CHAPTER XV.

UNDER FOREIGN SKIES.

He was handsome, winning, light-hearted, though he had his thoughtful and silent fits sometimes, times when his dark eyes grew darker and the dark, thick brows were knitted fiercely and sadly.

Every child about the place—and there were some dozens—ran to Massa Cecil if he tripped in sight. We say tripped advisedly, for the youth never walked like a man, but tripped lightly and gracefully like a "gal," as one of the runners in his rough way had declared.

The men as well as the children took a fancy to Cecil, and when his clear, boyish face and bright, frank eyes were near, toned down their rough and rather emphatic language, and were wont to pet him up with gifts.

Sometimes when one of them went to the Bay, he would bring back some slight piece of finery in the shape of silken scarfs for the waist or fringed moccasins, all of which were eagerly pounced on the youth, for Cecil was foolishly fond of bright colors and pretty articles of dress.

Mr. Stewart looked upon this state of things as highly satisfactory, and set a prefer value on this, his latest acquisition.

He, too, made a pet of the lad, liking to sit down beside him as he worked at the books and listen and laugh at his odd and funny stories of the voyage and the old English life.

Sometimes he would try to draw the youth out on the subject of his own past, but on that topic Cecil was obstinately discreet.

Anecdotes, quips, jokes, and a song now and then, but personal history never.

So Mr. Stewart gave it up and, bound to be satisfied, grew more fond of the lad each day, giving up odd matters to him and trusting him as he would have done Laurence, who cared for nothing but galloping over prairie he had touched the horse again with his spurred heel and bounded away. Cecil looked after him, and with an unaccountable feeling of thankfulness saw him turn into the stable and dismount.

The lad hurried up to the room with the skin on his arm, where the giver had thrown it, and sat down to gaze and gloat over his prize, not so much on account of its value—although that was great—but because Wild Laury, had remembered him and brought it for him.

That night he slept on it, curling up in its soft warmth like a kitten in a clover.

On the morrow, as he was going down to the stream for some water, he saw silent Laury, seated beneath some trees, eating a crust of bread and antelope meat.

His fur cap was lying at his feet and his gun was resting against the tree at his side.

The lad took up his can and walked up to him, thinking:

"If I do not thank him now he will be off for another month, and will think me ungrateful."

Wild Laury looked up as he approached with a grave smile and nodded.

Cecil came up to him and, setting down the can, said:

"I've come to thank you for that fur, Laury; it's a beauty."

"I'm glad you like it," was the reply.

"How did you get it?" asked the youth.

"Took it from a leopard," said the cattle-runner, quietly.

"Shot it?" asked Cecil, seating himself beside the tall figure and resting his chin upon his slight, girlish-looking hands.

Laury looked down into the wide-open, eager eyes and nodded.

"Yes," he said, "shot it. Can you not see the bullet hole in its head?"

"No," replied Cecil; then, thoughtfully: "The men say you have shot a great many. Have you?"

"Yes," said the runner, wearily. "A great many."

"And antelopes, and deer, and elephants?" asked Cecil.

Again he nodded, looking down with a half-amused air.

"How I should like to be you!" exclaimed the youth.

The man's face darkened and he shook his head.

"You had better be any one else," he said.

The boy colored.

"Why do you say that?" he asked.

"You are strong and brave; you don't know fear; you sleep in the woods they say, and you can shoot the antelope. What more can you want?"

"Nothing," said the runner, curtly.

"And yet, you see with it all I am but a bear. Come, it was a bear you called, me, Cecil, was it not?" and he smiled grimly.

"I was a coward and a sneak to tell you," Cecil said, reddening and flashing with anger. "But I did call you a bear and I thought you one for riding away without a word and staying so long. I wanted to thank you for being so kind on the long journey here. I wanted to tell you how happy I was, and how grateful I was to you for the kind words you said before we came. I wanted—but there; it don't matter what I wanted, for you didn't want, did you? Laury, tell me why you dislike to stay at the farm even for one night? You said last night you liked the open air, and the riding and the hunting, but—but—"

"But what?" he asked, quietly, shutting his clasp-knife and rising.

"But is there no other reason?" Cecil asked, half turning. "Is it because you are unhappy?"

The man's face softened, more to the tender music of the words themselves, and as he stopped to pick up his cap he said, with a repetition of the sad smile:

"You are inquisitive, Master Cecil. If I am unhappy, could you make me less so if I owned it?"

"I would try," replied the youth, leaping to his feet and looking up eagerly. "I would try, Laury!"

"And fall—and be disappointed, my lad," said the man laying his hand upon the slight, graceful shoulder of the youth. "Better leave me to the wild beasts," and he turned with a hurried gesture as if he had spoken too much.

Cecil caught him by the sleeve of his leather tunic and he turned again.

"Oh, you are angry with me!" he said. "I was—rude to ask you. Will you forgive me?"

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT WALK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her to Health.

Perth Amboy, N.J. — "For three years I suffered with a severe female trouble, was nervous, had backache and a pain in my side most of the time. I had dizzy spells and was often so faint I could not walk across the floor. The doctor said I would have to have an operation. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in my newspaper, and tried it. Now I am better, feel strong, have no pains, backache or dizzy spells. Every one tells me how well I look, and I tell them to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—that is what makes me feel well and look well. I recommended it to my sister and she is using it now. You can use this letter if you wish, for it is certainly a grand remedy for a woman's ills. — MRS. MARTHA STANISLAWSKI, 524 Penn St., Perth Amboy, N.J.

For forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been overcoming such serious conditions as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, dizziness, and nervous prostration of women, and is now considered the standard remedy for such ailments.

"Forgive me!" said Laury, taking the small hand in his large, strong one. "Why, lad, it is I who ought to ask your forgiveness. I was rough and rude—I have almost forgotten to be otherwise. Don't think any more of it or trouble about me," and with another smile he walked off.

Cecil looked after him for a moment, then picked up the water-can and tripped home.

"Don't trouble about me" was easy to say, but Cecil found it difficult not to do so.

The tall, noble form and the sad, weary face got between the ledgers and the bright brown eyes, and the figures would not add up or balance.

Meanwhile Wild Laury had gone off to the stables with a queer feeling at his heart—a feeling he did not like, for it unsettled him.

The lad's clear, sweet face and tender, anxious eyes had got into his heart, and he could not get them out, try as he would—and he did try, for somehow they made him think of home and the past.

He shook himself, with a frown, and muttering, "I will be off to-morrow," flung himself into the saddle.

CHAPTER XVI.

A NOVEL MODE OF SUICIDE.

Man is his own star, and the soul that can Render an honest and a perfect man Commands all light, all influence, all gate.

Nothing to him falls early or too late. Our acts our angels are, or good or ill, Our fatal shadows that walk by us still.—JOHN FLETCHER.

The evening of the same day eight or nine of the runners were lying full-length, talking and smoking, beneath the trees at the back of the farm.

They were the next outgoing gang, and they were discussing the probable route, etc.

To while away the time one of them produced a greasy, well-thumbed pack of cards and, with solemn gravity, he and another began playing all fours—the only game they knew.

They were playing for small stakes—shillings, hides, and furs—and lost or won with the same tacturnity.

One man, called Tim, was particularly lucky, and several men were cleaned out before the evening was half gone.

He was rather flushed by his good fortune, and, as there was a pause in the game—a slight hesitation showing itself in the laying of the stakes—he said, shuffling the cards:

Carranza Suicide Story Subject of Report -- Francisco Villa Defies New Mexican Government--The Times and The Empire--Getting After Sugar Profiteers -- D'Annunzio's Very Latest Sensation.

CARRANZA'S DEATH.

VERA CRUZ, May 25. The text of Col. Herrera's report to Mexico City was received here last night. The part relative to the attack on Carranza and the latter's death follows: "With the object of arresting Carranza and the principal officials who were with him, I attacked his camp at 3 o'clock in the morning, having eight men with me. He had reached Tlaxcalanongo, in the district of Huachinango where there is a pass leading northward to the part of the Republic where he had planned to establish his seat of government. The President was under an escort of troops commanded by General Maugrula. When he realized that escape was impossible, Carranza committed suicide by shooting himself in the breast with his pistol, which he always carried. So close was the muzzle of the weapon to his breast that blood was spattered upon it and the barrel of the pistol still bears blood stains. The body was recovered and taken to Villa Juarez. Three of my men were killed and one wounded. Signed, Rodolfo Herrera." Four commissioners sent into the state by Puebla by General Obregon and Gonzales to investigate the circumstances attending the death of Carranza, have reported in view of the data they have secured and the manner in which the President was killed, they consider it unnecessary to go to Tlaxcalanongo.

PROTECTING THEMSELVES.

LONDON, May 25. A despatch to The Star from Dublin to-day reports the holding of a meeting there by the Irish Farmers' Union which considered the draft of a plan for the formation of a countywide body known as the "Farmers Freedom Force." This proposed force, says the message, would seek to protect agricultural pursuits by force if necessary against labor, socialism, or Bolshevism, irrespective of whatever political developments may occur in the country.

VILLA AGAIN.

EL PASO, Texas, May 25. General Villa, bidding defiance to the newest Mexican government again has become an outlaw among his own people. The bandit with a small force of men was reported between Parral and Jimenez, Chihuahua, a hundred quarry of de facto troops with a price of one hundred thousand pesos on his head.

THE POLES INTENTIONS.

BERNE, May 25. The Polish Government has just made known that so soon as the Polish Army has obtained the military objectives assigned to it the Government will declare itself ready to enter into four parlers with the Bolshevik Government. The place of meeting will be designated later.

ADVOCATES OF REVOLUTIONARY REGIME.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, May 25. Resolutions advocating the creation of a revolutionary regime based on the Soviet system were passed at the national Socialist congress in session here yesterday.

MADRID'S BREAD LINE.

MADRID, May 25. The bread supply became more plentiful in Madrid to-day and the authorities made arrangements to cause a decrease in the size of the bread lines which had formed for some days past because of bread scarcity. This was brought about by a distribution of loaves in many entries where the people could obtain supplies without long waiting.

LESSONS OF EMPIRE DAY.

LONDON, May 25. The Times, which publishes a big Empire number, deals in an editorial with the purpose and lessons of Empire Day celebration. It says "Inasmuch as the whole Empire is the creation of a single race the Empire has in every part the stamp of a single tradition, and it is not impossible to believe the future will see the continued growth of a single imperial ideal, achieving in days of peace victories as great as those which kindred ideals achieved in days of war."

