The Sound of Wedding Bells

Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER XVII.

But she manages to smile, to smile and answer them in short monosyllables, her eyes wandering round the room still in search of that one loved face. Where has he gone? Why does he not come, if only with a frown?

She drinks her tea, and half a dozen hands are at her service to relieve her of her cup, the little thong grows close and thicker, the heat seems insufferable. With an effort she rises, and turns to Edie, who stands near her; she must ask some one.

"Is—didn't I see Sir Hugh in the room, Edie?" she says, with affected carelessness.

"Hugh? Yes, he was here just before you came down. I don't know where he has got to. He was talking to mamma a moment ago, do you want him?" For it seemed natural to Edie that if the queen of the evening should want any one that one should be fetched. "I will find him for you."

"No, not," says Dulcie, hurriedly, and detaining her. "I—I merely asked. Don't you think it is very hot, Edie?" in a whisper. "Come with me into the fernery," and she puts her hand on Edie's arm.

Wondering, Edie goes with her.

"What is it, dear?"

But Dulcie stands, with a half flush on her face, hesitating. Then she screws up her courage.

"Edie, I do want to see your brother! I want to ask him—it doesn't matter. But," pleadingly, "if you could find him—"

"I'll find him if he's in the house," says Edie, cheerily. "You sit down and rest, dear," and with a smile she puts Dulcie into the chair which Lucy Fairfax had reclined in on the night of her arrival. Five minutes—an hour it seems to Dulcie—pass, and then there is the sound of a man's footstep on the marble, and Hugh stands before her.

She springs up to greet him with a sudden joy that casts out fear for the moment—joy at his nearness.

"Hugh!" she breathes, and she holds out her hands.

But they fall to her side, and she sinks into the chair again at the pale sternness of his face; and the cold,

"You wished to see me, Miss Dorrmore?" he says.

The conventional question—the "Miss Dorrmore"—seems to fall upon her heart like ice. With a long-drawn breath she turns her head away.

He stands silent, looking down at her with the grim, stern, accusing frown on his handsome face for a moment or two, then he says again: "You sent for me, I think?"

Now, if she will but turn to him, penitent and loving, there is still a chance. A word of the right sort from her will melt him; but the defiant, rebellious spirit is rising within her bosom, and a patch of red shows on her cheeks that a moment ago were so pale and anxious.

"Did I?" she says, with affected nonchance.

He flushes, and his hands clasp each other behind his back with a convulsive grasp.

"I was mistaken, it appears," he says, "since it seems that you have nothing to say to me," and he moves slightly away.

She glances round at him.

"Have—have you nothing to say to me?" she says, in a low voice.

He smiles bitterly.

"Much," he says, "more than I can say—more than it would be wise to say, perhaps."

"What do you mean?" she demands.

"What is the matter? What have I done that—that you should speak to me like this?" and the thought of how little she has really done lends indignation to her soul.

He understands it as defiance and bravado, and his anger rises, but he struggles with it. He has vowed to himself that he will be calm, that she will not make him suffer more, than he has already suffered this evening, that there shall be no "scene."

"Do you ask me that?" he says, after a pause. "Perhaps you do not know that I arrived in time to witness your—triumph?"

"I saw you," she says, concisely.

"Yes, I saw you, Well?"

"Well?" and his passion seems almost to overmaster him. Ah, well! with a bitter sneer, "after all, that is the way you would take it. It is nothing to you, a solemn promise broken, a man's honest love toyed with, and dishonored!"

She turns her face to him, bitter as his own.

"What!" she demands, with an expression which perhaps only Dulcie can give.

He smiles sardonically.

"Permit me to remind you that the play is over, that there is no reason to act any further. I am too convinced of your histrionic powers to need further specimens."

At the blunt bitterness and the sarcasm, she seems to shrink into herself.

"Go on," she breathes.

"Is it for me to speak?" he says.

"Very good, I accept the challenge. Had it been possible I would have dispensed with words. Surely we understand each other by this time? At least, I understand too well that I have been deceived and duped, that you have succeeded in fooling me to the top of my bent."

He pauses for a moment, and she sits and listens to the low angry voice, the bitter words, made doubly bitter by his effort to remain calm, notwithstanding the fire of wounded love and jealousy that rages within his breast.

"May I ask," he says, with the air of a dispassionate inquirer, "why it was necessary to deceive me so thoroughly? Was it merely for amusement, to while away the tedious

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families greet by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about 5¢.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain granulated sugar syrup. Nothing better, but why buy it? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous the world over for its prompt results. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

of your constrained visit, or had you any deeper motive? Why did you swerve from your original intention, from your avowed dislike of me, to pretend—the word sticks to my tongue—love for me? Love! Heaven save the word! And yet I believed in it. You played your part so well, you were so great an actress, that I believed in it."

He pauses again; and she sits, her head drooped, her hands clasped.

"I believed in it so thoroughly that I would have answered for your truth with my life. I have hugged this belief to my heart all the while I have been away, like the fool that I was. I said—daily, hourly—'vain, fickle, variable as she may be, I have won her love!'"

A little sob, too faint to be audible to him, breaks from her.

"And with this flattering unctious laid to my soul I hastened home to find that I had been trusting to a reed, that I had been, indeed, fooled to the top of my bent, and that in a few days you had forgotten your false vows, your false promise. I came back to find you making an exhibition of yourself before half the county, in company with the man whose heart you had won before I saw you, and whom, no doubt, you will fling aside as you have flung me."

Silence, profound, broken only by the buzz of voices in the saloon beyond, and the soft twitter of the birds in the aviary among the ferns.

"At least," he says, "you might have spared me a little. You knew that I loved you—thank Heaven, I can say," with passionate intensity, "that I can say 'loved!' The scene I have just witnessed has cured me of my folly; I love you no longer!"

She starts, and her hands twist together as if with a sharp pain.

"You might have spared me, I think! If you had thought, if you had possessed a grain of mercy in your composition, you would have said: 'I will effect it gently for him, he shall not come home full of trust and love to find me in the embrace of his rival!' 'A stage play, only,' you would say, 'acting, merely.' And I say that no girl who loved one man, as you pretended you loved me, would suffer another man to clasp her in his arms, to touch her lips. If you knew aught of love, if you were anything more than a beautiful, heartless coquette, you would feel as I feel, that the mere thought is sacrilege—and dishonor!"

Still she sits like a carved statue, the beautiful face white and strained, her eyes fixed on the ferns, her brain struggling with that one sentence to the exclusion of all else:

"I love you no longer."

