Terra Nova Signals the Sad News When Passing Christ Church New Zealand-Full Particulars Will Not Be Known Until She Puts Into Lyttleton-Scott Reached the Pole on January 18, 1912.

[Special Cable to The Advertiser.]

Auckland, New Zealand, Feb. 10.—Emaciated and frozen bodies along a snow-covered trail, men, ponies and dogs perished in a courageous effort to reach civilization after their physical and scientific exploration of the South Pole-such is the short story brought to New Zealand today by the rescue ship Terra Nova, which left Christchurch, Dec. 14, to search for Captain Robert Scott and his party of explorers, who had been in the Antarctic region for nearly three years.

The Terra Nova is very reticent about giving information. A from the South Pole. The entire party perished. terrible story of calamity is gathered from vessels which bespoke her in distant waters. It was hoped at first that she carried many survivors of Scott's party, but this is now considered unlikely. GOT BACK SAFELY.

It is stated that Scott's party spent three months in ultrapolar regions, gathering extremely valuable geographical and astronomical information. Their arrival there one month after Amundsen did not discourage the plucky explorer and his men. They started back in good condition, and, according to what can be ascertained, they were quite near McMurdo Sound-which was considered an absolutely safe base of supplies—when they were of the eastern party; Lieut. ONLY BRIEF BULLETINS.

Only a few brief bulletins were sent from the New Zealand port of Omarau by the captain of the Terra Nova, who related simply the fate of the party, and then proceeded with his vessel to continue and to complete my work." for the port of Lyttleton, where he expects to arrive on Thursday.

The disaster came as an utter surprise to London, and cast a gloom over the community which has been unequalled since the death of King Edward.

Such a tragic outcome of a polar expedition has not occurred since the disappearance in the northern seas of Prof. Andre, the Swedish explorer, with his two Swedish companions, his companions met their death.

A FINE OFFICER.

Scott was considered the finest type of British naval officer, and the public here was highly expectant of his success. While his achievement in attaining the pole fills Britishers with pride, a feeling of disappointment was caused by the fact that Amundsen had reached his goal before the Britisher.

Oamaru, New Zealand, Feb. 10.—Captain Robert F. Scott and his party were overwhelmed by a blizzard on their return journey

They reached the South Pole on Jan, 18, 1912. The Terra Nova, which sailed on June 1, 1910, for New Zealand and the South Pole, was not joined by Capt. Robert F. Scott until a few days later at Cardiff.

MANY FAMOUS SCIENTISTS.

The expedition consisted of 28 officers and scientists, in addition to a crew of 23 picked men from the British Royal Navy.

The principal members of the expedition besides Capt. Scott were: Lieut. E. R. G. R. Evans, R.N., second in command, of the proposed western party; Dr. E. A. Wilson, chief of the scientists staff, zoologist and artist; Lieut. V. L. A. Campbell, R.N., leader meteorological work; Lieut. H. E. de P. The dispatch from Oamaru, New Zealand, shows that in fifteen days he covered the remaining 150 miles, having travelled at the rate of 10 miles a day. It was on his return that he and his who left Dane's Island, Spitzbergen, in 1897, and were never afterlent in the Antarctic region.

Nothing is yet known as to the point at which Capt. Scott and had ever been gathered together for such an adventure. It sailed from Port Chalmers, near Christchurch, New Zealand, on Nov. 29, 1910. The Terra Nova made direct south into Ross Sea. Early in January, 1911, she forced her way into McMurdo Sound, where winter quarters were established on Cape Evans.

A VERY DIFFIFULT TASK.

The members of the expedition had a very arduous task in putting their stores on shore. However, they were able to make themselves very comfortable there in houses of which they had carried the separate portions with them to be placed together on their arrival, and they at once started their observations.

Provisions for a three years' stay in the ice regions had been taken on board the Terra Nova, and these were placed on shore. Continued on Page Eleven

Three Pay Death Penalty in Sing Sing Electric Chair

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Three murderers were put to death in the electric chair, at the Sing Sing Prison, just before daylight. Two of them murdered women. All three went to the chair with firm steps, and each as he passed from the cell-house to the death-chamber called back to those who remained awaiting their end. The executions passed off without incident. Tw of those who died wrote statements repudiating charges they had made implicating others.

