Characteristics of Mr. Gladstone.

Subtracting what we may from the sum of Mr. Gladstone's greatness, nough, and more than enough, remains to constitute him one of the most eminent men that ever held office in this or any other country.

It is understood that every hour, we might almost say every minute, of Mr. Gladstone's working time is so methodical and disciplined that he gets the most out of it; and the results of this vast industry, it is said, are turned to account by a system and regularity which have brought to absolute perfection, and which as we know from their memoirs, are most unusual among men.

In short, he has carried to perfection that regulated and systematized industry of which the late Sir Robert Peel, his Gamaliel in public life, was his first exemplar. Nobly indeed has that lithe and inflexible body served the imperious and restless mind which, so far from "fretting it to decay," has found in it an apt and ever-ready minister.

shire," his voice, at the end of a speech of four or five hours long, rings out "clear as a clarion with a silver sound." There are few men, in short, of whom with justice it might be recorded, as they say of Hannibal, that "by no amount of labor could his body be wearied, or his mind subdued."

The People and the Soldiers.

In conversation with a reporter the other day, Gen. Sherman said: "The people are now as enthusiastically the friends and admirers of the Generals of the late war as they were in 1865. There might be forty Governors or Senators on a train willing enough to speak to the dear people, but let Phil Sheridan step on the rear platform and all the streets would be for 'Little Phil' to say something, although he can't make much more of a speech than his horse. It is the same with Hancock, and would have been the same with Meade or Thomas. The hold Grant has in the hearts of the people is a mystery to the politicians. If they were wise, instead of trying to get him out of their way by abusing him, they would do as the Chinese do with 'Joos,' feed him up with honours until he became so fat, good natured, and lazy that they need not be longer afraid of him. I swung round the circle with President Hayes from the Atlantic to the Pacific and back, and I think the people liked to see me just as well as ever. The popularity of the soldier is enduring," continued the General, "while that of the politician is ephemeral, at best. What the soldiers did covers a multitude of mistakes and follies, as well as a few sins. An untimely letter may snub out the most successful political leader and lay him on the shelf. Under the same circumstances the people forgive the soldier, and conclude that writing is not his trade."

Be What You Seem.

There is a class of men who acquire a good deal of prominence in the community; they are much talked about, and their names are often seen in print; yet when you get at the real opinion entertained of them by those who know them best, you find they are but little respected. The reason is because they are not really true men. They affect to take a deep interest in reform movements, and to be largely occupied in philanthropic enterprises; but in truth they are hollow-hearted popularity seekers, caring little for anybody but themselves.

Such persons impose upon others much less than they themselves imagine. The thin covering of pretension thrown over their selfishness is seen through as if it were gauze. They deceive themselves far more than they deceive others, for a secret contempt is generally entertained toward them.

Such men cannot be truly happy, for they cannot experience any feeling of satisfaction with themselves. And, indeed, it is with himself that every man should keep account. He should make it his own study to be true, and real and sincere. Even if he could obtain the respect of others without deserving it, he could not obtain his own. Be what you seem is a manly rule of life, worthy of every young man's adoption.

Small Savings.

The man who saves something every year is on the road to prosperity. It may not be possible to save much. If not, save a little. Do not think that a dollar or a dime is too small a sum to lay by; everybody knows how little expenditures get away with large sums. But few seem to know that the rule is one that works both ways. If a dime spent here and a dollar there soon makes a large hole in a man's income, so do dimes and dollars laid away soon become a visible and respectable accumulation. In this country any man may make himself independent or keep himself under the harrow for life, according as he wastes or spends his small change. How many things do individuals and families buy that they do not need or cannot afford? Think twice before you spend that small coin. Do not be stingy or mean, but also do not be foolishly self-indulgent. The self-indulgent person is far more likely to become ungenerous than the self-denying one. The money wasted on hurtful things alone—the medicines and drugs we mingle with in the form of tea, tobacco, alcohol and the like—stand on the very threshold of prosperity and bar the way of thousands to a home in their old age.

I presume that the majority of people who are not bee-keepers suppose that bees gather wax from some source in the same way that the bees of the spring collect honey from flowers. This is a mistake. The wax is secreted by the bees, and is not gathered from any source.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 2nd, 1882.

ARE not our Reeves and Councillors heartily glad that the matter of the allowance or refusal of licenses to tavern keepers is not now a part of their work?

Isn't the Mail getting a little tired, some in its iteration of "the Harbys and Pardes, the Frazers and Blazers." This saying at first had but one fault, it was childish.

