CHAPTER XVII

But he could not get the dreadful old house from his mind. It haunted his waking and sleeping hours, until at last he owned himself conquered by the morbid desire, and found himself walking round the square and loitering before the house again. For days he made it a practice, half unconsciously, to walk the moss-grown pavement before the house, and to ponder over the years of his early life, and gradually and surely grew on his morbid mind the longing—at last not to be resisted—to see the dismantled rooms once more.

He knew the windows by heart; they were for the most part boarded up. The green stain upon the stone steps was unbroken, the dust upon the door and the cobwebs that were woven from it to the lintel showed that it had not been entered for years.

"It is empty," he said to himself, one day. "Could it enter without attracting attention?"

But even as he touched the door and found that it was fast and tightly locked, some one passed on the other side of the way, and he was compelled to acknowledge that an entry by the front would attract attention and excite suspicion. Then there flashed upon him the memory of the other entrance.

But where was that and how could he find it?

This problem to be solved gave almost a purpose to his life, and with a faint shadow of color and energy he started next morning on a tour of inspection through the courts whose mouths and outlets were near the spot.

But, time, the destroyer, had been also time, the builder, and many of the courts had been removed and filled up with new shops and dwelling houses.

He almost despaired of finding the court he had remembered, when one day he chanced to hit upon it.

A new shop at the corner of its entrance in the great thoroughfare had concealed it from him, and several alterations within it had confused it in his mind, but a small feature of it seemed to place its identity beyond doubt. In a dark corner of the arch, which served as its entrance, was a carved stone head, more battered than ever, and Clarence Clifford knew that he had found the court.

And now another fear seized him. Should he succeed in finding the old house through which the entrance to the vaults was made?

Very carefully, and taking every precaution to avoid suspicion, he made his inquiries, and at last discovered that a poor family occupied part of a house which had been empty for years, and had only been done up, then made habitable for their occupancy.

Clarence Clifford knocked at the door and applied for apartments.

The woman told him that she only had a part of the place—two rooms—and that the rest was uninhabitable.

"Why?" said he.

"Rats," said she, concisely.

"Indeed!" he said; "how is that?"

Are there any—"

"Sewers," she explained, "run at the back, and that's where they come from. You can see the rooms, if you like."

With an excitement that he could scarcely keep from his manner, he followed the woman into the tumble-down place.

The two rooms she occupied were furnished, the remainder were boarded up and delivered up to the rats and dust.

How to take these rooms, which he recognized instantly, without exciting her suspicions, was a matter for careful consideration.

He hit upon a bright plan.

"Well," he said, "I am willing to take the rooms, but as they are, for they will just suit my purpose. I want a quiet place where I can try some experiments in chemistry, and these will suit me."

The woman nodded.

"They ain't fit to live in," she said, suddenly.

"No," he said, "I don't want to live in them."

"And the rats 'ud eat up everything as is put in here."

"They are welcome," he said, "if they can devour bottles."

He then applied a strong temptation in the shape of an offer of a high rent, and the woman, satisfied and void of suspicion, took the bargain.

But with the discovery came a fresh impetus to the curiosity. He had decided not to make a venture that night and tried to gain some sleep but he could not close his eyes, and fell to pacing the room. The longing to be within the old house was rapidly growing into a disease.

The following day he purchased a few bottles of chemicals and placed them in a box. In another he packed a box of matches, a small quantity of brandy, a bunch of skeleton keys and a small coil of wire rope.

Remembering the rats and determined to prepare for difficulties in the shape of barriers, he concealed a revolver and a small crowbar beneath his coat, and carrying his boxes made his way to the house in the court.

To avert suspicion, and give an air of reality to his assertion he spent an hour or two in melting some metal and burning some chemicals, then lighting his dark lantern and locking the door of communication with the other part of the house, he commenced his search for the passage.

Remembering the position of the rooms, he was not long in finding it. It was boarded up as the rest of the apartments, mostly with damp and thick with dust from fallen bricks and rotting mortar. With a throb of exultation he returned for the crowbar, stowed the matches, rope, revolver and keys about his person and stood on the threshold of his journey.

The entrance gave way at the first slight pressure of the bar, and a gust of foul air came to meet him.

He drew back for a while and waited impatiently. Twice he lit a match and tested the atmosphere and twice was compelled to wait until the noxious gases had evaporated.

At last there was enough pure air to allow the match to burn, and with the light from his lantern streaming before him, walked carefully forward.