The first man to die was Seppe Grafalo, a huge his wife with a knife when she threatened to divorce him George Bishop, a negro, small and frail, was the second to take the chair. His crime was the murder of a white woman. Mrs. Margaret Bell, in Brooklyn in October, 1912. Bent on rob-

DOES NOT SEE HOW BLIZZARD COULD DO IT

Says That Scurvy Was More Likely the Cause-Words of Sympathy From Peary.

New York, Feb. 10.—"I cannot leve it is true. It is inconceivable that an expedition as well equipped as Capt, Scott's could have perished be-ore a blizzard."

Lieut. Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer, and one-time associate of Capt. Scott, so expressed himself today, when shown the dispatches from New Zealand telling of the fate of Capt. Scott and party. "What I have always feared most vas scurvy," he added. "In fact, the greatest danger of all polar expeditions s scurvy—a danger far greater than any blizzard. One of Capt. Scott's men ied some time ago of scurvy, and it s possible that all others were weakened by the microbes, they fell asleep on the storm. It is the onl yway that can explain it.

I can explain it.

Expects Better News.

"I considered Capt. Scott a most efficient and careful explorer. I served under him as a third lleutenant on a polar expedition ten years ago."

Sir Ernest Shackleton said that on his South Polar expedition he and his men had experienced some very severe bilzzards, but had been able to face them without disaster. "I would rather await fuller reports concerning Capt. Scott before making any extended comment," he concluded.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1 obert E. Peary, U. S. N., 1 "Th news comes to me as a terrible shock. Mrs. Scott and the relatives of the brave men who perished with Capt. Scott, and the whole British nation, have my deepest, sincerest my deepest, sincerest and most heartfels sympathy and condolence."

LONDON, MONDAY, FEB. 10.

THE POLAR TRAGEDY.

There has seldom been sadder new to Britain and the British than the announcement of the disaster to Capt Scott's party. We are prepared for lists of the dead after a battle. The foundering of an ocean steamer carries off lives not all so select as precions But Scott and his companion were the elite of mental and physical manheod, scientists, specialists, and picked men from the British royal

The party was elaborately fitted out in every way. When a light equipment like Amundsen's had weathered the trip so successfully, it did not seem possible that any general calamity should overcome the British expedi-

The disaster recalls to mind the manifold terrors of the ice-ribbed zone, as the loss of the Titanic revived full sense of the perils of the sea. The howling wilderness in whose north and south embrace the world moves round is more appalling even than the sea. It is unmapped, unpathed, and there are no wireless messages from its labyrinth. The everlasting snow keeps blowing the surface about, ice mountains crack open or roll together men knew all these risks, they had

Sir John Franklin the spread of the spoils system. was an explorer closer allied to the Drakes and Frobishers; he and his Sir John was over sixty years of age when he perished with all his men. Captain Scott and his companions were many of them heroes of both science and the sea, their equipment was of the twentieth century in every respect, and the gallant leader was in the prime of his life and powers. The whole thing is fearfully tragic.

The report which says that "the entire party perished" may be misleading, it is hoped. Perhaps only those engaged in the final dish to the pole with Scott himself are meant. The item of information that Scott reached the pole on Jan. 18, 1912, a month and four days later than Amundsen, gives not only a melancholy satisfaction in itself, but suggests that some of the party must have survived to furnish such information. May this prove to be the case. If there are survivors, then we shall have them, and the reports or records of the scientists, perhaps, the fruits of an expedition undertaken by heroes not in vain. The world may yet be thankful for the Argo's return with at least a remnant of the Argonauts and their Golden

HANDS ACROSS THE NORTH SEA.

Evidently things are shaping up to something like an agreement between Great Britain and Germany as to the limitation of their navies. There is no reason to suppose that the German vain search for traces of her husband. Government ever entertained the idea who was martyred to the northern with what he thought a complimentary of evening up with Great Britain in snows. A similar pathos surrounds the association. naval strength. Its avowed object from the first, to build a navy proportionate way to New Zealand in the joyful ex- and I know that." to the growth of German commerce, pectation of meeting him at the outand to serve as a makeweight in German diplomacy, was evidently the actfor sea power.

