The British Campaign

Parliament Dissolved—What the Queen's Speech Says.

The House to Meet Again on the 4th of August.

Mr. Gladstone Starts on His Midlothian Campaign.

ENGLISH NONCONFORMISTS.

The London Times prints the following appeal, which has been issued by the London Nonconformist Council. It will be observed that the London Nonconformists support the extension of self-government, local and national to all parts of the United Kingdom:

"General Election, 1892.

"Appeal of the London Nonconformist Council to the Free Churchmen of London.

"Dear Brethren,—The approach of the general election brings vividly before us the social and political evils that still retard the progress of the kingdom of Christ, and the obligations that constrain every Christian citizen to put forth the most strenuous endeavors to make this event a triumph for the cause of national righteousness and peace.

"It is to be feared that this crisis, which will powerfully effect the destinies of the people of the United Kingdom, is viewed with unaccountable apathy by numbers of our countrymen.

"That the decision of Parliament may exercise untold influence for good upon the moral life of the nation is now generally believed. It is our fervent hope that the work of the coming Parliament will more than ever tend to raise the nation into harmony with the Christian ideal.

"If social evils are to be remedied, the inequalities of generations lessened, the moral and industrial life of the people developed, we must contend for the rule of Christ over every department of action, in contrast with the domination of capital, class, party or sect.

"Two evils menace this hope—the spirit of indifference and the narrowing effect of excessive partisanship. The former is, in fact, the greater evil. The citizen who enjoys the freedom, privileges and ministry of the State, and declines to vote on its behalf, is a traitor to the nation. But the Christian who refuses to vote according to his conscience and the law of Christ betrays his Lord and practically denies his claim to be the King of Men. The settlement of political questions by party is not an unmixed good. It fosters prejudices, it ignores aspects of truth not favorable to party success, it involves enormous waste of power and wealth, and makes the obtaining of reforms—recognized as essential—a long and trying process. The national good must be set above party. The Christian ideal must not be sacrificed to political expediency.

"In this spirit of brotherhood we invite you to take your part in the great work of amelioration, which is the mission of this age, and to urge others to share in the same beneficent purpose.

"In order to give practical effect to these principles we appeal to you, as electors, to send to Parliament those candidates who avow themselves willing to support the following measures that are, in our judgment, vital to the welfare of London and the nation:

"1. In accordance with the programme of municipal self-government, recommended by the Nonconformist Council to the electors in March last and adopted by an overwhelming majority of the people of London, the county council should at once receive further powers from the Legislature similar to those that have long been possessed by other towns and cities of the United Kingdom.

"The present irritating restrictions of the local Government Act prevent the county council dealing effectually with the regulation of slums, the removal of insanitary dwellings, the abolition of superfluous public houses, the suppression of prize fighting, and the enforcement of laws against gambling.

"The control of the police is also necessary to enable the council fully to discharge its obligations to the ratepayers.

"Those Parliamentary candidates only deserve the support of loyal citizens who are pledged to make the Government of London strong, efficient and worthy of the capital city of a free people.

"2. The extension of local self-government, municipal and national, so far as practicable, in all parts of the United Kingdom, as the best means of securing Imperial unity.

"3. The national adoption of religious freedom and equality, and the recognition of the right of churches to settle for themselves questions of internal polity, belief and service.

"4. The support of such legislation as will lead to the restoration of the people to the land and the consequent lessening of the disastrous congestion of population in already overcrowded cities and towns.

"5. The improvement of the conditions of labor in accordance with the previous recommendations of the Nonconformist Council, which include for the laborers 'one day's rest in seven, reasonable hours of toil, cheaper rates of transit, the provision of night shelters, the extension of the labor bureaus, and a statistical department with results available for all.' For the settlement of industrial disputes, the State should promote courts of arbitration and conciliation.

"6. The adoption of a wisely adjusted system of old-age pensions, and such reforms in the present poor laws as shall lessen the anxiety and destitution of the closing years of the deserving poor.

"7. The passing into law of a measure providing that any person against whom flagrant immorality has been proved in a court of law shall be disqualified for a definite period, and until satisfactory confession and reparation have been made, from holding a seat in the House of Commons. And the electors are urged to vote for no candidate in whose moral character they have not the fullest confidence.

"8. The increased expenditure of the people on intoxicating drinks calls for further legislation on the liquor traffic, and requires that powers shall be conferred on each locality to enable the inhabitants to limit and control the number of public-houses in their area.

"9. The enactment of more stringent legislation against the practice of gambling as a deadly enemy to healthy prosperity, and to the moral character of the population.

"10. The prevention of war as a means of settling international disputes, and the substitution of universal arbitration as the best method of securing the peace and prosperity of the nations, and that her Majesty's Government be urged to consider favorably the Arbitration Treaty offered by the United States.

"11. The maintenance of just and humane relations with dependent races, the protection of their natural rights to the territory they inhabit, the prevention of the destructive traffic in opium and intoxicating liquors, and the promotion of their moral welfare, as the first duty of the strong towards the weak.

"The response of the citizens of London in March last to the united appeal of the free churches on behalf of the civic unity and self-government of the metropolis, showed that Nonconformists are a real force in the progress of the nation. And, if in this still greater crisis, pregnant with the gravest issues of good or ill, the free churches will but know their duty and do it, we may have the satisfaction of witnessing such a triumph of national righteousness as this generation has not known.

"We are, on behalf of the council,
"J. GUINNESS ROGERS, Principal.
"J. MATTHEWS, Hon. Secs.
"W. J. AVERY,
"A. JEFFERY,
"ENOCH SALT,
"June 13, 1892."

DISSOLUTION.

LONDON, June 28.—The Queen to-day signed the decree dissolving Parliament. the writs for the elections of the new members of the House of Commons will be issued to-night. The Queen's speech proroguing Parliament says:

"The time has arrived when it is expedient that the electoral body of the country be consulted by the assemblage of a new Parliament. I have therefore summoned you for prorogation at an earlier period than usual. I am glad to record that my friendly relations with foreign powers remain unaltered. Treaties have been duly ratified referring the differences with the United States with respect to the Bering Sea to arbitration."

Referring to the bills passed at the session just ended, the speech says that the arrangements that Parliament has made enabling workingmen to purchase agricultural holdings will increase the class of cultivating owners, which is of great importance to the State. The application to Ireland of the educational measures recently adopted in Great Britain will confer great benefits upon the people of that country. The speech concludes:

"In closing this Parliament, which has been unusually laborious and also highly fruitful in beneficent legislation, I thank you for the assiduous performance of your momentous duties during the past six years, and heartily commend you to the favor of Almighty God."

A proclamation published in the Gazette to-day orders Parliament to meet again on Aug. 4 next.

GLADSTONE'S INJURIES.

Mr. Gladstone has sent out this dispatch: "Eye recovering. Likely to allow traveling on Wednesday, and use for reading on Thursday. Regret the necessity of putting aside general correspondence. Beg you to give my warmest thanks to all friends for solicitude felt or expressed apart from political opinion, for interest in the accident, and desire for my recovery." Hundreds of telegrams of sympathy and inquiry have been received by Mr. Gladstone from all parts of England and Scotland and several cities on the continent. Among the inquirers were Queen Victoria and Lady Salisbury.

EARL KIMBERLEY ON THE SITUATION.

Speaking at Falmouth, the Earl of Kimberley, in indicating the Liberal programme, said that they intended to make the local government measures a reality and to complete them, and that they intended to have district and parish councils which would touch the people very closely, the present system in rural districts being simply wretched. A cardinal point in their programme was one man one vote. Registration must be looked into, the present system being monstrous in its working. They also had a notion—no doubt a very radical but not a destructive or revolutionary one—that it would be an advantage to Parliament to have a certain number of representatives of labor sent up from the working classes. They had important views with regard to land legislation and a fairer adjustment of taxation. On the question of local option the Liberal party had made up their minds that the time had come when the various communities throughout the kingdom were entitled to have some direct voice as to the number of liquor shops in their districts, and if they were in favor of such a policy they must vote for Liberal candidates. As to Ireland, the Government had not given what it promised. The Liberal policy was to give to Ireland a Legislature to deal with local affairs, leaving to the Imperial Parliament the management of Imperial affairs, Ireland having representatives for the purpose. As to the approaching election he looked forward to it with unabated confidence and buoyant hope.

THE NUMBER PRESENT.

Only 22 members of the House of Commons were present at the last sitting of the House. But a single member of the Government was present except A. A. Douglas, patronage Secretary to the Treasury. After the Speaker had read the prorogation speech the members present shook his hand. In the House of Lords 35 peers were present.

THE MIDLOTHIAN CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, June 29.—Mr. Gladstone left his home at Hawarden to open his campaign in Midlothian. He said the injury to his eye still caused him discomfort. A large crowd had assembled at the railway station at Chester, and the great Liberal leader was the recipient of an ovation.

PARNELLITES TO THE ELECTORS.

LONDON, June 29.—The Parnellite executive committee of Great Britain, while regretting Gladstone's reticence, has issued a formal address advising Irish electors to support Gladstonian candidates, on the ground that Gladstone will then have no excuse to withhold the details of his home rule scheme. It is stated the executive committee of the Parnellites in Dublin will issue a similar address.

In Germany teachers are very poorly paid. At a teachers' festival somebody proposed the toast—"Long live our teachers!" "What on?" asked a cadaverous specimen, rising in his seat.

MADAME, THE COLONEL

The Duchess of Edinburgh's Success as a Diplomat.

A Clerical Aspirant's Claim to the Peerage Rejected.

Suicide of the Countess Augusta Linsingen.

Beatification of Columbus Contemplated by the Pope.

A Bishop's Claim Rejected.

LONDON, June 28.—The Committee for the Privileges of the House of Lords has rejected the claim of John Chetwood Aiken, of Stoke, Bishop of Gloucester, to the dignity of Baron De Kahull, in the peerage of England.

Suicide of a Countess.

BERLIN, June 28.—The body of the Countess Augusta Linsingen, who disappeared from her home in Hanover a few days ago, has been found in the River Leine, near that city. The Countess undoubtedly committed suicide, though beyond the fact that she had complained of suffering severely from headaches no reason for self-destruction is known. She is the daughter of Count Adolphus Linsingen, formerly chamberlain of the Court of Hanover in the days of King George. She was 38 years old and unmarried.

Beatification of Columbus.

ROME, June 28.—It is stated that the Pope's next encyclical will beatify Columbus. The beatification is the preliminary step toward canonization. By beatification, Columbus would be declared blessed, but his relics would not be exposed. One great stumbling block to the canonization of Columbus is found in one particular chapter of his life. While he was staying at Cordova in the autumn of 1487, he fell in love with a lady of good birth but in poor circumstances. His son Ferdinand was the issue of this intimacy, but whether their relation was sanctified by the church is a matter of considerable doubt. It is certain that Columbus never recognized her in any way. He recommends her in his will to his son Diego as "a person to whom I have been under great obligations, and my conscience is burdened respecting her."

The Trade Congress.

LONDON, June 28.—The second Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire is in session and will sit four days. The deliberations are presided over by the Right Hon. John Lubbock, president of the London Chamber of Commerce. Sir John Lubbock, on behalf of the London Chamber of Commerce, offered a resolution favoring a free trade union of Great Britain and her colonies. Sir Charles Tupper moved as an amendment the resolution of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce, in favor of slight differential duties. Sir Donald Smith seconded the amendment. Mr. Wood, of Hamilton, made a speech in favor of free trade between Canada and Great Britain. Sir John Lubbock's motion was postponed.

A Lady Colonel.

LONDON, June 28.—Emperor William's appointment of his aunt, the Duchess of Edinburgh, to the honorary colonelcy of one of the crack regiments of his army may be regarded as a public recognition of the recently developed importance of her role in international politics. The wife of the least popular of all Queen Victoria's children, occupying an altogether subordinate position among the members of the British royal family, since she is forced to yield the pas even to Princess Beatrice of Battenberg, and possessed of no personal beauty or charm, she has nevertheless succeeded during the past few months in acquiring an influence over European politics which has produced a complete and most beneficial change of their hitherto clouded aspect. In the first place she has utilized her relationship to the Czar, whose only sister she is, to bring about a relaxation of the tension between Germany and Russia, and it was her influence alone that led the Muscovite ruler to atone for his past discourtesy to Emperor William by visiting the latter at Kiel.

