat. 39. 30.

VALLADOLID, an ancient, large, and handsome town of Spain, in Old Castile, and capital of a principality of the same name, with a bishop's see and an university. It is surrounded with strong walls, embellished with handsome buildings, large public squares, piazzas, and fountains. It is large and populous, containing 11,000 houses, with fine long and broad streets, large high houses adorned with balconies. The market-place, called El Campo, is 700 paces in circumference, is surrounded by a great number of convents, and is the place where the fairs are kept. There is another square in the middle of the city, surrounded with handsome brick-houses, and under them are piazzas, where people may walk dry in all weathers. Within these piazzas merchants and tradesmen keep their shops; all the houses are of the same height, being 4 stories high; and there are balconies at every window, of iron gilt.
 In the whole there are 70 monasteries and nunneries, the finest of which is that of the Dominicans, remarkable for its church, which is one of the most magnificent in the city. The kings resided a long while at this place, and the royal palace still remains, which is of very large extent, though but two stories high; within are fine paintings of various kinds, and at one of the corners is a curious clock made in the same manner as that of Strasburg. Besides this, there are several other places which a traveller ought to visit; not to mention those belonging to noblemen, nor the houses of rich citizens, which have all their particular beauties. There are other publick squares which we have not room to describe, and therefore we shall only take notice, that another of them is surrounded with 135 churches, chapels, convents, and hospitals; and that the strown-house stands on one of the sides. The house of the inquisition is an odd sort of structure, for there are no windows, but a few holes to let in the light. The environs of the city are a fine plain covered with gardens, orchards, vineyards, meadows, and fields. It is seated on the rivers Ecurva and Pisuerga, near the Demo, 52 miles S. W. of Burgos, 60 N. E. of Salamanca, 80 S. E. of Leon, and 85 W. by N. of Madrid. Lon. 13. 34. lat. 41. 42.

UBYS ST. or SETUBAL, a new town of Portugal, in the province of Estramadura, with a good harbour, defended by the fort of St. Jago. It is built on the ruins of the ancient Setobriga, and is seated at the head of a bay, at the mouth of the river Zadaen. It has a fine fishery, and they have a very good trade, particularly in salt, for which it is noted. Most of the northern countries of Europe, send ships hither to be laden with salt, which they either carry home, or send to their plantations in America. It is well fortified, being surrounded with walls, with 5 bastions, and 2 demi-bastions, on the land side, and two bastions on the side of the sea. It is seated at the end of a plain, 5 miles in length, extremely fertile in corn, wine, and fruits. The N. end is bounded by a row of mountains, loaded with fine forests of pines, and other trees; and within there are quarries of jasper of several colours, of which they make pillars and images, which take a very fine polish. VENEZUELA, a province of S. America, lying on a gulph of the same name, and is about 50 miles in length. It is bounded on the N. by the N. Sea, on the S. by New Granada, on the W. by the province of Rio-de-hacha, and on the E. by that of Cumana. Near the sea coasts there are very high mountains, the tops of which are barren; but the lower parts in the valley are fertile, producing plenty of corn, rich pastures, sugar, tobacco, and fruits. There are also plantations of chocolate-nuts, which are exceeding good, and there is gold found in the sands of the rivers. They often have two crops of corn in a year, and it is as populous and full of towns, as any province of America, belonging to the Spaniards. Maracaibo is the capital town.

mandy, and in the diocese of Seez, as also in the election of Mortaigne.

VENICE, a town or city of Italy, and one of the most rich, celebrated, and considerable places in the world, and capital of a republick of the same name, in the Dogado, with a patriarchate, and an university. It is built on little islands in the sea, which are 72 in number, according to the common account. The houses are all built upon piles, and properly speaking, there is no street in the city, for the houses are all built on the sides of canals. There is no passing through this city in a carriage, for which reason they make use of a sort of boats, called Gondolas. Some of the canals have a double key, as in Holland, for those that walk on foot. This renders the situation very advantageous; because this city being 4 or 5 miles from the land, has no need of walls or ramparts.

It is also favourable to the singular neatness, which predominates throughout the whole place, and in the houses; and likewise facilitates the carriage of all sorts of merchandises, and goods from one place to another. It also has its inconveniences, for they have no water, but what is brought a good way off in casks; and the canals in the summer have an offensive smell. The sea water is not very proper to extinguish fires, for which reason, they have no other way to put them out, but to blow them up with gun-powder, when they are in flames, as soon as they can.
There are above 500 bridges over these canals, the most famous of which is that called the Rialto. It is built about the middle of the great canal, which divides Venice into two parts. It is of white marble, and has but one arch, in which its principal beauty consists; and it is 90 feet from one extremity to the other.
On this bridge there are two rows of shops, which divide it into three streets.
The largest of which is in the middle.
The other bridges consist only of one arch, and have no raais on each side.
They have steps to go up them, which are all of a coarse sort of marble. There are in Venice 53 publick squares, as well small as great; the principal of which is called St. Mark's place, and is the greatest ornament to the city. St. Mark's church is at one end, and that of St. Geminiani at the other. The procuraties, which are a sort of marble structures, whose architecture is very handsome and regular, run along each side, having large piazzas under them. This place is 280 paces in length, and 110 in breadth. That part next the sea, is the walk of the noble Venetians, and is the place where several affairs are transacted.
There are 150 palaces, the finest of which is that of the Doge, that fronts St. Mark's place. He lodges in the upper apartments, and those below, are for the assemblies of the councils of state, with the body of the nobility, and magistrates. Besides these large buildings, there are 115 towers, of surprizing height and structure; 64 marble statues, and 23 of bronze, which are all masterpieces of workmanship. The arsenal of Venice is the finest, and best furnished in Europe. It is seated on the sea side, at the end of the city, from whence it is separated by a canal, and is about 3 miles in circumference. It is surrounded with very high walls, and several small towers, where there is a good guard. In these towers there are bells, which the centinels ring on the least appearance of danger. In this arsenal there are arms for 100000 men, as well horse as foot; besides 2000 cannons always ready for service, either by sea or land. There are near 2000 workmen constantly employed, whose chief is called Amiraglio, and they are paid regularly every Saturday. These workmen cost the republic 500000 ducats every year. In this city there are 70 churches, 39 monasteries, 28 nunneries, and 17 hospitals. The cathedral church is that of St. Mark, in which they pretend to keep the body of St. Mark the Evangelist. It is gloomy within, but its walls are of marble, and the pillars of the front are encrusted with jasper, and porphyry. There is also a library, in which are a number of Greek manuscripts, but none of them are above 500 years old. The number of the inhabitants are above 160000; and they have a flourishing trade in silk-manufactories, bone lace, all sorts of glasses and mirrors, which make their principal employments. The sons are generally of the same business as the father. The handsome structure called Π-Fontica-de-Tedeschi, in which there are 300 rooms, is that where the German merchants lay their commodities. There are two academies of painting, to which belong very skillful masters. It is 72 miles E. by N. of Mantua, 115 N. E. of Florence, 140 E. of Milan, 225 N. of Rome, and 300 N. by W. of Naples. Lon. 30. o. lat. 45. 25.

V E N I C E, the republick of, a country of Italy, which comprehends 14 provinces, namely the Dogado, the Paduano, the Vicentino, the Veronese, the Bresciano, the Bergomasco, the Cremasco, the Polesino-di-Rovigo, the Marca-Trevigiana, the Feltrino, the Bellunese, the Cadorino, Friuli, and Istria; which see in their proper places. In the fourth century, when Atilla king of the Huns, called the scourge of God, ravaged the N. part of Italy; many of the inhabitants abandoned their country, and retired into the islands of the Adriatick-Sea. As these islands are near each other, they found means to join them together, by driving piles on the sides of the canals, on which they built houses, and thus the superb city of Venice had its beginning. The government of the republick of

Venice is aristocratick, for none can have any share in it but the nobles. These may be divided into six classes, namely twelve of the most ancient families; four families that in 880, subscribed to the building of the abbey of St. George; those whose names were written in the golden book in 1296; the families that were ennobled by the publick in 1385; those that purchased their nobility for 100000 ducats, in 1646; and lastly, all the strangers which the Venetians have received into the number of their nobility. Any man of these families above 25 years of age, has a right to be a member of the council, whether he has any capacity or not. It generally consists of about 2500; and they are accounted great politicians, good negotiators, and secret even to a scruple. They also make a magnificent appearance, suitable to the dignity of their employment. The Doge is elected by a plurality of voices, and keeps his dignity for life, and they make use of gold and silver balls, which are put in a vessel, and serve for balloting. Those who draw nine golden balls, first elect 40 counsellors, who draw 12 others. These elect 25 other counsellors, who draw 9 golden balls. These 9 elect 40 counsellors, who draw 11. Those that have the 11, chuse 41 counsellors, who proceed to the election, till 25 votes or more fall upon the same person, who is then declared Doge. After this election they place the ducal cap on his head, upon which he takes possession of the Doge's palace. He never uncovers his head to any person, because he does not wear the cap in his own name, but in that of the republick. When there are any great solemnities, a nobleman carries the sword, which is an emblem of the supreme authority; but it is not before the Doge, but before the senate, to shew that the power is lodged in them. The office of the Doge is to give audience to all ambassadors; to marry the Adriatick Sea in the name of the republick, on Holy-Thurday; to preside in all assemblies of the state; to have an eye over all the members of the magistracy; and to nominate to all the benefices annexed to the church of St. Mark. On the other hand, he is to determine nothing without the consent of the council; he is not to open any letter addressed to the republick, or that comes from the republick; he is not to receive any present; he is not to leave the city without without permission of the states; he is not to chuse an assistant; and he is never to resign his dignity. In short he is a prisoner in the city, and out of it he is no more than a private person. There are four councils, the first of which is composed of the Doge, and six counsellors called the Signiora. The second is the Contiglia Grande, or Great Council, in which all the nobles have a voice, and sitting. The third is the Consiglio-dei-Pregadi, which is as it were the soul of the republick, and consists of about 250 of the nobility. The fourth is Con-siglio-Proprio, whose members are called Savii Grandi, or the Great Sages, which join to the Signiora, and consists of 28 assessors. This gives audience to the ambassadors. The fifth and last is Il-Collegio-delli-dieci, and is composed of 10 counsellors, who take notice of all criminal matters; and the Doge himself when accused, is obliged to appear before them. There is no appeal from this council, and it is a great misfortune to be cited before it. It is a kind of state inquisition, as severe as that for religion; and they have a great number of spies, who discover not only what is done, but what is said. As to religion, the Venetians are Roman Catholics, and yet they tolerate the Greeks, Turks, and Persians. The Protestants are not allowed the free exercise of their religion; but they are neither hated nor persecuted, as in other Popish countries. The head of the clergy is the Patriarch of Venice, who must be a noble Venetian, and is elected by the senate. This Patriarch, in consequence of the policy of the senate, has scarce any power over the priests and monks, who are greatly corrupted. There is another Patriarch belonging to Venice, whose authority extends over Friuli, Istria, and most of the bishops on Terra Firma. The tribunal of the inquisition at Venice, is composed of the Pope's Nuncio, the Patriarch of Venice, and the Father-inquisitor; but as these had need of a bridle, they have added three counsellors to the number, without whose consent they can determine nothing. The clergy in general are ignorant, and yet they are pretty good orators. When the diversions of the carnival are over, you hear nothing but sermons about repentance, and they declaim very strongly against the violators of the sixth commandment; however, the breach of it is so common.

V E
and so much in fashion, that the confessors themselves treat it as a peccadillo.
In times of peace, the Venetians generally keep an army of 16000 regular troops, and 10000 militia. On the sea they have always a small fleet, composed of a few men of war, frigates, and galleys, which convoy the ships designed for the Levant, and cover the harbour of Corfu. There are also six galleys, with a few galliots or brigantines, to oppose the Corsairs which cruise on their coasts.
In time of war they raise as many troops as they have occasion for, and they are fond of taking Germans into their pay. Their famous carnival begins on New-years-day, and continues till Ash-Wednesday; all which time is employed in sports and diversions. Then there is scarce any distinction betwixt vice and virtue; for libertinism reigns throughout the city, and there are thousands of strangers frequent it from all parts of Europe. They all appear in masques, which no one dares venture to take off, and in this disguise they imitate the surry of the ancient Bacchanals; and the nearer Ash-Wednesday approaches, the more mad they are. The principal spot of the masquerade is St. Mark's place, where there are sometimes 15000 people; and it swarms with harlequins, jesters, mountebanks, rope-dancers, and puppet-shows. Even the priests and monks enjoy the diversions of the carnival; and they may keep concubines at other times, sing upon the stage, and take what liberties they please, provided they do not meddle with the government. The nuns do the same, and lead dissolute lives; nor can the patriarch restrain them. For he attempted it once, but the senate interposed, and obliged him to desist.

VERA, an ancient town of Spain, in the kingdom of Granada, and on the confines of the kingdom of Murcia, with a bishop's see, and a harbour. It is seated on the sea side, 95 miles N. E. of Almeria, and 55 S. W. of Carthagena. Lon. 16. 22. lat. 36. 42.

VERA CRUZ, a sea-port town of N. America, in New-Spain, with a well frequented harbour, on the coast of the gulph of Mexico, whose entrance is defended by a fort. Here the Flotilla arrives annually from Spain, to receive the produce of the gold and silver mines of Mexico. They hold a fair here annually, for the rich merchandises brought from China, and the E. Indies, as well as those of Europe. It is surrounded with a wall of no great strength; and the air is so unhealthy here, that when the fair is over, there are few inhabitants, besides Mulattoes, and Blacks. There are such crowds of Spaniards from all parts of America, that they erect tents for them while the fair lasts. The usual garrison consists only of a troop of 60 horse, and two regiments of foot. This place is famous on account of the landing of Ferdinando Cortez, with 500 Spaniards, when he undertook the conquest of Mexico. It is 200 miles S. E. of Mexico. Lon. 275. 0. lat. 19. 10.

VERAGUA, a province of N. America, in New-Spain, bounded on the E. by that of Costa Rica, on the W. by that of Panama, on the E. by the Gulph of Panama, and on the S. by the S. Sea. It is about 125 miles in length, and 40 in breadth, and is a mountainous and barren country, though there is a good deal of gold and silver got from thence. It was discovered by Christopher Columbus, in 1492. Conception is the capital town.

* VERA-PAZ, a province of N. America, in New-Spain, bounded on the N. by Yucatan, on the E. by Honduras, and the province of Guatemala, on the S. by Socunusco, and on the W. by Chiapa. It is about 88 miles in length, and as much in breadth, and is full of dreadful mountains, and thick forests; and yet there are a great many fertile valleys, which feed a great number of horses and mules. There are also many towns and villages of the native Americans. The capital town is of the same name, which has a bishop's see, but it is inconsiderable. It is 180 miles E. of Guatemala. Lon. 264. 35. lat. 15. 6.

* VERBERIE, an ancient town of the isle of France, and in the dutchy of Valois, seated on the river Oise; there have been five councils held here. It is 10 miles N. E. of Senlis. Lon. 20. 26. lat. 30. 32.

VERCELLI, an ancient, handsome, strong, and considerable town of Italy, in Piedmont, and capital of a lordship of the same name, with a bishop's see. It was formerly a fortress of importance; but when the French became masters of it in 1704, they ruined most of the works. The town house, the governor's palace, and the hospital, are very handsome structures. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Sesia, and Cerva, and is now defended by 14 regular bastions, a citadel, and a castle. It is 10 miles N. W. of Casal, 35 N. E. of Turin, and 35 S. W. of Milan. Lon. 23. 49. lat. 45. 31.

the Upper and Lower towns, and is a place of importance, for the defence of Champagne. The winds are so strong here, that they durst not raise the cathedral to a proportionable height; but it is remarkable for its length, its two choirs, and its four steeples. There are several abbeys, collegiate, and parish churches; and the most curious structures besides, are the bishop's palace, the town-house, and the Jesuits college. The inhabitants are noted for the fine sweet-meats that they make. It is seated on the river Maese, which runs through the middle, and is 42 miles S. W. of Luxemburg, 30 W. of Metz, 47 N. W. of Nanci, and 150 E. of Paris. Lon. 23. 2. lat. 49. 9.

• VERDUN, a small town of France, in Burgundy, seated at the confluence of the rivers Deux and Soane. Lon. 21. 32. lat. 46. 52. There is another of the same name in Armagnac, seated on the river Garonne, 22 miles N. W. of Toulouse. Lon. 18. 55. lat. 43. 54.

• VERFEUIL, a town of France, in Upper Languedoc, and in the diocese of Toulouse.

VERMANDOIS, a territory of France, in Picardy, bounded on the N. by Cambresis, on the E. by Thierache, on the S. by Noyonois, and on the W. by Santene. It abounds in corn, and excellent flax; and St. Quentin is the capital town.

• VERMANTON, a town of France, in Burgundy, and in the Auxerois, seated on the river Cure, 10 miles S. E. of Auxerre. Lon. 21. 18. lat. 47. 41.

VERNEUIL, a town of France, in Normandy, and in the diocese of Evreux, on the frontiers of Perche. It is seated on the river Aure, 22 miles S. W. of Evreux, 50 S. of Rouen, and 65 S. W. of Paris. Lon. 18. 35. lat. 48. 44.

• There is another town of the same name, in Bourbonnois, 3 miles from the river Allier, and 15 from Moulins. Lon. 20. 50. lat. 46. 18.

