The Sound of Wedding Bells

Won After Great Perseverance!

CHAPTER IV.

"Unlike the wedding-guest," he says, "I am more anxious to hear than you are to tell. Please go on."

She smiles a slow, thoughtful smile.

"Once upon a time—no, I don't think I can tell it that way. Sir! you see before you—no, that won't do. I am rather in a difficulty," she breaks off. "I wish to tell you a single incident in my life, and it is rather hard to do so without revealing the whole of my past history."

"I shall feel honored," he says.

"Thanks. Very kind of you," she breaks in. "I will spare you. Please imagine then an irreproachable and exquisitely-mannered middle-aged lady—Aunt Fernor is one of the best creatures in the world!" and she glances across the room to where that irreproachable and exquisitely-mannered young one, "imagine this excellent lady having thrown upon her hands a young girl, being compelled to undertake the responsibility of bringing up this young girl, whose only characteristic is to leave undone what she ought to do, and to do those things which she ought not to do. Need I say that that young girl is myself?"

"I think you do yourself an injustice," he says, but rather doubtfully; from what he has seen he is rather impressed with the truthfulness of the description.

"Not at all," she says, with the greatest coolness. "No young girl was ever such a trouble to her guardian as I have been to Aunt Fernor. When I was young I was what is called a tomboy. I wouldn't learn music, I declined to take any interest in croquet, and insisted upon playing cricket and climbing trees. I was altogether about as troublesome a child as it is possible to conceive."

"A charming child, I am sure," he says, suggestively.

"Thanks. Not at all. Quite the reverse. Well, poor aunt endeavored to do her duty, but the result has not

He looks up.

"Makes you his heir," he says, quietly.

She laughs, very much as a child would do who had caught an elder in an artful trap.

"I thought you would say that," she says. "Nothing of the sort; he doesn't leave me his money, which would be really useful and what we really want very badly, but he leaves me what I have no use for, and what I don't at all want. You can't guess?"

"I cannot," he says, his gray eyes fixed on her animated face, animated yet calm and self-possessed.

"You can't? No, and you would not, if you guessed all day—or rather all night. You wouldn't if you sat there guessing until doomsday—not then—he was kind enough to leave me a—husband."

He does not start, but he looks at her with a fixed intensity. Then his eyes wander to the room and come back to her face with a strange look.

"Then you are married?" he says, peculiarly.

She laughs and swings the fan to and fro, evidently enjoying his bewilderment to the uttermost.

"I don't say that," she says, "one is not bound to accept that which even an uncle leaves one; he might have left me a wild elephant, for instance!"

"I—I don't understand," he says.

"It does rather require a key, doesn't it?" she says, soothingly. "Well, this is the key of it. It seems that this uncle of mine had brought up a young gentleman in the full and confident hope of inheriting my uncle's wealth; and so he does, but it is only on condition that he marries me."

And she closes her fan with a quick, graceful sweep and touches her bosom.

He leans forward, his hands clasped, his eyes bent on the ground, a frown upon his face.

"This is a strange story," he says.

"And may I venture to ask the sequel?"

"His, or mine?" she demands with perfect composure. "His, of course, I don't know yet. It is probable that he will do what I should do in the case, politely, but absolutely, and emphatically, decline to accept my uncle's wealth at such an awful sacrifice."

"But—but," he says, leaning back, his head upon his arms, "suppose he was quite content to accept the conditions?"

"Thanks! Thanks very much for the compliment. You think that I should prove irresistible! My uncle evidently thought the same, for he distinctly enjoyed that the unfortunate man should not be apprised of the blow that had been dealt him until he had met me, until, in short, he had had an opportunity of judging for himself whether even the immense sum of money named in the will were worth accepting on such awful terms."

"And you have not met, then?" he asks.

She shakes her head.

"No, I have never seen him; but if all that I have ever heard—it has not been much, I will confess—be true, he will be certain to decline."

"For why?" he asks.

"Because he is just the sort of man to take an aversion to me."

He looks rather incredulous.

"Oh, yes, that is so," she says. "He is very strait-laced, and queer, and precise—a disciplinarian and all that kind of thing. I felt so assured on that point, that I have postponed the meeting."

"Postponed?" with a puzzled frown.

"Yes. It seems that he has been spending the last few years abroad, and the lawyer had written to ask him to come home to—It is shameful!—to see me! to expect me as if I were a horse or a piece of furniture! When I was duly apprised of the fact, I insisted upon flying the ordeal; and so I dragged—it is not at all a slang expression—dragged my aunt across the Channel, and—and that is all."

There was silence for a minute. He sits and looks at her, evidently deeply interested, evidently somewhat puzzled.

"Well!" she says at last. "If I remember rightly, the wedding guest has the politeness to offer some remark in return for the Ancient Mariner's story. Have you none to offer?"

The House-wife's Dependable Ally

At least you might say it is a very pretty story."

"It is a very pretty story," he says obediently.

"Thanks," she says, cheerfully. "Now I will go and save my aunt from hysterics. I can see by her face that she is dreading that I am running about the streets again. By the way," and she looks down at him with a little rippling laugh of audacious merriment, "if my husband elect could be made cognizant of my exploit of this evening that would decide him once and for all. He would not even desire to inspect the lady who was so kindly bequeathed to him. Not certainly! Dulcè Dorrimore is not a fitting wife for Sir Hugh Falconer."

The name slips out unconsciously, and she does not even notice that she has said it until she glances at his face. He has not risen, has not moved, but his face has suddenly paled, suddenly grown rigid and fixed.

"What is the matter?" she says. "Has my story moved you so much, or has it simply exhausted you? Pray forgive me. I will atone for my cruelty by leaving you to rest and refreshment. Will you please take me back to my aunt?"

He rises slowly and stands beside her, looking at her with a strange fixed look, with a strange mixture of irony, and mockery, and amusement.

"One moment," he says. "I have something to say in return for your story, besides assuring you that it is a very pretty one. I have a little story to tell; I can tell it in a sentence. Miss Dorrimore, I am Sir Hugh Falconer?"

Egg stains on table linen should be soaked out in cold water, not hot, before washing.

Put a little vinegar in the water in which you boil fish and it will hold together better.

It is said that a raw potato rubbed on a griddle is as good as grease for frying cakes.

Add salt to starch water in winter and it will prevent the starch from freezing out.

If you dry peppers on a string, as in olden times, be sure to cover them with a cheesecloth.

Rag bags for all the different kinds of rags are a great convenience to the housekeeper.

The Edith Cavell Homes

The following letter has been received from Lt. Col. Sir Richard C. Temple in relation to the Edith Cavell Homes of Rest for Nurses, 25 Victoria Street, Westminster, London.

July 10, 1917.

Mrs. W. G. Gosling, Patriotic Association of the Women of Newfoundland, St. John's, Newfoundland.

Dear Mrs. Gosling—We have to-day received the sum of £552.53 as a result of the collections of the Patriotic Association of the Women of Newfoundland on behalf of this fund. A room will be named the "Newfoundland Room," and this sum will be placed to the endowment of it. I renew the thanks of the Council for the very handsome manner in which Newfoundland is coming to front in helping our efforts, and I can assure you once again of our gratitude to your Association.

You will be glad to hear that our efforts are proving eminently successful. Our Home at Bridport is full to overflowing and we have more than enough applications to fill the Haslemere Home, which we hope will be open early in September, as well as a possible third Home of the same size; so that you and your friends can see that the work we are aiming at will supply a real need of the nurses, who have done so much for us in the war.

Yours sincerely,
R. C. TEMPLE,
Chairman of Committee.