A SALMON TREATY.

WASHINGTON, May 25. A treaty between Canada and the United States covering the sockeye salmon fisheries was signed to-day by Secretary Colby for the United States, Ambassador Geddes for Great Britain and Sir Douglas Hazen for Canada.

JEAN CAMPBELL LEAKING.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 25. Schooner Jean Campbell from Philadelphia, May fifth, for St. John's, Newfoundland, put into Shelburne, Nova Scotia, to-day, leaking.

ENCOURAGING.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 25. A growing tendency toward thrift, general revision downward of prices of all commodities except food, and improvement in the labor situation are three encouraging factors noted in the report of the seventh federal reserve district issued to-day.

D'ANNUNZIO IN LOVE.

NEW-YORK, May 25. The declining interest in Fiume shown by Gabriel D'Annunzio, Italian soldier-poet, is attributed by some to a report that he has fallen in love again. According to an Italian newspaper, D'Annunzio is seeking divorce and will marry as soon as he leaves his Fiume command.

SUGAR PROFITEERS IN THE TOIL.

BOSTON, May 25. The Federal Government to-day took action against sugar refiners for alleged profiteering and hoarding. The Revere Sugar Refinery and Henry Worcester, its vice-president, were charged with exacting excessive prices and with holding sugar from the market, and the American Sugar Refining Co., and W. K. Green, its general manager, were charged with selling sugar at excessive prices. Complaints asserted that the companies had made millions of dollars by hoarding and regulating the price.

BRITAIN GETS DAMAGES AGAINST STEEL BROKER.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 25. King George of Great Britain and Ireland to-day was awarded fifty-two thousand dollars damages in a hundred and seventy-five thousand suit brought on behalf of the British Government against Ernest Harrah, New York steel broker, for alleged failure to deliver steel scrap as per contract for use in Italy during the war.

BOLSHEVIKS DRIVEN BACK.

WARSAW, May 25. Bolshevik troops which succeeded in crossing the Upper Beresina in several places have been driven back across the river with heavy losses including more than 400 prisoners, according to an official statement issued here. The enemy is attacking along the entire northern Polish front but have been checked everywhere, it is declared. Fighting continues all along the whole front.

SMUGGLING WHISKEY BY AEROPLANE.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 25. Police to-day searched for the airplane pilot who was said to have landed at a flying field near here yesterday afternoon from Winnipeg with eighteen cases of whiskey in his plane. He sold the whiskey for $250 a case within two hours, the police said. The plane left Wintper at 8.30 in the morning and made the 560 mile trip in between seven and eight hours, the police said they learned. They did not reveal the hiding place of the plane.

Fads and Fashions.

Vails with the fine French dot are most popular.
Hats will grow larger as the summer advances.
Taffeta and tulle are most used for evening wear.
Hats of ribbon, hair and leghorn are lower trimmed.
The cape is very popular and is fashioned very full.
Suspender frocks are worn over dainty wash blouses.
Black and white will be worn together a great deal.
Tulle and taffeta make a combination hard to rival.
Silk draped in bows of foulard is used for small hats.
Checked and squared foulards are summer favorites.

South British Policy.

(From Harper's Weekly.)
The clear thinking and straight speaking which characterized the Prince of Wales in his intercourse with Americans while he was our guest are evidently a fixed habit, and do not desert him when he is among his own people. Some echo of the silly chatter which is periodically raised about sale of the British West Indies reached his ears while he was in Barbados a few weeks ago, and moved him to say, in an after-dinner speech:

You have probably heard that it was suggested the other day that the British Empire might pay off some of its war debt by selling part of the British West Indies. What an idea! I need hardly say to you that the King's subjects are not for sale to other governments, and that their destiny as free men, is in their own hands. Your future is for yourselves to shape.

So long as the sovereign or his spokesman cherishes such sentiments, it will be quite safe for him to say of every colony, as the Prince added concerning Barbados:—"I am sure that Barbados will never waver in its loyalty to the British Crown." And the Prince is in the fifth generation from George III.

S.S. Sachel left Halifax at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and will probably get away from here for Liverpool on Saturday.

Loosening Up.

(By P.O.D., in Saturday Night, Toronto.)

All winter long we prided ourselves that we were not as other golfers are. Others might shut themselves up in barns driving golf-balls off a doormat into a blanket. They might practice putting on the living-room rug till they wore holes in it. They might even carry their mania so far as to go out in the snow and play with red balls. This may sound absurd, Friend Reader—it is absurd, as a matter of fact—but none the less it is done by men favorably known in the social and business world and otherwise of quite sound mind. But not for us. We are the kind of golfer—or so we thought—who can take it or leave it alone.

All winter we did leave it alone—severely. No thought of golf, no longing for wide fairways and smooth greens disturbed the maromreal calm of our soul. Our alabaster brow was unwrinkled by any effort to keep our eyes on the ball. We were cured for the time being, at least. We had lost the horrid craving. Occasionally we would see a furtive and harassed golfing friend hurrying away to an indoor school to spend a dismal hour or so helping to swell the income-tax of some haughty professional and compensate him for giving up his annual trip to Pinehurst or Palm Beach. And when we saw such a victim of golf-just we laughed a loud laugh, vulgar laugh like the war-horse in Holy Writ who smelleth the ball afar off and refuseth to touch the darn thing.

Alas for the pride of man which goeth before a fall!—incidentally, all the Easter services we have attended are making us talk like a curate. There were two or three fine days in succession just about the Vernal Equinox, and we suddenly began to feel vague stirrings of the old thirst. We found ourselves gazing with hatred at the remains of the snow and ice, and wondering when the turf would be dry enough for us to go out and cut it into nice long divots.

Worst of all, we suddenly developed the odious habit of making swings with the head of our walking-stick at an imaginary ball. When a man starts that, he is certainly lost. We did it one morning at the corner of our street while waiting for the car, and the nice long following through nearly took our landlady's grocer's wife in the eye. We knew that when she went back she told everyone we were inebriated and behaving disgracefully on the public highways. She told our landlady, of course, but without getting much sympathy from that sterling woman.

"I said liquor was bad enough, God knows," she explained to us next day at breakfast, "but it didn't make men act like that. I said it was golf and nothing else, and it's good reason I have to know it, with you breakin' three globes and a mirror in the house and bringin' bad luck on the place for seven years."

We murmured something deprecating about those ancient superstitions—we wanted to forget all about our golfing delinquencies of the previous year.

"Superstition, is it? I never was superstitious in my life," she retorted indignantly. "But I don't believe in tempting fate. Anyway, I told her that if you were goin' to make a fool of yourself, I preferred you to do it somewhere out of doors. And, seein' the price her husband has been chargin' me for eggs all winter, it wouldn't worry me if you knocked her new hat off—God forgive me for sayin' such a thing in the holy season of Lent!"

We decided, however, not to do any more phantasmagoria on the street-corner—we would hate to hit even the family of a prostitute, such is the natural kindness of our heart. But still the longing for golf persisted, and finally we got to the point where we could stand the strain no longer. Talk about the craving for fermented beverages—it is nothing to the spring passion of the golfer. No sense of duty, no family ties, nothing can stand in the way of that.

We didn't want the Managing Editor to suspect the extent of our insanity—his view of our mind is sufficiently cynical, as it is—so we muttered something about going out to talk over the 'spring books with some of the publishers. As a matter of fact, one of them does play at our club, and there was a chance—say, one in a million or so—that we would meet there. He might, for instance, bounce a nice long drive off our brisquet.

The sun was shining brightly, but you know how little that meant in terms of thermal units with a brisk March wind blowing out of the northwest. An Eskimo might have thought it a nice day for golf, but, unfortunately, our sweater is not fur-lined. There was a distinctly Arctic touch in the air, and the nearer we got to the club the more Arctic it became. But we were not to be deterred by trivial matters of temperature. We were going to play golf if we had to chop the sand out of the tee-boxes and shoot the polar bears off the putting greens. That's the sort of determined dog we are, when the rage seizes us.

We confess, however, that the deserted aspect of the club-house was rather depressing. There wasn't a soul in sight around the place as we strode across the lawns which had so often seen us go out on the course with high hopes and come tottering back with despair in our heart and broken words of excuse and profanity on our lips. The grass was still brown and withered, and no little flags fluttered cheerfully to lure us on to our doom.

But, if there was no one to be seen outside, such was not the case with the locker-room. Two large char-ladies had it in possession and were sloshing water about with masterful nonchalance. Naturally one cannot play golf in one's street-clothes—they cost too much nowadays, for one thing—but how is a timid bachelor to change his pants and shirt with two ladies looking on?

Of course, we might have suggested politely that they should leave the room for a few minutes, but you know how touchy the wealthy working-classes are just now. They might be offended and complain to the union. Worse still, they might take a humorous view of our predicament and laugh at us—we blushed hotly at the thought of it, just like one of those lovely heroines in the books of Robert W. Chambers, who she should kick her studs off and pose for his picture of Feyche on the brink.

The char-ladies, with instinctive delicacy, did every thing they could to put us at our ease—everything except leave the room. Possibly they were not aware of the extent of the change of raiment we contemplated. Possibly they had been married too long or too often to worry about a little thing like that. Anyway, they stayed. But they made a tremendous clatter with their pails and mops and carried on an animated conversation about the car which one lady's "old man" was staying home to overhaul that day.

In spite of everything they did to show us that they were not thinking about us at all, we still felt nervous—the shrinking violet has nothing on us. We also found a few minutes later that the violet had nothing on our flannel golf-shirt—for shrinking, that is. However, before we got to that stage we dragged our clothes to every dark corner of the room, seeking shelter and seclusion, but with no avail. A lot of empty wire-lockers made an awfully poor screen. Finally we shut ourself up in a shower-bath and undressed, and dressed while it dripped with chill and mournful persistence on our head. It is really too bad that such a lovely virtue as modesty should entail so much discomfort at times.

A nice cool breeze straight from Hudson's Bay caressed us as we stood at the first tee and with numbed fingers dug up a little chunk of frozen clay—the tee-boxes were still hibernating somewhere in the shed. But we didn't mind. We were too busy thinking about our stance and our swing, and hope was surging high in our breast.

You see, we had been reading a few books and articles on golf during the winter—we unbent from our austerity to that extent—and we had discovered the real cause and remedy of all the faults we had developed the previous season. We will spare our readers the technical details, but we felt that we had mastered our difficulties. All we needed was to put our newly acquired knowledge into practice, and we were sure that a very few minutes with the clubs would enable us to do that.

