London broke all her joy records. Never before has such crowds gathered on her streets intent on pure enjoyment. The throng filled Dundas street from curbing to curbing and it was with great difficulty that street cars and automobiles threaded their way through the district between Wellington and Richmond streets.

Everybody Gay.

Dancing on the pavement was held on Queen's avenue at Richmond, Clarence and Wellington streets. A huge crowd joined in the dances at each spot. Music was supplied by military bands. This novelty was one of the most enjoyable features of the carnival and has made a hit with the young people of London.

The mystery of the platforms, built on these corners a few days ago has been solved. Many reasons for their existence had been given, but no one guessed that they were to be used as bandstands in connection with dancing on the streets.

The crowd gathered early and gradu-ally warmed up to the occasion. Soon the sidewalks were crowded and overthe sidewalks were crowded and over-flowing, and it was not long before the roadway was filled. Small boys were very much in evidence. At 10 o'clock all restraint cut loose, and things started with a vengeance. Gangs of girls and boys paraded the streets, pushing, crowding and mixing in general. Much amusement was created by a sign "Wet Paint" pinned to the back of a major in pulform. He was followed by a mob but it was a long time before he discovered why he was so attractive.

Lunches in Mess.

Promptly on time, Prince Edward arrived at Wolseley Barracks and was received by Brig-General L. W. Shannon and his staff, and shortly after 12:30 o'clock he was entertained at luncheon in the headquarters' staff mess, which was splendidly decorated for the occasion. The ceremony there, however, was rather hurried because of the long afternoon's program to be completed before 3 o'clock on the Heights. While Prince Edward was engaged in the headquarters building, the parade of veterans was formed up under the direction of Lieut.-Col. When the order to "fall in" was given, the veterans were formed in bodies representing the various counties of the district, and the huge hollow square, with the officers huge hollow square, with the officers in the innermost line, was arranged with the senior non-commissioned officers and signboards, marked with the names of the counties, as guides. The first event of the afternoon after Prince Edward arrived in his motor, was the inspection of the vets. The veterans marched upon the platform in single file from the east side, passed in front of the prince and then left the platform by the steps at the west side. As each recipient stepped to be invested, Prince Edward shook hands and chatted freely as he pinned on the medal, then shook hands once more, smiled, saluted and turned his attention to the next veteran in line. The event contained a sad interest at times, when the mother or widow of some hero stepped upon the platform to receive the decoration so dearly won. After the last medal was presented and after the prolonged cheering had subsided, Prince Edward briefly addressed the assemblage in a sincere democratic manner, stating that he could not speak at length because of the shortness of the period before train time. "I greatly appreciate the attendance in such large numbers," he said, "and especially because so many have travelled here from long distances, and I am sorry that I cannot shake hands with everyone." Then, addressing the soldiers, he continued:

G. T. R. BILL DOES NOT PROVIDE FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF THIS RAILROAD

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Points Out This Fact to Members.

GETS COLD WELCOME

Liberal Leader, Undaunted, Makes a Fighting Speech.

[Special to The Advertiser.] OTTAWA, Oct. 23.-Hon. W. Lyon Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, enered the House this afternoon, following his election in Prince, took his seat amid the plaudits of his followers and two hours later delivered his first speech. The speech in question was an expose of the Government's so-called "public ownership" proposals in connection with the Grand Trunk Railway amid the plaudits of his followers and nection with the Grand Trunk Railway nection with the Grand Trunk Railway system, and before he had finished Mr. King had demonstrated that all the public got out of it was the privilege of paying interest on stock, some of which had never paid interest before, and some not for the past two years; the assumption of all the liabilities of the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and an option to purchase the stock within a period of thirty years. Having acquired that proud honor the Government, said Mr. King, would hand over the management of the system to the men who formerly owned and undertook to operate the Canadian Northern.

the men who formerly owned and undertook to operate the Canadian Northern.

It was a notable fact that when Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, entered the House two days ago he was accorded a cordial meed of applause from the Opposition as well as the Government members. It was quite as notable that this alternoon when the new leader of the Liberal party entered and took his seat one man on the Government benches commenced to applaud and then ceased abruptly because nobody else of those around him had the courtesy to do so.

No Whit Daunted.

It was further notable that though there were five ministers on the treasury benches, not one crossed the floor to welcome the new member. The coldness of the Government welcome daunted Mr. King no whit, however, for his speech this afternoon was a fighting speech from start to finish, and quibbling questions on the part of Government members who sought to disconcert him failed in their purpose.

Mr. King declared that the Government's proposal to acquire the Grand Trunk was not in the nature of public ownership at all, for the simple reason that there was no ownership involved in the transaction. The guaranteed and debenture stocks remained in the hands of the present possessors, much enhanced in value because of the Government undertook to pay the interest whether the road earned dividends or not. It was in the power of any holder of that stock to sell when he pleased, and there would no doubt be many profitable, sales, inasmuch as Canada was behind the interest payments. In 30 years the Government proposes to arbitrate. Now the value of these stocks at the present time is questionable, "All that are left," said Mr. King, "are the preferred and common stock which the Government proposes to arbitrate. Now the value of these stocks at the present time is questionable, to put it mildly. In fact, it is doubtful whether they possess any value at all. What does the Government propose, however? It proposes to give all that stock a value which will give it a four per cent r it up to par. I wonder if the people of this country appreciate this tran-

"Let us distinguish one stock from another. The first lot I would call the stock that is being retained by private possessors. The other lot is stock that is being exchanged. What does the Government get? The Governments gets that stock, but what does it give? It gives a four per cent stock to take its place.

ments gets that stock, but what does it give? It gives a four per cent stock to take its place, and guarantees to pay four per cent interest on that stock, and also guarantees that none of it can be purchased by the country for another period of 30 years.

"My honorable friends opposite speak of this as a measure of Government ownership. De they realize that what this measure of allways in Canada impossible for another 30 years. Under this act, the people cannot acquire the properties of the Grand Trunk from these owners who will be holding the stock until 1950. That is the position, and yet honorable gentlemen go blundering ahead in the name of public ownership and say we must get this measure through at this particular session of Parliament.

Not Government Ownership.
"I have pointed out that this measure is not for the purchase of the Grand Trunk properties: it is not even a measure for Government is not for the purchase of the Grand Trunk properties; it is not even a measure for Government ownership. What is it then? It is nothing more than an agreement for the transfer of the management of the Grand Trunk railway system to the gentlemen who are managing the Canadian Northern railways at the present time, and who were controlling the Canadian Northern system before it was taken over by the Government. That is all that this measure is—plus this one other important circumstance; it is also a measure to enhance the value of the stock of the Grand Trunk railway system. That is all. These are the only two things accomplished by this bill. It is simply a bill to foist upon the people of Canada all the liabilities of the Grand Trunk railway and the Grand people of Canada an the hashines of the Grand Trunk railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and to give in return to the shareholders an enhanced value for their stock."

It might be added as some comfort to the Canadian people that they secure a proxy out of the deal.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Before his departure Prince Edward expressed his delight at the fine welcome he re ceived in this city during his two days' visit. He carries away an impression of patriotic, generous and courteous citizenship, which we think spirit in the body. he will not soon forget. And the citizens of London in turn will not soon forget the charm of Prince Edward. He has left with us a picture of manliness-boyish enough to be lovable -the impression of a frank, honest, open natured and kindly young man, and one that has remained unspoiled under an experience that would have turned the head of many another. ing else. Londoners from their brief but vivid contact with him know Prince Edward will admirably fill the high position destiny has decreed for him. Thus he has bound the closer-if such hi possible-our ties with the motherland and all parts of the empire.

IMMIGRATION EXPERTS WANTED.

