Deer are also reported as appearing in several fields along the line. Friday's Frederickton Gazette says: "There deer visited the city today. They were seen about noon on Charlotte St. On being chased by dogs they took to the yards and gardens. In jumping the fence from Ludlow Terrace's garden one fell and broke his neck. The other two escaped through Wilmut Park."

Miss Barker's many friends all over the Province will follow her with their best wishes for her happiness in wedded life.

IT COST $16 to induce Messrs. Barker, the proprietors of the White Horse, to refrain from keeping their place of business open on Tuesday. All the business people of Chatham, excepting Messrs. Barker, readily agreed to close their shops, offices, etc. in order that they and their employees might join in the general demonstration in honor of the Queen. Mayor Benson, finally made it a matter of money with them, and they accepted sixteen dollars as the price for closing up—the money being paid by the Mayor and Provincial Secretary Treedon. Our people are congratulating themselves over the fact that these gentlemen are only recent arrivals in the community.

Rev. Father Morrice, missionary to the place, sang the Kyrie, the Gloria, the Hosanna, and Agnus Dei in Latin, to Gregorian music. They also sang the same in the Missae tongue. The Rev. celebrant preached an eloquent elucidated:—"Two years ago last June," said the father, "Lena was vaccinated by a doctor in Fergus. The arm was very sore and swollen all summer, and became so bad that it was a mass of sores from the shoulder to the elbow. In October 1894 a large lump appeared on her back, over a sore on her lung. The doctor who vaccinated her treated her all that summer, calling very frequently, but the medicine he gave her did no good and she was growing weaker and weaker. The lump broke out on her back another doctor was consulted, who said she was in a very bad state of health. Her constitution appeared to be completely undermined, and her appetite had completely failed. The last doctor called in gave some outward applications, and lauded the gathering, but it did not give the patient any benefit. She was suffering from a fever since that time, but each broke and disappeared of its own accord, only to be followed by another. The child became very pory, and little or no food would remain on her stomach. At night she would fairly rave with the pain in her arm and back, and consequently her trouble was aggravated by a loss of sleep. She had the best attendance both day and night, and she was slowly but surely sinking. Friends advised a treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and as a last resort they were tried. To the surprise of all present, the child began to improve soon after beginning the use of the pills. Her appetite returned, she became stronger and her general health much improved. The sore has not yet left her back, but her constitution is being so very much improved under the treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that her parents are looking for a complete cure. Mr. and Mrs. McFarley thank Pink Pills for the present improved condition of their child, as they have done her more good than the scores of doctor's medicine which she took. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blood purifier and nerve restorer. They supply the blood with its life and health-giving properties, thus driving disease from the system. There are numerous pink pill cures mentioned against which the public has to guard. The genuine Pink Pills can be had only in boxes the wrapper around which bears the full trade mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Refuse all others.

At the Presbyterian General Assembly which met at Winnipeg on June 15th, the Rev. James Murray, formerly of Prince Edward Island, now residing at Newcastle, N. Canada has certainly to thank Toronto and the officers of the Forty-eighth Highlanders for the honor she has won by the skill of the team sent by them to compete in the Royal Military Tournament, where the British regulars, irregulars and volunteers, white and colored, from all over the empire met in friendly combat. Toronto's Highlanders team easily defeated all colonial teams, the bayonet trials, and four Canadians were left to compete for the colonial prize. Then they defeated the British regulars apparently only with less ease, and then came the team of the picked men of the Household Brigade, drawn from the Coldstream Guards and Scots Guards. Finally, the most famous of the Canadian team, Private Stewart, won the Empire prize against all victors in previous contests, and is therefore the British empire champion. Toronto intends to give Private Stewart a public welcome when he returns.

John Irving, a farmer at Cape Traverse, P. E. I., wishing to rid his place of a few of the crows which gave him some annoyance, decided to feed his birds on the Crow's foot. The crows did not brook the poison, but Mr. Irving's crows broke into the place set apart for the crows and partook of the poison, with fatal results to two fine ones. The Charlestown Gazette says at last accounts it was doubtful if any others would recover. Poison is a bad thing for farmers to distribute too lavishly about the fields.