There were pools of wet, here and there into which the damp dropped with a monotonous trick-trick from the roof; at intervals a brood of rats crossed his path, and once an enormous fellow stopped and seemed inclined to dispute his passage, but the light dazzled him, and Clarence Clifford, his longing unabated, went more quickly but still carefully on.

Presently he came to the steps which led to the iron-cased, spring-locked door of the house in the square and at the first damp stone at the bottom of the flight he paused and wiped the perspiration, that, even in the damp atmosphere, covered his brow.

Turning his lantern on either side, he saw that here the damp had given way in places and that the higher the stairs went the drier were the walls.

In one or two places he fancied that the green deposit had been pushed off by a passing coat sleeve or a cloak, but the steps showed so little sign of late foot pressure that he felt convinced no human being had passed that way for years, perhaps since the day of the tragedy, and with a sigh he adjusted his lantern and ascended the steps.

Before him, just as he remembered it, stood the iron door, thick with rust, and without the slightest indication of the spring which alone could open it.

As he looked upon it a peculiar feeling came over him, a feeling that was like a positive assurance; he fancied that in a dream, or by some other phenomenal way, had been conveyed to him that behind that door lay his future, that the sheet of rusted iron barred his way to happiness.

He sighed and almost groaned at the phantom, remembering that his happiness was buried in the grave; but the feeling had settled down upon his heart and soul, and he could not divest himself of it as he stood before the door.

Waking suddenly from the reverie which this fancy had produced, he set down the lantern and commenced feeling for the spring. Aware that the sense of touch is intensified if the other senses are at rest, he closed his eyes and gave up his mind to the search.

But though he went over every inch of the iron plating with careful pressure, the door stood as grimly immovable as ever.

He wiped his hand and paused to think.

Now that this obstacle had arisen his desire was whetted and augmented.

Come what would, if only by breaking down the door, or cutting his way through, he would enter the house.

He felt in his pockets, hoping hopefully to find something that would help him, but could find nothing but the keys—which, as there was no keyhole, were utterly useless—and the thin wire rope which he had brought to assist him in any descent or ascent that might be necessary.

An idea struck him.

Taking a length of the wire, he held it tightly in each hand, and drew it along the surface of the door from the top to the bottom.

Repeating his experiment once or twice, he cleared off the thick coating of rust which had, no doubt, prevented him from discovering the spring, and set to work with his fingers once more.

Child Welfare Work in Canada

Ottawa, Ont., July. (By C.P.)—A review of the child welfare work of the past five years, and formation of a constructive programme for the next five years, will be the chief items on the agenda when the Conference on Child Welfare convenes in this city from Sept. 28th to October 1st next. Workers of national prominence will give special papers on progress in specialized fields, and all phases of social work in Canada will be discussed.

The Canadian Council on Child Welfare was founded in Ottawa in 1920, and the whole first day of the meeting will be devoted to a study of the legislation and activities that have developed throughout Canada in the past five years. The report of the Council itself will be largely a summary of the legislation enacted since 1920.

The Conference enjoys the patronage of their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Byng of Vimy, Premier W. L. M. King, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Robert Forke, M.P. Possibly the outstanding worker at the Conference will be Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau of the United States, who will deliver the closing address of the meeting.

Addresses disclosing the progress in the work during the past five years will be given by Dr. H. E. Young, medical officer of British Columbia, on Child Welfare Advances, 1920-25; Judge Helen Gregory MacGill, of Vancouver, on Five Years in Meeting Conditions of Child Labor; Dr. C. M. Hines, General Secretary of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, on Progress in the Problems of Mental Delinquency; Brother Barnabas, Toronto, on Five Years' Advance in Juvenile Delinquency; Judge D. E. Harkness, Winnipeg, on Progress in the Treatment of the Neglected and Dependent Child, and Major Ney, Secretary of the National Education Council, on Recent Progress in Religious and Spiritual Education of the Child.

The popular evening meetings promise to be interesting. The opening evening, Monday, Sept. 28, Hon. W. F. Roberts, Minister of Health for New Brunswick, will speak on "Carrying Health to the People," and Mrs. Arthur Murphy of Edmonton ("Jane's Cause") will discuss "Removing Delinquency by Prevention."

The second evening, Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario, will take the chair, and Hugh Dobson of Regina, will discuss the Problem of the Juvenile Immigrant in the Canadian Community. Father Haley, head of the Catholic Welfare Bureau, Toronto, will speak on Child Dependancy and Family Relief.