At her home in Dorchester, Mass., on Tuesday, the 11th, after a long and trying illness, in her 69th year, Elizabeth, beloved wife of John C. Davis, of St. George, leaving to mourn her beside her husband, three sisters, Mrs. W. Gordon, of Boston, Mrs. Josiah Paek and Mrs. A. Heath, of St. John's; also three daughters, Mrs. T. Ross and Mrs. R. Sheppard, wife of the late Capt. Sheppard, and one son, Thomas H. Davis, of this city.

At the Crescent.

Don't miss seeing the great weekend variety programme at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. Little Mary McAllister and John Corrar are featured in a pathetic Essanay super-feature entitled: "Unto the least of These." The darling Helen Gibson features in "The Lineman's Peril," a thrilling episode of the "Hazard's of Helen" railroad series. An educational travelogue is presented in "Scenes in Alaska." The "Climaxed Noon Pictorial" is one of Wallace A. Carlson's funny cartoons and Bert Crapoe is funnier than Charlie Chaplin in "His Movie Mustache," a great Vim comedy; the usual classy musical accompaniment.

Benedicts Beat Bachelors

IN YESTERDAY'S CRICKET.

In the cricket match played between teams of married and single men at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon the former put it all over the bachelors by a surplus score of 33 runs. The fathers and grandfathers, going first to bat, accounted for 80 runs, Mr. P. Wallace contributing twenty, not out, and Mr. R. Goodridge 17. Mr. Angus Reid, for the bachelors rolled up 27 not out, making the best score for the game. The bowlers for the singles were T. Ryan, P. Myler, A. Reid and F. Knight, and for the married Rev. J. Brinton and J. S. Ayre. Mr. Percie Johnson acted as scorer. During the game refreshments were generously provided by a number of ladies and greatly enjoyed by the players.

Millers Profits.

(From the Port Arthur News-Chronicle.)

Call up your grocer this afternoon for a barrel of flour, c.o.d., and you will have to give the delivery man $12.50 or $12.60.

This represents a profit of forty or fifty cents divided between the grocer and the jobber who handles it on the way from the millers. The jobber pays the miller $12.10. The grocer pays the jobber about $12.50. But how much profit do you think there is in it for the miller?

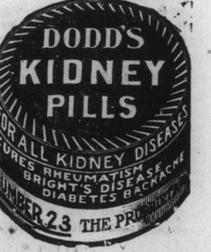

Mr. N. M. Paterson, one of the leading elevator men and grain experts of the district, says that the miller makes five dollars profit on each barrel sold, or a percentage of more than seventy per cent.

Mr. Paterson gave these figures as to profit at a meeting of the Port Arthur Board of Trade last evening. They looked so startling that before putting the reporter's story into print to-day the News-Chronicle called up Mr. Paterson and asked about them. He confirmed the report of his statements as correct.

Do You Weigh the Cake of Soap You Buy?

The increase in the cost of nearly everything that is used in the manufacture of soap makes it impossible to give the same size, same weight and same quality as heretofore, without increasing the price.

Some soap manufacturers have cut down the size and reduced the quality.

KIRKMAN'S BORAX SOAP is the same to-day as it has been for over a quarter of a century—no change in the weight, in the size or in the quality.

When buying laundry soap, be sure you get—Full weight, full size and full quality.

KORNILOFF'S REBELLION AT AN END.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 13. According to an official statement just issued, Korniloff's attempt seems to have collapsed, and there is no longer any reason to fear collision between the two forces. After General Alexieff had been in communication by telephone with Korniloff, his opinion was that the revolutionary general later would abandon his enterprise.

WANTS TO SURRENDER ON TERMS

LONDON, Sept. 13. General Korniloff, former Commander-in-Chief of the Russian armies and leader of the rebellion against the Provisional Government, has expressed a willingness to surrender on certain terms, says a despatch from Petrograd to the Exchange Telegraph Company. The Provisional Government, however, demands his unconditional surrender.

FRENCH OFFICIAL

PARIS, Sept. 13. In the region of Bixchoote on the Belgian front, says an official statement issued by the war department to-day, there was violent artillery bombardment last night. French guns checked infantry attacks south of Juvincourt. In the Champagne district German raids on the French trenches were repulsed.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY'S FLIGHT

GENEVA, Sept. 13. The Freie Zeitung, of Berne, has published an interview from a high Austrian official who recently travelled through several sections of his country, in which the writer states that Austria-Hungary cannot hold out the coming winter owing to economic reasons, as soldiers and civilians will be starved. He gives several reasons, notably the almost complete destruction of the crops in the richest regions of Hungary by cold and heavy rain, while 300,000 tons of Roumanian cereals could not be transported owing to lack of rolling stock, which first of all is utilized for military purposes. In the meantime he says necessities of life are mounting to extraordinary prices.

THE SUBMINE CAMPAIGN

LONDON, Sept. 13. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Correspondent.)—In a despatch from a high British naval authority, Reuter's has received the following: Despite the talk in certain quarters, there is no reason to believe that there is certainly no evidence that Germany is adopting new tactics in her U-boat war.

fare. Nobody claims that the menace has been overcome, but people should not, because of that, blindly swallow all the Germans claim. The Germans talk contemptuously about the loss of one of their U-boats monthly, while they know that's nonsense. I am not going to inform the enemy by quoting the actual figures, but I can tell you the action against the subs. During the last three months has yielded what I will call good results in the destruction of these boats. Doubtless the German underwater activity is very high at present, but this should be taken in conjunction with the fact that the latest and third definite date fixed by the German high command for its complete success over us in the early part of October. Regarding recent reports respecting losses in the Atlantic from the action of the U-boats, Germany's claims are not borne out by facts. In this area there has for obvious reasons been increased enemy activity, but our counter-measures are proving successful. In this class of warfare the fight is and must be a stiff fight, but notwithstanding the increase in building and the activity on the part of the enemy, we are more than holding our own, and with the help of time, which is on our side, success is assured.

FIVE MERCHANTMEN SUNK

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 13. News reached here to-day of the sinking some weeks ago of the Leyland liner Devonian with a loss of four lives. It was brought here by the survivors who were picked up soon after the ship went down. Early despatches to the State Department from London said all the crew were saved, according to the American horse-traders whose names they did not know. A British gunner, the ship's carpenter and his assistant were killed when the torpedo fired by the U-boat caught the Devonian amidships and sent her to bottom forty minutes later. Several submarines, the survivors said, suddenly appeared on the surface and began an attack on a fleet of merchantmen, sinking the Devonian and four other steamers. The vessels were being convoyed through the submarine zone, and encountered the submarines off the North Coast of Ireland.

PORTUGAL

MADRID, Sept. 13. Portugal has been declared to be in a state of siege, according to a telegram received here from Lisbon, on account of a general strike. All establishments in the Portuguese capital have been closed. Several persons, including a number of soldiers, have been wounded by explosion of bombs.

BACK ON BRITISH SOIL

TORONTO, Sept. 13. A special cable to the Toronto Telegram from London, says: A dramatic episode occurred when four officers and thirty-four non-coms. and men reported at the Canadian headquarters yesterday. They were greeted by their comrades, and shook hands with Gen. eral Turner, after their long captivity in Germany. This was the first batch of Canadians exchanged from Switzerland under the terms of the new agreement. The health of the men is generally good. The erstwhile prisoners can scarcely contain their joy at being back on British soil.

ALIEN DRAFT BILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. The passage by Congress of the Alien Draft Bill will be welcomed by the British Government, according to a statement issued here to-night by the British recruiting mission, because it removes the necessity for a much slower and more cumbersome process of recruiting men between 21 and 30. In less than three months, the statement said, the equal of six British regiments has been sent from the States, and the work keeps up with a steady flow. But it is necessarily slow work, because it is difficult to locate British subjects and to reach them by direct personal appeal. It would be useless to predict what will be the number of British subjects liable under the alien draft bill, but the number gained in this way, allowing for necessary exemption, is sure to be a valuable asset to British manpower.

