Washington, May 6.-The war department has received the following from General Otis: "Following casualties at San Tomas yesterday: One officer, Lieut. Toggart, Ocean and Running Short of

Twentieth Kansas, and four enlisted men killed; three officers, twenty-two enlisted men wounded. Among the wounded is Gen. Funston, hand, slight. Lawton reports the capture of over 150,000 bushels of rice and 265 tons of sugar at Baluag. Value of subsistence captured at Malolos, $1,500,00. Large captures of rice and corn belonging to the enemy at other points. Insure gents destroyed by fire yesterday the town of San Tomas, and last evening fired the town of San Fernando." THE OUTLOOK. Washington, May 6 .- The continued rebel demonstrations south of Manila are causing no apprehension to war department officials, as the brigades of Ovenshine and Hall are said to be ample for every emergency. Together they have about 4,600 men, besides the Ninth and Twelfth regular infantry, who have just arrived at Manila. In view of the sharp demonstrations N. UDY -GENERAL INSURANCE to the south, the work done by Lawton on his expedition to Lagun receiving credit not heretofore accorded to it. One of the main results of the expedition was to destroy the small craft by which the rebels might have crossed the lake and moved north on the rear of MacArthur's forces. Now they are hemmed in on a narrow strip of land between the lake and the ocean, unable to cross the lake, while march is too long to circle the lake to the south. Thus the work of Lawtonton is holding the rebels, some 9,000 in number, to the south, leaving MacArthur free from danger of an attack in force from the rear.

The report that the Filipinos were trying to break through the American lines is evidence to the war department that this force is becoming short of supplies. It is evidently Gen. Otis' intention to remain on the defensive as long as he can keep this force separate from the main body of Aguinaldo. It is said Gen. Otis believes that he can starve this southern army into submission. Malate is a suburb of Manila near the bay. The other point mentioned in the dispatch, San Pedro Marcati, is between Manila and Laguna de Bay, and is one of the outposts which pro-

The Queen's Return to Windsor-Possible Subjects of Her Majesty's Birthday Honors-Agitation Against Sunday Newspapers.

(Special Cable Letter to The London Advertiser.]

London, May 6 .- The personality of Mr. Cecil Rhodes has been a towering Scure this week. His welcome at the meeting of the Chartered British South Africa Company at the Cannon Street Hotel on Tuesday was one of blind enthusiasm. Mr. Rhodes carried his audience away with his breezy optimism, which served as a gilded coating for the unpleasant fact that the negotiations with the government for aid for his Cape-to-Cairo Railway had fallen, and that the company needed another $15,000,000. The audience, among whom were a number of fashionable ladies, cheered him wildly. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Rhodes was obliged to address an overflow meeting outside the hall. Such an enormous crowd surrounded him, enthusiastically cheering him, that policemen were required to escort him back to the offices of the Chartered Company. The after-effect of Mr. Rhodes' speech was less favorable, however, and shares of the British South Africa Company suffered a de-

BELIEVES IN OPEN MARKETS. Mr. Rhodes' reference to the Carnegle Company's tender of railway iron for the Rhodesian road, and his explanation of its rejection, has attracted considerable attention. The correspondent of the Associated Press in-terviewed Mr. Rhodes upon that sub-ject. Mr. Rhodes said: "My policy has been to support home industries whereever it can be done, from a business point of view, but there is no need for Americans to be discouraged. We positively will go into open markets in the future. I personally believe the open market to be the best in every interest. I can see no reason why the American iron and steel industry should not watch us even more closely than in the past, for Rhodesia is going forward without government support, and we want to attract enterprising Anglo-Saxons, and let them see the ENORMOUS SCOPE before them. The government's caution in supporting us is no new thing. Take Madagascar, for example. No man has done so much for that island as General Gallieni, and yet even now he is obliged to go upon his knees, and supplicate the French Government to follow even our limited example, and open up the country. The German emperor, who is a man of immense intelligence, sees clearly the ultimate value of present Americans are quicker to see business possibilities than the average Englishman, who is cautious, conservative and insular as a rule; but once the Briton sees clearly, then no amount of capital is enough to sink. You can say that Americans are as welcome in Rhodesia as brothers. Three years will see us on the crest of an enormous wave of prosperity."

POSSIBILITIES IN THE PHILIP-PINES.

Regarding the opening up of the Philippines, Mr. Rhodes said: "If my observation is correct, the Americans will be quick to see the great possibilities of trade in that direction, and will not stand waiting, but will rush with capital to develop the industries of the islands. It is impossible to believe that the American Government, with such facts and possibilities beyond a shadow of doubt will hesitate a moment, as the British Government has done regarding

Mr. Rhodes concluded the interview by the statement that the whole of the $15,000,000 for railways in Rhodesia has already been assured.

THE QUEEN'S RETURN. Queen Victoria returned from her stay at Cimiez to Windsor on Friday. Her Majecty was delayed one day at 10th and 16th of the month will bring Cherbourg by rough weather on the English Channel. It is expected that the birthday honors will include a peerage for the British ambassador to the United States, Sir Julian Paunce-fote, in recognition of the part he has taken in the promotion of an Anglo-American understanding. This dis-tinction will come very apropos, in wiew of Sir Julien Pauncefote's selection as the British representative at the peace conference. The Queen's birthday will also be the occasion for an act of grace towards, Mulett, O'Hanlon and Fitzharris, the three men sentenced to penal servitude for life for complicity in the murder of Sir Frederick Cavendish, chief secretary for Ireland, and Mr. T. H. Burke, the permanent under secretary for Ireland, in Phoenix Park, Dublin, on May 6, 1882. The case of these men has been considered by the cabinet, and it is understood that the prisoners

THE VICEROY OF INDIA. Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, gave it to be understood, when he accepted the viceroyalty of India, that he did so because he thought that the climate would improve his health. Private advices, however, intimate that the contrary has been the effect, and that Lord Curzon has been suffering from Ul health ever since his arrival in India. According to Today, the Curzons have been rather overdoing the dignity of the viceroyalty, in contrast to the ways of former viceroys. The publication mentioned says that the present practice in Simla and Calcutta is on lines of the most rigid etiquette. In formal gatherings the hosts always enter last, and only when dinner is announced do they go in first to-gether, through a long lane formed by the guests and an obsequious suite. They sit facing, and commonly address each other, according to Today, as "Your Excellency." Old hands, it is added, are inclined to snicker at all this, which is a bad imitation of Windsor or other royal residences. "But," concludes Today, sareastically, "It must be very pleasing to pretty Miss Leiter and her sisters, all Republican

"A TRUCE OF GOD."

The agitation against Suzday newspapers has had a splendia ... this week. The Earl of Rosebery, in the course of a public speech, took up the matter on Tuesday and declared strongly against the system, appealing for "a truce of God" between the Mail and the Telegraph, whose proprietors were sitting on either side of him at the time. His lordship intimated that each was desirous of ceasing the publication of his Sunday paper if the other would agree to do likewise. The evidence points strongly to the fact that neither Sunday papers has been the success anticipated, and other news-papers are jubilant at the position in which the two rivals find themselves. the success anticipated, and other newsboth being willing but ashamed to withdraw. One by one the most conservative newspapers of the United States were forced into the Sunday market. Mr. Harmsworth concludes by saying that the present is a golden opportunity to stop the increase of Sunday newspapers. Mr. Harmsworth evidently has had enough of Sunday journalism.

WANT TO SEE THE CUP RACE. There are signs of awakening enthusiasm on this side of the Atlantic regarding the forthcoming America's cup races. The owners of quite a number of steam yachts on the Clyde have intimated their intention to attend, and there is certain to be the largest muster of British yachts ever winessed at any contest. A striking proof of the interest that is exciting all classes is the fact that a squad of workmen at a Greenock shipyard have opened a fund, toward which they will subscribe weekly installments to the end of September to pay the expenses of a trip across the ocean to see the races.

Queen Victoria weighs 171 pounds; Queen Margherita of Italy, 176 pounds; Queen Regent Christina of Spain, 147 pounds: Queen Marchenrietta of Belgium. 143 pounds; Queen Marc Amelia of Portugal, 123 pounds; Empress Alexandra of Russia, 120 pounds. The late Empress Elizabeth of Austria was under 100 pounds.

THE CZAR RELENTS.

An interesting event in connection with the Russian Easter event was the czar's reinstatement of the Grand Duke Michael Michalovitz as staff-captain in the Caucasus Rifles. The grand duke fell into disgrace with the late Czar Alexander III., owing to his morganatic marriage in 1891 with the beautiful Countess Von Merenberg, granddaughter of the celebrated author, Pushkiof. The czar deprived him of all military honors and exiled him. His present appointment means early and rapid promotion.

DEBATE ENDED

Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Paterson Hold the Floor.

Sir Charles Wants More Iron Protection-Mr. Paterson Refutes a Personal Charge.

Ottawa, May 6.-The budget debate came to a conclusion somewhat suddenly a few minutes before midnight, when the finance minister rose and stated that the motion to go into committee on ways and means having served its purpose, he would with raw it and move that the house go into committee of supply on some future day. There were only three or four mem-bers of the opposition in the house at the time, and although it was reported that a number of them desired to speak, no one moved the adjournment of the debate.

Sir Charles Tupper resumed the debate in the afternoon and spoke for two and a half hours, during which he devoted considerable attention to the political history of the Dominion from ante-Confederation days forward.

Referring to the large increase in importation of iron goods, Sir Charles expressed the opinion that the time had come when the government should take action toward the greater development of iron production in Canada. He referred to the natural advantages of referred to the natural advantages of this country, and especially of Nova Scotia, for the production of iron, claiming that it could be made as cheaply here is in the United States. He was certain that Nova Scotia could be made one of the greatest iron and steel producing countries in the world. It had been a great pleasure to him to hear the statement made a few weeks ago at the meeting of the British Empire League by Mr. Bertram in regard Sir Charles stated that if proper enmore become as important a steel ship-Sir Wilfrid Laurier had not kept his "fallen down" on the fast Atlantic line question. The increase in the traffic of the Intercolonial Railway, Sir Charles declared, resulted in connection with the Drummond County Railway, but the cost of the purchase had been exorbitant. He asserted that he must be considered by the government to be an idiot if he was charged with anything so monstrous as to allege that he had ever proposed that the parallel line with the Intercolonial should be built. Sir Charles made the characteristic reply to Mr. Mulock's excellent showing regarding the Yukon postal service by stating that the mails had been carried by the mounted police, and demanded to be told if these police had been paid how much of a betterment he would have been able to show.

AN OLD STORY NOW. Hon. Wm. Paterson, who followed Sir Charles Tupper, ridiculed the baronet's dealing with matters of ancient history and fighting once more the battles of Nova Scotia's politics. Sir Charles, he found, had barely deigned to touch upon the subject matter of the finance minister's budget speech, and that in the merest cursory fashion. Mr. Paterson said that he felt it his duty to defend himself against ter's slanderous charges against himself in connection with the alleged manipulation of the duties on raw materials used in his own factory, and the increase in duties upon his manufactured products, candies and biscuits. The minister of customs secured from the ex-finance minister an acknowledgment of the latter's error. He was also able to cite one more important fact to demonstrate how great has been the advance made commercially by Manitoba and the Northwest

BASEBALL.

Those Columbia Giants are the cream of the profession. Chocolate creams they may be, but cream they are, and rise to the top in any sort of a mix-up. They came within an ace of shutting London out in yesterday's game. The Cockneys' one run was turned in by Mohler in the last inning, when First Baseman Johnson got gay, and made a wild throw to Wilson, who had covered first. Mohler got to third on the overthrow, and came home on a timely single by McFadden, thus saving the Cockneys an inglorious whitewash. Everything was lovely till the end of the fifth. Cooper was in the box for London. Two singles in the third and one in the fifth, none of which reached maturity, were all the Giants got off Cooper. Then came a change o'er the spirit of the dream. McGamwell, who is on trial with London, went into the box in the sixth. He threw high and low, to the left, to the right, and at the batsman, but he could not get the ball over the plate. This rattled him, and he fielded badly. Three runs in the sixth and four in the seventh the Giants

A bad verthrow to first by Frank brought both men in and sent Johnson to third, whence he arrived via a fly by Burns. Babbitt dropped an infield fly near the box, spoiling his otherwise errorless and really fine play. The error cost nothing, however, as two of the bases were full at the time. Two free passes with McGamwell's signature, and a muff by Jones, aided by a couple of hits by Johnson and Wilson, brought in four runs in the seventh. McConnell let only one ball get through him, and made a very good showing. Cooper and McFadden look like stars of first magnitude. Mohler, Babbitt, Jones and Howells all did well. The weakness of the Londons is in their batting. Wilson, the dark wonder, simply showed them that they cannot bat a little bit. With improvement in this direction, the Cockneys will do themselves and the city credit. About 500 people attended the game, which was an unusually fast one. The time

There have been four 6 to 0 shut-outs this season in the big league. The "Blue Stockings" may be a pet name for the ex-Pirates this season. Everybody seems to agree that Bob Emslie is one of the fairest umpires in the National League today.

