SYMPATHY IN LATIN AMERICA

Notable Demonstration in Paris to Honor Countries Favoring Entente

French Socialist Party to Send Delegates to Stockholm

Paris, May 29.—The famous palace and park of Versailles were the scene yesterday of a notable demonstration in honor of the Latin-American nations.

In the name of the government, M. Bourgeois paid eloquent tribute to the spirit of democracy and liberty prevailing throughout the American republics.

After the ceremony a reception to the Latin-American diplomatic corps was held in the historic apartments once occupied by Marie Antoinette.

Paris, May 29.—The long standing split in the French Socialist party was healed at a meeting of the national council yesterday.

The resolution declares that the Socialist party associates itself fully with the initiative of the Russians in calling for a plenary conference of the international Socialists.

The resolution also named a delegation to arrange with the Russians for a meeting of the international Socialists as requested by M. Moutet.

New York, May 29.—After a speaker at a recruiting meeting held here last night, under the auspices of the medical reserve corps, had declared that England faces the problem of caring for one million wounded men, exclusive of convalescents, 173 of the 1,000 New York physicians present signed applications for commissions in the corps.

Col. Roosevelt arraigned the "conscientious objector," saying that if he had his way he would instantly cut off his vote.

Count Andrassy, Former Premier and Prominent Opposition Leader, Succeeds Count Tisza; Break With Germany in Near Future is Forecast by Appointment

By Courier Leased Wire Zurich, Switzerland, May 29.—via London, 1.15 p.m.—An official telegram from Budapest says that Emperor Charles has appointed Count Julius Andrassy premier of Hungary.

There has been a vacancy in the Hungarian premiership since May 23, when Count Stephen Tisza, Austria-Hungary's "iron man" and leader of the pro-German party in the Monarchy, resigned his post.

Count Andrassy, a former premier and long one of the most prominent leaders of the opposition to Count Tisza's ministry, is regarded as a Liberal of the advanced type.

Amsterdam, May 29.—via London, 3:12 p.m.—The Volks Zeitung of Cologne says official confirmation of the report of Count Andrassy's appointment is lacking.

"BATTER UP: PLAY BALL" IS CALL ON THE WESTERN FRONT TODAY

Baseball Season in World War League, Many Canadian Teams Now Under Full Swing

British Headquarters in France, May 28, via London 1:25 p.m.—(From a staff correspondent of The Associated Press) The old adage of all work and no play has its application in war as well as in peace.

The game was between teams representing two Canadian brigades. As a matter of fact all the teams in what may be called the World War League are now composed of representatives of the numerous Canadian bodies and all the players are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the American forces to arrange for an inter-league series.

The Second Canadian brigade beat the third by the score of 7 to 1. The Second brigade had a great left-handed pitcher whose delivery the Third brigade batters could not solve at all.

The game was remarkably free from errors, considering the battlefield diamond on which it was played. All the equipment had been brought overseas, including the base bags.

WORLD'S GREATEST CONJURER IS DEAD

John Nevil Maskelyne Was Pioneer and Leader in Stage Magic

HAD MANY FOLLOWERS Master of All Magicians He Originated Many Wonderful Feats

Even in time of war such an event ought not to go unchronicled as the death of John Nevil Maskelyne...

He would undertake to imitate any of their wonders and even surpass them, and after he had given the demonstration he would display the cards and wires and pulleys and dummies which he had used.

Maskelyne was an Englishman, and from his youth up a student of conjurers and their tricks. As he developed he was noted for repeating what he had seen, and began to invent new devices.

SHOULD WOMEN SMOKE?

(Montreal Star) It is rather amusing to me to see serious-minded, earnest people discussing in all soberness the earnest questions, "Should Women Smoke?"

The question has gone beyond discussion, for women do smoke, and not all the questioning and discussion in the world will stop the cloud of smoke which women of every degree are sending heavenward all over the world.

"Society" women, business women, debutantes and grandmothers, royalty and common folk—English and French, Russian and Italian—suffragette and anti—everybody's doing it, and you and I can't stop 'em, even if we would.

Why on earth shouldn't they smoke if they want to? Unfeminine? Right! Some of your grandmothers smoked clay pipes, and did anyone say unfeminine? A cigarette, prettily smoked, is as graceful as that weapon of feminine flirtation, the fan.

Don't let's revert to the early Victorian order of things, when women lived in a sphere as "crabbed, cabled and confined" as were their waists. This is the 20th century, glory be, the women are emerging from outer darkness into the light of the modern world.

