American Parisians.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The new census of foreigners in Paris is about completed and it appears that there are 3,599 permanent American residents. This is a falling off of more than 1,200 within two years.

A Great Play.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—Ludwig Fulda, the author of "The Talisman," is the most conspicuous German writer to-day. "The Talisman" will be produced in America shortly by Daly. It has met with greater success here than any other play in 20 or 30 years.

French Enthusiasm Dampened.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—The damper put by Russian official newspapers on French enthusiasm is hailed here with much satisfaction. It considerably lessens the strain to find Russia disowning the estimate which the French press places on the Toulon demonstration.

Bismarck is Very Sick.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—A dispatch from Kissengen to the Central News says Prince Bismarck's illness is dangerous. His family does not approve of the suggestion that Emperor William should visit him at Kissingen, as they fear that the slightest increase of excitement might prove fatal.

Franco and Siam.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—It would seem that the French Government has resolved to make another serious demonstration against Siam, and one that will not be satisfied with wordy concessions. France undoubtedly is nettled at the criticisms of the foreign press regarding her alleged backdown before England's firm attitude in the Siamese question.

Nihilists Will Not Celebrate.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The London Nihilists have sent out a manifesto, in which they appeal to French Anarchists and Socialists not to take part in the Russo-French celebration during the visit of the Czar's warships at Toulon next month. The officers of the Russian fleet, says the manifesto, ought to be treated as accomplices of the Czar and criminals steeped in the blood of the people whom he has slaughtered.

Don't Pay Their Bills.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—The Paris tailors' syndicate are preparing a new edition of their black book, which was originally published seventeen years ago. The book contains the names and descriptions of persons who do not pay. Once a man's name is inscribed in it he is unable to obtain clothing at any establishment unless he is prepared to pay cash on delivery. The delinquents abhorred of tailordom include 254 tradesmen, 185 commercial travelers, 94 students, 81 publicans, 81 journalists, 72 professors, 50 engineers, 46 artists, 40 actors, 40 servants, 37 druggists, 36 financiers, 33 architects, 27 doctors and 27 jewelers.

A King's Debts.

BERLIN, Sept. 26. — The unfortunate artist King of Bavaria died, leaving behind him debts to the amount of 8,000,000 marks. After his death 5,000,000 marks had to be added to pay for enterprises and obligations entered into before his death. That made a total of 13,000,000 marks ($3,120,000) to be paid. The most pressing debts were discharged from the private purse of the mad King Otto. They now foot up about 8,000,000 marks. Another 6,000,000 marks will be spread over the next ten years. After the death of the king a public loan was subscribed to pay the debts. The outstanding part of that will be paid in July, 1894, and the repayment of the other loan will be finally attempted in 1903.

Russia and France.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Preparations to give the Russian naval representatives a magnificent reception in Paris go on apace, but a disagreeable thing has happened to Gumbert, president of the Municipal Council of Paris, who will in some way preside over the rejoicings of the people at the Capitol. He was a fighting member of the Commons and later in the winter employed on Rochefort's Intransigeant. There has been unearthed a signed article written by him on the assassination of the late Czar, in which he spoke of the present sovereign as a bloody-handed maniac, adding some expressions which cannot be printed. This may cause more practical unpleasantness than that famous Floquet incident, in which the late president of the Chamber of Deputies was approached for having shouted "Vivi La Pologne" at the Czar. But he has had plenty of time to repent, whereas M. G. Humbert cannot have materially changed his opinions.

Determined To Be Dirty.

HAMBURG, Sept. 26.—The awful mortality caused by cholera in this city and its suburbs last year did not have the effect of teaching the poorer classes the benefit of having everything in a good sanitary condition, and the efforts of the authorities to fight the disease this year have not met with the support of the classes referred to. To-day a regular riot was caused in St. Paul, a suburb of the city, by the attempts of the authorities there to enforce the sanitary ordinances, and during the fighting a policeman was killed. The health officials, in their efforts to enforce cleanliness, were accompanied by several policemen, but the latter were powerless to prevent the crowd that had quickly gathered to drive the party out of the streets. Stones were thrown, and some of the officials were quite badly bruised. A policeman was trampled on and killed, and it was found necessary to call out troops to disperse the mob.

Connaught Charged with Cowardice.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The Radicals brought out to-day some new evidence as to the charge of cowardice made against the Duke of Connaught, the Queen's third son. Connaught was accused of seeking to escape danger in the battle of the British troops under Gen. Wolseley with the Arabs at Tel-el-Kebir, Egypt, in 1882. The origin of the accusation has been much discussed, especially since Connaught was appointed to the Aldershot command. A special correspondent who was on the field at Tel-o-lKebir has now come out with a letter giving the full story. When the troops were formed for the attack, he says, the Duke of Connaught with his Guards brigade and Gen. E. Alison with his Highland brigade were in the first line. Shortly after this formation was made a dispatch from the highest quarter in England was handed to Gen. Wolseley. It instructed him not to expose the Duke to danger in battle. Orders were given at once for a change in the line of attack, Connaught and his Guards brigade were marched to the rear and the Irish brigade was brought to the front. The purport of this change, says the correspondent, was understood perfectly throughout the army. Everybody knew that had the Guards not been under command of the Queen's son they would have retained their original post of peril and honor. This statement is generally accepted here as the bare truth. In the officers' corps the facts in it are said to have been known for years.

THE NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Welcomed at Ottawa by the City Council.

An Affectionate Address — Words of Praise for Lady Aberdeen.

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.—Lord Aberdeen arrived in this city at an early hour this morning and was driven to Rideau Hall. At 1 o'clock to-day, escorted by a detachment of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, the Governor-General drove to the exhibition grounds, where an address from the City Council was presented to him. It expressed admiration for Lord Aberdeen's high character, his benevolence as a landlord and his interest in Canada. It went on to say:

"In welcoming your excellency, we desire also to extend a greeting equally cordial to Lady Aberdeen. In not less degree than your own has her name been heralded to us. We are proud to recognize and welcome in her ladyship one who, while able to boast of a lineage in whose veins flows the blood of the royal Bruce—a name dear to the hearts of so many of Canada's sons—who can point to a record greater and nobler far than that of birthright. We recognize in her one whose pen has adorned the press of literature and whose unremitting and judicious labors in the cause of active Christian philanthropy have made her name a household word and proved an incalculable influence for all that is pure and good and of high esteem. We rejoice to know that that influence will for five years we trust be exercised amongst us. We are proud to enroll you in our order of citizenship, and trust that to yourself and Lady Aberdeen, Ottawa may indeed become a second home."

The Governor-General made a brief reply, speaking of his former pleasant visits to Ottawa in a private capacity, and expressing confidence in the pleasant relations in the future.

A LONDONER IN PERSIA.

Moslems Murder a Convert and Threaten the Christian Quarters —The Work Spreading—Letter from Mr. Eli Allen.

A year or so ago Mr. Eli Allen, a young man well known in the East End, and who, for a number of years, was an active worker in connection with the King Street Presbyterian Church, left the city for the far east. His destination was Persia, and his object was to labor in the mission fields there under the direction of the American Missionary Society. Since arriving there he has met with unbounded success, and the work of the entire staff was making wonderful progress. But the Moslems were commencing to feel to a great extent the losses they were sustaining, and plotted in every possible way to stop the work of the Christians. At last the enmity spread to such an extent that it broke out in the murder of a prosperous Christian merchant of Oroomiah on Aug. 16. In a letter of that date, Mr. Allen graphically describes the occurrence. It appears that Baron Agha John (the merchant) had some dealings with a Moslem woman over some property which he was about to purchase from her, and when the transaction was about completed the merchant discovered that the woman, together with another man, was trying to defraud him. Upon this discovery the merchant refused to sign the agreement, whereupon the woman spread a report around the city that she had been brutally assaulted by Baron Agha John, and in a short time a large crowd gathered in front of the store and proceeded to carry out their evil designs. Seizing their victim they dragged him, face downwards, over the cobble-stone streets, to the mosque, some 200 yards distant, where he was given the privilege of turning to his old religion or being killed. On his refusal to again become a Mohammedan the crowd started down the road and concluded at a high stone wall at the outskirts of the city. On the outside of this wall is a large pool of stagnant water, and into this they dropped the body of their victim, and there they stayed till they were sure their victim was dead. There was great danger of a raid being made on the Christian quarter of the town, but with the protection of troops such did not occur. The same assistance was asked for in order to save the life of the unfortunate man, but aid was not sent until everything had become quiet. The crime was at once reported to the English, French and American consuls, but it is not known whether they can render any assistance outside of demanding protection to their various subjects.

Panic at a Funeral.

A Runaway Creates a Scene on Kensington Bridge,

And Narrowly Misses Upsetting the Hearse.

Three of the Lady Pall-Bearers Hurt—The Funeral Was Under the Auspices of the Daughters of England.

Kensington bridge was the scene of a runaway yesterday afternoon that for nerve-thrilling incident and mournful circumstance casts the late Suspension Bridge runaways completely in the shade. A flying team met a funeral in the center of the bridge. The pall-bearers were women, and the result was such a mingling of screams, horses' hoofs, excitement and confusion as may be better imagined than described. Women shrieked and fainted, several were badly bruised and otherwise injured; one lost her presence of mind and attempted to jump over the railing; some became hysterical, and altogether the scene was one of wild confusion.