E. of Rouen, 10 N. E. of Evreux, and 42 N. W. of Paris. Lon. 19. 7. lat. 49. 6.

VEROLI, an ancient town of Italy, in the campagna of Rome, with a bishop's see. It is a small but populous place, seated on the river Cosa, at the foot of the Appennines, on the frontiers of the kingdom of Naples, 47 miles S. E. of Rome, and 25 N. E. of Terrecina. Lon. 31. 4. lat. 41. 40.

• VERONA, a large, ancient, strong, and famous town of Italy, in the republick of Venice, and capital of the Veronese, with a bishop's see, three forts, and an academy. It is surrounded with thick walls, very deep ditches, and good ramparts. The streets are neither clean, nor strait; but there is a handsome place called the Piazza-d'Armi, in which is a marble statue, representing the republick of Venice. The bishop and governor of the town have superb palaces, but not so magnificent as that of Count Maffei. The town-house and the opera-house, are worthy of notice; but the most remarkable structure in this city, is the ancient amphitheatre built by the Romans, in which there are 44 rows of seats, or benches, of white marble, which will conveniently hold above 25000 persons. In the cathedral is a magnificent tomb of Pope Lucius III. which has also a very handsome steeple. It is seated on the river Adige, on which they transport merchandises to Venice. This river divides it into two parts, which communicate by two handsome bridges built over it. It is 17 miles N. E. of Mantua, 40 S. of Trent, 35 E. by S. of Brescia, and 62 S. W. of Venice. Lon. 28. 32. lat. 45. 24.

• VERONIS, a considerable town of the Russian Empire, in the dutchy of Rezan, seated on a mountain, near a river of the same name, which a little lower falls into the Don, and has a citadel. Lon. 60. 4. lat. 53. 15.

VERSAILLES, a town of France, in the isle of France, 10 miles S. W. of Paris. It was formerly a village, and of little note, till Lewis XIV. built a magnificent palace here, which is the usual residence of the kings of France. The buildings, and the gardens, are adorned with a vast number of statues, done by the greatest masters, and the water-works works are all worthy of admiration. The great gallery is thought to be as curious a piece of workmanship of that kind, as any in the world; nor is the chapel less to be admired for its fine architecture and ornaments. The gardens with the park, are 5 miles in circumference, and are surrounded with walls. There are three fine avenues to Versailles, one of which is the common road to Paris, the other comes from Seaux, and the third from St. Cloud. Lon. 29. 47. lat. 48. 48.

- VERSILLAC, a town of France, in Berry, and in the election of Blanc.
- VERTEUIL, a town of France, in the diocese of Bourdeaux, with an Augustine abbey.
- VERTUS, a town of France, in Champagne, with two abbeys. It is seated on a plain, at the foot of a mountain, on which there are vineyards, producing very good wines, 15 miles S. W. of Chalons, 25 S. of Rheims, and 78 N. E. of Paris. Lon. 21. 40. lat. 48. 54.
- VERUE, or VERRUA, a town of Italy, in Piedmont, and in the county of Atri. It was besieged by the French in 1705, who did not carry it till after six months, when it was reduced to a heap of ruins, because the commander had blown up all the fortifications. It was afterwards restored to the duke of Savoy. It is seated on a hill near the river Po, 17 miles S. W. of Casal, and 20 N. E. of Turin. Lon. 25. 41. lat. 45. 3.
- VERVIC, a town of the Netherlands, in Flanders, and in the Chatellanie of Ypres. It was formerly pretty considerable, but it has been almost ruined by the wars.

VIENNA, the capital city of the circle of Austria, in Germany, and of the whole German empire, where the emperor resides. The city itself is not very large, but the suburbs are so extensive, that in the whole it may contain about 60000 inhabitants. Between the city and the suburbs, all round the walls, there is an empty space about 600 paces in breadth, in which no one is allowed to build. The city contains no more than 1223 houses, all built of stone, with 29 churches, and 8 chapels. This is no wonder, when we consider, that the publick buildings, as well sacred as profane, take up about the sixth part of the city. Besides, the houses are almost as deep below the ground, as they are high above. Add to this, that they are generally 6 or 7 stories high, and that the middle story is always at the disposal of the archdutechs, wherein the lodges her officers, and domesticks, when there is not room for them in the palace. This city has six gates well defended, and 12 walled bastions, with strong ravelines, which have twice resisted the force of the Turks, namely in 1528, and in 1683. There are 30 streets, and 18 large market places. The Emperor Charles VI. rebuilt the ancient archducal palace, wherein the emperors formerly resided; he also erected a handsome opera-house. and no one is allowed to pass. It contains no more of stone, with columns. This is no to consider, that the well sacred as prophecy, the sixth part of the houses are almost ruined, as they are high, that they are high, and that ways at the distance, wherein the and domesticks, and for them in the six gates well defended bastions, with they have twice retaken by the Turks, namely in 1695, and 1703. There are 80 streets, and 1000 houses. The Emperor built the ancient palace in the emperors and erected a handsome palace, there

there are others in different streets, the principal of which are those of Eugene, Lichtenstein and Daun. In the suburbs there are a great number of houses of pleasure, with very handsome gardens.
The cathedral is built with free-stone, and is 114 yards long, and 48 broad, and the steeple is 447 feet high. In the room of a weather-cock, there was a Turkish crescent, in memory of the siege in 1589; but after the second siege, in 1663, they changed it for a golden cross, which three months after was thrown down by a storm. At present there is a black spread eagle, over which is a gilded cross. Joining to this church is the archbishop's palace, whose front is very fine. The university has a head called a Rector, who walks in processions immediately before the archbishops, unless he is a Jesuit. It had several thousand students, who when this city was besieged, mounted guard as they did in 1741. Besides this, there is the academy of Lower Austria, founded a few years since, and the archducal library is much frequented by foreigners, as it contains above 100000 printed books, and 10000 manuscripts. Diofcorides in Greek, with very large letters, is one of the most ancient in Europe: it is now in a large hall of the new academy. The academy of painting is remarkable for the fine pictures it produces. There are also two remarkable columns, of which one is called the conception of the immaculate Virgin, and the other St. Trinity, which cost 300000 florins. It is 66 feet high, in the form of a triangular pyramid, on the top of which are three figures of gilt bronze, representing the Trinity. The archducal treasury, and a cabinet of curiosity of the house of Austria, are as great rarities as any in the world. Leopoldstadt is one of the suburbs, and is seated on an island, formed by the Danube; here the Jews dwelt formerly, but they were banished in 1670, and the suburb turned into a church. That of Rossau is on the other side of the Danube, having a magnificent convent, several palaces, and very handsome gardens. Josephstadt was built by the emperor Joseph, where the fathers of the schools of piety have a very fine house, and where several noblemen have built houses of pleasure. Newstadt belongs to the Benedictines; and as the fathers of this convent are very humane to the inhabitants, there are now about 40000 therein; many persons of distinction pass the summer here. The great suburb called Weyden, is seated to the E. and contains a handsome church, and several fine palaces. There are two or three others, which are adorned in like manner. The inhabitants in general live in a splendid manner, and people of distinction have all sorts of wine at their tables, which they are very free with to strangers. There is a fort of a harbour on the Danube, where there are magazines of naval stores, and ships are fitted out to serve on that river against the Turks. It is seated at the place where the river Vienna, or Wien, falls into the Danube, 32 miles W. of Presburg, 180 S. W. of Cracow, 360 N. E. of Rome, 550 S. E. of Amsterdam, 625 S. E. of Paris, and 750 S. E. of London.

It is an archbishop's see. Lon. 34. 32.

VIENNE, a very ancient and considerable town of France, in Lower Dauphiny, and capital of Viennois, with an archbishop's see. The cathedral, though a Gothick building, is very handsome, and there is a chapter of St. Peter, whose canons must prove their nobility. It is seated on the river Rhone, 15 miles S. of Lyons, 40 N. W. of Grenoble, 72 S. W. of Geneva, and 265 S. E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 32. lat. 45. 32.

VIGEVANO, a town of Italy, in the dutchy of Milan, and capital of the Vigenasco, with a bishop's see, and a strong castle, seated on a rock. It was formerly the residence of the dukes of Milan, and is seated near the river Teffin, 12 miles S. E. of Novara, and 15 S. W. of Milan. Lon. 26. 24. lat. 45. 18.

VIGNAMONT, a town of Germany, in the bishoprick of Liege, 2 miles N. of Huy. Lon. 22. 35. lat. 50. 36.

VIGO, a town of Spain, in the kingdom of Galicia, with an old castle, a fort, and a good harbour. The town is surrounded with a single wall, that has four bastions, and is incapable of sustaining a long siege. The harbour is remarkable for a sea-fight, between Sir George Rooke, commander of the English and Dutch fleets, and a squadron of French men of war, with 13 Spanish galleons under their convoy. Admiral Hopson broke through the boom laid across the mouth of the harbour, and the English took four galleons, and five men of war, and the Dutch five galleons, and one large man of war. Fourteen men of war, and four galleons were destroyed, with a great quantity of plate, and other rich effects. However, a great deal of silver was taken, though a great part of it was carried on shore, before the engagement in October 1702. Besides, it must not be forgot, that while this was doing, the duke of Ormond, with a body of land-forces, drove the Spaniards from the castles which defended the harbour. It is seated on the Atlantick Ocean, 8 miles S. W. of Redondella, 12 N. W. of Tuy, and 105 N. W. of Madrid. Lon. 9. 14. lat. 42. 3.

• VIHERS, a town of France, in Anjou, where they carry on a great trade in cattle. It is seated on a lake, 20 miles S. of Angiers, and 162 S. W. of Paris. Lon. 17. 6. lat. 47. 8.

VILLA-VICIOSA, a strong town of Portugal, in the province of Alentejo, with the title of a marquissate, an old strong castle, and a handsome palace, where the dukes of Braganza formerly resided. Some call it Villa-Vizosa, and it is a pretty large place, fortified in the modern taste. In the suburb there is an ancient temple, originally built to the honour of Proserpine, as appears from the inscriptions. The soil about this town is extremely fertile in all things, and there are quarries of fine green marble. It sustained a famous siege against the Spaniards in 1667, which occasioned a battle in a neighbouring plain, the success of which placed the crown of Portugal on the head of the duke of Braganza. It is 17 miles S. W. of Elvas, 27 E. of Evora, and 83 S. E. of Lisbon. Lon. 10. 55. lat. 38. 38.

VIRGINIA, a country of N. America, planted by colonies from England. It is bounded on the S. by Carolina, on the N. by Maryland, on the E. by the Atlantick Ocean, and part of Maryland; but on the W. the bounds are not settled, there being at present a dispute with France relating thereto. It lies between 37 and 39 degrees of latitude; but the longitude cannot be determined for the above reason. The entrance into Virginia for shipping, is by the mouth of Che-apeake bay, which runs up into the land above 200 miles; likewise all ships must pass through it that are bound to Maryland. The principal rivers are James, York, Rappahannock, and Patowmack, all which are full of convenient and safe harbours. There are also many small rivers, some of which are capable of receiving the largest merchant ships. The soil of Virginia is various, and seems fitted for the production of vegetables, and trees of all sorts.
The land towards the mouths of the rivers is generally low, and is fit for rice, hemp, and Indian corn, though they are at present well stocked with many sorts of trees, from 30 to 70 feet high. The land higher up the rivers is generally level, and well watered with springs; but there are here and there some small hills. That near the sea is generally sandy, and without stones, for which reason they seldom shoe their horses. The richest lands lie near the branches of the rivers, and abound with various sorts of timber, surprisngly large. The names of the trees are not taken notice of, because, properly speaking, they all differ in some respect or other, from those in Europe. At the heads of the rivers there are mountains, valleys, hills, and plains, with different trees; and indeed not many years ago, the whole country seemed to be one continued wood, with plantations here and there, where the roots of the trees had been grubbed up.
But it is to be supposed, that as the country grows more populous, most of the trees will be cut down, and it will be well if they don't run into the other extream, and leave the country destitute of wood. There are also great varieties of earth for medicines, scowtering, making all sorts of earthen ware, and pipes; and there is also marl for manuring the land. There are others for painting, such as red, and yellow oker; and in the upper parts there are mines of antimony, talk, coal, with quarries of slate and stone for building, as also pebble-stones. However, the coal is at present of no use, for plenty of wood for firing grows at every man's door. In process of time there is great reason to believe, that there will be mines of various kinds found in the mountains, which at present the inhabitants do not think it worth while to enquire after. There are a great variety of fruits, some of which grow there naturally, and some have been transplanted from England, particularly peaches, which grow almost every where upon standard trees, and yet are exceeding good. There are very few towns in Virginia, or even villages, for the planters have houses scattered every where up and down the country, where they cultivate tobacco, which is the principal commodity. James-town was formerly the principal, but of late Williamsburg, where there is a college.

It consists of one long broad street, with a few houses at some distance from each other. The English inhabitants are of the church of England, and the clergy have a pretty good maintainance. In general it is an hospitable country, and they are so ready to entertain each other, and strangers, that a man may travel through it without any expence. They have a few forts, but their principal defence by land is a militia, and by sea, the men of war sent from England; for they have no ships of their own, though they have all conveniences for building them. However, there is little doubt to be made, but the face of affairs will be quite altered in a few years. There are now no original Americans, improperly called Indians in the eastern parts of Virginia, because, as it is supposed, they rather chuse to live by themselves, and follow their own customs. With regard to their complexion, stature, and manner of living, they resemble the other Americans. However, they have a language of their own, and indeed there is such a vast variety of different tongues, in different parts of America, that it is very hard to give any tolerable reason for this variation. However, this is not peculiar to them, for in Africa, where the negroes nearly resemble each other, their

their language is various, infomuch that those who understand any one, may travel 20 or 30 miles, and meet with those who have not a word made use of in the same sense. The original natives here are of a red copper colour, with coarse black hair, black eyes, and without beards, as they are in all other parts of America; and of this I am the more certain, because I have made it my business to enquire into, and examine these particulars upon the spot. Most authors tell us that they have beards, and that they pluck them out by the roots; but this is a mere fiction, which I can affirm upon my own knowledge.

VIRTON, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Luxemburg, on the frontiers of Lorraine, which is but a small place, tho' surrounded with walls. It is 22 miles W. of Luxemburg, and 10 N. E. of Montmedi. Lon. 23. 12. lat. 49. 20.

VISAPORE, a town of Asia, in the peninsula on this side the Ganges, and capital of a kingdom of the same name, which is by some called Decan. It is one of the largest cities in these parts, being 12 miles in circumference, and surrounded by very high walls, and a large ditch. The king's palace is in the middle of the town, from which it is separated by a double ditch, and is 3 miles in circumference. There are besides, 5 large suburbs, in which most of the merchants live. This kingdom was conquered by the Great Mogul in 1685, and has been tributary to him ever since. The extent of this kingdom is uncertain, but it is said the king can bring 100000 men into the field; there are a great number of precious stones found here, and the women are the most dissolute of any in these parts. It is seated on the river Mandua, or Mindoux, 100 miles E. of Dabul, and 150 N. E. of Goa. Lon. 94. 0. lat. 17. 30.

VISZT, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in the bishoprick of Liege, which was formerly fortified. It is seated on the Eastern shore of the river Maese, 7 miles N. of Liege. Lon. 23. 15. lat. 50. 54.

* VISSOGROD, a town of Great Poland, and in the palatinate of Mazovia, seated on the river Vistula, with a castle.

VISTULA, or WEISSEL, the largest river of Proper Poland. It rises in Mount Crapach, on the confines of Silesia and Upper Hungary, crosses Little Poland, a part of Masovia, of Great Poland and of Prussia, and falls by three mouths into the Baltick Sea below Dantzick. The Bug is the most considerable river that falls into this, which passes by Cracow, Sandomir, Czerfko, Warlaw, Ploczko, Dobrezin, Whadislau, Thorn, Culm, Marienburg, Elbing, and Dantzick.

VITERBO, an ancient, large, and handsome town of Italy, in the patrimony of St. Peter, with a bishop's see. It contains about 15,000 inhabitants, 16 parish churches, a great number of handsome palaces and fountains, and near it is a spring, which is so hot that it will not only boil an egg, but flesh that is put therein. It is seated at the foot of a mountain, in a country watered by several streams, and is the best place in the pope's territories. It is 20 miles S. of Orvieto, 35 N. by W. of Rome, and 20 S. W. of Narni. Lon. 29. 45. lat. 42. 25.

* VITRA, a town of France in Brittany, which carries on a great trade in linnen cloth, knit stockings, and gloves. It is seated on the river Vilaine, 20 miles E. of Rennes, 58 N. of Nants, and 52 S. E. of St. Malo. Lon. 16. 22. lat. 48. 6.

VITRI-LE-FRANCOIS, a considerable town of France, and one of the principal in Champagne, and in Pertois. It is well built, though the houses are only of wood, and there is a very fine square, in which the parish church stands. It is populous, and the inhabitants carry on a great trade. It is seated on the river Marne, over which there is a bridge, 15 miles S. E. of Chalons, 27 W. of Barle-duc, and 100 E. of Paris. Lon. 22. 18. lat. 48. 40.

* VITTEAUX, a town of France in Burgundy. It is seated on the river Braine among the mountains, where there are quarries of marble, 27 miles W. of Dijon, and 12 S. E. of Semur. Lon. 22. 2. lat. 57. 22.