Of what use is any speech of hers in the face of that grave assertion of his? Love, once gone, cannot be conjured back by any excuses, any explanations. Of what use to tell him that it was an accident; that it was forced upon her; that his cruel words are like so many daggers in the heart that loves him with all its wild, wayward strength?

"I love you no longer!"

The words ring in her ears like the knell in those of a condemned man.

He puts his hand to his brow to wipe the beads of cold sweat that have gathered there, and looks down at her sternly, passionately, for a moment, then his face changes suddenly. The silent beauty of the face, the forlorn, stricken attitude of the slim, girlish figure appeal to him and torture him. Unseen by her, his hands go out to her, her name trembles on his lips; but, as fate will have it, it is the moment when speech comes back to her, and, unconscious of the sudden tenderness that has sprung up within him, she rises and forces a smile.

"Have you quite finished?" she says, with a ghastly attempt at sarcasm. His hands fall to his side, and he turns his head away with a gesture of assent. "Quite? Are you sure? Is there no other cruel, unmanly word left?"

He puts up his hand.

"May I not even reply?" she says, with bitter irony, "or are you afraid that I shall put forward some excuse that may trouble you to go over it all again?"

He bites his lip. If she would but make some excuse! If she would but give him a chance!

"Do not be afraid!" she says, in a hard, strained voice. "I—I accept your dismissal—that is the word. Do you think I do not understand? You taunt me with not knowing what love means; how well you realize it, when you seize upon the first excuse to—to"—her voice breaks, but she masters it in a moment—"to assure me that all is over between us! Do you think I cared for the wretched play? You know I did not!"

He smiles incredulously.

"I did not!" she says. "I—I hated it——"

He turns to her quickly.

"But that does not matter," she goes on, hurriedly. "You have spoken too plainly to be misunderstood. Try as you will to hide it, you know that you are glad it has come to this! From the first you—despised me—from the first! Why—why did you bring me here? You would not have done so if it had not been for this wretched money! You were happy enough with some one else—you will be happy enough with her when I am gone; and for the money——"

He turns deadly pale under the insult, and his hand trembles as he puts it to his mustache.

"Do not let us speak of that, or— if you will force me to answer the question, I must tell you——"

"Go on!" she says, desperately.

"You force me!" he says. "Heaven knows I have struggled against the idea, even when my mother has put it before me. But was it not this accursed money that tempted you to feign love for me?"

She shrinks, and puts her hand to her heart.

"What else could it have been?" he says, with the bitterness of self-torture.

She looks up with a hard laugh.

"What else, indeed!" she retorts, "seeing that from the first we two were against each other. Yes, with another smile, "it must have been that!" and she laughs again. "Well, it is all over, is it not? The experiment has failed and——" she drops her hand and shrugs her shoulders.

He looks at her for a moment in silence, then he says, in a dry, cold voice:

"Yes, it has failed. Thank Heaven that we have learned the truth before it was too late. We—with a sad little smile—"we might have gone on deceiving ourselves until retreat was impossible. Now"—he pauses, and with a sigh of wistful mourning for the too short sweet past—"now it is all over!"

She does not speak, and for a moment silence reigns between them; then he says, in a low voice:

"One word more before we part"—she starts violently, but he does not notice her—"you will believe me when I say that I would have spared you—both of us—this scene. For myself I may say that it has been a trying one. I had intended writing you a line before I went——"

She sinks into the chair, and turns her face away; her lips are twitching, a cold hand seems closing about her heart.

OPERATIONS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Highly successful operations in the neighborhood of Poelcapelle, in conjunction with the French, south of the Ypres salient, are reported in a statement from Field Marshal Haig to-night. The whole of the objectives, including many strong points, captured. The British carried out valuable positions southeast of Poelcapelle beyond their objectives to the north, co-operating with the French, they captured the whole of the defences of fortified farms. The trenches are established firmly well to the southern boundary of the salient. The enemy by strong counter-attacks in the vicinity of the Ypres railway checked the British advance across the railway, but were unable to prevent progress. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy. Two hundred prisoners taken.

ENEMYS FEEBLE RESISTANCE.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—In Belgium the enemy during the day made feeble resistance with artillery against our troops, who organized the ground conquered of Veldhoek. Two field guns included in the material captured. The attack this morning. On the Aisne front artillery action was lent. One of our patrols took prisoners, including an officer, the Verdun front spirited artillery. In Valenciennes a German plane was brought down in an engagement, and six others forced to land in a damaged condition inside their own lines. At the period of October 11th to 23rd, airplanes and three captive balloons belonging to the enemy were brought down by our pilots or by the our special guns in addition to machines seriously damaged.

STORY OF THE MARY ROS.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The British destroyer Mary Ros fought single-handed against German cruisers in the convoy in the North Sea, according to story ascribed to a British rescuer off Bergen, and transcribed by the Christiania correspondent of the Times. #### OPERATIONS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL.

LONDON, Oct. 22. Highly successful operations in the neighborhood of Poelcapelle, and in conjunction with the French, south of Houthulst forest, are reported in the statement from Field Marshal Haig to-night. The whole of the objectives including many strong points, were captured. The British carried other valuable positions southeast of Poelcapelle beyond their objectives. Further north, co-operating with the French, they captured the southern defences of Houthulst forest besides a series of fortified farms. The Allies are established firmly well beyond the southern boundary of the forest. The enemy by strong counter attack in the vicinity of the Ypres-Staden railway checked the British advance stride the railway, but elsewhere were unable to prevent progress. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy. Two hundred prisoners were taken.

ENEMYS FEEBLE RESISTANCE. PARIS, Oct. 22. In Belgium the enemy during the day made feeble resistance with his artillery against our troops who organized the ground conquered north of Veldhoek. Two field guns were included in the material captured in the attack this morning. On the Aisne front artillery action was violent. One of our patrols took ten prisoners, including an officer. On the Verdun front spirited artillery actions. In Vocourt Wood and north of Bois le Chaumes a German airplane was brought down in an aerial engagement, and six others were forced to land in a damaged condition inside their own lines. During the period of October 11th to 20th, 19 airplanes and three captive balloons belonging to the enemy were brought down by our pilots, or by the fire of our special guns in addition to 23 machines seriously damaged.

STORY OF THE MARY ROSE. LONDON, Oct. 22. The British destroyer Mary Rose fought single-handed against the German cruisers in the convoy action in the North Sea, according to a story ascribed to a British officer rescued off Bergen, and transmitted by the Christiania correspondent of the Times. The other destroyer which should have been present, never appeared, and it is thought likely that it was destroyed at the beginning of the action. After fighting heroically for half an hour, during which she was subjected to most terrific concentrated fire, the Mary Rose sank, and the members of the crew were found clinging to the buoys, and rescued. The correspondent says that the reports of the butchery of the crews of the merchantmen pass description. Two women on one ship waved a piece of white cloth which was perfectly visible. They were attacked by a volley from the German cruisers.

