SUFFRAGETTE "FURIES" AGAIN PLY THE TORCH

Fires Which Did Damage to the Extent of $100,000 Are Attributed To "Arson Squad"

BUSINESS AND DWELLING HOUSES BURNED TO GROUND

"Wild Women" Obtain Entrance To Asquith's House and Create An Uproar

London, June 30.—After a brief lull, the activities of the female "furies" again aroused London to-day. A series of mysterious fires in South London, which did damage estimated at $100,000, is attributed to the Arson squad.

Several business houses were burned, two tenement houses, and fifteen families are made homeless. According to Scotland Yard, unmistakable evidence of incendiarism was found.

Through a Ruse

While the flames were burning their way through South London two women gained entrance to the Prime Minister's official residence in Downing Street, through a ruse. Pretending they had an appointment with the Premier, they were admitted by a servant. No sooner were they inside than they demanded an immediate interview, to "secure justice for women."

When it was learned that they were suffragettes, the servants tried to eject them. A violent scene ensued, during which one woman pulled a lock and chain from her dress and attempted to lock herself to the door, but she failed to do so. The police were summoned and the women were hurried away to jail, screaming.

Huerta Prepares to Leave Mexico

Reported that He has Already Sent His Family Out of the Country.

Washington, June 30.—Private dispatches received here to-day from unofficial sources in Mexico City, stated that President Huerta had sent his son and daughter towards New Mexico, and that he was making preparations for his own departure at short notice.

The information was conveyed to the State Department.

The Meigle arrived at Bay of Islands at 8.15 a.m. yesterday from Battle Harbor and intermediate ports and reported as follows:

Synod Adopt Motion Regarding School System; Debate Mission Subjects

Election of The Executive For The Biennial Term

Affirm Their Belief In And Adherence To Present Denominational Arrangement—Mr. Morine Speaks On Missions—Deputation From Lord's Day Alliance,

Tuesday, June 30. Synod met at 3.30, the Lord Bishop in the chair; 44 clergy and 27 lay delegates present.

J. W. Withers presented the Report of the Committee on Stipends and Assessments, and it was received.

Canon Bolt, Sir W. H. Horwood, Mr. L. Pittman, Mr. Withers, Rev. H. Uphill and Mr. Stirling gave notice of motion.

The Rev. H. J. Read moved and Sir W. H. Horwood seconded: "That this Synod affirms its adherence to the principle of denominational education for the public elementary schools of Newfoundland, and deprecates any attempt to alter the present modus vivendi in regard to the same; and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Government."

Dr. Lloyd, C. T. James and Canon Smith spoke on the motion, and it was carried unanimously.

Rev. H. Uphill then presented his motion in reference to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and made a strong plea for the object.

It was seconded by Canon Smith, and H. W. LeMessurier, Rev. A. E. Butler and Rev. T. G. Netten spoke. The motion was lost.

Rural Deans to Meet

The Bishop announced that the Rural Deans would meet at Bishop's Court to-morrow morning at 10.

The Lady Managers of the Orphanage have invited the members of the Synod to tea at 4.30 p.m. Thursday.

Rev. F. J. Smart then moved the adoption of the Report on the Home and Foreign Mission Fund, which was seconded by C. T. James. Canon Noel spoke in support of the motion.

Mr. A. B. Morine made his first speech for this session on this Bill, and gave the House some interesting facts of the Laymen's missionary movement in Toronto and Canada. Mr. Morine occupied the time of the House until recess hour and delivered a most impressive speech. He believed that the present is the time for the forward movement, and was confident that great things could be accomplished if the people were interested.

Evening Session

House met at 7.30; 51 clergy and 56 lay delegates present.

Rev. Canon Colley moved the Report of the Committee on the S.P.C.K. Rev. A. G. Bayley gave notice that he would on to-morrow move a vote of thanks to H.E. the Governor and Lady Davidson for their kindness, and also congratulate them on the honors conferred.

The debate on the H. & F. Mission Fund Report was resumed, Revs. Bolt, Higgitt, Bayley, Pittman, Field, Sir W. H. Horwood taking part.

A vote was taken, and the motion was lost.

Sir Wm. Horwood moved that the consideration of the Report on Stipends and Assessments be given precedence of all other business. The House agreed.

The election of the Executive Committee was then proceeded with.

At 9 p.m. the Synod received the deputation from the Lord's Day Alliance, consisting of Rev. J. S. Sutherland, M.A., Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh, M.A., B.D., and W. R. Stirling, Esq., Secretary.

Rev. Mr. Sutherland acted as spokesman and made an impressive speech, urging the objects of the Lord's Day Alliance. After greeting the Synod the speaker made touching reference to the death of the late C. S. Pinsent who was Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, as well as the Synod, he wore the flower of a blameless and pure life, and worthily carried that good old English name of gentleman.

He then dwelt upon the needs of the proper observance of the Day of Rest, because it was made of man. The Anglican Church in Newfoundland was always in the forefront in such movements, the Lord Bishop who presides so well over this House is the Honorary President, and he felt sure they would always have the fullest sympathy and support of the Synod.

The speaker had a most attentive audience and he was repeatedly applauded.

Bishop Replies

The Bishop replied briefly, assuring the deputation that the Synod has listened with interest to the address of Mr. Sutherland, and to the expression of views with which the Synod had been favored.

The deputation then withdrew, the Synod and audience standing as they left the floors of the chamber.

Rev. Canon Bolt then resumed his speech on the "Stipends and Assessments" report, which was subsequently adopted.

The scrutineers then returned to the room and reported to the President, who announced the following to be the "Executive" for the coming biennial term:

The Lord Bishop, The Commissary, The Secretary-Treasurer, Rev. Canon White, Rev. Canon Colley, Rev. G. R. Godden, Rev. T. G. Netten, Rev. J. Brinton, Sir W. H. Horwood, Sir J. Outerbridge, Hon. G. Knowling, Hon. G. Skeiton, H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., J. A. Clift, Esq., K.C., Hon. R. Watson, J. W. Withers, Esq.

WHITE WOLF GONE BUT BAND ACTIVE

Chinese Bandit Was Executed Three Months Ago, at His Followers Still Commit Wholesale Slaughters and Robberies.—Trade and Commerce Paralyzed.

London, June 28.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent in Peking telegraphs that a Standard Oil surveying party is held up on the River Shens, owing to lack of transportation facilities, due to terrorizing by the "white wolves."

Mr. Morrison says that the depredations by the "white wolves" have never affected the stability of the Government, though they have caused a loss of military prestige. "White Wolf" himself was executed at Honah three months ago, and his followers are merely brigands who are continually harassing the Government.

Wilson Rebuffs the Vote-Seekers

Tells them that He Won't Recommend That They Be Given Franchise.

Washington, June 30.—President Wilson told a deputation of more than 500 suffragists, at the White House, to-day, that woman-suffrage was a State issue, and not a National one. For that reason he would not use his influence for the passage of a constitutional amendment to confer the franchise on women.

Six Drowned From Sail Yacht

Seven on Board the Boat When She Capsized—Only One Saved.

