AMERICAN REFUGEES FROM KINGSTON, JAMAICA, STRONGLY CRITICISE HARD HEARTED ACTION OF CAPTAIN OF SIR ALFRED JONES' STEAMER AND OTHERS — REFUSED TO GIVE THEM FOOD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—American refugees from Kingston, Jamaica, arriving here today on board the steamer Prinz Eitel Friedrich, sailed from the stricken city on Thursday afternoon last, the third day after the earthquake, which they termed the "inactivity and utter inefficiency" of the English authorities on the island during the first days following the disaster. For three days, or up to the day the Prinz Eitel sailed, there was no semblance of order and nothing definite done in the matter of relieving the suffering of many of the wounded.

day to make room for English refugees, though women and children tearfully pleaded that they had neither food nor clothing on shore. "Third—That the wounded of mixed nationalities were taken ashore in a crude situation on the railway wharf until cared for by American naval authorities on Thursday.

THE resolutions followed: "We, a company of American refugees at Kingston, Jamaica, January 14th, 1907, on board the steamer Prinz Eitel Friedrich, express our emphatic condemnation of the conduct and behavior in that period of certain officials of rank, specifically, Commander Frederick Monday, when resolutions were adopted and addressed 'To the general public and the international press.'"

ON TUESDAY night, while the refugees were sleeping, the Port Kingston blow off a lot of steam. The loud noise created a panic on the dock. One man jumped down from a pile of sacks and sprang into the water. The blow was held up during the entire trip to New York. The inactivity and inefficiency of the authorities were everywhere apparent.

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 22.—Three five mile events for cars of all weights and powers, a mile event for the American championship for touring cars, fully equipped, and a touring car test, marked the real opening of the fifth annual Ormond-Dayton international automobile tournament today. The cars had a runaway match of it, easily distancing the single rear to the limit the drivers did not let their cars out fully, and no records were broken. The car that established the five mile record last year at 2:47:25 today made the distance in 2:44:45.

ditions attending the difference between the governor and the admiral. At the close of this meeting and after having read Governor Swettenham's letter to Rear Admiral Davis, the Most Rev. Dr. Enos Nuttall, Archbishop of Jamaica, sought the governor to talk the matter over with him, saying that if he found the conditions warranted he would send a personal explanatory cablegram to President Roosevelt. The archbishop was unable to see the governor owing to the latter's absence from the island; he will see him tomorrow.

There is much indignation expressed here at Governor Swettenham's action in docking the pay of government clerks who absented themselves from duty for the purpose of nursing sick or dying relatives. Last Saturday he suspended the free service of trains for the transportation of refugees into the country, but at the urgent request of the British consul, he consented to continue this free service for one week. No sailors have been landed from the British cruiser Indefatigable, which arrived at Kingston, yesterday night.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—An expression of gratitude from Governor Swettenham of Jamaica, for the sympathy and aid extended by the United States to the victims of the disaster on that island, the publication of the text of a respectful note from Esmé Howard, the British charge here, conveying the regrets of Sir Edward Grey, the British secretary of state, on account of the incident, and a cable report from American Vice Consul Overt, at Kingston, yesterday, concerning developments in the now famous controversy between the Governor and Rear Admiral Davis, commanding the relief squadron, were received here today. An interesting chapter was added to the case today when it became known that on January 20, after Admiral Davis and his ships had sailed from Kingston, Brigadier General Wint, commanding the army of pacification in Cuba, on the island of the acting British minister at Havana, transmitted through Governor Macgibbon, had a meeting with the governor.

PRESIDENT SCHURMAN TALKS ON SOCIALISM
Enthusiasts Listen to Him in Debate.

Russia the Most Perfect Example of State and Municipal Ownership—Results of Competitive Production.

(N. Y. Sun, Jan. 22.)
New Rochelle was stirred to unvented depths of excitement yesterday over a debate that was held there under the direction of the People's Forum on "Individualism versus Socialism." The debate was held in the local opera house, which will hold, sitting and standing, about 1,800 persons, but it was found far too small for the crowd that came to listen to the arguments.
Morris Hillquit, late candidate for Congress on the lower East Side, was the orator who spoke for socialism. While the supporters of socialism were numerous and vociferous in their applause, "Individualism," whose spokesman was President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University, was not without its lusty supporters, and they made themselves heard every time their speaker scored a point. Finally when Dr. Schurman wound up a denunciation of the Carl Marx brand of socialism and declared: "I am for the republic, three cheers for the republic!" there was a mighty roar of approval. This was instantly followed by cheers for socialism.

The audience listened breathlessly to the debate. In discussing the great changes that would follow the introduction of the Marx style of socialism President Schurman seemed to be rather concerned about the probable fate of many cogs in the present social machinery.
"What," he asked, "are you going to do with these millions, these captains of industry?"
"Make 'em work!" came back a lusty voice from the main floor and a great roar of applause followed.
"Don't you think a man could honestly earn a surplus of $100,000 or $1,000,000?" was another question that the university president put to the audience.
"He never could earn honestly a surplus of $100," was one of the answers that came from a box, and it seemed to please a large section of the audience mightily.
Comde B. Fallon presided and after he had made a short speech President Schurman plumed at once into his side of the debate. He said that in recent times in all progressive countries the functions of government had been considerably enlarged. In the United States, for example, the view of government that has prevailed is that an institution for the protection of life and property, resting on the theory that the less men are governed the better, but complexities and changes which the forefathers did not see have compelled Legislatures to pass laws which have produced a change in our attitude toward the State.

The speaker couldn't see that any appreciable change had been made toward the millennium through public ownership, though he said that it was far from opposing that system.
The speaker praised the conception of socialism as set forth by Kirkup and said that it was at once the most able and sympathetic interpretation of the subject in the English language.
It contemplates a combination of labor and capital in the same industrial and social groups. No recent movement for the better ordering of society, said the speaker, is of more hope or promise, and though its greatest achievements have been in Great Britain there are other cooperative enterprises also in Belgium, Holland, France and Germany.

On the subject of huge fortunes the speaker said that this feature so completely obliterated all others that many thoughtful and ignorant persons assumed that impoverishment of the many had resulted from the enormous fortunes of the few. All this thought and sentiment rested on the tacit assumption that wealth, like dirt, was lying around and needed to be picked up and that one man had a good right to pick it up as another.
"The fact is," said President Schurman, "that wealth is a creation. The colossal fortunes of the millionaires and billionaires, excepting, of course, those that have been dishonestly acquired, are positive contributions to the sum total of human wealth. These fortunes have been created from possibilities of nature and human society, and the genius and organizing ability of great captains of industry. The rest of us should not be the holders, but poorer, had these men of economic genius not created their vast fortunes."
The speaker referred to President Roosevelt's idea of a graduated inheritance tax to reduce the size of swollen fortunes as a sort of economic blood-letting and declared that a few years of trial would prove that the remedy was worse than the evil. Great fortunes, he said, when dishonestly acquired were a great boon to the community, and the larger they were the better.

