LIFE OF GLADSTONE.

New York, Oct. 10.-The biography

Mr. Morley's Biography of the Great Statesman.

of William Ewart Gladstone, upon which John Morley has been at work for several years past, will be published to-morrow by the Macmillan Company. Being the record of the life of a man who aided in shaping the destinies of Britain for two score years, it is really the history of an important part of the Victorian era, and contains much as to the man and the events of his time that is new. The author had possession of the letters and papers of the statesman, including a curious diary, and many extracts from them are published for the first time. They give an intimate view of several of the great crises through which England passed while Gladstone was a member or the leader of the Government, and nearly all of them will prove of great historical important events dealt with are the Trent affair, the battle of Majuba Hill, the decisive battle in the Boer war of 1881, the fall of Khartum and the death of Gordon, and the great struggle for household suffrage in 1867. pany. Magnificent Business Built Up by A. H. Patterson, Chatham's Energetic Merchant

The Splendid Stock His House Carries—A Memorable Exhibit at the Big Peninsular

Visitors to the recent big Peninsula Exposition held in the Maple City were unitedly enthusiastic over the magnificent exhibit of A. H. Pat terson, the well-known, esteemed and enterprising hardware merchant.

Mr. Patterson's exhibit was one of the finest on the grounds and many were the warm words of praise which fell from the lips of all inspecting visitors: Although he did not show for any prize his goods made a markedly favorable impression and vere universally admired.

Mr. Patterson has had much experience in the United States in the machine line, having travelled for three years in California and the West, and has now worked up a very-large trade in Chatham in hardware, machinery, tinsmithing, and plumb-ing. He is a consistent, up-to-date ing. He is a consistent, up-to-date and entertaining advertiser and since starting here has established a record for large and growing business. He has moved his two stores into one large one, where the visitor is always courteously received and most welcome. No intending purchaser should miss Mr. Patterson's fine establishment.

A. H. PATTERSON The Energetic and Popular King St Hardware Merchant.

Perhaps no better evidence of the extensive and cosmopolitan business so successfully carried on by Mr. Patterson is needed than was evidenced by his splendid and varied exhibit at the Fair, before alluded to.

In the centre of the main building was the dairy exhibit, a wonderfully complete and interesting feature. In this miniature dairy the cream was being separated from the milk under a Babcock Chester separator run by a gasoline engine. Information was supplied free of charge and interesting experiements explained to threngs of visitors by George R. Petrie, of the Ontario dairy schools, whe was in charge of this portion

In the first tent were a series of spleadidly built buggies and cutters, the product of the Canadian carriage factory. These met with such marked favor that Mr. Patterson sold his entire exhibit.

In the tent adjoining were the Perrin salky ploughs, of which sight were sold during the first afternoon; the Woodstock wagons, the Avary corn planters. of London, Ont., and the Lamb fence. They manufacture besides, a lawn and ornamental fence and gates of all kinds.

Mr. Patterson's magnificent exhibit proclaimed his stock as one of the finest and most perfect in the west, which accounts for the marvellous success which has characterized the business of this leading and enterprising Maple City merchant.

NEW YORK FLOODED.

SIX AND A QUARTER INCHES IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

Railroads and Trolley Lines Crippled -Freight Yard Under Twelve Feet of Water-Storms Else

.ew York, Oct. 10.-After 24 hours of heavy rain New York City and vicinity has suffered from severe Six and 24-100 inches of rain had fallen in 24 hours, and by late afternoon the fall had been increased to 9.90 inches. Trollty lines and railroads were either crippled or delayed, and in New York City a conduit containing seventy telegraph wires was so flooded as to disable all the wires.

A heavy flood in the Bronx damaged teveral packing houses, and a portion of the freight yard of the New York Central Railroad was covered by welve feet of water. A watchman who had sought refuge on the top of a caf was rescued.

car was rescued. From all parts of the city came teports of flooded cellars, flooded sewers and impassable gutters. Along the North River from cellars were also flooded, and in some instances a heavy loss on goods is reported. It is impossible to estimate the amount of the damage until the cellars have been pumped out.

loss on goods is reported. It is impossible to estimate the amount of the damage until the cellars have been pumped out.

West street, in front of the Jersey City and Hoboken Ferres, was flooded and passengers were carried across it in drays, and groders, waggons.

Trolley traffic at St. George, Staten Island, was completely tied up by a rush of water over the tracks between Stapleton and St. George.

Thousands were imable to reach the places of business owing to the washouts and landslides on the railroads and trolley lines in New Jersey, Long Island and West Chester County. Passengers were forced to remain in the stalled trains for many hours, the overflowing streams making roads impassable for vehicles. A heavy wind accompanied the storm, and telegraph wires were blown down.

Local Forecast Officer Emery said that he believed this was a record rainfall. The highest previous record he could discover occurred September 23, 1882, when six and 17-100 inches of rain fell in 24 hours.

The water was two feet deep in South street, at the New York side of the Fulton street Brooklyn ferry. Passengers arriving on the ferry boats waded through the water up to their knees until the dealers in the Fulton Market used large boxes to build a bridge across the street. The bridge blocked the street for truck traffic, but a section of the bridge had to be removed every few minutes to admit the passage of street cars.

Nassau street between Wall and Pine streets was closed on account of a washout in the middle of the street. Pedestrians waded through a foot of water. The sidewalk at the corner of the Sub-Treasury building was undermined.

Middleton, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Great loss of property has resulted from threngs, of visitors by George R. Petrie, of the Ontario dairy schools, who was in charge of this sportion of Mr. Patterson's exhibit. A test of the Babcock showed a perfect clean skimming of five gallons of milk.

The Magnet cream separator was also shown by Mr. Patterson. This separator was awarded first prize at Halifax, N. S., and Mr. Patterson received a telegram during the exhibition that it had also been awarded first prize at Fredericton, N. B., over the National, Maloth and Empire. The harness exhibit evidenced another of Mr. Patterson's triumphs. Last year he won three firsts jout of five and was consequently not allowed to show this year or was assured he could have done better. The magnificent specimens of harness shown sold at $85 to $185 respectively for the various sets.

In stoves and ranges the exhibit of this enterprising house was unsurpassed. All the fine stoves of the Clair Bross and James Stewart, of Woodstock, were shown. Their Peninsula ranges are guaranteed to be the best and attracted much attention.

In furs Mr. Patterson showed a handsome and complete line. Furlined coon and calf coats and all kinds of robes and blankets up to $125, were among the good things shown.

Mr. Patterson also had the largest furnace on exhibition, the Hecla. He sold one of these to Theodore Bourassa, who has installed it for heating the Grand Central Hotel. It is modern and up-to-date in every particular.

Mr. Patterson's outside exhibit was even greater and more varied than charged the sold when the store of the Sub-Treasury building was undermined.

USUAL SUCCESS

Splendid Concert Presented Under their Auspices in Aid of General Hospital.

Series of Delightful Tableaux Produced with an Enjoyable Musical Program.

That the people of Chatham appretate the noble work which is being lone by the Public General Hospital was plainly evidenced by the large crowd which attended the concert given by the Ladies' Assisting Society n the Grand Opera House last even ing. The house was packed to the doors before the performance comnenced, and the late-comers were forced to content themselves with standing room.

The performance was a unique one and the decided change from the general concert proved a relief and a great success. The ladies of the Hospital are to be congratulated upon their success.

They are a noble band of women engaged in a most praiseworthy cause and their splendid efforts should be encouraged in every way possible. The proceeds of the evening will be devoted to building a new ward in the Hospital, and it is thought that the money taken in will clear this expenditure. The ladies themselves feel very highly pleased that their end was accomplished and are very thankful to all who assisted in making the affair a success.

The performance itself was interesting and amusing. A number of living pictures were exhibited, illustrating the businesses of the different merchants in town. These tableaux were very prettily gotten up and were demonstrated by a number of Chatham's fairest young ladies. The stage setting was very appropri-ate, and the tableaux were exhibited ate, and the tableaux were exhibited in a large picture frame.

The ladies who composed the different pictures were Misses Beatr.ce Ermatinger. Dot Atkinson, Al ce Greening, Jessie Harper, L. Greening, R. Forsythe, Mary McKeough, Marion Gemmill, Verna Heyward, F. Kemp, Susie Taylor, Courteaux, June Ciark, M. Terry, Amy Beles, Edna Denniz, Helen Rispin, Edith Hall, Best and Keough, Fanny Campbell, Bessie Brackin. Edith Ball, Nan Battisby, Aggie Phillimore, Nan Bogart, Edith Dolsen, Jessie Gemmill, Marion Fleming, Gertie Tighe, Edith Holmes and Dolsen. Jessie Gemmill, Marion Fleming, Gertie Tighe, Edith Holmes and Meta Wilson.

Those who assisted were,—Messrs. James S. Gray, W. E. Rispin, Harry Northwood, P. S. Coate and Wm. Hidley. Between each tableau Walter Scane gave a humorous piece of poetry, bearing upon the scene given.

During the intervals between the tableaux musical selections were given by local artists.

tableaux musical selections were given by local artists.