St. Petersburg, June 28.—Seven young people of good social standing in St. Petersburg, who went out for a sail in a yacht on the Gulf of Finland, were overtaken by a squall, and the yacht was turned over on its side.

The occupants clung to the masts and the overturned hull all through the night; but from dawn onward six of them were washed off one after the other by the waves, or released their hold and dropped off from sheer exhaustion.

The seventh was rescued by some fishermen.

WRECKAGE FOUND; LOOKS LIKE SOUTHERN CROSS

Mr. J. McGrath found a piece of wreckage Sunday morning at Patcove, P.B., which it is contended is a piece of the Southern Cross' deck.

The wood is covered with seal grease and those who saw it are of the opinion that it is part of the missing sealing steamer.

ADDRESS BY THE BISHOP AT OPENING OF THE SYNOD

His Lordship Deals Sympathetically With the Marine Disasters of 1914 and Has a Word of Appreciation for the Relief Measures Taken—Refers to Proposals From Canadian Church

EULOGISTIC REFERENCE TO SEVERAL CLERGY WHO HAVE PASSED AWAY

The Visit of Dr. Mott and the Very Important Question of Church Union—The Record of the Biennial Term 1912-14 of the Church in Newfoundland.

The thought which has been uppermost in our minds during the past spring, the sadly familiar phrase on every lip, has been "Marine Disasters," and of these our Colony has surely borne a heavy share. Newfoundland has been visited with the greatest calamity as regards loss of life that it has ever known within the memory of man, and for the sacrifice of between two and three hundred of our brave seafarers we are mourning to-day.

The appeal which has gone forth in behalf of the bereaved ones—parents, wives, little children—whose bread-winners have been so suddenly snatched from them, has evoked a wonderful outburst of sympathy, and has met with a generous, I might almost say, a superabundant response.

Comforting Thought

Let us take comfort in the thought that the very greatness of the grief which gathers the sympathy of so many has in itself an exalting, elevating, transfiguring consequence. The grief of our whole people will invest the names of those who have thus gone down to their death with a tragic solemnity which, if not the best balm to the broken heart, yet has, in spite of ourselves, a healing, soothing, invigorating effect.

In view of the fact that in our Colonial history we are only too familiar with ocean-tragedies of all kinds, great and small, that year by year too many of our hardy fishermen "go down to the set in ships" but return to their homes no more, it was wisely resolved at the recent Public meeting to establish a "Permanent Fund for the Relief of Sufferers from Marine Disasters in Newfoundland," and to organize branch committees throughout the Island, to collect funds from year to year with this object in view, and to seek such Charter from the Legislature of the Colony as may be deemed necessary or advisable.

Canadian Overtures

In the year 1912, at the Provincial Synod, that is at the Synod of the older ten Diocese of Canada, it was agreed that the six Dioceses which together make up the Civil Province of Ontario, should thenceforth form an Ecclesiastical Province separate from the Dioceses of Montreal, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Fredericton, which shall henceforth be called the Province of Canada. A resolution was passed—"That a Delegation be appointed to visit the Synod of the Diocese of Newfoundland, to express the attitude of the Church of England in Canada, and our earnest desire for co-operation on the work of the Church in British North America."

The Upper House appointed the following as members of the delegation: The Bishops of Nova Scotia, Fredericton and Montreal; the Prolocutor, Dean Scholefield, Archdeacon Armitage, Chancellor Harris, Chancellor Allen, Judge Fitzgerald. It will be understood that the old Province of Canada has been cut in two. The Dioceses of Ontario now form a Province by themselves, and Nova Scotia, Fredericton, Quebec and Montreal form another. It is with the last named Province that we are to be invited to amalgamate. Then would come the further step of our becoming one of the dioceses of the General Synod. But first the completion of the Maritime Provinces would be necessary.

The Chairman

The Bishop of Nova Scotia is the Chairman of the Delegation, and in my correspondence with him I have explained that though the matter has been mentioned at more than one meeting of our Executive this latter body has no power to legislate, or indeed to take any action with regard to such an important proposal as that which now emanates from the Province of Canada. Only the Synod itself can do this. I intimated that I proposed to lay the Canadian proposition before our Synod at its next Session.

I should be sorry to have to interpose any delay in furnishing a definite answer, but two years in the life of a Church are a mere nothing, and a step which, for us at least, will be fraught with such momentous consequences ought not to be taken until after the fullest and most serious deliberation.

The Delegation

It was arranged that the Delegation should arrive on Thursday next, the 25th inst, and be received by the Synod on the evening of that day. From the following letter, however, from the Bishop of Nova Scotia, it will be seen that their plans are altered, and that the invitation for union will probably come to us from the General Synod which does not meet till next September:

My Dear Bishop of Newfoundland,—The Delegation appointed at the last meeting of the Provincial Synod of

FRENCH BARON, BANK MANAGER, UNDER ARREST

Was Director of Financial Institution Which Failed, With Liabilities Of $3,000,000

HE VOLUNTARILY WENT INTO LIQUIDATION

But Receivers Discovered Something "Fishy" About Affairs and Arrest Followed

Paris, June 28.—A sensation has been caused in commercial and society circles here by the arrest of Baron H. de Neuville and his nephew, M. Robert de Neuville, directors of one of the most important banks in Paris. The liabilities are put at 15,000,000 francs ($3,000,000).

At the settlement at the end of last April the bank was unable to meet its engagements; and in order to escape bankruptcy asked to be judicially wound up.

French Law

According to French law, when a bank applies for judicial liquidation it can come to an arrangement with its creditors. In this case, however, the liquidator appointed is alleged to have made discoveries which led to the matter being reported to the criminal authorities; and an Examining Magistrate subsequently ordered the arrest of the Baron and his nephew.

It is reported that the authorities of the bank (one of the oldest and most respected in Paris) had been speculating in securities, some of them American, which involved them in heavy losses.

Canada to visit Newfoundland, and present to your Synod an invitation to consider the proposal of a union between the Church of England in Newfoundland and the Church of England in Canada, has decided to leave the matter over until the meeting of the General Synod of Canada in September next.

Owing to circumstances which arose after the appointment of the Deputation, when the Dioceses of Ontario withdrew and formed themselves into a separate Ecclesiastical Province, it is thought advisable to adopt this course so that the General Synod may give the invitation and appoint the deputation which would speak with greater authority than if appointed by the present Provincial Synod of Canada alone.

This action is taken by the Deputation solely on its own authority, there being no likelihood of the Provincial Synod meeting for some time. It is hoped that the earnest desire of the Church in Canada for a closer relationship with the Church in Newfoundland will thus be more surely attained.

—CLARE L. NOVA SCOTIA

Two years, therefore, must elapse before the question can be considered by us. I have thought it desirable to trace the history of the important movement from its inception for the information of those who were not members of our Synod when the Canadian overtures for amalgamation were first brought before us.

Consecration of Churches

In the same period of time (two years) I have consecrated 27 Churches, viz.: at Isle aux Morts, Burgeo, Ramea, Rencontre (Pushthrough), New Harbor (Pushthrough) Richard's Harbor, Gaultois, Isle of Valen, Tack's Beach, Spencer's Cove, Mussel Harbor Arm, Trinity East, Victoria Cove, Clark's Head, Wesleyville, Badger's Quay, British Harbor, Burnt Head, Port Rexton, North River, Harbor Grace South, Canning's Cove and Summerville.