Having described a few circles in the air with our driver in a thoroughly vicious and convincing manner—the phantom swing is always convincing—we dug out of the pocket of our bag two or three battered old balls, gashed and discolored, "old Contemptibles" who had been through many a hard battle. We blushed as we saw the horrid evidence of how we had topped and sliced and gouged them, but that, of course, was now all a thing of the past. No more looking up at the critical moment, no more dropping our right shoulder or pulling in our hands or failing to wait for the club to come through—not at all not at all!

Then we addressed the ball, being very careful of our stance and our grip on the club. The articles we read had opened our eyes to the fact that we had been all wrong in our management of our left foot and hand. Our whole left side, in fact, was a mess, in which our left eye and ear were probably also involved. It seemed that the left foot should be turned out at an angle of forty-five degrees, though the right foot should be perpendicular to the line of flight. Really careful students, we presume, will bring along a protractor or a set of surveyor's tools to get the angle right. And while turning the left foot out, the earnest little golfer must remember to turn the left hand in—that is also very essential.

If the reader thinks it is easy to keep his eye at the same time on his left foot and hand and also on the ball, we can only suggest that the reader should go out and try it, as we did. Slowly and painfully we brought our club back, writhing into position which threatened to dislocate our left hip, and then we gave a mighty heave. The first couple of times we missed the blasted ball entirely, but no one was looking, and a man recovers his self-respect very quickly when there are no witnesses to his shame.

Finally we did connect, and—well, we were cured of our chronic slice! There could be no doubt of that. Unfortunately, the cure was a little too complete, and the ball curved away even farther and faster to the left than we had ever slashed it to the right in our most disastrous experiences. In place of our slice we had suddenly acquired a hook which would have made an Australian boomerang-thrower commit suicide in despair.

Naturally we tried to adjust the system. We tried for two awful hours, but every time we made any change we went back to slicing worse than ever. The ball flew every way but straight, and then we looked around with black murder in our heart for a handy stump on which we could break our clubs into little pieces and bury the remains.

But, no, we didn't—not with the price clubs are now. Instead, we crawled back to the club-house with salt tears frozen on our cheek. There was only one consolation—the char-ladies had gone.

WHICH WILL IT BE?

Having got down to business, although having wasted much time, it looks as if the Honorable House of Assembly is now going to do something. Some extraordinary speeches have been made, quite naive in the simplicity of their crudeness.

The leader of the opposition seems to be putting up a good strong fight, and as an experienced parliamentarian has been putting many of the new members in their place as far as observance of the rules of the House were concerned not even excepting the Prime Minister himself.

The Opposition Leader and Mr. Coaker seem to hit it off fairly well together and the latter declared:—

"I have been in Opposition, and I know what it is. I know how hard it often is to obtain satisfactory replies to questions. I will do everything in my power to get any information that the members of the Opposition may want. The Opposition seats are filled with men who can well follow the militant footsteps of those who preceded them."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

TO MOVE OR NOT TO MOVE.

RUTH CAMERON

A woman I know is anxious to move because she has found a house that she thinks will suit her better than her present home. Her husband is much opposed to the idea. He says they have moved three times in the last four years, and he wants to settle down in a neighborhood and be identified with its activities. I think that is a praiseworthy feeling, don't you? There is a distinct satisfaction in living for a long period in one place. You Can Gain Distinction By Living in One Place. If you live 20 or 30 or 40 years in one place and are a good citizen and take even a humble part in the affairs of the community, you will come to stand for something in the minds of your fellow citizens, even if you are not particularly brilliant and successful. But if you move from one neighborhood to another, from one suburb to another, from one city to another, every few years, you will have to have a strong personality, or be in some way an outstanding figure, to impress yourself on these constantly changing associates. Of course, it goes without saying that moving is a costly business and unnecessary moves are an almost wicked destruction of economic wealth. It isn't only the cost of the moving van (high enough, goodness knows); it's the wear and tear on furniture, and the expense of new hangings and so forth which the new home absolutely demands. The High Cost of Moving. Even in a vastly simpler day, Benjamin Franklin declared that two moves are as bad as a fire. (When first read that I thought of my Methodist minister-grandfather whose enforced moves netted him the equivalent of a fire every two or four years. No wonder my grandmother led young!) Of course I do not mean to exalt the man or woman who will not move when there is some excellent reason for doing so, but clings obstinately to a locality with a cat-like devotion. The husband of a friend of mine has to spend an hour and a half getting from his home in the suburb to his business. When they took that home, his business was near the station through which he entered the city, and it took him only three-quarters of an hour to make the trip. His business location has changed and he wants to find a home in a more convenient place. His wife is unwilling, being one of those "cat-like" people. I call that downright unreasonable. The Wife Ought to Have the Larger Say. Again I am proud of my other grandfather because, at the age of 67, when many men have lost their initiative, he decided that the suburb of Boston in which he had lived for 50 years, was getting too cluttered and moved further into what was then the country, to spend his old age. Moving for a good reason is one thing. Moving restlessly about because one is never satisfied where one is, is another. Just one word of warning. I think husbands ought, if possible, to let wives have the larger voice in this matter of choosing and changing a home—first, because the house is the wife's shop or office or factory and its inconveniences are hers; secondly, because she is in the home five times as long as he. Gold and silver lanie braid is much used in millinery. Wool embroidery in bright colors trims bathing suits.

FOR THE FUTURE. There is more in this life than the moment's reward. A part of ourselves for the future is stored. Our children's to-morrows, the years of our land, depend on our thought and the work of our hand; Oh, our glorious flag will come down from the sky, If wholly we live for ourselves till we die. The next generation, which now seems afar, Depends upon us, upon all that we are; We might take from this life some rich pleasure to-day For which in the future our children must pay; There are some things to think of, to work for and bleed, More than ourselves and our own present need. Something of us must live on through the years, Our Flag must be pure when the next age appears; Our country must feel in its pulses the stir And the impulse which comes from the men that were; Not for ourselves dare we live here and die, Or darkness will come when our age has gone by.

Kitchener's Attitude.

One cannot help thinking that this wonderful magnanimity on the part of the Allies—and particularly on the part of France—would have rejoiced the heart of Lord Kitchener had he been here to witness it. At the conclusion of the Boer war, it may be recalled, this great soldier was, in striking contrast to the politicians both in this country and in South Africa, all for a policy and conciliation. Indeed, as soon as it had definitely been settled that the Boer Republics must lose their independence his most efforts were directed towards obtaining terms which the Boers could honourably accept. For a soldier, Kitchener's attitude was a surprising one, but his standpoint was a very simple one. The two Republics were to come within the British Empire—just as Germany is to come now within the League of Nations—and he believed that they would be a most valuable element in its composition. He was, therefore, convinced that neither legalism nor war passion should stand in the way of peace. Indeed, if he had had his way, the war might have been ended twelve months before it was!

It is interesting to recall to-day that the point on which the earlier negotiations in regard to South Africa broke down was the question of an amnesty for the Natal and Cape rebels. Louis Botha was ready to agree that the rebels should be disfranchised, but since they had risen to aid the Boer Republics he would not consent that they should be exposed to the rigors of the law for treason. Lord Kitchener was with him, but Lord Milner carried the day, and so Kitchener was left to declare "we are now carrying the war on to put two or three hundred Dutchmen in prison at the end of it. It seems to me absurd and wrong." According to Sir George Arthur, his biographer, Lord Kitchener was wont to remark, "I think I shall be of some real use when peace comes. I have little fear as to our final victory, but many fears as to our making a good peace." How thankful we should all be that the Kitchener rather than the Milner spirit has so far pervaded the Conference!—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

WHETHER OR NO.

There'll be a panic soon or late, and things will creak and bust; how happy then the prudent skate who's salted down the dust. Financial prophets all agree that present things can't last; fate's brewing soup for you and me, and soon we'll stand aghast. It may be that the seers are wrong, for prophets sometimes fall, and life may be a grand sweet song, and men may still have kale. But as for me, I take no chance, and when I have a bone, I do not down the main street prance, to see it spent and blown. I take it to the banker's vault, a modern vault and fine, and watch him put it down in salt, with other bucks of mine. And if the panic men foresee should come to fill its date, it will not put a crimp in me, or my gad smiles abate. Each payday with a certain sum, down to the bank I tread; and if the panic doesn't come, I'm just that much ahead.

What He Did Not Understand.

At a dinner in Edinburgh, Baron Kikkuchi, Principal in Tokio University, was a guest. An Englishman present told the story of a Scotsman who went to his dentist with an aching tooth, and was asked if he would have gas. He replied that he would, but he should like to count his money first. Everybody laughed but the baron. A Scotsman attempted to explain the joke as the alleged foible of his race. The baron remained impassive. Others tried, but the baron said: "I do not understand." Finally, he stopped the explanations. "Gut'emca," he said, "you do not understand what I do not understand." His listeners gave rapt attention. "What I do not understand," he went on, "is not why the Scotsman said what he did, but how any Scotsman should not know, at any time, without having to count it, how much money he had in his pockets!"

Not An Acorn.

(From the Sample Case.)
When James A. Garfield was President of Hiram College, a man brought up his son to be entered as a student. He wanted the boy to take a course shorter than the regular one. "My son can never take all those studies," said the father. "He wants to get through more quickly. Can't you arrange it for him?"
"Oh, yes," said Mr. Garfield. "He can take a shorter course; it all depends on what you want to make of him. When God wants to make an oak He takes a hundred years. He takes only two months to make a squash."

Lost a Champion.

(From The Toronto Globe.)
The cause of Anglo-American friendship lost a champion in William Dean Howell's. As a master of English he valued his intellectual heritage from the old land, as did Irving, Emerson, Channing, Longfellow, Whittier, Mark Twain, and the other great American writers. Only the small fry have overlooked this obligation.

A Golden Opportunity.

Yesterday's cabled despatches from Montreal contained an item of news that should be noted by Newfoundlanders. This item was, in effect, an intimation that a golden opportunity is now offered the dominion to make good in an industry, which has never yet reached the proportions that its value and importance warranted. The packing of salmon, by tinning, has never been carried out on an extensive scale by Newfoundland fishermen. They have, on the whole, preferred to dispose of each season's catch, fresh, from the nets, or to pickle the fish and ship in tierces and barrels. On the Labrador, especially, where the salmon school is largest during the months of June, July and part of August—in some seasons,—there has never been any attempt made to establish canning plants, and the total quantity of the catch is split and bulk salted in puncheons, afterwards being packed in tierces and barrels for export. A number of years ago a French Company sent a refrigerating steamer from France to call at ports in the Straits of Belle Isle and Southern Labrador to Francis Harbor or Venison Tickle for the purpose of buying up fresh salmon direct from the nets of the fishermen and freezing them on board, but unfortunately the venture did not net any profit and after 1889 was abandoned, that year having been a poor one so far as salmon were concerned. Since then there has been no attempt made to depart from the old method, and the pickling process is still the curative method employed.