VICTORIA, a considerable town of Spain, in Biscay, and capital of the province of Alava. It is surrounded with double walls, and in the principal square there are the town-house, two convents, several well-built houses, and the middle is adorned with a fine fountain. The large streets are bordered with fine trees, which are a good defence against the heat of the sun. There are very rich merchants here, who carry on a great trade in hardware, which they send to dif-

• VIVERAIS, a small province of France, in the government of Languedoc, bounded on the N. by Lyonsis, on the E. by the river Rhone, which separates it from Dauphiny, on the S. by the diocese of Uzes, and on the W. by Velay and Gevaudan. It is about 65 miles in length, and 40 in breadth, and is divided into the Upper and Lower. Viviers is the capital.

• VIVERO, a town of Spain in the kingdom of Galicia, seated at the foot of a steep mountain, at the foot of which is the small river Landrova, whose mouth forms a good and large harbour in the ocean, 20 miles N. W. of Mondonedo.
Lon. 10. 30. lat. 43. 45.

VIVIERS, an ancient town of France in Lower Languedoc, and capital of Viver-rais, with a bishop's see. It is a little dirty place, seated among the rocks, on the top of which is the cathedral church.
It stands on the river Rhone, 25 miles

UKRAINE, a large country of Europe, bounded on the N. by Poland and Mos-covy, on the S. by Little Tartary, and the country of the Oczakow-Tartars, and on the W. by Moldavia. This country is crossed by the river Nieper, or Boristhenes, which divides it into two parts. It is inhabited by the refuse of several nations, who came from the neighbourhood of the Black Sea, and among whom are Poles, Russians, Hungarians, Turks, and Tartars, who, however, pretend to be Christians. These vagabonds first inhabited the small islands of the Black Sea; and when they went to ravage the neighbouring countries, left their wives, children, and valuable things there; but multiplying apace, they enlarged their bounds, inasmuch that at present they can bring an army of 40,000 men into the field, who are called Cossacks. They are noted for their cruelties; and there is no sort of crime they are not ready to commit: however, these Cossacks are distinguished into two sorts, the Zaporovians, and the Donkians, which last have always been tributary to the Russian empire.

There are several other rivers besides the Nieper, and it would be an exceeding plentiful country, if well cultivated; but they are often infested with swarms of locusts, which devour every thing that is green, where they alight, and leave the fields and trees quite naked of grass and leaves.

ULADISLAW. See KNOWLADISLAW.

• ULCAMI, or ULCUMA, a kingdom of Africa on the coast of Guinea, between those of Ardres and Benin, where the traders get a great number of slaves.

ULIERBECK, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Brabant, 11 miles S. E. of Mechlin, or Malines, and 2 E. of Louvain. Lon. 22. 15. lat. 51. 0.

ULM, a free and imperial fortified town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and the chief of that order in this circle, where the archives thereof are deposited. There is a good college in this city; and in the cathedral church, which is a handsome structure, there are sixty-three copper vessels full of water, ready for the extinguishing of fire, and no less than 401 steps to the top of the steeple.
It is one of the largest and best built towns in Germany; and the townhouse is a very handsome edifice. It is seated on the Danube, where it receives the river Iller; and its inhabitants are Protestants. There is a handsome bridge over the Danube, which greatly favours the trade of the inhabitants in linnen, sustians, hardware, and wool. The duke of Bavaria became master of it in 1702, by a stratagem; but after the battle of Hochstedt in 1704, the Bavarians surrendered it by capitulation; but the fortifications had greatly suffered. It is 35 miles W. of Augsburg, 47 S. of Stutgard,

ULMEN, a town of Germany in the circle of the Lower Rhine, and in the archbishoprick of Mentz, on the frontiers of the dutchy of Deux-ponts, 30 miles N. E. of Triers. Lon. 24. 40. lat. 50. 14.

• ULPHO, a village in Cumberland, with two fairs, on Monday before Easter, and June 5, for cloth and yarn.

ULSTER, a province of Ireland, bounded on the E. by St. George's channel, on the W. by the Northern Ocean, on the N. by the Western Ocean, on the S. by the province of Leinster, and on the S. W. by that of Connaught, being about 116 miles in length, and 100 in breadth. The principal rivers are, the Banne, the Lough-foyle, the Swilly, the Mewry-Water, and the Maine. It abounds with large lakes, and the soil in general is fruitful in corn and grafs, and there are plenty of horses, sheep, and beeves. The waters are deep, and yield plenty of fish, particularly salmon. This province contains one archbishoprick, six bishopricks, 10 counties, 115,539 inhabitants, 55 baronies, 29 boroughs that return parliament-men, 30 castles, and 365 parishes. The principal place is Londonderry.

UITZERY, a town of Germany, in Lower Saxony, and dutchy of Lunenburg. It had a famous convent, which was secularised in 1531, and the benefices were chiefly applied to pious uses. It is seated on the river Ilmenau, 25 miles S. of Lunenburg, and is subject to the elector of Hanover. Lon. 28. 10. lat. 53. 15.

ULVERSTONE, a town of Lancashire, with a market on Thursdays, and two fairs, on Holy Thursday, and the first Thursday after October 23, for pedlars ware. The country people call it Ouston, and it is seated between the branches of a river which, at a small distance, falls into the sea. It is a pretty good place, and the market is well supplied with corn, sheep, fish, and other provisions. It is 18 miles N. W. of Lancaster, and 240 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 40. lat. 54. 12.

UMA, a town of Sweden in Western Bothnia, seated on the river Uma, in the gulph of Bothnia, which gives name to part of Swedish Lapland, in which it has its source. The houses are built of wood, and was twice burnt down by the Russians in the late wars. It is the residence of the governor of West Bothnia, and is 280 miles N. of Stockholm. Lon. 38. 2. lat. 63. 48.

* UMAGO, a town of Italy, in Istria, seated on the western coast between the gulph of Largon and the mouth of the river Quieto, with a harbour. It belongs to the Venetians.

* UMAGIAGUA, a town of Africa, in the kingdom of Morocco, and in a province of the same name, advantageously seated on the top of a mountain.

UMBRIA. See SPOLETO.

UMRIATICO, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Italian Calabria, with a bishop's see. It is now reduced to a village, having no more than 50 houses. It is seated on the river Lipuda, 17 miles N. W. of St. Severino. Lon. 34. 55. lat. 39. 59.

* UNDERSWEN, or UNDERSEEN, a hard-some town of Germany, in the canton of Bern, and in Oberland. It is charmingly seated on the lake Thoun, and near it is the famous cavern of St. Pat. It is 25 miles S. S. E. of Bern, and 30 S. E. of Friburg. Lon. 25. 15. lat. 46. 40.

UNDERWALD, a canton of Switzerland, and the sixth in rank. It is bounded on the N. by the canton of Lucern, and by the lake of the four cantons, on the E. by the high mountains, which separate it from the canton of Ur, on the S. by the mountains Brunick, which part it from the canton of Bern, and on the W. by that of Lucern. It takes its name from a large forest of oaks, which is nearly in the middle of the country, and runs from N. to S. It is about 25 miles in length, and 17 in breadth, and is divided into two parts, that above the forest, and that below it; for this reason there are two councils, two justices, and two land-ammanics. It has no towns nor bailiwicks; and the chief advantage of the inhabitants arises from cattle, and the fish taken in five small lakes. They are all Roman Catholics; and the grand council is composed of 58 members.

* UNDERWOOD, a village in Devonshire, with one fair, on July 5, for horned cattle and woollen cloth.

UNGHWAR, a town of Upper Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name, in an island formed by the river Ungh. It is strong by situation among the mountains of Crapach, and is 40 miles N. E. of Tockay, and 47 E. of Cassovia, horned cattle, pulse, and skins, from Denmark; wood, and dried fish, from Norway; iron, cotton, and timber for ships, from Sweden; honey and wax, from Poland; corn from Prussia; hemp, leather, tallow, pitch, and firs, from Russia; whalebone from Greenland; herrings from the North Sea; wine and fruits from Portugal and Italy. They send their merchant-ships within the freights of Gibraltar, to Spain, France, Italy, and the Levant; as also to Guinea, the East-Indies, Moscovy, and several other parts: however, their principal trade depends upon the East-India company, which is the most considerable in the world, and was first established in 1602. It is said they have 15,000 troops in the East-Indies, with 160 ships, and 80,000 persons to man them, and for their service, whose names are registered at an office in Amsterdam. When any foreigners are in their service, and die abroad, the company takes care their effects shall go to the right heir. The goods and merchandises that they bring from the East-Indies, are almost universally known, and therefore need not be here enumerated. The herring-fishery is another great advantage, which is chiefly about the north parts of Scotland, where they commonly send 1000 sail of ships. One part of the fish is employed in victualling their ships, and the rest they send to other nations. It is said the value of this trade to the Dutch is worth 6,000,000 of florins per annum, each of which is one shilling and nine pence English. The forces of the United Provinces, in times of peace, are about 35,000 men, for guards and garrisons, and for their men of war. In time of war they may be about 50,000; but if occasion requires, they can raise 80,000, and there was a time when they had 100,000 in their pay, and they chiefly consist of men from other nations. With regard to sea affairs, they have very good mariners of their own. In times of peace they usually had 30 men of war to serve as convoys, which were ready to raise their anchors at the first signal; but of late their naval force has been greatly neglected, and they have suffered their principal vessels almost to rot in their harbours. With regard to their merchant-ships they have always great numbers, and they are generally said to have had 25,000 large vessels, and 300,000 small ones of different kinds. The revenues of this republic are raised by taxes, duties, and excises, paid by all the inhabitants in general, inasmuch that there is not a dish of meat brought to the table, but what is said to be taxed ten times over. The duties upon merchandises bring in considerable sums; but these must be always in proportion to their trade. From these, and other resources, the Dutch are said to raise annually between 2 and 3,000,000 l. sterling in times of peace; and in the time of war they have generally a poll-tax, a land-tax, and hearth-money, which considerably increase the revenue. With regard to their religion, there is no sect in the world but what is tolerated, inasmuch that there are said to be 72 in all; however, none but those of the established religion, which is the reformed, are permitted to be concerned in state-affairs. The Dutch are not all very good Christians; for in Japan they are contented to lay aside the open profession of their faith; and in many other instances they seem to be of opinion, that godliness is gain. They have begged at no cruelties to attain their ends; of which we have an instance in the wresting of the Spice-islands from the English, and which they now possess without a competitor, inasmuch that all the trade for spices goes through their hands.

UNNA, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and in the county of Mark. It was formerly a considerable Hanseatick town, but now belongs to the king of Prussia, and is seated on a small river, 8 miles N. E. of Dortmund, 10 S. W. of Ham, and 35 S. of Munster. Lon. 25. 20. lat. 51. 40.

UNNA, a river of Turkey in Europe, which runs through Croatia, passes by Wihitz and Dubitza, and falls a little after into the Save.

VOIGHTLAND, a territory of Germany, in Upper Saxony, and one of the four circles of the marquisate of Misnia. It is in the form of a triangle, and is bounded on the E. by Bohemia, on the N. by the dutchy of Altenburg, and on the W. by Thuringia and Franconia. The principal place is Zwickaw, and it belongs to the elector of Saxony.

* VOIRON, a town of France, in Dauphiny, and in the election of Grenoble, with the title of a barony.

VOELMARK, or WOLICKMARK, a town of Germany, in the circle of Austria, and in the dutchy of Carinthia, which is a pretty handsome place, and is seated on the river Drave, 26 miles E. of Clagenfurt. Lon. 32. 15. lat. 47. 0.

VOLANO, a sea-port town of Italy, in the Pope's territories, and dutchy of Ferrara. It is seated on the gulph of Venice, at one of the mouths of the Po, 40 m. E. of Ferrara. Lon. 30. 35. lat. 44. 50.

VOLHINIA, a palatinate of Poland, bounded on the N. by that of Brzescia, on the E. by Kiowia, on the S. by Podolia, and on the W. by Belz, being about 300 miles in length, and 150 in breadth. It consists chiefly of plains, which are watered by a great number of rivers, that would be very fertile if they were cultivated; but they are thin of people, on account of the frequent incursions of the Tartars. Luck is the capital town.

* VOLLENHOVEN, a town of the United Provinces in Overysfel, and capital of a territory of the same name on the Zueder-zee, with a strong castle, 5 miles from Steenwick, and 12 from Zwol. Lon. 23. 32. lat. 52. 42.

* VOLLORE, a town of France, in Auvergne, and in the election of Clermont, with the title of a county.

* VOLO, an ancient town of Turkey, in Asia, in the province of Janna, with a strong citadel and a fort. It was taken by the Venetians in 1655, who almost ruined it, but it is now in some measure re-established. It is seated on a gulph of the same name, where there is a good harbour, 35 miles S. E. of Larissa. Lon. 41. 18. lat. 39. 38.

VOITA, a river of Africa, in Guinea, which runs from N. to S. and falls into the ocean, E. of Acra.

VOLTERRA, an ancient and considerable town of Italy, in Tuscany, and in the territory of Pifa, with a bishop's see.

It is surrounded with strong walls, contains several antiquities, and is noted for its medicinal waters. It is seated on a mountain, 32 miles S. E. of Pifa, 30 E. of Leghorn, and 30 S. W. of Florence. Lon. 28. 35. lat. 43. 22.

VOLTURNO, a river of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, which rises in the Appennine mountains, passes by Ifernina, in the county of Molise, then to Capua, in the Terra-di-Lavoro, and falls into the gulph of Galeta.

VOLTURARA, a town of Italy, in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Capitana-ta, with a bishop's see. It is seated at the foot of the Appennines, 27 miles N. E. of Benevento, and 55 N. E. of Naples. Lon. 32. 45. lat. 41. 30.

VOORN, an island of the United Provinces, in South Holland, between the mouths of the river Maese; and Brill is the capital town. This island, with that of Gocree and Overflacke, which are near it, make the territory called Voornland, which was anciently part of Zealand.

* VOREPE, a town of France in Dauphiny, and in the election of Grenoble.

* VOROTINSK, a town of the Russian empire, and capital of a province of the same name in Moscovite Russia. It is seated on the river Occa, 100 miles S. W. of Moscow. Lon. 56. 0. lat. 53. 30. The province is bounded on the N. by the river Ugra, and by the dutchy of Rezan, on the E. by the same, on the S. by the country of the Cossacks, and on the W. by the dutchy of Severia.

VOSGES, or VAUGES, a large chain of mountains, covered with wood, which separate Alsace and the Franche Comtè from Lorrain, reaching as far as the forest of Ardenes. They give name to a province of Lorrain, which is on the frontiers of Alsace.

mines of iron and lead. Stockholm is the capital town.

* UPOTTERY, a village in Devonshire, with one fair, on Oct. 24, for bullocks, sheep, and toys.

UPPINGHAM, a town of Rutlandshire, with a market on Wednesdays, and two fairs, on March 7, and July 7, for horses, horned cattle, and coarse linen cloth. It is seated on an eminence, and is a pretty compact well-built place, with a very good free-school, and an hospital. It is 6 miles S. of Oakham, 35 S. by W. of Nottingham, and 8 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 50. lat. 52. 36.

UPSAL, a considerable town of Sweden, in Upland, with a famous university, and an archbishop's see. The streets are long, and so strait, that from the market-place the four gates of the town may be seen. It has neither walls nor ramparts, but there are magnificent palaces. In 1702 there was a fire, which reduced three public buildings to ashes; namely, the ancient royal palace, which is now level with the ground; the cathedral church, which had two handsome steeples and clocks. These are now rebuilt, but the steeples are not so high as before. The other was the royal college of the university, which makes much the same appearance as it did before. The public library, which is one of the handsomest buildings of these northern countries, escaped the flames, and it contains above 60,000 volumes. The archbishop is primate of the kingdom, and consecrates the king in the cathedral church. It is seated on the river Sala, which divides it in two, and is 27 miles N. W. of Stockholm, and 125 S. W. of Abo. Lon. 39. 50. lat. 59. 53.

UPTON, a town in Worcestershire, with a market on Thursdays, and four fairs, on Thursday after Midlent, and on Thursday in Whintun-week, for horses, cattle, and sheep; and on July 10, on Thursday before September 21, for horses, sheep, and leather. It is seated on the river Severn, over which there is a bridge, and is a well-built place, said to be of great account in the time of the Romans. It is 11 miles S. of Worcester, and 101 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 20. lat. 52. 6.

URABA, a province of S. America, in Terra Firma, lying on a gulph of the same name in the government of Cartagena, to the E. of the province of Darien, URANIBURG, was formerly a magnificent castle of Denmark, in the little island of Huen, in the middle of the Sound. It was built by Tycho-Brahe, a celebrated astronomer, who made his observations there, which are since published. The castle is now in ruins.

URBINO, a town of Italy, in the territory of the Pope, and capital of the duchy of Urbino, with an old citadel, an archbishop's see, and a handsome palace, where the dukes formerly resided. The houses are very well built, and great quantities of fine earthen ware are made here. It is seated on a mountain between the rivers Metro and Foglia, 50 miles S. of Rimini, 50 N. W. of Ancona, 58 E. of Florence, and 122 N. E. of Rome. Lon. 30. 16. lat. 43. 47.

URBINO, the duchy of, a province of Italy, in the territory of the Church, bounded on the N. by the gulph of Venice, on the S. by Perugino and Umbria, on the E. by the mark or marche of Ancona, and on the W. by Tuscany and Romagna, being about 55 miles in length, and 45 in breadth. Here is great plenty of game, as well as fish; but the air is not very wholesome, nor is the soil fertile. Urbino is the capital town.