Consecration of Cemeteries

During the biennial period I have consecrated 26 Cemeteries, viz.: at New Harbor (Pushthrough), McCallum Harbor, Terrenceville, Lamaline, Burnt Head, Tack's Beach, North Harbor, The Beach (Bell Island), Hr. Ordinations

I have held four Ordinations at which five persons have been admitted to the Diaconate, and nine Deacons have been advanced to the Priesthood. Three Priests have joined us (Continued on page 6.)

Marks of a Man's Teeth in a Print of Butter Lead to Arrest and Conviction of a Murderer.—Lack of Parental Control and Influence of Moving Pictures As Causes of Crime.

Paris, June 28.—Several extraordinary crimes are puzzling the French police. Among them is the murder of M. Ulysses Poulain, which comes as a strange sequel to the capture, conviction and execution of the ringleaders of the old Garnier motor bandit gang. Old Poulain, known as Father Ulysses, was a track guard on the Northern Railway. His signal box stood not far from the St. Denis station. There, at 3 o'clock one morning, he was shot to death. His wife, who dwelt in a cottage nearby, heard the report of the pistol and found the body.

A number of fast trains were due shortly, and Poulain's wife, with scarcely time for an outburst of grief, took charge of the signal box and gave the expresses the proper signals. The Calais flyer she flagged, and her husband's body was taken aboard and removed to the Northern Railway Station, Paris. Meantime, the widow kept at her post till 6 a.m., when she was relieved.

Bullet Found
On the floor of the signal box was found the bullet which, after piercing the murdered man's head, rebounded from the fall. It was of the kind used by members of Garnier's gang. Footprints were discovered in the vicinity of the signal box, and the police learned that three suspicious men were seen in the early hours of the morning changing their clothes in a field not far from the scene of the crime.

Two years ago Garnier and two of his friends cut the wires fifty yards from the signal box in which Father Ulysses met his death. Their intention was to cause a railway accident and rob the passengers. Poulain discovered the plot and warned the police. The express was saved. Some time afterward Poulain began to receive threatening letters.

A few days ago news was received from Nantes to the effect that a daring jewel robbery had been committed there. The victim was M. Mounot, a travelling jewelry agent, whose box of gems was removed mysteriously, and another box, filled with soap, put in its place. Mounot had come from Besancon with a box full of jewels, valued at over $10,000, and a valise. He carried them to the store of M. Piazolles, his best customer, with whom he left them while he called on his other customers.

A Forged Note Gets Gems
According to Piazolles, a messenger called on him some hours afterward, presented a note signed "Mounot," and carried off the box and valise, saying he was going to take them to the railway station. Soon after the messenger left Piazolles phoned to Mounot, who said he had given no order for the removal of the box and valise. Mounot hurried to Piazolles's place. Scarcely was he there when the messenger walked in and handed up the baggage check for the box and valise. The note signed "Mounot," he told Mounot and Piazolles, was given to him on the street by a man who was a stranger to him.

Mounot hurried to the railway station and reclaimed his precious box and his valise. At least he thought he had reclaimed his precious box, but when he examined its outside more closely he found it was only a clever imitation—and inside there was soap instead of his jewels.

The messenger told the police the box at the railway station was the very same he took from Piazolles's store. It was at first supposed the substitution of one box for another was made while the messenger was carrying the valise to the luggage room.

M. Piazolles left Nantes while the police were questioning the messenger. He was traced to Paris and there he vanished.

Burglar's Tell-Tale Teeth
The marks of a man's teeth in a print of butter have solved the mystery of a burglary at the home of M. Duclos on the Rue Danton, Montcaillous-Bots. The police finally suspected Pierre Bassaud, a former servant at the house, and he was arrested. "I am innocent," he said. "Well and good," replied the Commissary of police, "we will wait and see," and he sent out a sergeant to buy a pat of butter.

"And now will you be kind enough to take a bite?" he suggested insinuatingly. "I know you have a taste for butter, and this is nice and fresh." Pierre bit and left the imprint of eighteen teeth, one of which was broken. Then, solemnly, from an official cupboard, the Commissary produced "exhibit A"—a bitten pat of butter which had been found in the kitchen of the burgled mansion. The tooth prints when compared tallied exactly.

Cause of Crime
The increase in the number of young criminals in Paris is due, in the opinion of Henri Robert, a criminal lawyer, "to the disunion in families, the abuse of divorce, the fact that boys no longer are apprenticed regularly to any useful trade, to a false instruction and loose education, absence of religion in the bringing up of youth, drunkenness, reckless publicity given to all crimes, and, finally, moving picture shows, which often exploit scenes where the police are represented as powerless in the presence of crime."

Louis Napoleon Jacob when brought to trial in Paris on a charge of counterfeiting put up a novel defence. He had been in the employ of the police as a spy in the motor bandit cases, and his excuse for making bogus money was that he had done so merely to gain the confidence of the Anarchists on whom he was spying. The Paris police, class all professional criminals as Anarchists. The police denied any knowledge of Jacob's counterfeiting operations and the court sentenced him to three years in prison.

Some Short Paragraphs Gathered Together For the Busy Woman in the Home

The skins of new potatoes can be removed more quickly with a stiff vegetable brush than by scraping.

Get a few large knobs of chalk and lay them at the back and sides of a fire. They will burn as red as coal, give a lovely heat, and save the coal.

To ensure a Yorkshire pudding always being light, it is a good plan to add a tablespoonful of cold water to the batter just before placing it in the oven.

Honey and Glycerine, mixed in equal proportions, is an excellent remedy for cracked lips. It should be applied every night till the cracks are thoroughly healed.

Before frying the breakfast bacon, cut off the rind and dip each rasher in flour; then fry or grill quickly. This prevents the fat from running and gives the bacon a better flavor.

When a cup of strong tea is required, instead of putting an extra spoonful into the pot, add a spoonful of sugar. This opens the leaves of the tea, and make the tea stronger.

A mixture that will remove grease from the finest fabrics is made of one quart of rain-water, two ounces of ammonia, one teaspoonful of salt-petre, and one ounce of shaving soap cut up very fine.

If at any time you have a gathered finger or poisoned hand, take a cabbage leaf, roll it out with a bottle until the juice comes, and tie it on the affected part. This will draw and cleanse it far better than a poultice.

An excellent fat for frying purposes is made by rendering together two pounds of beef suet and one pound of leaf lard. Be careful not to burn; drain into a jar and you will have one of the nicest frying mediums imaginable.

If you are sufferer from rheumatism, nervous dyspepsia, or neuralgia, eat plenty of celery, either stewed or raw. If stewed, very little water should be used, so as not to waste the valuable salts contained in this vegetable.

If, when sending or taking a hat by train, it is secured to the bottom of the box by a few strong stitches of thread, the most delicate hat will not be crushed, as, no matter how the box is turned about the hat will not move.