The shipbuilding program of Germany has been steadily carried out up to the present. It has not gone beyond the measure openly announced. In 1909 her suburban home?" the assertion of the First Lord of the 'Admiralty Mr. McKenna, that the Ger. man program had been accelerated, caused something like a panic, but it was shown that Mr. McKenna had been misled by Admiralty officials.

Now it grows clear that the German Government is prepared to accept an understanding, if not even an agreement, on the basis of relative strength laid down by Mr. Churchill last spring. The 16-10 proportion, says the Cologne Gazette is practical, and approved by Admiral Von Tirpitz as a modus vivendi. That Germany should be satisfied with such an arrangement is proof of her limited objects.

MAJOR BEATTIE'S POSITION. The Kingston Whig rightly says that Major Beattie cannot escape all reproach in Dr. Campbell's case by saying he knew nothing about the dismissal beforehand. Says the Whig under the heading "A Very Weak Explanation"

"Major Beattie could have made his influence felt by insisting that the wrong be righted. He could have made it clear that as the memher for London, who knew Dr. Campbell and his worth best, he would not stand for an act which reflected upon him and the Government. "In the whole postoffice service there was not one who stood higher in the public esteem than Dr. Campbell. He had lived long in London He had been an active and useful citizen. In many public capacities he had given the people the benefit of his splendid talents. Moreover. he is a man of very modest bearing, a Liberal, it is true, but one who gave his party a consistent and clean support for many a year. Ho was an official against whom not a hurtful word could be honestly spoken. To say that he was a partizan in office or to insinuate it, was to invite a denial of the most emphatic kind.

"Major Beattie, knowing the expostoffice inspector well, should have lone more than wash his hands of the responsibility for the dismissal. He should have done more than utter a protest, based largely upon the fact that he had not been consulted. He should have so actedpresumably with the concurrence of the better Conservatives of his city

-that never again would any faction in his district involve him and his party in a serious scandal.' It is idle to pretend that Dr. Campell's dismissal originated with his ublic servants without cause has een vested in members by the Government. It is the first instalment of the civil service "reform" promised by the Premier. That the member or members who demanded Dr. Camp. fenced with the fee before, and it bell's head should not even intimate seemed that they knew the tricks of their intention to Major Beattie shows the dangerous game. But as the ice that they regarded him as negligible tore the Titanic's side, so again human or relied upon him to make no open plain if he is held in a measure re-

WOMAN'S DEBT TO ADDISON

[By Special Arrangement With the Winnipeg Telegram.]

I wonder if the women suffragists ever manage in the pauses of their busy lives to read in the pages of the Spectator papers written by that master of wit and persiflage, Joseph Addison? Mrs. Pankhurst would be leath to the woman militant, but she and her followers might well revere his memory for what he did for the fair sex in an age which looked upon Eve as little better than a toy or a household drudge. Addison shared with his friend and co-worker, Richard Steele, and ardent admiration for womankind. Steele passed probably the finest compliment that has ever been paid to any woman, when he said of the Lady Elizabeth Hastings, "To love her was a liberal education." Addison was almost as great a friend and admirer of womankind. He did not indulge in fulsome flattery; he was alive to the peccadilloes of Eve; his keen eye saw through many of her shams and vanities; but she had no truer friend in the eighteenth century than Mr. Spectator.

regard Addison as a patron saint of Sympathy Expressed in Practical Manner-Good Sums Realized.

> Yesterday was set apart by the Anglican clergy of the city as Sanatorium Sunday, and special appeals for the Byron institution were made from nearly all of the pulpits.

A special collection in aid of the work of fighting tuberculosis will be taken next Sunday, and it is expected that a substantial sum will be raised as a result of yesterday's appeal.

"It is a Christlike work," said Very Rev. Dean Davis at St. James' Church, yesterday morning, "to do all that we can to alleviate human suffering and to prolong life." ING and BOILING ARE ALL GOOD DIS-INFECTANTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD

BY MRS. ALICE P. NORTON.

Head of the Department of Home Economics of the University of Chicago.

