London, Sept. 8 .- 9:40 a.m. - The public is waiting breathless with the hope that the allies have finally taken the offensive, but the cautious tone of the official communications issued from France indicates that the forward movement of the allies is only a feeler to ascertain the reason for the strange eastward swing of the German right. No matter, however, what their movement may mean, a decisive battle cannot be long postponed. Meantime the western valley of the Seine, recently over- Rome Tribuna States That have taken the army medical service rin by Germans, has been cleared of the my and has been given a breathing

Reports Corroborated. Letters from London dated August 28 corroborated the reports of the Mauretania passengers. From these two sources it was gathered that England had placed more than 80,000 Russian troops in France by means of transports sent north of the Scandinavian peninsula to Archangel, where the Russians embarked. The movement was surrounded with the greatest secrecy. According to one version the Russians were landed from the transports direct at Belgian or French ports. Another said that they had been disembarked at Aberdoon, Scotland, thence taken on special trains across England, and later onveyed by ship to Ostend. Could Be Done Again It was pointed out at this time that if this movement could be accomplished iccessfully once there was no reason why it could not be repeated and that a Russian force much in excess of 80,000 en might well be landed in France by

DARING FEAT OF LONE SUBMARINE

Enters German Harbor and Situation of Unemployed Im-Fires Torpedoes, Escaping Without Any Damage.

HULL, Sept. 7. - Early last week destroyers and submarines of the British fleet, by close surveillance, discovered a passage between the mines, which German destroyers used in coming out to the North Sea, With that information a flotilla of submarines and destroyers proceeded to round up the German

When the operation was finished the British vessels returned to their base, with the exception of one submarine. There was much anxiety as to the fate of this vessel. and as nearly a day passed without news of it the fleet began to conclude she had been lost. Just as this fear began to be viewed as a certainty the submarine came calmly into the midst of the fleet and asked to be replenished.

A Daring Feat. Excitement among the bluejackets at the return of the wanderer spread to every ship. The questions on every lip were: Where has she been and what has she been doing?" Explanation was soon forthcoming, and all who heard it were thrilled at the daring feat accomplished by the commander and crew.

The submarine actually penetrat. ed into the harbor of Bremerhaven, where she fired two torpedoes. The Germans were panic-stricken, in the midst of which the submarine went to sleep on the bottom of the harbor. For hours the ship and crew remained there, the harbor being trawled, but fortunately not passing over her.

As soon as he considered it safe, the commander gave the order to proceed out of the German harbor the submarine returning across the North Sea without mishap.

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE.

IT IS commonly stated that the Russian army is an unknown quantity as to its offensive abilities. However. these abilities are becoming somewhat known to the Austrians, and history is, after all, not so silent on the question. Frederick the Great found the Russ undoubtedly his most dangerous foe, as did the Terrible Turk in the days of Catherine the Great. The Cossack was and is a peril to any one. Suwarow, of whom Byron has much to say, e.g., that he loved fighting as an alderman does marrow, this last word making a Byronic rhyme to the heroic syllables of the general's name, was an offensive leader of renown. He was a hammer to the Turks, stubborn resisters. and while Napoleon was away in Egypt Suwarow led a great Russian army which drove the French, then at the height of fighting force, from Italy. The fact is, the Slavic temperament is hot and the Tartar infusion in Russian blood is hotter for attack. In Russia is a blend of Norman, Slav and Tartar which has produced a peculiarly formidable and fanatical character, capable of high developments. In the war with Japan, Russian armies were on the defensive, because outnumbered. If the "little brother," the Bulgarian or Ser's shows such marked capacity in attack, it is no wonder that the Russians, with echoes of Zenghiz Khan or Tamburlaine in their souls, should show offensive power of high order.

A WEAK APOLOGY.

HERE is just a trace of German blas in a foreword in The Outlook of this week, when it introduces an article by G. W. Nasmyth on "The Case most persuasive statement of Germany's | performers. case that we have seen." When such a journal as The Outlook characterizes an article with such an implied endorsation, one is likely to read the article with a good deal of trepidation, expecting to find some new angle of the situation that had not been mentioned or perhaps discovered by our own or the British press. Another point of recommendation is that Mr. Nasmyth was a delegate to the Church Peace Congress, which was to have commenced in Germany on August 2, and is a director of the World's peace foundation.

Expecting so much it is almost a disappointment to find that all Mr. Nasmyth has to say in approval of the German attitude is that it is born of the fear of Russian domination. He says it is the struggle of Western civilization against Russian barbarism, and that the conflict between enlightened Europe and the half-Oriental Slavic powers of darkness was inevitable. It was because of this Slavic menace that Germany, according to Mr. Nasmyth, entered into its tremendous program of armament, and he declares that today it is fighting the battle of freedom for civilization.