Before baking potatoes, let them stand in hot water for fifteen minutes. They will require only half the time for baking, are more mealy and palatable, and if they are baked in a glass oven, the saving in gas is considerable.

Curtain rings sometimes run with great difficulty, and seem to stick to the pole. To remedy this, take all the rings off and well rub the pole with coal oil until it is quite smooth, when the rings may be replaced; they will then glide along with the greatest ease.

Lemons may be kept a long time without becoming dry if put into a jar of water with a lid. The water should be changed once a week if the lemons are to be kept long. When used, they will be quite as firm as when fresh, and, if anything, more juicy.

A clever way to re-heat a roast of beef so that it will not reveal in flavor or tenderness its second appearance, is to wrap the roast in a piece of tough paper, buttered. Then put in the oven until thoroughly heated, but do not, however, allow it to cook. The left-over gravy is reheated and poured into a hot gravy boat.

It may be fresh information to some young housekeepers that chicken left from a meal should not be covered until the next serving. When chicken is covered a poison is developed in it which may prove at least exceedingly unwholesome. Keep the chicken in an open bowl in a cool place.

One of the quickest known ways of dispelling a headache is to give some of the muscles—those of the legs, for instance—a little hard, sharp work to do. The reason is obvious. Muscular exertion flushes the parts engaged in it, and so depletes the brain. When your head aches take a stiff walk or a short bicycle ride.

To make tough steak tender, put three tablespoonfuls of salad oil and one tablespoonful of vinegar on a large flat fish. Lay the steak on the mixture and let it rest in this way for half an hour. Then turn it over and let it rest another half hour in the same quantity of vinegar and oil. The toughest steak will yield to this treatment and be nice and tender when served.

The Salvation Army

An Appreciation by T. P's Weekly.

There is one body of religionists that never seems to be threatened by the Higher Criticism or condemned by the earnest persons whose religion is that they have no religion. You may accuse them of bluster, you may prefer a quieter form of music or a mysticism that is not what Stevenson would call "twopenny coloured." But the fact remains that millions have blessed the name of their God through the forceful ministrations of the Salvation Army.

The Missionary Spirit
First let us welcome their International Conference, and sympathise with those soldiers of the spirit who went down with the "Empress of Ireland." Britons know how to die, even if they do not always how to live. And the Salvationists went down with their colours flying. General Bramwell Booth has arranged to send 1,000 missionaries mainly to the East during the next five years. The men and women are ready, for the training college is full of excellent candidates. Indeed, the General is asking for £150,000 to provide buildings and funds for a new training college. It is useless to send untrained folk to foreign regions. It is true that the Apostles were fishermen, but it was the educated Paul who succeeded as a missionary.

Will It Break?
When the old General died people began to talk about decay, about the "sons of great men," family influence, and all the rest of it. But last year was better, not only in what one might call the "bag of souls," but financially. And in these days souls have to be saved by money. Transit, printing, food, clothing, and organisation have to be paid for; and every year more liability is taken on. General Bramwell Booth went to Canada last year; and it is likely that the present General will be before all else a missionary, following the flag of Empire with the Bible, so as not to leave the gin and whisky bottles as the ambassadors of the greatest world power in history. The General is right. It is not necessary to wait till London is without sin before raising a hand to help the younger countries.

Far Field
Australasia, India, and Japan are promised visits, and to accomplish these will necessitate even more protracted journeys and longer absences from International Headquarters. For the present we may record that the General conducted, in March, a victorious Campaign in Amsterdam. In May he led a great Ascension Campaign at Zurich. Two months later he was at the Danish Congress at Copenhagen, when 10,000 people were present. Most enthusiastic scenes were witnessed on the occasion. Next came the Swedish Congress, in Stockholm, with its series of remarkable meetings, in connection with which the General reviewed, amidst the happiest circumstances, a fleet of thirteen vessels crowded with Salvation Army soldiers and friends at Södertelje. Passing northward to Norway, he conducted powerful meetings in Christiania, and received here, as in Sweden and Denmark, many evidences of affection and keen interest in the work.

Advertise the Army
The Salvation Army succeeds because it uses modern methods for the oldest of purposes. It succeeds not only because many of its workers are educated, but also because many are not. I have been moved profoundly in Guernsey by the speeches of a young man who not only had not book-learning, but condemned it as standing between man's elemental need and its fulfilment. He meant what he said, and who shall say that he was wrong entirely? But, taking it for all in all, the Army is educative. The Army is the largest evangelistic movement to the common people in the world. Over 16,000 officers in 68 countries are solely engaged in preaching, visiting, advising, encouraging, restraining, and in a hundred other ways ministering to the spiritual needs of the unchurched masses. Every week 47,530 indoor and 33,180 outdoor meetings are held, reaching approximately many thousands of people. The brass bands number 1,670, and the bandsmen—almost all of whom have acquired knowledge of music since their conversion in the Army—total 23,313. These men buy their own uniforms, and, without fee or reward, give their scant leisure, almost a day in hours per week, besides attending meetings all day on Sunday. They, with the songster brigades, numbering 13,092 men and women, take the message of salvation, by music and song, into the poorest localities, and to the inmates of prisons, hospitals, and asylums.

Social Work
Because all the soldiers in the Army are total abstainers they are able to put a stop to much drunkenness. It is not enough to advise drink-sodden wretches to be moderate. It must be root and branch work, and the whole personality must be "converted." This may be an unpalatable fact to those who, like the writer of this article, are fond of an occasional drink. But experience justifies the whole-hearted policy of the Army.

The Army does not leave the matter to the emotions. In these days of poverty it is not enough to save the soul. The body, not only the body of unemployed, but the body of women who are bought and sold, must be cared for. All religious organisations recognise this. But all have not the same methods or organisations. Allied to the most sterling, if simple, faith is a social system of wonderful practical utility, operating not only among English-speaking peoples, but in Germany, France, Holland, Japan—indeed all over the known world.

Tales From Abroad
Here are three instances of woman's work in the Army, taken from the "Year-Book":

A Salvationist matron, out shopping, was met in the street by a man who announced: "There's a woman taking fits at No. 57 in this street. I reckon you're wanted down there!" The Salvationist went down, and took charge of the patient until the ambulance removed her to the hospital.

A Dutch policeman called at the home of a Slum Officer. He had a case on hand that he did not know how to handle—an old man living in such shocking neglect and poverty that the neighbours had reported the case. (There are no workhouses in Holland, each Church provides for its own poor, and in some cases a long time leazes before a destitute person can be satisfactorily settled.) The Captain willingly took up the case; but when she saw the old man, even her brave heart almost failed. So filthy was his condition that he was almost unapproachable. The Captain intended to take him to our Men's Shelter at Rotterdam, and went to the railway station for that purpose; but the stationmaster refused to allow the old man to travel by train. She went on to the canal-boat, but met with a like refusal. Then a great battle was fought in that pure, tender maiden's soul; hot tears fell down her face as, walking along with her charge tottering beside her, she prayed, "I cannot do it without Thy grace, Lord; but I am willing." She took the man to her own spotless rooms, bathed and reclothed the poor, vermin-eaten body, soothing the old man's cries as a poor mother would soothe a frightened child. At last towards the Captain took him to Rotterdam, where he remained at our Men's shelter until she had arranged for his admittance to an old man's retreat.