In cleaning the house much of the dirt may be removed simply by mechanical means, such as rubbing scraping, brushing, scouring. The old fashioned sand once used for the latter purpose has been replaced by the various sand soaps, and modern cleaning powders; but the present-day housekeeper is not so careful as was her great grandmother in adapting the texture of her cleaning materials to the article to be cleansed. Many a bath tub has been ruined by the use of too

Some things, like silver, may be so easily scratched that nothing coarser than the inest whiting may be used. Rotten stone, another very fine powder, mixed with a little oil, may be used for polishing brass. Faucets cleaned in this way remain untarnished longer when cleaned with acid, since a film of the oil remains to protect them from the Powdered pumice stone is a little coarser, and may be used for less delicate mals. Sand and sand soaps are suitable chiefly for unfinished wood or the bottoms of king kettles. As a rule, all such cleansing materials should be first put upon a cloth, nd not applied directly to the surface.

Painted woodwork, unless very soiled, is best cleaned by washing with water and little soap. If spots remains put a little whiting on the cloth, or if this is not sufficient, with care, a coarser powder. Painted walls must be washed with an up and down motion. each part carefully dried as soon as washed.

Varnished wood may be washed occasionally with warm (NOT HOT) water, conining a little soap. Linseed oil soap is particularly good for this purpose. If common pap is used the varnish looks much better if rubbed over with a little oil or furniture Painted floors are easier to care for if they have a coat of shellac. They may then be treated like varnished floors. A coat of wax may be put over either paint or varnish, and no water should then be used, but the floor should be wiped with a dry cloth. Occasionally, perhaps twice a year, the wax should be renewed. Sometimes dust is held in place by grease, or some sticky substance. This must first be dissolved, or combined chemically, before the dust can be easily removed. Kerosene, gasoline, ether, are solvents of grease, but the two latter must be used with great care, and it is better to substitute a non-inflammable solvent. Washing soda and ammonia combine with grease to form soap, while the action of soap is partly chemical.

Some spots and stains on wood can be removed only by removing some of the wood itself with sand paper, or steel wool, and then replacing the finish. Sometimes part of the finish may be dissolved and redistributed. Alcohol, for example, will dissolve shellac and varnish; and a white spot on such a finish, whether caused by water, or heat, or alcohol itself, may usually be removed by pouring a little alcohol around it, and rubbing quickly over the spot with a lintless cloth. In the same way spots may be removed from waxed surfaces with turpentine.

Clothing and fabrics, like the house, are to be kept clean for the double reason of health and beauty. The same distinction is to be made and the same emphasis placed. Handkerchiefs and napkins are washed for sanitary reas-

Washing is a simple but effective means of disinfection. Soap itself is a mild disinfectant. The drying in fresh air and sunlight is still more efficacious, and the boiling to which sheets, towels and handkerchiefs are subjected completely sterilizes them. Ironing, too, may help in disinfection. The hot iron on the damp cloth forms steam, one of the best of disinfectants.

There is much to be said for the old-fashioned method of putting clothes in soak in cold water over night, with plenty of soap rubbed upon the most soiled places, for it certainly lessens the labor of washing, and the consequent wear upon the clothes. Plenty of water; thorough rinsing of clothing from soap before putting it into the bluing water, to save the chance of rust stains if the "blue" you have contains iron; and a clean place for drying are essentials for good washing.

If you are without "set" tubs, try emptying the tub with a bit of rubber hose. Fill the hose with water and insert one end in the water in your tub, while you lower the other end to an outlet below the level of the tub. You will have made a siphon that should empty the tub quickly, and almost completely.

And, please, consider whether you ought not to have a washing machine! LABOR SAVING IDEAS in household work are plentiful in Mrs. Norton's next article, written for the women readers of this newspaper who do their own work,

The Brantford Expositor has quite a write-up in Saturday's edition on the Paris-London game at Ingersoll. The Expositor admits that London had the better team, the first paragraph of the story being as follows:

Well, the Londoners had it on the Green Shirts. There's no use denying it, the manager admits it, and anyone who saw the game will say the same. The Parisians put up the fight of their lives—but it was no use. Fraser was by far the best man on the Paris line-up, and he stopped scores of shots. With an ordinary net guardian the score would have been 18 to 3. As it was, however, the score was the same as that by which London lost at Paris. SOME PIPES.

But then the Expositor says some other things that are not exactly true. Here are two of them:

Reid was the most promising Junior in the O. H. A. last year, playing for Seaforth. He was grabbed up by the Londoners for this year.