* URCEISE, ST. a town of France, in Auvergne, and in the diocese of St. Flur.

* URGANTZ, or JURGANTZ, a town of Asia, in the country of the Turkomans, 240 miles E. of the Caspian Sea, and 70 S. of the lake Aral. It was formerly a very considerable place, having been 4 miles in circumference. The houses were all built with mud walls; and there was one bazar, or long covered street, where merchandises were sold; but in 1746 a traveller, who saw it, affirms it is now in ruins, and that no other public buildings remain but a mosque. Lon. 78. e. lat. 40. 55.

UTOXETER, a town of Staffordshire, with a market on Wednesdays, and three fairs, on May 6, and July 31, for horn-ed cattle and sheep, and on September 19, for strong black colts and horned cattle. It is pleasantly seated on a rising ground near the river Dove, among excellent pastures, for feeding and breeding cattle. It is pretty large, but not very well built, and its market is the greatest in this part of England, for corn, cattle, hogs, sheep, butter, and cheese. It is 14 miles E. of Stafford, and 125 N. N.
W. of London. Lon. 15. 45. lat. 52. 50.

UTRECHT, a handsome, pleasant, and celebrated town of the United Provinces, capital of a province of the same name, with a famous university. It is large, well fortified, is of a square form, and about 3 miles in circumference, without its four suburbs, which are considerable.
The steeple of the cathedral is very high, and is the handiomest in the United Provinces. There are a great number of churches, as also hospitals for orphans and foundlings, and old men and women. All the avenues to this city are very handsome, and the environs are full of gardens, walks, and groves, which, added to the purity of the air, render Utrecht one of the most agreeable places to live in in these parts, and accordingly a great many people of distinction resort hither. Here the peace was concluded in 1713, between France England, Portugal, Prussia, Savoy, and Holland; and here the union of the Seven Provinces was begun in 1579. It is seated on the ancient channel of the Rhine, 20 miles E. of Amsterdam, 27 N. E. of Rotterdam, and 35 W. of Nimeguen. Lon. 22. 36. lat. 52. 8.

• WADDAHS, a savage people of Asia, in the island of Ceylon. They live by themselves, and neither till the land nor feed cattle; but they depend entirely upon their bows and arrows for subsistence, only they go in quest of honey, which they meet with in the hollow trees. They have neither village nor house, and they dwell near the rivers, under large trees. They go entirely naked, except a piece of cloth which they wrap round their middles. They have a sort of worship, but it is hard to say what it is, though the most civilized of them have a sort of temples, erected to some particular god. They preserve the flesh of the game that they kill, by putting it into hollow trees with honey, and then they cover the hole through which they put it, with clay.

WADENBRIDGE. See WARENBRIDGE.

of Yorkshire, with two markets, on Thursdays and Saturdays, and two fairs, on July 4, and 5, for horses, and hardware, and on November 12, for horses.
It is an ancient and large town, seated on the river Colder, whose houses are built with stone; and there is a handsome stone bridge, on which Edward IV. built a fine chapel, in remembrance of those who lost their lives in battle. It is also noted for its cloth manufactory, and the markets are large for cloth, corn, and provisions. It is 28 miles S. W. of York, and 171 N. W. by N. of London. Lon. 16. 13. lat. 53. 40.

WALACHIA, a province of Turkey, in Europe. and in Upper Hungary, which is bounded on the N. by Moldavia and Transilvania, on the E. and S. by the river Danube, and on the W. by Trausilvania, being 225 miles in length, and 125 in breadth. In the last war between the Turks and Christians, these last, having lost the fatal battle of Crotzka, they were obliged to abandon the whole province to the Turks, in consequence of the treaty of Belgrade, concluded in 1739. It abounds in good horses and cattle, and there are mines of several kinds. The inhabitants consist of Hungarians, Saxons, and original natives, who are very indolent; and there are but few who take the trouble to till the ground. However, the soil is so fertile, that it is capable of producing any thing; and there are good pastures with wine, oil, and all manner of European fruits. The inhabitants are chiefly of the Greek church, and their religion is tolerated, as in all other parts of the Turkish dominions.

WALCHEREN, an island of the Netherlands, in the United Provinces, and the principal of Zealand. It is separated from the islands of N. and S. Beveland, by a narrow channel, and from Dutch Flanders by the mouth of the river Scheld, being surrounded on the other side by the German Ocean. It is about 9 miles in length, and 8 in breadth, and lying very low, it is subject to inundations; but it is pretty fruitful, and has good arable and pasture lands. The capital town of this island, and of the whole province, is Middleburg.

WALCOURT, or WALENCOURT, a town of the Netherlands, in the county of Namur, and on the confines of Hainault, between the rivers Maese and Sambre.
The French attempted to take it in 1689, but were obliged to retreat with great loss. It is seated on the river Eure, 12 miles S. of Charleroy, 25 E. S. E. of Mons, and 27 S. W. of Namur. Lon.
22. 0. lat. 50. 13.

WALDECK, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, and capital of a county of the same name, with a strong castle. It is seated on the river Stein-WALDSCHUT, a strong town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and in Klegow, and one of the four forest-towns, subject to the house of Austria. It is seated at the place where the river Schult falls into the Rhine, at the entrance of the Black Forest, 17 miles W. of Schaffhausen, 22 N. W. of Zurich, and 8 N. E. of Lauffenburg. Lon. 25. 57. lat. 47. 38.

WALES, a principality in the W. of England, comprehending 12 counties, namely Anglesea, Carnarvonshire, Denbighshire, Flintshire, Merionethshire, and Montgomeryshire in N. Wales, Brecknockshire, Cardiganhire, Carmarthenshire, Glamorganhire, Pembrokehire, and Radnorshire, in S. Wales. This country is for the most part mountainous, and yet its produce is sufficient for the maintenance of the inhabitants. It is the country where the ancient Britons fled, when this island was invaded by the victorious Saxons, who are now called Welch, and continue to preserve their own language. The western part is bounded by St. George's channel, and the Irish Sea, on the S. by the Bristol channel, on the N. by the Irish Sea, and on the E. by the counties of Chester, Salop, Hereford, and Monmouth. It contains 751 parishes, 58 market towns, and above 300000 people. The air is clear and sharp, but the cattle are small, and provisions in general good and cheap. Wales is particularly remarkable for goats, which naturally delight in hilly countries; and for fewel, they use wood, coals, and turfs. They have several creeks and harbours for ships, but the most remarkable is Milford haven; because 1000 vessels may safely ride in it at a time. It is watered with many rivers, of which the principal are the Dee, Wye, Uik, Conway, Cluyd, and Twy. The principal towns must be sought for under the names of the counties.

WALES NEW, a country of N. America, on the S. W. coast of Hudfon's bay, now in possession of the Hudfon's bay company.

WALKENREID, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and territory of Thuringia. It is seated on the river Sorge, in the county of Hoenstein, and on the confines of the principality of Calenberg, 20 miles S. W. of Halberstadt. Lon. 28. 20. lat. 51. 37.

* WALLEBURG, a town of Switzerland, in the canton of Basle or Basl, with a castle, built on a high rock. It is seated at the foot of Mount Jura, and is an important passage. It is 15 miles S. of Basl, 10 N. N. W. of Arburg, and 15 N. E. of Sclure. Lon. 25. 12. lat. 47. 28.

WALLINGFORD, a town in Berkshire, with two markets, on Thursdays, and Fridays, and four fairs on Tuesday before Easter, for pleasure, June 24, for horses, September 29, for hiring servants, and December 17, for fat hogs. It is seated on the river Thames, over which there is a handsome stone bridge, and is a place of great antiquity, having been surrounded with a wall a mile and a half in circumference. It had also a strong castle, but is now demolished. It had likewise four parish churches, two of which were demolished in the late civil wars. It is now a corporation, sends two members to parliament, has a free school, and a handsome market-house, in which the magistrates keep the sessions. It is 14 miles N. of Reading, and 46 W. of London. Lon. 16. 27. lat. 51. 36.

WALFO,

WALFO, a town of Hungary, in Selavonia, and capital of a county of the same name, with a fortified castle. It is feated on the river Walpo, 20 miles N. W. of Eiseck, and 100 S. of Buda. Lon.
56. 20. lat. 45. 33.

WALSALL, a town of Staffordshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and three fairs, on February 24, Whit-Tuesday, and Tuesday before October 10, for horses and cattle. It is feated on the side of a hill, and is a corporation, with pretty good houses. It has several manufactories in iron, such as nails, bridle-bitts, flirups, spurs, and other things of that kind; and it has been also greatly noted for bellows. It is 15 miles S. of Stafford, 113 N. W. of London. Lon. 15.
35. lat. 52. 37.

WALSHAM, a town in Norfolk, with a market on Tuesdays, but no fairs. It is feated upon a level not far from the sea, and is a pretty handsome place, 7 miles E. of Norwich, and 116 N. N. E. of London. Lon. 19. 9. lat. 52. 50.

WALSHAM NORTH, a town in Norfolk, with a market on Thursdays, and a fair on Ascension day, for bullocks and horses. It has one church, but part of the steeple has been down for several years, and about 400 houses, with pretty good streets, paved and tolerably wide. Lon. 19. 5. lat. 52. 50.

WALSINGHAM, a town in Norfolk, with a market on Fridays, and one fair on Whit-Monday, for horses and pedlars ware. It is feated near the sea, and is but a small place to what it was formerly; it having been much frequented by pilgrims, who came to pay their devotions at a chapel dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and where there is a spring called the Virgin Mary's, or the Holy-Well; and upon a stone at the edge of it is a cross, where the people used to kneel, and to throw in a piece of gold, while they wished for any thing they wanted.
Here are also the ruins of an old abbey, and a fryery, both demolished in the reign of Henry VIII. Here is one church, a Quaker's meeting, and about 300 houses, mostly mean ones; the streets are not paved, and generally very dirty. It is 22 miles N. W. of Norwich, and 116 N. N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 35. lat.
52. 56.

WALTHAM on the WOULD, a town in Leicestershire, with a market on Thursdays, and one fair on September 19, for horses, horned cattle, hogs, and goods of all sorts. It is a pretty good town, feated in a wholesome air; but the market is almost disused. It is 19 miles N.

E. of Leicester, and 91 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 49. lat. 52. 47.

WALTHAM, a town in Hampshire, with a market on Fridays, and three fairs, on the second Friday in May, for horses and toys, July 24, for cheese and toys, and the first Friday after October 10, for horses, stockings, and toys. It is 14 miles N. N. W. of Portsmouth, 8 S. S. W. of Winchester, and 65 W. by S. of London. Lon. 16. 15. lat. 50.
57.

WALTHAM ABBEY, a town in Essex, with a market on Tuesdays, and two fairs, on May 14, and September 25 and 26, for horses, cows, and hogs. It is so called from its abbey, and is feated on the river Lee, where it forms several small islands. It is a pretty good place, considering it is so near London, from which it is only 12 miles N. by E. Lon.
17. 35. lat. 51. 40.

WALTHAM ST. LAWRENCE, a village in Berkshire, 5 miles S. W. of Maidenhead, with one fair on August 10, for horses, and cattle.

WALTINBRUCH, a town of Germany, in Suabia, and in the dutchy of Wirtemburg, feated on the right bank of the river Aich.

WALTON ON THAMES, a village in Surry, 8 miles W. of Kingston, with one fair on Wednesday in Easter week, for horses, cattle and sheep. There is now a bridge over the Thames at this place, which has been lately built.

WANBOROW, a village in Surry, three miles W. of Guilford, with one fair on September 4, for horses, cattle, and sheep.

WANGEN, an imperial town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and is but a small place. The inhabitants are Papists, and carry on a great trade in paper and hard-ware. It is feated on the river Ober-arg, 17 miles N. E. of Lindaw, and 32 N. E. of Constance. Lon. 27.
36. lat. 47. 35.

WANGEN, a town of France, in Lower Alsace, in the bailiwick of Wasalone.
It is feated on the side of a mountain, and is furrounded with a wall three feet thick, and is 8 miles N. W. of Strasburg.
Lon. 26. 14. lat. 48. 38.

WANTAGE, a town of Berksire, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs, on the first Saturday in March, July 18, and X x x x Septem-

September 17, for hores, cows, calves, hogs, cheefe, and hops. It is feated on a branch of the river Ock, and was formerly noted for the cheapness of butcher's meat in its market. It is 12 miles S. by W. of Oxford, and 59 W. of London. Lon. 16. 15. lat. 51. 34.

WARADIN, a large and strong town of Upper Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name, with a strong citadel, and a bishop's see. It was taken by the Turks in 1660, but the Imperialists retook it in 1692. It is feated on the river Sebes-Keres, 17 miles N. of Julia, 112 N. of Belgrade, and 112 E. of Buda. Lon. 39. 0. lat. 46. 55.

* WARADIN, a strong town of Slavonia, and capital of a county of the same name, belonging to the house of Austria. It is feated on the river Drave, on the confines of Styria, 30 miles S. W. of Kaniska, and 32 N. of Zagrab. Lon. 34. 40. lat. 46. 18.

* WARBERG, a town of Sweden, in W. Gothland, and in the province of Halland, 30 miles S. of Gettenburg, with a castle and a harbour. Lon. 39. 35. lat. 57. 15.

WARBORG, a town of Germany, in Westphalia, in the bishoprick of Paderborn, and on the frontiers of the landgravate of Hesse. It is moderately large, having two suburbs, and was formerly imperial and hanseatick, but now belongs to the bishopric of Paderborn, and is feated on the river Dymel, 20 miles S. E. of Paderborn. Lon. 26. 25. lat. 51. 35.

WARFBRIDGE, or WADDERIDGE, a town in Cornwall, whose market is difused, but it has three fairs, on May 12, June 22, and October 10, for hores, oxen, sheep, cloth, and a few hops. It is feated on the river Camel, and is noted for its handsome bridge over that river, which is the handsomest and strongest in the county, being supported by about 20 arches. It is 20 miles W. of Launceston, and 237 W. by S. of London. Lon. 12. 19. lat. 50. 37.

* WARDE, a town of Denmar, in Jutland, 15 miles from Ripen, feated at the mouth of a river of the same name.

WARDHUYS, a sea port town of Norwegian Lapland, feated on an island of the same name, which is very small, and lies near the continent. It has an old fort where the governor resides, and has a street consisting of poor cottages. The government of this province extends from the gulph of Oltrastron to Muskvite Lapland, and comprehends the most northern part of Norway, which produces little or nothing, except a few pastures. The town is 120 miles E. N. E. of the N. Cape. Lon. 50. 5. lat. 70. 35.

WARE, a town in Hertfordshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and one fair on the first Tuesday in September, for hores, and other cattle. It is feated on the river Lea, and is a handsome thoroughfare place, with several good inns; and is particularly noted for its great bed, and for the new river which begins to be cut not far from thence, which brings water to London for the service of that city. It is 35 miles S. by E. of Huntingdon, and 21 N. of London. There are corn and malt almost constantly sent from thence to London, by the river Lea, which falls into the Thames near Bow. Lon. 17. 35. lat. 51. 50.

WAREHAM, a town of Dorsetshire, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs, on April 7, July 5, and September 11, for hogs and cheefe. It is feated between the rivers Frome and Biddle, where they fall into Luckford Lake, and where there is a good harbour for ships. It was a very large place, and had several churches, now reduced to three; and it also had a wall and a castle. It has suffered so much by the various turns of fortune, that it is now only the shadow of what it was, and its harbour is choaked up; however, it still sends two members to parliament, and is 20 miles E. of Dorchester, and 109 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 20. lat. 50. 45.

* WAREHORN, a village in Kent, 6 miles S. of Ashford, with one fair on October 2, for hores, cattle, and pedlars ware.

* WARKA, a handsome town of Poland, in the dutchy of Masovia, and in the palatinate Czerik. It is feated on the river Pilsa. Lon. 49. 30. lat. 51. 53.

WARKWORTH, a village in Northumberland, 5 miles S. E. of Alnwick, feated on the river Cocket, with a castle, in which is a chapel cut out of a rock. It has two fairs, on April 25, if on Thursday, if not, on Thursday before, for hats, shoes, linnen, and woollen-cloth; and on November 22, if on Thursday, if not, on Thursday before, for horned cattle, shoes, hats, and pedlars ware.

 of the river Willyborne, and was formerly a place of good account; and is now a pretty large town, having one church, with a chapel, and several good inns. It is 22 miles N. W. of Salisbury, and 99 W. by S. of London. Lon. 15. 19. lat.
 51. 13.

WARNEMUNDE, a town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and in the dutchy of Mecklenburg, and is a fortified bulwark, feated on the Baltick Sea, at the mouth of the river Warnie. The Swedes had a house here, to take toll, but in 1710, when their affairs were upon the decline, the duke of Mecklenburg put a garrison in it. It is 26 miles N. E. of Wismar. Lon. 29. 50. lat.
 54. 30.

WARNETON, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Flanders, which is but poorly fortified. It is feated on the river Lys, 5 miles from Ypres, and S N.
 W. of Lille. Lon. 20. 25. lat. 50. 47.

• WARNHAM, a village in Suffex, 2 miles N. W. of Horsham, with one fair on Whit-Tuesday, for peliars ware.