Managing Director John Cameron

London, Saturday, May 6, 1899. The Present Unfair Distribution of Seats.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto World informs the readers of that journal that it looks very much as if the House of Commons was on the eve of a long and bitter struggle, and that the summer will come and go before the end is reached. We look for the reason of this extraordinary state of things, and the readers of the World are informed that a redistribution bill will be introduced in the House of such a nature that twenty seats will be gained to the Liberals by adhering to the county boundaries.

This is a most striking declaration, for if twenty seats can be gained to the Liberals by adhering to the county boundaries, the present distribution of seats must be a very bad one indeed, as by adhering to the county boundaries a serious restraint is imposed upon those who might otherwise be disposed to gerrymander constituen-

When we look at the present division of this Province, we have a remarkable state of affairs. The township of Euphemia was taken from the county of Lambton, and put into West Middlesex. The township of Stephen and the village of Exeter were pitchforked into North Middlesex. South Dorwas taken from the county of Elgin and put into East Middlesex, and all this for the purpose, not of securing a fair representation of the peowith the object of "hiving" the Liberals. The townships of Orford and Howard and the town of Ridgetown were taken from the county of Kent and put into the west riding of Elgin, with the same object in view. South Oxford has a sufficient population in itself to entitle it to a representative, but the township of Dearham was cut off from South Oxford and tacked on diagonally to North Norfolk, and to make up to South Oxford for the loss it thus sustained in population, the townships of Burford and Oakland were taken from the county of Brant and put into South Oxford. The township of Walpole was taken from Haldimand and thrown into North Norfolk. Two townships were cut off from Lincoln and tucked on to Wentworth. One township was cut off from North Oxford and one from the county of Brant, and united with two townships taken from the county of Wentworth to form a constituency. The township of Pelham was cut off from Welland and tacked on to the remaining fragment of Lincoln, and Wainfleet township was taken from Lincoln and tacked on to Haldimand, to make up for the loss to the township of Walpole.

The effect of all this unsettlement of county boundaries-and these are only a few of many-was carefully calculated by the Conservative leaders, and entered upon a map prepared to make clear the party advantage which would by this infamous proceeding be secured. And now we are threatened in advance with a session extending over several months, not because the Government proposes to do any injustice to the Conservative party, but because they propose to undo the injustice that has been done to the country, and to remove the outrage that was committed upon representative government in 1882 and extended to 1892.

The conspirators who (waged this war upon Parliamentary Government in Canada ought to have learned from the result of the elections that the moral sense of the country will not tolerate the perpetuation of what they have done. They ought to learn by what is constantly transpiring whenever an election occurs that it would be in their own interest, instead of threatening the Government with a twelvemonths' session because the Ministers propose, with the aid of the representatives of the people, to put an end to this outrage, to facilitate their work in doing so, to assist them to form constituencies within the counties, to make them as nearly equal as respect for county boundaries will permit, and to so form the divisions that a fair and honest expression of public opinion

Many a public man in England has appeared before the bar of the House of Lords charged with high crimes and misdemeanors for a far less criminal offense against the liberties of the people than this Gerrymander Act which the representatives of the Conservative party have the indecency to

The Increase of Expenditure.

Mr. Foster, in his criticism of the budget, devoted much time to a reproof of the Liberals for increasing the expenditure, pointing out that they had called for its reduction when they were in opposition. The charge is not denied. When the Liberals were in opposition population was stationary, and the national expenditure and debt were growing out of all proportion to the national progress. When they came into power-call it a coincidence if you like-the country experienced an extraordinary impulse of prosperity, creating new conditions which the Liberals were obliged to meet. The Conservative expenditure in 1895 was $38,-132,000, which may be taken as a fair standard of comparison with the subsequent expenditure under Liberal rule. It is true that in 1896, the last Conservative year, the amount was only $36,949,142; but the Government were then preparing for a general election, so they struck out the militia estimates, depriving the rural battalions of their annual drill, and otherwise skimped the public service in a desperate effort to make a good financial showing before the country. In 1897 the Liberals had to make up for the shortcomings of their predecessors, but the expenditure was only $38,349,759 or about the same as in 1895, notwithstanding the increased responsibilities. In 1898 the expenditure was $38,832,525 70, but the increase was caused chiefly by the administration of the Yukon and the extension of the Intercolonial Railway to Montreal, necessary to put the road on a business basis. For the ensuing year, 1899-1900, the Finance Minister is asking $41,528,298 46, or about $3,400,000 more than was spent in 1895. The increase will stand examination. This year $814,000 is required for Yukon charges, which will be recouped by customs duties and mining royalties collected in the Yukon. The people of Canada will not have to pay one cent toward governing that territory. There is a million dollars more for the Intercolonial extension and the enlargement of the canals, the object being the improvement of the transportation facilities, so much desired by the producing interests. These expenditures are reproductive and will be returned many fold. There is an additional sinking fund of $419,000, and the interest on expenditure incurred by the late Government, amounting to $358,000. For none of these things were there corresponding charges in 1895. The main increases for which the present Government are responsible this year are immigration,$163,000; agriculture, chiefly cold storage, $113,000; mail subsidies, $150,000; militia, $132,000 (at the request of the Imperial authorities); Northwest Government, $40,000, and salaries

$40,000. We have not the slightest doubt the present Government would have reduced the expenditure but for three factors-the discovery and development of the Yukon, the extraordinary expansion of trade and commerce, and the stimulus to immigration. These are circumstances with which the previous Government did not have to

The Different Policies.

The latest news from Russia tends to emphasize the difference between the two very different policies of empirebuilding pursued by Russia and Britain. The decree has gone forth that Finland is to be Russianized. The result will be that many patient, industrious citizens will be driven out of their land, some of them coming to increase the number of British subjects in Canada; and further, a province of the Russian Empire that was fairly contended, will show signs, if not of active resistance, at least of sullen discontent.

What the gain will be to Russia is not clear. We know that some of those who were driven out of France by religious bigotry and political intolerance were among the bravest of Britain's soldiers when they met the armies of France. In this particular also history may rereat itself. Even the Roman Empire, which existed at a time when there was no such ideal of Christian catholicity and charity, had a sufficiently sound political policy to respect in many ways the local peculiarities and religious susceptibilities of conquered nations. Britain did not take over this policy in any mechanical fashion, but has had to learn it by varied experience, sometimes bitter and bloody; but now enlightened statesmen of the English speaking world have come cordially to accept the faith that there may be a diversity of manifestation, but the same spirit. They see clearly that mere uniformity is not unity, that sameness is not necessarily strength, and that there are stronger bonds than chains of steel. Only the other day the Prime Minister of New Zealand offered to send reinforcements to Samoa to assist the British battleships there. Such help is not needed, at present, but the offer of it shows the spirit of loyalty which is not confined to New Zealand or Canada, and which proves that the strength of Britain is not to be measured by the formal number of her regular army. Though the British Islands are small, several different languages are spoken within the bounds, and the power of the people is much more in their variety and independence than in any dead uniformity. In fact, at home and abroad, the watchword of the British Empire may be fairly said to be "In things essential, unity; in tem, which is used for horseless carthings indifferent, liberty; and in all riages.

things charity." In these days of growing intelligence it is only on such lines that a living church or a great empire can be built. | iron bounties. Sir Charles is the last On the other we have preached what is called "the gospel of autocracy," vice on that subject. He is the Louis which, if the present Russian policy is de Rougemont of the Canadian iron a fair type of it, we are compelled to business. It was Sir Charles who pro-regard as a false gospel. We do not deny for one moment the need of obedience to law and the recognition of rightful authority, and even seconding to the testimony of outsiders, the British flag has stood well for this throughout the world; but that authortty should regulate social life by harsh coercion, and crush out healthful diversity, that we regard as an outward policy which never had much gospel in it. We cannot see that such a policy can give real strength to Church or State in Russia. The emperor professes, and, we believe, sincerely, to be an advocate of peace, and yet his advisers choose this time for rushing forward a policy which means that his own subjects will need to be kept in check by military forces. Unless the people are contented and allowed to develop their lives along the natural lines, soldiers will be needed to keep peace at home far more than as a protection against foreign powers.

If we looked at the situation from a standpoint of narrow patriotism, and regarded Russia as the national enemy of Britain, we might be tempted to rejoice at this false position and blind policy. But there is a better way of looking at the problem. Viewed as part of the larger life of humanity we are compelled to regret this action on the part of Russian officials. For how can Russia play the part of a great civilizing and humanizing agency if the policy of coercion is pressed to extreme lengths? A strong, safe, and stable empire cannot be built up by any such means. Something that by a stretch of charity can be called peace may be maintained in ordinary times, but when the great strain comes the great iron image with feet of clay will totter to its fall. For the good of humanity it can only be hoped that wiser counsels will prevail, and that in the land whose government is the type of a great despotism, a more enlightened policy will gradually commend itself. so as to bridge the great gulf between rulers and ruled, and allow a patient, long-suffering people to know something of the blessings of liberty.

Compensation to Workmen.

Prof. Mayor, of Toronto University, the distinguished scientist and economist, will leave shortly for Great Britain with a commission from the Ontario Government to study the operation of the workmen's compensation for injuries act passed in 1897. The discussion on Mr. Crawford's bill in the Legislature revealed the necessity for more practical information on this subject, and the Government declined to be drawn into legislation which might work prejudicially to employers and employes, as it has done in individual cases in Great Britain. Prof. Mayor is admirably qualified to make such an investigation, and the Legislature should profit by the results. In his letter of instruction from Premier Hardy he is requested to make inquiries into the following special points in relation to the British act.

"(1) As to its effect upon workmen and employers, or, in the words of the act, 'undertakers'; (2) as to the effect upon special and particular kinds of manufacturing establishments, firms and corporations; (3) as to whether the act gives satisfaction to labor circles to labor organizations, and to labor generally: (4) whether the machinery provided by the act for the recovery of compensation works satisfactorily to workmen and employers; (5) as to whether faults are found with it, and whether there are complaints of a general or specific character in relation to the law, or to its working, by either workmen or employers; (6) whether under the new law; (7) whether amendments have been suggested, and, if so, in what particular; (8) whether there is any general feeling against the what extent: (9) whether it has the effect of reducing wages in any particular industries; (10) or of excluding from employment any particular classes of persons—and generally to make inquiries respecting any other matter which has a bearing upon the law or its working or upon the recovery of compensation under the law."

As we said before, the Dominion Government have acted wisely in announcing no tariff changes for the present, as any proposed alterations would give the Opposition a chance to stir up a discussion disturbing to general business. And Had Them Put to Death for Fear They Should Fall Into Cruel Hands.

Montreal, May 6.-Three weeks ago, Dr. Wardell, a well-known young veterinary surgeon and sportsman, died rather suddenly, aged 38. He was the owner of several well known steeplechasers, among whom Bushbolt, a winner of the Herald cup at Bel Air track; Felix, which he purchased from Mr. J. E. Seagram, M.P., of Waterloo, Ont., and Billy McKinley, his own personal steed. "It is my wish and desire that my three horses, Billy McKinley, Bushbolt and Felix, shall be put to death in the most painless manner possible. I would be much grieved should the animals. after the affection and care I have had for them. fall into the hands of people who would treat them cruelly or make them, work or do anything which would make them suffer."

Confronted by this unusual clause in the will, the executors had no alternative but to obey, and so the other day the three valuable animals were taken out and put to death by shots from a revolver in the hands of Dr. Thurston. It is stated that the horse Billy McKinley was so broken-hearted at the death of his master that he refused to eat anything from the time he missed the features which he loved

The mortality has 2 n to 193, of which probably about 100 were plague cases. The system of registration, Pass, from Pyramid Harbor. however, is so defective that the causes of death can be ascertained with only approximate accuracy.