Grannary played in Detroit last year, but is a London fans these statements are amusing. Reid has been in London for over a year. He did play a couple of games in Seaforth last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother, but he came to London the last year, together with his brother.

amusing. Reid has been in London for over a year. He did play a couple of games in Seaforth last year, together with his brother, but he came to London before the hockey season closed and played a couple of games in this city with local teams. He is managing Brewster's east end store at present, and came here to better his position. Hockey was a secondary consideration.

As for Grannary, he has never been in Detroit in his life. Neither is he a London boy. He is an easterner, and nothing was known of his hockey ability until he appeared on the ice when the London team first held their practices early in December

After the game the Paris manager said: "Well, we were beaten fairly and square-ly, and we have no kick coming. London had it on us."

At the station one Paris man wanted to bet $5 that London would lose their next game. Instantly there were about 25 five-spots shown, and the man who wanted to bet changed his mind.

Thistle Club Wants Forty Curlers to Report to Secretary to Play Games With St. Thomas.

Secretary Tillson, of the London histles, informed The Advertise noon today that the first games in the McDonald-Emslie trophy matches will e played in St. Thomas and London n Friday night next. The regular weekly bonspiel of the Thistle Club has been called off as a result of the decision to play the trophy matches. Five rinks from the Thistles will play in London against five rings of St Thomas curlers, and five rinks of Thistles will go to St. Thomas the same night, and meet five more rinks n the Railway City.

This competition always provides a St. Thomas, and as St. Thomas has already captured the cup an effort by the London rinks, both in London and St. Thomas, is added together at the end of each game, and the total number of points for the whole three determines the winner.

Finicky Appetites Put in Order

You Can Sit Right Down and Eat Anything Served If You Get Acquainted With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

With a most pathetic sigh, the dyspeptic sits down and "views with alarm" his hungry companions. Now, the best doctrine for most people to hand out to suffering stomachs is to couple a square meal with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. To sit down to a good meal and eat whatever is served is getting back to the good old days when granddad carved the roast; when the family made a clean-up; and when good appetites with sound digestion produced the men and women that have made our nation what it is. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the dyspeptic's hope. They are a natural restorative of healthy action to the stomach and small intestines, because they supply the elements that the weak stomach lacks-pepsin, golden seal and other digestives. If you are afflicted with any symptoms of stomach trouble, be assured that your digestive organs are losing power-they need help and there is no more sensible help to be given them than to supply elements which will do the work of digestion for them.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been found by test to have digestive powers, one grain of the active principle of these tablets being sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of ordinary food. It is plain that no matter what the condition of your stomach, or how far your disease has progressed, one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken at meal-time will do the work-give your stomach an opportunity to regain its lost powers, the muscles will be strengthened, the glands invigorated, and you will be a

A little Tillson's makes a lot of porridge A lot of Tillson's costs but little

Only one tablespoonful of Tillson's Rolled Oats makes a big dish of delicious porridge. Yet a package of Tillson's containing enough for more than 50 dishes costs only 25 cents - less than half a cent a dish.

And Tillson's are the flakiest, tastiest, cleanest, quickest-cooking rolled oats you can buy.

All the flakes are rolled evenly thin and not one is broken. That means Tillson's cook evenly, and the porridge is never pasty. It's ready in 15 minutes.

Tillson's are freer from hulls than any other rolled oats. And being pan-dried in enclosed pans, they have all the appetizing goodness of the natural oats.

"Then let's go," he urged.

He shoved back his chair and stepped across to her side.

"Julie," he cried, with an outburst of his old-time passion, "we can pack up to-niorrow and leave here on Menday.

We've got the money. I've saved every cent this winter. If ye want we'll buy our passage an' take our honeymoon that way. We've never had a honeymoon."

He held out his arms to her.

Under the stimulation of the heat and ner cheeks flushed a deep scarlet, her lips half open.

He had seen her like this before, and with the confidence bred of the past he stooped quickly and put his arms about her. He kissed her hair in an ecstasy of surprise and delight. He lifted her head, and then he felt a quick struggle and found that she had escaped him.

It was the grip of his arms that frightened her off.

Of course, the vulgar innuendo that 'Gene's voice ha carried with it was silly, but stripped of that, wasn't it true that Nat had occupled her thoughts a good deal of late? The query left her thoughtful and a little bit excited,

CHAPTER XXIX

The Stranger.