Dr. Helen R. Y. Reid, of Montreal will preside at the Wednesday evening session, when Mrs. R. W. Bedford, of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies will speak on the Child and the Community. She will be followed by Dr. Farrar, on Mental Defects and Social Waste. Dr. Farrar is head of the New Ontario Psychopathic Hospital and an acknowledged authority on the subject.

The final day's session of the conference will be given entirely to a discussion leading to the formation of the Council's programme of work for the next five years, 1925-30. Prof. E. D. MacPhee, of Toronto, leading the discussion. Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau of the United States, will conclude the conference with an address on Minimum Child Welfare Standards.

As all meetings are open to the public a large attendance is expected.

Round Trippers Appreciation of Ship Company

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Through the medium of your valued edition, I wish on behalf of the round trippers of S.S. Prospero on her last trip North to sincerely thank each and every member of the crew from the captain down to the man who holds the least responsible position on the ship for their very successful attempt at making the passengers enjoy themselves. Capt. West Keen's ability at making people feel at home on his ship is too well known to need any further comment than that he has added new laurels to his name within the past ten days. The officers, wireless men and crew, particularly the two mates and "Jaffer" the old reliable bosun, we all thank most sincerely, and say "we will be on deck again next July." The chief steward (with his ice cream fame), the stewardess and stewards need no praise, for the healthy looks and hearty appetites we brought back speak more for them than any words could do. And last but not least comes "Jarynie" and his staff of engineers and others, who when off duty and off Billy who had no cold turpentine to re-heat, were right in the front line of fun. These men as well as the rest of the crew are also to blame for spreading the "don't want to go home" feeling that the round trippers had when nearing St. John's, but each and every one of them pulled themselves together on Bowling's wharf and said in their hearts good-bye and good luck, Prospero, captain and crew till we come again next July. Yours truly, N.N.E. BY HALF E.

Daring Explorer Discovers Ancient Drawings.

(By Arthur A. Stuart.)

Lying flat on a raft, a French archeologist named Mandement, recently pulled himself through a passageway in one of the inky caverns of Niaux, near Tarascon-sur-Ariege, and discovered some of the most remarkable examples of prehistoric art ever found. Drawings of animals, etched in the walls of the cave by unknown artists of the Stone Age, show a primitive skill that has excited keen interest among the archeologists of the world.

The grottoes of Niaux in the far south of France near the Spanish border have been known for centuries by the neighbouring peasants, but avoided with superstitious awe. A large lake covers part of the floor of the fore part of the grotto. Earlier investigators had stopped their explorations when they came against a barrier formed by overhanging walls, which prevented passage of a row boat.

Mandement, determined to see what was beyond, constructed a raft, and on this managed to slip through the crack. It took considerable courage. At any moment he might slip over a precipice into oblivion.

But, passing the barrier, he found himself in a long tunnel. Emerging from this he entered a cave of glistening beauty. Walls rose to a height of 65 feet. Stalactites and stalagmites joined to form long slender columns, suggesting the name, "The Hall of Marble." On the walls were the remarkable drawings.

The most notable of these is one of a horse. With firm, sure line the artist, with his crude implement of stone or bone, drew a reproduction, fiery and spirited, showing excellent mastery of proportions. It is a drawing, experts declare, that would be a credit to an artist with centuries of civilization behind him.

In another cave, which Mandement named the "Round Room" are giant figures of bisons or aurochs. These too, show amazing accuracy in drawing.

Nature has provided indisputable proof that the Niaux drawings were done by savages of the prehistoric era. Covering the drawings is a lime deposit that must have been countless centuries in forming. Only time could have produced this stamp of authenticity.

Religious Ceremony

The beautiful Chapel of the Immaculate Conception, Presentation Convent, Cathedral Square, was, on July 19, the scene of the Religious Ceremonies of Reception and Profession.

Precisely at nine o'clock, His Grace, Archbishop Roche entered the Sanctuary, attended by Right Rev. Monsignor McDermott, Rev. Frs. McGettigan and Murphy. The Ceremony began with the interrogation of the candidates, after which Mass of the Seventh Sunday after Pentecost, was celebrated by His Grace the Archbishop. At the Post Communion of the Mass the Sisters for Profession pronounced their Holy Vows, and at the conclusion of the Holy Mass the Ceremony of Reception was preceded with an eloquent and very impressive sermon, appropriate to the occasion was delivered by the Rev. T. J. Flynn, B.A., in which he pointed out to the young Religious, the great happiness that was being theirs, in having the courage to renounce the world, and devote their lives irrevocably to Christ, and thus be instrumental in keeping the torch of Faith brilliant in the hearts of the little ones.

