record. Particularly sad were the circum stances surrounding the death of Maurice Kilmer, a well-known resident of the Main road, on Monday afternoon. On going to the barn Emerson Kilmer was shocked to find his brother hanging from a beam, quite dead. Coroner A. C. Johnston, of Watford, was immediately summoned and decided an inquest un necessary. Mr. Kilmer was in his 54th year and had not been in the best of health for nearly two years. He is survived by two brothers, Emerson, with whom he had lived for the past few years, and Dan, on 6 side-road north of the Main road; one sister, in the west; a half-brother George of Forest, and his step-mother, Mrs. David Kilmer, also of Forest A private funeral service was held the residence of his brother Dan Kilmer, on Wednesday after-noon, being conducted by Rev. John Howard Passes The death occurred in Queen Alexandria Sanitarium, London, on Wednesday of John Howard, aged 52 years. Mr. Howard formerly farmed on the Main road east but in the early days of the war he felt the con of duty to his Motherland in which he was born and enlisted in the 29th Canadian Field Battery at London. He survived many months of active service in France, but was eventually gassed and invalided back to England. Prompt medical treatment seemed to effect a cure and he returned to Canada in apparent good health.

He was married shortly after his return to Miss Jennie Willoughby, a daughter of Mr. Robert Willoughby, Main road, who survives him. The funeral will be held on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Howard's father, lot 24. Service will be conducted at the house at 2.30 by his former rector, Rev. W. M. POISON IVY

(Experimental Farm Notes)

Year after year as folks fare forth o camp or summer cottage, interest in poison ivy revives. Many have yet to learn to recognize these low, bushy slightly woody-stemmed plants, rising from long rootstocks at or just below ground level, and bearing the char acteristic leaves of triple, smoothish, pointed leaflets, and frequently the old clusters of round, whitish fruits beneath them.

Failing to recognize and avoid the plants, many people, susceptible to poisoning, find themselves presently interested in remedies. Few seem to be aware that on contact with the weed, or even with shoes, tools, etc., that have been in contact, they should promptly remove all traces of its verulent oil by freely lathering the skin with strong soap, and rinsing under hot running, or constantly changed water. Inflammation resulting from unsuspected exposure, or neglect of the above precautions, may be relieved by applying solutions of baking soda or Epsom salts, one or two teaspoonfuls to a cup of water and bandaging. Various elaborate treatments are offered which are seldom any more helpful, or so readily avail-

It is surprising how few efforts are made to clean up ivy from constantly frequented public and private grounds. Though eradication is bound to be laborious, there are plenty of people who could safely work at it. In hard or rocky ground, wherever injury to the soil does not matter, dry salt or strong brine might be applied before growth becomes too dense, or after mowing it with a scythe. Caustic soda and other poisonous chemicals are also recommended. As a rule however, direct removal of the root stock from the soil, by means of grubbing hoe, potato hook, digging or ploughing, when possible, is preferable. Sometimes when growing in leaf mold or rich soil, astonishingly long strands of rootstocks can be dragged out intact. This is most safely and easily done before spring growth commences. Small patches have thus been cleared up at one

Rochester, N.Y., July 8 .- Before the same altar where six months ago they knelt together and were promounced man and wife, a youthful bridal couple returned again today and in their caskets placed side by side again received the blessing of their priest. Symptoms.

In young chicks the stop toms are as follows: The chicks Ator stand in the same position, apl., and e diminished, they are drowsy, listless, ruffled and droopy. In some cases the droppings may be stained with blood. Birds under two months seldom survive a severe attack and, if they recover, are usually stunted. Older chickens have stronger resistance, more recover, but still the mortality is heavy. Droopiness, diarrhoea, de-jection, wattles and comb pale, three weeks of misery, a short period of coma and then death are the more noticeable symptoms in older birds. The Post Mortem Appearances.

In young chicks the ceca are filled with a bloody, semi-solid mass. older birds the ceca are distended and contain a solid mass of a greyish color and cheesy consistency. The intestine may be inflamed and the liver enlarged. Cause.