Nat Page had driven away that night without even so much as a glimpse of Julie at the door, and this made a lone-some trip of the ride back home. It was a clear, cold night, with the sky lighted by the stars alone. The latter, however, as though recognizing their responsibility in the moonless purple, were out in full force and shining their brightest. He allowed the horse to walk, and the sleigh creaked dolorously over the frozen snow. He would have been glad of company to save him from his thoughts—any other human being—and so, when he saw in the pine woods ahead of him the figure of someone afoot he whipped up the horse. As he drew nearer he was surprised to find that it was a woman. Not only that, but she was burdened with some heavy bundle which she carried under a shawl hugged close to her shoulder.

"Jump in," he said. "It's a cold night to walk."

She started toward him as though to accept his invitation, but half there she slumped to the ground. In a second he was at her side. A sharp wail came from the bundle which she had dropped.

"Good Lord!" he cried. "It's a kid."
Bending over the woman, he saw that she had fainted. He lifted her quickly into the sleigh and wrapped the robe around her. He picked up the child clumsily and placed it on his lap beneath his coat. At first he was inclined to turn back, but it was as near to his house as to any other, and so, whipping up the horse, he went on at a gallop. At the top of Hio Hill he knew by the darkened windows that his mother had already gone to bed. His own house, on the other hand, was alight with welcome. Podgoritza, Montenegro, Feb. 10 —
The Montenegrin army besieging the Turkish fortress of Scutari carried the great Bardanjoli hill by assault at halfpast ten this morning after some hours of severe fighting. The infantrymen on several occasions came into such close quarters that hand-to-hand fighting was general along the line.

Bardanojoli hill dominates Scutari, from the eastern side, and the Monte. negrins are mounting siege guns on the heights to bombard the principal points of the city. Fighting has gone on since early today, right around the city the Turkish defenders disputing the ground against the besiegers with fierce determination and courage.

ing and re-constructing the office owing to the sale of the city hall to the Royal Bank. As compared with other years the items general expense and office salaries actually amount to $10,-867.59, which is 9.2 per cent of the revenue from consumers, or only .7 per cent more than in 1908. This increase of general expense and office salaries will be readily understood if the high rate of wages in the past few years is taken into consideration together with the fact that whereas up till 1909 only 360 meters were installed there are to date 1,660 in use, which entail a great deal of extra expense. For 1908, Ald. Richter takes the net surplus as $31,408.37, whereas this includes the sum of $4,846.49, which was the unexpended balance of certain appropriations made in previous years, and which should surely not be treated as revenue in making comparisons. If we apply Ald. Richter's method of figuring to the year 1907 we find that while the water rates for consumers were $92,428.63, the general expense and salaries amounted to $12,691.00 for that year, or to 13.7 per cent of reeipts from consumers' rates! But it must appeal to the sense of iny fair-minded person that it is entirely fallacious to try to arrive at onclusions concerning any business om two items of expense alone; total eccipts and total expenditures, are the only true basis of comparison. I attach a statement from which you and expenditures is practically a con-stant since 1908, in spite of the fact that we are now operating two pumping stations instead of one. The cost of operating Horton street station for 1912 was $14,422.08. demand on the station was only 1,000,-000 gallons per day, although the wells ould yield two and a half times that amount, while the capacity of the plant is 6,000,000 gallons per day. If he springs at Springbank would yield 1,000,000 gallons more per day than they actually do, this additional amount ould be pumped from there withoutout further expense for power and atendance; but this water cannot be procured at Springbank, and so the com-missioners must carry the extra expense of $14,400 for the Horton street station, and, in addition, the fixed charges thereon, amounting to nearly $6,800 per annum. It is hardly necessary to mention in this connection that the station has been the means of sav-"Although there is a possibility that ing the citizens over $100,000 in insur-

To sum up, as compared with the years before the advent of hydro and the construction of the servatives to take no further part in Horton street station, the commissioners now must bear extraordinary expense as follows:

extension 4.000 00 It should thus be clear to any unprejudiced person that to show increasing net surpluses under the conditions outlined above must mean very careful and efficient operation.