It is a most peculiar thing, then, that relief there—the worst ragtime is not though Russia was the great menace of Germany, when war broke out, almost the entire German army made a break to plunge through neutral country into France, leaving its Russian borders almost unprotected. If these "Slavic hordes" were the things to be feared, why did not Emperor William turn his army toward Petrograd, and strike the awful monster a mortal blow Think that when tomorrow comes before it could uncoil itself? He could not injure Russia by attacking Belgium or France; he gave the Czar time to bring his slow-starting machine into Commune with the voice of truth; action and left his whole country open to the certain invasion of an army by far numerically greater than his own. Does this look like fear of the Russians? And is not a man's greatest enemy the first to whom he turns?

The facts would seem to disprove Mr. Nasmyth's defence of Germany, and to prove the theory recently advanced by Sir Edward Goschen, when he told the secret arrangement entered into by the German government and the chief financial men of the country to Germanize the world's commerce.

By keeping out of Belgium the Kaiser could have assured himself of British neutrality. He would not have called the scorn of the world upon him by declaring war on Russia alone, but his whole course of conduct has established beyond question that he had no great fear of Russian dominance, but that to they do not know their right foot from other people), the Russian Government the future there lurks a revolution." strike blindly for the throne of all Enrope was his obsession

On the other hand, this campaign has demonstrated with what complete effectiveness the censorship can be applied to news, and it should be remembered that England controls all the cables.

It is interesting to conjecture in what way this body of Russians will be used, If they are being landed at Ostend, as reported, it indicates a movement is hardly strong enough in itself to be very effective, in conjunction with the Belgians, it might harass the Kaiser's army with excellent results for the

The London Tecumps, and the St. Thomas Saints spent Labor Day me appropriately. They labored from morning until evening and never before w there so much Canadian league baseball played over in Tecumseh park in c day. It was simply one inning after another with just a little jump off meals. The London Tecumps labored most effectively. They won all the pastimes, one in the morning and two in the afternoon, which is quite a of winning to do all in one day. But what good did it do? Not a bit of good The Ottawa Senators, ably abetted by Mr. Buck Freeman and the weatherms walked off with the bunting by winning one game from Peterboro, and having the second one called at the end of the second inning, on accout of a cold draug blowing across the field. However, there are those who suspect that the r reason was because Mr. Shettler was out there pitching against the Shagmen the second game, and Mr. Shaughnessy got a severe chill in his feet. I Schettler is just the person who would have sent that pennant to London. The Final Blaze.

It was the fifth inning, and the Londo players took a sudden liking to his slants, after two men were in th morgue, and before the third man was expunged four runs had been chase across the pan. The Saints scored on in the sixth, but despite the fact that several opportunities presented them selves, neither team was able to show another counter over. Started Off Well in Afternoon.

The local hired hands got away to good start in the first inning of the first game in the afternoon. The Saint had gone out and made one run of Hammond in their half, but the Reis ling outfit had Hughey up in the ai in no time, and before the inning close four runs had been registered. Most of these runs were due to little infield hits. Four of these hits were fielded by Hughey. Some were bunts, and one—Mike Mullin's drive—knocked Hughey down and turned him over, making a play at first base out of the question. play at first base out of the question.

The Saints tied it up by annexing three runs in the fourth inning. Hammond was wild, and besides hitting a couple of men, allowed four slashing bingles, and these resulted in three runs. That ended his work as far as London is concerned this season. He might have been able to finish without getting into any further trouble, but "Doc" decided to play it safe by sending in Heck, and it was just as well he did. With Heck on the mound the Saints were not very dangerous, and the locals seized some opportunities in the fourth, fifth and sixth to send enough runs across to give them a nice margin at the finish.

The final game of the afternoon was quite a performance. Twenty-four hits, most of them sure-enough ones, were sandwiched in the six and a half innings played, and that ought to satisfy the majority of critical fans. London got fourteen of these bingles, and nine runs with them. Eddie Lamy and Cy Reidy were the heavy hitters, with three out of four, but Oskee Neale raised some excitement by stretching a single into a home run. It was a fast drive to right field, and some slow fielding on the part of R. Wilkinson, who is not an outfielder, but a pitcher, assisted him in making all four corners.

Allies Successful on Both Wings and General Joffre's Plans Are Being Steadily Carried Out---Enemy Forced to Retire From Paris District.

(Canadian Press.) LONDON, Sept. 7 .- 10:17 p.m. - A Boul ogne dispatch to the Evening News says: "A telegram has been received from Gen. Pau announcing a victory by the allied forces under Field Marshal Sir John French, commanding the British, and Gen. D'Amade at Precy Sur Oise, about 25 miles north of Paris. "The allies were drawn across the northern line with the centre at Precy. The English

"The Imperial Guard, who were ordered to surrender, were annihilated by the British. It is reported that the Crown Prince was in their midst."

The British official bureau, which has received no confirmation of this message, made this announcement tonight:
