HEAVY VOTE ON HOTEL BYLAWS

Separate Settlements Proposal Rejected By Miners

POLLING BOOTHS IN CITY BUSY

More Than 2,000 Mark Ballots of Hotel Plebiscite Before Noon.

MANY WOMEN VOTE

Early Voting Is Practically Twice as Heavy as Usual.

Estimates made at noon today indicated that more than 2,000 votes had been cast in the hotel plebiscite, setting a precedent for early balloting in London.

Early voting today was practically twice what it normally is. At polling booths where five or six ballots are usually cast before 10 o'clock, as many as 15 and 20 had been turned in by that hour today.

Housewives who are numbered amongst the city's ratepayers, turned out in surprisingly good numbers. According to figures at the city hall, about 16 of the total vote cast comes in before noon. Today it appears that a quarter of the vote will be registered in the same time.

Promoters Confident.

The mayor and other promoters of the hotel bylaw and exchange of properties were optimistic in their forecast of the election result. In city hall circles three to one wagers were cheerfully offered in favor of the hotel proposal.

Though efforts to get the vote out are not as great as in personal election contests, some cars were in use, and municipal backers of the scheme worked hard during the morning.

"London may expect a business boom if the hotel proposal goes through," declared the mayor. "There is going to be much real development right around Federal square. We are going to increase our own building."

Development Certain.

Banks some years ago foreseen development in the Federal square district, and two prominent institutions have established branches at the corner. Study of potential business areas is studied keenly by banking institutions all over the country, and where the banks go, business development followed.

It was learned today that a prominent insurance company is seeking to lease the old Commercial Bank building, now situated on the site proposed for a city hall. Rental of this building would mean considerable income to the city.

In connection with the raising of a quarter million dollars of common stock for the new hotel locally, J. G. Trainer, vice-president of the hotel company, offers to personally purchase $100,000 worth of this, an offer which brings the local stock campaign to an easy matter.

Scores of motor cars were out during the morning and will continue in operation during the afternoon. Service clubs and interested businessmen showed keen interest in helping to get the vote out.

Drummer Is Best Husband

"Absence Makes the Heart Grow Fonder," Fanny Hurst Tells Travellers.

New York, Sept. 5.—Wives of travelling salesmen are the happiest of all because they see their husbands so seldom and thus, in the words of Fanny Hurst, keep the dew on the rose. Likewise, travelling salesmen are the best of husbands, for absence makes their hearts grow fonder, too, and after the day's work is done they sit alone in hotel writing rooms writing to and dreaming of the sweet little women back home.

Such was the opinion expressed today by delegates to the annual convention of the national council for travelling salesmen, assembled at the Pennsylvania hotel. The drummer, whose reputation has been snared and made tinpanny in joke books and fiction, is truly the long suffering species, declared Gus D. Lebolt, who has been on the road for 35 years.

On the serious side, the salesmen were told by J. H. Tregos, secretary of the National Association of Credit Men, that Europe's greatest need is the cooperation that has been the foundation of America's prosperity.

GREAT PROGRAM FOR LABOR DAY

Monday's Celebration in London Promises To Be Best On Record.

If Labor Day gets a sporting chance in Monday's roustabout with the weatherman, then London will see a celebration which for divertissement, color and variety has not been equaled in the Forest City in several years. This was the prediction made this morning by J. F. Thomson, secretary of the trades and labor council committees in charge of the day's fun.

For the past two months or more local labor men have been engrossed in the difficult problem of devising a Labor Day program which will outdistance the enviable records of former years. Today Secretary Thomson declares that he is confident the task has been accomplished and that Monday will be truly a day of big entertainment.

The Labor Day parade, one of the traditional complements of a successful celebration, has been neglected in the past three or four years, but a procession will be one of the real features of the program this year and, judging from the interest displayed by business houses as well as district unions, the parade will equal the most elaborate of the days of old.

A girls' softball tournament, which has attracted the best teams in Western Ontario, will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning and will be concluded before the grandstand at Queen's park in the afternoon. The prizes are beautiful gold medals.

Parade at 1 p.m.

The parade, with three bands in the lineup, will start from the market square at 1 o'clock and after traversing the main streets will wind up at the fair grounds to herald the opening of the big sports program, which includes Irish and Scotch dancing, motorcycle and horse races, bicycle and foot races, pie-eating contests, boxing in barrels, a baby show and other novelty events.

Macdonald's pipe band will play for the dancing, which has been placed in the capable hands of Dr. H. A. Stevenson. The softball tournament will be superintended by Thomas T. Pauley, who is also chairman of the sports committee. The prizes for the events have been donated by city merchants.

The baby show will be as attractive as usual and a large entry has already been assured. The cups for the various contests were presented by Dr. Stevenson, J. C. Wilson,

SOFT COAL MINERS TO WALK OUT

President J. L. Lewis Confers With Bituminous Miners With Refernce to Strike.

NEW PROPOSALS

Latest Offer of Separate Settlements Are Rejected by Strikers.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 5.—Fresh rumors of the likelihood of a strike in the soft coal fields to strengthen the demands of the anthracite workers who are now out were current here today. President John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, it is learned has held conferences with union leaders in the bituminous region which are said to have related to a walkout in the soft coal districts.

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, Sept. 5.—That the United mine workers will not make a separate settlement with individual coal companies, was emphasized yesterday in reports from the idle anthracite fields.

Rinaldo Cappellini, president of district No. 1, of the miners' union at Scranton, admitted that the Traders Coal Company, which operates a mine with 500 employees at Ridgewood, Luzerne county, had offered to grant the demands of the miners, including the check-off, with the understanding that the company could run its mine while the other collieries were idle. The union leaders promptly rejected the proposal, Cappellini said. This is the second concern that is reported to have been willing to grant the miners' demands on condition that it could operate.

Warning was issued in district 7 yesterday against members of the union going to the soft coal fields for employment. A statement was issued by sub-district president Thos. Gallagher in the Panther Creek valley, advising the men that employment was uncertain and wages low.

FOUR STEAMERS SAIL, ALL WITH FULL CREWS

Strikers Fail To Keep Seamen From Going Aboard Vessels.

Associated Press Despatch.

Southampton, England, Sept. 5.—The unofficial strike of British seamen suffered another big blow today when four big liners sailed from this port on scheduled time. The strikers had made great efforts in the last few days to persuade the crew of the Empress of France to desert, but they were unsuccessful, and the liner pulled away this morning with Quebec as her destination. Three other liners, which completed their crews and sailed this morning were the Berengaria for New York, the Orduna also for New York, and the Arguaya for a western port.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE BROKEN ALONG THE MERSEY RIVER

Associated Press Despatch.

Liverpool, Sept. 5.—There were many indications last night that the seamen's strike, so far as the Mersey River is concerned, has been virtually broken. Three liners, the Aurania, Megantic and Montcalm, sailed Friday afternoon for Canada, all with full crews. Despite the presence of many pickets, tugs and tenders were busy throughout the day taking more seamen to the Cedric, lying in the river ready to sail today. It is not expected any week-end shipping will be delayed.

Lord Birkenhead Is Accused Breaking Pledge To Baldwin

London, Sept. 4.—Sir Ailmeric Fitzroy, former clerk of the British privy council, in his memoirs, says of Lord Birkenhead, that in 1922 "there was a strong move within the Tory party to see him their leader, and a large fund was subscribed to place him in a position to accept the charge, but on second thoughts he seems to have held himself aloof from prosecuting the design, and the money was returned to the subscribers."

If the Tory party faises any new fund for Birkenhead it is most likely to be for the purpose of enabling him to retire from politics. He has caused new embarrassment to his party by appearing as writing biographical and trade puffs for a manufacturer of wireless apparatus, after he had given a pledge to Premier Baldwin not to engage in journalism while holding cabinet office.

He excuses himself by saying this article was written before he gave the pledge to Baldwin.

ALL EYES ON YORK TODAY; TURN TO EXETER, MONDAY

All Canada awaits the message which Premier W. L. Mackenzie King will give to the country this afternoon in his speech at Richmond Hill, North York, his own riding.

PREMIER KING.

Important pronouncements are expected. It is generally believed that dissolution of parliament will be announced; polices upon which an election fight will be based will be outlined and a statement will be made on cabinet reconstruction and Senate appointments.

The premier has planned a busy week, with six speeches in all. Of prime importance to Western Ontario is his visit and speech at Exeter on Monday. It is anticipated that several thousand Liberals and others from surrounding counties will greet him there. He will address an open-air meeting in the afternoon. Other speakers will be Senator A. B. McCoig of Kent and J. C. Elliott, K.C., Liberal choice of West Middlesex for the federal house. The meeting will probably prove the opening gun of the campaign in Western Ontario.

All roads will lead to Exeter on Monday.

PRINCE RISKS HIS NECK CHASING WILD HORSES

British Heir Has Time of His Life With Argentine Gauchos.

AIDS IN ROUND-UP

Leaves Fine Impression After Visit Among Cowboys of South America.

By G. WARD PRICE.
Special to The Advertiser.

Huetal, Argentina, Sept. 5.—The Prince of Wales' vacation among the gauchos and cowboys of the Argentine pampas has been a period of undiluted joy. Never was royalty more carefree. The prince has shown himself a real out-of-doors man, more at home on the grassy plain than in ballroom or salon.

Dressed in an old tweed coat and fawn-colored riding breeches, his fair flushed face and slender figure made a strange contrast with the swarthy, black-moustached, heavy-jowled gauchos, dressed in their picturesque silver-spangled cowboy uniforms, with frilled leather aprons, rough hide boots and enormous gleaming spurs. Their mere bulk, reinforced by a splendid swaggering stride, completely overshadows the slim Anglo-Saxon visitor.

Afoot or in the saddle, these men give the impression of giants. They look like statues of bronze, cast in the same mold with their horses. The prince has met hundreds of them, of all ages from boys of seven to wizened old men the color of well-smoked meerschaum, some of whom rode with him in bare feet, their spurs strapped tightly around their naked heels.

Chases Wild Horses.

At the Casares ranch, the prince risked his neck chasing wild horses over the plain. He had gone out for a ride with a group of a hundred gauchos. Real rough-stuff bad men of the wild west films they looked, although their employers gave them an excellent reputation for loyalty and hard work. They wore short bolero jackets and long bell-mouthed trousers supported at the top by broad belts studded with worn silver coins of ancient Spanish currency gleaming brightly in the flashing sunlight. At the back of each belt was a silver-hilted knife as big as any butcher ever wielded. In a silver scabbard in front was slung a silver cup, with a tube like a pipe-stem, through which the gaucho sucks his bitter yerba-mate tea.

This was the prince's first encounter with the gauchos, and he was frankly interested in every member of his formidable bodyguard, as they doffed their slouch hats and extended grimy paws for his handshake. He examined their equipment with the canny eye of one who knows horses and horsemen. The silver-mounted bridles interested him especially, until he caught sight of the various kinds of bolladoras hanging from the saddles. The boliadora is the long-weighted string with which the gaucho brings down horses, cattle or ostriches on the run.

"Let's see how they work!" exclaimed the prince.

So the whole cavalcade set out in search of wild horses. The next half hour was as rough riding as anyone could wish, the whole plain being honeycombed with jackals' holes as big as a man's arm. "It's jolly dangerous," I heard the prince call out as his horse recovered luckily from a false step into one of these holes.

Asks for Gaucho Outfit.

But he led the way. His mount was an excellent one, and the rider

Pet Snake Bites Child

Associated Press Despatch.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 5.—Efforts of F. L. Tuttle, 19 years old, to make a pet of a rattlesnake cost him his life.

He caught the snake in a cotton field, and stroked it gently. The reptile became docile.

Several hours later the boy screamed as he threw the snake from him. The rattler, landed in a coil and sprang instantly, sinking its fangs into the boy's face. He died five hours later.

SHORTAGES GROW; TELLER REMANDED

Trial of H. G. Brewer Delayed For Fourth Time—Another Arrest Possible.

Herbert G. Brewer, Bank of Montreal teller arrested a month ago on charges of fraud and manipulation of the bank accounts, was remanded for the fourth time upon his appearance before Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon in police court this morning.

The remand was requested by Frank Curran, Brewer's counsel, and agreed to by Crown Attorney A. M. Judd, who stated that further discrepancies in the bank accounts had been discovered during the past week. Brewer had volunteered to explain the shortages, Mr. Judd said, and an adjournment of the case would also assist the crown.

More than $7,000 is involved in the bank shortages, according to Mr. Judd. It is possible that another arrest will be made before Brewer's appearance for trial in court next week.

PREMIER BRUCE SCORES TRADE UNIONS LEADER

Declares Hunter Charlton's Statement Designed To Save Labor at Next Election.

Associated Press Despatch.

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 5.—Premier S. M. Bruce, referring to the recent appeal of Hunter Charlton, labor leader, to the trades unionists, not to strike if deportations were effected under the new federal law which provides for the deportation of any person not of Australian birth who is convicted of causing labor trouble, but to give their reply at the elections, said Charlton's statement obviously was designed to try to save the position of the labor party at the next general election.

The labor leader should have made his appeal when he recognized that the trades union leaders of Great Britain were being defied by their own members, Premier Bruce said. This would have insured the immediate collapse of the strike of the British seamen, he added.

KING WILL FIRE FIRST GUN TODAY

Premier Will Announce Date of Election in Richmond Hill Speech.

TO ANSWER CRITICS

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Arrives in Toronto Looking "Fit For Battle."

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Toronto, Sept. 5.—This is an historic day for Richmond Hill. For three years the member for North York, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, has served as prime minister of the dominion. Today he returns to give an account of his stewardship and throw dawn the gauge of battle to his critics.

Fresh of cheek and clear of eye, as if he were just back from a holiday, Premier King arrived in Toronto this morning to deliver the opening shot in his federal campaign and announce the date of election.

Yesterday had been a most strenuous day for the premier, and he managed to get away from the house of commons only a few minutes before his train left last night. Official business occupied him further aboard his private car until well on into the morning hours.

In Cheerful Mood.

But it was with buoyant smile and no hint of fatigue in his manner that he greeted the friends who came to welcome him at the station.

The Ottawa train pulling the premier's car arrived at 7:25, city time, and the premier and his party, by their own request, were left undisturbed for an hour and a half. But a committee from the Toronto Men's Liberal Association were then on hand to welcome him, headed by Hon. Nelson Parliament.

In chatting about plans for his prospective tour, Premier King whimsically refused to commit himself as to the date of the election.

Evades Date Question.

"Will it be a long fight or a short one?" he was asked.

"Let's see first if there's going to be a fight at all," he responded quizzingly. "We may know more about that this afternoon."

Mr. King remained aboard his car hard at work for the greater part of the morning. Hon. Geoge P. Graham, who is also to speak at Richmond Hill this afternoon, came up separately from Ottawa with the Montreal train. Having had a strenuous day yesterday Mr. Graham slept late and had a quiet morning.

CLAIMS U. S. LABOR IDEAS ARE OF THE 19TH CENTURY

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 5.—"For goodness sake invade the United States labor movement with your ideals. The mentality of the movement there is still in the 19th century. It is still the old-fashioned trade unionism with no inspiration," was one of several remarkable statements made by A. G. Walkden, fraternal delegate to the trades and labor congress of Canada from the British trades union congress, speaking here last night at the opening of the new Carpenters' building, which in future is to be the home of the local labor organization.

L.S.R. TO MAKE SERVICE OFFER

Conference To Be Held Today Between Mayor and Railway Officials.

Prospects of marked improvement in the London South service of the street railway loomed confidently today when negotiations between the city and street railway were resumed.

This afternoon a conference was called between the mayor and street railway officials. Indications are that the company is ready to offer a better service than has existed, and if negotiations are successful there promises to be much satisfaction for South Londoners.

The mayor is confident of success in street railway matters if backing can be secured from the council.

Charles Currie, president of the L. S. R., was in London yesterday. His visit was explained as being of a social nature but he found time during the day to confer with street railway officials here. The mayor did not spend any time at street railway offices yesterday, but expects to open negotiations today.

Re-building of the Ridout street bridge is the bone of contention just now, as it effects the whole service in London South. Chances of extending the High street spur south to Tecumseh and making a link with Ridout street south are reported to be better than ever. In that event, paving of High street would be possible before the end of the year.

FIRE LEAVES THOUSAND HOMELESS

Shreveport, La., Is Scene of the Greatest Conflagration in City's History.

SIX ARE INJURED

Loss Estimated at $500,000 After Water Mains Burst.

Associated Press Despatch.

Shreveport, La., Sept. 5.—Nine city blocks, embracing more than 250 dwellings, in which lived more than 1,000 persons, were levelled here last night and early today by a fire which broke out shortly after some mighty force had wrecked the city water mains in three places.

Property loss was estimated early today at upwards of $500,000, exclusive of losses by public utilities. Six persons were injured, two seriously.

For five hours, however, the city was left virtually at the mercy of the fire until finally the breaks in the mains were repaired, and water presure was restored.

The fire started in a house owned by a former fire department chief and across the street from fire station No. 4. The breaks in the water mains remained unexplained early today. One theory was that they were caused by dynamite used in a nearby construction works.

PROBE INTO AIRSHIP DISASTER IS OPENED

Last of Victims of Shenandoah Collapse Are Taken From Ohio Village.

Associated Press Despatch.

Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 5.—Belle Valley gave up the last of her Shenandoah dead today. Fully realizing the duty thrust so suddenly upon them, the 300 quiet, simple folks of the valley sought to bar morbidly curious and otherwise to maintain reverence for the fourteen victims of the dirigible's final clash with the elements, which early Thursday morning wrought her asunder.

Flag-draped and flower-adorned the last four caskets this morning were started on their final journey. Two high naval officers, Rear Admiral Dyson, Washington, chief of the naval bureau of engineering, and Captain George Washington Steele, Jun., commandant of the Lakehurst naval air station, are expected here today.

With the arrival of these two officers, the investigation here was expected to be brought to a conclusion and transferred to Lakehurst and Washington.

Commander Jacob H. Klein, executive officer at Lakehurst, and his associates on the board of investigation again went over the scene of the crash near Ava today.

BISHOP NEELY DIES.

Motorists Unable To Read "No Turn" Signs at Corner

Policeman in Traffic Tower Is Kept Busy Straightening Out Offenders.

CONDUCTS SCHOOL

Visiting motorists are still backward in deciphering the peculiar "No Turn" signs which stare, in longitudinal blotches of black and white, from the four corners of Dundas and Richmond streets on Saturdays only.

This morning the raucous voice and shrill whistle of the traffic tower cop worked several shifts at once as he struggled to sandwich educational campaigns in his routine of keeping people and things on the move.

"Straight ahead" was bawled at one in every five American drivers in the scurrying stream of Labor day tourists. Querulous heads usually appeared from wide windows as sharp blasts magically arrested the progress of cars when they violated the funny sign with the shambling letters. If the motorist appeared humble he was waved on his unlawful course, but if annoyance showed on his face then he was forced to back up and abide by the Saturday rule.

One argumentative person halted at the corner long enough to exchange monosyllables of sympathy with street railwaymen waiting for their cars. This seeming flaunt at the law so incensed the traffic guardian that he began to climb to the street to give the traffic class a personal flavor? Whether by instinct or not, the motorist got away before the storm.

Idle Miners Go Fishing

Associated Press Despatch.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 5.—Hundreds of idle anthracite mine workers are daily going to sections where fishing is good. Houses dealing in angling equipment report a thriving business since the suspension at the collieries began. The season for pike, pickerel and bass is in full blast, and the roads to the Poconomo hills are filled with automobiles carrying miners to their first vacation in two years. Many miners are away on motor tours, feeling sure the suspension will not be over in less than a month and perhaps longer.

Week-End Tips For Motorists

Motorists are advised to bear in mind the following changes in the detours over various roads in the district and also permanent detours:

Sarnia detour remains the same.

Proof Line road is still closed.

Motorists making the trip to Toronto for the holiday are advised by the London Motor club to go by way of provincial highway to Ingersoll, Woodstock, Paris, Brantford, Hamilton and either Lake Shore road or Dundas highway to Toronto. The latter road is advised as traffic is not so heavy. The road to Toronto is all paved with the exception of a two-mile detour going east just out of Ingersoll.

The Longwoods road is open three miles past Melbourne.

Talbotville to Shedden is closed for paving operations. The whole six miles will likely be closed some time next week for two months' time.

St. Marys to Stratford, there is a detour at the half-way house, paving operations having started.

The detour between Stratford and Kitchener is still in effect.

FAMINE VICTIMS EAT GROUND BARK

Japanese Island Hit by Crop Shortage and Price Slump.

Aesociated Press Despatch.

Tokio, Sept. 4.—A Commission which recently returned from the Loochoo Islands, which lie between Japan and Formosa, reported that the inhabitants have been reduced to abject misery because of the scarcity of food this year. Many of them, it was stated, are eating the bark of banana palms ground into powder. It is now proposed that the unfortunate residents be permitted to use the sugar and sake taxes, amounting to about 3,000,000 yen, for the purchase of food.

During the war boom the Loochoo Islanders waxed prosperous and were able to buy rice. Their usual diet is sweet potatoes, part of which they grow and the remainder of which they import from Satsuma. The sugar price this year, however, was such that the inhabitants could make no profit whatever, and were unable to import their usual sweet potato rations. In addition the bonito catch was also very poor. Consequently the Japanese commission reported a serious food shortage, and recommended that steps be taken by the government to ameliorate the condition of the islanders.

NEW WAR ON MASHERS IS CITY POLICE PLAN

Conviction of Bobbed-Haired Sheik in Court Today, Heralds Drive.

Curb cruisers and park mashers—both are now under police fire. Flirting in Victoria park is decidedly taboo, declare the police, and the arrest yesterday afternoon of one suspicious masher will be followed up until the park is cleared of flirts of all varieties.

Numerous complaints at police station told of men who accosted children on their way from school at the noon hour. Special officers were assigned to investigate the reports, and yesterday the first casualty was noted in the new police war.

The masher appeared in court this morning. He was well dressed, meticulously garbed in sailor-like costume, with potatoe-bag trousers and pinched coat. His hair was bobbed.

There being no official charge for mashing, the man was held for vagrancy. Constables told the court of his suspicious actions, how he darted in and out of bushes and paced the park walks with no apparent destination.

Magistrate Graydon convicted the man and remanded him for sentence. Meanwhile, the evidence of several young girls whom he is alleged to have accosted and talked to will be taken.

JOYFUL LUNGE OF CAR BRINGS MARKET MISHAP

Manoeuvring a light coupe in one of the busiest corners of London's crowded market, a local motorist came to grief this morning when he stepped on his clutch instead of the brake, with the result that his car leaped joyfully into the rear of a heavy truck drawn up behind the Dominion Savings building.

The front of the light car was badly damaged, the front axle becoming entirely divorced from the springs. Although that portion of the market was crowded at the time, no spectators were injured, adroit jumping saving three who stood in the path of the madly charging flivver.

THOMAS W. PAULEY,

prominent member of the London Trades and Labor Council, who is attending the 41st Dominion Labor Congress, now in session at Ottawa, as a representative of the C. N. R. carmen here.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT SHOWS AN INCREASE

Outdoor Classes Must Be Held at Pottersburg Till October.

Reports from 11 public schools at noon today showed an increased enrolment of 25 over the figures of the same schools for last June. According to Inspector-Administrator G. A. Wheable a total increase of about 200 is expected when all the schools are heard from. The total enrolment will be about 8,800.

Crowding is chiefly in the outlying schols, Pottersburg, Trafalgar and Ryerson being most effected. Classes will be held outdoors at Pottersburg until October, by which time arrangements can be completed for accommodation in another building.

COUNTY OFFICIALS BACK FROM MUNICIPAL MEETING

County Clerk John Stuart, Miss Mary Grant, clerk of London township, and county Councillors Cousins, Boler and Hodgins have all returned from Toronto, where they attended the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal association.

County Clerk Stuart states that the convention was most interesting and informative, many resolutions of importance being passed.

Lone Division At Presbytery

Only one division occurred at the inaugural session of the Middlesex United church presbytery, held at Knox church yesterday.

Rev. D. N. McCamus, London, proposed that the presbytery chairmen and secretaries be called together prior to conference to name tentative standing committees for that august boly, the idea being to save time when conference meets on Sept. 22 in Metropolitan church here.

Two or three members of the court spoke against the proposal, and on a close count the motion was declared lost.

"Well, that's refreshing to find something that we are not unanimous about," observed Dr. McIntosh, chairman of presbytery; "because, you know, it is most distressing to us former Presbyterians not to have some contention."

MORE GAME FISH FOR POND MILLS

Fund For Restocking Streams Is Suggested by Association President.

The stocking of Pond Mills with suitable game fish for the sport of local anglers was the foremost topic at last night's session of the Western Ontario Fish and Game Association. President L. B. Long, in discussing the matter of local angling, stated that London's streams had long since ceased to yield sufficient reward in the way of fish to make the game worth the candle, and he proposed a fund, which could be riased by popular subscription, to restock the waters of Pond Mills, and in the event of this proving successful, to consider the restocking of other waters adjacent to the city.

A committee to handle this question was named, and Messrs. Long, Stewart and Fuller will go into the details of organization at once.

The president announced the donation of a prize to the member of the association catching the largest black bass in Pond Mills during the present season, which ends Nov. 30.

A motion to change the date of the annual election of officers from January to December was put before the meeting. It was received favorably, and after a second and third presentation will be voted upon.

PRINCE RISKS HIS NECK CHASING WILD HORSES

seemed to understand intuitively the nature of the chase. Up and down the hillocks scampered the band of gauchos, turning the scared wild horses this way and that, whirling the boliadoras constantly overhead in preparation for a throw. At last a horse was cornered,—an animal that never had felt the authority of man suddenly found his heels caught in the flying cords and he crashed to the ground.

On the homeward journey the prince asked the chief of the riders to get him a gaucho outfit. "Not too gaudy," he cautioned. "I want one I can wear occasionally back home."

After a 20-mile ride the party reached the ranch house which was their destination. The prince, without waiting to change, took a position in a game of Spanish pelota which was going on near the house. Evidently he had played the game before. Certainly he surprised the Argentine players, lifelong devotees of the game, by showing them something new about it. The prince's skill at squash racquets comes in handy at this game. To the accompaniment of hoarse cheers from his friends the gauchos, he constantly brought off strokes that were too good for his fellow-players.

It was a good introduction to the men of the pampas. They are not much impressed with royalty, but they are ready to extend the right hand of fellowship unreservedly, even to a prince, if he shows the hard physical condition of this youthful visitor.

Participates in Roundup.

A few days later, at the great Liebig ranch, he participated in a round-up. He mounted one of the regulation cowboy saddles, so abundantly padded with wool that the prince remarked, "It makes you feel as if you were riding on the back of a sheep." All day he galloped over the plain, seeing the horses rounded up, and taking part in the cowboy races.

The spectators frequently had to scatter to avoid being bowled over by some bucking, snorting, frenziedly careering horse, with a shrill, yelling gaucho on his back, welting him with broad-thonged whip at every bound.

After participating in some of the cowboy races, the prince organized a "visitors' race." There were ten starters, but the prince won easily, despite the other visitors' attempts to spur on their mounts by imitations of the "gaucho yell."

The prince knows the cowboy of the American and Canadian west, and he expected something of the same skill in handling horses to be shown here. But the South American gaucho is not in the same class with the northern riders.