Mr. Hillquit, who is a practised orator and who got a very warm reception when he began to speak, presented the arguments for the Marx socialism as advocated by his party. He said that within the last century the mode of wealth production had undergone a tremendous change in which the individual laborer was obliterated. Although the production of goods was social in its method and character, it was conducted and regulated by our competing captains of industry for their individual gain. In short, he said, although the production of our wealth is socialistic, its appropriation and distribution are entirely individualistic. Continuing he held:
And this feature of individualism in industry has had a disastrous effect on our modern civilization.
The competitive production for private gain has resulted in the development of classes and glaring social contrasts within our society. It has created trusts and monopolies, introduced the horrible features of woman and child labor into modern industry and inaugurated the system of reckless industrial slaughter which annually claims half a million victims. It has corrupted our political institutions, our public life and is at the bottom of all social ills of our time.
The existence of these ills is not disputed, but it is contended that the Socialist view of them is too gloomy, and that the Socialists do not take into account the many benefits and blessings of the present order of things. We do not deny these blessings. On the contrary, we assert that on the whole we are better off than the previous generations. Every succeeding phase of human progress has been superior to the phase preceding it, and just therein lies our hope for the realization of a system of civilization more humane and rational than our present one—the system of socialism. But in speaking of the blessings of our modern civilization it must also be borne in mind that these blessings, the cheapening of the means of life, the greater comforts, etc., are due entirely to the modern factory and machine production, i. e., to the social features of our industry, and not to its individual features.

GRAVEST CRISIS OF KAISER'S REIGN
German Campaign as Bitter as It is Complicated.
His Majesty Leaving Nothing Undone to Persuade His Subjects to Vote Imperially.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—The campaign has developed into the hottest in the history of the empire. It is also the most demoralized and uncertain, for it is an indescribable battle, not only between great parties, but between a multitude of small cliques. The Kaiser, fully realizing that he is face to face with the greatest domestic crisis of his reign, does not hesitate to employ every instrument in his power to induce or compel the country to "vote imperially." The official pressure put upon voters is direct or indirectly connected with the public service comes as near compulsion as it is possible to make it.

Threats and persuasion are used indiscriminately, but there are signs of rising resentment against these methods. Thus the emperor's threat to boycott Berlin if the city is carried by the Socialists has resulted in a socialist campaign in Potsdam, which promises to elect a Red representative in the royal borough. The Socialists lost Potsdam in the last election by only 500. This time their opponent nominated no less than seven candidates against Herr Liebknecht, Socialist, who is likely to be elected.
IMPERIAL BOYCOTT.
The menace of an imperial boycott also hangs over the royal residential cities of Wiesbaden and Cassel. Wiesbaden elects a Socialist its Majesty is quoted as saying he will chastise the traitorous electors by new the Kaiser's dedication of their new Kurhaus, and will also abandon his annual visit to Wiesbaden. The Royal Theatre at Cassel is to be punished by cancellation of its annual royal opera and dramatic cycle, which takes place in May.
The parties for the government on the "patriotic" issue are the Conservative, National Liberal, and Radical. Each is divided into its own party, and the government are the Catholic Centre, the Social Democrats, and the Guelphs. The Poles, Danes, Alsatians, and the anti-Semites have government leanings.
REDS SUPREME EFFORT.
On Monday the Reds made their supreme effort to get their campaign literature into the hands of the voters. A million volunteers, mostly workingmen, penetrated the city, and carried the papers and forced handbills upon every household. Hereafter the state railway employees had the courage to help the Socialists in their campaign literature, but the railway minister has issued a decree warning railway servants not to carry such literature, and "enemies of the state" under penalty of severest punishment.
The Catholics employed Sunday tramping in the streets, and the Socialists in line. Every priest in the country advised his parishioners from the pulpit to vote for the Catholics, and the effort of the Catholics will consist of persuasion mass meetings in every parish the night before the election, and in their ranks is no less serious than in one West Prussian division five rival Catholic candidates are fighting one another.
HAD NO POLICE SANCTION.
The Catholics had intended to fire their heaviest gun of the campaign in Berlin Thursday night, when the police sanction for their tanks is held, therefore, to be abandoned.
The Government issued last night a semi-official statement which it terms a "manifesto" allowing what it terms the "Centrum's agents and agitators" canvassing from house to house for the purpose of enquiring how those visited mean to vote.
The Government bases its remonstrance on the fundamental principle that the suffrage is secret, and complains that canvassing of the nature indicated amounts to an exercise of undue influence over the electors. It further complains that even among the educated classes there exists very deficient knowledge as to the whole letter and spirit of the electoral procedure, and conjectures that the marked abstention from voting observable at all elections may be attributed to this want of knowledge. The remonstrance closes with a citation of the chief passages of the electoral law.
CONFUSION OF ISSUES.
The confusion of issues is confusing the electorate. The Government election cry is "for Germany's honor and greatness," meaning in particular support of the Government policy in South-west Africa. There is a good deal of dissatisfaction even among the Government supporters over going to the country on this point.
There is little doubt that if Socialism was the direct issue it would suffer defeat, especially on the basis of representation, but in combination with other opponents of the Government the Socialist stand an even chance of winning victory. There is, however, no reliable basis for prophecy, and the second polling alone will determine the result. A majority vote in the Reichstag will probably be the choice in a large portion of the districts on the first polling.
An interesting feature of the campaign is the decline in Chancellor von Bulow's prestige and a corresponding rise in that of Colonial Director Dernburg. It has become apparent that the Chancellor may be a good statesman, but he is a poor politician.

Widow of the Rev. J. H. Holden, III in Parsonage, Listens to Service in Church.
GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 22.—Lying in bed ill of grip today, Mrs. Holden, widow of the Rev. Joshua Holden, was enabled by telephone to hear the funeral services over the body of her husband, a quarter of a mile away. With an acoustic tube her husband, connected with a transmitter in the pulpit of the Methodist Protestant Church, in North Coast, over which her husband had presided, heard the opening prayer, the reading of the Scriptures, the singing of the Schumann quartette, and the solemn services of the church, and "Nearer My God, to Thee. There were also the voices of the Rev. Messrs. Richter, Piper, Adams, Van Hensen, Varney and Hensen to comfort her. After the services her physicians said it had undoubtedly benefited her.