St. John Letter. THE BACCHANTS DISPOSED OF—THE GOSPEL OF AN OBSERVER. After spending several months in solitary confinement the bacchantes of Mr. McMenamin have been expelled from Boston where it was feared her presence would prove detrimental to the morals of the present and coming generations. The bacchantes go to New York where she will be set up in the last-mentioned museum and where she will be noticed chiefly because of the notoriety she has acquired in Boston. The first to detect immorality in this bronze statue were those who are immorality themselves, just as those who make the loudest outcry against the world's wickedness are generally far from immorality. This is a convenient way they have of diverting attention from their own delinquencies. One of the most staid of New York newspapers says it is all rubbish that the bacchantes represent a drunken woman, that she is immodest, that she glorifies the integrity of wine. The figure simply represents light heartedness and gaiety and grace.

A Montreal paper complains that two of the lieutenants are members of the mounted police. Several of Jeff Davis' lieutenants have held some of the highest offices in the gift of the American government ever since the close of the rebellion. Such appointments cannot be justified in either case.

It may be that the farmer works as hard as he did fifty years ago and banks no more money than he did then, but still he gets a good deal more for his labor. He lives in a better house and has better furniture; he wears better clothes and gives his sons and daughters a better education; he has in his parlor a piano or an organ instead of a spinning wheel and he has cheerfulness and music where fifty years ago he was apt to have nothing but discontent. Such things are worth while as much as money and they are made possible by the improved farm machinery that during the last fifty years has come into use. Twenty-five years ago there was not a single steeple in St. John devoted exclusively to the sale of farmer's supplies; now there are a half dozen, notable among which is that of A. Myers, No. 89 Garsmain Street, which is headquarters for the agricultural implements made by J. H. Gould of Smith's Falls, Ontario. Among Mr. Gould's celebrated implements which are always kept in stock are the Hodian model and one horse mowers, the Fibria ree, the Queen and nine other kinds of steel plows, gang and sulkey plows, spring and spike tooth harrows, and the Dwyer and Champion cultivators.

With some of these implements a boy of fifteen can do the work of a man, and as much as ten could do with the tools of fifty years ago. Mr. Myers keeps a full line of carriages and farm wagons and carts, made by Monroe & Mackintosh of Alexandria, all of which are stylish and durable. Mr. Myers will make considerable of a display at the exhibition, but farmers will find as good a display at his warehouse any time when they visit the city.

The daughters of the late Samuel Killam of Yarmouth under certain conditions offer the low a property that cost no less than $75,000, for a public hospital. Twenty four steamers and thirteen bargons are chartered to load here and are now on route to this port.

At the Home at St. Luke's church, North End, last Tuesday evening Mrs. E. P. McKim, the wife of the doctor, was presented by the Ladies' Aid association with an elegant dinner. Joseph Carle, 24 years old, son of Thomas Carle of the North End, was drowned in Sayre's mill pond last Tuesday. He was alone at the time and his body was not recovered until some hours later. He was employed in the office of F. E. Sayre and had many friends.

The flour market is easier. Star is quoted at $4.40 and $4.45; Ogilvie's $4.80 and $4.90; commercial $7.75 and $8.00 per barrel. Eggs are quoted at 10c. Canned tomatoes are firm at 90c and peas at 80c and 85c cents per dozen. Little Leppowans cheese put up by Brothers, Brown & Co. sell at $1.25. They are famous as superior to the fresh bivalve and are handled exclusively by Northrop & Co., South Wharf.

The Jubilee celebration begins with a great public meeting this evening and the bringing of a salute at midnight. Already the city is filling up with Jubilee visitors and if the weather is fine to-morrow the polymorphous parade will be a notable one. The decorations on many of the buildings are novel and attractive and the public squares and the park which have been greatly improved during the last decade are most admired. Many citizens have gone away to rest their weary bones in the shade of some flowering apple tree, to stroll on some lawn and enjoy the fresh breeze, to listen to the weird music of the wind in groves of spruce and cedar and to breathe heaven's uncontaminated air. May no one who comes or goes be disappointed.

The fishermen of Pisconco caught 325 salmon last Wednesday night. There are now in port unladen, nine steamers, one ship, one barquentine, one brigantine and 36 schooners. EDWARD EDWARDS. St. John, June 19.

A Veteran's Story. AT EIGHTY YEARS OF AGE ONE BOX OF DR. AGNEW'S CATARRHAL POWDER CURED A CASE OF FIFTY YEARS STANDING CATARRH OF THE BLADDER. George Lewis of Shamokin, Pa., writes: "I am eighty years of age. I have been troubled with catarrh for fifty years, and in my time have used a great many catarrh cures, but never had any relief until I used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. One box cured me completely, and it gave me great pleasure to recommend it to all suffering from this malady."