The funeral was that of Miss Martha Smith, a member of the Daughters of England, and an estimable young woman. Previous to her death at her mother's residence at Lambeth on Saturday, Miss Smith had lived in this city. Out of respect for her memory the Daughters of England turned out in a body, and six ladies—Mrs. Cripps, Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Nutkins, Miss Deeley, Miss Penwarden and Mrs. Blanshard acted as pall-bearers. The services were conducted at Lambeth by Rev. Mr. Fowler, of this city. The funeral was met by the Daughters of England at Hinton's undertaking rooms, when a beautful wreath was laid on the coffin, and each member gazed on their dead comrade's face. The cortege attracted general attention as it passed through the city owing to the fact of the women pall-bearers.

At the bridge the driver of the hearse signalled the man who drove the carriage in which the pall-bearers were to ride from there to the cemetery. He had passed the bridge considerably, and instead of slowing up and waiting he turned his horses to come back. The road is narrow to begin with, the electric railway is going down just here and a heap of ties were piled up on the side of the road. The horses shied at the ties, it is said, and the driver undertook to calm them with the whip. He only increased their fright, and off the animals bolted at a breakneck pace towards the funeral procession that was now slowly crossing the bridge.

The women shrieked and screamed and made a scramble to climb over the railing between the footpath and the passage for vehicles. The hearse turned half around one way and the first cab turned in an opposite direction, completely barring the passage. The runaway team came to a standstill against the first team, narrowly missing overturning the hearse. In the excitement someone screamed "The hearse is upset." This so alarmed one lady, sister-in-law of deceased, that she became frantic, and, getting out from one of the mourners' cabs, she began to climb over the railing next to the water. Before reaching the top she fell back fainting. Of the pall-bearers three were hurt. Mrs. Cripps was making for the footpath, and had just reached it when one of her limbs sank into a hole in the bridge. She was powerless to move, and there, within a few inches of her body was the hearse, which, if the restless horses had backed very little further, would have crushed her against the girders After she was relieved she was found to have suffered severe injury to her limb, the shin abrasion and bruising extending to the thigh. Mrs. Nutkins clambered over the railing and fell on her back on the footpath, sustaining injury to her back. The railing was broken and Mrs. Weir considerably bruised thereby. The other ladies escaped in several different stages of hysteria and nervous prostration. In the collision the tongue of the runaway vehicle was broken and the hearse somewhat damaged.

The burial afterwards occurred at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and, on returning, Mrs. Cripps was obliged to have medical attention. Miss Mary Smith, a sister of deceased, and who went out to nurse the dead girl, is lying seriously ill at her mother's house at Lambeth.

MIDDLESEX FALL ASSIZES.

List of Criminal Cases—The Freeman Brothers to be Tried for Murder.

The criminal docket for the coming Fall Assizes is heavy compared with former years. There are eight cases in all, and some of them are creating considerable interest.

As in the Spring Assizes, there is a murder case on the list—that of the Freeman brothers, who are charged with killing Policeman Rankin, of Chatham, while in the discharge of his duty. The feeling against the prisoners had become so strong in Chatham that it was deemed advisable to transfer the case from the Kent to the Middlesex Assize Court in order to get an unprejudiced jury, and an order was accordingly issued by Justice Street to that effect. About four months ago the prisoners were placed in the county jail here, and since that time have been earning their bread by the sweat of their brow—sawing wood. They will be defended by Messrs. Osler and Pegley, while Mr. Lount will represent the crown.

Next in interest for Londoners is the trial of Richard D. Wilson and Harvey de M. Harvey, two clerks who are charged with the embezzlement of a considerable sum of money from the Bank of British North America. Wilson is still behind the bars, but Harvey was some time ago released on bail.

The rest of the cases are of less importance, and the full docket is here presented:

The Queen vs. George, Alexander, Henry W. and Lemuel Freeman—Murder.

C. W. Horn—Assault.

John Warwick—Attempted robbery.

James McPherson—Larceny.

James M. Dykes—Perjury.

William Dykes—Forcible entry.

It is expected that the civil list will be completed in a few days.

EDWARD LEIGH'S DEATH.

A Londoner Found Dead in a Detroit Street.

Well Known in the City—The Cause of Death Uncertain—Temporary Insanity Suspected.

The Detroit Free Press of Tuesday says: "About 6 o'clock yesterday morning the body of a man about 30 years old was found in a ditch near the Seven-mile House on Woodward avenue. Justice Firmore was notified, and he sent the body to Cavanaugh's undertaking establishment, where Dr. Kelly made a post mortem examination. There were no bruises except a slight abrasion on the forehead, and all of the organs were found to be in a healthy condition. When found, the man's head was hanging downward, and the doctor thought that he might have died from suffocation if the man had been drunk or taken a fit and had fallen in that position. The doctor took out the stomach and will analyze the contents if the justice thinks it is necessary, as a white powder was found in one of his pockets. The only thing found on the man was a letter addressed to 'Dear Ned' and signed 'Your true and loving Maggie Leigh.'

"Early last evening the body was identified as that of Edward Leigh, whose home is in London, Ont. About a year ago he was employed by Frank McGough, of 167 Jefferson avenue, as a bartender, and Mr. McGough fully identified him, as did several other persons. One gentleman who would not give his name said that the man was the husband of Maggie Leigh, mentioned in the letter. According to him they were married at Sarnia, while she was employed at the Alexander Hotel, and they afterwards lived in Petrolea, Ont. He then went to London and the couple separated. His parents live in London and they were telegraphed to last night. It is expected that they will come on and take care of the remains. Facts in the case show that there was no foul play connected with Leigh's death. It is thought that he had not been in his right mind."

Edward Leigh, referred to in the above, was a native of London, and was well known in the city as a member of a highly respected family. He was a son of Mr. Benjamin Leigh, 529 Grey street, and has several brothers and sisters here. Deceased was for a short time employed by Mr. Martin O'Meara, of the Dominion House, as bartender about a year ago, and was looked upon as a steady reliable young man. He was married, and the letter alluded to undoubtedly referred to his wife, with whom, it would seem to indicate, he was on the best of terms. The body will be probably interred in Sarnia.

WHERE TO BE "SUITED."

After a short discontinuance of business N. Wilson & Co. have again commenced operations on the north side of Dundas street, a short distance east of their former stand. The new premises are much larger than those formerly occupied, and much handsomer in appearance and appointment. They will compare favorably with any other establishment of a similar nature in the city. No one can enter the door and view the extensive stock of clothing material and gents' furnishings without being convinced of this fact. In the former department Mr. Wilson has excelled himself. He had always a covetable reputation for the high standard of tailoring effects which he carried. He has sustained this position admirably. The line of fall and winter goods on display—especially imported from different countries through a large Philadelphia house—is beyond criticism. Satisfaction could not but be secured after making an inspection. Mr. Wilson has in stock high grade panting goods in duplicate of those that have secured prizes at the World's Fair. His line of winter vestings is also extensive and handsome. A complete line of gents' furnishings is shown to advantage on the eastern side of the store.

Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is earache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are specially subject.

An Intelligent Bird.

Bart Cottam has some wonderful and well-trained parrots for sale. One of them will say, amongst other things, the following:

"Three cheers for the Queen. Hip, hip, hurrah." "Draw swords; quick march; D'ld canter." "Oh, dear, what's up? We'll awake Brigadier. Wide awake, old boy." Whistles a "bugle call." "Polly is sick; call the doctor. Hang the doctor; call the cook. Hang the doctor; call the cook." "Waiter, waiter, Polly wants some beer; quick, quick, and bring it here." WHAT'S IN A NAME?

This Year's Directory Brings Out Some Queer Ones.

The Danes Accountable for Some of Them—A Directory Bill of Fare—The Book Grows Steadily Larger—Is Your Name Written There?

London's city directory is of very healthy appearance, and this year its tendency towards corpulency is more marked than ever. It is the largest directory ever issued in the city, and is said on good authority to be by far the most complete. As usual, the Smiths are the most populous family in town. There are 200 of that name, besides 18 Smythes, appearing in the book. The Browns come second with 147, the Johnstons next with 138, while the Taylors have 115 to their credit. The Thompsons can safely lay claim to 96, the Wilsons 90, the Jones 70, and the Fergusons, McKenzies, McDonalds, Murrays, Scotts, Campbells and Evans to half a hundred or more.

There are some queer names among the residents of London. More, perhaps, than one would think. The Canada Packing Company supplies some choice jaw-breakers, while it is quite easy to tell the nationality of a large number by merely looking at their names. Who, for instance, could mistake the nationality of an O'Keefe, an O'Rourke, an O'Gorman, a Flaherty or a McGlade? The shamrock appears as if spread all over the page when Erin's sons are reached. The name Pogglioni is inseparably associated in the mind with maccaroni, Naples and Mount Vesuvius. In Gottlieb Bindshaedler you think to find the attributes of Germany. Le Clear, Le Garie and Genereaux brings the reader's thoughts agreeably to la belle France, but Rosnosky causes one to think of Russia, cold and grim. A Pole might claim the name of Rabinowetz without dispute, while Sam Sing, Jim Lee and Ah Get make you almost think that you had lost your Chinese wash-check and would need a sworn affidavit to recover your laundry. Rechnitzer, surnamed Ejnar, is one of the Danish colony of pork packers. One of his comrades, Christian Aagniat, has the honor to be the first in the book. When next you are troubled with hiccoughs forego the usual swallowing or scaring process, and pick up your family directory and look up such words as Gwalchmai and Mazyck. Pronounce either one of these five times and your hiccough has died a natural death.