A knock at the door, a frightened child's face and screams of "Murder!" made the Salvationist-mother hurry into a coat, and run out into the night. A drunken man in the house opposite was threatening his wife with an axe. The terrified, screaming woman kept the table between herself and the mad man. The Salvationist took in the situation, slipped into the room, and blew out the candle. In the confusion which followed she bundled the woman out, locked the man in, and took the woman and child to her home. In the morning she returned to the house to find an ashamed and grateful man. She brought in the wife, prayed with the pair, and henceforth exercised a motherly guardianship over the household.

Thus one sees the great drama of life played, if you will, crudely. But life is crude. Its vital realities are simple, and the things that really matter are well within the compass of the Salvation Army.

MANY CHANGES MADE BY CLERGY IN PRAYER BOOK

But They Are Practically All Simple
And Are of a Minor
Nature

NEW PRAYERS ARE ADDED
FROM OTHER BOOKS OF WORSHIP

Slight Alterations in Communion,
Baptismal and Marriage
Services

The second statement of the Bishop Suffragan of Kingston on the proposals for the revision and enrichment of the Book of Common Prayer, which the revision committee requested him to prepare, shows that many new prayers have been added. These include prayers for the New Year, for missionaries, for those about to be confirmed, for Parliamentary elections, for fair weather, for blessing on fisheries, for fruitful seasons, for hospitals, for those who travel, or the sick, for synods and for vacant pastorates and sees. Many of these prayers are taken from the Scottish Prayer Book, some from the Irish Prayer Book, others from the American Prayer Book, and various sources.

Prayer for Parliament
The prayer for Parliament has been adapted to include the Dominion Parliament and Provincial Legislatures.

The prayers in the time of dearth and famine and in the time of any common plague or sickness appear in the adapted forms.

Dates of all the festivals which fall on fixed days are placed at the foot of the page.

The third collect for Good Friday is thus amended: The words after "Have mercy upon . . . heretics" are removed and it now reads: "Have mercy upon the Jews, Thine ancient people, and upon all who reject and deny Thy Son."

The title of the twenty-fifth Sunday after Trinity is changed to the Sunday next before Advent.

Proper anthems are proposed for the greater festivals in place of the "Te Deum" as an Easter Day. The Transfiguration becomes an appointed feast.

Minor Changes

Numerous minor changes are made in the Communion service, the Baptismal service, and the administration of the rite of confirmation.

The old tables showing how to find the time of Easter and other movable feasts have been withdrawn and instead the tables showing the dates of these principal movable feasts for one hundred years ahead have been inserted.

There have been some changes in connection with the Calendar of Saints tending to bring the national Saints into greater prominence. The special Saints' Day services for New Testament saints have not been altered; but in the list of saints the names of St. George, St. Andrew, St. Patrick, and St. David now appear, as representing England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales respectively.

Explanatory Note

In the Creed no alteration has been made, but a footnote has been added. Much objection was taken to the phrase, "He descended into Hell," as it is so often misunderstood and thought to mean that He descended into the abode of the lost to suffer there the full penalty of human sin. The revisers have left the creed unaltered, but append a footnote "Note that the words 'He descended into Hell,' are to be regarded as meaning He went into the abode of departed spirits."

A slight change has also been made in the marriage service. The sentence expressing in the frank language of the fifteenth century the main objects of wedlock has been phrased more delicately and one or two other minor alterations on the same principle follow. Thus the words "with my body I Thee worship" have been changed to read "with my body I Thee honor."

A number of other minor changes were also mentioned, but the old Prayer Book is on the whole little changed, and the changes made are in the nature of improvements. The suggested new volume will not appear unfamiliar to those accustomed to the present addition.

OUR POINT OF VIEW.

LABRADOR CURED FISH

WE PUBLISHED yesterday a copy of a circular now being sent out in reference to the cure and care of Labrador soft fish. Those directions have been prepared by the Trade after serious consideration and we were asked to give them publicity in order that they may reach as many fishermen as possible. We fear the publication of them just now will not prove as beneficial as might be had they been published before any of the fishermen left for the Labrador.

We have received information of a serious character regarding the possibilities of losing the Spanish markets for Labrador soft fish and we are convinced that unless every care is taken this season to split, wash, salt and cure Labrador soft fish, that our fish will be ousted from the Spanish market just as it has been from the English and Italian markets. And if the Spanish market is lost the result will be that Labrador soft fish will not be worth $3 per quintal.

This is a serious matter for the Colony and must be attended to. The only cure is inspection by a commission composed of representatives of the exporters and the fishermen and a law passed to enforce the commission inspection. This would be in the best interest of the fishermen and Colony, for the Colony is now face to face with the competition of Iceland fish which have come to the front during the last three years.

We publish herewith a letter sent to President Coaker by an agent, that was dispatched by the exporters to Italy and Spain the past winter to investigate the causes of the small sales made to Italy. When we consider that ten years ago Genoa took 41 cargoes of Labrador fish—half the catch—and only five cargoes last year and that most of those five cargoes had to be re-shipped to Spanish ports and kept in cold storage, it behoves all concerned to get down to business and make a united effort to save the remaining markets, which can be done if our fishermen will make their fish as directed by the recent circular issued, referred to.

The statements contained in the subjoined letter cannot be disputed and call for immediate united action not only on the part of the exporters, but particularly on the part of the fishermen.

We represent the Tollers and we will always be anxious to do all in our power to protect their interests, and in this instance the fishermen will be the chief gainers if they will do all in their power to turn out an improved cure of slopp Labrador and regain if possible the markets taken from the Colony through the competition of Iceland fish.

It must be remembered that Iceland fish is caught in steam trawlers from Hull and Grimsby and is not the product of the natives of Iceland.

An agent of the firm operating those trawlers visited the Labrador a few years ago and saw how Labrador fish was cured, and the English firms immediately grasped the situation and prepared to put up Iceland fish to compete with our Labrador.

The Iceland fish is not sun dried but is passed through rollers. The fish is placed between a cotton cloth, and after passing through the rollers it is as dry as Labrador fish exposed to the sun two days. It is very white and every particle of liver, blood, gut, and bone is removed. It is washed with brushes, every fish being handled.

The Spanish fish merchants are now about to place their orders for the coming fall and unless the exporters here will guarantee that the Labrador fish will compare favorably with the Iceland cure, they will order Iceland fish, which will mean $3 for Labrador fish.

In view of the short shore catch and the serious outlook in the Spanish market for Labrador fish, the floaters on the Labrador would be wise if they salted a fair share of their catch to be cured as dry Labrador, but if they will endeavor to follow the directions published by us and turn out a number one soft Labrador cure, worthy of the name, it will not be a difficult matter to realize good prices for it.

The time is come for curing Labrador fish as an article of food, and if this is done there need be no misgivings concerning a market for slopp Labrador.

Now, men, take our advice and do your utmost to save the existing market for Labrador fish.

