CHAPTER XXXVI.
CONSPIRATORS.

Percy Levant, on the occasion of his interview with the marquise, had noticed—very few things escaped his quick eyes—the arrangement of the rooms, and at half-past three on the afternoon of the sixteenth the valet, who had received his instructions from Percy, ushered that gentleman, Lady Despard, and Doris—who were closely veiled—into the ante-room and softly closed the door.

Lady Despard raised her veil and shrugged her shoulders deprecatingly. "Well, here we are, my dear Percy," she said, in a low voice; "but I don't think anyone else in this world but you would have induced me to have come; and do you mean to say that you still decline to give us any explanation of these extraordinary proceedings?"

He shook his head as he drew Doris to a chair, into which she sank with a weary but resigned gesture. "And you think that you are treating us properly by all this mystery; and on the dear child's wedding-day—for I suppose you two mean to be married this evening? Or is this but a preliminary to the breaking-off of the match—for of course I can see something in the matter between you two?" and she dropped into the chair with a movement of impatience.

"I shall be ready to marry Doris this evening," said Percy Levant, holding Doris's hand. "It rests with her to decide, dear Lady Despard, and she crossed the room and bent over her appealingly. "When you consented to come here with her this afternoon you did so knowing that I should have to keep you in ignorance of my motives. Do you think I am not grateful for your confidence in me? Do you think I would inflict unnecessary pain on dear Doris?"

"No, I don't!" she said, with languid irritability. "I'm quite ready to admit that you love her to distraction; but it certainly is enough to drive one out of one's senses, these mysterious proceedings of yours; and Doris tells me nothing lately," she added.

Doris raised her lovely eyes pleadingly, but remained silent.

"Don't blame her," said Percy Levant, gravely. "She, too, is in ignorance of this, which I am about to do, and my motive! She trusts me; will not you, Lady Despard?"

"Well, I suppose I must," she said, shrugging her shoulders. "But why have we come here? My acquaintance with the marquise is too slight to excuse this intrusion."

"If it is an intrusion, that which will result from it will excuse it," he said. "The fact is—and he smiled rather sadly—"I have arranged a little comedy for your ladyship's amusement. Comedy and tragedy, alas! are very thinly divided; there is but a step between them. All I ask of you is that you will remain quiet and silent, whatever you may hear; and I intend you to hear all. Doris I can rely on, and he laid his hand upon her arm with a reverent, gentle touch.

"Oh, I'm not hysterical or nervous," said Lady Despard. "I shan't shriek, however sensational your conjuring trick—or whatever it is—may be. Come and sit beside me, dear, will you? And, Percy, remember, if the marquise should hear of our visit here, and want to know why on earth we came, I shall refer him to you."

"I abide by that," he said, gravely. "And now I am going to leave you," he added, as they heard the valet speaking to someone in the hall. "Doris," and he bent over her "you will be patient and brave?"

She looked at him trustfully. "I will be silent at least. I can promise that," she said, in a low voice. "I am content with that," he said. "And—and if you should hear that which might shake your faith in me—" he asked, his face pale and his lips quivering.

"Nothing can do that," she responded. "We shall see," he said, almost inaudibly, and left them, closing the door behind him.

Lady Despard took Doris's hand and caressed it. "For all my bravado, I feel rather nervous, dear," she said, with a forced laugh. "His manner has been so strange of late, and you—you have had something on your mind, Doris. Oh, of course I have seen that, though I would rather have died than asked you to tell me!"

"And I think I would rather have died than tell you!" said Doris, with something like a sob. "Has there been a quarrel between you? Do you want the match broken off? For Heaven's sake, speak while there's time if you want it broken off!" Doris shook her head sadly. "No; I shall marry him this evening," if he wishes it!" she murmured. "If he wishes it! Why, of course—Ah!" she broke off, her hand closing nervously upon Doris's burning finger. "That is Spencer Churchill's voice!"

It was Mr. Spencer Churchill's voice, and as he was ushered into the centre room he held out both hands to Percy Levant and smiled his sweetest smile.

"My dear Percy, may I congratulate you? May I?"

"You may," said Percy Levant, giving him a hand.

Spencer Churchill drew a long breath and laughed an oily laugh of vast contentment.

"Happy bridegroom! Lucky fellow!" he murmured. "Thus is the happy day, yes," said Percy Levant. "Sit down, won't you? I'm afraid you are tired. Let me offer you some wine?" He went to the sideboard. "I'm sorry there's nothing but brandy here. I'll ring for some—"

"Pray don't trouble, my dear Percy," said Spencer Churchill, blandly; "a little brandy is an excellent thing, if taken in moderation."

Percy Levant mixed a stiff glass and placed it before him.

"You can understand why I sent for you," he said, seating himself opposite to Spencer Churchill, whose back was turned to the curtains which divided this room from the marquise's dressing-room. "My part of the contract being fulfilled, I want to know what my position really is, and whether this nonsense of yours has any particle of truth in it?"

Spencer Churchill stared indignantly. "Young man!" he exclaimed, solemnly, "this is the first time I have been accused—to my face—of falsehood! This nonsense! If you allude to the agreement—the perfectly legal agreement, which you signed, and which I hold—you will discover that it is anything but nonsense."

"I'm delighted to hear it, of course," said Percy Levant. "Don't be angry! Well, then, seeing that I am to give you ten thousand pounds as a fee for your assistance in procuring me a wife, I should like to know exactly how I am to manage it—I should like to know all about my wife's property."

"Your wife! How well it sounds!" chuckled Spencer Churchill. Then his face grew suddenly suspicious. "By the way, my dear Percy, have you the marriage certificate? I am not of a suspicious nature. Heaven forbid! I am, indeed, too trustful and confiding; but I should like to see the certificate, my dear boy."

"Certainly," assented Percy Levant, cheerfully. "I'll go and ask my wife for it. Indeed, she may as well be present—"

"No, no," interrupted Spencer Churchill, putting out his hand. "Never mind; don't trouble. The fact is—ahem!—there are some things which Mrs. Levant—Mrs. Levant!—had better not hear. And, to tell you the truth, my dear fellow, your wife is a young lady I'm not over anxious to meet. There's something about her which makes me uncomfortable. I'll—I'll take a little more brandy, my dear Percy—a capital and useful spirit, if used in moderation. I have been recommended to take it by my medical man."

Percy Levant rose to get the decanter. As he did so, the curtain parted and Lord Cecil Neville stood in the opening.

Percy Levant made a circuit so as to approach him.

"Remember our understanding, my lord, and wait!" he said, in a whisper. Lord Cecil seemed to hesitate, his eyes fixed on Spencer Churchill suspiciously; then he dropped the curtain, which again concealed him.

"There you are! And now to business, Churchill!"

"Yes, to business," said Spencer Churchill unctuously. "I dare say, my dear Percy, you think I have earned that ten thousand pounds very easily—By the way, it ought to have been twenty, it ought, indeed!" and he shook his head solemnly.

"I'd as soon pay you twenty as ten," said Percy Levant, carelessly.

"You would? Give me your hand, my dear boy!" exclaimed Spencer Churchill, with bland enthusiasm. "You are just what I always thought you—a noble youth, a truly noble and unselfish young man! You would just as soon give me twenty!"

"Yes, or thirty! I'm as unselfish as you are," said Percy.

Spencer Churchill's emotion was so great at this fresh proof of his dear young friend's unselfish generosity that he was constrained to turn his head aside and wipe his eyes.

"You are an honourable, a noble young man, my dear boy!" he murmured. "And now I will lay the whole story before you. But, as I said, don't think I have not earned the money! My dear Percy, are you aware that your wife was once engaged to Lord Cecil Neville, the marquise's nephew, the heir to the title? Eh?" and he chuckled.

"Really?"

"Yes, yes! Oh, it's true, and I assure you that they would have made a marriage of it but for me. Oh, don't look so surprised. Bless my soul, if I am not a match for a simple and confiding couple like those, why—" He raised his hand. "But it was a troublesome affair, my dear Percy, and cost me a deal of thought. And rather risky, too!" he added, thoughtfully. "Forged letters—ahem!—that is, fictitious correspondence, though rendered inevitable by the circumstances of the case, is dangerous."