GLENN GERMAN PITS LAID BARE Intrigues of Teuton Conspiracies Revealed Thru British Censorship

The British mail censor with his staff of 5,000 skilled assistants has uncovered many clever German plots.

Secret Writing Exposed. They concocted an invisible sympathetic ink, and with it filled the envelope.

"In due time it reached the British censorship, where the head of the testing department, given orders that all communications written by Prussian officers, whether under parole or not, should be subjected to the most thorough scrutiny.

"The writer of this," he said, "is up to some deviltry. I deduce this from the fact that he omits to complain of not having a servant to wait on him, such a grumble is invariably the first that a Prussian officer makes when he reaches prison."

Valuable to British. Within an hour the assistant had discovered and developed the secret writing on the inside of the envelope.

The commandant expects a ship from America to South West Africa next month. The commandant intends to hold up the British army of 60,000 men by a slow retreat and thus keep it away from more important theatres of war.

THE SITUATION.
The Italian continue their tremendous pressure against the Austrians with sustained success. They are now close to Duino on the Gulf of Trieste, at which point a railway leads into the latter place. There will be much heavy fighting and many great natural obstacles to overcome before the important seaport can be reached but the present indications are that the fall of the place will be accomplished. British heavy guns and monitors are aiding in the offensive and the foe cannot hope for any reinforcements from Germany.

The French during a week of fighting of the nibbling sort, have gained important heights in the Champagne region.

Official news from the British front indicates that Haig is preparing for another big drive and that there is a considerable artillery action. During many air fights twelve German machines were destroyed and ten others driven down out of control. Three British planes failed to return.

To add to other things Russia is now faced with an economic crisis, workmen having made wage demands which cannot be met.

Brazil has come one step nearer to war, the Chamber there, by a vote of 136 to 3, having passed the first reading of the government bill regarding the neutrality of the country. It is said that strike troubles in Paris have been traced to Teuton agitators.

Rumors persist that all is not proceeding smoothly with regard to the relations between Austria and Germany.

At Washington yesterday a bill authorizing a drastic food census was passed. The measure provides for $17,700,000 for the food survey, and for increasing production, conserving supply and preventing waste of food.

CANT GET OUT OF IT THAT WAY.
The Courier says the hand of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was forced in the matter of sending Canadian contingents to South Africa. If that be the hand of Sir Robert Borden was forced in the matter of enacting selective conscription.—Expositor.

No comparison whatever.

When the present war broke out Sir Robert Borden at once offered Canadian help. When the Boer war broke out Sir Wilfrid Laurier hindered Canadian help.

Other Overseas Dominions very promptly offered men; Canada was the last to do so.

Laurier sought to justify this inaction by an interview which he gave to the Toronto Globe and during which he said:

"There is no menace to Canada, and although we may be willing to contribute troops I do not see how we can do so. There again how could we do so without Canada granting us the money? We simply could not do anything. In other words we should have to summon parliament. The Government of Canada is restricted in its powers. It is responsible to parliament and it can do very little without permission of parliament. There is no doubt as to the attitude of the Government on all questions that mean menace to British interests but in this case our limitations are very clearly defined. And so it is that we have not offered a Canadian contingent to the home authorities."

It was public opinion which finally forced Sir Wilfrid to act.

For the local Grit organ to seek to pretend that Sir Robert Borden finally advising selective conscription is on all fours with Laurier declining, until forced, to send any troops at all, is, of course, the sheerest kind of buncombe.

BALFOUR'S SPEECHES.
The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour made one of his characteristic speeches in Ottawa yesterday—an address abounding in lofty thought, combined with keen analysis, and the manifestation of a wide range of intellectual knowledge. As usual with him, during the series of gatherings here which he has appeared on the present tour, he did not speak at any inordinate length, but what he had to say was pregnant with thought and meaning.

And how happily he chose his words. Take the sentence addressed to his Toronto hearers:—

"I come from a nation of friends, to a nation of countrymen."

And this language during his farewell address to the American people; "After all, the co-operation of two great countries is not merely the question of working through the instrumentality of experts, the sending of men here or there, the proper distribution of your naval forces, the method by which the financial co-operation can best be secured, or all the other endless questions which have come up for daily discussion. Those are all important. They do not stand alone. Something more than that, if a mission be fortunate, may come of its work, something in a sympathetic and mutual comprehension; there is something the worth of which cannot indeed be estimated merely by enumerating army corps, or millions or billions of dollars, or the cataloguing of destroyers but which is represented by something different, more spiritual and as important; a sympathy of soul between two great and free peoples, who are not only engaged in a common task but are conscious of their mutual co-operation."