KING GEORGE FAVORS REPRISALS. LONDON, Oct. 22. The King and Queen paid a surprise visit yesterday afternoon to one of the bombed districts of London and talked for two hours with the victims. Speaking to a local clergyman, the King said, "I wish people who are against retaliation could see this wreckage."

THE ZEPPELIN RAID. LONDON, Oct. 22. While admitting the existence of widespread popular dissatisfaction over the apparent impunity with which the Zeppelins raided England on Friday night, the major morning newspapers take a more sober view than that expressed by the Saturday and Sunday papers. The story of the raid is still rather obscure, and no official explanation has been given of the absence of gunfire in the London area or of the escape of the raiders from England. It is assumed, however, by thoughtful writers that the directors of the defensive system adopted a policy dictated by circumstances and acted with due vigilance and enterprise. While raiders were not attacked by gunfire in London, they were bombed considerably elsewhere, and it is suggested that the authorities had reasonable ground for believing that the Zeppelins would be unable to find London, owing to the darkness and height at which they were travelling; and the firing of guns and flashing of searchlights would only have revealed the target. It is known that British airplanes were up in considerable numbers during the raid, and writers in the morning newspapers hint that these had much to do with driving off the Zeppelins to France where French gunners and aviators were able to deal with them by daylight. Nevertheless, it is contended that an explanation is due to the public, and ought to be given, preferably in Parliament.

LOCAL ATTACKS. LONDON, Oct. 22. Local attacks were made by the British this morning on both sides of the Ypres-Staden railway, the War Office announces.

OSTEND BOMBARDED. LONDON, Oct. 22. British forces carried out a bombardment of the naval works at Ostend yesterday. It is officially announced to-day. Photographs taken show the results of the bombardment to have been satisfactory.

THE TORPEDOED U. S. DESTROYER. WASHINGTON, Oct. 22. It was officially announced to-day that it was the American destroyer U-55 Cassin which had an engagement in the war zone with a German submarine, and got to port under her own steam. The Cassin was torpedoed while on patrol duty, Tuesday, Oct. 16th. Gunner's mate, Osmond Kelly Ingram, of Pratt City, Alabama, was killed by being blown overboard by the explosion. His body was not recovered. Five others were injured but not seriously.

MCLEAN SWORN IN. HALIFAX, N.S., Oct. 22. A. K. McLean, of Halifax, will be sworn in as a member of the Borden Union Government to-morrow.

AUSTRIAN PRISONERS CAPTURED. EASTERN THEATRE, Oct. 22. Our artillery has continued to shell enemy positions in the region of Doiran, Vardar and north of Monastir. At certain points our patrols entered enemy trenches and brought back material. In the course of operations carried out northwest of Pogradets for the purpose of clearing approaches to our new positions, our troops captured fifty Austrian prisoners.

FISHERY NEWS. Boats secured good fares on the local fishing grounds again yesterday. Most fishermen sold their cargoes in a lump to mercantile firms at $2.60 a quintal and retained the liver. Some boats had as high as five quintals for the day's fishing. They netted approximately $15, including the value of the liver. This morning a very heavy sea ran on the grounds making it too dangerous for boats to venture out.

A STRIKING EXHIBIT.—There is now on exhibition in the window of Messrs. Ayre and Sons dry goods department an outfit similar to those supplied to the British prisoners of war in Germany. The exhibit is attracting much attention.

DIVERGENT CRITICISM. LONDON, Oct. 22. Newspapers take two divergent lines of criticism regarding the attack on the convoyed merchantmen in the North Sea. According to one view the incident was one that no foresight or vigilance could avoid, and although regrettable in every way, cannot exercise any decisive effect. On the other hand some newspapers ask what has become of the British command of the North Sea.

SWITZERLAND SHORT OF COAL. GENEVA, Oct. 22. Stage coaches may again be seen running between towns in Switzerland. Owing to the ever decreasing amount of coal arriving from Germany, the Swiss Government is forced to suppress half the number of passenger trains in Switzerland beginning to-day, while those trains in service will not be heated. The Geneva Tribune learns that the entire

Try "Cascarets" for Liver and Bowels If Sick or Bilious

Tonight! Clean your bowels and stop headache, colds, sour stomach.

Get a 10-cent box now. Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach. Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

Capt. Hal Tait

OF FURBOUGH.

Capt. "Hal" Tait, R. A. M. C., reached town last evening on a brief "turn-around" and is looking very fit. Capt. Tait, who left here in July 1915, joined the R. A. M. C. at Montreal and within a few weeks was sent overseas and stationed at Malta, where he put in a year at the military hospital. He was now transferred to the hospital ship "Aquitania" and from there to the medical staff of the Royal Flying Corps in Macedonia where he was engaged for the past ten months. He was on the Vardar front where the troops suffered grievously from malaria, which is still in evidence but is gradually being stamped out by the medical authorities who are coping with the disease. This unfortunate country has been sadly devastated but conditions among the people are steadily improving.

Capt. Tait was present during the hardest fighting early in this year, and says the work done by the R. A. M. C. was magnificent.

Last Night's Gale

During last night's S. E. gale a heavy undertow raged in the harbour and several vessels that were pounding against the waterfront piers had to haul off in the stream to avoid serious damage. The gale was severely felt on the West Coast where it was accompanied by fragmental showers, and in consequence the telegraph lines were interrupted.

Lemons Whiten and Beautify the Skin! Make Cheap Lotion

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothen and beautifier.

Just try it! Make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It should naturally help to whiten, soften, freshen and bring out the hidden roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful for rough, red hands.

Your druggist will sell three ounces of orchard white at little cost, and any grocer will supply the lemons.

Everyday Etiquette.

TUESDAY, October 23rd, 1917.

The Paris Conference.

Whenever the British Prime Minister makes a public statement, he is listened to with interest. This is not merely because he possesses a peculiar gift of expressing important truths in terms that all can understand—and so easily understand, too, that their importance is apt to be missed—but because his position allows him to speak with authority. In the speech reported today he says much that has been said already, much that is encouraging in the extreme. The closing words might be adopted as the slogan of the Allies until the end, which approaches rapidly: "Keep steady and we will win!" The necessity for this steadiness and the necessary, the absolute certainty of the consequence he so confidently predicates are explained in the few words in which he sums up all that really matters to-day in the whole situation. Time, once neutral, is now on our side, so decisively on our side that only this steadiness of purpose is necessary to achieve the complete victory that is essential. Time will do it for us, and time will do it for two reasons: the first negative, because Germany's submarine war is falling more surely as each day goes by; the second positive, because American troops and American aid are streaming in.

