CHAPTER III.

"Mr. Talbot Denby, his nephew," said Mrs. Mason, rather stiffly. "Oh! And what kind of a man is he?" asked Ralph, taking out his pipe, but slipping it into his pocket again with an apologetic gesture.

"Oh, please smoke!" murmured Fanny; and, at a nod of permission from Mrs. Mason, he lit up.

"Mr. Talbot is—a proper gentleman," she said. "He's a member of Parliament, and very—clever." She spoke the word as if it were a kind of impertinence to apply the adjective to one of the Lynton family. "He don't often come to the Court, because he and the earl don't get on very well together. In fact, his lordship don't get on very well with anybody. He's quarrelled with all his people, and—that's why he lives alone, barring Miss Veronica."

"Amiable old gentleman!" commented Ralph, smiling.

"His lordship is—his lordship," reported Mrs. Mason, stiffly.

"Quite so," said Ralph. "In Australia we haven't many lords—excepting some 'remittance men'—men who live upon the allowance sent by their people in England—and they don't count much. But I see that here, in England, it's different. Well, I'll go and interview hermit head keeper—what's his name?—Geoffrey Burchett. If I succeed in getting a berth we shall be neighbors, and I shall have time and opportunity for thanking you for your kindness and hospitality, Mrs. Mason."

He rose and held out his hand—Fanny noticed that though rough and brown, it was long and shapely; in fact, like those of the hero in the novelette, and that it closed on hers with a strong and manly grip—and went towards the door. There he paused, and, looking over his shoulder, said, "By the way, if Miss Veronica should happen to call, you won't mention that I was hurt, will you?"

"Oh, mother, what a splendid young fellow!" murmured Fanny with a deep-drawn breath, as he went down the garden path with head erect and a graceful swing.

Mrs. Mason pursed her lips. "Rather free and easy for his station in life, I fancy," she responded. "I reckon Mr. Geoffrey will make short work of him. Come and help me with those collars, Fanny; there's no end to do."

Ralph walked quickly across the moor, and following Veronica's instructions, reached the keeper's hut in the clearing; but the door was closed, and no response came to his knocking; so he seated himself on a rough bench outside and, refilling his pipe, waited.

It had been a morning of adventure—and, to the young, adventure is the most precious thing in life. He thought of the great earl, and the pretty girl with the fair hair and weak mouth and chin; but he thought more of the haughty beauty who had been too proud to accept his glance of gratitude. In a sense, her beauty, her youth, the curve of her proudly turned lips, haunted him; and he almost started when footsteps roused him from his reverie, and a grey-haired but upright old man, with a gun over his shoulder and a couple of dogs at his heels, came from amongst the trees and stood before him, eyeing him with stern interrogation.

Ralph rose and nodded.

"Mr. Burchett?" he said, with his frank smile.

"My name's Burchett," responded the head keeper, grimly. "What's your business with me?"

The response was so uninviting, not to say repellent, that most men would have been daunted; but the young man's smile did not falter, and he met the stern frown with a serene cheerfulness.

"I want a berth—gamekeeper. I met Lord Lynton; he sent me to you."

Geoffrey Burchett eyed the young man critically.

"Oh, he did, did he?" he said, grimly. "Come inside."

They entered the living-room of the hut; it was sparsely but comfortably furnished, with heads of deer and antlers for ornament; a rack full of guns and another as full of fishing-rods the most conspicuous objects. Geoffrey Burchett motioned the young man to one of the hard rush chairs.

"What's your name and where do you come from?"

Ralph supplied the information for the third time that morning.

"Australia! What do you know about gamekeeping?" queried Geoffrey Burchett, grimly.

Ralph leaned back in his chair with the ease which had astonished the Masons.

"Well, not much," he said; "but I think I know what's wanted, and I'm tolerably quick at learning. If you require a man to take care of the game, to ward off poachers to track a man down—Were you ever in Australia, Mr. Burchett?"

The keeper frowned at him under thick, grey brows.

"No," he replied.

"Ah, well, then, you don't know what scouting means! If that's any use in gamekeeping I'm fairly good at it. I can track a man's footsteps across plains of grass or sandy heath, through anything but water, for—a hundred miles—"

"Not much use to me," he said, curtly, breaking in upon the other's remarks. "Can you shoot?"

"Well, a bit. Got a Winchester here," asked Ralph. He went to the gun-rack. "Ah, yes, here's one! Come outside."

He loaded the rifle and led the way outside—a breach of etiquette—and pointed to a beech a long distance from the hut. "Do you see that knot half way up it? You try it first."

Geoffrey Burchett, who was proud of his shooting, took the proffered Winchester, aided, and fired. When the smoke had cleared away, Ralph said:

"Misses! It's a small mark, and you were a trifle too high. Allow me."

He took the rifle, brought it to his shoulder sharply, and, as it seemed, without taking careful aim, fired. The bullet struck the knot in the tree, plumb.

Geoffrey Burchett eyed the young man critically.

"Oh, he did, did he?" he said, grimly. "Come inside."