A master of language, an exemplar of true statesmanship, and the quintessence of urbanity and courtesy, Balfour, without any doubt, is the outstanding, all round figure in British public life to-day.

PATRIOTIC CANADIANS WILL BE ROUSED.
"Mr. Balfour's address in Parliament to-day will be the calm before the storm," Toronto Globe, Monday.

The above excerpt from the editor's columns of the leading Grit organ summarizes a spirit of narrow partisanship which should revolt all true Canadians and Britishers.

Storm about what? Simply the fact that the voluntary system of enlistment having reached its limit, Sir Robert Borden has given notice of the only logical step to take—Selective Conscription.

To that a large number of the unpatriotic French-Canadians of Quebec object. Having failed in a most marked and reprehensible manner to respond to the voluntary call, not alone of the Empire under which they have enjoyed so much freedom, but of their mother land, which the Buns have been attempting to bleed to death, they are now, by a traitorous course, seeking to resist what Borden weighted with full responsibility of the Premiership and with first hand knowledge gained during his recent visit to the Old Land, has declared to be a necessary step.

These defamers of the nation went into wild acclamations over the recent visit of Joffre and Viviani to Montreal and Ottawa, but they desire to have their service end in shouts, and to see others do the perishing when it comes to the safeguarding of liberties which mean as much to them as to any the rest of us.

And Laurier, well aware of the rank apostasy of their course, has made no sign. He has more individual power among his compatriots than any other one man, and his immediate support in the House of Borden's proposal would have done much to check what is now occurring.

He did not give it.

For political reasons he decided to lay low, and to let the disorganizing elements among his compatriots have full sway, apparently hoping that something might result politically to his advantage out of the hubbub.

The coming storm is the gleeful chuckle of the Globe, forgetting apparently that a vast majority of the men and the women in this Dominion will hold to strict account all who are in the smallest degree responsible for any attempted disruption.

The deluge which overwhelmed the Laurier Government in the matter of Reciprocity will be as nothing to it.

Laurier will be forced to take a definite stand soon, and if it is based on the sentiment that the Quebec malcontents must be considered ahead of everything else, then indeed his career and his political aspirations will go down to utter oblivion.

CATTLE AT LARGE.
The township authorities state that there is a common practice among the residents of the township, of allowing their cattle and stock to pasture on the roadside. This is contrary to the by-laws of the township, and action is to be taken unless the practice is stopped. Several anonymous complaints, mentioning the names of the chief offenders in this respect have been received by the township clerk.

While returning from Hamilton recently in an automobile, with five others, a resident of the city, when just within the boundaries of the township, came upon a herd of cattle grazing on the roadside and wandering at will across the road. The herd was just below the summit of a hill, and the driver of the car was upon the cattle before he was aware of their presence. The cows separated, leaving the roadway free, with the exception of one, which was struck by the automobile, throwing the car with its six occupants, into the ditch, and narrowly averting a serious mishap.

OTHER BUSINESS DONE

Council Considering Purchase of 500 Tons of Coal

(From our own Correspondent)
Paris, May 28.—Council met last night pursuant to adjournment with Mayor Robinson in the chair. Present: Mr. Daniel, Aldermen Blake, Daniel, McKay, McCannion, Walker and Wooler.

Minutes of last regular and special meetings read and confirmed.

All of the above petitions were referred to the streets and sidewalks committee.

Constable Stewart wrote the council asking for an increase of $20.00 per month. He was receiving $60.00 per month. Upon motion, Stewart was granted a bonus of $100 for 1917, the same as awarded Chief Felker at a previous meeting.

On motion of Mr. Daniel and Deputy-Reeve, a bonus of $100.00 was also granted the worthy clerk and treasurer for 1917.

Ald. James McKay stated that the nuisance arising from the odor from the regulator house in connection with the Dominion Natural Gas Co. on William St., was not abated. He also intimated that if not remedied he would enter suit for damages against the town.

Ald. Wooler and Daniel moved that the Mayor, Reeve and Deputy, be a committee to prepare a municipal honor roll of the men who have left Paris for overseas, who were residents of Paris. Also that an individual honor roll or certificate be presented to each man's family or next of kin. Carried.

