Athens Mineral Springs

To be Again Made Available to the Public and Their Revivifying and Healing Waters to be Placed on the Market.

The announcement in the Reporter last week that the Athens Mineral Spring were to be improved and made available to the public was received with pleasure, particularly by older residents who have knowledge of the virtues of the waters.

To the uninformed, we may say that the springs are situated well within the corporate limits of Athens at the edge of the oak grove at the foot of Isaac street. They are three in number and are all within a radius of 30 or 40 feet. Formerly for nearly half the year, the ground surrounding the springs was flooded but within the past three or four years the proprietor of the land has had a surface water ditch dug through the flat, which renders the ground around the springs comparatively dry. Probably a short account of how the springs were first discovered to possess healing and medicinal qualities, and what has hitherto been done to test the waters and why they were allowed to fall into disuse, might not prove uninteresting to many of our readers. The best authenticated account we have of the discovery of the springs was that more than seventy-five years ago a number of workmen were engaged in getting out timber in the vicinity and one of the number going to look for water, found a low place in which the water had settled. He stooped down and tasted it. Before the water touched his lips he was struck with the peculiar odor, and on tasting it, found it strongly impregnated with some kind of mineral. He called his companions and a hole was scooped out of the mud into which the water was allowed to settle and when they had all drunk they pronounced it strongly impregnated with a mineral substance. The excitement over the finding of the springs resulted in several holes or wells being sunk a few feet in the surrounding bog, and finally three different streams were struck, all having a different taste or smell. Nothing was done, however, towards developing the hidden treasures until several years after, although not a few had such faith in the medicinal qualities of the waters as to make daily visits to the springs and carry away a quantity of the water for future use.

About fifty years ago P. W. Strong, at that time a resident of the village, endeavored to secure control of the springs and two or three acres of surrounding land but could not obtain satisfactory terms and had to abandon the enterprise. The agitation over the matter, however, had the effect of inducing a few public spirited individuals to start a subscription, and money was raised and expended in digging out the springs and putting in rough curbing, and in one of the largest a pump, and laying a sidewalk from the springs to the rocky ledge a few feet distant. The earth around the springs was found to consist of a bed of marl, and when a depth of six feet was reached, a stratum of clay was struck from which three streams of beautifully clear water gushed forth. Of late years the improvements made to the springs have been neglected and the sidewalks and curbing have decayed.

In 1897, Mr. I. C. Alguire sent a sample of the mineral water for analysis to J. B. Cochrane, Instructor of Chemistry in the Royal Military College, Kingston, and the following is his report:—

Analysis of Mineral Water from a well on the property of I. C. Alguire, Esq. (Results expressed in parts per million and also in grains per imp. gallon)

	Parts per million	Grains per imp. gallon
Solid Suspended Matter—
Sulphur and organic matter	16.100	1.127
Iron oxide and silica	1.500	.128
Dissolved Solids—
Calcium carbonate	223.032	15.612
Calcium sulphate	158.566	11.069
Magnesium carbonate	114.324	8.007
Iron carbonate	1.319	.092
Sodium chloride	135.597	9.520
Sodium sulphate	33.941	2.326
Silica	18.410	1.289
Organic matter (barium, hydrogen, &c.)	37.351	2.614
Nitric acid	trace	trace
Dissolved Gases—
Sulphuretted hydrogen	24.629	1.724
Carbonic acid (as bicarbonate and free)	106.451	7.242

A careful examination was made for potassium, lithium, phosphoric acid, nitrous acid, iodine, bromide and boric acid, of which no traces were found.

The water of this well would be called sulphuretted or sulphur water and would be valuable for all the purposes for which sulphuretted mineral water is used, namely, in diseases of a rheumatic and scrofulous nature.

INDUCTION SERVICE

Good congregations were present in the Anglican churches of this parish at all the Harvest Thanksgiving services on Sunday and Friday last.

On Friday evening the Rev. E. J. Bidwell, D.D., D.C.L., Dean of Ontario, inducted the Rector, Rev. W. G. Swayne, and also dedicated the new pulpit—the gift of Mrs. Patton—and the set of Hymn Boards given by Mrs. Parish to the church.

The Dean's sermon was a clear and comprehensive exposition of the text, "Your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things." Rev. Messrs. Woodcock, Radcliffe and Smith were also present and took part in the services. The singing throughout was exceptionally good, and all the churches were beautiful in their appropriate decorations.

The existing harmony prevailing throughout the parish was manifested by a pleasing incident at the Friday evening service, when the wardens of the three congregations presented an affectionate and loyal address to the Rector at the conclusion of the Service of Induction.

At Wall Street Methodist Church parsonage, Brockville, on Wednesday last, Rev. W. H. Sparling united in marriage Mr. Clifford Scott of Addison and Miss Margaret, daughter of the late James Hall.

SEVENTY YEARS AGO

Recorder: Mr Robert Wright, Brockville's merchant prince, on Thursday last received the congratulations of his friends on his seventieth birthday.

Though Mr Wright has reached the allotted three score and ten, he is enjoying splendid health and his business associates at the big store often point to him with pride as the most active man in the establishment. Mr. Wright might have been seen that morning early enjoying a long walk up the front road before breakfast, and attributes his good health to the fresh air custom, plenty of hard work and regular habits.

The Reporter has pleasure in extending to Mr Wright congratulations on the success he has achieved in business and on the fact that he is able to fully enjoy the fruits of his labors.

LESSON 1—OCTOBER 6, 1912.

Jesus Walking on the Sea.—Mark 6: 45-56.

Commentary.—I. Jesus at prayer (vs. 46, 48). 46. Straightway—Immediately after the multitude had been miraculously fed. He constrained His disciples to Jesus exercised authority in sending His disciples, rather against their desire, before Him to the other side of the sea. The reason of their reluctance to go appears from John's statement (John 6: 14, 15). The feeding of the five thousand led the people to believe that Jesus must be the Messiah, and hence the King to be crowned, who was to break the power of their oppressors the Romans. The disciples shared this belief, and desired to remain with their Master to see what the outcome would be, for, if He was to be crowned, they were eager to share in the honor and take the place that would naturally be given to His most intimate friends. It has been also suggested that the disciples did not wish to leave Him alone, since it would appear like desertion, and then, too, it is possible they dreaded the night voyage across the lake. To go... unto Bethsaida—The place where the multitude were fed was Bethsaida-Julias, northeast of the Sea of Galilee. The Bethsaida toward which the disciples journeyed was on the west side of the sea not far from Capernaum. From the accounts of the three evangelists we learn that Capernaum was to be their destination, but the disciples were to touch at Bethsaida, to take Jesus aboard, and from thence they would proceed to Capernaum. Sent away the people—It was no easy matter to dismiss this company of people, wrought up as they were with excitement over the miracle just wrought and filled with admiration for their oppressor King, as they regarded Him. So into a mountain—A mountain at the extreme southeast margin of Butahia shut down upon the lake. This doubtless was the scene of our Lord's midnight prayer. By day it would have commanded a view of the lake, the storm, the tossing boat of the disciples. Whedon. To pray—He was conscious that a solemn and awful crisis of His day on earth was come, and by communing with His heavenly Father He would nerve His soul for the stern work of the morrow, and the bitter conflict of many coming weeks.

II. The disciples in the storm (vs. 47, 48). 47. Even—This was the later evening, the one commencing at sunset. The earlier evening commenced at three o'clock in the afternoon. In the midst of the sea—The disciples had made some progress, but not much. See John 6: 19. He alone on the land—Jesus had constrained His disciples to commence their voyage across the lake, and had succeeded in dismissing the multitude. "Distressed in rowing." R. V. The wind was contrary unto them. The disciples wished to go in a northerly direction toward Bethsaida, but the wind was driving them southward or keeping them near the place where they had embarked. The Sea of Galilee is liable to be suddenly thrown into fury by the winds that sweep down the mountains through the ravines that lead to the valley. These ravines act as huge funnels pouring tempests upon the lake. The storm-tossed crew had gone but "about five and twenty or thirty furlongs," only one-half the distance across the lake. The fourth watch of the night—According to the Jewish method of reckoning time the night was divided into three watches, but after the Jews came under the Roman power they adopted the Roman method of keeping time. The night was divided into four watches, beginning at six, nine, twelve and three o'clock, respectively, hence it was toward dawn when Jesus came to His disciples. His secret communion with the Father had continued nine hours, while His followers were struggling with the waves. Their anxiety to keep the Bethsaida appointment with their Master urged them on to greater efforts to reach that point, yet they had rowed only three miles. He cometh unto them—He knew all through those hours the difficulties under which they were laboring. They were learning how helpless they were in the face of such a storm as they had encountered. Jesus went to them in his own good time and in the best time for them. Walking upon the sea—Contrary to the laws of nature. Jesus defies all circumstances favorable or unfavorable in coming to his disciples when they needed him. Would have passed by them—He had come near the boat in which the disciples were struggling with the storm, and appeared to be going before them toward their desired haven. He came within their sight and within the sound of their voices.

III. The tempest still'd (vs. 49-53). 49. Saw Him—They had expected to see Him when they should reach Bethsaida, but not walking on the water. A spirit—in the dimness of the early dawn they saw a form in the distance, which, as they continued to peer at it, seemed to assume the form of a man. Their fears at once considered it a token to them of death, and their faith was not strong enough to grasp the idea of its being the Lord. The terrors of the long hours of that night had intensified their fears so that at the sight of the apparition they "cried out." 50. Immediately he talked with them. He did not leave them long in suspense. Just to hear His voice brought comfort. Be of good cheer—Take courage. It is I—This is the explanation of the exhortation to be of good cheer. In the midst of trial, disappointment and the fiercest conflicts of life Jesus came to us in the most unlooked-for ways and speaks to us these blessed words, "It is I." Let heaven be but as one scroll, and let it be written all over with titles, they cannot express more than, "It is I."—Hall. Be not afraid—When Christ is with us there is nothing to fear.

51. Went up unto them—Mark omits the account of Peter's request to walk on the water as given in Matthew 14: 28-32. There may be some significance in the fact that Peter furnished Mark with much of his information regarding the life of Christ. Jesus quickly took command of the storm-tossed boat, the wind ceased—The coming of Christ on board brought rest to the crew and was a signal for the winds to cease. The miracles multiply Jesus walked on the waves, enabled Peter to do the same, calmed the wind and the waves and brought them quickly to the land (John 6: 21). 52. Considered not—The disciples too soon forgot the marvelous display of Divine power in the feeding of the multitude. "Hardened"—This refers to their dullness and sluggishness of comprehension rather than to the rejection of the light, and to unbelief. 53. Gennesaret—A fertile, crescent-shaped plain, on the northwestern shore of the Lake of Gennesaret, about three miles in length and one in width.—Cam. Bib. IV. Healing the sick (vs. 54-56). 54. knew him—The people knew that it was Jesus. 55. began to carry about—Sick—This was their opportunity. Jesus was there and the afflicted and their friends were determined to receive the full benefit of His presence. 56. brought him—They were in earnest, might touch—border of his garment—There was faith that the least contact with Jesus would be sufficient to cure their diseases. The crowds were great, and there seemed to be little hope of each needy one gaining the attention of Jesus, so they strove to touch his garments that virtue might reach them. were made whole—Their faith joined with Jesus' power brought results that would satisfy.