They entered the living-room of the hut; it was sparsely but comfortably furnished, with heads of deer and antlers for ornament; a rack full of guns and another as full of fishing-rods the most conspicuous objects. Geoffrey Burchett motioned the young man to one of the hard rush chairs.

"What's your name and where do you come from?"

Ralph supplied the information for the third time that morning.

"Australia! What do you know about gamekeeping?" queried Geoffrey Burchett, grimly.

Ralph leaned back in his chair with the ease which had astonished the Masons.

"Well, not much," he said; "but I think I know what's wanted, and I'm tolerably quick at learning. If you require a man to take care of the game, to ward off poachers to track a man down—Were you ever in Australia, Mr. Burchett?"

The keeper frowned at him under thick, grey brows.

"No," he replied.

"Ah, well, then, you don't know what scouting means! If that's any use in gamekeeping I'm fairly good at it. I can track a man's footsteps across plains of grass or sandy heath, through anything but water, for—a hundred miles—"

"Not much use to me," he said, curtly, breaking in upon the other's remarks. "Can you shoot?"

"Well, a bit. Got a Winchester here," asked Ralph. He went to the gun-rack. "Ah, yes, here's one! Come outside."

He loaded the rifle and led the way outside—a breach of etiquette—and pointed to a beech a long distance from the hut. "Do you see that knot half way up it? You try it first."

Geoffrey Burchett, who was proud of his shooting, took the proffered Winchester, aided, and fired. When the smoke had cleared away, Ralph said:

"Misses! It's a small mark, and you were a trifle too high. Allow me."

He took the rifle, brought it to his shoulder sharply, and, as it seemed, without taking careful aim, fired. The bullet struck the knot in the tree, plumb.

"I want a berth—gamekeeper. I met Lord Lynton; he sent me to you."

Geoffrey Burchett eyed the young man critically.

The Tale of Perfect Time in a Watch

From Mainspring to Hairspring, between them lies the secret.

The Mainspring is the power which it transmits to the control and regulates the motion. The hairspring is the delicate part of a watch. It is impossible to make it too fine. Yet it is enough to interfere in its performance, so wonderful is the adjustment. The friction from accumulating dirt, lack of oil, etc., destroy these parts. (In fact, do not let your watch run to ruin from neglect. Remember our business is the care of watches, and our opinion costs nothing.)

The Wrong Kind of Sacrifice.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

"To live with the saints in Heaven is untold bliss and glory. But to live with the saints on earth is quite another story."

The wife of a neighbor of ours has incipient tuberculosis and has been ordered to spend the winter at a health resort. She leaves at home a husband and four children of whom the oldest is sixteen. A married sister who has no heirs of her own has come to take charge of the home for the winter.

We had been asked by the invalid to try to make her sister's stay as pleasant as possible, and had been paying our first call. In the course of this call the sister—despite the presence of one of her small nieces—had confided to us that she did not like children; that it almost broke her heart to close up her beautiful home to which she was devoted, and that she had been obliged to give up a long planned sea trip in order to take charge of her sister's household.

Practically our whole stay was taken up in hearing of the sacrifices she had made and in condoling with her.

Said Molly, the little stenographer lady, as we walked down the street, "Poor Mrs. Crawford. It's hard for her, isn't it?"

"Why poor Mrs. Crawford, Molly?" cried the lady-who-always-knows-somehow, with spirit. "Poor babies, I say. Don't you know that she's perfectly happy? Didn't you see how much pleasure she got out of telling us how she was sacrificing herself? I don't doubt she takes it out of those poor children and their father every day of her stay, and she'll never let her sister forget it. I can see she's one of those people who love to sacrifice themselves and then take it out of those they make the sacrifice for. Poor Mrs. Crawford, indeed! Why, my dear, she's simply delighted at the chance to pose as a martyr and make a lot of people feel uncomfortable."

"The lady-who-always-knows-somehow doesn't often speak with such warmth and with such an approach to acerbity."

But I don't blame her a bit, do you? It seems to me there is scarcely any species more trying than the "saints on earth" who rub their pseudo-sainthood into every body with whom they come into contact.

They simply gloat over a chance to sacrifice themselves. They seize each opportunity avidly because they know that no pleasure they sacrifice can be half so keen as the daylight of posing as martyrs.

Do you know what I think would be the best punishment for these people? It's this:—I recommend it to any victim—absolutely refuse to accept any sacrifice at their hands.

Remind them of Stevenson's creed that any sacrifices which are not made gladly and without ostentation had better not be made at all. Thank them, but tell them that their services cost everyone concerned quite too dearly.

Perhaps you don't think they will mind this at all, but they will. By-and-by you will have them begging you to let them make some sacrifice for you.

And perhaps if you keep them begging long enough, you will finally even bring them to that state of mind wherein they will actually be eager to make a glad, unostentatious genuine sacrifice.