Dispatches from London report the con and other offices of South American countries in the British capital crowded with old country folk anxious to emigrate and seek ing information. One who has just returned from England makes the same report, and dethat unless the Canadian Government up tens of thousands who would make most desirable citizens for this country will go to Brazil and the Argentine. The instability of the industrial situation in England is the of this exodus. Those who seek new homes this side of the Atlantic, with few exceptions, are persons of considerable means who fear to invest their earnings or savings at home because of the social unrest and political and industrial disturbances. What they ask is an assurance that for a reasonable period they can depend upon a stable industrial situation and the chance to prosper. Surely Canada is in a position to do this. There is nothing disastrously revolutionary about our present indusployee is rapidly disappearing, we are at the start of a new era of production that promises

These British citizens of our own tongue we should have and at once before the bars come down and let in a flood of less desirable newcomers from Continental Europe. The Argentine Republic is making an especially strong bid to get these Britishers. By natural inclination the latter would select Canada, and it should be the task of the Government to at once turn the tide of this emigration from South America to Canada. Canada can offer much more than Brazil or the Argentine, and the only explanation of this trek to South America must be an inadequate immigration service abroad. Just now the British Isles should be filled with Canadian Government agents who can supply exact information as to conditions and prospects in all parts of the Dominion. If these facts are placed fully and accurately before old countrymen who intend to emigrate there will be few who will listen to other offers. With our spacious ness, natural resources and certain expansion along every line, it should not be the case that our kin overseas should be seeking in large numbers to make a fresh start in alien lands. And Canada will attract them more than any other land it they can only learn the facts about it. Some expert publicity work evidently is required and that at once.

WOMAN AND THE LOAN.

Someone has said that a woman's life could be summed up in one word-renunciation. Whether this is altogether true is open to quesion, but the fact remains that women do have to give up a great deal. Motherhood always involves sacrifice, but the returns more than pay the cost. It has become a habit with some women to always forego their own wishes and pleasures in order that some other member of the family may have theirs.

Undoubtedly during the war women sacrificed a great deal. Women had the hard end of the war to bear, for it was the part that had to be borne silently, and often was a burden links, but he plays a perfect game as crown that was to last forever. Having become accustomed, as it were, to sacrificing, would the women of Canada be willing to give up just a little more for their country?

The Victory Loan, 1919, is to be the bridge from war to peace. A REMARKABLE CONVERSATION. The following remarkable dialogue took place in the wilds of darkest Africa, away back in the year 1862, between Sir Samuel Baker, the noted explorer, and Commoro, the chief of the Latooko negroes of equatorial Africa: Sir S.—Have you no belief in a future life

Com.-Life after death! How can a dead man get up out of his grave?

Sir S.-Do you think that man is like beast, that dies and is ended? Com.—Certainly. An ox is stronger than man, but he dies. Sir S.—Is not a man superior to an ox

Has he not a mind to direct his actions? Com.-Some men do not know as much as an ox. Men must sow corn to get food, but the ox can get it without sowing.

Sir S.-Do you know that there is a spirit within you which is more than flesh? Do you not wander in thought to distant places while you are asleep, and yet your body rests in one spot? How do you account for this?

Com.-Well, how do you account for it? It is a thing I cannot understand.

Sir S .- The body will die and become dust

Sir S .- Where does fire live? By rubbing two sticks together you make fire, yet you cannot see the fire in the wood. So is the Com.-Ha! Can you explain what I often see at night when lost in the jungle? Wandering in the darkness. I see a distant fire, but upon approaching the fire it goes away, nor can I find where it was.

Sir S .- Have you no idea of spirits, and are you not afraid of them?

Com.-I am afraid of elephants and other big animals in the jungle at night, but of noth-

Sir S.—Then you believe that when you die it will be the end of you; that you are like other animals, and that at death both man and beast disappear and end?

Com.-Of course, I do. Sir S.-Do you see no difference between good and bad actions?

Com.-Yes. There are good and bad among men and beasts.

Sir S .- Do you think that a good man and Jutting eave of a hollow tree. a bad man must share the same fate-must die

WET WEATHER.

[By John Breck.] A wild west wind comes bearing the first autum storm. He sweeps over the woodlands, and the trees lift their voices and bow before him as though to conciliate his power. Only one old wateroak ventures to complain as he leans heavily against an ash. The wind races on, out across the pastures. He shakes the fat green pillows of the milkweed until the feathers fly: gayly they soar until a spiteful burst of rain beats them to earth.

The story of the title borne by the heirs to the British throne dates back to the days of Llewelyn, the last of the Welsh princes when that pulletin says. "In Welsh legend, song and story Llewelyn is a veritable King Arthur, and his prother, David, was the traitorous Modred of his his heir, afterward Edward I., with all the Engish royal claims in Wales, it might have been supposed that Llewelyn would try to placate the young brince. The battle of Evesham, fought while Henry III. was yet living, had resulted in many

"For five years Wales was quiet. Then David, "Through and through he was a materialist, who had aided the English king against his brother, headed a revolt against English rule, set a torch to Hawarden Castle, and precipitated a war in which Llewelyn was killed, and Edward was conqueror of Wales.

There was an ancient prophecy that the Prince of Wales some day would be crowned in London Heaven by force, trying to improve civilization in mockery of that, it is believed, Edward had Llewelyn's head brought to London and wreathed in ivy to show the people.

"While Edward was making sure of his subjugation of Wales by building a string of castles, Queen Eleanor joined him, and in the newly mpleted Carnarvon a son was born, who became the first English Prince of Wales, and later was King Edward II. According to a popular story the conqueror exercised his grim humor by prom sing the Welsh a prince who could speak no English, construed to mean a native son, until Edward announced, upon the birth of his son, that the infant was the Prince of Wales in question. Whether that story be true or not, the heir apparently was not formally invested with the title until heir to the British throne has been known as the Prince of Wales, though usually he has been invested with the title, and not so endowed upon

The point of doubt is whether he actually did stumble over the body of the valient John the Blind of Bohemia, after the battle of Crecy, and was so struck with admiration of the sightless warrior, who had his charger attached to horses of his companions so he might not fail in loyalty to his ally, Philip of France, that Edward plucked the insignia from his enemy's uniform and to wear it forever after. At least Edward's own bravery on that occasion, and his chivalry upon many others, make it entirely plausible that he should acknowledge the valor of an enemy. roung prince had engaged, and his father, Edward reinforcements in leash while his son fought against eat odds. Permit me to thank my numerous friends throughout the riding who have given me and the cause I represent such enthusiastic support. We have demonstrated the fact that old pary ties can be severed when a great principle is at stake. Our victory is largely due to the splendid band of workers who so ably assisted me in presenting to the electors our platform and the broad principles for which we stand. This is especially true of the lady workers, who were so untiring in their efforts to raise politics to a higher level and present the facts in their true light, and particularly the fact regarding the temperance issue, on which the United Farmers give no uncertain sound.

I feel you have laid on me a great responsibility, especially at this critical reconstruction period. I shall endeavor to prove faithful to the trust you have reposed or $30,000,000 was required to put the Grand Trunk road into good working order. The Government, however, when bringing down this legislation, chose to advance the opinion of the president of the Grand Trunk, who said the road was in perfect condition. "In other words," said Mr. Cahill, "the man who sells us the gold brick assures us that it is pure gold."

Mr. Cahill said he was apprenensive that the Government roads, if unsuccessful under public ownership, would eventually fall into the hands of Mackenzie and Mann. The Mackenzie and Mann crowd was still very much interested in their management. They were selling supplies for the Government roads and making money out of them. The Canadian Northern Railway gang still had its finger in the ple. Before any arbitration proceeding were started the friends of the Government and the C.N.R. crowd had been made safe. Mr. Cahill thought that if the question were put before the people of Canada and they were given full information the Government would find that not only the Opposition but the whole country was against any addition for this Grand Trunk stock.

King for Prince.

King for Prince.

W. F. Cockshutt, Brantford, complimented the new arrival on the Opposition front benches as a "king for prince," and an addition to "the wise men from the east" now found leading the Liberal party. He said he could not understand a man so well versed in labor matters who did not advocate public ownership of utilities. If Mr. King had not read the amendments moved by the leader of the Opposition he commended it to Mr. King's notice. The laboring classes generally felt if there were any profit to be gained from public utilities that profit should go to the people.

