EVERY WINTER FOR 20 YEARS

writes Mr. I. Whittemith, of Manilla, Ont. "I suffered agonies with chapped and cracked hands. My thumbs were so badly cracked that they actually never healed up from one winter to the next. As I am a watchmaker, I found it very awkward to do fine work with my hands in such a state.

"Of course, I tried remedy after remedy, but nothing was capable of effecting a permanent cure until I used Zam-Buk. This wonderful ointment, in conjunction with Zam-Buk Soles, cured me completely and permanently—even to the healing of the cracks in my thumbs—cracks of twenty years' standing!

"For frost-bite, chilblains and cold sores, Zam-Buk is equally effective, and nothing can compare with it for eczema, ringworm, chronic sores, poisoned wounds, piles, cuts, burns and scalds." All dealers or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box.

CHAPTER XI.

READING THE WILL.

"But we know that your uncle was too just and acute a man to attempt to wrest fate to his own inclination; he only tried to guide it. He has proved his wisdom and justice by a stipulation which stamps him at once as a man of no common mind. He has left, so to speak, each of you free to decline or accept his fortune without depriving the other of his, or her, share of it. To Sir Cyril the first word is given. It is for him to say, when the whole matter has been laid before him, whether he will follow the course set out in the deed, and propose for your hand. Should he do so, and you accept, well and good, the money is secured to you both. Should you reject him, the fortune goes to the land, houses, gold. So much for your part in the matter; now comes his."

"Should he be mad enough to throw away such a chance of securing a beautiful and charming bride—forgive me if I am plain-speaking, my dear Miss Weston—and an immense, princely fortune, should he do this, then the whole of the money, lands, houses and gold comes to you; to do with as you will—yours wholly and unconditionally; unfettered by a single claim or drawback.

"Such is the story which the deed sets forth, and such are its commands and requirements."

Mr. Burdon having paused, impressively looked at Edna. She was surprised and agitated—one moment pale, the next a vivid crimson. Aunt Martha, still holding her hand, crushed that hand one moment and patted and soothed it the next. Edward More sat and glanced at one and the other, dissatisfied with everything, and quite prepared to break out into lamentable complainings whichever way the matter should be settled.

Neither of the three spoke a word. Mr. Burdon, having waited to see if anyone felt inclined to speak, rose again, and stood with his back to the empty fireplace, and addressing Edna said:

"Practically, my dear young lady, the matter rests in your hands."

Edna started from a painful reverie and looked up with vague alarm.

Mr. Burdon, answering that look, added:

"Yes; for I am not indulging in a perhaps pardonable flattery when I assert that Sir Cyril, not being insane, is not likely to refuse either you or this immense fortune—certainly not both together. Therefore it rests with you whether you accept a husband, young, handsome, and a general favorite—"

Edward More granted audibly.

"A general favorite," repeated Mr. Burdon, emphatically, as if he would not be contradicted on that point.

"Of course any conjecture is at present premature, but I think I may answer for Sir Cyril; I think I am sufficiently in his confidence to promise that he will throw no obstacle in the way of the fulfillment of your uncle's wishes."

There was another pause.

"As I have said, the choice, if choice it can be called, rests with Sir Cyril, as it should do, very properly giving you two choices, if I may call them so; and I have dispatched a clerk, a special messenger, for Sir Cyril, that the preliminaries may be got through without any loss of time. I trust, I do trust, that we may succeed in finding Sir Cyril; his movements are just at present very uncertain."

"Very uncertain!" echoed Edward More, sardonically.

"May I ask if you have ever seen Sir Cyril?" asked Mr. Burdon.

Edna raised her eyes, half frightened, wholly troubled, and shook her head.

"No, I have not seen him," she said, in a low voice.

"No doubt you have heard of him?"

"Oh, no doubt!" echoed Edward More, again, with increased bitterness.

Edna looked from one to the other.

"Yes, I have heard of him," she said, and her face grew crimson.

"And heard no good of him?"

"We can't say that," broke in Mr. Burdon, quickly.

"As I have said, Sir Cyril is a general favorite and—and well, he has no worse enemy than himself."

"And that is enough to ruin him," added Edward, spitefully.

Edna looked with pained surprise at the malignant face of the speaker, and for the first time a gleam of pity for this Sir Cyril crossed her heart.

"Well, well," said Mr. Burdon, with a touch of impatience. "Brothers are inclined, too often, to judge each other too harshly. It is a pity Sir Cyril is not here to speak for himself. Meanwhile, my dear madam," he said—"that is, until he arrives—I think we had better suspend all decisions and even discussions. Where are you staying?"

"We are staying at Moffat's Hotel," answered Aunt Martha, nervously.

Mr. Burdon bowed and glanced at Edward.

"Is there anything else that we ought to say, Mr. More?"

Edward More shook his head.

"Except to hope that that precious brother of mine will be persuaded to put in an appearance. I don't suppose Miss Weston will be sorry to have the matter cleared up."

Edna looked up quickly, and her bright eyes flashed upon him with sweet indignation.

CHAPTER XII.

SIR CYRIL'S CHOICE.

"MY dear Sir Cyril!" exclaimed

Edna, pale and trembling, rose.

"Let us go, aunt!" she said, in a hurried whisper.

"Not yet," pleaded Mr. Burdon. "If you can be persuaded to stay until I return, I promise not to be long. Please let me persuade you. Come, my dear young lady, this is a matter of business as well as sentiment. I can understand and appreciate your feelings in the matter, but while I respect them, pray let me beg you to reflect on the lamentable results that would attend any mistake or misunderstanding. Give me five—ten—minutes!"

Edna sank back into her chair trembling visibly, but otherwise calm and self-possessed, and the lawyer hurried from the room.

I can understand and appreciate your feelings in the matter, but while I respect them, pray let me beg you to reflect on the lamentable results that would attend any mistake or misunderstanding. Give me five—ten—minutes!"

"I think," she said, with a little tremor in her voice, "that it could be settled now at this moment—"

Mr. Burdon stopped her with up-raised hands.

"Softly, softly, my dear young lady! I cannot permit you to say—what I think you were going to say. The choice, remember, rests in the first instance with Sir Cyril. Do not be hasty! I implore you to remember that the fate of an immense estate rests upon the issue of this question. Come, you will forgive me," he said, bending toward her with infinite respect; "indeed, I should never forgive myself if I allowed you to put yourself at a disadvantage, and believe me, you would be doing so if you expressed an opinion at this time."

Then as Edna hung her head and closed her lips, he ejaculated, irritably:

"I would give a hundred pounds if Sir Cyril were here now!"

As he spoke, almost before the words were out of his lips, there came a knock at the door, and the discreet clerk appeared in answer to the impatient "Come in!" and handed a card to Mr. Burdon.

No sooner had he glanced at it than he turned with a short laugh of surprise and satisfaction.

"See how rash it is to make monetary vows—or vows of any sort! Sir Cyril is here!"

"What!" exclaimed Edward, More, starting to his feet with a surprised scowl of repugnance; "do you mean to say he is here, in this house?"

"Yes," said Mr. Burdon, "and wishes to see me alone!"

Edna, pale and trembling, rose.

"Let us go, aunt!" she said, in a hurried whisper.

"Not yet," pleaded Mr. Burdon. "If you can be persuaded to stay until I return, I promise not to be long. Please let me persuade you. Mr. Burdon, entering his chief clerk's room, into which Sir Cyril had been shown, "this is the luckiest coincidence in the world;" and he laughed a legal laugh of satisfaction, which died away rather suddenly as he came near enough to take his client's proffered hand and see his face.

"I—I—hope nothing has happened," he said, with an air of concern, "and that you are quite well."

"Nothing has happened, and I am quite well, thanks!"—replied Cyril, with most unusual impatience.

"I am glad to hear it, Sir Cyril," responded Mr. Burdon, still eyeing with a covert scrutiny the pale, handsome face, with its strange, wan and weary look, so very strange upon the face of careless, light-hearted Sir Cyril.

"Singular!" thought the keen lawyer. "He is taking his bad luck to heart. Who would have thought it!"

Then he drew a chair to the table and seated himself.

"I'm glad to hear you are quite well, Sir Cyril. Candidly, you are not looking at all yourself—"

"And who the devil would?" said Cyril, with a mingled haughtiness and impatience so strange and uncommon to him that Mr. Burdon could not help staring. "You forget that your confounded clerk has been at my heels for the last three days, badgering me to get on, get on, and reach here. What on earth do you want with me? I thought, when I was here last, that I'd done with lawyers—that I had nothing left for the law to trouble itself about."

"So did I, Sir Cyril," replied Mr. Burdon, dryly, but still respectfully, "but it seems we were mistaken. Will you not take a seat?—and let me offer you—"

"Nothing," said Cyril, dropping in to a chair; then he leaned his head upon his hand for a moment, and Mr. Burdon sat too astonished to proceed to business.

"See here, Burdon," said Cyril, looking up suddenly, and frowning across the table, "I have come over to England very much against my will, and to this place, which I would have avoided, if I could have fought against a strange kind of impulse and attraction, and I am anxious to leave it again as quickly as possible. I don't wish to offend, but, there—there," and with a movement of his hand he swept away whatever explanations he was about to give.

"Your time is too valuable to waste on me; you have wasted quite enough already, Heaven knows! Now, what is this business?"

As he spoke he made a palpable attempt to give his attention, and succeeded in doing so—after a fashion.

Mr. Burdon bit his lip, puzzled and curious, but he knew the More peculiarities and idiosyncrasies too well to trifle with them, and proceeded to obey his client's direct injunctions.

"Well, Sir Cyril, I am quite ready; I hope I have never been dilatory where your interests are concerned. It was your interest that forced me to send my man for you, and I think you will be more ready to pardon me for the liberty after you have found my reasons for so doing than you appear to be now!"