For The Nervous Woman,

Or the woman who experiences hot flashes nothing is so good to soothe, quiet and calm the nervous system as a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal plants, and made without alcohol, which has been sold by druggists for the past forty years, and most favorably known as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In younger years some women suffer from dizziness, or fainting spells, hysteria, headache, bearing-down feelings and pain. All these symptoms of irregularity and female disturbance are relieved by the use of this famous "Prescription" of Doctor Pierce.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system, and in particular to the organs distinctly feminine. For "over-heat," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, shop-girls, house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, it is an excellent appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

"My disease was called retroversion," writes Mrs. Lydia McDonald, 125 St. John's St., St. John's, Nfld. "I had nervous chills and numb feelings and they would leave me very weak. Then I had inflammation and the doctor said I had a 'flowing kidney.' I doctored seven months with our family physician. He said I would have to have an operation. Then I stopped taking his medicine. After taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine I have not had any nervous chills or weak spells. I am better than for years."

My daughter is now taking the "Prescription" and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, also the "Pellets" for nervousness and weak, tired feeling. These remedies have helped her ever at a stroke in a short time. We have great faith in your medicines for female troubles.

Mrs. McDonald. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement.

Household Notes.

Mold can be kept from the top of preserves by putting a few drops of glycerine around the edge of the jar before screwing down the cover cap.

When frying anything in deep fat have the flour sifter full of flour handy. If the fat catches fire, sprinkle thickly with flour and save disaster.

People who suffer from heat in hands and feet will obtain relief by putting inside their stockings and gloves a small amount of very fine oatmeal.

Marble washstands that have become discoloured may be restored first with wet salt, and if this does not remove the stains, then with salt and lemon juice.

For lemon cake filling, beat one egg, add a couple of sugar, and the juice and rind of one lemon. Cook in an enameled pan until rather thick. When cool, spread.

For fried squash, take the small green and yellow variety, peel and cut into half-inch slices. Dip in eggs and flour or crumbs and fry in plenty of fat until brown.

A paste of olive oil and salt smeared on spots on furniture and allowed to remain a few minutes and then rubbed off with a soft cloth will often remove the spots.

The nicest duster for dusting out a house is a duck or goose wing, which, on account of its feathery softness, will not scratch the furniture, as some dusters do.

Grease on the kitchen floor can be softened by pouring kerosene over it and letting it remain for fifteen or twenty minutes. Later, scrub with hot soda water or borax and water.

The coarse parts of lettuce and celery which are unfit for salad should be placed in the stock kettle or chopped up and put into the dinner soup. Use the celery leaves as well.

To serve with hot chocolate, delicious sandwiches may be made of brown bread, with a filling of chopped dates and pecan nuts, blended with a few drops of honey and lemon juice.

If potatoes are greased thoroughly before being put into the oven to bake, they will have a rich satiny look, and the skins will peel off as thin as tissue when they come to the table.

Good black lawn should not change color in washing if it is washed quickly in suds made of white soap and warm water and then passed through clear lukewarm rinsing water.

When a collar of a linen or batiste blouse becomes slightly soiled it may be cleaned with a little naphtha or benzine in the same way as silk or satin. With the process, the collar will not need pressing.

To bake fish without a watery flavor, do not place it on the bottom of the pan, but in an old plate, well greased, set this in the pan and pour enough hot water in the pan to reach nearly to the edge of the plate.

A tube of white oil color is good for mending china. The broken edges should be wiped quite dry, the color then applied and the parts pressed together. This takes several weeks to dry, but it will then hold perfectly. A generous supply of eggs should

A Marvel of Healing

It does not take long for Dr. Chase's Ointment to prove its magic healing power. A single night is often sufficient to produce the most startling results.

Mrs. Chas. Gilbert, Haystack, Placentia Bay, Nfld., writes:—"I was a sufferer from Salt Rheum for ten years, and had about despaired of ever being cured, so many treatments had failed. Hearing of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Chase's Ointment, I commenced using it, and was entirely cured by eight boxes."

Mr. Stanley Merrill, Delaware, Ont., writes:—"For years I was troubled with my hands cracking, often becoming so sore that I could hardly do any work. I got some of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and happily find that one or two applications of same to the affected parts makes them well. I have had no trouble since using the ointment for some time."

Message From S.S. Portia.

The following letter was picked up in a bottle on Saturday July 20th, at Newtown, drove in by Samuel Green's stage and was picked up by Mrs. John Kneeb's adopted daughter, 11 years old.

MRS. JOHN KNEEB,
Newtown.

MESSAGE.
Thursday, July 18th, 1912.

Just crossing Bonavista Bay, been on the round trip with pleasant company and had a splendid time.

Would advise anybody with a fortnight to spare to take a trip on the good ship "Prospero," commanded by the jovial Capt. Abraham Keen, the hero of the frozen pans. Hoping to get to St. John's by to-morrow noon.

Anyone who should pick up the bottle in which this note is enclosed will kindly post note to "The Evening Telegram," for publication for the purpose of finding out the currents of Bonavista Bay.

This bottle consigned to the deep with all due ceremonial rites watched by a crowd of weeping friends, the contents of the bottle aforesaid having been brutally made away with previous to the burial at sea.