NAVAL ATTACHE RECALLED

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 13. A Berlin despatch says that Argentina's naval attaché in Berlin, Capt. Ogilvy, has been recalled by his government. No reason has been given, but it is believed that his recall is connected with the Swedish affair.

Bernhardi Made Secret Trip to U. S.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 5.—In 1913 Gen. von Bernhardi, the German General Staff, made a quiet tour of the United States to prepare German sympathizers for the war that now engulfs the world. He held secret meetings in San Francisco and Los Angeles and in an Eastern city and foretold how the Germans would invade Belgium and march on Paris. But he erred in believing that England would remain neutral.

This astonishing instance of German audacity and intrigue was told by J. A. Macdonald, the Scotch minister who turned newspaper editor twenty years ago, and now is one of the outstanding men of Canada. "Your country," he exclaimed in his sudden, impetuous way, "is honey-combed with spies. I happen to know, for instance, that von Bernhardi, author of 'Germany and the Next War,' made a secret tour of the world before the war began, and in the course of his journey visited America for the purpose of preparing pro-Germans for what was to come. "Germany had decided to the letter just how she would invade Belgium and just how she would march on Paris. Bernhardi told his secret audiences in San Francisco, Los Angeles and an Eastern city that Paris would be compelled to pay all the expenditures of the war, and that with France whipped the German armies would turn swiftly back to the east and meet the Russians before they were mobilized. "That whole plan was described for the benefit of German-Americans in San Francisco on May 16, 1913. Among those who attended the meeting and who afterward told me of it, was Dr. David Starr Jordan, formerly Chancellor of Leland Stanford University, who was invited because of his supposedly radical opinions. "This war," continued Dr. Macdonald, "can't be short. But I won't attempt to say how many months or years it will last. We've got to win it or it will be hell. Life isn't worth living unless it's free, and above all things this war is a struggle between democracy and despotism, or the ideas they represent."

Asked if America could be invaded by Germany, he answered: "In this struggle the limitations and handicaps of mere geography are insignificant. The United States, representing as it does the idea of freedom and self-government, could not have kept out of the conflict without being guilty of treason to those world ideas." Speaking of the present Canadian Government, to which he is opposed, being a Liberal, while the Government is Conservative, he said that if narrow politics had not played a part in the war conscription in Canada would have been unnecessary. "Even as it is," he continued, "Canada has done splendidly. The United States would have to train and equip 5,000,000 men to furnish an army as large in proportion to population as the army Canada has sent across the seas since April 1st last."

"Most Important Thing"

The most important thing now, he says, is to make every one understand why the war is being fought. "A war simply against peoples is worth nothing," he said. "This is a war against wrong ideas." He was asked what hand America must bear in the conflict, what she must furnish in the way of supplies and troops. "We're all in it for what we're worth," he answered. "We must use every resource we can. The purpose of the war is to make the opinion of the world civilized, so that the same relationship will exist between all nations that exists between the United States and Canada. There can be no peace for the world until autocracy, as represented by Germany and her allies, is beaten completely. "Before peace is declared we must re-establish the freedom of all little countries that have been overrun, and we must deliver the German people from the rulership of their warlords. There can be no world peace without world liberty, and there can be no liberty under German autocracy."

Hon. Dr. Lloyd, Acting Premier, the Ladies' Reception Committee and a large gathering of citizens assembled at the railway station last night to welcome a number of Royal Naval Reserve and Soldiers of the Mid. ### Suggests Collar Badge for the Regiment.

Editor Evening Telegram. Sir,—Allow me to make a suggestion that would be an addition to our Regimental dress. As all Colonial Troops have Collar Badges, "I think we should have also. I suggest the Coat of Arms of Nfld. as a badge for the collar of the tunic. W.E.W., One of the 500, France, 20/11/17.

843 Tongues in France.

Nearly one-fourth of the earth's land surface is comprised within the continent of Africa, and it is all around the coast of Africa, as it is around the world. Every eighth person of the world's population lives in the Dark Continent. The blacks double their number every forty years, and the whites every eighty years. There are 843 languages and dialects spoken among the blacks of Africa, but only a few of them written. One area in Africa unoccupied by missionaries is three times the size of New England, a second would make four states like New York, and another is eighteen times the size of Ohio. Throughout Africa there is one Missionary for every 133,000 souls.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky. I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may see my letter if you wish. Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice.—It will be confidential.

C. C. C. MATTERS.—A savings bank for the members of the C. C. C. is being started. This, no doubt, will encourage thrift. It is also the intention of the Corps to have a miniature rifle range erected at the Armoury so that the lads can practice during the winter months.

VEGETABLE SALE.—During the last week in this month a vegetable sale will be held at St. Joseph's school room, Holyrood, in aid of the new church which is in course of completion there now. Rev. Dr. Kitchen, P. P., and his zealous staff are working assiduously to make the event as big a success as it was last year.

An American official who has scrutinized the reports made by German diplomatic representatives to their Government before the declaration of war, furnishes this extract from one of them: "The Americans are very rough. If you call one of them a liar he does not argue the matter, after the manner of a German gentleman, but brutally knocks you down. The Americans have absolutely no culture."

City Council Pays Tribute to Ex-Solicitor.

TO EX-SOLICITOR. At the weekly sitting of the City Council yesterday afternoon, Councillor Mully paid a tribute to the splendid and valuable service rendered the city by ex-Solicitor Morris during the quarter of a century he held that post. The Councillor moved that Mr. Morris be publicly and officially thanked through the Secretary. Councillor Morris seconded the motion and as well as the Mayor and Councillors Brownrigg and Ayre eulogized the work done by their late Solicitor.

The Colonial Secretary wrote concerning an application of Croft and Barron to the Crown Lands Office for land near George's Pond, Signal Hill Road. The Council is inclined to think that the land should be public property and the Engineer was ordered to report fully. The Colonial Secretary also wrote re the Motor Cars Act.

Mr. Bert Hayward wrote intimating that the Council's notice published in the papers discriminated against the lamp he is agent for, namely, The Corning Headlight for motor cars. The Board says that the matter is in the hands of the police.

The request of a large number of petitioners that a lamp at the junction of Maxie Street and Monkstown Road be lighted from now on was acceded to.

The reports of the Health Officer, Engineer and City Inspectors for the week were read and adopted.

St. Patrick's Church Repairs

NOT DONE BY CITY. A false report that was being circulated in the West End of the city, to the effect that the Council were paying the cost of excavation work and construction of the new wall forming St. Patrick's Church, was brought to the notice of the Municipal Board at yesterday's meeting by Councillor Mully, who asked that the report be given a public denial. Mayor Gosling stated that the rumor was as absurd as it was false and that no right thinking citizen had given credence to the story.

An award of £12,280 was given by Mr. Justice Hill, in the British Admiralty Court, to the salvors of the P. and O. liner Poonah on December 6 last, after she had been mined and had been left, so it was said, in a sinking condition, in the English Channel. The salvors included the commanders and officers and crews of four Government tugs, three Government trawlers, and H.M.S. Exe, and the owners, master and crew of the Steamship Alert.

Hope From Russia.