The presence of a protozoan para-site in the intestinal tract "Eimeria avium." The disease is transmitted by means of feed, water and soil. It is especially present where chicks are brooding on the same ground year after year, and where a second or third lot of chicks are reared on the same ground the same year. Chicks brooded in moderate numbers on new ground for each brood and frequently changed to clean soil, or soil covered with a good sod, will rarely be affected with coccidiosis. Infection may be brought in by purchase of new birds, or it may be carried by pigons from infected yards.

For young birds, transfer to clean colony house located on fresh ground. Use air-slaked lime on floor of house and also clean litter. Dose with Epsom salts at the rate of one pound to 400 pounds of chicks, repeat this in four days. Reduce the grain ration and feed buttermilk. Bran should be substituted for grain. The use of a disinfectant in the drinking water is recommended, as one ounce of copper sulphate to five gallons of Prevention.

Houses should be thoroughly soaked with five per cent. compound solution of cresol. Ontario Boar Policy Meets Approval. Evidence of the ever-increasing interest being taken by hog producers in the type of breeding stock being used is manifest in the formation of Bacon Hog Clubs under the policy of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Already one hundred and ninety such clubs have been supplied with boars, an increase of almost one hun-dred within the past year. A number of other clubs have been formed and are being supplied with the best animals available as quickly as Coincident with this increased interest in the type of boar being used is a culling as it were of the sows kept. In many sections producers are replacing undesirable type sows with young sows, from litters that are well bred and which are grading a high percentage of selects. In some sec-tions packing houses and drovers are co-operating in this exchange of sows and splendid results are being obtained. Now is the time for the hog producer who has not a good sow to select from good young breeding stock that may be in the district. Good bacon type sows with plenty ruggedness and quality mated with high class bacon boars assures the producers of a fair chance to make the progeny of desirable market type. -I. B. Martin, Live Stock Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Marl for Soll Acidity.

Marl deposits are not uncommon in the older farmed sections of Ontario. While discussing soil problems with many visitors to the O. A. College exhibit at the County Fairs many farmers mentioned that they knew of deposits of marl in their own districts that were lying unused. Many do not realize that marl is quite equal to the best grades of crushed limestone or hydrated lime as a corrective for soil acidity. The use of marl from a local deposit if such is available, will save the purchase price and the transportation costs on other forms of lime. October and November are usually good months in which excavate and team marl to the lds where soil acids prevent the luxuriant growth of clovers.

FIGHTS WAY TO BRIDE

MANGATI LOVER MEETS WITH MUCH TROUBLE.

Bride Undergoes Three Months' Fattening Process - Groom Carries Bride Home, Pick-aback—Is Badly Beaten by Male Relatives - Digs Way Into House.

Nowhere in the world does the path of the true lover bristle with more trouble than in the country of the Mangati, a tribe in Tanyanyika Territory.

There the lovelorn swain must literally fight his way to the side of his beloved. His troubles start, as one might expect, when he first falls in love.

To start off with he must kill a Hon, and send its head to father.

However, when our lover has killed his lion, he calls on his nearest pal, and deputes him his "mulongi," or best man. The mulongi takes the lion's head, as proof of his friend's manhood, and, with a goat as a pres-ent for her father, goes off to inter-view the parents of the dusky damsel. News of the lion fight will already have reached the parents, and they will have heard of the youth's "in-tentions" from their daughter.

If the girl likes the youth, her parents invariably consent to the match, and offer the mulongi a stool to sit upon when he calls. But if no stool is offered him, mulongi goes away, for he knows that the match is "off." If he is favorably received is "off." If he is favorably received he breaks at once into a long and wholly untruthful account of his friend's wealth and suitability as a son-in-law and husband. As for beads, bracelets, and shell embroidered skins which his friend has laid by for his wife to be, they weigh so much that mulongi must be ex-cused for bringing with him only two bead bracelets and a copper wire ring for mamma.

Finally the price is decided upon, mulongl goes off to break the good news to his friend, and the dowry is paid. If the bride is a young girl, some time must elapse before the wedding can take place. She must first become a "dena." A partition is built in her mother's house close in a corner of the hut like a chickenpen. Into this enclosure the girl goes, and remains, to be fattened with all the food the family can spare for three months, without once coming out!

While she is there, she may not speak a word with any one, she must not wash in water, but must bathe daily in oil; she may not cut her hair, and she must spend all her time embroidering with beadwork a wonderful garment as pliable as silk,

On the morning after the first moon at the end of three months the "dena" comes out of her prison.