Yours truly,
An admirer of the ship and the jovial captain.

HAD SPLENDID FISHING.—The fishermen of Portugal Cove had the best sport of trap fishing for the season yesterday. Cod was on the ground in abundance and traps took from 40 to 90 qts., the latter fare being had by the Messrs. Somerton. The hook and line men gave up their work to help the trap men get their catches ashore and were awarded boats load of fish for the aid rendered.

A WINNING START.

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force For the Day.

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true, even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and egg gave me great distress."

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when judiciously varying my diet."

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts."

"Grape-Nuts holds first rank at our table."

"Intended to Complete."

Yesterday we published the letter of July 4th, 1912, addressed by Sir Edward Morris to Messrs. Glyn, Mills, Currie & Co., the agents of the Colony in connection with the Loan. There are two paragraphs which we publish again to-day to direct attention to two statements which they contain. The paragraphs run as follows:—

"The proceeds of the present Loan will be applied to the building of five Branch Lines of Railway, about 300 miles in length, to connect with the Main Trunk Line of Railway between St. John's and Port-aux-Basques; the building of such Branch Lines has been authorised by Parliament (10 Edward VII., Chap. 12.)

The money provided by this issue is intended to complete the Branch Lines under construction, all of which will, it is expected, be open for operation by December 1st, 1914."

The first statement to which we direct attention is that the branch lines provided for by the Railway Extension Act of 1910 will be about 300 miles in length.

The second statement is that the proceeds of this loan are intended to complete these branch lines.

It will be observed that in this letter Sir Edward Morris gives the mileage as about 300.

In reference to Sir Edward Morris's statement about the mileage, we may point out that on February 22nd, of this year in reply to a question of Sir Robert Bond, the Minister of Finance stated that the mileage of the branches, according to the figures of the Government Engineer would be 342 miles.

Later on in the House the same Minister referred to the mileage as about 350.

What an extraordinary discrepancy between the statements amounting to between 40 and 50 miles.

Why did not the Prime Minister in his letter give the official estimate of the Government Engineer, as announced in the House of Assembly last session.

How came he to reduce it 42 miles? We will now turn to the statement that the loan is intended to complete these branch lines. This session in the House of Assembly, the Prime Minister gave the average cost of the Port aux Basques line as $19,000. Taking the average cost of the branch lines at the same estimate and taking the Government Engineer's estimate of 342, it follows that the cost of the branch lines will work out, on that basis, at some $6,500,000. Indeed the Prime Minister himself gave the cost in a speech in the House last session at $6,000,000.

How then will he pay a bill of $6,500,000 or over $6,000,000 out of the proceeds of the two loans. The proceeds of the 1910 loan came to about $3,700,000. The proceeds of the 1910 loan at say $8 will amount to about $1,700,000, say all told to $5,500,000.

How does the Prime Minister propose to pay a bill of $6,500,000 or even of $6,000,000 with $5,500,000?

Sciatica and Lumbago

Sciatica, neuralgia and sciatic rheumatism are the result of a run-down nervous system. For this reason all treatments must necessarily fail which do not build up the nervous system.

Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont., writes: "It affords me pleasure to be able to speak favorably of two of Dr. Chase's medicines—the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills. I had been a sufferer for twenty-five years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried almost all the medicines I could hear of, without one particle of benefit, until I commenced to use Dr. Chase's. I noticed an improvement before I had used two boxes, and the benefits obtained by continued use have been wonderful. I have so much confidence in these two medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends, and I have yet to hear of a single case in which they failed to give satisfaction."

Dr. Chase's medicines are for sale by all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A curious ceremony which takes place at Whitsuntide is that which is enacted in the parish church schools at St. Ives, Huntingdonshire, England. The custom dates back to 1675, when Dr. Robert Wilde left money for the purpose. He directed that the minister and churchwardens should purchase six Bibles, that the minister should preach a sermon, and lots be cast for the Bibles.

To-Day's News.

Special Evening Telegram.
PARIS, To-day.
 Canadian Postmaster General Pelletier arrived here. The principal object of his visit is to arrange, if possible, for a reduction in cable rates and for introducing of two cent postage between Canada and France. The Postmaster General will be joined on Saturday by his colleagues Doherty and Hazen. Hazen will confer with M. Delcasse, French Minister of Marine, on subject of reciprocal shipping regulations, notably with respect to increase the number of life boats on steamships plying between France and Canada. Great importance is attached to the visit to Paris of Canadian Ministers on account of close relations between France and Canada.

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-day.
 The Daily Mail's parliamentary correspondent declares in an open secret that the Canadian Premier and his colleagues are prepared to recommend a contribution of $20,000,000 to build three Dreadnoughts, but that nothing can be announced until Ministers return to Canada. The Daily Mail believes this knowledge influenced the British Government in preparing the recent Naval estimates, that they also had in mind when said in the House of Commons yesterday: "There were forces at work which would influence expenditure on armaments."

Special to Evening Telegram.
VANCOUVER, To-day.
 Two thousand workers are on strike on Grand Trunk Pacific between Hazelton and Burns Lake, short distance from Northwest Fort George. The contractor says he wired the Provincial Government for soldiers and police.

Special Evening Telegram.
OSTEND, To-day.
 While the Princess Thurn and Taxis was returning from a promenade to her hotel, she missed her jewels worth $50,000. The theft was apparently the work of an international gang.

McMurdo's Store News.

Insect stings are always annoying and, at least in the case of children, sometimes serious. Messrs. Burroughs & Wellcome Co. have just put forth a new and elegant preparation to counteract the irritation set up by bites and stings of insects. This is known as Lanisine, and consists of appropriate antiseptic and soothing substances with a Lanoline base. Put up in tubes, it is always convenient and ready to apply, and it has the property of quickly allaying the irritation and inflammation following the bites of mosquitoes, etc., and bee and ant stings, thus preventing any further trouble. Mothers would do well to keep a tube in the house, ready for emergencies. Price 20c. a tube. See our want ad. on front page.

 New York, July 20.—Five men were killed and several severely injured by the bursting of a steam pipe on the steamer Principe di Piemonte en route here from Naples, and due to-day, according to a wireless message, received from Captain Domeniconi by Dr. Derral, the Royal Italian medical officer attached to the Italian consul's office in this city.

Live Lizards Being Worn

By London Women as Dress Ornaments.

London, July 14.—The fad of several years ago of women wearing hamelons is coming in again, with the lizard for the wigly pet. Live lizards have been sold by hundreds in London this spring.

Many varieties of small green horned galliots, dark spotted eye damonians and Austrian blue throated and spotted eye damonians are the most popular.
 The creatures are twelve to eighteen inches long and have a gold collar around the neck and a chain. They crawl through the front of the dress and around the neck and are sometimes worn as a live bracelet.
 They are handled over water until they got used to being fondled and learn not to bite. They are fed on live worms and are kept in a glass case when not worn. They need nothing more than worms and a glass of water.

A HANDSOME STORE.—The barber shop of Mr. Wm. Bonnelly on Water Street has just been renovated. The interior is decorated and varnished and the store is a handsome one. For the shoe-shining industry the proprietor has engaged the services of a negro.

That Affair at Quidi Vidi

The Daily News man is worrying much about our report of the incident on Quidi Vidi the other night. The opinion of those on the Lake blames Cox Day. As to what boat he was in, whether the Togo or Cabot, makes no difference. The News says Day saved the situation by commanding the crews of both boats to "back" and "pull." So, according to the News scribe, one man can navigate two race boats, even in fog, when five men would be required. To be brief, and for the information of the News man, we repeat it was the disciplined brigade boys which saved the situation. As soon as they got a command from their coxswain they picked it up quickly. The News also states that there was no possibility of a fatal accident. What nonsense. Everybody knows that if two race boats collide what the aftermath would be.

 My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT white as is most always the case in horse wounds.

The Picnic Season.
 BY M. L. RANN.

A picnic is a place where people meet to perspire in unison and make the acquaintance of several new varieties of insect life.

A picnic is always held at some damp and inaccessible spot, where there is an abundance of sharp-visaged ants which are continually dropping down somebody's neck and interrupting the conversation with unwholy remarks.

No picnic is considered a real success unless it bumps into a wet thunder shower just as the fried chicken is about to be disseminated. It is a melancholy sight to see a lean, hungry picnicker comfortably seated in a large, resilient pool of rainwater and trying to spear the elusive olive with a tin fork, while all about him are the prostrate and water-soaked forms of the baking powder biscuit, the scalloped potato and the angel food cake.

Picnics are usually crowned by a series of free baths, just as the low descending sun imparts its last frugal bluster. These baths are usually taken in some river which is the home of the highly-perfumed carp and has a bottom liberally ornamented with clam shells and the yielding vertebrae of the pollywog. They are also taken in native costumes which make a thin man look like a bas relief of a toasting fork.

Some people are so fond of picnics that they take along self-dumping hammocks and stay in the woods until nature has given them the rich, golden sheen of a summer sausage. After a man has grown a beard which would stand up and fight a disc harrow to the ropes, he will return home with a deep sense of satisfaction and a series of parallel ridges embossed by the vindictive mosquito.

Picnickers who sleep in a tent are seldom disturbed by anything except the inhuman habit of snoring in three colors or by the predatory pinch bug, which is liable to land on a protruding toe just when everybody has dozed off.

HOOKED IN THE UDDER.
 But Douglas's Egyptian Liniment Saved the Injured Quarter.

When one of your animals is so badly hurt that there seems little or no chance of healing the wound then is the time to use Douglas's Egyptian Liniment.