The news despatch referred to gives the intelligence that the Fraser River, British Columbia, salmon fishery is practically dead, the enormous catch of over fifty million pounds, approximating one million cases of forty-eight pounds each having dwindled down to but one-twenty-fifth of that complement, representing now but a few hundred thousand dollars yearly. The Fraser River salmon fishery was probably the greatest in the world, and employed thousands of people in every one of the processes from catching to shipping. Today, according to the opinion of an expert, it is all but gone, its value declining, its importance waning. Yet the world's demand for canned salmon is not falling off, but on the contrary there is a steadily increasing desire for canned fish foods, of which salmon is the chief. There is a large market offering in France for this article, of current pack. A great quantity of American Army salmon was bought at about half price rates, but this, though selling cheaply to consumers does not appear to satisfy them, and as all stocks on hand will be cleared out by November, there are great possibilities of working up a big trade by any country having the supplies approximating the demand. New packs are being held over until the army purchases have been disposed of, but as these holdings are considerable, they are not expected to last very long after November. A No. 1 article such as could be supplied by Newfoundland, would not fail to interest French merchants, and as salmon can very reasonably be put up in this country with less expense than attaches to the Pacific Coast fisheries, beside the vast difference in transportation charges, there is a great opportunity for a revolution in our salmon industry by the general adoption of tinning. The possibilities are great. All that is needed is encouragement. Enterprise belongs to Newfoundlanders, and with our Labrador and South and West Coast waters, not to speak of the Northern prospects, teeming with the finest specimens of this much-sought-after food, there is not any substantial reason why our exports of canned salmon should not run into thousands of cases annually to the enlargement of a valuable industry and the benefit of the dominion all round.

An Important Question.

Everywhere we look to-day, improved road making is employing the attention of municipalities, provinces and states. A great deal of what might be termed local work is done through Motor Associations, assisted by Provincial and State Governments by capitalization of motor taxes, main highways being taken care of by the Federal Governments. The Canadian Government is now building a national highway at a cost of $50,000,000 from Halifax to Vancouver. Placing the population of Canada at 10,000,000 this means $5.00 per capita, the same rate for Newfoundland would mean $1,250,000. The Provincial Governments and Counties will spend as much as the Federal Government, making $10.00 per capita, at this rate our Government, to give us equal roads to Canadians, should spend $2,500,000 this year. About the same rate of expenditure in highway building is being carried on in the United States. Washington, this year, voted $500,000,000 for main artery highways; State Governments will spend a similar amount. Placing the population of the United States at 100,000,000 this expenditure means $10.00 per head, or the same as Canada is spending. This means all of North America, excepting Newfoundland, is in the forward march of bringing their highways up to the European standard.

To state some individual cases of what is being done, we quote from the Canadian Gazette of April 29th: "Charlottetown, P.E.I.—Among the measures to be introduced in the Legislature, is one to take advantage of the Federal Government's grant under the highways act, and to increase the revenue by levying an equitable system of taxation. IT IS PROPOSED TO FUND THE AUTOMOBILE LICENSE FEES."

"Victoria, B.C.—Hon. J. H. King, Provincial Minister of Public Works, announces that approximately $8,000,000 will be spent on highways during the next three years."
"Toronto, Ont.—For five years $3,000,000 is to be set aside annually by the Provincial Government as a highway improvement fund. THIS FUND WILL BE MADE UP AS FAR AS POSSIBLE FROM MOTOR VEHICLE LICENSES AND OTHER SOURCES OF REVENUE UNDER THE MOTOR VEHICLES ACT."
The Nova Scotia Motor League, through the funding of motor license taxes, are now building a boulevard from Halifax to Lunenburg County, via St. Margaret's Bay. We intend publishing an account of the up-to-date method employed in building this road. We understand a bill is to be presented to the House this afternoon to give the Nfld. Motor Association control of the motor license fees, same as is being done throughout Canada and the United States, and that it is the intention of the Association to import rock crushers, tractors, road planes and up-to-date road making machinery. If this bill is passed no doubt a new system of road making will be commenced in this colony which should give very beneficial results through the Dominion.

Rev. Dr. Greene Visits Heroes' Graves.

Writing from Amiens, under date of May 5th to a member of the Daily News staff, Rev. Dr. Greene, of the Cathedral, who is spending a holiday in Europe, says: "From here (Amiens), we go in motor with Father Nangle and visit daily the scenes of the great advance; we see the trenches of the Allies and the enemy passing through town after town, the latter being devastated or totally destroyed. We have visited and prayed at the graves of many of our departed heroes; all forcibly bringing home to me the awful barbarity of the Germans, the sufferings of France, the untold tortures and unexcelled bravery of our own dear boys."

Bible Class Had Enjoyable Sociable.

The Cochrane St. Centennial Church Bible Class, had a very enjoyable sociable in the Lecture Room of the church last evening. The concert programme,—impromptu though it was,—was appreciated by all. Some of the items were: Piano Solo by Miss May Grimes; Recitation, Mrs. Ron Young; Duet, "Roaming," Misses Winnie Bowden and Frances Stone; and a Recitation by Miss Milley. Games then became in order, a short interval for lunch being taken. The affair ended at eleven o'clock.

Increased Wage for Fish Handlers.

The L.S.P.U. held a special meeting last night to consider the increase of wages offered fish handlers by the merchants. The new scale, which is an increase of about 20 per cent. over old rate, is 85 cents per hour by day for ordinary work, 45 cents per hour from 7 o'clock to midnight and 70 cents after midnight. For packing, screwing, barrowing, loading and discharging, the respective rates are 42 cents, 52 and 80. The men accepted the offer.

Enjoyable Concert.

Last evening, at St. Mary's Hall, South Side, the junior members of the congregation put on a very fine concert, attended by a large and appreciative audience. A fine program had been arranged, which with the assistance of the pupils of the Model School instructed by Miss Jessie Purchase, was excellently rendered, the various items evoking much applause, most of them being encores. The string band of H.M.S. Briton was a strong feature, while the sword swinging exhibition by Mr. Jermyn of the Briton was wonderful, the various intricate evolutions holding the spectators spellbound. Mr. Jermyn was good enough, in response to a vociferous encore to give a second display of skill. The dances by the Model School pupils were most perfectly rendered, the precision and movements of the children being a revelation of discipline and training. Mr. Macklin of the Briton captivated the audience with his song and encore. A duet by Miss Pearl James and Mr. E. Cranford was favorably received and an encore demanded. Mr. F. Gushue was particularly good in Recitation and was recalled twice. All the other items of the programme were faultlessly performed, the last, a farce, being the hit of the evening. The proceeds were in aid of the Sunday School. Rev. A. B. S. Stirling was Chairman and at the close thanked both performers and audience for their interest. The programme follows:
Selection—H.M.S. Briton String Band.
Dance—Misses Stirling and Snow. Piano Trio—The Misses Butler.
Chorus—"Good Evening," Model School Pupils; Chimes of Dunkirk Dance; Skirt Dance; Sword Swinging, Mr. Jermyn; Duet, "Pigtail and Fan"; Dutch Minuet; Duet, "Mr. Duck and Mr. Turkey"; Shepherdess Gavotte; Recitation, "Won't You Buy a Dolly"; Dafodil Dance; Chorus, "Could We But Rule," by the Suffragettes; Rose Dance; Duet, "Peterkins and Polly"; Brownies Dance; Pianoforte Duet, Misses Hazel and Mabel Chafe; Song, Mr. Macklin; Recitation, Miss Jean Skirving; Violin and pianoforte Selection, Messrs. Chafe and Walker; Duet, Miss Pearl James and Mr. E. Cranford; Recitation, Mr. F. Gushue; Selection, H.M.S. Briton Band; Farce, "Cross Purposes," Misses D. Colton and G. Andrews, Messrs. B. Colton, Max Colton, E. Cranford and H. Skirving. "God Save The King."

Sugar Prices. Can Be Reduced Fifty Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Retail sugar prices can be reduced fifty per cent., J. H. McLaurin announced here to-day following a conference which he and a delegation of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' Association held with Attorney General Palmer. "The Attorney General must stop speculation in sugar," said Mr. McLaurin.
NEW YORK, May 21.—Sugar features opened weak under heavy general liquidation on the market, owing to reports that preserving concerns would close down unless sugar prices were reduced, and private Washington advices to the effect that a bill had been introduced prohibiting the exportation of sugar. At noon prices were 100 points lower, or the maximum permitted in any one day's trading.

New Seam Opened Up.

GOOD REPORT FROM ST. GEORGE'S COAL FIELDS. A recent telegram received by the St. George's Coal Fields Co., Ltd. saying that a new seam of coal 3 feet thick had been discovered about 200 yards southeast of Jukes has been confirmed by a later letter which advises that the new seam has been stripped for 120 feet along the line of strike, and it was found that the average thickness of the seam is 3 feet, and the coal of excellent quality. The late Mr. James P. Howley, Geological Surveyor in his report of this section speaks of finding small lumps of coal, but he had not time to make further investigation. This find will add greatly to the value of the property both materially and economically, the Jukes, Cleary and new seams being all within a breath of 600 feet.

Street Watering.

The dust nuisance has again settled upon us. The evil is an intolerable one. In addition to being a menace to health, a destroyer of enjoyment, and a serious nuisance, it is a cause of heavy financial loss. It has been estimated by a well known American expert that even greater damage is done to merchandise by dust than by smoke. In many places it is being largely overcome by a system of oiling. Oiled roads have proven quite a success in Chicago and many other places. While the initial cost of oiling is somewhat high, the final cost is held to be much cheaper than watering. As to the dust-ridden streets of our own city, we are suffering worse conditions than usual to-day, because of the plea that our civic administration have not been able to get prompt delivery of divers watering devices. But what about the watering plant the corporation already possesses? It appears pretty much out of commission—and for what reason? If as much zeal was devoted to the problem of keeping the streets watered as there is in laying new taxes, a better order of things would prevail.—Montreal Daily Star.