Continuing, Mr. Cockshutt said that this was an intricate bill and he could well understand some of the members not being able to fathom all its details.

Mr. Cockshutt said that public ownership had never had a fair show in Canada. Nor had the Canadian Northern Railway had a fair chance to show what it could do. On of the reasons what it could do. On of the reasons why public ownership of railways had not succeeded so well in the Dominion, he thought, was because in the eastern part of Canada there seemed to be a group of forces in opposition to public ownership. But public ownership, said Mr. Cockshutt, was here to stay. There were too many people pounding public ownership, he declared. Why not start boosting instead of knocking, and give the Canadian National Railways a chance to make good? If loyal support were given to this great national enterprise there was no good reason why it prise there was no good reason why it should not make a fair financial show-ing before long. Friendly to C. P. R. Friendly to C. P. R.

He was sorry, he said, to see so much opposition to the acquisition of the Grand Trunk emanating from the province of Quebec. He thought the businessmen of that province should change their attitude. No one was more friendly to the Canadian Pacific Railway than he was. It was a fine road, well administered, and a credit to the country. Therefore, when he advocated public ownership and the amalgamation of all railways in Canada other than the Canadian Pacific Railway, it was not in a spirit of antagonism to that great system.

Mr. Cockshutt figured that the an-Mr. Cockshutt figured that the annual interest charges of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific would amount to $18,500,000. Of this amount $13,500,000 had always been paid by the railways. There was no reason is should not also be paid under public ownership. As far as the McKenzie amendment was concerned, he said, that it was one thing to riddle a policy full of holes, but quite another to put a new policy in its place. He thought that if the statements made in the McKenzie amendment were correct, the leader of the Opposition should have submitted a better policy.

Some Bad Features.

Mr. Cockshutt said there were one or two features of the measure he did not like, although he intended to vote for it. Three judges might be appointed as arbitrators, and he would rather take the opinion of some railway man or good businessman than that of three judges.

Mr. Rowell interposed that the bill did not provide for the appointment of three judges. It simply provided that in case two of the arbitrators could not agree on the third, the third was to be appointed by three judges.

Mr. Cockshutt continued that he would like to see some limit placed on the award, as was done in the case of the Canadian Northern Railway. Otherwise he was afraid that public ownership was going to be stuck with values that did not exist. A worse blow could not be given to public ownership than to overpay for the properties. Public ownership was not getting a fair show if properties were acquired at more than their market value.

Hon. Mackenzie King, who on rising was loudly cheered by the Opposition, intimated that he had asked D. D. Mc-Kenzie to continue as House leader of the Opposition during the remainder of the session. Mr. King spoke of seats being kept vacant.

his seat in the House of Commons this afternoon. He was introduced by D. D. McKenzie and Hon. W. S. Fletling, and occupied the chair usually occupied by Mr. Lemieux.

Dr. Reid referred to an item which he said appeared in the Regina Leader a few days ago, nav ng reference to an alleged meeting between himself, other members of the Government, Sir William McKenzie and Sir Clifford Sifton in Sir William McKenzie's private car in Ottawa. The intent on of the item was to attempt to crears the impression that the latter two gentlement were in some way consulted in regard to the Government's policy on the Grand Trunk.

The item, Dr. Reid declared, was a false and a supplementation of the most important measures and ever come before the Parliament of Canada.

Dr. Sheard asked if Gaspe and Malsonneauve were represented in the House that its business was almost at any end. Accepting that statement in good faith, the representative of those constituencies had gone overseas. There was no intimation in the speech from the throne that the Grand Trunk bill would be brought down. And if there were any purpose in the speech from the throne, it was that members of Parliament and the people should know what legislation would be brought up.

for the selection of the third arbitrator in case those appointed by the company and the Government failed to agree. The agreement which Mr.
Smithers had accepted had provided that Sir Louis Davies and Sir Walter
Cassells should select the third arbitrator in the event of disagreement.
He asked that this be confirmed by the Government.

He asked that this be confirmed by the Government.

The minister of railways stated that there was no intention to depart from this arrangement and that it would stand.

Mr. King also asked the Government

stand.

Mr. King also asked the Government to fix a date prior to the publication of the news of the Government's intention to acquire the road as a basis for obtaining the value of the stocks. Ever since the news had come out that the Government proposed taking over the Grand Trunk its stock had been going up. He thought' that if the stock market quotations were to be taken into account by the arbitration board, quotations previous to the Government's announcement of policy were the ones to be considered.

Dr. Reid replied that nothing would be done in this regard which would prove injurious to the Canadian people.

No Mandate Given.

The bill, in the opinion of Mr. King, was nothing more than an agreement for the transfer of the management of the Grand Trunk Railway to the men who had managed the old Canadian Northern Railway. It was also an agreement which would enhance the value of Grand Trunk stock and force upon the people of Canada all the liabilities of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific. He asked the Government to defer putting through the measure at any rate until the prime minister was in the House. It was perfectly competent for them to make a working agreement with the Grand Trunk if desirous of doing so, but a Government elected to win the war had not been given a mandate to put through a deal of this character.

Members should be allowed to go home and consult their constituents with regard to the deal. The people should be given a chance to express their views. "What we need," said Mr. King, "is more control of Pariament by the people, and more control of the executive by the people's representatives."

Businessmen Opposed.
G. B. Nicholson supported the measure. L. A. Lapointe read lengthy statements from newspapers showing that prominent Montreal businessmen were opposed to Government ownership of the Grand Trunk of the "spectacle" which the Opposition had presented. Mr. Lapointe had been reading extract after extract to show that the Government was embarking on ownership of the Grand Trunk. At the same time, the leader of the Opposition had endeavored to show that this was not public ownership. He had tried to prove that if the transaction went through the Government would not be owners of the Grand Trunk railway.

"May I ask if the Government gets the four per cent guaranteed stock?" queried Mr. King, interrupting.

"The debenture stock is simply a mortgage," Dr. Reid replied. "The Government would get the three preference stocks and the common steck. The would be handed over to the Dominion Government and placed in the Government vaults at Ottawa." The voting power of the guaranteed stock was taken away, and it was treated as the original debenture stock.

Thirty Years Hence.

Mr. King—And what the Government gets is the right to purchase the guaranteed stock in 30 years from now. It does not get the stock of the present time.

Dr. Reid—We don't have the script transferred to us. We don't want to buy it now.

"What becomes of Government ownership then?" Mr. King pursued.

Dr. Reid—That stock was paid for at 100 cents on the dollar. We are getting it at four per cent. If we paid for it now we would have to pay 5½ or 6 per cent.

Mr. King—As I understand the minis—

The position of the Opposition, said Dr. Reid, was: "Let's go home, no matter what happens to the railways or to the country."

"The leader of the great party opposite," Dr. Reid went on, Government members cheering, "comes into the House and says, "We want to go home." The debate ended at midnight. As Government members sang "Oh. My, I Don't Want to Die, I Want to Go Home." the House divided, Arbitrate All Four.

Dr. Reid responded that the four stocks would be submitted to arbitration and a value placed on them. Mr. King, Dr. Reid said, was trying to make the people of Canada believe the Government was taking the stock and issuing an equivalent scrip bearing four per cent interest.

Mr. King: "What I say is this: The arbitrators will say what is the value of the stock; then the Government proposes to give the holders of the stock a Government stock bearing the Government guarantee and carrying four ernment stock bearing the Government guarantee and carrying four per cent interest. The Government gives back what the arbitrators say is the equivalent value."

Dr. Reid repeated that the Government guarantee are guaranteed to be a considered to be a consider

Dr. Reid then remarked that the leader of the Opposition was evidently afraid to declare himself a supporter of public ownership. The country, he said, was faced with a railway tangle which was a legacy from the Liberal administration. The Grand Trunk Railway could not continue to live if it had to meet he obligations of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but the Government could not afford to take over the Grand Trunk the paying end of the system, go free.