Dr. Jack's Wife. (Continued from 1st page.) A man in the cars with a light and a hammer, testing the wheels, with those that train it is necessary to take every possible precaution in order to prevent accidents. Larry's exclamation was: "Heaven's sake! My beloved wife, such is his anxiety to discover what has become of his friend. While he thus prunes about, not daring to wander far from the train, as it may move at any minute the signal comes that the track is clear, he catches a glimpse of a moving figure. That is enough. In the darkness he cannot tell whether it be friend or foe, but, rushing up, he thrusts his weapon against the man's side, while saying fiercely: "Surrender!" "Why, Larran, old fellow, is it you?" comes a voice. "Jack—thank heaven. But you gave me a scare, man. What madcap story was that?" "Jack seems to be engaged in colling up a rope, and Larry, when he discovers this, is doubly amazed. "They tried it, Larran, and failed. Just as I stepped into the shadow a noise told me my shoulders. I happened to have one hand up to my hat, so that was free to draw a knife while I jumped forward in order to prevent being thrown. The fellow at the other end of the car, I saw my knife out, opened the blade with my teeth, and cut the rope, but I caught the hold of the rope, planted my feet against a rock, and had a tug of war for a minute here in the darkness. "Finding it was too much for them, and was dragging the rope in, they gave up and escaped. How long I kept the trophy, which I hardly know how to do with. "Take it aboard, who knows how useful it may yet prove. Besides, it may tell us something about the fellow at the other end." "Larry corrects what he thinks meant for a farewell. "They run to the platform close at hand. The train moves, sure enough. After all, the deed was not so long, but it could be made up. "When they got into the car neither the Chilian colonel nor his British ally can be seen. "I see," says Larry, slapping his knee, "what a ridiculous joke it would be if we turned the tables on them, and they are left behind." "Jack smiles. "This would be too good a thing, my dear boy." "He sees Avis looking out from behind the curtain, and nodding his head with a hand. Jack fancies she seems pale. "What is it, dear?" he asks, tenderly. "Jack, while I sleep a hand entered the half-open window and snatched the small satchel. I caught it, but I caught the satchel broke and the hand-bag is gone." "Jack smothered a groan, and Avis continues quickly: "But dear Jack, some good angel must be in the way, for my husband shows some eagerness to go off. "I have a special waiting car for my arrival in Denver, on which we shall outstrip the regular train and leave our foe behind. "Three cheers for Doctor Jack!" but the other's frown causes Larry to restrain his enthusiasm. "Presently the Englishman is seen to look through the car. Larry declares that he seems greatly surprised when his eyes fall upon Doctor Jack, but he restrains again to the seclusion of the smoking apartment, where his doubts and various schemes are being brought forward. "Having talked the matter over with the others as they pass through the little table, Jack proceeds to send a message which he desires to send ahead, and which will give him a light on the game. "Then he waits for the conductor, with whom he has a long talk in the seclusion of the stateroom. Sworn to secrecy concerning the facts, the conductor tells the message up with some bank bills Jack hands over, and then the affair is as good as arranged. "Jack can lie on his oars. All that is necessary is to watch the enemy and circumvent any move looking to a slip attack from the rear. "When Denver is reached by this transcontinental train there will be no surprise in store for some people, no doubt. The schemes of the two allies may embrace a variety of forms, since one waits the secret packet that some of such immense value to Doctor Jack, while the other covets his wife. "By this time, however, the bull-dog nature of the British nobleman has been fully aroused. He hates Jack with intense fervor. Every victory of the American side up to the slugging had blood in his veins, until he is now in a condition bordering on frenzy, though outwardly cool, and could see the man against whom his anger is kindled burned at the stake with pleasure. "When two such unscrupulous plotters strain their energies in the endeavor to outwit each other, the chances are that they will arouse something of a commotion. "An hour later the sleeper drops off from the train which goes on, and which goes on the open prairie. Luckily the accident is discovered by the conductor a few minutes later. It happens to look out of a window and sees lights a mile or so in the rear, where no illumination could be expected, pokes his head out still farther, counts the cars, and finds six train cars short of the number with which it started. "So he pulls the cord, stops the train, and they back down the track to secure the platform. An investigation shows that it has been no accident. Some strong hand uncoupled the cars after detaching the bell-cord, and accomplishing other things that are necessary on account of the responsibility. (To be continued.)