The earnestness and unanimity of the East Huron Reform convention held at Brussels on Tuesday last, augurs well for the favorable result of the coming contest.

The Conservative papers are making a dreadful howl about Rip License Commissioners. Mr. Meredith, too, declared at Toronto that Mr. Mowat said—"I couldn't find one temperance Conservative to whom I could entrust the administration of the law."

If "fighting the devil with fire" is admissible in journalism, the following, from the London Advertiser, is a highly deserved "send-off" to M. J. Griffin, one of the most blackguardly slang-whangers that ever spilled ink on a newspaper.

CONFEDERATION has done much for Ontario under a Reform Administration. Before Confederation we had no surplus in Upper Canada; now we have over three millions in the treasury.

It was also desirable to prevent any massing of the Christian population of Cairo, so by making Ismailia the base, the British with fair luck in their transport service, could if the Egyptians retreated from their front, always be close on their heels in the race and bring them to an engagement before there was any great trouble in Cairo.

There were some accounts which have reached Sir Garnet making a flank attack on Tel-el-Kebir, making a feat in front of the enemy's lines, and though the position of the entrenched camp was most formidable, the small British force were not to be denied. With loud cheers and

The dead set which the "blue-rose" editor of the Toronto Mail is making on the license system of Ontario would lead intelligent readers to believe that he is a pot-house politician, and nothing else.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD at the recent Tory convention at Shaftesbury Hall, gave expression to that time-honored saying:—"When bad men conspire, honest men should unite."

THE loss of the Asia, a full account of which is published in this issue has been, the all-absorbing topic of conversation during the week.

Two other Goderich men, M. Davis, and Chas. McGregor were on the Asia when she went down. The sorrowing friends of the lost one have the sympathy of the entire public in this section.

The chairman in calling the meeting to order paid a high tribute to the administration of Hon. Oliver Mowat, and pointed out the number of the absurdities indulged in by the Opposition. He felt certain that victory would again attend the Reform party in Ontario, although the contest would be fought "bitterly by the Tories."

Upon a call being made for nominations for the representation of East Huron in the next Legislature, a number of candidates were named, but all retired in favor of Mr. Thos. Gibson, the sitting member, whose nomination was finally made on a standing vote, amidst applause.

Mr. Gibson made a neat speech, and brought out a number of interesting facts regarding the boundary dispute, and the value of the land contended for. He was willing to accept the nomination, and expected the Government to be sustained.

Speeches were also made by Dr. Sloan, T. Strachan, Jas. Mitchell, J. McMillan, M. P., A. Kerr and others, all of whom spoke highly of the choice of the Convention.

The following resolution was enthusiastically carried:—"Resolved, that this Convention, in offering again its nomination for the representation of East Huron in the Local Legislature, to Thos. Gibson, M. P., P. P., takes this opportunity of declaring its confidence in him as its representative, and its attachment to those Liberal principles enunciated and carried out by the Ontario Government as led by our honored and honorable premier, Oliver Mowat."

The Reformers of East Huron never appeared to be in better heart, and all went into the battle determined to make it a winning fight. The candidate selected is a strong man, and we expect to hear of Honest Tom Gibson being returned by a solid majority at the next general election.

levelled steel, they rushed at the earthworks, and in twenty minutes Arabi and his Egyptians were fleeing to the desert in complete disorder and utterly defeated. This sharp and decisive blow, we imagine, ends the war, and Sir Garnet and his troops are to be congratulated on bringing it to so quick and successful an issue.

They have had to encounter much suffering and hardships, and have done it uncomplainingly, and their reward will be the praise which will come from their countrymen in all parts of the world, who will say—"Well done, you have nobly maintained the past reputation of the British Army."

EAST HURON'S CHOICE

Thos. Gibson, M. P., gets the Reform nomination.

The Reform Convention held at Brussels on Tuesday to select a candidate to contest the East Riding of Huron in favor of the Mowat Administration at the next general election, was largely attended. The meeting was composed chiefly of representative farmers, well-informed on the subjects of the day, and full of hope at the prospects of again carrying East Huron in the cause of Reform and good Government.

Thos. Strachan, Reeve of Grey, occupied the chair, and on the platform were Thos. Gibson, M. P., the sitting member, and John McMillan, M. P., who carried South Huron by so large a majority in June last.

Among the audience were a number of faithful and willing workers of the party, who although not regularly appointed put in an appearance to witness the proceedings, and give the convention their moral support.