Behold! the slim girl who was be trothed has become so fat that can scarcely walk! From chin ankles she is clothed in a beaded skin of exquisite design, her own "handiher hair covers her face, and hangs in thick strands to her waist. Alas, for her departed beauty, she sways, bulges, or ripples like an unsteady brown balloon.

To-day is an anxious one for her weetheart for the dens must rur miles away, and, if any man can catch her before she gets there, he can claim her as his wife!

But her sweetheart catches her. carries her back to her house, and the final preparations for the wedding are then made. A short and peculiar ceremony is gone through with the aid of the local medicine-man, who acts as priest, and after much feasting on beef and maize, and the com-sumption of many huge pots of utulu, a light grain-beer, the time comes for the bridegroom to take home his bride.

He literally takes the burden of a wife upon his shoulders! He must carry her pick-aback from her fatherr's hut to his own. There he de-posits her, and turning round to the relations and friends who have followed, faces another spell of trouble Armed with clubs and sticks, the male relations of the bride set lustily upon the unfortunate bridegroom, and beat him until he flies for his life! Poor wretch! It is the Man-gati custom that the menfolk of the bride's family guard the hut in which she sleeps until the bridegroom can creep into it, unobserved, through a hole which he must scratch in the mud wall! If he is seen, woe betide him, for the whole lot set upon him, and belabor him might and main.

Many a bridegroom has got over this pleasant little custom by "doping" the beer at the wedding feast! friendly enemies soon fall asleep, and by the time morning comes he may creep, bruised and battered, into the hut to greet the fair maid whom he has won at such great risks.

Two Hundred Cheeses.

A British official reports that there is over two hundred different varieties of cheese. Of these, thirty-three varieties are made in the British Isles, where, it is pointed out, different districts have strikingly marked preferences in the matter of feature and color of cheeses. Thus Lancashire folk are specially fond of "Manchester White" cheese, while Norfolk people prefer a brick red variety. Derby, Glouces-ter, Leicester, and York each produce what may be termed regional cheeses and foreign competitors color their cheeses for these markets accordingly.

The well-known Roquefort cheese is made of sheep's milk, while Gruyere is made from the milk of goats. One of the queerest kinds is Schap-alegor, a Swiss green cheese which is so strong in flavor that only a frag-ment is eaten at a time.

Britain's Mystery Race

Most people imagine that the earliest civilization in Britain was Roman, says London Answers. But that is not the case. There are traces in Scotland of a mysterious culture earlier than that which followed in the wake of the all-conquering eagles of the Eternal City.

Long before the Romans set foot in Britain the Caledonians built a "dyke," with forts along it at regular intervals. It started on the East Coast of Scotland, went to within a mile of where Galashiels now stands, and then turned south through Scott's Borderland to Peel Feli, in Cumberland.

In three places this ancient fortification survives, and is known variously as the Catrail, the Dell's Dyke, and the Picts' Work Ditch. The dyke was some twenty-six feet broad, supported on either side by ramparts, each about seven feet high and twelve feet thick

All over Scotland are hundreds of forts built on hill-tops. The White Caterthun, in Forfarshire, is a good example of these. It consists of four circles of stone, the diameter of the inner circle being eighty paces. The stones are twenty-five feet thick the top and over a hundred feet thick at the base.

Beyond the outer circle is a ditch with an earthen breastwork round it, while beyond this, again, runs a double entrenchment. The entrances to these various circles are zigzagged, so that each remains covered by fortifications.

The fort at Bamukin, in Aberdeenshire, has five great stone circles, all perfectly round and flawlessly built, although there are no toolmarks to show how they were shaped.