You would perhaps think the directory the last place in the world to look for a bill of fare. But here you have Fried Ham and Bacon. Cake would make a nice dessert, and Lush would not be found wanting. Fish with a Finn would do for Fridays. Bull might furnish the beef, and if bread were needed some Doe and Ovens could be had. Your Kettle you could have; in Summer's Bright Day you might Plant Flowers to decorate the table, in spite of Frost, Snow and Fogg. Of course, your Kettle might Leake, but you could put your Irons in the fire and not care a Figg for that. Firter is there, not Frank, but Henry, and with plenty of Spice and Pepper a Dinner Such as a King might envy could be partaken of in Comfort.

There are Dadds that are not daddies, a Dudenhoffer, but no dude. Kitt got chased with an Ostrich, and as a result had to Kraul with Might and Main, at Noon and at Knight, in order to be Going. Matthew, when out walking with Mark, Luke and John, ran a Harpin into his Foot. Though not Mutch of a Walker, he had to Footit home with a swelled Legg.

In that wonderful book you can hear the Dingle of the Bells as the Lambs Gamble on the Green. If you don't believe it look for yourself.

It is needless to say the book is well printed, as it was turned out by the ADVERTISER job department, being compiled, printed and bound in the short space of four weeks.

Swamped With Love Letters!

Sometime ago an old gentleman by the name of Palmer Chamberlain, of Yale, came to Port Huron in search of a wife. During his few days' stay he received many offers, but somehow or other Port Huron widows did not come up to the standard. The old man returned home disappointed, but the report spread throughout the State. One of the inducements held out by Mr. Chamberlain was that he would take his bride to the World's Fair. During the past week every mail has brought him scores of letters from all parts of the State. He is beginning to think that half of the widows in Michigan are anxious to attend the Columbian Exposition. Applications are coming in so thick and fast that the old gentleman is prostrated and has hired a secretary to look after his correspondence. Mr. Chamberlain, whether he gets a wife or not, has learned the value of printers' ink.—[Port Huron Times.

Quack Advertisements

Are a nuisance, and we think it behooves publishers to examine into the merits of many articles puffed up in their columns. We do not deny that many meritorious remedies are properly to be classed under this heading. Take the hundreds and thousands relieved from suffering by the use of Polson's Nerviline. Would it not be unreasonable to expect them to condemn that far-famed remedy? Now we know for a fact that Polson's Nerviline is without exception the most powerful, pleasant and certain remedy in the world for pain. It cannot fail, for it goes right to the bottom of pain, penetrates to the nerves, soothes them to quietness, and affords prompt and permanent relief.

Watts—Doctor, do you believe that the use of tobacco tends to shorten a man's days? Dr. Bowless—I know it does. I tried to quit once, and the days were about 80 hours long.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

"Why do you think they were new in the business of robbing?" Passenger—Great Scott! they blew open the safe and left five sleeping car porters unmolested.

Get the Best.

The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time; on the contrary, they want the best! Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil. Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil.

If you trust in God and yourself you can surmount every obstacle. Do not yield to restless anxiety. One must not always be asking what may happen to one in life, but one must advance fearlessly and bravely.
—[PRINCE BISMARCK.

London, Wednesday, Sept. 27.

—Only those communications to which the writers are willing to have their names appended in print will be published in these columns.

—According to the Toronto Telegram, D'Alton McCarthy is Sir John Thompson's nightmare.

—Sir John Thompson and his friends are traveling through the Province at the Government expense in a Government car. By what right do these politicians take public money to go on electioneering trips?

—Great surprise has been expressed in England because M. Zola, writer of French books of a decidedly sensational character, has been made a member of the Athenæum Club, London. This organization embraces almost the entire bench of bishops.

—The following advertisement appears in one of the Chicago papers:

Personal: Notice.—Having entertained all known relatives for World's Fair, relatives in future must be identified. Foreign papers please copy. Mr. and Mrs. S. W. McC.

It is apparent that the McC. family have reached the conclusion that Oct. 31 cannot come too soon.

—The Hamilton Times says "London's Fair leaves a deficit." Where did our contemporary get that information? We have the best of authority for saying that there will be a substantial "nest egg" after paying all expenses, despite the fact that the weather was unfavorable during the first three days of the exhibition.

—The Boston Traveler of Saturday gives three columns of chatty gossip relating to the Maritime Provinces of Canada. This attention to Canadian happenings by a leading United States paper illustrates the closeness of the family and business relationships between the two divisions of the English-speaking race on this continent.

—Sir John Thompson was so pressed for time that he started from Ottawa on his western tour on Sunday night. The Cabinet, it seems, is very much alarmed at the inroads which the Liberal chieftain has made on what has hitherto been regarded as "protectionist preserves." "A tariff for revenue only, every taxpayer treated alike," is certainly a winning programme.

—A. W. Wright, the new secretary of the Knights of Labor, was a great power as a Conservative orator in the days when that party first took up the "protectionist" cry. To Mr. Wright's plausible arguments in not a few constituencies could victory for the high tax policy be traced. He has, however, long since recanted the teachings of those days, and now is a naturalized citizen of the United States.

—Though the Brazilians do not seem to have sense enough to behave themselves under a Republican form of government, there does not appear to be much prospect of a return to monarchy. The rightful heir to the throne, the son of the Duchess D'Eu, is insane. That bars him out in Brazil. If he could be seated on the throne, however, he would not be the first crazy ruler set over a nation by the agency of the hereditary system.

—Destitute German and other continental workmen returning from foreign countries where, though "protectionist" tariffs exist, there is depression in trade, are arriving in large numbers at British ports. They are giving the English poorlaw authorities much trouble. Strange, is it not, that these workpeople should prefer to look for work in free trade Britain rather than go to their own native land, where a "protective" tariff was established to make them all rich!

—The new Governor-General has a whole string of names. His full title now is "His Excellency the Right Honorable Sir John Campbell Hamilton Gordon, Earl of Aberdeen, Viscount Formartine, Baron Haddo, Methlic, Tarves and Kellie, in the Peerage of Scotland, Viscount Gordon of Aberdeen, county of Aberdeen, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, Baronet of Nova Scotia, etc., etc., Governor-General of Canada." Plain "Lord Aberdeen" fills the bill, though.

—A section of the Conservative party in Haldimand county has asked the McCarthy managers at Toronto to join with them in requesting Rev. Dr. Wild to contest the constituency in the interests of the McCarthy platform against Dr. Montague. It is announced that Mr. McCarthy will address meetings in Haldimand and elsewhere within the next week or two.

—Sir Henry Parkes, the Australian Grand Old Man, now in active political harness, though 80 years of age, asserts that no man dies from overwork. "What kills men," says the veteran, "is overeating." He is not far wrong, but added to too much eating should be "worrying." Many men bother the lives out of themselves and all with whom they come in contact. To be pitied is the man who cannot work with a purpose without being fidgetty himself and without rendering everyone around him uncomfortable.

—Through lack of freedom to trade with their neighbors, the grape growers of Essex will this season lose a large sum. Thousands of dollars are lost every year, but on the enormous crop now being harvested the loss will be very large. The Windsor Record, recording this fact, says that the best market is Detroit, for there $32 a ton is at present paid for grapes, but before the Essex farmer can get his crop across the river he has to pay at the rate of $10 a ton to the United States Government. This reduces the price paid to him to $22. It would help the local merchants as well as the farmers if the grower could take his grapes to Detroit, and get the $32 per ton now paid there without having to fork over $10 for duty. Essex is splendidly situated and has magnificent natural resources, but it is badly handicapped by trade restriction.

AN ENGLISHMAN ON THE UNITED STATES.*

Though Prof. Goldwin Smith has entered on his 74th year, in his new book on the United States he proves that mentally he is possessed of all the vigor of manhood. In his preface the author says:

"If it comes into the hands of an American, his liberality will make allowance for the position of an Englishman who regards the American commonwealth as the great achievement of his race, and looks forward to the voluntary reunion of the American branches of the race within its pale, and desires to do justice to the mother country."

When he penned this explanation Goldwin Smith doubtless had in view the fact that he has treated American history and American heroes in a fearless and independent manner. He has, indeed, demonstrated in most attractive language that the statesmen who founded and who have from time to time borne sway in the marvelous sister nation were pretty human after all. But though the author has freely penned his impressions, gathered from many sources, and though he has shattered more than one popular idol of our neighbors, it is not probable that any sensible American leader will think the less of him on that account. Goldwin Smith was a staunch friend of the United States during the time of the civil war. He was then a professor in Oxford University, and though the aristocrats, as far as they dared, sympathized with the South, and would have rejoiced to see the republic permanently disrupted, he boldly championed the cause of the North with such sturdy Anglo-Saxons as John Bright. After the war was over Goldwin Smith published various contributions to literature intended to give the British public a just idea of the nature of the struggle, and ever since, both while residing in the United States and as a citizen of the Dominion, he has taken an interest in the welfare of the republic.

From an author of so great repute this historical "outline" is certainly a welcome contribution to the literature of the day. It is a work that will live. In its 300 pages there is compressed an immense amount of information, put together in that attractive, faultless English which has made Goldwin Smith famous as an writer. His convictions may be strong. They may be liable to dispute, but they are always expressed in most readable, language.