To-Day's Messages.

A DIFFERENT SHAMROCK.
CITY ISLAND, N.Y., May 25.
The launching of Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, which is to sail for America's Cup off Sandy Hook in July, is set for to-morrow. The Irish Baronet, in renewing his quest for this historic trophy, a quest begun more than a quarter of a century ago, will have in the water this season a very different Shamrock to that which crossed the Atlantic in 1914.

CINDERELLA FORGOTTEN AS USUAL.
LONDON, May 25.
In view of the approaching Conference at Spa, it has been decided to revive the British Empire Delegation. Four Dominions, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa have been asked to send a representative, who will discuss with the Imperial Cabinet all previous questions arising from the war.

DEVELOPMENTS EXPECTED.
DUBLIN, May 25.
A special column of constabulary arrived in the district of West Meath to protect farms in that region from raiders. Several cattle drives have occurred during the week. It is stated, on what seemingly is good authority, that the Sinn Feiners will take action in view of the arrival of the military. Raiders have attacked and burned the Brandon Coast guard station in West Kerry. Six members of the coast guard, aided by their wives and families, desperately resisted the raiders, but were overpowered. Ballynecol Court, in County Cavan, which recently was burned, and had just been rebuilt, was again burned to-day.

BRITAIN'S AIMS.
NEW YORK, May 25.
A sweeping denial that Great Britain was seeking to monopolize the world's fuel oil supply, was made here to-night by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, speaking at the Pilgrim's dinner. The statements that Great Britain had such intentions, he added, were as completely without basis, in fact, as the charges that Britain to-day was moved by militaristic impulses. "I say without fear of informed criticism," Sir Auckland declared, "that the British foreign policy is directed against no man, but is inspired by a desire to seek peace, to bring order out of chaos, to extend the boundaries of freedom, to improve the lot of all, and to increase the material prosperity of the world. That is our programme, and those are the principles by which I, as British representative in this land, am guided from day to day." The Ambassador touched also upon reports that the British Government was trying to pool the war debts of Europe, and to drag you into the pool. You may seek far and wide for evidence, on which that statement could be based, he said, but you will not find it. "If you look closely you will find my Government trying to pour oil on the troubled waters of Europe, and you will also find onlookers who seize oil, as it is poured, and throw it on the fires of anti-British feeling," he said, in answering what he characterized as "wild duck" publications as to British purposes, the Ambassador dealt first with the British Navy, saying that while more than a thousand ships, including four battle-cruisers, were under construction when the armistice was signed, one cruiser, the Hood, was too far advanced to permit of conclusion and was the only major ship completed. The British Army and Air Force had been "even more drastically dealt with," Sir Auckland continued, and added, "it is no business of mine to compare these facts with the corresponding action of any other nations, but I ask you, who know yourselves to be non-militarist, to contrast them with your own national acts, if you are tempted to think England militarist." The Ambassador, after referring to reports in some newspapers and magazines, that Britain has acquired an oil monopoly and proposes to hold the world, said American capital controlled three-fourths of the Mexican yield, and in addition he declared that Americans were seeking oil in at least ten other countries, but regardless of these operations, he concluded, "you have eighty-two per cent of the present world supply of oil under your control."

BRYAN FOR MANDATE.
WASHINGTON, May 25.
William J. Bryan took flat denial with President Wilson on the question of an American mandate over Armenia, Wilson declaring in a statement that any mandate is impossible. "The United States, Bryan said, could not do more toward making the world safe for democracy, even for democracy in Armenia, than by recognizing an Armenian republic, and entering the League of Nations as the friend of all little countries."

CAUSED BY JEALOUSY.
LONDON, May 25.
A wireless message addressed by the Soviet Government at Moscow to the Governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States, was received here yesterday. Among other things that the Soviet Republics of Russia and the Ukraine are free from territorial ambitions, that they have no aggressive design against other countries, and that they are devoting themselves to economic reconstruction. It adds that in spite of heroic efforts for the inauguration of peace negotiations with the Polish Government, Poland, launched fresh attacks against the two Republics. It appears, the message continues, that those countries where workers are not in power regard as a menace to themselves the fact that in another country the workers themselves are successfully managing their own affairs. No other explanation therefore is possible of the sudden attack launched against the two Republics by Poland.

ALWAYS WERE.
QUERETERO, Mexico, May 25.
(By Associated Press.)—In view of the failure of Villa to comply with the ultimatum within the specified time, orders have been given the revolutionary forces to proceed against the rebel, General Polias Calles, announced yesterday. ALBANY, N.Y.—The Walker Bill, legalizing the manufacture and sale of beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent. of alcohol, by weight, was signed by Governor Smith yesterday. It provides for the sale of 2.75 per cent. beer in restaurants and hotels in cities of the first and second class and also for state regulation of its sale, and fixed license fees.
WASHINGTON.—Georges Carpentier will make his ring debut in the United States in New York in July. The announcement, yesterday, that he had signed articles to meet Battling Levinsky before July 26th, came before word was received, last night, that Governor Smith had signed the Walker Bill, making it legal to hold fifteen-round bouts to a decision in the State.

No Luck.

In her new book, "Some Soldiers and Little Mamma," Helen Bouloins tells some good stories of a recruit who got nicknamed Archie. "Nice chap, but no luck!"

When Archie first joined up, the sergeant who took him in hand sarcastically observed that the war would soon be over.
Archie blandly agreed.
The sergeant asked him what the something something he meant.
"Why, I never could keep a job," he said.

A little later Archie got into trouble, and was awarded ten days' C.B. He wrote and told his mother. He was so distressed he wrote to her: "Mother, I am a defaulter."
She wrote back congratulating him on his promotion, and added: "Remember always you, too, have been in the ranks."

Woman Will Be One of the Crew.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A woman will be a member of the crew in an America's Cup race for the first time in history, it was learned to-day. Mrs. W. Burton, wife of Captain Burton, skipper of the Shamrock IV, has been appointed by Sir Thomas Lipton as a member of the afterguard of the challenger.
Mrs. Burton, who is an amateur skipper, won many prizes in regattas of the Royal Corinthian Yacht Club. Captain Burton and his wife are expected to arrive in New York to-morrow, on the steamer Adriatic.

Germany Cannot Pay Full Indemnity.

BERLIN, May 20.—Germany's funded debt on April 1, was $2,000,000,000 marks and her floating debt 105,000,000 marks, it was learned officially to-day.

The figures were published evidently to prove Germany's contention she is unable to pay reparations of 100,000,000,000 marks or more as the Allies were reported to have decided she must pay, during their recent conference at Hythe.
It was known the German delegates to be sent to the Spa conference will be instructed to oppose any sum approaching 100,000,000,000 marks gold. The Germans will point out that at the present decreased value of the mark this would really mean thirty times that amount at normal exchange.

Some Strong Fish.

A Lancashire man, who was very afraid of his wife, arranged to go to the races with some pals, and explained to her that he was going fishing. On his way he called in at a fish shop, and told them to send some fish home. Fish was very scarce that day, and a lot of codd's heads were delivered. When hubby returned home, after an enjoyable time, he said to his wife: "Well, lass, did you get the fish I sent you?"
"I got a lot of codd's heads," was her reply.
"Quite right," was the retort. "You never saw such fish in your life as we had to tackle to-day. Before you could land 'em, you had to pull their blooming heads off!"

The Saddler's Blunder.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)
Bawtry, in the Doncaster district, has had one of the too familiar post-office outrages. The fact recalls an old Yorkshire saying, which might have been heard years ago in what might now be described as anti-pushtyboot circles:—"The saddler of Bawtry was hanged for leaving his ass!" The explanation is simple, and goes back to the old days of execution by the roadside. On the way to the gibbet, where Bawtry maletactors expiated their crimes, it was the custom to halt the procession and give the criminal a farewell drink of beer. A saddler, marked for death, contemptuously refused the proffered draught; the journey to the swinging rope was hastened because the man would not stop, and he was promptly hanged. By just as many minutes as he had declined to dally, a breathless horseman arrived with a reprieve!

Exactly Right.

Dr. W. G. Downs, an Evansville dentist, was in Indianapolis, and while there a friend gave him a bottle of whiskey. He could not use the liquor, as he detected a strong odor of ether in the bottle. He gave the liquor to a coloured waiter at one of the Indianapolis hotels. The next morning he asked the colored man how he liked the liquor. "Jes right, boss," said the dusky one. "It was jes exactly right. Ef it had been any better you wouldn't have gave it to me, and if it had been any worse I could not have drunk it."

Mrs. Jno. Rose Says She Could Sing for Joy.

Sydney Woman Praises Tanlac For Relieving Her of Three Years' Suffering.

There can be but one explanation why Tanlac not only has such an enormous sale, but also gives such universal satisfaction, and creates such enthusiasm amongst its users, and that is Merit. Those who once try it invariably buy it over and over again and tell their friends of the splendid results they have derived from its use.

Still another Nova Scotia woman to realize the remarkable powers of this medicine, is Mrs. John Rose, of 43 Henry St., Sydney, who in a statement made recently, said:

"It's such a relief to be free from sick-headaches and to feel really well, that I could sing for joy. Why, for the past three years I have had so much sickness that I thought I should have to give up altogether. After every meal my food would sour on my stomach and I would bloat up with gas until I nearly choked. I often had spells of biliousness and terrible headaches that kept me in bed for days at a time and drove me almost frantic with pain. I didn't care whether I ate anything or not and often could take nothing but a cup of tea for breakfast. I would toss about for hours at night unable to sleep and it was often two or three in the morning before I closed my eyes. I became very much depressed about my condition, for although I tried nearly every medicine under the sun, I could get no relief.

"Then a few months ago I decided to give Tanlac a trial. I confess I hadn't much faith in it when I started, but its effect was wonderful. The very first bottle started me on the road to recovery and I've been progressing ever since. My depression left me and I began to brighten up. I could notice myself getting stronger every day, and now after taking four bottles in all, I am a perfectly well woman. My appetite is just splendid and I can eat anything. I want and never have a touch of indigestion or biliousness. It is a rare thing for me to ever have a headache now and I sleep so soundly at night that I get up in the morning feeling as fresh as a daisy, and ready for the day's work. Tanlac is certainly a wonderful medicine and I shall always keep a bottle by me after this."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle.—adv.

Prohibition Causes Anxiety in the States.