"I see," said Percy Levant, distinctly. "You forged letters from Lord Cecil Neville to Miss Marlowe—"

"Yes, but quietly, my dear Percy. Bless my soul, you and I don't want to publish our little mutual confidences on the house-tops; and—this room is rather—I say, rather public, isn't it? What's behind those curtains? Good gracious! and he half-rose.

"My dear fellow, all the servants speak Italian," said Percy Levant, leaning back in his chair with a careless and indifferent air. "While you speak English you are quite safe!"

Spencer Churchill fell back.

"Oh, all right!" he said. "I rely on your discretion. Well, it didn't suit me that Cecil should marry Miss Marlowe for several reasons. One being that I could not drive a bargain with him as I could—"

He stopped.

The King's National Roll.

His Majesty Appeals for Unemployed Soldiers--Kolchak Smashes Bolshevik Army--South Africa Will Not Separate From Empire -- Sugar Profiteers Will be Prosecuted.

THE "SEAL OF HONOR."
LONDON, Sept. 15. A new plan to secure the absorption of one hundred thousand still unemployed or disabled army, navy and air force men into industrial ranks appears to-day in the shape of a royal proclamation in which the King holds a "clear obligation upon all" to acknowledge the sacrifice of these men in securing victorious peace, charges all employers of labor to bind themselves in high and solemn obligation to find employment for as many as possible. The names of such employees shall be inscribed upon what shall be styled "the King's national roll." The employer thus inscribed will be entitled to use on his correspondence an official device, "seal of honor," indicating the share he has taken in the national obligation.

MUST REMAIN PART OF EMPIRE.
CAPE TOWN, Sept. 15. (Reuters).—Premier Smuts in a vigorous speech in Parliament has declared that South Africa must remain a part of the Empire and that it cannot secede. The Union, he stated, must not be torn apart by nationalism. Strongly urging the acceptance by South Africa of a mandate for South-West Africa, he declared that the German people of South-West Africa would prefer the united administration to any other. He believed that in the interests of the Union and of the native population the territory should be admitted by the Union. There had been delinquents in the territory during the war, but it would not be necessary to maintain a large military establishment. While he was satisfied that the country would quickly develop under the Union, there was no intention to interfere with the peaceful settlers who were Germans, and he trusted that they would become a great asset. It was to the interests of all that the country should be open for settlement. Premier Smuts challenged General Hertzog, leader of the Nationalists, to declare whether or not the Nationalists no longer insisted on the separate independence of the Transvaal. General Hertzog, leader of the Nationalists, replied that the Nationalists' congress would decide that. Whereupon Premier Smuts declared the reply evasive and asserted that South Africa has no right to secede from the Empire.

BROKEN THEIR FRONT.

LONDON, Sept. 15. Admiral Kolchak, in pursuing his offensive against the Bolsheviks, has broken their front in three places, according to official information reaching here to-day. An All-Russian counter movement, it is stated, threatens to outflank the Bolshevik forces advancing from Tobolsk.

TRYING TO REGAIN PLACES.

BOSTON, Sept. 15. A definite campaign is being begun for the striking policemen places now officially declared to have been lost because of desertion of duty was expected to be inaugurated to-day. This action was expected to depend upon the result of the conference between the Union labor leaders and Police Commissioner Curtis. The Commissioner at the request of Union heads consented to the meeting on an unofficial basis, but labor men said they hoped to obtain from it exchange of views which might be made a basis of negotiations.

A RUSSIAN PRETENDER.

PARIS, Sept. 15. Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the former Russian Emperor, who made his escape from Perm where he was imprisoned by the Bolsheviks, has reached Admiral Kolchak's headquarters, according to the Humante. He is known to only a few of Kolchak's officers, the paper adds, and is preparing to act in the role of Pretender to the imperial throne.

TO SEND FOR BODY.

PARIS, Sept. 15. Marshal Foch has recently asked the Belgian Government to have a search made for the body of his son who was killed in August, 1914, in Belgian Ardennes. Foch has religiously refrained from mentioning his lost son, and few know that the younger Foch was killed in the war.

PROCLAIMED A UNION.

GENEVA, Sept. 15. Gabrielle D'Annunzio, supported by a force of Arditi which accompanied him into Fiume, has proclaimed a union of Fiume with Italy, according to advices received by the Serbian Press Bureau here from Belgrade.

NEW SEAM AT SYDNEY MINE.

SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 15. The Scotia Company at Sydney mines has added another seam to its list of producers by development of what is known as the lowest seam of the present Jubilee mine. Development work on this seam has been in progress since October of last year and it has now reached such a stage that the company is in a position for further enlargements and increased tonnage.

FIRE BURNING OUT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15. The spectacular oil fire which since Saturday afternoon has raged at the plant of Steens & Fleming Co. in Long Island City, with injury to more than fifty persons and property damage running into millions, was gradually burning itself out to-day.

MEMORIAL TO PEACE CONFERENCE.

SALONIKI, Sept. 15. Mohammedans in Eastern Thrace have addressed a memorial to the Peace Conference at Paris, energetically protesting against provoking measures taken against them by the Bulgarians. It is said that the Conference decides that Bulgarian control be retained in Thrace, Mohammedans will leave the country.

STATEMEN'S OPINION ON THE FUTURE.

LONDON, Sept. 14. Premier Lloyd George has issued a message to the people of Great Britain on the future which will be distributed free throughout the country on Monday. The Premier says: "Millions of gallant young men have fought for a new world, which hundreds of thousands died to establish. If we fail to honor the promise given them we dishonor ourselves." Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister of War, also is a contributor. His article deals with the army, which he says in future will not be substantially larger than a pre-war army. "We are not going to be a Conscript Nation," says Churchill. "We are going to make the Germans abandon conscription and we are going to abandon it ourselves." Sir Auckland Geddes regrets that the production is out of gear because some miners are hunting for fairy gold, something for nothing; the result Sir Auckland asserts is the possibility of employment in all trades being reduced and the price of food raised. He said that many other trades are acting in a manner similar to the miners. Dr. Addison foresees reforms in connection with the welfare of home and mothers and children, and a campaign against unhealthy homes and overcrowding. Sir Eric Geddes visualizes on improved communications enabling workers to dwell in garden cities and factories being erected in country areas. George Barnes declares that the great mass of labor opinion every-

THE PROFIT ON SUGAR.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 15. "I shall not wait for the Board of Commerce to name an offender, but just as soon as we have word that any retailer is making more than one cent a pound on his sugar I will order that he be prosecuted," such was the statement made by J. S. Lundy, K. C. in an interview to-day. Mr. Lundy has been appointed by the Ontario Government to co-operate with the Board of Commerce in reducing the cost of living and has been given very wide authority. He may call upon the city or provincial police and Crown Attorney to take action against profiteers, and if he so desires the Provincial Government will appoint special officers to assist him.

MILITARY MAN LECTURES.
The lecture by Captain Edgar Penney, M.C., in the Methodist College Hall last evening was not largely attended, but those who were there were rewarded with as fine a lecture as they had heard for some time. His Excellency the Governor, under whose patronage the lecture was given, was accompanied by Capt. A. Baird, A.D.C., and received by the Minister of Militia, Hon. A. E. Hickman, who in introducing the speaker of the evening, briefly traced his career in the army. Capt. Penney was studying engineering at Canada when he enlisted in the Princess Pat's. Returning from overseas, where he had been wounded, he was transferred to the Royal Engineers with whom he again went to France, there winning his Military Cross. The lecturer, taking as his title, "The Path They Trod," now began and in a highly interesting manner told of the work of the British during the operations of '15-'18 and touched upon the accomplishments of the Naval forces at Zebruggue and Ostend. Many lantern slides were used to illustrate for the benefit of his auditors, the scenes of which he spoke so graphically and well. Continuing, he told of flooded areas about Ypres, in which the British fought and lived after the great locks had been blown up; Hell Fire Corner, Irish Farm

(which has borne that name since 1660), the St. Julien road, Passchendaele (which was taken by Ours in January 1918), Hill 60 (which cost a quarter of million lives to hold), the mine fighting of the war took place), Loos, Hill 70, Vimy Ridge, Monchy-le-Preux, Albert (which was destroyed by the British in self-defence). St. Quentin, St. Pierre-Vaast Wood, the Nord Canal, the underground trenches of the Germans, and Cambrai, which the Huns destroyed merely to intimidate its residents. The operations connected with the various places were described, as well as many personal experiences, making the story one of deep interest and entertainment to all.