Miss Flossie Bogart opened with an instrumental solo. Miss Bogart, who is organiste in Christ Church, is a little favorite wherever she plays, and her selection was one of the treats of the evening.

Miss Lucy McKellar, soprano soloist of Christ Church, gave a very pleasing number, and Miss H. Edythe Hill, mezzo-contralto soloist and director of the Park St. choir, gave an excellent number, "Springtide." Miss Hill has a magnificent voice, well cultured, and her singing was what migh' be anticipated from a finished tured, and her singing was what might be anticipated from a finished artist.

Miss Edna Martin, mezzo-contralto, made a great success in her dual number, "The Nightingale Song" and "The Rosary." Miss Martin is a comparatively new singer to many in the Maple City, owing to the fact that she has just recently returned from completing her vocal studies under some of the most eminent masters in metropolitan cities. Her singing last evening was a revelation to all. She is possessed of a splendid voice and is well deserving of a prominent place among Chatham's sweetest singers.

Miss Edith Dolsen, who is not to the same degree a new singer in Chatham, showed last evening that she was capable of appearing before any Maple City audience no matter how critical. No one is more deserving of a higher position as one of Chatham's leading sopranos than is Miss Dolsen. She is one of the few singers in Chatham who can completely fill the Opera House with her voice. Her high notes are superb, rich and full, while she descends into the notes of her lower register with captivating grace and ease. Her stage appearance wins the audience before she utters a tone, and her splendid voice holds that interest and attention until the conclusion of her numbers. Her number last evening "A Fairy Love Song," is perfectly adapted to bring forth the beautiful qualities of her voice.

"Love's Coronation," received a perfect interpretation from Miss Ada Ross, contralto. No amount of praise is necessary to describe Miss Ross' singing to Chatham critics. They have all heard her and they all thoroughly enjoy her numbers. If a critic wished to give the impression that any concert was a success it it would merely be necessary to say "Miss Ross sang."

Claire Monteith, baritone, was the favorite gentleman performer on the program. He appeared several times and scored a success each time.

Other numbers on the program were a duet by Miss Hill and W. Brackin, a selection from the St.Andrew's male quartette, and a song by W. Brackin. Miss Lillian Pratt, the 'Maple City's accomplished pianiste, acted as the accompaniste of the evening.

While all of the 'Iadies of the Assisting Society deserve credit for the concert, more special praise should be given to Mrs. W. J. Taylor, Mrs. W. E. Rispin, Mrs. W. Taylor, Mrs. Genn, Mrs. Kingsmill, Mrs. Walter Scane and Miss McKeough. These ladies practically managed the entertainment and great credit is due them.

NEW ROAD

Radial Railway Directors Looking over the Proposed Route-Their Plans.

N. H. Stevens, W. N. Warburton, Mr. McKendry and Mr. Denton, the directors of the Kent Radial Railway, drove over the proposed route of the road through Dover. They concession, then across to the Bearline and out the Bearline as far as ex-Warden Frank Rankin's place. The directors, however, consider that the best route for the road would be direct from Chatham out to Dresden by the townline. They would then run a branch line to Mitchell's Bay and another to Pain Court. The directors drove south this afternoon to Blenheim and Cedar Springs. If the people in the townships only take an interest in the road there will be no difficulty in getting it completed. The New York capitalists say that if the people show they are supporting it and the municipalities are liberal, then they will be assured that the road is needed and will have no hesitation in putting their money into it. If there isn't too much delay and the councils act quickly, the road will be in operation by next September. directors drove south this afternoon

FRED TRUDELL HURT

Fred. Trudell, of The 2 T's, had a very narrow escape yesterday at Blenheim Fair. He was inspecting the team of carriage horses belonging to Robert McNaughton, Harwich, when one of the horses kicked. The tug snapped and flew up and struck Mr. Trudell in the face. It was for-tunate indeed that the horse's foot tunate indeed that the horse's foot struck the trace, as otherwise Mr. Trudell would have received the full force of the blow in the stomach. The tug was cut just as clean as if it had been done with a knife. Mr. Trudell received a very hasty and painful wound just below the eye. Mr. McNaughton has a very handsome team. They took first prize at the Chatham Fair.

Theatre goers at large will no doubt be glad to hear that our old friend, the funny tramp, Horatio Irving Booth, will stop in his pereginations and lay over for a rest, the freight car in which he travels being "Side Tracked."

The play is well known as a good, sensational comedy, chuck full of fun, fire and ginger. The play has been rewritten and strengthened, is being played with a fine cast composed of well known and fully proficient actors, and is making a hit this season greater than ever. The plot, while not deep, is thrillingly interesting and serves to amuse and entertain, as it shows the true inwardness of certain hypocritical human beings, and the innate nobility of character of one of the "genus homo," called a tramp proving the truth axioms: "It is not the clothes that makes the man," and "A ragged coat may cover an honest heart?"

afterward, awakened him, unharmed and as natural as ever. The man was placed in a show window where he was viewed by thousands of people. Mr. Pauline demonstrated his power over the subject by causing him to lie down, rise up and turn over just as he willed. This he would do while standing on the sidewalk outside the building. To better illustrate the power of hypnotism. Pauline invited anyone to awaken the subject. A great many tried with no effect. As hard as it is to believe such a thing, we must eitherconfess that it is so or our eyes are say that our people are interested would be putting it mildly." He will appear at the Opera House here all next week.

MUNYON'S GREAT WORK

PURITY. LAGER BEER

The Beer That is Brewed in Glass

We use the mechanical refrigeration (ice machines) instead of natural ice for oling both the beer and our cellars because it is the only sanitary method and mperatures are controlled with absolute certainty, enabling a brewer to produc t better beer. We have duplicate refrigeratoring machines to provide against injury to to on account of improper refrigeration, arising from accident to machinery.

We do not manufacture ice and cool with it but we remove the heat from rooms thereby producing cold.

The natural ice method is antiquated and unsanitary.

All things being equal, a home industry is entitled in preference but in brewith investment required to produce a reasonably perfect beer is so large that but f will undertake it providing their intention is to furnish a PUPE, WHOLESOM A properly constructed and equipmed what is the limit of the pure in the puper is the providing their intention.

and PROPERLY AGED BEER.

A properly constructed and equipped plant can hardly be constructed, equipped and operated on an investment of less than $75,000.

We use large necked bottles to permit of cleaning properly. It is almost in possible to throughly cleanse a small necked bottle and if not cleansed the beer is sure to become infected and promaine poisoning follows.

Lager beer that is too young or improperly finished will produce bowel troubles, but the expense and risk in carrying beer to a proper age causes many to dodge it and let the consumer pay the penalty.

We have storage capacity for over 200,000 gallons of Lager, Ale and Porter in bulk, exclusive cf our bottle sterage cellars, and ship only thoroughly matured goods.

International Bible Less for To-Morrow-God's covenant with David-II. Sam., vii., 16.

Golden Text-"Thy throne shall be stablished for ever."

The sacred Ark of God was once more in the holy place and all the emblematic worship of Jehovah, as ordained of God on Mount Smai, again installed in a tabernacle within the Holy City. That David dwelt in a palace while God's Ark was under canvas, was God-di'honoring and control of the cont grieved David's heart. He suggests to grieved David's heart. He suggests to Nathan, the prophet, the building of a temple to the Most High. Nathan seconds his 'desire, but that same night God corrects their good intentions, revealing His own with and way. God begins by recounting His sojourn with Israel in the desert and be reminding David of his former humble position as shepherd, yet guided, preserved and chosen as ruler and king, given victory over his enemies and served and chosen as ruler and king, given victory over his enemies and establishing the nation in peace. Then He covenants with David—as if to reward his good intention—that his throne would be established for over. David was a man of war; Solomon, his son, was to be a man of peace—types of the church militant and the church triumphant. Solomon's reign was a type of the peaceful, universal reign of our Lord Jesus Christ. The sceptre departed from Judah when (Shilo) Jesus came, but it remains: (Shilo) Jesus came, but it remains :n the hands of Him who triumphed over death and hell, entering into the glory as our Great High Priest, to come again as David's Greater Son — "a greater than Solomon is hers" — and whose kingdom shall have no end. To whose kingdom shall have no end. To have an endless kingdom we must have an eternal king, and for us to enjoy that glorious kingdom we must have eternal life, becoming heirs of God and joint heirs of Jesus Christ. Have we the wisdom to surrender to the One who died to redeem us and lives to foregive, receive and save us

CHAPTER VI.

Madeline's Warning. The next day, Madeline was well enough to sit up in a cosy little room adjoining her bedchamber. There was, indeed, no reason she should not have gone downstairs, but this she seemed strangely reluct ant to do. She looked even more beautiful than she had been before her illness.

Her paleness made her eyes seem farger and darker.

There was a softened, chastened fook on her face, which became it well, and made Marjorie's heart go out towards her with added tenderness.

The two girls were alone togethen during the earlier part of the day. Marjorie thought Madeline seemed sad, and wondered why. In her heart she suspected that the cadness had some reference to Edgar

"Marjorie, when did Mrs. Thornton say she should return to England?" asked Madeline, breaking a rather long silence, during which she had seemed sunk in painful thought .-- Mrs. Thorn ton was the lady who had engaged Marjorie as a companion.