Questions—After feeding the five thousand where did Jesus send his disciples? Where did he go? Why did he go alone to pray? What was the Roman method of dividing the night? When did Jesus go to them? How did he make his appearance? What effect did his coming have on the disciples? What did Jesus say to the disciples? What two miracles occurred as soon as Jesus entered the boat? How were those present affected? What took place in Gennesaret after Jesus arrived there?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.

Topic—The sovereignty of Christ. I. Manifested to build up faith. II. Recognized in danger and distress. 1. Manifested to build up faith. The manifold and great variety of Christ's public services did not prevent him from finding opportunity for private devotion. By precept and example he impressed the necessity of secret prayer. It would seem to the disciples a matter contrary to reason for Jesus to remain alone in the desert place as night was coming on. It appears that Jesus sent his disciples away to keep them out of the way of temptation, and to give them something more to think about than the glittering allurement of worldly greatness. (John 6: 15) However delightful the company of Jesus must have been, his disciples gained more by being obediently absent from him than to have remained rebelliously near him. When his disciples were in danger of being carried away by earthly influences, Jesus sent them into trial to prove their own weakness and their need of him.

Jesus meant that His disciples should learn a lesson from that storm. The presence of danger, the confusion of the storm and the horror of darkness proved how undeveloped the disciples were for the great work for which they were set apart. The manifestation of Christ's glory that night was designed to build up His disciples in faith. The sovereignty of Christ over the forces of nature is the general truth illustrated in this miracle. The miracle of the loaves should have prepared the disciples for any further demonstration of power over nature and her laws, and sufficient to destroy all remains of doubt; but the winds often seem contrary to those who have high and earnest purposes in life. In the very crisis Jesus drew near. He filled a stronger sense than the current of that sea, and He was there to bear His disciples safely to the shore. The disciples recognized His voice, and in the midst of the storm their hearts were penetrated with a divine peace. They had not recognized His form. His coming was so unexpected and strange that instead of joy their first emotion was terror. It is Christ imperfectly known that terrifies. Christ's words were full of compassion and tender support. Phantoms and night, and storm were all forgotten at the voice of Jesus. Fear gave place to reverence for His divine power. Jesus spoke to encourage and comfort, and to give peace. The assurance of Christ's presence involves everything needed to calm the fears and soothe the sorrows of His afflicted disciples. Jesus made the waves a pavement for His feet; at His command their fury ceased; as He stepped from the tossing boat there was a great calm. His was the voice of power, of love, of wisdom. Only He can say with authority, "Be of good cheer; it is I."

Recognized in danger and distress. The hour of man's extremity is his opportunity. The fears of the disciples vanished and the wind ceased. They knew Him because He announced Himself and because of the calm that came with Him. The storm passed, but Christ remained. Danger was banished and fear gave place to living faith. A new spirit filled them and made them conquerors through Christ. They were then ready to go with Jesus among the suffering multitudes, who promptly recognized Him as a former benefactor. Wherever Jesus met the people He brought blessing, peace, health, deliverance.—T. R. A.

CREAM FOR BUTTERMAKING. As a reminder of what is good practice in the care of cream for buttermaking at this season, and to certain extent this will apply to cream used for other purposes, we reproduce the conclusions drawn from a couple of seasons' practical work by George H. Barr, Chief of the Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. "An ordinary cellar is not a good place in which to keep cream. Cream should be cooled to 55 degrees and held at that temperature to be delivered to the creamery. Every other day in a sweet condition. Setting the cream in water, or in water and ice, is the best method of cooling. Cream should only be twice a week cooled immediately after skimming at 48 or 49 degrees and held at that temperature. A refrigerator is not a good place in which to cool cream as a tank with water and ice. The natural ripening of gathered cream at the creamery will not produce butter with good keeping qualities. The use of ten per cent. of clean-flavored starter improves the flavor and keeping quality of the butter. Butter made from Pasteurized cream without a starter has better flavor and keeps longer than butter made from raw cream to which a good starter has been added, especially when the cream is tainted. Pasteurized cream, with ten per cent. of a starter added gave the best-flavored and best-keeping butter. Cleanliness and low temperature are the two most important essentials in the production of high quality butter with good keeping quality.—Farmers' Advocate.

EXPECTS GOOD PRICES FOR WINTER APPLES. In attempting to forecast the level of values likely to prevail for any crop like apples, the crop prospect is the first factor to consider. In doing this we must not ignore the abundance or scarcity of other fruits capable of substitution for apples in whole or in part. The general average condition of the Canadian apple crop may be described as fair, growth having been good and insects not naturally troublesome. The August fruit crop report rated early apples 88 per cent., the general average for the country being 85. To date of writing, conditions had not materially changed, since the issuance of that report. European prospects were below the average, the crop being decidedly short in England and Germany, the two chief apple importing countries. Later advices indicate that the war crop in Britain will be small. The outlook mean a further diminution in the apple crop. Europe, therefore, should furnish a very good market for Canada-

an apples this fall. In the Prairie Provinces markets should be good, provided the wheat harvest ends satisfactorily. Upon the general subject of price prospects we quote the opinion of a prominent fruit-grower in a fairly good position to judge:

FEEDING LAMBS.

The New Mexico Agricultural Experiment Station has been making some tests with feeding lambs, in which they found that with alfalfa hay alone, from 110 to 120 days were required to prepare lambs for the home market. The use of about one-fourth pound of grain per head per day reduced the feeding period by ten days. The use of one-half pound of grain reduced it twenty days, while with the heavy grain ration of a pound per head per day the feeding period was reduced from 70 to 50 days. The light (one-fourth pound) grain ration gave an average, but not as rapid gains as did the medium or one-half pound ration. The more grain fed, the greater was the cost of gain.—Farmers' Advocate.

WORK AND WORRY WEAKEN WOMEN

New Health and Strength Obtained by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

It is useless to tell a hard-working woman to take life easily and not to worry. Every woman at the head of a home; every girl in offices, shops and factories, is subject to more or less worry. These cannot be avoided. But it is the duty of every woman and every girl to save her strength as much as possible, and to build up her system to meet any unusual demands. Her future health depends upon it. To guard against a breakdown in health the blood must be kept rich, red and pure. Nothing can keep the blood in this condition so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They strengthen the nerves, restore the appetite, bring the glow of health to pallid cheeks, and renewed energy to listless people. Women cannot always rest when they should, but they can keep their strength and keep disease away by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Or if a breakdown has come unexpectedly they can obtain new health through this same medicine. Mrs. M. Thomas, River Street, Toronto, says: "For several years I was almost a constant invalid, unable to do my housework and spending much of my time in bed. My nerves seemed worn out and I was so run down that all my friends thought I was in a hopeless decline. I was as pale as a corpse; I was so bloodless that if I cut my finger it would not bleed; my limbs were swollen far beyond their usual size. At the least exertion my heart would palpitate violently, and I frequently had fainting spells. I was under treatment by good doctors, but it did me no good. Then one day my husband brought home some Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I began taking them. They seemed to go to the root of the trouble, and in the course of a few weeks the improvement of my health was quite plain. Gradually as I continued taking the pills the swelling of my limbs disappeared; the weak spells came less and less frequently; my appetite greatly improved, and finally I was completely cured and able to do my housework with ease. Later, my daughter, Elma, seemed to be troubled with anemias, and was given the Pills, with the same good results." Why suffer in any way when you can begin curing yourself to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOOLING WITH GUN

Thorold Student in Niagara Falls University Shot.

Niagara Falls, Ont., despatch: While toying with a revolver this afternoon Joseph Connelly shot and perhaps mortally wounded Patrick Manley, 17 years old, son of Edward Manley, a lumber merchant of Thorold, Ont. Both boys are students at Niagara University, and the shooting occurred in the basement of one of the buildings on the grounds. Manley was brought to St. Mary's Hospital here, and tonight lies in Walter Ascott took his automobile statement. Manley says that he, Connelly, whose home is in Rochester, N. Y., were in the trunk room in the basement of the dormitory examining their revolvers and discussing them at their leisure. Four other students were looking on, and they were all in a circle. Suddenly there was a report from the revolver in Connelly's hand, and Manley sank to the floor, with a bullet wound in the lower left side of his abdomen.

STOP! READ! AND CONSIDER!

NEVER FAILS TO CURE Messrs. The Sanol Manufacturing Co., Gentlemen—For some years past I have suffered with my kidneys. About eight months ago I had acute inflammation of these organs, when I was ordered to bed by the medical man attending me. I received considerable relief, but after a few weeks the trouble started again. It was then that I decided to try "Sanol," which I had both read and heard of. After taking two bottles I felt very much better, and my condition rapidly improved. When I had taken the contents of eight bottles I felt better than I had done for some years, for my kidney trouble had entirely left me. It is now about three months since I finished with the medicine and I am enjoying the best of health. I intend to visit you in the course of a few days to make arrangements for sending eight or ten bottles to my brother in England, who is anxious to benefit by your wonderful remedy. I am, gentlemen, Yours truly, G. Henry Wagg.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 17th, 1912. The Sanol Manufacturing Co., Winnipeg, Man.

Dear Sir—Your Sanol has cured my husband and son. I might tell you one of our best doctors in our city had prepared him for an operation, so I thought I would see what Sanol would do. I had no faith in him, but to our surprise it made a well man of him. I am sure we had ten doctors to see him, all might tell me to see him, but our doctor said the operation was the only thing which he would not stand. Thanking you for your patience and trouble with him, and I will always stand for Sanol. I might tell you my husband is in his eightieth year. Yours truly, Mrs. Wilson, 141 Main Street East, Hamilton, Ont.

SANOL is the positive cure for Gall Stones, Kidney and Bladder Stones, Kidney Trouble, Gravel, Lumbago, Allments of Uric Acid origin. Over 1,000 cures were reported in six months. Price, $1.50 per bottle, from druggists. Booklet free to sufferers. The Sanol Manufacturing Co., of Canada, Limited, Winnipeg, Man. Another sure cure is Sanol's Anti-Diabetic for Diabetics.