Victory Cup Football.

In last night's game for the Victory Cup, the Collegians defeated the B.I.S. by 2 goals to nil. During the first half the B.I.S. secured four corners but no goals were scored. About 10 minutes after half time Coultas by a clever shot sent the ball past Whelan, scoring No. 1. After a few minutes play, H. Barnes scored goal No. 2, from a penalty. Quick received a kick in the knee which delayed the game for a few minutes. No more goals were scored. The players were:—

B.I.S.—Goal, Phelan; backs, Ryan, Kelly; halves, Burk, Rawlins, Devine; forwards, Kent, Skinner, F. Phelan, Meany, E. Brophy.

Collegians.—Goal, Voleey; backs, James, Chancey; halves, Quick, Reid, Barnes; forwards, Macklin, Jolliffe, Chafe, Coultas, Quick.

The gate receipts of the match amounted to $11.40.

Motor Accidents.

On Sunday afternoon a three-year old lad named Heber Bugden, was knocked down by a motor car driven by a man named Randolph Carter, and another young boy, named Willis Bishop, aged 6, was knocked down by the car of V. Pippy. The latter was cut about the face rather badly.

Created Disturbance.

A young man who had filled himself up on the vile production created by Prohibition, caused a disturbance on Hamilton Street last night, and a crowd quickly gathered. The language used and for a time the atmosphere was lurid. The arrival of a couple of police officers promptly put an end to the entertainment, and the inebriate was removed to the West End fire hall, where he was allowed to cool off and get rid of his load.

THE STORY OF

A story of heroism during the influenza epidemic too fine to be kept to myself, came to me the other day.

It was told me by one of my college friends whose father-in-law is an elderly doctor.

This man's wife had the influenza badly and he was taking care of er besides attending to his practice. His daughter who lived in a town a few miles away was also ill, and her husband was looking after her and attending to his business. Then one day the daughter sent word to her father that her husband had been suddenly stricken with the disease, fainting away at his place of business. She asked her father to get someone to help them.

Three Sick People a Baby, The Housework and His Patients.

He could get no one and so he sought the sick husband and wife and their two-year-old baby to his own home. For three days, alone and unaided, he looked after these three sick people, did what housework was done, took care of the two-year-old child and attended to his practice—which was of course, enormous.

At the end of that time he managed to get a neighbor to take the child, but for 30 days he went on caring for the three patients and attending to his own practice. Incidentally, the son-in-law was so sick that he was delirious.

When you think of the tremendous measure this must have meant, the instant suffering from lack of sleep, the constant forcing on of "nerve and brain and sinew to serve your turn after they are gone"; when you think that he was a man well past middle age who accomplished this feat; when you think that he did it simply and cheerfully, and without any sense of doing anything remarkable, don't you feel like rising and taking off your hat to him as no less hero than many who were cited in a war?

THE STORY OF A HOME HERO.

BY RUTH CAMERON

A story of heroism during the influenza epidemic too fine to be kept to myself, came to me the other day. It was told me by one of my college friends whose father-in-law is an elderly doctor.

This man's wife had the influenza badly and he was taking care of her besides attending to his practice. His daughter who lived in a town a few miles away was also ill, and her husband was looking after her and attending to his business. Then one day the daughter sent word to her father that her husband had been suddenly stricken with the disease, slitting away at his place of business. She asked her father to get someone to help them.

Three Sick Peoples, a Baby, The Housework and His Patients. He could get no one and so he brought the sick husband and wife and their two-year-old baby to his own home. For three days, alone and unaided, he looked after these three sick people, did what housework was done, took care of the two-year-old child and attended to his practice--which was, of course, non-existent.

At the end of that time he managed to get a neighbor to take the child, but for 30 days he went on caring for the three patients and attending to his own practice. Incidentally, the son-in-law was so sick to be delirious. When you think of the tremendous pressure this must have meant, the instant suffering from lack of sleep, the constant forcing on of "nerve and sin and sinew to serve your turn after they are gone"; when you think that he was a man well past middle age who accomplished this at; when you think that he did it simply and cheerfully, and without any sense of doing anything remarkable, don't you feel like rising and king off your hat to him as no less hero than many who were cited in a war?

The People Who Work When They Are Sick Aged.

I have a tremendous respect for this kind of heroism. I never push myself to do some little thing when I am "under the weather" without thinking of the men and women all over the world who have to go on working when they are sick enough to be in bed--and, mentally, I take off my hat to them.

Think of the mothers of three or four small children, who have no help and can't give in. Think how they plod doggedly about the house, bend over the kitchen stove, drag their heavy feet back and forth, from pantry to table, lift the baby in and out of his crib, button up the four-year-old's dress--when all the time they are so sick, so weary, so harassed by pain that every fibre of their bodies begs to be thrown on the bed and given utter rest.

Honor To Whom Honor Is Due. Think of the fathers of families who go to their work and lash their weary brains at their tasks when their veins seem to run lead and when every thought is a Herculean effort. Death would be a blessed relief to many such, but death is denied to all but the slackers. The heroes fight on.

What they do is too splendidly common to receive the honor it deserves. But here is at least one word of heartfelt tribute to all these nameless uncounted heroes and heroines.

GIVE A LIFT.

THE WEARER

When I'm chugging in my motor, up and down the countryside, and behold a weary voter, I remark, "Get in and ride." And he always looks so grateful that, in sooth, I wonder why any man should be so hateful as to pass a walker by. All day long the cars go skitting up and down the dusty pike, and few drivers are inviting weary Pete or footsore Mike; and these weary men are heaping curses on the idle rich, as from danger they go leaping to the bottom of the ditch. I repeat this simple motto, as along the road I drift: "When you're riding in your auto, give the weary jay a lift." Oh, my car is large and roomy, seven delegates 'twill seat, and I call the pilgrims to me, saying, "Ride and rest your feet." And it fills my heart with gladness, and it makes my bosom glow, when I rescue from their sadness seven delegates or so. In my car I'm grand and stately, like a monarch on his throne, but I'd loathe and hate me greatly, if I rode in there alone, while a lot of weary fellows labored in the dust and heat, breathing through their leaking bellows, weeping o'er their aching feet. I keep saying while I'm skidding in my wagon large and swift, "Selfishness is most forbidding--give the other chap a lift."

The Toggery of Sport.

Flannels and shorts and pumps are all of recent origin and use. In the first University race at Henley in 1829 Oxford won, wearing blue checks, while Cambridge wore in white, with pink waistcoats; whilst a little earlier still the correct thing for rowing men was a green leather catskin cap, with a jacket and trousers of nankeen. Even at cricket flannels were unknown a century ago. Indeed the sight of a cricket-match in the first half of last century would now be regarded as a subject for mirth, for the players played in top hats.

The fact is that in the earlier days cricket was distinctly an aristocratic game, and probably the wearing of toppers was a sign of respectability which died hard. One so-called sport, however, a man did "strip" for, and that was the prize-ring. The fighting was so strenuous that the man who wore more than a minimum of covering would be beaten before he started.

THE PILLOW FIGHT.

Last night we sent 'em up to bed, And soon a racket overhead Told us beyond the slightest doubt Just what these youngsters were about; Above us rattled chandeliers, While shrieks of laughter filled our ears; A picture tumbled from its hook, And all the parlor windows shook, And mother said in great dismay: "Go up and stop them right away! I told them just the other night I'd not allow a pillow fight." I few upstairs like one intent On stopping children mischief bent, And as I neared the battle place A pillow struck me in the face; I made a grab for it, and lo, Across my back I got a blow; It seemed to me for weeks and weeks I hadn't heard such merry shrieks-- As those which followed on the third Which I received from battling Bud. "Oho," said I, "just wait a bit, I think I'll take a hand in it."

And so, although the pace was hot, Into the furious fray I got. I'll say those little tykes were deft-- They struck at me from right and left. They struck at me behind, before, One had me sprawling on the floor; And when they had me out of breath, I thought they'd laugh themselves to death. And when at last the war was done, We all had had a lot of fun. It was a corking pillow fight-- I hope we have one every night.