Cyril, whose good humor no amount of ill luck and trouble could altogether destroy, looked up without the frown, and with a smile which was, however, very different from his old, light-hearted one.

"Forgive me, Burdon," he said; "as you see, I am rather knocked up—a good deal of travelling, and—that sort of thing; I am a little out of sorts, too; in fact, as you said, not quite myself. I know you mean well, you always have meant well to me and mine. Don't think I am ungrateful—don't think anything about me to-day; in fact, try, after I am gone, to forget that you have seen me. I shall leave England again to-night," he added, gloomily.

Mr. Burdon smiled with complacent satisfaction.

"I think not, Sir Cyril; I think not!" he said. "I've news that is good enough to keep most men at home, and I don't think even you will turn your back on it."

SIR CYRIL'S CHOICE.

"MY dear Sir Cyril!" exclaimed

Edna, pale and trembling, rose.

"Let us go, aunt!" she said, in a hurried whisper.

"Not yet," pleaded Mr. Burdon. "If you can be persuaded to stay until I return, I promise not to be long. Please let me persuade you. Come, my dear young lady, this is a matter of business as well as sentiment. I can understand and appreciate your feelings in the matter, but while I respect them, pray let me beg you to reflect on the lamentable results that would attend any mistake or misunderstanding. Give me five—ten—minutes!"

Edna sank back into her chair trembling visibly, but otherwise calm and self-possessed, and the lawyer hurried from the room.

SHALL YOU REAP.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 5. The Communist Party, headed by the President of the Chinese Communist Party, has been shot down as he was expected to have immediate consequences. Richman exercised absolute dictatorship over those living in Russia and re-estimated three coolies living in the region to be tortured and

TURKISH ARRESTS.

MINER LEVIENT.

TORONTO, Feb. 5. The Ontario Court of Appeal has allowed an appeal by the miners against a decision of the Industrial Commission. The miners were awarded a 10 per cent increase in wages.

DISCUSSING WAR.

BERNE, Tuesday, Feb. 5. The German Majority Socialists, in opposition to the resolution introduced by Albert Thomas calling for investigation of responsibility of the war, introduced a resolution to the effect that the war had been the consequence of imperialist policy during the last decade, but it was the duty of the Socialists to establish the immediate causes. The resolution says that the causes of the war were the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia, the general mobilization in Russia and Germany's declaration of war as a result of Russia's mobilization.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The virus of trench fever and those of influenza and of some forms of nephritis have been isolated and identified, according to a report submitted to the director general of the army medical services in France, by a number of army medical officers who have been investigating the causes of these diseases. Investigations which have been conducted have resulted, it is believed, in the isolation of the germs of mumps, measles and typhoid, the causes of which have hitherto been obscure and the bacilli

REPAIRING REPARATION.

PARIS, Feb. 5. The Conference on reparations has resumed work and has agreed upon the principles covering reparation for damages caused by the war and based on memoranda which will be presented by the governments of the countries affected.

MONARCHIST DEFEAT.

LISBON, Feb. 2. The monarchist troops, it is announced,

OF WHICH HAVE NEVER BEEN ISOLATED.

have been defeated in an action at Covilha, southeast of Oporto, near the Spanish frontier, by Republican troops under Lt. Furtis, who are advancing on Guarda to the northeast. The Republican flag now floats over the towns of Covilha and Castello Branco, and the Monarchists are retiring to Regoa where their headquarters have been established. Along the coast the Republicans have occupied Forseca and Araja, and the Monarchists are evacuating Estarreja, south of Oporto. Communication with Lisbon has been restored as far north as Aveiro.

THE DEADLY MINE.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 5. Two ships, a Norwegian fishing steamer and a Swedish steamer have been sunk by mines with a loss of twenty-five lives, according to reports received here. The Norwegian vessel was blown up outside the Norwegian port of Stavanger and eight fishermen were killed. The Swedish vessel sunk was the steamer Sphynx, of 1872 tons. It was on its way from England to Sweden with coal and went down near Coquet Island, off the coast of Scotland, with the loss of seventeen members of its crew.

RESPONSIBILITY.

BERNE, Tuesday, Feb. 5. The German Majority Socialists, in opposition to the resolution introduced by Albert Thomas calling for investigation of responsibility of the war, introduced a resolution to the effect that the war had been the consequence of imperialist policy during the last decade, but it was the duty of the Socialists to establish the immediate causes. The resolution says that the causes of the war were the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia, the general mobilization in Russia and Germany's declaration of war as a result of Russia's mobilization.

ANOTHER ARMISTICE.

BASLE, Feb. 5. An armistice between the Polish and Czechoslovak forces which have been fighting on the Silesian front was signed on Feb. 3rd, according to advices received here. The armistice is effective for seven days and is renewed automatically for the same period unless either party chooses to renounce it. In which event four hours' notice must be given. The opposing troops will retain the positions held on Jan. 22. Diplomatic representatives of both parties are permitted to travel by railroad over territory occupied by troops of the other party.

MAKING PROGRESS.

PARIS, Feb. 5. The preamble and two articles of the constitution of the society of nations were provisionally agreed upon last night by the commission of the Peace Conference appointed to deal with the subject, it was officially announced to-day. Satisfactory progress was made with other parts of the task. The question of adding representatives of other powers to the commission, it was added, is being discussed.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

LONDON, Feb. 5. There was no improvement to-day in the strike situation, and in London all the tubes and underground lines, with the exception of the metropolitan which, however, has only one line running into the city, were still tied up. The hotels and restaurants were able to replace a few of their servants, still were offering only meagre imitations of their regular meals. To-day will decide whether the strike of the electrical power station will join the strikers. More men returned to work to-day in Glasgow, while the presence of Lord Pirrie, controller of merchant shipbuilding in Belfast, gives some hope of a settlement there.

A CURT REPLY.

LONDON, Feb. 5. In replying to a letter from J. Bromley, Secretary of the Association of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, seeking permission to put the case of the men in the tube strike before the Cabinet, and threatening, if refused, to extend the strike over the country, Andrew Bonar Law, Government Leader in the House of Commons, wrote: "I have before me the statement of Jan. 30 which was signed among others by yourself and in which it is laid down in explicit terms that conditions as to an eight hour day as agreed to by the Cabinet had been accepted. In these circumstances there seems to be no room for any misunderstanding, much less a charge of breach of faith. I am sure no useful purpose would be served by my seeing you in regard to it."

DISAPPROVES STRIKES.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The Associated Society of Engineers as evidence of its disapproval of strikes in London, Belfast, and of the Clyde, has suspended the functions of its committees in the three areas affected. The secretaries in the districts have been suspended and will not be permitted to hold office in the society for a certain period. This action, it is declared, is without prejudice to more drastic action being considered by the society.

SUNK BY MINE.

SOUTH SHIELDS, Feb. 5. The British sloop "Penarth" is reported to have been sunk by a mine twenty-three miles off the Tyne River. Two trawlers have picked up four members of the crew.

NOT TO BE RELEASED.

LONDON, Feb. 5. Reports from various sources that the members of the Sinn Fein who had been interned in England were to be released, were set at naught to-day by a statement issued from the office of the Secretary for Ireland. The statement declared that the Sinn Fein prisoners were not to be released "under the present circumstances."

WITHDRAWS OPPOSITION.

PARIS, Feb. 5. M. Tischering, the Foreign Minister in the Russian Soviet government has withdrawn his opposition to the departure from Susa of Edouard Odier, the Swiss Minister and his staff from Russia.

ITALY'S DEBT.

ROME, Feb. 5. Italy's national debt is now more than $12,500,000,000, whereas, when she entered the war it was about $2,750,000,000, declared Luigi Luzzatti, former premier and a leading Italian financial authority, in a statement to-day urging financial aid to Italy.

It is not the extreme freakish one year car, but sensibly built to give years of service and always to look good. Real leathery upholstery, 116 inch wheel base, one man top, 32 x 3 1/2 tires (rear non-skid), electric starting and lighting, all attest to the fact that the car is built to a standard and not down to a price.

Additional Information.

The Minister of Militia authorizes us to give the following information in reference to the arrival and subsequent landing of troops from S.S. Corsican:

The ship will arrive and anchor in the harbor. The Paymaster and Disembarkation Staff will visit the ship, and pay each man on board and arrange transportation for those who are going to the outports, and the time they are to report back for duty and discharge. The landing of the Drafts will depend entirely on the hour of the ship's arrival. The schedule of the landing as given in this morning's paper may have to be changed as the ship is not likely to arrive as early as anticipated.

The Department of Militia will require to see that the men are all comfortably provided for and safely landed, and either sent to their destinations or placed in comfortable billets in St. John's, or placed in the Barracks, Empire Building. Men belonging to St. John's, will be given leave after landing; afterwards they will proceed to their homes.

The general reception at the Furness Wharf will be entirely in the hands of the Ladies' Reception Committee with whom are associated the War Veterans' Association.

It is desirable that the public should understand that it is impossible to land these men all at one time; they will have to be sent to their destinations in different groups, excluding the men of St. John's who will land in one group. The others not leaving by train will proceed to billets or the Empire Barracks. No unnecessary delay will occur, but payment and arrangement for transportation will likely take some little time.

From the Corsican.

The Minister of Militia has received the following message from the Corsican at 11 a.m.:—"Have met heavy field ice latitude 48.47 north; longitude 47.4 west; now standing south along edge weather, snowing and misty, wind S.S.E."

Here From Boston.

Mr. Richard Malone, formerly of the employ of Bowden & Co., printers, and later of the Star staff, who has been here for the last three weeks on a visit from Boston, leaves again by the next Prospero. Mr. Malone is a first-class printer and linotypist, and has a good position in Cambridge, Mass.