Mr. G. P. Ashbaker, of Evans Mills, N.Y., says: "While driving cows to pasture one of them was hooked in the udder, the horn penetrating so far that the milk ran out in a stream. Every one I talked with, said there was no chance of saving the injured quarter. But I decided to try Egyptian Liniment. I sprayed this liniment into the wounded udder and after three applications, she lost no more milk, and the wound healed so nicely that it's almost impossible to find the scar. I believe there is nothing equal to Douglas's Egyptian Liniment for cuts or sores of any kind."

Be wise—Keep Douglas's Egyptian Liniment on the premises. Price, 25c. at all Dealers. Free sample on request. Douglas & Co., Napanee, Ont.

Mr. Dawe's Venture.

Mr. R. Dawe, son of the late Capt. Charles Dawe, to whose venture in the schooner "Jewel," the Telegram referred yesterday, is enthusiastic over the prospects for a profitable voyage. The "Jewel" is a pretty little schooner of 22 tons, has a powerful gasoline motor and is equipped with the best possible outfit for fishing on the Labrador. She carries a foresail, mainsail and jib and her accommodations are of the best. On reaching Horse Hr. a crew of fishermen will be shipped, and the vessel will proceed to the outer edge of the fish. These are the grounds frequented by bankers each fall and which are generally the location of large schools of cod. Hand liners will be used and when a trip is secured it will be brought to port to be cured. As stated yesterday, if the voyage is a success, Mr. Dawe will fit out a fleet of small craft next year to engage in this fishing.

A Nocturnal Prowler.

Some time after midnight Wednesday a young lady residing on Barter's Hill who was reading in her bed room heard the sound of stealthy steps outside, and raising the curtain a little discovered a man peering through the window. She quietly told her father and brother who investigated but at their appearance the fellow took to flight, going down over the meadow land at the rear of Barter's Hill. He made good his escape. A few night previously members of a family were awakened by hearing some person walking about outside their house. He repeatedly tried the doors and windows but when he saw that the inmates of the house were aroused he left the neighborhood quickly. One or two policemen on the back streets is a great necessity.

McMURDO & CO. HAVE IT.

All drug stores sell SALVIA, and it is guaranteed to grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of. If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears.

The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the hair that should go to the hair on the roots.

SALVIA is sold by first-class druggists under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" on every bottle.

Sailors' Union.

Some fifty seamen of St. John's met in the Longshoremen's Hall last evening and after some discussion a Sailors' Union was formed. Delegate Woods of the Firemen's Union addressed the body on unionism generally. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, W. Cullen; Vice-President, T. Murphy; Treasurer, T. White; Secretary, J. Koolery. Mr. W. J. Higgins was appointed Solicitor.

Stephano Here.

The S. S. Stephano, Capt. Clarke, 5 days from New York via Halifax, arrived in port at eight o'clock last evening. While en route from Halifax adverse weather was met. Coal is again scarce in town, and in a few days, unless some arrives quickly, none will be procurable. Better to have a shortage now than in the winter.

The hay crop is small and so as to help people to keep their cattle over the winter, the Agricultural Society are approaching the Government with the request that the duty be taken off hay and straw for this one season. A very reasonable request we should say.

Miss Mollie McKay left for St. John's by Monday morning's train on a week's visit to her cousin, Miss B. Davis of Bannerman Street and other friends.

The Academy Hall was the scene of a very enthusiastic meeting last night when the different Catholic societies of the town presented their beloved pastor, Rev. W. Finn, with addresses and suitable tokens of their esteem. Father Finn leaves by this evening's train for his new field of labor, Grand Falls, taking with him the best wishes of the whole community.

Mrs. C. Hutchings and her niece, Miss Jessie Bussell, arrived from St. John's yesterday on a visit to the former's sister and brother-in-law, Agricultural Society was held on Monday night last. It was unanimously decided to hold our annual agricultural exhibition this fall, and the executive was asked to draw up plans for the same for the next meeting. These exhibitions have accomplished quite a lot in this district for the cause of agriculture and if the Government could be induced to do its part to keep them going, much good would be derived from them.

Busy for the Americans.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—In the Bay Roberts 'Guardian' of the 19th, it appears the following communication from A. W. Piccott:—

"Sir,—I have just arrived here in Schr. 'Elva L. Sperring' from Burgeo Bank, St. Pierre Bank and Port au Port, with about 10,000 pounds of halibut aboard. These fish are fairly plentiful at Port au Port in shoal water, but herring bait is very scarce. The weather has been good, and the agent of the Booth Fisheries Co. consider our fishing grounds very satisfactory. Mr. Knight, one of the directors of the company, is leaving Chicago to-day and will arrive here on Friday. The salmon and lobster fisheries around Bay St. George and Port au Port are good. The salmon fishery from Burgeo to here is better than last year, and quite a lot of salmon is being shipped by our fishermen to Boston and New York boxed in ice."

Signed,
A. W. PICCOTT.