Russia is the country of surprises to-day, and among the greatest and most welcome of them is the sudden and complete collapse of the Korniloff rebellion. A few days ago the situation was extremely serious. Petrograd faced the double menace of the German advance and of no less an enemy than one who had lately been the Russian commander in chief. His humiliating failure has exhibited the complete ascendancy of the Provisional Government over the reactionary and anarchic elements, and the exhibition will increase it further. Korniloff and his confederates will receive little mercy: the Government will show itself unbelievably weak and omit a fine opportunity to restore order if it lets them escape with their lives. What appeared a few days back to be a grave peril may now be turned into an occasion of unmixed good. But the episode (for it has been little else), like so many late events in that country, is of greatest significance as an indication of Germany's present weakness. The revolt, it is said, left the Russian army for three days leaderless and without defence. Germany would not fail to seize so rare an opening, but there is no evidence that she has done so. On the contrary, the official bulletin from Petrograd speaks of fighting east of Riga in which the Russians have assumed the offensive, while Berlin claims no advances anywhere. None has been made, because there are no men to make it. Most observers regard the capture of Riga as far less military than political, designed for the benefit, not of the military position, but of the unsatisfied German populace, to whom it has been represented as a long step nearer peace. It could have been effected months ago, and would have been if it had offered military prospects worth while. Now with winter approaching and the furious struggle in the Isonzo draining the East front of her men, Germany will find in Riga another mockery, another disillusionment. If the winter not only halts the invaders but allows the leaders of Russia to consummate the unification of the country, already happily manifesting its beginnings, our great eastern ally will yet do what she has been potent to do from the first, and grind into the dust the last resistance of the enfeebled and exhausted foe.

The Position of Sweden.

Particular interest attaches to the general elections just held in Sweden, a country which stands in a not very creditable limelight just at present. How strong is the anti-Swedish feeling in the Argentine, accentuated keenly by the revelations of Sweden's unneutral conduct, demonstrated by the Buenos Aires riots. There have been few late developments in the situation beyond the dismissal of the German ambassador to Argentina, who advised his government to sink Argentine ships and called that country's foreign minister an ass; but the consequences that are yet to come may be far-reaching. Sweden has not vouchsafed an explanation to the Argentine or the United States of the belief that her envoy in acting as a German intermediary, but the Allies are certain to demand it. Argentina may be moved to break with Germany, when the last big producing neutral would be against her. With a surplus of two hundred million bushels of Argentine wheat to be disposed of, the value of such a development to the Entente can be estimated. The revelations in any case will confirm the United States in the determination to maintain her embargo strictly, and see that none of her foodstuffs get to Sweden until that country makes her intentions a little plainer. In American opinion the war would last a very short time if the export were stopped of Swedish iron, the best in the world, to Germany. So great has this trade been that it is stated that agriculture in Sweden has been largely denuded of workers to man the iron mines, the resultant deficiency of food being made good by imports from America. It will be made good no longer and Sweden is in for a bad time. Popular sentiment there is said to be no longer so pro-German as at first, and there is nothing like an empty stomach to induce decided views. Possibly the international situation is at the bottom of the big defeat of the Swedish Conservative party, and it is likely that developments of the first importance will soon follow from it.

Peg Away.

If there seems to be an error
In the make up of your face,
With your nose a little crooked
And your eyebrows out of place,
Never let such trifles worry
'Tis not features make a man,
'Peg away,' and do your duty,
For it is the wisest plan.
If things do not move as smoothly
As you hoped they would progress,
Do not let them vex or bother
Or destroy your happiness;
Other feet have found roads rugged,
Stony places wait each man,
'Peg away,' and do your duty,
For it is the wisest plan.
If some other man's succeeding,
Do not worry, fret or 'stew,'
You may win when least expecting,
Fortune smiles anon on you;
All the way of life's uneven,
'Twas so since the world began,
'Peg away,' and do your duty,
For it is the wisest plan.
Don't give way to little troubles,
'Tis the minor things that vex,
Hillocks sometimes seem like mountains,
And a doubt will oft perplex;
Rise above adverse surroundings,
As a staunch ship mounts the wave,
Breathe the billow of contention,
And in all your acts be brave.
'Peg away' and do your duty,
Life's just what you dare to make it,
'You must plow and sow your way,'
'Tis the brave who win men's plaudits,
The courageous lead the van,
'Peg away,' and do your duty,
For it is the wisest plan.

An Appeal

For Newfoundland Sphagnum Moss.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—May I remind your readers that the work-rooms of the W.P.A. will shortly be re-opened, and that the ladies who look after the work of cleaning and packing the Sphagnum Moss have received no contributions for many months. They have no moss in hand, and are therefore unable to go on with their work.
There is urgent need for immediate supplies of this moss if we are to meet the increased demands for it from the hospitals overseas. We receive numerous letters asking for it, and stating how greatly it is esteemed for surgical dressings. The Moss Committee, therefore, appeals to all who are able to help in this way, both in St. John's and the outports, to send as much moss as they can secure and to send it as soon as possible. Parcels should be addressed
The Moss Committee, Government House,
and if containing the names and addresses of senders will be acknowledged in the newspapers.
I am, Sir,
Yours faithfully,

Unfortunate Lad.

His Case Being Looked Into.
A lad named Crossman, who is without parents, home or friends, was found wandering the streets again last night and taken to the police station for shelter. He came out of jail a few days ago; where he has spent most of his time during the past five or six years. He is 17 years old and Judge Morris to-day thought it a great pity to have the boy's life ruined. He was sent back to the Penitentiary for a week; meanwhile the authorities are interesting themselves in his case. The lad is well built and may make a fine soldier. Why not get him to enlist?

Woman Gives Rein to Bad Tongue.

A woman of Lyon Square, who was already told by the Court that she was a menace to that neighborhood because of her bad tongue, was again before Court to-day for handing out abusive salutations, such as jail birds, evil spirits and lunatics, to two neighbors on Sunday morning last. Judge Morris admonished strongly on the conduct of the defendant whom he bound over to keep the peace in $100 bonds, though he would like to have, some means, he said, of binding her tongue also to keep it from wagging so abusively for awhile.

Periscope Hidden Behind an Empty Craft in Night Attack on an American Liner—Torpedo Missed by Five Feet—Quick Work of Naval Gunners Hoisted U-boat—Lives of 600 Passengers in Peril.
(New York Times.)
News was received here yesterday from England of the attack made up on an American steamship on Aug. 3 on the coast of Ireland by a big German U-boat which used a ship's lifeboat as a decoy, and missed hitting the liner with a torpedo by a very narrow margin. There were 600 passengers on board the steamer.
According to eyewitnesses, who were on deck at the time the incident occurred, the liner was about ninety miles off the Irish coast on her way to a port in England. It was ten minutes past 8 o'clock at night, and on account of the bright moonlight, every object could easily be distinguished on the water as the vessel zigzagged on her course at a speed of eighteen knots.

"On entering the danger zone all passengers were warned not to disrobe that night and to have their lifebelts with them when they went on deck for exercising. The lookout man in the crow's nest at the foretopmast head sang out: "Boat four points away on starboard bow!"
"The captain and his officers on the bridge looked through their glasses and saw that it was a ship's lifeboat of an extra-large size bobbing up and down with the lazy swell of the sea and apparently unoccupied.
"Going at eighteen knots, the liner rapidly overhauled the boat and passed ed it about 600 yards away so that every one on deck could see plainly that there were no occupants in the drifting small craft.

"Just as it reached the quarter of the liner the crew of the six-inch gun aft saw a torpedo pass from port to starboard within five feet of the rudder. The shimmer of the wake could be seen plainly in the moonlight as it disappeared in the distance, the naval gunners said. The officer on duty on the after bridge instantly warned the captain on the forward bridge, who swung the liner hard over to starboard, and at the same time the gunners aft fired a shot at the submarine which appeared just above the surface on the port quarter about 550 yards away.
"As the head of the steamship came round, the starboard gun was fired and another shot from the after gun, which had one of the crack navy marksman among its crew. The shells struck the water and burst close to the submarine, but whether they sunk the undersea craft the gunners and ship's officers could not say, because the enemy craft was not seen after the second shell was fired. No further attack was made on the liner, but the passengers remained on deck with their lifebelts and drank coffee to keep themselves awake until the vessel reached port on the following forenoon.