Express Passengers.

The following first class passengers are on the incoming express which is due at 2 to-morrow morning: Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Reid and son, J. J. and Mrs. Wilky, S. G. McLean, W. H. Collins, A. Wrican, Miss L. Crickard, W. C. Chislett, M. Keatinge, E. Johnson, M. F. G. Reid, and son, J. A. Shannon, H. A. Leonard, H. Peddie, S. Murley, Capt. Penny, Chas. Lake, H. Evans, E. F. Moore, Chas. Hopkins, F. F. McGrath, W. H. Bradbury, Thos. Stack, Capt. W. Kennedy.

Lord Kitchener and General Trenchard.

(From the Manchester Guardian.) There has been within the last two or three days one of those queer, untraceable rumors going round West London that Lord Kitchener had been seen in town. But, unlike other such rumors, there was some sort of excuse for it. The excuse is General Trenchard. A friend of the late Lord Kitchener who was in Bond Street yesterday tells me that he saw a figure in front of him which for a moment quite unnerved him, so like it was to his dear friend. Coming nearer he saw that it was General Trenchard. He said that not only is General Trenchard almost the same height and build as Lord Kitchener, but that he has the same way of holding his head and of leaning a little on one side, with one shoulder higher than the other, and turning his head to the right windows as he passes. The likeness is extraordinary, and if General Trenchard was filmed as Lord Kitchener most of the latter's friends could not tell the difference.

Fishery Reports.

Latest reports from Rose Blanche say that the fishery prospects there are fairly good, but that bait is becoming scarce, nearly all the frozen stock of herring and squid being used. About 50 boats go out on the grounds when suitable, and good catches are secured, the fishermen selling same for 3 1/2 cents per lb. from the knife. The fish, moreover, is of a better run than usual for the season, and things look bright for the fishers.

Society Wedding.

HAYWARD-CHEESHIRE. A very beautiful ceremony was performed this morning at 10.30 o'clock at the C. of E. Cathedral, when Miss Agnes Paterson-Hayward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hayward, who is one of the directors of Bowring Bros. Ltd., was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Ronald Cheeshire of Birkenhead, England, local agent for Lever Bros., Port Sunlight, Liverpool. The bride was most becomingly dressed in a tailor-made costume of dark blue, while a set of white fox furs considerably enhanced the effect. The bride was given away by her father, while the bridesmaid was Miss Nan Baird, and Mr. Reginald Harvey was best man. His Lordship Bishop White officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Canon J. Hewitt, of Petty Hr., uncle of the bride, and Mr. Max Shears was in charge of the ushers, Mr. Stafford being organist. After the ceremony the bridal pair left the Cathedral, while the sweet strains of the Wedding March were being played. The party then drove to the residence of the bride's parents, Forest Road, where a reception was held. Although only the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties were invited, quite a number of people were drawn to the Church to witness the tying of the nuptial knot. Many valuable presents were received by the bride, which are symbolical of her position in the affection of her friends and acquaintances. The Telegram adds its felicitations to the number, and wishes Mr. and Mrs. Cheeshire a happy voyage over life's matrimonial sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Cheeshire left by today's express for New York to spend their honeymoon and will be gone some time, Mrs. Cheeshire returning home before her husband.

Feildians' Elect Officers.

At a meeting of the Feildians last night at Gaden's offices, the following were elected officers of the Hockey team for this year:— Captain—Capt. R. H. Tait, M.C. Vice-Capt.—E. Jerrett. Sect. and Delegate—F. Bennett. The Feildians are determined to bid for the honours of the season, and will put in a strong team. Some former players viz. Nix Hunt, Jack Strang, Tom Payne, and L. Munn, are returning by the Corsican. Several resolutions were passed at the meeting which will be presented to the League at the annual meeting on Saturday night.

S. S. Portia Sails.

S. S. Portia sailed at 10 a.m. yesterday for western ports, taking a full freight and the following passengers: Const. Vail, A. J. Power, P. B. Roche, Pte. Keeping, Pte. King, B. Hollett, Mrs. Tulk, Mrs. King, Mrs. Pelley, Miss Handall, Dr. W. Hogan and son, J. Bonnell, W. Hamlyn, J. Pope, W. Oliver, F. Pagan, T. Cooper, T. Harvey, W. Reddy, Lance Cpl. Pike, A. J. Slaney, L. Rose, T. Spears, S. J. Loveless, Pte. Snow, Pte. Hollett and 32 in steerage.

Record Run.

The 'Little Stepano', Capt. Gushue, arrived at Oporto on January 10th, after a record winter passage of eleven days, the vessel having left Ferryland on Dec. 31st. The most peculiar and incomprehensible part about the vessel's arrival is that the official advice was only received by Capt. Abram Kean from the ship's agents, Messrs. Costa Basto to-day, notwithstanding that previous cables have been received from Capt. Gushue asking for instructions re freight. The cable referred to announcing the arrival has certainly been "some time" or route—and then some.

A Brilliant Find, But—

(From the Providence Journal.) The unearthing of a blue-white diamond from a South African mine, one of the largest ever discovered, and perhaps the most valuable, is a find of some interest and importance. But, just at this time, the world is prepared to welcome with more joy a new oil gusher, a new coal field, or a few added acres that can be planted to wheat.

Beinton was also present. The Chairman addressed the Club, reviewing the past year's work, after which the officers for the ensuing year were elected. These were: Sir Wm. Horwood, President; E. Reid, Treasurer, and J. Newman, Secretary. The officers for the club's hockey team were also elected, viz: Captain, E. Reid; Vice-Captain, A. Feaver. As soon as ice conditions permit the club will play a series of games with the St. Thomas boys in the Prince's rink.

Forget the Liver.

"A man 108 years old, now sojourning in the Jewish Home at St. Louis, says that the way to live long is to live well and take no thought of one's liver. He has never made a useless exertion. He has eaten what he liked and all he wanted, smoked and taken a small nip now and then, and as the spirit moved, and the subject of microbes has never had his attention. He believes folks can kill themselves with worrying about how to live. Maybe he is right."—Buffalo Express.

DIED.

Last evening, after a short illness, Thomas Mundy, leaving a wife, three children, mother and father, five brothers and four sisters to mourn their sad loss. Funeral takes place Friday, at 2 a.m., from his late residence, 248 Duckworth Street. Friends and acquaintances will please accept this the only intimation.—American papers please copy.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The S. S. Mary is now loading one hundred tons of infusorial earth, taken from the claim of Messrs. Simmonds and Peddie at Bull Pond. The earth is to be taken to Bell Island where it will be used for pipe covering, etc.

Our citizens are all pleased to see A. E. Dixon, Esq., manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, out again after his late serious illness.

The funeral of the late Mrs. R. S. Munn, sr., took place on Monday and was very largely attended.

The installation of officers of Dalton Council, Knights of Columbus, took place in the Masonic Hall last night. After the business of the meeting had been gone through, an "At Home" took place which was participated in by a large number of the friends of the members. The British Hall was used for serving refreshments, while the upper or Masonic Hall was tastefully decorated and made ready for the K. of C. Ball, which is claimed to be one of the best yet held by that body. A large number of ladies and gentlemen from Carbonear and adjoining places were present. The committee of management were untiring in their efforts to please their guests and make the affair the grand success that it certainly was.

The several cases of influenza reported on the South Side last week are, we are glad to say, all on the way for recovery.

Ypres to Remain

AS PERMANENT MONUMENT. London, January 29.—(British Wireless Service.)—The decision of the Belgian Government to maintain Ypres, the scene of several battles between the British and the Germans, in its present condition as a permanent memorial, is endorsed heartily by British Press and public opinion.

"Ypres will be a memorial," says the Westminster Gazette, "in which future generations may learn the horrors of war. There is nothing more impressive than the sight of the stricken city with the skeletons of its once wonderful buildings rising gaunt into the sky. In a sense there are few things more beautiful. To patch it would be impossible. Every one, therefore, will welcome the decision that the remains of the old city shall be left intact instead of being cleared away."

"The last abounds in the ruins of the past vestiges of once glorious civilizations which have been overthrown. Ypres will stand for centuries as a reminder that civilization itself cannot be overthrown, and as a monument to the generation sacrificed in defence."

Queer Occupations.

There are a number of curious trades, apart from purely war trades, which have sprung into existence since 1914, and which would probably have never been heard of but for the war. Dried eggs, milk, and dried mixtures of milk, sugar, and tea, coffee, and cocoa are now in general demand, where before the war they were hardly known. Saccharine tablets, too, before the war were seldom used for sweetening tea and coffee.

One Birmingham firm is making big profits out of the manufacture of genuine war souvenirs, such as rings made out of sections of cartridge cases, dinner-gongs from shells, paper-weights from odds-and-ends of guns, aeroplane engines, and so on. Now the war is over, one or two queer occupations that have cropped up will die natural deaths. The shortage and high price of alarm clocks resulted in a great increase in "knockers-up" in munition centres. Another occupation which brought a regular income to small boys at ports of embarkation was posting last messages for soldiers just before they sailed for France.

Perhaps the queerest occupation of all was that of many boys in Yorkshire towns who used to hang about the big stations watching for consignments of beer. As soon as one arrived its destination was found out, and the address of the particular pub-house sold to munition workers in the neighbourhood for a penny at a time.

Here and There.

BURIED TO-DAY.—The funeral of Capt. George Short who died suddenly at the residence of Mr. Wm. Pridenau, Supt. of the Poor Asylum, took place this afternoon. Mr. Short had been living at Kelligrews for some time and was in the city on a visit at the time of his decease.