These buildings are interesting but not puzzling, because we know for what purpose they were built; but there are others, commonly known as Picts' Burghs, to which no use can be assigned. burgh is a single tower fectly round in shape, wide at the bottom and narrowing towards the top from the outside. The outer walls of these towers, shaped into perfect circles, have no openings of any sort except the entrance. Obviously, then, the buildings were never intended for Inside, the walls slope the reverse way, and between the two are count-less rooms, often too small for people ever to have lived in them.

largest of these mystery towers is that of Rousay, in the Orkneys. At pottery the Caledonians could not compare with the Romans, the potter's wheel seems to have been unknown amongst them. But they almost excelled the "masters of the in their ornaments. world" mountains yielded their craftsmen gold, silver, bronze, amber, rubies, and rock crystals such as agate, jas-er, and cairngorms and jet. From these they made ornaments and weapons. Most people are familiar with the shoulder-brooches with which Highlanders fasten their plaids. Brooches such as these, only much more ela-borate, have been found in both cairns and towers. They are of gold or silver, or both, circular in shape, and intricately chased with interturning rings. Often they are jewel-studded. They were obviously made for fastening the heavy, many-hued

-tartan-stuffs mentioned by Ro man writers as being worn by the Caledonians. Even more interesting than the ornaments are the weapons of the people. From bronze they made themselves beautiful short swords, or long daggers, shaped like the gladi-oli leaves, on which the Romans later modelled their swords. The handles of these knives—"dirks" the Scots of a later day called them—were of gold and silver, richly chased and jewelled. Their shields, or targes, are also beautiful. They are small and round and are made of bronze, embossed with circles of jewels and raised

All these things and many others have been supposed to date back to about 500 B.C.; but this year a dis-covery, not yet fully investigated, has suggested that this early civilization suggested that this early criticators built up by Britain's mystery race may date as far as 2,000 B.C. or farther. On the Castle Rock, Edinburgh, has been found a complete map of the heavens as they were in days of the Pharaohs. Who drew this plan so long ago? Certainly no naked savage!

CROOKS AND CRANKS.

Purser Describes Peculiar Pas on Liners.

However many times a man m cross the Atlantic as a passenger, l sees comparatively little of life on floating hotel. Unknown to him, not a few of his fellows in the saloop may be almost penniless. I remem-ber one passenger, an American den tist, who left with a certain company as a pledge for his passage money his entire professional outfit, include ing many sets of artificial teeth. The security was not redeemed.

Another American got a passage on the security of a U.S. Government bond for $1,000. Shortly before sail-ing he requested that the bond should be sent to New York, so that he could redeem it a day or two after arriving

When the ship reached Sandy Hook, the passenger, who had run up a heavy bill, demanded his bond which, of course, the purser refused to give him till he had paid. He sald he would not pay anything, and a once entered an action for its recovery, with the result that the conpany was not only ordered to give i up, but to pay all costs. Under Amer lean law, scrip is real estate, which United States citizen abroad cannot transfer except in the presence of an American consul or a notary public Some years ago a woman crosse with us at least twenty times, and though on every occasion money of jewellery disappeared from a cabin we could not prove anything agains her.

It may be thought that the frequent appearance of her name in passenger lists was suspicious; but that in itself was nothing. One of the legends of the Liverpool service is that a certain woman would not sell her spaces in a Transaction of the service. sell her shares in a Transatlanti steamship company—shares which the directors were very anxious to acquire except on condition that she should have a free passage whenever she liked. When her terms were agreed to she sold her furniture and went to live on the company's boats.

Whether this story be true or false there is no doubt that some people do make homes of liners. I knew an American woman who for a long per-iod spent only two or three days on shore at a stretch, crossing the At-lantic in one boat and returning in the first that left after her arrival Ultimately her relatives considered this a clear proof of insanity, and brought an action to have her declared a lunatic.

A certain couple used to travel to Southampton together, visit the con-tinent, and then return by different routes-one from the Hampshire port and the other from Liverpool. At last an ex-Scotland Yard man was engaged by the American Government to shadow them. He followed them from Southampton to London, then to Dover and on to Amsterdam. There they gave him the slip, and he returned to England discomfited.

About a fortnight later, however, a local detective recognized one the men with a stranger at Southampton. He communicated with the American Consul, who cabled to his Government, giving the names in which they had booked passages, Both were arrested on arriving at New York, and diamonds worth thousands of dollars were found on them.

Some years ago a runaway betrayed himself in curious circumstances. When a certain boat touched at Queenstown, a New York passenger wished to land, so that he could return to Liverpool. He was prevented from carrying out his intention.