It is the Duchess to whom belongs the credit of having negotiated the marriage between the Crown Prince of Roumania and her eldest daughter, Marie—a marriage that is likely to contribute more than anything else to the prevention of the ever-smoldering Eastern question. For a time the Czar declined to give his consent to the marriage of his favorite niece to the Roumanian heir-apparent, who is a member of the Prussian house of Hohenzollern, but at last he has yielded to his sister's arguments and signified his approval of the match. The latter gives universal satisfaction, and is regarded as a powerful guarantee of peace in connection with the Balkan difficulty. It invests the court of Bucharest with its first link of direct relationship with that of Russia and of Great Britain, which cannot fail to impart strength and solidity to the hitherto perilous Roumanian throne. It is pleasing to the Roumanian people, who, being of the orthodox Greek faith, are glad to find in their future queen a princess of the same creed. For, while the sons of the Duke of Edinburgh are brought up as Protestants, his daughters, according to the terms of the marriage contract, are educated as members of the Greek Church.

Threatened with Death.

BRISBANE, July 29.—The Premier has received a letter threatening him with death unless the elections bill is withdrawn from Parliament. It is rumored that a number of Government members of the Assembly received similar letters.

Three Months for Cruelty.

LONDON, June 29.—At the Warwick sessions yesterday Mrs. Marion Humphries, the wife of the Vicar of Warton, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment at hard labor on the charge of brutal treatment of a servant. It was alleged that Mrs. Humphries frequently stripped her servant and lashed her with a whip stock.

Anarchists Again Busy.

PARIS, July 29.—Several fires occurred here last night. It is believed they were started by an Anarchist. The newspapers have received letters recently, stating that the Anarchists would soon resume operations, and that they would not make use of bombs, but of some other weapon.

SYSTEMATIC SWINDLES.

Inquirers After Imaginary Fortunes Enrich Unscrupulous Sharpers.

LONDON, June 29.—In spite of the repeated exposures of the systematic swindles that are being carried on under the guise of English estate agencies and the frequent warnings that have been sent out by the United States legation here, the legation continues to be inundated with letters inquiring after imaginary fortunes. From letters lately received it would appear that William Lord Moore, who has been shown up several times lately, is doing a larger business than ever and that the victims of the estate agency craze are distributed all over the United States, but especially in the most remote districts.

Mr. Lincoln has conferred with the post-office authorities; but there is no way to stop the trade except by criminal prosecution. In view of the distance of Moore's dupes, and the comparatively small individual losses, such a course is practically out of the question and it is only by the help of the American press that the frauds can be stopped. Mr. Lincoln has authorized the following notice to be issued:

"In consequence of the continued coming of many American letters to the United States Minister in regard to sending money to William Lord Moore, of London, as an agent for prosecuting claims to property in England, it is requested that wide publicity be again given to the fact that in February last the United States legation, with the aid of the metropolitan police, made an investigation and ascertained that Moore is a swindler with a New York connection styled the European Claims Agency, E. Ross, manager. Credulous people will avoid disappointment and save their money by having nothing whatever to do with Moore or any other persons advertising as agents having lists of unclaimed estates and family names of persons entitled and producing the publication, as often happens, of sensational telegrams as to English estates or money in the Bank of England awaiting American claimants. Such publications are all fraudulent and intended to induce the sending of fees or extended expenses."

SUICIDE OF TWO LOVERS.

They Went Out Driving and Drank Strychnine.

WILMINGTON, Ohio, June 29.—Gilbert Palmer of Jamestown, about 21 years old, procured a horse and buggy at a livery stable here Saturday night, as he said, to go to Port William about four miles north. He was last seen at this place about 10 o'clock in company with Mary Concklin, aged 16, the daughter of a widow living in Port William. Miss Concklin's mother objected strenuously to her association with Palmer.

Yesterday morning Palmer and Miss Concklin were discovered on the roadside, both dead. They had taken the robes out of the buggy and spread them down on the ground, and placed the buggy cushion on them for a head rest. Near them were found two glasses and two papers that contained strychnine. A note was found written on one of the labels reading as follows: "Bury us as close together as possible. Good-bye."

CRICKET.

The cricket match between the Ottawas and Torontos at Toronto on Tuesday, resulted as follows: Ottawa 132 runs in the first inning, Toronto 119 in the second inning.

AQUATIC.

Y. M. C. A. RACES.

The Y. M. C. A. Boating Club had their first run last evening, and it proved a very interesting event for those participating. Although the boats were heavy and at times the contestants could hardly be seen for the flying water, very good time was made, and at the finish the boats were barely ahead of each other. The start was made from the old mill and the course ended at a point below Wonderland. Three boats started and ended as follows: Doherty and Partridge first, Howard and Atkinson second, and Fewings and Santo third. A double outrigger race is on for next Tuesday evening.

Against the Reading Coal Combine.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 29.—Mayor Cochran, President Brickner, of the Chamber of Commerce, President Hathaway, of the Flower City National Bank, and other prominent citizens have signed a petition to Congressman Wise, praying for action against the Reading coal combination and requesting him to do something in the matter. In reply Mr. Wise says he will receive careful attention from the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which he is a member, and will do everything possible to defeat the corporation.

Sank 200 Feet.

ALPENA, Mich., June 29.—The schooner Fred A. Morse was lost on Monday morning, 12 miles southeast of Thunder Bay Island, by collision with the propeller Pringle, of Buffalo. The Morse was bound up with coal in tow of the propeller Horace M. Tuttle, and the Pringle had in tow two schooners. The Morse sank in 200 feet of water within five minutes after she was struck. Her crew took to the boats and all were picked up by the Tuttle. The Pringle was [illegible] with a badly damaged bow and put into this port. The accident was caused by rain and fog.

The English Wheat Markets.

LONDON, June 29.—The Mark Lane Express says the English wheat markets are very depressed, the average being under 30 shillings, and recalling the dismal experience of 1889-90. The depression arises from the arrival of the Russian [illegible] forbidding the exportation of wheat. After the [illegible] heavy shipments must be made. Perhaps the Minister of Agriculture will have extended powers. Foreign wheat has declined 1 shilling for American and Russian and sixpence on the Australian, Argentine and Californian. The prospects for the future import trade are not bright.

"Do be quiet, Johnny; don't you know that there's a visitor in the next room?" said Frances to her little brother. "How do you know? You haven't been in." "Baby," said Frances, "I hear mamma saying 'my dear' to papa."

POLITICAL POINTS.

Annual Meeting of South Bruce Reformers—Lennox Election Trial.

TARA, June 28.—At the annual meeting of the North Bruce Reform Association, the election of officers resulted as follows: President, A. B. McCallum, M.A., Paisley; first vice-president, J. E. Campbell, Hepworth; second vice-president, T. Dargavel; Saugeen; secretary-treasurer, C. M. Bowman, Saugeen. Strong resolutions were passed condemnatory of the Redistribution Bill, approving of the trade policy of the Opposition, and expressing confidence in the Government of Sir Oliver Mowat. A feeling resolution of condolence with Mrs. Mackenzie on the death of her husband, Mr. Alexander Mackenzie, was also passed. The meeting was the most successful held under the auspices of the association for years. It was decided to invite Hon. Wilfrid Laurier to address the electors at some point in the riding after Parliament rises.

The date of the Lennox election trial has been fixed for Monday, Nov. 14.

The Pontiac election returns give Bryson 696 majority over Murray.

TWO FAMOUS ESTATES.

They Are Recalled by a Wedding in the Guards' Chapel, London.

LONDON, June 29.—Major St. Aubyn, eldest son of Lord St. Levan, and Military Secretary to the Governor-General of Canada, was married this afternoon at the Guards' Chapel, Wellington Barracks to Lady Edith Edgcumbe, daughter of Lord Mount-Edgcumbe.

The fathers of the newly-married pair are the possessors of historical estates, the seat of Lord St. Levan being St. Michael's Mount, Marazion, Cornwall, while that of Lord Mount-Edgcumbe is famed as the one which Sidonia had selected for himself, as he sailed up the channel with the Spanish Armada should victory, as he fully expected, crown his expedition.

Mount-Edgcumbe is, perhaps, the loveliest in all the lovely west country. With its fine Elizabethan mansion and splendid gardens and park it occupies the whole peninsula between the Hamoaze and Plymouth Sound and covers an extent of ground more than three miles in circumference. The gardens and park are almost unrivaled and the manner in which they impress a stranger cannot be better described than in the quaint and almost forgotten lines penned by David Garrick after a visit there:

This mount all the mounts of Great Britain surpasses,
'Tis the haunt of the muses, the mount of Parnassus;
Fame lies, 'tis not Stratford—this, this is the spot
Where Genius on Nature our Shakespeare begot!
This only the birthplace of Shakespeare could be,
Whose wonders can e'en make a poet of me.

S., a vessel to carry the Dominion flag on the Gulf of Mexico, we hereby show our warm appreciation of the effort to extend the trade of this neighborhood, do raise by 25 cent subscriptions the amount requisite to purchase a suitable flag, and that it be placed in the hands of the mayor of this city to be forwarded. There has been a desire on the part of the workingmen of the city of London to subscribe towards buying a Dominion flag, to be placed in charge of the mayor of this city, to be forwarded to Pensacola, Fla., U. There are several instances on record of the complete destruction of whole regiments in one battle. On September 8, 1812, Napoleon's 53rd regiment perished to a man in storming over the Roman positions. On January 6, 1842, only 65 out of 14,500 British soldiers emerged alive at a battle fought near Jagdulluck. In November, 1883 the whole army of Hicks Pasha, 11,000 strong, was cut to pieces near the fifth cataract of the River Nile.

A man's wife should always be the same, especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too.

In the Chicago cattle yards the various plants are estimated as worth $11,000,000, with 25,000 employes, to whom annnual wages of $20,000,000 are paid. In the fiscal year 1890 the approximate value of the products of all sorts utilized there was $150,000,000.

BRANT.

J. Quinlan and J. Daly, charged with taking the leather sides of a buggy and a robe from a drive shed in Paris, were arraigned before Squire Powell and fined $10 and costs each, or $3 30 in all.

A bylaw to give the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway a bonus of $70,000 has passed the second reading in the Brantford City Council, and the ratepayers will vote on it July 21.

The death occurred in Brantford on Monday of Mr. Costello, a resident of the city for over 40 years. He was in his 77th year, and had on several occasions been a member of the City Council.

A sad accident occurred at the Mohawk Institute, Brantford, on Sunday. Some time ago "Many Guns," a son of one of the Northwest chiefs, was sent to the institution at the expense of the Dominion Government in order to become versed in the ways of civilization with a view to helping his tribe. On Sunday he was looking after a young bull, not supposed to be vicious, when the animal suddenly turned on him. Before arristance arrived his left leg was torn very badly and one of the horns had pierced his right lung. He is now at the hospital in a very precarious condition.

Among the items contained in the Dominion supplementary estimates is a sum of $14,979, to pay claims of Yates & Stratford, of Brantford, for refund of customs duty on oak lumber for car building, which, by the Exchequer Court, was ruled to be duty free under the tariff in force from 1879 to 1884.

ESSEX.

Tilbury Center will take part in the 12th of July demonstration at Essex.

Ike Mulder, the colored desperado of South Colchester, will have his preliminary hearing in Windsor on Thursday.

The Methodists of Tilbury Center are about to erect a $2,000 parsonage.

Joseph Pickey, a Grand Trunk Railway employe, was badly injured by getting caught between the bumpers at Jeanette Creek.

Joseph Clifton, engineer at Decew's mill, Essex, was severely scalded on Saturday by the breaking of a steam pipe. He will be laid up for a couple of weeks.

Residents in the vicinity of Essex are having experience in a limited way with typical western cyclones. Small whirlwinds, 50 or 60 feet wide, have swept through the orchards, tearing up trees and carrying away fences. One farmer reports an interesting sight, nothing less than a huge limb of a tree flying through the air 300 feet above the tree tops. The storms are accompanied by light rains.

ELGIN.

A night or two ago, after preparatory communion services in Knox Church, St. Thomas, the pastor, Rev. J. A. Macdonald, was presented on behalf of the young men, with a black silk pulpit gown and cassock by Mr. C. Macdougall, Q.C. Mr. James Carrie threw the gown over the shoulders of Mr. Macdonald, who made a suitable reply.

HURON.

James Hyslop, on the boundary between Turnberry and Grey, had eight fine Oxforddown lambs destroyed and eaten by dogs recently.

Rev. E. Medd and wife, former residents of Hullett, were called on by about 200 friends at the parsonage at Iona and presented with an address and a well-filled purse.

Luke and Hartwell Speiran, of Grey, belong to a long-lived generation. Their father died at the age of 82 years; their mother is 98, and still hearty and able to walk a mile or so. The grandmother attained the great age of 107.