New York, May 26.—When is a law not a law? is the question that is being freely asked in this city, by those who favor prohibition and by those who oppose it. Investigations just completed by several leading newspapers of New York purport to reveal the fact that "more intoxicating liquors are being sold in this city in saloons, restaurants, hotels, dives, speakeasies and kitchen bar-rooms than at any previous time since nation-wide prohibition went into effect January 16 last."

The enterprising newspapermen, carrying on what was no doubt a popular quest, claims to have discovered that in New York at least the dry laws are being openly disobeyed, and that it is not at all difficult for a stranger to obtain his favorite drink at an exorbitant price. In most of the saloons, it is said, 100 proof bonded whiskey is being sold at 75 cents a drink, and when watered, the price paid by the drinker ranges from 40 cents to 60 cents a drink. In first class restaurants as high as $2 is charged for a ginger highball, which contains about 20 cents worth of whiskey, even at recent prices.

Colored "hooh," which is better known as diluted wood alcohol, is still being sold in large quantities in corner saloons in the poorer neighbourhoods, and is also being peddled in newly opened dives commonly called kitchen barrooms. The price per drink ranges from 30 cents to $1.

Origin of Words.

All of us frequently use expressions of which we do not really know the meaning. Did you, for example, know that noon is the traditional hour for a wedding ceremony because in the olden days in England the bridegroom could not be relied upon to be sober any later in the day than this hour?

Did you know that the word 'tip'—meaning a fee given to a servant—is made of the first letter of the phrase "to insure promptness," and that the inscription used to be on money boxes in every tavern, in which travellers dropped their coins, which later were divided equally among the servants?

Did you know that when we say we give a person the "cold shoulder" that it was because of a custom once prevalent in France of serving a cold shoulder of mutton, instead of hot meat to a guest who had stayed longer than he was welcomed?

Did you know that an unmarried woman is called "spinster" because in olden days they were prohibited from marrying until they had spun a full set of bed furnishings, and because of the time they thus spent at the spinning wheel, were called "spinsters"?

Did you know that in the olden days a baker who gave short weight had awful things happen to him and consequently when called upon for a dozen rolls, he put in an extra one to be on the safe side? Thus, the phrase "baker's dozen" was originated.

And did you know that in primitive days a newly-married man had to wait upon his bride and serve at her table on his wedding day? Thus, the word "bridegroom" came into language.—The Craftsman.

Not Quite Sure.

Two business men were lunching at the club together. "Oh," said one, "my partner formerly always opposed my views, but now he agrees with me in everything."

"How do you account for it?" asked the other. "Don't know," was the reply. "I'm not sure whether I convince him, or only make him tired."

How Will He Be Punished?

Although this question is not occupying so much public attention at the moment as was the case a short time ago, there is no doubt whatever that it will be raised again in the near future, for arrangements for the Kaiser's trial, we are told, are nearing completion.

In this connection it is interesting to note the verdict of 323 American judges whose opinions on the subject were recently sought. Their verdicts may be summed up as follows:

For exile . . . . . 137
For capital punishment . . . . . 108
For imprisonment . . . . . 51
For other penalties . . . . . 7
Against trial . . . . . 27

The places mentioned by those who suggest that the ex-Kaiser should be exiled range from St. Helena—the most popular—to "Anywhere but Indiana" which humorous note is supplied by a judge from that State.

Among those who declare themselves for capital punishment, hanging is the most favoured method of disposing of the fallen War-lord, while shooting—the military way—comes second. Fifteen judges voted for electrocution, six for beheading and fourteen for other means.

Fighting the Flu.

An incident in the early career of Pearson's Weekly is recalled by Mr. William Vincent in his entertaining book, "Seen from the Railway Platform."

After relating how, soon after P. W. made its appearance, its proprietor conceived the idea of saturating the copies with eucalyptus as a preventive against influenza, an epidemic of which was then raging, the author goes on to narrate the result from the railway bookstall clerk's point of view.

They did an unheard-of business with the paper. People (says Mr. Vincent) bought two, three or four copies—carrying one to read, one under the waistcoat to ward off attacks, and one in the pocket to give to a friend if without.

No other newspaper could get supplies of eucalyptus, for Pearson's had the monopoly. The moment you approached the railway station the penetrating scent was apparent, and one of the strangers had no need to ask, "Where is the bookstall?" but only to follow up the line of increasing aroma.

My assistants, who handled thousands, said they felt faint; but I refused in the pungent odour, and I can certainly say I escaped influenza.

Fashions and Fads.

Most skirts are fuller. Plaited sleeves are very graceful. Folk-dotted voiles are great favorites. Organdie hats have brims of ribbon.

The long sleeve is as smart as the short. Much lace is used on French millinery.

Few kiddies' frocks are belted or sashed. Scallops have taken the place of fringe.

The newest earrings are long and slender. Hats are being worn slightly on the side.

One gingham frock is trimmed with silk. Bustle draperies are still a whim of fashion.

Carved wood buttons appear on smart suits. The French are using little straw on their hats.

Linen and plaided frills go very well together. Loops have become a trimming much in demand.

Bathing suits are of gray design and simply made.

He Always Keeps Them in the House.

PIERRE BLANCHETTE PAYS TRIBUTE TO DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Suffered from Dyspepsia for Twenty Years and Now Loses no Opportunity to Sing the Praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ste. Anne des Monts, Tourelle, Gaspé Co., Que., May 26, (Special).—"I always keep Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house." That is the tribute Mr. Pierre Blanchette, a well-known resident here, pays to the old reliable kidney remedy.

"I had dyspepsia for twenty years," Mr. Blanchette continues. "I got some Dodd's Kidney Pills and took them. I am well now. I eat all I desire and have no bad effects. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all the world."

The satisfaction Dodd's Kidney Pills are giving as a remedy for kidney troubles is shown by the large number of people who keep them always at hand. They have learned that the proper way to avoid serious forms of kidney disease, such as rheumatism, diabetes, dropsy, and heart disease, is to correct the early symptoms of kidney trouble.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have built their reputation on the good work they have done. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the sovereign remedy for kidney troubles.

Mainly About People.

Among the cleverest of English women is Mrs. Christopher Lowthers, who is the author of various and varied ballads. She is an actress and dancer herself.

Paul Manship, a graduate of the American Academy at Rome, has made a marble bust of the multi-millionaire John D. Rockefeller, who, although still living, to most Americans has become a legend. They wonder what secret he possesses that enables him to distance all the great money makers of his time. Sculptor Manship has made the eyes and mouth of the money king, and for a year has been working on the lines of the face.

We have heard a lot about the salaries paid to American film stars but Italy does not fall behind in this respect. Francesca Bertini receives two and a half million lira per annum (equal at the present rate of exchange to 100,000 pounds sterling in English money); Pina Manicelli receives two million lira; Leda Gys, 500,000; Helen Makowska, 400,000; and quite a number of stars earn more than 100,000 lira.

Dr. E. J. Dillon, who has held professorships at the University of Petrograd and the University of Louvain, speaks some 18 of the languages of eastern Europe. He was at the Portsmouth Russian-Japanese conference in 1905 as the confident of Count Witte and he covered the Versailles conference for the London Daily Telegraph.

Miss Clara Moore, who is declared to be the best impersonator of a young, attractive widow ever seen on the American and English stage, and who receives "mash notes" by the hundred, is the granddaughter of Frank E. Moore, who in his life was the "perpetual mayor" of Omaha.

The mother of W. B. Maxwell, the noted English novelist, was a great story of the Victorian age. The writer owes a lot of his success to her. She was never too busy to give attention to his early literary efforts. She was ever the mother, never permitting her personal equipment to interfere with the views or thoughts or the narrative style of her son.

There is an interesting fact about Swan and Edgar's premises in Piccadilly Circus—shortly to be rebuilt—that does not appear to be generally known. In one of the top rooms overlooking Regent Street was located in the year 1840 the first studio in Great Britain to be used for professional photography. A Mr. Beard—originally a coal merchant—was the first worker at the new profession, and although he at first made as much as 40,000 pounds sterling a year by his Daguerrotypes, he finally became a bankrupt. Beard's great rival was Claudet, who started a studio immediately after the originator.

Miss Anna E. Bishop, of Hingham, Mass., the last of three maiden sisters, now in her 80th year, is a descendant of a grandfather who was knighted by the King of Portugal for making a thin, soft paper from uncooked vegetables. This grandfather, Thomas Eileph, was born in London and was doctor, artist, and scientist.

King Alfanso of Spain, himself the most democratic of sovereigns, in obedience to the queen mother, Maria Christina, although much against his personal wishes, retains all the court splendor of former days. The king is only happy when relieved of all those royal formalities. He would like to take his family to South America, leave his crown behind him, and go into the breeding of horses.

George Eastman, Kodak king, of Rochester, N.Y., and Tech's "Mr. Smith," has given away $26,000,000 for public benefactions and for educational purposes.

As a young man he worked at a ledger 11 hours a day. He has established the Eastman School of Music, and is ambitious to make Rochester a great musical center. He has 10,000 employees.

House of Assembly.

The House met yesterday at 3 o'clock. Petitions were presented on various local matters by Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Abbott.

Prohibition petitions were presented by Sir John Crosbie, Dr. Jones, Mr. Small and Hon. Mr. Warren on behalf of the Speaker. The petition of Sir John Crosbie and the Speaker were against any modification, and those of Dr. Jones and Mr. Small in favor of modification.

Hon. Mr. Warren, for the purpose of clearing away any misapprehension on the part of the public as to any suggestion that delay in the appointment of the Royal Commission was caused by the Judges of the Supreme Court, made the following statement:

"From the beginning the two Judges who had been requested by His Excellency the Governor to serve in the Royal Commission, pointed out that they ought not to be asked to deal with any question of law. His Excellency the Governor, did not, however, understand that they had no wish to find upon the facts though the Judges believed they had endeavored to make this clear to him. No draft was submitted to the Judges and it was not suggested that the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Kent were responsible for the delay in issuing this Commission except so far as there was a misunderstanding as to their functions."

QUESTIONS.

Mr. Fox asked the Hon. the Prime Minister what policy the Government has under review in reference to the establishment of a Reformatory or House of Correction for Juvenile offenders. If it is the intention of the Government to establish such an institution. If so, when and where? If not, why not?

Reply—Whole subject under consideration of the Government. Third reading was given the "Fire Patrol" Bill and second reading to the following: "An Act to amend the Consolidated Statutes of Nfld., (Third Series), entitled 'Of the Encouragement of Agriculture'; "An Act to amend 'The Business Profits Tax Act, 1917'; "An Act respecting certificates of Masters and Mates"; "An Act respecting the issue of certain Debenture Bonds of the Colony"; "An Act to regulate the exportation of Salt Codfish."