"One of the officers on board the liner said that the U-boats were lying in wait for steamships bound for England and France because they had to converge to make their ports like entering the neck of a big bottle. Leaving for the United States, he said, the vessels separated and took different courses, which made it more difficult for the U-boats to attack them. Another inducement on the eastbound trip is that the steamships are all loaded with supplies, which is better than sinking a ship in ballast west-bound, the officer said.

Your Boys and Girls.
If it is necessary for a child, to take a lunch to school, see that it is different each day as well as dainty and pleasing in appearance. Here are a few suggestions for luncheons: White bread with quince marmalade. Fifteen filberts, one orange, Boston brown bread with pimento cheese, ten dates stoned and rolled in sugar, biscuits with sardines and lettuce, a frosted cup cake, white bread with chopped nuts, or even one cruller. Eight small crisp crackers with peanut are nice, or four stuffed prunes, graham bread with cold chicken, twelve English walnut meats, white bread with current jelly. White grapes or a sandwich made with one slice of white bread spread with blackberry jelly would be very dainty. Even one apple, or white bread with crisp bacon, one celery heart or two chocolate marshmallow would be appreciated.

Some other pleasing bits are graham biscuits with bits of thin sliced steak or one half inch cube of apple sugar or white bread with chopped egg or two big figs or a graham bread with lettuce sandwich.
Everyday Etiquette.
"I am to be an usher at a friend's wedding soon. What will be my duties at the reception?" Inquired Fred.
"The ushers remain near the door of the room in which the reception is being held, escorting the guests, as they arrive, to the bridal party, presenting each by name. It is also the usher's duty to see that all of the ladies are provided with refreshments," advised his father.

Household Notes.
Put the garbage can on wooden casters and it will be found a saving of energy.
Children should be trained to be particular about washing their hands before meals.
Keep talcum powder in the sewing room to use on the hands if they become sticky.
A dainty set of curtains for a girl's room can be made of cheesecloth, starched.
The skins of plums can easily be removed by scalding just as you would peaches."

Reducing Domestic Friction.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a great deal written and said about the unwisdom of husbands and wives trying to live with the relatives of either. And in that great deal there is as usual, some sense and some nonsense. Of course, society is founded on the unit of the family, and unquestionably it is easier to get along pleasantly when that unit shuts itself up in an individual cell. But that doesn't mean that, if necessary and kind to live with another unit, the thing can't be done pleasantly. It doesn't mean that all friction should be condoned as something inevitable.

In-Laws CAN Live Together Pleasantly.

Some of the friction is inevitable, and some just comes from a wrong way of looking at things. I once knew a man who lived for some years in the home of his wife's people. This household numbered among its members an elderly aunt who was extremely peculiar (to put it mildly) and was constantly doing queer, foolish things. The husband was a man of strong personality and one would have expected great friction to result. On the contrary they all seemed to get along quite pleasantly. A mutual friend once asked the man in my presence how he managed to put up with the aunt's queer ways. He let her alone when she didn't interfere with him. "Well," he said, "it came to me

THE PEON.

The peon is a bright subject of the Mexican Government, whose principal occupation consists in raising fourteen distinct varieties of continuous and explosive hell. Not all of the Mexican peons follow this occupation the year around, but there are enough of them who prefer the way path to plowing corn to keep your Uncle Samuel awake nights.

Compulsory bathing would do more to civilize the peon than a campaign for consolidated schools.

The only man in Mexico who was ever able to keep the peon in a subdued and docile state was the late Porfirio Diaz. Mr. Diaz was a stern man with a jaw shaped like a cement block, and he always got in the first kick, as Macaulay would say. Whenever Diaz heard that a bunch of long-haired peons had become fired with patriotism and American whiskey and were about to uprising, he did not wait to confirm the report by letter. He started for the scene of the uprising before daylight, and when he had finished what he had to say the still forms of his enemies would be seen draped over the neighbours' fences for a distance of six miles. Nobody ever tried to spring a revolution on P. Diaz without being taken home to his family in a gunny sack. O for a Diaz in Mexico at the present writing!

The Mexican peon lacks a great many things in order to make him a desirable companion and household pet. Two of the things he lacks most are education and soap, and it is hard to say which would do the most good. opinion is divided. Americans who have lived in Mexico for any length of time say that compulsory bathing, introduced at the point of the bayonet, would do more to civilize the peon than a campaign for consolidated schools. Many peons are peaceful and willing to work occasionally, if left alone, but they are overawed by their warlike brethren, who would rather shed their alcoholic breath on the field of battle than plant one acre of Early Ohio potatoes.

The only difference between the peon and the Phipino is that the latter has quit erupting for the time being. Both would be better citizens if a few of their leaders could be led out shortly before sunrise and completely filled with the low grade of lead ore. We should sympathize with the peon in his ignorance and lack of underwear, but civilization would be advanced several feet if more of the colonels and generals in the peon army could be removed from active pursuits by the neck.

In making fruit salads the fruit can be kept from darkening by squeezing a little lemon juice over it.

BATHS AND BRUSHES.

Many women make their bath much too lengthy a function, with the result that not only the skin, but the whole system becomes overworked. The hot bath should be taken quickly, followed by a sponge down or douche of cold or tepid water and a brisk rub down to promote the circulation. After long exercise, or when one is tired, and especially for sufferers from colds, rheumatism or neuralgia, a mustard bath is a wonderful tonic. Simply dissolve one or two teaspoonfuls in the hot water and you will feel better at once.

Two brushes for use in the bathroom are particularly good. One is the bathtub brush with bristles mounted in a convex form adapted to the contour of the tub. The handle is long enough to enable one to scour the tub without stooping over.

The other is cleverly contrived to clean the basin of the toilet closet more thoroughly than the usual mop or cloth. The brush is round and has very stiff bristles, but its special ingenuity consists in the spring which attaches it to the handle. This is of stout wire bending in any direction and its pliability permits the brush to reach every part of the basin, even some distance down the turn of the drain pipe. The hands need never come into contact with the water.

The Land of Plenty.

Westminster Gazette: A friend who has returned from Ireland exalts that country as the most desirable holiday resort in the United Kingdom. The keynote of the delight is liberty. As an Irishman he puts the whisky first. It is unlimited, he says, and of pre-war quality. Then you can have as much petrol as you want. And there are no restrictions on the supply of sugar. He tells me, in fact, that Irish folk who have been so unwise as to spend their holidays in England have brought their bags of sugar with them. The fourth attraction is sports, unrestricted by the supply of cartridges; but I think that in his estimation this falls a long way short of unlimited whisky, petrol and sugar.

Bed Rock Prices.

(From the Philadelphia Bulletin.) "Bernard M. Baruch will keep prices down," said a constituent. "Rich as he is, he never consents to be done without a protest." "Once a hotel man tried to do Mr. Baruch on his bill. Mr. Baruch studied the bill over grimly. Then, putting it in his pocket, he said: "Got any two-cent stamps?" "Certainly, Mr. Baruch. How many would you like?" "Humph," said Mr. Baruch. "How much are they apiece?" "The millionaire's bills after that were always reasonable."

RUSSIANS AND ROUMANIANS ARE FIGHTING WELL.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Late to-day the following official statement was issued: On the northern front our vanguard elements and reconnoitering parties advancing in the direction of Riga continue to hold the line of the River, Nitzepe-Zegenhop-Pusk-Zegevult-Lunelala-Bayar. In the region of Jacobstadt there were fusillades in the first lines. There has been intense artillery activity in the direction of Sventsyan where our batteries have bombarded certain points on the enemy's positions from a point on Vitchonof to the south of Vidza; our fire caused several explosions. On the remainder of the front nothing of importance occurred.