The following regular delegates were present: Howick—Alex. Findlater, John McLean, Samuel Neigh, S. Burnett, Wm. Wallace, R. Young, M. Young, James Hazlewood, Wm. Giles, W. Hood, James McLaughlin, J. R. Williams, Wm. Elliott, Alex. Smith, James Thompson, John Wilson, Thos. Wilson, Charles McLaughlin, J. McLaughlin, James Mitchell, Jas. Edgar, Robt. Gibson, John Young.

WRECK OF THE MARY ANNA

The Captain and Engineer Drowned.—Thrilling Experience of the Survivors.

From the Wiarion Echo. On Thursday night, 7th inst., the tug Mary Anna, owned by Messrs. J. & J. Kidd, of Wiarion and Goderich, and commanded by Capt. W. T. Hill, of Port Huron, while on her way from Lion's Head to Tobacco Bay, Georgian Bay, struck on a ledge near Dunk's Bay, and became a total wreck. It appears from the meagre information we have received that there were on board the ill-fated boat besides the captain, Alfred Walker, engineer, of Tottenham, Thos. Wilson, of Keppel, Monk, of Colpo's village, a boy, name unknown, and Mr. David Harris, of Wiarion, and that when she struck there was a heavy north-east wind and a considerable sea running. The boat only lived about half an hour, but time was given for opportunities to escape. Mr. Harris, Wilson, Monk and the boy succeeded in reaching the mainland about 500 yards distant, but Capt. Hill and engineer Walker were drowned. It appears that the tug rolled completely over three times, when the unfortunate men were engulfed, and the boiler having fallen out of the hull it drifted ashore, where at last accounts it was lying. Wilson escaped to shore on the pull rack and the other three were on the tug until it went ashore. The captain and engineer were encumbered with heavy clothing and a heavy sea washed them off; when they were last seen the former was swimming out into the open lake and the latter was making for land, which, sad to relate, he was fated never to reach.

The Mary Anna was employed by her owners at the time of the disaster, and was on her way to make up a raft of timber for the propeller Josephine Kidd which was to be brought to their mills here. She has been engaged all summer in and about Colpo's Bay. We have no information regarding her age, tonnage or insurance.

CALEDONIAN GAMES

The Fourth Annual Holding of Scottish Athletic Games in Brussels.

From the Brussels Post. Great preparations had been made for the celebration of the fourth Caledonian gathering in Brussels, and when the rain began to fall Thursday morning and the heavens were covered with the blackest of clouds the promised day of games and sports seemed to be a hopeless case. About 9 a.m., however, the wind arose and chased the clouds away and old Sol shone out in all his splendor. Wednesday evening and Thursday morning saw the most of the athletes, pipers and dancers in our village, all eager to take their places and give evidence of their skill and activity. Conspicuous among the strangers were the Scottish heavy weight champion, Donald Dinnie, who has been quite an attraction in the Caledonian games this year.

REFOUR DINNER. Owing to a good many preliminary arrangements having to be made on account of the unfavorable weather on Wednesday evening and Thursday morning, the game of the boys both under and over 15 years were postponed, with the exception of two foot races.

In the contest between members of the Brussels Caledonian Society some good work was done by the contestants who, in several instances, and in professional circles, in the standing high jump Walter Scott drew forth applause, while A. Currie reached 19 ft., 10 in. at the running jump, and David Ross scored well in the running hop, step and jump, being credited with 40 feet, 11 inches. The appended list of prizes will show who were the successful competitors. Scott carried off the palm in the above games. The wind was too high in the forenoon to make it agreeable to the contestants and spectators. At the conclusion of the games there was an intermission for dinner.

AFTER DINNER. The noon train brought hundreds of visitors from Lucknow, Wingham and Bluevale, while Listowel, Seaforth, Blyth and the adjacent villages sent their full quota of representatives. The attendance was large, probably about 3,000 people in all, who seemed to have come with the full determination of enjoying themselves.

The following professional athletes were on the ground and took part in the various events:—Donald Dinnie, D. C. Ross, A. A. McDonald, E. W. Johnston, M. McDonald, A. Scott, G. Jackson, H. M. Johnston, J. F. Brown, W. Mayberry, A. Woods, M. Caldwell, Thos. McLaughlin and J. Johnston. Pipers:—G. A. Smith, pipe major Guelph Caledonian Society, Hamilton, Harry Ross, Linden Lake, Michigan, John Munroe, Buffalo, Neil McIsaac, Buffalo, and T. Ballantyne, Brussels, supplied plenty of music during the day and evening.