A communication was read from the local representative of the Dominion Gas Co., re removal of regulator house on William Street, and the removal of water flood traps, using gas, as it would mean low pressure. Efforts would be made to abate the trouble complained of.

The matter will be referred to the town solicitor as to power of council in the matter.

A special meeting of the council will be held to deal with the report of committee re municipal garbage system in town.

Deputy Reeve Stewart stated that in connection with the complaint of residents in the Catharine street and Ball St. section, of water flood traps, the matter had been gone into. A special drain 8 inches in diameter would carry off the surface water, and a culvert and manhole would take water from town parties into same.

Mr. F. Sugden was present, and spoke at some length, showing that some years ago the council directed a spring on Queen St. onto Catharine, and that since that time no efficient drainage scheme had been done by the authorities to carry off the water, and hence the trouble.

It was decided to interview the property holders in the section affected, and see if they would agree to stand a portion of the expense for a sewer to be put down past their properties.

Ald. Wooler asked the Mayor if the council would be willing to go into the purchase of 500 tons of coal to sell to citizens. He intimated that the local merchants might be willing to assist in the matter.

Ald. Walker stated that one

Brantford alderman had told him that the city was buying 5000 tons around $6.00 per ton. Paris should get into touch with Brantford at once and co-operate in the matter of purchase.

The question will be taken up.

The matter of the resolution passed at a previous meeting of the council against the school children to prevent the children from playing in King's Ward Park was brought up by Ald. Wooler. He hoped the council would not press the motion, as there were no places in town where children could play. If the same is closed to school children there was only one remedy and that the purchase of a larger play ground.

A young man had been appointed as bell-ringer pending the meeting of the council. Ald. Wooler was of the opinion that such jobs should be offered returned soldiers, if remuneration was worth while. It was suggested that the position be held monthly by whoever took over the job. Council adjourned.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baskett, South Dumfries on Wednesday, when their youngest daughter, Miss Margaret Josephine, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. Symons, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Symons, of Brantford. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Thompson, of Brantford, assisted by Rev. L. Carter, of Salem, Michigan.

Upon returning Mr. and Mrs. Symons will reside on Park Plains.

Both the bride and groom were the recipients of a number of valuable gifts. Guests were present from Michigan, Ingalls, Swenborg, Brantford and Paris. All joined in wishing the bride and groom a long and happy life.

T. & L. COUNCIL
To the Editor Courier:

Dear Sir,—I was somewhat surprised at the report you published in Thursday's paper in reference to the Trade and Labor meeting held on Wednesday night. I also noticed that the chief speaker was Mr. Keen. Now sir, I have attended several meetings at the Labor hall, and have also heard this man, Keen, and just three or four more that do all the talking, with Peter Noble in the chair, and, sir, he has to go and do it as the other four say and do. It only needs one visit there to see through the whole thing. The same Mr. Keen is always pumping about the independent party of which I feel sure he would very much like the nomination. He does the biggest part of the blowing of the horn. I myself have spoken to quite a few on the conscription cause and the majority seem very strong in favor of it, and Sir I think the people should not be led astray by this small bunch of representatives of the labor party. If they were all like this little bunch, why the Kaiser would be marching right on to us. I think that the least they could have done was to encourage it a bit. But as I know and several others also the politics have just a little to do with the said same bunch.

Yours etc.

Six Nation Women's Patriotic League

The annual meeting of the S. N. I. W. P. L. was held at the Council House Oshweken, when a report of the years work was given by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Garlow. This report will be published in pamphlet form when the Hon. President, Mrs. Brown, is able to resume the work. The report comprised the assistance at recruiting meetings, farewell picnics and garden parties, preparation and presentation of Iroquois colors to "D Co." Brock Rangers, sale of Red Booklets with its proceeds for Netley Hospital, the grants from the chiefs for yarn, the knitting of 400 pairs of socks during the winter months, Christmas presents to the boys in the trenches and prisoners of war in Germany, and the reception to returned soldiers and many other matters of minor detail. One notable feature of the report was a widowed lady with the care of a farm, although for many months has knit over 100 pairs of socks.

For the present year a junior league has been formed. The Grand River "Black" team and the Oshweken "Crimson" team—the Iroquois colors. This league is composed of young girls of the S. N. I. who have for their object the raising of Red Cross and Memorial money to keep in support the present Six Nation and Mohawk Institute bed at Netley Hospital. Six hundred crimson and black satin badges bearing the names of the captains of the teams; Six Nation seal, and George III Royal Coat of Arms and the words, "we are working for our boys, are you?" have already been printed and are being rapidly sold by the two teams.