"In a month from now." "Marjorie, come here, I want you." And, with an appealing gesture, she showed that she wished her to come and kneel beside her chair.

Marjorie obeyed with a tender smile Madeline took the fair young face in both of her hands, and looked at it with a long, loving, wistful glance, "Marjorie, I think you know I love

So earnestly she spoke, with such a sad, gentle pathos, that involuntarily the tears started to Marjorie's eyes.
"Yes, Madeline, I know that. How, could I help knowing it?" "And you love me?"

"I do-indeed I do." "Then, if I ask you to do a very strange thing-what you must needs think strange—you will not misunder-stand me? You will not doubt my love for you?"

"Dear Madeline, you know I should never do that." And Marjorie pressed more closely to her friend. "Well, Marjorie, I want to suggest mething to you which I believe will be for your good and mine. As soon as Mrs. Thornton returns to England go to her.'

Marjorie could not repress her sur-

"And leave you?" she exclaimed, fooking up at Madeline with startled, wide-open eyes.

"Yes, and leave me," replied Made. fine, steadily, though in a tone of un-utterable mournfulness. "Don't ask me the reason, Marjorie-only believe that I am acting for the best."
"What can be the reason?" though

Marjorie; and then a suspicion leapt into her mind which made her cheeks burn, and her eyes droop hurriedly beneath her friend's glance.

She remembered the unwelcome attention of Edgar Hyde; the admiration which shone boldly in his glance whenever it fell on her.

Had Madeline got some knowledge of these things, even in the confine ment of her bedchamber, and was this why she wanted her to go away?

Her suspicion was confirmed when, only a few minutes later, Madeline began to speak of him. "I thing you must have guessed what he is to me, Marjorie," she said, in a low voice, and glancing down at a magnificent diamond ring she wore on "I have guessed you were engaged to him-yes.

"Marjorie, you don't know-you can't dream how I love that man!"! Madeline spoke with sudden energy. Her pale cheeks glowed. She interlaced her fingers in a list-fess fashion, which showed plainly enough the agitation of her mind.

Marjorie knew not what to say. She sat in silence, making no answer beyond a gentle caress with her hand.
"To some women love comes only as a curse—a bitter curse," went on Madeline, vehemently, while the red spot glowed more brightly in her cheek. "It has come so to me." "Oh, no, Madeline! Surely—surely "It has. It is my curse and punishment that I love Edgar Hyde with a mad, blind love for which I am ready to sacrifice myself, body and soul."

"Punishment, Madeline!" echoed

Marjorie, in surprise. "Punishment for what?"

Madeline did not answer the question. She played with her fingers more restlessly than ever, and proceeded, in a low tone, more as though she were speaking to herself than to Marjorie-"Great heavens! how I love him! When I think of the depth and passion of it, it frightens me. I am frightened at myself—at my own heart. Oh, the misery—the misery of such a love!"

"Dear Madeline, surely he loves you, too?" Marjorie ventured.

Vallaceburg People Were Jubi lant Till they Saw the Con-tents of the Package.

Fred Brisco, manager of the Grand, was a tired boy Wednesday evening and went to Wallaceburg. His exciting experiences were many and he ad not a few mishaps. As has been before stated, he was Fred, came to, asked where he was, and in great excitement tugged at the bell rope until Conductor Pierce stopped the train a few miles past the Burg to see what was up.

He was repaid for all this, though, for when he arrived in the Burghe was accorded an ovation which would have made King Ed. feel happy. The bundle he had under his arm seemed to attract even more attention than he did.

Fred. didn't know what to make of it, but is said to have grasped the situation and explained away the burgers, suspicious that he had the Gray cup with him.

Board Discuss Apportionment of Their

Toronto, Oct. 101 - The Board of Missions of the Church of England spent yesterday discussing the apportionment of the funds which will be at their disposal this year. They started to raise $75,000, and the receipts have been so large that it is comfidently expected that the full amount will be in hand before the end of the year. The scheme has worked out so well in this, its first year that it is probable that a larger amount will be aimed at next year for the purposes of missions. There was considerable discussion over the matter, and Hon. S. H. Blake, the coadutor Bishop of Rupert's Land, Provost Macklem, C. A. Eliot, Matthew Wilson and Rev. Dr. Tucker were appointed a sub-committee to go through the claims of the western Bishops, and make out the apportionment for the England spent yesterday discussmake out the apportionment for the coming year. The report, which showed an advance all along the line, was adopted. It was decided in connection with the apportionment to prepare a schedule in order to secure uniformity in claims and results.

Pierson, a graduate of Prof. Meyer. Germany, rendered several solos in an exquisite manner. Miss Mabel Tripp, of Dawn, sang in her usual sweet style, the orchestra gave several selections and the male quartette ably assisted. W. J. There is no time to lose if we hope to consolidate the empire into an economic whole and make pire into an economic whole and make each part supplement the others in a self-sufficing unity. Mr. Chamberlain does not disparage the sentimental tie. No colony will secede from the empire becuse it does not get preferential treatment. The danger is more subtle. HANGING THE PUMPKIN.

A Painting That Raised a Storm In the Paris Salon

It is the duty of Louis Pretet, official ire hanger of the Societe des Ar-Francais, to distribute the can-which annually comprise the salon throughout the rooms of alais des Beaux Arts. The jurors then summoned to examine his and commend or condemn, as see fit. The artists are at liberty appeal to the jurors, and an influenal artist can make trouble for the pic-ure hanger. The Paris correspondent f the New York Tribune tells this tory of Vollon, one of the most famous living painters of still life:

Vollon had painted what he considered as his masterpiece, a luxurious pumpkin, orange in color and heroic in tural show. The jurors did not approve Pretet's choice of a place for it.

A second choice also was found for it and condemned.

By this time the legend of the pumpkin was being repeated in all the studios of Paris, and the leading artists began to look in at the salon to make sure that their exhibits were not being injured by an unfortunate contrast. Bouguereau nearly fainted with horror on seeing the pumpkin not far from his pictures. "Take it away at once!" he commanded. "It kills my little pink and white nymphs." So the pumpkin was removed. But here Cormon objected. "It shall not stay in the same room with my pictures!" he declared. "It makes my tions and bears and tigers look like tame cats."

Tattegrain was the next to cry out. "Not near me! What becomes of the martial spirit of my canvases and what is the use of exhibiting starving garricons with that large pumpkin next so the unfortunate painting was fted about till it had passed through ten rooms, and not a member of the iete des Artistes Français would rate its presence. Finally Pretet iced the pumpkin in the entrance hall, officially termed "Salle d'Hon-neur" and popularly nicknamed the Chamber of Horrors. Vollon has been is mortal enemy ever since.

Fog Flant's Virtues.
Fog fruit is the old name of a remarkable plant that is being distributed throughout the west through the enthusiastic agency of the Arizona experiment station. This plant may have taken its name from the fact that it can list with the minimum amount of m sture. In any event this charac-teristic constitutes its chief value. It is not advocated as a forage plant, as an-imals do not like it, but its drought resisting qualities and endurance render it of exceptional value in the semiarid western states as a soil binder. During the summer of last year a growth of fog fruit successfully maintained itself on an Arizona mesa for eight months with less than two inches of rainfall. As a lawn plant, where the usual grasses can only be grown with great difficuity, the fog fruit is a very desirable substitute. It maintains a compact mass of green foliage interspersed with small purple and white flowers, giving it the general appearance of a clover lawn. The fact that it does not require constant applications of the lawn mower to keep it in presentable condition is another valuable characteristic of the plant. Chief of all, however, are its seil binding properties, and for prevent-ing the washing of reservoir and storm water embankments in dry regions it

One can the better realize what are luxuries of the table in the valley of the Yukon by reading Mrs. Sullivan's book, "A Woman Who Went to Alaska." It was on the way down the river from Dawson that her party came upon the first vegetable gardens.

"The river banks were lined with ca-oes; many natives stood looking at us from the shore, and while stevedores handled the wood many passengers wisited the town. It was not long before they came back with handfuls of turnips, just pulled from the ground, which had these been the most lus-dous fruit, could not have been eaten with more relieb with more relish.

"I tried to buy ene from a young man, but he had evidently been long away from such luxuries, for he refused to sell. Afterward his gallantry got the better of, him, and he politely offered me one-half of the turnip, which I took with thanks.

"As my brother peeled the precious thing I asked him how long it was not he had eaten one. "Two years," Knowing that he was especially fond such things, I ate a small slice and we him the remainder."

Men soon forget the pretty compliments paid them by women.

What does it profit a woman if she gain the whole world of knowledge and lose her own health? Young women students, and school teachers, eager, ambitious, and full or energy, vory often neglect their health in the struggle to gain education. They eat insufficient food, and at irregular hours, they allow irregularity of the womanly functions to be established, and the result is that they become chronic invalids with all their education practically worthless. There is a plain road back to health for such as these, marked by the feet of thousands. It is the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive organs, and Dr. Pierce's Pavorite Prescription for diseases of the delicate organs of womanhood. A cure so certainly follows the use of thousands who have tried the treatment, ninety-eight in every hundred have been perfectly and permanently cured. Constipation, with its calamitous consequences, which is a common ailment of students, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

French Decorations.