The Sermon was listened to with rapt attention by a very appreciative audience, consisting of the Archbishop and Priests, the Reverend Mother General and Sisters of Cathedral Square Convent, and St. Patrick's, Riverhead, and the Relatives and friends of the newly Professed Religious. The names of the Sisters who received the Black Veil, are as follows:—

Sr. M. Matthew McGettigan, St. John's.

Sr. M. Constance King, Conception Bay.

Sr. M. Andrea Collins, Placentia.

Sr. M. Dominic Coombs, Conception Bay.

While Miss Philomena Curtis, Treasurer, received the White Veil of the Order, taking the Religious name of the "Little Flower of Lisieux", Sr. M. Teresita.

TWENTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE HELD IN BONAVISTA.

Str. Richard Anderson Squires, K. C. M.G., Elected New Grand Master—Twillingate Chosen as Next Convention Town.

With a very fair attendance of Delegates from all sections of Newfoundland an Orangemen's Convention that far exceeded anything before attempted, convened in the Bonavista Lodge room Saturday July 18th and concluded Wednesday 22nd, inst.

Much praise is due the Bonavista Committee for the efforts expended to make it a success. The holding of a convention in any town is a Herculean task, and it is only through hours of hard and co-operative work that the many details can be even partially worked out. That the convention was one of the most profitable ever held will be acknowledged by every member of the delegation, and is an additional proof of the Onward March being made by the Association.

The town of Bonavista is a very interesting place, and has a history that all her residents may feel proud to perpetuate. There are a few outstanding features, or items of importance that we would like to put in print, they deserve publicity. The Orange Hall at Bonavista is practically a new building it is large and spacious, the Lodge Room and Banquet Hall are both planned to give the utmost facility for their respective purposes. The Orange Warrant which adorns the wall at the rear of the platform bears the date April 27th, 1874 and thus it is no wonder we record two facts one of the best Halls in the country, and the largest membership of any Primary Lodge in British North America.

Sunday 19th, inst. P.G.L. Officers, Delegates, and visitors attended Divine Service, Methodist Church, the Parade was accompanied by the Bonavista Orange Brass Band, appropriate selections were played and appreciated as it certainly was exceptionally warm work. A special Order of Service had been prepared for this occasion, after the Deology and invocation by the Pastor, the Hymn: "The Son of God goes forth to war" was sung, the Rev. C. Lench led in Prayer followed by the "Lord's Prayer" (in unison), Anthem by the Choir, Psalm 46 (alternate reading), Hymn: "Breathe on me Breath of God," Scripture Lesson, Mat. 7 chapter, read by Rev. E. A. Butler, Delegate to Convention, then Hymn 3 order of service "Faith of our Fathers Living Still," then came the Sermon, preacher, Rev. C. R. Blount, B.D., subject, "Modern Orangemen"; Text, Matthew 5:13-14.

Brother Blount delivered a masterly address, one long to be remembered. The Rev. McKintley Rose, also Rev. George Patten, both delegates to the Convention occupied seats on the Rotunda during the service. Benediction and singing of National Anthem terminated the order of service, when after a short parade and back to the Hall, the brethren dispersed. The entertainment features of the convention were on a par with those offered at previous ones. The football match between the Bonavista team and a picked team from G. Lodge delegation, resulted in a victory for Bonavista. The gate receipts were $23.75. On the eve of the match the Grand Lodge delegates and visitors were invited to the S.U.F. Hall where light refreshments were served and a social hour concluded with a dance until the "we sma hours".

Tuesday 20th, the Delegation were invited to repair to the Banquet Hall at 6.30, the catering being attended to by the ladies of Bonavista in faultless fashion. The following toast list was duly honoured:—

The King—Prop. Chairman, Dr. C. A. Forbes; resp., National Anthem. Grand Lodge—Prop. Rev. E. A. Butler, Sandy Point; resp., F. G. Bradley, L.L.B., Grand Master. G. Black Chapter—Prop. W.H. Cave. P.G. Master; resp., W. Crumme, P. G.M.

Sister Fraternities—Prop. C. E. Russell, M.H.A., resp. G. T. Phillips for I.O.O.F., S.U.F., and B.S. and Masonic. Newfoundland—Prop. Rev. C. Lynch P.O. Chaplain; resp. Sir R. A. Squires, G. Master. Chairman—Prop. J. Miller, Grand Sec.; resp., Dr. C. A. Forbes. The business of the Grand Lodge was practically finished Tuesday night and on Wednesday morning the election of officers took place and installed in the afternoon. The following brethren were elected and installed according to ritual. Installing Officers: Hon. F. G. Bradley, Past Grand Master; Chaplain, Rev. E. A. Butler; Grand Marshal Jas Wheeler, Past Grand Director of Ceremonies. Grand Master—Sir R. A. Squires, K. C. K.C.M.G., St. John's. Deputy Grand Master—R. J. Smith, Cupids. A deputation from the I.O.O.F. also presented fraternal greetings, and Rev. Bro. Chas. Lench suitably replied on behalf of the Grand Lodge.