Handsome quilts, two hand carved walnut trays, having on them the design of the Iroquois colors, are being prepared and will be drawn for or sold at the fall fair. The women will take charge of the knitting and patriotic work.

One of the most appreciated orders received for the Red Booklet was a Hamilton from whose factory the late Lieut. Cameron Brant enlisted for the war, for a number of copies to be distributed among his fellow workmen. The sale of the Booklet was over but a number were spared from those reserved for historical purpose and a cheque received in return. As the Red Cross money had been spent for the year and as the bequest spoke so highly in itself of the esteem and affection felt by those who knew him best, his employer and fellow-workmen, the cheque was placed in the bank to form the nucleus of a memorial fund to the Six Nations fallen heroes, which will be added to when the war is over and the matter may be taken up with interest.

The money raised by the girls of the Six Nations, over and above what is needed for the Red Cross for the year will be placed in this memorial fund.

ANOTHER PITCHING MARVEL.
Kansas City, May 29.—Baseball scouts are watching the work of C. C. McKinney, a pitcher for William Jewell College, who thus far this season has pitched 33 innings and has fanned 73 batsmen an average of almost 2 1-3 strikeouts an inning.

The tenders received for a new incinerator in Winnipeg ranged from $2,500 to $6,000.

Special Sermon at Colborne St. Church

A very large congregation attended the Colborne street Methodist church on Sunday evening to hear a special sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Baker, to the Junior Brotherhood and men of the congregation. The men and boys, numbering about 300, occupied the centre pews of the church which had been reserved for them.

Mr. Baker preached an excellent sermon on the text, "Building yourselves up on your most holy faith," Jude, 20th verse.

Three figures are used in the New Testament to progressive Christian life; 1st. The race or journey; 2nd. The natural growth, tree or vine; 3rd. Expanded effort as in building.

We were all building characters, and that we be not disappointed by a collapse in the crisis, we had better be sure we build upon the rock and not upon the sand.

In order that we might get to rock bottom we must drive spiles of faith through to Jesus Christ, the Rock of Ages.

Buildings are known by what goes on inside of them, and so with our lives. We are therefore exhorted to build much more than a hovel, or a shop or a place of merchandise, or a place of amusement, or a study, or laboratory or museum. We should build a temple where the Holy Spirit can dwell. Temples are symmetrical, beautiful structures, whose doors are invitingly open for all needy, suffering, sorrowing, erring, burdened ones. So our Christian lives should be inviting to needy, weak ones who will say "He or she will be interested and will help me."

We will need a foundation and a plan, and continuous effort to rear our building called a Christian character.

Two great principles are working in all life, "Love for self," and "Love for Others." If we would help others, we must first help ourselves. Before we can teach we must learn. Before we can assist with charity we must both earn and save. Before we can help we must ourselves be helped.

The speed of the Electric car is determined by the power stored in the Power house. The flow of the water is determined by the fullness of the reservoir. The work with what we have gathered and stored and have under control.

The law of life is "not give in," but "what we work." What we give in inspiration we get by perspiration. What we give in sweat we get in harvest. What we give in youth we get in old age. What we give in service to-morrow; it will be in nights, living modestly, quietly and industriously. The greatest contribution to civilization have been isolated. Influential men come mostly from the quiet country or village or small place where they have had time and opportunity to think.

Be sure you have times of retirement, "Come ye youths apart, make time to be Holy." In our modern city life few will have privacy in which to grow a strong soul if they do not determinedly seek it. If we would serve well we must build right. There is a plan for right buildings, it is the Christ-like plan.

The choir under the direction of Geo. C. White, Organist, rendered special music, the Anthem being, "God of Israel." Mr. Walter M. Jones sang a solo "King David's Lament," which was also greatly appreciated.