Roumanian.—In the region south of Radautour elements have taken possession of a height south of Solka. While repulsing the enemy's counter attacks two enemy companies were made prisoners and more than 400 Austrians, 12 officers and six machine guns captured in the region north of Ocna. Roumanian troops after an engagement took possession of a height northeast of Slonik, but owing to bitter enemy counter attacks and his curtain of fire they had to abandon it.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

PETROGRAD, To-day. M. Avskentiev, Minister of the Interior, said to-day that as a result of the Korniloff revolt, all the Russian fronts for three days remained without the least defence and without command. The severest penalty, he added, should be inflicted upon Korniloff; the Government would do nothing to mitigate his fate. The Government's task now, M. Avskentiev said, would be to struggle against counter revolutionary attempts, to safeguard the national liberty and defend the country against the foreign enemy. M. Tseretelli, former Minister of the Interior, said that the Ministerial Coalition had given good results and that it ought to be maintained, but only on condition that allotments (?) tending to paralyze its functions should be excluded from it. He insisted on the necessity of immediately dissolving the fourth Duma.

ALLIES SUPPORT PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Diplomatic representatives of the Allied Powers have issued a statement denying all the allegations made by some newspapers that they are taking steps either to support General Korniloff's action or to hinder his suppression, which, the statement adds, is contrary to the role of the Allies with respect to Russian internal affairs. The representatives of all the Entente Powers in Petrograd, says the statement, are in sympathy with the great democracy of their ally and offered their good services in order to avoid shedding blood in civil war. The statement gives the text of a verbal note presented to the Minister of Foreign Affairs by Sir George Buchanan, British Ambassador, acting as the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, and proceeds: "The representatives of the Allied Powers met under the Presidency of Sir Geo. Buchanan to deliberate on the situation created by the conflict between the Provisional Government and General Korniloff. Conscious of their duty they remain at their posts for the defence, if necessary, of their nationalities at the same time consider it of the greatest importance to maintain the union of all forces in Russia for the continuance of a victorious war, a view which they unanimously declared was in the interest of humanity; and anxious to prevent irreparable calamities, they offered their good services with the noble aim of serving the interests of Russia and the work of all the Allies."

SAYS REBELS HAVE SURRENDERED.

LONDON, To-day. General Korniloff and General Lukomsky have intimated that they are ready to appear before the revolutionary tribunal, says Reuter's Petrograd correspondent, telegraphing Thursday, and quoting the Izvestia, the organ of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates as his authority.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

LONDON, To-day. The British official issued to-night says: Last night, after an hour's heavy bombardment, the enemy raided our positions east of Bullecourt. He succeeded in effecting an entry into our trenches but was driven out after sharp fighting, leaving a number of dead and prisoners in our hands. We carried out a successful raid during the night in the neighbourhood of Oppy. Early this morning the enemy opened a heavy bombardment on a front of more than a mile north and north east of Langemarck and attacked in considerable strength. After fierce fighting the attack was repulsed with severe enemy loss. Despite bad visibility some artillery work was carried out by the use of airplanes yesterday. Photos were taken and the bombing of enemy airfields, ammunition dumps and railway stations continued day and night. Three enemy machines were driven down out of control. Two of ours are missing.

CONSERVATIVES BEATEN IN SWEDEN.

LONDON, To-day. Returns from the general election which is proceeding throughout Sweden, says Reuter's Stockholm correspondent, indicate the defeat of the Conservatives in 22 districts. The Social Democrats have gained three seats, and the Liberals five, while the Conservatives lost 13.

PROTECTING THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day. Pres. Irigoyen has given permission to Count von Luxburg to remain in Argentina for a brief period so that he can arrange for his departure without serious inconvenience, has assigned an officer of the army to act as his aide. The President has expressed himself bitterly against the anti-German demonstrations in Buenos Aires and the riots yesterday and has ordered the Chief of Police to begin the prosecution of the police captains of three down-town districts where the disturbances were most serious on a charge of failure to obey orders to perform their duties.

TRIBUTE TO EDITH CAYELL.

NEW YORK, To-day. A tribute to Edith Cayell, one of the most cultured of women, who died a heroine when executed by the German military authorities for a spy for aiding wounded soldiers, was paid her today by Gaston Delaval, the Belgian lawyer who defended her, at luncheon given by the Rotary Club, at which he was the guest. Some of the reports of her execution stated that she had fainted before the firing of the fatal shot, said Delaval, but this was untrue. A few minutes before leaving the death cell she made a notation on the page of her Bible that she was to be executed at once. In admitting she had assisted wounded British soldiers to defy the German authorities she said she had done what any other good woman would do.

DIED IN HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, To-day. Alex. Macgregor, R. N. R., Halifax representative of the London Salvage Association, died suddenly to-day. He came to Nova Scotia as Marine Superintendent of the Boston Yarmouth line. At the outbreak of war he was in Scotland superintending the construction of monitors.

BITTER FEELING IN ARGENTINA.

BUENOS AIRES, To-day. Thousands of persons congregated to-night along Avenidas Mayo, and Florida streets to attempt to organize another anti-German demonstration and demand the rupture of relations with Germany. Acting under orders of President Irigoyen, however, squads of mounted police were sent out to maintain order. They frequently charged the crowds that endeavoured to assemble, using their sabres freely. Many citizens were injured and a number of policemen also received hurts. Crowds raided newsstands for the editions of the German newspaper La Union and also took copies from newsboys in the streets and made bonfires on the street corners of the activity of the police in the evening preventing large crowds from concentrating at one point in the city long enough to do serious damage.

ZEEBRUGGE SHIPPING BOMBED.

LONDON, To-day. The Admiralty has issued the following statement: A further bombing raid was attempted on the Bruges docks by owing to thick clouds shipping alongside the Zeebrugge mole was attacked instead. A direct hit was made on one large torpedo boat and several direct hits on seaplane sheds and the mole, causing fires. All our machines returned safely.

Warrant Officer Henry Candley

KILLED AT MOUNT PEARL THIS MORNING.

Warrant Officer Henry Candley, of the Royal Navy, attached to the Mount Pearl Marconi Station, met death by accident at an early hour this morning when he was struck by an electric discharge. Particulars of the sad happening are not yet available as an inquiry is being held and the exact cause of death will probably be made known to-morrow. Warrant Officer Candley was 26 years of age, unmarried, and only arrived from the Old Country a few months ago. This is the first fatal accident of its kind to occur in connection with the Marconi service in this country, and the sudden passing of so useful and well liked a comrade is deeply felt by the commanding officer and staff of the Marconi Station. To the relatives of the deceased in the Old Country general sympathy will be expressed.

KORNILOFF SURRENDERS.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Korniloff has communicated to the Government his intention to surrender on the arrival of General Alexeff, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian forces, at Mobeley, which place he is due this evening. Generals Ruzsky and Dragomiroff have been appointed respectively Commanders-in-Chief on the northern and southwestern fronts.

HE WHO LAUGHS LAST.

LONDON, To-day. Reuter's says it has received the following statement, which is the substance of the opinion expressed quite recently by a German Naval officer of high standing on the submarine campaign. He said that the calculations of German high command were that Germany could not carry on the war after October of this year, owing to the enormous loss of vessels. Regarding the effect of the intervention of the United States, he expressed the greatest contempt for America, saying that she had no "Militarism," and adding that hands which could have dominated the world. He admitted the idea of America doing anything of naval or military value in the war.