M.C.L.L. DEBATE.—The debate for this evening's meeting of the M.C.L.L. will be on the resolution: "That legislation be enacted at the next session of the legislature to compel capital and labor to arbitrate disputes and abide by the decision." This being the topical and interesting, a good attendance is expected.

Letting Out the Tucks.

By RUTH CAMERON.

One need not be a judge to need the judicial mind. Just about every one of us could use it just about every day. For instance, the teacher settling a difference between two pupils; the mother (elsewhere I have referred to her as the mother judge) trying to discipline wisely and the father in his business department and I, whether father or teacher or student, in deciding to spend our money most year, we didn't save quite as much. Too Many Tucks Let Out Spoil The Fit.

"That taught us a lesson. We need to let out some tucks, but we had let out so many tucks in our expenses that they were too large for our income, instead of too small. Of course, it would have been foolish not to let out any tucks, but the point is when to stop. You can't let out everywhere, and you have to decide what you want most and what counts the most and let other things go. It's the hardest thing."

"I think," she concluded, "that I will accept the loan of that book after all."

And I gave it most gladly,—having already been amply repaid (if repayment were necessary) in the suggestive story of too many let-out tucks spoiling the fit.

Fortunes in War Stamps.

How much money has been invested in postage-stamps issued in consequence of the war? Two issues of Red Cross stamps of the Belgian Congo are of a total face value of about $3, and if anybody wants a single set of similar stamps for North Borneo he will have to pay for it about $4. Yet that is only a beginning.

A collection must include some stamps of German Togoland, and these are priced from a few shillings up to £160 apiece, though the rarer varieties are now generally from £40 to £70 each.

Just Folks
THE THINGS THAT ARE NOT SO.

I sometimes think we grown-ups know too many things that are not so: We spend our time, or so it seems, Shattering the children's fondest dreams, And filling little eyes with mist By proving fairies don't exist.

Perhaps we ought to teach the youth To tread the rugged way of truth, And make them think this world a place

Where everything is commonplace And only that is true, which they Can see and touch from day to day.

And yet that robs each girl and boy Of all imaginary joy Who follows strictly Truth's stern laws, Deprives a child of Santa Claus, And takes from every rose bush fair The fairies that are dwelling there.

When children ask if things are so, It's seldom that I tell them, "No." In fancy's fashion I contrive To keep their fairy-folk alive. Rather than end their dreams in grief, I try to strengthen their belief.

I fall of fairies I have met Dancing about the misgenette, And as their eyes are open-wide With wonderment, with tender pride I scratch my dull, slow-witted head Recalling what they did and said.

I think for such a golden life I'll be forgiven by and by. Too soon those little eyes will weep O'er broken dreams they cannot keep. Too soon, I'm sure, they'll come to know How many cherished joys aren't so.

Giant Rafts.

One of the most important devices to overcome the shortage of shipping is the construction of giant rafts for timber carrying. Not many weeks ago one of these structures, displacing 6,000 tons, completed the passage between a Swedish and a Danish port, a distance of 450 miles and so successful was the experiment that it is to be developed.

When Women Marry.

(By Statistical Expert.)
It is said that thousands of so-called "old maids" would be wearing wedding-rings to-day if they had only made a little study of their matrimonial chances and profited by it—if, for example, they had known the best period at which to secure a husband, and in what particular class of men to look for him.

Odd Against the Flappers.

At the ages of twenty to twenty-four, when she naturally considers herself more attractive to men, the odds against her are much greater—actually twelve to one; and at the later period, thirty to thirty-four, if she marries at all, she will be the only lucky one of twenty-three of the same age.

Milady's Boudoir.

ABOUT SELECTING RUGS.
"We have taken on the study of rugs in school," remarked Marjorie petulantly one day hurling her books into the very corner and displaying rather a bold showing of temper.

The Merry Widow.

And the widow scores not only at every age, but in both sections of the matrimonial field. It is true that it is a close race for the bachelor stakes, the widows capturing sixty-five more in the thousand than the spinsters; but when it comes to fascinating widowers, they win "hands down," taking three for every two that fall to the spinster's lot.

Thus while the spinster is making hay during the best harvest period (and, indeed, at every other age) she must keep a sharp eye on the "merry widow," who is her most formidable rival.

LIFE IS EXPENSIVE.

My week of honest toil is done, subsided is my smoke; I draw down quite a bunch of moon—and yet I'm always broke. My friends remark, "With what you earn, once should be sweet; you should have coin to burn and live in Easy Street." But oh, the fierce and frightful cost of everything that's made! My bank account looks like a frost, when all my bills are paid. The dentist plugs my hollow tooth, nor needs my shrieks and groans, and when he's done he said, "In sooth, my charge is twenty bones."

THE FURIOUS THAT ARE DWELLING THERE.

"Of course not, why should they interest me, and I care not whether a Persian rug is meant for the kitchen or the library, and I don't believe you do either."

And the Worst is Yet to Come.

"I cannot agree with you," replied Marie. "I have travelled through Brussels, Paris, and in fact, all the oriental countries, where rugs mean more than furniture, and I must admit that they have come to mean a great deal in my life, too."

"For instance, if you were furnishing a home, you would realize that whatever rugs you select you have to use for a long while, because of their great cost. You would then wish to choose the very best in quality as well as in artistic value."

How Germany Can Pay.

The entire question of imposing upon Germany the obligation of paying a war indemnity, for the spoliation of the countries into which at the beginning of the war her victorious armies marched, and devastated has not yet been threshed out finally at the Peace Congress, and the news we receive daily is somewhat conflicting and cannot be at all accepted as a definite statement of what may or may not be. The manner in which any reparation in kind may be made is not easy to define, and the whole problem of how Germany can pay is one which literally bristles with difficulties, and the closer it is approached the more intricate and complex it becomes.

Not for a moment can it be imagined that a demand will be made on the defeated enemy countries for cash liquidation of their debt. The actual amount of money involved is greater than all the current circulation of the whole world, and no country, no matter how wealthy could begin to make the attempt of paying any such sum in gold. When Blismack demanded of France in 1871 payment of five thousand million francs in gold, the world was simply staggered at the (then) immensity of the sum, and saw in the failure of France to pay, a complete annexation of that country by the victors. But France, making many sacrifices, paid in full. The peasants drew on their savings to the last sou for the safety of "la patrie," and there was great rejoicing when the last German bayonet left Paris. But that sum, huge as it was, which the Iron Chancellor extorted from the French people, is nothing in comparison to the total of the Allies' bill of claims against Germany to-day, and therefore the impossibility of demanding a cash payment becomes at once apparent.

But there are many ways in which an equivalent may be taken, and two of these are suggested. Germany is a richly wooded country and contains forests, untouched by woodman's axe or saw. There are great areas of timber in the Bohemian, Thuringian, Black and Teutoberger Forests—in fact the only part of Germany in which trees are not more or less plentiful being the North West. Altogether about twenty-six per cent of the total area of Germany alone is made up of forest land, the chief trees of which are beech and oak in the West; pine, birch and alder in the North; fir in the mountainous regions and larch on the slopes of the southern ranges. The logs for all qualities of timber can be supplied by Germany and as France and Belgium are in great need of material for the rebuilding of their razed and devastated houses, much of which must necessarily be of wood, Germany, as part of her war indemnity should be levied upon for whatever lumber is required. During the enemy occupation of France and Belgium they drew upon the timber lands of these countries for whatever wood they needed in their multiplicity of military works, and it must not be forgotten that apart from these necessities they wantonly and deliberately destroyed whole forest areas in their retreat, even the trees which lined many of the roads in Northern France and Belgium being cut down by the Huns out of sheer destructive delight. It is only retributive justice, therefore, to compel Germany to make good in kind this loss to the French and Belgians. Saw mills should be erected, under allied supervision, in the forests referred to and whatever timber they turn out, sent into France and Belgium until the whole of their work of reconstruction is completed. The value of the material thus supplied could be set down to the credit of Germany in the Allied Ledger.

The other suggestion is that German ships be used in the transportation of food and supplies to and from the ports of the world. There are 3,000,000 estimated tons of German shipping in home ports, which are to be or have been turned over to the Allies according to the Armistice agreement for use in the carrying trade. In addition to these there are a large number of vessels interned in Germany and Austria interned in ports abroad, principally in South America. No less than thirty-eight are in ports of the Argentine Republic and eighty-four in Chile. For the period of the war and since, these ships have not been in use. The Argentine Republic has a tremendous wheat surplus, amounting to over 100,000,000 tons, and large quantities of meat for export to Europe. The thirty-eight German ships lying idle in the harbours should be immediately requisitioned and loaded up with cargoes, a legitimate freight rate being allowed for carriage. Ships in Chilean waters could be dispatched across the Pacific Ocean to Australia, there to load wheat for Europe, the island continent having nearly 200,000,000 bushels for export. It may be argued against this that these vessels would not be available because both the South American countries are holding them against their claims for U boat destruction of their ships. In this event, it should be a matter of little difficulty for the Peace Congress to effect an arrangement with the Argentine and Chile (the amount of their claims against Germany not being so very large) which, if not permanent could be at least temporary, for the formal release of the tonnage interned in their ports. With sections of Europe facing starvation, the present is no time for diplomatic hair splitting, and as part of the price which Germany must pay, these ships should be put into commission without further delay. The earnings of these vessels, after the deduction of operating expenses, would go toward reducing Germany's debt to the Allies, and no country represented at the Peace Conference could object to such a method of payment.

The Reception.

(Official.)
We are pleased to be able to give full particulars of the reception to be given to our returning thousand soldiers.

Friday morning about 9 or 10 o'clock those soldiers whose homes are reached by shore train will land at the Furness Wharf and march to the Railway Station where their relatives admitted by BLUE tickets to the waiting room, may welcome them as they pass through to board the special trains waiting for them.