It is one of Ald. Richter's favorite contentions that every city department should stand on its own feet; why then the form of holding up supply remains does he not give credit in his statement for service rendered the city by the waterworks department in the up-keep of hydrants and other machinery for fire-fighting purposes, as well as for water furnished for street watering and Victoria Hospital Is Greatly Crowded public buildings? Moreover, the steam engine equipment and the boilers at Springbank, as well as the gas engine driven compressor and pump at Horton street are maintained solely for fire-fighting purposes. each, while the charges in other cities

Dead General's Son Committed Suicide

He shot himself through the heart because of grief over his father's death. Young Reyes was a well-known attorney, and was once counsel for Felix Diaz.

Mr. Pocock Combats Mr. Richter's by most remarkable methods. While he considers the $10,000 depreciation on construction account should be charged to revenue, he gives no credit whatever for the amounts paid on capital accounts out of revenue. Also, deducting the interest from the surplus, he includes with it the sinkpresented by Ald. Richter to the city ing fund, set aside from year to year for the redemption of the debenture debt, in fact, treats it as an expense. I wish to thank you for giving me ly two items of expense, i.e., "salaries this opportunity of presenting in and general" (or unclassified) expense, valued paper a true statement of the and compares them with receipts from affairs of the waterworks department. BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FIERY METEORS

The Skies Were Illuminated by a Score of Ethereal Tramps Last Evening.

PHENOMENON STRIKING

Some of the Meteors Were Very Large, While Others Were Not So Great in Extent-Many See Them.

A wonderful display of metors in the sky last night about 9 o'clock thrilled a large number of citizens who were fortunate enough to be on the streets at the time. It was a most thrilling exhibition, and created a profound impression on the eye wit-

The meteors came from the northvest and proceeded to all appearances n a leisurely manner towards the The first was large in size, with a orilliant tail of light. It seemed to be but a few feet above the earth. Many approximated it at 100 feet, but distances at night are none too reliable, and the meteors were probably many thousands of feet distant. Follow the Leader. As the first meteor sped across the sky the vague outlines of a man's figure could be seen. This was not the vivid imagination of some supersensitive person, but several people who saw the display from various quarters in the city declared this to be the ase. On some superstitious people it ad rather a depressing effect, as they immediately began to conjure up terrible things to happen in this sinful ld world. Following the leader there were a arge number of them. One series was irst seen as a large ball. When close at hand it spread out, forming inumerable little meteors leisurely rossing the blue sky. There were stars, and for a period of several min-utes they held the watchers spell-

The appearance of meteors is not unusual, but the brilliancy of the display last evening is rather unusual, ew of the eye witnesses having had the privilege of seeing anything like it prior to this time.

Phenomenon Not Unusual.

Prof. Dearness also explained that the phenomenon was not unusual, although the display may have been unusually brilliant, The earth in its progress passes rapidly through pockets of gas, which are ignited by the friction, and ignite, causing a vivid illumination. This process is going on continually, although it is impossible o see many of the meteors. It was reported that some of the neteors had struck the earth, causing a loud report, but this is not borne out by a majority of those who were privileged to see the display. The orbs were headed towards the southeast when last seen, and showed no disposition whatever to drop in London or anywhere near it.

The number could not be approximated, but there were over a score of them. The largest was greater in size than the celebrated Halley's comet, of which so much was written a few

Composition of Meteors. The average meteor, or meteorite, as it may be called, is simply a mass of on or nickel and rarely of stone comosition. Like an infinite number of other solid substances in space it is forced in a swift motion by magnetic attractions. The meteors seen last night were very probably pure iron. wing to their rapid movement they would take on a spherical shape. Attracted magnetically to the earth's surface they would come at an angle determined by their own and the earth's speed of motion. While in space they were extremely cold, their temperature being about the same as that of the ether, namely, about 200 or 300 degrees below zero. Descending to the zone of the atmosphere, which commences about 100 miles above the earth, they suddenly ignited, due to the friction of the air, and, of ocurse, became at once visible as glowing bodies o the people on London's streets. As they were travelling at from 30 to 50 miles per second they must have struck the earth a moment or so after having een seen. It will be remembered that about seven years ago a meteor of iron weighing six pounds lighted near a nouse in the vicinity of Shelburne, Ont. t had imbedded itself several feet in he earth. The meteors that fly through space vary in size from a cubic millimetre, or very tiny pea to bodies weighing many tons. Those that are consumed in the atmosphere fall to the earth's surface as dust. In the Arctic circle where they have perpetual snow, me-teoric dust is commonly seen.