The Masqueraders.

In the rapidly changing politics of this country, party names soon lose much of their original significance. The best known of these—Liberal and Tory—are instances in point. They cannot now be considered to mean that which they have hitherto meant, and still perhaps continue to some extent to mean, even in the motherland. But, nevertheless there is attached to them in Newfoundland, a degree of historical meaning, and a personal connection, and these justify a few reflections upon the choice of "Liberal-Reform" as a name for the faction of which the Honorable R. A. Squires poses as leader.

In our recent history, for instance, "Liberal" was the name given the party formed in 1889 to follow the late Sir William Whiteway, the father of Newfoundland's railway policy, and the leadership of which devolved upon Sir Robert Bond in 1898. Lord (then Hon. Edward) Morris, Sir Michael Cashin, and Hon. John R. Bennett were members of that party until they separated from it in 1908. Hons. George Knowling and J. D. Ryan, Messrs. Eli Dawe and Henry Gear were prominent in it, and Mr. H. E. Cowan may be cited as one of its notable younger members. The Evening Telegram was its organ.

The resignation of Sir Robert Bond, soon after his election for Twillingate in 1913, was followed by the choice of Hon. James Kent as leader of the Liberal Party's representatives in the House of Assembly, and he in turn, upon being appointed to the Supreme Court Bench, was succeeded by Sir William F. Lloyd, a clear distinction being maintained amongst those in Opposition in the Assembly, as between Liberals and Coakerites, until the formation in 1917 of the so-called National Government, when we think the line of division between Liberals and others ceased to exist in the Assembly. The Telegram gave no support, at any time, to the National Government as an inheritor of any part or portion of the Liberal traditions, through the inclusion of the followers of Sir William Lloyd.

Throughout the changes in Assembly leadership of the Liberals, which followed his resignation, Sir Robert Bond continued to be regarded by the people as the chief of the Liberal Party at large, and as such he would have been enthusiastically supported, had he consented, this year, to take an active part in the approaching election, and in preparing for it. But it became apparent in the Spring that Sir Robert had no intention whatever to resume active leadership, and no adequate successor to him could be found. The circumstances, therefore, called for a new alignment of forces, and imposed a searching examination, behind mere names, for men who would give this Dominion the strongest Government possible, under the existing conditions.

Coincident with the establishment of the conviction that Sir Robert Bond would not lead an Opposition, came the formation of a new Government, under the leadership of an old Liberal—Sir Michael P. Cashin, who associated with him in his Cabinet, certain men who were recognized to be of a Liberal trend of thought, if not of Liberal party antecedents, and, upon the whole, it was made clear that there were not in the public life of Newfoundland equally strong experienced men of whom a satisfactory Cabinet could be formed. The Telegram, therefore, as the Liberal organ for many years, declared its intention to support the Government upon the record it should make from day to day—to judge it, in other words by its performance—and that is the basis upon which the Telegram now asks old-time Liberals throughout the Colony to give their support to Government candidates.

A faction, gathered to oppose the Government, masquerades under the title of Liberal-Reform. This faction had no mandate to choose this name, nor does it convey any meaning other than a covert insult to old Liberals. So far as the "Liberal" part of the name is concerned, it is sheer theft, for such old Liberals as we have named above are not associated with the Squires Party. Why were they and others—the inheritors of Liberal traditions—not called together and consulted as to leadership? Why was Squires imposed on them, as it were, or at least foisted upon them without their consent? And, why, if Squires wished to lead a faction, did he appropriate a name, which meant so much to men who had served under it? Hon. R. A. Squires HAS NEVER BEEN—A LIBERAL OR SERVED UNDER A LIBERAL BANNER. He came into political notice under Lord Morris, IN OPPOSITION TO SIR ROBERT BOND, and has now associated his name with that of the late Liberal leader by a sheer exhibition of amazing impudence, seeking to filch Liberal support by false pretence, he being neither a sharer in, nor an inheritor of, Liberal traditions, and is, consequently, not entitled to one single Liberal vote.

Qualified Queries.

Why so anxious about Burgeo and LaPoile, Brother Post?
Is there any inducement that could be held out to Editor Modell to engage in a test of strength in that district, with the Editor of the Telegram?

Why is it that candidates are so slow in coming forward to espouse the cause of the Liberal (?) Reform Party, when by all the signs of the times, according to the Post and Star, that party is going to sweep the country?

Can any one tell why it is that a fragrant crop of libel suits are invariably the production of an election year, and if such are genuine or merely to have the effect of choking off discussion on certain unpalatable subjects?

What is the use of muck-raking away back in the misty past, for matter with which to endeavour to kill an opponent politically? All these old statutes have been practically abrogated by custom and to put them forward now as reasons why their framers should be knifed by the electors is absurd and ridiculous. Such tactics smack strongly of idocy. But wasn't the Advocate idiotic always?

A Copper Find.

Mr. W. A. MacKay, who was absent from the city for several weeks returned by yesterday's express. The borings in Mr. MacKay's copper claims have been highly successful, and a 200 ft. tunnel was completed Thursday last. A rich vein of copper was struck on Saturday, and there are splendid prospects of a profitable working of the claims.

A Good Price.

Some of our merchants who are purchasing fish in Trinity Bay are offering $12 per qtl. and they have schooners there to convey the staple to St. John's. To our mind the price of fish will greatly depend upon the condition of the Italian markets during the months of November, December and January. It is possible that shippers in New York will assist our Italian friends, and if so we may hope that the price will keep up.

A Good Job.

The White Building, formerly the Smallwood Building, has lately undergone a change, and a new storey added to the top, has made a new building of it altogether. The work was done by the carpenters of Mr. B. Powering contractor, and speaks well for their skill. The short time in which it was done, also, is rather remarkable and speaks eloquently of the speed and efficiency of those who carried out the job. The White Clothing Company is expanding its business and this new storey has been found necessary.

At Bay Bulls.

The Spanish schooner Sevilla is now at Bay Bulls loading fish for Spain. The fish has been purchased from Mr. Ambrose Hearn. For the past ten or twelve days the fishermen have done little or nothing with the fish in that neighborhood. Last year there were 40,000 qtls. secured at Bay Bulls. This year the catch will not reach one-fifth of that amount.

Sea Captain Leaves.

Captain Joseph Porter, late of Beine Johnston's June, has resigned his position on that ship, and leaves for England within a short while, where he will reside in future. Capt. Porter has, time and time again, proven himself to be an efficient and careful captain, and that his late employers will be sorry to lose his services goes without saying.

Mount Cashel Extension.

The final meeting of the Mount Cashel Extension Fund Committee was held last night in the B. I. S. Music Room. Hon. J. D. Ryan, K.C.S.G., President of the Committee announced that the sum of $18,500, had been subscribed. Rev. Bro. Ennis thanked the various tradesmen, teamsters and laborers who had given their services free of charge. The subscription list will be published in a few days.

Fishery Reports.

One hundred and twenty dories, skiffs, and other boats are fishing between English Harbor and Trinity, T.B., finding plenty of bait, both squid and herring. Trawlers are taking from 1 to 3 quintals per day, when weather is favorable. The total catch to date is 21,000 qtls.

A late report from the Straits gives the catch of cod between Pt. Amour and Red Bay as 1,000 quintals. Last week's landings being 1500 quintals. Four traps are in the water and eighty boats of all kinds are using hook and line. With caplin bait plentiful, prospects for a good voyage in that sector are excellent.

On that stretch of coast in the Straits, from Blanc Sablon to Forteau, the fishery has been closed, the total catch being 13,100 quintals. The voyage is now being made, the weather being very favorable for drying.

The Latest Conspiracy.

It is alleged that Messrs. Squires, Coaker and Campbell met in the Advocate Office at 11 o'clock this morning, and an agreement was reached by which Mr. Squires promised not to place any candidates in the northern districts, where the P.P.U. is strong, and also that Mr. Coaker would not contest St. John's West with any candidates of his party. Straws show how the wind blows. Such a conspiracy should and will meet with the condemnation of all right-thinking voters. The Opposition can't be trusted.