About an hour afterwards a second party will land and march to the Railway Station, taking the special train for the Bonavista Branch. The order of procession will be:—

- Veteran Naval Reservists
- Veteran Soldiers
- Band
- Returning Soldiers
- Band

If the day is stormy, these soldiers will land at the dock and march to the Railway Station, where their relatives will be given the same opportunity of greeting them.

These BLUE tickets which near relatives may obtain by applying to Mrs. Paterson will admit them first to the Furness Wharf Shed and afterwards at the Station.

A portion of the large shed at the Furness Wharf has been cleared for the near relatives of the soldiers to gather. As the portion available will give room for only about a thousand people, it has been found necessary to limit the number admitted on each ticket, to two. There are 330 men belonging to St. John's. These with two friends each to meet them will number 990.

At 2 p.m. those soldiers belonging to St. John's will land at the Furness Wharf. They will march into the shed and be drawn up in platoons preparatory to marching in procession.

WHITE tickets which have been sent to the relatives of the St. John's contingent will admit them to the Furness Wharf shed and also will admit them later to the grounds of the Colonial Building, where the soldiers will disembark after a short address, and as many sleighs as possible will be gathered in Bannerman Road to take them to their homes.

The PINK ticket will, both morning and afternoon, admit to the Furness Wharf Square only.

The procession will go down Water St. up McBride's Hill, up Church Hill, Queen's Road and Military Road. The order of procession will be:

- Veteran Naval Reservists
- Sergt. Ricketta, V.C.
- Nurses
- Returning Soldiers
- Band
- Returning Soldiers

The Joint Reception Committee urgently requests all who can to send their sleighs to the Furness Wharf wharf for the use of the soldiers' wives and children in the morning; and in the afternoon every sleigh and motor available will be needed to take the soldiers home after they disembark; kindly send the sleighs in the afternoon to Bannerman Road. We know that all will respond to this appeal, as they have always responded.

We need not ask that the town and the shipping be decorated as gaily as possible. This we know will be done. We also feel sure that the soldiers not belonging to St. John's will be given another good reception on their arrival at their different destinations along the line and elsewhere.

Up Against It.

So far this week, something like ten or twelve cars and cabsmen have been brought before the Court charged with violating the street traffic regulations. Generally the breach was that of going on the wrong side of the road, and the police could do nothing but prosecute. But there is a reason for the car men going on the wrong side of Water Street, especially as the north or lower side is so graded that accidents are extremely liable to occur, and when passing the coves it is absolutely necessary for the horses to cross the street to the upper side to avoid capsizing the car or slide. The police are not to be blamed, but rather should be praised for their laudable efforts in enforcing the street traffic regulations, and the car men certainly cannot be blamed for avoiding accidents, but it seems most unfair that these hard-working men should lose their money by so doing. The blame rests with those responsible for the condition of the streets, and a genuine effort to improve the condition should be made.

B. I. S. Concert.

An excellent programme had been arranged and was well carried out at last night's concert at the B.I.S. club rooms. The principal performers were Misses Power, Devine, E. Shea, Harris, McNamara, Ryan, Browne and Eidel; Messrs. E. L. Carter, M. McCarthy, P. Halley, J. Darcy, T. Halley, J. L. Slattery and S. and J. Skinner. All the different items were meritoriously rendered, the accompanists of the evening being Mrs. Cleary, Misses Power and Browne, and Messrs. T. Halley and J. Slattery, jr. After the concert dancing was indulged in. Hearty congratulations were extended to the promoters and performers by the large audience present.

New Methodist College Home.

At a meeting of the Board of Governors yesterday afternoon, it was decided to erect a new College Home for pupils from the outports, in place of the one situated on Long's Hill. The present building which was erected immediately following the 1892 fire, is out of date and behind the times, being quite unequal to the demands made upon it. Within a day or two the various Committees will be fully organized. The site has not yet been decided on although there is a choice of three or four. The building to be erected will be modern in every detail, including the substitution of private rooms, in place of the general dormitory system, the provision for ample recreation rooms, and other improvements.

Enjoyable Sociable.

The monotony of outpost life was pleasantly broken by a very successful sociable which was held here in St. Joseph's Hall on the nights of the 27th and 28th ult. The spacious auditorium was crowded with people who entered into the enjoyment in an enthusiastic and whole-souled manner. The tables were filled with good things calculated to tempt the most fastidious appetite and were presided over by a number of energetic ladies who spared nothing to please the large assemblage that had gathered to enjoy the hospitalities which were lavished upon them. After partaking of a sumptuous supper dancing was participated in with great spirit to the music of Mr. Wm. Walsh's violin. The motto of the dancers seemed to be:

- "On with the dance,
- No sleep till morn
- When youth and pleasure meet
- To chase the golden hours,
- With flying feet."

The proceeds exceeded seven hundred dollars and surpassed the most sanguine expectations. The Rev. Father Mackey, who was present, was delighted with the success of the sociable. The ladies who presided are to be congratulated on the successful manner in which they conducted the affair, and it would be invidious to particularise, suffice it to say that the thanks of all are due them and the recollections of the sociable will linger as a pleasing memory with all who were fortunate enough to be present.

Those having PINK TICKETS for to-morrow's reception, and the SLEIGHS will enter by the far eastern gate of the FURNESS WITHEY WHARF.

The WHITE TICKETS will enter by the western gate.

The War Veterans have undertaken to form a guard of honour along the line which the procession will pass from the wharf to the road.

Those holding tickets are asked to help to keep a broad path for the soldiers to pass through.

Rev. Dr. Kitchin Lectures.

The lecture Monday night at Killbride, on Rome by Dr. Kitchin was from every aspect a brilliant success. It began at 8.30 and lasted just one hour. The hall was taxed to its capacity and many prominent citizens from St. John's were seen among the large and appreciative audience.

The particularly learned lecturer in his introductory remarks clearly proved how Rome was a theme always full of interest for the Catholic student as well as for Catholics in general all the world over. Rome was the centre of Catholicity. There St. Peter "fixed his foot" lived, labored and died. Thither also did St. Paul come where in the end he likewise suffered a violent martyrdom.

The lecture was accompanied by illustrations throughout, and as such, could easily be followed by everyone present, as the brilliant and learned Doctor clearly and in most beautiful language told of the principal historical events inseparably associated with Roman Catholic monuments of antiquity. Such famous monuments were the Coliseum, the Pantheon, the Milvian Bridge, the Forum, the Catacombs, St. Peter's, St. John Lateran, the Quirinal, St. Mary's Major, St. Paul's, the Castel Grandolpho and many other renowned historic edifices. As Dr. Kitchin passed from one illustration to another one seemed to be actually amid the sites of the Eternal City, actually witnessing the objects so realistically, so graphically and so beautifully portrayed. Interesting narratives were told in reference to the rules of etiquette for visiting the Supreme Pontiff, while here and there throughout the lecture interesting legends were told concerning St. Cecilia, St. Tarciusus, Constantine, St. Peter's, St. John Lateran, which aroused the keenest interest and appreciation.

It goes without saying that Monday night's address will long be remembered by the people of Killbride who are deeply grateful to Rev. Dr. Kitchin for so graciously consenting to their request to come and lecture for them. Knowing of his unrivalled, unequalled scholarship, great indeed was the expectation and great was the fruit of result, for Monday night's lecture on Rome was of the highest order, simple yet elevated, suited for the learned as well the unlettered and might profitably be delivered before a more vast and more pretentious audience.—Com.

Should be Stopped.

It is a hard matter to keep space with the tricks of the New Gower St. demizeng, and the police certainly have its work cut out to cope with the people who frequent this part of the town. One of the latest tricks, we are informed, lies in watering a portion of the sidewalk, so that when it freezes it will be so slippery that all who pass over it must of necessity fall. A number of the habitues then stand near the frozen part and pass doubtful jokes and jibes at those unfortunate enough to fall. As a large number of girls and women pass along the sidewalks a more serious aspect is given the matter, which should assuredly be stopped at all costs.

Girls' Friendly Society.

At last night's meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society, Miss Southcott gave a very interesting lecture on "The Child," pointing out that this question of the child, was one of the most important of the day. She spoke of the good work being done by the nurses for the child's welfare.

She also spoke of heredity, and environment, showing how these two factors affected the future life of the child, and impressed her hearers with the vast importance of the child. This evening the regular reading and writing classes will be held, and all girls are asked to come.

N. I. W. A.

At a meeting of the N. I. W. A. Co-operative Stores held last night, Mr. J. Cadwell was re-elected Chairman; James Baird, Treasurer, and Mr. M. J. James, Secretary. These with nine other members of the Board will form the Executive.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

LONDON, Feb. 5. The Ottawa Agency.—The statement issued last night by the Minister of Labor in France, in answer to demands made by unofficial conferences of London members of the engineering and electrical unions. These demands included government intervention in various labor disputes, and introduction of legislation in Parliament, restricting forty hours as the legal work week. The statement points out that communication in support of these demands has been received from the executive officers of the unions involved. On the other hand, the statement says, it is understood that the executives are opposed to the action suggested. It is noted that agreements were recently concluded between the union executives with the employers for the introduction of the state-commission, the difficulties which arise in the case of the unions, in reference to their agreements, have been discussed with the responsible officials of the unions. In the case of the unions it is not even contended that difficulties have arisen, and suggested that the stoppage of work Thursday was therefore not connected with the employers' concern. The Minister of Labor received information from the executives of some of the principal unions, that present difficulties are of a character which can be dealt with effectively only by the executive councils of the unions. These executives themselves appreciate the fact that it is their responsibility to enter into agreements, and to discuss with the employers, any questions, that may arise in connection with these agreements. They are aware that the Minister of Labor is at their disposal, if they should desire to avail themselves of his services, but in the meantime

Praying for a Model Wife.