Demand Still Big.

During the first seven months of this year the excess exports totalled $2,673,000,000, Mr. Morrow said. He explained that this "indicated that the demand upon America by a world endeavoring to put itself back on a peace footing is fully as great as the demand the war itself made."

"I believe, however, the turn has come," he continued, "I believe that the exports by the United States to Europe must gradually diminish and the imports into this country from Europe must gradually increase. Neither of these results should be deplored.

"At this time, when we are complaining of the high cost of living, we should welcome an increase in our imports of those things that Europe can make for us better than we can make them for ourselves."

Believes Exports to Europe

AND IMPORTS INCREASE

Such a Condition To Be Hoped

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 23 .-

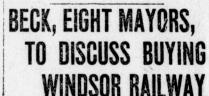

The United States faces the problem of extending by next summer approximately two billion dollars in international credits to the war-torn countries of Europe. Dwight W. Morrow, of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., declared in an address on "The Problem of International credits" before the international trade conference here tonight. He said that the people of this country would have "to produce and save" to aid in this big financiar plan.

European countries were not coming to the United States seeking charity, Mr. Morrow said, but they were asking us, in our strength, to co-operate with them in their strength to rebuild and restore their productive capacity."

In explaining that the export balance between this country and Europe vitally affects the problem of international credits, Mr. Morrow said that the excess of merchandise exports from July 1, 1914, to July 1, 1919, amounted to approximately $14,200,000,000. He asserted that this export balance was settled by the payment of $940,000,000 in gold imports, $9,615,000,000 ernment, $2,575,000,000 loaned by private enterprises of this country, and the remainder "apparently settled by invisible items."

make for us better than we can make them for ourselves."

In closing, Mr. Morrow asserted that if the United States were to extend $2,000,000,000 in credit to Europe in a single year the people "must produce and save." He also said that private enterprise and individuals who had money to lend must "find people in Europe to whom they are willing to lend it."

Geddes Preparing

LONDON. Oct. 31 .- Sir Eric Geddes, LONDON. Oct. 31.—Sir Eric Geddes, minister of transport, according to the Central News, is preparing a scheme for state control of railroads and canals. This became known after the conference of delegates of the national union of railway men with Premier Lloyd George, which was resumed today. (Conferences of the railway men with the Government regarding the future administration of the railways had been interrupted after the settlement of the recent strike.)

TRADE CONFERENCE

Methods Are Being Devised To Finance War Reconstruc-

Atlantic City, Oct. 24.-The international trade conference, which for five days has been considering the financial and industrial problems of Great Bri-tain, France, Italy and Belgium and atempting to devise methods by which the United States might aid them, en-tered its final stage today. Before the conference adjourns tonight, a permanent international organization of businessmen will be a reality. The tentative plan of this organization has already been unanimously accepted for 46 sub-committees and its acceptance by the inference as a whole is considered a mere formality.

Virtually every problem considered by the conference has been closely associated with, if not altogether dependent upon, the question of financing the war stricken countries. Delegates of France, Italy and Belgium—Great Bri-tain alone excepted, asked American businessmen to provide special credit arrangements during the period of re-construction and for that reason the report to be submitted today by the American committee on credit and finance is eagerly awaited by all the delegates.

MILNER PROTESTS AGAINST A CHANGE IN FISCAL POLICY

Declares There Is No Occasion for Panicky Views.

DEFENDS GOVERNMENT

Says Radical Departure in Financial Methods Will Cause Untold Harm.

London, Oct. 23 .- Opposition to any change in fiscal policies of Great Britain and a plea for careful consideration of the situation before the country, were expressed in the House of Lords today by Viscount Milner, secretary of state for the colonies, who replied to criticisms of the government by Lord Buckmaster, who introduced a resolution calling attention to the "gravity of the financial position," and suggesting the necessity for the imposition of additional tares tional taxes.

"I deprecate panicky views which are prevalent regarding the country's financial position," said Viscount Milner, whose statements were considered as the government view of the situation. "The position, though grave, is far less serious than that in any other great country, with the possible exception of the United States and Japan. It certainly does not justify any rash changes in the fiscal system, and no proof has been given that additional taxation is necessary. Nothing, should be done been given that additional taxation necessary. Nothing should be done until after deliberate and careful study. Irreparable mischief might be done to the recovery of trade and industry by recourse to such an expedient as a general capital levy, which has been proposed by Lord Buckmaster."

Defends Government.

Viscount Milner warmly defended the government against charges of neglect to care for the financial status of the untry.

"There have been a number of aderse circumstances, such as the delay the streamstances, such as the delay in arranging the terms of peace, troubles in Afghanistan and Egypt, and unsettled conditions in the Near East, which have prevented the curtailing of expenditures." he said. "Our position is regrettable, at it is not catastrophic. and the proper way is to regard this year's deficit as part of the war burden. It is quite certain we shall receive several hundred millions next year from the liquidation of war assets, and the debits of our dominions may be regarded as good debts. The amounts recoverable from foreign countries and garded as good debts. The amounts recoverable from foreign countries and Germany are certainly speculative, but it would be preposterous to suppose that foreign countries are going to default in their obligations. Such an assumption would be an insult to our great allies."

But the chief subject of debate was the commerce board.

The deputation did not ask for the discontinuation of the board, so much as a change of method and personnel. The members contended that in its hunt for evidence the board frequently caused serious inconvenience to firms engaged in fair and legitimate business. They objected to the assumption that ability to make profits was reprehensible thing. The fact that one firm made higher profits than another of equal capitalization, they contended should not be construed as an evidence of improper practice or profiteering on the part of the first, but might very well mean than the first was conducted on greater lines of the efficiency than the latter, a condition which should be

They contended that the public was getting the impression that any firm which made profits was bleeding the public. The delegation contended that preliminary investigations by the board at least should be conducted in camera, since they objected to publicity being given to the private affairs of concerns. If the preliminary hearing disclosed improper practices then thereafter there should be the fullest possible publicity. They warned the Government that increased production would be hampered by undue interference with business affairs. They further complained about the personnel of the board, declaring that two lawyers and a labor representative did not constitute a well balance tribunal. A businessman of outstanding ability should be added.

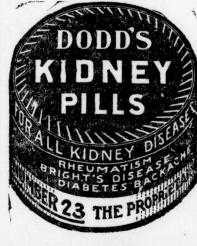

The farmers on the other hand contend that an agriculturist should be added. The Government, while promising consideration to the representations, declared that the creation of the board was in response to widespread public demand. The consumer must be given every consideration, more especially in view of the fact that the consumer was not organized to the same extent as either the manufacturer or the farmer.

Donald Sutherland Says Thousands of Animals Killed

OTTAWA, Oct. 23 .- The adulteration of bran and shorts by Canadian millers was costing the farmers and dairymen of Canada large sums annually in loss of bran and shorts by Canadian millers was costing the farmers and dalrynfen of Canada large sums annually in loss of cattle from the effect of poisonous seeds in bran and shorts, the standing committee on agriculture was told this morning by Donald Sutherland, South Oxford. Millers, he said, had been adulterating their by-products for years by the addition of screenings and weed seeds, and no prosecution had ever been made.

He said that referring the act back to the agricultural committee after being given second reading was an unusual procedure. There should have been no hesitation in passing the bill, and there was no need for recalling the millers. They had asked to be heard, but could not reach Ottawa before Friday. The chairman, R. C. Henders, suggested that the committee have a general discussion and then adjourn. Wanted Fuil Hearing.

When Mr. Sutherland began to outline the evils of the present act, the chairman asked the committee if he should allow a general resume of the situation at this time. Mr. Sutherland wanted a full hearing. He objected to bringing the millers here again, when they had alseady been heard. There was an attempt, he thought, to delay this bill and let the millers continue robbing the people in this way. Severel members protested against halting Mr. Sutherland, and John Best. Dufferin, threatened to walk out of the committee if Mr. Sutherland was not allowed to proceed.