Mr. Editor this is a wonderful piece of information sent to the fishermen of this district free of charge, and by no less a person than the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Some time ago a man from this place was on the train coming from Port aux Basques, Mr. Piccott was journeying from there to Bay of Islands at the same time, champagne was flowing like water. Truly Mr. Piccott is having the time of his life while there is only work for the poor toilers of Newfoundland. What a spectacle—the paid minister of the crown spending his time going around in an American banker trying to teach foreign fishermen how to take the bread out of the mouths of the Newfoundland fishermen whose heritage the island fisheries were until they are being bartered away for self enrichment by the so called People's Party.

What a discovery Piccott and his yankee associates have made, halibut to be found on Port au Port Bank in shoal water, and American fishermen are coming to catch them. Why, it was well known that halibut were plentiful on Port au Port Bank, and Shoal water, and American fishermen the West Coast long before Piccott came from Buffalo.

Surely if it were necessary to send a man to find out the fishing grounds for the Booth Fisheries Co. a man of less importance than the Minister of Marine and Fisheries of Newfoundland could be found, especially as it is well known that Mr. A. W. Piccott knows nothing whatever about our fisheries from a practical standpoint, as it is well understood by everyone about these borders that he was never engaged in any branch of the fisheries of the country. His experience consists of his being one season at Independent, Labrador, and scarcely got fish enough for home consumption, and two or three months he was cook in a banker, make up his practical knowledge of the fisheries. Of course from a scientific standpoint his knowledge would be much more extensive.

Last year when Mr. Coaker was struggling with fish buyers trying to get a price for fish shipped from Labrador and in which he succeeded so well, Mr. Piccott was enjoying himself on the S. S. "Fiona" with his yankee chum who described the trip in the newspapers afterwards, and showed how Mr. Piccott enjoyed himself swinging "his partner" in the French colony of St. Pierre whilst his constituents at Indian Harbor and Smoky Tickle were being offered $3.50 for their fish, and Mr. Piccott thought that they could not get any more for it, but through the strenuous exertions of Mr. Coaker in interviewing the fish buyers, fishermen were paid one dollar per qtl. over the above quoted price.

Does Sir Edward Morris imagine that Morrison, Piccott, Crosbie and others of his party can defy and ignore public opinion with impunity and go scott free? If so the day is not far distant when he will be rudely awakened.

Yours truly,
SPANIARDS BAY LABRADORIAN,
July 22nd, 1912.

Overstocked.

The Precise Meaning of, and Cause for Cut Prices and Clearance Sales.

BY J. R. HAMILTON.

When you see a suit of clothes marked down say from $30 to $22.50, you generally assume that the merchant was overstocked. But when you see a cut price on a diamond or a dining chair or any other staple article less responsible for its sale to style, you are apt to question the legitimacy of that sale.

Therefore, the following facts which will be A. B. C. to every buyer and merchant, will probably be interesting news to you.

Aside from the store that merely lies about its prices and the store that cuts the figures on some trivial article as a bait, there are four contributing causes for a cut price.

The cause which most people already understand, of course is too much stock. No buyer can tell just what pattern of a suit or dress or what color in a fabric is going to be most popular. So when it is found that any article is not eagerly bought, it is quickly reduced in price. The reason for this is too evident to dwell upon.

The second cause is the financial one. Every merchant allows himself and each of his buyers just so much money for every stock of goods carried. For example, a Shoe Department which is allowed $30,000 upon which to do business, must do business on that much capital. The Shoe Buyer must be in the market for new goods at certain seasons of the year. If his capital is all tied up in old stock, he will not be able to buy new stock. Therefore he must have ready capital even at the expense of profits.

The third cause is your mental effect on the people who have to sell the goods. The moment you, the public, do not buy a certain article, that article immediately loses value in the eyes of a man or woman who is selling it. Again and again the buyer is obliged to cut the price of perfectly good merchandise simply because you, the public, have made his sales force lose faith in it. The moment you won't buy it, they can't sell it.

The fourth cause is the interest on the investment. A store's money is made by the number of times it is able to turn over its stock in a year. The greatest dread of any store is of stock which does not "turn." Some merchants have figured that it pays them to sell every article in their store at least once a year. And such merchants do this even with such staples of rising value as diamonds themselves.

These are the four laws for clearance sales and cut prices, and knowing them, you should watch the advertising eagerly right now for the many advantages you are sure to find.

For these are the days of reckoning in every store.

Special to Evening Telegram.
NEW YORK, July 25.

Gratitude.

I'm glad the people don't insist that I should for an office run; they've tumbled to the fact, I wish, that I don't like that sort of fun. No delegation seek my door to tell me that the state demands my presence on the House's floor, the service of my brain and hands. No patriots come round to say that all is lost if I don't rise and knock the welkin loose to-day with facts, statistics, pipe-dreams. Hiss I do not list to Toms or Dicks unwind their campaign rigmarole; the stale old game of politics imparts the willies to my soul. I've seen the tiresome game so long! I've seen the roosterback pounded flat; I've seen the same old shrieking throng demanding this, rebuking that! And always when the noise is done, expired the music and the thrills, the chronic statesmen get the mon, the voters have to foot the bills. The statesmen know I do not care who wins or loses in the fight; they know I will not pay the air, or lug transparency by night; they know I will not toot a horn or waddle with the other geese, and so they pass me up with scorn, and I enjoy a splendid peace.