WANTS HUSBAND'S FUNERAL BY 'PHONE
Mr. Holden, a young minister, was in charge of the church for two years. The church has a small congregation, but his health failed, and when he was seized by grip he was unable to rally. Before he died his wife was stricken with an acute form of influenza, so ill that her life was feared for. She said she must attend his funeral, and to calm her a telephone wire was strung from the church. Her husband's body was placed in a vault to await burial after her recovery.

The occasion of a great ovation. Crowds surrounded his carriage which was as much pushed as drawn in the procession. Garlands of Marigolds were hung around his neck and he was enthusiastically cheered. On his stepping out of the train a Hindu gentleman presented him with a silver bowl and then showered a small quantity of rubies, emeralds, sapphires and diamonds over him.

GET BACK TO SPORT. Hockey is the game of the season, and it might naturally be expected that the men who play it do so out of love of sport.

There are ninety and nine that live and die in hunger and want and cold. That one may live in luxury. And be wrapped in its scarlet fold. And ninety and nine in hovels bare, And one in a mansion rich and fair.

Oh, think you ones who are so unjust who stack the cards, or the gambler who looks into his opponent's hand. It is not sport, and it spoils a game. There may be some satisfaction felt by one team in seeing two or three opposing players decorating the fence, but the spectators who pay to witness decent hockey do not get as much fun out of it.

IN A JOCLULAR WAY. The sooner Governor Swettenham loses his job, the better it will be for Jamaica. Not content with making an ass of himself in ordering Admiral Davis to leave Kingston, this pompous official now that he finds public opinion so strongly against him is endeavoring to explain that certain expressions used in his letter were "written in a jocular way. This is only adding insult to injury. The man who could make a joke on such a subject at a time when hundreds of his people were lying dead and thousands of others suffering, is scarcely the type of individual to be given authority in any land.

A RARE ANIMAL. Among the many curious and unusual animals which have been found by Sir Harry Johnston, the African explorer, in the Uganda Protectorate, is the white-headed stork. The bird resembles the common stork in every thing but the head, which is anything but beautiful. The beak is enormous and gives the stork a peculiar, whale-like appearance. It is rather a puzzle to scientists to discover the reason for the white appendage. The whole's mouth is built to catch a multitude of small fish, and possibly the stork's beak may have been evolved by the same agency.

IN POSSESSION. (From the London Daily News.) A queer announcement reaches us from the Streatham neighborhood, in the white-headed stork. The bird resembles the common stork in every thing but the head, which is anything but beautiful. The beak is enormous and gives the stork a peculiar, whale-like appearance. It is rather a puzzle to scientists to discover the reason for the white appendage. The whole's mouth is built to catch a multitude of small fish, and possibly the stork's beak may have been evolved by the same agency.

THE TOLL OF BLOOD. The present season seems to be a particularly unfortunate one at Sand Point. Within three days two young and able men, well known and respected citizens, have met horrible deaths. These were purely accidental but this does not render them any less regrettable. We must, perhaps, expect to pay a toll in blood for our prosperity, and even though the greatest precautions are taken a number of death-seemingly are bound to occur each season.

THE KINGSTON RELIEF FUND. In the light of the press despatches describing the terrible devastation wrought by the earthquake in Kingston, Jamaica, the injury of thousands, the homelessness of tens of thousands, it seems impossible that pecuniary aid is not sorely needed by the stricken people. But against these facts and the personal appeal of Mayor Tait of Kingston for speedy assistance stands the official declaration of the Governor of Jamaica that the colony is capable of healing its own wounds and sundry unofficial advices to the effect that outside relief is not required.

THE FLOODS SUBSIDING ON THE OHIO RIVER. CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 22.—Twenty-four hours after the crest of the flood has passed this point, the Ohio river had gone down one foot and the slow recession continued steadily. Colder weather was promised for tonight and tomorrow and the relief organizations redoubled their efforts to care for those suffering from lack of shelter or food. Many instances of peculiar hardships were reported during the day and new cases of need were hourly added. The lowering of the water has reduced the possibility of heavy loss. It is still too early for estimates of damage. The railways began preparations for the resumption of regular traffic, although it will be several days before the tracks will be safe.

information is received. If it be discovered that no assistance is required, the money on hand will be returned to the subscribers. If official advices bear out the first statements from the scene of the earthquake, the money, together with any further offerings that may be received, will be forwarded to the proper authorities. —The Sun.

THE NINETY AND NINE. There are ninety and nine that live and die in hunger and want and cold. That one may live in luxury. And be wrapped in its scarlet fold. And ninety and nine in hovels bare, And one in a mansion rich and fair.

They toll in the fields, the ninety and nine. For the fruits of old Mother Earth, They dig and drive in the deep, dark mine To bring its treasures forth; And the wealth thus gained by their sturdy blows Into the hands of one forever flows.

Oh, think you ones who are so unjust who stack the cards, or the gambler who looks into his opponent's hand. It is not sport, and it spoils a game. There may be some satisfaction felt by one team in seeing two or three opposing players decorating the fence, but the spectators who pay to witness decent hockey do not get as much fun out of it. There are no penalties imposed on men who ignorantly break the rules, for no player ever does so without knowing what he is doing.

IN A JOCLULAR WAY. The sooner Governor Swettenham loses his job, the better it will be for Jamaica. Not content with making an ass of himself in ordering Admiral Davis to leave Kingston, this pompous official now that he finds public opinion so strongly against him is endeavoring to explain that certain expressions used in his letter were "written in a jocular way. ALL ROME HONORS A MURDERED CHILD. Night Revelers Find Her Braised Body on Steps of a Church. ROME, Jan. 23.—Giovanna de Angelis, a little girl of 7, famous for her childish beauty, was found yesterday lying on the steps of the Church of St. Lawrence. A party of revelers, singing carols and playing the guitar, had noticed a dark form upon the steps. They found the child dead, and saw that her body bore terrible wounds. The hue and cry was raised, and Nazareno Sampaolo, the murderer, was captured and led to jail. He had kidnapped the child, shamefully treated her, then throttled her to death, and when night came flung the body on the church steps. A great crowd followed him to jail, seeking to lynch him, and struggling with the police who guarded him. Today Giovanna was buried, and all Rome followed her coffin. The hearse was laden with wreaths, and workmen's societies and citizens of all classes formed a solemn procession. When the cortege arrived opposite the Church of St. Lawrence, where the body was found, Signor Maza, formerly a parliamentary deputy, delivered an oration expressing the public loathing of the crime.