BOOK STAINS. To remove ink stains from books, take a quantity of oxalic acid, diluted with water, applied with a camel hair pencil, and absorbed with blotting paper; two applications will remove all traces of the ink.

THE DEAREST GIRL IN THE WORLD

"Well, not quite. Sprague sent me word when the operation was to be performed, and I hired the attendant to note carefully every word uttered by the patient. He has reported to me. Dr. Sprague performed the operation most successfully, and the man so fully recovered his memory that he said every thing seemed like a dream to him. He called your name several times; said Dorothy was heiress of Robert Home; said something about Madam Brown's school and the name of Dunraven. I have thought over the case carefully, and I think the girl was put in Madam Brown's school for young ladies, and that she very likely changed her name to Dunraven. I think we have a very strong clue to work from."

Lord Wedderburn was delighted. He could hardly restrain himself from going at that moment. The solicitor saw this, and laughed. "Be cool and calm; there is more surety in it. My advice is that we end out two good men from Scotland Yard, and let them do the work for us. They are keener and more used to the business than we are, and more reliable at this kind of business, but the strangest of all is that Dorothy is heiress of the late Robert Home. I cannot see into this part of the story, but it makes it imperative for us to find this Dorothy."

Lord Wedderburn concluded to wait in London for a day or two to hear from the first steps taken. The detectives reported to him very soon. There had been a delicate, frail girl at Madam Brown's, by the name of Dunraven. This was a good beginning, to be sure, and Lord Wedderburn was delighted beyond measure. He felt happier than he had for years. There was, at last, a faint hope for him. The thought that Dorothy could be the heiress of Robert Home, deceased, he rather regarded as a strange hallucination of a diseased brain. That must be an utter impossibility, since he had known Dorothy from her earliest childhood. He was convinced that she was in some way related to Dame Wynter. He could not believe that she was the child of his uncle, Robert Home. He returned to Castle Royal and his guests. His heart was filled with hope now. He was gazing at last, at a good beginning. Lady Alicia was mystified beyond measure. She could not understand him. He had admitted that he loved some one very dearly, and felt that she must be was the presumable heiress? There was the slightest scorn perceptible in her tones. "Yes, the same, mother." "Well, I for one will never believe it. Still, I can't tell why, but I do feel so thankful that you did not marry Miss McRay, or any one else. That girl is about grown now, and she was very pretty indeed when I saw her. In fact, I was decidedly impressed with her dainty, patrician manners. Don't you understand, Reginald, if it should happen to be true that the girl is the heiress of Robert Home, we are not lost yet? You certainly might win her for a wife, and save us."

Lord Wedderburn wanted to tell her his secret, but what if he found Dorothy and she were already married to another person? The law was most flexible, and so long a time had elapsed since that simple ceremony that she might have been freed from those hateful bonds, or what if he found her and she scorned relationship to him? He thought of all this and decided to wait yet a little longer. He feared to think that Dorothy was the heiress of Sir Robert Home, for if this should be true, he would lose her, for there was that awful act of folly in leaving her alone with trouble and death surrounding her. He lost hope for he felt that she would never forgive him that. "He lost all hope, if this was true. His mother, Lady Home, felt now that she must act. If this girl, Dorothy Wynter, was some heiress, she must assist her son to win her. This girl must be found, if she were among the living. When the season in town began, Lady Home had resolved to go to their town residence for the season. She would be up and doing now, since she must help to save the dear old home."

"I do hope the girl is passable looking," she thought. It would be so much easier for her to take her to heart. One evening just as they were about to leave Castle Royal for town, the detectives reported to Lord Wedderburn. They had found a girl, a Miss Dunraven, was a school girl at Madam Brown's. The girl had been very frail and delicate, and was sick the greater part of the time. She was removed from school to lodgings and grew weak and died, and was buried in the Dunraven vault. Lord Wedderburn was so completely stricken with the news that he could not speak. The old thought verified. Dorothy was dead, he still owner of Castle Royal, but he had lost Dorothy, and he would gladly have given up Castle Royal for her dear sake. He had lost her, but he had not lost her. There was nothing more to be done. Death ended his life's love, as it fell else.

Ly Alicia Home was soon comfortably settled in her town house. The girl promised to be one of the gayest nuns for years. There was a lot of butantes. There was wealth and unlimited. It has always seemed to Lady Alicia every good came when she was powerless to accept. Among all this gay throng, there was one she could take for a daughter. She must wait for the poor, unvetted and unsophisticated child of the pensioner and tenant, Lady Home on the wane, and the young people had become almost tired out, there was a new star on the heavens of some. "A brighter one never had," said every one that saw her. She was Agatha Somerville Drake, Prioresse Somerville Moreton, and Angermoreville Heathcote had gone up to and taken possession of their love.

Let Your Chickens Feed Themselves

Many amateur chicken farmers are tied down to the home for fear the chickens will have to go hungry if there is no one around to feed them. One brainy chicken farmer devised this fountain feeder, which the chickens operate. His chickens have food when they want it, and never is there too much left on the ground to get mouldy and cause ill-health among the flock and never an evening is there any grain on the ground to tempt rats.

The device is a galvanized iron supply fountain which is filled with grain and which has at its base a revolving toothed wheel mounted on an extremely sensitive, though very strong and durable, bearings. A light shaft extends down from this wheel to a cylinder made of wire mesh. This cylinder is filled with grain also, but the mesh is so close it cannot fall out. The machine is just so mounted that the cylinder is just the height of a chicken's head. The chickens see the grain in the cylinder and peck at it. The slightest touch on the cylinder causes the wheel to revolve and this throws the grain out against an inverted cone which scatters it if over the ground. As soon as the wheel stops revolving, and the weight of the grain stops it very quickly, the supply is shut off until another chicken pecks at the cylinder.

THE DEAREST GIRL IN THE WORLD

ly old home on Ratcliffe Terrace. There was no grander old home in grand old London. It had been refurbished and renovated, it had been unoccupied these many long years. The ladies had come to town to bring their niece, Miss Roslyn. The Somervilles were of the ancient aristocracy, and found themselves once more into the ceaseless whirl of society. This their great age rendered irksome, but they decided to do all possible for Dorothy's sake. Lord Wedderburn had gone to Castle Royal for a few days. On his return he was greeted everywhere with something about the new young society queen.

"How can you stay away? I tell you, Wedderburn, she is the fairest and sweetest piece of humanity I ever met," said Captain C. "She is divine," pronounced Lord Ely, who seldom grew enthusiastic over any body of anything. "You should meet her," said one. "I would not go, but for the hope of meeting her, one seldom finds such unlimited wealth and beauty," said another.

Lord Wedderburn heard all this, but his heart seemed dead within him. He had not the faintest desire to meet the new queen. He shunned those places she would be most likely to be. He did not care to meet her. He frequently took his mother to these parties, and sat about in the smoking or billiard men. Once he was thus engaged, and a young man entered the room. He was exceedingly angry. "He is an unmitigated scoundrel, and I shall demand justice," he said. "What is your trouble, young man?" asked the elderly gentleman. "I had engaged that last dance with Miss Roslyn, and the Duke of Avonshire was beside himself that she stole my dance. It shall cost us something before this is settled," he said, angrily.

Lord Wedderburn laughed. He could not understand how two persons could fight over a dance. "Must be exceedingly precious affair, that of a dance, when one would almost give a life for it, but?" said the elderly gentleman, with a laugh. "I never felt interested enough to care to see this new belle, but I must say I do, now," said Lord Wedderburn, but when he went into the dancing room Miss Roslyn had gone into another. His mother was most comely seated with three or four other ladies, but he did not draw very near, until she beckoned him to join them. When Lady Alicia introduced him to the ladies, they were exceedingly nervous and looked at him with a strange possible manner. Lord Wedderburn expressed his admiration for the young man, and he complimented the ladies on their beauty. As they were going home, Lady Alicia said: "I am so sorry we did not find an opportunity of an introduction to Miss Roslyn. In all my life I never saw a more beautiful creature. I sat there for hours waiting to be introduced, but found no opportunity. She completely shadowed all the others there. You never saw such a face! There is something about it that fascinated me, and those old ladies certainly were awfully and happy with them, and another a wrap, they should get and get. They show their great love and admiration so unmistakably that it quite a beautiful sight. Oh! Reginald, I would be so happy if only had a girl like this, a daughter-in-law. You must meet her."

"I never saw you so enthusiastic before, either," said Lady Home. "I never had such a lovely subject before, either," said Lord Wedderburn. Reginald Home made up his mind to go to the city and find out what had turned every head. "In all my life I never saw such a rich and exquisite taste she displays in dress. One night she was attired in a delicate gown, almost as pale and delicate as lace, and she wore the overdress of rich old gold. Her hair was surely worth its weight in gold. Her half-golden hair was wreath around her throat lay coiled rich old pearls, and a coronet of them nestled in her hair. Beautiful! You should have seen her! Her dress was a dream in snowy white. Her hair was a dream of satin and fine old lace, and a quiet of daintiest flowers at her belt. They say she has the finest diamonds in London, and Aunt Emily says they are very much like the Dunraven diamonds."

The name caught Lord Wedderburn's ear. Dunraven was the name connected with his Dorothy. Perhaps this girl might know something of those other Dunravens. He would go to meet her, their name. He would go to meet her, had such a great desire to meet her that he went night after night to the places she would most likely go, but for some reason she was not there. A few days later, he remembered that the bottom of the car was written, "The beautiful Miss Roslyn." "There she is," whispered Lady Alicia Home to her son. "When they met the aunts of Miss Roslyn, he saw a most peculiar expression on their faces. It seemed to be one of fear. It puzzled Lord Wedderburn, greatly. His mother made her way to their side and they soon joined in pleasant converse. Lord Wedderburn stole out of the room, that he might escape for a few moments hearing her praise, sung by any and all of the young men around town. He felt that she, in some mysterious way, was his, and he felt that she felt somewhat angry about it. Miss Roslyn was not dancing. She sat in the fernery now, eating an apple.

MOTHERS! DO YOU KNOW

That when you put a salve onto your child's skin, it passes through the pores and enters the blood, just as surely as if you put it into the child's stomach? You would not put a coarse mass of animal fat, colored by various mineral poisons (such as many crude salves are) into your child's blood by way of the stomach? Then why do so by way of the pores?

Take no risk. Use always the pure herbal essences provided in Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal oil or fat, and no poisonous mineral coloring matter. From start to finish it is purely herbal. It will heal sores, ulcers, abscesses, eruptions, various sores, cuts, burns and bruises more quickly than any other known preparation. It is antiseptic, quickly stops the smarting of a sore or cut, cures piles, inflamed sores and blood-poisoning. It is a combination of healing power and scientific purity. Ask those who have proved it.