The popular impression is that the Legion of Honor is the only French decoration, but that is not at all the case. France possesses orders guite as ancient as those of most countries, though the oldest of them, St. Esprit, St. Michel, St. Louis and St. Hubert, dating from the fifteenth and sixteenth modified by statute in 1816 and 1852, there have been established no fewer than seven decorations. A BLAST FHOM POLSTOL

The Russian Count, Who Lives as a Peasant Lives, Declares Signs of the Senility of the United States.

America has lost her you'd—her air is gray; her teeth are falling ut; she is becoming senile. Voltaire said that France was rotten before she was ripe, but what shall be said of a nation whose ideals have perished almost in one generation? Your Emersons, Garrisons and Whittiers are all gone. You produce nothing but rich men. In the years before and after the civil war the soul life of your people flow-

What is needed in America is a great religious movement. Truth will make your people free. When they bandon pleasure as an object of life they will not need so much money. Your workingmen can never win the fight against capital by laber they are the proper control will always have unions. Capital will always have the Government and the army on its

True religion is this: If I believe that I have a spark of the divine in me, then I am part of God, and I know my place in the universe, and I know that I have a nuty to all other men. If I believe that I am simply an animal I will live like an animal and work for myself. The man who becomes a true Christian has a centre from which he can see all things clearly.

tre from which he can see all things clearly.

Why should Americans send a petition to Russia? We have a crime like the Kishineff outbreak once in a period of years. In the United States they have lynchings every year, every month, every week, almost every day. They hang negroes, shoot them, roast them. It is an ordinary thing in the United States. Some one asked Emerson what he should do if the sun should grow cold and the earth die. He answered, "I think that I could get along without them." That was a good reply. It showed that he was sure of his spiritual life. Why do Americans neglect their souls for the sake of trade, for the sake of money, for the sake of pleasure? Some one invents the automobile. At once everybody feels that automobiles must be used. But why should a man waste his time in dashing about the country in an automobile? As soon as you invent something to save time you begin to waste time by using it constantly and without reason.

It is a curious fact that all Robert It is a curious fact that all Robert Louis Stevenson's writings, even those that were penned while the writer was a dying man, were im-pregnated with the "joy of the open road." Sunshine, rais storms, wind and thunder, all seem to pervade the work which bears his signature. There is see little in any of his fiction work which bears his signature. There is so little in any of his fiction which suggests the interior of men's dwellings. The setting for the giants in Stevensonian fiction must be the great "over world," all else seems too small and cramped to contain the figures he depicts. Canada is blest with a climate which insists on the majority of Canadians living an open-air existence for at least six open-air existence for at least six weeks or two months of the year. It matters little whether a man is a "dead game sport" or a lounger, a dreamer of dreams, content to idle away the beautiful hours of the long midsummer days and nights, the same impress of open air existence must be stamped on his soul. There are those who think that unless the strenuous life is lived in the open that the man or woman fails to imbibe the spirit of the "open road," but they are wrong.—Toronto News.

The largest batch were those respecting the harbors and rivers of Quebec, in the discussion of which there was little matter except of local interest. Hon. Sydney Fisher announced his hope for the establishment of a national museum, and stated that an extensive exhibit of Canadian art would be made at St. Louis next year. Hon. Raymond Prefontaine announced that an inquiry would be made by an officer into the naval reserves systems officer into the naval reserves systems in other countries. An interesting amouncement was made that the amendment to the audit act would be withdrawn. This was regarded as a very contentions measure, and its withdrawal indicates that the differences between the Government and the Auditor-General have been settled. All the public works items in the supplementary estimates, except one small item for the Yukon, have been passed.

STRIKE AT ROCHESTER.

Thirty Thousand Wage-earners Affected by Garment Workers' Decision.

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 10 .- Owing to the fact that the leading clothing manufacturers of this city have refused to grant a reduction from nine to eight hours per day, which was demanded recently by the United Garment Workers of North America, there will be declared at noon to-day in the clothing industry of Rochester a strike that, directly and indirectly, will affect 30,000 wage-earners. Those directly concerned are the clothing cutters, who seem to be in the position of being forced by their union to take a step that is not to their liking. The local union has received a communication from the national headquarters of the United Garment Workers to the effect that manufacturers in other cities have said that they could not compete with the manufacturers here, for the reason that Rochester manufacturers were receiving more hours of work for the same outlay of money. For this reason the local union was asked to make a demand for a reduction of hours to meet the working hours in other cities. This demand has been refused by the local manufacturers, and unless the local union strike to-day at the facturers of this city have refused to This demand has been refused by the local manufacturers, and unless the local union strike to-day at the appointed time they have been informed that the charter granted to the Rochester local by the United Garment Workers of North America will be withdrawn at once. The men have decided to strike before forfeiting their charter. The manufacturers deny that the manufacturers in other cities either care or know what the hours are here.

GRAND TRUNK REVENUE.

Sir Rivers-Wilson's Address to the Shareholders.

London, Oct. 10.—At a well-attended half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway ers of the Grand Trunk Railway at Cannon Street Hotel Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, the President, presiding, said that, although they had received a very large increase of revenue owing to the peculiar conditions, there had been a corresponding increase in the expenditure, which had gone far to neutralize the beneficial results which might have been expected under ordinary circumstances. Some shareholders might feel disappointed because a more profuse distribution shareholders might feel disappointed because a more profuse distribution dividend had not attended the fortunes of the company, but the time would certainly arrive when they would not regret the expenditure of the last few years. Since January, 1898, £2,548,000 had been distributed in dividends. The tide of prosperity might recede, but he was satisfied the Grand Trink would derive lasting advantage from the policy pursued in the prosperous times of which they were already reaping the benefit. Referring to his recent visit to Canada and the States, he saw no reason why the industries of both countries should not continue to develop. The report was adopted.

Yes, Dear Alright Yes, the lamps were out on the Park and so were the lights.

Generally, when a man decides to get married and settle down, he has to settle up first.

Joy Club is not just exactly the same as Walker's Club, but the two often appearance together.

often come together. That was a bad break that the Council claim they did not make when the lights on the Park were out.

I see by the abandoment of the Bungalow project that the football boys have Another hundred dollars to spend.

Probably the City Council think that there are so many shining lights in the Council that none are needed

I saw an "ad" in the Banner for a smart, bright young man. How strange and out of place he will look in that establishment.

We trust that the Banner will have no further objections to submit in opposition to the Bungalow money going to the hospitals. Dunlop is the Conservative candidate in Renfrew. I suppose Ross is postponing the election until Dunlop tires.—Hamilton Spectator.

I guess somebody put the brakes on the electric light circuit. That's why there were no lights on the Park when Colonel Peters was here.

These are the days when the fat kurkeys like to look thin and the thin ones rejoice. In other words, Thanksgiving Day is next Thursday, October 15.

No, gentle reader, the 24th Regiment did not blow out the lights so that the brass band would not be missed. They're too proud of their Bugle Band. . . .

Col. Sam Holmes wants it distinctly understood that Joy Club is not the name of a brand of Canadian whiskey. The brand they take down there hasn't that label on it.

It seems they stopped the street car service at the Soo in order to prevent riots. I don't know whether it was the same reason caused the stoppage of the street car service here or not.

I would like to point out to the I haven't heard any reports from our troops at the front. The payment of the workmen at the Soo evidently accomplished more than the regiment could have done in preserving law and order.

In a border heading in Thursday's Globe I noticed the following, "Coming at Last." I grabbed up my Globe in feverished anxiety expecting that this must refer to the North Renfew election, but I was doomed to disappointment.

This is from the Oswego (N. Y.)
Times: When he saw the Kilties parading gay in their feathered headgear, tartans and leggins, he remarked: "At last I have a solution of the long and much debated ethnological problem, from whom is the North American Indian descended?
He is a Highlander, for certain."

City Council that the Government were under no legal obligation to see that the employees at the Soo were paid, but, on the advice of Mr. Whitney, they did. I merely point this out to the City Council in connection with their refusal to keep a moral obligation to pay the soldiers of the 24th Kent Regiment.

The citizen who chances to walk the street at night can tell you where Moses was when the light went out but he is also very likely to tell you a whole lot about the City Council and lights in general that, while sufficiently lurid to illuminate the darkness, would never be allowed in print. At least, not in this good, bright moral G. H. J.

A doctor has many odd experiences but a little incident that befel Dr. McKeough this week takes the palm. A man in the County Court was reanded to jail. He said he could get and sent for Dr. McKeough. The free for looked at the man but failed ecognize him. "I don't know said the doctor. "I have never you before that I know of." I know you, doctor," pleaded man. "Why you vaccinated me ago last spring." This is perath the first time that a man tried to tilize his vaccination as a means of securing bail.

UNIQUE BRIDAL CLOAK

Bessie Dunn, who lives at 44 North Pearl street, Columbus, O., slipped out of a window last night and cloped with the man she loved in order to avoid marrying the man her mother had selected to be her husband.

Although she got out of the house in safety her plans were almost frus-Trated by the police.