In the rough-riding of unbroken horses the Argentine cowboy is not very skilful. At one of the ranches, a youthful gaucho volunteered to try his skill. As the horse lay roped on the ground, the gaucho removed his rawhide boots and buckled spurs over his socks. Then he got astride the prostrate horse and the rope was cast off. In a convulsive bound the panic-stricken horse struggled to his feet and gave two bucks of true wild west quality. The brave gaucho promptly rocketed over the horse's head and hit the earth ten feet beyond with a tremendous thump, amid the delighted laughter of his fellows. Grinning amiably, the rough rider explained: "Well, I never tried to break a horse that way before. Only did it to oblige the prince!"

In all the displays of rough riding, we found that the Argentine gaucho has only mediocre ability in comparison with the skill of the cowboys of the United States and Canada.

Tonic Treatment For Indigestion

The Surest Way to Relieve Stomach Trouble is Through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When the stomach is feeble and food lies in it undigested, the poisonous gases distend the walls of the stomach and cause serious interference with the other organs, especially with the action of the heart and lungs. These poisonous gases have other ill effects. They are absorbed by the blood and so weaken and corrupt it as to cause aches in remote parts of the body and the formation of unhealthy tissue everywhere. Experience shows that these troubles vanish just as soon as the stomach is made strong enough to digest the food. In other words, it needs a tonic that will enable it to do the work of changing the food into nourishment. The tonic used ought to be one that will agree with the most delicate stomach and this is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do.

Here is a bit of convincing proof given by Mrs. Chas. Ladner, Ellerslie, P. E. I., who says: "For some years I was a sufferer from stomach trouble. Everything I ate caused distress, sour stomach, and belching. I could not eat meat or potatoes, and I grew weak and very nervous. No medicine seemed to help me until I was persuaded to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these simply worked wonders. I took the pills faithfully for a couple of months, by which time every symptom of the trouble had disappeared, and there has not since been the slightest symptom of stomach trouble. No wonder I praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.—Advt.

CORONER'S JURY FREES MOTORIST OF BLAME

Evidence was given by a number of witnesses to show that the girl ran from behind another car directly in the path of the Schenectady auto, the driver of the latter having no time in which to apply his brakes or avoid the child.

FAIR OFFICES TO BE MOVED TO FRONT LINE ON MONDAY

Secretary W. D. Jackson of the Western fair board, has completed arrangements for the removal of his offices and office force to the grounds at Queen's park. The nearness of the opening day has tended to increase the work of the whole staff which is already overtaxed to the extent that a move to the front line trenches, to get nearer the work they are grappling with, has become essential.

Monday will see the transfer of offices from the Dominion Savings building to the fair grounds, and from then on the rush of work even with the extra hands employed at this season, will hold the officials early and late within the confines of Queen's park.

AUSTRALIANS URGED TO STRIKE BY I. W. W.

Associated Press Despatch.

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 5.—The Industrial workers of the world here are placarding the city urging the workers to organize a general strike to prevent the threatened deportations growing out of the British seamen's strike.

Twelve white sailors and fourteen negro firemen of the steamer Min, en route to Rabaul and London, went on strike at Newcastle. The negroes being in the class of prohibited immigrants, the captain of the vessel must maintain them or pay a fine of £100 for each of the fourteen firemen if they are absent from their ship over 24 hours. Warrants have been issued for the white members of the striking crew.

The coal miners of New South Wales have decided to strike the moment an order is made for the deportation of any person connected with the seamen's strike.

FISH TUG WANDERS AND OWNER IS FINED

Port Stanley Man Inadvertently Breaks Territorial Law.

One of the fleet of Port Stanley fishing tugs wandered far off the Elgin coast line this week and spread nets off Norfolk county. News of this error was flashed to the fisheries department, and the tug owner has been fined as his license did not call for fishing privileges in that territory.

"We have had similar cases before," admitted Col. Emmerton, of the fish and game department, this morning. "The owner in question got into difficulties innocently and is not desirous of any publicity, and of course you can't blame him. When a fine is imposed, the whole set of circumstances is always taken into consideration."

BIBLE SECRETARY GOES 3,250 MILES

Rev. John Garbutt Has Been Busy Since His Recent Appointment.

Rev. John Garbutt, formerly pastor of Dundas Center United church, who was appointed field secretary for the Western Ontario Bible society about eleven weeks' ago, has already visited 28 branches of the society in the London district. It is Mr. Garbutt's hope to visit the 130 branches in the territory which he has to cover, with possibly a little assistance from two or three ministers, before the close of the year. Incidentally, in speaking at two and three branches each Sunday thus far, Mr. Garbutt has travelled a total distance of 3,250 miles.

In making his first circuit of the branches in Western Ontario two objects have been kept in mind by the secretary, first, the importance of the work, and, second, catching up with the regular work which Rev. R. J. Bowen, London, who resigned after 17 years' service because of ill-health, was unable to carry on for four or five months' prior to his resignation.

Mr. Garbutt is enthusiastic in his work, and points out that the British and Foreign Bible society published 10,000,000 copies of the Bible last year. Only in two previous years, 1915 and 1916, did the society ever accomplish that number, and in those two years the regular number was swelled by the issuing of the khaki testament to the soldiers overseas during the great war.

Splendid support is accorded Mr. Garbutt as field secretary by a strong executive, including J. K. H. Pope, chairman, Rev. Prof. Frank Anderson, secretary, and T. C. Margrett, treasurer.

Following his present tour, Mr. Garbutt will proceed to organize new branches and thus extend the work in this portion of the province beyond its present bounds.

JORDAN CONTINUES TO DIRECT INSTITUTE

Splendid Group of Teachers on Staff of Musical Art Organization.

The Institute of Musical Art, Dundas street, has reopened for the fall and winter months, following the summer vacation.

A. D. Jordan, despite his appointment as organist and choirmaster of Eaton Memorial United church, Toronto, will continue to act as musical director at the institute.

Assisting Mr. Jordan and associated with him is a splendid group of teachers, constituting the faculty of the institution, competent to give first-class instruction in piano playing, singing and violin playing.

The institute specializes in the musical education of very young children. The mode of instruction is unique, designed to develop in the child the real feeling for music which many methods of pedagogues so often kill. Here the work is carried on to instill a love of music. Not only is the student given every opportunity to broaden his artistic horizon by providing him with instruction in more than one branch of his art, but he is surrounded by that musical atmosphere which is so stimulating to earnest study, and by the example of others who are laboring to bring their talents to perfection. Moreover, he is given the opportunity of appearance in recitals and concerts in which he sings or performs, and thereby accustoms himself to public appearances, or those in which he hears the work of others.

For the benefit of those of adult age who desire to study popular music for their own and friends' entertainment the institute provides an opportunity in the famous Waterman method of instruction, which is concise and systematic, enabling the student to accomplish results in comparatively short time.

For those interested in dramatic art provision is made whereby they may develop their talents in public speaking, in the study of fine examples of English literature, and in groups for the production of plays with action and costumes.

WATTERWORTH IS NAMED LONDON ELECTION CLERK

Francis Benjamin Watterworth, formerly deputy sheriff for Middlesex, has been named election clerk for the federal riding of London in the coming elections. The appointment was announced by Gordon Tennent, recently appointed returning officer.

Considerable of Mr. Tennent's time is being taken up in preparing for the vote, and it is not expected that other appointments, such as poll clerks and scrutineers, will be made for some time.

Byron Carney Returns From Detroit Meeting of Numismatic Society.

AUCTIONS MANY

"Widow's Mite" Coin of Biblical Period One of Most Interesting Exhibits.

Byron Carney, Hope street, one of Ontario's most prominent coin collectors, has recently returned from a week's conference of the American Numismatic association, held in the Hotel Statler, Detroit.

Mr. Carney describes the conference as the greatest gathering of coin collectors which it has been his privilege to attend. Delegates from most of the European countries and from Mexico attended the convention. In addition to the collectors themselves, coin dealers from all parts of the world were on hand and were among the keenest bidders in some of the auctions put on by the members.

During the first three days of the conference the gathering took the form of a special get-together, and during this time boat rides and theatre parties featured the program.

On Wednesday, Aug. 26, the members motored to Munro, Michigan, to unveil a monument to Henry Heath, a pioneer coin collector, who in 1888 founded the American Numismatic association with its branches in every country.

The largest auction put on during the convention was that of Henry Chapman, Philadelphia.

Another feature of the convention was a display of coins and paper currency by the Detroit Coin club. In this display the huge banquet room of the hotel was girded by a three-foot band of bills of various denominations from every country in the world. The bills were displayed on the walls, under glass, and the whole center of the room was filled with coins in glass showcases.

Mr. Carney describes coin collecting as the most interesting hobby, adding that its greatest drawback lies in the fact that it takes money, and lots of it, to follow the game to the point where it becomes really engrossing. Mr. Carney has some valuable coins in his own collection, and it is interesting to hear him talk about coins as the "widow's mite," a tiny copper coin in use before Biblical days.

An interesting guest at the convention was Farran Zerbe, official curator of the United States collection of minted coinage at Washington, and a world famous collector in his own right. Mr. Zerbe had his own collection on display during the convention, as well as some coins loaned from the mint collection of Washington.

WELLS ACADEMY HEARS "WHAT BOSS EXPECTS"

H. W. Donahue of Advertiser Staff Gives Students Interesting Talk.

The students of Wells Academy heard from H. W. Donahue of The Advertiser staff an account of "What the Boss Expects" in a business office. In terse, interesting and at times humorous terms the students were given an idea of the requirements of the average business office.

The fact that their success would be determined by their changing the "S" to "$" for their boss was stressed and they were reminded that they were hired for the purpose of using their services in assisting their employer to make a profit. Observation was pointed out as one of the determining factors in success. Mr. Donahue stated that in a crowd of school girls he observed more compacts than school books. That in a street car in London, out of the thirty ladies, twenty-eight wore wrist watches. The students were called upon to use their powers of observation in the business office. See that your mail is always stamped before going out. See that the details of your work are carefully attended to!

He told the students to take a pride in their firm, to get a history and an idea as to what their firm was doing and accomplishing. To remain loyal to their firm and remember the old adage, "A rolling stone gathers no moss."

Finally, the students were urged to "use your heads to get ahead," pointing out that men will dig for gold, but many fail to realize the gold mine in their own powers. An appeal was made to the students to be artists in their work and to excel rather than to drift.

TOO MANY CRASHES AT LAMBETH CORNER

Residents Want Something Done to Compel Drivers to Use Caution.

Lambeth residents want something done to eliminate the danger of automobile crashes at the main intersection of the village. Hardly a day goes by without an accident of some description at the main corner, they state.

This morning a car owned by the proprietor of the Longwoods Inn, Lambeth, was struck by another car at the intersection. No person was hurt, but both cars had to be towed to the garage for repairs.

High Constable Wharton left the city at 11 o'clock to investigate the accident.

Residents suggest that stop signs be placed on the road leading from Lambeth to Springbank. The view is unobstructed on the Delaware and St. Thomas highways and what is needed more than anything else is common sense on the part of drivers.

HURON COLLEGE ALUMNI TO MEET

Prominent Churchmen Will Address Annual Sessions Next Week.

The Huron College Alumni will hold its annual meeting at Huron College on Tuesday night and Wednesday of next week.

Prominent speakers have been secured to address the alumni, as follows: Very Rev. Dean L. N. Tucker, D.D., "Reminiscences of Church Life"; Ven Archdeacon Reneson, D.D., Hamilton, "Some Theological Problems"; Rev. H. Snell, Wingham, "How a Graduate May Best Serve the Alumni and the College"; and Rev. J. James, Lion's Head, "How the Parishes of the Diocese Could Support the College."

Officers for the ensuing year will be elected during the sessions. The present officers are: Rev. H. A. Wright, B.A., president; Rev. T. Dobson, B.A., vice-president and secretary; Rev. C. W. Foreman, B.A. L.TH.

COST OF LISTS COMES OUT OF SAME POCKET

Makes No Difference Who Prepares Them, Says City Clerk Baker.

Who should pay for the voters' lists?

"The government," answer a majority of municipalities.

"The cities;" say a few officials who attended the Ontario municipal association sessions in Toronto this week.

"The people," thinks Samuel Baker, city clerk, and secretary of the union of Canadian municipalities.

"It's all the same to the ratepayer," says Mr. Baker. "If the government gets out the lists, the people pay, just as they do when the cities prepare them. It comes out of the same pocket. But we have to prepare most of the information of the part 3 lists now, for use with statute labor and dog taxes. Why duplicate by having the government look after the publication?"

Chances of the Canadian municipal association developing into an association of officials is suggested by Mr. Baker, who deplores the decreasing interest of elected representatives of the people. There were hundreds of officials at Toronto this week. Elected representatives were few in number.

One of the most interesting papers at the convention was given by Professor R. E. Freeman of the department of economics of the University of Western Ontario. Unfortunately time was not ample to provide thorough discussion of the paper.

Professor Freeman discussed progress in civic government, suggesting that all change is not necessarily progress, and that British methods should balance American ideas of civic government.

UNITED MINISTERS TO FORM NEW CLUB

Twenty Branches of Church Here Will Be Represented at Meeting.

Ministers of the 20 branches of the United Church of Canada in London will meet at First Presbyterian United church on Monday morning at 10:30 a.m. for the purpose of organizing the United church ministerial association.

This association is to take the place of the former Monday club, carried on by the Presbyterian ministers of the city, and the Methodist ministerial district association, carried on by the Methodist clergymen of London and surrounding territory.

The number of ministers retired from the active ministry, particularly from the former Methodist church, will swell the membership of the association to a considerable degree.

The organization of the United church association is entirely separate from the London ministerial alliance, which body takes in the Baptist, Anglican and Presbyterian denominations, as well as the United church pastors.

BOY FRACTURES LEG IN FALL FROM SCOOTER

Johnnie Colwill, 6, 71 Byron avenue, sustained a fracture of the leg in a fall from a skooter while playing outside his home yesterday afternoon. The lad had been playing for some time, when the front wheel hit a stone and he was thrown to the ground. The condition of the lad is aggravated by the fact that until a week ago he had been confined to his home with scarlet fever, which left him in a weakened condition.

Pleads His Own Case

Prisoner Uses Legal Knowledge in Effort To Gain Freedom.

New York, Sept. 5.—Fortified with legal knowledge obtained during the past year by working at night in his cell, a prisoner from the New York county penitentiary on Welfare island launched today in the supreme court an attack on an amendment to the state constitution under which the parole commission of the city of New York was created.

The prisoner is George Kammerer, 30, who last March was sentenced to indeterminate terms on the island after pleading guilty to grand larceny and forgery in the third degree. He became entangled in the law after an export and import house he was running went into bankruptcy in 1923.

Now on a writ of habeas corpus, obtained by mail, Kammerer appeared today before Supreme Court Justice Levy to argue that the parole commission law is unconstitutional, that it, therefore, has no valid control over his liberty, and that he should be released, inasmuch as he already has served the sentence, which would have been passed under the general penal law of the state.

HARRY HOLLINS WINS IN LABOR DAY ESSAYS

Board of Education Conducts a Contest at Rectory Street School.

Labor day was the subject assigned to Rectory street public school in the historical essay contest conducted by the board of education in city schools.

Harry Hollins, entrance class pupil at Rectory school, won the first prize for the best composition on that subject. Incidentally Harry is now a student at the East London collegiate institute.

The prize-winning composition dealt with the origin and purpose of Labor day in the interests of the laboring classes throughout the world

INJURED WORKMAN IS REPORTED IMPROVED

The condition of James Cunningham of 23 McDonald avenue, an employee of the Carling Brewing and Malting Company, who was injured Thursday evening when struck in the head by a piece of flying metal, shows great improvement today, according to his physician, Dr. R. A. Johnston.

Cunningham was removed to Victoria hospital in Logan's ambulance following the accident. His condition shows sufficient improvement to warrant his removal from the hospital today, Dr. Johnston states.

SAUNDERS IS BACK WITH THE BACON

Returns From Toronto "Ex" With Enough Stock Entries For New Fair.

President J. H. Saunders, of the Western Fair Board, has returned from Toronto where he attended the exhibition. London's veteran fair president does not attend the National Exhibition as ordinary mortals do, for when he found himself safely within the portals of the Western Fair offices, he turned out his pockets and produced a list of extra livestock exhibitors, grabbed off hot in Toronto, and all paid in advance.

President Saunders believes in his own theory, "get the exhibitor's money and the exhibit will follow," and judging from the list of exhibitors which Mr. Saunders brought back with him, he could stage a live-stock show anywhere, any time, with his extensive connection in the fair circles of this province.

Some of the livestock entries which Mr. Saunders has secured hale from as far off as New Brunswick, while former exhibitors at Ottawa flocked to Mr. Saunders standard at the first invitation. The number of livestock entries which will be added to Western Fair as a result of Mr. Saunders' visit to Toronto would in themselves cramp the housing facilities of any smaller exhibition.

SEES GOOD OPENING FOR CANADIAN BONDS

Wall Street Journal Says Canada Could Float Long Term Issue Easily.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Sept. 5.—Commenting on the financial obligations of the Canadian government which are to fall due within the next three months, the Wall Street Journal says today:

"While the recent $70,000,000 short term four per cent loan floated by the Dominion government was no test of the New York market, being taken principally by banking houses, the present seems an opportune time for floating a long term Canadian loan as money rates are easy, there is a large amount of funds seeking investment and there are few undigested securities in the hands of dealers. Doubtless Canada can sell long term bonds at par with a lower coupon rate than it is now paying on outstanding bonds."

Dashing Soldier of 1875 Is Now a Charity Patient

Friends of Peter Goffney, 95, Seek an Increase in Pension.

NEIGHBORS ASSIST.

Fifty years ago a dashing soldier, fighting under Roberts in India; today a charity patient in St. Joseph's hospital. This is the tragedy of Peter Goffney, 95 years old, of West Williams.

For the past ten years, as old age crept upon him, he has been fighting a losing battle, compelled to subsist upon a pension of six dollars a month. His friends and neighbors have assisted him generously, however, and he managed to get along. A short while ago he was taken ill and removed to St. Joseph's hospital.

The Canadian government is not interested, as his services were with the imperial forces. Should he die a pauper's grave would be his lot, unless $45 is provided to buy a headstone. Should this be forthcoming he will be assured a military funeral and interment along with the veterans of the great war.

Efforts are being made by friends who have helped care for him for the past years to arouse interest in his case. An attempt will be made to have his pension increased so as to be adequate for his needs. Refusal has met previous attempts, and it is not thought that the will of the authorities has changed.

Ancient Peace Pipe Is Found

Canadian Press Despatch.

Regina, Sask., Sept. 4.—Swathed in its original wrappings, some of the inner material being hundreds of years old, one of the oldest relics on the American continent is now on its way to New York to its long rest in the museum of American Heyer Foundation, an institution devoted exclusively to Indian relics.

D. A. Cadzow, curator of the museum, is in Regina today after more than a month spent in the various Indian reserves in Saskatchewan. He secured a mass of old knives, arrows, blankets, beads and other trinkets, but the prize he was after and secured was possibly the last of the peace pipes retained by the Crees.

WILLIAMS CLAN HOLDS REUNION

Family Chart Covering 150-Year Period Presented at Springbank.

Yesterday 62 members of the Williams family of Oxford county met at Springbank Park for their annual reunion. It proved to be the largest attended and the most enjoyable reunion yet held although the program was impromptu.

The feature of the day was the presentation of a family chart showing the record of the family for the past 150 years. The lineage is in the hands of the secretary, Horace Davison, of Toronto.

This family originally occupied the site on which Brock's monument now stands at Queenston Heights.

Many parts of the province were represented by the gathering, including Toronto, Oxford and Elgin counties and also parts of the United States had large representations including Minneapolis, Minn.; Michigan, and other states.

Families of E. S. McLelland, Mr. Turner of Beachville; Arthur King and J. F. Brown of Brownsville, Dr. Jackson of Port Stanley, Col. W. J. Brown of London and Roland Stephens of London were present.

It is probale that the family will return to Springbank next year for its reunion.

LONDON CO-OPERATES IN SPEEDING UP MAILS

Zoning System in Toronto Is Aided by Work of Mailers Here.

Toronto's postal zoning system for speeding up the despatch of mail is having the co-operation of London citizens says W. H. Skinner, assistant postmaster.

The new method, which divides the Queen City into several numbered sections, requires that letters carry the number of the district in which the letter is addressed. In the lobby of the local postoffice is a map of Toronto, and users of the mails may number their letters before posting them.

Mr. Skinner says that it will take some time to develop the habit of numbering the letters, but up to the present the citizens have helped considerably to quicken the service.

Criticizing the Church.

A preacher who occupied a London pulpit recently made the statement that he had little patience with the criticism levelled against churches from those on the outside. He held that in many cases they did not know what they were talking about, and that if they were better informed they would have little to say on the subject.

He may have had some very good reason for the view, yet criticism, plenty of it from any source, whether it be fair or unfair, has never yet stopped or hindered a church that was true to the commission of declaring the whole truth, preaching the full, unadulterated gospel of the Master.

Paul, the greatest preacher of all times, would have been fortunate, as we call things fortunate, had he escaped with criticism. The people to whom he preached Christ and Him crucified did not stop at criticism. Paul was beaten, driven from cities, jailed; he knew what it was to feel the passion of the mob, but it is not on record that he asked them to cease their criticism.

When Paul was handed over to the Philippian jailer he was not even given decent treatment, for the story says he was "thrust" into the inner prison. Before that he had been beaten and no attention was paid to his physical condition. Once in that Roman prison his feet were made fast in the stocks.

It might be pertinent to ask of those who object to criticism of churches, preachers and church workers, what they would have done under like circumstances? No doubt there would be efforts today to secure legal advice, hire a lawyer, get money to be bailed out. But Paul was as persistent in that jail as he was in the streets where he preached. If he didn't have an audience in there it was his business to get one.

So Paul and Silas with him sang hymns and prayed. What had Paul to sing about? One could understand his praying, but not the singing. Cruelly beaten, his wounds not cared for, locked in prison, his feet fast in the stocks, and a Roman jailer on guard. There was not much in that setting to make a man sing, but Paul did.

Why? The answer comes in the chance he found—created would be a better word—to preach to the Roman jailer and lead him to Christ. If Paul had been peeved at the way this arm of Roman authority had treated him, if he had spent his midnight hours in jail figuring on the injustice of it all, he never would have had the joy of pointing the way of salvation to that jailer. Criticism, open hostility, mob violence and jail all meant one thing to Paul—preach the gospel.

The preacher or the church that has its face firmly set today toward the fearless declaration of the old gospel message is going to be criticized and opposed. It always has been so and it always will be so. If there is no opposition to the work then the church might very well begin an inquiry to find out if it is doing the work the Lord appointed it to do.

A Definite Accomplishment.

The national debt of Canada is not something that the government owes. A government may be here today and away tomorrow, but the debt stays. It is a debt that is the property of the taxpayers of Canada, an obligation just as real as a bill incurred in purchases at a store by any one individual.

When a government increases this national debt it increases the obligation on every resident in the dominion to pay the interest on it and to share in any plan made for its discharge.

In 1923 the net debt of Canada was at its highest point. In recent years it has been:

1917	$ 879,186,297
1918	1,191,884,062
1919	1,574,531,032
1920	2,248,868,625
1921	2,340,878,985
1922	2,422,135,801
1923	2,453,776,868
1924	2,417,783,274
1925	2,417,437,685
Aug. 31, 1925	2,336,933,600

The August 31 figure is given because the figure above represented the standing on March 31. The comparison between the high mark of 1923 and today shows:

1923	$2,453,776,864
Today	2,336,933,600
Decrease	$ 116,843,264

That is a definite accomplishment by the King government. Only ten times since confederation has there been a reduction in the national debt, and two of these have been registered by the present government.

Actual performance of that character is what the people of Canada want, and it is what they will support.

Dr. Donald and the Fish.

Dr. Donald Tressler of Pittsburg has tact. He was one of the speakers at the United States Fisheries Association in Atlantic City, and he told the members exactly what they wanted to hear. He related that eating fish was the cure for pessimism, fits of temper, failures, indiscretion, peevishness, laziness and many other afflictions.

Of course the members of the fish association agreed with him. They probably stamped their feet on the floor and hammered the table with their fists. So Donald went farther and gave them some more. If people ate fish, oysters, crabs and other sea foods they would at once shed the following list of ailments: Defective teeth, poor eyes, unsightly complexion, headaches dyspepsia, flat feet, bow legs, weak bones, nervousness, goitre, gout, rheumatism, scurvy and rickets.

It was probably from sheer exhaustion that Dr. Donald stopped before he included ingrown toe-nails and dandruff. The chances are that the fish convention will ask him to speak again.

Reasonable and Right.

Hon. George S. Henry has made the announcement that every man or woman who drives a car in Ontario next year will have to secure a driving permit. There can be no exception taken to this, in fact it is as it should be. He was not quite clear as to whether an examination would be necessary in order to secure a permit, or if the tests would be made afterward. Making the tests would take time if the method used is thorough enough to be effective, but the permit and the test should be brought as closely together as possible.

At present it seems to be taken for granted that if a man is able to purchase a car he is also able to drive it, but the two do not necessarily go together at all, and the permit and test system should be thorough enough and have spine enough to stop a man from driving the car he owns if he is not a competent driver.

Mr. Henry is not running ahead of public opinion in making his announcement. He is only taking a much overdue step to catch up with it.

The Power of Lightning.

The age of steam power has given way in some measure to an age of electrical power, of which no better evidence is found anywhere than in Ontario, where the mighty power of Niagara has been harnessed to turn factory wheels and light homes hundreds of miles away. The development of electricity is by no means complete and the next generation may see the beginning of a new power age with energy drawn from the clouds rather than from waterpower.

The meteorological office of the British government has just published an estimate that the clouds in one second of time contain more potential electrical energy than that obtained from all the water-power in the world during six months.

These are tremendous figures, too tremendous to comprehend. They are based on a calculated average of 44,000 thunderstorms each day throughout the world, giving one hundred flashes of lightning every second. Each flash of lightning is said to release double the energy of the world's water-power, of which the mighty roar of Niagara is only a fraction.

Power is the weapon of civilization. It is through discovery of means to control the energies of nature that man has achieved his works. The potential power which man may learn to draw from the clouds opens up vast new possibilities of both good and evil.

Hooting At a Just Move.

A Chicago despatch says the city council "bowed to the ultimatum of the war department this afternoon and passed the required water-meter ordinance by a vote of 30 to 17. The vote was recorded amid the hoots of an audience that packed the galleries."

This is the first step toward curtailing the amount of water Chicago may take from the lake, and it was taken only after the war department threatened to cut in half the total that Chicago may take over and above the amount governed by treaty.

And yet this step, taken only because the war office held a club over the head of the city council, brought forth a volley of hoots from the crowd that had gathered to witness the battle.

One cannot help but wonder if there is such a thing as sane public opinion in Chicago, or if its sense of international decency has departed. The leadership in that city must be nothing sort of nauseating, otherwise there would have been cheers rather than hoots when an act was done that was in accordance with honest purpose and decent behaviour.

That crowd in Chicago city hall must have known that Chicago's case in the eyes of the world is the rankest piece of vandalism that has been recorded on the great lakes. Yet their actions indicate a desire on their part that the city council should stubbornly adhere to a course of piracy that could not be justified or countenanced.

Chicago may be abounding in wealth, and it may have a population of three million souls, but its conscience is that of a pigmy.

Ned's In Trouble

Ned Whiskers went away this year, his wife she picked the swellest spot, but ever since she's keepin' Ned a-humpin' like a waiter's trot.

I met Ned Whiskers yesterday, it's weeks since I have talked with him, he has ten freckles on his nose, a coat of tan glued to his skin. For Ned he's been away a while, so when I met him yesterday I asked him how he spent his time when he was visitin' away.

Well Ned he 'llowed it was all right, his wife had planned the trip this year, but there was somethin' in the thing that put Ned Whiskers out of gear.

"You know," says Ned, "my wife picked out the swellest boardin' place she could, she claimed as how a spell in there would do us all a heap of good. She wouldn't have no work to do, so she could sit beneath a tree, and have a restin' time herself and loaf around the same as me.

"Of course that's fair enough," says Ned, "so we packed up and went away, expectin' how that her and I would have a bang-up holiday.

"You should have seen the style they pitched, it was no homespun type of men, they started after breakfast time to dress for when they'd feed again. I never seen the like before, one dude would rush to take your hat, another he would crook his fist and tell you where you're sittin' at. Another fetched a water jug, another lugged a butter dish, it was the durnest show on earth before you reached the soup and fish.

"Well I put up as best I could and let the missus have her fling, I reckoned when we came back home we'd quit that stupid sort of thing.

"But I'll be blowed," says Ned to me, "now that we've come to settle down, she wants me runnin' here and there and jumpin' like a circus clown. It ain't the way we use; to do, for we was humble in our style, we'd stack the victuals on at once and make of them a decent pile.

"But now she wants one at a time, and then another when that's through, she has me hoofin' in the house just like them waiters used to do. I 'llow as how she had a rest, just sittin' there beneath a tree, but notions what she picked up there has spoiled that holiday for me."—ARK.

BROTHER GOT THE LINGO.

A boy left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother who elected to stick to the farm, telling of the joys of city life in which he said: "Thursday we autoed out to the Country club, where we golfed until dark. Then we motored to the beach for the week-end."

The brother on the farm wrote back: "Yesterday we buggied to town and baseballed all the afternoon. Today we muled out to the cornfield and ge-hawed until sundown. After we had suppered, we piped for a while. After that we staircased up to our room and bedsteaded until the clock fived."

Western Fair

Editor of The Advertiser.

Sir,—A few words re Toronto exposition. I have given three days, including the nights, looking and wondering. This show spreads beyond the national boundaries. Its exhibits not only comprehend the program of Canada's best resources, but include the most practical productions of many foreign countries. United States, England, France, Russia and other countries are so well represented that it classes this exhibition as thoroughly international.

It has taken forty-seven years of continual organization to win the reputation of the largest, most successful and best organized continuous exhibition of any country of the globe. The buildings and three hundred acres of land comprising this enterprise carry an investment of nearly twelve million dollars. It has over a mile of water frontage. The chief impression we glean of this nearly half-century of success has been the unflinching and vigorous support of Toronto's newspapers at home and the newspapers of Canada generally, coupled with the press support. The great railways and electric transportation systems deserve unlimited praise. The provincial and dominion governments have also extended their support. The agricultural colleges have always responded to the call of duty.

It requires large sums of money, energy, labor and many other conditions to make exhibitions or fairs successful. For these and many other reasons Canada cannot expect or hope to support more than two or three exhibitions. There will always be a pride in fairs. Toronto has laid the concrete foundation for a world-wide exposition.

London stands next as the logical candidate, by reason of its locality and its unrivaled agricultural resources. London is in easy and close touch with the great lakes and railways. It is in the midst of hundreds of miles of modern improved public roads. The farmer or manufacturer located a hundred or more miles away can reach London by auto in three or four hours.

The Western Fair should expand and gradually become a very large and influential exhibition. It should have the liberal support of the Ontario and dominion governments.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. MOORE.

Souvenir Hunters Loot Shenandoah Remains of Important Evidence.

Associated Press Despatch.

Caldwell, Ohio, Sept. 4.—Valuable information that may have aided naval officials in determining angles of the wreckage of the Shenandoah and the events leading up to the buckling of the ship is lost through looting, which continued all night. Naval officials this morning expressed deep concern over the absence of such portions of the wreckage as whole motors, the control wheel, switchboards and various minor controls.

These portions of the wreckage are vital in the investigation, but they have been scattered far and wide. A control wheel was reported to be somewhere in Caldwell, and a switchboard six feet long was seen going through Cambridge late yesterday.

Intensive search for the dirigible's barograph, an instrument which automatically records air pressure, atmospheric moisture and temperature, was begun late today by Commander J. H. Klein, Lakehurst, N.J., who arrived here today. He declared the device is vital to the investigation into the cause of the crash.

The barograph is believed to be in the possession of one of the thousands who carried away mementos of the scenes of demolition, some miles apart. The 20 silken gas cells of the ship, many of them undamaged, each costing several thousand dollars, were ripped from the framework and carried away by pillagers.

Authorities from the naval air station at Lakehurst spent all day at the scenes of the wreckage, consulting with the five survivors who remained in Caldwell, and endeavoring to draw conclusions which will be used in officially determining the cause of the accident.

It was the unofficial opinion of the investigators, after studying the wreckage, that the ship buckled as the result of air rushing into holes torn in the hull by the wrenching loose of the radio and control cabins in the gale.

WANTED! A CAR TO GET TO FAIR

Child Welfare Association Makes Appeal for Overburdened Mothers.

The women's board of the London Child Welfare association has plenty of work before it this season, according to reports presented at yesterday afternoon's meeting held at the Institute of Public Health, Mrs. F. R. Hardie in the chair.

An appeal for help came from Miss Bertha Smith, supervisor of Child Welfare Nurses, who has found many little feet badly off for want of shoes and rubbers. These very necessary articles of clothing are needed for children from 1 to 6 years who will soon begin to find the ground too cold for bare feet.

Ask Transportation.

Miss Smith had still another appeal. This time the appeal was to citizens with cars. She knows of several mothers, with very large families, who would like to take their children to the Fair on Monday, Children's Day, but will be unable to do so unless some means of transportation is found. To look after so many children on the street car, would be impossible. And the children are so anxious to attend the Fair. A phone message to Miss Smith will get in touch with these mothers.

The association's most immediate work is the Child Welfare Tent which will be found at the Western Fair at the end of next week. The members are requesting citizens to be generous with old papers, old linen and pieces of blanket to be used in the tent during Fair week. Here mothers may bring their babies and leave them in the best of care while they enjoy the exhibition.

Miss Smith is also making an appeal for washable toys, (preferably rubber which can be sterilized,) to amuse the children who visit the tent. Milk will be supplied as usual to all the children who call. The Trafford Furniture Company has loaned a refrigerator; the Public Utilities is installing a heater and lights; Raymond Brothers have loaned the tent, and so equipment is being pretty well looked after.

As a last resort 18 more destroyers were sent last night to join in the search. Capt. John Rodger, the machine's commander, is shown below.

WILL SHE RETURN TO LONG TRESSES?

Secretary of Hairdressers' Association Predicts Return to Lengthy Locks.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 5.—"Long hair will soon be in style again, though I cannot state even approximately the date at which it will begin to be a general fashion," said J. M. Perron of Toronto, secretary of the National Hairdressers' association of Canada, speaking of proposed alterations in dressing of women's hair.

"The change is taking place in England and France. It will be hard for the Canadian girls to grow used to the idea at first, and so they won't bother much about the kinds of ornament they will choose for their long locks for some time yet. Among the wealthy people transformations will be very much worn.

"Having been abroad and having been in contact with people who know the profession thoroughly, I am safe in saying that in Canada we have as good hairdressers and workers as in any of the other countries. In Canadian hairdressing parlors I have seen graduates from schools of England, Belgium, France and the United States."

CANADIAN AIRMAN IN RIFF BATTLES

Major James Sussan of Ottawa Will Command Observers of Lafayette Escadrille.

Associated Press Despatch.

Meknes, Morocco, Sept. 4.—To a Canadian airman has fallen the honor of being the first of the fliers of the Lafayette escadrille of making the first service flight in Morocco.

Major James Sussan of Ottawa, who commands the American observers attached to the French aviation centers here, yesterday made a reconnoitering flight over the Ouezzan district, where the escadrille of Canadian and United States aviators is to be stationed.

Major Sussan said today he was especially impressed with the absence of suitable places for landing in case of motor trouble or other mishaps. He considered the region more dangerous for forced landings than any he had flown over during his four years' service in the great war.

The Canadian and United States observers received at Meknes a short course of instruction in bombing, machine gun work and air photography. In the war against the Riffians the heaviest work in the air falls on the observers, the role of pilot being virtually that of chauffeur as the enemy possesses no chaser planes.

The work that is expected of the Canadian commander and the officers of his force during the coming offensive may be judged from a short resume of what was accomplished at the outbreak of the Riffian war. Air forces entered the action April 12; during the night of the 13th, and the days of the 14th, 15th and 18th, war planes alone carried out 120 bombardments. A single bombardment is said to have killed 180 warriors.

During April the 37th regiment's aviation squadron made 1,275 flights, dropped 41 tons of bombs, and transported 17 badly wounded French soldiers from the battlefield to the hospital. At the commencement of hostilities there were ten squadrons, each of six machines, in Morocco. Now there are nineteen, eight plane squadrons, including Major Sussan's unit.

Getting Ready For Big Drive

Associated Press Despatch.

Fez, Sept. 4.—While warships are shelling Abd-el-Krim's headquarters, the battlefront is humming with activity all along the line for the coming offensive. Reinforcements are being rapidly slipped into places assigned to them in the plan of action formulated by Marshal Petain and General Naulin.

The air service is doing most of the fighting at present. It has redoubled its energy, and is making repeated bombing flights.

MEMORIAL ARCH NOW COMPLETED

Woodstock Horticultural Society Finishes Arch After Years of Work.

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Sept. 4.—The memorial arch, placed by the Horticultural society at the entrance to Southside park, was completed today by the installation of large bronze bases for the lights on each pillar. Lights have also been placed on the corners of the ornamental bridge, and the lights along the memorial drive were lighted tonight. This memorial arch is the culmination of several years' effort on the part of the Horticultural society, and the city now has a war memorial in Victoria park and the memorial arch at Southside.

Robert MacIntosh, county treasurer of Oxford, has received a check for $36,297.07 from the provincial treasurer as payment of the annual government grant for the schools of Oxford. North Oxford will receive $19,000.32 as its share of the grant, and $662.92 for accommodation and equipment, while South Oxford will receive $17,296.75, and $554.89 for accommodation and equipment, all amounts being paid through the township treasurers from the county treasurer. The grant does not include the government payment for fifth grade schools or continuation schools, which will be paid later.

Charged with having unlawfully assisted a prisoner to escape from custody, Charles Burston of this city was today committed for trial at the fall assizes by Police Magistrate Ball. The charge followed an incident at Southside park, where on August 16 the park constable, Arthur Dent, arrested Reginald Carr on a charge of making a disturbance, Burston being alleged to have taken the prisoner away from the officer.

DIESEL RAIL CARS ASTOUND EXPERTS

Fuel Costs Trifle Over Cent a Mile On Long Ontario Run.

Special to The Advertiser.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 4.—Reports which have been received by C. E. Brooks, chief of motive power of the Canadian National Railways, regarding the operating of the new Diesel-electric passenger cars which are being prepared for regular service on the lines of the company, are highly encouraging to Mr. Brooks and those who have been associated with him in the design and construction of this radical departure in motive power in the rail transportation industry. The sixty-foot car which has been making a series of test runs on various lines in Western Ontario, returned to Montreal yesterday under its own power. The run from Toronto to Montreal is a distance of 334 miles, and the fuel oil consumed by the car on that run yesterday cost $3.50. The cost of the lubricating oil used on the run averaged one-seventh of a cent per mile, or about 48 cents for the entire trip.

During the past week motive power and electrical engineers from several of the large railways in the United States, and from some of the big electrical corporations have accompanied the car on its trips, and without exception they have pronounced it to be one of the most amazing inventions in modern transportation, and predict for it an unending success.

Their Future

You want your child to be equipped as others are; and perhaps you are working to that end.

Why Not Make Your Plans Secure?

Why not provide, as many parents are now doing, that, "no matter what happens," your boy or girl will have a fair start in life?
Let us tell you how this is done through the new Canada Life

You can guarantee funds for those vital years of training—for your boy or girl.

You have probably thought this matter over many times. Here is a chance to do something—tangible, immediate—yet quite easy.
We will send a proposal giving more complete information. A request will place you under no obligation.

VALUABLE PRIZES INSURES MONDAY

Sun Will Bring Joyful Holiday —Rain, Rich Re-Wards.

Everything is in readiness for the mammoth Labor Day celebration and 1925 season grand finale to be held at Port Stanley on Monday afternoon and evening.

The list of attractions rivals the greatest ever offered in Ontario, and caps, with its stupendous rain or shine prize list, all previous programs at the Coney Island of Western Ontario.

The rain prizes which alone exceed $2,265 in actual cash value are absolutely free to the patrons of the L. & P. S., including both those who ride to and from the lake on the swift electric trains, and others who patronize the cafeteria and Bridge street restaurant. Moreover, these rain prizes are up for a six-hour period—just doubling the time that brought prizes twice in August to L. & P. S. patrons. The first three-hour period, opening at 2:30, will have as its capital prize a $1,215 Essex coach, the latest six-cylinder model from the London Hudson-Essex Sales, while in the next three-hour period immediately following, there will be a grand prize of a $1,050 Heintzman & Co. player-piano, the winner having the alternative choice of a $600 upright piano and a $450 Zenith radio receiving set, complete and installed in his or her home.

If it rains in both periods, both sets of prizes will go out, while if it does not rain at all there will still be a drawing for the holders of the lucky number and the award of prizes worth $450. The draw will be held at the Beach Movies at 9 p.m., and while it is advisable to attend, it is not essential, as the winning numbers will be published in Tuesday's London and St. Thomas newspapers.

The attractions' program includes a sensational girls' baseball tourney, with the Toronto Karrys playing the London Thistles at 2:15, and the London Brownies at 5 p.m. The Philadelphia Treasure Hunt, in which thousands participated on civic holiday, will be repeated with a $15 cash first prize, and ten other generous awards.

The Treasure Hunt is open to all patrons of the L. & P. S., the formula being printed on the reverse side of the rain contest lucky number cards. It is a simple yet intriguing pastime that has created a furore in the bigger cities of the United States.

The big list of comedy and novelty sports to be held on the Heights at 2:30 will be followed by the 1925 championship baby show, the eleven events of which will conclude with judging for the silver trophy.

Before the commencement of the Toronto-London girls' ball match there will be a magnificent display of the latest novelties in daylight fireworks. In the evening the Beach Movies will have as its feature Monte Blue and Evelyn Brent in Loving Lies, supplemented by a side-splitting comedy, the final amateur theatrical contest, and a dazzling fireworks grand finale. The amateur contest should prove a most attractive feature, as all prize-winners of the first seven events have been especially invited to compete.

WHITE CARGO IS VIVID LOVE TALE

Grand Opera House Management Will Present Big Production, Beginning Monday.

Theatregoers who see White Cargo will be given a surprise, impressive and unexpected, when a company of superior excellence presents Earl Carroll's notable dramatic success of New York, Chicago and London. White Cargo in a manner has of it something to be remembered through many a long day. It's so big and gripping that it takes hold of the emotions and twists them like a leaf in a storm.

White Cargo is a vivid love story of the tropics. The long unbroken run of the show in New York, London and Chicago established it as an offering of dynamic force and distinctive appeal, pronouncing it one of the biggest and most sensational plays ever seen. The applause that follows scene after scene and the sum of commendatory discussion throughout the house is something not heard in theatres in a long time The audience by its repeated applause admits its bigness.

White Cargo is nothing if not daring. Don't forget that for a moment—but remember this also—it took bad women to make history blaze and empires crumble. When you see White Cargo you'll think of all the temptation you (the men) ever experienced. It's that sort of play—it makes you think and feel as you've seldom ever thought or felt.

The show presents the unusual situation of a group of white men, two of them employees of a rubber company in charge of a plantation, an aged doctor given to inebriety, and a missionary residing in the reeking sweaty atmosphere of tropical West Africa, these men all getting the damp rot of the jungle into their physical and moral fibre.

The cast is one of extraordinary merit. Particularly is the role of Langford well handled—brilliantly so in fact. In the opinion of all who have witnessed this wonder play the entire cast is well balanced and ably acted. Coming to London direct from Daly's theatre, New York.

White Cargo with its original cast and scenic effects comes to the Grand opera house Monday, Labor Day, matinee and night, and Tuesday evening.

DUMBELLS WILL PRESENT LUCKY 7

Capt. Plunkett's Popular Players at the Grand All Fair Week.

For their seventh consecutive season, the Dumbells will be the attraction at the Grand Opera house for the fall Fair week.

When they come here on Monday Sept. 14, they will present an entirely new revue called Lucky Seven, in commemoration of their seventh year as a regular theatrical attraction in Canada.

This new show, which is under the personal direction of Capt. M. W. Plunkett, is fully a third bigger than any of their previous offerings and even greater than that in entertainment value.

The Dumbells are now playing to record crowds at the Royal Alexandra theatre in Toronto, and all the critics in that city are unanimous in declaring Lucky Seven to be to finest thing ever done by this talented organization.

Next to the orchestra, which has been enlarged this season and is more of a feature than ever, the outstanding hits of the bill appear to be Al. Plunkett's songs, "Whiter Than Snow" and "As Long as She Loves Me," the latter being the greatest number ever sung by this clever exponent of heart throbs, and the big production number written for Ross Hamilton by Howard Fogg, the new musical director of the company. This song is entitled "Darling, I Love You," and anyone who thinks Hamilton has lost his voice or figure should see and hear him in this number.

The three sketches, two played for comedy and one serious, provide laughs and thrills galore, while Pat Rafferty stops the show with "I'm Not All There" and Stan Bennett contributes two of his deucedly clever songs.

"Red" Newman scores heavily both with his songs and in all three of the sketches.

The scenic investure reaches the realms of lavishness, while the costuming leaves nothing to be desired.

The Dumbells engagement at the Grand is for the entire Fair week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Mail orders now filled in the order received if accompanied by check or money order for value of seats, plus tax. The seat sale opens Wednesday.

WOMEN and THE HOME

MISS VIVIAN LANGFORD IS CHARMING BRIDE OF TODAY

Attractive Wedding Takes Place Today in Metropolitan Church.

TO LIVE IN LONDON

A wedding of wide interest was that which took place in the Metropolitan United church early this afternoon, when Le Zetta Vivian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Langford, of this city, became the bride of Dr. William Pelton Tew, also of London. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. Bruce Hunter before a large gathering of the friends of the bride and groom.

The church with its bright masses of gladioli, delphinium and asters against a bank of palms, ferns and Easter lillies, formed an attractive setting for the bride, winsome in her wedding robe of ivorire satin eclatante, enriched with Spanish lace outlined in silver. A court train of silver tissue, lined with shell pink crepe Elizabeth, was caught at the shoulders with pearl ornaments, while the bridal veil of French tulle was held in place with a pretty garland of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was a shower of Butterfly roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride wore the groom's gift, a diamond dinner ring.

Maid of Honor.

Miss Helen Langford was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a becoming gown of ceil blue taffeta with trimmings of silver lace. The gowns of the two bridesmaids, Miss Belle Fetterley of this city and Miss Beatrice Pelton of Toronto, were of Crevette pink taffeta. All three gowns were fashioned alike with low waistline, tight bodice and bouffant skirts, trimmed with silver lace. The hats were of black panne velvet with drooping brims of tulle. Black velvet streamers caught to one side with nosegays of pink and blue fell to the hem of the skirts at the back. Silver shoes and hose were worn. All carried arm bouquets of Butterfly roses and pale blue delphinium.

Dr. Gordon Cameron of Toronto was groomsman and the ushers were Dr. Cecil Rae of Toronto, Mr. Lawrence Langford of Toronto, brother of the bride, Dr. Harold Little and Mr. Morell Blackie of this city.

Tall standards and baskets of pink gladioli and delphinium were placed before the altar, banked with palms, ferns and Easter lilies. Each guest pew was marked by clusters of delphinium and baby's breath, caught with bows of white tulle. The wedding music was rendered by Mr. W. A. Bluethner, who also played a harp solo on the organ during the signing of the register.

Wedding Reception.

The guests repaired later to the home of the bride's parents on Waterloo street, where a reception and wedding breakfast was held. Mrs. A. A. Langford assisted the bridal pair in receiving the guests, wearing an imported gown of sapphire blue and silver voile velours, a smart hat of black panne velvet with touches of silver, and carrying an arm bouquet of Columbia roses.

Mrs. Harry E. Tew, mother of the groom, wore a handsome gown of gray crepe satin, a black panne velvet hat and corsage of pink sweet peas.

A pink and blue color scheme was also carried out in the house, the bride and groom receiving before a bank of palms. Baskets of gladioli and asters were used effectively in living-room and hall, while in the dining-room the bride's table was centered with bridal roses, lilies of the valley and smilax. Ferns trailed from the chandeliers.

An honored guest of the day was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. L. J. Mottashed of Hamilton. Early this evening Dr. and Mrs. Tew will leave by motor for Toronto and from there will take boat for the Saguenay trip.

For travelling the bride donned a modish gown of blonde canton crepe with shoes and hose to match, a smart imported wrap in black prince shade trimmed with gray lamb, and hat en suite.

The groom's gift to the maid of honor was a handsome wrist watch; to the bridesmaids, vanity cases; to the groomsman, a cigarette case, and to the ushers, gold cuff links.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Newton Rowell of Toronto, Mrs. Alexander Langford of Toronto, Dr. Gordon Cameron and Dr. Cecil Rae of Toronto.

Sheep

Like the slow thunder of long seas on the height
Where God has set no sea,
Voices of folded sheep in the quiet of night
Come on the wind to me.

Like the low murmur of full tide on a beach
Where tide shall never roll,
They sent their mournful, inarticulate speech
Heavily on my soul.

Past is my sorrow, the night past, and the morn
Bright on her golden sills,
Only the hill-fold voices drowsily scorn
The comfort of the hills.

—Marjorie Pickthall.

With much regret many of the members of St. Mary's Mothers' unit met at the home of Mrs. William Durkin, on Princess avenue, this week to bid farewell to their beloved president, Mrs. Cromwell, who leaves shortly to make her home in Windsor. The event took place on the lawn, which was gayly decorated and lighted with Chinese lanterns. A dainty lunch was served out-of-doors, after which the guests adjourned to the house, where Mrs. J. McClaferty, the secretary, read an address, and Mrs. J. Ryan, the vice-president, presented Mrs. Cromwell with a lovely pair of silver candlesticks. Mrs. Cromwell thanked the ladies, but it was Monsignor Brady who replied for her. Father Chisholm was also a guest of the evening, during which a delightful program was given, including readings by Mrs. P. J. Clifford; piano solos, Miss Genevieve Durkin, and solos by Mrs. T. McCarty and Mrs. J. McClaferty. The guests were received by Mrs. Durkin, assisted by Miss Hogan and Miss Durkin, and at the conclusion of the evening a hearty vote of thanks was extended to the hostess for the loan of her home.

A most enjoyable time was spent Thursday evening by the staff, their families and friends of the Ontario hospital. Over 200 attended in a very joyous mood, and there was a lot of fun, a lot of singing and a little dancing, and then upon the scene came some piping hot corn, some real "red hot" weiners and, of course, that delicacy, marshmallows. After everybody had roasted their fill the fun began. Led by that very efficient comedian, Mr. "Paddy" Jeffries, the whole company sat round one of the huge bonfires in a large circle and the air was soon full of harmony from over 200 throats, singing songs ancient and modern; some recitations followed; a few funny stories, a skirl of the pipes, and then some more singing. The party broke up eventually with the singing of Auld Lang Syne, followed by the National Anthem. The large field was brilliantly lighted from the light of three huge bonfires, which dimmed the moon into insignificance. The guests were greeted by the superintendent, Dr. W. J. Robinson, in a neat little speech, and for which he was heartily cheered. The arrangements were excellently made out by a small committee of ladies and gentlemen of the staff.

One of the jolliest corn roasts was held this week by the staff and friends of the R. F. Kingsmill store, Ltd., who were entertained by the firm at the Kingsmill farm on Thursday evening. Numbering about 50, the guests were taken to and fro in motors, furnished by the Kingsmill family, and the hostesses, Mrs. Fred Kingsmill and Miss Ruth Kingsmill, received the guests upon their arrival. The hosts were Mr. T. F. Kingsmill and son, Mr. Fred Kingsmill and Mr. Tom Kingsmill. The farm is situated on a hill and the huge bonfire was visible for several miles. The grounds were gaily decorated with lanterns, and the old-fashioned crane effect was used for the boiling of the corn. The evening was happily spent in games, songs and dancing under the direction of Miss C. Attridge and Miss K. Clarke, with the assistance of Mr. Louther. Prizes were given for the best group songs, dances and doughnut eating contests. Mr. Ronald Fonger captured the prize for being the youngest guest present. A vote of thanks was tendered by Mr. Marshall for the good time. Mr. T. F. Kingsmill, Sen., responded, emphasizing that he hoped they would be spared to enjoy many more such evenings at their farm. Refreshments were bountiful, consisting of corn, weiners, doughnuts, coffee, watermelon.

ALMA DAUGHTERS PLAN BUSY FALL

Local Association Has Installed New Bath and Guest Room.

A new improvement for Alma College, St. Thomas, has been made possible by the members of the London Alma Daughters, who, during the summer months, installed a new bathroom and guest room. The money was raised by the local association, and all the work was arranged by them.

An interesting program for fall work and pleasure is also being arranged by this organization. It is expected that the fall season will open with a masquerade, at which the members will wear some article worn at the college while they were in residence there. Besides this function a corn roast is a very probable bit of entertainment.

An executive meeting will be held shortly, though it is not likely that the regular meetings will be held before October.

Miss C. Helen Gibson Weds Capt. Focardi of U.S. Army

The home of Mrs. Lawrence Gibson, 885 Talbot street, was the scene of an interesting wedding at high noon today, when her granddaughter, Clara Helen, daughter of the late James Arthur Gibson and Mrs. Gibson of Buffalo, became the bride of Capt. Pier-Luigi Fecardi, Corps of Engineers, United States army. The Rev. Col. William Beattie performed the marriage ceremony, while Miss Minnie Raymond rendered the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mr. Douglas Cornell of Buffalo, was lovely in her mother's wedding gown. Fashioned of ivory silk, it was made with a court train and trimmed with rose pointe and duchesse lace. The bridal veil, also trimmed with rose pointe and duchesse lace, was worn by the grandmother of the bride sixty years ago. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

The house, aglow with autumn flowers, formed a pretty setting for the bridal pair, who received before a bank of palms and ferns in the drawing-room. Gladioli and asters in all their lovely shades, were used effectively throughout the rooms.

Mrs. Gibson, grandmother of the bride, received with her, wearing a graceful gown of black canton crepe, enriched with a bertha of cream rose pointe lace, while Mrs. Gibson, mother of the bride, wore a modish gown of pale gray crepe de chine, and a corsage of roses.

The wedding breakfast was served to the bridal pair, seated in a bay window banked with ferns. The bride's table was centered with the wedding cake and a bridal bouquet. About twenty-four guests were present, members of the immediate families.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Focardi left by motor for Detroit, and from thence will take a trip up the lakes. On their return they will reside in Buffalo.

For going away the bride donned a lovely gown of pale gray, a gray coat trimmed with fox, and a small gray hat.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included: Mrs. H. G. Bolton of Picton, Miss North of New York city, Mr. Fabia Focardi of New York, brother of the groom, Mrs. Frederick Busch and Mrs. Douglas Cornell of Buffalo, Mrs. May Cooper of Chatham, Mrs. Goodwin Gibson and Mr. Adair Gibson of Toronto, and Mrs. James Gibson of Buffalo.

WOMEN and THE HOME

MISS ISABEL IVEY MARRIES P. A. CHESTER OF WINNIPEG

Pretty Nuptials Solemnized Today at Metropolitan United Church.