The motto should be longer hours in most departments, More Efficient Service, Fewer hands, Better Pay for the rest, the more poorly paid particularly. Promotion by Merit. Vacancies by our Returned Boys if at all possible. In adjusting the Pay List, the Government as well as the Commissioners should avoid the mistake amounting to Scandal and Favoritism and Injustice, of perverting the Scriptures and making the people lose all faith in "upper-class" fairness thru the practice of giving him that hath big pay more abundantly and in effect taking away that which he hath from the poorer clerk's recompense. The Outposts especially suffer in this system of Bigger Pay for Big Officials, overmaning, and little increase for the poorer harder worked Clerk. The few Big make so much shouting and threatening for more Pay and "softer jobs," that the "under-dog's" cry for just treatment is not heard. We shall see what we shall see. Then the conspicuous injustice of making the Post Office Officials work long hours for smaller pay than the other departments. Then letting the teachers so poorly paid leave the profession in shoals, and the children grow up in ignorance, especially in the Outposts.

Cowardly Attack.

After the football match last night the residents of Freshwater Road were witnesses of a cowardly attack, made by a countryman who was filled with moonshine on a returned soldier named Power. It seems the drunk took offence at some remark made by this poor fellow Power, who is suffering from shell shock, and would have rough handled him but for the timely interference of a man named Newberry, brother of Sgt. Newberry, of Ours. The drunk was given a "Black Maria," but was taken away by friends before receiving further punishment. During the melee a window in a nearby shop was broken. The residents of this section of the city complain of the nightly rowdiness and wish that a policeman would visit the place occasionally.

In the baseball game the "Present" defeated the "Ex-Pupils" by one run. The quarter mile, junior, was won by B. Holden, 2nd W. Jackman, F. Walsh won the 220 yards, over 16 years, and Joe Healey the 100 yards, under 16. The high jump, under 16, was won by W. Jackman, who cleared the bar at 3 ft. 9 in. A Leverman won the contest for the seniors. B. Holden and W. Jackman were first and second in the long jump, and the relay race was won by the present pupils, J. Healey, B. Holden, B. Nolan and W. Figure This Out!

You buy 40 Lead Pencils every year at a total cost of at least $2.00.
Would it not be economy to buy an EVERSARP, containing enough leads for one year, at a cost of $1.50?
And apart from the saving in cost you will be using a pencil that is always the same length, the same weight and the same quality lead, with a point that always stays sharp.

FAVORABLY RECEIVED.

LONDON, Sept. 15. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—The King's appeal to employers to employ disabled ex-soldiers has been received favorably everywhere and there are prospects that the solemn obligation mentioned by His Majesty will be generally supported. The Ministry of Labor states that fifty thousand disabled soldiers seeking work, and fifty thousand for whom work is wanted, will shortly be discharged from hospitals and convalescent homes. The scheme put forward as an addendum of the King's proclamation incites employers with over ten employees to take five per centum of disabled men on their establishment if possible. It is not intended the proposals will lead to the dilution of unskilled labor. Wages of the men who have been trained will be governed by conditions laid down in agreement with trade. Advisory committees and disability pensions will not be taken into account. A majority of the staple trades of the country have accepted the scheme. Participants in the scheme are entitled to use on their correspondence paper a device indicating the fact.

SEVERELY DEBATE IN SOUTH AFRICAN ASSEMBLY.

CAPE TOWN, S.A., Sept. 15. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—There was an interesting passage at arms between Premier Smuts and General Hertzog, on the question of separation from the Empire, during the debate in the Assembly, when General Hertzog said that the Nationalist Congress must decide on the secessionist policy. General Smuts thrilled the House with this absolute and decisive statement, "South Africa has not the right to secede from the Empire. Under clause 19 of the constitution secession is impossible and unconstitutional. The Assembly cannot secede from the King. At this juncture, General Hertzog shouted, "can it renounce the King?" General Smuts: "No, it is not a question of status but of the constitution, in the terms of the constitution the King cannot give up the Assembly." General Hertzog interrupted, "at the request of the people." General Smuts replied, "No, of course by revolution it can be done, but you cannot do so by constitutional means. As regards the veto, it exists, but where ordinary laws are concerned it is obsolete." General Hertzog again interrupted, saying, "there you can fight, but you are wrong on the constitutional point." General Smuts: "It is the duty of the King to veto any law under which the Union would secede from the Empire." The Premier concluded by uttering warning of the seriousness of not declaring openly to the people what the Nationalist policy was and what it meant.

Bishop Spencer College reopened after the midsummer vacation this morning. There were present at the exercises His Lordship Bishop White, Revs. Canons Bolt, Feild, E. A. Butler (St. George's), Sir Joseph Outerbridge, J. W. Withers, Esq., and Dr. Blackall. After the pupils had assembled Hymn No. 4, "New Every Morning fit the Love" was sung. Prof. Stirling presiding at the piano. Subsequently His Lordship gave a short address, on the work and success of the College in the C.H.E. exams, the results of which were read by Canon Bolt. Mr. Withers also spoke to the school and was followed by Dr. Blackall, who addressed the pupils on various matters. The Bishop then declared the College open and the headmistress, Miss Stirling, after setting the classes, then, with the approval of all the visitors, gave the school a holiday. Two additional teachers have been added to the staff and a large number of new pupils have been registered.

Quite Right.

As regards the exploration of Timber wealth of the Labrador area northwest of Battle Harbor recently made, the newspaper reports made out that it has proved immense. It is the duty of the Government to see that this timber wealth which is the possession of the people is not alienated as so much of our forest, mineral and other God-blessed natural riches have been. It is high time to stop this system of licensed or unlicensed brigandage. We don't require to leave our natural resources on land and sea undeveloped but they should become the prey of speculators to be locked up for years or parted with by the Colony for little or nothing.—Hr. Grace Standard.

"The War Veteran."

A MAGAZINE FOR THE G. V. V. A.

To be Published in Two Months Time.

The Great War Veterans Association considers that its interests will be served by an official magazine or month-piece by which its aims and objects may be plainly set forth, and it has decided to launch such a publication. In conversation with Mr. Harold Mitchell, the President of the Association, this forenoon, the Telegram reporter was given the facts of the magazine. "It will first be published in about two months," said Mr. Mitchell, and will issue monthly after that. Its size will be about fifty or sixty pages, and it will be done in color, as in the cases of big foreign magazines. Part of it will be printed abroad, and will be sent here to be attached to the part printed locally. The reading matter, as differing from the advertising, will be made up of articles setting forth matters concerning the soldier, fiction, and in fact everything that goes to make up a real magazine. It will be circulated over all the world and will contain articles and stories from many authors of note. The editing and managing will be carried out under boards appointed by the Association, and the magazine will be circulated throughout the country. Its price, I should say, will be about twenty five cents. The first edition will contain messages of welcome from Lloyd George, and from Sir Douglas Haig. We are now getting to work to get things ready and the first number will certainly be something which the War Veterans may be justifiably proud." From all appearance it looks as if "The War Veteran" is to be what Mr. Mitchell claims, and in this hope the Telegram joins.

Round Him Up.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I saw by yesterday's Telegram that a reward has been offered by the Game Fish Association for information of some person or persons who set a bulwain in the Fry Pond, Portugal Cove Road. I have made enquiries and find that this bulwain, with five hooks was found on Sunday with two dead trout on hooks, and another on the bottom; each fish was about two pounds in weight.
I also understand that the care of the hatchery has changed hands this year and that from the beginning of the season the Association have been subjected to a lot of annoyances, which they never had to contend with before. It seems there is a blackie at large, who has been either egged on to this work, or else is doing it of his own accord. Such a sneak should be hounded down and treated to a few months in the Penitentiary.
The Game Fish Association have devoted both time and money in the propagation of trout in different parts of the country and have stocked many of the ponds in the vicinity of the city and elsewhere, and are to be commended for the efforts they have been making for the past twenty-five or thirty years in improving the trout, and it is intolerable that their work should be interfered with and destroyed by such individuals as the perpetrator of this latest outrage.

Thanking you for space, I remain,
Yours truly,
ANGLER.

The Woman Nelson Loved.