There was a stone seat, and on this she sat. Above and below her were delicate ferns, while on every side were delicate trailing vines. She looked like a fairy princess sitting there. Lord Wedderburn stood at the door and saw her face. There was something about the face so like his Dorothy that he reeled and fell to the floor. He was carried unconscious to the room and did not leave it for a few days afterward.

Lady Alicia was beside herself with grief. "My poor, darling boy!" she cried. "Do not let him die." Lord Wedderburn was soon restored, and felt quite well again; but he could not resist that delicate, haunting face that so strongly reminded him of Dorothy. "I can not go again, Aunt; I can not do it," Dorothy Roslyn cried to her aunt. "I am sure I must have when I fell, I am sure I must have screamed until all around noticed it. I cannot do this—it is impossible." "My darling, if you give way now, he will draw his own conclusions; he will be well and he will be less likely to know you. It has been so long, and you must have changed greatly. I doubt if he can recognize you now."

CEMENT ON FARM. New Uses Being Found Each Year.

Each year concrete is more extensively used on the farm for foundation walls for buildings, for cisterns, for adobe, for stable floors, for walks about the house, for porch steps and numerous other purposes. It is a step that has durability and attractiveness to recommend it. When properly put down, concrete proves to be both economical and permanent. It is estimated that concrete work for foundations, which includes both material and labor, will cost from 27 to 30 cents per cubic foot. The labor for mixing and placing concrete is about 10 to 12 cents per cubic foot. Concrete collar floors and walks, four inches thick, cost from $1.10 to $1.50 per square yard. The best concrete is made of Portland cement, sand and crushed rock. Sand taken from a pit is best. It should be free from such foreign matter as clay, soil, sticks, leaves or rubbish. Where river bottom sand is required, river bottom sand should not be used. Sand that is coarse, clean and sharp will give the most satisfactory results. As a test of sand, rub it in the hand, and if there is much dirt left on the hand, discard that sand. If, when a handful of the same is thrown into a pail of water, it leaves the water muddy, discard it. A dirty sand makes a weak concrete. Crushed rock is much better than screened gravel, because of the rougher edges. The rock sometimes known as aggregate concrete is broken up into irregular pieces having rough, clean surfaces.

Following are the four recognized mixtures for concrete: 1. Rich mixture—One part Portland cement, two parts of clean, coarse sand, four parts crushed rock. This is used for floors, fence post, etc. 2. Medium mixture—One, two and one-half and five parts, respectively, of cement, sand and crushed rock. This mixture is used for walks, the walls, etc. 3. Ordinary mixture—One, three, six; for heavy walls, pier, abutments, etc. 4. Lean mixture—One, four, eight; for

Terrible Itching Got Little Sleep

Those who have suffered long and hopelessly from torturing skin eruptions will read with interest this letter from Mr. T. Williams, 1112 Pacific Ave., Winnipeg (dated Jan. 14, 1911): "The Cuticura Remedies certainly did work finely, and I am thankful that the cure is such a remedy, and that I tried it. About three months ago a terrible itching commenced on my body. I could not understand it. It gradually grew worse and covered a large portion of my body. There was also a slight eruption of the skin, sort of a rash. I suffered greatly with the itching, and at night time I had little sleep. I tried one or two remedies which did no good, and then I tried Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent. In about ten days I was completely cured."

Mr. T. Williams, Winnipeg.

Until Cuticura Remedies Cured Him

For more than a generation the Cuticura Remedies have afforded the speediest and most economical treatment for itching, burning, scaly and bleeding skin and scalp humors, of young and old. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. RECRUITS FOR ZIONISM.

Conspicuous Change in Attitude of Some Jewish Organizations.

A remarkable change has recently come over the attitude of several public bodies and organs of public opinion towards the widespread movement known as Zionism. The Alliance Israelite of Paris, which has always hitherto opposed the movement, has changed its attitude and the Israelite of Cincinnati have in recent issues renounced their former anti-Zionist attitude and declared at least a platonic friendship toward Zionism. In the two latter cases the reason for the change is given with some plausibility; these papers declare that while Zionism was purely political and confined on the late Dr. Herzl, they were opposed to it, as they were considered any political aspirations of Jews both futile and dangerous. But it is contended by these organs that at the late tenth congress the political side of Zionism was practically buried, and they feel therefore at liberty to express the sympathy they have hitherto managed to conceal so successfully with the sentimental Zionism that looks with love, but not with desire, toward the land of the fathers.

It will be difficult to prove the contention that the late Congress made any such fundamental change in the principles of Zionism. It recognized that in the present condition of Turkey the immediate application of Dr. Herzl's ideas would be impracticable, but so far as we could discern, the final aim of the movement, as interpreted by the Congress, remained the same, and Zionism remains as national as it ever was. Perhaps a more complete explanation of the remarkable volte face made by these journals as well as by the alliance is the discovery that they have made that the moral ideal spirits of the younger generation are almost without exception Zionist in spirit and that if they kept up their attitude of opposition they would find themselves left in the lurch. —American Hebrew.

THE UNICORN.

Among the pictures and descriptions of the visit of the King of England to India you have probably noticed everywhere the British coat of arms, which is popularly described as a lion and a unicorn, fighting for a crown. Every one knows what a lion is, and one can see a specimen any day at the zoological park, but did you ever stop to ask yourself where you could find such an animal as a unicorn?

People once believed there really was such an animal, and a writer in the time of Queen Elizabeth mentions having seen the horn of this famous animal the Queen's court, the specimen being valued at $50,000 of American money. This has since been shown to be the spiral horn of a buck of a species of porcupine called a narwhal.

The unicorn was supposed to live in the jungles of India, in Arabia or in Morocco, and the story was that no person in man's clothing could approach it, yet it was sometimes captured by strategists, but only at the risk of the hunter's life. According to tradition, the hunter would disguise himself as a woman and saturate his dress with a powerful perfume. He would then lie down quietly and would wait for days or weeks in some place that the unicorn was supposed to frequent and if one happened to pass that way he would be attracted by the odor and would linger about until it fell asleep. If the hunter then had sufficient strength and courage to grasp it firmly by the horn with both hands and put his own weight upon it, the unicorn would always be torn from its tormentor. This accounts for the fact that the animal itself was never captured, only the horn.

As anything from such far off lands as India and Arabia were readily believed in those days, it was not difficult to pass off the tale of an unicorn, and one doubted that the two animals in the British coat of arms were real beings.

There's a heap of difficulties and some troubles now and then; There's some punk hotels and dinners and a host of things undraped of keep the talent in the dumps; But the speaker would be happy if he thought his little stunt Were half as entertaining as the audience in front. —John D. Wells.

IN SPITE OF IT. The Louisville Courier-Journal quotes with approval the saying that nations are withered, housed and clothed by legislation. Queer! Generally they acquire the necessary necessities in spite of it.

MOST LIKELY. (Cochester Herald.) A man out west traded his wife for a horse the other day. It may turn out that the woman got the better of that bargain.

MAXWELL'S HIGH SPEED CHAMPION

Is the Washer for a Woman. In the first place, Maxwell's "Champion" is the only washer that can be worked with a crank handle at the side as well as with the top lever. Just suit your own convenience. Another Maxwell feature—Lever and Balance Wheel are accurately adjusted and work so smoothly that the washer runs along even when you have stopped working the lever. There's no "down" in Maxwell's "Champion" being the easiest turning washer on the market. Write for new illustrated prospectus if you desire. Does not cost more than a good washing machine. ## MEN—YOU NEED NERVE

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early indiscretions and excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, painful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

THE LOCAL FAIRS

That the Weather Clerk doesn't like fall fairs was made abundantly evident by the kind of weather he served up for the local events. Lansdowne was drowned out, Lvdhurst was flooded, Delta was drenched, and Frankville was badly sprinkled.

In spite of all this, the different boards are not discouraged and look forward to better luck next year.

Hundreds testified their loyalty to Delta Fair last week by disregarding the weather and attending both Tuesday and Wednesday and the directors presented all the programme possible. The racing events result-d as follows:

Green Race
Crazy Jane (Ross) Athens... 1 2 2 1
Frank L. (Wallace) Perth... 3 3 3 2

Frankville fared rather better than the others in the matter of weather and there was a large attendance on the last day. A good programme of entertaining events was presented and the day was thoroughly enjoyed. The racing events were keenly contested and finished as follows:

PHILIPPSVILLE

The continued wet weather has been a great drawback to farming. There is a large amount of grain standing in the fields yet and the most of it is growing. Grain that has been threshed is wet and musty.

There has not been much ploughing done yet, as in many places the soil is too wet.

Wesley Tackberry has purchased the Algure farm, adjoining the village, from Miss Amanda Algure.

Miss Verna Davison, Watertown, N.Y., Mrs Clifford Ransom and boys of Vancouver, and Miss L. M. Blackburn of Frankville are the guests of their grandfather and uncle, W. B. Phelps, for a few weeks.

Mr and Mrs Cook, Lansdowne, are the guests of her sister, Mrs. W. W. Topping.

Miss Pearl Seed of Chantry is the guest of her sister, Mrs Harry Wood, for a few days.

Mr and Mrs Wm Gibson, Chantry, paid their daughter, Mrs Wesley Tackberry a visit on Saturday.

W. B. Phelps will unload another car of flour and feed this week.

W. Chase's hired man was driving to the whey tank when the king-bolt broke, letting both driver and can fall on the horse's heels. The horse sprang over Henry Bolton's wagon and dumped his cans. The man got some bad cuts and was rather badly shaken up.

SUNNY ALBERTA

We take the liberty of publishing the following paragraphs from a letter written by Mr E. S. Clow to a friend under date of Sept. 19 :—

This is certainly a great country, and Calgary is a great city. One has to see it to believe the development going on. They are putting down street pavement by the mile, and I understand will have some 40 miles this fall, and in the neighborhood of 125 miles of sewer and water mains. The city is operating about 50 miles of street railway, which has paid from the start, and last month showed a net profit above operating expense of over $18,000. What strikes a newcomer is the evident desire of the city to furnish every municipal facility (water, sewer, light, street paving and railway, and schools; all municipally owned) to each community as fast as there is any settlement of people there. The frame cottage school is soon followed by a very substantial big stone building, until they now have some 24 schools within the city limits. In this connection however should say that there is need of a shaking up among the printers, as school books are about what they were under the old trust regime in Ontario. They also charge a fee of $1.50 per month to all pupils at the High School which seems a hardship to an Ontario party. They seem to have a good teaching staff, however.