Throughout the Bombay Presidency the plague still continues its ravages in almost every district, though the weekly mortality in most districts is not large. For one week the official returns for the whole presidency excluding Bombay city, showed a plague mortality of just under a thousand. From official statistics it appears that since the first outbreak of the plague in Western India, this presidency, outside Bombay, has had 134,000 deaths

VIRTUE OF INOCULATION by the action of the Bengal and Bombay governments in recommending plague officers to offer no encouragement to those wishing to be inoculated, figures being quoted to prove the protective value of inoculation. in the town of Hugli 33,000 persons were in-oculated with the Haffkine fluid, while 6,000 remained uninoculated. In one week there were 271 deaths among the uninoculated, while only 41 occurred among those who had been inoculated. All inoculations were voluntary. The results obtained from Prof. Lus-'s curative serum are, however, un-vorably reported upon by the municipal commissioners of Bombay. The official estimates of the total mortality throughout India since the commencement of the epide lic is at least a quarter of a million but this is probably far below the actual total. It is a curious fact that since the great famine a small but persistent epidemic of relapsing or famine fever has been running its course in Bombay concurrently with the plague.

ROSEBERY SPEAKS.

London, May 6.-The Earl of Rosebery, addressing the London Liberal Club last evening, and dilating upon 'the present universality of imperialism in the British possessions," said he thought the government was pursuing curious methods of fostering imperialism when it placed a tax upon Australian wines, and offered "only a miserable contribution, tied up with irksome conditions, to the great Canadian and Australian proposal for an imperial cable." He added a scathing rebuke to the threats of the radical members of the House of Commons to oppose the grant to Gen. Lord Kitchener of Khartoum in recognition of the services of the sirdar in the Anglo-Egyptian campaign for the reconquest of the Soudan. Later in the evening, when replying to a toast to his health, in which the hope had been expressed that he would quickly return to active politics, Lord Rosebery said: "I hope nothing has occurred tonight that can be taken as an indication that I have any intention of returning to the active arena. which deliberately and for good reasons, I forsook in 1896."

We were short of men, and had a large number of prisoners to look after. That did not worry us as long as we were not moving, but one day we had to make a forced march.

The country through which we were to pass was hostile, and extreme watchfulness was necessary. We had few enough men as it was, and we knew that our prisoners were ready to run

Finally a young officer made a brilliant suggestion, and it was promptly carried out. We ripped the suspender buttons from the prisoners' throusers, took away their belts, and knew we had them. Their hands were busy after that, and fast running was out of the question. We made the march safely, and I do not believe that even Yankee ingenuity could have invented a simpler solution.

San Francisco, May 6. - The correspondent of the Associated Press, writing from Apia, Samoa, under date of April 29, gives a detailed account of the fighting in which Lieut. Landsdale and Ensign Monaghan, of the American navy, and Lieut. Freeman, of the British navy, lost their lives. On April 1 a landing party made up of 60 American sailors and marines and 62 English sailors and about 120 natives, proceeded to Vailele to break up an assemblage of rebels, who had been committing depredations in the vicinity. The party was under command of Lieut. Freeman, first officer of the Tauranga. With him were Lieuts. Cave, of the Porpoise. and Hickman, of the Royalist. The Americans were under the command of Lieut. Landsdale, who had with him Ensign Monaghan and Lieut. Perkins, of the marine corps. Dr. Lung, of the Philadelphia, also accompanied the expedition. After the party had reached the German plantation, Lieut. Cave asked Captain Huffnagle. the German manager, if there were any Samoans in the vicinity. The manager said that none had been there that time. At that very moment, and within a few hundred yards of the expedition, was a large body of rebels. Huffnagle advised that a return home be made by way of the main road, through that plantation, as everything was quiet and safe, and no rebels had been about. Three other Germans were with Huffnagle, and heard his conversation. No one gave any warning of danger. The return march to the beach was commenced. No sooner had the men got out of the plantation, when, at a bend in the road large numbers of rebels were seen. A Colt automatic gun, of which the natives have great dread, was immediately brought forward. It refused to act. The rebels got off clear, and a halt was made to fix the gun, and the march was resumed. Misled by the information of Huffnagle, it was decided to return by the main road. The open space where the Germans had been massaby Mataafa's men years ago was passed, and the troops marched down the road to a narrow gully. On top of the rope, just after the last of the troops had begun to march through the gully, the rebels fired. The line was about 300 yards in gth. The rebels were lying in the long grass, while some were in the top of cocoanut trees. The Colt gun again refused to act, and while Lieut. Landswas trying to fix it he was wounded in the knee. At the beginning of the fight, Lieut. Freeman was shot through the chest and fell dead. The friendly natives retreated at the first fire. The white force was too weak to cope with the rebels, and the whole force was thrown into confusion. To retreat was imperative, and the automatic gun was finally abanattacked from three sides. Were Through the scrub and grass the sailors retreated, Landsdale being assisted by his men. The firing of the rebels was severe, and Landsdale, who was being assisted by Ensign Monaghan and two men, seeing that he could not get away, urged them leave him to his fate. One of the sailors was shot dead, and the other, seeing he could not save his officer, retreated and escaped. Monaghan refused to go and stayed by his fellowofficer. Next morning their headless bodies were found on the battlefield. Monaghan's revolver was empty, as was also Landsdale's. Between them lay the dead bodies of three rebels. Monaghan, before the last man left him, shot Chief Almo dead, as he was advancing on Landsdale. Deserters from Mataafa's camp relate how Monaghan stood over Landsdale until that officer was shot dead, and then tried to escape himself, but was unable to do so. The decapitated bodies of the three officers were recovered next morning on the field, and on Easter they were buried with the Sunday a French priest. All the leading American and British residents and officials were present. The Germans were conspicuous by their absence, the only one present being Pastor Margreave, who had known Landsdale. The German warship Falke had her flag at half-mast and her officers sent ashore two wreaths entwined with the German national colors. In the fight there were killed on the rebel Collections Satisfactory With a Falling Off in Failures.

New York, May 6. - Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says: Spring weather and reopened navigation have helped trade in the Dominion of Canada. Toronto reports the outlook for trade in May as very good, and that few important changes in the Dominion tariff have been made. There is an inceasing demand for lumber, but a strike at that city has unsettled building operations. The harbors in the Maritime Provinces have all been opened, and this has a tendency to stimulate trade throughout this section. At Victoria retail business nas improved, but the demand from the Kootenay district is not so brisk. Collections are satisfactory here, and at other Canadian points. Business failures are fewer than last week, numbering only 23, against 27 a week ago, and 22 in this week a year ago. Dun & Co.: Canadian reports are this week generally satisfactory, indicating some improvement in business at most points, though not perhaps as much as had been expected. At St. John business is stimulated by favorable weather, and through shipments of western products are steadily increasing, exports for the winter season having been over $7.000,000—a gain of 50 per cent over the previous winter. Halifax reports business moving quietly, with a hopeful feeling, though no rapid increase is expected. Prices continue firm for staples. Quebec reports a good volume of business, but collections hardly up to the mark. There is a large volume of heavy goods moving at Montreal with the opening of naviceipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine gation, and business is more active, with drygoods payments on the 4th apparently satisfactory. Money is stiff, with some scarcity. Wholesale trade at Toronto is in all lines very satisfactory, with prices firm, and manufacturers busy. Unseasonable weather retards trade at Winnipeg, which is light, with fair collections. While wholesale trade is satisfactory at Vancouver, retail is quiet on account of unfavorable weather, but payments on the 4th were well met: at Victoria trade continues quiet in most wholesale lines, with collections favorable.

IN THE UNITED STATES. Bradstreet's review: While whole-sale trade continues of a between seasons volume very general evidence is forthcoming that the aggregate is in excess of last year's undeniably good proportions, and retail demand is of an encouraging character. Cereals are generally firm, cash wheat being fractionally higher at the seaboard on international control of the seaboard on the seaboard terruption to movement by the water route, caused by the grain handlers' strike at Buffalo, while option business is in a waiting stage pending the government report on wheat condition and acreage next week. Crop advices are still contradictory, but good weather has made for successful planting and growth of spring wheat; while foreign crop advices continue good, and export demand is only of moderate proportion. This, coupled with smaller than expected decreases in the world's supplies reported this week, acts as a check to values. A special fact this week is the activity in building and real estate reported from a number of widely separated sections, and lumber and building materials are consequently firm or tending upward. Wool markets note a change in the buying of some large lots of domestic wools for speculation, and prices are firm in sympathy with the advanced quotations paid for some large lots of Australian bonded wool, bought for reexportation. London wool sales ac vices point to a 10 per cent advance. Business failures are down to their lowest level, numbering only 164 this week, against 184 in this week a year ago, 240 in 1898, 228 in 1897, 267 in 1896, and 224 in 1895.

IN THE SCHOOLS

Closing Session of the E. M. Teachers' Convention.

Address by the Deputy Minister of Agriculture-Interesting Discussions

-Officera Chosen. The closing session of the 57th annual convention of the East Middlesex Teachers' Association was marked by a masterly address by C. C. James, deputy minister of agriculture, on "Agriculture in the Public Schools." The subject, he said, was one which should be taught in every school. The pupil should first be interested in agriculture. Two pictures of the farmer have commonly been presented-first, horny-handed son of toil, and secondly, the personification of blissful ignorance -the unsuspecting victim of the confidence man and sharper. The condition of the farmer was changing; a romance doned, after the ammunition had been was entering into his life-romantic in scattered, and the breech taken away, the sense of the poetic against the prointerests even the brightest and most intellectual. The wealth which accrued to Canada from agriculture was frequently lost sight of. Our wealth from fisheries was $4 per head of the population; from mines, $6 per head; the forest, $16 per head, and from agriculture, $120 per head. The gold production of the whole world last vear was $280,000,000, and in Ontario alone the wealth produced by agriculture was not less than that sum. In the United States the total production of eggs and poultry in 1898 was worth $290,000,000, being more weath-producing than all the gold and silver mines of the world. The chief causes of Canadian prosperity are good crops and good prices. The development of the Yukon paled into mere insignificance when compared with the agricultural industries of the country.

After dealing with the utilitarian side of the subject, Mr. James proceeded to show that even so prosaic a subject as as interesting as a romance. If by ner William. Trolley cars pass the door. No hushel could be could b bushel could be added to the present average yield, it would increase the heads, which had been recovered by wealth of Ontario by several million dollars. Theoretically we should have 90 bushels per acre, but practically we have less than 25, and why was this? The reasons for not having a greater average yield were dealt with. This might result, Mr. James said, from the improper preparation of the soil and the enormous destruction done by insects. The worms in the soil and the insects were constantly reproducing, and the insects every year in North America consumed $300,000,000 worth. This involved a study of the insects, and when the study is entered upon one's great surprise is that there is anything at all left. The insects lived on one another, and it was interesting to know which were and which were not profitable insects. An insect appeared in California so destructive that an appeal was made to the entomologists of Washington, and the experts, through careful examination, discovered that this class of insect had been brought from Australia, where it was held in check by the lady-bug. Boxes of these lady-bugs were shipped to the United States, and were instrumental in saving millions of money. Insects could also be held in check by favorable conditions.

disease, which could be spread under In dealing with the scientific points of wheat-growing, Mr. James pointed out the proper conditions for wheat development, both in soil and atmosphere In a bushel of wheat 481/2 pounds came out of the air, 9 pounds out of the water and 9½ pounds out of the soil. Of that which comes out of the soil, only a small part is really difficult to get, and that is the oxygen. Over every acre there rests 75,000,000 pounds of free oxygen, and to produce a bushel of wheat requires only 30 pounds. As the nitrogenous element could not be obtained through the leaves it was necessary to impart it from the soil. Owing the pecuiar growth on the roots of leguminous plants, such as beans, peas, clover, these plowed down made rich in nitrates, and prepared it for a better crop of wheat.

In speaking of what is known as chance seedlings, Mr. James referred to the history of the Baldwin apple, the Concord grape and the seedless orange. He proceeded to show that when anybody found a wheat plant with twice as many grains as were now produced, they would be the most material benefactors of the human race if they propagated that chance production.