The preamble of the bill respecting Masters and Mates reads as follows: WHEREAS, owing to the abnormal conditions produced by the recent war, there are a large number of masters and mates in this Colony who have been unable to obtain certificates of competency in the manner provided by law, but who are otherwise competent to command and serve in sea-going ships;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable, in the interest of this Colony and its trade, that such persons should be permitted to command and serve in such ships, and to make provision temporarily for that purpose. The Bill then provides for a Board to make rules and regulations, issue certificates of service, etc., which will be in existence up to January 1st, 1921.

The "Profiteering" Bill and the "Income War Tax" Bill were put through final Committee stages. On motion to adjourn, Sir John Crosbie drew the attention of the Prime Minister to the seriousness of the salt situation, and enquired if the Government had done anything tending to the relief of same. The Prime Minister replied that all information in the possession of the Government relating to the salt situation would be handed down next sitting. The House then adjourned to meet again this afternoon.

Legislative Council.

May 25.

The Council met at 4.30 p.m., and went into Committee on the Survey of Foreign-going and Labrador vessels' Bill, Hon. Mr. Murphy in the chair.

Hon. Mr. Grieve considered it vexatious to have a survey after every voyage.

Hon. R. K. Bishop asked what will happen to vessels from foreign ports that go to the outports? He could not see how a survey or could be made in every port, and to get one from St. John's would cause great delay. It seems unnecessary to have a survey every time a vessel comes from Sydney, for instance.

Sir P. T. McGrath also spoke on this and other sections to which several amendments were made, when the Committee rose and asked leave to sit again.

The Judicature Amendment Act came in for a lot of criticism from Hons. Milley, Anderson, Grieve and Bishop, and Sir P. T. McGrath in reference to the new fees for the legal fraternity. It passed the Committee stage.

The Committee on the Bill entitled "An Act to confirm a Contract between the Government and the St. Lawrence Timber, Pulp and Steamship Company, Limited," covered several sections, during which a lot of discussion arose, Hon. J. Browning objecting to the clause relating to pit props. He said that he was informed that the A.N.D. Co. were buying up all pit props available, and were grinding them to pulp. He did not see that if they could be manufactured into pulp why they should be allowed export in the raw state.

Hon. Dr. Campbell said sticks 2 1/2 inches in the smaller end possibly might be used for mechanical pulp. He thought the concessions asked were very reasonable and that a great benefit would be derived by people of the West Coast, by having this company operate there. He was not aware of the kind of timber on this section of the coast, as a thorough survey had never been made. The department was in communication with people re making an areal survey of our timber and water power. He did not think the method would be entirely successful, and only a thorough cruising would show what timber and water powers we possess.

Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath stated that the Harmsworth people were, owing to increasing the size of their plant, short of pulp wood, due also to the shortage of labor, and were obliged to gather in all pit props to provide a surplus.

Hon. J. J. Murphy thought that our method of cutting timber, for the past 20 years, was more like butchering than lumbering. There was more timber left in the forests to decay than was taken out. He thought the Bill reasonable, and as long as the company was satisfied to put their money in the plant, we should not unduly hamper them.

The House next considered the second reading of Bill entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 183 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Management and Control of the Harbor of Grand Bank.'"

Hon. Mr. Browning asked for further details as to the expenses of Medical Dept. of the Militia Dept.

Hon. Mr. Bishop tabled the petition asking for the franchise for women, and will present it this afternoon. Adjournment was taken at 6.30 until this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, April 19, 1920.
QUEEN'S TREASURE HUNT.

Queen Mary has been spending a holiday at Windsor rummaging among the many treasuries in the packed lumber rooms at the Castle. She has been rewarded by many finds, the best of them being a priceless Sevres tea service which must have lain forgotten for decades. Windsor more than any other Royal residence, has always been a favourite repository for Royal treasures, and quite an amazing number of valuables have been sent there in past centuries, and very soon forgotten. The Queen's search, which she confesses to have been a delightful hobby, have resulted in so many interesting finds that a complete inventory of all the contents of the Castle is to be made as soon as possible.

LADY LONDONDERRY'S CRUSADE.

Some of the leaders of society, headed by Lady Londonderry, are making a firm stand against the wild extravagance of the nouveaux riches in matters of dress, and have decided to make the very plainest dresses and coats and skirts the proper wear. Skirts above the knees, bare backs, and "smart" gowns will, if they can manage it, in future stamp the wearer as not belonging to society. But Lady Londonderry has to reckon with Paris.

MARRIED COUPLES IN DOMESTIC SERVICE.

West End housewives have been considerably agitated by the report published last week of a county court case in which it appeared that the Dowager Lady Wilton had engaged a married couple as cook and butler-valet at sum of $6,000 a year. They have been alarmed lest this should indicate a general enormous rise in the wage standard for domestic help. The truth probably is that $6,000 was a misprint for $600. The manager of one important office said she had never heard of such a wage being offered. On the spur of the moment she remembered $650 as being the highest wage offered recently. That was for a cook, but the circumstances were exceptional. I know of several cases of a trained man and wife taking on the work of a flat for $600 a year. The ex-service man who, often without any previous knowledge of housework, goes as parlour-man is giving, I hear, satisfaction. Sometimes he is single, but it is better still if he is married and can divide the work with his wife. In one successful case the man was quite untrained, but his highly-skilled wife acted as cook and taught him the duties of a parlourmaid. These men do not generally ask for more time off than is granted to women servants, but mistresses are now ungrudgingly giving much more free time to their maids. A new idea which works very well is to give the two or three maids their holiday on the same day and engage some outside woman to answer the door. Then the family lives for the day in picnic fashion, and there is no difficulty about the maids taking on each other's duties.

TO WATCH THE WORLD'S HEALTH.

Health experts representing the countries in the League of Nations and the United States are sitting now at the Ministry of Health, considering the establishment of an International Health Office, parallel in its constitution and work to the International Labour Bureau already set up under the League of Nations Covenant. Such a Health Office is not named in the Covenant, but was clearly contemplated, and Dr. Addison has taken the initiative in setting it up. Standardizing and control of quarantines, the collection of world wide statistics on epidemics, and the establishment of international research work into diseases are duties which it could undertake. At present, however, the experts now conferring at the Ministry of Health are most concerned about the need of establishing a sanitary cordon across Poland to prevent typhus sweeping out of Russia into Central and Western Europe. For this work the Poles by themselves have neither doctors nor money.

BRITISH WARSHIPS UNDER FOREIGN FLAGS.

Considerable interest attaches to the desire of the Chilean Government to purchase two British battleships and two light cruisers, for in recent years it has been the policy of the Admiralty carefully to avoid the least possibility of any ex-British ship hoisting a foreign flag. Under the present urgent necessity of saving and obtaining money wherever possible tradition is likely to be shelved. Shortly before the war we had an excellent opportunity of making a little money, for the Turks were very anxious to get possession of our Centurion and Barfleur, then being paid off. But the powers at White Hall considered such a course undignified, and the Turks paid a very high price for two ancient German battleships. One of them was doing a lot of damage to our lines in Gallipoli with her 11-inch guns before a British submarine torpedoed her. In the old days we were not so particular, and at the close of the Napoleonic wars we asked no questions as to the ultimate fate of our surplus warships. Chile fought for her independence from Spain with several brigs and corvettes that had once flown the British flag. In the fifties we exchanged a frigate for two iron gunboats which the Prussian navy had ordered to be built in England, and some years later we presented them with another. Curiously enough, this latter was employed during the war as a harbor flagship for the battle-cruiser squadron which carried out the raids on our east coast towns.

PLIGHT OF HOSPITALS.

Most of the big hospitals and similar institutions dependent on public charity for upkeep are in a bad way financially. Besides the common difficulties of advancing prices and higher wages, they are faced with a general fall in subscriptions and donations. It is feared that the prospect spells bankruptcy for many of these institutions. The managements are making various forms of appeal to the public. One method is no longer popular. That is the organised flag selling day. The most recent, held on behalf of a cottage hospital, indicated that the era of flag days is over. Perhaps one of the best methods is the system of permanent collecting boxes at railway stations and other places where people congregate. But the times are hard, and it is clear that there is a reaction from the big spurt in public benevolence which marked periods of the war.

AEROPLANE POSTAL SERVICE.

The British Post Office, I hear, is beginning to realise that too high a price has been put upon aeroplane postal services. The present rate to Paris, for example, which is half a crown (50 cents) an ounce, is felt to be more than the public is prepared to stand. It is intended to run an arial post between this country and Holland, and it is hoped that this service will be much cheaper than the Paris one, but what the figures will be cannot be determined until tenders have been received from firms willing to supply the necessary aeroplanes. Two sets will be required. One will be provided by the Dutch Government, and whether it will have its headquarters at the Hague, Amsterdam, or Rotterdam, will be determined by the company which secures the contract. The other half of the aeroplanes needed will be supplied by the British Post Office, but all the machines will be used for carrying mails both ways, so that a British service will alternate with a Dutch one. The tenders for the new service must be received before the middle of May, and it is anticipated that the Dutch arial post will be begun not later than June or July, when the weather may be expected to be at its best for arial navigation. With a good start it is possible that the service may be made to pay with a much smaller fee than that now charged to and from Paris.

COLLEGES AND CARRIAGES.

The transformation of Bloomsbury, that London region of gloomy flats and general decadence, is highly probable, and the revolutionising force is academic. Long dissatisfied with the present position of the University of London, the Senate is negotiating with the Duke of Bedford for the purchase of a large vacant site to the north of the British Museum, which possesses those advantages of accessibility and centralisation which are lacking at Kensington. The present University buildings are imposing, but far removed from that hub of London upon which all the systems of communication between the town and the homes of the University's ten thousand students converge. In addition, the Kensington building, despite its large dimensions, is insufficiently commodious to enable all the classes to be held under one roof. Emigration, even at the estimated cost of $10,000,000, has become, therefore, imperative, and if the present negotiations bear fruit it will bring blessings in its train. The supplanting of cabbages, which at present flourish on the projected site, by buildings commensurate with the proportions and importance of the London University, will exalt drab Bloomsbury to the position of London's chief education centre.

The Defence of Woman Suffrage.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—In the Saturday issue of the "Plaindealer," a person, using the name of Politicus, made an attack on Women Suffrage. The article was not only devoid of common-sense, but was highly insulting to the promoters of that cause, as well as to the entire womanhood of this Dominion; and we can only conclude that it was written by an ingoramus, an old misogynist or a child.