The well-known faces of G. A. Matheson of Hamilton, Harry Henderson, of Alliston, Ian McKenzie, of Hamilton, John Munroe, of Buffalo, J. L. Henderson and Thos. McMillan, of Toronto, were recognized among the dancers, who did not fail to keep up their reputation. A number of young people, girls and boys took part, as did also Mrs. Alexander, wife of Chief Alexander, Dr. McMichael, President of the Buffalo Caledonian Society, was also present and competed in the dress competition.

The games opened with a Scotch reel by clannamen in costume, which was followed by a long list of games and sports which were well contested throughout. The ring was kept comparatively clear, although some needed more than persuasion to cause them to keep outside the ropes.

A. Scott won the prize for light weight championship as well as the prize for the best general athlete. George Jackson got the creditable distance of 29 feet, 10 inches in the running jump and A. Scott cleared 10 feet vaulting. Donald Dinnie took the heavy weight championship, heading the list in all the contests. Considerable interest was manifested in the archery which was hotly contested. The Lucknow ladies won the three prizes in the open archery, but were closely pursued by some of the Brusselsites.

The programme was brought to a close by a wrestling match between Donald Dinnie and D. C. Ross which was taken by Dinnie, who won two falls in 1 and 2 minutes respectively.

BELINDA CAMERON'S WILL.

Miss Cameron was a spinster, and with one companion, a young girl named Mary Selton, lived in the old farm house where her father had lived and died before her. She had all her life saved more than she had spent, and the result was, beside a well kept farm, a snug twenty thousand dollars invested in bonds and real estate, and likewise several impetuous relatives who were waiting for her demise, and a share in the spoils thereof. None of them bore any love for the fair young girl, who was so great a favorite with the lonely old woman. As may be surmised there was a well grounded fear abroad among them, and that was that no doubt a goodly share, if not all, her property would be given this "upstart" and "baggage," unless some lucky chance should rid them of her. Among the relatives in question was one nephew, who with never a care for his aunt's money, had been for some time paying attention to Marv in the way of taking her to a concert or a country dance sometimes, to the intense disgust of his mother and sisters.

"If I were you I would not run about with that girl in that way," said Alice, the elder, to him one day. "And why not?" said the nephew, John by name. "And why not?" mimicked Alice, "when she is just staying there to get Aunt Cam to give her money. Just by your running after her she will think you want to marry her, and Aunt Cam will think so too, and thinking that, will go and will her everything, and..."

"Oh, that's all right," said John, "I see it all right. You see I see give me my money, and I marry Mary, why, indirectly as it were, I'll get it, won't I? You have given me an idea. I believe I will try it. Thanks for the suggestion," and making a low bow, he walked away. And inwardly fuming, Alice saw him depart across the fields towards Belinda Cameron's.

Now Miss Belinda Cameron had long ago made up her mind to make Mary Selton her heiress. "I have saved all my own money," she reasoned. "I took the mortgage farm for my share, while the rest took the other property. They've wasted theirs and I've added to mine year by year, besides helping them, and I have a right to do as I please. All the money I have outside the farm property I have saved myself by planning and hard work, and I shall give it to Mary."

And in pursuance of the above, Aunt Cam, as her loving nieces called her, went one day to the city, and when she returned she had with her a document which, after bequests to her several relatives, gave the bulk of her property to Mary Selton.

Now, not being used to keeping important papers in the house, the matter weighed heavily upon her mind. Put it where she would, in her private desk, in her room, the consciousness of its existence preyed upon her. And also, she knew if the disposition of her property were discovered by her relatives there would be no more peace of mind for her on earth. She was a large, strong woman, with a superabundance of blood, and the doctor had often warned her against any undue excitement, or giving away to sudden alarm.

That afternoon, when John started across the fields to call at her house, that which his sister had prognosticated had already taken place two weeks before. He staid to supper, and in the evening played whist with his aunt for partner, against Mary and a young neighbor, and at the close of a pleasant evening, somewhere about eleven o'clock, he went home, and after seeing everything safe for the night, aunt Cam and Mary retired.

Miss Cameron about something, Mary had sought her throughout the house unsuccessfully, until reaching the door of a little room adjoining the sitting room, where Miss Cameron kept her books, writing desk, etc., and which was yet called the study, the name coming down from her father's time, Mary rapped on the door, and getting no response she gently opened it and looked in.

What a sight met her eyes. Scattered around the old writing desk were a number of papers, letters and legal-looking documents, as though thrown down in haste, and lying face downwards upon the floor was Miss Cameron, motionless and apparently dead.