Yesterday there were two marriage licenses in existence bearing the name of Bessie Dunn. In one the bridegroom-to-be was Thomas Hagans, of Xenia, the man she loves. The other was secured by the man favored by the wirth name to the strike prints.

the girl's parents.

To avoid complications Hagans and his sweetheart decided to flee. They planned to leave for Xenia and he married at that place.

They were sitting on the viaduct at the control of their train.

They were sitting on the viaduct at an early hour waiting for their train when Officer Thomas Kelly happened along. He had just been down on Front street investigating a reported burglary. When he saw the two sitting there he thought their actions suspicious and he arrested them.

They were taken before Capt. Russcil. The girl, weeping, told him her plans and tearfully asked that they be allowed to go on the 2.10 train.

Capt. Russell's heart was touched by the romantic story, and he sent both to the Union station in the patrol wagon in time to catch the train. The girl told the captain that she had slipped out of her bedroom window and fled in order to avoid the hated marriage.—Ohio State Journal.

ELIGIBLE FOR INTERMENT

Peter Oskoski, of Glen Lyon, Pa. who disappeared a week ago, after being thrashed for insulting a friend's wife, was found yesterday in a newlymade grave in the woods, two miles from the town. He was so weak he could not talk.

could not talk.

The men who found him lifted him from the grave, carried him to the nearest house and cared for him. In the evening he was out of sanger.

He said that he tried to starve himself to death and had lain in the grave several days. Whether remorse over his deed or fear of arrest inspired the attempt on his life he will not say.

SEEKS AN OWNER.

Mrs. Daniel Dalmar of East Orange, N. J., found a gold watch in Plane street, Newark, two years ago and advertised in a Newark paper for the owner only a few days ago.

She declared she was conscience-stricken. "I am haunted by the idea that I have no right to it, and yet have done everything I can to obtain trace of the owner," she says.

EASE A CONSC ENCE

George C. Toel, deputy revenue collector, with headquarters at St. Joseph, Mo., told a remarkable "con-science story while in Trenton the other day. Thirty-seven years ago a 15-year-old girl was employed as a domestic in the home of Mr. Tole's father, Henry Toel, at Maryville. She left in a short time, and the Toels had forgotten all about her, when, a few days ago, she stepped up and spoke to "Uncle Henry" on the street at Maryville. "Uncle Henry" and his wife had liked her, and as soon as she made herself known, he invited her to stay all night at his home. She did Next morning, when she was leaving she began to cry. On being pressed for an explanation she confessed that the cause of her tears was the theft of a half dollar which she committed while working in Mr

Toel's home. After leaving Maryville she worked at various places in the west, and saved money. Finally she was engaged to be married. The wedding was to have taken place on the very day when she was in Maryville. All this time, however, her conscience had troubled her because of that trifling theft; and at last she told

SEEKS A WIFE

With a red rose in the lapel of his coat, the New Jersey farmer who came to New York last week to get an immigrant girl willing to marry him, entered the free labor immigration bureau, at the rear of the barge office, the other morning and asked Mrs. Theresa Boyle, the matron, to pick out a wife for him.

"As I promised," he said, "I have come back with references as to character. You must admit that I am not a bad looking man, and in addition to this I am young. I hope you will see the necessity of helping me when I inform you that my chickens over on the farm are neglected.

"I would like to get married right away, and am willing to select the girl now and take her direct to a minister.

Matron Boyle explained that she was there for the purpose of taking

"It don't make much difference whether the girl is a Swede, a German or Irish. She must be neat and tidy and weigh about 130 pounds. They say blue eyes are signs of faithfulness, so if you have a blue-eyed girl handy, one about 20 or 30 years old, she would suit."

"These cases are very common," said the matron. "Scores of men come here and ask to be introduced to girls so they can marry them, but I turn them away. I have been here 30 years and in that time at least 3,000 men have called for wives."

When the time for closing came, the farmer was still looking tenderly toward the batch of newly arrived immigrants, while the girls, with an occasional glance over their shoulders toward the open sea, beyond which their old homes lay, showed by their bright eyes that the general supervision of a New Jersey chicken farm would not be amiss.

PRIEST HIT HIS RANK

Dressed in the simple contume of Roman Catholic priest, Rev. Fr Ca'esar Spigardi has for eight years labored among the Italians of St. Louis, Mo., keeping as his own secre the fact that he is a member of the official household of the pope, a monsignor, and entitled to wear the garb of a chamberlain of honor.

The fact became known a few days ago through the issuance of the official roster of the Roman Catholic church, which had this reference to the St. Louis priest:

"Caesar Spigardi, monsignor, Cam-erieri D'Onore in Abito Pavanazzo, Nov. 2, 1892."

When seen Fr. Spigardi was embar-rassed that his secret had become known, but admitted that Pope Leo Known, but admitted that Pope Lee XIII. had conferred the honor upon him three years before he came to America. The rank of monsignor was conferred upon him in recognition of his achievements in leading three pil-grimages of Italians of the working class, one of 11,000 persons, to Castig-lione Delle Stiviere, one of 8,000 to lione Delle Stiviere, one of 8,000 to the house of Loretto, and another of 4,000 to Rome. Bishop Sarto of Mantua, now Pope Pius X., was concerned in the first pilgrimage.

Fr. Spigardi said he had never mentioned the matter in St. Louis, as he desired to labor as a common priest that there might be no ground for anyone asserting that he was taking undue dignity to himself."

MOUSE KILLED A CAT

With a live mouse prowling around tenced to death in the East Orange, N.Y., police station yesterday morning as the only method of relieving the cat from its agony. A well-dressed woman entered the police station carrying a basket in which the cat was confined. The cat seemed to be in distress and was making a great racket in the basket.

The woman said the cat had pounced upon a small mouse in the pantry. The mouse made a jump to bearage, but jumped into the cat's open mouth and went down the cat's throat before the cat could close its jaws. Then it was the cat's turn to jump. The woman said the cat evidently was going crazy from pain, and she wanted the police to do something to wanted the police to do something to help the animal.

After a consultation it was decided the only way to help the cat was to kill it. The woman reluctantly gave her consent, and James Tyrell, the jailer, was appointed executioner. He placed the cat in a "gas box" in which stray dogs are killed, and cat and mouse died together.

ARTFUL BOY BEGGARS

As Fifth avenue, New York, resumes its liveliness the beggar boys again are seen scurrying between the carriages looking for coppers. These urchins are adept to working on one' sympathy, and one must search the east side to find dirtier and more ragged specimens than hasten to the avenue for alms. They are elusive and always keep an eye on the "cop." Sometimes they will perform services. One clean-faced lad does a lucrative business in the capacity of "impromptu footman," as one woman says. This boy takes his stand in West Thirty fifth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, and when-ther, and said not to worry about the incident, but she could not dismiss it from her mind. At last they agraed that their marriage should be postponed, and that the woman should either send or take the money to Maryville. The latter course was adopted, and this was the occasion of her visit to the Toels.

"When mother heard the story," said Mr. Toel, "she refused to accept the meney, and told the woman that she was fully forgiven. The repentant insisted upon the money being taken, but the family would have nothing to do with it.

THE BRITISH AWAKENING

The Toronto News remarks that the campaign in Britain for fiscal changes progresses with express speed, comments the Ottawa Citizen. At this short range people in general can scarcely realize the remarkable progress that has been made in the economic revolution now in progress in conservative England. Six months ago when Hon. Mr. Fielding delivered his epoch-making budget speech there was not a symptom of change or intention of change in the fiscal policy which Great Britain has purued for half a century. Then like a bolt from the blue came Chamberlain's declaration for imperial reciprocity, involving as it must an im perial protective policy. Free traders jeered, British admirers of the colonial secretary were staggered by the audacity-Balfour temporized and Ritchie denounced his ministerial colleague's proposal. Press and public broke into a clamor of discussion and, once the ice was broken, the sanctity of time-honored free trade disappeared like mist before the warm rays of the light thrown on the situation of the empire.

Gradually Premier Balfour shifted his position, his utterances becoming more strongly protectionist in tone until his extreme free trade minist ers could stand it no longer and with-drew from the cabinet. Chamberlain also resigned but it was evident from the correspondence that it was not so much from any serious divergence of views with the premier as from a belief that he could fight more effectively as a free lance in the common cause. Since that event Balfour has been drifting with the strong protectionist tide and his recent deliverances on the question of perlain. And all this has been complished in less than six months. Those who referred to the fact that the undertaking of such a drastic reform by a statesman of Chamberlain's age handicapped the probability of its accomplishment in his day did not reckon on the strength of the "time for a change" sentiment in Britain.