The chairman ruled that Mr. Sutherland be heard.

Mr. Sexsmith and Mr. Best supported the passage of the amendment. There was highway robbery of the farmers, said Mr. Sexsmith, and the dust and dirt of the mills was sold to them. Fear of losing the dust at Port Colborne had led to the closing of the explosion and endangering of lives. In 1908, said Mr. Sexsmith, one firm in Canada had been allowed to grind up peat turf and muck, mix it with molasses and sell it as dairy feed.

Mr. Sutherland seid the amendment as provided was a guard against adulteration, which was the real cause of the manner was a supplementat

ACTING PREMIER IS CONFIDENT OF LOAN'S SUCCESS

Sir George Foster Sure People Will Do Their Duty Nobly.

SPEAKS IN TORONTO

Years of Reconstruction Ahead, Burdens Are Still Heavy.

TORONTO, Oct. 23 .- Five hundred Victory Loan workers, among them 150 men who a year ago were fighting in France, met in Toronto tonight to discuss plans for the Victory Loan drive which starts on Monday, and to hear an address from Sir George Foster, an address from Sir George Foster, acting prime minister. J. W. Mitchell presided and speeches were delivered, in addition to Sir George's, by E. R. Wood, T. A. Russell and E. L. Ruddy. Toronto's objective in the Victory Loan drive is $90,000,000, but the workers are confident that they will raise much more than that amount. Trophies will be awarded to the teams making the highest collections as well as to those leading day by day.

The speakers referred to the splendld organization in Toronto and expressed confidence in the success of the loan.

Sir George Foster informed the gathering that any fears the Government ering that any fears the Government had had as to the success of the loan had been dispelled and the Government was confident that the people would do their duty as strongly and nobly as they had before. The unity of spirit which now prevailed in Canada, he said, if injected and made permanent, would be one of the chief factors in the development of the country. It was worth untold millions if that spirit were kept dominant in Canada, The future of Canada, he was sertain was assured.

INTERIOR INTO THE CONTROL OF CANADA. The future of Canada, he was sertain was assured. Slightly Different.

Referring directly to the Victory Loan, he stated that the patriotic appeal was a little different than in previous loans. Then it had been purely human; but now it was for the success of the country. The country, he said, must function. Heavy burdens still had to be carried. Long years of reconstruction were ahead. The period of saving was not over. The gospel of thrift must be preached for many long years. Production must be kept up, not only for foreign trade. Farming and all business must be kept going. Canada still was passing through a war period, and her obligations must be paid. Her prospects were illimitable if she kept on in the path she was going.

In conclusion, Sir George stated that in order to carry on the government of the country democratic government must be upheld. Little groups of irresponsible leaders could not hope to govern Canada or to work for freedom of government. He urged everyone to unite under sane leadership for democratic government in Canada. General Motors of Canada, Limited, has arranged to subscribe $1,000,000 to the Victory Loan.

CREIGHTON HALE IN THRILL FILM

"The Thirteenth Chair" Built On Crime at Spiritualistic Seance.

"The Thirteenth Chair," cram full of thrilling scenes from start to finish, drew capacity audiences to the Patricia Theatre at the afternoon and evening performances yesterday, despite the fact that for many outside attractions performances yesterday, despite the fact that for many outside attractions were strong.

Creighton Hale plays the leading part in the picture supported by an especially good cast. The story is all about a crime which takes no amateur detective to unfold, but Creighton Hale, as investigator works with great speed creating scenes which hold the audience spell-bound.

The New York stock markets coupled with the strong desire for someone else's wife is the basis of the story. Those who are interested in spiritualistic scenes will enjoy the picture. The crime is committed, while a scene is in session and another scene is held to find the perpetrator. The scenes depicting superstitution and belief in spiritualism are very amusing. The snow scenes and wonderful gowns introduced into the picture are in themselves a striking attraction.

A funny comedy picture, "Safe Danger," gives the audience fifteen minutes of laughter, and the Mutt and Jeff cartoon is one of the best screened in a long while.

The comedy trio gives a delightful little set of songs interspersed with a long while.

The comedy trio gives a delightful little set of songs interspersed with piano numbers and fancy dancing. This excellent program will be repeated to-day and on Saturday.

"QUEEN ZEPHRA" WITH MUSICAL AND SCENIC BEAUTY PACKS GRAND

Sparkling Spectacle Justifies Amateur Talent Under Skilful Leadership.

The Grand Opera House was filled to the last seat Thursday evening when the Acadian Club presented for the first time "Queen Zephra," a mammoth time "Queen Zephra," a mammoth musical spectacle, entirely upheld by local talent. So great was the enthusiasm of the audience that the next three performances promise to be just as well attended.

In "Queen Zephra" the presentation of a professional performance with mateur talent is surely justified, for so skillful has been the direction of Elmo A. Drake that a truly fine production is the result. In it excellent musical numbers are rendered by some of the best local talent, who take leading roles.

of the best local talent, who take leading roles.

Mrs. C. McKormick-Brickenden Leads.

Mrs. Catherine McKormick-Brickenden as Zephra, the beautiful Queen of the Myth, who is the supreme monarch throughout the performance, has found a role admirably suited to display her majestic bearing and experience in act-ing. Special mention should also be made of Ernest N. Harding as King made of Ernest N. Harding as kins-Decius, one of the satellites which re-volve about her throne. His part of enraged dignity, when the queen tries to force his hand and get his consent to the marriage of his daughter to his greatest enemy, Prince Juna, gives admirable scope for acting, and his fine voice, and Mr. Harding has certainly seized the opportunity.

The part of this same Prince Juna is excellently taken by Charles Jolley.

is excellently taken by Charles Jolley, who plays the Romeo to perfection Miss Marjory Talbot makes a charming Princess Neyera, his love, and soon won the audience with her beautiful vocal numbers. The rest of the court circle are gorgeous in costume, so that every scene is rich and sparkling in color effects.

Last Scene Most Brilliant.

Perhaps the most spectacular scene is the closing one of all, when the whole cast of nearly 150 people is assembled in the Garden of Dragons, the queen on a raised throne, and aloft at the back, in his sparkling costume, tiny Cupid reigning supreme, while still higher out of a filmy mist appears the fairy godmother in her shimmering robes.

Another scene with great spectacular Another scene with great spectacular effect and which gives scope for an infinite variety of color combinations and beautiful musical and dance effects is the carnival scene, when the queen and her suite retire to a raised dias at the back and witness her subjects at play. Several beautiful and fascinating play. Several beautiful and fascinating solo dances and ensemble dances are accompanied by vocal numbers and a chorus, which was the hit of the chorus, which was the hit of the evening.

This chorus and comic dance is called "The Newsboys," the small artists in their comical patches and rags taking the audience by storm with their antics and singing. Theirs was the only recall last evening, as the program is long, but so insistent was the clapping which soon turned to shrieking, that they had to appear again.

Miss Beam Fascinating.
Miss Madeline Beam should be specially mentioned for her beautiful solo

Miss Madeline Beam should be specially mentioned for her beautiful solo dancing, first in Hawsian costume, when she executed a fascinating snake dance, and then in a beauty dance, which was extremely effective. With her should also be mentioned Miss Bessie Brown, who rendered a very beautiful solo dance in picturesque costume. Among other dance numbers are two in which children took part. "The Blackbirds," and a very pretty "Flower two in which children took part. "The Blackbirds," and a very pretty "Flower Dance." A striking number on the carnival performance is that which shows the old-fashioned minuete and modern fox-trot in contrast, both being exetuted on the stage at the same time, and with the same music.

10,000 Yards Confetti Shower.