We are cooking and have a hot water heater run by natural gas, piped from Bow Island, about 170 miles East of here, which costs 35c. per M., and is very satisfactory. We expect to use it for heating also, and are assured that it is to be cheaper than other fuel, but are waiting for some of the other citizens to try it out first.

I heard all the way out that Calgary was dead, but with big corporations like the C. P. R. and Hudson's Bay Co., spending on a new hotel and store two millions and one million respectively, and the Southams of Hamilton, who own the big Daily Herald here, spending near another million on the new Herald building and a new block for the Calgary Furniture Store, it does not look very dead to me. Then last night it was announced that the Royal Bank has purchased the old store of the Hudson's Bay, for $4,000 a foot frontage, and will erect a big building there. The Merchants Bank will start a new building the first of Oct. to cost some $400,000, on the site of the old Royal Hotel, corner 1st, East and 8th, Ave. These and other business buildings in addition to the millions being spent on apartment houses and private dwellings. In spite of it all, it is almost impossible to get a house to rent, and all of the many apartment houses have long waiting lists, for 3 to 5 room suites, renting from $80.00 to $75.00 per month. Common laborers draw 35c, carpenters 50c, and brick layers 70c per hour, and other trades in proportion. In consequence, living is high; rents run $30 to $75 for 4 to 9 room houses, according to location. Provisions are high too; better cuts of meat running 24c to 28c, butter 30c, fresh eggs 40c milk 10c, bread 10c, potatoes 75c for the B.C. variety. And then fruit and vegetables are sold by the pound. Imagine getting 3 to 6 lbs of cooking apples for 25c. But in spite of it all "everybody's doing it" and all look happy and prosperous. The spirit of optimism seemingly won't down.

Business of all kinds is flourishing, from the little shoe-shine stand to the big department stores, not forgetting the restaurants and hotels, which are the busiest of them all. There are real estate brokers galore, and while they have been having a quiet summer the legitimate brokers are doing business right along. Things in that line seem to have undergone a wedding process and the sky-line subdivision artists have mostly departed to other fields of operations. There is good demand for legitimate inside property and close-in lots for building purposes, and investment chances are good for a reasonably good profit, on a healthy and conservative basis. Eastern people should beware, however, of the lots being offered down there, and should investigate before buying, as even with the very rapid growth of Western cities, it will be years and in some cases never will these lots be needed for building purposes.

The weather here has been fine ever since Stampede week, and the Alberta crops are all safe for this season, with a better than average yield and of superior grade. We had a couple of nights of a few degrees of frost, last Saturday and Sunday, but the grain was too far advanced to be injured, although the truck garden farmers will be heavy losers. Was talking to a farmer who lives some 20 miles out, who claims that in the 12 years he has been here he has had but one crop failure, the season of 1910, and the average yield of wheat runs about 30 bus to the acre. The tendency is rather to mixed farming, which I believe will eventually become general. Business opportunities are good for the bright energetic man, especially if he has a little capital, and exceptionally so for the builder, as homes are in great demand, and with the ready sale he does not need much capital. However, the business, and succeeding, who had little or no experience in that line before coming here. Once you have title to a lot, it is easy to erect the building and get a loan, then with a ready sale at a profit he gets his money out and starts another.

THE MacFADDENS

Master F. Ray MacFadden and Muriel K. MacFadden, who appear in the opera House, Athens, to-morrow night, Oct. 3, have appeared in Ottawa on three occasions and each time entertained a full house.

Master Ray will appear as a farmer, a sailor, a Scotch-kiltie, etc., with a change of costume with each number, while his 12 year old sister takes her part like an expert. A concert for young and old. Come and hear these wonders.

Admission, 15c and 25 cents. No reserve seats.

Important Sale

At the farm of A. Taylor & Son, two miles West of Athens, on Thursday, Oct. 10 there will be sold by auction 50 head of cattle, 10 horses, 6 buggies, 2 heavy spring wagons, 2 lumber wagons, cultivator and 2 horse rakes.

Some extra fine animals are included in this offering and buyers should not fail to attend the sale. Usual liberal terms.

Institute Meeting

The meeting of the Women's Institute, held in the high school hall on Saturday, was well attended, which showed the growing interest taken in the work of the Institute by the Athenians. An interesting and instructive programme was presented.

A vocal solo was given by Miss Culbert and a violin solo by Miss Botomley, both of which were exceedingly well rendered.

Dr. Hamilton gave an educative talk on "The maintenance of individual health."

Miss Minnie Mackay gave a very practical talk on "Woman's place in the world," and the views expressed were highly commended by the ladies in attendance.

Calgary City Investments

Inside revenue producing property or close in building lots on sewer and water, offer exceptionally good investments at present.

Building this year already exceeds the whole of 1911, and will total about $18,000,000 for 1912.

Bumper crop now safe in Alberta and business will boom when it is marketed. An investment now will show results that will justify further business.

I will invest your money in sums of $500 and up, using best judgement with a view to future business, acting solely as your agent, on a commission of 5 per cent, advising when to re-sell and looking after your best interests in every way.

Have on list now some excellent buys, but advise promptly action. Money brings 8 per cent on first class mortgages and a much higher rate on purchase of agreements for sale.

Advise me amount you have for investment, or better still send cheque, as real snaps for ready cash are frequently offered.

Correspondence invited. Beware of rank outside lots being peddled in the East.

Write for the "Concrete Book"

IN Canada, where the winters are long and cold, houses must be solid and substantial. No "gingerbread frills," such as distinguish California bungalows, can be permitted. Canadian homes should be built to defy wind and cold, to keep warm inside when it's thirty below out-doors.

IT is because Concrete, of all materials, best withstands wind, water and cold, that it is fast becoming popular with Canadian home-builders. Concrete houses are warm in winter, requiring less coal for heating; they are cool in time and exposure to the elements.

VERY attractive architectural effects may be obtained with Concrete, especially for houses in the country, where the rough concrete surface harmonizes with its surroundings.

SINCE it never requires repair, the first cost of a concrete residence is its last cost; and it is cheaper, for this reason, than any other kind of home.

NOT only is Concrete the best material for house-building, it may also be used in place of other work around the house and on the farm. For each of these purposes it is the best material known.

If you haven't investigated the use of Concrete around the home and on the farm, write now for our free book, which tells all about the mixing and placing of Concrete, and describes hundreds of practical uses for it. Just say "Send me your book" in a letter or on a post card, and the book will be sent you absolutely free.

HOW THEY WORKED IT

(Rochester Herald.) When a good looking, prettily dressed young woman entered a St. Paul street car at Avenue A, the other day, the newspaper man looked at her as she worked her way gradually along the aisle to a seat. But when all the women that she passed nudged one another and smiled, he looked a second time, and when several of the women giggled and gave one another a rather knowing wink, the reporter looked a third time, and then began to wonder what was the matter. There was no "April Fool" sign pinned on her, her waist did not gape in the back and none of her puffs were loose, nor the end of her switch showing. These are a few of the things that a woman knows delight women when they discover them on one of their dearest friends.

Trust a woman's eyes for seeing things and to do her justice; trust a woman's ingenuity to straighten things out, when she wants to. What was the trouble? Well, it seems from what one woman told another that the young lady had her dress skirt on wrong side out. "You tell her," said one woman. "Oh, I couldn't," said the other. "Well, someone ought to tell her; she may be going down town shopping, and just think how she will feel if she discovers it on the street; you tell her."

"No, you could do it better." Finally they both decided to tell her. Up the aisle they struggled, and one of the women bent down and whispered the awful news. "Well, someone ought to tell her; she may be going down town shopping, and just think how she will feel if she discovers it on the street; you tell her."

It must have been a staggerer, for the poor girl gave one little scream as if she had looked down and seen a snake instead of a skirt, wrong side out, and then she asked in fearful tone, loud enough for everyone to hear: "Oh, what am I going to do?"

The men in the car got nervous, and fidgeted around, but the women went into secret session then and there and what with much whispering and nodding of heads, a plan was arranged and put into execution, on the spot. The woman sat in the seat with the wrong-side-out victim, got out into the aisle and the two women who sat in front of her stood up, and one of the women across the aisle stood up with the girl's seat mate. And then there came a glimpse of a big black hat being taken off and handed to another woman back of the crowd of sympathizers, a long, envelope appearing white arrangement came up next, disappeared, came up again and again disappeared, carefully guided by friendly hands. In less time than it takes to tell it, the women resumed their seats and the girl sat there as smiling and contented as could be.

One thing seemed to mystify all the women, and they asked one another quite audibly: "What in goodness name was she thinking about while she was dressing, not to have discovered those seams?"

What mystifies the newspaper man is the question: If a woman can dress and do it in such limited time and space, why a man has always to wait around an hour, when he is going to take her anywhere and she is upstairs putting on her "hat"?

THE PRESENT. What is wanted in the present day is a finer sense of proportion. We do not divide the word of truth rightly. We are lop-sided and heavy and out of trim. The traditions of the fathers have too great a hold upon us, we attend to the process, when we should be careful only of the result. New knowledge should grow out of the old, the new wine is bursting the old skin bottles. What is the past to us? May we not transform our shadowy heroes into shining myths, whose conceptions shall be modern and whose moral usefulness shall help the present men?

We need to apply this rule of proportion to the Master's day, and not the great difficulty. He had with His disciples: "How is it that ye do not understand, how long shall I be with you? The Holy Ghost's work is not fully accomplished at Pentecost; it is not finished to-day. God has more truth to shine out of His Word. The stop was not put upon His teaching when the canon of Scripture was closed. Some are so conservative that there is no progress in their nature. It is impossible to put this point in language clearer or stronger than that which Max Nordau uses in "The Interpretation of History."

"The historical sense is an artificial product of the ruling classes, who use it as a means for investing the existing order, which is advantageous to them."

elves alone, with a mystic and a poetic charm, for beautification of abuses by the glorification of their origin, and for casting a glamor of half tender, half reverential awe over institutions that have long lost any reasonable justification and become useless and meaningless.

Surely we do not live in cycles; we do not stand to-day precisely where any historic nation stood in a past age? Therefore, the man who is capable of being most useful to his country, to his race, to-day, is the man who has no restricting veneration; for the past who realizes his responsibility, and does not go running to history as a child to ask his father what he shall do.

Our duty is to serve our own generation; we are called to be Presentists. We are children of God. With Him is no past and no future. He says: "I am that I am"; and so many we say the same, because our spirit is from Him. We live in a day called Now. When tomorrow comes, it will be to-day. If holiness is imperative, you must be holy to-day. If you are perfect in Christ, you must be perfect Now. How can it be otherwise? You cannot divide Christ. The poor Levite divided his concubine into twelve pieces and sent each piece to the twelve tribes to accentuate his grief, but you cannot so divide Christ. You must have all or nothing, and you must have it now. The reason why you see so many small Christians is because their receptivity is small. They show a little Christ because their hearts are diminutive.