For a time the fire assumed threatening proportions and it was feared much valuable property would be destroyed. The flames, however, were confined to the building in which they started. The principal losers are the Surburg Tobacco Company, Adams Express Co. and the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, whose armory was located in the building. The fire was so hot that the entire outfit and a visit to the Jamestown Exposition, which had been planned, will have to be abandoned. The fire was a spectacular one and attracted great crowds. The explosion of 500,000 rounds of ammunition, stored in the armory made the work of fighting the flames dangerous. Capt. Kanke, of Truck Company, No. 2, was seriously injured by falling walls.

BRADSTREET'S TRADE REVIEW.

Montreal trade reports to Bradstreet's says:—The movement of wholesale goods here continues quiet, although it is well up to the average for this season of the year. Spring shipments are going forward well. Sorting trade in winter drygoods is beginning to open up although this trade is yet quiet. Values generally hold firm. Stocks of cottons are still light and Canadian mills are working hard to catch up with orders. The December business in drygoods was the best in years and to judge from present assurances, the spring trade is going to be equally as satisfactory. There is no change in the hardware situation. Retail lines are moving well and the market almost bare of rustins and currants. Sugar is steady at the present decline. The retail trade of the city and surrounding country has shown more activity during the past week and collections are generally satisfactory. Butter is rather firmer although the demand is still quiet. Canadian stocks are now returning from England. Cheese is very strong, it is estimated Canadian stocks are light. Flour is quiet and steady and grain dull. Eggs are firm at the high prices ruling. Accumulated stocks of potatoes have sent the market lower.

Toronto trade reports to Bradstreet's says:—There has been little change to the trade situation here during the past week. Wholesale trade is still quiet although there has been a rather better movement to retail lines. Spring goods are being sent out and drygoods orders coming forward are for large and well assorted lines. In other departments of wholesale trade the movement is good for this time of the year. Canned fruits have advanced and higher prices are expected for canned vegetables. The increase in freight rates has added 2c. per hundred pounds to the price of sugars. Until recently the weather has been unfavorable to the movement of retail winter goods but there has been an improvement during the past few days. There is a good spring business opening up in all departments of trade. A feature is the big business in this respect that is coming from the North and the West. Country trade continues a little quiet. Receipts of provisions are still light. Eggs and cheese hold very firm. Stocks of cold-storage eggs are light and prices are expected to go higher. Wool is firm and unchanged. Hides and skins are slightly lower. Wool is firm and quiet. There has been a big business in fruit. The firmness in oranges has been the feature of the trade. Collections are generally good.

Winnipeg trade reports to Bradstreet's says:—Not only has business been affected by the snow after-holiday dullness, but snow blockades throughout the country have held up retail trade in all directions. The snow was welcome, however, as when the roads are once open trade will be all the brisker. The wholesale business is quiet, but the houses are busy with spring lines. The results of stock-taking show that trade, during the past year, has been exceedingly heavy, much beyond expectations. Many lines of trade, however, suffered from slowness of deliveries and in some lines of groceries stocks were insufficient. Payments are fairly good, notwithstanding the slow movement of the grain.

Vancouver and Victoria:—General trade continues active for this time of the year. The wholesale movement is light, but retail stocks are going out fairly briskly. Collections are good. Values are generally firm. Prices for all kinds of country produce are high and showing an advancing tendency. Hogs are scarce and firm. The lack of labor continues to affect provincial industries.

Quebec:—Wholesale trade, as a rule, is quiet. Collections in some quarters are reported a little easier. Travellers report country roads in a heavy condition which makes movements slow. Spring shipments are commencing to be made and the travellers are now on the road with summer lines. Orders to hand are more of a "sorting-up" nature. City retailers, as a rule, are advertising cheap sales with a view to reducing stock, which is usual at this season.

Hamilton trade reports to Bradstreet's says:—The trade movement continues quiet but big preparations are going forward for the spring business. Colder weather has increased the volume of sorting orders somewhat. Collections are fair to good.

DUELISTS FIGHT TO KILL, IN FRANCE

Usual Fares is Supplemented by Encounter That May End in Death.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Some mystery which surrounds a duel which was fought in the forest at Viroflay, near Versailles, yesterday morning, is slowly being dispelled, and as the details come to light it becomes evident that the encounter was a far more serious affair than was supposed.

The duelists were Lieutenant George Spitzer, of the Third Cuirassiers, the son of a rich banker, and another lieutenant whose name still remains a mystery.

Why the two men fought it is still impossible to state, but there is now no doubt that, with a complete indifference to all the traditions of French duelling, the two combatants really went out with the object of killing or being killed.

This object was almost achieved, and may yet be, for long and fifteen now lies at a private hospital in Paris with a bullet in his abdomen, and serious fears are entertained for his life.

The duel took place in a gravel pit, hidden among the trees of the forest, at 10 o'clock in the morning. An hour previously two motorcars containing seven men drove up to the village at Viroflay and ordered refreshments. They were a quiet party, and appeared to be studiously polite to one another. On leaving the inn they left their cars in the village and turned off into the forest.

The rural policeman and a number of villagers, seeing a duel, and anxious to see the fun usually attached to such an event, followed; but they had not gone far when one of the seven, in sharp authoritative tones, ordered the policeman to send the villagers away.

This he did, but remained himself to see what happened.

On arriving at the gravel pit, which is about sixty yards long and fifteen wide, the two members of the party—evidently the duelists—were, according to the policeman's story, placed diagonally at a distance of about fifteen yards from each other. Each man had a service revolver fully loaded, and a number of spare cartridges.

Unlike most French duels, in which the shots are fired at a word of command, each duelist was left to fire when he pleased, taking what time he liked to take aim.

It was evidently a duel to the death, and several shots were fired before Lieutenant Spitzer received the wound which may prove mortal. When he fell he was at once attended by a surgeon, and was afterward carried to the restaurant laid on the billiard table. There he remained waiting for an ambulance till 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he was removed to a private hospital.

Meanwhile the other duelist, who was unharmed, had hurriedly left the scene of the encounter, driving in the direction of Paris with two of his friends.

MAN KILLS HIMSELF BEFORE SWEETHEART

Refused Money by Father to Pay Debts, He Takes Refuge in Death

PARIS, Jan. 22.—A young law student named Stephane Radulesko committed suicide yesterday in his flat in the Rue des Fosses-Saint-Jacques before the eyes of Mlle. Benoit, his fiancée.

Radulesko, who was the son of a wealthy merchant at Bucharest, had been living for some time beyond his means, and had got into debt. He applied to his father for help, but his father wrote back declining to give him an extra allowance.

The student thereupon shut himself up in his room, and wrote to say goodbye to his friends. He also sent a letter to the magistrate, giving careful instructions for his funeral, and saying that he did not wish any wreaths or flowers to be put on his grave. "I have enough clothes to the poor of the neighborhood," he wrote, "and my furniture to the concierge, who has always been very good to me."