A solution to the problem of unhappy marriages is suggested by the celebration in China recently of the annual festival of "Propitious Day." The festival is the outcome of a very ancient Buddhist legend. The story runs that a young man and a young woman one day happened, entirely apart from each other, to offer prayers to Buddha: he for a model wife and she for a model husband. Buddha decided to unite the two as husband and wife. For a time they lived happily together, but then began following their own wills, and so got to wrangling and quarrelling. This outcome of his match-making angered Buddha, and he banished the two to opposite sides of a broad and deep river, so that while they could see each other they could not reach each other, or even converse. Once a year, however, they were permitted to meet. The result was that they longed for each other and looked forward eagerly to the coming of the re-union day, and thus became a model husband and wife. The annual anniversary of this re-union day is the "Propitious Day," which women celebrate. On that day Chinese maidens implore Heaven to send them worthy husbands, and they offer to Buddha miniature dolls, or figures made of a special kind of paper. These little figures represent the two married people of the old legend.

Let us rejoice with them that the German people are united and are not divided by the jealousy of rulers."

ELECTRICIANS CALLED OUT.

LONDON, Feb. 5. Electricians on the Brighton and South Coast railroad were called out last night. This resulted in a partial stoppage of freight traffic, but as a late hour passenger train was not affected. Reports to the Mail say that the men on the London and South Western, which also is partially electrified, expected a summons to strike during the night, but trains were still running early this morning. ### Briefs of Interest.

A Hamilton, Ont., church has gone in for coffee and sandwiches after the regular evening services. House, coal and light, free for life, have been given by Mr. Frederick Mills, Managing Director of the Ebbw Vale Company, London, to Sergeant Major John Williams, on his being awarded the Victoria Cross. Lieut. M. J. Plumb, of Chicago, flying above 2,000 spectators at the Tallisero Field at Fort Worth, Tex., recently broke the world's record for looping the loop in an airplane by making 144 loops. A Toronto paper says: "Some of the Canadian soldiers in England are tired of the soldier business and want to get home. In the meantime they refuse to drill and merely have a short march out in the morning." Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, of Columbus, Ohio, famous as an automobile driver, was the premier "Ace" of the American air force in France, having 26 enemy planes to his credit. Dr. Fay Miles, of Hindensburg, Vt., has just passed his 99th birthday. The news item going the rounds of the State papers says that even now he frequently prescribes for neighbors and members of his family, but that he doesn't take medicine himself. Hunting deer and other game by airplane is becoming a popular sport with flyers from the aviation camps in South Texas. The aviators are able to pick out the choice bucks and do their rifle shooting at close range while flying close to the ground. The deer do not seem to mind the airplanes.

Atlantic Flight Mystery.

The United States Naval Institute Proceedings, an official publication, confirms the report—published in some American papers a few weeks ago—of the crossing of the Atlantic by aeroplane. "Conditions which will accord our wish to participate in that Assembly have not yet arrived, but we must not in the meanwhile let pass unnoticed such an important event. The great German ideal is not extinguished for Germans in this country. Let us salute our brothers in Germany with enthusiasm. Let us rejoice with them that the German people are united and are not divided by the jealousy of rulers."

S. S. Corsican.

Wireless messages were received from the S. S. Corsican yesterday evening saying that she was then in latitude 48° 47' north and longitude 47° 44' west, and that she had then struck the southern edge of a large field of ice; the weather was also snowy and misty and the wind S.S.E. This of course will delay her arrival somewhat.

Joins the Army.

We learn that ex-Sergeant Peter Mansfield, a veteran of "Ourra" and at present employed in the Registry Office of the Supreme Court, joins the army of benedicts on the 25th of this month, taking as his partner Miss Rogers.

Sheriff Has Girl Deputy.

Miss Mabel Olmstead, 24 years old, of 1 North Twentieth Street, Elmhurst, N.Y., was yesterday made a Special Deputy Sheriff by Sheriff Samuel Mitchell of Queens, and was immediately sworn in by Deputy County Clerk J. Page Lent at the Queen's County Court House. She received a handsome gold shield from the Sheriff and a permit to carry a revolver. Miss Olmstead has been an investigator in the Rosenwasser Brothers shoe factory in Long Island City, where war contracts have been executed. When she was asked her reasons for desiring to be made a Special Deputy Sheriff, she said: "My investigations have shown me many wrongs perpetrated against young women in this city, especially in the big industrial establishments. I wanted the power to make arrests when I believed them justified. I am not going to start out as a reformer."—N.Y. Times.

Door With Seven Locks.

Five of the keyholes of this wonderful door are concealed from view by a stout iron bar which traverses it. This door gives access to a vaulted chamber, known as the Chapel of the Pye, the walls of which were standing as they stand to-day before even the Norman Conqueror, landed in Sussex. The chamber was once the treasury of England, to which were brought the most cherished possessions of the State. The regalia of the Courtish kings and the Holy Cross of Holyrood were deposited here, and for many years it served as a mint for coining silver and gold. It was centuries ago the scene of a daring robbery, and to-day it contains, in addition to a stone altar, some old chests, one of which it said to have held the jewels of Norman kings. ### Worth Their Weight in Gold.

In spite of the fact that typewriters now cost something like £70, people who have to deal with badly-written correspondence probably think they are worth it.

In the old days Secretaries of State were greatly troubled in this respect, as is evidenced by Lord Palmerston's minutes, preserved in our Foreign Office.

"Reading this beastly handwriting is like running penknives into one's eyes," he wrote across one particularly illegible consular despatch.

"Why," he indited plaintively on another, "does the writer of this despatch make all his letters slope backwards, like the raking masts of an American schooner?"

What would not Palmerston have given to have had the typewriter in general use in his day?

Chances for Inventors.

Millions Awaiting Brainy Folks.

Men have learned to fly and to see through a brick wall, but there are still a few things they cannot do. No man has ever made an unsinkable ship, for instance. The nearest approach is the best type of lifeboat, but even these life-savers are occasionally lost in heavy seas, and the fate of the Titanic when she collided with an iceberg, and of the Lusitania, when she was torpedoed, although they were provided with all the latest safeguards, proves that the unsinkable ship is still to be built.

Similarly, no man has ever succeeded in erecting a fireproof building. The ferro-concrete idea comes nearest to this much-desired end, but the fate of some of the New York sky-scrapers proves that even this material is not immune. If a building is to be habitable it will also be combustible, or, at least, that is the experience of builders up to the present moment, whatever the future may have in store.

The man who should invent a piece of glass which is malleable and unbreakable, a wine-glass, say, which could be flung on a stone floor and remain intact, would make the biggest fortune in the world.

Rain production has been the dream of innumerable scientists. The great dam at Assuan was built because Egypt is rainless, and, but for the Nile, would be a desert like its neighbour, the vast Sahara, a tract as big as Europe. Central Australia is another almost rainless patch of the earth's surface. But if rain could be controlled by human agency, both these vast areas could be rendered fruitful. But the weather, generally, remains in the hands of Dame Nature, and the wind still "bloweth where it listeth" despite anything man can do.

Secrets of Photography.

It seems a remarkable thing, considering the progress of the science of photography and cinematography, that colour photography is still an undiscovered secret. There are processes by which a very natural camouflage of Nature can be produced, but the plate is yet to be made which will produce a landscape in autumn in all its wondrous tints, or take a portrait of a lady with the natural colouring of hair, eyes, and complexion, with the various colours of her costume "in the manner as she lives."

To See Without Eyes.

New legs and arms are being fitted in these days by the thousand, and wonderful feats of surgery are performed. A man can even be fitted with a false jaw, and false teeth are the commonest of commonplaces, and even some of his interior fittings can at least be partially replaced. But the blind man still remains blind and the deaf man deaf!

By far the greatest boon to mankind would be some device by which a man could be made to see without eyes. When we think of the wonders of the microscope, the telescope, and the spectroscope, it does not seem quite hopeless that a method will some day be discovered of conveying vision to the brain without the aid of the natural eye, but as yet this great human benefaction has not come forward. Many inventions have as their object the making of sound audible to deaf ears, but the success has been extremely slight hitherto.

The Crank's Quest.

Of course, there is still unsolved the old riddle of perpetual motion, which thousands of cranks have spent their lives upon in the past. Scientists tell us that there is no perpetual motion known even to astronomy, so that it is unlikely that it will ever be discovered on earth! The world, they say, is slowly checking its speed round the sun, and its diurnal revolution, but so slowly as to be imperceptible within historic times, and the sun they say is a dying fire which will be extinct in a few hundred billion years. Yet the discovery of radium, with its apparently inexhaustible energy, rather shook the scorn with which the ideal of perpetual motion used to be regarded, and if a machine could be constructed to go for twenty years, on its own as it were, it would be "perpetual" enough for all ordinary purposes!

How "Tickers" Work.

The tape machine, or "ticker," as it is popularly known, which renders such valuable service in transmitting Stock Exchange quotations and news items, is just an ordinary telegraphic instrument elaborated in such a way as to admit of its sending the letters of the alphabet together with the numerals up to nine, in place of the dots and dashes of the ordinary Morse code.

In the sending office is a piece of mechanism not unlike a very large typewriter in appearance. The operator sits in front of the keyboard of this instrument, and by depressing the keys corresponding to the letters or figures he desires to send, he causes a type-wheel at the distant, or receiving office to print the corresponding letters or figures on a strip of paper. This paper is made to unroll itself, as the message is printed upon it, by means of a clockwork arrangement, which has to be wound up at intervals, just as does an ordinary clock. If this precaution is neglected the "ticker" stops working.

In other respects the receiving, or tape, machine is entirely automatic in its action, all the work being done by the man at the other end of the wire, who can cause his dispatching machine to work simultaneously any number of "tickers" in different parts of the country.