WARRINGTON, a town in Lancashire, with a market on Wednesdays, and two fairs, on July 18, and November 13, for horses, horned cattle, and cloth. It is feated on the river Mersey, over which there is a curious stone bridge, which leads into Cheshire. It is a large handsome place, whose market is well supplied with corn, cattle, provision, and fish. It is 53 miles N. N. W. of Newcastle under Lyne, 29 S. of Preston, and 182 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 3.
 lat. 52. 23.

WARSAW, a large and populous town of Poland, and capital of Mazovia. It is surrounded with walls and ditches, and defended by a fort. It contains a magnificent palace, where the king usually resides; besides which, there is another, which goes by the name of Casimir. It is divided into the Old and New Town, to which may be added the suburbs of Cracow and Praga, which are both very well built. It is looked upon as the capital of Poland, because it is the residence of the kings, the place where they are elected, and where the diets meet.
 The election is made in a field called Colo, about a mile from the town, in the middle of which there is a building like a hall. It is feated at the end of large open fields, on the river Wislula, 160 miles S. E. of Dantzick, 112 N. by E. of Cracow, and 300 N. E. of Vienna.

 Lon. 38. 45. lat. 52. 14.

* WARSOP, a village in Nottinghamshire, 4 miles S. of Mansfield, with two fairs, on Whit-Monday, and November 17, for cattle and horses.

WARSOVIA. See MAZOVIA.

WARTA, a river of Poland, which has its source in the palatinate of Cracow, and crosses those of Sirad, Kalich, and Pof-nania; and having received the Netic, on the confines of the marquisate of Brandenburg, it proceeds to discharge itself in the Oter at Cuirin.

WARTA, a town of Lower Poland, in the palatinate of Sirad, feated on the river Warta, 12 miles below Sirad, and 57 S.
 E. of Pofna. Lon. 40. 35. lat. 52.
 18.

WARTENBURG, a town of Germany, in Silesia, and capital of a lordship, of the same name, near the confines of Poland.
 It was surrounded with walls and ditches, and defended by a castle; but in 1742, it was entirely reduced to ashes, except the castle. It is 20 miles N. E. of Breslaw. Lon. 34. 55. lat. 51.
 22.

WARWICK, the capital town of Warwickshire, with a market on Saturdays, and four fairs, on May 12, July 5, and November 8, for horses, cows, and sheep; and on September 4, for horses, cows, sheep, and cheese. It is feated on a rock near the river Avon, and all the passages to it are cut through the rock: besides, there is no way to go to this place, but over a water. It was fortified with a wall, which is now in ruins; but it has still a strong and stately castle, which is the seat of lord Brooke. It is a large corporation, contains 2 parish churches, and in that of St. Mary's, there are feveral handsome tombs. The houses are well built, and the town principally consists of one regular built street, at each end of which is an ancient gate; and the assizes and general quarter sessions are held here. It is adorned with a good free school, and a market-house. It has also a noted hospital called St. James's, for 12 decayed gentlemen, who have each 20 pounds a-year, and the chaplain 50. It is well inhabited, enjoys a good trade, and sends two members to parliament. It is 59 miles N. E. of Glou-ceester, 18 S. W. of Coventry, and 34 N. W. of London. Lon. 16. 3.
 lat. 52. 20.

WARWICKSHIRE, an English county, 47 m. in length, and 27 in breadth, which is bounded on the W. by Worcestershire, on the S. by Oxford and Gloucestershires, on the E. by Northampton and Leicestershires, and on the N. by Staffordshire. It contains 21,970 houses, 131,800 inhabitants, 153 parishes, 17 market-towns, and sends six members to parliament, two for Warwick, two for Coventry, and two for the county. The air is mild and healthful, and the soil fertile, producing corn and pastures, particularly in the S. part called the Vale of the Red Horse. The commodities are much the same as in other counties; and it has iron-mines. Warwick is the shire town.

WARWICK, or VARVICK, a town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Flanders, seated on the river Lys, 8 miles S. E. of Ypres, which is of very small importance. Lon. 22. 30. lat. 54. 40.

• WASGOW, a territory of France, which comprehends a great part of Lower Alsace.

• WASSELONF, a town of France, in Alsace, seated on the river Maffick, with a strong castle, built upon a high mountain. There is a weekly market here, that is well frequented.

• WASSERBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of Bavaria, and regency of Munich. It is a well built place, surrounded on all sides with mountains, and has a castle, which the Austrians became masters of in 1742. It is 25 miles E. by S. of Munich, and 28 N. W. of Saltzberg. Lon. 29. 58. lat. 48. 2.

WATCHET, a town in Somersetshire, with a market on Saturdays, and one fair, on August 25, for cattle. It is seated on the Severn sea, and has a pretty good harbour, frequented by coal ships, which are brought hither for burning lime, with which they manure the land. It is 14 miles N. W. of Bridgewater, and 15 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 10. lat. 51. 15.

WATERFORD, a sea-port town of Ireland, in a county of the same name, with a bishop's see. It is the second place in the kingdom, and is a wealthy, populous city, enjoying many ample privileges. The streets are narrow, and the air is not very healthy; but it has an excellent harbour, seated as well for trade as any in the world, and ships of the greatest burthen may ride at the key. It is seated on the river Sure, 8 miles N. of the sea, 20 S. of Kilkenny, and 75 nearly S. of Dublin. Lon. 10. 35. lat. 52. 12. It contains 2628 houses.

WATERFORD, a county of Ireland, which is 46 miles in length, and 25 in breadth, bounded on the W. by Cork, on the N. by the river Sure, which separates it from Tipperary and Kilkenny, and on the E. by Waterford-haven, which parts it from the county of Wexford. It contains 9485 houses, 71 parishes, 7 baronies, 4 boroughs, and sends 10 members to parliament, two for the county, and two each, for Waterford, Dungarvan, Tallagh, and Lisimore. It is a fine country, very pleasant and rich, and the principal place is of the same name.

province of Proper Sweden, which lies between Sudermania, Gestricia, Nestricia, and Upland, being about 75 miles in length, and 45 in breadth. The soil is not very fertile, but abounds in mines of copper, iron, lead, and sulphur.
There are also mines of silver; but they have given over working them.

WESTMEATH, a county of Ireland, in the province of Leinster, which is 38 miles in length, and 27 in breadth, bounded on the N. by Longford and Cavan, on the E. by Eastmeath, on the S. by King's county, and on the W. by the river Shannon, which sepatants, 26 parishes, 8 market towns, and sends four members to parliament, two for the county, and two for Appleby.

The air is very sharp and cold; but healthy to those whose constitutions are able to bear it. It is a mountainous county, two of whose ridges cross the county, and run towards the sea to the S. W. where a bay of it touches this county. There are some valleys which are fruitful in corn and pastures; besides, the hills serve to feed a great number of sheep. The principal rivers are the Eden, the Ken, the Loan, the Eamon, the Tees, the Lowther, the Hun-na, the Wintler, the Lavenner-beck, and the Blinkern-beck. There are also four

It is a fruitful country in corn and grass; and the principal town is of the same name.

WEXFORD, a sea-port town of Ireland, and capital of a county of the same name. It was once reckoned the chief city in Ireland, it being the first colony of the English, and is still a large handsome town, with a very commodious harbour at the mouth of the river Slaney, on a bay of the Irish channel, and is 65 miles S. of Dublin. Lon. 11. 10. lat. 52. 15. It contains 1003 houses.

WEXIO, a sea-port town of Sweden, in South Gothland, with a bishop's see. It is seated on the lake Salen, 47 miles W. of Calmar, 31 S. of Weter Lake, and 155 S. W. of Stockholm. Lon. 32. 55. lat. 56. 48.

* WEYHILL, a village in Hampshire, 2 miles W. of Andover, with the largest fair in England, on October 10, for sheep, leather, hops, cheese, and other things of less consequence.

* WHEWEL, a village in Hampshire, 3 miles E. of Andover, with one fair, on September 14, for sheep and bullocks.

The houses are small, and round at the top, and are encompassed with mud-walls or hedges, together with a great number of all sorts of beautiful and lofty trees, which afford the most beautiful prospect in the world; insomuch that those that have been here represent it as a perfect Paradise. The fields are always green, and they cultivate beans, potatoes, and fruits; and the negroes here will not let a foot of ground remain uncultivated. Besides, they sow again the very next day after they have reaped. The inhabitants are greatly civilized, and very respectful to each other; especially to their superiors, and they are also so industrious, that even the women are never idle. These brew the beer, dress the victuals and sell all sorts of commodities at the market. Those that are rich employ their wives and slaves in tilling the land, and they carry on a considerable trade with the product as well as in slaves; for some of them are able to deliver 1000 of these last every month. The chief men have generally 40 or 50 wives, the principal captains 3 or 400, and the king 4 or 5000. However, they are extremely jealous, and, on the least suspicion, will sell them to the Europeans for slaves. If any one happens to touch one of the king's wives accidentally, he is doomed to perpetual slavery. This being considered, it is no wonder that the women are not fond of being the king's wives; nay, some of them will prefer a speedy death to such a miserable life. The king sets little value upon his daughters, for he will dispose of them to the factors of the English company, or the masters of ships that come there. They live in a manner by guests; for they have no festivals nor distinction of days, hours, weeks, months, or years. The custom of circumcision is used here; but they are not able to tell why they use it, nor from whence it is derived. They are such great gamblers, that they will stake all they have at play, not excepting their wives and children. Their religion is very superstitious; for they have a vast number of idols; and they deify the most contemptible animal that they see first in a morning, not excepting even rocks and stones. However, they have a principal regard for snakes, very high trees, and the sea. An English factor now come over, found a snake in the house belonging to the factory, and killed it without the least scruple; which incensed the negroes, that they were for revenging the death of the snake, not only upon him that killed it, but upon the whole factory; however, by the force of presents, and by the interposition of the people of the other factories, this affair was made up, and the snake honourably interred. However, to prevent the like accidents, they give them warning not to do the like for the future. With regard to the animals, they have oxen, cows, goats, sheep, and hogs, as well as tame fowls; such as turkeys, ducks, and hens, which last are extremely plenty. There are many wild beasts within land, such as elephants, buffaloes, tigers, several kinds of deer, and a sort of hares, with several uncommon animals, which we have not room to describe. The fruits are citrons, lemons, oranges, bananoes, tamarinds, and several others; and they have vast numbers of palm-trees, from which they get their wine. All the common people go naked here, as in other parts of Guinea, only they have a cloth or clout to cover their nakedness. There has been strange revolutions in these parts not many years ago; for the king, whose country is called Dahomy, has not only conquered this kingdom, but that of Ardra, next to it, and has entirely ruined them. Their trade consisted of slaves, elephants teeth, wax, and honey. The English factory is 200 miles E. of Cape Coast Castle, within land. Bows, arrows, beautiful assegays, and clubs, are the principal weapons of the nation. Lon. 20. 35. lat. 6. 0.

WHITBY, a sea-port town in the North-riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Saturdays, but no fairs. It is commodiously seated on the river Esk, near the place where it falls into the sea, over which there is a wooden bridge. It has a custom-house, because it drives a considerable trade; and they either have, or had near 100 vessels belonging to this place. It was formerly of great note for its abbey, of which there are some ruins still remaining. Among the sands on the shore there are stones found resembling snakes without heads; but they are not proper to this place. It is 50 miles N. E. by E. of York, and 242 N. of London. Lon. 17. 23. lat. 54. 30.

with a market on Fridays, and four fairs, on April 23, June 20, and July 7, for toys, and Octob. 19, for sheep. It was anciently more considerable than it is at present; for it is now a poor place, though it is a borough town, and sends two members to parliament. It is 24 miles E. by N. of Salisbury, and 59 W. by S. of London. Lon. 16. 10. lat. 51. 20.

WHITCHURCH, a town in Shropshire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on Whit-Munday, and October 28, for sheep, horned cattle, horses, hogs, flaxen and hempen cloth, and some woollen cloth. It is seated on the confines of the county near Cheshire, and is a pretty good place, whose old church was lately taken down, and a very large new one built in the room of it. It is 20 miles N. of Shrewsbury, 20 S. by E. of Chester, and 152 N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 55. lat. 52. 58.

* WHITDOWN, a village in Somersetshire, with one fair, on Whit-Monday, for bullocks and horses.

WHITEHAVEN, a sea-port town of Cumberland, with a market on Thursdays, and one fair, on August 1, for merchandize and toys. It is seated on a creek on the sea, on the N. end of a great bergh, or hill, which is washed by the tide of flood on the west side, where there is a great rock, or quarry of hard white stone, which gives name to the place, and which, with the help of a great stone-wall, secures the harbour, into which small barks may enter. It is lately much improved in its buildings, and is noted for its trade in pit-coal and salt, there being near it a prodigious coal mine, which runs a considerable way under the sea. They have a custom-house here, and they carry on a good trade to Ireland, Scotland, Chester, Bristol, and other parts. It is 10 miles S. W. of Cockermouth, 40 S. W. of Carlisle, and 289 N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 20. lat. 54. 30.

WHITESEA is a bay of the Frozen Ocean, so called, in the north part of Muscovy, lying between Russian Lapland and Samoieda, at the bottom of which stands the city of Archangel. This was the chief port the Russians had before their conquest of Livonia.

* WHITE-SMITH, a village in Suffex, with two fairs, on May 21, for horned cattle and horses, and on July 3, for horses.

* WIATKA, a dutchy of Russia, bounded on the N. by Permian, on the S. by Casan, on the E. by Siberia, and on the W. by the Ostiacks. The chief town is of the same name, which has a bishop's see, and is defended by a citadel. It is 100 miles N. of Casan. Lon. 70. 10. lat. 46. 30.

WIENBURG, a rich and trading town of the Russian empire, and capital of Carelia, in Finland, with a bishop's see and a strong citadel. It was ceded to Russia by Sweden in 1721, and is seated at the bottom of a gulph, where it has a harbour 67 miles N. by W. of Northburg, 30 N. by E. of Narva, and 250 N. E. of Riga. Lon. 47. 25. lat. 60. 56.

WIENBURG, a considerable town of Denmark, in North-Jutland, with a bishop's see. It is remarkable for being the seat of the chief court of justice in the province; and the hall where the council assembles is very remarkable, as well for having the archives of the country, as for escape from the terrible fire that happened in the year 1726, and which burnt the cathedral church, that of the Black Friars, the town-house, and the bishop's palace; but they have all been rebuilt more magnificent than they were before. It is seated on the lake Weter, in a peninsula, 25 miles N. W. of Sleswick, and 110 N. by W. of Copenhagen. Lon. 27. 51. lat. 56. 50.

WICKTOW, a county of Ireland, in the province of Leinster, bounded on the N. W. by the county of Dublin, on the E. by the Irish Channel, on the S. by Wexford, and on the W. by Kildare and Catherlough. It is 53 miles in length, and 20 in breadth, and is indifferently fruitful. It contains 7464 houses, 54 parishes, 6 baronies, and 4 boroughs. It sends 10 members to parliament, 2 for the county, 2 for the borough of Wicklow, 2 for Baltinglass, 2 for Carysfort, and 2 for Blessington. Wicklow is the principal town, which is seated on the sea-side, with a narrow harbour at the mouth of the river Leitrim, over which stands a rock instead of a castle, surrounded by a strong wall, and is 24 miles S. of Dublin. • WIELUN, a town of Great Poland, in the palatinate of Sirad, on the confines of Silesia. It was ruined by the Swedes in 1636, but has since been rebuilt, and has a good castle. It is feated on a river which falls into the Warta, 20 miles S.

WIGGAN, a town in Lancashire, with a market on Fridays, and three fairs, on Holy Thursday, and October 13, for horses, horned cattle, and cloth; and on June 27, for horses, and horned cattle. It is feated on the river Douglas, and is a large well built corporation, sends two members to parliament, and is inhabited by shopkeepers, almost of all kinds, and they have or had a manufacture of weaving rugs, coverlids, and tickings, for beds, as well as iron works.
It is particularly noted for its coal-pits, which produce Kannel coal, that will burn like a candle. It is 27 miles S. of Lancaster, 16 S. of Preston, and 195 N.
N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 3. lat.

WIGHT, an island lying on the S. coast of Hampshire, from which it is separated by a narrow channel. It is about 20 miles in length, and 12 in breadth, and consists of arable and pasture lands, and has plenty of game. It is exceeding pleasant, has a wholesome air, and on the coast there are plenty of excellent fish. It is strong both by art and nature; for besides its castles, blockhouses, and forts, it is surrounded with craggy rocks and cliffs, as well as dangerous banks. The narrowest part of the channel at the W. part of the island, is called the Needles, through which ships pass, but not without some danger. The land is not level, but is diversified with hills and valleys, which render it a delightful place to dwell in; and indeed it is very populous, having 56 parish churches, and several towns, the chief of which is Newport. There is always a governor of this island, who is generally a superior officer of the army. A little distance from it, to the eastward, is Spithead, where the men of war generally ren-dezevous.

• WIGHTON, a town of the E. riding of Yorkshire, with a market on Wednesdays, and two fairs, on May 14, and September 25, for horses and sheep. It is feated at the spring head of the river Skelfter, and is but a small place. It is 16 miles W. by S. of York, and 18 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 50. lat.
53. 55.

• WIGMORE, a village in Herefordshire, 7 miles N. W. of Ludlow, with two fairs, on April 25, and July 25, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep.

• WIGTON, a town in Cumberland, with a market on Tuesdays, and one fair, on March 23, for merchandize and toys. It is feated among the Moors, and is a small place of no great account. It is 12 miles S. W. of Carlisle, 13 N. N. E. of Cocker-mouth, and 280 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 14. 35. lat. 54. 50.