A vocal duet and dance steps by Miss Eleanor Husbands and Miss Luta Lay-mon is another attractive number, as is the trio "Mine," in which Luta Layis the trio "Mine," in which Luta Laymon, Irene Parkinson and Idna Bray take part. Other numbers are the drill of the Red Hussars' guard to Queen Zephra, a Venetian dance, and a very unusual little dance, the "Dance of the Nymphs," whose wings are the flags of the Allies. At the close of the carnival a most spectacular effect is produced by a shower of 10,000 yards of serpentine confetti, with which the dancers are entwined.

"Queen Zephra," is produced by Elmo A. Drake, assisted by the Grand Orchestra with A. D. Jordan at the piano. Between acts Hawaian music is supplied. Part of the proceeds is in aid of the proposed Sick Children's Hospital, and an I. O. D. E. committee is selling programs and music at the selling programs and music at the theatre each night. The attention of contestants is called two important features in connection with the prizes.

1. While the amount you pay for subscription to The Advertiser has no effect on your winning a prize, it does affect the value of the first five prizes should you win one of them. Publishing a Great Magazine Without Typesetters

The members of the typographical union, which prints THE LITERARY DIGEST and practically all other magazines published in New York City, presented demands to the employing printers on October 1st which were so radical that they could not be acceded to. While negotiations were still pending, the typesetters, without notice, went on a "vacation" and are still out, in direct defiance of the orders of their own union chief to return to work.

The International heads of the typographical union have disavowed the action of the New York local union men and have refused International support.

For this reason it has become necessary to issue THE LITERARY DIGEST without the assistance of typesetters. We believe this is the first case on record where a million copies of a great magazine of eighty pages, with handsome colored covers, have been issued without the typesetters. How the "Digest" for October 25th was published will be readily understood by those familiar with modern typographical practise. To others it will be an interesting puzzle which we will not spoil as yet by explanation.

Revolutionizing the Publication Business

There is one phase of this experiment, however, that has deep significance, not only for the publishing fraternity, but to the public at large. As stern necessity is oftentimes the mother of invention, it is not impossible that in this age of marvels the whole future of magazine publication may be revolutionized by the elimination of what has hitherto been its costliest operation—the typesetting. The present departure, as shown by the "Digest" in this week's issue, now on sale, will certainly furnish a basis for many other experiments to this end.

Whenever any class of men or women refuses to keep faith with society, refuses to carry out the terms of its written contracts, society will somehow find ways nevertheless to get its business done.

This is one lesson of the present situation—and a wholesome one.

Wholly aside from its novel appearance, the October 25 number of THE LITERARY DIGEST is of unusual interest. It is packed from cover to cover with live news, covering many fields of human endeavor.

GERMAN OPERA SINGERS EGGED

N. Y. Mounted Police Fight Mob Outside Theatre Where Riot Is Staged.

New York, Oct. 23 .- Rioting broke out again tonight around the Lexington Theatre, when for the second time this week the Star Opera Company produced German opera over the protest of veterans of the world war. The opera was sung amid a volley of eggs.

With several hundred policemen posted around the theatre a column of soldiers, sailors, marines and civillans who marched from Times Square to the opera house, were hurled back and dispersed. The mob was stopped at Lexington avenue and Fifty-second street, but before the column was broken, bricks and bottles sped through the air.

Truck Leads Mob.

Defeated, the attacking party departed to get reinforcements. A few minutes later they reappeared, headed by a motor truck containing nearly two score men. Theatre, when for the second time this by a motor truck containing nearly two score men.

The truck dashed through the police and proceeded about a block before it was met by a squad of mounted police. The riders charged into the truck and attacked its occupants. Two of the latter—a soldier and a sailor—were injured, one so severely that the ambulance surgeon who attended him expressed the opinion that he might die. Armed with a temporary injunction granted by Supreme Court Justice Bijur restraining the police from carrying out Mayor Hylan's order to prevent the performance, producers of the opera rang up the curtain promptly.

Egg Barrage From Box.

The singers had hardly appeared on the stage when an occupant of an upperbox, rising, laid down a barrage. Theatre employees complained to detectives afterward that he had hurled his eggs "in the same fashion that hand grenades are thrown."

A young man in civilian clothes, who gave his name as "John Doe," and who said his vocation was salesmanship and not soldiering, was arrested. At the police station an egg was found in his pocket.

The police took unusual precautions to prevent any disturbance. All but ticket-holders were held back more than two blocks from the theatre.

Only Few Enter Theatre.

Thousands of spectators gathered at the theatre, but although the management announced that the house, which holds 4,000, had been sold out, only about 150 persons were seen to enter.

American Legion officials in Greater New York were besieged all day by hundreds of persons asking what could be done to prevent tonight's performance. Among these were mothers of former service men, who wanted to send their sons to help break up the performance, according to Major George Brokaw Compton, chairman of the New York county organizations.

To combat the impression that the legion indorsed rioting, Major Compton sent a telegram to all posts, in which he asked members to "stay away from the Lexington Opera House."

The rioting continued for several hours. A crowd breaking into a milk store, procured a supply of ammunition in the form of bottles, and engaged in a victous fight with the police The police were pressed so hard that they drew their revolvers and fired several shots in the air to force back the rioters.

Windsor Welcomes Prince-Smiles, Too Tired to Shake Hands, Tours City.

WINDSOR, Oct. 23.—"Edward P." heir to the British throne, came to Windsor this evening, and Windsor—ordinarily slow to enthuse—capitulated and fell before the smile of the sunny-faced scion of royalty. All afternoon the downtown street were affutter with flags and crowded with people. There were big folks and little folks, the latter wearing their prettiest white dresses, and all waiting for a prince to come out of the east.

and all waiting for a prince to come out of the east.

Sharp on time the royal train drew into the Grand Trunk station at 5:30 p.m., and as the band played the National Anthem, and the guard of honor saluted, the Prince of Wales stepped from his car and was officially welcomed to the city by Mayor E. B. Winter, W. C. Kennedy, M. P., and Major J. C. Tolmie, M. P.

Border Cities Welcome.

There was little delay on the station platform before the royal party in gally decorated automobiles drove off to the armories, where the city reception and welcome was held. After the prince had been escorted to a handsomely decorated dais in the rear of which a fountain played among a grove of palms, Mayor Winter for Windsor, Mayor King for Walkerville, Mayor Montreuil for Ford, Mayor Donnelly for Sandwich, and Mayor Woollatt for Ojibway, presented their formal addresses of welcome, to which the royal guest replied in his usual fitting manner.

Wrists Tired.

Then 250 school children massed at one end of the armories sang "O Canada." The prince smiled and waved his hand and as soon thereafter as the committee could manage it, an apparantly englies of respite as the committee could manage it.

committee could manage it, an apparently endless line of people passed before his royal highness. There was little or no handshaking, the prince's wrists were too tired for that, but to each one he gave a pleasant word usually accompanied by a smile, and the line moved on.

At 7 o'clock the reception terminated and the guest was driven to the Essex Country Club, in Sandwich, where dinner was served to a small party of selected guests. Tonight the royal train lies in a quiet spot on the Essex Terminal Railway, just back of Sandwich, from where the tour of the city will be made tomorrow morning. The prince will leave the city at 11 a.m.

Miss Canada Gives Account of Her Stewardship

And explains her War Financing to her citizens

Miss Canada: In humility, because of the sacrifices which have been made for me, but in pride because of the Spirit of Fortitude of your Sons, I come to enlist your most sympathetic support, as expressed by your financial aid, to enable me to meet the many obligations that still remain towards the men who fought. I also wish you to provide me with sufficient National Working Capital to consolidate the position in the world's markets, that you, by your industry, have so honourably won.

Citizens: Perhaps you might like to take this opportunity of telling us how you expended the $610,000,000 we loaned to you

Miss Canada: I would. You will recall that I asked you for funds to carry on the war, and to enable me to advance credits to Great Britain and our Allies, who, by their purchases here, have prospered our farms and factories. Do you want details?