Thirty-seven candidates will write in East Huron on the public school leaving examination, and about 50 in the whole county.

KENT.

Dr. Bray, of Chatham, has been taken by special train to attend Joseph Pickey, a section boss on the G. T. R., who, while engaged at his duties at Jeannette's station, was seriously injured by a shunting car. The sufferer was badly crushed and sustained internal hurt.

The three men who ran the Dominion Portrait Company's business have been committed for trial at Chatham for obtaining money under false pretenses. Police Magistrate Houston sent them for trial.

A dwelling house owned by Mrs. E. S. Spashett, and occupied by Richard Pritchard, Chatham, was destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. The fire appears to have originated in the attic and was difficult to control. The loss on the building is total; insured for $325 in the Commercial Union. The contents, which were partially destroyed, were insured in the Fire Insurance Association (limited).

LAMBTON.

The picnic season has opened at points about Lake Huron and River St. Clair.

Potato bugs are more than usually numerous this season at Wyoming.

The Methodist, Presbyterian and Episcopal Sabbath schools of Wyoming will hold their annual excursion to Bay View Park, Sarnia, on July 28.

MIDDLESEX.

Strathroy talks of spending $30,000 for a complete waterworks system.

Claypole Decker, a prominent farmer living on the Proof Line road, London township, has invented a new patent potato planter, and while testing one of the planters last week at a high rate of speed the machine collided with a stone, throwing the inventor midair and seriously injuring him.

R. W. Archer, formerly manager of Molsons Bank, Exeter, was ordained as deacon at Christ Church Cathedral, Hamilton, the other day. Mr. Archer will be stationed at Stamford and Niagara Falls South as curate.

NORFOLK.

One thousand pounds of cheese are being made daily at the Lynedoch factory.

The Long Point fishing boat brought into Port Dover one day last week a haul of over 00 large sturgeon.

Geo. Baker, of Charlotteville, has entered sixteen Southdown sheep for the World's Fair at Chicago next year.

Farmers of that section will heartily indorse the action of the Norfolk County Council in granting $400 to the Norfolk Union Agricultural Society to assist in the erection of sheds for the accommodation of stock, etc.

OXFORD.

A large class from the Beachville public school are preparing to write at the entrance in Woodstock in July.

Numerous fruit growers in Oxford state that their apple crop will not be as large as they expected, as in many instances trees which were covered with blossoms are devoid of fruit.

Some 650 cords of gravel have been put on the Tilsonburg and Ingersoll gravel road this year, costing in the neighborhood of $2,500. The road is in much better condition than for some time past.

PERTH.

Mr. Warrington, cheese buyer, shipped about $2,000 worth of cheese from Listowel the other day, purchased from the Gotham and Trowbridge factories.

A fatal accident has occurred at the old frog factory in Stratford. A lad named John Soden, son of Charles Soden, of Light street, was scrambling about the building with other boys, when he fell or was pushed off the roof, falling on his face. Dr. Brownlee found the boy had been injured internally. The doctor was of opinion that Soden fell across a beam or stone, as his stomach was badly bruised, and death ensued from a rupture of some internal organ.

Mrs. Owen Hitchcox and the White brothers are to give an entertainment in Mitchell under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, on the evening of July 12. Mrs. Hitchcox will deliver a lecture on temperance, and she will be supported in Gospel songs by the White brothers.

Rev. G. R. Beamish, M.A., curate of St. James' Church, Stratford, was presented with a pocket communion service, made of silver and lined with gold the other evening. The donors were the members of the recent confirmation class, numbering 51, and the presentation was made after the meeting of the preparation class for holy communion, held in the Sunday school building. Accompanying the handsome and very appropriate gift was an illuminated address, which was read by Harry Watson. Miss Maud Robinson made the presentation. The recipient returned his thanks in a few fitting words.

John Francis, one of the oldest residents of Munroe, has passed away after a long illness. Deceased was a fine horseman and could handle refractory horses in a creditable manner. He was 77 years old.

A wild steer caused considerable commotion in the streets of Stratford Monday afternoon, no one was injured, but there was some lively hustling out of horn's way on the part of two or three citizens.

WELLINGTON.

At Drayton the principal of the public school was fined for punishing a girl with a cane. He appealed the case to the County Court and the conviction was quashed.

W. Kinnear, Elora, has made another shipment of export cattle. There were 39 head which weighed 44,830, or an average of 1,150 each. The season is about over now.

Harry Davey, of Woodstock, has a curiosity for the World's Fair. It is in the shape of a table and it contains no less than 9,600 pieces of wood, all artistically arranged.

The Ingersoll Chronicle states that immediately after a recent rainstorm thousands of toads might have been seen on Thames street in the neighborhood of the C. P. R. track. They were lively little fellows about as large as a good sized cricket, and were so thick on the sidewalk that it was impossible for pedestrians to get along without treading upon them. There are various theories as to the cause of their appearance, the most popular of which is that they rained down.

ALWAYS ON TIME

If They Have to Run to Get There—The Water Commissioners Are Prompt—Tuesday Night's Meeting.

Chairman George C. Davis, of the water commissioners, was seen last evening running hurriedly up Richmond street. He turned into the City Hall arcade, and the people around who had been attracted by his sprinting exhibition expected to hear the fire bell ring. But the worthy chairman bounded up stairs into a committee-room, and as his eager glance read the clock his face was suffused with a triumphant expression. It was just 7:30 p.m., the time at which the most punctual of all civic bodies, the Board of Water Commissioners meets. Mayor Spencer was at Commissioner Davis' heels and Commissioner Jones and the board officials were there. Business was not very heavy. Chairman Davis stated that he had conferred with the postoffice authorities and the latter had agreed to allow waterworks notices to be mailed at 1 cent each. The present system of personal delivery has been unsatisfactory and hereafter the notices will be sent by post.

Ald. Hannah, representing the Board of Health, appeared as a deputation of one. He said the board purposed appointing a plumbing inspector, as in other cities, in order to guard against inferior plumbing and they desired to know is Waterworks Inspector Plastow could be secured to perform the duties as the joint servant of the two boards. The commissioners asked that the exact duties of the proposed inspector be defined before doing anything.

The engineer and Mr. Jones were empowered to look after the repairs, such as repapering, etc., desired in the city treasurer's office.

The board accepted the school board's invitation to attend the Dominion Day demonstration.

P. M. Lawrason asked that the water main be extended to the corner of Adelaide and South streets, then south on Adelaide to Nightingale avenue, thence east to his refinery. The engineer and Mr. Jones will look into it.

W. D. Buckle asked for a main on Central avenue, between William and Palace streets. Engineer and Mr. Jones.

A petition was read for a main on St. James street, between Maitland and William. Engineer and Mr. Jones.

The Poultry Yard.

—Thin-shelled eggs are very troublesome and are caused by improper feeding. Too much rich food usually brings about this condition of things. Let the hens get plenty of grass with only a little oats and wheat at night and they will almost certainly improve in shell-making.

—Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Houdan and common pullets will come to laying at five months or a little less; Brahmas, Cochins and Langshans at from five and a half to six months, while the Leghorns and Hamburgs will begin at four.

—Fanny Field prefers light boxes for the nests of laying or sitting hens. They should be from ten to twelve inches high, and from fourteen to sixteen inches square, placed on the ground with only the upper half of one side left open. They are better with bottoms, and handier with handles on two opposite sides. The handles may be made of strips of leather cut from an old boot.

Is it worth locking at all?

Then lock it with a "Yale". There are a hundred imitations. The word "Yale", or this mark Y&T tells the genuine.

Its easy when you know.

"German Syrup"

The majority of well-read physicians now believe that Consumption is a germ disease. In other words, instead of being in the constitution itself it is caused by innumerable small creatures living in the lungs having no business there and eating them away as caterpillars do the leaves of trees.

A Germ Disease. The phlegm that is coughed up is those parts of the lungs which have been gnawed off and destroyed. These little bacilli, as the germs are called, are too small to be seen with the naked eye, but they are very much alive just the same, and enter the body in our food, in the air we breathe, and through the pores of the skin. Thence they get into the blood and finally arrive at the lungs where they fasten and increase with frightful rapidity. Then German Syrup comes in, loosens them, kills them, expels them, heals the places they leave, and so nourish and soothe that, in a short time consumptives become germ-proof and well.

A Rescuer Rescued

"Cadet" Lane's own story: "My sufferings for about eight years have been very severe. While acting as nurse in a hospital I took typhoid fever, and during an unconscious spell fell out of my bed, injuring my spine and a vital organ internally. In about two months I tried to walk, but found I was very weak. Had pain in my back, internal weakness, and dragging down of the injured organs, complicated indigestion, sleeplessness, and loss of appetite. I continued to grow worse in spite of all well-directed efforts(!). Pain and enlargement followed, also a scirrhous and cancerous growth. An operation was performed, with but only partial recovery. Then followed a long period of congestion, and again slight improvement. These conditions were repeated at intervals for years, with slight change in kind. About a year and a half ago I went into Rescue work in London, and in the meantime a new complication appeared, viz., 'Change of Life,' which I am still undergoing. I often prayed to God to restore me to health, that He might use me more than ever in the glorious work of 'Rescuing the Perishing,' but I can assure you I felt discouraged often and lost faith in medicine, but kept faith in God. He had rescued my soul from error, and I believed He would yet rescue my body from disease. About two months ago I saw a book entitled 'Entire Revolution in Medicine.' Being an 'experienced nurse,' I could understand the theory. I could see it was a new light in science. I obtained some medicine, and in a few days was utterly astonished to find that I could sleep better, head better, little or no pain with my 'weak spells,' organs rapidly gained in strength and tone. I have not taken the medicine two months. Organs all healing and rapid 'waste' almost stopped. I am nearly well. Better than for six years. A few days more and I will be soundly cured at present rate of improvement. Several in London were induced through a knowledge of my case to try the New System, with equally good results. No other system for me in future. I hope my friends in the 'Army' and elsewhere will try Histogenetic remedies and be convinced. I will answer inquiries.

THE DISSOLUTION.

Queen Victoria yesterday signed the proclamation dissolving Parliament, ordering a new election to take place, and summoning the faithful commoners to meet on Aug. 4 next. The writs are now in the hands of the officers, or will be in the next day or two, and before a week has elapsed the majority of the borough elections will take place. Nominations in boroughs will take place on Saturday next, and the earliest polling on Monday. In London, Liverpool, Birmingham, Manchester, and other large cities it is likely that the elections will take place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In the counties a longer time will elapse, but every election will have taken place, except Orkney and Shetland, in the next three weeks. There is a disadvantage in not having the polling in all the constituencies in one day, but there is a decided advantage in rushing the elections over so soon after dissolution. The British are a pre-eminently shrewd people, and they aim to have the electoral battle interfere as little as possible with their business interests.

How many of those British women surpass their husbands when it comes to platform eloquence!

SIR JOHN THOMPSON was never further mistaken than when, on the floor of Parliament, he tries to make believe that he wipes out the most serious charges of corruption that can be brought against Ministers of the Crown by abusing the men who have formulated them. Abuse of Sir Richard Cartwright, no matter how venomous, does not meet the indictment. It but shows the utter depravity of the man who resorts to it as an answer to charges, properly formulated, which if established ought to be sufficient to send those guilty to jail.

THOSE who have listened to the "heckling" of a public speaker in Great Britain will be surprised to learn from our city contemporary that "heckling" is rowdyism in its worst form—that it implies the throwing of dangerous missiles and the breaking up of public gatherings in which it is undertaken. To nothing but profound ignorance can such an explanation be attributed. When a candidate for public office is "heckled," he is merely questioned at the close of his address. The questioning is plentiful and severe or the reverse—according as the speaker has been candid with his audience or has tried to conceal anything that they have a right to know. It is undertaken goodnaturedly. It implies no violence, and the principal effect it has is to expose the nobodies in politics who have their speeches written for them, and endeavor to trade on other men's brains. "Heckling," when referred to as the brickbat argument, is altogether misapplied, and the protests against its introduction into Canada are therefore wholly absurd.

IF THE news which is telegraphed from Lansing, Mich., is correct, railway trains, including engine headlights, will in future be lighted by electricity at a cost less than the ordinary lights now in use on the various systems. The inventor is Prof. J. F. McElroy, for many years superintendent of the Michigan State School for the Blind, and the machine is a cylindrical dynamo attached to the forward axle of the locomotive. No wire is used in the armature or in the part of the machine which conducts electricity to the lighting system after the parts have become sufficiently charged with the current. The armature of the new dynamo is fastened immovably to the axle, and this revolves in contact with the other parts of the dynamo, which rests upon other roller bearings at the end of the cylinder. The entire machine does not weigh over 300 pounds. The wires run under the engine and are connected to each car by means of couplers similar to the steam couplers now in use. The lights are incandescent. In each car a small but powerful storage battery is placed. While the train is in motion these batteries become charged. When a train stops at a station the power from the dynamo ceases, but automatically the storage batteries come into play and light the train. The dynamo is so arranged that it does not take the power from the locomotive when it is doing its heaviest work—that is, when it is starting. The work begins when the engine is moving at about thirteen miles an hour.