WIGTOWN, a borough and sea port town of Scotland, in the shire of Galloway.
It is feated at the mouth of the river Cree, 95 miles S. W. of Edinburgh, on a bay of the fifth channel, and has nothing remarkable besides its harbour.
The shire of Wigtown sends one member to parliament. Lon. 12. 55. lat.

• WILDESHUSEN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Westphalia, on the confines of the bishopric of Munster, and capital of a small bailiwick. It is feated on the river Hunte, and is united to the dutchy of Bremen; but the bishops of Munster think they have just pretensions to it. It is 18 miles S. W. of Bremen.
Lon. 29. 50. lat. 53. 13.

WILKOMIR, a town of Poland, in Lithuania, and in the palatinate of Wilna, feated on the river Swieta, 55 miles N.
W. of Wilna. Lon. 44. 26. lat. 52.

WILLIAMSBURG, a town of North America, in Virginia, and capital of that colony. It is at present but the rudiments of a town, there being no more than 50 or 60 scattering houses, though they are well built, and stand on each side a long broad street. There is a college at the upper end, designed at first for the instruction of the native Americans. It is well endowed, but does not answer the original design, those people being averse to all sorts of learning; and therefore it is now made use of for instructing the sons of the planters. It is 7 miles N. of James-town, and 50 W. of Cape Charles. Lon. 301. 5. lat. 37. 20.

WILLIAMS-FORT, is a factory of Asia, belonging to the East India company, and is seated on one of the branches of the river Ganges, in the kingdom of Bengal. The fort was first built in the shape of an irregular tetragon, of brick and mortar, and the town had nothing regular in it, because every one built a house as he liked best, and for his own conveniency. The governor's house is within the fort, and is the best piece of architecture in these parts. Here there are also convenient lodgings for the factors and writers, with store-houses for the company's goods, and magazines for ammunition. About fifty yards from the fort is the church, built by the charity of merchants residing here. The town is called Calcutta, and has a pretty good hospital for the sick, though few come out of it alive. It is governed by a mayer and aldermen, as most of the company's factories in the East Indies now are. In 1757 it was surprised by the Nabob of Bengal, who took it, and put most of those that had made resistance, into a place called the Black Hole, where most of them were smothered. This Nabob has since been killed, and another set up in his room, who is more friendly to the English; and now the factory is re-established. It is 35 miles S. of Hugly, and 38 N. of the sea. Lon. 104. 35. lat. 21. 27.

WILLIAMSADT, a sea-port town of Holland. It is a handsome strong place, and the harbour is well frequented. It was built by William prince of Orange, in 1585; and in 1732 it belonged to the stadtholder of Friesland. The river near which it is built, is called Butterfliet, or Holland-Diep, and is one of the bulwarks of the Dutch on the side of Brabant, where they always keep a garrison. It is 15 miles N. E. of Berg op Zoom, and 12 S. W. of Dordrecht. Lon. 21. 58. lat. 51. 42.

• WILLISAW, a small but handsome town of Switzerland, in the canton of Lucern, seated among high mountains on the river Wiger.

• WILLITON, a village in Somersetshire,

5 miles E. of Minehead, with one fair on Trinity Monday, for hard-ware and toys.

• WILMINGTON, a village in Suffex, 6 miles N. W. of East-Bourn, with one fair on September 17, for sheep and pedlars ware.

WILNA, a large, rich, populous, and trading town of Poland, in the duchy of Lithuania, and in a palatinate of the same name, with a bishop's see, an university, an ancient castle, and a palace. The houses are all built of wood, and it is the seat of the Palatine, of a Castellany, and of the parliament of Lithuania. It is inhabited by different nations, who come thither to trade; and it is seated at the confluence of the rivers Vilia and Wilna, 12 miles E. of Treki, 125 N. W. of Warsaw, and 225 S. E. of Dantzick. Lon. 44. 18. lat. 51. 32.

• WILNA, the palatinate of, a county of Poland, in the duchy of Lithuania, bounded on the N. by Samogitia, Lavinia, and the palatinate of Polozzk, on the E. by those of Witepsk, and Minsk, on the S. by the same, and that of Treki, and on the W. by the same, and that of Samogitia. Wilna is the capital town.

• WILSHOVEN, a town of Germany, in Bavaria, seated at the confluence of the river Wils, with the Danube. It was taken by general Brown in 1745.

• WILSNACH, a town of Germany, in the margravate of Brandenburg, seated on a rivulet that falls not far from thence into the Elb.

WILTON, a town in Wiltshire, with a market on Tuesday, and three fairs, on May 4, September 12, and November 2, for sheep. It is seated near the river Willey, is an ancient place, and formerly the chief of the county. It is now but a mean town, though it sends two members to parliament, and is the place where the knights of the shire are chosen. It has a manufactory in carpets, and is 7 miles N. W. of Salisbury, and 86 W. by S. of London. Lon 15. 35. lat. 51. 12.

WILTSHIRE, an English county, 52 miles in length, 34 in breadth, and is bounded on the W. by Somersetshire, on the N. by Gloucestershire, on the E. by Berkshire and Hampshire, and on the S. by Dorsetshire and Hampshire, being 52 miles in length, and 33 in breadth. It contains 28,000 houses, 163,000 inhabitants, 304 parishes, 21 market towns.

and sends 34 members to parliament. The principal rivers are, the Willey, the Adder, the two Avons, the Tems, the Kennet, the Duril, the Nadder, and the Were. The air is generally good, tho' it is damp upon the hills and downs in winter, but milder in the vales and bottoms. The N. part is hilly, the S. level, and the middle plain, and full of downs, intermixed with bottoms, where-in are rich meadows and corn fields. There are several towns in it noted for the woollen manufacture; and there is a wonderful trench in it, which runs from E. to W. which is visible for many miles. The common people would have it to be the work of the devil, but it was probably the boundary of the W. Saxon monarchy. Salisbury is the principal town.

• WIMBORHAM, OR WINDHAM, A TOWN of Norfolk, with a market on Fridays, and three fairs, on February 2, May 6, and September 7, for horses, lean cattle, and petty chapmen. It is feated on a dirty bottom, and has been noted for stockings, wooden spoons, taps, and spindles, made here. The steeple of the church is very high, and on it was hung Ket the tanner, in 1549. It is 9 miles S. W. of Norwich, and 103 N. E. by N. of London. Lon. 18. 30. lat. 52. 42.

• WIMPFEN, A FREE AND IMPERIAL TOWN of Germany, in Suabia, and in Craighou. The inhabitants are Protestants. It is feated on the river Neckar, 5 miles N. of Hailbron, and 12 E. of Heidelberg. Lon. 26. 44. lat. 49. 20.

• WIMPLE, A VILLAGE in Devonshire, with one fair, on Monday sevennight after September 1.

• WINBORN, A TOWN of Dorsetshire, with a market on Fridays, and two fairs, on Good-Friday, and September 14, for bullocks, and cheefe. It is feated between two brooke, on the river Stour; is a pretty large well inhabited place, and has a handsome church called the Minster, which was formerly noted for its nunnery. It is 6 miles N. of Peol, and 81 S. W. of London. Lon. 15. 40. lat. 50. 45.

• WINCHESTON, A TOWN in Somersetshire, with a market on Wednesdays, but no fairs. It is feated on the side of a hill on the London road, and the market is considerable for cheefe. It is 24 miles S. of Bath, and 112 W. by S. of London. Lon. 14. 57. lat. 51. 2.

• WINCHEOMB, A TOWN in Gloucestershire, with a market on Saturdays, and two fairs, on May 16, and July 23, for horses, sheep, and horned cattle. It is feated in a deep bottom near Sudley-castle and park, and was formerly noted for its abbey. It is a large place, containing about 300 houses, and is 16 miles N. E. of Gloucester, 42 S. W. of Coventry, and 89 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 15. 30. lat. 51. 55.

• WINCHESEA, A TOWN in Suffes, which has no market, but has one fair on May 23, for cattle and pedlars ware. It is an ancient place, at least the old town of that name was so, which was swallowed up by the ocean in 1250. It is now dwindled to a mean place, though it retains its privileges, and sends two members to parliament. It is feated on a rocky cliff, on an inlet of the sea, and had a haven, which is now choked up. It had 18 parish churches, now reduced to one. The market-house is in the midst of the town, from whence run four paved streets, at the end of which are four ways, which had formerly build-ings on each side for a considerable way. It is 2 miles S. W. of Rye, and 71 S. E. of London. It is governed by a mayor and jurats, though it has but about 70 houses, which are built with brick and stone. Three of the gates are still standing, but much decayed. Lon. 18. 30. lat. 50. 58.

• WINCHESTER, A TOWN OR CITY of Hampshire, with two markets, on Wednesdays and Saturdays. It is pleasantly feated in a valley between hills, on the delightful river Itching, and is about one mile and an half in circumference round the walls, through which there are four gates: however, there is some waste ground within the walls, and at present there are but five parish churches, besides the cathedral, which is a large and beautiful structure, and in which are interred several Saxon kings and queens.
The other remarkable buildings are, the Bishop's palace, the hall where the advizes are kept, and the college or school, which last is without the walls. King Charles II. appointed Sir Christopher Wren to build a royal palace here, but he never lived to see it finished; nor has it been hitherto according to the original plan. Likewise, a few years ago the tower an infirmity needed repair for the county, by the ordinary Abber-tion. It has a fair, kept on St. Giles's day.

hill, on September 12, for horses, cheese, and leather; and another on Magdalen Hill, on August 2, for the same. It is 21 miles N. W. of Chichester, and 67 W. by N. of London. The city is governed by a mayor, a recorder, several aldermen, six of whom are always justices, with a sheriff, two bailiffs, and four constables. It at present consists of above 70 houses, has one pretty broad street, but the rest are mostly narrow; the houses are indifferently built, and the walls are greatly decayed. Lon. 16. 11. lat. 51. 6.

* WINDAW, a town of the dutchy of Courland with a castle, and a harbour at the mouth of the river Wetaw, on the Baltic Sea, 70 miles N. of Memel, and 70 N. W. of Mittaw. Lon. 59. 25. lat. 57. 12.

WINDISMARK, a territory of Germany, in the circle of Austria, which is the eastern part of Carniola. It is bounded on the E. by Croatia, on the S. by Morkachia, and on the N. by the county of Cilley, from which it is separated by the river Save. Mutling is the capital town.

* WINDINGEN, a town of Germany, in Swabia, and in the dutchy of Wirtemberg, seated on the river Neckar 12 miles from Stuttgart.

WINDSOR, a town of Berkshire, with a market on Saturdays, and three fairs, on Easter-Tuesdays for horses and cattle, June 5, for horses, cattle, sheep, and wool, and October 13, for horses and cattle. It is pleasantly seated on the banks of the Thames, in a healthful air; and is a handsome, large, well inhabited place; but chiefly famous for its magnificent castle, which is a royal palace. It is a place of great strength, on account of its situation, as it stands on an eminence, and affords a most delightful and extensive prospect over the country to a considerable distance. Here the ceremony of installing the knights of the Garter is performed on St. George's day, with great pomp and magnificence; and St. George's Hall, which is paved with marble, is one of the finest rooms in Europe. The royal chapel, at the east end of it, is also paved with marble, and adorned with carved work, which is exceeding curious. St. George's Chapel, in which the knights of the Garter are installed, is one of the most beautiful and stately Gothic buildings in the world; in the choir are the stalls for the 26 knights, with banners over them, and a throne for the sovereign. As the knights die, their banners are taken down, and their titles and coats of arms engraved on little copper plates and nailed to the stalls, from whence they are never removed. The apartments of this palace are adorned with curious paintings, and the rooms are large and lofty, insomuch that they are hardly to be paralleled in Europe. The parish church is large, having a ring of 8 bells, and in the high street there is a handsome town-hall, with a statue of queen Ann at one end, and prince George of Denmark at the other. It sends two members to parliament, and is 24 miles W. of London. Lon. 16. 58. lat. 51. 28.

* WINGHAM, a village in Kent, 5 miles W. of Sandwich, with two fairs, on May 1 and November 1, for cattle.

* WINGURLA, a town of Asia, in the East-Indies, and in the kingdom of Visapour, seated on the sea-side a little to the N. of Goa, where the Dutch have a factory.

WINNICZA, a strong town of Poland, in Podolia, and capital of a territory of the same name, in the palatinate of Bracław, with a castle. It was taken by the Cossacks in 1658; but the Poles retook it soon after. It is seated on the river Bog, 35 miles N. of Braclaw. Lon. 46. 56. lat. 49. 28.

WINOXBERG, or BERGUES, a town of the French Netherlands, in Flanders, seated on the river Colme, 5 miles S. of Dunkirk. Lon. 20. 6. lat. 50. 56.

WINSCHOTIN, a town of the United Provinces, in Groningen, where the prince of Orange defeated the Spaniards in 1548. It is 6 miles S. W. of Dollart bay, and 14 S. E. of Groningen. Lon. 24. 25. lat. 53. 15.

WINSER, a town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony and dutchy of Lunenbourg, seated at the confluence of the rivers Elb and Ilmenau, 12 miles N. W. of Lunenbourg. Lon. 27. 35. lat. 53. 50.

* WINSHEIM, an imperial town of Germany, in the circle of Franconia and marquisate of Anspach. It is surrounded by a good rampart, a double ditch, and thick walls flanked with 20 towers. The inhabitants are Protestants, and in 1730 a fire happened here, which almost reduced this place to ashes. It is seated burg. Lon. 27. 26. lat. 49. 15.

WISMAR, a large and strong town of Germany, in Lower Saxony, capital of the dutchy of Mecklenburg, with a harbour. It was bombarded by the king of Denmark in 1711, and in 1715 it was forced to surrender to the allies of the north, who demolished all the fortifications, and blew up the fort; all which had cost prodigious sums of money. In 1721, it was restored to Sweden; but upon condition they should never fortify it again. It is the handsomest and largest town in Mecklenburg, and the harbour, which is on the Baltick Sea, is very safe for ships, being at the bottom of a gulph, or bay. It is 40 miles E. of Lu-WISTON, a town of Pembroke-shire, in S. Wales, with a market on Wednesdays, and one fair, on November 8, for cattle, horses, and sheep. It is but a mean place, though it has a castle, which is now a gentleman's seat. It is 12 miles N. of Pembroke, and 191 W. N. W. of London. Lon. 12. 45. lat. 51. 54.

• WITCHBURY, a village in Wiltshire, with one fair, on November, 6 for hogs.

WITEPSKI, a town of Poland, in Lithuania, and capital of a palatinate of the same name, with a castle. It is seated on a morass, which renders its approach difficult; and its fortifications are so good, that the Russians have besieged it several times in vain. It stands at the confluence of the rivers Dwina and Widwa, 50 miles N. of Polock, 80 N. W. of Smolensko, and 165 N. E. of Wilna. The palatinate is bounded on the N. by the dutchy of Rescho, on the E. by Biela, and the palatinate of Smolensko, on the S. by the palatinates of Mielidaw and Minski, and on the W. by Wilna and Polock. Lon. 48. 58. lat. 55. 58.

WITHAM, a town in Essex, with a market on Tuesdays, and two little fairs, on Monday before Whit-Sunday, and September 14, for toys. It is seated on the branch of the river Black-Water, and is a good thoroughfare town half a mile in length. It is governed by a high-bailiff, &c. and has one church, which is an ancient Gothic structure. The houses amount to about 500, and are in general tolerable good, and pretty lofty; but the streets, tho' wide, are not paved; and no manufactory is carried on here. This town is 8 miles N. E. of Chelmsford, 13 S. W. of Colchester, and 36 E. N. E. of London. Lon. 18. 20. lat. 51. 50.

WOLAW, a town of Germany, in Silesia, and capital of a dutchy of the same name. It is surrounded with strong walls, and a morafs, and one part of the houses are built with stone. The castle is also encompassed with deep ditches, and the greatest part of the inhabitants are employed in a woollen manufactory. In 1709 a Protestant church was allowed to be built here. It is seated near the river Oder, 20 miles N. W. of Bres-law, and 32 S. E. of Glogaw. Lon. 34. 23. lat. 51. 16.

WOLFEMBUITTE, a considerable town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and dutchy of Brunfwick, with a castle where the duke of Brunfwick Wolfembuttle resides. It is one of the strongest places in Germany, and yet the fortifications want repairing in several places. There is an excellent library, kept in a building lately erected for that purpose, which contains 116000 printed books, and 2000 uncommon books, with a cabinet of curiosities, relating to natural history. It is seated on the river Ocker, 5 miles S. of Brunfwick, 22 E. of Hildefheim, and 30 W. of Halbertstadt. Lon. 28. 15. lat. 22. 15.

WOLFSBERG, a town of Germany, in Lower Carinthia, with a castle, on which the district about it depends, which is 20 miles in length, and 10 in breadth. It is seated on the river Lavand, at the foot of a mountain covered with wood, and full of wolves, from whence the town took its name. It is 36 miles E. of Clagenfurt. Lon. 32. 55. lat. 47. 6.