Taking up the butter question, the speaker pointed out the great possibilities of the dairy industry in Ontario. He stated that the Danes had by sclentific nethods produced such a high Mindustry in Mindustry in Ontario. James Magee, Q.C., J. B. McKillop, Thomas J. Murphy, Phillip E. Mackenzie, LL.B.

quality of butter that they sold the entire home production and bought cheaper grades for home consumption. He related the story of the microbe known as B 41, cultivated from some samples of South American butter, and which could now be purchased like yeast for the purpose of imparting flavor to the butter.

The agricultural development of Canada was just beginning, and the speaker referred to the vast area of available lands for agricultural purposes. put in a plea for teaching the subject in such a way as to impart interest with whatever phase the teacher was most conversant or interested in, whether geologically, botanically or entomologically. Hearty applause followed the minister's able address.

In moving a vote of thanks Mr. Dear ness congratulated the association on having so able and interesting a presentation of this important subject. He said the benefits from it would be directly measurable by the interest which the teachers took in teaching it. Teaching it merely for purposes of examination would kill it.

Mr. Robson, of Byron, in seconding the motion, testified to the usefulness of Mr. James' text book on agriculture in teaching a class of boys who had come to him during the winter.

The following officers were elected: President, Mr. J. C. Robson, Byron; first vice-president, William Jones, London township; second vice-president, Miss Bax, No. 6, Biddulph; secretary, Miss F. Many a Lover Has turned with disgust from an otherwise lovable girl with an offensive breath.

STOLEN PLUMES

scocking Slaughter of Birds for Woman's Adorning.

Plumes which are made up into "aigrettes" are taken from the bird just before or during the breeding season, and almost entirely from the male birds. Prof. Newton, of Cambridge, gives some really shocking figures showing the destruction wrought by the Juggernaut of fashion in the course of last year, says the London Critic. Taking the official figures of the "plumes" sold by auction in London in 1898, he calculates that at the very least 35,000 birds of paradise must have been killed as they were about to breed, while over 86,000 at least, and probably over 107,000, egrets must have been similarly sacrificed. When I think that in many cases the birds have young nestlings just hatched, which perish miserably when their parents are killed, I cannot help feeling that the indictment against the whole sex of women of thoughtless cruelty is

Birds of paradise are naturally get-ting more and more rare in New Guinea and the neighboring islands, while egrets are now practically extinct on the Atlantic and gulf coasts of North America. Are we to wait until both these interesting and beautiful species are as extinct as the do-do? Very likely I shall be called a sentimentalist or a busybody anxious to interfere with the legitimate and profitable trade. I do not mind that. say deliberately, even at the risk of being thought ungallant, that the addition made to feminine charms by the wearing of these beautiful plumes is not worth the price either of the present cruelty or of the future extinction of the birds. In saying this I have assumed that these plumes do really dd to the charms of the fair wearers, ut it is rather a large assumption. the knowledge of all that the plumes volve is spreading, and the sight of em does not convey a good impreson, either of their owner's sense of amanity and kindness, or of her adgment and common sense.

A FREEZING WELL

New and Curious Treatment for Dys pensia and Consumption.

Dr. Raoul Pictet, the celebrated French chemist, who is now on a visit to the United States, is credited with the discovery of a new and curious treatment for dyspepsia, consumption, nervous exhaustion and other diseases have hitherto baffled skillful physicians. The apparatus for the new cure may be called a freezing well. It consists of a sort of metal tank, lined with thick furs. This well is surrounded by an outer shell. The space between the outer shell and the tank is filled with "Pictet liquid," a combination of sulphurous and carbonic acids, which is steadily forced in by specially constructed pumps, whose special mission is to keep the interior of the well at a temperature of from 105 to 110 degrees below zero. The patient is lowered into the well up to his armpits. He is kept there from ten to fifteen minutes, and is said to emerge refreshed and improved. A few more immersions at regular intervals covering a month or so are supposed to effect a radical cure. The effect of the cold is to make the heart beat faster and deepen and stimulate the respiration. The quantity of oxygen poured by the lungs into the blood is increased; the digestive functions are excited powerfully, and glands, such as the liver and pancreas, secrete more actively the intestinal juices which aid digestion. M. Pictet was a martyr to gastric troubles for six years. After experimenting with frigotheraphy, as he calls the coldtank cure, he noticed that a ferocious hunger took hold of him. He claims that Trigotherapy is a colossal excitation for all the functions of nutrition. -Chicago Record.

The King, Queen and Princess of Belgium in Trouble.

The Father Sets a Bad Example and the Children Follow It-A Tale of Scandal.

When a selfish man, whose code of morals is broad enough to include some of the most serious of vices, marries an austere and narrow woman, look out for trouble! And if the illmated pair happen to be a king and queen, look out for yet more trouble-The present miseries of the unhappiest royal family in Europe illustrate the The queen of Belgium is dying in King Leopold's gloomy country palace at Laeken, of what the doctors call cancer. The real name of the disease is "broken heart," and she began suffering from it years ago, when her husband began to prefer the society of gayer women than his wife, and never troubled himself in the least to conceal it from her or from anyone else.

The unhappy queen's malady became worse when she discovered that Stephanie's life was to be a copy of her own for Stephanie was like her mother and the Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, whom Stephanie married, was even wilder and gayer than his frisky old father-in-law ever had been. The reward came quickly in his case, and his death, with the Countess Vetsera, was the greatest scandal the Europe of today has known. Rudolph's mother, the murdered Empress of Austria, never forgave Stephanie because she couldn't hold Rudolph, and thus added more to the poor girl's woes and to the sorrows of her own mother.

A STILL HEAVIER BLOW. A blow still heavier follows when the eldest daughter, Louise, came to misery, then plunged into a scandal scarcely less startling, and finally was clapped into an insane asylum,

The youngest daughter, Clementine, was so shocked by the fate of her sisters that she vowed she never would marry, and so far she has kept her word, but her position has been most unhappy for all that. Her mother has been unwilling to let the girl leave her sight, while Leopold has been anxious for her to "see life," and to marry a prince who would add to the prestige of the royal house of Belgium. So many conflicting stories are being told about the extraordinary events that have overtaken the Princess Louise that it has seemed well worth while to spend some time in gathering the facts as nearly as they can be reached, which are now forming her romance -a romance so strange that a novelist would have hesitated about using its incidents for fear of being charged with stretching probabilities.

THE PRINCESS LOCKED UP.

It has been said lately that the princess now is hiding in America, but the only foundation for that story is that she really was planning to flee to the United States when her husband lock-

She was removed a few months ago from the asylum in which she was at first confined to another place, called by courtesy a "cold water cure," conducted by a Dr. Budinger, at Purkers-Vienna, and husband told her, she must remain, although she is not insane or even ill, except for a nervousness fully warranted by what she has been through. The warring element of both of her parents' natures seems to have been handed down to the unhappy princess. She had her father's passions, but had been brought up stiffly by her mother. She and her sisters went to a girl's school near the place at Laeken like ordinary day boarders. They took part in the work and play of the other pupils at the Sacre Coeur de Jette without putting on many airs, and when they got home were kept to their round of duties as closely as if they had been in a convent. MARRIED TO A BRUTE

It seems certain that when Princess Louise was married to Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha in 1875 she had in her the material for a good wife. But Philip was a brute and a boor. heaped indignities on her, and rather paraded his infidelities. He spent much of his time carousing with Prince Rudolph, and was a participant in the scenes which ended in the death of the heir to Austria's throne. He was one of those who witnessed the tra-gedy and bound themselves by solemn oath never to reveal what really had

Four years ago, after many appeals to her father to defend her from her husband, to all of which Leopold turned a deaf ear, she arrived one morning at 3 o'clock at the palace of Laeken. Her husband had struck her in the face and she had come home to implore shelter. Her mother wept over her, but her father did not propose to offend so wealthy and powerful a personage as Prince Philip, and had little sympathy with women's sufferings anyway-he had been the cause of too much of that sort of thing himself-so he refused even to see his daughter, and made her take the first train back to Vienna. She left the palace at daylight. It was then that her father's side of her nature broke loose in the unhappy princess from the instincts implanted by her mother. She took to fast horses and fine clothes and other expensive luxuries, and seems to have tried deliberately to provoke her husband to seek a divorce. THE WOMAN'S STORY.

He had her dowry, however-and a big one it was, too, -and had no intention of parting with it, as he might have had to do in the case of judicial separation. Instead, he provoked her in every possible way, and when she was defended by a handsome young first lieutenant of Uhlans, the Count Mattacich de Keglevich, he called the lieutenant out for a duel, but without causing any bloodshed, and also without bringing suit for divorce.

Just a year ago the princess fled from her villa in Cimiez, leaving behind her nothing of much value except unpaid bills. A few weeks later she was found with the lieutenant in a castle near Agram in Croatia. According to her own story, her deadliest enemy, her husband's legal adviser, who had been a prime agent in Philip's cruelty, burst into her bedroom with an officer, compelled her to dress in his presence, and carried her away to an insane asylum in Dobling. The young lieutenant, who had befriended her, was thrown into prison on a trumped-up charge of forgery, degraded, deprived of his rights of nobility, without which he had no recourse to an appeal, and was outraged in many ways, although he acted not so much in his own behalf as to save the honor of the princess.

SHUT UP WITH MADMEN. An insanity expert, who, for the purpose of study, visited the asylum in which the princess was confined, discovered her there, and by his sympathy won her confidence. Although the was perfectly sane she was confined in a rather dingy suite of rooms, with barred doors and grilled windows, in the same corridor with a number of lunatics, whose insane laughter and cries were plainly audible from her rooms. She was watched incessantly and was never left alone for a moment. Emissaries from her husband came occasionally to cross-examine her in the hope of gaining from her, as she said, confessions which would prevent her from obtaining a divorce from him. It was only by accident that she learned of the marriage of her daughter to Duke Ernest Gunther, of Schleswig-Holstein, brother of the German empress. She was permitted neither to write nor to receive letters.

Even the heart of Prof. Obersteiner of the Vienna University, who had charge of the institution in which the princess was confined, was moved to pity for his patient, for he said to the formation comes, "I never have seen an unhappy woman so abandoned by physician from whom most of this in-her friends."

NOT ALLOWED A MAID. Perhaps this sympathy reached the ears of Prince Philip, for he promptly sent his agent to the asylum, and had his wife removed to the place where she now is. She was not even permitted to take her maid with her, and had to stuff in a little valise the only clothes she was permitted to take away. That was last November, and since then evidently she has been more closely guarded than ever, for no news of her has escaped. Leopold was as heartless when his daughter was carried away to an asylum as he had been on the night when she came to his palace pleading for protection from her husband. He went away on a yachting expedition, and never lifted his hand to rescue her. It has been charged against him that he did not wish to be saddled with the debts she had left, and which Prince Philip refused to pay; but it is understood that the aged monarch at last has done this much for his daughter, which was no great hardship for him, for the King of the Belgians is immensely wealthy.

MAY YET COME TO AMERICA. Unless Prince Philip has some further end to gain by keeping his wife shut up, there is no reason why she should not have her liberty, and it is said that there is a prospect of her coming to England to live on a modest sum allowed to her from her husband's $10,000,000, a good part of which is her own dowry. It is possible, too, that the idea of going to America has not been given up.

I have not been able to learn what has become of the young lieutenant. Unless he is languishing in prison somewhere he may appear upon the scene, for the princess is reported to have said when she was taken away from him: "I shall never separate from the man I love, and whom I shall marry as soon as I am set free. We shall go away together, and our being on foreign territory will merely spread the scandal so much further. So much worse for the man who has caused it." Although in the circumstances not much sympathy will be felt for King Leopold, he is certainly having a hard time of it at present. Recently he sprained his ankle, and afterward, imagining that he was well, fell to the ground upon his first attempt to use it. Scarcely had he recovered from this second mishap when an abscess developed in his cheek, and he looks today extremely old and ill. Princess Clementina is also completely exhausted by all the troubles which have piled upon the unhappy family. Is it any wonder that the poor girl has repeatedly begged her father's permission to seek re-

CONDUCTOR GOT HIS WATCH

A Crowded Platform Incident on the Kings County Railroad [New York Sun.]

A piain, $2 nickel watch was responsible for a lively scene on the platform of a Kings county elevated railroad train in Brooklyn one evening last week. So great was the crowd on the train that even the platforms were jammed. The gates had just been closed, and the train was starting away from the bridge when a man discovered the watch on the very edge of the platform, and outside of the gate. He couldn't reach it himself so he spoke to a man who was standing near it.