125 GUESTS

The Metropolitan United church was a veritable garden of autumn bloom this afternoon for the marriage of Isabel Louise, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ivey of this city to Mr. Philip Alfred Chester of Winnipeg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester of Long Eaton, Derbyshire, England. Pink and blue formed the color scheme which was carried out for the most part in gladioli and delphinium.

The front of the church, banked all the way across with palms and ferns and Easter lilies was relieved by huge baskets of blue asters and pink gladioli and by tall standards of gladioli and delphinium. Great bows of white tulle caught sprays of baby's breath and delphinium to the guests pews.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. Bruce Hunter before about 125 guests and crowds of spectators who filled the church auditorium and gallery, for this, one of the smartest nuptial events of the season.

Bride Appears.

At the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. W. A. Bluethner, the bride appeared on the arm of her mother, Mr. Charles Ivey of the city. She was lovely in her nuptial robe of oyster white crepe romain, exquisitely embroidered in seed pearls and fashioned with godets of white silk Valenciennes lace.

Long sleeves were a characteristic note of the gown, which was made with a court train of crepe romain, divided at the shoulders and falling in two lovely sections to the floor, where the train was again united with trimmings of lace and pearls. The bridal veil was of Carrickmacross lace, simply arranged over the hair with a wreath of orange blossoms.

The bride carried a white Bible from which fell a shower of lillies of the valley and butterfly orchids.

A pretty pair of bridesmaids were Miss Doris Belton of this city and Miss Eleanor Reid of Montreal, cousin of the bride. The former wore an ombre frock of geranium georgette, its lovely shades cascading from neck to hem. Her hat was of geranium tone velvet, enriched at the side with a fall of shaded fringe. Miss Reid's gown was also a shaded creation in almond green and her hat of green velvet with a cascade of fringe trimming the side.

Both gowns were sleeveless and fashioned with godet skirts and tight bodices. The shoes were of silver with matching hose and they carried arm boquets of large shaggy dahlias in the autumn tints.

Winsome Flower Girl.

A third attendant was little Miss Lorraine Ivey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivey of this city, who made a winsome flower girl in her frilly frock of shaded blue georgette. She wore a bandeau in her hair and her flowers, Sweetheart roses, were carried in a pink basket. Mr. A. M. Wiseman of Winnipeg acted as best man, while the ushers were Richard Pierson of Winnipeg, Mr. Kenneth Ingram and Mr. Richard Ivey of this city. During the signing of the register, Miss Alice Graves sang delightfully Calm as the Night.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's brother, Mr. Richard Ivey, Wellington street north. The garden, lovely with its wealth of autumn flowers, formed an effective setting for the bridal breakfast which was served from a marquee on the lawn. Tall standards of flowers flanked the bride's table, centered with the wedding cake.

The bride was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Richard Ivey, Mrs. Charles Ivey and her sister, Mrs. D. E. Robertson of Toronto. Mrs. Richard Ivey wore a graceful gown of gray lace, a small hat of black satin and velvet and corsage of roses. Mrs. Charles Ivey was wearing a pretty French blue gown and a silver and black hat. Her corsage too was of roses. Mrs. Robertson's gown was of beige georgette, prettily fashioned, her hat of beige and henna and she wore a sable fur and corsage of roses.

Out-of-Town Guests.

The bridal pair will leave early this evening for their honeymoon, following which they will take up their residnce in Winnipeg. For travelling the bride wore a modish kasha gown in beige shade, braided in a conventional design. She wore a small felt hat to match and a cross fox fur. Her shoes and hose were also beige in tone.

Out of town guests for the wedding included: Mr. and Mrs. C. Green of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. W. Green of Toronto, Dr and Mrs. Gordon Armstrong of Toronto, Dr. and Mrs. Wray Barraclough of Toronto, Mrs. W. A. Reid of Montreal, an aunt of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Gallie of Toronto, Mr. Alexander of Winnipeg, Miss Marion Du Ross of Lakewood near Cleveland, Miss Helen Redman of Exeter, New Hampshire, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Currie of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McIntosh of Toronto, Miss Alice Weld of Chicago, Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Robertson and small sons of Toronto, Miss Jean McQueen of Toronto, Mrs. Joseph Ivey of Port Dover, Dr. and Mrs. George Wainwright and Mr. Edward Wainwright of Hamilton, Mr. W. S. Anderson of Toronto.

PEARL GRAY CORUNA.

For an everyday utility coat this straight model of pearl gray coruna will not doubt be the choice of many smart dressers during the coming autumn. It fastens snugly in front in a semi-fitting manner and has smart patch pockets large enough to be useful, rather than decorative. An opossum collar adds a smart finishing touch.

COOK'S CHURCH W. M. S.

Caradoc, Sept. 4.—The regular meeting of the W. M. S. of Cook's church, Caradoc, was held recently at the home of Miss Rose McCracken, Mt. Brydges, and was presided over by the president. STARVED HEARTS

By MILDRED BARBOUR.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS.

STEPHEN LANE, wealthy, middle-aged, despotic, rules with a tyrant hand his young wife.
BARBARA, who sold herself into a loveless marriage, and MADELON, his beautiful orphaned niece, whose father's marriage he had opposed some twenty years before and whose guardianship now devolves upon him. He broke up her boy-and-girl affair with DUANE FARLEY. Farley turned for sympathy to Barbara, who, unknown to Farley, fell in love with him. Lane, sent abroad, with business and professional ruin as the only alternative.
JULIAN BARTON, Madelon's real love, whose suit was sponsored by ANN ORDWAY, lifelong family friend, who loved Lane deeply, despite his faults, but whose lack of beauty kept her unnoticed by him. Lane sends Barbara and Madelon to California, where the latter meets
HOWARD CHANDLER, fascinating drifter, and marries him to escape Lane's tyranny.

CHAPTER LX.
Captured.

Madelon was secretly amused at the change in Miss Maitland following her introduction to Stephen Lane.

She became almost shy. A certain coyness crept into her manner. She hung flatteringly upon Lane's lightest word. She asked his opinion of this and that, and listened eagerly to his replies.

Gone was the decisive, voluble lady who held forth at length upon every subject brought to her attention. She drew Lane into conversation with adroit ease. She exhibited uncanny insigh; in choosing subjects upon which he liked to talk. Her soft voice, when she put an interested question, was honey.

To Madelon's amazement, Lane reacted wonderfully to the lady's tactics. He remained in the library chatting interestedly, even genially. He gave benign permission for Madelon to assist the charitable enterprise which Miss Maitland was furthering. He even gave his check to the cause.

Madelon could scarcely believe her eyes and ears.

Here was a new Lane, a human, genial individual whom she had never known!

When Miss Maitland finally took a reluctant departure, he turned to Madelon, and there was a pleasant smile on his thin lips.

"A very remarkable woman, that! A woman of brains."

"But I thought you said that a woman lecturer was an abomination," murmured Madelon demurely.

"Most of them are," he was quite unabashed by her reminder. But I should scarcely call Miss Maitland a professional lecturer. She is merely lending her talents to charitable enterprise. She has a great gift—she can talk intelligently. Most women merely chatter."

Madelon hid her amusement well. It was humourous to see how quickly her uncle had reacted to Miss Maitland's subtle flattery. She was undoubtedly clever. She might even be dangerous, Madelon decided. Somehow, despite the lady's pleasant manner, she could not rid herself of that first instinctive dislike.

As the weeks went by, she had cause for many another secret smile, for it was plain to see that Viola Maitland was slowly but surely wrapping her tendrils about Stephen Lane.

She came to the house constantly on one pretext or another, dropping in always around teatime when she knew that Lane returned home from his office. Her attitude toward Madelon was cloyingly affectionate. She gave Sunday evening supper parties in her apartment and asked Madelon and Lane as her chief guests. On the pretext of needing advice in regard to her financial affairs, she even dropped in at his office and Madelon saw them lunching together later, as she passed through one of the fashionable hotels on her way to keep an appointment with Ann.

She told Ann about it laughingly.

Ann shrugged.

"What did I tell you? If she's made up her mind to capture him, he's as good as gone now. Poor Stephen!"

But it would be funny," she added with a whimsical smile. "After all his arrogance, to be neatly managed by a clever woman!"

"Do you think he's likely to marry her?" Madelon asked.

"If that's what she's after, I don't believe he has much chance of escape."

Madelon hesitated—Ann had never since referred to the confidence she had given Madelon years ago regarding the state of her own heart toward Stephen Lane.

"You wouldn't . . . mind?" she asked finally.

Ann shrugged.

"What right have I to mind? I gave up all hope, if I ever had any, years ago. I have nothing that could attract Stephen. He doesn't notice my existence until he is in trouble. Then he turns to me. It is sufficient. It brings me happiness of a sort."

"You have a beautiful spirit, Ann. I wish I were like you."

Ann's smile had a little bitter twist. "But the beautiful spirit is hid too deep behind a plain face. There are few who find it. Be glad you are lovely, Madelon."

"What happiness has the beauty you speak of ever brought me?" Madelon asked, bitterly.

"You shall see," Ann promised. "Even yet, the gifts of the gods will come tumbling into your lap. I feel it."

That night, Lane called Madelon into the library after dinner.

There was a new light in his cold, gray eyes. A peculiar humanizing influence seemed to surround him. His voice was actually kindly.

"Madelon," he said, "I think you had better know that I am contemplating remarriage. Miss Maitland is the lady of my choice . . . I want to assure you that if my suit is successful, it will make no difference in your position here. I shall wish you to continue to make your home with me."

To Be Continued.

NATIONAL LIFE IS TOPIC OF ADDRESS

A. T. MacNeil, Woodstock, Talks to Members of Beachville Club.

Beachville, Sept. 4.—The September meeting of the Beachville Home and School club was held recently in the assembly room of the school, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Downing, presided and the meeting opened with singing of the Doxology and prayer by Rev. H. D. Moore.

Seven short papers on "Helpful Suggestions for the Training of the Young" were read by Miss M. Ward, Mrs. A. Archibald, Mrs. J. Todd, Mrs. A. Sutherland, Miss Josie Cook, Mrs. E. S. McClelland and Mrs. Janes.

Mrs. Downing then called on A. T. McNeil, of Woodstock, to address the meeting. Mr. MacNeil chose as his subject "The Basis of National Life." National life was divided into three parts: its activities, its ideals and its principles. The hope of the nation depended on the young life and older people should see to it that nothing but the very best methods were used in the training of the youth.

We could never hope for a high political or social order in nation until a true and real patriotism existed, for after all it was the emotion of the people that really ruled, and here was need for exhibiting more of the milk of human kindness.

The moral purity and uplift of a country was found only in its religion, and what a nation could be produced if Canadians set themselves to the task.

A hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. MacNeil for his talk. Meeting closed with singing National Anthem and a social half-hour.

APPEAL FOR HELP MADE BY CIRCLE

Talbot Women Sending Relief To India—Hold Interesting Session.

An appeal has been sent out by the Mission Circle of the Talbot street Baptist church for assistance in sending relief to those in distress in India, following the cyclone at Vuyurra. A friend of the circle has already donated a sum of money, and others wishing to do so may be given an opportunity if they get in touch with Mrs. Menhennick, Central avenue.

It was an interesting meeting that was held this week by the circle, with Mrs. Arthur Greenslade, the president, in the chair. About fifty members were in attendance at this first meeting of the season, and Mrs. Griffin was in charge of the devotional exercises, and because of her absence Mrs. McFadden read the paper Mrs. Griffin had prepared on "Influence." It was most inspiring.

Mrs. Johnstone led in prayer, after which Mrs. Walter Chalcraft sang very sweetly. The calling committee reported 38 visits during the summer months, and through the circle's efforts, Miss Annie Cameron and Miss Dorothy Carlton, both C. G. I. T. members of the church, were able to attend the missionary conference at Whitby in July. At this week's meeting these two girls gave excellent reports of the session, and the circle felt that they had accomplished a great deal.

The subject under discussion was Grande Ligne Mission in Quebec, and it took the form of a questionnaire. The nominating committee was also appointed and includes Mrs. Jepson, Mrs. Iveson, Mrs. J. D. Campbell, Mrs Peter Glen, Mrs. A. A. Affleck and Mrs. V. W. Stuart. Mrs Morris closed the session with prayer.

Why Not Take Stock of Your Wife's Assets, Mr. Man?

A man writes me that he was married to a woman who was a splendid housekeeper, a fine cook and a thrifty manager, but she had a high temper and nagged him until he felt that he could endure it no longer, so he got a divorce from her.

Now he has married again, and the present wife is easy going and good natured, but the meals she sits him down to would give an ostrich an attack of acute dyspepsia. The house looks as if a cyclone had struck it. She wastes his money and gads the streets, and he is miserable and dissatisfied, and wishes he had wife No. 1 back again, sharp tongue, good bread, savings bank book and all.

There is a moral in this little story for all disgruntled husbands, and they would do well to ponder it. It teaches first that in swapping wives a man nearly always jumps from the frying pan into the fire. And secondly, it teaches that you can't have everything you want in a wife, and that he is a wise man who takes his wife "as is," as shipping manifests say, and makes the best of the good qualities she possesses.

Naturally, every man would like to marry a woman who was a compendium of all the arts and graces and virtues. He would like his wife to be an ornament to the parlor and a treasure in the kitchen; to always look like a fashion plate, yet run no bills; to be brilliant and entertaining, yet self-effacing in his presence; to be gay and lively and full of pep, yet never to want to step out except when he did; to be high spirited, yet have no temper.

Of course, he doesn't get her for that sort of paragon has never yet been born. But he generally does marry a pretty fair assortment of these desirable qualities, and he should content himself with them instead of beating upon his breast and wailing out that he has been stung because his wife is not the earthly angel of his romantic dreams.

Certainly it would do much to stop divorce and add infinitely to the happiness of the world if, when a man got his matrimonial bargain home and looked it over carefully, he would make up his mind to get the most out of it, instead of writing it off as a total loss.

Suppose he would say: "Humph! I perceive that Sally has a temper hung on a hair trigger and likely to explode at any moment. Living with her is going to be like living in a storm center, and I am going to need a cyclone cellar badly and often.

"But she is a crackerjack cook. She is a human dynamo and while she may give me the rough side of her tongue, I will get a soft berth to live in. She may be as fretful as a porcupine, but she is as industrious as a little busy bee, and if she isn't a soothing companion, she is a mighty helpful business partner, so I break about even."

Or suppose a man should say: Betty is certainly a flivver as a housekeeper. She couldn't have a meal on time to save her life. The food she feeds her family on is first aid to the undertaker. The house always looks as if a cyclone has passed through it, and the children and I need about a pint of buttons sewn on our clothes.

"But the very spirit of home dwells in our house. There is peace in it, and love, and tenderness, and gayety, and laughter, and people flock to it, no matter how untidy it is. Betty may give us underdone bread and overdone meat to eat, but she feeds our souls on ambrosia. She may not be always able to find a clean collar for me, but she never fails to find just the right word to say to me when I need it to brace and cheer me up. And so if I have my trials in matrimony, I have also my consolations."

Or suppose a man should say: "Maud is a waster and a spender. She throws money away as if it grew on trees. She dresses too expensively. She is too socially ambitious. She tries to keep up with people who are far better off than we are, and I can see that life is just going to be one long sprint after the almighty dollar for me if I keep out of the poorhouse.

"But I'll tell the world that she is some looker, and that it is some satisfaction to perceive that I am getting the worth of my money when she dolls herself up and everybody rubbers at her. Nor will I deny that the new social set that she has broken into, simply because she looks like a million dollars has opened new doors of opportunity to me in a business way. Just because I do have to get up and hustle to make money as fast as she can spend it makes me put forth a lot more energy than I would have ever developed with an economical, saving wife, who was a dime nurser. So maybe the extravagant wife isn't a bad bet, after all, as a helpmeet."

Suppose men would say: "Oh, well, there are no perfect wives! We will just make the best of the ones we have got." Wouldn't it be great, girls?

MUCH POOR HEALTH IS CAUSED BY FEET

Need Specialist's Attention Just As Do Other Parts of Body.

Foot ailments will cause poor health the same as bad teeth or tonsils, is the advice of George Bovd, 156 King street, the well-known foot specialist, who has had fourteen years' experience in treating all kinds of pedal ailments, and who has attained outstanding success in his profession. Mr. Boyd removes corns, callouses and bunions permanently and without pain and treats ingrowing nails, sprained ankles, broken down arches, sore limbs, cramps across the ball of the foot and painful heels. He guarantees instant relief from all foot troubles.

"Why wear any kind of shoes that are presented," asks Mr. Boyd, "when it costs no more to have your feet measured, diagnosed and thus have such shoes as perfectly-fitted as teeth are?"

"When it comes necessary for you to consult a physician, you go to him and tell him how you feel, and he then prescribes for you. You do the same thing with your dentist, or your optician. But when it is your feet that are not doing their work right do you go to a foot specialist and have him prescribe, or do you go to a shoe merchant and ask him for a certain size shoe or arch support?

"If you do the latter, and a great many people do, why, may I ask, do you make a distinction between your feet and any other part of your body. If any partiality is going to be shown it should be shown to your feet, because every move you make relies on them. So treat them right, and if they are bothering you, go to a specialist and have him tell you just what kind of shoes, are going to benefit your feet most. Then follow that advice like you do your physician's orders and it will not be long before your feet are in a healthy condition and be what they were meant to be, an asset not a liability."

Mr. Boyd who is a registered graduate I. A. S. P. N. S. O., has brought relief to hundreds who have sought his services.

MILK DAILY NECESSITY FOR YOUNG AND OLD

Craig Dairy Products Come From Choicest Herds in District.

Especially to growing children and under-nourished persons of any age milk is a daily necessity and its widely increasing use is reacting with wonderful results on the composite health of the nation. It will do more to build up the system than any other food.

Modern food budgets include milk first, and foods of lesser health-promoting abilities last. Ailing children who have their daily quart are soon able to hold their own on the scales or in the play yard or school room with children healthily endowed from the beginning. If your budget is lacking in milk dollars and your children lacking in vitality and glowing health, the remedy is obvious.

Then, with milk entrenched on the table, the mother of wits and wisdom will bestir herself to serve that milk in fifty different guises so that her child will eat and enjoy and call for more, growing meanwhile like the young bay tree. Milk promises always to do its part if you do yours.

Every day in the year Craig Bros.' Dairy, 961 Ormsby street, supplies hundreds of London homes with milk that comes from the choicest herds in the district, and which is put through an extensive pasteurizing process to insure absolute purity and cleanliness in every drop.

Craig Bros.' Dairy provides milk for the baby as well as for the grownups. Cream and buttermilk also can be procured from their courteous drivers.

It has been the motto, "service," that has built Craig Bros.' Dairy into what it is today.

Through a strict adherence to a standard of supplying nothing but the best in dairy products, this concern has built up a trade that from a small beginning, now covers the city. Products of the Craig plant have attained a wide reputation for purity and excellence, and the owners assure the public that their products will never deviate from this standard.

Special Furnace Is Added To Scott Shop Equipment

With the completion of a special new furnace, now in course of construction, for heating tires for wagons, the W. W. Scott establishment, at 84 York street, will have added another important item to its present extensive facilities for serving the public. In the Scott plant can be found the most improved and efficient machinery for all classes of work in automobile trimming and painting, wood working, wagon and wheel repairing, and all similar work.

The installation of a special furnace as a means toward attaining more rapid and satisfactory service in repairing and setting metal tires for wagons, has been due to the greatly increased demand upon the Scott shop for work of this nature of late months.

In the Scott shop all the latest facilities known to the auto painting trade are in use, and because of this work of the highest order is assured at all times.

Here 30 or more cars are scraped to the steel, filled, polished and coat after coat of paint applied by master craftsmen until the old car is turned out with a finish that easily vies with the newest car on the road. Quality painting has been the keynote of this concern, and the proprietor has found that owners will have no other painters having once sampled the work done in the Scott plant.

All the Goodness of the Wheat Goes Into B. F. Brighton's Bread

You remember the old-time mother's generous methods of bread-making—plenty of good milk, good honest shortening, no short-cuts, no substitutes.

That's the kind of bread you have a right to. Good, honest, generous bread—the best food in the world for health and happiness.

Today the obligation to produce the right kind of bread is put squarely up to the baker.

He accepts that obligation and takes full responsibility for giving you bread made with the same care and devotion that you would use if you took the trouble to make it yourself.

That's why Brighton's bakery has brought out its New Process Bread —a new kind of bread, a different bread, with a new and distinctive flavor you will welcome. Mr. Brighton has combined the advantages of scientific equipment with his fifty years' experience. In this New Process Bread the nutritive value of the wheat, the milk, the shortening, the sugar, salt and yeast are made secure in every loaf. Modern ovens with even heat bake fast and seal in the goodness that is put into the bread. New Process Bread nourishes, brings health, strength and happiness to children and whole families.

Get started right on bread. Ask your grocer for Brighton's.

There is no waste with the New Process because a loaf four days old shows no staleness, a feature that cannot but recommend itself to the housewife.

Mr. Brighton, who has paid close attention to the development of the baking industry, and who has applied his knowledge to producing better bread, has several well-known brands, which include The O. K. Homemade Loaf (Granny's Favorite), Whole Wheat Loaf, Sun-Maid Raisin Bread and Sandwich Loaf, as well as bread rolls and buns.

In connection with his delivery service, Mr. Brighton makes it a point at all times to have most careful, courteous and considerate salesmen. They are men with whom it is a pleasure to deal. Their wagons are always clean and neat, in keeping with the industry they represent. Those who purchase Brighton's Bread can rest assured they are getting the best.

SANITATION THE RULE AT GRIGG HOTEL CAFE

Nothing But Best Foods Served in Richmond Street Restaurant.

Visitors to London have often been heard to comment in glowing terms upon the several high-class restaurants in this city. "It's certainly a pleasure," said a man from another Western Ontario center the other day, "to contemplate having a meal in London, as the eating establishments here seem to have something about them that makes them stand out from the ones to which I have been accustomed at home."

One of London's leading restaurants is the Grigg Cafe on Richmond street, opposite The Advertiser building, where absolute sanitation, quick service and the best food leave an impression that lasts.

Dimson Brothers, proprietors, opened in their present location about eighteen months ago, and both citizens and visitors to London were not slow in realizing that here was a restaurant that stood out. This has been the reason for its clientele increasing to such an extent that the staff has more than doubled in that time.

At all hours of the day and night every waiter is kept "on the jump," and it is not an infrequent instance at the noon and supper hour rush to see many patrons standing in line for seats.

The whole secret of the success of the Grigg Cafe is that only the best of materials from the most reliable sources are purchased and utmost care is taken to see that these materials and supplies are properly handled so that when they are served to patrons they are in a state of excellence.

The cafe carries with it also an atmosphere of refinement which adds much to the delight in dining or lunching there. The interior has been carefully arranged so that every convenience and comfort is given the customer.

During the summer motoring and touring season, now in full swing, every attention is paid the transient visitor so that he or she is assured the very best. This spirit of co-operation is carried on year in and year out, so that all who patronize the Grigg Cafe are satisfied and exceptionally well pleased.

MOTOR COMPETITION ALARMS RAILWAYS

Seven and Half Million Pounds of Fruit Taken From Ontario Lines.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Sept. 4.—The extent of competition of motor traction systems with the steam railways is disclosed in a survey completed by the economic research department of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, under direction of Prof. A. Leitch, results of which are published today.

According to the survey, more than seven and a half million pounds of fruit in Ontario were taken away from the railroads last year by the automobile truck in competition.

Trucks carried 12½ per cent. of the total amount of fruit produced in the Niagara district. Prof. Leitch's survey discloses. Competition is particularly keen along western Ontario routes.

RED-BLOODED SPORT IS MOTORCYCLING

Opens New and Bigger World of Outdoor Diversion and Recreation.

In the opinion of J. A. Barnard, 338 Talbot street, exclusive agent for Harley-Davidson motorcycles in this district, motorcycling is the greatest outdoor diversion.

"Jump in the saddle, give her the gas, and you're on your way. You dodge in around and through traffic. You pass 'em all and lead the parade," says Mr. Barnard.

"Who said hills? A twist of the throttle grip and your motorcycle zooms up the hills like a prairie windstorm.

"Like to hit trails and paths? They are easy for you. You can go where roads don't go with your powerful, dependable motorcycle.

"Like to breeze along on the open road? You get speed thrills aplenty with a motorcycle.

"Man, that's motorcycling—outdoors' greatest sport.

"Touring, fishing, hunting, camping or a big day's fun with the bunch—a motorcycle opens a new and bigger world of outdoor sport.

"Now you can take more fishing trips, and get out to the lakes in double quick time with your motorcycle.

"Or chuck your gun in the side-car, take your pal along, and go for a week-end hunting trip. You smile at miles now when you take such trips on a motorcycle.

"Touring and camping, too, have a real kick when you ride a motorcycle. There's none of that caged in or boxed up feeling on a motorcycle. Motorcycling is the red-blooded outdoor sport for fellows who like to live.

"Come on, throw your leg over your 1925 Harley-Davidson and let's go!"

"Don't Put It Off; Put It On," Advice Of Local Painter

Pace Decorating Firm Employs Only Experts On Staff.

The firm of W. T. Pace & Son of 251 Ridout street, which has been an established London business for the last 35 years, employs a staff of experts in the work of paperhanging, painting, graining, and all work of a similar nature, and of late has carried out contracts on several large industrial plants.

"Our constant aim is to provide service and satisfaction that really mean something," says Fred Pace, manager of this firm, "and we believe that the householders always benefits in the long run by paying a little more, and thus being assured of securing work that is absolutely beyond criticism."

W. T. Pace & Son are members of the master painters' association, an international organization, embracing firms in every city and town in Canada and the United States, and which this year is spending $250,000 in the "Save the Surface" advertising campaign.

"This campaign," said Mr. Pace, "is intended to impress the average person with the real need of preserving wood and metal surfaces by the periodic application of paint. In this regard statistics have proven that depreciation in property, through neglect of paint, is five times that occasioned by fires. Our advice to the public is: 'Don't put it off; put it on.'"

A Family of Hot-Tempered Folk Cause Trouble In Long Lane

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

In the Long Lane leading from Farmer Brown's barnyard down to the Green Meadows and the cornfield live certain little hot-tempered people. They had been there all summer. At first there had been only a few of them, but now there were many of them, and each one carried a sharp little lance. They lived beside the road in a mossy bank. They were Yellowjackets, which, you know, are a kind of Wasp.

Now, at first no one had bothered them, and so they had bothered no one. But as they grew more and more numerous they began to make some trouble. Twice Farmer Brown's Boy was stung by them when he happened to stop close beside the little holes in the ground which were the entrances to their holes. Then one day Farmer Brown drove down the Long Lane and Bowser the Hound trotted along beside the wagon. Presently Bowser ran ahead. He thought he smelled something up on the bank, and, as is his way, he ran up with his nose to the ground. He ran right over the homes of the Yellowjackets. Out they came, high with his little lance ready for business. But Bowser had passed on they didn't see him. They saw Farmer Brown and his two big horses, who were just passing.

Things happened in the Long Lane! My, my, my, I should say they did happen! Sammy Jay saw it all and tells about it to this day. You see, those horses started to run away. Those horses always had been treated kindly, and they didn't know what to make of those sharp pains made by the lances of the Yellowjackets. Farmer Brown himself fared no better. But he could pay no attention to anything but those horses. Such a prancing and dancing and kicking and squealing! Such a plunging! It was a wonder that that wagon wasn't upset. But finally Farmer Brown managed to quiet the horses, and by this time they had left the Yellowjackets behind.

Farmer Brown got some mud and put it on the wounds made by those sharp little lances. That made the horses feel better. He put some on his own wounds too, and that made him feel better.