Rosebery and Chamberlain

The Brilliant Scottish Peer on the Issues of the Day.

Evolution of the Birmingham Political Boss.

Important Declarations Regarding the Future of Ireland.

The cablegrams give but a faint idea of the warmth of the electoral atmosphere in Great Britain. Not for many years have the respective parties entered with so much zest into the contest. There are two or more candidates in almost every constituency, and the leader who is not fighting for his political life is not often met with. Members of the House of Lords, whether they enjoy it or not, have all the excitement without the apprehension of losing their seats, and the orators on both sides of the House are in great demand. Few men in public life are listened to with greater pleasure, even by political opponents, than the youthful, courageous, witty Earl of Rosebery. Through no fault of his he inherited a seat in the non-elective chamber, and much to his dislike is debarred from taking a place by the side of his leader in the House of Commons; but he is none the less an able and progressive public man, ever ready, by voice or pen, to advance the cause which he believes to be just. With that object in view he addressed a crowded meeting of the electors of Surrey the other night in furtherance of the candidature of Hon. T. A. Brassey, the Liberal candidate. A day or two before Joseph Chamberlain, the leader of the Liberal dissident wing of the Salisbury Administration, spoke to a semi-secret meeting of his committees in Birmingham, and to the dissection of that address Lord Rosebery chiefly addressed himself. He met a personal attack by Mr. Chamberlain in this clever manner:

"Now, gentlemen, one of the melancholy incidents of political life is that one's own personality is sometimes dragged into the forefront; and Mr. Chamberlain did me that honor. I will get myself out of that foreground as soon as possible; but it is necessary to notice one remark he made. He thought the choice of me to speak at Birmingham was a remarkable one, because I had left the fight during the last six years almost entirely to other members of my party. Well, there is some truth in that; I have no claim to compete with the services rendered by your chairman, Sir W. Harcourt, and others. 'When the split took place in 1886,' he proceeds to say, 'Lord Rosebery was seized with a sudden desire to visit all our colonies,' and then, apparently, it is implied I retired to those colonies. It is not a matter of the slightest importance to any human being whether I went to the colonies or not, but it has some bearing on the accuracy of the speech. What is remarkable about that supposed desire of mine to visit the colonies is that it must have been sternly repressed, because, from the time of the split in 1886 till now—more, perhaps, the shame to me—I have never set foot in one of those colonies. (Laughter and cheers.) I regret it; I think politicians should often visit British colonies. If I conceived that intention I do not know that I communicated it to Mr. Chamberlain, and it is one that I have not been able to gratify. Mr. Chamberlain said: 'It is one of the signs of a general election, when there will be a contest which may result in a change of Government and of offices, that Lord Rosebery thinks it necessary once more to show himself.' Is it necessary to touch such an insinuation as that? ("No," and cheers.) I have been absent from political life, but after all I have not been wholly idle. (Cheers.) But I would venture to raise a general protest against all these doctrines that a man, because he is silent, is supposed to be a renegade to his political opinions. Is it necessary day after day and night after night that a man should proclaim that he is not a scoundrel and he has not changed his political opinions? Of course, in these days of political platforms and political apostasy, there may be some necessity for some of our politicians to proclaim, day after day and night after night, that they have or have not changed their political opinions. I think that if a man chooses to do work for the public in a more unobtrusive manner he is nevertheless doing work for his country, and he is not to be supposed to be a recreant to his opinions. (Cheers.) Yes, sir, my work has been municipal. I have been a municipal drone—let it be granted."

Lord Rosebery here modestly refers to the magnificent work which he and his associates on the London Council have performed in the last four years. This is how he sizes up Birmingham Joe:

"I have watched that brilliant political butterfly who ventures to censure me for that. I have watched him flitting from flower to flower and no doubt culling sweets from all. He began in an orchid. (Loud cheers.) He then lighted upon a plant which I may venture to call the Gladstonia felix. He then passed on to the Hartingtonia frigida. He then—for the last few years—has devoted his attentions to the Collingsia bucolica, and finally and completely, to the Salisburia astuta. (Cheers.) Now, gentlemen, I think in the bosom of the Salisburia astuta we may leave him. But he charges me with using what he calls—and I am afraid I shall have frequently to refer to the excellent report in the Times—'a resort to the meanest and most contemptible instruments in the whole armory of Gladstonian misrepresentation.' Why is this noble wrath; what is the cause of it? What did I do to provoke it? Why, ladies and gentlemen, I only quoted one or two extracts from Mr. Chamberlain's own speeches. There was a time when he collected them himself and published them and disseminated them by thousands. He has not lately collected them. But then it it is not our fault if in earlier and better days he learned to treasure his utterances and occasionally bring them up on political occasions now. But I may say that the other instance of these contemptible tactics is not merely the quotations of Mr. Chamberlain's speeches, but my saying that he had changed Birmingham—which once was the center of Liberalism—into a Tory borough. (Cheers.) Well, Mr. Chamberlain says that this is not a well-founded accusation. He says that the town of Birmingham is a follower of the present Government; at least that is what he implies. But what he says is this: 'The accusation is not well founded, because I prefer to call it, not a Tory Government, but a Unionist Government.' Now, gentlemen, that is all very well; but the Government is not what Mr. Chamberlain chooses to call it. It is what it is. He may prefer to call himself a Liberal; but that does not make him a Liberal, and in the same way it does in no respect alter the complexion of the present Government if he prefers to call it a Unionist Government. What has made it a Unionist Government instead of a Tory Government? It came in a Tory Government when we went out in 1886, and only one introduction has taken place since then which could in the slightest degree have changed its complexion, and that is the introduction of Mr. Goschen to a seat in the Cabinet. How has the introduction of Mr. Goschen into the Cabinet changed in Mr. Chamberlain's opinion a Tory Government into a Unionist Government? We know well what Mr. Chamberlain's opinion of Mr. Goschen was a very few months before Mr. Goschen entered the Cabinet. In those days he said, 'Mr. Goschen is more Conservative than the Conservative leader himself,' and, therefore, how the introduction of a gentleman who, in the opinion of the orator, is more Tory than the Tories themselves, changes a Tory Government into a Unionist Government, except on the hypothesis that two negatives make an affirmative, passes my comprehension."

The noble Earl then took up and discussed with great force the contention of Mr. Chamberlain that though the Salisbury Government was a Tory Administration it had passed Liberal legislation. Taking the free education measure, Lord Rosebery pointed out that free education without popular control "has never been, and never will be, the policy of the Liberal party; but that is the nature of the measure passed by the present Government." Lord Rosebery continued:

"Then he gives 'one man one vote.' I was compelled the other day to quote some of Mr. Chamberlain's own words with regard to this important question. Formerly he said that one man one vote was a principle which he had alway been in favor of. It now turns out that we were always mistaken; that what he meant was not one man one vote, but one vote add one value. Well, one man and one vote is easily understood, but one vote and one value is not so easily understood. But, as I gather from the somewhat tortuous explanation into which he entered, one vote and one value means that you are not to have any readjustment of our electoral system without an immediate change in our system of redistribution. He says, indeed, he cannot now vote for one man one vote because he will not vote for any reform which does not include a redistribution of seats. Would that have been his view if he had still been a member of the Liberal party? ("No.") We can easily test it, because we know what his view was when he was in the Liberal party." (Cheers.)

In a speech at Wolverhampton in December, 1883, Lord Rosebery pointed out, Mr. Chamberlain contended that franchise reform and redistribution should not go together—that justice should be done to the voter in the first instance. "In these matters," naively continued Lord Rosebery, "it is necessary to appeal not to Philip sober from Philip drunk, but to Philip when he was free from Philip when he is hampered by some more recent connections."

Another measure passed by the Salisbury Administration was the Allottments Act. Mr. Chamberlain, when he was not a tail to the Salisbury kite, would on no condition agree to any measure affirming the principle of allotting land to laborers in the rural districts, unless the "blessed word compulsion" was in the bill. Lord Rosebery agreed that an allotment measure was of no use unless the landlord was compelled by law to give an allotment. But Mr. Chamberlain now says nothing about that "blessed word compulsion"—it has no place in the measure that he praises—because, as he explained in his Birmingham speech, the introduction of a compulsory clause would irritate and cause suspicion among "many of the supporters of the Government!" To which Lord Rosebery rejoins:

"Just so. 'Perish principle, perish the blessed word 'compulsion,' perish everything I have said so long as there is no disquietude or uneasiness, no irritation or suspicion, among the supporters of the Tory Government.' (Cheers.) That is the end of our great Liberal tribune. I do not object. I do not mind his supporting a Tory Government. But I like things to be called by their right names."

Lord Rosebery attributes whatever Liberalism is found in the measures passed by the present Administration, not to the influence of Mr. Chamberlain or Mr. Goschen, but to the pressure brought on Parliament by the wave of the great Franchise Bill passed in 1832. He explained the situation thus:

"It is the new voters that Mr. Gladstone enfranchised who have demanded these reforms, and it is in response to their pressure that the present Government have given them an installment of reform. After the great Reform Bill of 1832 there was sufficient force behind the Ministry of the day to carry the abolition of slavery, to enable it to deal in a drastic manner with the Irish Church, and to carry those great measures of municipal reform which were like an enfranchisement to the United Kingdom, though they beat in vain against the walls of the city of London. In 1867 you had another Franchise Bill, and the Reform Bill of 1867 made possible that great administration of Mr. Gladstone from 1868 to 1874, which seems to me when I look back to it, and it was contemporaneous with my entry into public life, and, therefore, I take the more interest in it, the most fruitful of any Liberal Administration. (Cheers.) What did that administration do with the help of the new voters? It disestablished the Irish Church. It made the first serious and radical effort to deal with the great abuses of the Irish land system. It brought on the first national measure of elementary education. It abolished purchase in the army. It passed that vote by ballot without which you would have no chance of returning my friend Mr. Brassey. In 1884, when Mr. Gladstone with large heart and open hands gave the franchise to the millions of our agricultural laborers, he enfranchised a new class full of hopes and still full of hope, full of vigor and still full of vigor, and it was some wave of that dynamic force which enabled a Tory Government to pass a pale reflection of a Liberal measure."

Brilliant throughout as Lord Rosebery's address was, the concluding portion was of more than usual interest. It dealt with the great question of Ireland, and the attitude of the parties regarding its future government. The right honorable gentleman said:

"I must say a word on another point to which Mr. Chamberlain referred and which in a speech at this crisis cannot well be omitted—the question of Ulster. He spoke with extraordinary bitterness of the alleged transfer of allegiance which he said we proposed to effect in the case of Ulster. He asked how did Sir C. Russell and the Liberal party intend to secure that unquestioned supremacy of the Imperial Parliament which they professed to desire. There is no transfer of allegiance contemplated by any possible Home Rule Bill. If you are going to send Mr. Brassey to Parliament under the impression that he will ask any subject of the Queen to transfer his allegiance you are greatly mistaken in your candidate. We seek to make the Irish allegiance a real allegiance; we seek to make it an allegiance of heart. It is for that reason we are anxious to reestablish in Ireland that Local Legislature which had existed there for centuries. Mr. Chamberlain was good enough to quote me against any proposition for allowing Ulster to remain a portion of Ireland. He stated that when the question of the cession of Heligoland was before us I said that 'If there were in that island one British subject who objected to be transferred his views ought to be carefully considered and fully consulted.' That is not an accurate quotation, but I do not complain of that. I have hunted for that passage—most nauseous of all occupations, reading one's own speech—and I find I said in the House of Lords on July 10, 1890: 'But I go a little further than that, and I say, whether you have 2,000 souls or one soul, you have some right to be considered in the transfer of your person and the territory in which you live from the flag under which you were born.' I want to know what pertinency there is in the quotation from my speech, what it has to do with the placing of Ulster under an Irish Parliament. To begin with, we do not purpose to transfer the allegiance of Ulster. What Lord Salisbury did was, without in the slightest degree consulting the feelings of the people of Heligoland, to transfer them to the German empire. I see no parallel between the two cases. But in any case, if Mr. Chamberlain has represented us rightly, we seek to do away with the supremacy of Parliament. I deny that in toto, and I deny it, not out of my own lips, which would be an insignificant testimony to Mr. Chamberlain, but on the testimony which is the most valuable to him—that of himself. I say that since the Home Rule Bill of 1886, when the exclusion of the Irish members might have raised some doubt about the supremacy of Parliament in Ireland, there has been a great change, a great admission, by the recognition of which is fully met all question of the supremacy of Parliament—I mean the retention of the Irish members. What did Mr. Chamberlain say in the House of Commons on April 10, 1886? 'But sir,' he said, 'there is a matter of first and cardinal importance—that is, the retention of the Irish representation. It is a matter to which I have always attached the greatest possible weight because if the Irish members are retained at Westminster the Imperial Parliament remains the Imperial Parliament, and its supremacy would then be an establish e fact.' (Cheers.) And this is the man who, after the public concession of the principle of the retention of the Irish representation at Westminster by Mr. Gladstone and the Liberal party, goes about talking to his chairman and ward secretaries as if there was a doubt about our full admission of the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament in Ireland. It is, after all, wearisome to pursue this tortuous course; it is a weary task to trace the failings of one for whom we felt so much. I shall not on this occasion pursue it further, though there is much besides in his speech which I might notice. He says I call him a traitor or a deserter. I never called him a traitor or a deserter. When a man lashes himself into a violent rage by calling himself names, I begin to think all is not right within. It is not I who call him names. There may be some inward monitor who calls him something. I should not call him a traitor or deserter to his party, because my opinion of Mr. Chamberlain's party is that it is one which he will never desert, whatever his accidental associations with political groups may be. He says I preach a blind obedience to my leader. I confess that I feel a very blind devotion to my leader. (Cheers.) But I have chosen my leader with deliberation. I have never called him a mountain, and I have never discarded him. But you may say, ladies and gentlemen, that all this is personal to Mr. Chamberlain's character. Yes, in a sense it is personal to Mr. Chamberlain's character. But Mr. Chamberlain is the real leader of the Liberal Unionists, and this election turns upon this one question: Are the Liberal Unionists in the right and we in the wrong, or are we in the right and the Liberal Unionists in the wrong? If they are right, we are wrong; and if we are right they are wrong; and, therefore, it is not amiss for the electors to trace word by word and foot by foot the latest utterance of the Liberal Unionist leader. I believe myself that among the Liberal Unionists are excellent persons. They are a limited party, and I symetimes think them a little narrow. I am pretty sure they are very ill-informed. They believe, I think, there never was a Parliament in Ireland. They either think that or they think that Great Britain was more powerful before 1800, the year in which the Act of Union was passed. But I hope that thanks to the spread of free education (laughter)—the boasted measure of a Tory Government—their not considerable numbers may be considerably reduced. But I wish them to have the courage of their opinions and not to stand forth with this cant of superior Liberalism, this cant of being in possession of the real shibboleth, the real secret and the real tradition of Liberalism. (Cheers.) There was a great saying which Lord John Russell once uttered in answer to Sir Francis Burdett, who talked about the cant of Liberalism. Lord John Russell said 'The cant of Liberalism is a bad thing, but the re-cant of Liberalism is a worse thing.' (Cheers.) But what I complain of in the Liberal Unionists, or rather in their leader—for he is cleverer than the rank and file—is that he is a happy combination of both, a happy combination both of the cant of Liberalism and he re-cant of Liberalism. He has the cant of Liberalism in that he asserts his Liberalism to be superior to that of the Liberal party, and he has the re-cant of his former Liberalism. (Cheers.) You know from that speech what you have to expect in the future. You know that if you elect a Conservative majority in the next Parliament you will have, not a transient month or two of these political shams, but you will have six years of Tory Government, wrung out to the last drop. I do not know if the prospect pleases you. ("No, no.") It does not please me. If you place this Government once more firmly in office they will drop the cant of Liberalism and they will come out with the old trade mark, with the old Tory vintage we know so well. If you are content to sit quietly under them and to see your Liberal hopes vanish into thin air, to see Ireland once more relegated to the oppression of the Crimes Act and governed contrary to the wishes of five-sixths of the representatives, you can adopt the course you are asked to take and vote for the Tory candidate; but if, on the other hand, you believe there is work to be done by the old man and his immediate followers (cheers), if you have gratitude for what he has done in the past—and gratitude, as we know, implies a lively sense of favors to come—I venture to say that every voter in this room will cut off his right hand before he will vote for a Tory candidate." (Loud cheers.)

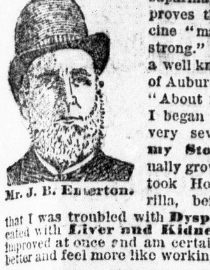
That Tired Feeling

The marked benefit which people overcome by That Tired Feeling derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." J. B. Emerton, a well known merchant of Auburn, Maine, says: "About five years ago I began to suffer with very severe pain in my Stomach, gradually growing worse. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, being convinced that I was troubled with Dyspepsia complicated with Liver and Kidney troubles. I improved at once and am certainly very much better and feel more like working.



Mr. J. B. Emerton.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

always gives me relief and great comfort. It is a God-send to any one suffering as I did."

ATHLETICS.

STRONGER THAN HORSES.

OTTAWA, June 28.—Louis Cyr, Canada's strong man, gave a remarkable exhibition of strength in Hull on Saturday in connection with the St. Jean Baptiste celebration. Cyr had two horses harnessed, each of which weighed over 1,200 pounds, brought and attached by straps to either arm. Cyr folded his arms and stood with one horse on either side of him, pulling in opposite directions so as to get his arms extended from his body. The animals were then whipped up, each in his different direction. Though they strained themselves under the lashings of the whips, Cyr kept his arms folded. The horses could not extend them. The horses were owned by John Dupuis, mail driver between Hull and Ottawa, and are big, strong animals. On one occasion one of the horses, a large grey, the stronger one of the two, drew both Cyr and the other horse after it, but did not make the strong man lose his grip. Four trials were made. Cyr said the animals were the best he had yet met for hauling. Louis did another big act. He had seventeen men sitting on a table, and getting under it lifted table, men and all on his back five or six times. None of them weighed under 150 and several weighed over 200 pounds. The strong man also went through a number of other lifting performances. Cyr's brother Peter was also present and went through a series of feats, but none so herculean as those of Louis. Peter Cyr is a six-footer and stout in proportion, but is not as heavy as his elder brother, who tips the scale at almost 350 pounds.

VENUS AND JUPITER BLAMED

For the Phenomenal Profusion of Dampness.

"Prof." Wiggins Gives "an Opinion as Is an Opinion.

OTTAWA, June 28.—Prof. Wiggins was seen to-day, and, asked the cause of the extraordinary rainy season, he said that the conjunction of the planets Venus and Jupiter, on Feb. 6, 1892, slightly compressed the globe of the earth. This caused it to give off electricity in vast quantities, which filled the atmosphere in the same way that compression produces heat, hence the remarkable auroral displays (northern lights), which were witnessed immediately after, both in Europe and America

"Our atmosphere," he said, "when not electrified has no power of absorption, but when filled with the electric fluid since the February conjunction it acts like a sponge and absorbs moisture from the earth's surface. It is this which has caused the perpetual rains which will continue till the electric force is again absorbed by the earth's globe."

Wiggins is of the opinion that we have already reached the stage when our rains will be dependant almost entirely on planetary conjunctions. The eruption of Mount Vesuvius a few weeks ago he attributes to the conjunction of Jupiter and Venus on Feb. 6. Heavy thunder storms, he says, cannot form in Ontario or indeed, any area where wires are numerous, since they prevent electric accumulation.

THE LONDON CAMP.

Orders for To-Day—Sent Home for Being Too Short—Visit of Lieut.-Col. Montizambert—The Cavalry to Engage in a Scouting Expedition.

The orders for the London camp for today name Major Beattie, of the Seventh Battalion, attached to the Twenty-ninth, as field officer for to-day; next for that duty, Major McQueen, Twenty-second Battalion

Medical officer at the ranges, Surgeon Gibson, Twenty-seventh Battalion; next for duty, Surgeon Rice, Twenty-second Battalion.

A board of officers was appointed to inquire into the cause of injuries said to have been sustained by a horse of the First Regiment of Cavalry while on drill on Monday.

A member of one of the battalions in camp was sent home yesterday, as it was claimed that he was below the prescribed height.

Lieut.-Col. Montizambert, commandant of "B" Battery, Royal School of Artillery, Quebec, inspected the London Field Battery yesterday afternoon. He was much pleased with the choice of horses made by Col. Peters, commandant of the battery, and said they were the best horses he had ever seen in an artillery corps. The men in charge of No. 3 gun, under Corp. Thos. Robinson, senior corporal of the battery, won the first honors in the competitive drill.

The troops of cavalry were at the butts yesterday, and Col. Gartshore says they acquitted themselves creditably. To-day they will scour the surrounding country in search of an imaginary force of the enemy. They will carry provisions for their horses, and a party from the camp will meet them at dinner time with rations for the men. The troops expect to return through the city about 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dominion Parliament

The Gerrymander Bill Sent to the Senate,

And the Criminal Code Revision Disposed Of.

Sir Richard Cartwright on the "Reptile Fund"—How Parliament Presents a Premium on Fraud and Corruption—Have the People Lost Their Manliness?

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

AFTERNOON SESSION.

OTTAWA, June 28.—After 3 o'clock Mr. Bechard moved that the bill be referred back to the committee of the whole House to have the parishes of Notre Dame de Stranbridge and Notre Des Anges, which had been transferred from Missisquoi to St. Johns and Iberville, put back into Missisquoi. A divison was taken and Mr. Bechard's amendment was defeated by a vote of 54 to 89. Messrs. Pope, Pelletier and Lepine voted with the minority.

Mr. Pelletier, member for Laprairie, made a speech and moved an amendment that the Indian village of Caughnawaga, transferred by the bill to Chateauguay, be put back into Laprairie. The amendment was lost and the bill received its third reading and was sent to the Senate.

The House in committee took up the criminal code to dispose of some clauses which had been reserved. The clause dealing with lotteries was altered so as to exempt the Quebec lotteries and increase the penalty from a fine of $20 to imprisonment for two years and a fine of $200. The bill was all passed in committee, read a third time and sent to the Upper Chamber.

AFTER RECESS.

On the motion to go into committee of supply, Sir R. Cartwright made a speech with regard to the Quebec reptile fund paper which he had put upon the records of the House. Having regard to the corruption shown by those documents and seen everywhere, he said he was compelled to say he could not regard the Parliament of Canada as a representative body; on the contrary, our system presented a premium on frauds and corruption. These documents had been before the country for a considerable length of time and no contradiction of them had appeared. Nothing could be stronger than the silence with which these charges had been met by the Government. He did not know of any other Parliamentary body which would not have required that charges so made should be investigated and disproved. If they were true there had been conspiracy against the State, in which part of the Government had participated, of which all the Government must have known and been passive accessories, and from which all the Government had profited. There may have been such corruption in other countries, but in no other representative body had a request for investigation been met by a blunt refusal, and in no other case had it been attempted to substitute a mock trial for a real one. He had been perfectly well aware that for many years this Government had been carried on by corrupt means, and he had been perfectly well aware of the three rings by which it had been carried on. The ring of manufacturers who were willing to contribute for the privilege of robbing the people; the ring of contractors who were often as much the victims as the blunderers; and the ring of railway promoters who, for the sake of subsidies, were willing to share the spoils. The Minister of Justice said an explanation of the matter had been given to his Excellency. The House had a right to know more, and it was due to his Excellency that the explanations be given to the House to knew what had satisfied the Governor-General that his present advisers were fit to continue to advise him. Whatever might have been the case when Mr. Edgar brought his charges, there could be no doubt what the duty of the House was now, with these documents on the records never to be blotted out. The people of the country had not done their duty, and he was ashamed of his own Province of Ontario. The result of the last bye-elections had shown the people of that Province to be devoid of decency and honesty. He said it with shame and regret that corruption was everywhere in Canada. These things would go from bad to worse before they would right themselves without the intention of the people. The case was bad. No one could respect the people who, with the proofs so plainly before them, did not attempt to raise themselves from their degradation. The question was being put from one end of the country to the other whether Canada could continue to exist politically or not — whether our parliamentary system was not merely a mask for government by corruption? The question was being asked whether with the exodus of our population our manliness had gone too. In a few days the anniversary of our confederation would be here, and a thousand orators in a thousand places over the Dominion would be telling their audiences how honest, virtuous and intelligent the people of Canada are. Their praises of the country he was not disposed to deny, but they should drop their tawdry and useless bombast and warn the people of the result that will come on this country if these things are allowed to go on unredressed. If the people would not redress them they should haul down the old flag they use to cloak their infamies and run up the black flag, which is the fitting emblem of a people who are a party to their own degradation.