It is in your own hands. We have performed our duty in this matter and if you disregard our advice the consequences will be yours.

The Government must establish an inspection and a commission should be established with power to carry out the inspection law.

Improvement of Fish

W. F. Coaker,

President F.P.U.

Dear Sir,—In reference to our conversation regarding improvement in cure of Labrador fish. In thinking the matter over it would seem to me that a letter written to the press signed by me would not have the same effect as the same advice tendered by you, although I am very willing and desirous of fathering my own opinions and since returning from Italy I have worked amongst the shippers (principally) with a sincere desire for the welfare of shipper and fisherman alike, and might add have been heartily disgusted with the carelessness with which my views have been accepted, so much so, that one would be inclined to think that where so many are interested and only one individual has this hobby it would seem as if the majority must be right and the one must be crazy.

You probably saw my report, which would only touch on the subject of cure, the method of marketing, etc., was quite a lengthy subject. In the course of my two months in Italy and Spain we spent a good deal of time with a great many fish dealers, large and small, and they all agreed that unless the cure of Labrador was improved we would lose the market. All these conversations were not recorded by me because I thought a verbal report would be more effectual.

I am not in a position here to obtain statistics regarding the quantities of Labrador shipped to different countries during past years, but know, in spite of the fact that we have had men appointed by Governments to obtain new markets, nothing has been done in this way, but as a matter of fact we are losing the markets that we had. For instance, years ago there were several cargoes of Labrador shipped to Channel Islands annually; now there is not one. South of England, Exeter, Bristol, Plymouth took perhaps fifteen or twenty cargoes; (I have no statistics) last year there were two and one, and both, of these were sent on to the Mediterranean from England. In 1905 there were forty-one cargoes of Labrador shipped to Genoa and Leghorn; last year there were five cargoes from Newfoundland shippers and two of Capt. Hanson's for an Italian firm. Might add that the writer was informed when in Genoa that this firm had decided to give up their business in Labrador cod and go in for Iceland "Labrador style" as the latter fish is becoming very much more saleable than Labrador owing to its fresh, clean appearance. And these seven cargoes, we were told, could have been done without, and we had practical demonstration of this, as we arranged and had several parcels transhipped to Spain and Greece, and at the present time there is a large quantity in cold storage in those countries.

You must remember when this was being done and what little fish was being sold was sold at a loss to the Newfoundland shippers, there was any amount of Iceland, French and Norwegian fishing being sold at fair and satisfactory prices. The reason for this is, these people evidently recognize that fish is an article of food and has to be made as clean and attractive as possible, whilst our fishermen, thanks to the method of the Merchant who grasps after the fish they supply for and that their neighbors supply for and offer such inducements as buying talqual, etc., pay the least possible attention to their product and only desire to see it drop in the hold of the fish carrier and get their cash, apparently forgetting that each individual fish has to be handled by intelligent humans who desire the best possible for their money, and goodness knows the consumer deserves better at our hands because they pay full value, and if the catcher and shipper do not get it, that is not the fault of the consumer.

Labrador soft cured fish was much more easily and expeditiously handled than the Iceland method of hard cure and they copied the Labrador fish in everything but method of cleaning, and in that particular they set us an example that (in my opinion) if we do not speedily follow we shall be bowled out of markets that we have been supreme in during the life of the Colony.

In regard to the Trepassey Branch which a "gentleman of practical experience" refers to as "one of the nicest pieces of road he had ever gone over," what we have said in these columns we are quite prepared to stand by.

But we will hold no haggling with any one over the matter. It were idle folly and a waste of precious time to argue the matter when neither "the gentleman of experience," or ourself has the plans and surveys to argue from.

When we published that bit of wholesome truth regarding that "nicest bit of road," we did so with the conviction that there would be found a gentleman (?) to pronounce perfect the crooked path.

Dear Sir,—Will some one advise me what to do? I wrote the Minister of Agriculture and Mines on a matter relating to life and health some two months ago, up to date I have had no reply from him. What a humiliating position to be in, public servant holding place and pay.

If at any time we have occasion to refer to their offices on matters of importance we get treated with contempt. Why is this? Is this why those people are called Honorables and have the great names of Ministers? Let someone tell us who brought those great men up. Tell me, men of Newfoundland, and don't be afraid to speak out or write: Whatever did one of those Honorables for the poor of this country, or any other matter.

POEMS OLD AND NEW.

HIS PIPE

By Minna Irving, In Leslie's

Though grandpa left us long ago, with 50 years and labors ripe,

Yet still upon the shelf we keep his old black briar pipe,

And when we take it down we seem to see above the bowl

The keen blue eyes that mirrored forth his wise and kindly soul.

We took our sorrows to his knee, he listened to them all.

From sister Letty's love-affairs, to Benny's "lost" ball,

And when he filled and lit his pipe, we knew that he had found

The end of all the trouble-skins our careless hands unbound.

So when my grown-up heart is sad with life's eternal pain,

With reverential touch I take the old black pipe again.

About it hangs the aroma of good tobacco still,

And calls his sturdy spirit back to me, just as he used to do,

And bids me face the world again with strength and courage new,

And Hope around me folds once more her rainbow-colored cloak,

And all my little troubles fade as once they did—in smoke.

Yet it is said the fishermen do not pay taxes.

As To Cost Of Labor

Reference was also made to the price obtained for labor twenty years ago. The wages paid when the railway was constructed across country has been compared with the wages paid at present. I do not think that any reference has been made to the cost of provisions at that time. I remember being down about Badger Bay, and I remembering writing letters home there for laboring men and they could then get flour for $3.80 a barrel.

Taking all this into consideration the increased wage is quite necessary for a man to live as well as he did at that time.

Now the question is where will the increased taxation bear the hardest. It will certainly be on the working men and on the poor. I believe that there are many families that will have to economize on account of this. Many and many an old garment will have to be taken out this winter and patched and economies will have to be practiced to an extent that members in this House know nothing about it is only those that have gone through it that can realize it.

Have To Economise

I know pretty well how the fishermen economise his means to live independent. Many an old garment that in the ordinary course would be put aside, will be taken out and made serve for another winter. Many poor children will have to go to school without sufficient clothing to protect them from the cold on account of this increase in taxation.

I am a believer, however, in the idea that there is room for education of the people as regards the finances of the Colony. There is a very wrong idea abroad that there is no bottom to the Government chest. I do not know where the idea started, but it is certainly spread abroad and you have got to educate the people up to the idea that all the money that is spent will eventually rebound back upon them and have to be repaid.

Don't Understand It

If they get to understand this they will not be asking for things that they know the country cannot afford. I do not believe that the would have asked for railways if they knew the country could not afford them. They certainly would never have asked for them if they thought they would increase taxation.

As I said before these taxes are going to bear hard upon the poor man with a family of five or six who probably had to pay $90 last year, will this year have to pay $100.00. As I said when starting I did not intend to take much time as I want to give the fishermen's view point on this matter, and I think I have stated it as fairly as I know how.

Mr. Lloyd—May I ask the Minister the reason for leaving cigars without any addition.

Mr. Cashin—There was no special reason except that we consider them high enough. Of course the 10 per cent. applies.