Hurriedly calling help, Mary, assisted by others, took her up and laid her upon her own bed. A doctor was brought, an examination made, and with a sad shake of his head he pronounced it apoplexy. "And will she not get better, doctor?" asked Mary tremblingly. "I fear she will never recover," he answered. She may linger for days or weeks, but I think she will never become conscious enough to speak.

"What could have brought it on?" Mary sobbed. "She was so well yesterday." "Has she had no shock or unusual excitement recently?" the doctor asked. "None that I know of," Mary answered, then remembering the disorder of the letters and papers about the desk, she added: "Unless she received bad news by letter."

An examination was made of the papers and desk, but with the exception of the extreme disorder as if she had looked them over in a hurry or in excitement, nothing was found. The papers were all pertaining to business and had evidently, before being scattered about, been tied up in ordinary packages with red tape. There was nothing to indicate anything unusual in that quarter, Mary thought, but to John it seemed significant that something of an unusually disturbing nature had happened, unknown to any but Miss Cameron herself, the shock of which had thrown her into the fit.

From that time out Mary was never left alone in the house. John's mother and sisters came over and took turns mounting guard over her and she was not allowed to be alone with Miss Cameron any time. But there was small use in that, for after lingering for two weeks in a stupor or partially so, poor Miss Cameron was not, for she died, and with the most magnificent funeral which had been seen thereabouts for many years, she was buried beside her parents, and then came the settling up of her affairs, and distribution of the spoils.

Her lawyer came out from the city, and her papers were looked over, and all her business affairs found in a prosperous condition. But search high and low, as they would, no will was found. "She surely made a will," Lawyer Brown said, "I, myself, drew it up, but where is it?"

Then as it could not be found, instigated by the jealous relations, suspicion fell upon poor Mary. "No doubt she knows where it is," they said, "no good ever came of poor Aunt Cam's keeping her, to the detriment of her honest relatives."

"And now John, do keep away from her," his mother said, one morning as he stood by the window in her room, "don't run after her any more. We, of course, will come into the money. She has nothing and now more than ever you don't want her for a wife. She may go out to work, now, where she belongs. We will move into the house next week and I shall make several changes, which would have been made long ago, if I had the management of things."

As she finished speaking, John turned slowly around, yawned and then with a look towards her, which she could not fathom, he walked out of the room and was seen at home no more that day. He went over to the home of his late aunt, where his sisters were staying with Mary, and remained the afternoon, and to the intense disgust of the former paid much attention to the latter, and in the evening talked in tones too low for them to hear, after which he betook himself home.

The tears began to drop fast as Miss Cameron continued: "Of course, you can't expect us to keep you now. Saying nothing about the mysterious disappearance of the will, there are other reasons why it would be unpleasant for you to remain here."

"But I knew nothing about the will," said Mary blushing deeply at the rudeness of the insinuation, for it had been thrust at her so often that she was becoming sensitive about it. "Who said you did," answered Mrs. Cameron, "but for the good of all concerned, I would like you to go away as soon as possible."

"For the good of all concerned, in it," and into the room from the hall stepped John Cameron, who had been engaged in taking off his coat and hanging it on the rack. "Well, mother, I am one of the all, I suppose, and it will never be for my good that Mary leaves."

The angry woman looked at him scathingly, but before either could proceed further, Mary left the room. "We may as well understand each other, mother," John said, as he drew a chair near her and sat down. "What do you mean," she asked with an unpleasant forboding.

"I mean this, when I first began to pay Mary Selton the simple attention that no gentleman would pay any lady, I had no serious thoughts about her. She was pleasant company, a lady, and as kind to poor aunt Cameron as a daughter. Daily comparisons between her and my sisters, whom I think pretty good girls, at last caused me to think of her as more than a friend. Her patience under all the recent trying circumstances, I confess has strengthened my regard for her. She is hopeless if sent from here. I know if father was living it would never be so, for aunt Cameron intended to make Mary her heir, and so long as her intentions were known we should give Mary a home at least; and mother, if Mary can't stay here I shall feel it incumbent upon myself to hasten my own intentions in regard to her, for I intend to marry her."

While he was speaking his mother had risen to her feet, and as he stopped she said: "You do, do you?" "I do," he answered. "Do so then, and gratify your low tastes; but remember you cannot stay here."

"I do not expect to," he said, "but mother is there no way to reconcile you to Mary? I know she has no antipathy to you. Let us all be friends, for I cannot bear to leave you in anger, but I love Mary and cannot sacrifice her unjust distribution of the spoils."