Sir John Thompson replied to Sir Richard Cartwright, and brief speeches were made by Messrs. Laurier and Ouimet.

The House spent the remainder of the evening in Committee of Supply.

Fatal Accident at the Suspension Bridge.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 28.—Stephen Duffy, the painter, met with a terrible death this morning, falling from a scaffold near the top of the north tower of the Suspension Bridge on the Canadian side, to the roadway below, a distance of nearly 100 feet. His neck, both legs and his back were broken. The unfortunate man was about 25 years of age and hailed from Utica, N. Y.

The Cruel Check-Rein.

OTTAWA, June 28.—At a meeting of the Band of Mercy Union, recently held at Lady Grant's, it was moved by Hon. Mrs. Herbert, and seconded by Lady Grant, that the members of this union strongly protest against the use of the check-rein, and agree that they will not ride behind, employ, or in any way knowingly hire, for any service, horses that are check-reined. Also, that the press be solicited to make this resolution public.

SINGLE TAX PLATFORM.

Adopted by the National Conference of the Single Tax League of the United States at Cooper Union, New York, Sept. 3, 1890.

We assert as our fundamental principle the self-evident truth, that all men are created equal, and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights.

We hold that all men are equally entitled to the use and enjoyment of what God has created and of what is gained by the general growth and improvement of the community of which they are a part. Therefore, no one should be permitted to hold natural opportunities without a fair return to all for any special privilege thus accorded to him, and that value which the growth and improvement of the community attach to land should be taken for the use of the community.

We hold that each man is entitled to all that his labor produces. Therefore no tax should be levied on the products of labor.

To carry out these principles we are in favor of raising all public revenues for national, state, county and municipal purposes by a single tax upon land values, irrespective of improvements, and of the abolition of all forms of direct and indirect taxation.

Since in all our states we now levy some tax on the value of land, the single tax can be instituted by the simple and easy way of abolishing, one after another all other taxes now levied, and commensurately increasing the tax on land values, until we draw upon that one source for all expenses of government, the revenue being divided between local governments, state governments; or, a direct assessment being made by the general government upon the states and paid by them from revenues collected in this manner.

The single tax we propose is not a tax on land, and therefore would not fall on the use of land and become a tax on labor.

It is a tax, not on land, but on the value of land. Thus it would not fall on all land, but only on valuable land, and on that not in proportion to the use made of it, but in proportion to its value—the premium which the user of land must pay to the owner, either in purchase money or rent, for permission to use valuable land, but on the ownership of land, taking what would otherwise go to the owner as owner, and not as user.

In assessments under the single tax all values created by individual use or improvements would be excluded and the only value taken into consideration would be the value attaching to the bare land by reason of neighborhood, etc., to be determined by impartial periodical assessments. Thus the farmer would have no more taxes to pay than the speculator who held a similar piece of land idle, and the man who on a city lot erected a valuable building would be taxed no more than the man who held a similar lot vacant.

The single tax, in short, would call upon men to contribute to the public revenues, not in proportion to what they produce or accumulate, but in proportion to the value of the natural opportunities they hold. It would compel them to pay just as much for holding land idle as for putting it to its fullest use.

The single tax, therefore, would—

1. Take the weight of taxation off the agricultural districts where land has little or no value irrespective of improvements, and put it on towns and cities where bare land rises to a value of millions of dollars per acre.

2. Dispense with a multiplicity of taxes and a horde of taxgatherers, simplify government and greatly reduce its cost.

3. Do away with the fraud, corruption and gross inequality inseparable from our present methods of taxation, which allow the rich to escape while they grind the poor. Land cannot be hid or carried off and its value can be acertained with greater ease and certainty than any other.

4. Give us with all the world as perfect freedom of trade as now exists between the states of our Union, thus enabling our people to share, through free exchanges, in the advantages which nature has given to other countries, or which the peculiar skill of other peoples has enabled them to attain. It would destroy the trusts, monopolies and corruption which are the outgrowths of the tariff. It would do away with the fines and penalties now levied on anyone who improves a farm, erects a house, builds a machine, or in any way adds to the general stock of wealth. It would leave anyone free to supply labor or expend capital in production or exchange without fine or restriction, and would leave to each the full product of his exertion.

5. It would, on the other hand, by taking for public use that value which attaches to land by reason of the growth and improvement of the community, make the holding of land unprofitable to the mere owner, and profitable only to the user. It would thus make it impossible for speculators and monopolists to hold natural opportunities unused or only half used, and would throw open to labor the illimitable field of employment which the earth offers to man. It would thus solve the labor problem, do away with involuntary poverty, raise wages in all occupations to the full earnings of labor, make overproduction impossible until all human wants are satisfied, render labor-saving inventions blessing to all and cause such an enormous production and such an equitable distribution of wealth as would give to all comfort, leisure and participation in the advantages of an advancing civilization.

With respect to monopolies other than the monopoly of land, we hold that where free competition becomes impossible, as in telegraphs, railroads, water and gas supplies, etc., such business becomes a proper social function, which should be controlled and managed by and for the whole people concerned, through their proper government, local, state, or national, as may be.

LEGAL QUERIES.

Can B take legal proceedings against C, as agent, to compel him to keep up the fence? ANS.—No. 4. Who is liable to keep up the fence if C is not? ANS.—B must maintain the fence along the public road or leave his land unfenced, at his own option.

DUTTON.—A rents a store from B, on which there is a mortgage. Would A be safe in paying the rent to B, no notice being served on A by the mortgagees? ANS.—Yes. 2. Can B insist on the rent being paid to him? ANS.—Yes, unless the mortgagees notify the tenant to pay rent to them, and they have the right to do so under the terms of the mortgage.

LOCAL MARKET

Reported by A. M. Hamilton & Son.

LONDON, June 29.

WEEKLY REVIEW.

Notwithstanding the rain almost every day this week there has been moderately well-attended markets, with wheat and oats leading the supply of grains. Values of oats have been very unsettled, and seemingly at the beck and call of the supply; 95c to 97c were the figures with light offerings, and 93c to 95c when receipts were moderately good, showing a weakness in the market beyond a certain limit. Wheat backed off on Saturday to $1 25, the cause assigned being weakness abroad. British advices say with the estimate of a 500,000,000 bushel crop on the American continent the markets there took a big slump; the close here was steady at $1 25.

Peas scarce, selling at 90c to 95c per 100 lbs.

Very little corn or barley offered and prices are nominal.

Common buckwheat sold at 90c.

Eggs were not so plentiful as last week, and at the close were quoted at 10c to 11c for baskets.

Butter gained 2c during the week. Tuesday's market closed: Pound rolls, 17c to 18c; crocks, 14c to 16c; demand good.

There were good receipts of seasonable vegetables and fruits.

Quiet trade in meats.

IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, June 27.—At most of the English markets the cattle trade is slightly slacker. Prices are still below the figures of the same week last year, but show no further fall. A fine lot of Canadians at Edinburgh met the best trade of the season, in some cases fetching 64s per cwt.

MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Que., June 27.—There were about 200 head of butchers' cattle, 150 calves and 400 sheep and lambs offered at the east end abattoir to-day. Trade in cattle was very slow as the prices are usually high for anything moderately good. The best beeves bring 5c per lb with pretty good stock at about 4½c do. Oxen and rough steers that have been on the grass for some time sell at about 4c per lb. and grass-fed dry cows at from 3½c to 3¾c do. There were a few milkmen's strippers of indifferent quality sold at about $30 each or 3½c to 3¾c per lb. There is still a very active demand for good calves and high prices are paid for anything moderately good. Mr. Joseph Richard paid $40 for a good calf to-day and $23 for four others. Shipping sheep bring about 4c per lb. Good lambs sell at about $3 50 each, and common lambs at from $2 50 to $3 25 each. Fat hogs are still plentiful and sell at about 5c per lb.

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Mr. W. H. Liddicoatt, London West head master, is one of the high school examiners for East Middlesex.

—The London Cricket Club has canceled its engagement in Toronto for Friday, and will play a team from Berlin in this city.

—Mr. C. J. Miers leaves for England next month. He has received word of the death of his youngest sister in Nottingham, England.

—The city engineer has written to the council calling attention to the inefficient way in which the names of city streets are indicated. The signs on corners have become defaced, and in the majority of cases there are none at all.

—Mr. R. Shaw-Wood, of con. 3, London township, has grown some remarkably large strawberries this season. They are very sound and show good cultivation. Some of the samples measure over two inches in length.

—A good many of the public school pupils have declined to take part in the fatiguing ceremonies of the Dominion Day celebration. It will be a big affair, however, as the volunteers in camp will make their first appearance on the streets of the city.

—At Osgoode Hall Tuesday in the case of Manness vs. Atkins, Purdom (London), for the defendant, appealed from the report of the local master at London on a reference to him to take partnership accounts between the parties. Chisholm (London), for the plaintiff, opposed the appeal, and supported a cross-appeal from the same report. Reserved.

—Says the Toronto Globe: "A conspicuous feature of the next issue of The Saturday Globe is a magnificent flash light photo of the London Young Liberal Minstrels. The club, which rendered such signal service in the election of Mr. Charles Hyman for that city, is no less a success in the social and dramatic fields, and its minstrel performances for the past five years have been of the highest order."

A gloom was thrown over the camp this morning, when it was reported that a young man named Fred. Townsend, a corporal in the fourth troop, First Regiment of Cavalry, had died. Deceased was not in good health when he came to the camp, and on Saturday it was found that he had contracted typhoid fever. He was placed in the hospital and attended by Surgeon Hanavan, but he gradually got worse. The body of deceased, who was a fine young man 19 years of age, was taken to his home in Kingsville by his father.

The Public Schools.

The city public schools closed to-day, and by arrangement among the staff the examinations will begin next Monday. It is believed that the new arrangement for conducting the examinations will prevent any further friction among the teachers.

Gathering of the Clans.

Mr. J. W. Jones has just returned from New Haven, Conn., whither he went as a Canadian delegate to the Royal Clan of the Order of Scottish Clans. He reports a royal welcome and hospitality unbounded. Rev. Dr. Bryce, of Winnipeg, George McKay, of Woodstock, and Alex. Stewart, of Montreal, were among the Canadian representatives. Royal Chief J. Sutherland, M.P., was detained at Ottawa on Parliamentary duties. The following officers were elected: Royal chief, Simon Clark, Duluth; royal tanist, Walter Scott, jun., New York; royal counselor, R. R. Scott, St. Louis; royal secretary, Peter Kerr, Boston; royal treasurer, Arch. McLaren, Cleveland. Next year the Royal Clan meets at Duluth.

A Frightful Accident.

Dr. Murray, of Bryanston, was in the city yesterday and put up at the Ontario House. About 5:30 p.m., while going to the stables for his rig, the cork of a bottle of nitric acid which he carried in his top coat pocket came out and the deadly liquid flew up on his face, burning it frightfully. The doctor immediately rushed for the house and asked for lard, with which his face was rubbed. Though suffering agonizing pain he pluckily resolved to go home that night, and drove away. The acid had penetrated into his left eye, blinding the optic. It is feared he may permanently lose its sight. One side of his face was frightfully burnt and will disfigure him for life. Mr. McDonald's bartender, in applying the lard, burned his finger painfully.

Helping on the Work.

The board of management of the Convalescent Home acknowledge with hearty thanks the following additional donations to the purchase fund of the building: Mrs. T. H. Smallman, $20; Mr. A. E. Pavey, $10; Mr. Bowman, $10; Mrs. (Dr.) Anderson, $5; Mrs. Prince, $3; Mrs. Beddome, $1; Mrs. Macallum, $1; Miss Hearding, 50 cents; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Englehart (of Petrolea), $25; Dr. Waugh, $12, making to date a total of $344. By Mrs. Mills' sale of work a sum of $75 was realized, with several small articles still on hand. Mrs. Mills desires to return her grateful thanks to all the friends who so kindly assisted by contributions or otherwise to insure so satisfactory a result. The board will be thankful to receive any further sums, however small, from such well-wishers to the home who may not as yet have remembered its present exceptional need of their helping hand. "They who give quickly give doubly."

Death of Mr. John Scandrett.