At the Theatre.

"Peggy O'Moore" Played to Crowded House.
Little Peggy O'Moore did not look as if she played poker, but she drew a full house at the Casino last night. The continuous applause and frequent laughter showed it to be an appreciative house as well. It was the first appearance in St. John's of a professional company for nearly two years and those who went last night did so with a keen expectation. It was not disappointed in the play or the players. "Peggy O'Moore" is of course an Irish drama, but it is Ireland in America, that is to say, New York. It follows that it is concerned with mayors, elections, ward bosses and other matters usual to Irish-American life, grouped around the fortunes and love making of the principal characters to form an attractive and entertaining whole. The Mayor, Dan Murphy, is strongly played by Charles Newman, and his lieutenant "boss" Matt Hogan, by George McManus, who was perhaps the most convincingly Irish of the characters. Murphy's successful rival for the Mayoralty, Richmond, was represented by Burton Mallory, who sustained skilfully a difficult and slightly inconsistent part. Tom Anderson, Patk. O'Brien and Jacob Webster, minor but important characters, were well portrayed by Sam Waldron, Charles Hammond and Charles Newhart respectively. In the title role of Peggy, Murphy's young Irish ward, Miss Gladys Klark starred. Her acting was charming and very evidently popular, though the part itself perhaps suffered a little by the direct comparison it suggested with that of the other "Peg" who recently delighted the same audience. Miss Edythe Bryan played Mary Montague, Murphy's widowed sister, very pleasingly, while Corrine Carpenter, as her pretty daughter, whom Anderson was lucky to win, was admirable. Between the acts Messrs. Waldron and Hammond kept the audience in roars with songs and patter, and Mr. Hammond gave an extremely clever exhibition of hoop juggling. The play will be repeated to-night.

My Limbs Would Twitch

And Waken Me—Unable to Rest or Sleep, I Walked the Floor in Nervous State—When Specialist Failed I Found a Cure.
Windsor, Ont., October 23rd.—This is the kind of cure that has set Windsor people thinking and talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The action of this food cure is so radically different to the usual treatments for the nerves that everybody wants to try it. Gradually and certainly it nourished the starved nerves back to health and vigor and the benefits obtained are both thorough and lasting. Mrs. M. Smithson, 27 Arthur street, Windsor, Ont., writes: "I was suffering from nervous breakdown, which was caused by a shock when fire broke out in the adjoining house. My nerves were in such a state that, after going to bed I could not get my nerves quieted down sufficiently to go to sleep. I used to get up and walk around the room, or go downstairs. Even when I would be dropping off to sleep my limbs would twitch and waken me. I used to have cold, nervous, night sweats, sometimes would become unconscious and lie that way for quite a little while. I was always cold and it seemed impossible for me to get warm or keep warm. When on the street I would see two or three objects at once, and did not want any person to speak to me or bother me. Any little noise irritated and annoyed me very much. I had consulted specialists and tried many remedies during this time, but could not gain relief. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and before long could see that this treatment was proving of benefit. I am now feeling so much better that I can go out on the street without any difficulty, can go across the river and go about the same as usual. I sleep well at night, and am feeling more like myself every day. I am pleased to be able to write you to tell you how much good the Nerve Food has done me. It has strengthened and built up my whole system. I am recommending it to everybody I find suffering from nervousness of any kind."
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

St. Francis Xavier's University has recently received from M. J. O'Brien, of Renfrew, Ontario, a gift of the magnificent sum of 10,000. Mr. O'Brien is a former Antigonish man who made a large fortune from Cobalt mines and from successful contracting business.

SCH. ASHORE.—The schooner Grace D. Day, master, Herbert Bryant, went ashore during last night's gale at New Bonaventure, Trinity Bay, and is likely to become a total wreck, word to that effect having been received to-day by Mr. Stone, Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

FRENCH CONSOLIDATING THEIR GROUND.

LONDON, To-day. French troops spent most of to-day along the front to the left of the British in consolidating the ground which they gained in the early morning attack when appreciable progress was made. On both the Aisne and Verdun fronts heavy artillery actions were in progress.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day. The attack began, as has been customary, in the early hours of the morning, following a heavy bombardment of the German positions, and apparently the Allies met with only slight resistance. The gains of ground were quickly made and afterwards there was only a feeble reaction by the German artillery. Violent artillery duels between the French and Germans along the Aisne sector and on the Verdun front continue, but the infantry of neither side has done anything more than carry out small raiding operations. Likewise in the Austro-Italian theatre and in Macedonia bombardments prevail almost exclusively, although in the latter region British and French troops daily are carrying out with success raids into enemy territory. The Russian Gulf of Riga fleet, which last week apparently was bottled up in Moon Sound by German naval forces, has made its way out of the Sound and is now guarding the northern entrance to the Sound of Wormsö Island. The Russian vessels made their escape without further losses than the battleship Slava, which was sunk in the naval engagement last Wednesday, and two other vessels, presumably transports, which went ashore. From its new position the fleet is situated so that it may make a dash for the Gulf of Finland around the Western Esthonia Coast, or, if menaced by an attack from the greatly superior German units, take refuge again in the waters of Moon Sound and play hide-and-seek with the enemy. Meanwhile the Germans have landed forces on the Esthonia Coast and pressed back the Russian fighting slightly and occupied the Western portion of Vardar Peninsula. That a larger landing somewhere along the coast is in anticipation is indicated by a statement in a Russian official statement that German patrol boats have been seen in the vicinity of the Gulf of Riga conveying large transports. More than 1,200 additional prisoners were taken by the Germans in the conquest of Dago Island, where also large numbers of guns and quantities of war stores fell into their hands.

WILL ADD NOTHING MORE.

LONDON, To-day. Replying to questions in the Commons to-day, A. J. Balfour, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said there seems to be no reason at present for adding anything to the acknowledgment already sent by the British Government to the Pope's peace proposals.

WILL PROSECUTE FORMER CABINET.

ATHENS, To-day. After fourteen hours of defense of himself and his colleagues by M. Rallis, the Chamber of Deputies voted to-day in favor of prosecuting the members of the former Skoulioudis Cabinet, in which M. Rallis was Minister of Finance.

NO INFANTRY FIGHTING.

ROME, To-day. There was no infantry action on the Austro-Italian front, particularly in the "Plezzo," Tolmino and South Vipacco areas.