Mr. Halfyard—Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of making a few remarks, chiefly on the policy of this Government which has brought about this additional taxation that we are faced with at the present time. The matters of figures and statistics have been gone into very thoroughly by those well qualified to handle it. The errors, omissions, transgressions and bad management of the Government have been pointed out and proved conclusively to the satisfaction of this country and of this House.

What About Cigars?

Mr. Lloyd—May I ask the Minister the reason for leaving cigars without any addition.

Mr. Cashin—There was no special reason except that we consider them high enough. Of course the 10 per cent. applies.

Mr. Halfyard—Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of making a few remarks, chiefly on the policy of this Government which has brought about this additional taxation that we are faced with at the present time. The matters of figures and statistics have been gone into very thoroughly by those well qualified to handle it. The errors, omissions, transgressions and bad management of the Government have been pointed out and proved conclusively to the satisfaction of this country and of this House.

What Was Said

Now, when Sir Edward Morris assumed control of the Government or when he took it into his head to leave the Bond party and come out for himself and try and rule this country and its destinies it was said in the public press that if Sir Robert Bond were returned to power he would find himself in such a position because of the difficulties in which he had involved the Colony that he would be compelled to bring about Confederation to protect himself. That was said in the public press about the Bond Government.

Now, what can be said about the Morris Government at the present time. We are brought to such a condition of things that if we want to finish the work we have under construction we have to add to the burden of our already over-burdened taxpayers, or we will have to go into Confederation and get the great Dominion to assume control of our affairs. That is a plain fact that cannot successfully be contradicted.

TOBACCO QUESTION IN THE ASSEMBLY; DEBATE ON BUDGET

Rt. Hon. Prime Minister—Mr. Speaker, I do not agree with the hon. gentleman that a mere suspicion against a member of the House affects the rights and privileges of the House. I can see the point which he has made to the effect that in addition to the charge against the Minister, the honor and dignity of the House are also involved.

Under ordinary circumstances the proper course would be to proceed at once, but the Minister has informed the House that it would not be in his interest to have an immediate inquiry.

That is the reason why I think no harm can come to the House in the postponement of the enquiry until the Hon. Minister brings the matter into Court. If we proceed with the enquiry and investigate the matter, the hon. member's position may be prejudiced. That is the point.

How it got about

As to the question as to how certain changes in the tariff were rumoured around town, that is a matter that we might talk about for ever. It is impossible to tell whence these rumours come, and it is a well known fact that there are always changes made whenever a Budget is brought down.

People take goods out of bond on speculation and sometimes they are right and sometimes they are wrong. However, it is not fair to assume that the Minister of Finance can be blamed in any way for this, and during my long experience in public life, I have never known a case in which a Minister profited personally.

Mr. Halfyard—Mr. Speaker, last night the Hon. Minister of Finance said that the man who wrote the article in The Daily Mail was a liar and a slanderer, and denounced him in the strongest terms. He seemed to be only too willing to get an opportunity to exonerate himself before the whole country, but now he has refused to have the matter sifted out.

Layman's Standpoint

I do not pretend to understand the technicalities of the law, but from a common sense standpoint there can be no reason for the attitude which he now takes. There is a suspicion abroad now and very soon it will be in the minds of all the people of the Colony. All who read the papers will have a suspicion unfavorable to the Minister and to the honor and dignity of this House unless the matter is dealt with properly.

If it were my own case I would court inquiry into the matter, and I would not hesitate a moment to allow the whole question to be dealt with by a Committee of Privilege of this House. I cannot see what is to be gained by postponing the inquiry for most libel suits begun in one year are finished in the next. Possibly this suit may be settled more quickly, but the general rule is that they lost a considerable length of time.

It is wrong altogether to retard the inquiry, and the guilty party should be dealt with promptly. If the suspicion is allowed to rest in the minds of the people it will take a long time to remove it.

Due To Dignity of House

Mr. Stone—Mr. Speaker, I rise to give my unqualified support to the position taken by the Leader of the Opposition, for I think the dignity of this House demands that there should be an immediate enquiry into this matter.

If the editor of the paper is guilty, he should be punished, but if he is not, then the Minister must be guilty. We should have an investigation so that the matter may be cleared up promptly.

Mr. Jennings—I wish to make a few remarks on the subject now before the Committee. I am going to deal with this subject from the fisherman's standpoint.

I know that, if you earn $200 and spend $350, you will be in debt. You may mix the figures all you please, but that will not alter the actual facts. I don't see why the same does not apply to a country as to an individual.

Tax on Fishermen

It has been said in this House that the fishermen are not heavily taxed. I shall give you an estimate of the expenditure of a fisherman who earns $500. He would pay some $140 on general food on which at present there is no taxation. Possibly $60 would be spent on salt and other fishing supplies. The remaining $300 would be spent on dutiable goods.

I have had some forty years experience of the earnings of fishermen, and anyone who says that the fishermen are not heavily taxed is entirely wrong. Out of this $300 spent on dutiable goods, some $90 would be paid into the revenue of the country.

Address By The Bishop Opening The Synod

from English Dioceses. I regret, however, that owing to losses by death or removal I am unable to report an increase in the number of Clergy. At the time of the last Synod there were 74 in active work; the number to-day is exactly the same. There are 76 on the roll; but one is on the retired list, and one is absent, on leave.

Our Losses

Death has deprived us of one of our youngest and two of our oldest. The ministry of Willis Luman Mosdell was full of promise, but was brought to an untimely end by the dread disease which is the scourge of this Country. A short curacy at St. Mary's, a short Incumbency at Burin, a few months of light work at Codroy where he endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, and his race was run, his warfare accomplished.

The Chapter of the Cathedral, and indeed the whole Diocese, has sustained a loss by the death of George Henry Bishop. His life was not lived in the public eye, he was seldom seen in St. John's, but all of us who have known him have recognized his worth and have felt the power of his self-denying labors and devotion to duty. The story of his ministerial work may be summed up in a single sentence—a year at Trinity, seven years on the Labrador, well nigh 36 years in Hermitage Bay. The latter mission was, during his Incumbency, one of the largest in the Diocese. The great majority of the people were, and still are, staunch members of the Church. And those people will tell you to-day that they have lost their best friend. He was indeed a faithful servant of the Master of the household, a faithful shepherd of the flocks, and a wise builder on the foundation other than which can no man lay. He rests in the midst of the people for whom he had lived, and who showed on the occasion of his burial that the man whom they had lost had been to them a true Minister of God.

Dr. Pilot

The Reverend William Pilot has passed from amongst us. He had practically taken leave of the Diocese when, becoming incapacitated by serious illness in 1908, he retired from the office of Superintendent of Church of England Education, and vacated the stall of St. Augustine in our Cathedral. At that time testimony was borne on every side, not only to the great work which he did in behalf of religious education in this Colony, but also to the value of the services which he rendered to the Diocese in almost every branch of ecclesiastical activity.