Emma Hamilton was born in Cheshire, her parents being humble peasant folk. When about fifteen years old she ran away to London, and being ravishingly beautiful soon had many lovers, and went through a series of amazing adventures. One of her lovers was the Hon. Charles Greville, and he took her to live with him at his house in Edgware Road, London, then a fashionable country suburb, where he had her taught music, dancing and painting. But circumstances compelled Greville to marry, and to get rid of Emma, so he gave her to his uncle, Sir William Hamilton, British Ambassador to the Court of Naples. Sir William married her and she became Lady Hamilton. She also became the bosom friend and confidante of the Queen of Naples. Two years later, on September 16, 1799, Nelson came sailing into the Bay of Naples, visited the British Ambassador's house and promptly fell in love with Lady Hamilton. It is doubtful whether she returned his affection, but she was flattered that her name should be linked with that of the great seaman who was the idol of all Europe outside France. Thereafter, until her death, Lady Hamilton accompanied her hero everywhere. She practically abolished flogging, revolutionised the system of rations, and became the idol of the sailors. But Trafalgar came, Nelson fell, and though with his dying breath he commended Lady Hamilton and her daughter Horatia to the care of the people of England, the latter took no notice. She retired with her little girl into the country, but contracting debts, was imprisoned. Friends got her out, and she took refuge in Calais. Here, in an obscure lodging, almost penniless, she died in the year of Waterloo, at the age of forty-nine. She had known power and used it, riches and plenty had been hers, yet as a peasant she began her life and as an outcast she ended it.

St. Paul's Dean Finds Its School.

On September 15, 1919, John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, died at Sheen, in Surrey, when fifty-three years old, and was buried in that Cathedral. Born in the Metropolis, he studied, graduated, and afterwards lectured on the New Testament at Oxford University. After being ordained and occupying successive livings, he travelled in Italy, studying the writings of the Christian Fathers, Canon and Civil Law, and the Greek language, and after being appointed to the Deanery in 1904, the next year inherited from his father a vast fortune, which enabled him to found St. Paul's School, for a hundred and fifty-three boys of every nation, country and class. This number was chosen as that of the fishes taken by St. Peter (John xxi. 11), and it continues to be the total of foundation scholars erected by competitive examination. The first building for the School was erected at the entrance of the Cathedral, but it was burned down by the great fire of London in 1666, and was replaced by another erected by Sir Christopher Wren as the Cathedral was. The present building of this School is at Hammersmith, and has six hundred pupils, to the best scholars of whom its governors give annually nine exhibitions for scholarships for four years, varying from £70 to £200 annually, besides

LONDON, Aug. 23rd, 1919.

PRINCE MAY BEGIN RACING.
They tell me that there is not the slightest truth in the assertion that at the end of the flat racing season the King will disperse his stud of horses in training at Egerton House, Newmarket, and that the Royal colors will not be seen in the future. The truth is that the King proposes a severe "weeding out" among his horses in training, and those that are clearly not worth retaining will be replaced by "eggs" which show greater promise. It is also quite possible that upon his return from Canada and the United States, the Prince of Wales will register his colors with the Jockey Club.

DUKE AS EDITOR.

A London paper announces that the Duke of Northumberland is to edit the "Nineteenth Century." I think we have not had a peer as editor since Lord Rosslyn ran a Society paper many years ago, and the "Nineteenth Century" is not a Society paper but a sedate, well-informed, and broad-minded review. The Duke will give the review a thoroughly vigorous policy. Everyone knows that he is an anti-Socialist, anti-Nationalist, and above all, anti-Smillie (I do not know whether it is necessary to explain that Smillie is the very forcible leader of the union coal miners in this country), and that he puts his views pungently. He has the pug-nacity and the red hair of the Campbells, from whom he descends on one side, and he is a sound soldier and military critic who served on the General Staff in the field and at the War Office.

EARL HAIG'S FUTURE.

The future of Field-Marshal Earl Haig is greatly exercising the thoughts of the Government at the present time. Given a free choice, the Field-Marshal would greatly like to become a Commander-in-Chief in India, but the fact that he is now Colonel of the Royal Horse Guards rather complicates matters, since this appointment carries with it the office of Gold Stick to the King, and as such it is necessary for the holder of it to be on duty once in every three months. It is now suggested that Earl Haig should retain his present appointment as Commander-in-Chief of the Home Forces, which he took over from Sir William Robertson when the latter went to take command of the British Army of Occupation on the Rhine, and that Sir William Robertson should succeed Sir Charles Munro in the supreme command of the Forces in India in due course. Probably this is what will eventually be done, but the Government has, so far, arrived at no decision in the matter.

A HOLIDAY SPIRIT.

London has been like a holiday city during the last week or two, the gorgeous sunlit days and scarcely less glorious moonlight nights bringing the population out of doors into the parks and open spaces, and distributing it far afield beyond the town itself. If multitudes are away holiday-making the difference is scarcely perceptible. The return flow has set in from the seaside—every sun-tanned migrant with a story of lavish expenditure to tell, or of hotel and lodging-house rapacity, according to his or her temperament. Statesmen and economists discern the specter of scarcity on the horizon, but the population will not look whither these gentlemen point. It may be reaction from the war, or a spirit of recklessness which takes no thought of the coming winter, but whatever it is the population never seemed to be happier than now or more boisterously joyous. This certainly is not because the beer is good and plentiful. One happy feature of these holiday scenes is the number of young men and young wives with little children, of maybe one in arms. The change is remarkable. This time last year one saw nothing but old and middle-aged faces—gray, careworn faces—and the very children were anxious and depressed. To-day the young soldier husband in "civvies" dominates the picture, and he and his are behaving as though pockets were full and life henceforth would have never a care. The people are having their fill of sunshine and pleasure-seeking. Meanwhile, little work is being done, and except that food is more plentiful we are as badly off for supplies in London with which to restart industries, and particularly for supplies of skilled labor, as we were during the war.

STREET TEA PARTIES.

In peace Week one London suburban street had the happy idea of entertaining all the children of the street to tea, music, and games in the street itself. The idea caught on amazingly, and now every week some district in the town has its children's tea party with tables set out all down the middle of the road. They are real jolly carnivals these parties. Every house in the street gives something in money or kind. A local caterer provides the tables, crockery, tea, and bread and butter, but the cakes and special bits come from the mothers themselves. Generally a barrel organ turns up, and there are usually several gramophones. Some more lucky revellers have even had donkeys and ponies provided for races. Fancy dresses are an invariably a feature of the parties, and the street decorations for the day are always extremely elaborate and pretty. On Saturday I found myself in a district in which about two score of the streets were en fête, and rollicking parties were in progress. The gatherings attracted many passers-by, who were all much struck by the novelty and charm of the scheme. Most of them voted it "perfectly splendid." The children themselves were obviously delighted, and the parents were having just as much fun as the youngsters. I fancy these parties are going to become important annual events.

THE DRESS REFORMERS.

Up the river every hotel, house, and cottage is full; boats cannot be hired at any price, people bathe all day and half the night and women wear bathing dresses for about as many hours as their shore costumes, which just now usually include a jumper, seemingly cut in chintz or cretonne with large upholstery patterns of flowers or trees spread large up the front or back. In town, dresses are quieter, indeed very quiet, for almost all the ultra-fashionable fold have gone and the rest don't care what they wear. I have seen no bare-legged women in the Row or in Regent Street, and no really daring fashions, while men dress as heavily and dowdily as ever, although the tropical weather has now lasted over a week. The real dress reformers are found in Trafalgar Square, where they are in and out of the fountains and scrambling over the lions, some boys among them wearing tattered breeches held up by broken braces over bare shoulders, some wearing even less. If the police allow this much longer, then I expect that the Australians who sit in the sun round the fountains will revert to their Gallipoli uniform of shorts and a sun hat. A doctor who was through Gallipoli and Palestine tells me that this costume is not recommended for adult Englishmen. Indeed, it was forbidden eventually for the English troops in the East because so many developed neuritis of the back and similar troubles.

A NEW FORM OF GAMBLING.