PERHAPS HE CAN FIND NO SUCCESSOR.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Vossische Zeitung says that in well informed circles it is understood that the German Emperor has refused to accept Vice Admiral Von Cap-

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a new scientific preparation put into tablet or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles.

There is no connection between the lungs and the stomach.

Suppose something were wrong with your stomach—say indigestion, or ulceration—would you think of taking some medicine which went not to your stomach, but to your lungs? Certainly not!

Why then, when your lungs and chest are affected, should you dose your stomach—an absolutely separate organ—with medicine? Is it not far better to treat the ailing organ direct?

Peps provides a direct treatment for coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all lung, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contains highly medicinal essences and pine extracts condensed into tablet form. You put a Peps on your tongue, and as it slowly dissolves, these volatile essences turn into a vapor.

You BREATHE the remedy to your sore ailing lungs direct—not swallow it to your stomach, which is not ailing. (See diagram.) The healing fumes, thus breathed down, bathe the delicate, inflamed membranes of your breathing tubes and pass right on to the tiny passages of the lungs—a course so liquid or solid medicine could possibly take.

Peps fumes are healing and anti-septic. They heal sore tissue and kill disease germs. Peps brings pine-forest fumes to your home, instead of you going to the pine forest!

For that cold, that night cough, that touch of bronchitis, don't dose your stomach! The trouble lies in your lungs. Peps goes to the lungs direct and will cure you!

the experiment. More than twice as many German submarines were lost in the first ten months of this year as in all of last year. The British tonnage lost monthly now is not much more than one third of the total destroyed last April. Lloyd George said that Bolshevism in all its shapes and forms should be looked out for. "Be aware of people who try to sow dissension, distrust and suspicion," he said. "The enemy is trying to rattle our nerves; keep steady and we will win."

DISCUSSING THE AIR RAID.

LONDON, To-day. In the Commons, yesterday, Sir George Cave, Home Secretary, said that Friday night's air raid appeared to have been carried out by ten or more Zeppelins. Of these five failed entirely to reach their objective, leaving the country without causing material damage. Of the five which came near land, four failed to penetrate the defences. The remaining one drifted over London with her engines cut off, dropping three bombs, which unfortunately caused loss of life. British airplanes went up but the atmospheric conditions were most unfavorable for the attackers and they were unable to bring the raiders into action. As was known, four of the raiders were brought down in France and information regarding others was awaited. The Secretary said that the greatest credit was due the French, but added that in justice to the British anti-aircraft service it should be remembered that when the Zeppelins were over France they were flying by daylight and at a lower altitude than that at which they kept while over England. The Government has already announced its intention of bombing German towns until an end was put to such cold-blooded attempts by the Germans on the civil population of this country. Two such attacks have already been made and the House could rest assured that the process would be continued until this purpose was attained. The Home Secretary also stated that the Government had arranged to hold a naval inquiry into all the circumstances connected with the successful German attacks recently made upon neutral ships protected by two destroyers. He refused to entertain a suggestion that the matter should be the subject of an inquiry independent of the Admiralty.

RETURNED IN FULL MEASURE.

LONDON, To-day. Speaking at an Albert Hall demonstration yesterday, Arthur Bonar Law, referring to the air raids, declared it was impossible to prevent them, but Great Britain would make amends as far as possible. He said that Germany has carried out a kind of aerial warfare which is detestable. We would avoid it if we could, but the enemy is determined upon it. So we must give up our enemies will find that what they gave us will be returned to them in full measure, pressed down and running over.

THE LAST ADVANCE.

LONDON, To-day. Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters in Belgium, in a despatch received last evening, says: The advance was carried out in a dense mist resembling a London fog. The ground is still terribly heavy. Up to midday we had advanced about a thousand yards, carrying our left wing well up to the fringe of Houtholst Forest. It is also rumored that we occupied Postcapelle brewery, Minster House and Helles House. The keenest resistance was encountered on our left centre, where the machine gun fire was so hot that our progress was checked. The enemy counter-attack in the forenoon astride the Ypres-Staden railway, was repulsed with severe punishment. The weather cleared as the day advanced. The operation, however, does not seem to be of major importance like the recent battles.

POLITICAL CRISIS IN FRANCE.

LONDON, To-day. After President Poincaré refused to accept the resignation of the Painlevé Ministry, according to a despatch from Paris, all the Ministers placed the question of their resignations in the hands of the Premier, who is considering the matter.

DEFENDING THE AIR DEFENCE.

LONDON, To-day. An attempt to move the adjournment of the Commons last night during a debate on Friday's air raid came to naught. Speeches were made by Sir Francis Lowe, John Dillon and W. Joynson Hicks, in which complaint was made of the impurity with which the Zeppelins were able to penetrate to central England and get away scatheless, and declaring that only fog prevented a serious disaster. J. Austen Chamberlain and Chancellor Bonar Law deprecated the discussion. Bonar Law declared he had no intention to give any information as to the extent of the attacks against the Zeppelins. One thing Germany was anxious to know, he said, was what were the particular methods of defence against their attacks. After this statement the motion for adjournment was withdrawn. If the Germans ever smiled at our way of conducting the war, said Bonar Law, they would have a happy time over the British Parliament stopping its business to make this fuss over the greatest air defeat that it had served the Zeppelins. Searchlights and guns would only have revealed London to the intruders. The same weather conditions which made it impossible properly to attack the Zeppelins were real cause that there they were lost and were brought down in France.

SCATHING NORWEGIAN DENUNCIATION.

CHRISTIANIA, To-day. The Norwegian newspapers bitterly denounce the murderous attack of the Germans in the convoy action last week in the North Sea. The newspapers in Bergen, where the survivors of the attack were taken, demand deportation from Norway of all Germans employed by the German General Purchasing Agency. The Christiania newspaper Verdensgang says the affair was characteristic of German brutality and exceptional cowardice. The newspaper adds that the Germans, having put the British warships out of the game, acted against the peaceful merchantmen as if they were the entire British navy. "It was the most distasteful deed any navy can boast of," says the Tidens Tegn; "it outrivals all other German crimes."

RUSSIANS INFLECT LARGE LOSSES ON GERMANS.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Two German dreadnoughts, one cruiser, twelve torpedo boats and one transport were put out of action by the Russians in the fighting around the islands in the Gulf of Riga last week. Their ultimate fate is unknown, says an official statement. It has been established that at least six German torpedo boats were sunk in the fighting. The Russians lost the battleship Slava and a large torpedo boat.

AIR FIGHTING.