It was after dark when Farmer Brown ventured to drive back up the Long

Lane. The Yellowjackets had all gone to bed. There was no more trouble, but he knew that there was likely to be trouble whenever anyone passed that way. "We'll have to smoke them out," said Farmer Brown. "We'll have to go down there and smoke them out."

Now, someone besides Sammy Jay had seen all that had happened. That someone was Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy had been taking a nap hidden in the thick bushes that grew beside the Long Lane. Of course he had waked up at the sound of all that racket which the horses had made when they were stung.

"Now what does that mean?" said Jimmy Skunk to himself. "What can have happened to have upset those horses so?"

He lazily yawned and stretched. Then he ambled out and looked up the Long Lane. "I don't see anything," said Jimmy. "I don't see anything to have frightened those horses so. They certainly were frightened. I wonder what it means. I think I'll have to stroll up that way by and by. Meanwhile I'll go back and finish my nap. There is no use in losing good sleep when one doesn't have to."

So Jimmy turned around and went back, and in two minutes he was once more curled up taking a nap. When he awoke it was just before time for jolly round red Mr. Sun to go to bed behind the Purple Hills. Jimmy ambled out into the Long Lane and then turned up the long lane. He hadn't forgotten that he was going to try to find out what had frightened Farmer Brown's horses.

Weekly Farm Notes

Fall Work Begins With Threshing Nearing an End in Ontario—Harvesting in West at Its Height—"Mysterious" Barn Fires Found To Be Due To Spontaneous Combustion.

Toronto, Sept. 4.—Ontario is a province of mixed farming. The failure of a single crop does not cause general hardship, nor is a wave of depression quickly felt along the concession lines. The farmer's sources of income are varied, and include dairy and beef cattle, sheep, swine, grain crops, fruit, and many specialties. It is hard to estimate the financial condition of agriculture at a given time on this account, as many things must be taken into consideration, but the present indications all point to a permanent recovery from the recent hard times. There has been very definite improvement during the past year. In that period the value of all the major farm products have moved ahead. Prices of dairy products, eggs, grains, meat products, fruits and wool today, are well above the 1914 level, and what is still more important, are higher than those that prevailed a year ago. Furthermore, by the replacing of poor live stock in many cases with high-producing animals, and by the substitution of alfalfa for mixed hay, the cost of farm production has been lowered. Fewer farms are on the market today, whereas the whole of rural Ontario was for sale at bargain prices two years ago. There is a more hopeful feeling in the country this fall, and this feeling, in the shape of increased buying power will be felt in the urban centers as well, in a few months.

With the harvest safely stored under cover and threshing well under way, fall work is beginning throughout rural Ontario. Beans are being pulled in the southwestern counties, and some table turnips have already been shipped. Silo filling is commencing and will be general in another week. Plowing is well under way. Seeding of fall wheat is reported from a few counties. As a result of the extra large acreage turned under the plow and the present high grain prices, indications point to a larger area than usual in this cash crop. Threshing reports continue to confirm earlier forecasts of a generally good grain crop. There should be no feed shortage on Ontario farms this fall. Just at present a few good showers would be welcome, as the ground is getting a little too dry to plow and pastures are beginning to dry up.

MORE MONEY FOR THE WEST.

Harvesting is general on the prairies. The present crop, while light in spots, is generally above the average. The last government estimate placed the total wheat yield at 350,000,000 bushels for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, but this is likely too conservative, as the late summer weather has been ideal, and many fields which promised but light yields three weeks ago have since filled well. Even if the federal forecast is correct, however, the returns from the present harvest will be $100,000,000 ahead of a year ago. The present price for October delivery at Fort William runs about $1.45 for No. 1 northern. After allowing for lower grades, weed seed dockage, storage charges and selling commission, this should net the farmer about $1 per bushel at country points. This is well above the figure of a year ago and about double that of 1923. There are, too, indications of even better prices than the futures now predict. The short crop in the United States will barely suffice for domestic requirements and the European harvest, while much above that of twelve months ago, does not promise any great surplus.

Light horses are a drug on the market in Eastern Canada and an actual curse in the prairie provinces and the interior valleys of British Columbia, where these animals are using up good pasture which is needed by cattle. In order to turn these worthless beasts to some account, the federal government will make a trial shipment of them shortly to Europe. It is claimed that there is some demand for light horseflesh in Hamburg. If this shipment is successful, others will follow.

Following their great showing at Ottawa last week, Holstein breeders have turned out in force at the Canadian National. Last year they had 174 animals in the ring, and this year have 287. Several other breeds register slight advances, but nothing like the showing of the black and whites. The beef classes are about the same as last year, with a few more Angus and fewer Herefords. The number of county herds has risen to 22, Perth leading with a Holstein herd of 50. Many of these animals are from small breeders' herds, and are the means of introducing their owners to the big show circuit.

FIRES ARE INVESTIGATED.

Heavy horse exhibits, which have been declining in number for several years, are still lower, but light horses are more numerous than before. Sheep, swine and goat classes are well filled. Altogether there are 400 more entries in the live stock section than there were last year.

Many of the "mysterious" barn fires which have been so common of late years trace to spontaneous combustion, declares Ontario Fire Marshal E. P. Heaton. A good deal of the heavy alfalfa, sweet clover and other leguminous hay now commonly grown goes into the barn in a half-cured condition, as people have not yet learned to handle it more carefully than the drier timothy. This tough, damp hay is quite likely to heat in the mow, and if the weather is conducive may burst spontaneously into flame, states the fire marshal. He points to two recent cases in Middlesex county as conclusive proof. In one case a very heavy alfalfa crop was hauled in on Friday afternoon. On Sunday evening the hired man while milking heard a peculiar noise like a heavy wind through trees followed by a crackling. Running out, he saw fire coming out of the plate above the mow. A complete investigation of this case led the marshal to eliminate all possibility of design or accident, and to place the blame upon spontaneous combustion. His investigation of the other fire led him to a similar conclusion.

Although not so great a problem this year as in some others, covered or stinking smut of wheat is sufficiently serious every year to make treating the seed generally advisable. The method outlined by the Ontario Agricultural College is as follows: Mix one pint formalin with 40 gallons water, which is sufficient for 50 bushels. Place the grain in a heap on a clean floor, sprinkle the grain with the solution, then shovel into another pile so as to mix it. Then sprinkle and shovel again until every grain is moistened by the solution. Just enough should be applied to wet every grain, but not enough to make it wet and soggy. Cover the pile with sacks that have been soaked in the solution and leave for three or four hours. Then spread the grain out thinly to dry before putting into the drill. If smut balls are present in the wheat they must be removed before treating by means of a fanning machine, or by placing the grain about one bushel at a time in a tub of water, stirring it, and skimming off the smut balls as they rise.

SOME POULTRY NOTES.

Many commercial egg farmers doubt whether it pays to raise Leghorn cockerels on their plants, and some are killing them off as soon as the sex can be determined. "It must be remembered that if the cockerels are killed at this age the original cost is a dead loss. This can at least be salvaged if the cockerels are provided with suitable quarters for rearing by themselves," says one poultryman. "Without such quarters, however, it does not pay the commercial egg farmer to bother with them."

We still have some hot weather before us. Water placed at shady spots where the chicks rest during the hottest part of the day will help them greatly.

—"Regularity is an important factor around the poultry plant. It pays to do things at the proper time," says the well-known poultryman, George W. Miller, of Toronto. Most successful men will agree with him.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours' illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness," will be sent free to any mother on request.—Advt.

ONTARIO WOMAN REGAINS HEALTH

Wants Other Women To Know About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mount Forest, Ont. — "Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt weak and miserable, and had pains all through me. I was living in Ailsa Craig at the time, and one day a friend came in and told me her experience of using the Vegetable Compound and advised me to take a bottle which I finally did. I began to get stronger and those pains left me. I am glad I found out about this medicine as I think there is none equal to it for women who have troubles of this kind. I cannot praise the Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. Whenever I know of a woman suffering I am glad to tell her of it."—Mrs. WM. RIDSDALE, R.R. No. 1, Mount Forest, Ontario.

Women throughout the Dominion are finding health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

No harmful drugs are used in its preparation—just roots and herbs—and it can be taken in safety even by a nursing mother. For sale by all druggists.

"You Can't Beat 'Em!"

Most People Lose Because They Can't Afford to Lose —The Small Bettor Is Hopelessly Handicapped— No "System" Yet Devised Will Win Consistently— Race Track Is No Place to Make Money — Pari-Mutuels Only Sure Winners

By FLYING FROG

FIFTEEN men were crowded into the smoker of the special train that was carrying them back from the race track.

It was not a discursive gathering, nor a cheerful one, for the scarcest thing in that compartment was a smiling face. One man was checking up his profits and losses on a much-bethumbed program. He shook his head with a savage gesture when he had completed his task. Another compared the selections in a form chart with the actual results, and called his neighbor's attention to the fact that his favorite dopester had not succeeded in picking one winner in seven attempts. A red-faced man wedged into a corner seat opposite heard the remark.

"I followed his pickings, too," he supplemented sorrowfully. He looked around at the others in the smoker.

"There's fifteen of us here," he went on. "How many won to-day?"

Silence followed the question. The red-faced inquisitor repeated his query, this time in a louder tone. Again silence, and then an elderly man in a window seat spoke up. "I took ten dollars to the track to bet for a friend of mine, and I'm taking him back nineteen," he said.

"But how about yourself?" persisted the other.

"Who, me? Oh, I lost."

The red-faced man slapped his knee vigorously.

"Then that proves it," he cried emphatically. "Here we are—fifteen of us—and not one has beaten 'em this afternoon. It's what I've always said—you can't beat the ponies."

There was none in that crowded compartment who cared to dispute the contention, though doubtless many who read this article will. None the less, the red-faced man was right. Year in and year out, not one race follower in ten thousand beats the races.

There are those who laugh at this statement and point to the fact that by systematic play they have made a considerable profit in one racing season. Others will refer you to Pittsburg Phil's phenomenal success. But there was only one Pittsburg Phil, and it's doubtful in these days of pari-mutuels if we shall see another. As for those who have won money as a result of clever—perhaps lucky is the better term—play, in the long run they will lose what they have won, and a good deal more besides. As one noted sportsman remarked recently: "Anyone can beat a race; but no one can beat the races."

First of all there are a hundred and one chances against the bettor. If he is the average small speculator, he is hopelessly handicapped from the start, for in betting, as in high finance, the man with the big roll has the best chance. But even he will eventually go to the wall if he plays the ponies regularly.

The primary reason why so many people lose on a race track is that they cannot afford to lose. That knowledge warps their judgment and affects their play. Their courage deserts them at the very moment they need it most. They lack the gambler's nerve to stake their last twenty-dollar bill when such a desperate effort would probably recoup their losses. In other words, they want to win money, but they don't like to take a chance.

Playing Too Many Horses

TAKE John Blank, a forty-dollar-a-week man. When the Canadian racing season opens he decides to spend an afternoon at a track. During the winter months he has not kept track of the bang-tails, and so he largely depends on his favorite handicapper to see him through. He misses a couple of shots and then picks a horse which wins and returns a dividend of to one. As he rustles his newly acquired his pocket, he congratulates himself on his sagacity in picking an outsider when thousands bet on the short-priced favorite. He refuses to believe that it was bull-headed luck that prompted his effort. No man so wise as he who plays a long-priced horse—after that horse has won. Blank is satisfied that he has found a new source of income. The only fly in the ointment is that he bet five dollars when he just as well might have played twenty-five. He forgets that agonized twenty minutes of self-commune prior to the running of the race in which he had picked on perhaps six other horses only to reject each one in turn. Too, he forgets that he never would have bet the long shot if he hadn't heard a man behind him mention it to a friend. In the flush of his success, he forgets all these things. But one thing he doesn't forget—to tell his friends, because when the average man wins he always does that. When he loses he tells no one—until he has to.

And so Blank's pals hear about his good fortune, and perhaps credit him with a perspicuity to which he is not entitled. As for Blank, he swells his chest, and probably becomes a racing enthusiast. His daily job now is to study a racing chart and pick some more juicy-priced ones. And when he reaches that stage he's at the beginning of his troubles.

Playing regularly, he finds it increasingly difficult to pick winners, even short-priced horses. Bit by bit the money which he had collected from the cashier's window at the local track finds its way back to whence it came, or to handbook men. By now he has played perhaps ten horses, and none of them has earned brackets. In track parlance he has ten horses that owe him money. Most bettors stand by the system of playing a horse three times, and then, if it fails to win, passing it up. Perhaps Blank follows this system, but, sooner or later, there comes a time when three, or even more, of the thoroughbreds that owe him money are entered in the same race. That's where he faces a real quandary, and he ends up by selecting one of them which, like as not, fails to get in the first three. Blank, like nearly every other amateur gambler, has committed the fault of playing too many horses, and he'll be a lucky man indeed if he can finish out the season ahead of the game. And another point: Blank, if he is the average player of races, will not double up on his losses. Don't blame him for this, for if he has been betting on a dozen horses which have shown no return he would need a pretty hefty bank account to double up each time. And yet, doubling up gives the player his one chance of making money on the bang-tails. But few do it for any length of time. They prefer to play two dollars on a ten-to-one shot, rather than to put ten on a two-to-one risk, even though the latter on form is immeasurably the better speculation. Once again, you have the example of the man wanting to win money without risking it.

In race track wagering, there are a number of factors which work against the speculator. A turf expert names six against which the bettor must contend. First, the horse; second, the jockey; third, the owner; fourth, the start; fifth, the condition of the track and the stable surroundings; and last, but greatest of all, racing luck.

These Chances are Against You

TAKING these factors in order, the first point to remember is that many horses are sent to the barrier when they are not in condition to win. The stable connections know this; the average bettor doesn't. Then again, most thoroughbreds are as temperamental as movie stars. On certain tracks they will not do themselves justice. Weather conditions affect them. Like humans, they have their off days; days when the best rider in the world can't get a winning effort out of them. Sometimes their stable surroundings are uncongenial; they sulk. Too much racing, too much traveling, too little attention, all have their effect on the high-strung thoroughbred, and are reflected in his variable moods.

Then there's the jockey. Some don't ride well when the fields are large. Some think that when they are ahead on the rail the race is won, only to find to their chagrin, which the bettor shares, that a back-runner comes from behind to nip them at the wide. Other boys are timid at seizing an opening. Others are over-confident and probably more races are lost through this fault than any other.

Then take the owner. Theoretically, every horse entered in a race is out to win, but this is another instance where theory has little to do with actual fact. Many distance horses are put in a sprint race for a freshener. Others are entered in races in which they are clearly outclassed. Others are racing to get their weight off, though that knowledge is shared only by owner, trainer and perhaps jockey. Sometimes it takes five or six races before a horse is in winning condition, and when that condition has been reached the stable connections do not blazon it to the world. It's their mission to keep the public in the dark, and for that reason workouts sometimes indicate little unless the clocker knows what weight the horse was carrying. Then again, some horses will exercise a mile in 1.40 and get beaten in a race timed at 1.43.

The break from the barrier, especially in a sprint, is all important. There may be a bad actor at the gate who will hold up proceedings, and when finally the webbing is sprung the horses will leave in a procession; and while a horse can concede weight, there are few who can give both weight and distance in a short race. The condition of the racing strip affects horses variably. Some prefer soft going. Others cannot do themselves justice unless the track is as dry as the Sahara desert. Form charts, from which information comes regarding the mud-running proclivities of racing thoroughbreds, are frequently in error. One of the best mud-running mares in this country was recorded as having no form in this kind of going. And yet she won some fine races over tracks that resembled the bogs of Connemara. Racing luck deals with the multiplicity of mishaps which may happen to a horse from the time he parades before the grandstand until the judges announce their decision. He may get a bad break at the gate, he may get kicked there, he may lose his jockey, he may get shut off, may be carried wide, may be bumped, may bump another and be disqualified—a hundred maybe's, any one of them sufficient to eliminate his chance of winning. And so with all these conditions working against the speculator, the wonder is not that he picks so few winners, but that on certain days he picks any at all.

Above I remarked that the man who bets loses primarily because he can't afford to lose. Let's make a brief explanation, taking the experiences of John Doe as an example. John, an ordinary workaday chap, goes to the track with thirty dollars in his pocket. The loss of thirty dollars means a lot to him. He can't afford to lose that sum, or half of it. And so whenever he makes a wager this knowledge is stored in his mind. He starts out with a handicap in the first instance, because he regards the thirty dollars as a valuable commodity instead of saying to himself: "I'm going to chuck it away on the off-chance of getting something back."

Play Your Own Pickings

MR. DOE bets on a horse in the first race and wins ten dollars. Right there is where practically every small bettor makes his mistake. Doe has won ten dollars, a sum sufficient to pay his expenses and leave a handsome surplus. He should be content and make no more bets. But elated with his success he goes back to pick up some more easy money. He plays another horse, betting six dollars, and the horse finishes outside the money. He tries the next race, with the same result. He now is money out of pocket, and he begins to get worried, and when a man gets worried on a race track, it's more than even betting that he'll be a lot more worried before the afternoon is over. He may select another winner, perhaps at short price, and he may not. Anyway, he scans the entries for the sixth race with an anxious eye, because he has lost fourteen dollars of his precious stake and he wants to get it back. Poring over the entries, he notes that there's a horse—call it Betty Bee—which he likes. But when Mr. Doe glances at the approximate odds board he sees that Betty Bee is quoted at two to one. Then and there he makes the cardinal mistake which nine hundred and ninety-nine John Does make in similar circumstances. He looks around for a horse at a good price to beat the favorite. His right play is to put up his remaining sixteen dollars on Betty Bee. But he shrinks from that desperate course, for that would leave his pockets empty. And so he picks a ten-to-one shot and bets two dollars, arguing that if it wins his two dollars will give him back twenty-two. He's playing prices, you see, not horses, and it's horses that win. In this case the two dollars goes the way of the fourteen, and in despair he plays another two dollars on a long shot in the final race, again with the same result, and leaves the track a loser.

When John Doe reaches the seclusion of his home, he holds a post mortem over the day's proceedings and immediately sees where he could have won a hundred dollars instead of losing eighteen. He chides himself with having accepted tips from friends, because the tips failed to deliver the goods, and caused him to switch from horses which did. Right there he resolves to pick his own winners and allow no advice to influence him otherwise. But making resolutions in the quiet of your home, and keeping them in the hurly-burly of a racing enclosure are two widely different things. On his next day at the track Doe gets hold of some red-hot paddock information and bets on it, only to find that there's more truth than poetry in the track adage "That the closer you are to the paddock the nearer you are to the poorhouse," for trainers and owners and stable boys are generally prone to over-estimate their horses' capabilities, and mostly their opinions are biased.

No, if you must bet, play your own pickings: they will contain as big a percentage of winners as those given by the sharpshooters in the dope sheets, and if you lose you'll have only yourself to blame. Of course, the man who can handicap horses—there are mighty few who can—is more likely to beat the game, but the best handicappers often have long runs of bad luck in which they fail to select a winner.

There are those who claim to be able to pick a winning horse by his looks. I have followed the game for many years, and am credited with a fair knowledge of horseflesh, but only thrice have I gone into a paddock and selected a winner solely on his appearance. It's as true as the sun shines that looks mean nothing in a racer. They are in all shapes, sizes and colors. For long there has been a deep-rooted prejudice against grey as a color for a successful racer, and yet this year one of the best three-year-olds on the American turf is a grey, the imported Silver Fox.

As for outward appearance, a handsome thoroughbred, with real racing lines and a fiery eye, may prove a dog in the stretch. An ordinary looking, Roman-nosed, ewe-necked runt may spreadeagle his field. I don't mean to convey that conformation means nothing in a racing thoroughbred. Sometimes it means everything. What I maintain is that no living authority can dissect the points of a horse in the paddock and say that he has that about him which will ensure his triumph over his competitors.

Luck Beats Out Form

NO matter what the so-called "form-players" have to say to the contrary, luck plays by the biggest role in wagering. Here are a couple of personal instances.

For two weeks I had been following the races and during that period out of forty-seven horses I had wagered on only six had won. Pretty poor picking, you'll say. Perhaps, but it was the best I could do, and there were many others of the "regulars" who hadn't done as well, for during those fourteen days there was no such thing as "form." Mostly third and fourth favorites were winning, and when that happens for any length of time the talent usually is hit pretty hard. Any way, it was on the third day of the Fort Erie meeting that I got a turn in luck. I had taken thirteen dollars to the track on this particular afternoon, for I was getting down to rock bottom, and it was my intention to bet twelve of this on a horse in the third race.

When I bought my program, the first thing I saw was that this particular horse was scratched. It had been raining for three consecutive days and the racing strip resembled a morass. In the first two races the horses floundered through the boggy going like heavy-laden ships trying to make their haven. To myself I said, "Anything can win on this track." With that idea in mind I scanned the entries for the third race, for though the horse which I had intended to play had been withdrawn I was resolved to see if I could pick a winner. As I read over the names of the entries I noticed that of a horse which had run on three previous occasions at the recently closed Hamiltor meet without earning any share of a purse. The horse was the ill-fated Somme, a five-year-old chestnut mare owned by the late Major Joseph Kilgour, which broke her back in a point-to-point race at Donalda Farm nearly three years ago.

Somme was an ugly-tempered animal, who could, but very often wouldn't, run. When in the mood the mare could travel at a rare clip, but she was not often in that mood. However, she looked to me to have a fair chance and I went and invested two dollars on a straight ticket. After I had purchased the voucher I met a friend whom I hadn't seen in three years. We fel to talking over old times and finally he asked me what I fancied in the race.

"I've bet on Somme," I replied.

"Why, it's thirty to one!" he exclaimed. Up to that time I had never looked at the odds board. Now when I did, I saw that it was quoted at the price he had named.

"I'll play it for a hunch," said my friend. "I got my Blighty at the Somme five years ago.

Away he went and left me staring at the board. I was still staring at the board when the horses came from the paddock; and then something prompted me to walk into the mutuel pavilion. I met my friend, returning. "Here," he said, "I've bought a ten-dollar ticket on this nag, Somme, but I don't fancy its chances. Do you want some of it?"

"I'll exchange tickets," I said, "and give you eight dollars." He made the exchange gladly, and we remained in the pavilion talking about everything but racing until the race was over. Neither of us saw what happened, but it's turf history now that Somme got away ahead of the field and was never headed, winning by a scant neck. And for winning the mare paid, not thirty to one, but a little better than sixty-two to one! For my ten dollar ticket I received back $631.50! I can't explain what prompted me to swap tickets, although I suspect that it was simply a hunch. Anyway, whatever the motive it had brought me a small fortune, for though I offered to share fifty-fifty with the friend who was largely responsible for my winning this handsome sum, he resolutely refused to take me at my word.

Was this the end of my luck? It was not. In the very next race a lady acquaintance told me that she had received information that Brass Tacks would win. I doubted her, because Brass Tacks hadn't run one, two or three since the Havana meeting. But something whispered to me to bet the horse and I invested twenty dollars on a straight ticket.

Winning $1,300 in a Day

BRASS TACKS won and paid around twenty-five to one. Then to cap this phenomenal streak of luck I won two hundred dollars on a six-to-one shot in the sixth race, and left the track with my original stake of thirteen dollars increased to thirteen hundred. I recall that I had bills stuffed into every pocket of my two-piece suit, and every bill had come to me through pure, unadulterated luck. It would be nice to add that none of this small fortune found its way back to the mutuels; but it wouldn't be the truth, because when a man wins he always goes back to win some more—and generally doesn't.

And now for the other side of the picture. I went to the recent Hamilton meeting with a friend, or, rather, I was to meet him at the track. In the first race Lady Argos was quoted at thirty to one. Remembering that this mare had won at the previous meeting at a juicy price, I figured that she would hardly repeat, and though I liked her chances I didn't make a bet on the race. Lady Argos broke fast from the barrier and under a skilful ride by the diminutive Munden, won. She paid $86.85 for a $2 straight ticket! As the prices were hoisted on the board I caught sight of my friend for the first time. He held up a ticket on the winner. "If I had seen you in time," he said, "I'd have told you to bet it."

They were now putting up the odds for the second race. "I'm going to bet Chiquita," announced my friend. Chiquita was then quoted at forty to one. "I'm not," I replied, "because I've never known lightning to strike twice in the same place." As a matter of fact I rather fancied Chiquita's chances, but I couldn't bring myself to believe that anyone could pick two extreme outsiders in succession.

True to his expressed intention, my friend bought a ticket on Mr. Fletcher's filly. I didn't, and as a consequence I didn't have his pleasurable experience of visiting the cashier's wicket after the race had been run and receiving back approximately sixty-one dollars for each dollar invested. And so here you see what an important role luck plays. Had I met my friend prior to the first race it is quite possible I would have taken his advice and bet Lady Argos. And had I not met him before the second race and learned of his previous success, I would have bet Chiquita.

And now just a word on the subject of systems. I've heard men say that they have beaten the races by fixing a maximum to their wins or losses on each day of play. This is what they mean. A race follower, we'll suppose, estimates his expenses at twenty dollars a day. On top of this he must win another twenty to provide for future needs. That makes a total of forty dollars. When he wins this sum during the afternoon he quits, even if six races still are to be run. When he loses it he also quits. That's a good plan, if horses ran like machines, or men bet like them. But neither do. The bettor loses his forty on a sure thing in the second race, and then in the fifth he notes that a horse stands out above all its competitors. He feels that he would be foolish indeed to pass up the chance of getting some easy money, especially if the particular horse is a fair price. And so he makes another bet—perhaps twenty more dollars—and loses it, because horses that stand out have a most uncanny knack of failing to live up to their running reputation, often being beaten by poorer-grade racers. On paper, systems are infallible. On the race track, they collapse like a house of cards, principally because the persons who follow them are human and subject to human frailties, particularly indecision.

The Singing Saviors

By CLEMENT WOOD

DEAD men tell no tales!" they chuckled,
As the singing saviours died,
A few serene, the many shackled,
Scourged, tortured, crucified.

Dead men tell no tales. . . Is Shelley
Dust blown dumbly over the ground?
Are Keats and Burns silenced wholly?
Do Milton's stiff lips give no sound?

Is Shakespeare voiceless, Dante tongueless?
And, in this black, protesting year,
Is the dead Jesus wordless, songless?
Listen. . . They are all that you can hear!

TO THEIR SEASON'S BIGGEST EVENT

Horse Races, $2,200 in Purses, September 8, 9, 10.

HISTORICAL PAGEANT, RACES AND FARM EXHIBITS TO MAKE STRATHROY FAIR BETTER THAN EVER

Special to The Advertiser.

Strathroy, Sept. 4.—On Wednesday next, Strathroy Fair opens its gates to the public for the sixty-seventh successive year. One of the oldest fairs in Western Ontario, it has for many years ranked as the leading agricultural fair in this part of the province. This year President Sinker and the board of directors offer a program far more ambitious than ever before attempted, so that the coming show should be outstanding in the long row of successes standing to the credit of the fair board.

Strathroy Fair has always been noted for its trials of speed. Ever since the days of a generation ago when Dr. Routledge of Lambeth, John McCormick of London, and John Goodison of Sarnia came each year to Strathroy Fair to settle who had the best and fastest team with constantly-changing successes, the speed events on the track have been followed from year to year with increasing enthusiasm. This year promises more thrilling racing than ever.

The half-mile track at the exhibition grounds has always been fast. It is doubted if any fall fair in Ontario is credited with as many records and marks as this. During the summer, this track has been greatly improved by lengthening one sharp turn and building up the outside where needed, so that it proved faster than ever on July 1.

Purses are Increased.