The sad news spread rapidly over London this morning that Mr. John Scandrett, the well-known merchant, had departed this life after a very short illness. Last Saturday and on Monday he was attending to his business as usual, and in fact up to Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock he was not heard to complain of ill-health. At that hour he experienced some pain and medical aid was summoned and remained with him almost constantly until his demise at 8 o'clock this morning. Heart disease and stomach trouble were the causes of death.

Deceased was born in county Down, Ireland, in 1829 and when but 3 years old his parents emigrated to Canada. His mother died during the trip across the ocean, and thus without her guidance they were obliged to begin life in their new home, lot 4, of con. 4, of Middlesex county. Mr. Scandrett was reared on a farm and followed the calling of a farmer successfully until 1860, when, in partnership with F. A. Fitzgerald, he engaged in the grocery business in this city. This relationship existed until 1876, when deceased embarked in the same business on his own account. It is needless to say that he has been successful. In 1853 he was married to Miss May, daughter of John Fitzgerald, of London township. They have six children, all of whom, with the exception of Frederick R., who resides in Toronto, live in this city. They are: Mrs. William Magee, Mrs. Thomas A. Browne, John B. and Joseph W., merchants, and Thomas W., barrister. Deceased never entered actively into municipal affairs, but was of a retiring disposition. He was a strong Conservative and always took a prominent interest in the welfare of his party. He was a member of the Masonic body. The funeral will take place Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Death of a Prominent Hamiltonian.

HAMILTON, June 29.—Mr. Thomas H. Stinson, who was taken seriously ill while standing in the Royal Hotel on Monday afternoon last, died last night. It is thought death was caused from heart trouble. Mr. Stinson was 31 years of age and one of the most popular men in Hamilton. At the last general elections for the Legislature he defeated the Hon. J. M. Gibson as member for Hamilton, but was unseated for corrupt practices by his agents, and on a new election being held he was defeated. Deceased was one of the most charitable men in the city. He was a member of the Hamilton Cricket Club and was a most enthusiastic supporter of all kinds of manly sports. He leaves a wife and two young children.

The O'Connor Girls

By Mrs. Hungerford ("The Duchess"), Author of "Molly Bawn," "Her Last Throw," "Mrs. Geoffrey," etc.

He throws off this old joke with so buoyant an air, that the others catch the infection, and laugh with him right heartily.

"I always think," says Sir Willoughby, "that whisky and water is a far better drink than whisky and soda!"

I know he is telling a lie when he says this, yet somehow I am grateful to him for it—indeed, I feel that if he was any one else but my accepted suitor I could love him for it! I have not even yet got such sufficient courage to look up, yet somehow I know that Sir Willoughby is staring at me, and can well imagine how horrid he thinks I am looking, with my face as red as a peony.

"Do you, now?" says Dad, very pleased. "It's good of you to say it, anyway. In my young days—you weren't born then—water was the usual thing; but I confess I look upon soda-water now as a graceful institution of the present century."

Whether Sir Willoughby likes soda-water or aqua pura best I cannot say; at all events it seems that neither have a great hold upon him. It is scarcely five minutes from his disappearance into the house before he comes out of it again, and suggests to me a walk through the place.

"Of course you have heard, Molly, that I saw your father yesterday, and told him of our engagement?"

"Yes, I heard," say I, stooping to caress Sally, who is as usual trotting at my heels. "But I thought—because of that last day—that day in the orchard when you got into such a terrible temper——"

"Yes, it was terrible!" says he contritely. "I don't know how I could have treated you like that! You—Molly! But you will forgive that won't you?"

"Oh! I forgive you," say I, magnanimously. "The question is have you forgiven me?"

"What could I not forgive you?" says he in a low tone. Then—even in a low tone. "Your father has given his consent."

"Why should he not," say I, shrugging my shoulders, "when I have given mine?"

"True!" He pauses. "You thought me cross that last day, Molly?"

"No. Not cross."

"What, then?"

"A perfect tyrant!" cry I shortly.

"Because I asked you to——"

"Yes. Just because of that."

"Well I shan't ask you again!" says he gloomily. "You may be sure of that."

"Thank you," return I cheerfully. "That's a promise, mind!"

He seems to stiffen into stone after this, and in a sober silence we proceed to the paddock, where in bygone days the foals used to kick their heels, but where now, alas! only two or three calves disport themselves. Sally, who despises cattle, rushes forward as if eager for the fray.

"Come back, Sally. Come back directly!" cry I, glad of an excuse for hearing my own dearly-loved voice again. But Sally is deaf to my call. Headlong she rushes towards the little month-old bull calf, standing close to the railings below there.

"Whuff! Whuff!" says Sally.

"Ma-a!" says the calf; and at once a regular skirmish between them is set afoot. Sally's barks resound all over the place; the calf grows restive beneath them. At last a more determined effort than usual on the part of Sally to take forcible possession of the bull's hind leg incenses that clumsy little animal to the last extent. There is a sudden movement on his part—a swift outward plunge of his hind legs—an absurd attempt at a bellow, and away he goes careering madly round the field, leaving poor little Sally motionless, lifeless, on the grass!

It is all the work of a moment. I had been laughing at Sally's antics the second before, and now——

Simultaneously Sir Willoughby and I pass the wire fence, he over it, I through it, and reach Sally almost together.

My dear little Sally is lying as quiet now as if a bark had never come from her. The little body is still quivering, but as I raise her tenderly, no whine, no sound of any sort gives me hope that she is still living. A cruel, ugly cut on the side of the head shows where the calf's hoof had caught her.

"She is hurt; she is badly hurt," cry I, looking up at Sir Willoughby, who is kneeling beside me; "but not dead; she can't be dead. Why it was only a minute ago! You saw her—you heard her——"

"I am afraid she is dead, however, poor little thing!" says he gravely.

I lay poor Sally back on the grass, and, getting slowly to my feet, look down at her. My dear little Sally, who loved me so well—who has been the torment—the plague—and the delight of my life for ten long months. She had been such a little baby of a thing when I first got her. I had brought her up myself. All at once I seem to hear her tearing up the stairs in the morning to my bedroom door, and barking furiously to be let in, that she may ask me if I slept well and if I have a biscuit beneath my pillow for her. Again I see her chewing comfortably at my best boots, and dragging my hat in a playful frenzy round the room. I can feel, too, the touch of her soft mouth as she nestles in my arms when worn out with the destruction of my property. And now to see her lying there dead—it seems horrible! I cover my face with my hands and burst into tears.

"Molly, darling! don't be so miserable!" says Sir Willoughby, who I can hear by his voice is most miserable himself. "It can't be helped, you know, and—I'll get you another."

"Another!" sob I, indignantly. "As if I could ever have another! Oh! how little you know!"

"Come away, at all events," says he, gently. "See I'll carry Sally; and—shall I carry her for you!"

"Oh, no, not so soon!" exclaim I, sobbing afresh. "I think I'll put her in the summer-house until this evening, and then Kitty and I will get a nice box, and——" My tears choke me.

"Very well," says he. He picks up poor Sally, and, having reached the summer-house in the garden, he makes a nice little bed of dry leaves, and lays her on it. I am still crying, though perhap[illegible] not so bitterly now. Surprised pre[illegible] by my companion's silence, I look up [illegible] nd him regarding me with an expression [illegible] s curious as it is full of despair.

"What a heart [illegible] Molly!" says he. "Is it I, alone, to ca[illegible] touch it?"

There is so much [illegible] ness in his face and voice that it [illegible] through my trivial grief, and m[illegible] ashamed of myself.

"How you loved [illegible] little creature," says he, with a glan[illegible] [illegible] le Sally—a reproachful glance [illegible] my heart; or perhaps it is my [illegible] s softened it!

"Oh, I will try [illegible]o!" say I, earnestly; "I will [illegible] then suddenly, almost with[illegible] my own, I raise my head, an[illegible] ms round his neck, and lay m[illegible] his.

Why I do this [illegible] at the moment, and I don't [illegible] But perhaps the little dog[illegible] oss of so small, but so true a [illegible] ven me a sense of desolation; [illegible] ympathy, for love. Well, I d[illegible] t it was, but certainly so [illegible]—that my arms are round h[illegible] hat he is straining me to his [illegible].

"Molly! Molly! [illegible] low unsteady tone. The[illegible] from him, just so far that he [illegible] ty face.

"No, I shall not [illegible]" says he. "I'm a fool in ma[illegible] sha'n't be a fool about this—[illegible] my whole life! You don't k[illegible] I know that. You are only [illegible] now, and so you come to m[illegible] houses and lifts my hand to hi[illegible] don't love me!"

CHAP[illegible]X.

"Good fortune th[illegible] seldom comes more welcome [illegible]"

They have gone. [illegible] alo[illegible]—the girls and I—staring do[illegible] [illegible] lly. I am crying as usual, and [illegible] of a feeling that I ought to [illegible] of myself, but am sustained [illegible] knowledge that neither Kitty nor [illegible] ow my disposition to laugh at me. [illegible] is really downcast—she has been [illegible] ally, and I will say for Gerry tha[illegible] behaving very nicely now, conside[illegible] she had always alluded to Sally, in my small dog's pretty lifetime, as "that nuisance!"

However, I forgive all that at this moment, as I watch Gerry's real regret, as she gazes on the stiff little form before her.

"I'd get Dad to sell that murderer at once!" says she. "I couldn't have that calf racing round the paddock any more."

"No one could stand that," says Kitty. And then in a low tone that I gratefully acknowledge benefits the occasion, "Where shall we bury her, Molly?"

"I thought in the old fort," says I, quite cheering up under this fire of sympathy. "It is a nice out-of-the-way place, and"—beginning to cry again—"the primroses are so lovely there in the spring!"

"Yes, the old fort," says Geraldine. "Now, Molly! Do take courage, ducky. It couldn't be helped, you see, and it is so much better for your dear little dog to die from a kick, than to have to be chloroformed later on, when she was old and nasty."

"Yes, exactly so!" says Kitty. But here I regret to say, she loses hold of her part, and begins to laugh in a strangled fashion.

"What's the matter with you?" demands Gerry, sternly.

"Oh! nothing only"—choke, choke—"I was thinking of Aunt Jane! Won't somebody chloroform her? Surely she is old and very nasty!"

"There are seasons for [illegible] things," says Geraldine, severely. (I sh[illegible] always think well of Geraldine after th[illegible] "If you will take up Sally, Molly, I'l[illegible] ange her!"

The arrangement lies i[illegible] he shutting up of my poor little dog in [illegible] soap box, that I have lined with cotto[illegible] l and adorned with flowers. Gerry, a[illegible] with a hammer and nails, does the last [illegible].

"Now come," says [illegible] giving the box into my arms, and proc[illegible] towards that part of the lower mead[illegible] here the fort (a relic of the olden day[illegible] en the Danish pirates harried our sc[illegible] coasts) stands, surrounded by tall el[illegible] nted quite the other day, as it were, [illegible] compared with the age of the fort.

It is a charming spot. The old earthen walls are covered with mossy growths, and lichens, and tiny saplings. Inside luxuriance reigns. Sheltered from wind and storm, flowers bloom, and ferns grow high, and all the grass is green as the heart of an emerald.

It is a remote spot—fully a quarter of a mile from the house, and in so silent a corner, that seldom, very seldom, does any one pass by it.

It had seemed to me to be [illegible] sweetly quiet spot in which to bury my [illegible] Sally.

Kitty has come provid[illegible] with a spade.

"Where shall I dig?" asks [illegible].

"Here under this old t[illegible]," say I, for three large oak trees are gr[illegible] within the fort.

Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, is ear ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, in which the young are specially subject.

A STANDARD BEARER'S DEMISE.

Col. L. L. Polk, president of the United States Farmers' Alliance, who died at Garfield Hospital in Washington on June 11, was a relative of President Polk and a native of North Carolina, where he was born about 55 years ago. His education was received in the common schools. During the war he served for a time in the Confederate army and resigned to go to the Legislature, to which body he had been elected. Later he filled for several years the office of Commissioner of Agriculture for North Carolina and afterwards he began the publication of the Progressive Farmer, which he managed for a long time. At the time of his death he was serving his third term as president of the alliance to which he has given so much of his time and attention. Col. Polk's home was at Raleigh, N. C. He leaves a wife and three children. Decease was an excellent stump speaker and an able writer on topics of particular interest to the farmer. The People's Party will meet in convention in Omaha in about a month, and the probability was that had Col. Polk survived he would have been nominated for President or Vice-President if the party should decide to put a ticket in the field.

THE DAYS OF DEATH ARE APPROACHING!

Cholera Infantum is the Destroyer!

How to Preserve the Dear Babies.

"The hot weather is very fatal to infants. We now have our busy time with the little ones, and it is likely to continue till the end of August."