In portraying historic characters, Goldwin Smith is at his best. He holds that Christopher Columbus was a kidnapper, whose "dealings with his own followers were equivocal, and who was always in greedy quest of gold." Virginia's early settlers were vagabonds, jailbirds and convicts, and were offered their choice between the gallows and Virginia. Dealing with the revolution, he claims that it was a mistake for Great Britain to try to govern the colonies from London, but he takes issue with those who hold that the Americans who finally brought about the separation were so loyal that they would have remained attached to Britain if the attempt had not been made to impose taxes without representation. Independence, he says, was from the first the aim of these men. But the author holds that the establishment of the American nation should have been accomplished in peace instead of in blood. Concerning the quarrel he says:

"Separation, again be it said, was inevitable. It was, too, likely that the vision of statesmanship, being clouded as it was respecting the relations of colonies to the mother country, the separation would be angry and violent. Still it might conceivably have been amicable, and that dark page might possibly have been torn from the book of destiny. Woe, we must say, to them by whom the offense came and through whose immediate agency, culpable in itself, the two great families of our race were made, and to a deplorable extent have remained enemies, instead of being friends, brethren and fellow-workers in the advancement of their common civilization. Woe to the arbitrary and bigoted king, whose only excuse is that he had not made himself a ruler, instead of being what nature intended him to be, a plowman."

The author has a high opinion of George Washington, but he adds: "We can hardly number among the greatest captains a general who acted on so small a scale, and who, though he was the soul of the war, never won a battle." Nevertheless, he is confident that but for Washington the establishment of the confederacy "would have been ten times lost." Of Alexander Hamilton the author has a high opinion, but he contends that though a great constitutional jurist and a loyal Republican, he was no Democrat. Jefferson was the popular idol, but Goldwin Smith has no great fancy for him, though he admits that "he had unbounded faith in the people, and never doubted the success of the great American experiment in democracy; there lay his strength." The author does not rate Madison's statesmanship very highly, and as for Aaron Burr he is depicted as "a showy and restless adventurer with revolutionary morals and a gift of misleading youth." Henry Clay was "ardently patriotic after the war hawk fashion," but his actions were controlled by the fact that he had the Presidency always in his thoughts. A splendid tribute is paid to Daniel Webster, but the author asserts that "his moral strength was not equal to his power of mind." "As an orator of reason, he has no superior, if he has an equal, in the English language." Patrick Henry receives scant consideration. His inconsistency in owning slaves from the beginning to the end of his life, while declaiming against the tyranny of George II., is made much of. Of President Jackson, Goldwin Smith supplies this estimate:

"Jackson, though he had once been in Congress, as we have seen, and had vented his jealous spleen on Washington, was a fighter with an iron will and great powers of command, ill educated, destitute of the knowledge and habits of a statesman, with an uncontrolled temper, and almost as much swayed by passion as an Indian chief, though, like many an Indian chief, he could bear himself when he pleased with dignity and even with grace."

And, regarding Lincoln, the great war President, he says:

"He had received only the rudiments of education, and though he afterward read eagerly such works as were within his reach, it is wonderful that he should have attained as a speaker and writer a mastery of language and a pure as well as effective style. He could look back smiling on the day when his long shanks appeared bare below the shrunken leather breeches which were his only nether garment. His frame was gaunt and grotesque, but mighty. He stood six feet four, and was said to have lifted a cask full of beer and to have drunk out of the bunghole. This made him a hero with the Clary Grove boys. He had a strong and eminently fair understanding, with great powers of patient thought, which he cultivated by the study of Euclid. In all his views there was a simplicity which had its source in the simplicity of his character. His local popularity was due largely to his humor and the stock of good stories, always pointed, though not always delicate, which through life it was his delight to collect and repeat. At the same time he was melancholy, touched with the pathos of human life, fond of mournful poetry, religious, though not orthodox, with a strong sense of an overruling Providence, which, when he was out of spirits, sometimes took the shape of fatalism."

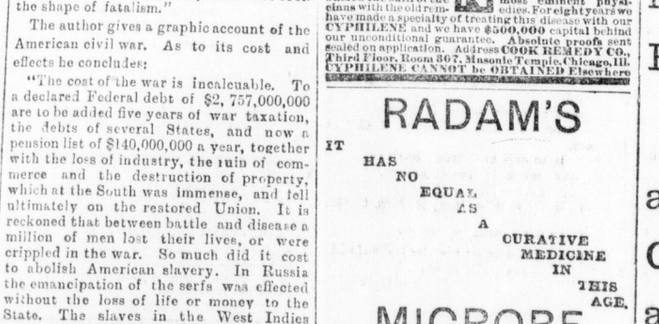

The author gives a graphic account of the American civil war. As to its cost and effects he concludes:

"The cost of the war is incalculable. To a declared Federal debt of $2,757,000,000 are to be added five years of war taxation, the debts of several States, and now a pension list of $140,000,000 a year, together with the loss of industry, the ruin of commerce and the destruction of property, which at the South was immense, and fell ultimately on the restored Union. It is reckoned that between battle and disease a million of men lost their lives, or were crippled in the war. So much did it cost to abolish American slavery. In Russia the emancipation of the serfs was effected without the loss of life or money to the State. The slaves in the West Indies were emancipated peacefully at a cost of £20,000,000, little more than two-thirds of the pension list for one year. There are some things, though they may be a few, which a supreme authority in good hands can do best."

It is further pointed out in this most interesting book that the era of war is the "protectionist's" delight, as its result is a war tariff imposed originally for revenue, but continued after the war is over at the instance of those who had profited by it. This is one reason why monopolists are so ready to counsel resort to arms as a means of settling international disputes.

No doubt controversy will arise out of many things written by Goldwin Smith in this charming historical work, but that will not disconcert the professor. He loves an argument, and generally manages to hold his own. The result will be that the book will enjoy a wide circulation, in which case the professor will doubtless be prevailed upon to prepare a companion volume, bringing the history of our neighbors down from 1871, where he has left it, to the present time.

I Had Goitre

Or swellings in the neck since I was 10 years old; am now 52. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla recently and the swelling has entirely disappeared It has been very troublesome. When I began I was feeling so discouraged with the goitre and rheumatism I felt that I would as soon be dead as alive. Whenever I caught cold I could not walk two blocks without fainting. Now I am free from it all and I can truly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. I received a letter from Mrs. Jennie Bigelow, now of Fremont, Mich., asking if my testimonial in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla was true; I replied it was, and sent particulars. I have another letter from her thanking me very much for recommending

SIR JOHN IS MUM

When Asked to Speak on the Temperance Question.

STRATFORD, Sept. 26.—Sir John Thompson and party reached this city from Clinton about 7 this evening, and were escorted by the Twenty-eighth Battalion Band and a torchlight procession.

In the course of his reply to an address from the Young Men's Conservative Association the Premier said—having been requested to speak on the temperance question—he could say nothing definite pending the report of the prohibition commission, but that in proper time the Government would declare their policy in the matter and stand or fall by it without having recourse to the plebiscite.

PETROLEA'S GREAT REVIVAL.

(Special Correspondence of the ADVERTISER.)

PETROLEA, Sept. 26.—Never before in the history of Petrolea has there been such a great religious revival as is now in progress in this progressive town. Nearly four weeks ago Messrs. Hunter and Crossley, the most successful of all Canadian evangelists, began a series of meetings here which has been very largely attended, and very successful in every way from the outset. Meetings have been held every day since that time, and each meeting has been largely attended. The town has a population of less than 5,000, all told, and yet night after night, even during the busy week days, there are often fully 2,000 attending these meetings. The attendance is not confined to the people of the town, however, for night after night large numbers of carriages are to be seen coming in, some driving eight or ten miles to be present at these meetings.

No church here has a seating capacity for one-half of those attending, even on the week evenings; but there happens to be a very large skating rink, at a convenient point in the town, which has been seated and fitted up for the purpose. It has seating accommodation for about 1,800, but some hundreds more are crowded in usually, and often scores more are standing about outside, not able to gain admittance at all.

SUNDAY'S MEETINGS.

I reached the town late on Saturday evening, and even then a large meeting was in progress, the big rink being crowded. In the hotels the meetings are being more talked of than anything else. Indeed, they seem to be the upmost topic in the whole town just now—in stores, business offices, hotels and even bar rooms. It is said that the latter places of resort have been feeling the effects of the meetings a good deal. Many who once patronized them have now resolved to abstain, and many others are spending their evenings at the rink. Early on Sunday morning people began to flock in from long distances about. Your correspondent was on the street soon after breakfast and was at once hailed by two women, evidently Presbyterians, alone in a carriage, who at once inquired where "the big meeting" was being held. They had driven many miles to be on hand. Others were then following, also from long distances. Mr. Hunter conducted the meeting in the Methodist Church, which was crowded far beyond its seating capacity long before the regular hour for service. A short sermon was preached and then "a testimony meeting" was held, during which hundreds spoke, testifying of the goodness and grace of God as realized in their own experience. An opportunity was then given for those who had been religiously awakened since the meetings began to give in their names for church membership. In a few minutes 126 were so enrolled. These, however, were but a few of the total number who have resolved on a new and better life since the services began. They merely represented those present who intended to join that particular church. They were plainly informed that they were expected to identify themselves with whatever church was their choice and convenience, without regard to creed or locality. While the evangelists are Methodists, they make these services non-denominational as far as possible, and members of the various churches heartily unite in their efforts to make them successful. It is said that the number of names obtained of those who have made "a start" from the beginning is now between 500 and 600. At the close of the other services all who desired to do so were invited to remain and take part in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Nearly the entire audience remained. It was not practicable for the regular communion altar to be used under the circumstances. All remained in their seats, some even yet being crowded in the aisles, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Bond, and the evangelists passed through the church, administering in that way. It seemed a rare and encouraging sight to thus witness the entire audience, and a large one at that, and made up of persons of many creeds, thus so pleasantly uniting together in so solemn and impressive a service.

Rev. Mr. Crossley preached at the same time in the Baptist Church near by, which was also crowded. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Kelley, has cordially co-operated in the work from the beginning, and is taking an active part in all the meetings.

THE AFTERNOON MEETINGS.