He stopped before his mother, and looked at her entreatingly, but she only frowned and said: "Marry her if you will, John, but I will never give you my consent. I detest her. She is a wily, wily thing, and she must leave this house this night."

"Very well," John said, and turning he went from the room thinking time would perhaps soften his mother's heart. Mary went that night, so likewise did John. In the evening at the house of a friend they had a talk, and the result was at the end of a week they were married. John had a little money saved, and with it he proposed to live through the winter and in the spring, he thought he would be able to go on some land which belonged to him and make the beginning of a home.

The winter wore away quickly for the happy pair, and spring drew on apace. Over at the farm as soon as the weather permitted, the old house was to be overhauled and rebuilt, and one pleasant day passing there John saw men engaged in pulling the roof off the wing, preparatory to building it a story higher. A garret was situated there John knew and he had a vague remembrance of all the odds and ends therein.

The old spinning wheel and loom used by his grandmother, the reel, old fashioned chairs and tables, chests, trunks, and everything usually found in ancient farm house garrets of New England. Over all he also remembered, was spread spiders' webs, emblematic of all the misty years that hung around them. Many a pleasant day had he spent there, and many a time had he unexpectedly found long missing articles of more or less value in its corners, for his aunt had been a somnambulist, and the garret was her traditional hiding place for everything in her nocturnal perambulations.

Thus John mused to himself riding past the old house that day, little knowing how near his thoughts had wandered to the solving of a recent mystery. But in the press of other things he thought no more of the matter until reminded of it unexpectedly.

Two men were engaged upon the roof. The shingles were all off a portion of the boards had been removed, letting in a flood of light, which penetrated every corner. Most of the furniture and debris had been removed, only broken pieces and bits of paper and rags remaining. Prying on a board near the eaves one of the men noticed the corner of a clean recently folded paper protruding. He took hold of it and pulling it out, opened it, and lo!

Aunt Cameron's will. "Jerusalem!" he said in an escaping steam whisper, "I've found it." "Found what?" said the other man. "Old Miss Cameron's will that there's been such a fuss about. How do you 'pose it ever got there?" "I'd 'no," said the other man. "What will you do with it?" "Why, I should think it oughter go to the lawyer that made it out, shouldn't you. Brown you know he'll see its all right. You're a witness as to where I found it, and if I take it to him why then everything would be straight and right."

And with some further consultation, the man, making some excuse to Mrs. Cameron for leaving his work for that day, went away, and after some little preparation went to the city. Presenting himself at Lawyer Brown's office his business was soon made known, and the long missing document handed over. "You see," he said, "I was afraid to give it to the old woman for fear it would be put out of the way again, when I saw how it read, and then I thought may be it wouldn't be the thing to give it to her son, so to be safe, I came to you who made it out."

Sarsaparilla. Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the felds of potato and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alternative available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced a remedy so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weakness and Irregularities, Jaundice, Abscesses of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility. By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul scrofulous which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates the vital functions, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

"Yes," he replied nonchalantly, "it's the best month to wear calves, you know."

She said she wanted a ticket to Wyan-dotte and return, and the male, gentlemanly agent with the dark moustache asked as he took up a pasteboard:—"Single?" He doesn't ask ladies they want "single" tickets any more. He is afraid to.

A young man at a recent social assembly was asked by a young lady: "Why in your moustache like an abstract noun?" The young man who had but an abstract idea of grammar, could not tell. "Because," replied she, "it can only be conceived of having an existence." That young gentleman never having studied grammar, does not see through the joke yet.

Household Hints.

Always remove the yellow rind from lemons that are to be sliced and used as a garnish for sardines, salmon, etc.

When using the eggs of bantams for any of the recipes given in this column, use three where the recipe calls for two eggs.

Musk and nutmeg melons cut in slices, with pepper and salt scattered over them, make a good beginning at the breakfast table.

If you find that your stoves that are put aside for the summer are rusting, rub them over with a little kerosene. Apply it with a flannel cloth. This will prevent rust.

White kid shoes can be cleaned by dipping a perfectly clean white flannel cloth in a little ammonia, and then rubbing the cloth over a cake of white soap; after doing this rub the kid gently and diligently, and the soiled places will be white again. As the flannel becomes soiled change for a clean one.

If you have trouble to get your last year's catsup bottles perfectly clean, after washing them thoroughly in suds and rinsing in clear water, chop a potato quite fine, mix it with a little warm water, put this in a bottle and shake it well; it will surely remove any foreign substance.