School Sections Not to be Changed

An open meeting of great interest to the ratepayers of the township of Brantford, was held in the council chambers by the township council last night, and was largely attended, between seventy-five and a hundred persons being present. The meeting had been summoned for the purpose of arranging a more equitable distribution of the school section. The original protest against the present condition was made by the Canada Glue Company associated with several farmers in that district who objected against the long distance which it was necessary to send children for their schooling. A meeting was held a week ago, and the matter was fully considered, the decision being finally arrived at to defer the settlement, until such time as the whole system could be reviewed with the view of arranging a more satisfactory allotment of territory. The schools originally concerned were the Bellview, Echo Place and Cainsville, but in the meantime the councillors contemplated action which would affect the Tranquility and Grand View School, and strong objections from these districts were presented last night. The Canada Glue Company was represented by Mr. W. S. Brewster. Mr. Harley appeared for those who opposed a change, while S. J. A. was represented by Mr. M. W. McEwen. Mr. Joseph Dunstan, school trustee of Tranquility, spoke for the ratepayers of that section.

The councillors agreed that inequalities certainly did exist, but in the face of the violently conflicting opinions, it was felt that at the present time no satisfactory adjustment could be effected. There was also the fact to be considered that any change decided upon would have to go into effect before June 1st, and this would leave little time to deal thoroughly with the matter.

HE GAVE HIS LIFE

That His Fellow Countrymen Might be Free

In Brant Avenue Church on Sunday evening Rev. Mr. Bowers made this reference to the passing of another young Brantford hero, a son of E. Reid and Mrs. Picher:

"Once again the dreaded yellow envelope has come into our congregation and has plunged another family into grief and sorrow. To the list of our fallen heroes, a list that is growing painfully long, must be added the name of Earl Picher, who gave his life that his fellow countrymen might be free. In the presence of that speaking 'honor roll' we may well ask 'Are we who remain at home and far from danger, in any degree worthy of the price that is being paid for our privilege to live and be men and not slaves?' Not unless we are doing all that in us lies to support them who are in the midst of the actual strife and to help them gain a sure and speedy victory. To be in any measure worthy the sacrifice these heroic and patriotic youths are making for us, we, too, must make sacrifice; for them, sacrifice of means, of comfort, of convenience. And after we have done our utmost we will still have to confess that our sacrifices are insignificant compared with theirs, for nothing can equal the giving of life."

Loid at Rest MRS. M'QUINN The funeral of Mrs. J. H. McQuinn took place from her late residence, 28 Bruce St., yesterday morning, to St. Basil's Church, where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Dogorski, thence to St. Joseph's cemetery, where interment was made.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful and included: Wreath, family; spray, sisters; Cross, Royal Cafe; wreath, Iron Moulders Union; base of roses, Brant Theatre; wreath, Lyceum Theatre, Galt; sprays, Mr. Toots Caudwell, Galt; girls of Computing Scale Co., George Wong, Vera Bremner, Louise Clemons, Mildred Hazelton, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Ladd, Mary and Margaret Clemons, Miss Cards—Knights of Columbus, Mrs. S. Brohman, Mr. J. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. J. Whiting, Mr. J. Morgison, Mr. and Mrs. S. McQuinn; Requiem High Mass card, Mr. and Mrs. J. Golanski and family.

Besides a sorrowing husband, there are left to mourn her loss, one daughter, Mary, four sons, Frank, who is at the front, Joseph, James and Charlie at home, two sisters, Mrs. M. J. Reid, Niagara Falls, N.Y., Mrs. Wm. Rambo, Port Colborne.

THE MAELSTROM

By Frank Froest

Late Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard. (Copyright)

(From Monday's Daily.)
 "Queer that it should come in so handy," he grinned feebly, and then weakness overcame him.

He gave a number into the telephone and hours seemed to elapse before he got Mezzies. In a quick rush of words he made himself known to the detective and related the happenings of the evening. He was not to know that barely a dozen disconnected words had reached the detective. His strength was waning and he wanted Mezzies to know everything before he gave way. As he finished the receiver dropped listlessly from his hand, and for the first time in his life Jimmie Hallett faintly.

At the other end of the wire Weir Mezzies was left with one of those harassing little problems that he hated. It was an irregular hour—an hour when he had reckoned on being safely on his way home. For all the insistence of the voice at the telephone it might be quite a trivial affair. Mezzies did not like losing sleep for trifles. People in trouble are apt to take distorted views of the importance of their difficulties. That is why private inquiry agencies flourish.

Mezzies had once been asked to investigate a highly important West End robbery at the house of a duke. The duchess herself had demanded the services of "the ablest and most experienced detective possible," and had refused to give details to any one else. Mezzies went—to discover that a pet Pomeranian had strayed. "Madam," he had remarked after a frigid five minutes, "at one period I should have been delighted to try to find your dog. I was then paid for other things. There are many men as competent as I for the investigation to which you attach such importance. I regret that it would be a breach of duty for me to undertake it. I am merely a detective, but the salary I am paid for the use of my time would be out of proportion to the result, even if successful. I must refer you grace to the local police-station. Good evening."