Resolutions pledging the Associations loyalty to the throne and the empire were adopted and ordered to be sent through the proper authorities to His Majesty the King.

A very interesting and instructive debate took place on educational conditions in the colony and the Grand Lodge placed itself on record as being unanimously in favour of free and compulsory education.

A resolution was also adopted authorizing the Executive of the Grand Lodge to bring before the Government the necessity of placing two small public hospitals on the West Coast, one at St. George's, and the other at Bonne Bay. The next annual session will be held at Twillingate.

(Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, in the Review of Reviews (London): The world is entering the electrical age; but in Great Britain, we live still in the steam age, chiefly because we have relied too much upon our abundant coal supplies and upon the unwarrantable assumption that coal could always be obtained cheaply and abundantly enough for industrial purposes to make us indifferent to the electrical progress of other countries. Looking into the next fifty years, we must visualize greater and greater competition from industrial countries actually building and planning for abundant and cheap power in this country. hitherto undreamed of in this country.

Another Major Conflict Looked for in China

SHANGHAI, July 18—Another major war seems to be brewing in China. Despite official denials of the possibility of another conflict between Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian bandit-governor and Marshal Sun Chuan-Fang, military governor of Chekiang province, Chang is concentrating Manchurian troops in the neighborhood of Shanghai, and reports from Hangchow indicate Sun is preparing the war.

The two marshals would pitch their battle in the neighborhood of Shanghai, if hostilities began, as it is control of that city that would be the reward of war.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

IS IT THE WOMAN'S FAULT?

A Letter Friend puts up a neighbor's problem to me. (At least she says it is a neighbor's problem.)

"What do you think of a man who is not true to his wife, who confesses that he hasn't been, but explains that it was because she was wrapped up in the children that she didn't pay enough attention to him and he got interested in a woman who did. He says that that happens with lots of men, and that it is the woman's fault. What do you think?"

What a very familiar ring there is to the sentence before the last!

What was it great-great-great-great-grandfather Adam said about Eve and the apple?

Is it the woman's fault? What do I think?

When Eve Stuffed the Apple Down His Throat.

Was it Adam's fault when Eve (to hear him tell it) hit him over the head, knocked him unconscious and stuffed the apple down his throat?

It seems to me that the man who says that he got interested in other women because his wife was too interested in the children is doing some tall protective thinking.

I suspect that he discovered that because after the event took place, perhaps when he had gotten over the whole thing, was sick of it, saw himself more as he would appear to others and just had to have some justification to make him appear better in his own eyes—or if others knew about it, in theirs.

If He Wants His Own Respect.

Would it be a justification for a woman to be untrue to her husband because he stayed down town every day earning the children's living, and even now and then had to work evenings?

Hardly. And there often comes a time in married life when the woman's hours as guardian of the young are longer and more arduous than her husband's as provider of food and shelter. It seems to me that any decent reasonable man who means to be a good citizen and deserve his own respect would realize that, and while he might yield to temptation would not try to justify himself by that. I think I could forgive the yielding better than the justification (but perhaps not if I were his wife).

But That Does Not Excuse the Man.

Of course there are women whose devotion to their children and neglect of their husbands is more than necessary or reasonable (just as there are men whose devotion to their business is abnormal). One does not wonder that the husbands of such women get resentful and inclined to think "What difference does it make?" Women like that are foolish, but even so I do not think that justifies the revenge that men too often take, and I think any really self-respecting man will work out his problem some other way.

Water or Oil of Turpentine. Water is free and, consequently, manufacturers of Shoe Polish are tempted to make use of it as a solvent. The manufacturers of "NUGGET" realizing that water tends to rot the leather and the stitches, have resisted this temptation and continued to use Oil of Turpentine, which is the best solvent for high quality waxes.

Reports From the Salmon Pools

Following additional reports from the salmon pools covering the period July 15th, have been received by the Secretary of the Game and Fisheries Board:—

St. John's River—No rod fishermen reported.

St. John's River—Salmon entering river in good condition; no salmon yet.

St. John's River (lower)—9 rods, 27 salmon 4 to 12 lbs. each.