As Radulesko was about to shoot himself he heard a knock at the door, and on going to open it found Mlle. Benoit. "There you are," he said, calmly, "I never expected you at this hour, and I was about to shoot myself without saying good-bye to you."

The terrified woman rushed away, calling for help, but before the neighbors could interfere Radulesko shot himself through the head in the presence of Mlle. Benoit, who had returned in the hope of saving him.

SAHARA'S "EMPEROR" IS STRANGELY MISSING

Tenants of the Famous Jacques Lehardy are Now Living Rent Free

PARIS, Jan. 22.—"The Emperor of the Sahara," M. Jacques Lehardy, has disappeared and $4,000,000 worth of his houses, castles, farms and forests are left to look after themselves. A great many of the rents have not been collected for months.

Some time ago the "Emperor" had the following notice printed in many of the papers: "Empire of Sahara. For sale, all the houses in France belonging to His Majesty Jacques I. Offers should be made to European Embassy of the Empire of Sahara in Brussels, Belgium. The offers should be made by the 'Emperor'—masquerading as Abdullah Ben, Prince of Teheran—tried to buy the town of Duligno, in the Adriatic, and a few days later the Turkish police arrested him at Durazzo in mistake for an absconding cashier of a Viennese bank. He was shortly afterward liberated, and went to Bari, where he made himself very popular by throwing money to the crowd from his windows.

About the end of last July the French foreign office received a note signed "Benk Pasha, Foreign Minister to the Sahara Empire." The minister protested, on behalf of "His Majesty Jacques I," against the holding of the Alexandria Conference because no new notification of it had been made to his imperial master.

Since then "Jacques I" has disappeared and nobody has been able to get any news of him.

MISER HORRIBLY KILLED BY THIEVES

His Limbs Mutilated in an Effort to Make Him Tell the Hiding Place of His Money

EUCLAIRE, Mich., Jan. 22.—The body of Daniel Berger, a wealthy hermit, was found late yesterday frozen in his own blood in a small hut near the house where he had been living alone. There were evidences that the old man had been tortured to make him reveal the hiding place of his money. Amputated fingers and toes were scattered about, and the appearance of a heavy rope and of a beam over which it hung coupled with marks on the victim's neck indicated that he had been strung up to the rafters for a time. Apparently a blow in the head with a hatchet finally ended his sufferings. It is thought that the murderers secured the booty they sought as no money was found.

WEATHER MAN MAY NOW LOSE HIS JOB

Force in Nature That Gives Accurate Forecasts Discovered by a German.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Herr C. Gruhn, of Berlin, whose apparatus for telegraphing handwriting attracted much attention some years ago, believes he has discovered a force of nature which has hitherto unnoticed.

A wooden rod, suspended by a silk thread from the top of a closed glass vessel, was found under certain conditions, to be influenced from the outside by another rod, consisting of metal or stone. As the rod outside was brought near to the vessel the suspended wooden rod was sometimes drawn toward it and at other times repelled.

Experiments showed that the conduct of the wooden rod depended on the condition of the atmosphere, and the apparatus can even be used, says Herr Gruhn, for prognosticating the weather. Each kind of weather is corresponded with a particular behavior of the suspended rod, and changes can be forecast from twelve to thirty hours ahead.

As the force which influences the rod passes through substances which effectively insulate electricity, an electrical theory does not explain the phenomena. Herr Gruhn and other scientists are continuing investigations.

MUST TUNNEL WAY IN SNOW TO HOUSES

Up to Eaves of Houses in Several Towns in Silesia and the Carpathians.

VIENNA, Jan. 22.—In several towns in Silesia the snowdrifts are so great in some of the streets as to reach to the eaves of the houses. The residents have had to tunnel their way in and out.

The same is the case in several villages in the Carpathians, which are almost completely buried in snow.

In Budapest and Lemberg the snow in the streets averages three feet deep. The municipality is helpless to deal with the enormous drifts, and traffic is almost at a standstill.

The attempts of householders to shovel away the snow from the front of their houses has only aggravated the difficulty of the authorities, for snow barricades over six feet high are formed on the pavements.

The supplies of coal and wood are running short in Budapest. Stores and provisions are becoming exhausted in many towns, owing to the complete interruption that exists in rail and road traffic.

CARMEN IN REAL LIFE; A TRAGEDY OF LOVE

Soldier Trias, for Second Time, to Kill Girl Who Had Rejected Him.

LISBON, Jan. 22.—In one of the most frequent streets of the Lisbon suburbs a tragedy has taken place which reminds one vividly of the romantic story of Carmen, the "Cigarrera" of Seville. The present heroine is also a beautiful factory girl.

A soldier named Jose—the name of Carmen's lover—was very fond of a child 3 years old whose family he visited, and to whom he gave cakes and sweets. The child, Filomena, grew into a beautiful girl, and the affection of the soldier became gradually transformed into love. When the girl was 14 Jose asked her to marry him, but she said she loved him only as a friend. He flew into a passionate rage, and declared that she should never marry any one else.

A few days after this dramatic interview, his mind still obsessed with disappointed love, Jose shot at Filomena on her way to the factory. The girl, crying him, cried out in terror to her companions: "There is the man who wants to kill me!" and rushed away towards a doorway.

Then the soldier, opening the cloak which enveloped him, drew out his rifle and fired two shots at the girl, who fell just in time on the threshold unharmed.

Then he had killed his sweetheart, Jose knelt in the middle of the street, as if asking pardon of her, again loaded his rifle, placing the barrel in his mouth, shot his brains out.

All this took place with such rapidity that there was no time to stay the culmination of the tragedy.

THE STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B. WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1907.

OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

By OTHO B. SENGO.

(Copyright, 1907, by May McKean.)

As Doctor Blyth stood in the hall, a young girl stepped from an adjoining room inquiring anxiously: "How do you find my father, Doctor Blyth?"

"His condition is serious," he admitted, "but with good care."

"When will he be able to go out again?"

"Not for weeks," emphatically. Her look of anxiety deepened.

"What is your father's business, Miss Hall?"

"He is manager of the local telephone system, and attends personally to repairing and keeping up the line."

"That means a great deal of hard work," sympathetically.

He fancied there was malignant satisfaction in Edith's brief answer, "Out with the linenman."

"The linenman—or had she meant to say the linenman?"

"The linenman," he exclaimed indignantly.

"The thought of her was uppermost in his mind as he drove towards home on a cold, wintry day in early spring."