The directors have increased the purses offered to attract the best horses available in every class, with the result that every race will have a good field of starters.

On Wednesday, the big event is the 2:30 class for trotters or pacers, with a purse of $500 offered. Some of the best 30 pacers in the country are entered for this. Whichever wins will have a real race to his credit. There is also 2:25 class trial listed for this afternoon, with a $300 purse, which should produce good entertainment.

On Thursday, several of the real good pacers in Ontario eligible for a 2:20 class, will race for a $1,000 stake. This is by far the largest purse offered on any fall fair circuit. If there is any truth in the adage, "Money makes the mare go", some mare or horse is going to travel some to grab the big slice in this stake. It is believed that this race will decide the best 2:20 pacer in Ontario this season.

On Thursday's card are two other races: a 2:18 class, purse $250 and a local race for which $150 is hung up. The latter is open only to horses from Adelaide, Caradoc, Lobo, Metcalfe or Strathroy which have never won first money in a public trial of speed. All the races are mile heats, best three in five, with the exception of the local race. This is only half-mile heats.

One of the biggest problems facing a fair board is to find suitable evening entertainment. The Strathroy board is attempting to solve this problem by offering the most spectacular and ambitious program ever attempted by a fall fair. On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, a brilliant historical pageant will be staged. Such spectacles have been the evening feature of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto in the last few years, and have been successfully staged by a few of the larger exhibitions. Never has it been attempted by a fall fair, and in deciding upon this the directors realized they were facing a big task.

Special Electrical Effects.

However, they believed that this district deserves nothing but the best. All got behind the proposition and rehearsals promise it will go over big.

A company of 300 people has been gathered, and specially trained. Elaborate structures have been constructed upon the grounds, to provide stage settings. For days a special electrical staff under Superintendent Smithrim of the Strathroy Hydro, has been arranging lighting effects.

For two hours each evening, upon the huge natural stage by the track, embellished by every possible stage effect, this huge company of 300 people in gorgeous costumes, will enact scene after scene, vividly telling the thrilling story of the settlement of this district. The life of the Indians in the trackless forests, the coming of the first settlers, the building of the first home, the first school, scenes of untold hardship, of pioneer difficulties, of supreme courage, and scenes of contentment, of pleasure, and of great happiness. The steady progress of the county of Middlesex will be shown from the dense forest inhabited by deer, wolves and a few Indians to the proud pinnicle of the banner county of Ontario.

Nearly 300 Entries.

In addition to these special features all the usual attractions of the fall fair will be shown. Last year, there were over 2,800 exhibits. From present entries, it would appear that this number will be greatly exceeded this year. The board are again laying special emphasis upon the Juvenile department and a large exhibit may be looked for from these juvenile exhibitors. Due to the high quality of the live stock in this district, the stock classes are always keenly contested and competition promises to be keener than ever. On Thursday afternoon, a monster parade of all prize winning stock will pass before the grandstand.

With such a program, the directors hope that their efforts will appeal to the public and that the record of 15,000 attendance in two days made last year, will be far surpassed and that the close of the pageant on Friday evening will be the close of the greatest exhibition ever held in Strathroy.

SIDELIGHTS ON PEOPLE NOW IN THE SPOTLIGHT

All-British Chefs Alarmed at Bacon and Egg Peril — K.K.K. to the Rescue

NUMBERS of people are due to be disillusioned. If there is one thing that should be 100 per cent. British, untainted and untouched by any foreign influences, that one thing should certainly be the House of Commons. But the ubiquitous American atmosphere has penetrated even there.

Naturally in the rush season of law-making night seasons are necessary. And members of parliament resembling ordinary individuals, as they do, in a great number of cases often find it necessary to eat during these protracted sessions.

But what do they eat? Shades of the arm-chair lunches, the British legislators eat bacon and eggs. During two recent sittings, the executives of the heart of the empire ate 1,400 eggs and 260 pounds of bacon.

The catering department of the House, British to the core, has been striving desperately to overcome the popularity of this foreign but highly delectable dish. Tempting cold suppers of a hundred different varieties have been carefully prepared only to be discarded. At one time, it appeared that Welsh rarebit had a chance, but just as the chefs were about to celebrate, some unworthy gentleman stepped in and ate seven meals during the course of one late sitting. Horrible to relate, he did even worse than eat bacon and eggs. He ate ham and eggs—seven times.

There is no use trying to save the situation by declaring that bacon and eggs are the chief constituents of British breakfasts and have been a British dish since a date long before the Declaration of Independence was ever drawn up.

That, it is to be feared, will not help. Furthermore, though the term bacon and eggs is usually used, investigation shows that it also covers ham and eggs. In the old days parliament

A. J. Cooke, who is rapidly rising on the British political horizon and is already threatening Ramsay MacDonald's Labor party leadership.

did not rise en masse and eat well-done rashers and hen fruit. Devilled bones and champagne formed the favorite all-night supper.

It was not until Americans had appropriated ham or bacon and eggs as a dish peculiarly their own that the popularity of devilled bones and champagne fell off and the great transatlantic filler swept into fashion.

There is cause for even greater alarm in the fact that the Commoners are going to further lengths and stamping their meals as still more distinctly American by changing their order from bacon and eggs to bacon and eggs and coffee. Tea and all other varieties of drinks are slipping, say the latest reports.

Let us hope that the House of Lords has not fallen. Let us pray that the aristocrats are not being led astray by the favorite food of the night-club and the Long Island roadhouse.

PERIODICALLY, a big issue, a burning question, or whatever you care to call it, crops up and stands for a wholesale amount of discussion. There are always annoying features about these controversies.

Dumbells of one kind or another, publicity seekers of all kinds, self-confessed wise men and self-appointed righters of the world's wrongs appear on the scene and make desperate attempts to hog the limelight and generally fog the main issue.

There is, for instance, the oratorical fundamental-modernist warfare. Not content with allowing leaders of both sides to state their case and let time and public opinion settle the question one way or another and evidently opposed to the principle that each individual should be allowed to weigh the evidence for himself and think what he likes about the affair, a personage by the name of C. W. Osborne, one of the crowning glories and claims to fame of Willard, Ohio, and a Grand Dragon of the Ohio K.K.K., announces that he and incidentally his organization plan to lead a movement for schism in the Protestant churches of America and separate the Fundamentalists from the Modernists.

Mr. Osborne evidently believes that he is a champion of the Fundamentalists—a matter concerning which the leaders in that cause may have something to say if the gentleman from Ohio ever starts work—and he announces from his throne that "the time has arrived when we must either depose from leadership in the Protestant group those men who are lacking in the fundamentals of the Christian religion or more drastic measures will be taken."

These drastic measures are to be outlined at a secret meeting in a metropolis called Buckeye Lake.

Impolite observers interested in the issue at stake are inclined to believe that the one thing Mr. Osborne should undertake at the moment is to stick his head in a barrel of rain water and let it stay there till the weather cools.

98-Pound, Blue-Eyed Idol of Cow Country She Hogties a Wild Steer in 24 Seconds

Mabel Strickland is the World's Champion Cow Girl — Can Master Any Flying Pony That Ever Came Out of the Sage—And She Loves Housework

IF you feel bored and long for excitement, there is a simple remedy for your trouble.

Go to that part of the west where Mabel Strickland is well known and commence to criticize her ability as an equestrienne. You'll have all the excitement you can carry, and unless you have left the gate open and seen to it that the road is clear you may have a near-lynching.

For Mabel Strickland is a 98-pound, blue-eyed idol of the cow countries who can rope and hogtie a steer in 24 seconds. This you may be interested to know is a world's record and likely to remain one for many moons.

She is, in fact, the champion all-round cowgirl who tamed one of the most ornery broncs that ever came out of the cage during the recent festivals of a rodeo nature held at Cheyenne. Kiss Yourself Good-Bye was the charming name of the animal she subdued in the presence of thirty thousand cheering individuals, and the population of the sunset districts loves her.

She is only in her early twenties, trim and slim, both a fond wife and a mother, afraid of nothing but another's danger.

Clem Yore, an eye-witness of her Cheyenne frolic with the wild bronc, describes the affair as follows:

"He, the horse, sunfished, whirled, hit the grit with all four on a spot a hat would cover, tore away in mad half-falls and torturing, stiff legged bu but the silken-garbed figure on his back him ragged and repeat; and scraped him, neck, shoulder and flanks, with both fo but she never lost her smile. Then a gun l ed and a pick-up man reached out and took her off.

"There's a difference between the old lady lope of a circus mare, groomed slick and slender, and the gallop of a cowgirl at a rodeo. These girls are showing off to riders, not children. They get everything out of a horse that is in it; they evolve tricks that are especially designed to shock and thrill because of the apparent danger. They crawl all the way under the horse, dropping down on one side, reaching through for a stirrup, grasping a ring with a hand and coming up on the other side—sometimes the flying hoofs miss the head a fraction of an inch."

There is no variety of horseflesh too fiery for her liking. There is no wild flying pony which she cannot master, and there are few stunts in the saddle which she will not attempt successfully.

Furthermore, as happens the world over among persons who have an outstanding genius for some particular thing, Mabel Strickland wants to do something else. She wants to be very feminine. She would not object if it were necessary for her to spend all her time doing the duties of a housewife.

"My home is my heaven," she says. "I don't care for these high falutin' ideas for women. I don't care about mixing in the dirty mess called politics. I don't want to learn how to be half a man."

She is, it seems, rather unsatisfied with her present mode of living. Which proves, therefore, that she already is what she wants to be—very feminine.

Why Is a Human Fly? John Tocher Explains The Basic Philosophy of the Dare Devil

Auto-Suggestion the Key to Super-Human Stunts He is Convinced — His Experiences With a Fake Hypnotist—But He Won't Tackle One Type of Feat—Those to Which His Wife Objects

BECAUSE he found his greatest pleasure in life was doing those things which other people said couldn't be done, John D. Tocher became a steeplejack and human fly.

He has climbed the outsides of some of the highest buildings in the world; ridden a bicycle around the edge of a twenty-two storey skyscraper, wheeled on a dirt track for twenty-one hours and forty-one minutes without stopping; made parachute jumps from an aeroplane; played the piano continuously for fourteen hours and has allowed as many as ten ordinary hatpins to be pushed through his cheeks, ears, hands and legs at one time.

Somebody said he would never find a girl who would consent to become his wife. But even that didn't stump him. He was married six weeks ago.

When a boy, back in his home town of Banff, Scotland, a cat went mad one day and climbed to the top of a fifty-five foot pole. There it remained for three days, slowly starving to death. A crowd gathered at the foot of the animal's lofty pearch to devise ways and means of restoring her to a lower level. Climb up after her? It can't be done. It's too dangerous, they said.

That was enough for little Johnny Tocher. He shinnied up the pole and the townsfolk gasped. On reaching the top he grasped the cat by the back. But puss, not recognizing him as her benefactor, turned and put a tooth through his thumb. The animal fell to the ground unhurt and scampered away, while Johnny forgot his injury as he listened with satisfaction to the plaudits of his audience. This, his first great hazardous adventure, was the beginning of his dare-devil career.

"And I have since proved that a man as well as a cat can fall fifty-five feet without being hurt," says Tocher to-day. "I did it last spring from a smokestack in Toronto—accidentally of course. I went to a hopsital for four days, but there was nothing the matter with me. It was only for an X-ray examination."

Since he has made his profession that of a

John Tocher in a trio of precarious positions.

Canadian daredevil, Tocher has performed his human fly stunt on twenty-three buildings, of three to five storeys in height, in different parts of the dominion and the United States. He has climbed seven skyscrapers over ten storeys, including the Metropolitan tower, New York, Wrigley building, Chicago, Philadelphia city hall and the Dime Savings Bank, Detroit. His great ambition now is to climb the tallest building in the British Empire, which is in Toronto. If he does it, it will have to be when the police aren't looking, for the authorities have placed a ban on flirting with death in this manner.

"But it is perfectly safe," says Tocher, "as long as one is careful and doesn't lose his nerve. And I haven't lost mine yet. Why, when I'm on the side of a building and I know there is an undertaker watching me in the crowd below, I look down on him with the greatest of contempt, for I know that he will never get me until I die a natural death. When I was doing a human fly stunt in Kitchener, not long ago, a garbage man parked his cart directly underneath me, when I was about half-way up. I heard the crowd yell that it was a bad omen. I suppose they thought that it was ten chances to one that it would be needed to carry off my remains. But I fooled the and just kept on climbing, incidentally givi them a few extra thrills now and then by pretending that I was slipping.

And in one of his quieter moments

Giving Real Satisfaction

"IN the same city I rode a bicycle around a two-foot coping on the top of a bank building. After I got down somebody said that I couldn't walk along the edge of the same structure with my eyes blindfolded. I had never tried the stunt before, but I wasn't going to be beaten. I not only walked, but I put in a few dance steps and handsprings for good measure."

When in Winnipeg some time ago Tocher took his first trip in an aeroplane. He went up in the machine but didn't come down in it. When his pilot had taken him to a height of 2,000 feet he got the idea that he would like to jump, figuring that he would be just as safe as where he was. He had never heard of any person voluntarily taking a parachute leap on their first time aloft. Perhaps it was one of those things that people said couldn't be done. It was worth trying.

He tapped his pilot on the shoulder and made known his intention. And after feeling for his aerial life-preserver to make sure that it was still firmly strapped on, he climbed from his seat and scrambled along the left wing of the plane. A pause to take a deep breath, and he leaped. A few seconds later he thought all the bones in his body were broken, when the parachute opened. "I looked down and when I saw the earth rushing toward me it gave me a bit of a scare, just enough to make me keep my head up. Perhaps it was the first time I was really frightened, but I soon got over it. The next week I went up again and jumped, just to prove to myself that it hadn't got my goat."

Tocher claims that all his death-defying stunts and endurance tests are done as the result of auto-suggestion. "I just make up my mind that I am going to do a thing and I concentrate on it. Then I go ahead and do it. If I have a single doubt as to the outcome, I abandon the attempt."

He applied the same psychology to his job while working with a so-called hypnotist, who is well-known in Canada. Tocher was the subject for the act. He played his part well, pretending to be under the influence of his mystic employer. While under an alleged sleep he was told to make his body rigid. He was then placed with his head on the back of one chair and his feet on another. Four heavy men were called from the audience and they sat on his light frame. How can he do it? He really must be hypnotized, people murmured in the theatre. But Tocher was quite conscious of all that was going on. "There was no fake to my part of the act," says Tocher. "I really had to hold up that weight. But it is not so difficult. Most people could do it as long as they concentrated on keeping their body perfectly rigid."

With a Fake Hypnotist

THEN while he was still supposed to be under this famous hypnotist's power, he allowed the latter to push ordinary hatpins, which were gathered from the audience, through his cheeks, ears, the skin of his neck, hands and legs. It was a very gruesome and painful act, but a convincing one from the standpoint of his employer.

"Did it hurt? You bet it did. The first night, after I went back to my hotel, I could hardly sleep, my nerves were shaking so badly. I would never have done it, but I was broke at the time, and forty-five dollars a week looked like big money."

Tocher stayed for five months, taking as many as ten pins in his body at each of two performances a week. He still bears the scars where he has been pierced.

But those days are gone forever. Tocher is now employed in saner pursuits. His adventuresome spirit has made him a first-class steeplejack with seven trades—bricklayer, carpenter, painter, roofer, caulker, rigger and sign painter—and he is going to stick at these legitimate occupations.

"But of course," says Tocher, "I have still my ambition to climb the tallest building in the British Empire, though my wife objects to me going back to my human fly stunts. Will I go against her wishes? No; that's one thing that can't be done."

BREVITY SOUL OF LEVITY

CANON ROLLO of Trinity College, Toronto, has a reputation for ready wit which is only exceeded by his fame as a scholar. The following story is related of him.

When in Scotland, Canon Rollo was once accosted on his way to the postoffice by a stranger. The latter sought money for a meal. None the less generous, the canon was suspicious. To gain time, he asked:

"And what religion are you, may I ask?"

"Not the same as you, sir," replied the stranger, piously. "But what does that matter? We're both going to the same place."

"Not at all," smiled the canon. "You're on your way to a restaurant. I'm going to the postoffice."

Too Much Civilization For the Duke's Liking

Could Any Authority on Etiquet Solve the Governor-General's Problem?

THE visit to the far north of Canada's present governor-general recalls the trip by his predecessor, the Duke of Devonshire, through the Peace River and Grande Prairie country. Whitelaw, the new town at the present end of steel on the E. D. and B. C. Railway, 340 miles distant from Edmonton, was the scene of an incident that revealed how impressed the duke was.

After motoring across country from Spirit river to Peace river, it was late in the day when his excellency drew up at the stopping place in the frontier village which then bore the picturesque name Waterhole. The little hotel was full.

But with the true hospitality of the north, a new arrival, who but an hour before had secured a room in the hotel, graciously insisted that he be allowed to vacate.

In haste to wash off the dust of the trail before the impromptu reception about to be staged by the board of trade, his excellency turned to find the basin full of dirty water.

"I would toss this out of the window," said the Duke of Devonshire, as he sought to wait on himself, "if they weren't so dashed civilized here."

SAVED U.S.A. IN EUROPE AND DIED IN DISGRACE

Prof. Dodd of Chicago Discloses Remarkable Story of Lincoln's Press Agent, Walker

IT is a matter of pride among Americans that national heroes usually get their just deserts insofar as honor and glory go at any rate. And they usually do.

One outstanding American, however, is rarely heard, let alone honored. He was a press agent. But he was an exceptional one. He was Abraham Lincoln's press agent.

Needless to say he is now dead. He died in poverty and disgrace after spending his entire fortune, which was large, in his country's interests.

Prof. W. E. Dodd, historian, on the staff of the University of Chicago, dug this man out of obscurity and is now attempting to have his memory honored by his compatriots.

Robert J. Walker is the unknown who should have had a place in history. He went to Europe at Lincoln's request and in 1863, during the Civil war crisis, raised millions for the financial aid of his home government.

His duty was to increase the prestige of Lincoln and his supporters, to forestall, where possible, the raising of Confederate loans and to do general boosting.

On one occasion, he rode across England in a balloon scattering propaganda as he did so. He was the first man ever to attempt such a stunt.

He rode through London in a magnificent carriage drawn by six milk-white horses to show the English public that the rail-splitter in America had money.

When he performed the miracle of inducing Jewish bankers of Frankfort to lend $250,000,000 to United States, he accomplished a feat in Prof. Dodd's opinion, as noteworthy as the winning of the battle of Gettysburg.

Evidently he paid his own expenses in Europe and spread his money liberally in Lincoln's aid. But when he returned to Washington, he received little or no praise, no reimbursement and no offer of a job.

His own fortune was gone and he and his wife were practically poverty-stricken.

In an attempt to keep his family, he began to lobby in Congress and with money received from the Russian minister tried to bribe one or two members to vote for the purchase of Alaska.

He failed, admitted what he had done on the stand and died penniless.

His grave, says Prof. Dodd, is unmarked and unknown.

Remembers the Days Of Red Indian Raids

Mrs. Nathan Fitch Has Passed Her 110th Birthday, Her Relatives Declare

IN the industrial home of the county of Norfolk, Ontario, there lives a pioneer Canadian woman who is forced to reside in an institution because her daughter is too aged and infirm to care for her. The daughter, who lives in the state of Michigan, has now passed her 84th birthday.

The mother, according to relatives whose veracity seems beyond question, is in her 110th year.

Her name is Mrs. Nathan Fitch, and well over three-quarters of a century ago she was Miss Vermina Helmer. She was born in a little village at the mouth of the Niagara river one year after the close of the war of 1812.

She was christened in the first Anglican church erected in the Niagara district, attended it regularly as a young girl and was married there. After her marriage she moved to her husband's home in Courtland, Norfolk county, where she resided until five years ago, when she was brought to the county home at Simcoe. Mr. Fitch died approximately 25 years ago, having attained at the time of his death the ripe age of 82 years.

It would be impossible to divine that Mrs. Fitch is 110 years old. She retains her vitality to a remarkable degree, and is able to move about the home without assistance of any sort. She is still in possession of most of her faculties and delights in recalling the time when the redskins roamed at will through the dense forests of the Niagara district, only too frequently carrying terror into the hearts of the pioneer settlers by their spasmodic raids on outlying farms. She can remember animated conversation of her parents about the bloody days of 1812-14. One incident is firmly fixed in her memory and about this she often speaks. It was a plague that swept the Indian tribes in this part of Ontario early in the nineteenth century. Her father and his neighbors were paid by the government five dollars per head for every Indian they buried. The task occupied their sole attention for several months, and it was estimated that three thousand Indians succumbed to the ravages of the disease in that space of time.

Mrs. Fitch is undoubtedly the oldest lady in this part of Ontario, perhaps in the entire dominion. Recently an aged gentleman, to all appearances beyond the threescore and ten mark, called at the home to visit Mrs. Fitch. He was her grandson.

"STAYING HERE LONG?" "FROM NOW ON," HE SAID

JACK MINER, the noted Canadian naturalist, recently accompanied Mr. George E. Buchanan, a Detroit multi-millionaire, to Alaska with a party of seventy-five boys.

The route of the expedition was Detroit to St. Paul and then to Winnipeg. When crossing the Canadian border, Canadian customs officials made the usual inspection of Mr. Miner, his friends and their baggage, but failed to recognize the Canadian bird-lover-author. They were very inquisitive on one point.

"How long," they solemnly asked him, "do you intend to remain in the dominion?"

"I'm going to stay in Canada for one hundred years or die in the attempt," was the reply.

TECS COME FROM BEHIND TO TURN CLIPPERS BACK

New London Twirler Holds Hams To Three Hits Up To Seventh.

SIX SAFETIES EACH

Hal Elliott was prevented from playing with the Simon Pure amateurs of the province, but that didn't prevent him from beating Hamilton 3 to 1, yesterday afternoon. He allowed the visiting gents but six hits, and this was his third win in three starts, and if you can make that read like anything less than 1,000 per cent. then make out your own income tax returns.

Incidentally, he prevented Ralph Judd from winning his twentieth game, a feat the still-youthful-looking Rochester citizen yearns to accomplish before the season closes.

The game was going along nicely, and nobody was going to hurt anybody apparently, until the Hams started it in their seventh. Elliott had permitted the visitors but three hits up to that time. McCrea, it is true, in the fourth had taken the liberty of going as far as third. He did this on his own single, a sacrifice and a passed ball. Having had a pilfering assault on second base turned back in the fifth, the Hams reverted to the old army game when Lopez got a walk in the seventh. Duckworth sacrificed him on. Riley flied out to right, and Judd was just about to pop out to Baker behind third when Sandquist waved Mike away and then started to close in in circles on the descending ball. Sandy never did close in on it, but Lopez scored on it.

Drop Self-Restraint.

Visiting Hams should know by this time that spoiling a good game like this was by getting a run is just the sort of thing that makes the Indians fly off the handle. The Tecs hadn't annoyed Judd all afternoon, but in their half of the seventh their mask of self-restraint was peeled off and thrown to the prevailing winds. Cross started it with a single, and Brower doubled to the scoreboard by way of explaining to the Hams that they couldn't do that to the Hams that they couldn't do that and get away with it. Klein walked. Kernan singled before anyone could get forward to pinion his arms and stop the blow and two runs came tumbling over the paths.

Double Killing.

Judd gobbled Vermilyea's liner and caught Kernan off first before he could pull up the anchor chain and get back to the bag, but then he repented of this hasty action, and unloosed a wild pitch, Elliott, on which Klein scored.

Judd retired the Tecs on three pitched balls in the homesters' half of the eighth, the center fielder, catcher and first sacker getting the outs. It was one of the shortest innings ever seen here in which a double-play did not figure.

Froman's single in the eighth and Riley's single in the ninth was the extent to which the Hams delayed the game's orderly progress.

THANKS, STRATHROY

MACS TO MEET KNITS AT PT. STANLEY TODAY

Game Will Decide International Softball Title For 1925.

The Cleveland Favorite Knits, whose boastfully defiant attitude toward all the other girls in the North American continent this season has not done much to improve the amity of international sport relations, are responsible for a little extra determination to win on the part of the London McCormick girls in their battle with the Ohioans at Port Stanley at 4:30 this afternoon.

For several weeks the Favorite Knits have been manoeuvring in a manner not much appreciated in London softball circles.

On the strength of their victories over the London Brownies last year they have added to their labels of city and Ohio state champions, special markers on their knickers proclaiming themselves as international champions of 1924. Realizing the advertising value of this moniker they determined to play, and likewise to win, in Ontario in 1925, at all costs. As a result the Knits arranged a game with a St. Thomas playgrounds team, having a twelve-year-old pitcher, and on Civic Holiday morning played in Port Stanley and won by 30 odd to 4. In the afternoon the McCormicks of London in the official event of the day trimmed the Cleveland Clothcraft girls, who took the defeat in very good part. The Cleveland Knits, however, watched the game, and guessing that as the best strength of the McCormicks, commenced a modified baiting process.

Finally with their letters and telegrams couched in terms to place McCormicks in the position of defaulting, the Clevelanders commenced a barrage of marked newspapers.

Though little time remained to make the necessary arrangements McCormicks threw a bombshell into the Favorite Knits' camp on Wednesday night by wiring not an acceptance, but a challenge to the Favorite Knits to play in Port Stanley next Saturday for a substantial cash side bet. It took 36 hours to draw an answer out of the Favorite Knits.

"This is not a game arranged by the amusement interests at Port Stanley," Manager Cy Young of McCormicks declared today. "It is a battle to settle something in the nature of a dispute and we hope that every softball fa in London and district will give us support."

St. Martins Lose to St. Marys 3-2

Third Straight Game Champs Have Played Without An Error.

STANDING.

St. Peters	5	6	.455
St. Martins	4	7	.364

Although Barney Clark held the St. Marys team to three safe hits at Sunshine park last night, the champions managed to overcome a two-run lead secured by the south-enders, finally winning by a 3 to 2 count. It was the third consecutive game in which St. Marys had no errors.

This leaves St. Marys still a full game behind Marconis, but they still have a chance to tie the series by beating St. Peters in a postponed game next week, providing St. Martins turn back Marconis in their game Tuesday.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL — BUSINESS OR SPORT?

—AS ANALYZED BY A GRADUATE MANAGER—

CHAPTER XII.

Football as Practical Education.

Summarizing the foregoing articles, my main contention is that the changes which have come about in the modern football follow closely the changes which have taken place in the general organization of life in America during the last few decades.

It is inevitable that systems of education should reflect the life of the world around them.

Last year I read some articles written by a football scout, in which he observed the same tendency. He deplored and denounced these changes. I do not. A good curriculum for a school of savages would have included bow and arrow marksmanship and plain and fancy skull cracking; in the last century, when purely academic learning was quoted above par, the "humanities," which my friend the scout worries so much about, were good business; in these high-pressure days, the world rewards and youth wants money and success.

Isn't it the business of an educator to equip youth to survive and succeed in his environment as it is, rather than it ought to be?

I maintain that the high-geared, competitive system of inter-collegiate athletics, with all its derivatives of high finance, is more effective in preparing boys for life as they will find it than any system which places the emphasis on the cultural rather than the practical.

Faculty Objectors.

I can anticipate cries of rage and pain from at least three venerable deans—men whom I admire and respect—who have been raising an outcry against all this "gross commercialism" in college athletics. But I have noted that these revered pedagogues have never failed in genuflections to wealth, when they wanted an endowment or a scholarship fund from some "gross materialist." Here, I believe, is the weakness of their logic. They want more big fortunes to nourish big colleges, but they oppose any frank organization of college training which recognizes the importance of what they seek.