St. John's River (lower)—Net fishermen taken up nets as they got no salmon during previous week.

St. John's River, Main Arm, Bonne Bay—37 salmon 6 to 12 lbs. each.

St. John's River, French River—2 rods, 43 salmon averaging 6 lbs.

St. John's River, St. Barbe River—Salmon more plentiful than last year, 1 rod reported.

St. John's River—Salmon entered in weeks; nothing new.

St. John's River, Hall's Bay—3 rods, salmon 3 to 6 lbs. each; water getting low; salmon going over the falls every day now.

St. John's River, Botwood—Salmon going up; 2 rods, 5 salmon 8 to 12 lbs. each.

St. John's River, Gumbo—A few salmon going up; water falling; 1 rod 3 salmon 4 lbs. each and good catches in stream.

St. John's River—4 rods, 4 salmon 6 to 8 lbs. each; good sign salmon going up.

St. John's River, N.W. River, Trinity—Salmon very plentiful and water getting low; 4 rods, 5 salmon 3 to 5 lbs. each.

St. John's River—8 rods, 52 salmon 10 to 15 lbs. each.

Many Are Color-Blind

Color blindness is more prevalent among men than women, recent experiments indicate. Approximately five per cent of all men are unable to distinguish one or more colors, while only about one per cent of women are so affected. Near-sight has a bigger field of color discrimination than far-sight.

Well, we left dear Uncle Lucky sound asleep in his old armchair in the last story, didn't we? On and on he slept, for he was very tired, so by and by Little Miss Mouse called up Lady Love and told her not to expect him.

"Uncle Lucky won't be over this evening. He's sound asleep in his old armchair," said Lady Love to her bunny boy, and hopping over to the window, she looked up at the Twinkle Twinkle Star. All of a sudden Old Hooty Tooty Owl gave a mournful cry, and the next moment he sailed silently over the brambles tops.

"Dear, dear!" sighed the little rabbit's mother, "I hope Timmie Meadowmouse is on the lookout. Little mice must be very careful."

Just then from the Shady Forest a katydid began to rub together the two drum-heads on his wings. Three rubs at a time, sounding just like "Katy did, Katy did, Katy did." Then only two rubs, "She did! She didn't." Then again three rubs, "Yes, she did! No, she didn't. Yes, she did!"

In a few minutes from all the neighboring trees the katydids, one after another, began to sing, until the whole tribe filled the air with their music.

"I could stop them," said the little rabbit, hopping up to Lady Love, who was now sitting in the rocking chair, darning one of his socks.

"How?" asked his pretty bunny mother, with a smile.

"Just thump on the tree on which Katydid is sitting," answered the little rabbit; and out he hopped toward the Big Elm Tree from which a katydid was sending forth his drumming sounds. But, goodness me! Even before the bunny boy reached the tree, very quiet indeed. He folded his long green wings close to his body and clung tightly to his twig as down the evening breeze came a strange sound, "Peent! Peent!" That told all the little people of the Shady Forest that Neddie Nighthawk was near. The next minute with two or three quick beats of his wings, he dropped right among the trees close to Mr. Katydid. With a quick turn, this old nightbird again moused into the air, and so suddenly, that the wind rushing through his wing-feathers, made a roaring noise.

"Oh, dear me!" cried the little rabbit, hopping quickly back to the dear Old Bramble Patch, "I hope that old bird won't catch Mr. Katydid. I like to hear him sing. 'Katy did, Katy did.' No, she didn't, yes, she did," and the next minute the bunny boy was safe within the little white bungalow.

"What's the matter?" asked Lady Love, his pretty rabbit mother, looking up from her darning.

"What's the matter?" asked Lady Love, his pretty rabbit mother, looking up from her darning.

"Neddie Nighthawk is about," answered the little bunny, "I guess Mr. Katydid heard him, for he stopped singing before I had the chance to thump on the Big Chestnut Tree."

"Home's the safest place to stay. After you have played all day."

sang the tiny Cuckoo Bird from the porch of her little clock house on the wall. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Screen Version of "Babbitt"

LIVING PICTURE OF PROBLEM COMMON TO ALL PEOPLE.

America is made up of millions of "Babbitts." They are the backbone of the country; the practical schemers of commercial progress and civic development.

The home of a "Babbitt" is the middle-class home half the presidents, judges, artists and literati have come from, and it is no less a photoplay than the Warner Bros. latest picture, "Babbitt," as adapted from the great Sinclair Lewis novel of the same name, that will be shown at the Nickel Theatre, Monday.