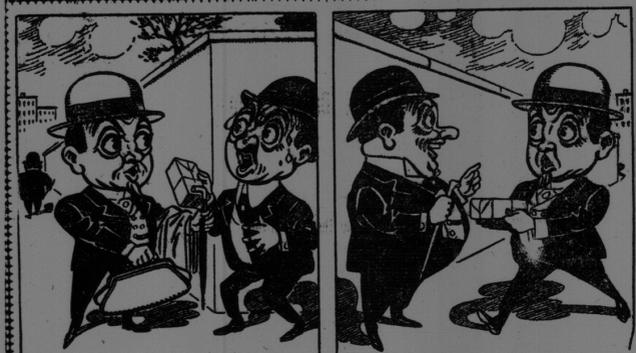

"Oh, if only I—"

EVERYDAY CLUB HEARS MR. MCCARTHY

When Hamilton MacCarthy, the eminent sculptor, accompanied by J. N. Harvey, entered the rooms of the Everyday Club last evening, the place was literally crowded with men and boys.

The chairman asked the crowd of boys in the front seats who J. N. Harvey, entered the rooms of the Everyday Club last evening, the place was literally crowded with men and boys.

The general programme last evening was exceptionally good. Messrs. McClusky and Lynch gave a very funny sketch; Mr. McGorman, mandolin solo; Messrs. Seges, McNeill and Wettrah, vocal solo; William McCavour, a string of funny stories; Master Leonard Callahan, a song; C. W. Cunningham, piano; Joseph Mulhally played the piano, and there were some other numbers. More than thirty new members signed the roll, which is now a long one.

Dear sir—I have been deeply interested in the Everyday Club, and feel that the work is endeavoring to do—to help men—and to help boys—and to be of service to the community, deserves general support. I enclose my check for $25.

STOCKTON BUILDING ON FIRE LAST NIGHT

Fire broke out last evening in the law offices of Stockton & Price, about half-past eight o'clock. The fire started somewhere in the partition between the two offices. It worked its way through the floor and extended along between the floors of the inner and outer banks and the ceilings of D. C. Clinch and R. W. W. Frink's insurance offices.

The most damage was done to the premises occupied by R. W. W. Frink and D. C. Clinch, the law offices of Stockton & Price receiving but little damage, except where the floor had been ripped up. A lot of valuable legal treatises and papers which were in the offices were saved, the glass cabinets in which they were enclosed escaping the flames.

The building in which the fire occurred is owned by R. O. Stockton and Senator Wood of Sackville. D. C. Clinch's banking offices and R. W. Frink's insurance offices and the ground floor of the building were great. On the next floor are the law offices of Stockton & Price, with several other offices in the rear. The next floor is occupied by R. O. Stockton, and the upper story is occupied by the Ames Holden Shoe Co.

NO FEELINGS OF JEALOUSY OVER CANADA'S PROGRESS

United States Watching Our Growth With Admiration, Says Secretary Root—Differences Must Arise Between the Two Countries, But There is No Danger of Peace Being Interrupted.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Hon. Elihu Root, Secretary of State of the United States, made an important speech of international importance at a luncheon given in his honor by the Canadian Club of Ottawa, Earl Grey, Governor General, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, were on either side of Mr. Root and most of the members of the government and parliament were present. Mr. Root made a delicate reference to the Jamaica incident. He commented with satisfaction to the fact that there had been ninety years of continuous peace between the United States and Great Britain. He concluded by proposing the health of Canadians in the United States and Americans in Canada.

NO STRANGE FEELINGS.

Mr. Root said: "I thank you for your most cordial and friendly greeting. I beg you to believe that I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred upon me by the presence at this luncheon table of the Governor General and the Premier of Canada. Another kindly greeting has been received by me since I took my seat at the table from a gentleman who, for reasons which you will readily appreciate, was unable to take a seat in the room. I will take the liberty of reading it to you. It is a telegraphic despatch, dated January 20th, received in Washington yesterday and repeated to me: Honorable Elihu Root, Secretary of State: Jamaica profoundly grateful to your excellency for expression of sympathy and for the very practical aid so kindly given by Admiral Davis and the entire particular service squadron of the United States government. (Signed) GOVERNOR SWETENHAM. (Applause.) I do not feel at all a stranger here, partly perhaps because in your climate blood has to be thicker than water. (Laughter and applause.) Partly because in your atmosphere everyone born and bred in the common law of England and under the principles of justice and liberty that the English-speaking race has carried the world over wherever it has gone, must breathe freely. It is fully forty years since I paid my first visit to Canada. At brief intervals during that period I have been returning, sometimes to one part of the Dominion and sometimes to another, but always keeping in touch with the course of your development and with the trend of your opinion and spirit. During that time what wonderful things we have seen. We have seen feeble, ill-compacted, separate, dependent colonies growing into a great and vigorous nation. We have seen the two branches of the Canadian people, English-speaking and the French speaking, putting behind them old resentments and steadily approaching each other in tightening bonds of sympathy and national fellowship—(applause)—a happy augury for the continuance of that entente cordiale which between the two nations on the other side of the Atlantic, is making for the peace of the world.

SOME GREAT EXAMPLES.

We have not merely grown in population and in wealth, but we have seen here great examples of that constructive power, examples of a great race of builders which have made and are making and are to make the western world unaccomplished in the history of mankind. The spirit of the Norse seafarers, the spirit of the great navigators, of Columbus, of Vasco de Gama and of Drake and Frobenius, the spirit of the Spanish conquerors, the spirit of the men of power and energy in the world, has found its development in this western hemisphere. We have seen some of the greatest of the great building men of constructive power and energy. (Applause.) We have seen and are seeing now the growth of that historic sense, the growth among the people of that appreciation of the people's part in the making of a nation, and as you are drawing away, through the course of successive generations, from that past the great figures of the makers of Canada loom up more and more lofty. The courage, the fortitude, the heroism, the self devotion of the men of Canada's early time stand out in historic sentences from which well may flow the deep and unending stream of a great national patriotism. (Applause.) Above all we see a people trained and training themselves in the act of self-government. In that discussion and consideration of all public questions, not only in the high seats of government, but in the farm house and the shop, that discussion which lies at the base of modern civilization, that discussion among the plain people which furnishes the basis for political and social systems, differentiates our later day civilization from all the civilization of the past, and must give to the civilization of our time a perpetuity that none of the past has had. (Applause.)

FISHERIES MODUS VIVENDI.

Lord Grey has very kindly furnished me in the last few days with the debates which have been going on in your House of Commons on the subject of the fisheries modus vivendi. I have been much impressed by the thoughtful, temperate and statesmanlike quality which has been conspicuous in that debate. I am sure, and indeed no one who reads the debate can doubt, that whatever conclusion your parliament reaches will be a conclusion dictated by sincere and intelligent and a right minded determination to fulfil the duty of representatives of the people whose rights they are bound to maintain and protect. Whatever the conclusion may be however much any one may differ from it, all men will be bound to respect it. The existence of this club, the existence of similar clubs in the great cities throughout your country is an augury, a good omen for the future of Canada. That intelligent discussion and consideration of public questions which enables the men who are not in office to perform their duty as self-governors, and to give a solid foundation for a nation that shall endure. (Applause.)