I remember one of George Ade's fables of about twenty years ago. There were two boys in the little red school house; one lapped up all the loose culture and was the leader of his class; the other discounted the culture, but managed to get the edge on the other boys on any close-in deals on marbles or peg tops.

The first boy was so fired with the zest for learning for learning's sake, that he got a Ph.D., became an authority on the diplodocus and when he was fifty had a salary of $2,500 a year and a house and lot with a mortgage on it.

The other boy left school when he was in the fifth grade, and began making jug-handled lightning rod contracts with the farmers.

Many years later he happened to visit the campus where his old-time friend had become a professor of paleontology. They chanced to meet. As they chatted, the businessman happened to find $100,000 which he had carelessly left in his vest pocket. "Here, take this," he said casually, "and have a laboratory on me."

I have forgotten the moral which George Ade deduced from this. Some college academician may supply it.

Rewards For Success.

I wonder if the reformers see anything interesting or significant in the fact that men who become rich or notorious are fairly plastered with honorary college degrees. I know at least three recipients of such degrees who think that Diogenes is a big league ball player and that Harold Bell Wright wrote Paradise Lost.

Personally, I think this largess in degrees means a lot. It shows what the college dons really think of the "go getter" spirit—and then they roast coaches and graduate managers because they teach boys to go out and be successful.

I know an illustrious dumbell, now in his last year in college. He is thick-skulled, but one of the best football players I have ever seen. His name is nationally known; in some miraculous way he will be herded past the scholarship barrier next spring; a big railroad has already spoken for him, on account of the value of his name. I'm ready to bet any and all comers that within ten years some cow college will hang an LL.D. on him. He'll probably have a staff of Phi Beta Kappa clerks working for him.

Decline of the "Humanities."

Maybe I'm getting a little out of my depth here, but it seems to me that the reformers are trying to serve both God and Mammon. They acquiesce in the tendency to make big grist mills out of the universities—I understand there are about 40,000 students in the University of California this year—and then they weep over the decadence of the "humanities." The humanities came out of cloisters and solitude. That's where they will continue to come from, and when I point out that they have no particular cash value at this writing, I don't want anyone to think that I underrate their importance.

As a matter of fact, most of the great humanists didn't come out of the colleges anyhow. What I want to say is that alumni and coaches and managers who take boys who are impervious to real culture, and discipline and drive and herd them, and finally plant them on the road to material success are doing more for them than the professors who are giving them a bogus culture—bogus because it doesn't deal with life as it is.

I believe in modern college athletics, and I sanction as honest and reputable the methods in which they are conducted.

THE END.

London Is Four Golf Course City As New Club Opens Up

Westminster Country Club Members Will Play Temporary Holes Monday.

IS SPORTING TEST.

London's expansion to a four-course golfing city will come Monday, when the Westminster Country club course will be played over for the first time.

The new course is situated on the south side of Brick street on the Martin farm, which parallels the London & Port Stanley Railway tracks, and although but tentatively laid out, the site invites immediate and favorable comparison from a scenic point of view with the three other city courses, though in quite a different way. Lying as it does on the south side of Brick street, it straddles a continuation of the same ridge upon which the Highland Golf club's course was constructed two years ago. But here the ridge is broken up into a series of knolls, high enough and big enough in some places to be called hills, and in Hamilton small mountains. Valleys, deep and shallow, and sometimes narrowing to ravines, make a criss-cross pattern of peculiar topographical features not matched in this district. These features are even more accentuated in the back portion of the tract, which will be left untouched until such time as it is required to expand the course to 18 holes.

The Start.

The project has been the victim of some vicissitudes and much circuitous discussion for almost a year now, but within the last month several of the original members, who had gained rather than lost faith, decided that some direct initiative must be taken. A month ago the site was there in its natural state. It offered obvious natural advantages in the way of unique topographical features and accessibility to the city by road and radial, but it put forth considerable strain on the imagination, especially to those ardent golfers who lacked any instinct for golf course architecture and whose powers of visualization were not of the keenest.

A month of work by an absurdly small force of men, however, has brought out the possibilities into such bold relief that even in the tentative fashion the course has been laid out they will be visible to even the most prosaic and unimaginative. Several trips of a hay mower over the ground has clearly defined the fairways, where before there was an expanse of tough, tousled grass. Where bushes and tree clusters infrequently intervened these have been removed. Hole signs and sand dips mark out the holes on greens that are still temporary, and rough, but give the surface appearance of a course already finished. It was to give this rough outline that work was started immediately a month ago and discussion ended, and this objective will have been reached Monday, when 75 or so members and those interested are invited out to play over the course.

The course as marked out now will probably be permanently constructed with few changes. On several of the holes there are alternative courses to pursue, but the general idea will not be greatly different. It will undoubtedly be nicknamed "The Mashie Club," and its future members will probably be known as "The Hillmen." Half the holes in the first nine face one another across valleys of varying depths. Several of the temporary greens at present offer added terrors and thrills by being sited on the tops of mounds with convex tops, but if these are used as permanent greens it is probable that they will be planed off flat. Most of these hill-to-hill drives are compensated for by cupped greens. Several of the holes present straight-pitch shots, the greens being located in valleys which have come to an abrupt stop.

The Course.

The first is a knoll-to-knoll drive. The second is on to a small mound, for which there is a higher hill as a background. The third, too, is artificially constructed on the side of a hill as a palisade and the drive is down a shallow valley with a mashie approach. The fourth hole can be sneaked up on from behind with good distance drives eliminating the mashie work.

From the fifth the drive is into a natural amphitheatre. It has been proposed to locate a cricket pitch here for the St. George's cricket club, and very little work will be required on this green. The sixth is short but terrifying. The distance is not more than 150 yards across a deep valley and right plumb into an area which has already been dubbed the Himilayas. The green is on "Mount Everest."

And the real Mount Everest is still unconquered. Negotiating this hole should entitle the negotiator to the first degree in the Order of Alpine Climbers, at least. It presents the most difficult test of the course at first sight, but an accurate drive of good height and with good luck would roll into the crater-like top of Mount Everest.

The rest of the holes take their course over more gently-rolling country. The course is sporting enough to please the most exacting, and offers plenty of variety. There is little danger of lost balls, as there are only enough tree clumps skirting the fairway in several places to add variety, and then only badly-hooked balls would get into these.

Further Plans.

Lt.-Col. C. Anderson, who was one of the original members, and who, with W. Hawkins, has done a good deal of the work in planning the course, forming the club and actually supervising the work done up to the present, believes that the club will offer facilities for winter sports. The hills would make short but steep toboggan slides, and the whole tract would be splendid skiing country, even though the straightaways would not be long. The country around the course is ideal for snow-shoeing.

The clubhouse, which is still in the plans only, will probably be located on the site of the present farm house. From this hill a magnificent view of the city and of the course is obtained. There is an orchard at the rear, in which it is proposed to construct a lawn.

The start which has been made is modest, and it is intended to build only as the needs of the club demand expansion.

William Giles, for many years greenkeeper at the London Rowing club's greens, has been placed in charge of construction, and already has two permanent greens laid out and sown. A rich black loam deposit and big patches of "creeping bent" grass, a much-sought-after grass for golf greens, were pleasant finds which were made after the work of construction was begun.

Colts Finally Win One With Wolves As Victims

Four Runs in Last Two Frames Give Kitchener Decision.

ACES BEAT VEHICS

Special to The Advertiser.

Bay City, Sept. 4.—The Wolves' nose dive is complete—Kitchener has beaten them. The locals flopped here today before a small crowd and let the Colts win 6 to 5, after the locals had taken a 3 to 1 lead in the opening frame. The Pack went into the ninth with a one-run advantage, but Sutter hit one man, walked two more and then Joe Marty threw away the ball to score a pair. Those runs meant the downfall of the Breenmen and gave them eight losses out of the last nine games played.

A World's Record!

Essex has passed the 100,000 mark for 1925—the first six-cylinder car to attain the six-figure milestone in production. This official word came this week from the Hudson Motor Car Company, which manufactures the Essex, with the additional information that this is 15 per cent more Essex cars than were built in the entire year 1924.

With production on a volume basis, it seems likely that the entire year of 1925 will see twice as many Essex cars built as in 1924—this despite the fact that 1924 established itself as a remarkably successful Essex year.

"This unusual measure of success," said Chas. F. Jones, Hudson-Essex distributor, "is all the more remarkable because no new model was introduced, and because more than 95 per cent of Essex business has been centered in the coach model—a type of car which Essex created and named. Essex business has been consistently good, with neither spurts nor let-downs. It has sold, not on particular features, but simply on the fundamental basic value offered for the money.

"It is evident that the underlying Essex idea and appeal have met with a striking public approval. Value for the money is the policy which has won this, and is continuing to win it on an ever-increasing scale. Essex value gets right down to the most fundamental facts in motoring—reliability, comfort, economy and satisfaction at an unmatched price.

"The rapidly-growing list of Essex owners in America will be gratified to know that their choice of motor car is receiving unusual degree of endorsement in all foreign as well as domestic fields, in Great Britain, the continent, and in all colonial fields Essex sales have kept pace with those in the United States.

"A prime factor in Essex success has been the knowledge on the part of the public that it is manufactured by Hudson—a permanent, well-known and entirely independent concern, controlled and owned by men who make the management of its affairs their personal business."

TORONTO LEAFS TO PLAY IN NEW PARK NEXT SEASON

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Sept. 4—After years of agitation the Toronto international league baseball team will play its games at a stadium on the mainland instead of on the island. The Toronto harbor commission today approved a 42-year lease to Lol Solman, owner of the Leafs, of a ten-acre site at the foot of Bathurst street, on which a modern grandstand, seating 30,000, will be erected. It is expected the new park will be available when the season opens next spring.

STRATFORD WORKERS ATTENDING EXHIBITION

Employees Journey To Toronto With Free Admission To Fair.

Special to The Advertiser.

Stratford, Sept. 4.—Hundreds of Stratford citizens, together with their families, will attend the Canadian National exhibition tomorrow, which has been designated as manufacturers' day. Stratford manufacturers, as elsewhere, are co-operating with the C. N. R. officials in an effort to make the day one of the most successful in the history of the big fair. With this end in view, the majority of Stratford manufacturers have decided to suspend operations from Friday evening until Tuesday morning.

Admission tickets to the grounds will be given to all employees who desire them. These have been obtained through the Canadian Manufacturers' association.

C. A. Moore of the Stratford Manufacturing Company has gone farther than this. He is not only supplying admission tickets but will also provide the transportation. About 50 of his employees will be his guests.

World's Series To Start Oct. 7

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Sept. 4.—The world series provision introduced last year, alternating the openings between the two league, will take the first two games to Pittsburg this year if the Pirates win the pennant, which achievement they are getting closer to daily; the next three to Washington, if three more are needed, then two to Pittsburg.

The geographical relationship of these two communities will make daily games possible as it is only a one night jump, and the series will be over in a week if there are no ties and no rain. This is true no matter what cities are represented, as it will be a one night jump at the most. The season ends on Oct. 4, which falls on a Sunday, and the first game probably will be played on Oct. 7, Wednesday. Games in Pittsburg on the 7th and 8th, Mr. Landis willing, will be followed by games in Washington the 9th, 10th and 11th, giving Washington a Sunday.

GUNN AND CHAMPION QUALIFY AT OAKMONT

Former Eliminates Von Elm, While Jones Beats New York Namesake.

Associated Press Despatch.

Oakmont, Sept. 4.—Come what may, nothing can deter the national amateur golf championship from going to Georgia, for in today's semi-final play for the trophy, two Georgians, Bobby Jones, the defending champion, and his student-golfer, Walter Gunn, eliminated their opponents.

Jones won his way into the finals by eliminating George von Elm, San Francisco star, 7 and 6, while Gunn, after a nip and tuck battle against Dick Jones, youthful prodigy from New York, won his match 5 and 3.

Bobby Jones shot a 71, one under par, to gain his long lead over the man who last year in the tournament at Merion, met him in the final round.

Young Gunn experienced a lot of trouble in gaining the advantage over Dick Jones. The dead see-sawed, Gunn's inability to find himself on the greens causing him to have only the one-hole margin at the home green.

Champion Bobby, victor in 1924 at Merion, conquered the same foe he faced there in the finals, George Von Elm of the Rancho golf club of Los Angeles, but the margin was somewhat narrower. Von Elm bowed last year 9 and 8; today the score was 7 and 6.

Little Gunn, who eliminated the former champion, Jess Sweetzer, by an overwhelming margin in yesterday's play, had a more serious contender in Dick Jones, but finally conquered the White Plains star, dropping a 45-foot putt at the 33rd green to end the tussle, 5 and 3. At the end of the morning round he led by one hole.

THIRD SERIES TITLE IS AWARDED BEACHVILLE

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Sept. 4.—Owing to the Thamesford club refusing to come to Woodstock to meet Beachville in a play-off game, the third series of the Thames Valley baseball league has been awarded to Beachville, which thus qualifies to enter the final play-off for the championship. There are three teams in the play-off, Thamesford, Beachville and the Woodstock Businessmen. It is uncertain whether the Thamesford executive will consent to the team going through into the finals, but it is expected that the first game of the final series will be played here Monday between Beachville and Woodstock.

DIAMOND GLINTS

At a meeting of the National league moguls about a month ago they went on record against the lively ball. If the American league magnates took any action, it was never made known.

What was known as the lively ball had a cork center about one-half inch in diameter. This was inclosed in two hemispheres of live gray rubber which were joined together, making a cork center within a rubber ball.

Around this center the finest of woolen yarn was tightly wound and over it a horsehide cover of the best materials.

In the modified ball a covering of hard black rubber, about one-quarter of an inch thick encircles the cork center. Around this is a covering of live red rubber, about one-eighth of an inch through.

The completed center of the new ball is the same size as used in the lively ball, but the hard, black rubber that separates the cork from the resilient red live rubber is undoubtedly the thing that has toned it down.

The new ball was put into play in the majors about the first of August. Almost immediately the pitching improved and there has been a marked falling off in the extra base hits, particularly home runs.

While the new ball has made its appearance with little or no publicity, it is felt that it will help the game and restore some of the lost science to the sport.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Sept. 4.—Twelve-year-old Sylvia Mullin, a bobbed blonde of the Bronx, who was second choice for adoption by Edward W. Browning, was missing today for the second time in a month. Reporting the matter to the police, Mrs. Frances Mullin, her mother, expressed fear that her daughter had been kidnapped, because a few days ago she intercepted a note from a man, asking the girl to meet him. The girl left home at 8 a.m. yesterday. The first time she disappeared she was found asleep at home.

Sylvia was runner-up to Mary Louise Spas in a Cinderella adoption contest by Mr. Browning, a wealthy realtor.

LESLIE BRENNER BURIED FROM AILSA CRAIG HOME

Special to The Advertiser.

Ailsa Craig, Sept. 4.—The funeral of Leslie Brenner, whose death took place on Tuesday morning, was held from his mother's home this afternoon to Nairn cemetery, and was very largely attended. DISSOLUTION OF HOUSE GENERALLY EXPECTED;

Important Announcements May Be Made at Meeting in North York.

TO OUTLINE POLICIES

Bureau, Beland, McGiverin and Copp May Retire From Cabinet.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 4.—Until ten minutes before Premier Mackenzie King left to board his train for Toronto at 11 o'clock tonight the dominion cabinet was in session. The night sitting followed two others, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Between the morning and afternoon sittings was sandwiched in the premier's important call upon the governor-general, at which, it is understood, he requested his excellency to dissolve parliament. No announcement followed the protracted cabinet meetings, save that, just before his departure, Mr. King admitted that some appointments had been made.

Appointments Made.

Night sittings of the cabinet are rare save when exceptionally important matters are under consideration. It is understood that, in the course of the day, a number of important appointments were made, some of which, it is expected, will be announced by the prime minister when he speaks at Richmond Hill tomorrow. Official announcement awaits the approval of the governor-general, which will be given tomorrow.

That Mr. King will announce dissolution and probably the date of the election is now generally expected.

That he may also announce the names of certain members of the government who are resigning their portfolios and the names of those who will take them up is possible. Herbert Marler, Liberal member for St. Lawrence-St. George, is now spoken of as one of those who will be included in the reorganized cabinet. Mr. Marler was with the prime minister for a time this evening. Hon. Walter Foster, former premier of New Brunswick, now in the capital, is another prominently mentioned. Deputy Speaker George Gordon is another cabinet possibility. The names of James Malcolm, Liberal member for Bruce, and W. L. McDougall, chairman of the Montreal harbor commission, also are mentioned. Whether or not Premier Charles Dunning of Saskatchewan will take over the immigration portfolio is not known.

Ministers May Retire.

Hon. H. B. McGiverin, minister without portfolio, and the most recent appointee to the cabinet, will, it is understood, leave the government. It is rumored that Hon. Jacques Bureau, minister of customs, and possibly Hon. H. S. Beland, minister of soldiers' civil re-establishment, will also go out, and that Hon. A. B. Copp, secretary of state, may go too. Right Hon. W. S. Fielding will resign the finance portfolio, being replaced by Hon. James A. Robb.

At the conclusion of his speaking tour in Ontario next Saturday, the premier will return to Ottawa for the week-end, when he will proceed to Quebec and from there after a few meetings, to the Maritime Provinces.

THREE HURT AS AUTO HITS PILE OF GRAVEL

American Car Badly Wrecked in Accident On Closed Street.

Special to The Advertiser.

Ingersoll, Sept. 4.—Failing to take the detour at McKeand street and continuing east on Bell street, a party of American tourists from Detroit, en route to the Toronto exhibition, met with an accident early today, when their car plunged into a pile of gravel. They stated they did not see any barricade which would have detoured them, and owing to a fog at the time, they probably did not realize their danger until it was too late to avoid the mishap.

The car was owned by James Elliott, of 4017 Burlingame avenue, Detroit, and with him were Ernest Robinson, 14,310 Coyle avenue, Detroit, Geo. Fergusson, 3815 Webb avenue, Detroit, and Duncan Darrow of 87 Elm street, River Rouge, Detroit.

The injured members of the party were taken to the home of Mrs. Tiff where their wounds were dressed. Robinson was found to have a very bad cut above his chin. Darrow was badly cut about the shoulder, and a piece of broken windshield was taken from his back, where it was embedded. Elliott had a slight injury to his wrist. The car was badly damaged, and the party continued their journey by train.

YOUTH DROWNED AT PORT STANLEY

John Rowe Meets Death On First Day of Vacation.

Special to The Advertiser.

Port Stanley, Sept. 4.—While taking a dip in the lake in front of the amusemtn beach after his arrival here from Marion, Ohio, John Joseph Rowe of that city was drowned at 3:10 this afternoon. The body was recovered about an hour later, but all efforts to restore life failed.

Rowe, with two other Marion lads, William Andrew and Harold Laxon, arrived at the lakeside shortly after noon. After booking at the Alexandria cottage, Rowe decided to go in for a dip to freshen up after his long journey, so he made for the lake. After swimming for a short time, he started for a raft about 300 feet from shore, and when within two feet of it he suddenly sank and his body did not come to the surface again.

Volunteers conducted a search for the body and recovered it about an hour later under the raft. Dr. Bullard of London, and Coroner Ewing of St. Thomas, pronounced him dead, and had the body removed to Williams undertking parlors in St. Thomas till tomorrow afternoon, when it will be taken to Marion.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rowe, of Marion, one sister, Miss Irene, at home; and three brothers, Edward, attending St. Francis College, Syracuse, N.Y., Theodore and Francis, at home.

WOMAN INJURED IN MOTOR CRASH

Mrs. J. P. Freek, St. Thomas, Seriously Hurt in Head-On Collision.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Sept. 4.—Mrs. J. P. Freek, 114 Wellington street, wife of City Tax Assessor Freek, was seriously injured about four o'clock this afternoon on the Port Stanley highway when a car driven by her son-in-law, Henry Gee, of Detroit, was struck by a car driven by H. W. Adams, also of Detroit. Besides a broken ankle, Mrs. Freek sustained a cut under the eye and a severe scalp wound, and her condition is regarded as very serious. No one else in either car was injured, beyond slight cuts and bruises.

Mr. Adams was driving towards Port Stanley with his wife, and turned out to pass a car in front. He alleges that the other car, the occupants of which are unknown, pressed him over towards his wrong side of the road, and before he could stop he struck Mr. Gee's car. Mr. Gee was driving north with Mrs. Freek and his two little children, Catharine and Buddy. His auto was turned completely upside down in the ditch. The Adams car proceeded a short distance down the road and slewed crosswise to the road with the front wheels in the ditch. Both cars were almost demolished.

Mr. Gee and the children have several bruises, and Mrs. Adams was severely shaken up when in trying to jump she landed on her back in the road.

LEAGUE IS UNEASY OVER OIL DISPUTE

Turkey Avoids Giving Assurance of Agreeing To Eventual Decision.

Associated Press Despatch.

Geneva, Sept. 4.—It was predicted tonight in league circles that the Hon. Raoul Dandurand of Canada will be elected president of the League of Nations assembly at the opening of the assembly Monday next.

The dispute between Great Britain and Turkey over the Mosul region, one of the most troublesome subjects on the agenda of the present council of the league, has temporarily disappeared from the Geneva horizon through the action of the council today in referring it to a subcommittee. But league circles, however, are uneasy over avoidance by Tewfik Rushdi Pasha, the Turkish foreign minister, of any assurance that his country would abide by the eventual decision of the council with respect to the disposition of Mosul.

The matter may be allowed to drift for a week or two so as to permit time for calm discussion.

L. C. M. Amery, the British colonial secretary, at today's session pressed the Turkish foreign minister to agree to abide by the council's decision. Col. Amery declared tonight that he could hardly imagine Turkey going back on her affirmative assurance in this respect, made at a previous session of the council.

General Motors and Studebaker Advance More Than Two Points.

Associated Press Despatch

New York, Sept. 4—An urgent retreat of an overcrowded short interest in the moderate-priced motors featured today's stock market, which made further recovery from recent weakness. Trading generally was of the usual quiet pre-holiday character, the day's sales barely exceeding 1,000,000 shares.

Motor shares have been freely offered by bear traders ever since the price-cutting campaign of leading manufacturers began last month. In view of increased automobile sales, large current earnings and higher dividend prospects of several companies, holders of long stock were reluctant in many cases to take profits, with the result that shorts had to bid high in order to cover their commitments.

General Motors and Studebaker advanced more than 2 points, while Chrysler, Gardner, Pierce-Arrow preferred, Mack Trucks, White and Dodge Brothers common and preferred each moved up a point or more, the last-named touching a record high.

Rails displayed a strong undertone on buying influenced by the unusually favorable July income report of the class one carriers. Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago and Northwestern, Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific, Pittsburg and West Virginia, Reading, Seaboard Air Line and Union Pacific all showed net gains of 1 to nearly 3 points. Gulf, Mobile and Northern common and preferred attained new 1925 high prices at 35¾ and 106 respectively. Frisco common was heavy on profit-taking. Strong buying support was again in evidence for the high-priced specialties. American Can rallied nearly 5 points to 229¾. Cast Iron Pipe showed a net gain of 2 at 164½. General Railway Signal was up an exception, breaking 20 points to 340 on the announcement of a recapitalization plan and the declaration of an extra dividend.

Further accumulation of United States Steel common, in anticipation of a favorable tonnage report next week, sent that stock up 1 point to 121.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged, with business in small volume.

Except for sharp advances in the Norwegian and Danish currencies, which again established new highs records for the year, there was little interest in the foreign exchanges, which fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling and French were slightly easier around 4.68c, francs were slightly easier around 4.68c.

FinancialReview

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Sept. 5.—Stock prices underwent a sharp reaction this forenoon selling originating with bear traders. Although some uneasiness was felt over the possible adverse economic effect of a prolonged suspension of anthracite mining, there was nothing in the week's news to bring about the decline, which was generally interpreted as a correction of a weakened technical condition resulting from speculative excesses of the last few weeks.

As a matter of fact, news and trade developments of the week were largely constructive in character.

High-priced industrial specialties were the hardest hit in the waves of selling which swept over the market in the early part of the week. Such issues as American Can, General Electric, Mack Trucks, Sears-Roebuck, General Railway Signal and White Motors, were hammered 10 to 40 points below their recent record highs. Standard industrials and rails also fell back in sympathy, but the declines were more moderate, and some of the losses were recovered, at least in part, in the closing days of the week.

Oils held up well in the face of another reduction, the fifth in the last two months. Steels also offered stubborn resistance to pressure, although the development of complications in the proposed merger of the Trumbull, Otis and Midland Steel products companies had a temporarily depressing effect. Motors moved in opposite directions, but reports of record-breaking sales by some of the larger companies were a sustaining influence on the general list.

Some of the low-priced rails were helped by the announcement that the administration proposed to amend the Esch-Commins law by forcing railroad consolidation within a period of seven years.

HEDGING LOWERS PRICES IN WHEAT

After Higher Opening Winnipeg Market Drops Two Cents.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Sept. 4. — The wheat market today, after holding firm during the early trading, sank under hedging pressure, and closed about 2c lower. The market opened unchanged to ½c higher, October future being quoted at $1.30⅜ to $1.35. The opening bulge was not held, the market quickly easing out to yesterday's close, at which level it held steady during the first half of the day. Later Chicago, which had been easier from the opening, fell off about 2c, and Winnipeg barley followed. October failing to $1.34¼, it held steady between this figure and $1.35, but closed at $1.35⅜, a net decline of 2c. November closed 2c down at $1.33, December closed 2c down at $1.32, and May 2¼c at $1.34¾.

The market was not as active as on the previous two or three days. There was some good buying by mills, but exporters did very little after the opening. Outside of small transactions in barley, there was only a nominal trade in the coarse grain market. The flax market lost a little ground today, with some scattered liquidation in evidence.

Cash wheat prices advanced another 3c in face of an excellent demand and a scarcity of stocks.

In the cash coarse grains there was a good trade in barley, and prices advanced 1c a bushel. The flax and rye market was nominal. Trade in oats was of carload proportions.

Cash prices:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.56⅜; No. 2 northern, $1.53⅜; No. 3 northern, $1.49⅞; No. 4, $1.40⅜; No. 5, $1.17⅜; track, $1.41⅜.

Oats—No. 2 C. W., 53¼c; No. 3 C. W., 47¼c; extra No. 1 feed, 46¾c; No. 1 feed, 45¼c; No. 2 feed, 44¼c; rejected, 38¼c; track, 49¾c.

Barley—No. 1 C. W., $2.39½; No. 3 C. W., $2.24½; 2 C. W., $2.33½; No. 3 C. W., $2.22½; rejected, $2.14½; track, $2.36½.

NATIONAL MINES AND STRONG BEER

Exploitation of Chinese Child Labor in Treaty Ports Condemned.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 4.—The nationalization of Canadian mines, better beer for Ontario and condemnation of the exploitation of Chinese child labor in the treaty ports of China were among the sentiments expressed in resolutions passed by the Trades and Labor Congress on the closing day of the 41st convention.

The re election of Tom Moore as president and the return to office of the entire executive of last year were the features of the morning session.

Montreal was selected, after a strenuous campaign, involving three ballots, as the place for the 1926 convention.

Debate waxed hot for part of the afternoon on a resolution of international flavor put forward by the communist group in the convention favoring the calling of an all-inclusive conference representative of the trade unions of the world for the purpose of establishing a basis for one great trade union international. John MacDonald of Toronto declared that it ought to be the policy of labor in Canada to draw closer to the Russian workers. Russia was being segregated by the other powers of Europe and militarism was strong in Poland and the Balkans. Therefore, to prevent the war which was imminent, labor should ally itself with labor in Russia. He pointed out that the British Trade Union Congress had approved of such a conference as was suggested in the resolution.