The afternoon gatherings were even much larger than in the morning. In order to reach the largest possible number Mr. Crossley addressed men and boys in the large rink, which was crowded and overflowing. Seldom does one see together a finer and more intelligent-looking lot of men—of workingmen, especially—than at Petrolea. Seldom does any preacher get a more intelligent and attentive hearing than these 2,000 men and boys gave the preacher at that time; and seldom is a preacher more successful in making his sermon clear and comprehensive and interesting to his audience. Your correspondent did not wonder at the good success of these men after listening to that practical and comprehensive presentation of the Gospel at that time.

At the same hour Mr. Hunter preached to women and girls in the Methodist Church. The large edifice was crowded to its fullest capacity, and all did not get seating accommodation, I am informed.

In the evening there was a grand mass meeting in the rink again, in which both united, assisted by the Methodist and Baptist ministers. Before the opening hour came all seating and even standing space was occupied. Hundreds stood round the building, the windows being opened to allow them to hear as well as possible, but many were not even within earshot of the preachers, and yet for over two hours they thus remained standing, and gradually crowded in from time to time as some left after the first regular services. That people had not come from merely idle curiosity was evident enough from the fact that between 50 and 100 went into the inquiry room, desiring instruction and prayers, at the close of the regular service. Many of these were among the leading and prominent business men and heads of families. I am told that several leading citizens from other towns came in on the trains the day before and remained at the hotels over Sunday so as to be present at these meetings, some of whom were among those converted during the day. Large and promiscuous as the crowds were, there was no lack of decorum or of good attention at any time. Mr. Hunter informs me that they have never found more respectful and attentive audiences anywhere they have ever visited. Not only will the people but the preacher long remember the series of meetings with much satisfaction.

NEAR THE CLOSE.

The arrangements are that the meetings will close on Wednesday evening. It is safe to say that all will regret it. Even those who have taken no active part have much enjoyed all the meetings. There has been nothing, on the part of either preachers or people, to mar the harmony and pleasure of the meetings. The Gospel has been plainly presented and earnestly pressed home, but nothing has been said or done at any time to make any part of the exercises unpleasant or repulsive to any one. One leading citizen remarked to me that it would be a pity to miss any of the meetings even if one did not desire to gain any religious advantages from them. All have evidently felt at home in all the various exercises. On Monday evening there was again a large crowd, so that the rink was well filled and even crowded, and the number of those going into the inquiry room was unusually large. Probably the closing meeting will be the largest religious gathering ever held in this town. For years to come the good results of this great religious revival will be felt here and for a long distance around. Probably, even in eternity many may be thankful for the services now being so happily and successfully conducted.

THEIR FUTURE MOVEMENTS.

The evangelists have already their arrangements made for the work of the entire year. A great many more invitations are sent to them than they can possibly accept. Their next place of visit is the town of Brampton where meetings will commence next Sunday. They have then arranged to go to Brooklyn, N. Y., in connection with one of the largest Methodist churches in the United States. It is probable that they will then visit several other leading points in the States, remaining in all three or four months. They expect then to return to this Province and devote the rest of the season, beginning at Brockville, and remaining in the eastern section during the rest of the season. They seem very hopeful and sanguine in regard to the success of their work this year. Last year was the most successful they have ever had in their experience as evangelists. About 5,000 were converted or greatly benefited by their labors in the various localities. This year this their first meeting is the most successful they have ever had of its kind, and the indications in regard to their arrangements all point to most hopeful results.

THE PREVIOUS WORK.

It is now ten years since these two men united in the evangelistic work. They are both Canadian boys, born and educated in this Province. They were both ordained Methodist ministers, and were both, for some time, in successful pastoral work. They were friends and co-workers as school mates, and both were led to desire the special work of evangelists. By a strange coincidence—evidently providential—while Mr. Hunter was stationed in Manitoba and Mr. Crossley in Ontario, they wrote each other about the same time about uniting in this work, their letters crossing each other on the way. They have certainly made a strong and successful team in the great work in which they are thus united. Their first series of united meetings was held at Essex Center, which proved successful. The next year they were five months in London, and to this day the meetings held there, and the excellent results, are among the most pleasant memories. The next year their grand success in Ottawa gave them a prominence such as they had not before had. They have been at work every year since, with a short summer vacation, and their success seems to have been uniform and almost phenomenal. To thousands of ADVERTISER readers their voices and countenances are now familiar, and to tens of thousands their names are among their household words. They present the Gospel plainly and without sensationalism. Their meetings are conducted without any tinge of that rant and extravagance which mars very much the reputation of some other earnest evangelists. They are yet comparatively young men, in the prime and vigor of their manhood. Doubtless tens of thousands are uniting their prayers for many years of usefulness and blessing upon their united efforts.

The fish are almost domesticated, as shown by the following incident, described by the Harriston Tribune: After going a short distance through the swamp Mr. Young gave a peculiar whistle and entered the lake which he arrived at, when suddenly the whole water began to move, fish leaping up here and there, jumping over his shoulder and performing many feats. Large fish were picked up and held out at arm's length and then dropped back into the water. We were offered a bucket full of them, but could not bear the idea of eating fish which had been educated to perform such strange feats.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Reorganization of the Staff—The Officers Appointed.

The Minister of Agriculture has decided not to recommend at present the appointment of a professor of agriculture in the college at Guelph, but to engage a lecturer in that department for the time being, and a farm superintendent who, being relieved of office work, will devote his undivided personal attention to the work of the farm, the management of the live stock and the instruction of the students while at work on the farm. It is the intention of the Minister to give the students more thorough and systematic practical instruction in all the outside departments than has been given at any time in the past.

The following officers have been appointed to enter upon their duties at once: Wm. Rennie, Swansea, farm superintendent; G. E. Day, B.S.A., Guelph, lecturer on agriculture and live stock; H. L. Hutt, B.S.A., Southend, Welland, lecturer on horticulture, and J. B. Reynolds, B.A., Oshawa, assistant resident master, to take the place of Mr. John McCrae, who is returning to the university to complete his course.

The Globe says that Mr. Rennie is a lifelong farmer, who worked with his father and brothers on the old homestead in Scarboro', and afterwards moved to his own farm in Markham. In his early days he was known throughout the Province as one of the expert prize plowmen of Scarboro' township. When his brother, Simpson Rennie, obtained the gold medal for the best-managed farm in the Province, his own farm was a tie with Mr. Fothergill's, of Burlington, for a second place, the prize finally going to the latter gentleman. Mr. Rennie's field crops frequently won prizes offered by the Markham Agricultural Society.

Mr. Hutt is the son of a fruit farmer of the Niagara district and is also a graduate of the Agricultural College, where he won special distinction in horticulture. Since leaving the college he has devoted constant attention to this department and has taken special work in horticulture under Prof. Bailey in Cornell University. He has also visited the gardens and nurseries in the neighborhood of Rochester, N. Y., and Boston as well as different parts of Ontario, with the view of observing the latest and most improved methods of horticulture.

Mr. Day is a university graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, and was during his course one of its most brilliant students. He is a capital speaker, and has given eminent satisfaction as lecturer in connection with one of the traveling dairies during the present summer. He worked until 21 years of age on a farm, and has a genuine enthusiasm for farming. His ability, scholarship and practical knowledge of the subjects to be taught are unquestioned.

Mr. Reynolds took a brilliant course in the university and School of Pedagogy, and has had three years' experience in public school teaching. He is an all-round man, and becomes to his new work with very flattering testimonials as a student, a teacher and a disciplinarian. The Minister appears to have shown excellent judgment in the new appointments, and there is every reason to believe that the usefulness of the institution will continue to grow.

British Cattle Markets.

John Swan & Sons, Edinburgh, in their weekly report of Sept. 16, say: Supplies of fat cattle all round this week have been fairly large. There is a scarcity of prime quality, which sells readily and well. Everything else have just made about last week's prices. Fat cows shown in smaller numbers, but showed an improvement in price. There have been about 700 Canadian cattle on offer, which met a fairly good trade. About 600 States cattle also sold at rather higher prices. The number of sheep and lambs has been fully equal to last week, but the general quality not quite so good. The best descriptions met an active trade at full prices, any difference in secondary sorts being the turn in favor of buyers. For the best class of store cattle there is plenty of demand, but for secondary and small stocks sales are difficult to effect. Store sheep continue to sell well. At the ewe and gimmer sales at St. Boswell's, an average advance of 2s on ewes, is to 5s on gimmers was obtained over last week. Pigs and calves met a good inquiry at rather higher prices. Milch cows—A large show, and met a worse trade at 30s a head less money. Best beef, 8s to, in some cases, 8s 3d; secondary, 7s 3d per stone; best mutton, 7½d to 7¾d; secondary, 7d per lb.

COLD WEATHER SIGNS.

Now doth the busy city youth
Trot out his last year's coat,
And visions of his tailor bills
Before his optics float.

The stove once more is polished up.
The head of the family signs,
And thoughts of last year's coal bills
Bring tears into his eyes.

The coal man grins a ghastly grin
And longs for snow to fly,
Serenely shakes hands with the iceman
And winks the other eye.

—The three lads, Young, Doe and Cline, were fined for trespassing on Wm. Hyslop's Dorchester melon patch, and not for stealing his melons, as was stated.

—The annual theological conference of the Catholic priests in the London diocese is being held at St. Peter's Palace. Many of the clergy in the diocese are present.

—Charles Fitzpatrick, the man who was found wandering in London West and arrested by Constable Ward, was brought before Squire Lacey and remanded for examination.