WOLGA, a river of Russia, and thought to be the greatest in Europe. It rises in a small lake of the same name, in the dutchy of Retschow, near the confines of Lithuania, and running N. E. to the confines of the dutchy of Muscovy, it turns directly N. till it reaches that of Bielegezoro; and from thence it runs E. by S. to Casan: from hence it proceeds directly S. forming several large islands, till it comes to Astrachan; and below it, falls into the Caspian Sea. In its course, it passes by Twer-Jerifaw, where it is a mile and a half in breadth. From thence it runs on to Nifi-Novogorod, where it is 3 miles in breadth; from thence it passes to Casan, Samara, Saratof, Tzaritza, Tzenowar, to Astrachan as before. It runs a course of above 2000 miles, and is deep enough the greatest part of the way, to carry large ships. At the mouth of this river near Astrachan, there are prodigious large sturgeons, and it is confidently affirmed, that one of their roes will weigh 300 pounds. Of these they make caviar so well known in most parts of Europe.

WOLGAST, a pretty considerable town of Germany,

Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in Pomerania, capital of a territory of the same name, with a castle, and one of the best and largest harbours on the Baltic Sea. It is a well built place, subject to Sweden, and is seated on the river Pfin, 12 miles S. E. of Griptwald, 25 S. E. of Strallund, and 45 N. W. of Stetin. Lon. 31. 45. lat. 54. 8.

WOODSTOCK, a town in Oxfordshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and five fairs, on March 25, and What-Tuesday; for all kinds of cattle; on Tuesday after November 1, and October 2, for cheese, and all sorts of cattle; and on December 17, for cheese and hogs. It is pleasantly seated on a rising ground, and on a rivulet. It is a well compacted borough town, which sends two members to parliament; but is chiefly noted for Blenheim-house, which is a fine palace, built in memory of the victory obtained by the duke of Marlborough, over the French and Bavarians in Aug. 1704. It was erected at the public expence, and is one of the noblest seats in Europe. One of the passages to it is over a bridge with one arch, which is 190 feet in diameter, and resembles the Rialto at Venice. The gardens take up 100 acres of ground; and the offices, which are very grand, have room enough to accommodate 300 people. The apartments of the palace are magnificently furnished, and the staircases, statues, paintings, and tapestry, are surprizingly fine. The town is about half a mile from the palace, having several good inns; and a manufactory of steel chains for watches, and excellent gloves. It is 8 miles N. of Oxford, and 60 W. N. W. of London. WORMS, an ancient, large, and famous town of Germany, in the palatinate of the Rhine, with a bishop's see, whose bishop is a sovereign and prince of the empire. It is a free and imperial city, and the inhabitants are Protestants. In the war of 1689, it was taken by the French, who almost reduced it to ashes. The present bishop has built a new palace in it; and it is famous for a diet held here in 1521, at which Luther assisted in person. The Protestants have lately built a handsome church, where Luther is represented as appearing at the diet. It is noted for the excellent wine that grows in the neighbourhood, which they call, our Lady's milk. In the campaign of 1743, king George II. took up his quarters in this city, and lodged at the bishop's palace after the battle of Dettingen. It is feated on the western bank of the Rhine, 14 miles N. W. of Heidelberg, 20 N. W. of Spire, 20 S. E. of Mentz, and 32 S. W. of Francfort. Lon. 26. 2. lat. 40. 34.

YARE, a river of Norfolk, which is formed by the confluence of several streams that rise in the heart of the country. It passes by Norwich, from whence it runs E. to Yarmouth, and falls into the German Ocean. It is noted for its plenty of ruffs.

YARMOUTH, a sea-port town of Norfolk, with a market on Saturdays and Wednesdays, and one fair, on Friday and Saturday in Easter-Week, for petty chapmen. It is seated on the river Yare, where it falls into the sea, and is a place of great strength, both by art and nature, being almost surrounded with water; and there is a draw-bridge over the river. It is esteemed the key of this coast, and is a clean handsome place, whose houses are well built, it being a considerable town for trade. It has one large church, and a neat chapel, and the steeple of St. Nicholas's is so high that it serves for a sea-mark. It is remarkable that this steeple appears crooked, which way soever it is looked at. It is noted for its red herrings, which are jocosely called Yarmouth capons, as also for its coaches, which are nothing more than sledges drove about with one horse, in a flat next the sea. It is governed by a mayor, 13 aldermen, and 36 common-council. The town consists of about 1500 houses, and there a few pretty wide

It is seated on the river Ouse, and is generally counted the second city in England; though Bristol now pretends to that honour, on account of its extensive trade. It is certainly a very ancient place, and has undergone various revolutions; but it is still a large beautiful place, adorned with many fine buildings, both public and private; and is very populous, being inhabited by gentry and wealthy tradesmen. It contains 30 parish churches and chapels, besides its cathedral, or minster, which is a most magnificent structure. It is divided into two parts by the river, which are united by a stately stone-bridge of five arches. The eastern part is most populous, the houses standing thicker, and the streets being narrower. It is surrounded by a strong wall, on which are many turrets, or watch-houses; and there are four gates and five posterns. It is a city and county of itself, enjoys large privileges, sends two members to parliament, and has the title of a duchy. It is governed by a lord mayor, 12 aldermen, and other officers; and its county contains 36 villages and hamlets. It is 70 miles S. by E. of Durham, 89 E. of Lancaster, 106 E. N. E. of Chester, and 198 N. by W. of London. Lon. 16. 32. lat. 53. 58.

It contains 106150 acres, 103600 inhabitants, 163 parishes, 57 market towns, and 623 30 members to parliament. The principal rivers are the Teefe, that divides this county from Durham, the Swale, the Youre, the Nid, the Ouse, the Warf, the Aie, the Calder, the Derwent, the Dun, and the Huli; besides the great river Humber, which is made up of many rivers. The air is in general temperate, but pretty cold on the tops of the hills and on the borders of Lutham. The soil in some places is very fruitful, but in others barren, gravelly, and stony, and in others again, moorish, miry, and fenny. It is divided into three ridings, the North, West, and East; besides which, there is a fourth division, called Richmondshire, as also Cleveland, Craven, and Holderness, which are all included in the three ridings. In so extensive a county the productions must be various, as well as the manufactures; but there are no mines of note, except those of iron, lead, and coal. York is the principal place.

YORK NEW, an English colony of N. America. It is bounded on the E. by New England, by Canada on the N. on the S. by New Jersey, and on the W. by Delaware river. It produces corn, abounds in cattle, and has a good breed of horses; but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in fisheries. They supply the Caribbee Islands, with flour, salt beef, pork, salt fish, horses, and timber. They export a great deal of dried and salted fish to Europe; as also logwood, train oil, and whalebone, to England, from whence they have their tools, cloathing, and furniture. The governor and council are appointed by the King; but they elect their own representatives, who are somewhat like our parliament men. There are some forts to the north to defend them against the French and native Americans. The principal town is of the same name, where there is usually a garrison of 400 men. Some in describing this country, add the two Jerseys to this province, because they have frequently the same governor; but this is a distinction of no great importance.

YORK NEW, the capital of the province of New-York, in N. America, seated in an island at the mouth of Hudson's River. It stands on an eminence, and is surrounded with a wall, and has other fortifications. It has a spacious harbour, with commodious keys, or quays, as well as ware-houses. It is frequented by a great number of ships that are employed in trade, and in the fisheries. Lon. 302. 40. or 74. 40. W. of London. lat. 39. 40.

* YORIMAN, a province of S. America, in Guiana, about 150 miles in length, on the river of the Amazons. The native inhabitants are strong, robust and active, and both sexes go naked.

* YOUGHILL, a considerable town of Ireland, in the county of Cork, and province of Munster, which is a rich populous place, surrounded with walls, and has a very commodious harbour, with a well defended key. It is seated at the mouth of the river Black-Water, and sends two members to parliament. Lon. 9. 50. lat. 51. 51.

YPRES, a handsome, large, and considerable town of the Austrian Netherlands, in Flanders, with a bishop's see. It has a considerable manufactory in cloth and farges; and every year, in Lent, there is a well frequented fair. This being a barrier town, the Dutch had a garrison here; but it was besieged and taken by the French, in June 1744. It is seated on a fertile plain, on the river Ypre, 12 miles W. of Courtray, 15 S. E. of Newport, 22 S. E. of Dunkirk, 15 N. W. of Lille, and 157 N. of Paris. Lon 20. 53. lat. 50. 51.

* YRIER-DE-LA-PERCHE ST. a town of France, in Limosin, seated on the river Isle, with a provostship and a collegiate church.

* YRENDICG, a small, but strong town of the United Provinces, in Flanders, seated on a branch of the river Scheld, called Bhe, near the sea, in a low country, that may be overflowed when they please. It is 10 miles E. of Sluys, 10 miles N. E. of Middleburg, and 18 N. W. of Ghent. Lon. 121. S. lat. 53. 20.

* YSEL. See ISSEY.

* YSELBURG, a town of the Low Countries, in Guelderland, on the confines of the county of Zutphen, 12 miles E. of Cleves, and 22 N. E. of Gueldres. Lon. 24. 0. lat. 51. 52.

* YURI, a large kingdom of Asia, in Eastern Tartary, lying on the Eastern Sea. It is very little known.

YEN-NAN, a province of Asia, in China, lying near Thibet. It contains 21 cities of the first rank, and 55 of the second and third, being well watered with rivers and lakes, which render it very fruitful. There is gold very often found in the sands of the rivers, and probably mines of the same metal in the mountains on the eastern part. There are also copper mines, which they pretend is entirely white, which must be a mistake; for then it could not be copper. There are also several sorts of precious stones, besides musk, silk, benjamin, lapis lazuli, and very fine marble, some of which is painted of divers colours; they have al-

- ZAROTZCA, a province of N. America, in New-Spain, which extends from N. to S. from the province of Guaxaca, to the gulph of Mexico. It is a mountainous stony country, and yet is indifferently fertile.
 - ZARA, an ancient, strong and considerable town of the republic of Venice, in Dalmatia, and capital of a county of the same name, with an archbishop's see, a good citadel, and a harbour. It is seated in a plain, upon a small peninsula that is joined to the continent by an isthmus, of about 25 paces in breadth. On the side of the citadel it is very well fortified, and has generally a pretty strong garrison. Near the church which the Greeks call St. Hella, there are two handsome faced columns of the Corinthian order, which are supposed to have been part of the temple of Juno. This place was formerly much more considerable than it is at present. The circumference of the walls being now but two miles, and the number of the inhabitants not above 6000. There are very fine paintings in the churches, done by the best masters; and they pretend to have the body of St. Simeon, which was brought from Judea, and which is kept in a shrine, with a crystal before it. It is seated on the gulph of Venice, 70 miles S. W. of faicza, 167 N. of Ragusa, 150 S. E. of Venice, and 80 N. W. of Spalatro, Lon. 33. 4. lat. 44. 22.

- ZATOR, a town of Poland, in the palatinate of Cracovia, and capital of a dutchy of the same name, with a fortified castle. It is seated on an eminence near the river Vittula, at the place where the Skauld falls into it, 17 miles S. W. of Cracow, and 50 S. E. of Ratbor. Lon. 37. 33. lat. 49. 59.
 - ZBOROW, a town of Little Poland, in the palatinate of Lemberg, on the confines of Volhinia and Podolia. It is remarkable for the defeat of John Casimir, king of Poland in, 1647. It is seated between Lemberg and Zbaras, being 62 miles from the former, and 25 from the latter. Lon. 43. 56. lat. 49. 52.
 - ZEALAND, an island of Denmark, which is almost of a round form, being about 70 miles in diameter, and 200 in circumference. It is seated at the entrance of the Baltick Sea, and is bounded by the Schaggerach Sea on the N. by a strait called the Sound on the E. by the Baltick Sea on the S. and the strait called the Great Belt on the W. The soil is not very fruitful, except in rainy years, because it is sandy; and there are few streams, but there many lakes abounding in fish. It produces a great deal of rye, of which the common sort make their bread. A fourth part of this island consists in a forest, in which there is plenty of game; and there are a great many deer and wild boars, which are reserved for the king's own hunting. It is divided into 26 bailiwicks, which the inhabitants call Herrit, and it contains 13 towns, 12 castles, and 347 parishes. The inhabitants are maintained entirely by the great number of cattle that they feed, than which none can be better. Copenhagen is not only the capital of this island, but of the whole kingdom.
 - ZEALAND, one of the seven United Provinces of the Netherlands, which is separated by the sea on the N. from the isles of Holland, by the Scheld on the E. which separates it from Brabant, and the Hont from Flanders, and on the W. it is bounded by the ocean. It comprehends 3 islands, whereof three are pretty large.

large. The names of which are, Walchern, Schowen, S. Beveland, N. Beveland, Tolen, Duveland, Wolferdyck, and St. Philip. There are likewise 6 or 7 others, which are of very little importance. The inhabitants are at a great deal of trouble, to defend themselves from the encroachments of the sea, and in keeping up their dykes or banks, in which they expend great sums of money. They in general are extremely hardy, and even rash, and very good soldiers, especially for the sea-service. They are maintained by their plentiful fisheries, and by their trade with foreign nations, especially the Spaniards, and in time of war, by the captures made by the privateers, for they have no manufactures of any moment. The soil is fruitful in these islands, but the air is unhealthy, especially for strangers. The river Scheld having passed by Antwerp, divides into two, and holds as it were, the isles of Zealand between its arms. One of these runs eastward, and the other westward, which last the fishermen call Stont, or Hond. It is governed in the same manner as Holland, and the assemblies of States are composed of deputies of the nobility, and those of the two principal towns.

• ZEB, a province of Africa, in Barbary, and in Biledulgerih, of which the Algerines possess a part.

ZEGZEG, a kingdom of Africa, in Negroland, lying on the river Niger, by which it is separated by the kingdom of Caffena; on the E. it has that of Zambara, on the S. by Benin, and on the W. by the deserts. It is a country partly plain, and partly mountainous, and the mountains are extremely cold, while the plains are intolerably hot. There abound with water, and are exceeding fruitful, and yet their houses are nothing but poor mean cottages.

ZEIGNHHEIM, a town of Germany, in the landgravaee of Hesse Cassel, and 30 miles S. of the town of that name. Lon. 26. 35. lat. 50. 55.

• ZELTON, a town of Turkey, in Europe, in the province of Janna, with a castle and an archbishop's see, though it is but a small place and thin of people. It is seated on a hill by a gulph of the same name, and near the river Eylada, 50 miles S. E. of Larissa. Lon. 41. 0. lat. 39. 10.

ZELTZ, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, in Misnia, and in the dutchy of Naumburg. It is a pretty handsome town, with a new castle; and there is a well frequented college. It is seated on the river Elster, 25 miles S. W. of Leinick, and 45 E. of Erfort. It is subject to a prince of the house of Saxony. Lon. 30. 8. lat. 50. 59.

ZELL, a strong town of Germany, in the circle of Lower Saxony, and in the dutchy of Lunenburg; as also capital of the dutchy of Zell, and belongs to the elector of Hanover. It is surrounded with ditches and ramparts, on which are planted chefnuts, and lime-trees. It is not very large, but it has three considerable suburbs, and the houses in general are well built. The principal church is a handsome structure, adorned with stucco work. It has a castle whose architecture is not very modern, and where the dukes formerly resided, till this place devolved to the elector of Hanover, by marrying the heirs of the late duke of Zell. It is seated on the river Aller, 35 miles N. W. of Brunswick, and 47 S. by W. of Lunenburg. Lon. 27. 57. lat. 52. 45.

• ZELL, a town of Germany, in the circle of Suabia, and in the marquisate of Baden, in Ortnaw. It is an imperial town, under the protection of the house of Austria, whose inhabitants are Roman-catholics. It is seated on the river Nagelt, 15 miles S. of Baden, and 42 S. W. of Stutgard. Lon. 25. 47. lat. 48. 19.

ZEMBLA, commonly called Nova-ZEMBLA, is a large county lying in the Northern Ocean, to the N. of the province of Petzera, in Moscovy, from which it is separated by the strait of Weygates. It is now known to be an island of very large extent; but it has no inhabitants, except wild beasts, particularly white foxes, and bears. In 1595 a Dutch vessel was cast away on the coast, and the ship's company were obliged to winter here; but they did not see the sun from the 3th of November to the beginning of February, and they had much ado to keep themselves from being frozen to death. Some say they have seen inhabitants here, of a small size, a tawney complexion, black hair, and clothed in seal skins, and that they live upon hunting and fishing.

ZERBST, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and in the principality of Anhalt, chief place of a district of that name, on the confines of the dutchy of Magdeburg, with a handsome castle, where the princes commonly reside. It is a handsome place, and the inhabitants are partly Lutherans, and partly Calvinists, and are famous for brewing good beer; but it is remarkable that the women are more concerned in brewing it than the men. It is 25 miles N. W. of Wittenberg, and is subject to the prince of Anhalt. Lon. 30. 8. lat. 52. 0.

• ZERIGA, a town of Persia, in Irac Arabi, seated in a very narrow plain or valley, between mountains. It has produced several very famous Arabian authors.

• ZIA, an island of the Archipelago, and one of the Cyclades, to the N. of Thermania, to the S. W. of Negropont, and 12 miles from Cape Colona, which terminates Livadia on that side. It is 15 miles in length, and 8 in breadth. It is very well cultivated, and abounds in most of the necessaries of life, particularly barley, wine, and a great deal of silk. They have also a very fine sort of an oak, whose fruit is called Villam, which is the best trading commodity of the island, and of which they sell vast quantities in a year, it being used by dyers and tanners. The principal town is of the same name, and is seated on an eminence, 30 miles from the harbour, at the farther end of a disagreeable valley. It resembles an amphitheatre, and contains about 2500 houses, all flat at the top. It belongs to the Turks, but most of the inhabitants are Greeks, and they have a bishop who resides at Zia. Lon. 42. 32. lat. 37. 40.