Nine months previously he had deserted his wife, and since then he had considered himself free. Shortly after his embarkation, however, he had seen his wife among a group of women in the steerage. She, too, was on her way to America, and consequently he had resolved to let her proceed alone. By means of a little diplomacy, man and wife brought together, and when the boat reached New York they left it to-gether, completely reconciled.

The Swing In Religious Ceremonies-

One often finds in the near vicinity of a Hindu temple, says a writer in an Indian paper, two high stone pillars, sometimes thirty feet high, with a stone cross piece, from which hang iron chains. These swings often play important part in the various fer tivals of the year, especially for the young people.

The very act of swinging on this sacred structure is pleasing to the deity of the temple, and when it is possible to combine both pleasure and worship, then it is not unnatural this form of exercise should be greatly appreciated. In certain seasons, especially the harvest season, the swing pecially the harvest season, the swing is in great demand, and religious ceremonies are performed by the priests of the temple. On the top bar of the swing it is not unusual to find a number of earthenware chattels, which are the home of the sacred pigeons connected with the temple.

These swings are of on built in the middle of the street, and they not infrequently constitute a real obstacle to traffic. But the authorities would certainly have great difficulty innersuading the temple people to as et to the removal of them. temple.

ELARTON SALT WORKS DRILLING NEW WELL

communication from the President (Major J. H. Franklin) has been received which explains why the plant of the Elarton Salt Works at Warwick has not been operating for sometime. It seems that, after making extensive alterations with the object of considerably increasing the daily outdecided that the first bed of salt at and that it would be policy to drill to the second bed at about 1250 feet. Unfortunately, an obstruction was met at 480 feet and the vibration caused by trying to get the drill past this, dislodged the steel casing above and it fell in and wedged the drill so tightly that it could not be moved either up or down and so closed for ever a well which had been in operation for such a long time.

However, the Company promptly decided that a new well must be sunk and that it would be advisable to strike the salt bed at some distance from the present boring, so a point was selected on the property as far west as possible and drilling there is rapidly proceeding, and it is confidently anticipated, that by the end of next month the plant will be running smoothly again, pumping the same full strength brine and making the same well-known Elarton Salt as here tofore, though in large quantities.
Major Franklin asks that friends and customers of the Com-pany will watch the advertising colamns of this paper for the actual date of re-opening and in the mean time he states that if any of them would like to see the improvements made and watch the drilling in pro gress, Mr. Youngson and Mr. Majury are on the spot every day and would

Local Health

Administration

Mr. Nevil Chamberlain, the Minister of Health of England, in speaking of the local administration of public health in that country refers to the "obsolete, cumbersome, illogical, wasteful and unjust" character of the machinery whereby such work is carried out. The remarks of the Minister might, with equal truth, be applied to the system of local health administration in operation in Ontario and the measures designed for improvement of this work in force in England, might with certain modification be employed to advantage by the local government of the province.

The Ontario system is briefly as follows: Each city, town, village and township has a local board of health and a medical officer of health. There are upwards of 900 of such local health governments in Ontario. In but eight of these, including the principal cities, can there be said to the others the organization consists chiefly of a part-time medical officer of health, who is a practising physician, with, as a rule, but small remun-eration and subject to the various, well-known disabilities of such a local officer. Little money is provided for public health purposes and what little is expended is frequently used at the wrong end, in the cure, rather than in the prevention of unsanitary conditions. The public receives little or none of the instruction so necessary to the advancement of sanitary meas-

There are, of course, notable in stances where the local health officer despite the difficulties under which he labours, gives a much better service than might be expected. But as a rule the administration is poor, the funds for public health work scanty and the personal application of the printhrift. like other qualifications for ciples of hygiene neglected. The former chief medical officer of the Local Government Board in England in speaking upon this subject in referto England and Wales, says "The inefficiency of the smaller sanitary authorities has been frequently exposed. There are in England and Wales 1727 sanitary authorities not including 82 county burroughs. total of 1809 compares with 317 education authorities and 635 boards of guardians. No one has suggested that the efficiency of the work of either educational or relief author ities is lowered by the relatively large areas and population served by them, and every line of evidence points to the opposite conclusion."

In Ontario, in dealing with the subject of local school management dozen to 20 in a rural municipality the Premier (as Minister of Education) has struck the keynote in the property of the prope tion) has struck the keynote in his recommendation that local school areas should in the interest of effici-ency and economy be combined. The to local public health administration. Opportunity should be allowed for the local units of a county to combine for sanitary purposes.