—About 150 men turned out at the first fall drill of the Seventh Battalion Monday night. The band was in attendance in full force. All the evolutions were excellently performed.

—Hamilton charges the G. T. R. $1,500 annually for water used, and thinks it is not enough. Here $3,500 is the charge, but it is said three times as many engines are supplied.

—Jonas Schuyler, of Oneida, was charged with selling liquor to Indians of the reserve. Monday he appeared before Squire Lockwood, was found guilty and sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

—The McKillop farm, Southwold, has been sold by Auctioneer L. W. McIntyre, of St. Thomas, for the Huron and Erie Company, of this city, to Mr. Thomas Jackson. The sum paid was $3,600.

—The Finance Committee of the Western Fair Association will hold a meeting on Wednesday evening to pass accounts. All outstanding accounts should be rendered and placed in the secretary's hands without fail by Wednesday noon.

—Wm. O'Brien, son of John O'Brien, a farmer living on the second concession of London township, west of the city, was cutting limbs off a fallen tree Monday, when the axe slipped and cut into the bone at the thigh. A doctor put five stitches into the wound.

—In view of the decision arrived at by the representatives of Sarnia regarding the car shops, would it not be well for the Stratford authorities to take immediate action? Let us make an offer for the car shops and be done with the matter.—[Stratford Beacon.

—It is likely that several Londoners will attend the Congress of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the World, to be held under the auspices of the World's Congress Auxiliary in the Memorial Art Palace, Chicago, Oct. 6. The programme received by the ADVERTISER is comprehensive and attractive.

—The city engineer of London is in the city. He called upon Engineer Haskins, and asked him to be a witness in a suit between the city and the street railway company over laying a double track. The company claimed that the additional track was a switch, but the city tore it up.—[Hamilton Spectator.

—In pursuance of the plans for a new union station at Toronto, the Grand Trunk Railway Company has taken out a permit for a two-storey brick building on the northwest wing of the union station, the cost of which will be $15,000. This building is in addition to that included in the permit for the station buildings.

—The meeting of Court Mystic, I. O. F., in I. O. F. Hall last evening, was an unusually enthusiastic and pleasant one. Rev. Bro. Evans Davis, high chaplain, and Bro. Atwell Fleming, high treasurer, were present and gave very interesting, instructive and encouraging addresses. Court Mystic is wide awake, and is after first place among the city courts.

—An idea of the falling off in the attendance at the Western Fair just closed may be found in the fact that the Grank Trunk carried 31,000 passengers less this year than last.—[Stratford Beacon. The railroad editor of the Beacon has jumped the track. The G. T. R. officials here smiled when shown the paragraph, and say that the Western Fair traffic this year was very little short of last year, if not equal to it. On the fine days of the Fair—Wednesday and Thursday—the business broke the record.

—Too little advertising is like sowing too little seed. A farmer in planting corn puts a number of grains into each hill, and is satisfied if one good healthy stalk comes from each planting. It's the constant advertiser that is bound to attract attention. It's the success of bright, catchy advertisements that refuse to be ignored. That the proper time must be allowed for the fruit to grow, ripen and be gathered is as true as that wheat cannot be reaped the day after it is sown.—[Printer's Ink.

—Speaker Ross, of the Northwest Legislature, formerly of this city, gave his annual dinner the other day at Regina. It was a great success. Premier Haultain proposed the toast of the Speaker. "Some day or other they might have another, but they could not have a better speaker. (Cheers.) Among the members of the Assembly there was only one opinion about Mr. Speaker Ross. (Cheers.) Speaker Ross had a most enthusiastic reception when he made a happy reply.

Police Court Echoes.

At the Police Court yesterday the charge against John R. Gosling of selling liquor without a license was enlarged for a week, while Milo James, for supplying visitors at the Fair with the debarred beverage was fined $50. Amos Johnston, who came here from Ingersoll in company with his wife, was accused of vagrancy. He admitted the charge and was released on promising to leave the city. Johnston had been drinking so hard that it was with difficulty he stood on his feet. He did not know where the door was and had to be assisted from the court. Three young men, John Gavin, James Fox and Peter Madden, were charged with being disorderly, but there was no evidence to prove they had been guilty of the slightest offense and the case was dismissed.

Mr. Brennan Still in the Field.

Mr. Brennan, of Toledo, arrived in the city Monday, and left again yesterday afternoon. An ADVERTISER reporter this morning asked him that stereotyped question, "Is there anything new in Port Stanley Railway matters?"

"Well, no," replied Mr. Brennan, "there is nothing new as far as I am concerned. I am not the board, you know."

"Your visit to the city is in connection with the lease of the road, is it not?" asked the scribe.

"Yes; I thought I would drop in and see how things were progressing."

"Then you have not withdrawn your offer, and quit the field?"

"No; that idea is entirely erroneous. My offer is still before the board, and I have not thought to withdraw it. The problem is a difficult one to solve and do justice to all concerned. I appreciate the amount of deliberation necessary to dispose of the lease, and even while we wait the road does not depreciate any in value."

A Leper Missionary.

Monday afternoon Mr. W. C. Bailey, of Edinburgh, Scotland, addressed a large audience (mostly ladies) in St. Andrew's Church on the subject of the mission to lepers in India, and for about an hour gave the history of the mission since its organization about 24 years ago. At that time Mr. Bailey was working under the American Missionary Society, but seeing the depressed and helpless condition of the lepers he decided to devote his entire time to the work, and the results have been grand. When the Pan-Presbyterian Council met in Toronto last year Mr. Bailey attended as a delegate from Scotland, and since that time successful branches have been formed in Guelph and other Canadian cities. He is superintendent of the leper mission.

Living Questions.

are most esteemed by every intelligent man and woman. Derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels speedily present to us the living questions of obtaining relief. It is at once found in Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure sick headache, bilious headache, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks, etc. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, they are unequaled as a specific for the complaints named. On tiny, sugar-coated Pellet a dose. In vials, 25 cents. Carry them in your vest pocket.

Dr. Hodgins, who was appointed by the Ontario Government to investigate the alleged irregularities in connection with the recent senior leaving honor matriculation and scholarships examinations at Owen Sound, has found that the only complaint, that of allowing the candidates over time, was without foundation.

Gives Good Appetite.

GENTLEMEN,—I think your valuable medicine cannot be equalled, because of the benefit I derived from it. After suffering from headache and loss of appetite for nearly three years, I tried B. B. B. with great success. It gave me relief at once, and I now enjoy good health. MRS. MATTHEW SPROULE, Dunganon, Ont.

BASEBALL.

The Alerts leave for Cobourg this morning and will meet the eastern champions in that town in the afternoon, the game being the first of the series for supremacy on the Canadian diamond. The Alerts will be under a disadvantage, as they will have to travel over 200 miles, leaving here at 4 a.m. and barely arriving at Cobourg in time for the contest. The team will be: Hiscott, p.; Weber, c.; Dunn, 1 b.; Johnson, 2 b.; Player, 3 b.; Delaney, s. s.; Hutchinson, r. f.; Hynd, c. f.; Farnsworth, l. f. The boys are determined to make victory perch on their bats.

FOOTBALL.

THE WHEEL.

SANGER BEATEN.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 26.—H. C. Tyler, the Springfield flyer, won prizes valued at $750 to-day—a piano valued at $600 and a diamond valued at $150. In the one mile international he defeated Sanger by a foot in one of the prettiest finishes ever seen on a track. Sanger gave a splendid account of himself in the one mile handicap, covering the mile in 2:19 1-5—the best time of the day.

The Connolly-McGreevy Farce.

OTTAWA, Sept. 26.—The Connolly-McGreevy case was called first at the meeting of the Assizes here to-day. Justice Rose was on the bench. After some talk about the absence of W. H. Cloney, one of the witnesses, and the death of Murphy, the case was adjourned until Nov. 14, when Justice Rose will sit specially on it. J. Kerr, Q.C., and Messrs. O'Connor and Hoggirepresented the crown, and S. H. Blake, Q.C., and J. A. Gemmill McGreevy and Connolly.

Which—Man or Shirt?

Has the man grown, or has the flannel shrunk? Usually, the shirt's to blame. No, not that, either—but the way it's washed.

Flannels ought to be washed with Pearline. If you're buying new ones, start right. Have them washed only with Pearline (direction on every package) and they won't shrink. As for the old ones, Pearline can't make them any larger, but begin with it at once; it will keep them from growing smaller. It will keep them from the wear of the washboard, too.

Danger As one wash is sufficient to ruin flannels, great care should be exercised as to the use of the many imitations which are being offered by unscrupulous grocers or peddlers. Pearline is never peddled. 333 James Pyle, N. Y.

LUCK, OR PLUCK?

"You are very kind," murmured Lucia, who was dying—so she informed herself—to rejoin some of her girl friends and explain the awkward nature of the intrusion. Marge offered Phil his arm, a courtesy the young man did not understand, so he took Phil's instead, and presented the youth to several gentlemen as an old friend of the family. Soon, however, Marge led Phil into a tiny room at the rear of the hall—a room nominally the library, the books consisting of a dictionary and a Bible, the greater part of the shelf space being occupied by pipes, tobacco boxes, cigar cases, ash receivers and other appurtenances of the vice and comfort of smoking. Placing Phil in a great easy chair, the back of which hid him from the company, Marge took a cigarette from his own case, which he afterward passed to Phil.

"No small vices," said he, as Phil declined. "Just as well off, I suppose. As for me"—here Mr. Marge struck a match—"I've (puff) been acquainted with the weed so long that (puff) I can't very well snub it when I would."