Millionaires Early Days.

Treading his way through the traffic-thronged streets of Chicago a few years ago, a passer-by, happening to notice a young fellow wedged in between a couple of sandwich-boards, would hardly have thought this luckless wight was on his road to a fortune running into the millions of dollars. Yet so it was—for the humble sandwich man was no other than Jakob Halsey, eventually one of the biggest gold-mine magnates of his day. Failing to make his fortune at Klondike, he set out, when the news of the fresh gold mine reached him, for Cape Nome, and during the first week secured gold worth £150.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, who eventually amassed a fortune amounting to no less than £20,000,000, commenced the battle of business life practically without a penny. At the age of sixteen he had saved enough money, however, with which to purchase a boat; and it was by ferrying passengers and goods from Staten Island to New York that he commenced to pile up the tiny beginnings of his vast fortune.

Barefooted Barnum.

Henry Bessemer, when he first came to London, was not only without money and friends, but apparently had some difficulty in obtaining employment. His genius for invention, however, speedily altered his fortune, and so prosperous did he become eventually that when he died he left the princely sum of over a million sterling.

Barnum actually started the race of life barefooted, as he had to borrow the boots with which he attended his father's funeral; and in spite of the fact that the great showman was more than once during the course of his career reduced to bankruptcy, before he had reached the advanced age of eighty he was once more a millionaire. At one stage of his life, so reduced in circumstances was this lion, that he was obliged to sell his extraordinary man that he was glad to make a living by selling Bibles; at another stage, so prosperous was he that a single day's receipts for his great show amounted to £3,000.

A £20,000 Gift.

Jay Gould, the builder of the vast wealth which made millionaires of each of his six children, was an obscure farmer's son, and in early manhood held a small country clerkship, whence he drifted into New York currents of speculation, to amass before long a fortune that can only be described as fabulous.

David H. Moffat, the American millionaire, was penniless in early manhood. In after life he once presented his head cashier with a Christmas gift of £20,000, and his assistant cashier with a cheque for £5,000 less.

Victims of Their Own System.

(From the New York World.)

The violent death of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg is unfortunate in itself and in its manner. Liebknecht's end bears an ugly likeness to many tragedies of the Mexican ley de fuga, where an alleged attempt to escape excuses a fusillade. Especially repugnant is the thought that in Berlin a woman could be brutally beaten in the street as the Luxemburg was, and shot dead in the presence of men who ostensibly had arrested her. Crime surely in the one case, in the other an event to justify suspicion, these lynch-law killings must be deplored as likely to lead to fresh disorders. Yet they will astonish nobody who has watched from the beginning the orgy of murder and terrorism of which the two dead agitators were the leaders. They that take the sword shall perish by the sword. Liebknecht and Luxemburg have fallen the almost inevitable victims of their own system of Bolshevism; of organized public murder and private assassination; not only wholesale slaughter, but revenge at retail. In any community, men who will take desperate chances and reckon their own lives cheap, can wreak terrible crimes before they are halted. To such men the Spartacus appealed. They had seen a small but turbulent minority in Russia to gain temporary control of vast territories by audacity of attack. They tried the same game in Germany, against the greater odds set by a more intelligent population and better means of communication. Their fanaticism was not without cunning calculation, and they seemed at one time dangerously near success. What effect the disappearance of these leaders may have, who knows? Others, yesterday obscure, may rise out of the "blood-soaked earth" to succeed them in brief power. Given opportunity, there is seldom lack of such adventurers. Firmness and justice are the only counter-forces. The world of sane and honest men will welcome signs that a firmer hand is now felt in Berlin. Justice may travel not far behind. However, regrettable the way of their going, the firebrands who so bedevilled Berlin brought their fate upon themselves and will have few sincere mourners. If from now on crimes of Bolshevism are sharply prevented and swiftly punished there will be less cause to fear crimes of retribution.

Orders regarding moustaches issued by the Bank of England in 1855, and to-day it is not worn as in other professions. The Crimean War had much to do with it. Our soldiers were perforce to use the razor, and the hair on the face protected from the cold and attacks of disease.

Four-Footed Heroes.

The splendid work performed by dogs during the war is deserving of special record and recognition. In the early months of 1917, a war dog school of instruction was formed by the War Office, and Lieutenant-Col. Richardson, who has devoted his life to training dogs for military and police purposes, was appointed commandant. Gamekeepers, hunt servants, and shepherds were called up from the Army to train the dogs. At first the dog recruits came entirely from homes for lost dogs, and thus many a poor stray animal, himself saved from the lethal chamber, have saved the life of a brave soldier. The police sent many unclaimed dogs, and finally the public, in answer to an appeal, helped generously. It is only fitting that those who gave their dogs should know that they have been the means of saving countless lives and much property.

Brussels Under the Hun.

During the occupation of Brussels by the Huns old corks sold for 3d. and 4d. each, empty tins for 1d. and 2 1/2d. each, old linen, leather trunks, old clothes, books and furniture brought, cost price and as much as possible was sold by the Belgians because they never knew what would be seized by their tormentors. Those same tormentors paid £30 for an oriental carpet four feet square that cost £40 in 1880 and had been in constant use. They also paid 1,800 francs for a piano which cost 1,400 francs eleven years before. Other similar purchases were made with the intention of selling the articles later on—doubtless bearing the magic words "made-in-Germany." Wonderful dyes were to be obtained easily in Brussels and during the past summer Belgian ladies dyed their sheets according to fancy and wore them. Last winter their spare blankets were transformed into coats. For a while the Belgians were hoaxed into wearing their own patriotic emblems which had been manufactured by the Hun and put on sale in Brussels. But as soon as the hoax was discovered Belgians refused to avail themselves of the privilege of buying German-made goods. A flint and steel for lighting the gas, although clever, was unobtainable, the reason being that it was made by the Huns. Brass water taps were taken by the enemy and for these they paid two francs fifty, charging six francs for taps to replace the requisitioned ones. The new ones were of course "made in Germany." Door handles and bell pulls were seized in the same way but were not replaced by houseowners. It became "all the style" to hang a piece of firewood to the wall wire. Houses were constantly searched for everything that could be used in manufacturing ammunition, choice furniture was seized as well as elegant or luxurious clothing—all sent to Germany as loot. During this time there was no communication with the outside world—only such letters and news as the Hun chose to allow. It is scarcely conceivable that France and Belgium are even now filled with war's victims who are hearing for the first time of what has been happening outside their own little environment during the awful five years just closed.—Canadian Directory of Public Information.

New Industry Really Old

To most persons the spinning and knitting of dog's wool seemed to be an outgrowth of the necessities of this war. But it appears that twenty years ago Princess Victoria had the combing of her pet brown spaniel spun into yarn by the Sandringham Village Industry and the Princess herself knitted the wool into a brown shawl for herself. It was at Sandringham also that the first Borzoi wool was spun, King Edward making the suggestion and clipping the first sample from his famous Borzoi Alex for the test.

Twenty years before that the hair of St. Bernards was knitted into mittens and mufflers, and ten years earlier poodles' wool was spun and woven into cloth that is to-day as good as when first made up although the cap has been worn ever since. A waistcoat knitted from the wool of skelterriers has been worn constantly for two winters and shows no sign of its service. Even the hair of Persian cats has been spun into the loveliest wool by the British Dogs' Wool Association. The wire-haired dogs have proven themselves real war workers, also, for their combings make ideal filling for pillows for wounded limbs.

There is every prospect that the spinning of dog's wool can and will be developed as a national handicraft since much of the spinning can be done in country homes and no doubt in these same places there will develop some interesting work in weaving and knitting. One very important consideration is the fact that the yarn is practically indestructible and of delightful texture, thus giving every encouragement to careful designing of patterns in weaving.—Canadian Directory of Public Information.

NOTICE!

TO ROYAL NAVAL RESERVISTS: It is notified for information that the Government has ordered that there be paid an additional amount of 20c. per day from the time of the commencement of the War, in cases where men were then serving, or otherwise, from the time when their services began, up to the time of discharge, or of decease, or to 30th Sept. 17th, 1917, inclusive. And the sum of 35c. per day from the 1st October, 1917, up to the time of discharge or decease.

TO SOLDIERS OF THE ROYAL NEWFOUNDLAND REGIMENT—SERVING OR DISCHARGED—AND DEPENDENTS WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: It is notified for information that the Government has ordered that the following Allowances, and additions to already existing Allowances, shall be paid:

1. A Clothing-Allowance on the following sliding scale: For men discharged up to 1st April, 1917—$35.00. For men discharged between 1st April, 1917, and 1st April, 1918—$45.00. For men discharged on or after 1st April, 1918—$60.00.

2. A War Service Gratuity, in place of Post Discharge Pay, to be graduated up to six months' Pay and Allowances, exclusive of subsistence or allowances in lieu of rations and quarters. For men who have served in an actual theatre of war, or were on the strength of some recognized overseas establishment on Nov. 11th, 1918, the Gratuity is graded as follows:— For three years' service or over—183 days' pay and allowances. For two years' service and under three years—158 days' pay and allowances. For one year's service and under two years—122 days' pay and allowances. For less than one year's service—92 days' pay and allowances.

For men who have served overseas, and were discharged prior to November 11th, 1918, without having been in actual theatre of war, and for men who have served in Newfoundland only, the Gratuity is graded as follows:— For three years' service or over—92 days' pay and allowances. For two years' service and under three years—61 days' pay and allowances. For one year's service and under two years—31 days' pay and allowances.