Since then he had been very cautious of ambiguous messages. He thought of his well-aired bed and sighed. Half was tempted to turn over the affair to the local division of police to deal with the case or leave it to the night staff of the criminal investigation department. The fact that he had been appealed to by name ultimately swayed him. In two minutes he had set in motion the machinery which would reveal the point from which the voices originated. It needed no complex reasoning, no swift flash of inspiration. He broke up a game of dominoes and emerged with two men—one to extract from the Kensington directory a list of thoroughfares ending in "Gardens," and the names of the persons who resided at the respective thirty-fours, and the other with a telephone directory to eliminate all those not on the telephone.

"And get a move on," he added. "I don't want to hang about all night. Ask Riddle to come up and phone 'em through to the local people as you check 'em out. Tell 'em they'll oblige me by sending out as many spare men as they've got to ask at each address if any one rang me up."

He adjusted his coat with precision, lit a cigar, and sauntered over to the underground station opposite. Barring accidents, the address would be reached Kensington. His anticipation was not disappointed. One of the advantages which the criminal investigation department has over the individual amateur detective, beloved by Magistratefontein Road, is the co-operation at need of a practically unlimited number of trained men.

True, the detective staff at Kensington had long since gone home, since there was no extraordinary business to detain them, but in this case a dozen ordinary constables served as well. Nine of them had returned when Mezzies walked in. There was only one who interested him. He had reported that he could get no reply from Linstone Terrace Gardens.

"Did you find who lives there?" questioned the chief inspector.

The reply was prompt. "Yes, sir. Old gentleman named Greye-Stratton. He lives alone. Had two servants until last week, when he sacked 'em both because he said they had been bribed to poison him."

"Ah!" Mezzies nodded approval. "You've got your wits about you, my lad. Where did you get all this from?"

The constable flushed with pleasure. He was young enough in the force to appreciate a compliment from the veteran detective. "The servant next door, sir," he answered. "That will do. Thank you." Mezzies rubbed his hands with satisfaction as he turned on the uniformed inspector by his side. "It begins to sound like a case," he muttered. All his petulance had gone. When it came to the point, the man was an enthusiast in his profession. "I'll get you to come along with me, inspector. It sounds uncommonly like a case."

CHAPTER III.
The First Step.

The eminent Tooting churchwarden, perched on the staid shoulders of his uniformed colleague, wriggled his way on to the roof of the porch with an agility that was justifiable neither to his years nor his weight. He was taking a certain amount of risk, if there were no serious emergency within the place, for even a chief detective inspector may not break into a house without justification.

He worked for a while with a big clasp knife on the little landing window with a skill that would have done credit to many of the professional practitioners who had passed through his hands, and at last threw up the sash and squeezed himself inside.

"Wonder if I'm making a fool of myself after all?" he muttered with some misgiving as he struck a match and softly picked his way along the corridor. He was peculiarly sensitive to ridicule, and he knew the chaff that would descend on his head if it leaked out that he had elaborately picked out and broken into a house, empty for quite a plausible reason.

There would be no way of keeping the matter dark, for every incident of the night would have to be embodied in reports. Every detective in London is bound to keep an official diary of his work, however free a hand he is given in his methods.

He burned only one match to enable him to get his bearings. Noiselessly he descended the stairs into the hall, and his quick eye observed a splash of light across the floor. It came from under a doorway. He turned the handle and pushed. The door resisted.

"Locked," he murmured, and knocked thunderously. "Hello in there! Any one about?"

Only the muffled reverberation of his own voice came back to him.

SIDE TALKS

RUTH BAKER CAMERON

DON'T GET SOUR.

We were speaking of a very young appearing woman who is rapidly approaching her forties.

"She certainly doesn't show it," said someone.

"Not in her face," said someone else.

"You mean—"

"That she is beginning to show it in her manner. I am afraid she is getting a wee bit sour. She's always saying sharp, critical things about people and there's a pessimistic hinter note about everything she says. I know she's had some disappointments but she'll have more if she keeps on that way. I've noticed already that people aren't so keen about her society as they used to be."

A Danger of Middle Age
 Does that describe anyone you know?