Against a background of days that follow each other in a gray procession of drab, petty routine, Geo. F. Babbitt finds his wife and family a constant source of irritation, and his life a wearying burden that threatens to kill his soul.

The role of "Babbitt," as portrayed by Willard Louis on the screen, is a living picture of the problem common to all of us. Has romance a place in our lives? "Babbitt" is a hustling, prosperous real estate broker and a worthy citizen of Zenith, Ohio. A dutiful husband and father, he chafes under the ever-growing din of continuous quarrel and recrimination in his home, and longs to be free to taste the joys he dreams of in his heart.

Apart from the screening of this really excellent film, Miss Majorie Hutchings will be heard in new selections. This is a treat to the musical ear, and all who like to hear high class songs properly interpreted should not miss this on Monday.

CROP WEATHER.

Cool weather has been favorable for grain crops in the northwest. Black rust has shown very little development and no damage has occurred so far. Wheat, except in parts of South Dakota and western Minnesota, has a fine healthy condition. The crop is heavy on the ground but the straw is fairly short. As far as the northern boundary wheat is in blossom. In the southern district some has started to fill.

This is the first time in a number of years that there has been plenty of moisture throughout the northwest. No rains are needed for some time. Late reports indicate some improvement in barley and oats. These crops in South Dakota and the southern half of Minnesota suffered at first from drought and cool weather. The moisture later, combined with the cool weather, has been of considerable benefit.

Corn in South Dakota and Minnesota generally shows fine condition. In places some fields are weedy for lack of cultivation. This was caused by excess moisture in the ground. Corn in North Dakota and Montana probably will not amount to much. It is backward and fields have not been cultivated and are extremely weedy. However, this will be very valuable for fodder.

Flax is spotted and uneven. The crop on new breaking is in the best condition. On the old ground it is not so good, especially where there has been so much moisture. A considerable number of low places were broken this year for flax. This is weedy and has a yellow cast. The crop as a whole has a condition fully up to normal. Some flax is in bloom.

Portia Struck Point LaHaye

SHIP NOW SAFE AT ARGENTINA.

At 12:40 p.m. yesterday the Newfoundland Government Railway received a wire from Capt. Connors, at St. Mary's, which reads as follows:—"S.S. Portia struck Point LaHaye Thursday night, at 8:20 and came off at 10:15; tanks leaking No. 1 and 2; top leaking in No. 2 hold; pumps kept going; send diver to Salmonier, via Argentina."

As soon as the above message had been received, Capt. Dalton, Ship's Husband, made arrangements for Supt. Pollock, Marine Engineer, and Divers Smith and Baxstrom, to proceed by a special freight train for Argentina to ascertain the extent of the damage to the ship. After a quantity of cement and white lead had been placed on board, in case repairs were necessary, the party, including Capt. Dalton, went out at 8 p.m., and arrived at Argentina early this morning. At 4:30 yesterday afternoon a second message was received from Capt. Connors, reading as follows:—

"Ship O.K. re voyage to Argentina on coastwise. Advisable have diver at Argentina."

Nothing further was received until this morning when Capt. Connors sent a report stating that the ship was detained at Coffin Island all night on account of a dense fog, and at 8 a.m. the ship passed St. Bride's and expected to reach Argentina at noon. At 12:30 to-day a message to the Despatching Office stated the ship had arrived there at that hour, but no further particulars were received.

When the stranding occurred the Portia was proceeding direct from this port for St. Mary's, the first port of call. A fog alarm is at present being erected where the mishap occurred, and the Portia had on board material for its erection. This work was undertaken as a result of the frequently repeated demands of Hon. W. J. Walsh, the Minister of Agriculture & Mines.

Foundation Nearing Completion

Vickers and Company of Montreal, the erection of which will be under the company's supervision.

FRIDAY, July 10.
MORNING SESSION.

MR. HOWLEY (Continued)—Then, my Lord, the next item on the list is the conduct of the Plaintiff, the conduct of those who controlled the Plaintiff Company and because the Plaintiff Company say it was the conduct of the Plaintiff in regard to the matter in which the £1,000 that was paid by Mr. Reid and the £250, money payment, were dealt with. I submit that these money were not dealt with as they should have been dealt with, that they were appropriated by Messrs. Greenwood and MacDonald to their own purposes when they should, at least in the first instance, have gone into the treasury and accounts of the Trust Company. Then, my Lord, we come down to April, 1920, when the question of the settlement of the rate of remuneration in connection with the Gander Deal comes up, and what have we? On the 22nd of April we find that a discussion had taken place here in St. John's, amongst the Directors of the Reid Newfoundland Company, including Mr. Henry B. Thomson, who was also a Director of the Plaintiff Trust, we have a discussion as to the remuneration to be paid to the Trust in connection with the Gander. We have it in evidence that Mr. Thomson to the best of his remembrance thinks that that discussion arose because of a message from the Trust. That message is not before us, but I presume. . . .