Curry vinegar is made by adding three ounces of curry powder to one quart of vinegar; let it stand in a covered earthen dish or jar near the fire for three days. This gives an excellent flavor to all kinds of sour pickles. Remember, when using it, that a little goes a great way.

It is a good plan when baking new potatoes to turn them occasionally in the oven, as the skin is so thin that there is danger of their burning on one side before they are done on the other. If they are very small, bake them in a dripping pan; if you do this you will not need to turn them, but give the pan a shake once in a while.

If vegetables that are to be pickled are put into cold salt and water, and are gradually brought to the boiling point, it is not necessary to let them lie the customary three days in cold salt and water. The right proportion to use is one-quarter of a pound of salt to one quart of water. It is sometimes a great convenience to be able to do up the pickles in one day.

Peach fritters, served with cream and sugar, are an excellent substitute for pastry at dinner. Make a batter as for ordinary fritters—of sweet milk, flour and baking powder—and if you choose to add one egg to each pint of milk it will improve the dish. Peel and quarter as many peaches as you wish to put in—the more the better, as the peaches shrink in cooking. Drop by spoonfuls in hot lard, fry till brown, and serve warm.

Dr. J. W. Fairchild of New York, says: Personally believe in Phosphatine; I use it myself and in my family and practice I prescribe Phosphatine with a confidence that I can attach to other remedy. It is safe—it is effective. For sale by all druggists. 2m Words of Wisdom.

Let your religion be seen. Lumps do not talk but they do shine. A lighthouse sounds no drum, it beats no gong; yet far over the water its friendly light is seen by the mariner.

Some one has asked us whether a good pagan is not better than a bad Christian. Must assuredly he is, but then what is the object in being either since a good Christian is best of all?

It is not for me to determine whether the danger to the Gospel be greater or less by my life or death. The truth of God is a rock of fear placed for the falling and rising of many in Israel.—[Luther.]

Those disciples who desire to be successful workers in the churches should give themselves to much prayer, remembering that a good work with God in secret qualifies for a good work with man in society.

To be always intending to live a new life, but to never find time to see about it—that is as if a man should put off eating and drinking and sleeping from one day and night to other, till he is starved and de-royed.

The Secret of General Wesley's Popularity With the Services.

General Wesley's bulletins reveal one of the secrets of his popularity. He is profuse in his acknowledgments of the services rendered by the officers under his command. Compliments are bestowed with a lavish hand, and every prominent officer's soldierly qualities are recognized and recorded. It is not strange that British officers should be at all times anxious to fight and work under a general who distributes honors so generously, and does not suffer anyone's reputation to decrease in his service. There was no lack of volunteers when he went out to the Gold Coast without an army, and only expected to array one native race against another; and when he found his plan of operations impracticable and was furnished with an army for the Ashantee campaign, he gave credit wherever it was due, and added to the reputation of every one of his followers. The "Ashantee set" rallied around him when he was appointed to the command of the Egyptian expedition, and not without reason.—[London Figaro.]

A Husband's Christmas Present.

A gentleman stunted into a large dry-goods store in the city of L— a few days before Christmas, and remarked casually to the attentive clerk: "I want something for a Christmas present for my wife. What have you got?" The clerk suggested various things, but the customer seemed not quite satisfied.

At last he asked, "Have you any cotton cloth?"

"Certainly, sir."

"I need some new shirts. How much cloth does it take for a shirt?"

"About four yards."

"Well, let's see. I want eight new shirts. Eight times four are thirty-two. I'll take thirty-two yards."

The gratitude of the wife at receiving a Christmas present the cloth for eight new shirts for her husband can be better imagined than described.—[Editor's Drawer, Harper's Magazine for October.]

The Arab.

An Arab is a queer fellow. On entering a house he removes his shoes, but not his hat. He mounts his horse upon the right side, while his wife milks the cow on the left side. In writing a letter he puts nearly all the compliments on the outside. With him the point of a pin is its head, while its head is made its heel. His head must be wrapped up warm even in summer, while his feet may well enough go naked in winter. Every article of merchandise which is liquid he weighs, but he measures wheat, barley, and a few other articles. He reads and writes from right to left. He eats scarcely anything for breakfast, about as much for dinner; but after the work of the day is done, he sits down to a hot meal swimming in oil, or better still, boiled butter. His son eats with him, but the females of his house wait till his lordship is done. He rides a donkey while travelling, his wife walking behind. He laughs at the idea of walking in the street with his wife, or even vacating his seat for a woman. He knows no use of chairs, tables, knives, forks, or even spoons, unless they are wooden ones. Bedsteads, bureaus and fireplaces may be placed in the same category. If he be an artisan he does his work sitting, perhaps using his feet to hold what his hands are engaged upon. He drinks cold water in a sponge, but never bathes in it unless his home is on the seashore. He is rarely seen drunk, and is deficient in affection for his kindred. He has little curiosity and no imitation; no wish to improve his mind, and no desire to surround himself with the comforts of life.