"I didn't happen to be acquainted with this woman, but my mind went swiftly to another woman whom it fitted perfectly. So I fancy it must be a more or less common danger middle people who are approaching middle age."

And especially I think for women who are unmarried or married and childless.

Seeing one's youth slipping out of one's fingers without having received due return for it in the life of the second generation is always a sad thing.

Not to be embittered one needs either absorbing interests of some sort or great strength of character.

And yet, to yield to this bitterness is fatal.

If You Yield You Will Be More Unhappy

You are bitter because you have not gotten more love and happiness out of life. But if you let that bitterness entrench itself in your life and heart and consequently in your face and manner you will drive love and happiness far away from you.

Make up your mind you simply won't grow sour.

Don't allow yourself to say sharp things about people. Even when you are apt to reflect more on people's opinions of you than on their opinions of the people about whom you say them.

Don't Be Cranky.

Don't be pessimistic and cynical and bitter in your point of view. Don't be down on the young people. Don't be always criticizing someone. Don't be cranky. Keep sweet. It may be hard just now but by and by you will get your mind set in the right direction and it will become natural.

And if at any time you need something to bolster up your resolutions, just look about you for someone who has permitted herself to grow acid. I am sure that had example will be all you need.

LADIES' WAIST.
 By Anabel Worthington.

Femininity does not seem to be able to get along without luscious waists and so every season a new crop of designs is brought out. The model shown, No. 8233 is a particularly pleasing illustration of what is being worn this spring. Though it looks very dainty and frilly in the sketch the small front view shows that the construction is very simple, the elaborate effect being gained solely by the use of lace inserting and edging. Long sleeves, with frills, are a style feature, though many will prefer the shorter ones for comfort. Pilet insertion and edging are the most popular at present, though Irish crochet is also being used extensively.

The ladies' waist pattern, No. 8233, is cut in four sizes—36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. The 36-inch size requires 3 1/2 yards 27-inch, 2 1/2 yards 36-inch, 1 1/2 yards 40-inch material, with 6 yards insertion and 2 yards edging.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver

THE TWO FAIRIES' QUEST.

Once upon a time two fairies were having a discussion as to whether there were any people in the world who did kind deeds without thinking of the reward. They decided that the only way to find out was to go out into the world and see for themselves. So one bright day the two fairies changed themselves into two dogs and trotted into the village.

They entered the gate of a rich man's place.

"Don't feed these hounds or they will think they can stay here, and I don't want them," cried the owner to his wife, and gathering stones he chased the two dogs from the road.

"See, the more one has the more he wants," said one dog, and they went on until they reached the next house. And when they entered the yard a little old woman called to her husband.

"Come father, our wish has been granted. Here are two dogs," cried the little old woman.

"I only hope they stay with us," said the husband, and the two dogs wagged their tails and decided to remain.

From that day on the old couple's fields yielded better crops than any fields around there, and before long they had enough money to build a nice cottage.

"I can hardly get along on the grain my fields yield. Why is it that your ground is so much better than mine?" asked the Rich Man, and the old man laughed.

"My wife says it's luck to have stray dogs come to you, and it seems ever since these dogs took up their home with us our crops have been better. They are good to keep off things that would destroy the crops," replied the old man, patting the two dogs.

"Why! those dogs came to my place first, by rights they belong to me," exclaimed the Rich Man, when he recognized the two dogs, and he took them with him when he went home.

"They brought luck to our neighbor," he told his wife, and the dogs were tied so they could not get away. But the Rich Man's land grew worse every day, while the old couple's fields were producing better grain all the time and they steadily grew richer.

Finally the Rich Man lost all his money and his beautiful home had to be sold, and the two dogs became their property once more. One day, as the old woman the fairies disappeared in her chair, a hand touched her shoulder, and turning, she saw two beautiful fairies smiling at her.

"Dear little mother, we are no longer dogs, but fairies. We came to you in that disguise, poor and friendless, and you took us in and gave us home. We must return to Fairyland, but we leave you better off than when we came. From now on everything good shall come to you, both as one of the fairies and kissing the old woman the fairies disappeared.

When the old man entered the house he found his wife in tears. She told him what had happened. He laughed and said she had been dreaming, but as the days passed and the dogs failed to return he began to believe his wife had spoken truly.

"Yes, there are some people in the world who are not always expecting their kind deeds to bring them reward," agreed the two fairies when they had sailed back to Fairyland.