• ZIBIT, a territory of Asia, in Arabia the Happy, which extends from N. to S. from the principality of Mecca to that of Moche, being bounded on the E. by the principality of Tehama, and on the W. by the Red Sea. The Turks were formerly masters of this country, but now it belongs to an Arabian prince.

• ZIBIT, a town of Asia, in Arabia the Happy, and capital of a principality or territory of the same name, and seated on the river Zibit, 150 miles N. W. of Aden. It is a large trading place, and some have taken it for the ancient Saba, but this is very uncertain.

• ZIRCHNIT-ZERSEE, a lake of Germany, in Lower Carniola, among the mountains and forests. In the month of June the water sinks under ground, and does not rise again till September, during which interval they feed their cattle in it.

ZIRIC-ZEE, a handsome and strong town of the United Provinces in Zealand, and the principal of the isle of Schowen, at the mouth of the Scheldt. One part of it was formerly swallowed up by the sea, but it is still a trading populous place, and has a pretty good harbour. It is 25 miles N. W. of Hulst, and 15 S. W. of Brielle. Lon. 21. 25. lat. 51. 38.

ZITTAW, a town of Germany, in Lusatia, on the frontiers of Bohemia, and subject to the elector of Saxony. It is a handsome place, and is surrounded with a double wall, and has good half moons, ditches, and bastions. The houses are handsome, and built in the modern taste. Besides the suburbs and handsome gardens that surround it on all sides, there are a number of fine villages that depend thereon. The principal business of the inhabitants is brewing beer; but there are above 100 clothiers, and in the neighbouring villages about 1000 weavers. The merchants of Zittaw trade with those of Prague and Leipfick, and extend their commerce as far as Holland. The cathedral church is a very handsome structure, and has three pair of organs, with two high steeples. Near it there is a handsome college, where the languages, designing, dancing, and other things are taught gratis. Joining to the cloyster there is a library, the finest of all Lusatia, which is open twice a week; and at a small distance from that is the orphan-house, which has been but lately built. It is seated on the river Neifs, 17 miles S. W. of Gorlatz, and 25 S. E. of Dresden. Lon. 32. 30. lat. 50. 44.

ZNAIM, a strong town of Germany, in Moravia, on the frontiers of Auitria. It is a large place, and has a handsome castle, though very ancient, and in which there are a great many pagan antiquities. It is seated on the river Taya, 25 miles S. W.

 - ZOCATARA. See SOCATARA.
 - * ZOFFENGEN, an ancient and handsome town of Swisserland, in the canton of Bern, 3 miles from Arburg. It has a very handsome church, and a public library, containing several curious manuscripts. It is seated near a large forest, which contains the best pine trees in all Swisserland. Lon. 24. 45. lat. 46. 58.
 - ZOLLERN, a town of Germany, in the circle of Sussia, which gives name to a principality of Hohen-Zollern, which is 37 miles in length, and 17 in breadth, and is a very fertile country. The prince of Hohen Zollern is hereditary-chamberlain of the empire. The place is little else but a castle built on a mountain, and is 28 miles S. of Stuttgart. Lon. 29. 45. lat. 48. 24.
 - ZOLNOC, a town in Upper Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name. It was taken by the Turks in 1554, and retaken by the Imperialists in 1685. It is seated on the river Teylle, where the river Sageba falls into it, 55 miles N. E. of Colocza, 45 E. of Buda, and 62 W. by N. of Great Waradin. Lon. 37. 45. lat. 47. 10.
 - * ZOQUES, a province of N. America, in New Spain, and in the government of Chiapa, on the frontiers of that of Tabasco. It produces plenty of silk and cochineal.
 - ZORNDORFF, a village of Germany, in the New Marche of Brandenburg, famous for a bloody battle fought here in September 1758, between the Prussians and Russians, in which the former gained the victory.
 - * ZUG, a handsome and considerable town of Swisserland, and capital of a canton of the same name. It is seated near the lake Zug, at the foot of a mountain partly covered with trees. It is but a small place, and is seated in a pleasant country, where there are rich pastures, and fertile fields. In 1435, the street which was on the side of the lake, was swallowed up, and therefore they built another upon an eminence. There are several fine houses, handsome churches, and a good town-hall. It is 12 miles N. E. of Lucern, 17 S. W. of Zurich,

Z U

- and 42 S. E. of Basle, or Basl. Lon. 25. 14. lat. 47. 12.
- * ZUG, one of the cantons of Swisserland, bounded on the E. and N. by that of Zurich, on the W. by that of Lucern, and the free provinces, and on the S. by that of Schwitz. The inhabitants are Roman Catholics, and it is divided into three parts, one of which is the town of Zug, and the others the villages about it, which comprehend three assemblies, namely, Bar, Mentzie, and Val Egeric. The government of this canton is democratic, and the sovereignty belongs to the town of Zug, and to the communities without it, though this place has a particular magistrature.
 - * ZULLICHAW, a town of Germany, in Silesia, in the province of Crossen, one mile from the river Loder, and 12 W. N. W. of Crossen. Lon. 32. 40. lat. 52. 10.
 - * ZURBIA, a town of Persia, almost close to Isphahan, to which it is a sort of a suburb, and is separated from it by the river Senderou. It is peopled with a colony of Armenians, which were brought into Persia by Shaw Abbas. It is an archbishop's see, and contains several churches and monasteries. Lon. 70. 30. lat. 32. 25.
 - * ZULFICH, a town of Germany, in the dutchy of Juliers, belonging to the archbishop of Cologne. It is seated on the river Nassel, 10 miles S. of Juliers, and 10 W. of Bonn. Lon. 24. 23. lat. 50. 32.
 - ZURICH, an ancient, large, and populous town of Swisserland, and capital of a canton of the same name. It is seated at the N. extremity of the lake Zurich, where the river Limmat proceeds from it, and separates it into two unequal parts, which communicate by three bridges, the largest of which abuts to the market-place, where the town-house stands. It is one of the best built towns in this country, but the streets are narrow, and the houses high. The cathedral church was founded by Charlemagne, and is adorned with a statue of that emperor. The revenues of the rich college of the canons, now serve to maintain the ministers of the church, the professors, and 10 canons, who have preserved their ancient dignities, with their benefices; but they are obliged to preach every day, or at least to read a public lecture in the college. where the languages, philosophy and theology, are taught. The convent for the daughters of the nobility is changed into a college, where 25 young students are educated, and provided with all necessaries. The fortifications are in the modern taste, and the arsenal has arms sufficient for 15,000 men. The inhabitants have made such a good use of the ecclesiastical benefices, which have been secularized, that they have an hospital which maintains 650 poor people. The inhabitants are divided into 13 companies, one of which consists of the nobility, and the rest of tradesmen. There are also two councils, the great and the little: the first consists of 162 members, who decide the most important affairs, and the second of 50 senators, and two burgoasters, who take care of affairs of state, and determine causes that are brought before them. They have several manufactures, and send part of their merchandises to Italy. A great many French refugees are settled here, who have built handsome houses about the city. It is 37 miles S. W. of Constance, 40 S. E. of Basle, and 135 N. E. of Geneva, and 50 N. E. of Bern. Lon. 26. 20. lat. 47. 23.

ZURICH, the canton of, is one of the 13 cantons of Switzerland, and the first in rank, being about 50 miles in length, and 50 in breadth. It is bounded on the N. by the Rhine, which separates it from the canton of Schaffhausen, on the S. by that of Schwitz, on the E. by Thurgaw, and the county of Tockenburg, and on the W. by the canton of Zug, and the free provinces. The soil is fertile in corn, produces all sorts of fruits, and there are some vineyards, as well as rich pastures. This canton is well peopled, and the inhabitants are very laborious, having a famous manufactory in grapes. They were the first that embraced the reformation, and the famous reformer Zuinglius was born here.

ZERICI, the lake of, is one of the largest in Switzerland, being about 20 miles in length, and 4 in breadth. The river Limmat runs through it length ways, and at Ruperfchwil, there is a bridge over it 1350 paces in length. It is of great use for trade, and the rather as it communicates with the Rhine.

ZURITA, a town of Spain, in Old Castile, seated on the river Tago, with an old castle, and a commendery of the order of the knights of Calatrava. It is very near Toledo. Lon. 14. 18. lat. 43. 3.

ZUTPHEN, a strong and considerable town of the United Provinces, in Guelderland, and capital of a country of the same name. It has a magnificent church, and is surrounded with walls. It was taken by the French in 1672, who in 1674 delivered it up to the States-general. It is seated at the confluence of the rivers Beekel and Yffel, 9 miles S. E. of Deventer, 22 N. of Cleves, 22. N. E. of Nimeguen, and 55 E. by S. of Amsterdam. Lon. 23. 48. lat. 52. 12.

ZUTPHEN, a county of the United Provinces, in Guelderland, and is bounded on the N. by the river Yffel, which separates it from Velaw, on the W. by Over-Yffel, on the E. by the bishopric of Munster, and on the S. by the duchy of Cleves. Zutphen is the capital town.

ZUYDER ZEE, a great gulph, or bay of the German Ocean, which extends from S. to N. in the United Provinces, between Friesland, Over-Yffel, Guelderland, and Holland. It is so called from its situation towards the S. and is said formerly to have been a lake, and that the land is swallowed up which united North-Holland with Friesland. There are a great many sea-port towns, which are taken notice of in their proper places.

Zwickow, a town of Germany, in the circle of Upper Saxony, and on the frontiers of Voigtland, and is subject to the elector of Saxony. It was formerly imperial, and is now a handsome place, seated on the river Muldaw. The place where the inhabitants are buried is in Voigtland; and therefore it is commonly said, that they are Misnians while alive, but Voigtlanders after they are dead. It is 20 miles N. E. of Plawen, and 15 S. of Altenburg. Lon. 30. 30. lat. 50. 43.

ZWINGENBURG, a town of Germany, in the circle of the Upper Rhine, and in the landgravate of Heffe Darmstadt, 8 miles S. of Darmstadt, and 12 N. of Worms. It is subject to Heffe Darmstadt.

ZWOLT, a strong town of the United Provinces, in Over-Yffel, and in the district of Zellant. It is a handsome, large and rich town, defended with some fortifications; and the canal which begins near this place, and extends to the river Yffel, is defended by several forts at proper distances from each other. Near it is the mountain of St. Agnes, where there was formerly an Augustin convent, in which Thomas-a-Kempis lived 71 years, and died in 1471. It was formerly an imperial and hanfiatick town, and is advantageously seated on an eminence, on the rivers Aa and Yffel, 8 miles S. E. of Campen, 50 N. of Deventer, and 5 S. of Haflalt. Lon. 23. 43. lat. 52. 32.

• ZYGETH, a town of Lower Hungary, and capital of a county of the same name, seated in a morafs made by the river Alma, 10 miles N. of the Drave, and 50 N. N. W. of Eiseck. It is a very strong place, and is defended by a

* ALCAZAR QUIVER, that is, GREAT ALCAZAR, is a town of Africa in Barbary, and in the kingdom of Fez. It is famous for a battle fought here in 1558, between Sebastian king of Portugal, and Mahomet king of Morocco, on one side, and Abdemeleck, the deposed king on the other. The two former were killed, and the last died in his litter. It is 6 miles S. E. of Laracha, and 40 N. of Tangier. Lon. 11. 40. lat. 35. 55.

ANTRIM, a county of Ireland, contains 19,071 houses.

ARMAGH, a county of Ireland, contains 11,261 houses.

ATHERTON, or ATHERSTON, a town of Warwickshire. There are two towns of that name in this county, and all that is said here belongs to that to the N. of Coventry, except the distance, which should be thus: It is 12 miles N. of Coventry, 24 S. of Derby, and 104 N. W. of London. The other Atherston, though marked as a market-town in the best maps, has now neither market nor fair. The distance from London should have been 96 miles S. W.

BOURBON Isle of. See MASCAREIGNE.

GALWAY, a town in Ireland, contains 1481 houses.

* KHIEVA, a town of Asia, in Bokaria, seated on a rising ground, in a fertile plain, and has three gates, with a thick wall of earth. It is much higher than the houses, and has turrets at small distances from each other. The houses are low, and the greatest part of them built with mud, with flat roofs, and covered with earth. Its inhabitants are Mahometans, and are called Khievinki tartars, they being governed by an independent Khan. Its territory produces cotton, lamb, furs, and a little raw silk. It is a 120 miles N. E. of Meshed, and 130 S. W. of Bokaria. Lon. 80. 35. lat. 38. 30.

KILKENNY, a town in Ireland, contains 2071 houses.

* KIRGEESE TARTARS, a people of Asia, who possess a large tract of land to the N. E. of the Lake Aral. They live in tents made with poles, and covered with felt, which they move from place to place with great ease. They feed on horse-flesh, mutton, and venison, and intoxicate themselves with fermented mare's milk. They are robust, but rude, ignorant, treacherous, and great robbers.

LIMERICK, a town in Ireland, contains 3672 houses.

LONDON. Add to the account of the Gates: Bishopsgate is since taken down; and Moor-gate and Alderfgate are now almost down.

* JAKUTSKOI, read, IRKURSKOI. This article was taken from Ysbrand Ides, who was upon the spot, and might have known the name better. According to the late Russian survey, the lon. is 121. 54. lat. 52. 12. * JAKUTSKOI, in the same survey, has lon. 147. 12. lat. 60. 0. and is seated on the river Lena. It is the capital of a province where the governor resides, who also rules Kamkatka. The soil hereabouts on the banks of the rivers is very proper for corn, which they sow and reap in six weeks time, and the straw is never above half a foot high. However, they never sow much, they being most intent upon hunting fables, foxes, and other animals for the sake of their skins. The country-people rove about like the Laplanders, and their huts, like theirs, have holes to let the smoak out. They feed upon the inner bark of young pine-trees, and dried fish; but they will eat bread when they can get it; for they neither sow nor plant themselves. They allow polygamy, and buy and sell their wives.

MAURICE ST. OF MAURITIUS, is said, upon the authority of an anonymous French geographer, not to belong to the French; but in a late edition, he tells us the contrary, and that it has two good harbours. It now appears beyond dispute, ERRATA & ADDENDA.

- pute, that the French have settled a colony in it, and that their ships stop here going to and from the East Indies. They now call it the Isle of France. It had no four footed land animals before they were carried hither. It is somewhat larger than the Isle of Mascareigne, or Bourbon, and lies in lon. 75. 40. lat. 19. 45. according to count de Maupas's chart.
- * MONTE CRICIO is a small island lying between Italy and Corfica, 37 miles W. by S. of Gibetto in Italy. It is only a rock about 5 miles in compass; though it was formerly pretty well inhabited, and had a monastery. At present it has only a tower to keep off pyrates, and but very few inhabitants. Lon. 26. 55. lat. 43. 5.
 - * MONTE CRISTO, called in our bills of entry, MONTE CHRISTI, is a neutral port in the island of Hispaniola, on the north side, and to the east of that part named S. Domingo, inhabited by the French. We export various commodities to this place, and more particularly, provisions: but the West India sugar planters do not like, because the French cause their sugars to be transported from thence in neutral bottoms. It is 30 miles N. W. of the town of St. Domingo. Lon. 506. 53. lat. 19. 52.
 - * NATAL, CAPE, is the most northern point of the Island of Madagascar, which lies S. E. of Africa. Lon. 67. 4. lat. 12. 20. S.
 - * NATAL-BAY, is in the south eastern part of Africa, seated on the northern bounds of Terra-de-Natal. Lon. 49. 0. lat. 30. 35. S.
 - * NEGRO, a river of Italy in the kingdom of Naples, and in the Principato Citra. It washes Athens, falls into the Selo, and runs under ground with a great noise, for the space of 4 miles.
 - * ORENBURG, a town lately built by the Russians, as a barrier against the Kirgeese Tartars, and also with a view of opening a trade with them, for furs, gold-dust, and rhubarb. Some Englishmen were lately here on their journey to Kheeva; and in their passage they kept on the west side of the Lake Aral. It has a very high rocky shore, and they met with no water but once every two days; and this was bitter and salt. The lake is computed to be a thousand miles in circumference. Orenburg is about 200 miles N. of the Lake Aral. Lon. 76. 50. lat. 51. 30.
 - * SIWAS, anciently SEBASTI, a town of Asia, in Natolia, with a bishop's see, and capital of Belesberglic. Formerly, the Ottoman court was kept here, and it is still a considerable place. It is 50 miles S. of Fozat. Lon. 54. 50. lat. 39. 15.
 - * STREITZ, a town of Germany, in Lower Saxony, and in the duchy of Mecklenburg. It is the seat of the younger branch of the dukes of Mecklenburg, and the present duke, besides the lordship of Stargard, in which this town is seated, is in possession of the p. laciality of Ratzburg, and has the toll of Boitzenburg, worth 30,000 crowns a year. It is 50 miles N. of Berlin. Lon. 33. 40. lat. 53. 25.
 - * THRAISTON, a town in Northamptonshire, with a market on Tuesdays, and one fair on August 2, for pedlars ware. It is but a small place, but is pleasantly seated on the river Nene, over which there is a handsome stone bridge. It is 7 miles S. S. W. of Oundle, 20 N. E. of Northampton, 74 N. N. W. of London. Lon. 17. 0. lat. 52. 22.