The progress of the protectionist propaganda is all the more remarkable when it is considered that it is more difficult to reach and educate the mass of the electorate in Great Britain than it is on this side of the water. The average Canadian or American'is a newspaper reader and natural born politician. The discussion of any public question that comes up is undertaken with as much keen, practical intelligence in the gatherings at the general store, blacksmith shop and meeting house of our backtownship concessions as it is in the columns of the metropolitan press. Practically every family takes a daily or weekly paper and keeps abreast of current events. It is different in Great Britain. Comparatively few of the so-called lower classes take a vivid interest in current events of a political character that do not immediately affect them-or perhaps it would be more proper to say that the interest is languid at all times when general election with its speechmaking and general excitement is absent. It is recorded that the London Daily Mail sent a "walking enquirer" into East Anglia to feel the pulse of the masses on the Chamberlain policy, and one-third of the people interviewed had never heard of it! After that insight into the general ignorance of the people we are quite prepared for the statement that the rest of those interviewed were "almost unanimously opposed to tax on food." The "walking enquirer" represented a paper that is opposed to "a tax on food" and it is perfeetly conceivable that in a section of population where ignorance of public affairs was so predominant, the bald question whether they want ed their food "taxed" should meet with a hearty negative. It is also characteristic of the condition of affairs that the "walking enquirer" should find the people much better informed and more interested in the Education bill, a measure which cropped up in the British parliament eighteen months ago and more nearly affects the average elector. It is safe to predict that when the Chamberlain policy has had time to be understood by the people, when it has sifted down through the classes to the masses in a shape to be clearly understood, a revolution of public opinion may be looked for, especially when Hon. Mr. Chamberlain has toured the provinces diffusing light.

Chief Holmes pointed out to The Planet the other day that it was difficult to reconcile the reported scarcity of laboring men with the throngs of able-bodied individuals who loaf around the Police Court these days. But the Chief misses the point. Unfortunately the species that frequents the Court to gloat over the trials and misfortunes of others, as birds of prey gather over exposed carrion, are neither laborers nor men.

Next Monday will be the 500th day of the North Renfrew vacancy. The constituency should hold a celebration in honor of an event so unique in British countries. The white flag should be displayed from all public offices, salvos of blank ammunition should be discharged, and a public orator, white feathers floating over his head, in a sonorous voice should recite Mr. Ross' spirited Newmarket speech-"We will F-I-G-H-T!"-Toronto News, Independent Liberal.

It really does appear that for a salary of $100 a day the judges who sat as a commission on the Gamey charges might have done a little more than they did. FROM ONE WHOSE DAUGHTER WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH

Had Suffered From Headaches, Dizzi-ness and Fainting Spells—Feared at one Time that Consumption Would Follow.

All the freshness of youth, the res cheeks and bright eyes of girthood, the charms of budding womanhood, are due to pure, rich slood and healthy nerves. When the face is pale and the eyes lack lustre, when there are headaches and backaches, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart the blood is seriously out of condition. the blood is seriously out of condition and decline and consumption may and decline and consumption may well be feared. In emergencies of this kind there is no medicine so certain in its beneficial results as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every pill makes new blood, strengthens the nerves, and puts the sufferer on the road to health. Proof of this is found in the case of Miss Bertha Milloy, Port Dalhousie, Ont. The story of this young lady's restoration to health is told by her mother as follows: "A few years her mother as follows: "A few years ago my daughter Bertha began to decline in health. Among the early symptoms were loss of appetite, loss of strength and an aversion to exertion. These were followed by severe headaches, and sometimes fainting fits; her color left her and she was greatly reduced in flesh. In fact her condition was such that I feared she would go into consumption. We tried a number of medicines but they did not help her; then a doctor was her mother as follows: "A lew year

If in doubt send direct to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

บลบลบลบลบลบลบลบุ THE HOLY NAME.

W. EVERETT JOHNSON, Rector Church of Redeemer, New York.

เลขลขลขลขลข wed be Thy name.-Matt., vi., 9. The Lord's Prayer is a volume of doctrine and ethics, basic and far-reaching. This first petition is the cornerstone of the whole structure, and sets forth the same radical concept that St. Paul does in his treatise on charity. It creates the viewpoint of the religion of Jesus Christ. To make something holy is to develop the highest attitude of our nature, the result of the union of the mind and the heart.

There is holiness that belongs to cer rain things aside from what we ordinarily call religion. The thing that has become holy to you may have little or no value. An old book that your mother often read, that would not bring five cents in the market, is treasured as a holy thing by you, and perhaps by you alone; the old homestead is a holy place; a little half-worn shoe is a holy thing to a saddened mother's heart. All because these things have been linked with the affections.

The giant locomotive has become holy thing to the man that sits in the cab, the realization of the dream of years, the shrine of worshipping labor; there is no need to bid him to give it his best energies: they belong to it. A drop of stagnant water is a holy thing to the man of conscience who has devoted his mind to study of its revelations, and through his microscope he enters it with such reverence as worshipper does a temple. No need to bid him to prayer, or such it is; he kneels day after day waiting for the revelation of God.

The devoted son, the loving mother, the mechanic who gives honor to his work, and the student whose every thought is a prayer are examples of work, and the student whose every thought is a prayer, are examples of the best things in this life of ours, and the nearest to our loving Father, creating and working in His infinite wisdom: but, as with all the nob est things in life, they are the most dangerous. The son, the mother, the eng neer, the student may become idolaters, and that which was holy degenerate into a selfish superstition, that which ought to be a motive to a broad and wealthy life become a positive hindrance to true growth. growth.

Here, then, the far-reaching, open Here, then, the far-reaching, opening words of our Lord's prayer, May our Father's name be made holy. And what is our Father's name? Surely not only what we sound when we pronounce the words; surely not the name, as you or I have a name by which we are known among men, which, pornounced, gives no revelation of what we are.

nounced, gives no revelation of what we are.

Our Lord is doing more than bid us abstain from profanity and pronounce His Father's name with reverence in our speech. And what is the name of God? That by which He has revealed Himself, that by which He is known. Not a name like Brown or Smith, which tells naught of what he who bears it is, but a name spoken in our ears in all our daily toil and hours at home, as varied as our lives, but at home, as varied as our lives, but ever revealing Him; now His love, now His wisdom, now His mercy, now His justice.

It means for us to give Him our devotion, that the seeming little things in life become as the treasured book of a mother's life or things rejected by men, as the little, worn-out shoe, ever declaring the gracious blessing of a life not now seen.

It means that our daily work is with holy things treated with loving care such as the engineer gives to his great instrument of modern life. It means that the most despised and scorned of things on earth may become a wealth things on earth may become a wealth of revelation of divine wisdom, as does that dirty drop of water to the student's eager eye.

It means that all around so speaks of our Father's love and wisdom that of our Father's love and wisdom that the earth becomes a temple, and our duties and our cares that by which we offer praise and worship to Him who built it.

"Hallowed be Thy name"; so teach me, Lord, to find in everything that greets my ear a name for Thee, in everything that greets my ear a name for Thee, in everything that greets my eye Thy autograph, that I may live in holy place and offer continually the incense of my devotion.

Here, then, the viewpoint of our religion as taught by Him who gave it:

Here, then, the viewpoint of our religion as taught by Him who gave it: Reverence towards His created work, and, above all. for human life, all cleansed, nothing unclean, no life so low, so forsaken, that it shall not recall that holiest moment of His work when He, too, cried: "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" The utter darkness of the Holy of Holies in which He placed the light by which we might see the holiness of our God when the veil was rent in twain.

St. Paul calls this same great virtue charity, but whether charity or reversence is that spirit that never scorns, never despiseth, is . never puffed up, seeketh not her own, thinketh no evil, hopeth all things, and without which we may give all our goods to the poor and our bodies to be burned, and yet are but as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal.

We can learn the holiness of God only by making holy all that He hath given us; we can have faith only as we make holy the name of God.

Lamp-posts in London.

Lamp-posts in London, says
The earlier lamp-posts in London, says
The Magazine of Art, were evolved from the cannon discarded as obsolete or faulty after the Napoleonic wars. These actual service cannon were freely used at Woolwich, and probably other garrison towns, as street corner-poets, the bore being plugged with oak to keep out the rain and refuse, the emerging end of the plug being shaped in hemispherical form to represent the issue of a cannon-ball.
Later on these real cannon were superseded by imitation iron castings, the half cannon-ball and all. This cannon pattern for corner-posts found its way to London, where it may still be seen in many of our older streets and squares. From the unenlarged corner-post of the cannon pattern emerged the lamp-post of, the period, which is familiar-in London to this day.

GOOD PAULINE IDEA

APOSTLE SAID: "LET YOUR MODER-ATION BE KNOWN UNTO ALL MEN."

TALMAGE READS ITS MEANING

Plea For Telerance and Forbearance Be tween Man and Man-Become a Well-Bounded Man-Do Not Condemn in Others Faults and Weaknesses That May Be Paralleled in Ourselves-Wis-

Chicago, Oct. 4.-In this sermon the preacher teaches a timely lesson on the wisdom of exercising tolerance and forbearance between man and man and reminds us that the faults and weaknesses which we condemn in others may find a parallel in ourselves. The text is Philippians iv, 5, "Let your moderation be known unto all men."

What does the Pauline word "moderation" mean? "I know," says one. "It means: Do not be an extremist. Do not ride a hobby to death. Do Do not ride a hobby to death. Do not focus your eyes upon one truth so long that you become blinded to the relative importance of other truths, nor upon one error until you lose sight of the evil effects of all other errors. Virtue is a road which has a hedge and a ditch on both sides,' once wrote a famous writer. A man may be moderate in one thing and not in another."

and not in another."