LONDON, To-day. Fifteen German airplanes were brought down by British aviators in recent fighting over the battle area in Northern France, says the official statement on aviation issued by the war office. German airdromes and railway stations were bombed heavily; eight British machines are reported missing.

FORGING AHEAD.

LONDON, To-day. The text of the British official statement issued at midnight reads: "Highly successful minor operations were carried out by our troops this morning on the battle front in the neighborhood of Poelcapelle and in conjunction with the French south of Houtholst Forest, east of Poelcapelle. Battalions of Norfolk, Suffolk, Essex and Berks Regiments and of the Northumberland Fusiliers attacked on a front of about one and a half miles and captured a number of strongly fortified buildings and concrete reefs on a hill east of the village of Rain had again fallen during the night, rendering the ground slippery and the task of assembling difficult. In spite of this weather our objectives were captured after fierce fighting in which many Germans were killed. Our troops southeast of Poelcapelle then pressed on and carried other valuable positions beyond the line of their objectives. Further Lancashire Fusiliers and Manchester and Royal Scots battalions, in co-operation with the French, attacked on a front of more than two miles from Ypres-Staden railway to a point north of Mangelaere. Severe fighting occurred but the southern defences of Houtholst Forest were captured along with a further series of fortified farms and strong points. The Allied troops have established themselves firmly beyond the southern boundary of the forest. In the course of the morning the enemy delivered strong local counter attacks in the vicinity of Ypres-Staden railway and succeeded in checking the advance of our troops astride the railway line, but at all other points they were unable to stop them. Two hundred prisoners were captured and heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy. During the night the enemy raided one of our posts south of the River Scarpe-Arras area; a few of our men are missing.

The incoming mail and freight left Port aux Basques this morning.

Your Boys and Girls.

Juvenile fashions were never so delightful or so varied as they are at the present time. Picturesque styles are they cry of the moment and most of them tend to the military effect. It is a pleasant cry to hear, too, for aside from the military styles, which may be to common for some, nothing is so suited to a little girl as the picturesque idea.

For instance who can deny the beauty of a small face, surrounded by golden hair and the whole framed in a poke bonnet on the picturesque order? Then, too, there are coats in Mother Hubbard style developed in tan cashmere, the skirt shirred on to a narrow yoke. Small round buttons, covered with the material form the trimming beneath which is fastened the snap fasteners.

Ties and socks are an important part of a small girl's wardrobe, also. Just as her Mamma's appearance is spoiled if she does not wear well cut and cared for footwear, so is the little girl's, only in a greater measure. They must be trim and pretty if the child is to look well dressed. Of course the half socks have ousted the long hose and they are very attractive.

Is There Any Bitter Feeling?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Some questions of justice came up the other day in which the Authorman, instead of taking advantage of certain circumstances as he well might have, a little leaned backwards in his determination to be perfectly square. Somebody praised him and somebody else said what a terrible conscience he must have.

"I don't know as I'd call it exactly conscience," he said, "it is more that I've found it's darn good fun to be square."

That's rather a new slant on the subject, isn't it?

But a bully good one, I think—to fall into the Authorman's way of thinking.

When you stop to consider it, isn't it fun to be square.

Square In EVERY WAY.

Square in every way, I mean.

For instance:

To be as punctilious about telling the butcher or the grocer when he leaves an item off your bill as you would in protesting an over charge.

To give people, even people you don't like, credit when they deserve credit and the benefit of the doubt when there is a doubt.

To admit it fairly and squarely when you have been in the wrong.

To always be careful to do your share in everything.

To keep promises even when it comes hard (Do you remember the Bible definition of a gentleman, "the who swears to his own hurt and changeth not.")

It's such a clean feeling knowing you have been square. The same sort of feeling you have when you've bathed and dressed in clean linen from head to toe, or gone to bed in clean sheets. It's a kind of a bath for the soul.

Who that has tried to be absolutely square would change places with a king or a multimillionaire (I think they are the modern equivalent of the ancient kings and doubtless have a far better time than modern kings do) if the latter hadn't as clean a record?

But Don't Get Self Righteous.

There are just two things the man who is trying to be square has to look out for.

Not to get self righteous about it.

And not to get too harsh and exacting in his demands on other people. If you ask an equivalent for your squareness what reward have ye? The sporting thing is to do it for your own sake—just because it's "such darn good fun."

Boy Killed at Grand Falls.

A message was received to-day by Deputy Minister of Justice Summers, K. C. from Magistrate Fitzgerald, of Grand Falls, apprising him of a tragic death which occurred at Grand Falls shortly after seven o'clock this morning. Pierre Cahwell, aged sixteen, was crushed between the cars in the plant of the A. N. D. Company. No further particulars of the tragedy are to hand and after the interment of the body a magisterial enquiry will be held.

Gets Six Months

For Indecently Assaulting Children.

"Hang me if you like," said an outlaw named Moores, as he was being sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labor to-day for indecently assaulting a four-year-old boy and beating a nine-year-old girl. "I wish I could flog you," rejoined Judge Morris, who added "you're an old brute and a reprobate and a menace to be at large."

Moores is an offender of long standing and has a frightening countenance. In reality he is middle aged, though his half foot thick beard would give the impression that he was twenty years older. He is particularly noted for terrorizing females. Yesterday afternoon was devoted by him in prowling about the vicinity of Freshwater Road. He came across a little boy who was in company with his sister. The latter was beaten by Moores, who then attacked the little boy, who was badly rough-handled, the particulars of which are unfit to be put in print. The screams of the children attracted the attention of a man some distance away. The latter ran as hastily as he possibly could, but was too late to catch the criminal who had fled. However, he was captured last night by Const. Dempsey, who had procured a good description of him from the children. Moores appeared before court to-day and the sentence mentioned above was imposed.

Changeable Weather.

Two commercial travellers, one from Birmingham and one from Boston, U.S.A., were discussing the weather in their respective countries.

The Englishman said that English weather had one great fault—its sudden changes.

"A person may take a walk one day," he said, "attired in a light summer suit, and still feel quite warm. Next day he needs an overcoat."

"That's nothing," said the Yankee. "My two chums, Foxon and Coxon, were once having a discussion. There were eight or nine inches of snow on the ground. The discussion grew heated, and Foxon picked up a snow ball and threw it at Coxon from a distance of five yards. During the transit of that snowball, believe me or not as you like, the weather suddenly changed and became hot and summer like, and Coxon, instead of being hit by a snowball, was—er—scalded with hot water."—Tit-Bits.

THE OLD COMPLAINT.