"I think nicotene is injurious to the brain, the lungs, and finally to the digestion," said Phil. "Have you seen Prof. Benchof's analysis? They were printed in the——"

"I may have seen them in print, but I'm sure I passed them," said Marge, exhaling smoke in such a way that it hid his face for an instant. "I can't afford to worry myself with information that I'd rather not use."

"But one's physique," said Phil.

"One's physique becomes quite obliging when it knows what is expected of it."

Phil mentally sought a way of passing this unexpected obstacle; meanwhile, Marge breathed lazily through his cigarette a moment or two, and then said:

"Miss Tramlay is a charming girl."

"Indeed she is," Phil replied. "If she only were——"

"Tut, tut, my dear sir," said Marge, "woman is divine, and it isn't good form to criticise divinity. Miss Tramlay is remarkably pretty; I trust we agree at least upon that safe ground?"

"Pretty?" echoed Phil, before Marge had ceased speaking. "She is radiant—angelic!"

Again Mr. Marge enshrouded his face with smoke, after which he did not continue the conversation, except to remark, "Yes." Phil studied the color tone of the room and wondered why paper like that on the wall had not been offered for sale by the storekeeper at Haynton; then he resolved he would buy and take home to his mother a chair just like that in which he was sitting, for it was so comfortable that he felt as if he could fall asleep in it. Indeed he was already so oblivious to Marge and other human presence that he was startled when a gentle rustle ushered in Lucia, who exclaimed:

"Phil, you must come back to the parlor. Half a dozen girls are real envious because they haven't seen you at all, and half a dozen others want to see more of you. Father has been sounding your praises until they're sure the admirable Crichton has come to life again."

Phil attempted to rise—an awkward operation to a man previously unacquainted with Turkish chairs. Lucia laughed, and offered him assistance—it was only a little hand, but he took it, and as he looked his thanks he saw Lucia's face as he had sometimes known it of old—entirely alert and merry. At the same time a load fell from his mind, a load which he had been vaguely trying to attribute to the lateness of the hour, the strangeness of his surroundings—anything but the manner in which the girl had first seen him. As she took his arm and hurried him out of the library he felt so fully himself that he forgot even that he was not attired like the gentlemen around him.

Mr. Marge, who had risen when Lucia entered the library, followed the couple with his eyes; then, when alone, he frowned slightly, bit his lip, dropped the end of his cigarette, paced to and fro several times, leaned on the mantel, and muttered:

"'Phil!'"

Then he lighted another cigarette, and veiled his face in smoke for several minutes.

CHAPTER V.

Regular hours being among the requirements of the head of the Tramlay household, Lucia appeared at the breakfast table the morning after the reception as the clock struck eight. Her father, dressed for business, and her mother, in negligee attire and expression, were discussing the unbidden guest of the evening before.

"But he was so country—so dreadful common," protested Mrs. Tramlay, with her customary helpless air.

"Nonsense!" said her husband. "There was nothing country or common about his face and manners. There hasn't been so bright-eyed, manly-looking a fellow in our house before since I don't know when. Eh, Lucia?

"Agnes Dinon said he was real fine-looking," the girl answered.

"Agnes Dinon is 36 if she's a day," answered Mrs. Tramlay, in a petulant tone.

"So much the better fitted to pass opinions on young men," said Tramlay. "Shows more sense in one girl of her age than in a hundred like—like——"

"Like me, papa," said Lucia. "You may as well say it."

"Like you, then. Bless your dear, ignorant heart, I'd give my head if you could see as clearly as she without waiting so long to learn."

"You may be very sure, though, that Miss Agnes will never invite him to her own receptions," declared Mrs. Tramlay.

"Wrong again, mamma, she's invited him for next Tuesday night, and I do believe she devised the reception just for the purpose. None of us had heard of it before."

Mrs. Tramlay gathered all her strength, stimulated with an entire cup of tea, and exclaimed:

"Well, I should like to know what society is coming to, if a common farmer's boy, of no family, can stumble into town and be invited about to good houses."

"Coming to? Why, my dear wife, it is coming to its senses. I'm glad, in this particular case, the movement began at our house."

"Nobody would have paid any attention to him, if you hadn't talked so much about him," said Mrs. Tramlay. "One would have thought him a dear old friend, to hear you to on about him as you did."

"I said nothing but what was true. I merely said he was one of the finest young men I had ever known; that he was of the highest character, and very intelligent besides."

"Such qualities don't make a man fit for society," said the lady of the house.

"No, I suppose not; if they did we'd see more of them at our receptions and parties."

"Edgar!"

"Well, well," said Tramlay, leaving the table, kissing his wife, and preparing to hurry to his office, "it isn't your fault; we can't expect what can't be had, I suppose."

"Lucia," said Mrs. Tramlay, after the children had been dispatched to school, "I hope your father's peculiar notions won't affect you."

"About Phil? Nonsense, you dear old worry! But really, mother, he made quite an impression. A lot of the girls admired him very much. I began to apologize and explain, as soon as I could get rid of him; but I found it wasn't at all necessary."

"Girls will admire anything that's new—anything, from a Zulu to a monkey."

"Mamma!"

"Young men like Hayn can't ever marry out of their own circle; you should be able to see that. How can they buy houses for their wives, and furnish them properly, and set up horses and carriages, and keep in society?"

"Mamma, you're too dreadfully funny; indeed you are. Suppose young men aren't rich enough to marry; can't girls like them? Aren't young people good for anything but to get married?"

"I'm very sorry," said the mother, abruply leaving the room, "that you have such trifling views of life."

When Philip Hayn left the family mansion a little after midnight he had but two distinct ideas—one was that he had better find his way back to Sol Mantring's sloop to sleep, and the other was that he didn't believe he could fall asleep again in less than a week. All that he had seen, the people not excepted, was utterly unlike Haynton. The conversation, also, was new, although he could not remember much of it; and the ladies—well, he always had admired whatever was admirable in the young women in the village, but there certainly were no such handsome and brilliant girls at Haynton as some he had met that night.

He could not explain to himself the difference, except that, compared with Lucia's friends, his old acquaintances appeared—well, rather unfinished and ignorant. And so far as these new acquaintances appeared above his older ones, so far did Lucia appear above her friends. He had studied her face scores of times before and told himself where it was faulty; now he mentally withdrew every criticism he had ever made and declared her perfection itself. Would he ever forget how she looked as she offered to help him from the easy chair in the library? He wished his mother might have seen her at that instant; then he was glad she did not. He remembered that his mother did not entirely approve of some of Lucia's bathing dresses; what would the good woman think of fashionable evening attire? And yet perhaps it was not as dreadful as it seemed. Evidently Lucia's mother approved of it, and was not she a member of a church—not, he regretted, of the faith in which all Haynton worshiped, yet still a church? And did not many of Lucia's guests dress in similar style?

He mentally laid the subject away for future consideration, and gave his mind to his own attire. Until that evening his faith in the perfection of his Sunday suit was as unquestioning as his faith in Haynton's preacher, but now it was hopelessly shattered. He did not admire the attire of the gentlemen he had met, but the evidence was overwhelming that it was the correct thing, and that he must prepare himself to dress in like fashion if he went to Miss Dinon's party. And by the way, what a queenly woman that Miss Dinon was!

Medicine for? Because you are sick and want to get well, or because you wish to prevent illness. Then remember that Hood's Sarsaparilla CURES all diseases caused by impure blood and debility of the system. It is not what its proprietors say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla DOES, that tells the story of its merit. Be sure to get Hood's and only Hood's.

Facts About Dyspepsia.

Wrong action of the stomach and liver occasions dyspepsia. Dyspepsia in turn gives rise to bad blood. Both these complaints are curable by B. B. B., which acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and blood, and tones and strengthens the entire system, thus positively curing dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood and similar troubles.

A STARTLING PREDICTION.

A Sarnia Man Says the St. Clair River Will Dry Up.

His Reason Why the Water Fell Twenty-Two Inches—A Fissure in the Bed—An Eminent Scientist on Water Absorption.

A writer in the Sarnia Observer writes as follows to that paper:

Between 8:15 and 8:25 a.m. on Sept. 7, 1893, the water in St. Clair River subsided 22 inches. Thus in ten minutes a volume of water, say twenty miles long, three-quarters of a mile wide and 22 inches deep, disappeared. Now, where did those millions of tons of water go? The disturbance seems to have been entirely local, as it was not noticeable on either Lake St. Clair or Lake Huron. Only a slight breeze was blowing at the time, nor has any report been received of a sudden cyclone to thus disturb the water level so violently. Besides, a wind storm only lowers the level gradually, not with a sudden drop of 22 inches. We are thus driven to account for this startling phenomenon in some other way. A theory is only tenable, which accounts for all the known facts. My theory is that this huge volume of water was permanently lost by the sudden opening of a long fissure in the bed of the river. If this be true, then there will be a permanent lowering of the worlds water supply by that amount. Following this hypothesis to its natural conclusion is startling in the extreme. For centuries different volcanoes all over the world have been belching out gas, smoke, ashes, etc., all of which left a vacuum there. Man for many years has been aiding this natural drain by pumping out oil, letting out millions of cubic feet of natural gas and in other ways, till a huge hole must exist. What if this lowering of the St. Clair River in ten minutes by 22 inches was an indication that the crust was thin just here and one cavity had thus been filled? What if another and larger cavity should have its crust broken? Are we at the beginning of the end? In the May Cosmopolitan an eminent scientist, Camille Flammarion, advanced the view that the end of the world would be brought about by the gradual drying up by absorption of the world's water. He says: "Some day there will be no more ocean, no more clouds, no more rain, and vegetable as well as animal will perish through lack of water. At the beginning of the quartenary period the site now occupied by the city of Paris was almost entirely covered by water. The altitudes of these plateaus have not increased, there have been no upheavals, it is the water which has decreased in volume. It is so in every country of the world and the cause is easy to assign. A certain quantity of water, but not negligable, percolates through the soil, either below the sea bottoms by crevices, fissures and openings due to submarine eruptions, or on the dry lands, for not all the rain water falls upon impermeable soil. The surface water of the earth is diminishing, and it will diminish more and more, as the earth's heat is dissipated. The day will come when the earth will be cold to its center, and that day will be coincident with the almost total disappearance of water."