Heaven is not a land very far off, it is near—it is here, it is in you. The Kingdom of God is within; there is no show; it cometh not by observation, but it is real, and real for ever. "God will answer every prayer; God is present everywhere." H. T. Miller.

THE PASSING OF THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN. (New York Sun.) By slow but steady decline the doctor who was wont to share the joys and more abundant sorrows of the family is disappearing from the scene of our afflictions. Another ideal closely entwined with the life of every man or woman is succumbing to the tendencies of the age. The eloquent and sympathetic deacons of Ian McLaren and Robert Louis Stevenson have perpetuated in modern literature the ideal of the lovable type of man, and it is sad to note his threatened disappearance. This transition has not yet reached the rural communities. There the family doctor, who in childhood was dreaded because of his poisonous drugs, but was loved more deeply as the years passed during which he was the first to greet one in this world and the last upon whom the darkening vision of loved ones rested, this sympathetic counsellor in sorrow is still firmly entrenched in trusting hearts. In large urban centres, however, the family doctor is rapidly passing into a distributor of cases to the specialists.

BAD TEETH. (Kingston Standard.) Of some 400 or more pupils who have been examined in the public schools up to date the astonishing revelation is made that 250 of them have defective teeth. Surely this is not a matter to be passed over lightly—that parents should be so neglectful of their children that they should allow so deplorable a condition to persist. No clearer evidence could be offered than this, of the necessity of medical inspection in the schools.

CHINESE CHILDREN. The Chinese adore their children; family life is very close, and all the members members assist in bringing up the little ones; the babies are always in the arms or on the back of mother, sister, father or brother, and as soon as they can walk, they toddle about with their elders, their little bodies trussed up in wadded clothes, and their yellow heads shaved surfaces. Until they are five or six years old, boys and girls are treated much alike. They are always underfoot, swarming on the streets and in the cramped houses of the poor, playing softly together in the many-roomed sectional mansions and garden courtyards of the rich. Their elders seem to enjoy having them about, perhaps partly because they are by instinct quieter than western children, having been trained for centuries to a code of reverence. SAVE THE CHILD. (Montreal Witness.) One of the most serious problems of the times is what to do with tuberculous children. There are those, indeed, with whom for reasons very near to them, all other problems pale before this one. How momentous is the problem of the neglected tuberculous child may be appreciated by the statistics supplied to the public some time ago by the Instructive Visiting Nurse Association, of Baltimore, when it had on its visiting list sixteen hundred and sixty-five tuberculous patients, of which one hundred and sixty-five or ten per cent. of the total, were children of and under school age. And it was estimated that the association was caring for one-third of the consumptives of Baltimore.

It was not long before the opportunity came. The Louisville man sought out the Sheriff of the young man's home county and asked: "Do you know Bill Sarkis?" "Shore, I know him."

"What kind of a young man is he?" "Pretty fair."

HER TALENT. (Pittsburg Gazette-Times.) Neither wife nor yet discerning. Consisted of such trifles as she had learned by chance. But at every step she was not witty. And you couldn't call her pretty. Yet she never lacked admirers nor for partners at a crowd.

In face and form this fairy was—well, very ordinary. Her clothes were inexpensive—the women called them loud. But at every step and party Her recreation was most hearty. From the men who all would gather about at parties at a crowd.

She was thin and soubriethish, and just a bit coquetish. But for music, art and letters she had no gift at all. Her fortune was most meager. Yet all the men seemed eager. On the slightest provocation at her little feet to fall.

Her cooking was atrocious. It would make a man ferocious; But by men this girl was voted a most engaging wife. Yes, every man who knew her. Persistently would woo her. For she was his next attention while he talked about himself!

If I were a great supreme power, a power as great as both Houses of Parliament for a single day, I would exercise in the direction of the reform of the divorce laws. WHEN TO EXERCISE. Tips Especially Valuable to Those Who Are Not Strong. Exercise should be taken at that time of the day when the temperature is most agreeable. For example, midday in the winter; or the morning and evening in the summer season, says Health. In the morning of winter the atmosphere is too cool for any but the soundest lungs; and if the weather be not frosty, there is more or less moisture in the air, which is unsalubrious. The evening is much more objectionable for the summer season, and not merely on account of the cold which it produces, but also from the circumstance that infectious matters are more easily inhaled and suspended by a damp than a dry air.

In large cities another objection attaches to the morning and evening, namely, the quantity of smoke retained near the earth by the cold air which becomes dissipated by the middle of the day. In the summer season the middle of the day is objectionable from its great heat, and the night air from the fogs and mists which collect near the earth's surface.

PIGEON FLIES WITH TRAIN. Every time a northbound passenger train leaves Marysville, Ia., over the Great Northern coast line a solitary pigeon leaves the station and accompanies the train for three miles. Railroad men have enjoyed this novel experience for many years. They look for the pigeon each day and the bird is as reliable as the train. This pigeon never failing to be on hand when the locomotive gives its preliminary puffing. No one among the train crew knows to whom the pigeon belongs or why the bird wings its flight abreast of the racing engine, but the pigeon has flown with Great Northern trains and it never fails to accompany its flight when a certain bird reaches the bluish north of Marysville—Des Moines Register.

GASOLINE. (By Howard L. Rann.) Gasoline is a pale, harmless looking fluid, which throws off untimely death and the subtle odor of the Standard Oil Company, which are good for a funeral when used to start a fire in the kitchen stove. The better grades are not so objectionable. Gasoline is used for all kinds of domestic purposes except flavoring the soup. It will burn in the bluish north of a pair of aged and decrepit pants and enable a man to go about looking like Nat. Goodwin just prior to his next marriage. If it were not for gasoline, many a husband would be going around in spotted trousers and a depressed look. Gasoline is a volatile liquid and evaporates at the rate of a mile in 38 seconds, nearly all of which are good for a funeral. That it evaporates faster than the hardware store and the house than anywhere else. The price of gasoline is regulated by supply and demand, just as the price of steel rails and beef on the hoof. Wholesale demand for college gymnasiums exceeds the supply on hand, the price of gasoline ascends in a very precise and predictable manner. If you own an automobile, this price also depends upon how far you are from home and the elastic condition of the garage proprietor. Gasoline is made by a suave and pure trust which has recently been divided into thirty-seven different varieties under one benign and benevolent head. These various branches all compete with one another with so much bitterness that as soon as one raises the price, the other add a couple of cents in order to cover depreciation and overhead expense. Gasoline is very fast on its feet, and should never be disturbed when in the act of evaporating. It is better to lose a new gasoline stove than to have one's physique filled full of dark brown crevices.

SORROW AND HAPPINESS. The waves which sorrow lashes up around us stand high between us and the world and make our ship solitary in the midst of a haven full of vessels. —Richter.

For a man who knows how to sorrow rightly, knows how to be glad with a joy; and when he is happiest, it is as though there were a something of God throbbing in his bosom. It is as souls that we are happiest; and so suffering makes for happiness, because it helps to make the soul. Oh, what good sorrow does us, often! To many a one, while he is happy, the outer world feels eternal; but as soon as he is sorrowful, all worldly existence is only a film, because God and his soul feel so close. —William Mountford.

FOUNDING A SHEEP FLOCK.

Since the new edition of the bulletin "Sheep Husbandry in Canada" was issued a few weeks ago, there has been a constant flow of requests for it flowing into the Publications Branch at Ottawa. A great many of the applicants state that they are just commencing, or are about to commence, sheep raising, and that they wish to learn how to handle a flock successfully. This bulletin contains a chapter specially prepared for such persons, describing how best to establish a flock of commercial sheep. The author, Mr. J. H. Spencer, recommends a flock of fifteen ewes as the minimum for a farm of one hundred acres. Such a flock can be increased with experience, but not beyond twenty to twenty-five, unless it is desired to make a special business of sheep raising. With the management and care described in the bulletin, an increase through lambs can be expected of from 150 to 175 per cent. and it should be the latter.

The early weeks of autumn is stated to be the best time to purchase ewes, as then one can select those that have raised good lambs.

Before the present edition of the bulletin is fully exhausted a still further one will be ordered, so that no one need hesitate about ordering a copy, which will be sent free to all who apply for it to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

MONEY LIKE FLOUR. Hetty's Son Says It Is Given to the Rich to be Used.

(Interview with Edward H. Green in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.) We use money because we know how. We aren't afraid of it. We're used to it. You aren't, but we know all about it. Now, I'm not afraid to handle a hundred thousand dollars. It means no more to us than so much flour to the cook. And it's the same with a million. I know how to use it. I have no use for idle people. Nor for idle pleasures—amusements that don't pay. That's why I like comedy. I don't teach some lesson. But it's a good thing to laugh and come away with that wry. Travel is no good, if you don't use it for health or something. Everything has a purpose. I used to collect rare editions. But people began to say, "Oh, he just does that because he can afford it."

The only use for money is to keep it in use. A million dollars in the bank down town means nothing—it's nonsense. But that million out earning other millions is a useful million. And it means that I know how to use it. That's my pleasure in it. Only the very poor hoard their money.

I have an extravagant people. We think too much about clothes, but yet that's only human nature. The same impulse that makes a man buy a new suit, makes a woman buy a new dress. The only people who get fine clothes are those who still have to pay for them. They think the clothes look like success. But it's nice to be called a Yankee, just the same. I never have any ambition. I want to own a big house some day and cruise for six weeks. I'd like that! I'd like to have some pictures of it and draw the plant—it's to be the biggest yacht ever made, and everything in it is to be a few thousand dollars more than in other yachts. I don't want to bump my head going through doors. No! Maybe it won't ever be anything else. I'll try my mind. If I had it I'd get tired of it.

"Well, I can't say that I am, dear. At first your father wouldn't listen to me."

"Why didn't you tell him that you had $2,500 in the bank, as I told you to?" she exclaimed. "I did, after all else had failed," answered George, dejectedly. "And what did he do then?" "Do?" echoed the young man, passing his hand wearily through his hair. "He borrowed it!"

WANT CENSOR FOR THEATRES

Methodist Moral Reformers to Ask for Officer.

TO FIGHT TOBACCO

Will Establish Homes for Social Outcasts.