President Tom Moore spoke of the two international organizations—the Red International, which was the right wing, and Amsterdam international, which was the left wing, and with which the Canadian congress had affiliations. The American Federation of Labor had broken away from the Amsterdam congress, but for the Canadian congress to break away and call for a world conference of trades union representatives would only complicate the situation. It was better, President Moore intimated to let the British Trade Union Congress go ahead with its world conference, to let the American Federation of Labor break away from the Amsterdam International, and for the Canadian congress to steer a middle course.

A second flurry was raised when the committee on resolutions moved for nonconcurrence in an expression of sympathy with the Chinese workers and the struggles of the Chinese people for national freedom. James Simpson, Toronto; Bert Merson, Toronto, and John MacDonald, Toronto, all rushed to the support of the resolution. Mr. Simpson referred to the onslaught upon Chinese laborers, and spoke of the conditions of child labor there which should never be tolerated. The British government was to be condemned for its countenancing this "dirty work."

Mrs. Adam Shortt of Ottawa came in for sharp criticisms from Vice-President Bert Merson, who spoke on the resolution, favoring more just and sympathetic administration of the mothers' allowance act of Toronto. Her influence in the "niggardly administration" of mothers' allowances by the mothers' allowance commission was condemned.

COUNTY UNITED PRESBYTERY ENDORSES EXTENSION FUND

Fall Program of General Council of United Church Endorsed.

HUGE UNDERTAKING

London Conference Is Asked To Raise $480,000 As Its Portion.

Solemnly pledging to do its full share, the Middlesex United church presbytery, at its inaugural session yesterday, unanimously endorsed the fall program planned by the general council of the United church of Canada for the maintenance and extension fund of the church.

In addition to hearing the council's campaign suggestions outlined by officials from headquarters, Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, D.D., Toronto, Rev. John W. Graham, D.D., Toronto, and Rev. W. E. Millson, London, in three forceful and inspiring addresses, the presbytery carried through a lengthy docket of business covering affairs of internal administration of the court.

Dr. Laidlaw dealt in masterful manner with "the dynamics" of the situation, urging that the United church go forward with four great convictions held uppermost in the minds of its followers.

"The United church must go forward," affirmed Dr. Laidlaw, "in the consciousness that it is a more effective instrument, in the cities, on the frontiers and on the firing line of heathen lands for carrying on the work of the kingdom of God, seeking first that kingdom.

"The church must go forward in the conviction of the presence and primacy of Christ, the challenge being to give Jesus to the world and not to be bound by creeds, historic as they be, except as intellectual mile posts they help along the way. China, India, Africa want Christ, but not the westernization of Him, not Christ manacled by our interpretation of Him, they want only His spirit and life.

"The church must go forward in the conviction of the ever-pervading, ever-persistent presence of God's gracious spirit, recognizing that the truth of God is an ever-living, ever-growing faith, and that no confessional can hold it in final form.

Must Go Forward.

"Lastly, the church must go forward in the conviction that a united Christendom is the only instrument to meet the challenge of a chaotic world, because invention has made a new world-neighborhood without fraternal conditions, and is the only one power than can introduce family relations into the new situation. A divided church," concluded Dr. Laidlaw, "can never unite a divided and distracted world, and thus the time will come, and the United Church of Canada marks the beginning of that period, when all the other churches will be captivated by the allurement of this thought of union until a united Christendom is formed to uplift Christ and to win the nations with the ministry of reconciliation."

Dr. Graham followed with "the mechanics" of the situation, emphasizing the facts that the council desires a comprehensive united campaign, and that the spiritual aims of the church be kept ever in the foreground."

"The council wishes to raise $4,000,000 for the maintenance and extension fund by eliminating any series of unrelated appeals," stated Dr. Graham, "and if the church is to bring about world-wide redemption then there must be a world-wide church, not a hole-in-the-corner church, but a church in every corner of the globe. A united treasury is to collect and allocate the funds secured by April 1 next, and if the campaign fails we all fail, because it is laid upon the shoulders of all alike.

Campaigns Outlined.

"The fall and early winter campaign planned by the general council," concluded Dr. Graham, "embraces the following: Sept. 8 to 15, conferences; Sept. 15 to Oct. 4, special presbytery meetings; Oct. 4 to 18, prayer and devotion period; Oct. 19 to 20, conferences which have not previously met; Oct. 25 to Nov. 13, with Nov. 1, 8 and 15 as educational Sundays, inaugural inspirational gatherings to organize for the present task; No. 15 to 22, a simultaneous every-person canvass."

Mr. Millson followed with both dynamics and mechanics, pleading with the members of presbytery to take back the messages of the previous speakers to their individual congregations in order that the campaign may be successful.

"We must learn," asserted Mr. Millson, "that money has both a moral and a spiritual significance, and that God controls man's money."

"The London conference will be asked to raise $480,000 as its portion of the maintenance and extension fund," concluded Mr. Millson, "and that means about 25 per cent additional to what the churches in the conference have been giving."

The decision was then made by presbytery to appoint a five-man special committee of direction of the campaign to be assisted by the standing committees on the budget and church life and work. This committee will be named later after due consideration is given the names of the best men available for the undertaking.

"We are especially pledged to the young people because they stood by us so well," declared Dr. McIntosh "and we must put an extra foot forward to capture the future generation."

Committees Named.

Accordingly a committee was appointed on religious education to convene the young people of the presbytery and report at the next meeting, the following being named as the committee: Rev. John Richardson, B.A., Rev. M. C. Parr, Westminster, Dr. H. D. Taylor, Arthur Guymer, James M. Findlay and Dr. McIntosh, the latter being well known for his work amongst the young people of the farmer Presbyterian church.

The question of appointing a hospital chaplain to represent the presbytery in the hospitals of London, Byron and St. Thomas was referred to a committee to report at the next meeting, naming the man and fixing the salary to be paid, as follows: Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, Prof. W. J. Patterson, R. D. McDonald, William Heaman, Rev. C. S. Miller, L. R. Anderson and Dr. McIntosh.

Rev. M. C. Tait, Glencoe, introduced the report of the committee on boundaries of pastoral charges as it affected several circuits necessitating immediate action. The committee was empowered to visit different fields to make satisfactory arrangements, and to request grants from church maintenance funds to bring the salaries of ministers concerned up to the minimum standard.

In this connection the following congregations were dealt with by presbytery: Wellborn, Brown's and North Nissouri; Wardsville; Tait's Corners; Tempo, Payne's Mills, Frome and Delaware; Ailsa Craig. Permission was given the Ailsa Craig church to proceed with the sale of the former presbyterian manse there to the Carlyle continuing Presbyterians, an amicable arrangement having been arrived at between the interested parties.

The question of the future of the former Presbyterian mission at Chelsea Green was referred to the consideration of the boundaries committee with the suggestion that possibly that church might be linked up with Grace church.

Treasurer Chosen.

Rev. Wm. Conway, Lambeth, was chosen as treasurer of presbytery while Rev. John Richardson, B.A., London, was named temporary assistant secretary, the latter appointment to be made permanent later if presbytery deemed that Rev. H. B. Storey, London, requires assistance in carrying out the duties of secretary.

Nominations for representatives to be placed on the London conference settlement committee when that body meets the latter part of the month were made as follows: Rev. J. W. Hibbert, David Ross, Rev. A. E. M. Thomson and Dr McIntosh.

A special committee was appointed to confer with former Presbyterian charges within the presbytery desiring advice and assistance in placing problems in different localities before the provincial commission, as follows: F. W. Gladman, R. D. McDonald, Rev. George Gilmore, Payne's Mills, Rev. G. N. Hazen, D.D., Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, and Rev. I. H. McDonald, Ph.D., Kintore.

Charles MacPhee, Appin, and John Elliott, London, reported on behalf of the lay representatives to presbytery that 99 laymen had been chosen, together with 21 alternates, as delegates from Middlesex presbytery to the London conference, there being 99 ministers active and retired, in the 58 charges within the bounds of presbytery.

Dr. McIntosh, chairman, and Mr. Storey, secretary, were appointed a committee to make arrangements for inductions of ministers called to congregations in the presbytery between meetings of the court.

The finance committee was instructed to bring in a recommendation at the next meeting of presbytery as to the honorariums to be paid officials of the court.

Rev. Wm. Beattie, D.D., London, who was named convener of the finance committee, was empowered to borrow funds up to $100 for immediate needs of presbytery and to bring in a scheme for financing of presbytery at the next meeting.

Mr. Storey, secretary, was instructed to have the minutes of presbytery printed as soon as possible and a copy forwarded to each member of the court for perusal prior to the next meeting.

The standing budget committee of presbytery was named as follows: Rev. D. C. MacGregor, D.D., Rev. A. E. M. Thomson, Rev. Arthur Page (Belmont), Rev. H. B. Storey, George Stanley (Lucan), Wm. Heaman, David Ross and J. E. Campbell (Ilderton).

The standing missionary committee of presbytery was named as follows: Rev. G. N. Hazen, D.D., Rev. S. R. McVitty (Muncey), Rev. N. A. Campbell (Ilderton), Rev. John McKillop (Hyde Park), Frank McGregor, C. E. German, R. D. McDonald, D. MacKenzie (Hyde Park), Dr. H. D. Taylor.

The standing church life and work committee of presbytery was named as follows: Rev. C. S. Miller, M.A., Rev. G. K. Bradshaw, Rev. G. W. W. Rivers (Parkhill), Rev. George Gilmore (Payne's Mills), T. R. Wright, Rev. John Richardson, B.A., John A. Park, Peter Lindsay (Parkhill).

The date and place of the next meeting of presbytery was left with Dr. McIntosh, chairman, to be called at his discretion.

NEW WIRELESS SET INSTALLED

Use of Continuous Wave Transmitter Will Cut Out Interference With Radio.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, Sept. 4.—Installation of the continuous wave transmitter at the Marconi station at Point Edward is now completed and will be placed in operation after a few days' testing. Early next week it is expected that radio fans will hear the dot-dash-dot of the old spark equipment for the last time. Although several months ago the station moved up its wave length, there was still no effective way of cutting out interference. It may be that broad tuning sets will still get interference from the continuous wave equipment where receiving sets are very close to the station, but the wave length of 715 meters should enable a reasonably selective receiving equipment to cut out the wireless station's signals at any part of the broadcast band.

Mrs. Mary Flynn.

Mrs. Mary Flynn, widow of Patrick Flynn, and one of the oldest residents of Sombra township, died last night at the age of 84 years. She had been ill for a week. She had spent over 60 years in Sombra. She is survived by two sons, Bart of Sombra, Joseph of Highland Park, Mich., and one daughter, Mrs. C. G. Bosquett of Detroit. The funeral will be held from the residence of her son Bart, lot 9, concession 13, Sombra township, on Saturday, at 8:30 a.m., to St. Joseph's R. C. church, Sombra, with interment in the R. C. cemetery there.

Sentence Reserved.

William Timbers, a Sombra township farmer, was found guilty of assaulting Ernest P. Windover, son of the keeper of the first toll gate on the Sarnia-Florence highway, in County Magistrate C. S. Woodrow's court this afternoon. The magistrate reserved sentence.

One of the heaviest fogs of the season enveloped Lake Huron and surrounding country last night. Vessels found it impossible to make progress in the river, and 30 or more were anchored at various points along the St. Clair until the visibility cleared this morning.

HULL WOMAN IS HELD AFTER PECULIAR DEATH

Mrs. M. Paquette Apprehended When Poison Found in Dead Man's Stomach.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hull, Que., Sept. 4.—Following the death in a local hospital on Thursday morning, of William H. Martel, an Ottawa butcher, Mrs. M. Paquette was taken into custody today and is being detained in Hull jail on orders of Sheriff St. Pierre. A post-mortem examination of Martel's stomach, conducted by Dr. Wilfred Derome of Montreal, provincial medico-legal analyst, revealed, according to the authorities, the presence of paris green.

Martel, who, is it stated by police, has been living with Mrs. Paquette for a number of years, was taken ill on Wednesday, and upon his admittance to the hospital it was believed that he was suffering from poisoning. Upon his death Coroner Isabelle immediately communicated with Dr. Derome.

Coroner Isabelle refused to comment upon the case today until he received the report of Dr. Derome. "Mrs. Paquette is not under arrest," he said, "but is merely held as a material witness, in view of the unusual circumstances attending the death of the man with whom she was living."

Child, formerly Mrs. Bert Thompson, and Mrs. A. R. Brown, both of Toronto, while the great-grandmothers are Mrs. Thomas Thompson, Mrs. M. A. Miller, Mrs. Howard Williams of Toronto, and Mrs. W. R. Brown of Edmonton.

As if to equalize the generous supply of grandmothers, the baby has only one living grandfather.

Bronze Tablet Is Planned For Beck Memorial School

Trustees Favor Bronze Plaque in Memory of Late Statesman.

DISCUSSED BY BOARD

Memory of the late Sir Adam Beck will likely be perpetuated, not only in the name of the new east collegiate, but also by means of a bronze plaque, with suitable inscription. Discussing details of the interior construction of the new school, members of the school board's building committee yesterday afternoon spoke favorably of such a move.

Introduced by Chairman S. F. Lawrason upon receipt of an offer from a Toronto sculptor, the matter received some support, and L. E. Carrothers, architect, was asked to secure prices.

It is suggested by Chairman Lawrason that the figure of the late hydro chieftain should appear in bas relief. At any rate, it is likely that in building the collegiate a place will be set aside inside the entrance for which to erect a tablet, if the plaque is not secured while the school is being built.

The committee recommended against the wiring of the school for domestic science purposes. It is not the intention of the board to provide domestic science courses at the new institution, and no value was seen in wiring the school for possible use in the distant future.

Cottonseed Beef to Replace Meat

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Sept. 4.—That synthetic beefsteaks made from the cottonseed may some day be manufactured and sold to the public instead of the animal variety now purchased in the meat stores, was the startling statement made by Dr. Davis Wesson of New York, ex-president of the American institute of chemical engineers, addressing the Ottawa section of the society of chemical industry tonight. Dr. Wesson stated that recent investigations by the United States department of agriculture had shown that the protein of cottonseed closely resembles are protein of meat. It is only a question of time before the chemist will find out how to produce a meat substitute from the cottonseed.

WATERLOO ALL SET FOR JOHN F. HYLAN

Party Campaign Being Made To Make Presidency Secure For Smith.

By ROBERT T. SMALL.
(Copyright, 1925.)
New York, Sept. 4.—Mayor John F. Hylan and William Randolph Hearst are to be "eliminated" at the municipal primaries here next Tuesday week in order to "cement" the Democratic party in New York city and state behind Al Smith for president in 1928.
There no longer is an attempt to veil this issue. Workers in the anti-Hylan campaign are sending out the word to "stand by Al," and they are openly saying on the stump that if by an chance the mayor should be successful in his fight for renomination it would mean a divided state delegation at the next Democratic national convention. Such a delegation would mean the death of the Smith "boom." As a matter of fact, a Hylan success at the polls on the fifteenth would mark a defeat for the governor here in the Greater city, his stronghold, and virtually would mean his elimination as an aspirant for the party leadership in 1928.

SWEDEN'S GRAIN CROP MUCH LARGER, REPORT

High Quality Strengthens Move Against Importation of Flour.

By F. A. MacKENZIE.
Special Cable to The Alvertiser and The Chicago Daily News. Copyright.
Stockholm, Sept. 4.—The splendid Swedish crop this year and the high quality of the grain is strengthening the movement for discouraging importation of North American flour.
Akerlind, head of the Swedish Mills Association, declares the wheat crop is insufficient wholly to meet the home demand. Importation will still be necessary, he says, because Swedish wheat still needs mixing with the harder Canadian grain to improve its quality.

PEOPLE WERE POORER

But Says King Government Had Nothing To Do With Rise.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, Sept. 4.—Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance in the Conservative administration, in a statement issued tonight, sharply challenges the claim that the present dominion government is entitled to credit for the return to par of the Canadian dollar in New York.
"Different orators on behalf of the King government and its candidates, who are all the more qualified when they know nothing about the subject," declares Sir Henry, "make much of the return of the Canadian dollar to par on New York exchange all as a result of the wise policies of the King government.

Refutes Claims.

"No economist or international financier of standing has so far claimed any credit for the King administration. Every one with the slightest knowledge of the situation knows that the government not only has made no change whatever in the statutes relating to our currency or the gold reserve, but have, on the other hand, followed in so far as this one question is concerned, the practice of its predecessors."
Sir Henry recapitulates the situation as follows:
(1) The King government has not increased the value of the Canadian dollar on the international exchanges by any change in its character or value, and can claim no credit for any direct action raising the dollar's real value.
(2) The government have had nothing to do with the improvement in sterling exchange, with which the Canadian exchange always has been and still is, although to somewhat lesser degree, related.
(3) The government has not helped the exchange situation by tariff increases, which, to the extent purchases would be checked would decrease the demand for foreign currency and limit the amount of Canadian exchange available, thus materially improving the exchange market situation from the Canadian standpoint.

Succeed By Strangling.

(4) The government has, however, checked imports by strangling production. As a result, great reductions have been made in the importation of raw material, and many factory workers, as a consequence, have had to leave the country. Further, as a result of large reductions in the national payroll, and therein the purchasing power of the people, importation has fallen off. While the position of a people with a greatly-reduced purchasing power, with a scarcity of work and wages, is to be deplored, undoubtedly the standing of the Canadian dollar on the exchanges has improved with decreased importations into our country. The unfortunate thing is the cure is much worse than the disease. An active, fully-employed people, with a currency depreciated in the exchanges, but as good as ever at home, are much better off than those faced with unemployment and difficulty in living with a currency temporarily or even permanently at a premium.

FINAL WHEAT POOL PAY WILL BE ELEVEN CENTS

Canadian Press Despatch.

J. McPhail, president of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, the selling agency of the prairie wheat pools.

LONDONER OFFERS TO SOLVE CANCER

Master Key Which Will Unlock Many Mysteries Claimed by L. W. Hartmann.

The following letter advancing a remarkable claim in regard to nature's mysteries has been received by the Advertiser. The letter follows:

Editor, The London Advertiser.

Dear Sir.—Many years ago I discovered a master-key, by means of which I have been enabled to unlock the following puzzling mysteries:

The exact nature of electricity, magnetism, light, gravitation, matter, the force that drives the planets around their axes, the force that drives the planets around the sun, the source of the sun's heat, nebulas, comets, the origin of the universe, the origin of our solar system, the cause of the glacial periods of the earth, the exact cause of the tides, the mind, sleep, memory, Bode's Law, new properties of the ether, life, disease and death, other mysteries.

The lesson that I have learned through the discovery of this Master-Key was that the whole universe is but one structure, and that the foregoing are but a few of its many departments. True, each department has its own little lock of mystery, requiring its own peculiar, individual key for its unlocking, but, while it is true that such a key will unlock one department, there is the one that I have discovered that will unlock all of them.

This master-key is in my hands.

For Average Mind.

This master-key will unlock the above-mentioned mysteries in such a way that a man of average intelligence will have no difficulty in forming mental pictures of their true natures, no mythical formulas or mathematical symbols being required.

Now, as I am anxious to prove the purity of the substance of which this master-key is made, I would like to submit it to the acid-test of experiment, and with this in view I have selected one of the above-mentioned subjects, viz., the nature of diseases, and from the latter I have picked out one in which the whole world is interested on account of its virulence and the rapidity with which it is increasing; a disease that has baffled the skill of the most eminent doctors throughout the entire world, and which takes an annual toll of nearly one hundred thousand human lives in the United States alone: the dreaded cancer.

The acid-test of my experiment is this: My master-key must explain the exact nature and the exact cause of cancer in such a manner that it will leave no lingering doubts in the minds of the examining committee. More than this. It must enable the examining committee to develop cancer in animals should the committee so desire it. Finally, my master-key must furnish a cure for cancer. This, I believe, will be a fairly severe test, the more so since no medical man has so far been able to even hint at the nature and the cause of cancer, let alone furnish a cure.

Not One Test.

But, please do not mistake my intention. It is not my aim to build all my hopes upon this solitary test. Far from it, I selected this form of test because I thought it to be the most convincing, and, rest assured that, after I shall have disposed of cancer, I shall tackle the other subjects enumerated in paragraph two.

But, in order to enable you to form an adequate idea of the thoroughness with which I intend to deal with the subject of cancer I am going to show here several questions which I have copied from various magazines and newspapers. These questions I honestly believe cover the whole subject of cancer, and it is these questions, every one of them, that my Master-Key answers with an unerring accuracy. The questions are as follows:

What is the cause of cancer? (Positively not a germ.)

What is its nature?

Why is cancer for the most part dependent upon civilization, inasmuch as it is rarely found amongst primitive, uncivilized races?

Why does a clay pipe cause cancer of the lip; also, why do non-smokers develop cancer of the lip? Again, why does cancer nearly always develop on the under lip and very rarely on the upper lip?

What causes cancer of the throat?

What causes cancer of the tongue or cheek?

Cancer in Cattle.

What causes the horn-core cancer in the cattle of India that pull their loads by means of a rope passed through holes bored in the roots of the horns?

What causes cancer of the face?

In Kurdistan, India, where the natives wear Kangri baskets filled with hot coals across the lower abdomen to protect themselves from cold, they develop cancers of the lower abdomen and groin. Such cancers are extremely rare among other people. Explain the cause of such cancers.

Why is there in the beginning of cancer a small spot or lump in the breast

Medical missionaries agree that cancer does exist among savages. Why?

Cancer nearly always develops in persons who are more than forty years of age. Why?

Those who did much work with the Roentgen ray frequently suffered from cancer of the hands. Why?

Cancer of the hands and forearms is very prevalent among men employed in tar works and paraffin works. The same applies to the hands of chimney-sweeps. Explain why.

Cancer attacks with equal frequency those who are strong and healthy and who have never suffered from any other disease. Why?

What are "cancer houses"? What are "cancer villages"?

According to Dr. Osler in his Modern Medicine, Vol. 3, page 199, about one-half of all cancers arise in the stomach, and cancer of the intestinal tract, as a whole, forms 75 to 85 per cent of all cancers. Why?

What is the cause of cancer of the large intestine?

What is the cause of cancer of the gall bladder?

What is the cause of cancer in the other inner organs?

Why is cancer rapidly increasing?

And now, Mr. Editor, I would like to read a paper on the nature and the cause of cancer before a committee appointed by the medical fraternity of London, leaving the paper on the cure of cancer for a later date. As regards the date and the place, I shall leave this in the hands of the committee. I remain, sir.

Yours very truly,
L. W. HARTMAN.

COMING TO LOEW'S.
Priscilla Dean as a young female Robin Hood in The Crimson Runner, at Loew's on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

GLORIA SWANSON'S LATEST AT LOEW'S

The Coast of Folly Takes Its Place With Leaders of Year.

The Coast of Folly, Gloria Swanson's latest starring picture for Paramount, which will be the feature at Loew's Thursday, Friday and Saturday next, has an American background of the aristocracy of wealth as best exemplified in the exclusive orbit of Palm Beach, the "coast of folly," and New York.

In the prologue to The Coast of Folly, Nadine Gathway, a young, beautiful and tempestuous girl, is married to a middle-aged millionaire who is prosy and narrow by nature. Bored by the dull rigidity of her married life she deserts him and her baby, faring forth in the world to seek the romance her heart craves.

But mother love triumphs in the end. Years later after a colorful career, she is drawn irresistibly to her daughter when the latter becomes involved in a difficulty.

Miss Swanson portrays Nadine Gathway, and also Joyce Gathway, the daughter. She brings a dramatic finesse that is fairly genius into the characterizations.

True to life, the husband passes into the discard. How his wife finds happiness eventually on the very brink of destruction is a powerful theme of the story.

Allan Dwan, who directed Gloria in Manhandled, Her Love Story, and Wages of Virtue, produced the story from Forrest Halsey's adaptation of the novel by Coningsby Dawson.

JURY FINDS GIRL'S DEATH WAS DUE TO ENDOCARDITIS

Swift Current, Sask., Sept. 4. — A jury inquiring into the death of Marie Miller, who died in the general hospital here on August 29, yesterday brought in a verdict of death due to endocarditis, caused by infection.

Testimony of several medical men was taken.

The preliminary hearing of Lyal Leaf, charged with manslaughter in connection with the girl's death, has been set for September 10. Legal men here state that this marks the first time that a man has been charged with manslaughter in a case of this kind.

CANADA'S FIRE LOSSES.

Toronto, Sept. 4.—Fire losses in Canada during the week ended Sept. 2, are estimated by the Monetary Times at $262,500, compared with $718,500 the previous week, and with $1,052,211 the corresponding week of last year.

PRISCILLA DEAN IS AT LOEW'S MONDAY

The Crimson Runner Is Filled With Heart Throbs and Joy.

Those who like their dramas served with action bubbling over on every side and vivacity sparkling all about have but to go to Loew's theatre on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday to have their appetites in this direction fully and pleasingly satisfied.

"The Crimson Runner," featuring Priscilla Dean, is a daring, vital story of a young Apache girl whom poverty and oppression turned into a female Robin Hood who, under a clever disguise and with the aid of her crafty henchmen, robbed the rich that the poor might eat.

The action of the story takes place in post-war Vienna at the time when this chaotic cosmopolitan city was being torn with the anguish born of a bitter struggle between a freedom crazed proletariat and a proud, cruel aristocracy. The story attains a realism which may be attributed not alone to the splendid portrayal of Miss Dean and her supporting cast, nor yet entirely to the fact that the author knew intimately the life which he portrays, but also to the unusual fidelity to detail for which credit goes to Count Maxime St. Hilaire, who acted as special technical director.

The story is a rich romantic melodrama with dozens of unique twists and delicate touches. Forced by a brutal landlord to rob the rich, Blanca Schreber determines to assume the role of a female Robin Hood and make life liveable for the poor with whom she has always lived. Gathering around her a band of daring Apaches, she assumes the title of The Crimson Runner, and proceeds to plunder the homes of the aristocracy to buy bread for the poor.

With the police hot on her trail she seeks refuge in the house of a count whom she had saved but a few days before when he was visiting in the Cafe Simplicissimus.

Miss Dean, as the daring Apache leader who courted death and wooed danger, gives a performance that can honestly be termed throbbing. Provided with a splendid story she attains great emotional heights such as we have seldom seen reached on the screen. And she is fortunate, indeed, in being supported by an unusually capable cast which includes: Taylor Holmes, Ward Crane, Alan Hale, Mitchell Lewis, James Neill, Charles Mailes and Bernard Siegel.

MUSICAL TREAT SURE WITH VISIT OF SOUSA

Famous Bandsman Booked To Play Here During Western Fair.

Undoubtedly the finest musical attraction booked for London during the coming season is the Sousa band concert which is to be given in the Arena on Friday evening, September 18. It will be a memorable occasion and an opportunity not to be overlooked. The evening is the second last of the Western Fair, and Londoners will do well to obtain seats as soon as the sale opens on September 14 at Strong's drug store, in order to avoid disappointment. The prices are within the reach of all. Lower floor chairs are to be $1.50 including tax, and the side chairs are to be $1 including tax.

Canada, and particularly London, has an unusual interest in the Sousa organization. Sousa's harpist, Miss Winnifred Bambrick, is a Canadian girl who began her musical career in Ottawa. One of the flautists is Jack Petrie, of 421 Simcoe street, this city, who is at present visiting his home. Among the other artists are dozens well known to Canadian music-lovers.

There is only one Sousa, and there is no post of assistant conductor in his band. Sousa himself conducts every concert from beginning to end, and he puts big value into a concert of two hours and thirty minutes. He never sits down on the stage, and he never leaves it, except at intermission, from the beginning to the end of the concert. He is a human dynamo.