I have to buy my winter duds, and winter coal and winter spuds; I have to lay in flour and cheese and many other things like these. So many things I have to buy, I view the prospect with a sigh. For ever plunk I have in store, I'm needing seven or more; for I must buy my wife some rags, and purchase bunting and some fags, and weatherstrips and wool and wax, and pay a most unholly tax. And still the passers of the hat come smiling to my humble flat, and bone me for a hard-earned yen to help some poor and needy men. "Old Gaffer Johnson's needing aid; we want to buy him marmalade; and Gossip Smith is in the hole—we'd send him half a ton of coal. Oh, loosen up and gladly dig, to buy the Widow Skate a pig." The gaffer, and the gossip, too, refuse to work when skies are blue, and when the wintry tempests roar they come for handouts to your door. And you, who work to beat the band, must greet them with an open hand, responding to their doleful cries with soupbones, sandwiches and pies.

How Our Main Helped at

Among the number of things that can be placed to the credit of the war a high place must be given to the advances made in the science—perhaps it would be more correct to say in the art—of medicine and surgery. In the latter department, next to saving the lives of wounded soldiers, nothing is of more importance than preserving it to them afterwards with the enjoyment of every ease and comfort that scientific knowledge and appliances can supply. And of these appliances the most pathetically familiar are the artificial limbs which replace the shattered arms and legs of so many brave men. With amazing perfection they are able to replace them too few, perhaps, of the general public sufficiently realize and appreciate.

At our own general hospital there is now established an artificial limb department which is a fine addition to an institution already noted for its admirable equipment. A Telegram representative had recently the opportunity of inspecting it and of being its objects and benefits explained fully by Dr. Keegan, who takes no excusable pride in it. It is of no little public importance that it should be thoroughly understood.

Every doctor and patient know that an artificial limb cannot be satisfactorily fitted except by personal measurement of and trial by the subject at the place where it is made. Hitherto these advantages have been unobtainable in this country. Now here would make the measurements and send them to a foreign factory the limb formed from them rarely fit exactly and would not often than not prove a burden rather than an aid to the wearer. This is longer so, and many of our soldiers and civilians are to-day wearing artificial limbs with complete satisfaction which are as nearly perfect imitations of those lost as human ingenuity can make them.

In 1915 the British War Office, appreciating the growing importance of the matter, offered an award for the best possible artificial leg for soldiers and sailors. It was won by many competitors by the J. F. Rowley Company of Chicago. Dr. Keegan when it was decided to establish the best source and get in touch with the Company. He succeeded in securing the services of Mr. A. T. Rowley of the Pittsburgh House, Under present arrangement Mr. Rowley visits St. John's twice a year, in August and October, having made his last visit last May. He remains in about a month, fitting new limbs and making necessary alterations to former ones.

Our representative found Mr. Rowley busily at work, but took time to explain and demonstrate the construction and working of the limb. He showed how each limb is first fitted on in the rough and successive trials by the patient to every impediment and make the perfect one. The leg is then taken to the factory to be smoothed and edged, and when the patient receives it he invariably finds it perfectly easy and comfortable. ### How Our Maimed Heroes are Helped at the Hospital.

Among the number of things that can be placed to the credit of the war a high place must be given to the advances made in the science—perhaps it would be more correct to say, in the art—of medicine and surgery. In the latter department, next to saving the lives of wounded soldiers, nothing is of more importance than preserving it to them afterwards with the enjoyment of every ease and comfort that scientific knowledge and appliances can supply. And of these appliances the most pathetically familiar are the artificial limbs which replace the shattered arms and legs of so many brave men. With what amazing perfection they are able to replace them too few, perhaps, of the general public sufficiently realize and appreciate.

At our own general hospital there is now established an artificial limbs department which is a fine addition to an institution already noted for its admirable equipment. A Telegram representative had recently the opportunity of inspecting it and of having its objects and benefits explained fully by Dr. Keegan, who takes an excusable pride in it. It is of no little public importance that these should be thoroughly understood.

Every doctor and patient knows that an artificial limb cannot be satisfactorily fitted except by personal measurement of and trial by the subject at the place where it is made. Hitherto these advantages have been unobtainable in this country. Agents here would make the measurements and send them to a foreign factory; the limb formed from them would rarely fit exactly and would more often than not prove a burden rather than an aid to the wearer. This is no longer so, and many of our soldiers and civilians are to-day wearing artificial limbs with complete ease, which are as nearly perfect substitutes of those lost as human ingenuity can make them.

In 1915 the British War Office, appreciating the growing importance of the matter, offered an award for the best possible artificial leg for soldiers and sailors. It was won from many competitors by the J. F. Rowley Company of Chicago. Dr. Keegan, when it was decided to establish the department here, went at once to the best source and got in touch with this Company. He succeeded in securing the services of Mr. A. T. Rowley, head of the Pittsburg House. Under the present arrangement Mr. Rowley visits St. John's twice a year, in May and October, having made his first visit last May. He remains in town about a month, fitting new patients and making necessary alterations for former ones.

Our representative found Mr. Rowley busily at work, but not too busily to explain and demonstrate the construction and working of the Rowley limb. He showed how each leg is first fitted on in the rough until successive trials by the patient remove every impediment and make the fit a perfect one. The leg is then sent to the factory to be smoothed and finished, and when the patient eventually receives it he invariably finds it perfectly easy and comfortable to wear. Mr. Rowley explained the principal features of the limb, which is distinguished by its extreme simplicity and the naturalness of the movements of the wearer. A person wearing two of the legs can not only walk, but even run without support, sit down and perform all ordinary motions. At that moment a number of disabled soldiers were being fitted, all of whom were enthusiastic in praise of the department. One hero who had lost a leg at Gallipoli and who had been unable to wear the limb provided in England without chafing and pain, announced himself perfectly fitted with the Rowley leg after one day's trial.

The arrangement made with the Company was explained to the Telegram by Dr. Keegan. The cost of each artificial leg is $100. In the case of soldiers and sailors this expense is, of course, borne by the Government, which further provides an additional leg to each man, so that he will not suffer by loss of or injury to the first. This decision, will be approved by all. In the case of civilians, the cost is the same. Since the matter is an important one and it is detrimental to the country's interest that any should go without this necessary assistance, the Government, we understand, proposes to furnish with artificial legs any persons who are proved to its satisfaction to be unable to afford the cost themselves. This is following the precedent of other countries, where a large proportion of the cost of all artificial limbs is borne by the State.