QUEBEC, Sept. 26.—The mysterious individual reported last night as having crossed from St. Charles, Bellechasse, to St. Jean, Island of Orleans, and who after having shaved off his mustache and otherwise disguised himself at the island, crossed over to Quebec, intending to secure a passage on the Allan steamship Sardinian for Liverpool, has been recognized as Joseph M. Fisher, the defaulting cashier of the First National Bank of Geneva, Neb. Fisher has absconded with a sum estimated, it is said, at $80,000 from the First National Bank and made off. Quebec detectives were put on the scent, but missed the man. A reward of $1,000 was offered for the apprehension of Fisher.

"Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia."—Mr. Samuel T. Casey, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now 79 years of age I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well-known in this section of Canada, having lived here 57 years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which has done such wonders in my case." 1

—The annual convention of Huron lay workers and Sunday school teachers will be held this year at Woodstock, in response to an invitation from the clergy and churches of that town. The days appointed are Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 1 and 2. The Bishop of Huron will preach Wednesday evening.

—Mrs. Jane Livingston Hawthorn has been given leave to obtain "samples of the air" in the St. Clair Tunnel, to the end that she may prove the air is composed of life-destroying elements. She has a suit against the G. T. R. for $25,000 damages for the loss of her husband. The case is to be heard shortly in London.

—The funeral of the late Henry Childs, one of London's oldest residents, took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, 478 Quebec street. There was a large attendance of friends and the Grand Trunk car works, of which he had been superintendent for a number of years, were shut down for the afternoon to permit the workmen to attend. The pall-bearers were four of deceased's sons and Messrs. Jerry Loughlin and Wm. Lewis. The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. Roy, of St. Matthew's Church.

—A Toronto dispatch says: Thomas Fawcett, the Watford banker, in 1888 transferred to the late Alexander Johnston, the Strathroy banker, some $50,000 for safe keeping. Never having been able to recover the same Fawcett assigned his right thereto to Lawyer R. C. Toothe, of London, who in his suit against Johnston recovered judgment for $17,000. Under the belief that Bankers Farren and Tisdale, of Clinton, had a portion of the money, Toothe obtained an injunction restraining the above bankers from disposing of this imagined estate. The court will this afternoon be asked to continue this injunction.

—The Mission Circle of the Dundas Street Center Methodist Church is in a flourishing condition, and last night's meeting was of interest to all members, it being the election of officers for the ensuing year. Two meetings are held every month, and with 176 members on the roll they expect to do greater work than ever before in the history of the circle. To their credit they have $329 81, an increase of nearly $100 during the year just ended. Before another year has passed this sum will likely be increased to $500. At the coming convention the circle expects to carry off the banner for the western district, but in this endeavor such cities as Toronto and Hamilton have to be competed against. In connection with it there is a junior circle, with a membership of 57. Miss Staley, the retiring president, at last night's meeting delivered a short address and welcomed the new president. The following were the officers elected: Honorary president, Mrs. McMechan; president, Miss Tarrey; vice-president, Miss N. Keenleyside; recording secretary, Miss. L. Williams; corresponding secretary Miss Vining; treasurer, Miss Noble.

Col. Haverly All Right.

A Chicago dispatch says: It turns out that the story told in New York Saturday night by Pat Sheedy, the noted sporting character, to the effect that Col. J. H. Haverly, the well-known theatrical manager, was suffering from paresis and was confined in a western asylum for the insane, is entirely without foundation. Col. Haverly's assistant manager declares that the statement is wholly untrue and declares that his chief was never in better health than he is now.

Pawned a Jewel.

A man named L. T. Haskins has been arrested at Syracuse, N. Y., on a charge of being implicated in the Lake Shore Railway robbery recently. He had on his person, as had also a woman who was in his company, a large quantity of expensive jewelry, aggregating in value many hundreds of dollars. In his pocket was a loan ticket issued by Mr. T. Fox, the pawnbroker, here. An ADVERTISER representative interviewed Mr. Fox, who remembers Haskins well. The man and woman arrested came to Mr. Fox's shop on Sept. 4. They had run out of money, so they said, and were desirous of pawning a bracelet. The article offered contained several handsome specimens of the scintillating stone. A loan of $150 was given on this security. Haskins is about 25 years of age, and has a smooth face and sallow complexion.

A Young Lady's Startling Discovery.

A robber was detected in the house of James Robson, near Birr, in a peculiar manner, by one of Mr. Robson's daughters the other night. At bedtime she went up the back stairs to the sleeping apartments, instead of the front stairs as was her wont. On the way up she met a man in the dark whom she called by her brother's name. He did not answer, and, passing her hands over his features she proceeded on her way up stairs, still thinking that the man was her brother and that he was playing a trick on her. On reaching the room of her brother she was surprised to find him in bed. She became suspicious and raised the alarm, but the would-be-burglar had escaped by unlocking one of the doors. He must have secreted himself in the house and hid on the back stairs until the family were retiring, when he was accidentally discovered.

With the Water Commissioners.

At last evening's meeting of the Board of Water Commissioners considerable discussion took place over certain modes of providing water supply. A resolution, proposed by Chairman Jones, seconded by Commissioner Cowan, was carried. It recommends to the City Council "that when granting a supply of water to any corporation or company, the same be granted subject to a limited supply, or at a reduced rate per 1,000 gallons." Engineer Keating's report on the waterworks system will be fully considered at the next meeting. Auditors G. H. Jewell and George W. Cottrell presented their report for the quarter ending Aug. 31 last. The receipts were $25,113 83, and the disbursements $15,154 90. This leaves a balance at present of $9,958 93. Accounts to the amount of $5,392 08 were passed. Several residents in ward 6 petitioned for mains and pipes as follows: Watson street—George Watson, three services; Mrs. A. Smith, one service; Bernard McAteer, one service. Wellington road—Mrs. E. Beasley, two services; W. J. Dodd, two services. Clarke street—E. C. Dodd; one service; J. C. Dodd estate, one service; W. L. Berry, one service. The petition was granted. Robert Heard, Albert A. Carmichael, Zealand Nickson and J. T. Jones, who live on Lovett street also want a main laid. Medical men, the petition stated, had pronounced the water in that vicinity unfit for use. Petition granted. A letter was read from Mr. Bernhard Feind, civil and hydraulic engineer, Chicago, offering his services as consulting engineer for design and construction in the proposed new waterworks. The secretary was instructed to write, stating that no engagement could be made at present. Tippett & Wood, of Phillipsburg, N. J., and the Ludlow Valve Manufacturing Company, Troy, N. Y., are also anxious to supply materials for the proposed waterworks. The secretary will reply to their letters that no immediate action is to be taken. Mr. T. Sergeant was present and asked that a main be laid at the corner of English and Dundas streets, connecting with his premises. Referred to the inspector and secretary with power. Those present were: Chairman Jones, Commissioner Cowan, Mayor Essery, Secretary Ellwood, Engineer Moore, Inspector Platt and Inspector Plastow.

James Hill, of Inwood, was cured of Sciatic Rheumatism by taking Duncombe's Dark Pills.

In British Columbia the crops have suffered from drought. Oats are short in straw, but will yield about 50 bushels to the acre. The hop industry is rapidly extending and the crop is good.

A wonderful new combination is R. Stark's Headache, Neuralgia and Liver Powders; nice to take and perfectly harmless. Mrs. Mary Keats, 88 Main street, Hamilton, says: "For years—in fact all my life—I have been troubled with severe headaches. I have tried all the remedies I could hear of, and have been treated by many doctors, but with very little good results. A friend recommended your Headache, Neuralgia and Liver Powders some time ago, and I have found them to be the greatest blessing to me—in fact, I can truly say they are perfectly wonderful. I would not be without them for more than I can tell." Mr. Flock, station master, Grand Trunk Railway, Hamilton, says: "They cured my most severe headaches, which I had for at least three years." Price, 25 cents a box. Sold by all medicine dealers.

"Williams' Royal Crown Remedy Saved John Weir's Life"

May be seen in large letters on the covers of the horses that precede the handsome Royal Crown Remedy wagon. Mr. Weir said: "This is a most marvelous cure. I became pale as a corpse; my blood seemed to be turned to water. I had dizziness and a ringing noise in my head; my hands and feet were cold all the time, and my limbs were completely swollen up to the body. Some doctors called it consumption of the blood. I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally took to my bed." Mrs. Weir says: "All Mr. Weir has told you is true. At times he lay for days unconscious and unable to take nourishment of any kind, and was reduced to a mere skeleton of 3i pounds; and I fully believe if we had been one day later in getting Williams Royal Crown Remedy he would be in his grave to-day. So it may well be said 'Williams' Royal Crown Remedy saved John Weir's life.'" The best druggists keep "Royal Crown Remedy"; but if your druggist does not, remit direct to Isaac Williams Company, London, and they will send it to you by first express. The price at which "Williams' Royal Crown Remedy" is sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with any other medical treatment. Six bottles for $5. Clip this out and keep it.