Regatta Notes.

The Regatta Committee meets tonight.

Reid's new boat will be 50 lbs. lighter than the Blue Peter. She will be christened the Nellie R.

A Juvenile crew from Torbay will row the Guard, but have not had practice yet. This is the second juvenile crew from that section since the tragedy occurred in 1884.

The Daily News crew were out in the Regatta last evening and made excellent time. They covered the course in just 13 minutes. It looks as if they will win hands down.

Last night about 8 o'clock the fog became very thick on the Lake and practice was interrupted.

It is expected that at least four boats will be entered in every race for the coming Regatta.

Football.

Casuals Defeat St. Bon's.

Before a small gathering of spectators the St. Bon's and Casuals played on St. George's Field last evening, and resulted in an easy win for the latter team by five goals to one.

The St. Bon's had not their regular team playing and seemed careless about the game.

Up to this time the proceeds are nearly $1,000 behind last year.

While captain Colford and Michael Kean were driving in Mundy Pond Road, Wednesday evening, their horses were set upon by a vicious dog. The brute caught Kean's horse by the under lip and bit it severely. This animal has set upon people passing that way also, and the owner should either chain him up or destroy him.

Cable News.

Special to Evening Telegram.

NEW YORK, July 25. A cable from London says, twenty-four policemen are keeping guard over Lord Devonport's residence and park which surrounds it, to-day, while others patrolled the approaches to the park. Devonport is the employer for whose death thousands of striking dockers prayed publicly for on Tower Hill yesterday. Precautions are being taken for fear of an attempt being made to assassinate him. Devonport, who is chairman of the Port of London, incensed the strikers' hatred by refusing to move an inch toward a settlement of the struggle, and was as determined as ever to-day. It is said he was deeply perturbed by yesterday's demonstration of intensity of feeling against him. Charitable and kindly in private life, the reviews to-day ranked him one of the old school of English captains of industry. To the danger of assassination, Devonport is indifferent; but to have an immense throng pray for Heaven to kill him, has disturbed him seriously. Public sympathy was in a measure turning strongly in the strikers' favor to-day, because of the sufferings of themselves and their families. Other workers are talking of sympathetic strikes, and it is feared this will become general. The Government is seriously alarmed over the outlook.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 25. Sir William MacKenzie, who sailed for Canada yesterday, declared strongly in favor of three Dreadnoughts from Canada to be donated immediately for the North Sea Squadron. Hazen, the Canadian Minister of Marine, who accompanied Borden to England, in replying yesterday to a deputation from the Imperial Marine League, declared he was not violating confidence when he said the question of converting merchant ships into armed cruisers in time of war was discussed the last few days between the Government now here and the Admiralty authorities. In order to make such lines effective, said Hazen, guns and ammunition would have to be supplied to ports on either side of the Atlantic, between which such vessels ran, so that in the event of hostilities they would at the earliest possible moment be placed in a position to resist an attack or assist other vessels attacked. It has been suggested, he said, to the British Navy, the conditions should not effect the reduction of what Britain should do—the contribution should only be a supplement to what the Mother Country undertakes. "This is the view which we have taken here during the deliberations, and which we have tried to put before the authorities," said Hazen.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LIMA, Peru, July 25. A destructive earthquake occurred yesterday in Piura, capital of the most northerly Pacific departments. The shock lasted one minute and fifty seconds. The city is said to be almost in ruins. While the advices from the district are meagre, it is reported that a number of children have been killed, and many injured. Among the latter was Mr. Blackler, agent for the South American Insurance Company. The dry bed of the river was torn open, and jets of water was thrown out. The town has a population of 12,000.

Special Evening Telegram.

PITTSBURG, July 25. Death and disaster spread broadcast over the south-west countries yesterday and last night, through a cloudburst and the overflowing of rivers. Three score lives were lost, while the damage to homes and industries cannot be estimated. Fifteen lives were lost in Superba Mine, No. 2, Uniontown. Seventy-five miners narrowly escaped death, and reports coming from outside sections say that many lives were lost by torrents bursting into slopes. At daylight, shivering women and children gazed over the scene of desolation and death, in Upper Congoeny Valley.

Special Evening Telegram.

QUEBEC, July 25. As a result of a cave-in while a number of men were digging on the banks of Renogami Canal, two men were killed and five injured—two mortally. Three more are supposed to be underneath the soil which fell. A gang of one hundred men are working to recover the victims.

Special to Evening Telegram.

WINDSOR, Ont., July 25. H. G. Herbert, travelling Immigration Inspector for the Dominion Government, was shot and killed to-day by a crippled alien to whom he refused admittance to Canada. William Ferguson, a Scotchman, was the murderer.

Special to Evening Telegram.

TOKIO, July 25. Dr. Mirua, physician to the Emperor, interviewed to-day, admitted that the Imperial patient suffered from a serious relapse. Mirua says the patient's heart grows weaker and fears death at any moment.