The above assertion was made a few days ago by one of our busiest physicians—a gentleman well known in Toronto. His remarks are truly suggestive, and should cause mothers to think seriously.

The hot weather, and the troubles that it brings, takes off two-thirds of the unfortunate infants that are born in early summer. This loss of life is appalling and demands immediate attention.

Medical opinions agree that unhealthy and impoverished breast milk, stale cow's milk and dangerous artificial foods are the causes of this excessive mortality. The ablest and best physicians are of opinion that Lactated Food is the only pure, wholesome and nutritious dieting that can be administered to the infant at present, when the mother is unable to furnish nature's food.

Lactated Food at this season means life and vigor for the babies of our country, while cholera infantum is raging around us and tearing away its numerous victims. It is noteworthy, that in every family where Lactated Food is used, not one infant has been stricken down by summer complaints.

Officials of public institutions where children are cared for, have testified to the grand effects of Lactated Food during the heated term, and have assured us that it has saved many little lives.

The infants and little ones relish the food and thrive fast when fed on it. Bad temper, crossness and peevishness are banished, and joy and happiness reign supreme.

Whatever Is Is Right.

Jack Ford—Do you believe that a fellow ever did make a mistake and kiss the wrong girl, in the dark, you know?

Tom De Witt—No; how can a man kiss the wrong girl, anyhow?

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

Handcuffs might appropriately be called sad-irons.

A Great Go—"How does your new errand-boy go, Johnston?" "The long way, apparently, every time."

Mr. J. R. Allen, upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered with Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: "A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrup and Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

LONDON AND ENVIRONS.

—Yesterday was the 54th anniversary of the coronation of Queen Victoria, which event took place in 1838.

—The persons who on Monday evening stole flowers from 230 Oxford street will do well to keep away from there in future.

—The ADVERTISER will hold its annual picnic to Port Stanley on Saturday, July 9. Completed arrangements have been made to make this the most enjoyable event of the kind ever held. It will be the first large Saturday excursion of the season.

—In his address on Sunday Prof. Simpson referred to Mr. Joseph Mitchelltree as the instrument of his conversion. The name "Gatecliffe" was substituted by mistake for Mr. Mitchelltree's. The professor has destroyed his infidel library, which he valued at $200.

—A beautiful basket of flowers has been displayed in the window of J. Dilloway, the florist. It is a floral basket with the letters D. D. worked in red roses. It is to be presented to Rev. Father Flannery, of St. Thomas, this evening, when the degree of D. D. will be conferred upon him there by the Bishop of London.

—Rev. Thomas Cosford, the veteran Methodist minister, lies dangerously ill at his residence in South London. He enjoyed his usual good health up till Sunday morning, when he was attacked with an internal disease, and has since that time been very ill. The reverend gentleman is in his 80th year, and it is doubtful if he will recover.

—A reunion of the members and adherents of Askin Street Methodist Church took place in the Sunday school room of the church last evening. There was a large attendance, and the pastor, Rev. C. E. McIntyre presided. Strawberries, cake, lemonade and other refreshments were served, and a most enjoyable time was spent. Music of an attractive character was contributed by Mr. John Ward's orchestra.

—Mr. Marvin Knowlton, at present staying in London, has received a complimentary Connecticut badge to the National Convention of the Prohibition Party now meeting at Cincinnati. It is very quaint, having as a pendant to the silk a real nutmeg attached to a silver pin. Mr. Knowlton took a very active part in the last campaign, proving one of the most eloquent and effective speakers of the contest.

—The corner stone of the new Bethel Church, Warwick Circuit, London Conference, will be laid on Dominion Day, by Mrs. (Dr.) Eccles, of London. Dr. Eccles will preside. Rev. J. G. Scott, president of conference, will be assisted by Rev. S. Bond, chairman of district; Rev. George Boyd, chairman of London District, and a number of other invited ministers. The Forest Brass Band will furnish music. Proceedings will commence at 2:30.

—At the last meeting of Court Pride of the Dominion, A. O. F., held last evening, the following officers were elected: Chief ranger, R. Fraser; sub-chief ranger, H. Downs; senior woodward, H. Jenkins; junior woodward, E. Hickson; senior beadle, Thomas Inch; junior beadle, Fred Brown; treasurer, M. D. Dawson; secretary, James W. Woonton; assistant secretary, Thomas Spettigue; minute secretary, Fred Rossiter; trustees, R. Rockett, R. Taylor, J. Wilkins; auditors, A. Butler, F. Rossiter, J. Loney, past chief ranger, B. Woonton.

Foresters Elect Officers.

At the regular meeting of Court Forest Queen, No. 6,563, A. O. F., held last night in Albert Hall, the following officers were elected: S. J. Smale, P. C. R.; S. Fraser, C. R.; A. E. Peters, S. C. R.; F. W. J. Ball, treasurer; R. H. Brock, secretary; Harry Boyd, jun., S. W.; Ed. Wilkins, J. W.; S. Plewes, S. B.; J. E. Rose, J. B.; W. Loughrey, minute secretary; Dr. W. J. Mitchell, surgeon. Bros. Jeffery, Mortimer and Howard were re-elected trustees, and R. H. Brock agent for the endowment committee.

Seasonable Just Now.

Chinese lanterns, music, strawberries and lots of them, ice cream, cake in great variety and charming lady waiters were attractive features of the garden social at the pretty grounds of St. Andrew's Church last evening. The Christian Endeavorers, under whose auspices it was held, were rewarded by a good attendance. Promenading was indulged in outside, and the refreshments were served in the school room. The playing of the Twenty-seventh Battalion Band of Sarnia, which is in camp here, was excellent. To Misses Smith, Ferguson, Hume, Croley, Macdougald, Wright, Muir, Phillips, Duff and others is due the efficient management of the affair.

A Masonic Lawsuit.

A last night's Toronto dispatch says: Some little trouble between prominent Masons of London, Ont., was investigated to-day by Justice Robertson. It came up by way of a motion by Messrs. Thomas H. Purdom, Robert Lewis and Geo. S. Baird, of London, to continue an injunction against the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company, restraining it from taking a $33,000 mortgage on the Masonic Temple of London. The plaintiffs say that certain unpaid stock should be called in before the mortgage is allowed. The plaintiffs were formerly directors of the Masonic Temple, but recently the shareholders elected a new board, which proceeded to make the disputed mortgage. The money is being raised to pay off another mortgage held by the General Trusts Company.

The London and Southeastern Railway.

The general annual meeting of the London and Southeastern Railway Company was held yesterday afternoon in the Board of Trade rooms. There were present: W. J. Reid (president), T. H. Smallman, John Campbell and John Bland. The duties of these gentlemen were not very onerous. The financial statement showed that the annual rental of the Michigan Central Railway station, $3,000, had been received from that company. This sum will be handed over to the city. Two or three small accounts were passed, and a small balance, $144 04, left with which to meet contingent expenses from year to year. Messrs. J. W. Little, John Bland, T. H. Smallman John Campbell, John Marshall, W. J. Reid and Mayor Spencer were elected directors for the ensuing year. The board then appointed W. J. Reid president, T. H. Smallman vice-president and J. W. Little secretary-treasurer. It was hinted that the board may have an opportunity to discuss the London and Port Stanley lease next September.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Why Discriminate?

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I see that at the last session of the Synod of Huron, a resolution on the subject of "Sabbath Observance" was introduced by Rev. Mr. Taylor, very similar in its wording to resolutions on the same subject recently adopted by the Presbyterian General Assembly, the various Methodist conferences, and other religious bodies. The first clause of Mr. Taylor's resolution was a protest against the Dominion Government's new regulations for the dispatching of Canadian mails by ocean steamers and by rail upon the Lord's day, and recommended that the Government be petitioned to make such arrangements for the mails to Great Britain as shall not unnecessarily conflict with the rest and sacred nature of the day. The other five clauses refer to the closing of the World's Fair on the Sabbath, the prevention of the Canadian section at the fair from being open on that day; the desirability of early closing of stores on Saturday evenings, and the duty of the clergy and the bishop in the matter. The report of the synod's proceedings states that the first clause of the resolution was withdrawn altogether, the second clause was modified and the others passed as originally introduced. The question now naturally presents itself, Why was that first clause withdrawn? If Sabbath observance is incumbent on the people, is it not equally incumbent on the people's rulers, who, according to Holy Writ, should be "a terror to evil-doers and a praise to them that do well"?

DIED IN A HAY MOW.

A Yarmouth Farmer's Peculiar Death-Bed—He Had Been to London to See His Only Son.

Mr. Isaac Brock Couse, better known as Brock Couse, farmer, Yarmouth, about three miles southeast of St. Thomas, was found dead in his hay mow yesterday morning. Mr. Couse, with his sister, Mrs. Brown, of Toronto, drove to London Monday to see deceased's son, Harmon, who is in camp, being a member of No. 1 Troop of Cavalry. While driving home the wagon wheel ran into a deep rut, shaking the occupants severely, and Mr. Couse complained afterwards of pain in his side and stomach. They arrived home about 4 a.m., and Mrs. Brown went into the house and the deceased put up his horse and went up into the hay shed to sleep. He usually slept on blankets in the hay mow. In the morning, between 8 and 9 o'clock, the dead body was found by Miss Cameron, who is employed by Mrs. Couse, in the hay mow, where he had gone and sank into his last long sleep. The body was quite cold when found, showing that deceased had been dead for some time. Dr. Gustin, coroner, and County Attorney Donohue were notified, and Dr. Gustin was ordered by the latter to hold an inquest. Deceased was 51 years of age and leaves several children. Harmon is the only son.

LANDSLIDE IN CINCINNATI.

A Dozen Houses Demoralized and More May Go.

CINCINNATI, O., June 28.—A portion of the city on East Sixth street near Gilbert avenue occupies a steep hillside. Not long ago a sewer broke under ground and its leakage has so softened the earth that a huge landslide 500 feet wide has started. It moves slowly, but has already wrecked a dozen or more houses and is threatening many more. All families in its path have been ordered to move out of their houses. The damages are already estimated at $40,000.

Shot a Mad Man.

SCIOTOVILLE, Ohio, June 29.—A man named Odell was bitten by a mad dog two months ago. Yesterday he went mad and commenced biting trees, posts and everything he came to. Near his home he took after a boy named Henison. The boy had been hunting, and while Odell was gaining on him the boy turned and fired his rifle. The ball took effect between the eyes, killing Odell instantly.

I. O. G. T.

GUELPH, June 28.—The 39th annual session of the Grand Lodge of Canada of the Independent Order of Good Templars opened in the City Hall to-day. Delegates from all over the Province are present. Grand Chief Templar John L. Robertson opened the proceedings. At the afternoon session the grand chief templar, grand secretary and treasurer reported to the Grand Lodge the progress and financial condition for the past year.

The total membership of the order, according to the last report of the R. W. G. T., is 600,000, with 13,000 lodges; juvenile templars, 159,106; temples, 2,664.

The Flower Garden.

Bloom, crimson rose; the summer winds entreat thee,
Earth is all radiant, June is in the air;
Warm streams the sun, a golden world shall greet thee—
Leaves full of sap, and plenty everywhere.
Bloom, lovely flower; for twenty years ungathered,
Thy damask leaves the careless turf have strewn;
'Mid the rude race by rock and tempest fathered,
All-pitying nature claims thee for her own.
Look! Ruthless time has seized the ancient dwelling—
Look! The kind walls are crumbled to decay;
Scarce a pale star in earth's broad bosom telling
Of short-lived hopes and dreams as brief as they.
Bloom, silvron rose; gone is the hand that cherished—
The hand that reared, the eye that dwelt on thee.
Tell the wise heart, when larger deeds have perished,
Sweet are the gifts of humble ministry.

—One of the largest camellia trees in Europe is now in full bloom at Pilntz, near Dresden. It was taken from Japan 150 years ago, is 50 feet high, and has an annual average of 40,000 blossoms.

An artistic eye and a refined taste are gifts not confined to the rich and should be employed in beautifying the home. There is no occupation or recreation more interesting than beautifying a home and its surroundings with Flora's treasures.

Sometimes the cause is mechanical, the soil blowing away from the seed, or possibly with it, into adjacent ravines. But it is more generally due to lack of the proper mineral elements. Clover loves lime and potash, and on sandy land potash is often lacking. A dressing of leached, or better still of unleached ashes, will get a clover catch on many fields where year after year the seed has failed to grow. The potash has a mechanical effect on the soil. It unites with the sand, and thus forms a crust, making it less likely to blow away.

ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA.

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby. Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $3 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged.