NO FEELINGS OF JEALOUSY.

For all this I profess with sincerity and feeling my admiration and my sympathy and I speak the sentiment of millions of my own countrymen, that we look upon the great material and spiritual progress of Canada with no feelings of jealousy, but with admiration, with hope and with gratification. (Applause.) I count myself happy to be one of those who cannot be indifferent to the hopes and achievements of the race from which they sprang. (Applause.) And with my pride in my own land, with the pride that it is a part of my inheritance to take in England, is added the pride that I feel in this great, hearty, vigorous, self-governing people of Canada, who love justice and liberty. (Applause.)

DIFFERENCES MUST ARISE.

There have been in the past and in the nature of things there will be continually a rising in the future of material differences between the two nations. How could it be otherwise? The adjacent sea coasts and more than three thousand miles of boundary upon which we march? How could it be otherwise in the nature of the races at work? Savage nature is never subdued to the uses of man. Empires are never built up by men of vigor and power, men intense in the pursuit of their objects, strong in their exclusion of those even to the extent of their interests of others. But let us school ourselves and teach our children to believe that whatever differences arise, different understandings as to the facts on different sides of the boundary line, the effect of different environments, different points of view, rather than international or conscious unfairness, are at the basis of differences. (Applause.) After all, as we look back over the records of history, after all, in the far view of the view, all the differences of notes, trifling compared with the fact that two nations are pursuing the same ideal of liberty and justice; are doing their work side by side for the peace and righteousness of the world in peace with each other. (Applause.) The differences of our generation loom, held close to the eye, but after all, the fact that for ninety years under a simple exchange of notes limiting the armament of the two countries in terms which have become an antiquated example of naval literature, to single one hundred ton boats with single eighteen pound cannon; after all, the fact that for ninety years under that simple exchange of notes, we have been living on either side of this three thousand miles of boundary in peace, with no more thought or fear of hostilities than as though we were the same people. It is a great fact in history and a great fact of potential import for the future. We celebrate great victories, anniversaries of great single events, call together crowds and are the subject of inspiring addresses, and the successor of the distressed and unfortunate, to be expended by warlike attack by one people upon the other. (Applause.) In the meantime our people are passing in great numbers across that inevitable boundary, Canadians in the East and Americans in the West, and in thousands of homes they and their children are looking back from American hills to Canadian and from Canadian farms to an American fatherland. May they look back with loving memory, never to be turned to the hard

Canada Must Be Ready to Shift for Herself

Mr. McLean Tells Parliament We Should Profit by the Sign of the Times—Tariff Discussion

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—In the Commons this afternoon Mr. McLean opened the proceedings by intimating that Canada must prepare to shift for herself henceforth. He said: "I take this opportunity of saying for myself and perhaps for many of my fellow Canadians that I regard certain incidents of the Jamaica earthquake as a distinct loss to imperfections on this continent, a thing all Canadians took pride in. The British naval stations on this coast are no more. There is a lesson in it for us, that in the future, as some time ago we may have failed to apprehend. The Japanese leave a fan in your house on the coast. It means 'Have a care for yourselves.' If we are to be continental in our own aspirations we must have the means of expressing it ourselves, even as our neighbors have. We may yet find need of a Canadian flag on a Canadian ship in seas that are as much our own as the sea. Mr. Staples protested that lands in Manitoba should not have been leased for shooting to Senator Kirchhoff and the Ontario Police Shooting Club. The lands belonged to Manitoba under the swamp lands provision. Mr. Oliver replied the leases were made subject to the approval of the Manitoba government. The leases had to be conferred by order in council to become law. That would not be done. No leases would be issued in future. The remainder of the sitting was spent in committee considering the agricultural items in the tariff. The evening was spent on the tariff. The Ontario members of the opposition pressed for increased duties on fruit. These demands were not granted. When the sugar items were reached the finance minister adjourned the house. Hon. A. H. Comau, Daniel Gilmour and Robert Took took their seats in the senate tonight.

Number of Firms Suffered Last Night—Damage is Estimated at $75,000

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—A number of firms at 77 and 79 Franklin street were either burned or badly damaged by a fire tonight, the total loss being estimated at $75,000. The losing firms were: G. A. Kowaluk, bookbinder; Victor W. Daniels, printer; Chase, Brown & Co., woolens; Henry W. Dorr, agent of Ethian Allen, 77 Leonard street, New York, all of 77 Franklin street; Massachusetts Brewery Co., main offices, 79 Franklin street.

The fire started in the rear of the building on Bussey place. It shot up a stairway to the top floors with great rapidity that the entire upper floor was a mass of flames before the first alarm was turned on to it. The flames poured out of the windows in the rear from the narrow alley way soon on fire. Fortunately a line of hose was run up the stairs of the opposite building and further progress of the fire was stopped. The water was turned on to it. THE STREET CAR SERVICE IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—The police commissioner this morning granted the request of the city for policemen to aid in turning the Winchester, Bathurst, and Arthur cars to their old routes. The attempt was made at noon at the corners of Yonge and Front, Queen and Bathurst, and King and Bathurst. When the cars were stopped the company ran a Winchester car into the street. As a consequence of this act the city applied to the municipal railway board to take over the service operated by the city for the benefit of the citizens. The lines affected are Arthur, Bathurst and Winchester streets. The board's application will be heard by the court Friday morning.

The company officers of the local fire department will meet at No. 3, station this evening. Preparations will be made for celebrating Chief Kerr's twenty-fifth anniversary in the department.

Reports from the nearby country districts state that the storm of last night made travelling almost impossible in some places. On the road near the Three Mile House the drifts are piled in some places three and four feet deep.

Messrs. Adams and Clark, the West Side contractors, who were mentioned as probable tenderers for the construction of the new wharf at Sand Point, have not yet seen the plans for the structure. After calling upon the mayor and being given permission to look at the plans the contractors left City Hall. They will fully examine the plans in the near future. So far no tenders have been received.