"Pick up that watch," he said, "or it will fall to the street." The other man picked it up, and said in a loud voice:

"Anybordy lose a watch?" Immediately a stout man reached out his hand.

"That's mine," he said, "must have been pulled out in the rush. The watch was immediately turned over to the stout man, and it never occurred to anybody to question its ownership. This little incident had been noticed everybody on the platform save the conductor, who was busy at the time attending to his bell-rope. The train had gone about two stations up Fulton street when the conductor noticed that his watchchain was dangling from his watch pocket.

"Well, I swear," he answered to a Sun reporter, who was on the train, "you wouldn't think anybody would be mean enough to steal a conductor's

"A watch was just picked up on the other side of the platform, said the reporter. "Maybe it was yours." The conductor made inquiries, and the man who had picked the watch up pointed out the stout man as the possessor of it. The conductor held up the stout man, who didn't look over

"What kind of a game are you trying to work on me," said the stout man. "The watch was mine." "Well, let me see it," said the con-'No, I won't. And don't get too

'Well. I won't let him see it." "Then, by thunder," said the other, "if he don't have you arrested, I will." The stout man said something about licking the other man, whereupon the latter expressed the opinion that the stout man was a thief. shows itself in the rosy cheeks and clear, bright eye of those who use them. These pills are not a purgative they give strength instead of taking it away. They act directly on the blood and nerves; invigorate the body; regulate the functions, and restore health and strength to the exhausted woman when every effort of the physician proves unavailing. Mothers anxious for the healthy development of their growing girls should insist upon their taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

IN A DECLINE.

Mrs. W. Goodwin, Argyle Sound, N.S., says :- "After the birth of my first child I was in poor health and unable to recover my strength. I had a severe pain in my left side and lung, which almost made it impossible for me to breathe. I had a bad cough day and night, and was troubled with aight. sweats, and on awakening found myself very weak. My complexion was sallow, and my appetite eatisely gone. All my friends believed me in a decline. Our family physician attended me for a long time but I got no better. Then a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Acting on this advice I bought a supply, and continued their use for a couple of months, when my health was fully restored. I am sincere in saying that I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life."

The wonderful success of this remedy has led to many attempts at imitation and substitution, but these never cured anyone. "Of course," said the man who was going after the policeman, sarcastic-

WEIRD WAYS WOMEN WALK. There are more different kinds of feminine walks on Chestnut street than there are masculine walks in life. Of course, they're studied walks-thoughtout effects in locomotion that are as weirdly unconventional as the lope of a camel-and just as graceful. And it's all because the maid of today is taught to walk, just as she is taught English. And sometimes she can talk better than she een walk, and sometimes walk better than she can talk-which isn't saving a great deal, either way you view it. And so we have the swing, the swagger, the side-step, the lope, the spring, the wriggle, and heaven only knows how many other sorts of walks that fair femininity has chosen to charm us masculines. But the walk of the walks nowadays is the bob-up-serenely. Up and down, up and down, like a jumping-jack goes and she rises in the air as if all the glorious spring that's abroad in the and pushed her upward. And serenely down Chestnut street she goes her jumping-jack way, the very latest output from the Delsarte factory-Philadelphia Press.

A young man, a son of one of Canada's wealthiest citizens, two years ago contracted kidney disease by taking a cold plunge in the lake when the body was overheated. Specialists could diagnose but could not cure the malady. and when half the globe had been traveled in hope of help and a cure he returned to his home apparently with but a short time to live, but the printed testimony of the cure of a schoolboy acquaintance attracted him to South American Kidney Cure. He procured it and persisted in its use, and although stubborn case, today he is well and healthy.

#8888888888 OUR SHORT STORY "Saved From the Enemy."

I was just 16 years old. It was in the January of 1871. The French town in which we lived was besieged by the Prussians. For two months the enemy had held our little garrison blockeded had held our little garrison blockaded like a fox in a hole. It was a terrible winter. It snowed incessantly. Cold and hunger were harder to contend with than the enemy himself, and the fever thinned our ranks faster than his

In order to warm our blood from time to time we made little sorties, but it was labor in vain, for we were inclosed in a circle of fire. Those who fell suffered no more, and those who survived continued to deceive themselves with the hope of escape. In our little home there remained but my mother and me. My father was sergeant and color-bearer in one of the companies which the citizens had formed from the first moment of the invasion. time to time we made little sorties, but one morning he came home, having fought through the entire night, and, embracing my mother, including for me. My mother replied that I was at the military school, where he had entered me. Just then I came in with my drum on my back and my drumsticks. drum on my back and my drumsticks thrust through my shoulder belt, happy to be alive in spite of the misery of the times, whistling like a blackbird.

My father fixed his eyes on me.

"Tell me, my son, if you have not already learned something of the art of

"I believe so, my father."
"Let me see how you can beat your drum," said my father. "Very well, Now beat for a charge."
I beat the drum so furiously that, under the inspiring call, I felt that I could lead an assault on the bells of could lead an assault on the bells of the cathedral tower.

"Well done," said my father; "that is first-rate." Then he said nothing more until my mother had gone to her chamber, when he drew me closer to him, and said,

"Listen, my son; the enemy has killed many of our best men; and, besides, 100 men at least are wounded." The drummer of our company has two bullets in his breast. We must have another. In this hour every one ought to be willing to do his whole duty— wilt thou take his place?" My heart filled my throat and choked my answer. I do not know that this was from pleasure, but it certainly was not from fear.

The day passed. That night, while my mother slept, my father, with his gun on his shoulder, and I with my drum on my back, set out for the camp. Thus I became a soldier.

For one month all went smoothly.

This did not prevent me, however, from bringing down with my father's gun a brigand Prussian who showed his head at the corner of the woods. I had a steadier im than the old sol-diers even, and he man I drew on was a dead man.

One morning t daybreak the cap-tain, who had collected his men on the parade ground near the old gate of St. Claude, called to my father, who was drilling his men.
"Sergt. Bigorne," he said, "the enemy presses us each day more closely; if this continues, in eight days he will be within our walls. This must not be. Tonight the commandant has ordered a sortie in order to re-enforce the troops at Luneville, who hold the country in the enemy's rear. Your division is to be our advance guard, sergeant. It is the question to pass the enemy or die in the attempt."

"So be it," answered my father; "we will go. And we went. This was a dreadful day. The enemy had been informed, and received us with a volley of grapeshot. However, we held out firmly until evening, as firmly that not one of us heard the order for retreat, and, when night fell, we were encircled by the enemy, with no hope of escape. All the same, these civic guards, shop-keepers as they were, did not know when they were beaten, and when a comrade fell they simply fought for

Of our own section only two were left, I counted for nothing, being so slender that I think I must have passed between their bullets. My father had received a saber wound in the shoulder, but I could see him still bearing aloft the flag above the smoke of the battle.

Our fire slackened; the ammunition had given out; the end had come. The word strangles me yet as I t link of it we were forced to surrende

Two hours later they imprisoned us in a farm house that the fires of war had spared. A Prussian field marshal, followed by his chief of staff, dismounted for a look at his prisoners. His men showed in their eyes the pleasure our capture gave them; but speak under arms. In the presence of field marshal ordered the wounded to be attended to, and, stepping in front of my father, demanded the flag. My father, whose hands we saw, were empty, declared he did not know where it was. The field marshal turned to the officer of the post and

"Very well, if he does not remember by tomorrow, shoot him."

When they had relieved us of our arms, and placed us under guard, my father, who watched the sentinel from the corner of his eye, told us that he had hidden the flag; that, seeing the day was against us, he had torn it from its standard, wrenched the eagle from its perch. flung it into a ditch, while he had concealed the precious silk, riddled with balls, under his coat.

My father was a simple man, the decendant of peasants, the son of the soil; but in speaking to us of these things the man seemed to expand and become exalted with the words he ut-

He told us this fragment of silk was Sacred, that the wind that swelled its folds was the breath of the nation, and that it moved in the midst of us on the march as the image of our country.

Then he thrust it into his bosom, not wishing it to be found on him when he should be shot next day. I felt suddenly that I had become a man. In the evening the Prussians sent a flag of truce, asking a suspension of hostilities that each might bury its dead, and asked one of our number to act as guide to our lines. An old comrade, who knew the country well, offered to conduct the officer, when it was discovered that no one had a bandage for the eyes of the bearer of the flag of truce. A sudden idea struck me. It was running a great risk, but it was worth the trial.

"If you wish, I will bandage the eyes of the officer with my handkerchief," I said. I produced the flag, the red and blue stripes of which I had folded inside, leaving the white alone visible.

My father instantly understood my ruse, and explained in patois to the guide that he was to remove the bandage, and while the preliminaries were in progress, deliver it safely into the hands of our troops. The lantern gave but a feeble light, and no doubt Providence favored us, for the thing passed, and the officer mounted his horse, and with his eyes bandaged, followed the lead of the guide. We could but accompany in thought the enemy, who carried back himself the flag within the lines of our own army. The time passed. We heard in the night the cathedral clock strike the hours. At last we heard the sentinel's challenge. The flag of truce had re-turned. I rushed to the guide.

"The flag is saved!" I cried.
"Yes, but we are lost," he answered. In a few words he explained that the affair had succeeded, but that the officer had discovered too late the ruse, and had returned furious. In fact, he came accompanied by a superior officer, and pointed out to him the man who had conducted the flag of truce. "Order out the platoon of execution," commanded the officer; "this man shall "It was not he, captain," I said, advancing in front of him; "it was I alone who conceived the idea of the thing.' "Excuse me, officer," interrupted my father. "The commander of a detachment is responsible for the acts of his men, is he not? I had given an order; my men could only obey it." "What is your name?" the officer demanded.

"Sergeant Bigorne," answered my father.

"Very well, sergeant, you will be shot immediately." "All right, captain, it is war. I only ask the favor to be shot by my comrades. Return them their arms, and I will be responsible for them." The officer looked at my father with his little gray eyes a moment; then he said: "Agreed." I strove to draw my father aside; I must speak to him. Did they mean to make me shoot my own father? It was impossible. My father embraced me, and, handing me my gun, pushed me back into the ranks.

"Silence!" he said. "You can not the enemy you are not my son. You are only a soldier. I am your chief. Obey!"

They gave us the cartridges taken from our wounded. My father counted fifteen paces from the walls of the farm house and ordered us in line. Then, in solemn voice, with uplifted hand, he went through the details of the exercise.

"Take aim!" he cried. into his arms. He tenderly whispered: "My son, these raw recruits fire badly; they will only mangle me. Thou hast a sure aim. I count on thee. Wilt thou promise?" I saw the dawn whiten behind the city, above the roof where my mother slept. Without doubt my father read my thoughts, for, taking my hand in his hands, he said: "For thy mother's sake." Then he placed himself against the wall, while the foreign officers stood with bared heads. "Attention!" commanded my father. Then he went through the exercise slowly, ordering the drill as calmly as though he were on parade. At last he cried "Fire."

The Aches, Pains and Symptoms of Disease Should Be Banished at Once.

The Great Restorer of Vitality Good Health.

A thorough and most complete building up of the disordered and broken down nervous system should be commenced at once by use of Paine's Celery Compound, if suffering people desire health, strength and robustness to prepare them for the trying and enervating weather of mid-summer.

At this time Paine's Celery Compound does a work for the afflicted that no other medicine can accomplish. It dispels dangerous humors from the blood, increases its volume and its nourishing powers, it banishes headaches, dyspepsia skin diseases, kidney derangements and liver troubles now so prevalent.

As we enter the summer season, men and women-young and old-of every class have despondent spells, depressed spirits, melancholia and headache. These conditions are results that spring directly from indigestion and liver disorders. The experience of thousands in the past points to Paine's Celery Compound as the sure and never-failing banisher of all the common and warning symptoms of the gathering disease. The use of the marvelous medicine at this time will supply all needed vigor, build up wasting vitality and drive out all the seeds of disease.

Physicians and obse know well that the careless and procrastinating stand on dangerous ground. The small ills and first symptoms of disease are too frequently treated with indifference and neglect The victims trust to time, weather and circumstances for a cure, and are invariably disappointed. The small ills develop into deep-seated diseases and life is sacrificed.