CONFERENCE POSTPONED UNTIL OCTOBER.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The projected Entente military conference, which was scheduled to be held in Paris this month, has been postponed until October. Advice to this effect reached Washington yesterday through a diplomatic channel. The cause assigned for the delay is that the approach of winter lessens the necessity for holding the conference at the present time, and that the postponement will furnish a larger opportunity for the war offices of the Entente Powers to assemble data and consider plans for the minor operations to be conducted during the winter, and for the big drives to be undertaken next Spring.

RUSSIAN APPOINTMENTS.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Colonel Verzhovskiy, former Commander in the Moscow Military District, has been appointed acting Minister of War. General Topolovost has been named Commander of the Military District of Petrograd and M. Falchinski, former Assistant Minister of Trade, has been given the post of Military Governor-General of Petrograd.

Newfoundland in France.

War-Time Changes in a French Village Behind the Lines.

Coming along the straight, white road, bordered by tall poplars, we spotted the village down in the valley. It was a typical French settlement—church, estaminet and small cluster of houses. The people were cordial in their greeting as we marched along, and it looked promising that, even if the surroundings seemed very quiet, there was rest and kindness here.

Our billeting officer, Lieut. J., had preceded us and in the few hours at his disposal had effected some very material changes. At the junction of four roads we read two glaring notices, "Rawlins' Cross", the long, curving stretch that ran past the church and the duck-pond (without which no French village is complete) was posted "Circular Road", the way leading past the old chateau (where the Regimental Band played one memorable Sunday afternoon) to Headquarters Mess bore the imposing title "Hamilton Avenue", and other local thoroughfares possessed similar names—each reminiscent of Newfoundland and its well-known streets. The Regimental wags at once got busy and offered very assistance to the erstwhile Town Mayor in the way of re-naming the paths and farms. The temporary Hotel de Ville, where three platoons of "C" Company were billeted, became "The Seamen's Institute", the estaminet, where two very excitable females and a retired soldier, with a conspicuous paunch, sold champagne at six francs a bottle and light cider at 40 centimes a glass, bore the imposing title of "Woods", and a large room in an unused cottage which Padre Clayton had converted into a canteen was now christened "The Octagon".

We found the billets very clean and dry in the village with the Avalonian environment. Having seen our mess stoved away in the buildings of a yard near Rawlins' Cross, we commenced to locate our own quarters. We found the billeting officer's group, centre of an expostulating group, wiping a very damp brow as he was endeavouring to pacify the mess in a Officers who found talked between place where poulticed wench stirred her legs, a dishevelled man on a stove, red perpetually old peasants kept going in and with a murmured "Bien he bon f... monstres," none of which additions contributed to the general comfort.

They were more fortunate. Our billet was in the schoolmaster's yard near Rawlins' Cross, where he had seen the whole flood of battle flowing down to the Somme, and, in the evening when we called, he unburdened some of the village history over cafe et cognac. He was a regular fund of private incidents—some gray, some gay—which he told in his own quaint broken-English style. The one that appealed to me was that of the silent, gray-haired peasant in the next cottage. It appeared that he was a resident of Lille, a refugee, who seemed waiting in that quaint spot for the day of victory. His face was expressionless, and his only phrase a mournful one, "Lui ausst est Lillois, c'est tout ce qu'il me reste de ma famille."

The people took kindly to our Regiment, and the men were accordingly well treated. Eggs and milk were plentiful, and the army rations were greatly supplemented. The Colonial spirit was much in evidence, and it was no uncommon thing to hear of overlying dinners when the men regaled themselves with chicken and red wine. The villagers were unquestionably fond of the unit, and the Town Maire repeatedly expressed his opinion as to the great pleasure it gave him to have the "New-foundlanders" in their midst.

But the sand in the glass was the ly run out, and the day soon on when the Battalion was to get of its way up the line. The "villagers" in the settlement with the Newfoundland say "findings" was genuine. They on—the Maire as we swung into place—the gray-haired schoolmaster, such some stood refugee—and all with folded arms, silent and thraved and bade farewell, the majorly entendeur, salut!

It was in the days when the Band excitement of October 12th still in the air, and the Arras gave a dream of the future campaign.

Waning Germany.

Mr. Lloyd George brings cheering news to the free world. The submarine campaign which the German people have been taught to hope was "starve" England is falling, has led, as the most docile Germans lost some time be forced to see. They have been and are serious, and far off fluctuated with an irregularity in flow, but when we find stowed was the British tonnage destroyed was 320,000, while in the long days of June, 1917, the net loss was reduced to 220,000. The German Premier says he hopes month the will come down to 175,000 net loss new ships built or bought. The will have a tonnage of 2,000,000. And the heyday than year for submarines is fading. The increased stocks of cereals, wheat, barley, oats, and of sugar, compared with last year's, may be largely due to decreased consumption. The economy in bread alone saves at the rate of 350,000 bushels of wheat a week, and 1,000,000 more acres have been cultivated in 1917 than in 1916. Whatever be the causes, it is a large fact that England has now a third more wheat than she had last year. 68,000,000 bushels as against 51,840,000. In 1918 millions more of acres will be cultivated. There is and will be food enough if the people continue to be economical in its use. There will be ships enough, with American co-operation, and the American mercantile marine will be strong in 1918—for the use of the Allies in that year, and, if necessary, in 1919. This is the same Mr. Lloyd George who was appealing last year for "more ships, more ships, and then more ships"; who has never been reluctant to tell bitter truth to his countrymen about the war and British prospects in it. Indeed, in measuring the import of the Premier's confident tone, we have to go beyond his personal habit and consider the British characteristic of grumbling, of putting the worst face on things, of almost welcoming disaster, blundering, incompetency as inevitably natural and "British," and of working and fighting with a more dogged courage thereafter. As a rule, the British are not happy unless they are dissatisfied. They cheer themselves with gloom. They are, the exact opposite of the Germans. These must be fed on illusions. The Briton will seldom admit the bright side, and he is inclined to question the truth unless it is disagreeable. When Great Britain is treated to optimism, we may believe that the optimism is justified. Sufficient shipping and food assured, the enormous military, financial, and economic strength of America steadily gathering for victory, Russia recovering Germany's strength waning, "next year we shall begin, and the world will begin," says Mr. Lloyd George. "to reap the fruits of our labor."—N. Y. Times.

Defied Death, Visited Husband.

Paris, Sept. 6.—Not long ago the great war began General Joffe issued an order that no women were to be permitted within the French lines without special permission and that under no circumstances were wives to be allowed to visit their husbands at the front. The penalty was to be death of the man whose wife broke the rule. Several women dared to defy that order. One officer's wife, so the story goes, managed to reach her husband's regiment. His brother officers discovered her presence and warned him she must leave. She begged to stay yet another day, despite the warning, and fearing the consequences of her folly her husband shot and killed her. Mme. Andre Purgel, wife of a poet and traveller, was another who dared to make her way to her husband's side. And she is still alive and in America to-day. Had she not made the trip to the front she never would have seen her husband alive again, for he was killed fifteen days after she left.

She told a New York reporter about her trip the other day and said she would undertake it again if only the opportunity offered.

"A woman who loves does not reckon, should not reckon, the cost," she said.

They had been married five years and had travelled in many of the world's out of the way places. Together they had crossed the borders of Tibet, had fared over deserts and had treaded mountain ranges. She was experienced, hardy, resourceful. Her husband knew that if any woman in France could reach the front she could. And he felt that he would be killed in battle very soon and he wanted to see her once more. So he smuggled word to her through a wounded comrade. This told her the location.

She first essayed the role of a peasant girl of Flanders—her husband was stationed along the Belgian front. She carried with her a basket of fruits and candies, and with a truly French touch, some dainty things for her to wear that she might appear charming in the eyes of her husband.

Irish Captain Aided Her.