Citizens: Yes. The more facts and figures you give us, the more fully will you answer the natural queries of those to whom you are now appealing for a further loan.

Miss Canada: Very well, then. I suggest you ask me questions. That is the best way to bring out the facts.

Citizens: How much of the Victory Loan 1918 did you use for war expenditures?

Miss Canada: Three-fifths of it -$380,900,000 in fact. Before giving this expenditure in detail I wish to explain that your demobilization expenses as against those of mobilization have been concentrated within a few months. The expense of transporting our Army overseas was spread over more than four years. Consequently the cost of it did not bulk so large in any one year's budget. But to bring home in a few months hundreds of thousands of men, spread from England, France and Flanders, Italy, Egypt, Palestine to far-off Siberia, was a gigantic and expensive task. It taxed all my resources.

Citizens: Realizing the conditions you faced, because of the shortage of shipping, and remembering that other parts of the Empire were eager for the speedy return of their men, we think you did very well. Give us now the details of your war expenditures.

Miss Canada: $312,900,000 was spent for the payment of soldiers since the Armistice—the cost of feeding them, part cost of bringing them home, separation allowances to their dependents, the maintenance of hospitals, their medical and nursing staffs, in Britain as well as Canada, the organization and conduct of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment (which includes the Vocational Training Schools) and the financing and operation of the Soldier's Land Settlement Act.

In addition to this, I have already authorized and am paying gratuities to soldiers on their discharge.

Citizens: What is the amount of the gratuity?

Miss Canada: I used $59,000,000 of the Victory Loan 1918 for this purpose, and expect to use $61,000,000 of Victory Loan 1919.

Citizens: Did you make any other disbursements under the heading of war

Miss Canada: Yes, $9,000,000 was spent at Halifax, to be used in reconstruction after the disaster.

Citizens: We quite appreciate the fact that these were all necessary war expendi-tures. Perhaps you will tell us now what you did in the way of advancing credits to Great Britain and our Allies?

Miss Canada: With pleasure. I advanced Great Britain $173,-500,000 to help purchase your grain; and I loaned her another $30,000,000 to buy other food stuffs.

Citizens: Did Great Britain buy any

Miss Canada: Yes, $9,000,000 worth. I loaned her the money to pay you for it.

Citizens: Were there any other loans to Great Britain?

Miss Canada: Yes, Great Britain bought $2,900,000 worth of ships built here. I loaned her the money to pay for them. Then I loaned her $5,500,000 to meet other obligations in connection with munition purchases.

Citizens: What security have you for all this?

Miss Canada: Great Britain's pledge to repay-backed by the resources that made her Banker, Manufacturer and Bulwark to ner Allies during the war.

Citizens: That's good enough. Did you do anything for our Allies?

Miss Canada: I loaned them $8,200,000 to buy your foodstuffs, raw material and manufactured products.

Citizens: That accounts for last year's Loan. Will you tell us now why you need another Loan, and how you purpose using it?

Miss Canada: I need another loan to finish paying the expenses of demobilization, since the proceeds of the 1918 Loan were exhausted. and to meet the obligations I still owe to your Soldier Sons. I also need money for National Working Capital.

Citizens: What are the obligations to soldiers? Miss Canada: The cost of bringing them home. The payment of all those still undemobilized, including sick and wounded, who are still in hospital, and who of course remain on the Army Payroll until discharged. The upkeep of hospitals, and their medical and nursing staffs.

Citizens: How much will these items entail?

Miss Canada: $200,000,000.

Citizens: Does that include the gratui-

Miss Canada: No. I shall need $61,000,000 of the New Loan to finish paying these.

Citizens: Will that include the money to finance the Dept. of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, including the Vocational Training Schools, and the working out of the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act?

Miss Canada: No. I estimate $57,000,000 for this. I have already approved loans to the amount of $26,000,000 to soldiers already settled on the land under this Act.

Citizens: How many soldiers are taking advantage of it?

Miss Canada: Up to August 15th, 29,495 soldiers had applied for land under the terms of the Act. 22,281 applications had been approved. 9,043 men were already placed on farms, and millions of acres will be under cultivation, that might otherwise be idle.

Citizens: What do you consider the great national advantage of having soldiers become farmers, apart from increased production of food.

Miss Canada: The love of outdoor life and the resourcefulness of our soldier citizens are just the qualities to make them successful farmers, and upholders of the best Canadian tradition.

Citizens: Have you any other war obligations?

Miss Canada: Not that I foresee. I have covered the major ones.

Citizens: You purpose extending further credits to Great Britain and our Allies, do

Miss Canada: Yes, to the extent that your Loan will permit me to.

Citizens: Why sell to Great Britain and our Allies if they can't pay cash?

Miss Canada: Their orders are absolutely essential to the continuance of your agriculture and industrial prosperity. The magnitude of their orders, and the amount of employment thus created will depend upon the success of the Victory Loan 1919.

Citizens: Will you explain simply this idea of credit, and why it is so necessary that we should give it?

Miss Canada: Farmers and manufacturers (and that includes the workers on these orders) must be paid cash for their products.

Therefore I must borrow money from you to give credit, temporarily, to Great Britain and our Actually, no money will pass out of Canada.

If you do not grant this credit, other countries will; and they will get the trade, and have the employment that should be yours, to distribute amongst their workers.

And remember, you absolutely need these orders to maintain employment. If you don't finance them, employment will not be as plentiful, business will feel the depression and conditions everywhere will be adversely affected.

Citizens: Will you use the proceeds of the Loan for any other purpose?

Miss Canada: Yes. I must carry out the National Shipbuilding and Reconstruction programme. I am also committed to advance loans to Provincial Housing Commissions.

Citizens: What are individual—personal advantages to be gained in buying Victory Bonds?

Miss Canada: The fact that Victory Bonds are among the world's premier investments-in security-in good interest yieldand in ready saleability.

Citizens: What do you mean by Security?

Miss Canada: I mean that the whole resources of Canada—all the assets of all the people—plus all the wealth yet to be discovered is behind my pledge to repay you your principal when due and to meet each interest payment.

Citizens: What do you mean by "good interest vield?'

Miss Canada: You receive on your savings deposits 3%. Invest in my Bonds, with the security of all Canada behind you, and you get $5\frac{1}{2}\%$.

Citizens: What do you mean by "ready

Miss Canada: I mean that if, at any time, you wish to get cash for Victory Bonds—that is, sell them you can do it at a moment's notice. Or, if you want to borrow money on them, any bank will loan it to you and accept them as security. For all practical purposes Victory Bonds are as good as money, except that if you keep a bill in a box at home, or in a vault, it doesn't earn interest—but Victory Bonds

Citizens: Would you advise a person to take money out of a Savings Bank and invest it in Victory Bonds, and if so, why?

Miss Canada: I would—because I pay almost double the interest paid by Savings Banks and my obligation is undoubted.

Citizens: Do you think Victory Bonds will increase in value?

Miss Canada: They ought to. Every person who subscribed to Victory Bonds last year has made money. I have every reason to believe my credit position must steadily advance.

Citizens: You have given a good account of your stewardship, Miss Canada, and realizing the obligations we have to our soldier sons,-our brothers-to our farmers and industrial producers-to our workers everywhere-to You, the Spirit of our beloved country-to those who have so gladly and gallantly died for her-we pledge ourselves to buy your Victory Bonds to the absolute limit of our ability, and thus ensure the realization of our highest and best aspirations for Canada and all Her peoples.

Cut this out and read it carefully. It will answer a great many of the questions you may be thinking of in connection with the Campbell, Maple Leaf Milling Company, said what the millers wanted was a frank discussion by which they could show that the millers of Canada were not robbing the farmers in carrying out their business. The millingers on one "stuff" the feeds, said Mr. Campbell. The wheat they bought was all that went into the bran and shorts. Screenings taken from the wheat before it was milled was put back into feed-stuffs, the witness admitted. To Mr. Campbell's knowledge, there was no pernicious seed in the wheat which they bought, John Best said the millers, in opposing this bill, wanted to pollute the forms.