The townships, towns and villages of Ontario annually spend in the aggregate considerable sums of money for this purpose, without much to show for it. The figures for the year 000.00 or a total of $300.000.00. For places with full-time health organizations the salaries of the medical of health aggregate about $44,000.00 and for public health work apart from this salary bill the sum of $1,053,696.60.

The total for local public health administration part-time and full-time in Ontario reaches the sum of approximately one and one-half millions of dollars ($1,500,000.00).

Outside the eight cities with satis factory health administration, there is, with certain exceptions, little val-ue gained for the expenditure of this large sum of money.

Much of this expenditure is wasted or at least misapplied. There is no concerted effort to control diseases such as cancer, tuberculosis or the venereal diseases. There is no ade-quate pre-natal care of mothers and quate pre-natal care of mothers and infant mortality and the incidence of tuberculosis range high. The medical inspection of school children is only beginning and education of the public in the principles of hygiene, without which no administration can successfully operate to the best advantage, is sadly needed. Government expenditures, for example, in the care expenditures, for example, in the care of the tuberculous poor is steadily advancing being higher by $125,000 for the last year than that for 1923, despite the fact that year by year the government spends increasing amounts in the work of the Depart rn to the question of he th administration may improved. The experience of England. Wales and Scotland and of the United States has shown that the small town, village and township health unit is too small to bear the financial burden of a full-time public health organization and these countries are rather rapidly adopting the plan of Combining Municipalities for public health purposes. In Great Britain the unit is called a "combined area." In the United States the county is usually the unit. In Ontario where many of our countries are large in area one-half of a county might form the unit, or, where adjacent counties are small two or more might be combined. The advantages of such a plan are apparent. The aggregate funds now spent might be utilized in the employment for the area of the full-time organization. A notable example of such a combination is to be found at Windsor (Essex Border Municipalities) where under the direction of an energetic, well-trained medical officer of health there may be seen one of the most efficient health departments to be found on the continent and where be an efficient health service. In all a couple of years ago virulent small-) first grade cream, he will receive Little legislative amendment is > needed. Permission might be given to counties to substitute county control for the existing municipal health administration using the combined resources of the municipalities for this sources of the municipalities for this ments for taking care of his cream purpose. Instead of an army of 900 or more health officers, we would eventually have perhaps 60. These men would embrace public health work as their daily business and give to that business the supervision and enthusiasm at present lacking, and which is necessary to the success of any undertaking.

The work of public health depends chiefly on three factors, viz., sufficient funds, competent management, good citizenship are virtues which have to be appreciated, striven for and acquired by each individual for himself. But there must first be trained and competent management to lead the way, and the provision of reasonable funds for expenses. Public Health is purchasable

When the System ls All Run Down

Often All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood.

There are many women who have one been invalids or semi-invalids so long cent. ness, headaches and weakness so long that they have given up hope of enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. To all run-down, nervous people the experience of Mrs. H. J. Cameron, Watervale, N.S., will be of deep interest. She says:—"About two years ago I was in a miserable, run-down condition. I was unable to do my work, my head ached day and night, my nerves were all unstrung and for three weeks I could not eat or sleep. I then decided to give Dr Williams' Pink Pills a trial and got six boxes. By the time I had used half of them I felt much better, and when I had taken the six boxes I was as well as ever. I could work all day and not feel tired and have been strong and healthy ever since. I have never taken any medicine that did me so much good and will always highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink

Cream to be Graded Next Year

THE CARE OF CREAM ON TH FARM

(By Geo. H. Barr, Director of Dairying)

GRADING cream and paying for it on a graded basis will be introduced in the creameries of this Province early in 1926. It is therefore important that cream producers become familiar with the standards for the different grades and plan how they can produce cream that will bring the highest price. Grading the cream and paying for it on a graded basis provides at once three markets for cream; one for special grade, one for 1st grade and one for 2nd grade cream. It is the farmers' privilege to produce cream to suit any one of these markets.