He took part in the formation of the Diocesan Synod, and was for more than thirty years a prominent member of the Executive Committee. He was the parent of the Council of Higher Education, a body which showed its appreciation of its indebtedness to him by retaining him in the office of President after he had ceased to be able to take any part in its deliberations. He was one of the first six Canons of our Cathedral, and he was the last survivor of that number remaining in the Diocese. At the time of his breakdown, was my Commissary.

Manifold Activities

This brief statement of a few of his manifold activities will suffice to show how closely Canon Pilot's life was bound up with the life of the Church in Newfoundland. As years rolled on he faded away from our sight, but we still remained in his thoughts. He delighted to discuss with myself and others the affairs of the Diocese. He made an effort to take his seat in the Synod at the sessions of 1910-12. Like an ancient warrior, he would, so long as life was granted, be found at his post. But his work was done, the sands were steadily running out, the angel of death met him, and that life of strenuous service came to its close. Surely he can feel that he passed out of our lives to the greater life beyond to hear those words—at any time to the Christian worth dying to hear—"Servant of God, well done!"

The sudden death of our Lay Secretary, Charles Stewart Pihent, came not merely as a great shock to the whole community, but as a loss to the Synod. A man of business ability, a true and consistent Churchman, kindly and courteous to all, is called from us as left a gap not easily filled. That God's blessing and comfort may be with those whose sense of loss is far deeper than any public sense is, I am sure, the hope of all in this Synod.

At a recent meeting of the newly elected board of Governors of the Methodist College, the following Executive Committee was elected:—Hon. R. K. Bishop (Chairman); Rev. H. P. Cowperthwaite, M.A., D.D., Rev. C. A. Whitemarsh, M.A., B.D., Rev. N. M. Guy, M.A., Hon. H. J. B. Woods, Hon. J. B. Ayre, C. P. Ayre, Esq., A. Mews, Esq., John Leamon, Esq., C. H. Hutchings, K.C., Jos. Peters, Esq.

During the morning session, the Conference took an opportunity to place on record its high appreciation of the valuable services rendered by Rev. J. W. Bartlett, who is about to become pastor of the Jubilee Church, Sydney, Nova Scotia Conference.

"Whereas, Bro. John W. Bartlett has been transferred from this Conference to Jubilee Church, Sydney, in the Nova Scotia Conference, we cannot let him depart without assuring him of our sincere regret at the severance of our conference relationship. He still holds a place in our thought and affection, and our prayers will ascend for him and his family, that Divine guidance and blessing may be vouchsafed there also, that success may attend his future ministry and be the means of bringing to multitudes the year of Jubilee, and when his heart turns towards us again and he desires to come home, a right royal welcome will be given."

Bro. Bartlett in reply, thanked the Conference for its appreciation, and assured us that new scenes and new relationships could never obliterate the sacred memories associated with his work in his native land.

Queen Mary's Ideas on Dress are Quite as Decided as Those of Queen Alexandra.

The Queen feels strongly that full skirts, long sleeves and neckbands are the proper thing for day wear where young ladies are concerned, and no argument as to fashion has any weight with Her Majesty. Although most particular that nothing outre or in the extreme of fashion should be worn at Court, the Queen is most generous in giving presents of dresses on any special occasion. Her Majesty's three little nieces each received their bridesmaid's frocks as a present from the Queen, who sometimes makes similar gifts to her maids of honor.

Unostentatious in dress though she is, Queen Mary has nevertheless a magnificent collection of jewelry. Indeed, when occasion demands, her Majesty can rival any Queen in Europe in the splendour of her gems. Her favorite head-dress, which she assumes whenever possible, is the beautiful high-pointed crown of perfectly-matched brilliants presented to her by the women of England upon the occasion of her wedding. It is a masterpiece of modern art, and is used by Her Majesty upon nearly every State occasion when it is not necessary for her to assume her State crown. In addition to her private collection of rare jewels, Her Majesty has, of course, the use of the Crown Jewels, which descend automatically from one Queen Consort to another. Shortly after the King came to the Throne, Her Majesty made a thorough examination of these, considerable time being devoted to the task.

One tiara of brilliants particularly appealed to her, and she decided to make frequent use of it. The first time she wore it, comment was made upon her "new" tiara, and it was claimed as another triumph for the jewel setters of the present day. As a matter of fact, the ornament came into the Royal collection during the reign of George III, and was the one worn by Queen Victoria at her wedding.

"Like Unto Cottar's Saturday Night"

Sir Henry Lucy draws the following pen picture of the Chancellor of the Exchequer and his London home for the benefit of the readers of the Sydney "Morning Herald": Mr. Lloyd George has filled up the place long time occupied by Mr. Gladstone of being the most photographed man of the day. He is snapped under all possible circumstances, and in some which would be impossible to anything short of superhuman energy and resource on the part of the camera carrier.

A casual caller at Downing-street last Sunday evening found the Chancellor of the Exchequer the central figure of a group, a snapshot of which would have made the fortune of the journalistic photographer. It was in the main a family gathering, with the addition of a couple of the Prime Minister's children from next door, and a junior member of the Ministry who shares his chief's glory of being a Welshman born and bred. The two Ministers were singing Welsh hymns to the accompaniment of the piano, the rest of the congregation, with the exception of the English girls, harmoniously joining in.

The scene presented our versatile stormy petrel in a new light, being unconsciously reminiscent of the Cotter's Saturday Night immortalized by Burns. It was consonant with the habitual simplicity of the household of a man who has in charge the public purse, heavy with the contents of a revenue exceeding 195 millions. It is startling at first to knock at the door of No. 11, Downing-street, and find it opened by a white-capped household just as if it were the cottage at Criccieth, Carnarvonshire.

Never Inside a Public House

Jim Larkin, the Dublin strike leader, whose fiery speeches in the Irish capital landed him in prison, is, fully six feet tall, and very strongly built. He is thirty-seven years of age, an Ulster Catholic, and he claims to be a teetotaler who has never been inside a public house.

Larkin was born in Liverpool, and his early years were passed as a laborer in Liverpool and later in the United States. Then he became an organizer for the National Union of Dock Laborers, and went to Belfast at the end of 1906.

There he organized nearly all the dock laborers and carriers, and in 1907 a strike ensued which was characterized by scenes of riot, culminating in August with a pitched battle between police, soldiers, and the crowd, in which one civilian was shot dead and hundreds of combatants on each side were seriously injured.

Later Larkin broke with the National Union of Dock Laborers and formed a rival organization, the Irish Transport Workers' Union.

Royal Wedding Worries

In connection with the Connaught Royal wedding, a good story is related about Sir Douglas Dawson, the member of the King's Household who had charge of all the arrangements.

At Balmoral, one night, Sir Douglas, or "Duggie," as he is affectionately known to his intimate friends, sank wearily into a chair, gazed sternly around him, and announced his firm intention of knocking the very next man down who dared mention the word "wedding" in his presence.

Scarcely, however, had Sir Douglas spoken when his Majesty entered the room and remarked: "Oh, by the way, Dawson, about the wedding—" The King could get no further. Even his presence in the room could not prevent the smiles and titters that suddenly went on around him. Looking puzzled, his Majesty asked for an explanation, and when told what had happened, joined heartily in the laughter that followed before commiserating with Sir Douglas.