Mr. Sutherland pointed out that the witness' company had a splendid reputation, as no impurities had been found in their bran and shorts. The witness said they had always put the screenings into their bran.

C. B. Watts, secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association, presented the case of the smaller millers of Ontario and Quebec. He said the price of flour and Dy-products must increase if this with the result that errors undoubtedly have taken place in the computation of the votes in many of the polling subdivisions and polling places throughout the entire province, and it is impossible now to say what was the vote on the different questions asked under the referendum act. The information received indicates that the error was discovered too late to possibly advise all deputy returning officers.

The Government stated that they desired to have a true mandate from the electors on the different questions.

case of the smaller millers of four and by-products must increase if this legislation were passed. He thought the whole matter should be left over and carefully considered. Mr. Sutherland called attention to the fact that the bill had been before the House all session and the millers had been given plenty of time on the bill.

Mr. Sutherland then introduced his motion that the legislation now in questions should be passed and put into effect.

Mr. Watts suggested that Canada should have the same law as the United States. This would allow the grinding of all seeds from the milling wheat, but would prevent the introduction of outside matter. The millers thought also there should be a closer definition of "adulteration" in the bill.

Mr. Sutherland's motion carried by fore, consider that the only proper action for the Government to take is to have a recount of the ballots in each and every polling place throughout the province. Yours very truly, T. L. MONAHAN, olicitor for Citizens' Liberty League

The attendant is one of the several whose duty it is to assist Parker in ironing the kinks out of his muscles whenever weather conditions or the little ills that old age brings makes the procedure necessary.

Veteran Parker was born in Alsace-Lorraine and is pleased because the land of his birth, as he says, "at last is in the hands of the people to whom it rightfully belongs."

Just before he celebrated his 100th birthday, he remarked that he would be "ready to 'cash in' the moment the Germans were beaten to a standstill."

WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 24—Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.—The collapse of the industrial conference and other labor developments probably accounted for the confusion of speculative sentiments at the opening of today's stock market. Steel shares, for example, moved contrarily with some of the equipments, but the tendency for the most part was toward improvement. Miscellaneous issues were prominent at substantial gains, notably Remington Typewriter and Lead. Ralis yesterday's most stable issue, reflected confident buying, especially transcontinentals and grangers.

1:30 p.m.—The demand for ralis broadened at midday, investment issues as represented by Reading and Southern Pacific being the outstanding feature. ern Pacific being the outstanding fea-tures. Shares of minor roads, especi-ally those traversing western and southwestern territories, also were steadily absorbed at substantial ad-vances.

He little thought when leaving home That he would ne'er return; But now he lies in a lonely grave,

But his photo on the wall. In God's safe keeping now you lie. Oft we think of you, dear Earl, And our hearts are filled with pain:

MASON—Corp. Merlin Mason, 78th In-fantry, 7th Machine Gun Company, accidentally killed at Camp Custer, October 14, 1918:

Not dead to those who loved him, Not lost, but gone before; He lives with us in memory still, And will forever more.

For memory is the only thing that grief can call its own;
What peaceful hours we once enjoyed, how sweet their memory still,
But they can leave an aching void this upon to die.

WINSLADE-In loving memory of Wallace Ernest Winslade, who died one year ago today of influenza:

That the smile hides all the while. Yet again we hope to meet thee, When the day of life has fled; There in heaven with joy to greet thee, Where no farewell tears are shed.

-Sadly missed by His Loving Wife and Sons, Leonard, Brock and Ewart.

arling son, Earl Byron, who was lled one year ago today, October

And we are left to mourn.

His cheery way, his smiling face,
Are a pleasure to recall; There is enothing left to answer

Oh, this earth would be a heaven,
Could we but hear your voice again,
b—Lonely Mother and Sisters.

ERCIVAL-In loving memory of my dear husband, Wesley W. Percival, who died October 22, 1918:
I often sit and think, when I am all For memory is the only thing that world can never fill.

So sad, yet so true, I cannot tell why.
The best are the first to be called WINSLADE — In loving remembrance of Wallace and William Winslade, who died one year ago today, Octo-ber 24, 1918.

One year has passed since that sad day God called the ones we loved away: Forget them, no. we never will, As time rolls on we love them still, —Father, Mother, Sisters and Brother

Friends may think that we forget thee When at times they see us smile; But they little know the sorrow That the smile hides all the while.

of the Orient and thrilling situations held the audiences at the Majestic on tip toe of excitement vesterday during the presentation of "The Witness for the Defence," a motion picture play that is the classic of the screen. Elsie Ferguson has never appeared to better advantage than in the role of Stella Derick. Her beauty and her emotional talent are offset by a role the appeal of which is heavily multiplied by her per

The drama derived from the play b A. E. W. Mason is the gripping story of a woman's sacrifice, her escape from the purgatory that this sacrifice brought about and her final happiness with the man she loves only after seemingly insurmountable obstacles have been over-

Produced under the direction of George Fitzmaurice, the picture revels in beautiful backgrounds, many of which represent India, a land always associated with the mysterious exotic drama.

Surrounded by the luxury of Indian princes, the wealth of kings, with great caravans bringing her treasures of the Orient, of wonderful skins and feathers and lewels; of great long trains of natives bringing the imported wonderful clothes of Paris and New York; every desire for comfort gratified, treated like royalty, this beautiful woman could find no happiness in life. Far in the jungle, with no other white people to associate with but her drunken husband, pitying the natives, loathing of the sensuously luxurious life she was forced to live, her restraint soon reached the breaking point, and the fatal shot rang out one night which freed her for ever from the horrible life. But the law claimed her as a menace to society, she whose life was as blameless as an angel's, and the law it was which set her forth to a life of torture in the cells. But the "Witness for the Defence" arrived in time, he lied, and saved her, but demanded his price. His purpose was not nobility, but he was a real man, a soldier of fortune, but honorable, and his price brought quick forgiveness, and forgetfulness of the old life of horrors, and opened the gates to a greater happiness and a great love. Surrounded by the luxury of Indian

HAD TO LIE IN BED MOST OF THE TIME

Mrs. Bartels Could Eat Only Milk and Crackers—Is Like New Person Now.

"Of all medicines in the world none can equal Tanlac," said Mrs. Henry Bartels of 706 Van Buren street, St. Paul, Minn., the other day.

"I suffered from indigestion so bad hat what I ate wouldn't stay on my stomach," she continued. "I had to diet myself for a long time on milk and crackers, and I lost weight rapidly, going from one hundred and thirty-five pounds down to one hundred and nineeen pounds, an actual loss of sixteen pounds in about three months' time. Gas would form on my stomach, and sometimes rise up into my chest and press against my heart so bad that I could hardly get my breath. I was restless all the time and couldn't sleep good at night. I had awful headaches, and at times I was so dizzy that I couldn't get out of bed in the morning. Finally got so frightfully rundown that I had to lie in bed most of the time, and have my daughter do the housework. I tried everything to build up my system, medi-cines, treatments, dieting and everything else I know of, but none of them did me any good. "One day I noticed in the paper about Tanlac, and decided to try it. And it proved to be the thing I've been looking for. I have taken four bottles now, and it seems to be like a dream the way I've improved. My appetite came right back, and it's the truth I can hardly get enough to eat now. I don't suffer at all from gas or indigestion, and that has made my breathing like it ought to be. I am never restless or nervous, and can sleep all night long, and when I get up I don't feel tired or drowsy like I used to, but feel rested and refreshed. Headaches and dizzy spells don't trouble me any more, and I'm gaining in weight and strength right along. It's wonderful how Tanlac has built up my whole system, and made a new woman out of ne altogether. I'm only too glad to tell others about my experience with such a emarkable medicine as Tanlac." Tanlac is sold in London by Standard Drug, Limited, and by an establish