Toronto despatch.—At the opening session of the annual meeting of the Methodist Department of Temperance and Moral Reform, held yesterday at the Metropolitan Church, a lively discussion over the class of plays presented in Canadian theatres took place, and the general opinion of the delegates, who hail from every province in the Dominion and from Newfoundland, was that the majority of them were sadly in need of censorship. The power of the stage to disseminate useful information and to educate the public by the presentation of the proper kind of entertainment was dilated upon at length, and a strong stand was taken on the question. The following recommendation to the Dominion Moral and Social Reform Council regarding the matter was adopted: "We recommend that the Dominion Moral and Social Reform Council institute some method of investigation concerning the theatres of Canada. If this investigation verifies the reports we have received, we recommend that the council appeal to the Federal Parliament to institute a censorship for all theatres and for every play or act to be presented by any troupe, company or association in the Dominion. We also recommend that the Moral and Social Reform Council of Canada apply to the Federal Parliament for an amendment to section 208 of the Criminal Code to make more clear the meaning of the words 'immoral,' 'indecent' and 'obscene' as applied to theatres."

It was also decided to institute an aggressive campaign against the growth and use of tobacco in Canada. The general secretary, Dr. T. Albert Moore, and his assistants will gather information and institute the campaign along educational lines. "We recommend that the Dominion Moral and Social Reform Council institute some method of investigation concerning the theatres of Canada. If this investigation verifies the reports we have received, we recommend that the council appeal to the Federal Parliament to institute a censorship for all theatres and for every play or act to be presented by any troupe, company or association in the Dominion. We also recommend that the Moral and Social Reform Council of Canada apply to the Federal Parliament for an amendment to section 208 of the Criminal Code to make more clear the meaning of the words 'immoral,' 'indecent' and 'obscene' as applied to theatres."

WILL PUBLISH MAGAZINE. Another important decision was reached by the committee, when it was definitely decided to establish a monthly magazine in the interests of moral and social reform. Owing to the expansion of the work and the growing need of more field work, it was found that additional assistance would be necessary during the coming year, and it was decided to appoint three new field secretaries, one for Western Canada (west of Winnipeg), one for Eastern Canada (east of Montreal), and one for Ontario.

SOCIAL SURVEY OF CITIES. The social survey of the conditions existing in Montreal and Toronto, which was conducted during the past year by an American sociological expert in co-operation with the other denominations, was reported by Dr. Moore to have resulted in the securing of much valuable information regarding social and moral conditions, and it is proposed to base the future action of the department on the information of the department on the information.

THE LIQUOR SITUATION. A study of the results of the prohibition law in various communities disclosed the fact that the wider the area under the prohibitory law the better were the results. Where the matter of law enforcement was left to the municipalities the results were not found to be as satisfactory as in places where the law was enforced by provincial officials.

RESOLVE HOMES FOR WOMEN. The Executive was authorized to begin the establishment of rescue homes in the favorite cities for redemptive work among fallen women. Each city is to have one such home, which will be operated in co-operation with city missions, the deaconesses and others. The homes will be of a temporary nature only, and will not conflict with institutions for the feeble-minded, industrial schools or other establishments of a similar nature. An effort will be made to redeem these women and to find employment for them.

COST OF IMMORALITY. In his report, which is a lengthy one, Dr. Moore figured out the immorality and social diseases cost Canada approximately $125,000,000 annually. He also reported the great increase in the work since establishment some seven or eight years ago. The income for the first year was $500, while this year the department has $18,000 on hand with which to carry on its work.

MOULDERS AGAINST LABOR MAN. Milwaukee, Sept. 30.—A resolution submitted at to-day's session of the International Iron Workers' Convention and aimed at a high official of the American Federation of Labor, and at some of the international officers of the moulder's union was referred to the committee on resolutions. Officers of the association who are connected in any way with the National Civic Federation are called upon to sever all connection with the federation, which body the resolution denounces as controlled and financed by large employers of labor. The resolutions declare that injunctions, black lists and kidnapping of labor officials are being mistakenly employed in the conflict of classes.

TO SETTLE STRIKE

Spanish Railway May Yield to Men.

Madrid, Sept. 30.—Signs of a possibility of the settlement of the Spanish railroad strike were apparent at a meeting of the various lines at the Ministry of Public Works this afternoon. The directors expressed their willingness to grant the demands of the strikers if the Government would help them with a subsidy or authorize them to increase their rates. The three chief demands of the men would entail, they say, an addition to the wage list of $15,000,000 for the four main lines, while the pay sheet of the rest of the companies would be augmented by $15,000,000. The Government is considering the views presented by directors and by the national committee of the men. The railroad workers have sent a circular to all the trades unions with a view to ascertaining whether they desire the declaration of a general strike, at the same time advising them against such a movement. Half a dozen trains manned by soldiers constitute about the only traffic running on the Catalonian lines. The strikers of Barcelona this afternoon determined to strike if any attempt to relieve the tie-up on the railroads by the use of steamers should be made.

COBALT SUICIDE

Yankee Attempts Murder and Then Shoots Himself.

Cobalt despatch.—After shooting three times at George Wilkes, proprietor of the Ottawa House here, this evening, J. K. (Curley) McDonald, a young American from the Adirondack region, stepped outside and shot himself through the brain, dying instantly. Wilkes had been paid McDonald's wages at the Xipissing Mine, and McDonald's grievance arose over the action. Wilkes threw himself on the floor, exclaiming "I'm gone," when McDonald fired the third shot. He escaped the three shots, one barely burning the skin of his hip. The affair occurred in the Ottawa House, and the suicide was committed a few feet from its door. McDonald came to Cobalt, and lived for some time under the alias of H. O. McElroy, giving the reason for this, he stated, that he had formerly committed a crime, and was well educated, although inclined to act strangely at times. His constant reading of dime novels had brought him into the habit of thinking and talking of guns and desperadoes.

HAD UPS AND DOWNS

Street Cleaner, Then Millionaire, Then Poor Suicide.

Janesville, Ill., Sept. 30.—The death of Edward Leonard Dwyer, who rose from head of a street cleaning gang in Chicago to be a multimillionaire, and who blew out his brains here yesterday in the street, just after he had given small amounts of money to a tramp, brought to a close a meteoric career. Dwyer was once a member of the Chicago Board of Trade. He amassed wealth, but lost it in an attempt to corner wheat. He retrieved his fortunes by developing silver mines in Mexico, and was rated a millionaire when he went to New York and on Wall Street again was reduced to penury. He spent his last few dollars entertaining some friends in Chicago before he started to Janesville. "Here's to fame and a busted name. To-night we dine. To-morrow I die."

CONSTABLE USES HIS CLUB.

Windsor despatch.—While engaged in an altercation with Constable Joseph Langlois in front of the International Hotel here this afternoon, Charles Driscoll, 25, an automobile worker who is thought to be from Detroit, was struck across the face by the officer's "billy." In a clinch which followed Driscoll, who was partially intoxicated, was thrown with sufficient force to render him unconscious. When picked up he was bleeding copiously, and at the Hotel Dieu here he was taken in an ambulance. He was reported as still unconscious tonight. The physicians fear his skull may have been fractured.

BRITISH LAND REFORM PLANS.

London, Sept. 30.—British landowners showed anxiety to-day at the news that Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George will be ready either Oct. 7, when Parliament reconvenes, or very soon afterward, definitely to announce details of his programme for "freeing the land for the benefit of the people." "Lloyd George is at heart a single-taxer," said one of his closest friends—an American—today. "He appreciates that it would not do to put England on a single-tax basis at once, but that is the end towards which he is working. He proposes, by ever-increasing taxation of land values, ultimately to break up the land monopoly."

CHOICE FEEDING, THIS!

Berlin, Sept. 30.—The Vorwarts in supporting its meat campaign prints a story of an old broken-down horse which dropped dead in the village of Masendorf, in Silesia, where the food scarcity is extreme. The villagers skinned the animal, stripped the flesh from the bones, and carried it to their homes.

BUILD BUSINESS IN THE WEST

Keynote of Speakers at C.M.A. Banquet.

BOTH THE LEADERS

Borden and Laurier Express Their Views.

Ottawa despatch.—The annual banquet of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in the Chateau Laurier tonight, wound up this year's annual meeting in happy vein. The two political leaders, Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, were the principal speakers. No jarring note was struck, and controversial political questions attendant the tariff were referred to only in a safe and mild way.

ASSOCIATION NON-POLITICAL.

President-elect Gourlay, in introducing the speakers of the evening, laid down the general principle that the respect of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was of their political convictions, so long as they endeavored to deal justly and truly with all classes of the community. The association was non-political; it stood for policy independent of party, for the whole welfare of the country. It was the duty of all Canadians to stand by made-in-Canada products. He would welcome British manufactures to Canada. There was room for all. But made-in-Canada products, price and quality being satisfactory, should have the right of way.

SHOULD BRIDGE THE GAP.

Premier Borden, who was received with loud and enthusiastic cheers, noted in opening that he had a fairly reasonable allowance of banquets of late. On the other side of the Atlantic banquets were a good habit. He would try to speak briefly with this in mind. There was no difference of opinion in Canada as to the importance of the manufacturing industry as a basis of the country's development and prosperity. The protectionist had been evolved and maintained by both parties in Canada with a view to a rounded development. The elemental difficulties in the way of this rounded development, namely, the geographical handicaps and lack of transportation, had been largely overcome, but there still remained a vast stretch between eastern and western Canada, which was largely unbridged. No wiser object could be placed before the association as one of its cardinal aims, no task of greater importance to the manufacturers themselves, than the work of building west of the great lakes, an all-Canadian industrial development. "The west must be united after, if the country is to be as united, prosperous and contented as we hope to make it," said the Premier.

Continuing, he referred to the absolute inadequacy and wretchedness of the public highways of this country, compared with those of England and France. Canada had an unrivalled opportunity for development of the means of easy and cheap communication through its great inland waterways. The Government, he believed, should double its efforts in regard to transportation, and might well take example from other countries in respect to general enterprise in this matter.

Referring to the presence of representatives of the United States, Mr. Borden declared that, in addition to the obligations, there was also the duty of promoting in every possible way the ties of friendship and good-will among the whole English-speaking kindred of the American and British. He hoped the people on both sides of the line would be prepared to celebrate fittingly the coming centenary of peace.