HOGS WERE SCARCE AT $8.25 PER HUNDRED

Supply in Country Reported To Be Smaller Than Last Year.

Only a fair-sized shipment of live hogs was made from the local market today, although the price, $3.25 per July cwt., was higher than the prices paid at the majority of the shipments this winter. It is stated that the supply of live and dressed hogs in the country this winter is considerably less than that of last season, and it is expected that the prices will remain throughout the remainder of the win-ter. The high price of beef also is cause for the firm prices of pork. Dressed hogs were not very plentiful this morning, and the sales were made at prices ranging from $11.50 to $11.75 A dozen loads of hay were sold today, and the prices were the same as prevailed on Saturday, from $11 to $13

ONE MORE REASON FOR COSTLY LIVING

Pittsburg Visitor Declared That Smoke Nuisance Adds to Problem.

ADVOCATES CONSUMERS

Dr. Benner of Opinion That This Installation Will Reduce Cost of Living.

That the increased cost of living is o some extent at least due to the smoke nuisance" was clearly shown on Saturday night by Dr. Benner, of Pittsburg University, in addressing the Women's Canadian Club and members tions at any greater length, of the city council in the Normal

In the large manufacturing cities this is especially true, where the constant discharge of soot and smoke from the huge chimneys forms a real economic problem for citizens. In the case of Pittsburg, for instance, hundreds of dollars yearly are expended in window-cleaning, interior renovating, and outside cleaning of buildings, an expense that is done away with in smaller places, where no factories exist. Other items in the cost of living, made higher by the effect of smoke, are wear. ing apparel, laundry, curtain material, and, in the shops, damage to goods. Electric light bills are also much larger in Pittsburg than some other cities because of the murky atmosphere occasioned by smoke. Nuisance Can Be Abated.

And all this could be done away with, eccording to Dr. Benner, who told of some interesting experiments which devices have been invented which made possible "smokeless" factories, locomo- other special departments this spring. tives and steamboats. A number of excellent lantern slides Mr. Doherty. were exhibited by Dr. Benner showing the effects of smoke on buildings, vegetation, etc., the latter being from photographs taken in Pittsburg. Many of the buildings now were constructed of glazed tile or vitrified brick in place of sandstone and limestone formerly used for public buildings. This was on account of the softer stone being so quickly affected by the atmospheric gases caused by smoke. Most of the office and public buildings are cleaned every six or twelve months, and a number of pictures were thrown upon the screen to depict the contrast on the surface of the exterior during the

DEATH OF MRS. QUAIT

THE L. & P.S. R. LINE The death of Mrs. Margret Quait, vife of Mr. Richard Quait, 266 Adelaide street, took place on Sunday after an illness lasting several weeks. For a time the relatives of the deceased lady held out hope for recovery, but on Monday last a decline in health started, which finally resulted in her death on Sunday. The late Mrs. Quait was born in Antrim Ireland, on Feb. 10, 1840, her surveyors from the Canadian North-ern were busy in Chelsea Green and vicinity Saturday and a line has been 73rd birthday. MOUSE DEER!

That's the answer to The Advertiser's animal puzzle, printed Saturday. Scientists and bookish persons call it a "chevrotain." But IT is a mouse deer, and is traceable to the same ancestry as the ordinary deer. It is the smallest deer in the world. It is 8% inches high, and weighs 60 ounces. Some thousands of years, or during the middle Tertiary time, this mouse deer's ancestors roamed over North America, but years and years ago it took a dislike to our climate and moved to warmer climes.

This one was found in India and was sold to Taylor Pyne, who brought it to America and gave it to the New York 200. When the mouse deer lives at home, it is the most timid of animals, hid in dense jungles, and is rarely seen, so shy is it.

It walks with a queer, stiff-legged, tip-toeing gait. Its head resembles that of a mouse, except for the tusks. It has the legs and hoofs of the deer family, while its body looks much like that of an American rabbit when Too Well Known To hunched up. Its fluffy fur is snow white, except for a reddish tinge along the