The French and Italian exchanges have fallen now to the lowest rates yet known. One could get 24 francs or 40 lire for the sovereign. These fluctuations in international exchange have given rise to a form of gambling—that of speculating on a falling exchange. The method is very simple. In France, for instance, one buys dollars—that is to say, exchanges a certain sum of French money for American—waits a certain time until the exchange has fallen further, and then changes the American money back into French. I heard to-day of somebody in France who made about fifteen hundred francs in a few months by this simple operation. Every time that he was paid his salary he bought dollars with all that he did not need for his immediate requirements, and at the end of a certain time changed them back into French money and netted the sum mentioned. Anybody in England who had changed a hundred pounds into American money last Monday would have gained about three pounds by changing it back into English money to-day, for the value of the sovereign has fallen since Lloyd George's speech on August 13th.

A STATE JUMBLE SALE.

Among the faded splendours of Earl's Court (where the Belgian refugees were housed during the war, but which batch of buildings was formerly London's principal exposition and fair centre), there has been a sale of all sorts of domestic odds—the household goods left behind by the Belgian refugees when they ceased to be guests of the State. The point about the sale was that the dealers, who are usually far too numerous and quick to give any chance to ordinary buyers at these Government sales, were entirely submerged by women stocking from London suburbs. These buyers knew very well the appalling cost of furniture at the shops and the value of a bargain. One could buy anything at Earl's Court from a doormat to a baby's bottle. The women were there in hundreds, and the deafening noise of conversation made it difficult for the auctioneer to get along. There was special joy when a dealer was deprived of a bargain. Altogether it was one of the oddest little scenes in the clearing up of the war—this sale of old furniture in the place where pre-war pleasure-seekers used to revel in Cockney Orientalism.

Fashions and Fads.

The shoestring belt is fashionable. Embroidery is not as favored as it was. Coats seams are outlined by tiny cordings. Very few things escape being embroidered. The new coat linings are quite decorative. There is a new outward spring to coat skirts. Little frills still finish the shallow round necks. Many of the new tunics are transparent.

Results of Garden Competition.

THE PRIZE WINNERS.

Dear Girls and Boys.—You will like to know the result of our first garden competition.

There were many entries and the interest shown has been most encouraging. We were very glad to find so many nice gardens ready for our recent inspection. Some of them were really excellent. It was especially pleasing to see what could be done with small back yards.

The cold and wet of the early summer had discouraged a few children who then neglected their gardens, and sometimes where gardens were being started for the first time, mistakes were made. One boy had quite a nice clump of sweet-peas, but they were planted too thickly. Spread over greater space and given some support they would have grown better and have made a fine show. We hope that these children will try again next year with greater success.

The one disappointing feature of this year's competition has been the window-boxes. Many were started, but they were not cared for enough during the dry weather of August and none qualified for the prizes offered. It is well to remember that plants in boxes cannot send their roots far down to seek moisture and they need frequent watering.

We congratulate the prize-winners whose names are given below:

FLOWERS.

1st prize—Eleanor Raynes, $5.00.
2nd prize—Edwin White, $3.00.
3rd prize—Jean Bursy, $2.00.
4th prize—James Canning, $1.00.

Sir Michael Cashin and the Civil Service.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir:—The Telegram deserves the warmest congratulations for its strong editorial last evening on the Civil Service. The "People's Paper" has always been to the fore, for nearly half a century in advocating reforms, and its advocacy of justice for the Civil Service, not only betrays gratitude in the breasts of all Government officials, but meets with the approval of every right-thinking man in the community.

I agree with the writer in this morning's News that a well-paid Civil Service, is one of the very best assets for the Dominion. As he ably points out every shopkeeper, and every tradesman in the Island benefit by it, and it goes back to the Government, increased a hundredfold, because of the extra circulation.

I must too add a word of gratitude to Sir Michael Cashin, for his liberal attitude in the matter.

It shows that he has risen with the spirit of the times, and is prepared to do what he conceives to be right and just, notwithstanding the criticism of the chronic snarlers.

Sir Michael has earned the gratitude of a large and intelligent body of citizens all over the Dominion, and if they were not effusive in their thanks, it was not that they were ungrateful, but as the writer in the News points out, what was everybody's business became nobody's business. I wish to add my word of thanks to Sir Michael and his colleagues, not only for what they have done, but for what they have foreshadowed and intend doing in the very near future.

Yours truly,
ANOTHER GRATEFUL CIVIL SERV-ANT.

Cable Reminiscences.

NOTES FROM ACROSS THE SEA.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The account by Mr. Shortis of the inception and laying of the first Atlantic Telegraph Cable in your issue of July 26th, has interested me very much—and as I, as a boy, was at Valencia in 1856-57, and 58 perhaps a few notes from me may be of interest.

As the distance between Heart's Content and Valencia is the shortest from land to land across the Atlantic, they were chosen as the termini of the cable. Engineers came from Valencia in 1856 to fix on the most suitable spot for landing the shore end and after two or three excursions, on which I too was taken, the White Strand at the east end of Lough Kay was decided on. "Valencia Bay" as your article is a misnomer. Valencia Harbor is divided into two parts by the irregularly shaped Begnis Island—the Harbor proper is to the south of Begnis. Lough Kay is to the north and in turn is bounded on the north by Douglas Head.

Lough Kay lies east and west, and the illustration in your paper is fairly accurate—taken I think from the Illustrated London News. To the right is Douglas Head, on the left is a bit of Begnis and the detached rock is Lamb Island.

The land telegraph wires were continued from Killarney by the Engineer of the British and Irish Magnetic Telegraph Co.,—Benjamin Dawson Watson—cheeriest of men, to the White Strand where a hut was built for the operators.

In 1857 when "Niagara" and her consorts came, the accommodation on the island was taxed to its utmost extent. The Company Directors and their engineers and visitors came and came, and where they all found lodgings is a mystery. One of our visitors was Dr. Hamell, who was employed by the Russian Government to collect all scientific information possible. He was quite a celebrated character as his ascent of Mont Blanc and the loss of his guides is historic. The hotel being rather too public, my father invited the directors to hold their Board Meetings in our dining room, and there they sat round the table which was a circular slab of Valencia Slate.

On landing the shore end, a large pit was dug in the sand and in it were inserted six baulks of timber, on end, round which the shore end was wound. Why I don't know, such anchorage being absolutely unnecessary; but Lord Carlisle made his speech and we all cheered and had a happy day. Then there was a great déjeuner and two balls. A large store in the slate yard was cleared out, tables were put up, decorations and flags galore, and in the evening a ball. Coming away at one or two in the morning, a star was rising up exactly over one of the peaks of the Drug Hill, twelve miles away up the Long Valley, where St. Patrick stood and blessed all to the west of him. We all thought it was a bonfire, but Captain Lyons of H. M. Coastguard said "Star of Hope—Star of Hope" and next night was the servants' ball.

Then away went "Niagara" and the visitors, and the result Mr. Shortis has told you.

Next year came the "Agamemnon" and partial success. The morning she came in I was awakened with the news "Agamemnon" in Lough Kay! But this year at that time there were no visitors and no crowd. My father was away so was the Knight of Kerry. There was no excitement at all. Capt. Lyons came across from Caheriveen and took my three sisters and me to the "Agamemnon." She was lying like a cork on the water having lost so much weight. Temporary ladders had been lashed on, and up these we were hoisted. Coal had run short and some of her decks had been torn up for fuel. In the afternoon the cable was landed but instead of going to the White Strand it was brought round to the east end of Begnis, and landed just below the Coastguard Station at Knightstown at the east end of Valencia, then it was brought up into the slate yard.

My father who was Manager of the Slate and Slab Company gave the Cable Company the use of an abandoned saw house, known as the long saw house. The saw was taken away and the house divided by some bulk heads into rooms for the Staff. The last of these rooms was at the east end where was a large window overlooking the pier and ferry. It was there that the few messages got through were sent and received. The instrument, the late Lord Kelvin's (then Sir William Thomson) reflecting galvanometer, stood on a shelf at the south east corner of the room. I could point out exactly where it was.

Then Directors and their wives and visitors came down on us once more and we had lively times with them and with the bulletins until hopes were out and the end came. But before that, and while there was the slightest hope, experiments were made with most powerful batteries, and I remember in the instrument room one of the operators taking up a big steel pen and melting it with the current, which was so strong.