She was twice turned back by the French troops, but managed to reach a sector held by the British. An Irish capt. to whom she confided her story, gave her a suit of khaki and she clipped her long dark hair and donned a cap. As a private soldier she started for the front and got a chance to conceal herself in a wagon load of straw that was being hauled to an artillery post. For five hours she rode in the jolting, bumping wagon. Then as the convoy reached the front she slipped away in the darkness. After a resumed her feminine attire. She walked a mile and reached a railroad station, and rode on a Belgian troop train to a point still nearer the French lines. The Belgians, rough fellows, brutalized by the horrors of war, insulted her, she kept them away with her revolver. The train stopped ten miles away from the front and she undertook to walk that distance over incredibly muddy, rut filled roads. Half starved, half frozen and almost exhausted with fatigue, she got to a little Belgian farmstead and the occupants of it agreed to carry word to her husband.

It was during his respite from the front trench; luckily he was enjoying a stay in the rear of the fighting forces. He secretly visited her every day for ten days. Then came his order to return to the front. She went with him as far as she could, bade him a last farewell and started on the long journey home. She was twice arrested and once faced a spy's death but managed to prove her identity. Hardly had she reached Paris when the casualty lists contained the name of her husband.

OLD AND NEW.
 In olden times the hardy knight went forth with lance and mace to do some good and in the fray it often chanced that he was shot or slugged or lacerated, and he would lie up on the field, encumbered by his arms and shield, and die for weary days on end, without a surgeon or a friend. Oh, aying was a painful stunt for old time soldiers at the front. But when the modern soldier falls, struck down by shrapnel, shells or balls, he wakes up—if he hasn't died—with Red Cross nurses at his side. They tend his hurts and soothe his pain, and make him think of home again; sweet sympathy is in their eyes; they are so gentle, patient, wise, the stricken soldier pines those who are not shot up by the foe. War is the most atrocious thing ever sprung by an ambitious king, and it would be so much worse, but for the gentle Red Cross nurse, who strokes the sick boy's tangled hair, and brings him hope who knew despair.

Household Notes.

If the kitchen floor is without a finish, a solution of washing soda, not too strong, will keep it white. To remove grease stains from leather beat the white of an egg slightly and apply. Dry in sun. Olive oil, cream and butter are the most digestible forms of fat. Cooked fat is not easily digested. Boli skins and discarded pieces of shate in the aluminum pan and the pan will be beautifully cleaned.

Nursery Notes.

Small Points About Proper Care of the Baby.

Try laying the baby on a bed or table while you wash him. It is easier for you and better for the baby, too, as he feels the unsteadiness of your lap and wriggles accordingly. Did you know that all white walls and wood work are bad for the nursery? It is declared by scientists that white reflects too much light for the baby's eyes. Try gray or light tan. A baby basket can be made from a medium sized laundry basket. Give it two coats of enamel on the outside and wad it inside with cotton padding. Cover with a blue or white satin and dotted swiss or point d'esprit. A pretty way to quilt the baby's wee comforter is to tie it with baby ribbons through the points to be tacked, using the bow of the ribbon for the

Three Years of Air Warfare.

FALSE GERMAN FIGURES.
 With the warning that exact details up to the end of February, 1915 and for July, 1917, are not yet forthcoming, so that the figures for these periods are not "absolutely trustworthy," the Berliner Tageblatt gives the following statement of enemy and German aeroplanes shot down during the three years of the war—

Year	German	Enemy
1914	91	131
1915	221	786
1916	370	1,374
1917 (to end of July)	370	1,374

From August 1, 1914, to July 31, 1915, 73 enemy aeroplanes were shot down, of which 23 fell into German hands; from August 1, 1915, to July 31, 1916, 465 enemy aeroplanes were shot down, of which 267 fell into German hands; from August 1, 1916, to July 31, 1917, "about" 1,771 enemy aeroplanes were shot down, of which 776 fell into German hands. In 1915 two enemy captive balloons, so far as is known, were shot down; in 1916, 42; in 1917, to August 1, 142. Three enemy airships were also shot down.

Total aircraft shot down from August 1, 1914 to August 1, 1917, about 2,298 enemy and 882 German aeroplanes, 186 enemy captive balloons, and three airships. Official figures are not accessible for the purpose of checking the claims made by the Berlin Journal in respect of Allied aeroplanes, but it is possible to test, both from official and unofficial sources, the accuracy of the figures given of German losses for at least some portion of the three years. For instance, the Matin, whose au-

Huns Forced to Shoot Messages to Commanders.

With the French Armies, Aug. 29.--The French artillery barrage fire has now been perfected to such a degree of density and intensity that the Germans in order to keep in communication with their lines back of the barrage, have been forced to adopt the expedient of enclosing their messages in a grenade or a shell and firing it through the barrage.

In the early part of the war the Germans used the system of running back field telephones from the advancing troops. When these lines were constantly cut by shell fire, efforts were made to run the lines underground. But here again the French high explosive shells were developed to a degree where the lines could not be conveniently buried at a depth beyond their reach.

The German System. Wireless telegraphy has since been tried by the Germans together with low flying airplanes, while the use of individual soldiers who endeavored to run back through a barrage with messages came likewise to prove both too costly from the point of view of human life and of uncertainty as to the eventual arrival of the message. Germany's new system of trying to shoot back her communications with trench mortars and trench cannon has only recently been hit upon. The grenades or shells in which the messages are enclosed are referred to in the German orders as "Nachrichtengeschossen" or "projectiles for messages."

The "Melde-Wurfgrenaten" or "message carrying bombs" are fired from the 1916 model of mechanical trench grenade thrower. This has a range of about 600 yards and is counted upon for maintaining communication between the first line and the commanders of battalions and regiments, who, under the German system, always remain at the rear of the advancing and fighting troops.

The second class used, the "Loichte Nachrichtenmine" or "message carrying shells" are to be fired from the "Minenwerfer," or trench mortar for firing torpedoes. These have a range of about 1,300 yards and with them the Germans hope to keep up their communications through the French barrage fires between the battalion and regimental commanders in rear of the advancing troops and the artillery brigade and divisional headquarters still farther in the rear.

A Business Transaction

I heard a good story recently concerning Mr. R. V. Bankes, K.C., London's latest magistrate. In his young days he was playing at a seaside place, and wished to hire a horse and trap for a day's outing. Not knowing the would-be customer, however, the livery-stable keeper declined to trust him with the outfit.

Whereupon Mr. Bankes, who was bent upon having his drive, proposed that he should buy the horse and trap for the day at the owner's valuation, and sell them back to him at the same price in the evening, provided they were returned in proper condition.

To this the other could see no objection. The horse and trap were returned in good time, and after receiving back the sum paid for them in the morning Mr. Bankes turned to go. "Hold on," exclaimed the livery-stable keeper, "you have forgotten to pay for the hire."

"My dear sir," was the cool reply, "there is no hiring in the case. I have been driving my own horse and trap all day."

And the astonished dealer was left to think the matter over.--Pearson's Weekly.

The Value of the Cables

Christian Science Monitor: The unbroken cable communications between the Allies in all the continents is so taken for granted that the question of what would have happened without the cable service is hardly considered. It is realized that but for the cables Australia might not have heard of the war until the middle of September, 1914. And that, again, but for the cables, the Government in London might not have known the attitude of the Dominions towards events in Europe. The public knows something of what happened at the cable stations at Cocos Island and Fanning Island at the time when the German squadron was cruising in the Indian and Pacific Oceans. But the half has not been told them of the great part which the deep-sea cables have played in the war. Those who feel curious on the subject should get hold of Zodiac, the paper which the cable companies issue for the benefit of their cablemen doing duty at the four corners of the world.