In the case of an Officer or man without dependents whose pay and allowances, as above described, are less than $70.00 for a 31 day period, a consolidated rate of $70.00 will be paid in lieu of every 31 or 30 days' pay and allowances to which he is entitled. In the case of an Officer or man, with dependents who are entitled or who, before his retirement or discharge, were entitled to Separation Allowances, whose pay and allowances including Separation Allowance is less than $100.00 for a 31-day period, a consolidated rate of $100.00 will be laid in lieu of every 31 or 30 days' pay and allowances to which he is entitled.

If part of, or all the gratuity under Post Discharge Pay Regulations has been paid to any officer or man, the amount so paid will be deducted from the Gratuity provided for by "War Service Gratuity" Regulations.

3. Separation Allowance to wives of members of the Regiment and to other dependents entitled thereto, shall be retroactive, making it effective from date of enlistment, or from the date when entitled to receive same under authorized Regulations.

The foregoing will necessitate a large amount of accounting and additional work, and it will not be possible for the Department of Militia to make payments before the 1st of March.

Famous Men Who Starved.

In the early days Sir William Arrol, the world-famed bridge-builder, to whom we owe that engineering marvel the Forth Bridge, actually tramped the streets of Paisley, unable to find employment as a humble blacksmith!

Dan Leno, too, not only wandered the streets penniless, but often had the greatest difficulty, while wandering from inn to inn, in procuring a "dozen of an audience!" He was sometimes, so reduced in circumstances in boyhood as to have to go round the public houses exhibiting a tame rat!

Sir Henry Irving is another instance of a man who, possessed of brilliant genius, was for a long time denied the opportunity of exhibiting his remarkable powers. Often in his early days he was without a shilling in his pocket.

Oliver Goldsmith was often times not only without the wherewithal to square his landlady's account, but saddled with endless debt; and Zola's services were time and again rejected by various publishing houses. Another great literary man whose outstanding talents often went begging was Samuel Johnson. When the author of "Rasselas" (a book written to defray the expenses of his mother's funeral) came up to London he had nothing in his pocket save a tragedy and twopenny-halfpenny. We hear of him in the company of Savage walking round St. James' Square all night for want of a lodging.

Few naturalists have made such a name as Thomas Edwards, yet in the days before Queen Victoria rewarded his magnificent services by a pension there were various occasions upon which he was totally unable to find employment. On many occasions he was actually in a state of starvation, and denied himself every comfort for the sake of the scientific studies in which he was so great a master.

Women in All Parts of Canada.

TELL OF THE HEALTH DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS BEING.

They made a New Woman of Mrs. John Mortimer, Who Was a Victim of Kidney Disease.

Glenavon, Sask., February 5th.—(Special.)—"Three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me." Those are the words of Mrs. John Mortimer, of this place. They are the words that have been used again and again by women in all parts of Canada who have suffered, and who have found relief and cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I feel it is my duty to let you know what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me," Mrs. Mortimer continues. "I had a pain in my back, and I could not get out of bed without awful pain. I tried everything, but could get no relief. I was advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I sent to Toronto for them. The day I received them I took three before going to bed, and I felt a lot better next morning.

"I took them according to directions, and in one week I was as well as ever. I am fifty-five, and am doing all my household work. If I overwork and my back feels weak I take a Dodd's Kidney Pill, and feel better in a few hours. I have recommended them to my friends, and they also have been helped."

If you haven't used Dodd's Kidney Pills ask your neighbors about them.

Democraic Bavaria.

The Bavarians have always been more democratic in their mode of living than in their government, and it is natural, therefore, that they should be the first of the German nations to become Republicans. In no other European capital do the classes mingle so freely as in Munich. The public elementary schools are attended by rich and poor alike, and there are scarcely any private schools. The spirit of comradeship thus gained survives in later life.

In pre-war days nothing used to surprise a visitor more on first entering the Hofbrauhaus or some similar establishment in Munich than the composite nature of the crowd. Workmen, railway porters, and working men of all kinds, would be found sitting with prosperous business and professional men, and chatting freely together.

King Ludwig set a good example in this direction. He belonged to the Allotria Club, whose members are drawn mainly from the artistic colony for which Munich is celebrated, and used to go there regularly. When in the club he insisted on being treated without ceremony, smoking his pipe, and playing cards or billiards with any of the members present.

The army was the only section in Bavaria where class distinctions were strictly observed.

The Evangelists.

(L.C.M.)

The former meetings which the Evangelists held for men especially, at the College Hall, were so well attended, and were so helpful, that it was not any surprise last night to find, that the third meeting for the same purpose was equally well patronized. Of course, there were many things in favor of this, but it is the deep interest of the men themselves that really draws.

Last night's meeting was a whole study in itself; and to us the men presented this study. There they were in their hundreds. During the day, and during the days, they all had been busy, and they had to compete in the demands of modern, everyday city life. In factory, office, and busy mart, they had toiled both in body and mind; and yet there they were. Not idly were they there; not by mere chance or expediency, but they were there of their own intense desire to take part in the service, and to hear the address of the Evangelist. That was the reason, and it was a sufficiently worthy reason.

Of the meeting proper, it is not necessary to comment, as our readers are well aware of the nature and order of evangelistic meetings in general. It is of the address we wish to write, and of the phases of it upon which the speaker dwelt. In earnest, fervent prayer, the good woman began the delivery of her message, and it seemed to the writer at least, that she was desperately in earnest, and that her prayer revealed an intensity of soul which of itself was almost sermon enough. Vast was the array of faces which looked upon the preacher last night, they could have gone home when the Evangelist said Amen to her invocatory prayer, and they would have had sufficient upon which to meditate. Let who will wink at prayer, and let who will, disrate it, the truth still stands good that "the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." "The Race" was the subject of the discourse, and it was based upon the Scripture as written in the Hebrew epistle at the 12th chap. and first two verses, viz., "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race set before us. Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

The speaker at once elevated her address by referring to the great victory which the author of the Epistle had won by His death on the cross; and how He had despised His shame. She then spoke of the witnesses, and drew some very timely, as well as touching lessons from them. These were the witnesses of the past and of the present, and also of the future. Those of the past had won the race, and now they behold us. Those of the present are with us in daily life, and they see our lives, and watch how we run the Christian race. Those of the future are such as may be influenced by the things of the present; and these influences may reach into the third or fourth generation. Then there are the weights which tend to hinder and delay the runner. Whatever the nature of these weights may be, their tendency is to drag down, and to defeat. These weights should be avoided. The runner should not lag; but he should put forth his best efforts, and so run that he may win. The runners in the Olympic games made every preparation necessary for entry into the contest. They aimed at winning, and they pressed forward with all their might so as to gain the plaudits of the multitude, and win the laurels of the victor. Our prize in the Christian race is greater than those of old—it is the prize of Eternal Life.

Spy Stories.

(Morning Chronicle.)

Further light on the methods employed by the British Directorate of Special Intelligence in detecting German spies was given in the farwell address of Brigadier-General Cockrell to his staff. "We used to stop 1,000 letters a day," he said, "because they contained information to the enemy, and, of course, a proportionate number of cables and telegrams. Just to show the keenness of the staff I may say that 150 dummy letters were posted in the ordinary way, and addressed to places in neutral countries. The only way in which they differed from the usual type of letter was that they contained secret writing. They were sent as a check—and out of the 150 secret messages no fewer than 148 were detected.

The Department was much intrigued at one time over what appeared to be a very mysterious affair. Letters were being posted in different parts of the United Kingdom, all addressed to the same place in a foreign country. Each contained a certain number of playing cards from the same pack. They were all brought together—a secret message obviously being indicated—but the whole thing turned out to be nothing but an ingenious method to dodge the Customs by a bridge-playing lady living in a neutral country where the tax on playing cards was very high.

Lovers of the story of the "Russians" who passed through England in the early months of the war will be interested to learn that at the time the spy Lady was caught—he was afterwards shot in the Tower—he was sending information to Germany as to the number of these same "Russians" on the way to the front.

One of General Cockrell's souvenirs is the signature of the King, originally written in invisible ink, when His Majesty visited the postal censorship. The ink was prepared by the King himself by soaking in water a piece of bootlace taken from an enemy agent, who had used it as a means of conveying into this country a preparation suitable for secret writing. A similar kind of ink had previously been obtained from a pair of socks taken from another German agent, who was afterwards sentenced to death.

Secrets of Long Life.

"Deaths under fifty or sixty years of age has got to be prevented or avoided," said Sir George Newman recently.

Why should Sir George Newman limit the age at sixty? Seeing that sanitation and preventive medicine have already raised the expectation of life at birth from forty years in 1834-54 to fifty-one in 1908-18, why should not people live normally to be 100 or more?

Scientists are agreed that there is nothing to prevent the human body living and enjoying the full possession of its faculties for an indefinite number of years, 600 or even 1,000, providing disease and waste matter can be eliminated from the frame.

Old age is caused by the gradual accumulation of calcareous matter in the veins, tissues, and joints, which leads to stiffness, ossification, and eventually death, through the organs being unable to work. Eliminate this waste matter, which is mainly lime, and, if scientific theories are true, there is little to prevent you living indefinitely.

This is the base of all the methods of prolonging life, such as the drinking of sour milk, which has the property of dissolving lime in the system. The apple, which, curiously enough, is popularly supposed to be the "tree of life," the fruit of which Adam and Eve "did eat" has similar properties. Buddhist monks in Tibet undoubtedly live and retain their faculties to abnormal ages, which they attribute to their sparse diet of apples and rice. Hindu fakirs declare that youthfulness of body, not of mind, can be retained to any age by frequent baths in diluted glacial acetic acid. These acid baths certainly dissolve lime and calcareous matter, and it is noteworthy that apples contain a quantity of this chemical. Michael Angelo, who died through an accident, at ninety-three, declared that eating grapes and drinking wine was the secret of his unimpaird vitality.