The two reflecting galvanometers from Hearts Content and Valencia are both together in the Science Museum at South Kensington, with pieces of the deep sea and shore end.

So far as I know, I believe my last remaining sister and I are the only survivors of those who helped to haul up the cable on Valencia beach that August afternoon in 1858.

Yours truly,
JOHN LECKY.

LITTLE GIRL!
Little girl, where is the charm
In your long uncovered arm;
In the V behind your neck,
Is it there for birds to peck?
Little girl, I tell you those,
Ain't so nice as underclothes.

Little girl, now listen here,
You would be just twice as dear
If you'd cover up your charms,
Neck, back, legs and both your arms.
I would take you to the show,
If you'd wear some underclothes.

Little girl, your mystery
Luring charm and modesty,
Is what makes us fellers keen
To possess a little queen;
But no lover—goodness knows—
Wants a girl sans underclothes.

I must wear a coat of mail,
Clothed from head to big toe-nail,
I must cover up my form

'Less I garb in underclothes.

AND TIME TO, TOO!

Over a glass of—er—milk the old sea dogs were swapping yarns, according to the Chicago News. "I remember one time," said the one with the scarlet nose, "we ran into a hurricane. The cook was in the galley cooking salt horse—what the owners called beef—and raising a dickens of a steam. But that there hurricane was so cold that it froze the steam solid, with poor old cookie in the centre, and it took three hours to dig him out." "That's so?" replied the one with the wooden leg. "Minds me of an Arctic voyage I went on once. The cold was so terrible that it froze the bosun's shadow to the deck, and we had to hack it loose with a chopper before he could move. And another time—" he went on reminiscently. But his friend had vanished.

SIMPLE REMEDY.

The squid from the nearby cantonment was out on a range for target practice. A lanky farmer approached the officer in charge of the squad and said:

"Be ye the boss of these here fellows?"
"Yep," replied the officer. "What's the trouble?"
"Trouble enough," replied the farmer. "You fellers come around here shootin' every day, an' the shootin' worries my hens an' keeps them from layin'. Now what am I going to do about it?"

"Put earmuffs on the hens," replied the officer.

GO TO HONK HONK!

A portly Dutch woman applied at the post office for a money order to send to her son in the Far East. She told the clerk she had left her son's letter at her home, but said he was "some place out by China dot sounds like der noise an automobile makes." The clerk smiled and turning to another nearby he said, "What kind of a noise does an automobile make, Joe?" "Honk, honk!" the other suggested. "Yah, dots it," exclaimed the woman, her face brightening. "Honk, honk, dots der place." So the clerk made the order payable at Hong Kong and the woman went away happy.

Sale of Tanlac Has Broken All World Records

Bottles Sold in Four Years Would Reach from New York to Denver—Merit Alone Responsible For Success.

This is an age of big business, and although the public has become accustomed to big figures, the story of the marvelous growth and development of Tanlac forms one of the most interesting chapters of America's latter day commercial history.

Four years ago very few people had ever heard of Tanlac. To-day it unquestionably has the largest sale of any medicine in the world. In the brief period of only four years time this now famous remedy has escaped from obscurity to the very pinnacle of success.

Very few people, however, fully realize what a really wonderful record Tanlac has made. Indeed, if it were not for the unquestionable facts and figures given out by the largest and best known drug firms of the country the story of its success would be hard to believe.

Up to January first, the total sales of Tanlac amounted to approximately twelve million bottles. The demand, however, is increasing, for during the first ten weeks of this year over one million bottles were sold and distributed in the United States and Canada, the exact figure being 1,068,186 in three months.

At this rate, therefore, the sales for the present year will amount to more than five million bottles. This will mean that 17,000 bottles of Tanlac will be sold during every day of the year, or 2,100 bottles for every hour of the average working day.

These figures are too stupendous for the average mind to grasp, but one may visualize what twelve million bottles means by imagining them laid out in a single file and to end. Thus laid they would make a track of Tanlac from New York through Chicago, and on to Denver, Colorado, or they would tower 135 times as high as Pike's Peak or rise 13,333 times higher than the Woolworth Building in New York, the tallest building in the world.

The demand for Tanlac has become so great that its sales instead of being measured by the gross as other preparations have been, is now reckoned by the amount of Tanlac sold in train loads. In proof of this it is a noteworthy fact that the leading drug jobbers everywhere now buy Tanlac almost exclusively in car loads.

To supply the Pacific Coast trade alone requires from forty to fifty car loads per year—jobbers of the Middle West are selling from seventy to eighty cars per year. One jobbing concern alone, the Evans-Smith Drug Company of Kansas City, Missouri, is selling at the rate of twenty car loads of 24,000 bottles each per year. In a letter dated April 19th, Julius M. Price of that company says: "In figuring the amount of Tanlac sold since taking this agency we find that we are now working on the thirtieth car, having sold more than a quarter of a million packages in eight months."

The well known drug firm of Hesse-Ellis Drug Company, of Memphis, Tennessee, has sold over forty car loads since the introduction of Tanlac in that state four years ago. Mr. R. R. Ellis, President of that company is authority for the statement that the demand for Tanlac has been greater than any other five medicines combined.

Within the past ninety days, ten carloads of Tanlac have gone to supply the demand of British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba.

Mr. Charles McD. Hay, President of Lymn Brothers & Company, Limited, of Toronto, one of the oldest and best known jobbing concerns in Canada says: "We have handled in Ontario Province, Canada, five car loads of Tanlac since October, 1918, while our total purchases have amounted to 12 cars within the past two years."

The Owl Drug Company of San Francisco, the largest retail druggists on the Pacific Coast, state that they have sold more than 180,000 bottles at retail price, and that they are the remarkable record of the Jacobs Pharmacy Company, of Atlanta, who have sold approximately 80,000 bottles at retail price.

These enormous sales mean but one thing, and that is—Merit. Tanlac is widely advertised, it is true, but such an unprecedented and rapidly growing demand could not be brought about by advertising alone. One bottle is sold in a neighborhood through advertising, but ten more bottles are sold in that community after the first bottle produces results. People are always willing to talk about their ailments, but they are more than willing to tell others of the medicine that helps them.

Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science. The formula complies with all national and state pure food and health laws of both the United States and Canada, and absolute merit and merit alone is responsible for its phenomenal and unprecedented success.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Cowan, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative. —adv.

The sun shineth upon the dung-heap and is not corrupted.—Lily.

Of A Kind—A well known army officer tells this one on himself. He was inspecting one of the new draft camps and came to a place where there should have been a sentry. He could see none there, so looked around a bit. Finally he spotted a soldier sitting alone in a corner of the fence playing solitaire. "Do you know who I am?" he asked impressively. "No," said the soldier, intent on his cards. "Well," thundered the officer, "I am a sort of a Brigadier-General." "All right," replied the soldier, "wait until I finish this game and I'll give you a sort of a salute." —The Cub-Editor.

From a recent Magazine we have copied the following. We only need to add. Papers to suit all requirements can be had at our Store.

1. Thou shalt heed the call of Plain quiet wall papers and white woodwork wherever such is possible.
2. Thou shalt lighten dark rooms by the use of light-hued, yellow-tinted wall paper, that suggests the blessed sunshine.
3. Thou shalt see that thy walls and thine own personality are not to forward, but modestly retiring.
4. Thou shalt use no large-patterned wall papers against which to hang thy pictures. The one will kill the other.
5. Thou shalt have no centerpiece or cornerpieces upon thy ceiling, but only a very nearly plain expanse of light color.
6. Thou shalt have thy fill of bright tints, and delicate designs for bedrooms and boudoirs, but for drawing-rooms, dining-rooms, libraries and halls, thou shalt be compelled to use less frivolous papers.
7. Thou shalt, when the ceiling is not too high, run the paper of the side wall up to the ceiling, putting the border just below the angle.
8. Thou shalt not panel the walls of a small room, except it be above a mantelpiece, a sideboard or a bookcase, where a bit of tapestry, a mirror or a picture may be held in place by strips of moulding.
9. Thou shalt use attention-compelling cut out borders, or conventionally designed strips for divisions between walls and ceiling.
10. Thou shalt remember at all times that thy wall paper is but a background against which to show thy pictures, thy furniture, and thy friends.