PROMOTE GENERAL WELFARE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, whose reception fully rivaled that given to the Premier, noted in opening that the sentiments expressed by the Premier to the obligations of the manufacturers to promote the general welfare of all classes were in accord with what he considered to be the chief object of the Government. But, unfortunately he did not have quite so much confidence as he once had in the ability of Parliament, as at present constituted, to carry out all its ministerial duties. Parliament had to be all classes, all professions, and all crafts. All had common interests. But there were also common interests which clashed. The holding of an even balance of justice to all classes, and the adjustment of the conflicting interests was the great problem of Parliament. Personally, he had never posed as the special friend of the manufacturers. He had, however, sought all ways to give them full justice, and he rejoiced in the wonderful growth indicated by the last census reports. The tariff, he continued, was always a tender and delicate question to handle. He declined to enter into any detailed discussion of it at the present time. However, there was one basic principle on which all could agree. That principle of tariff was absolutely necessary to steady progress. There should be no general tinkering between the periods of the late Government, and he believed it had proved wise.

A BILINGUAL DISCUSSION.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 30.—Members of the North Essex Teachers' Association met in convention at Sandwich to-day to discuss matters of general interest but the gathering resolved itself practically into a bilingual controversy, with the new school regulations limiting the teaching of the French language to one hour per week, the object of attack. A majority of the teachers present were French and all took an active part in the discussion, with French coming in some rather harsh criticism. School Inspector Cheney presided.

ers, also steered free of controversial questions. The Manufacturers' Association must ever keep at heart the interests of all classes, agricultural as well as the commercial and industrial. He believed that, rightly understood, the protective tariff system involved no conflict of interest between manufacturer, or between producer and consumer. He referred in a most optimistic way to the great possibilities of industrial development in Western Canada, and promised that the Government would be generous in providing more fully for the transportation needs of the country. Many millions would be spent on inland waterways development and on terminal points.

In conclusion, he strongly urged the obligation resting on the manufacturers by reason of the tariff walls the tariff give within the protective tariff to the benefits of keen competition to the consumer. "You have the duty and the necessity of taking care of the home market. The consumer is entitled to all the benefits of competition," he said. Hon. J. J. A. Parkhill, Winnipeg; British Columbia, A. C. Flemerfelt, Vancouver; New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, S. E. Elken, St. John; Alberta and Saskatchewan, W. Georgeon, Calgary. Treasurer, Geo. Booth, Toronto. Secretary, G. M. Murray, Toronto. The vice-president for Nova Scotia will be chosen later. Mr. J. P. Edwards holds the office at present, but is anxious to resign.

An invitation was extended to the delegates to hold the convention next year at Halifax. The executive will consider it. An unanimous vote was passed of regret at the death of Sir Richard Cartwright, and a resolution expressing the sentiment of the association will be sent to the relatives of the deceased statesman. TORONTO RETAINS HEAD OFFICE. The secretary read a letter from Mr. Sherrard, of Montreal, asking that his motion withdrawn recommending the transferring of the head office of the association from Toronto to Ottawa. Mr. Sherrard said that after discussing the matter with several members of the C. M. A., he was convinced Toronto is better as the executive centre.

LOWER LIVING COST

Congress of Chambers of Commerce Hear Plan.

Boston, Sept. 30.—An international conference to consider a remedy for the increasing cost of living was advocated before the International Congress of Chambers to-day by Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University. Prof. Fisher suggested that the weight of the gold dollar should be increased enough to restore some of its lost purchasing power. The cost of living will continue upward, he said, and not go downward for several years, was one of the opinions expressed by Prof. Fisher at the conclusion of his report. The recommendation of Professor Fisher regarding a conference on the high cost of living was adopted. A revision of letter postage rates and other postal reforms were favored by the congress. The congress adopted a report on the subject presented by Dr. Alfred George, of Geneva, and voted to have the permanent committee bring the matter to the attention of the next conference of the Universal Postal Union at Madrid in May, 1913.

WINDSOR WOMAN TRIES SUICIDE

Windsor, despatch.—Mrs. June Smith in a desperate attempt to end a nearly successful attempt at suicide to-day when she swallowed a big dose of laudanum at Stephen's Hotel, Sandwich street east. Mrs. Smith, who is separated from her husband, Wm. Smith, has been evading for some time as a waitress. This evening, after supper, she went to Stephen's Hotel, where Russell (Churchoff) son of J. R. Churchoff, acts as bartender. The two quarrelled, and then she turned to leave, the woman was followed by the G.P.S. She was hurried to the Hotel Dieu, where prompt use of drastic remedies was the means of saving her life.

FATAL RAIL WRECK

G. T. R. Flyer Left Rails Near Chatham.

Many Passengers Had Narrow Escapes.

Chatham despatch.—Twenty passengers were injured, one, Miss Lafferty, of this city, probably fatally, this evening when the Eastern Flyer No. 16 on the Grand Trunk left the rails five miles from this city. The train was due to arrive in Chatham from Detroit at 5.15, and hit a bad rail two and a half miles west of the C.P.R. diamond. The engine ran on one rail for 22 car lengths, the day coach and the diner turned turtle and landed in the ditch, while the last two cars broke away from the train and remained upright on the roadbed. The train was in charge of Conductor Higgins and Engineer Overend, both of Toronto. Half a dozen doctors from this city were soon on the scene attending to the injured, who, as soon as their wounds were dressed, were brought to Chatham Hospital.

The day coach was filled with people, mostly Chathamites. This was the last day of the cheap excursions to Detroit, and many from this city made the last cheap trip. After this car pitched into the ditch it caught fire, but the flames were soon extinguished. Herbert Bigger, 250 Talbot street, a newboy on the train, was one of the first to recover after the shock, and he was first to render aid to the injured. It was owing to his heroic actions that people were rescued as quickly as they were.

Harold Jarvis, tenor, of Detroit, and Mrs. Shafer, reader, of Detroit, were in the day coach on their way to Chatham, where they appear in a concert to-night. They were both shocked badly, but were not seriously injured. They were brought to the city and appeared to-night in the concert according to schedule. Large numbers of people visited the wreck, going out in motor cars, and every assistance was given the doctors in caring for the injured and bringing them to the city.

The wrecking train arrived on the scene about eight o'clock and commenced the work of clearing the track. Had it not been for a roadway crossing the track near the place, the accident the other two cars would have gone in the ditch also. They landed and stopped on this roadway when they left the track.

STRIKE BOARDS

Validity of Their Actions Under Question.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The constitutionality of the Industrial Disputes and Investigations Act of 1907 in its application to the settlement of strikes on street railways is again brought to the public attention by the appointment of a board of arbitration by the Minister of Labor of a board in Quebec City to arbitrate on differences and its employees. While the point to be decided in the Quebec affair is of minor importance, the department here expects that the same was done in the Montreal Street Railway differences in June, 1911, which led to the appointment of a board. The following August the Montreal Street Railway applied to the courts for an interlocutory order restraining the board from sitting, on the ground that the Industrial Disputes Act did not apply to street railway difficulties, as the matter at issue were wholly provincial, and the Federal law did not apply, as no interprovincial interests were affected thereby.

The constitutionality of the Act was to be argued in Montreal last June, but it was postponed until this month. The Department of Justice, represented by F. J. Beaulieu, K. C., Montreal, holds to the constitutionality of the Act, and the decision, which is of immense importance to every street railway company in Canada, is awaited with interest by the Labor Department here.

HARD ON NEWSIES

Toronto Boys Accused of Theft and Intoxication.

Toronto despatch.—That Toronto newsboys have been known to be intoxicated while selling papers on the streets, was the assertion made last night by C. J. Atkinson, the noted worker among boys, for several years connected with the Broadview Boys' Institute, a unique institution of its kind, and known throughout America. He also stated that some members of the newsboys' profession had the habit of waiting at the wharves until the arrival of the last boats, and in the event of any of the belated passengers being intoxicated and unmindful, luring them into a dark corner under pretext of selling papers, and relieving them of their superfluous cash. These statements were made at a meeting held by the Toronto Boys' Work Council, with the object of educating, protecting and uplifting the boys of the city, and particularly the newsboys. R. A. White, international secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was also present, and spoke on "What the Community Owes to the Boys," relating his experience in resulting conditions in various cities of the United States and Canada. As a result of the meeting the council will endeavor to have regulations passed restricting the sale of articles on the streets by boys to certain specified hours, and raising the age limit at which they shall be permitted to sell. They would also have boys licensed, and revoke his license in event of his being guilty of irregularities.

GOT ONE ROBBER

Chicago Police Capture One Canadian Bank Looter.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—One of the two Canadian bank robbers, who escaped from the Sidles saloon here after beating Lieut. Burns into insensibility, was arrested last night in St. Louis by Chicago detectives, according to a report received by Assistant Chief of Police Schuttler early to-day. The detective trailed a woman, said to be the sweetheart of the thief, who went to St. Louis disguised as a cripple. The arrest was made when the two met on a street corner. The man arrested is described as the "short robber."

The woman was located on the south side in Chicago, according to Schuttler, and was permitted to learn that detectives were searching for her. She boarded a train and went to a town outside Chicago, where she purchased a ticket for St. Louis. She walked with the aid of crutches, according to the four detectives who rode in the same car with her to the Missouri metropolis. Arriving there, she met her unsuspected sweetheart within a few minutes' on the street. In their anxiety to prevent the man from escaping again the detectives are said to have closed in about him, paying no attention to the woman, who threw away her crutches and ran through an alley, making her escape. Her baggage is said to have been searched and many newspaper clippings relating to the escape of the robbers, together with a revolver, were found among her possessions.

LOOT IN TABLE LEG

Toronto Police Catch Burglars and Find Booty.

Toronto despatch.—In the back room of an apartment at 206 Queen street west Detective Wallace yesterday afternoon discovered in the hollow leg of a large table enough jewelry to make any burglar feel proud. William Snow, with his wife and "Bubbles" Lillis and Reginald Lovett, were in the room when the detective made his appearance. With him he had Detectives Mitchell, Strohm, Murray, Wickett and Sockett, and the occupants of the flat, realizing that they had no chance of escape quietly submitted to arrest.

The detectives started a search of the apartment, but were given little assistance by those who occupied it. Wallace went over everything very carefully and finally caught a more thorough inspection of the piece of furniture should be made, and the result was the discovery of some $3,000 worth of jewelry, stolen from the store of Follett & Cox, 776 Yonge street, about midnight Tuesday.

White Wallace with his assistants were effecting the capture in the flat Detectives Taylor and Montgomery visited a Queen street hotel and placed Oliver Brown under arrest. With Snow and Lillis are charged with breaking into the store while Mrs. Snow and Lovett are held as material witnesses. Others are supposed to have been connected with the robbery, but made a better get-away than the ones arrested yesterday.

How much a hollow leg could contain surprised the police when they rounded up the accused in the Queen street apartment. Carefully tied up in lace curtains were 12 watches, 54 lockets, 56 bracelets, 61 rings, 108 chains, 10 brooches, 19 tie pins, 20 guards, and 21 necklets; various other articles of jewelry were found in the rather unusual hiding place.