The use of Paine's Celery Compound three times a day for a week or two will bestow fresh vitality, correct digestion, purify the blood, brace the nervous organism, and supply all needed strength. One single trial of this great medicine will give to the greatest skeptic fresh impulses of the new life that should be his.

In Woman's Interest

A Housewives' Society.

Ten shining twenty dollar gold pieces were presented the other day to ten faithful servants by the German Housewives' Society of New York. The organization, which has a membership of about 600, is attempting to make the domestic problem" a simpler one for deserving maids and mistresses. The "German" in the name might be omitted, for there is no German clause in the requirements, and various nationalities are represented, among both the mistresses and the servants. The former pay an initiation fee of $3, and annual dues of $5. This entitles them to the assistance of the society's intelligence bureau in securing a servant. The servant pays no fee. After four weeks of satisfactory service with a member of the society, she is entitled to medical attendance free of charge, and receives other assistance if she needs it. At the end of two years' service in one household, a servant re ceives a prize of $20. The first issue of these prizes took place last September, when sixteen girls completed their "two years' course." The ten who have just been rewarded are the second installment. As the society has been formed only a few years, this is a record which promises uncommonly

There are penalties, however, as well as rewards. "An obstinate servant, or one who willfully neglects her duties, will not be recommended by the soclety, and will lose all her privileges if she relapses into the same fault." As for the mistresses, "those who treat their servants unjustly, and do not rectify their conduct, will be expelled." For three years' continous service in one place the prize is $30; and so on up to $100 for ten years. The success the New York society has led to the establishment of a similar one in Philadelphia, and a plan for one in

Back to Mittens.

The wind of fashion seems to have whipped around to an old quarter, if one may judge from the significant little straws of rumor and of prophecy which come floating in from all sides. An English paper, for instance, announces the appearance of the "mitt."

"Dear mitten!" it says. "Suggestive of quaint old-world days when things were less artificial than now, and when our grandmothers' principles were as upright as their high-backed

Possibly the girl of today may resent this somewhat invidious comparison, but that is another story. The point of immediate interest is that The the return of the mitten is not the only sign that fashion is going back to pick up some of its old ways. Ear-rings are again in favor. Very high-heeled shoes are being worn abroad. English women of fashion are trying to introduce the tall walking-sticks, which are the natural accompaniment of high heels. Even the charming flowered bandboxes of our grandmothers have come into favor again.

000 Daintiness of Person.

A certain woman, not in her first youth, but overflowing with vitality, cheerfulness and enthusiasm, retains her freshness and awakens admiration through her exquisite care of her body. It may be said that she is as bright as a woman can be, and as sincere and strong as it is possible for poor humanity to become, through years of suffering and success. Every dress is turned wrong side out and sunned by an open window once a week. Her under linen is arranged at night on chairs, so that each piece and part receives a measure of air. Her shoes are put on the windowsill in the sunshine, and cleansed as well as may be. Her veils are washed, if the fabric permits, or else pinned across the window and relieved of all atoms of dust. She washes out her stockings every other day, and dries them in a current of air and sunlight. The dress shields are washed after a few wearings; this involves a set of half a dozen and a package of tiny safety pins, but both are cheap enough to warrant buying and using. The bath should never be slighted. Such care of the person is possible to all except poverty's poorest slaves, since it is not among the rich that we find those who know best how to live.

0+0 Mme. Lehmann's Circular.

I wish to quote here the circular which was placed among the programmes at her second song recital, given the other day, and if other Canadian papers will but quote this part of the Globe they will be doing something for the cause of humanity and good taste. When women of Madame Lehmann's distinction have the cour-age to be faithful to their convictions of duty and kindness, than the humbler women in the land can follow in the path marked out for them. The circorner is the madallion portrait of Audubon, with this lettering as a frame: "Audubon Society, State of New York, for the Protection of Birds.' Across the page is a design of three birds in flight. The circular is headed, "An Appeal to Women." Here are its words:

"I beg all women wear birds or birds' feathers on their hats any more. Every year 25,000,000 of useful birds are slaughtered by this terrible folly. The farmers are already suffering from it, and women enjoy wearing feathers like savages. Flowers and ribbons are a thousand times more beautiful and more becoming. It is the duty of every woman and man to battle against this gruesome folly. For years my hats have had no feathers.'

The circular ends with a face-simile autograph of Mme. Lehmann. All men and women of culture and taste honor such a circular as this and wish for it potent and far-reaching influence.

-New York Observer. 0+0 How Janet Was Cured.

In silent rapture we gaze on you.

It was the uneasy time of the day. It was likewise the time when the hands of the clock went around altogether too fast to suit Janet.

"You seem to love to say it's my bedtime." looking crossly at the big clock.
"I wish I could sit up once in a while and see what a good time the grown folks have after we have gone to bed." "We" meant Janet and her dolls.

"You can sit up tonight if you wish, just as long as you like," said Janet's

"Truly," said Janet.
"Truly," said her mother.
"Oh. thank you, mamma. Won't we have a good time, though?" Then she went to tell the dolls.

"Dear ones," she said, after she had collected them all together, I know and I long have known just how you feel about going to bed so early. So tonight you shall sit up just as long as you like and we will see for ourselves just what good times the grown-up people have." Then they all went down-stairs to the library where the family were. It was very quiet there, Janet thought. The older children were studying their lessons for the next day, grouped around the long table in the middle of the room, and her father and mother were reading.

"Do tell me a long story, please, mama." said Janet, bringing her little chair up beside her mother's; but her mother shook her head "It would disturb the children study-

"Can I have an opera with my dolls?"

"No. dear." "Isn't there anything to amuse me?" and there were tears in Janet's voice. "No. little daughter, this is the quiet hour for the grown people and you will have to keep still."

So Janet sat down and looked soberly at the fire.

By and bye her head rested against her mother's knee. "I don't think grown folks-" she began, and that was all, until her father was carrying her upstairs- "have very good time at all," she murmured,

Since then she goes to bed cheerfully. "For it's really better for all of us, my dears," she told the dolls.

0+0 A Spectacled Dog.

Not long ago an account of a dog who wore spectacles went the rounds of the press, but it was without the interesting conclusion which a similar story, recounted by a Frenchman, Ernest Blum, has. Monsieur Blum relates that, being somewhat fond of the chase, he was presented by a friend with a magnificent hunting-dog.

This animal proved to have the great qualities of a dog of that profession, his scent was keen and discriminating, he was obedient, he was brave, not in the least gun-shy, and would retrieve to perfection. He had, indeed, but one fault, and that was serious.

In coursing through the woods he often ran against trees, and in the house would strike against chairs, tables, doors and other objects that came in his way. His owner wondered what could be the matter with him and he took him to a veterinary. This man kept the dog a few weeks and returned him with his bill and the information that he was near-sighted. "He needs a pair of glasses," said the veterinary, with a grin. The advice was good, and the dog's master acted upon it at once. He reflected that by so doing he might make and he then wore them with great pride and satisfaction.

They had a wonderful effect on his vision, enabling him to see as much as any other dog. When he went hunting he had no longer to depend solely on his scent for his mastery of the game, but saw as well as scented, and pursued his game with swiftness and sureness. People began by laughing at the animal, and ended by admiring him and envying his possessor.

The dog appeared to gain every advantage from his glasses which human beings have not; he could lick his glasses with his tongue. This was very convenient in times of fog and rain, since he had no handkerchief to wipe them with.

One day, alas, the dog's owner went to hunt with him in the wood where there were wild boars. The dog came upon one of these ferocious creatures and valiantly attacked him. In the midst of the combat the boar drove his tusk through the glasses, and not only this, but so filled the poor dog's eyes with fragments of glass that from that time he was totally blind.

The Poets.

A Woman's Thought.

I am a woman-therefore I may not Call to him, cry to him, Fly to him. Bid him delay not!

Then when he comes to me, I must sit quiet; Still as a stone— All silent and cold.

If my heart riot-Crush and defy it! Should I grow bold. Say one dear thing to him, Cling to him-What to atone Is enough for my sinning! This were the cost to me, This were my winning-

That he were lost to me. At last if he part from me, Tearing my heart from me. Hurt beyond cure-Calm and demure, Then must I hold me, In myself fold me, Lest he discover: Showing no sign to him By look of mine to him, What he has been to me-How my heart turns to him,

Follows him, yearns to him,

Prays him to love me.

Pity me, lean to me Thou God above me! -R. W. Gilder.

To a Life.

The gate of Paradise, and heard alone, As few in life have heard, the overtone

Above that heavenly music, bar on bar; While, like the instant blaze of some strange star Upon the marge of night, he thought to see

A gloom that pierced his soul's transparency. Enkindling his whole self with flames from far.

To him was given no voice of raptured To sing the deathless melody he heard; No sorcery of hand to mold the light In shapes that might be seen by all the throng-As though his life were one melodious

He lived, and that one word meant simple Right. -Norwood H. McGilvary.

G. O., BOTHWELL.-The early closing bylaw does not affect your class of business, being expressly confined to the shops and general merchants, hardware merchants, milliners and harnessmakers within the town of Bothwell. You are therefore not liable to be fined under such bylaw.

PERJURY.-If a man under oath says he is the owner of a certain property, and it is clearly proved in a court of law that he is not the owner, and several witnesses testify that he knew and admitted that he was not the owner, is the man guilty of perjury? What is the penalty? Ans.—If this oath were made by him as a witness in a judicial proceedings as part of his evidence, he is liable to be convicted of perjury, when he would then be guilty of it. There must be a lawful oath to sus-

HIRING .- A hired B for the summer, to start work at a certain time, and gave him money to bind the agreement. B refuses to come. Can A do anything with B, who finds no fault, only he won't come? Ans.—The act respecting masters and servants provides that an agreement is binding on each party, and that complaints may be heard and determined before a justice of the peace. The statutes, chapter 157, R. S. O., 1897, does not, however, specify the means of enforcing this determination. You had better consult a lawyer.

What would be the object When all the world was still, he found in drawing up the mortgage for eleven instead of twelve months? Ans.-The mortgage is effective as between the parties to it for ten years, but is only good for one year as against creditors of the mortgagor unless renewed. The time within which a mortgage is made payable depends upon the nature of each transaction. There is no rule. As soon as the mortgage is due the holder may enforce payment. That is the object in fixing the time.

"Every Path Hath a Puddle."

The puddle in the pathway of most lives is a defective circulation due to a blood supply that instead of growing clear and strong like a mountain brook, is stagnant and impure. Puddles may be purified, however, and become limpid streams. That is what Hood's Sarsaparilla does with human blood.

It clarifies, purifies and strengthens the blood, and when this is accomplished, the vital organs, liver, lungs, kidneys, bowels, are all braced and invigorated. It never disappoints.

Dyspensia - "Suffered everything but death for years with dyspepsia. Nothing relieved me until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it made and kept me well. Can eat anything I wish." Mrs. EUGENE MURPHY, Hull's Mill, Danbury, Conn.

impure Blood-"Five years I suffered with pimples on face and body. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me permanently. It also cured my father's carbuncles." ALBERT E. CHAST, Tustin City, Cal.

Erysipelas-" My little girl is now fat and healthy on account of Hood's Sarsapa-rilla curing her of erysipelas and eczema. It is our family medicine as we all foliations. It is our family medicine, as we all take it."

INVESTIGATION WILL BE MADE

Magistrate Would Not Permit the Charge Against F. W. Ready To Be Withdrawn.

At the police court this morning W. H. Fitzsimmons wished to withdraw the charge of cruelty to animals against T. W. Ready, but Magistrate Parke refused to allow the charge to be withdrawn until a further investigation is made. In Mr. Ready's pockets yesterday were found a number of letters, papers, cards and circulars, one of which reads as follows:

Middlesex Office, 390 Richmond street, London. J. Callard, Chemist, 390 Richmond street, treasurer. W. P. Cooper, 169 Dundas street, Lon don, secretary.

Hospitals throughout the country decline to receive consumptive patients, and thousands are so sacrificed on that account. The attention of the Con-sumptives' Charitable Aid Society has been called acutely to the need of sufferers from this disease, and have started a building fund, to build a hospital in Canada, provided with everything known to modern science, for the isolation, relief and cure of consumption, and when completed will represent an outlay of $100,000. We ask your hearty co-operation and subscription to this charitable fund. T. WILLARD READY,

International President. Each subscriber to the fund becomes a member of the society. A form for subscriptions is attached to the circulars, and explain that 10 per cent of the subscription money is to accompany the application for membership, the remainder to be paid in 30, 60, 90 and 120

Mr. Callard, when asked about the matter, said he knew nothing of it beyond the fact that Mr. Ready had asked him to act as treasurer if any funds came in. No funds have ever been sent to Mr. Callard.