The R. K. V. Club will hold its January smoker at their club rooms, Masonic hall, Germain street, tomorrow evening, commencing at eight o'clock. The committee have arranged the best and most attractive programme that has yet been presented to the club. The new R. K. V. FAVORS AN INSPECTION OF TENEMENT HOUSES

Mrs. Hall Says Unhealthy Conditions are Permitted by Landlords to Exist in Many Buildings

Mrs. Hall, secretary of the Associated Charities, reports that lately there has been an unusually urgent demand for coal. The response to appeals has been generous, and no persons are suffering from cold. Mrs. Hall is not, however, satisfied with the conditions found to exist in many houses in the city. She states that in tenement buildings the landlords often do not make the places habitable. In many instances there are no sanitary arrangements, frequently the walls are so far gone that all the cleaning that can be done by tenants is of little effect. Many places are not fit for human habitation, but poor families are compelled to live in them, and are, of course, subject to much suffering. In some cases personal appeals have been made to the landlords and occasionally improvements have resulted, but the general tendency is to spend as little money as possible, and Mrs. Hall is strongly in favor of a law providing for the inspection of residences.

MUSICAL AND LITERARY TREAT LAST EVENING

Russian Writings Discussed and Demonstrated at a Gathering of Ladies and Gentlemen

A most delightful musical was held at the home of R. Norton Smith, 88 Orange street, last evening, at which not a few of St. John's most talented vocalists and instrumentalists took part. It was one of a series of musical evenings, dealing with music and literature from a national viewpoint. This particular occasion being chiefly devoted to a demonstration of Russian musical, and some of the choicest literary works of that empire.
Mrs. Fliske occupied the chair, and close upon forty ladies and gentlemen were present. The compositions of Tschalkowsky were most interestingly reviewed by Mrs. Fliske, some of which were charmingly rendered vocally by Miss Ida King Tabox, Mrs. A. Pierce Crockett, David B. Pidgeon, Charles Knight and others. A piano duet by D. Arnold Fox and Mrs. Kent Scovill was a brilliant number, as were piano solos by Miss Pauline Biedermann and Miss Gilchrist.
Another pleasing feature of the evening's programme was the rendering of a Russian folk-song with excellent effects, the weird minor tones being distinctly Slavonic. Those taking part in this number were: Mrs. Crockett, Miss Tabox, Miss Hea, Miss Wilson, George Brown, Charles Knight, Mr. Dickason, Edwin Bonnell, Hamilton McCarthy, the Upper Canadian sculptor, who is sojourning in this city for a few days, diversified the programme with an excellent Shakespeare reading, Miss Whittaker of the High School staff, Miss Muriel Gillis, and Miss Truman gave readings appropriate to the subject of the evening.

Rev. A. Gordon Dickie, pastor of St. Stephen's Presbyterian church, read from Lord Macaulay's criticism of poetry, and then from his own standpoint contrasted the works of Dante and Milton, quoting illustrative passages.
Altogether the gathering was of the most absorbing interest, and at the conclusion of the quite lengthy programme refreshments were served.
In recognition of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, whose attention was attracting a hearty vote of thanks was passed.
Much credit was given Miss Alice Hea, organist in Centenary Methodist church, who promoted and supervised the elaborate programme. Miss Hea's accomplishments were, as usual, of a high order.

WILL HOLD INVESTIGATION INTO ROY NOBLES DEATH

Council Will Find Out if the Oil Shed Has Been Open to Anyone Who Wanted to Go In

A very important matter will come up at the next meeting of the common council. The death of Roy Nobles in a shed at Sand Point last night has occasioned much comment about City Hall. The shed in which Mr. Nobles was burned to death was used to store oil in. Aid. Tilley, speaking of the matter to a Star representative this morning, said that he had no doubt but that the shed would be investigated the matter fully. Aid. Tilley stated that as the shed was built for the storage of oil, it should be composed of brick only. There should be no inflammable material nearby as a fire starting at any time where oil is stored is liable to become dangerous. The alderman expressed the opinion that the place would be condemned and a brick shed ordered to be constructed. Another question to be considered is whether checkers or any other employees of the steamship lines have a right to enter this shed. The only man who has any business there is the one who fills the lanterns. Aid. Tilley thinks there should be a lock on the door, and the only man to have a key should be the one in charge of the shed.
It has been stated by some that a number of checkers and other men working in the warehouses have made a practice of going to this place during their leisure time.

MANY ACCIDENTS HAVE OCCURRED THIS WINTER

Four Men Killed and Two Seriously Injured Already at Sand Point

Accidents happen at Sand Point each year, but the list of fatalities and accidents was never larger for the first two months than it is this winter. Four men have gone to their deaths while working on the winterport and two others have been seriously injured.
On December 2nd, Michael Aushbrough fell into the hold of the C. P. R. liner Lake Erie. His back was broken and he succumbed to his injuries two days later.
Charles Holding fell down the hatchway on the same steamer and fractured his skull. He died from his injuries after having been in an unconscious state in the hospital for several days.
On January 19th, Wallace Brown was caught in the winch on the Donaldson liner Parkersburg. He was terribly crushed and was killed instantly.
Last night, Roy Nobles was burned to death by bringing the number of fatalities up to four.
Two accidents where men miraculously escaped death also occurred. Charles MacDonald fell twenty feet down the hatchway on the Lak Champlain. He recovered after being confined to his bed for some time. Robert Donald fell a distance of twenty feet down the hatchway on the steamer Montezuma. He was quite badly injured.
No inquests have been held to inquire into the causes of any of the fatal accidents.
It has not been shown that any one was killed or injured on account of carelessness on the part of any of the steamship officials.

DOG STAYS AT HOME TO LOOK AFTER THE CHILDREN

Spaniel in an Erin Street House Acts as Nurse Girl for Two Little Ones

If ever a dog deserved a medal for devotion to duty, the spaniel owned by Mrs. Graham of Erin street is one that should be rewarded. This faithful little animal possesses more intelligence than a good many human beings, and he is as good as a hired girl around the house.
Mrs. Graham, who is a young woman, is the mother of two lovable little children, a girl aged four, and a boy just starting on his third year. The mother finds it necessary to work for the support of her home, and has to leave at half-past six each morning. Then the services of the dog as housekeeper are called upon, and the little spaniel cheerfully assumes the responsibility placed upon him. He does not wash the dishes nor light the fires, but he looks after those children perhaps more carefully than would be done by a nurse girl. He keeps them out of mischief, sees that they do not get into any danger, plays with them just like another child and finds their lost toys. The dog and children are locked in the house each morning and spend the forenoon in the jolliest possible manner until the mother returns at noon to give them their dinner. The afternoons are passed in the same way, and though this has been going on for quite a long time the spaniel has never once neglected his duty nor allowed harm to befall the children.
The home is a most cheerful and happy one, and the little dog's assistance is of importance in keeping it this way. When visitors come he pounces upon them after the fashion of children, and keeps tugging gently at their clothing until they go along with him to see some favorite toy or to watch the three chums playing a game.