"Let your moderation be known unto all men" means: Do not be a fanatic, a one sided monstrosity, like a dove with one wing cropped, flapping about in the barnyard and yet unable to rise ten fost into Carlo. ping about in the barnyard and yet unable to rise ten feet into God's great heaven of blue. Do not ex-pend all your energies preaching against the evils of intoxication and at the same time be a glutton. Do not preach against gambling with cards when you gamble with railnot preach against gambling with cards when you gamble with railroad stocks. Do not berate the thief who steals a loaf of bread and honor the thief who cheats his neighbor in a real estate deal. Be a well rounded man. Be like a plant with leaves and pistils and stamens and sepals and petals growing upon a supple stem, able to bend every whither yet with roots anchored in the solid earth, and not like a balloon filled with a noxious gas, tossed about in the air, the plaything of loon filled with a noxious gas, tossed about in the air, the plaything of every stray wind.

That the Pauline idea? No, my friend, you are wrong. When Paul said, "Let your moderation be known unto all men," he was not, as Bishop Villiers once expressed it, "alluding to the gratification of our desires generally, but especially temperance or self restraint in our relation to others, in our abstinence from anger and harshness and vengeance." He is saying, as the revised version translates the sentence. "Let your forbearance or gentleness be known unto all men." To-day instead of preaching upon what you should eat and drink and wherewith you be ciothed and how much exercise you should take I shall preach upon how you should smile and talk and shake hands and forgive and love. This sermonic theme is not how we should live but how we should he willing sermonic theme is not how we should live, but how we should be willing to let others live.

Be patient, in the first place, even with the irritating idiosyncrasies and the offensive mannerisms that are found in almost every one with whom we come in contact. Be patient with their peculiarities, especially if they are nonessentials in reference to the honesty and noble characteristics of a man. Be patient especially because wrong types of marked individuality, if harn?ssed in the right, way, will often mean great success for us and for those whom it is our privilege to influence.

A strange law decrees that insanity netimes the handmaid of genius. The inspired eye, which afar off can discover a star, is often so nearsighted that it cannot see a diamond glit-tering close at hand. Yet Joseph Cook great as he was, would have been utterly unfitted for an ordinary pastorate. His last days were passed in a sanitarium, in a place consecrated to the work of caring for mental incompetents. Joseph Cook's brain was a magnificent piece of mental machinery, was easily thrown out of gear. Thus we find that the greatest poets and musicians and art-startling strength.

The startling characteristics, good or bad, which can be found in the ten talent men on a big scale can also be found in the one talent men on a small scale. In the ordinary walks of life everywhere are people cursed or marred with various imperfections. They are good people in one sense, but bad in another. We define them as "peculiar" people. We call them "peculiar" because through each runs a mental or physical weakness, as a mineral vein runs through the rocks of a mighty mountain. We say: "I mineral vein runs through the rocks of a mighty mountain. We say: "I like So-and-so, but he has one fearfully irritating characteristic. He will muss up a room every time he enters it." Or you say: "I like Mrs. So-and-so, but every time she calls she makes some nettlesome remark that stings like a brier bush. When she comes to visit me I am always glad to welcome her. When she leaves I to welcome her. When she leaves I am always gladder to see her go. She is never with me ten minutes without making me unhappy. She says something disagreeable about my dress, my house, my children or my husband. Yes, I feel and know that Mrs. So-and-so is a good wo-yan and that she loves me, but she has the tantalizing faculty of always unintentionally saying something

Ah, yes. All of us have had such bitter experiences as these from the irritating peculiarities of our friends. So Paul comes to us to-day in the words of my text. He says: "My brother, you must be lenient and gentle in your dealings with the faults and failings of others. You must be yielding, as the wave of an incoming tide in yielding. tide is yielding. It first breaks it-self into pieces and then crawls up and fits itself into all the nooks and crannies of the seashore. You must be yielding in the nonessentials, so that you can cause your life to be successfully fitted into the peculiarities of others, as one factory wheel will fit into the cogs of another wheel."

Would that we might always practice Benjamin Franklin's gospel of moderation! His toleration of the nonessentials of life was never more moderation! His toleration of the nonessentials of life was never more grandly demonstrated than in the last great public service which he rendered to his country. When over eighty years of age he made the peroration of his life in pleading for the adoption of the constitution of the United States in the great constitutional convention which met in Philadelphia in 1787. He admitted, during his address, that the constitution under discussion did not satisfy him in toto. He wanted one legislative assembly, not two. He wanted an executive council, with the president at the head, instead of all executive power being invested in one man. He wanted the president of the United States to serve without salary. "But," said the grand old sage of Philadelphia, "the older I grow the more I doubt my own infallibility and the more I believe that others may occasionally be right. I others may occasionally be right. I am not like the French lady who one day said to her sister, 'I do not know how it happens, sister, but I meet with nobody but myself that is always in the right.' Therefore, though I may not like this constitution in toto, I do feel that it 4s the best for all parties upon which we could ever agree. And, Mr. President, I cannot help expressing a wish that every member of this convention who may still have objections to it would with me on this occasion doubt a little of his own infallibility, and to make manifest our unanimity put his name to this instrument." That plea of Benjamin Franklin is a good exposition of what Paul's mod-eration means. It means giving up a little in order to fit your life into the nonessential peculiarities of other

The heredity law in all its differ The heredity law in all its different aspects being agreed upon, why should you not be patient in your dealings with those whose ancestors were not good and true and pure Christian, as were your fathers and grandfathers and great-grandparents? Have you the right to expect the child of an Aztec sun worshiper, within the first year of his conversation, to have as beautiful a conception of the cross as the child of that Indian missionary who last year gave up his life for Christ within sight of a horrible ghat burning upon the banks of life for Christ within sight of a hor-rible ghat burning upon the banks of the Ganges? Have you a right to expect that young boy whom you took from the foundling home and adopted to have as easy a time living the Christian life as your own flesh and blood? Perhaps that boy flesh and blood? Perhaps that boy is the son of two thieves, while your child is the son of a good mother. Remember, as a spiritualist oculist, you cannot in a day open the visual windows of one born blind. Oh, my brother, do not fret and worry and lose your patience in your dealings with those of bad spiritual ancestry. Be gentle! Be forbearing! Be forgiving! Be kind! Be merciful! Be moderate in all things. Forgive not only seven times, but seventy times seven.

Be patient, in the next place, with Be patient, in the next place, with the Peters of the three denials. There are many, very many, of them. They are not the sinners who mean to do wrong, but they are the sanguine temperaments who overestimate their own abilities. They at times love the Lord with all their strength, but, then, underestimating the strength of evil, they deliberately run into temptation, to be overthrown not once, but twice and thrice.

The Peters of the three denials! Perhaps that young man whom you discharged only last week was one of them. He was a fine young fellow. Everybody who came in touch with him liked him. Bright? There was no brighter boy in your store. He was not only bright, but he was the son of a good Christian father. He knew better, but he would drink. He came into your office drunk about one year ago. You forgave him once. You forgave him twice. When he did it the third time you said, "Out you go!" And out of the store last week he went. You loved him for his own sake. You liked him on account of his father and mother. Thea, my brother, if you like that lad, if The Peters of the three denials! count of his father and mother. Then, my brother, if you like that lad, if you think he has even yet the making of a good man in him, if he can overcome that one fault, why not take him back again? Why not give him another chance? "No, no," you answer. "I have given him three different chances. Three times are enough." Are they enough, ny brother? Remember the lad's par-ents. Remember that he is an impulsive fellow and not bad at heart. Remember that Christ forgave Peter again and again until at last Peter rose above his weaknesses and "ave his life fully and freely back to Christ.

Will you do as much for that young man in your employ as Christ did for his impulsive and denying dis-From the filthy pieces of clothes gathered by the ragpickers in Germany and France I have seen the manufacturers of Watervliet, Mich., make the purest and whitest writing paper. From even the modern Peters of the three denials there have been developed the Peters of the martyred blood. One day General Charles George Gordon, more widely known as "Chinese" Gordon, saw a handsome Chinese youth being led out to execution. The condemned had been guilty of many crimes. Gordon was struck with the looks of the lad and begged for his life. He said that he himself would guarantee that the boy would do right. Gordon's request was granted. The famous soldier of Queen Victoria and of Jesus Christ took the lad to his own quarters. He made the Chinese boy then and there promise never to do wrong again. Did he fulfill his pledge? From that day on the most faithful servant Gordon ever had about him was that boy, rescued by the Christian general from the executioner's axe. He fol-lowed Gordon to Egypt. And the Chinese lad's blood mingled with lowed Gordon to Egypt. And the Chinese lad's blood mingled with Charles George Gordon's blood when the massacre at Khartoum ended the earthly life of England's most famous Christian soldier. Ah, the Peters of the three denials are worth

But, steady, my brother. Be patient also with those who are harsh in their criticisms of others. Remember that for them a day of reckoning is corning, or perhaps has come. Who among your brothers and sisters to-day is having the hardest times? Is it not the sister who never had in her heart any love for the common people? Is it not the sister who feit she was socially and mentally a little higher than any one else? Who to-day is most mercilessly laid upon the dissecting table of criticism and having his whole life cut to pieces? Is it not the man who himself once most vigorously wielded the censorious scalpel? Do not worry that these sinners who are so harsh in their criticisms against the sins of others will not have their just rewards. Verily, verily, I say unto you, their condemnation will come from God. It is better for us not to try to snatch the divine thunderbolts out of God's hand.