Who's the Best Physician.

The one that does most to relieve suffering humanity of the thousand and one ills that befall them, is certainly the best of all physicians. Electric Bitters are daily doing this, curing where all other remedies failed. As a spring tonic and blood purifier they have no equal. They positively cure liver and kidney complaints. In the strongest sense of the term, they are the best and cheapest physician known.—[Daily Times. Sold by Geo. Rhynas, at 50 cents. [3.]

Exercise.

Exercise is a necessity; it prolongs life, and greatly improves living; it better fits us for our duties; without it, we do not more than half live. He only who exercises sufficiently can know the joy of good health, good appetite, good digestion, refreshing sleep. It causes the blood to circulate quickly, freely, and equably, and will drive away the blues. It increases respiration, thus bringing a larger quantity of the elixir of life, oxygen, to purify and vitalize the blood. It rounds and hardens the muscles, and educates them into ever-ready, faithful, and efficient servants of the will. It limbers the joints and strengthens every part of the body. It invigorates the mind, and renders it active and efficient in all its operations.

Nine Physicians' Advice.

It is generally considered a pretty difficult task to induce a physician, but the following will prove conclusively where nine were completely outdone. Mrs. Helen Pharis, 331 Gayton St., Chicago, was treated for Consumption by nine physicians, and all pronounced her case incurable. Seven bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption completely cured her. Doubting ones, please drop her a postal and convince yourselves. Trial bottles free at Rhynas's Drug Store. Large size $1.00. (4)

The Doctor's Last Happy Resort.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 11, 1882.

I recently had a very difficult case of Consumption. I treated it in the most scientific manner possible, but to no effect; patient grew gradually worse. Rather than give up, and as a last resort, I decided, much against my wish, to use a remedy that had cured one of my former patients. Greatly to my surprise, the patient began to gain, and in a much shorter time than I dared to ever expect, she was completely cured. The name of this remarkable remedy is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. I now use it altogether in my practice.—[Leading M. D., Evansville. Trial bottles free at Rhynas's drug store. Mrs. Freland says she is not paid enough to keep them properly.

Beware of a man.

A good article that has achieved success, and attained a world-wide reputation by its true merits and wonderful results, is always imitated. Such is the case with Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Already unprincipled parties are endeavoring to delude an unsuspecting public, by offering imitations of this most fortunate discovery. Do not be deceived, but insist on having the true remedy, and take no other. Trial bottles free at Rhynas's drug store. Large size $1. (5)

THE FALL SHOW.
 Of the West Huron Agricultural Society.

The annual Fall Show under the auspices of the West Riding of Huron Agricultural Society, was held on the Society's grounds, Goderich, on Tuesday and Wednesday last. In some of the classes there was a falling off in exhibits. This was particularly noticeable in some branches of the inside department, more particularly in the ladies' class, where a number of the old, time honored, prize-taking articles failed to put in their annual appearance. But what were shown were good, and deserving of a place in any exhibition. The art department was ahead of previous years, and a number of gems were exhibited. Fruit, with the exception of peaches, was a goodly display, and the flower department was an unusually fine one. Roots and vegetables were a fair exhibit, and the samples of grain shown could hardly be excelled. So many of the exhibitors in the indoor department showed to advantage that we will not attempt to draw comparison, but will allow the prize list to tell the tale.

THE OUTSIDE SHOW was not so largely attended as on previous occasions. One drawback to the success of the outside exhibit was the fact that owing to the rain on both days the ground was so muddy that the thousands of people who formerly brought stock to the fair, did not do so this year. As a result, the Dickson and Snell herds were absent, and no other thoroughbreds made entry. In sheep there was a good representation, and Snell, Grieve, Dickson, J. O. Stewart, Gaunt and others contributed from their flocks.
 Horses were also well up to the standard of previous years. Pigs were scarce.
 The grade cattle exhibited were of good appearance. Poultry was hardly up to the average.

The judges books in some instances were poorly kept, and considerable difficulty was experienced in getting