It is necessary, however, that the value of this institution should be fully understood and its benefits availed of by the public if it is to continue. The Rowley Company makes its whole profit from the price of each limb sold and bears all the expenses, including that of sending a representative. It will not send him so far unless it can be assured that it will be profitable to do so, and this must depend upon the number of cases to be treated. There are many in the Island who may not know that this opportunity is open to them and give orders instead to agents, for which they receive limbs that are anything but satisfactory. If the department is not kept up, the cost to those in need of limbs will be just as great, and probably greater, while the benefits of personal measurement and attention will be lost. These benefits are great and undeniable and include the advantages that are possessed by a central depot, such as St. John's now is. It is thought that when the department is more fully established, patients will find it advantageous to come from nearby places, such as Sydney, for treatment. Anyone who wishes to be convinced of the value and efficiency of the work done at the hospital by Mr. Rowley will be well advised to pay him a visit and see for himself. Apart from the lasting good which such an establishment here represents, it is deserving of the fullest possible support for the help it affords to so many of our brave men who have been maimed in defence of their country.

"Our Day" at Twillingate.

Red Cross Day, "Our Day" as I believe it was to be called, arrived here and present indications are most hopeful for a good response. Collectors report encouraging results and it seems that if all parts do anything like some sections, we should be able to total pretty well $1,000. The Committee got active and prepared the ground as well as circumstances would permit. Posters were distributed at various centres and in shop windows, and several hundreds of a little circular were sent around to as many homes as possible. I enclose a copy which you might think worthy of publication. I read in it the hand of the editor of the Sun in his best sermonizing mood.

Several old folks have passed away recently. Last week an elderly spinster, Miss Ellen Colbourne, who for years maintained a boarding house here, died at Herring Neck, whither she removed this spring. Another elderly lady, Mrs. James May, also died of tuberculosis last week, and this week Mrs. John Stuckless, whose husband predeceased her by a few months, passed away at over three score. Philip Pippy, Chairman of the local Road Board, died this week.

The potato crop is being harvested and general reports of the yield are good. It could hardly be otherwise with the magnificent summer we have experienced this year. Turnips generally are poor, many of them being what is locally known as "hurl-footed" and rotten.

Fish is being shipped off as rapidly as possible, and what with fish and potatoes, most folks are pretty busy just now.

The season for the arrival of sea birds from the north is rapidly approaching, and though powder and shot have taken to heights that need the assistance of an airplane, still it is likely that most of the fishermen will add largely to their food supply by the help of "turr" and "bull-bird."

One of the many vessels being built in this bay, the "Attainment", of which your paper has already had some account, is lying at Campbellton getting rigged. Owing to the master builder leaving, it seems probable that the job will be delayed for some time and that she will not be ready for sea for quite a little while yet.

About three years ago the three-masted schooner Sidney Smith was wrecked on Harbor Rock here during a N. E. breeze while being loaded with codfish. She was purchased by Wm. Ashbourne and is to-day repaired and practically ready for sea as soon as the matter of insurance and other details are finalized. Her repairs were done by Twillingate workmen, and the fact that we have neither dock nor slip here shows that our men can accomplish anything. We northerners are very proud of our ability to make bricks without straw when occasion demands.

Mr. Wm. Ashbourne, who has been absent from here for nearly a year, arrived this week from Toronto, which has been his residence since leaving here. The business has been managed by his brother, Mr. A. G. Ashbourne, during his absence. There is no doubt that they are both very diligent and energetic workers.

Our friend, ex-M.H.A. Roberts, known chiefly to fame by reason of a certain Saratoga trunk, has gone from our midst, having taken a position in one of the St. John's departmental offices. George was deserving of a sop for the very self-same way in which he accommodated his leader by slipping down from the candidacy in favor of Mr. Jennings at the 1913 election.

By the way it is currently reported that Mr. Jennings, M.H.A., succeeds late Inspector of Lighthouses White. Of course if that be so we may be sure that the greatness was thrust upon Mr. Jennings. Does Mr. Jennings resign his seat now, or has he forgotten the Placeman Act which he and his leader have so often previously invoked.

Notice is now being issued for the coming election of the local Road Board. It will likely be a "packed" election again. Last time the F. P. U. cooked up the whole affair in their local Council and packed the room with fifty of their own followers. No one else bothered with it, knowing full well that the whole game had been completely arranged in secret session. It bids fair to be the same again. None of the people who should attend and can take an intelligent view of things will be present, and Twillingate, the boasted "Metropolis of the North"—tell it not in Gath—will have a Road Board of which fifty per cent cannot read or write. The Local Affairs Act is a fizzle. Morris might just as well have handed the Road Boards over to Coaker and finished with it.

The Boot and Shoe Factory Strike.

Dear Sir,—The employees of the Shoe Factory, Job Street, have been out on strike for an increase of wages for the past three weeks and I know that a settlement of the trouble should demand the attention of the public, especially the Press at a time like this when every dollar is needed to tide families over the difficulties that confront them because of the high cost of living. There are men on strike who have been receiving only nine dollars per week after twenty years of faithful work. I know of one man who has been working there for the past thirty years and he earned only about seven dollars in the week preceding the strike. The demand that the men make is in my opinion very reasonable and I cannot understand why the employers do not see their way clear to meet the demands of the workers. There are men out who have given two and three sons to fight for us in the War and surely they deserve some consideration if the patriotism we boast of amounts to anything. The men who are receiving fifteen dollars a week ask for no increase and this goes to prove the justice of the strike. Twelve dollars is not much for a man and his family to live on in these times, and there are some there who do not receive that amount. I would ask Hon. Mr. Gibbs to interest himself in ending this strike and feel confident that it can be accomplished if a sensible view of it is taken by all concerned.

I am yours truly,
CITIZEN.

Few Cents Destroys Your Dandruff and Stops Falling Hair

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy and beautiful—try this!

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair. Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

GROWTH—From practically nothing to hundreds of acres of land and expensive plants fitted with costly machinery, employing hundreds of skilled workmen to build the one and only ASBESTOS FABRIC TIRE, to fill a waiting market—has been the visible growth of the Company. Its greatest growth is still ahead of it.

Ship Building Bounty

I am instructed by the Government that it is their intention to submit to the Legislature at its next session a Bill to limit the class of vessels entitled to Bounty from the Government under the present Shipbuilding Bounty Law. Hereafter Bounty will be payable on vessels not exceeding 120 tons gross measurement. Vessels exceeding 120 tons gross will not qualify for any Bounty whatever. It is intended that the Regulations shall apply to all vessels of which the keel has been laid at the date of this notice; but all vessels, the keels of which are not now laid, shall come within the scope of the proposed new Regulations, and shall not be entitled to Bounty when the vessels exceed 120 tons gross measurement.