He says in one paragraph:—"The Empire and Country would certainly be in a pitiable plight if it depended on these during the recent war. Things in Newfoundland are coming to a pretty pass when people heretofore giving evidences of common-sense will agitate for petticoat Government."

What absolute, inimitable rubbish for any sane person to write! It is by those who have the courage to uphold their convictions that great things are accomplished. It was by the aid of that class of women that victory was attained in the recent war. I will go further. Victory was a forgone conclusion because of that class of women. It is by women who have that courage that the suffrage movement has been started here. As to "petticoat Government," Victoria the Good" is a standing example of a woman's ability to govern.

Never in the history of England has there been so small a proportion of crime committed after a war, as after the late war—and well, in England the women have secured the franchise; they vote; and are filling responsible public positions.

Politicus "would advise Premier Squires to send these (women) about their business." By the way! what is a woman's business? There are nearly as many women working at trades and professions to-day as there are men.

"He talks about a woman's sphere as though it had a limit; There's not a place in earth or heaven, There's not a task to mankind given, There's not a blessing nor a woe, There's not a whispered yes or no, There's not a single life nor birth That has a feather's weight of worth, Without a woman in it."

The great educational and commercial advancement of the world is due in no small measure to the interest women are taking in public affairs. The responsibility of educating our children lies with the women, and the children's character, whether for good or evil, depends on them. Thus they have the power to make or mar a country or nation, and yet they are not permitted to vote for or disapprove of a law or motion that they may consider good or bad. No wonder they consider themselves in bondage!

We proudly boast that we have a "Government of the people, by the people, for the people." The women assert that we have a "Government of the men, by the men, for the men." And I agree with them.

I advise Politicus to study his subject next time before writing about it. I also suggest that it's no use going up in the air to find information on the subject, for "wisdom is oft-times nearer when we stoop than when we soar."

Yours truly,
THESEUS.

"Oh, My! How the Doctor Did Alarm Me When He Said it Was Your Heart"

"WHAT did he say?"
"Well, he says that the great majority of people who had the 'flu' have suffered afterwards from weak heart action."
"I never had heart trouble."

"No, but the way the doctor explains it is that the nervous system is so weakened by the 'flu' that there is not enough nerve force left to drive the machinery of the body."

"That is about the way I feel, for I have no appetite, and do not feel able to stir."

"No, and you do not seem to digest the little food you do eat. So you cannot expect to gain strength. Why not try some of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"Oh, I do not see how that would help me."

"Now, John, I think that is exactly what you need. It always helped me when I got run down in health, and I hear so many saying the same thing that I think you should give it a trial. You know yourself that you are not gaining any these days."

"How would that help my heart?"

"Because it enriches the blood and increases the nerve force. Anything that strengthens the nerves will naturally strengthen the action of the heart, for the heart, like the stomach and other organs, is dependent on the nervous system for operating power."

"Well, you talk as though you knew. I guess your training as a nurse is coming in useful."

"Will you try the Nerve Food, then?"

"Yes, I will give it a good trial, for I want to get around, and not sit here like an invalid."

"I am so glad, for I feel sure it will soon get you feeling all right again."

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Nerve Food from all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. On every box of the genuine you will find the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

No Alterations Will Be Made in Cup Challenger.

City Island, N.Y., May 20.—Charles A. Nicholson, designer of Shamrock IV, who arrived from England on the Mauretania, had his first thorough inspection here yesterday of the yacht with which Sir Thomas Lipton hopes to win the America's Cup off Sandy Hook in July. At the end of the inspection, which lasted several hours, Nicholson stated he was satisfied with the way his plans had been carried out. He suggested one or two minor alterations. Mr. Nicholson would not speak about the rumor that he planned radical changes in the sail plan of the Shamrock IV.

"Nothing will be done," said the designer, "until we see how Shamrock IV acts in her trial spins on Long Island Sound."

Work on Shamrock IV, which was finished, it would be impossible to launch the craft at the present time. The Yantle, which starts racing the Shamrock off New Haven on Friday for the America's Cup, was hauled out here yesterday for her final cleaning. She is lying directly in front of the challenger. Until she is again put into the water, it would be impossible to launch the Lipton yacht.

It is expected that the Yantle will be out of the water until Thursday. She then will be taken to New Haven.

Oil Fuel Prevents Bathing.

London, May 4.—(By Mail.)—Surf bathing is threatened with extinction at some English seaside resorts because of the presence on the sea of masses of fuel oil, due to the increasing use of oil driven vessels. High tides frequently are bringing in vast quantities of thick, slimy oil, and bathers have suffered most unpleasant consequences.

The suggestion is being made that bathing beaches be "fenced in" and the incoming water filtered to do away with the nuisance.

The Coming Woman.

KERLE HOWARD Shows the Way to the Millennium:
You ask me what will be the effect on the woman of the future if the feminist movement succeeds.

As a staunch hominist—a word which I have coined, because it was so badly needed—I prefer to think of the effect on the man of the future. It has long been obvious that men are becoming less and less suitable—I will not say capable—to bear the burden of the wage-earner. I look forward with eagerness to the time when the man, who has revealed throughout the ages a veritable genius for domesticity, will be able to give his undivided attention to the really important matters of life. I consider that the millennium will never be attained until the master of the house is master in his own house. He has a genius for dealing with butchers, bakers, fishmongers, grocers, and greengrocers—let him deal with them. He has a genius for painting woodwork—let him paint it. It is the master of the house who knows what sort of people to invite to the house—let him arrange the dinner-parties and the week-end visits.

As to the care of children, there is a fell-worn sentence which will readily spring to the mind: "I shall tell your father to speak to you." What is this but a daily and hourly confession that it is the father who should be in daily and hourly contact with the children, and not mother?

Living, as I do, in a place where the majority of the men go to the city every morning and return home every evening, I have observed that one of the main duties of the housewife is to play bridge all the afternoon, both in winter and summer. Here, again, is a task far more suited to the man than to the woman. A man is equally at home in the garden or at the card-table, but he always looks a little dreary and out of place in an office. A woman, on the contrary, is never at her best at the card-table, and the effect of stooping to pull up weeds fatigues her unduly, but no sooner does she enter an office than she illuminates the dusty room with her sparkling presence, and seems as happy as a little bird upon a twig. Let us stand in her way no longer. As we are strong, let us be magnanimous. The woman is for ever sighing for the excitement of London and the railway train. Let us brace ourselves, then, to the sacrifice. One wrench, however strong, and all will be well.—From the Odd Volume.

Hamlet's Story in a Modern Newspaper.

London, May 18.—Numerous descriptions of how he would expect the press to handle the story of Hamlet, should Shakespeare's tragedy be enacted in real life to-day, has been given here in an address on Journalism by Arthur Beverly Baxter, the Canadian author.

"There would be little interest in the story until Ophelia's name was mentioned," Baxter declared. The headlines next morning would be:

"WHERE IS OPHELIA?
Society Beauty
Missing from Court
HAMLET RUNS AMUCK."
"Huge placards would then appear, 'What I Know of Ophelia.'"

"The afternoon papers would give a picture of Ophelia in bathing costume and one would carry an exclusive photo of Hamlet and Ophelia leaving the Hotel Metropolitan in Copenhagen.

"The Mail would give an exclusive story of the lovers' quarrel, and would probably arrange an Ophelia motion picture competition.

"A certain amount of space would be given to the untimely death of Hamlet's mother and uncle, but the great fact that something was rotten in the state of Denmark would be completely subordinated to the sensational."

The foregoing may be considered the last word in sensationalism in England, but it is as flat as a punctured tire compared with what an American or Canadian newspaper would do to the same story.

Notable Salvage Achievement.

S. S. "PLATEA" FLOATED.
The chief topic of conversation in Marine circles yesterday was the floating of the Greek Steamer Platea off Sable Island by the Atlantic Salvage Company, and praises are being voiced everywhere for the salvagers. The steamer was anchored in the harbor and will be docked at the Shipyards where an inspection will be held. She is in splendid condition and will likely soon be in the freight service again.

Lawrence Porter and Norman McKelgan were in charge of the salvage operations and with their wrecking crews deserve all the credit for the ### successful venture.

Fred Colwell was at the head of the mechanical staff, who overhauled all the Platea's boilers, her engines, reversing engines, steam pipes, and steering gear. The ship came from Sable Island to Halifax under her own steam.

The Atlantic Salvage Company started operations on April 27th, when they arrived at the Island on the tug Le Canadienne, and landed gear and supplies. Immediately the work of pumping the ship was carried out, there being 12 feet of water in the after hold.

On April 30 steam was put on in the boilers and by this time they had three land tackles out from the ship, and in all there were four strong cables out from the ship. Two of them included 6,000 feet of wire to which were attached three anchors and the remain### ing two were 600 feet in length and had two anchors each.

The Platea was then lying east and west on the beach, about 30 degrees to port, and practically high and dry.

On May 2nd, a bad piece in the main steam pipe was found, which was sent to Halifax to be repaired. On May 6th the boilers had been examined and were in A 1 condition. Three days later, on May 10, the bow of the ship was moved about 8 feet to starboard. On the 13th the ship was moved 30 feet astern and the next day she was moved some, being then afloat between the outer sand bar and the beach. With the early morning tide on the 15th, the ship was pulled half way over the outer sand bar, about 600 feet, and with the afternoon tide the ship was then hauled clear of the bar. She was then towed around to deep water and ### left shortly after for Halifax under her own steam, with the tug Sarnia City acting as a pilot, making the trip in 23 hours.

Reds Tampering With British Army.

London, May 22.—Disquieting incidents affecting the discipline of certain regiments of the British Army, have occurred recently says the Daily Sketch, and investigation has revealed the fact that agents of the Russian Soviet Government have perfected a plan to make the army a "hot bed of dissension."

Stern measures to smash this organization have been decided upon, the newspaper declares, and important arrests are imminent.

In addition wholesale deportations are to be expected.

To Lower the High Cost of Living.

Considering the high cost of coal and expenses of spring house cleaning, the Star Laundry, 10 Pleasant Street, has decided to give special rates for washing Quilts, Blankets, Bed Covers, etc., to help out the housewife. This offer will be open for a short time only as our summer trade will soon be starting, and we hope to have a full share of the laundry trade of the city seeing that all our help is local and all money spent is a benefit to our own country.