Pittsburg 5 FOR THE FANS.

Those jolly, gentlemanly Glants are minstrel show and a cracker-jack ball team combined. Price, Seivers and Crow may all be given a chance at the Giants this afternoon. Miller will serve out curves to the Cockneys.

Between Wilson's Lee-Enfield delivery and Burns' Burns finished "rag-gin," no wonder the Cockneys were a bit dazed. The Bostons miss Pitcher Lewis.

They have only two reliable boxmen-Nichols and Willis. McGinnity has risen. So far he has made a better showing than any of the Baltimore pitchers, and his work against Boston last Saturday stamps him as one of the coming pitchers of The Quakers are getting a tremendous advantage in the race by their batting streak. Without it they would not stand a chance of being half-way up the ladder, for their infield is weak and their twirling staff not of the in-

OPPOSED TO SUNDAY PAPERS

Lord Rosebery Attacks the New Departure.

Rev. Mr. Mowle Charges That the British Stage Is Immoral.

German Cruiser's Narrow Escape From Disaster-Corpse of an Actor Found in a Packing-Box

London, May 6 .- Lord Rosebery, in a speech before the News Vendors' Institution, gave the first authoritative pronouncement against Sunday

After this, parliament, hitherto luke warm on the subject, will certainly thrash out the whole question, while Lord Rosebery scores a distinct advantage as a leader of opinion.

His sentiments are sure to be echoed among the ranks of the Non-Conformist Liberals. He based his arguments entirely on the ground of news vendors, who complained they were compelled to work seven days in the week The Mail, on Thursday, had a clever leader, putting the blame entirely on the Telegraph, which started a Sunday edition, thereby compelling the Mail to come in competition. The Mail advises the Telegraph to carefully consider Lord Rosebery's words. Curiously, Lord Rosebery is a per-sonal friend of Harmsworth and Law-

GERMAN CRUISER IN A CRITICAL

POSITION. The steamer Moana, from Honolulu, April 20, brings the news that the German cruiser Cormoran, while on her way from China to Samoa, went on a reef on the Bismarck Archipelago. Six days she hung onto the ledge, be-tween Kaiser Wilhelm Land and New Island, and she was only got off after her guns had been moved aft. She finally reached Brisbane, and was to go to Sydney, N. S., for repairs. On the evening of April 24 Dr. Robert McBurney, surgeon of the Moana, died of congestion of the lungs. He was buried at Apia.

CORPSE IN A PACKING-BOX. London, May 6.—The body of a man was found in a box in the freight depot at King's Cross yesterda box was consigned from Middles-borough to London, and was described as containing theatrical properties. The discovery aroused suspicion of murder, but it was ascertained that the body was that of Wm. Ryder, known in the music halls as "Jimmy Ryder had died of pneumonia, and his body had been shipped to London by Tom Pritchard, manager of the Collinson Burlesque Company, who said that Ryder's last words were:

"Take me back to London, too." Pritchard was short of money, and consigned the body as theatrical luggage to save expense. The consequence was the body was brought to London for 16 shillings, whereas if it had been shipped as a corpse the cost of its transportation would have been nearly £12.

ENGLISH STAGE ATTACKED. A meeting of the Preventive and Reformatory Institution of London for Females, was held in Exeter Hall yesterday. The Rev. Mr. Mowle said, in addressing the meeting: "We are living in an age when Christian work in largely counterbalanced by independent is largely counterbalanced by indecent pictures and publications. The literature of the day is as bad as it possibly could be, but the advertisements are worse. They are positively indecent. It is deeply to be regretted that the stage in the matter of indecent advertisements is the worse offender. Its pictures are horribly suggestive and indecent, and induce fast living; yet Christian men and women patronie the stage." (Cries of "Shame.") In fact, Mr. Mowle went on, he found that the bishops of the Church of England were recommending their clergy to go to the theater—(cries of "Shame, shame!")—and he was bound to say shame! The need of a second reformation. The British stage, he declared, was distinctly immoral, and he hoped that a determined crusade would be carried on against it.LOCAL

BIG DRAINAGE CANAL

Waters of Lake Michigan May Run Through It.

Chicago, May 6.—Secretary of War Alger, in his official capacity, has given permission to the trustees of the drainage canal to turn through it the waters of Lake Michigan, when the canal is ready for operation.

In company with Gen. John M. Wilson, chief of engineers of the United States army; Governor Tanner, the members of the board of trustees in charge of the construction of the canal, the secretary of war yesterday made a tour of inspection of the canal, and expressed himself as greatly impressed with the magnitude of the undertaking.

MR. WILLIS, WOODSTOCK

Escaped a Deadly Enemy by the Aid of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, May 1.-This city is deeply agitated, with joyous excitement, because another resident has escaped from the fatal grip of Kidney Disease, by the aid of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Everyone knows Mr. H. A. Willis, the genial proprietor of the "Buckingham" Hotel. He tells his story thus: two years past I have suffered intensely from Lame Back and Kidney Disease. Nothing I ever used helped me. "My sufferings grew worse daily. heard so much of Dodd's Kidney Pills that I decided to try them. I got relief from the first box. Three boxes cured me entirely."

Young Girl Killed by Jumping the Rope.

Trenton, May 6.-Nellie Simons, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Simons of No. 941 East State street, went into convulsions following skipping, and died two hours later. The girl was fond of jumping a rope. But last winter she had pneumonia, and since then her parents had refused to let her indulge in the exercise. She pleaded for the rope morning and it was given her for a few minutes. At recess she complained of feeling ill. Her 12-year-old brother Clarence started to take her home, and as she soon became unable to walk he bravely carried her part of the way. A physician, who was called, found the child in convulsions, and she died just after two o'clock.

IN THE DARK

For Seventy Days-Experiences of Antarctic Extorers.

New York, May 6 .- Capt. Thomas, of the steamer Coya, which arrived yesterday from South American ports, reports having talked with Dr. Frederick Cook, of the Belgica Antarctic expedition at Montevideo. He quoted Dr. Cook as saying: "We have had a most interesting voyage, from a scientific standpoint. For 70 days we were in darkness and the climate was intensely cold. We lost two men from our crew of 17-one from sickness and one who fell overboard. We were exploring Alexander Land, when we got stuck in the ice." "When the Belgica was returning to the Straits," said Capt. Thomas, "she went ashore off Beagle Channel, south of Terra Del Fuego, and no damage was done.' Dr. Cook had not heard a word of news for eighteen months. He was very much surprised to hear about the Spanish war. I did not get any specific statements from him. "There was to be a meeting of the members of the expedition the day after I sailed, so Dr. Cook could not leave until he knew what they would do, and I could not wait to see." As the reporter was leaving the captain, the sailor remarked: "By the way, I have just posted a letter from Dr. Cook addressed to Miss Anna E. Forbes. She is his sweetheart, you know." The captain did not know that Miss Forbes was buried one year ago last Easter Sunday. It is believed that the Belgica is on her way home.

BURIED TEN YEARS

But Her Body Was Remarkably Preserved-The Features Were Full and Round.

Bay Shore, L. I., May 6 .- In removing the body of the first wife of William E. Smith from Oakdale cemetery recently, the undertaker made a curious discovery. Although the body had been interred ten years ago, it was in a state of perfect preservation and was petrified. Even the clothing remained intact. The features were full and round, and looked as if the person had only been dead a few days. The coffin was also petrified, and so heavy that the workmen could not lift it. The lid was then taken off and the peculiar state of the body was dis-

San Francisco, May 6 .- John Bonner, one of the best known newspaper writers in America, is dead at his home in this city, aged 70. He was an editorial writer of marked ability, and as a writer of historical events held high rank. He was formerly an editorial writer on the New York Herald and Harpers' Weekly, and for five years represented the Herald in Paris. He made a fortune in Wall street, but failed. He came west and did editorial work on nearly all the leading papers of the coast. He was a native of Quebec. Miss Geraldine Bonner, daughter, is well known as a magazine writer and novelist of ability.

Stolen Watches Found by a Workman -Released Prisoners Missed the Hiding-Place.

Wm. Gardiner an employe at guson's lumber yard, made a valuable find this morning. While at work in the yard he came across a handkerchief stuck in between the boards in a lumber pile. He pulled the bundle out and discovered it contained two watches. His first step was to inform the police, who recognized the timepieces as those stolen from Mrs. Wasnidge's boarding house on the mar-ket, by the two tramps, James Buckley and Frank Mitchell, who were staying at her place. Yesterday, the two prisoners, who were recently released, were down in the lumber yard making a search. Buckley and Mitchell are the two men who claimed to have made a living selling shoe laces, and were sentenced to six months in the Central for vagrancy.

REV. DR. KELLOGG

Completed His Great Task Before He Died-Colleagues Express Their Satisfaction.

Toronto, May 6.-At a meeting of the executive of the foreign missions committee of the Presbyterian Church, held in the office of the secretary, Rev. Dr. Mackay, the members expressed deep sorrow at the death of Rev. Dr. Kellogg in India. It was noted with satisfaction, however, that he had completed the task of translating the Bible into the Hindostanee tongue, a work upon which he had been engaged during the past six years. His views upon the educational problem in India, which were expressed in an article which he recently contributed to the Missionary Review of the World, were also favorably commented upon. When ministering in this city Dr. Kellogg, as a member of the foreign missions executive was inclined to doubt the value of higher education as a mission agency, but in the article referred to he had acknowledged that lengthened experience had caused him to change his opinions on the subject. The executive transacted a great deal of routine business and made arrangements for the meeting of the full committee, which is to be held in this city on May 16.

Estimates Demand a 24 Mill Rate-Wholesale Cutting Proposed.

Feverish Secret Session of City Council Last Night-Board of Education Refuses to Accept a $10,000 Cut,

An extremely feverish condition has developed in London's municipal circles. It is hard to say what will be the effect of the terrible strain on the financiers of the city council, unless the rate of taxation is soon struck. Their condition was alarming last night, when an informal meeting of the council was held with closed doors, for the purpose of discussing the estimates. It was a very stormy meeting, a number of recriminations were passed, and much ill-temper shown. Nothing definite was done, although the discussion lasted over three hours. The estimates were brought in on a basis of 24 mills, and it was proposed to reduce them by cutting $10,000 out of the estimates for the board of education, $4,000 from the board of works' estimates, thus making them $35,000, and by knocking out the item of $4,500 for north end fire hall. Strenuous objection was made to all these proposed reductions; made to all these proposed reductions; to the first by Dr. Teasdall and Mr. John Macpherson, representing the board of education, to the second by the members of the board of works the members of the board of works, and to the third by the peresentatives for No. 4 ward. Ald. McCallum and Malloch were not present at the meeting, not having received notification in time.

The conclusion come to by several of the aldermen was that the rate can not reasonably be cut down to less than 23% or 24 mills. Last year the controlling spirits acted on a blind desire to have a low rate and accordingly saddled the council this year with a burden of one-half or two-thirds of a mill. Wishing to avert the catastrophe which their fetishism led up to, these same controlling spirits are bent on shifting the burden of the deficit on to the coming council. A number of the cooler heads among the aldermen are prepared for the deluge. "The mistake was made last year," they say, "and we've got to pay the piper some time. Better this year than next." Although the reduction of the estimates of the board of education by $10,000 is proposed, the members of the board are quite confident that legally the council is bound to levy the amount they require. The board asked horses was indorsed. Four cases of cruelty to animals were reported. There are 43 potato patches: 32 applications is claimed, is absolutely necessary; much of it is needed because of the parsimonious policy which they allowed the council to carry into effect a year ago. Large overdrafts resulted. In salaries last year $1,400 was expended over the appropriation, and the natural increase in salaries this year will be $2,200. The school sinking fund and debenture interest is $500 more than last year, and owing to the severe winter the fuel bill since January amounted to $500 more than usual. They must have the money, the trustees say. They have been somewhat ruffled by the > cil. Scant courtesy has stiffened their determination. With a view to adjusting the matter, last evening the representatives of the board offered to do with $2,000 less on the appropriation for the high school, and the impression was given that the loss of the $2,000 could be made up by the board by charging pupils in the up-per forms at the Collegiate a fee of, say, $10 a year. However, the matter was not so adjusted, and now the board is going to give the council a formal requisition, insisting on the levying of the money they require. They claim that the council has no power to refuse, that it is obligatory upon them under section 67, chapter 292, R. S. O., 1897. Legal entanglements are hinted treatment acorded them by the coun-

at. There's a pretty mix! The general application of the knife to the board of works' estimates, proposed, will mean starvation for the city streets. Last year the board spent $52. 000, and were supposed to be "hard up" from the start. What will they do on $35,000? Of course, it is expected that $10,000 or $12,000 less will be needed on the ground that no plank walks are to be put down, but extensive repairs will have to be made. And it was only on Thursday night, when the financial condition should have been fairly known to all the aldermen, that Ald, Garratt, McPhillips and Reed voted to purchase a gravel pit, for which according to the statement of the city engineer, the city has no need.