But there is still another class of saving.
But, steady, my brother. Be patihand.

But there is still another class of aggressive critics against which I would plead with you to apply the teachings of my text. They are those who have no sympathy with you in your work. I do not mean those who are maliciously falsifying, but those who are honestly, truthfully and positively do not like your way of doing things. Now, my brother, the best way for you to overcome such criticism is not by going out and trying to destroy your neighbor's influence for good, but simply by being patient; by simply saying nothing against your honest though antagonistic neighbors, but by going ahead and doing your own work in your own way and proving beyond all peradventure that God has blessed you and will continue to bless you in what you are doing in his name. But there is still another class of Nine-tenths of all the criticisms made against us would soon die if we ourselves did not go forth to fight those criticisms and thus make matters worse. Hugh Clifford, the old jungle traveler, once vividly described a startling experience he had when traveling in the Malay peninsula. He and his men were attacked by a huge swarm of angry, revengeful bees. Immediately the party swung their blankets around their heads and tried to fight them off, but it was useless. They were stung overywhere. "Take to the water!" Clifford cried to his men. matters worse. Hugh Clifford, stung everywhere. "Take to the water!" Clifford cried to his men. The Malays ran for their lives. The bees not only drove them into the water, but continued stinging them there. The furious insects threatened to kill them while they were in the river itself. "With hands like boxing gloves and heads like inflated." footballs from the awful stinging," wrote Clifford, "my suffering party then limped away to the next village. Half an hour later one of my men came into the village uninjured. He had seen the bees coming and had sat down and waited the assault. They covered him from head to foot, but as he offered no exposition they did not sting him." What is true of the Malay bees is true also of the human bees. With buzz and threatenings in great swarms they may light upon you. They may crawl all over you and aggravatingly tickle your face and hands and heart, but if you will not fight them, but sim ply go on doing the work that God has given you to do, your assailants will become harmless, and after awhile they will leave you in peace and in ease.

Thus, my friends, the whole teaching of this text is this: Drop your battle ax and as a Christian farmer go to gospel seed planting. Drop your war clubs and go to driving an ambulance. Do not boast of how many enemies you have killed, but speak rather of how many friends you have been able to win through gospel love. This text has in it the language of pardon, not the hiss of hate. It is a flower garden whose most fragrant blossoms grow best upon the grave hillocks under which are buried the hideous corpses of bitter strife. It is a lighthouse to warn voyagers off the dangerous rocks and to guide them into the harbor of safety and not the search light of an invader, ready to single ing of this text is this: Drop your light of an invader, ready to single out for destruction a hiding foe. Oh, my brother and sister, will you not try to practice Paul's moderation? Will you not let your forbearance and gentleness and Christian giveness be known unto all men?

"The keeper thought he would tease her by holding a large handful of the bells close to her mouth and then jerking them away."

"At last Punch got tired of being tantalized and lay down in har tank, with her nose close to the end, pretonding to be asleep.

"Presently the keeper grew careless and rubbed her nose with a bran hall. Quicker than thought, Punch caught, his hand between her tusks, frightening him half to death. You should have heard her 'tickled' snort. She appreciated the fun, you may be sure. After a moment or two of suspense the frightened keeper found his hand was gradually released and the 'hip' sank down into the water, leaving many a bubble on the surface to show that she was enjoying herself.

"Cats, dogs and horses laugh, I am sure. Why, a eat will laugh clear to its whisker tips, and a horse shows alughter as plainly as can be in his eyes.

"Altogether, it's no wonder we think of dumb creatures as pretty nearly human. Very few people call them 'brutes' or 'beasts' any longer, Those ugly words are applied, instead, to men who are guilty of terrible things.—Philadelphia North American.

TO TEST IT

A western animal trainer thinks most animals are born humorists.

He sayss the tricks played by elephants, monkeys and other dumb animals are sure signs of natural humor.

"Now, take the hippopotamus, for example," says he. "It doesn't look like an animal that can laugh. But it can. I knew an ugly hippopotamus 'lady' who got even with a teasing keeper once by lying down and pretending to be asserp. Her name was A teacher in one of the schools near Philadelphia had one day been so disturbed by the shuffling of feet by the children that she was on the verge of distriction. Finally she said: "Children, I cannot stand so much noise, Please be quiet for a little while, at least. Let me see if you can't be so quiet that you could hear a yin drop," Instantly every child became as still as a mouse. Then a little boy in a back seat piped out, with marked impatience:

WHAT A FARM IS.

Our ranking in the world depends on what we do, not on what we can do, and so a shabbily dressed young man discovered when he applied to the manager of a large department store for employment.

"What can you do?" asked the manager, abruptly.

The dog, which was unusually large and strong, had driven the pupils into the school house. The brute had just gained the table, where a number of the children had serambled for safety, when Mr. Green rushed in and seized the animal by the nape of the neck.
A terrific struggle ensued, in which the odds seemed to be in favor of the brute. But the teacher was strong as well as beave, and he gradually worked toward the door of the school room.

Once the dog twisted out of his grasp and his teeth sank into Mr. Green's leg. All the while reasuring the panic stricken scholars, the teacher resumed his task of dragging the animal along the floor. Twice again the dog wrenched himself free, and such time Mr. Green felt the minmal's fangs in his arm and wrists. Finally the dog made another rush in the direction of the children, but Mr. Green was after him, and the struggle was renewed.

At the end of half an hour the dog was dragged outside, when the teacher dropped him and hurried for a gun. He followed the animal down the road and shot him dead.

Has the coal been in the mine, and if the coal bin is mine, why can I not mine in the coal mine for my coal

THE PLANET JUNIOR proposes to place the possibility of wining a good watch in the hands of every girl and boy in Kent. his watch has been secured from VonGunten Bros., the well-nown and popular King street jewellers, and will be awarded the girl or boy who sends to THE PLANET JUNIOR the best omposition or essay during the present month.

"Who is Alico, Joe! A new girl!" said Mr. Harris, unable to restrain his curiosity, whatever the consequences. "Alice who!" said Joe, much surprised, but quite willing to leave the labor of writing for the pleasures of conversation.

"The Alice you believe and receive, you know."

The competition will be open to all pubic and separate school udents in Kent County. In order to give every pupil an equal nance the school grade of the competitor will be taken into conderation in making the award.

If the woal in the coal bin was mine, why has not the coal been in the coal bin instead of in the coal mine that is not mine?

(Publisher's Note.—The author of this easy primer for coal consumers was at this point put into his straight jacket for the evening.)

There is only one essential condition governing the composition. Its subject must be something concerning Chatham, the unity town of Kent and the hub of the Western Peninsula. The LANET JUNIOR wants every girl and boy to develop a hearty yalty to their splendid young city and its many advantages and ossibilities. So make your subject something concerning Chatam, boys and girls.

The competition will close at the end of the October, by which time all the compositions must be sent in. The result will be announced and the watch awarded immediately on the conjusion of the time.

All pupils who write compositions must attach thereto a certificate from the teacher as to the fact that it is their own work as bona fide pupils of some school in the county and append the number of the school grade or book in which they study. This will be taken into consideration in passing judguent and the girl or boy in the second or third book will have as much chance as the girl or boy in the fourth book.

Among the special things which will be considered in mark-ing the essays will be choice of subject, style of composition, spelling and writing.

Mrs. Harris, who always said she had a big boy and a little boy in her family, laughed and began pompously; "i follows the I in believe, as in the word Alice; e follows the c in receive, as in the word Alice. Now do you understand, you poor, dear, ignorant fellow?"

Mr. Harris looked thoughtful, went to his desk, opened a letter he had answered, threw it into the waste basket, and two soratching pens worked harmoniously together as father and son labored in the agonies of composition.

WAS SECOND CHOICE

That the "matrimonial ad," some-times brings about unhappy marriages is shown in the case of Mrs. Charles Ir. Allan, of 123 West street, Newark, N. J., who appeared in the Fourth precinct court the other morning and asked for a warrant for the arrest of a man she said was her husband. She asserted that he had deserted he re after she discovered he was the hus-band of another woman who is liv-ing and from whom he has not ob-tained a divorce.

Mrs. Allan formerly lived in Dan-ville, Va.

Before her marriage she was Miss Kate Hazell. A relative left $2,500 to her, and she watched the advertising columns of the newspapers to find a way to invest it. One day she read a "personal" from a man who desired to make the acquaintance of a "cultivated woman who had a small sum of money to invest; object matrimony." She answered the "ad." and the result was her marriage to Alian. He told her he wished to go into the gave him $2,000, she says. He bought a saloon at Morris avenue and N.w. street, and all went well until Friday night, when a woman who said she was Mrs. Lizzie Lydicker, of Paterwan, ealled at the Alian home and said the so-called Alian's feel name was Lydicker and he had married her several years ago.

Mrs. Lydicker remained in the house that night that she might confront the man, but he did not appear. He has not been seen about Nevark since. Judge Lambert declined to issue a warrant on her unsupported statement and sent her to the city atiporely.