If he produces special cream, he will be rewarded by receiving the highest possible price. If he produces pox, instead of spreading, as it did in a slightly lower price. If a second other communities, was limited to 67 grade cream is produced, a still lower grade cream is produced, a still lower price will have to be accepted. Off grade cream is of little value and should be returned. The care given will be rewarded by receiving a better price than the man who will not go to any expense in taking care of his cream. The grade standards and the differences in prices are as follows;

Special Grade

This grade shall include any lot of cream which is clean in flavour, of uniform consistency and suitable for making butter of this grade. Its acidity shall not be more than thirty-one hundredths (.30%) of one per cent. at the time of being graded at the creamery where it is to be made into butter.

First Grade

This grade shall include any lot of cream which is reasonably clean in flavour, of uniform consistency and suitable for making butter of this grade. Its acidity shall not be more than sixty-one hundredths (.60%) of one per cent. at the time of being graded at the creamery where it is to be made into butter.

Second Grade This grade shall include cream that does not meet the requirements specified for first grade cream; such as cream that is bitter, stale, musty metallic or otherwise unclean in flavour, or has acidity of over sixtyone hundredths (.60%) of one per

Off Grade

This grade shall include any cream with a strong objectionable of flavour, such as gasoline, leeks, stable or such other flavours that may render cream unfit for making second grade butter.

Spread in Price

A premium of (1) one cent per butter-fat shall be paid for special grade cream over first grade cream, and a premium of (3) cents per pound butter-fat shall be paid for first grade cream over second grade cream,

Special grade cream will be produced when the cows are provided with pure water and clean wholesome when the cream is cooled immediately after separating and kept creamery. The same care is necessary to produce first grade cream, except that it may not be necessary to cool it quite so much, or deliver it so of ten. It is impossible to produce either special or first grade cream unless it is properly cooled. In summer an abundant supply of cold water will do this—but we believe it will pay the cream producers of Ontario to provide a supply of ice for this pur pose and use it in an insulated tank. Second grade cream will likely be produced when the cows are allowed to eat highly-flavoured when the separator is washed only once a day, or not that often, whe the utensils used are not properly washed and scalded, when the cream cans become rusty, or when the cream is not cooled sufficiently. Metallic flavour is usually caused by keeping the cream in rusty cans and allowing it to become sour.

Off grade cream will be due to the cows eating leeks, or exposing the cream or milk to odours from the stable or a gasoline engine.

Wholesome feed and pure water for the cows—clean separators and utensils and cooling the cream quick-ly to under fifty degrees will eliminate any danger of second grade cream. The colder cream is kept, the longer it will keep sweet. Warm cream should never be mixed with cream already cooled.

Arnprior, Ontario.—"I must write and tell you my experience with your medicine. I was working at the factory for three years and became so run-down that I used to take weak spells and would be at home at least one day each week. I was treated by the doctors for anemia, but it didn't seem to do me any good. I was told to take a rest, but was unable to, and kept on getting worse. I was troubled mostly with my periods. I would sometimes pass three months, and when it came it would last around two weeks, and I would have such pains at times in my right side that I could hardly walk. I am only 19 years of age and weigh 118 pounds now, and before taking the Vegetable Compound I was only 108 pounds. I was sickly for two years and some of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken a bottle of it I felt a change. My mother has been taking it for a different ailment and has found it very satisfactory. I am willing to tell friends about the medicine and to answer letters asking about it."—Miss HAZEL BERNDT, Box 700, Arnprior, Ontario.

A day out each week shows in the pay envelope. If you are troubled with some weakness, indicated by a run-down con-dition, tired feelings, pains and irregu-larity, let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegeta-ble Compound help you.

The submerged wreck of the schooner Nancy was discovered by enthusiastic historians at Wasaga Beach, near Collingwood, last week. The Nancy was an armed schooner laden with pork and flour for the be-leaguered British garrison at Fort Michillimackinack during the war of 1812 with the United States and was burned to the water's edge after a stiff fight with American vessels on August 14th, 1814.

Present indications point to one of the best crop years Western Canada has experienced in a decade, according to the weekly agricultural report of the Canadian Pacific Railway ssued Monday. Prospects of a bumper yield in all three Prairie Provinces are uniformly bright. Fields generally present a splendid appearance, the stand being heavy and color good. Early wheat and barley are reported to be heading out at many points.