Ald. McPhillips wants the council to reconsider its action in allowing the fair board to move the dairy, agricultural and horticultural buildings to the west boundary of Queen's Park. centract for moving the buildings has been let and the work will be commenced Monday.

Ald. Douglass was asked this morning if it would not be possible to make the laying of permanent walks compulsory in the central portion of the city only, and allow ratepayers living in the outlying districts an option on plank walks. "No," he replied. "We have been informed by the city solicitor that that can not be done. The same legislation must apply to

A special meeting of the finance committee is talked of for Monday afternoon and of the council for Monday evening.

At 4:30 a station-fly drove up to Steinwood. It contained Mr. Septimus Musgrove, legal adviser to the Gower amily. He was a gentlemanly man, full of legal anecdote, and made the dinner-party a pleasant one. After the meal he retired to the li-brary with the brothers.

"Whatever has brought a lawyer here?" asked Lil, as they retired to the drawing-room. "I feared so," she added, when she heard.

The evening, though cold, was calm. The clear moon shone down peacefully, casting upon the sands hard, sharp-cut shadows of the cliffs, while under the rocks reigned obscurity.

Marian had made the rendezvous at the foot of the cliff-path, and to this she proceeded. She was going to perform a daring deed, yet one for which none at Steinwood would blame her. Her cousin Rowland would, did he know it; but, if possible, he never must. Should she succeed, the fact that she had had a hand in Gwyn's rejection of him might never appear. The color rose to Gwyn's lips-a proud light shone in her eyes. She owned to herself her unworthiness of Rowland; but it jarred on her to have his cousin put it so. She would give up Rowland for his own sake; but what did she care for his family?

the whole matter upon her mercy.

Gwyn was not unmoved by such an appeal from the daughter of Mr. Rylands, of Steinwood. Her high-souled, unselfish nature also recognized the truth conveyed. Her lips trembled, however, as she answered:

"What you say is correct, Miss Rylands. It is of this I have endeavored to convince Row— Mr. Gower."

"You have? And he?"

"Noble Rowland! Generous cousin! I indeed recognize you in that deter-mination!" cried Marian, fervently. "And you, Gwyn Rebna?"

"Yes; governed by your love, you yielded to his will?" "No," answered Gwyn, sadly, after a pause. "I said he should not ruin himself."

"You did?" And Marian caught the girl's hand in hers. "Oh, Gwyn—good Gwyn! can it be? You loved him too well to sacrifice him. But no," she added, mournfully, releasing her hold. "that cannot be; or, rather, he would not hear you, for has he not quitted Steinwood a beggar?—cast forth, dis-inherited of his father's affection and Marian was about to add: "And he has a splendid marriage now in view for him," but she knew womankind well enough to be aware that the knowledge of a rival might render Gwyn obdurate, where otherwise she might prove amenable. She was un-aware how much the other knew. She proceeded:

"And all this-all the years of trouble, the years of thought-have been ren-dered useless, annihilated in a moment by an unfortunate attachment. Gwyn Rebna-I mean no unkindness, no insult to you, in so terming it—your own sense, of so superior a class, will tell you I do not, while it will confirm my words. Supposing his family receive you—I am aware that Rowland's love is of too sincere and pure a nature ever to change-would the world, would society, ever accept you within its circle? What do you care for society? True, what need you for your self? But what would be your feelings to see the husband you adore shunned because of you? What would be your feelings to witness his pain at the slights society put on you, for you know not how cold, how pitless and cruel society can be. FALLS ARE WEAK.

Niagara Is a Pigmy Compared With Dodd's Kidney Pills.

No Kidney Disease Is Dangerous if Dodd's Kidney Pills Be Used-Mr. J. B, Jones Is a Living Proof of This,

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 5 .- The Falls of Niagara are a stupendous power for the welfare of mankind. But right in the midst of our quiet populace another power a million times greater has been at work recently. Niagara Falls have destroyed scores of lives. With all their power and grandeur they have never saved one life. The other power we refer to has saved thousands of lives-it has never destroyed one. This power is Dodd's ney diseases, and tried in vain to find a remedy that would cure me, until 1 providentially heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. So highly were they recommended to me by a friend who had used them, that I bought three boxes at once. I am happy to say that I did not need to buy any more. Those three boxes cured me. "Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of diabetes also. Therefore, I contend, I have good reason to sing their praises. I shall never cease doing so.-John B.

Jones.' Niagara Falls, with the strength of a billion of giants, could not relieve Mr. Jones of a twinge of pain. Dodd's Kidney Pills banished all his pains for ever. And even as they cured Mr. Jones, so they will cure any person who suffers from Bright's disease, Dia-betes, dropsy, lumbago, bladder and urinary diseases, diseases of women and all other kidney complaints. Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at 50 cents a box, six boxes $2 50, or will be sent on receipt of price by the Dodd's Medicine Company, Limited, Toronto.

A PLUCKY OFFER

By the British Columbia Government -Will Share the Pacific Cable Cost.

Ottawa, May 6 .- Yesterday the administration received a telegraphic message from the British Columbia Government which shows that the cable scheme appeals to and is regarded as being important by the coast administration. The message is dated Victoria, and reads:

"This government observes with great regret that further difficulties have arisen in connection with the Pacific cable scheme. It regards the enterprise of vast importance and absolutely necessary if Canada is to secure her proper share of Pacific commerce, her proper share of Pacific commerce, which, it believes, will rapidly assume large proportions. Particularly is the enterprise of moment to Brisish Columbia, the Dominion gateway to the Pacific. On these grounds this government feels justified in assisting the realization of the scheme beyond what is involved in its provincial share of Dominion responsibility. This government, therefore, will assume for the province one-ninth share of the cost of the cable, on arrangements similar to those with the Australian colonies. Hoping that in thus strengthening the hands of the Dominion Government the consummation of this imperial enterprise may be achieved. (Signed) F. Carter Cotton, Minister of Finance of British Columbia."

STATUS OF STRIKES

[G. N. W. Special to Advertiser.] Montreal, May 6.-The molders of Montreal struck work this morning. There was no excitement at any of the shops. The men simply stayed away. The rock on which negotiations split was the demand of the molders that all piece work should be abolished.

Toronto, May 6 .- No material change occurred yesterday in regard to the strikes still going on in the city. The bricklayers and the builders have had no further communication with each other, and the same may be said of the molders and the stonecutters and their respective bosses. Duluth, Minn., May 6 .- The first serious demonstration by the sympathizers and strikers occurred last night. They used dynamite to stop traffic. Four cars were derailed. One of the cars was smashed almost beyond repair. One man was probably fatally injured and four others were slightly hurt. When Manager Warren, of the street railway company, appeared on the scene with a wrecking car he was set upon by the strikers.

Toronto, May 6.-A fire in the Bishopric paper box factory, on Richmond street west, yesterday, did about $7,000 damage, chiefly to the stock. Loss covered by insurance. Mayell & Co., next door, suffered slight damage from smoke and the bursting of a hose carried through their premises.

Hamilton, Ont., May 6.—The fire in the coffin manufacturing department of Semmens & Eval's factory caused a loss of about $70,000. Elora, Ont., May 6.-Yesterday morning fire broke out in some outbuildings Kidney Pills.

> CHILD FATALLY BURNED. Guelph, May 6.—Aurilla, age four, daughter of Mr. A. Sutherland, of Brantford, was almost burned to death Thursday while playing at a bonfire. She died from the effects at 8:30 yesterday morning. The child resided with her grandmother, Mrs. Murphy, on Division street. The parents of the child are deaf and dumb, and reside in Brantford. NO FIGHTS FOR GUELPH. The master in chambers yesterday reserved decision upon a motion to have an action, brought by Messrs. Sanderson and Elliott, of Toronto, against the city of Guelph, tried there instead of in Guelph. The action was brought to recover damages because the city, in response to a demand by peace-loving citizens, canceled an engagement to rent the town hall for a pugilistic exhibition.

"This gift of good conversation in woman is apt to mislead the judgment of those who listen."

Assuredly we enjoy our pleasures most when they are unexpected, fall down, as it were, into our laps, from the heights of Olympus. When one looks forward to anything for some length of time, it is the anticipation that repays one, not the "hope fulfilled," which invariably disappoints us. Such creatures are we for those wonderful air eastles. And so the two dances that we have had in these past few days were most heartily appreciated and are still the food for much conversation.

Mrs. George Harris, of Ridout street, was the hostess of a small dance last Friday evening. Eldon House is an ideal place for a dance, and the broad veranda and a warm night tempted many out into a varitable fairyland of dark river below, tall trees above, and the sparkle of electric lights beyond in West London. Miss Gibbons' gown was probably the most admired. It was white satin with an overskirt of gauze sparkling with silver sequins-a delightful gown. Miss Pauline Beddome leoked very well in white, the skirt trimmed with rows of mauve ribbon and the waist with rich lace. Miss Ruby Michie, a handsome debutante and a great favorite, wore white muslin. Miss Amy McDonough wore white silk with an overskirt of chiffon. Miss Hutchinson, in a blue velvet gown with forget-me-nots in her hair and on the corsage of her dress, was one of the belles of the evening.

Mr. Lorne Cosby, of Toronto, is in the city. He was the host of a very pleasant tea at the Kennels Tuesday

We were all sincerely sorry to hear that Miss Winnie Moore was ill. She has been sadly missed during the gaiety of the last week.

Mrs. McDonough, of Dufferin avenue, was the hostess of a very pleasant dance on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Carpenter was the recipient of many Mrs. regrets in regard to her approaching departure from London. Miss Louie McDonough looked very well in white satin. Mrs. Baker, of Queen's avenue, wore a handsome black gown which became her admirably, and the dainty, pale green of Mrs. Adam Beck was also greatly admired.

Mrs. Gibbons was the hostess of small luncheon for girls at the Kennels on Friday.

Miss Pauline Beddome, of Windsor, and Miss Charmon, of Detroit, are the guests of Mrs. George C. Gibbons. Those who met Miss Charmon will regret deeply to hear that she was unfortunate enough to fall from her horse and break her arm on Thursday evening.

A very pleasant and sociable tea was given by Mrs. John Labatt on Thursday at the Golf Club, when the club house was taxed to its utmost capacity. The scene on the links was an especially pretty one. HUMOR CURE

For All Who Suffer from Skin and Scalp Humors.

To successfully treat torturing and disfiguring humors of the blood, skin, and scalp, with loss of hair, requires a humor cure, and such is CUTICURA RESOLVENT, greatest of blood purifiers and humor expelling remedies.

Cuticura Resolvent

Extends its purifying influence by means of the pores to the surface of the skin, allaying irritation, inflammation, itching, and burning, and soothing and healing external humors, because of its power to neutralize HUMOR-GERMS which float in the blood and circulating fluids. Hence its success in the treatment of distressing humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, with loss of hair, which fail to be permanently cured by external remedies alone.

Exerts a gentle but constant influence upon the bowels, liver, and kidneys, purifying the fluids of these organs, and maintaining them in a normal condition of health, thus removing a common cause of yellow, mothy, greasy skin, and more or less of pimples, blotches, and blackheads.

Cuticura Resolvent

Cuticura Resolvent Used on every occasion possible, with CUTICURA (ointment) and CUTICURA SOAP, externally, is the readiest means of insuring a speedy, permanent, and economical cure, and realizing that greatest of human blessings, "a skin without blemish and a body nourished with pure blood."