MR. EMERSON—If it existed, why did you not produce it?
 MR. HOWLEY—I do not know whether it exists or not. We have not got it, my Lord, and apparently my learned friend has not got it either. They have not produced it. But, whatever be the fact with regard to that message, the only evidence we have of it is Mr. Thomson's statement that he thinks that there was a message. However, be that as it may, whether there was a message or whether there was not, it is evident that on the 22nd day of April, the Reid Company Directors, having decided that an allowance of five per cent. commission was a fair and reasonable allowance, telegraphed the Trust to that effect, and the Trust telegraphed back asking ten per cent. and at the same time or immediately after and during the period when the question as to what percentage was still under consideration by the Reid Newfoundland Company, MacDonald, the Managing Director in London, telegraphs to Thomson, his co-director in St. John's, who is, to MacDonald's knowledge, sitting on the Board of the Reid Newfoundland Company, enjoying the confidence of the Reid Newfoundland Company, and he telegraphs to Thomson with regard to this question of a commission to be allowed on the Gander transaction, and in that telegram he reminds Thomson of the fact that he is getting a share equally with himself (MacDonald) and Greenwood, in all moneys that come through the Newfoundland business. Now, what does it mean? Can it mean anything other than this? We rely upon you to see that we get ten per cent. instead of five per cent., and in case you forget it, I remind you that you are a partner and if we get ten per cent. instead of five per cent., when we divide the spoils afterwards into the three equal parts your share will be twice as much as it would have been if we have the figure originally suggested by the Reid Newfoundland Company. And Thomson sits at our Board and participates in our deliberations that lead up to the ultimate decision to allow then the ten per cent. . . .

MR. HOWLEY—When your Lordship comes to consider this—We have given evidence showing how we came by this message, how it was discovered the other day. It was found, as Mr. Conroy has told us, stowed away in an out-of-the-way file with which it had no connection in the world, and I submit, my Lord, that the best facts that we can draw your Lordship's attention to, to create an inference the other way and thereby rebut the inference that your Lordship has suggested, is this, that nobody on this side the case had the faintest knowledge that message or its contents or who would have used it when these witnesses were in the box in the first instance.
 MR. EMERSON—That does not mean that you did not have the knowledge when it arrived.
 MR. HOWLEY—Might I put this, that if Mr. Thomson had not gone back into that box and had not been re-examined on his recall with regard to the Gander and the Gander commission there would have been no opportunity whatever for me to have used that message, and I submit, my Lord, that the fact that no reference of any kind was made on the occasion of the cross-examination of Major MacDonald or Mr. Thomson to that message, the fact that we could not then anticipate that we would have been able to have engineered my learned friend into re-calling Thomson on the Gander, is the best proof that we can give leading to the inference that we had no knowledge, nobody associated with the defendant side of the case, either clients or solicitors or counsel, had no knowledge of any message until Mr. Conroy found it the other day.
 KENT, J.—How could it have got into your possession?
 MR. HOWLEY—We have no idea except—I did not advance this as a fact; I only advance this as a theory that has just occurred to me on the spur of the moment—your Lordship will recollect that at this time, from April to December, he was here in St. John's. He was not alone here in St. John's, but he was at the Reid Newfoundland Company's premises, and he had an office there and he acted as a director. This message, if your Lordship will look at it, is marked "Thomson, care Reid, St. John's," and therefore I presume would be delivered for Mr. Thomson at the office and in some way or other it may have been mislaid by Mr. Thomson, it may have been taken probably without Mr. Thomson's knowledge at all by some filing clerk and fled away. I admit, my Lord, the possibility of the position.

 KENT, J.—If your theory is correct I think Mr. Thomson would have been much more careful.
 MR. EMERSON—Not only that, but it is found on a file that did not start until two years after Mr. Thomson had left. It was a file of correspondence in connection with the rent claim, and that did not arise until two years later. The Russell & Arnolds file would begin two years after Mr. Thomson left.
 MR. HOWLEY—If my learned friend will remember what Mr. Conroy said, it was that it was found in Russell & Arnolds file. He said there were there the papers in connection with the rent claim that arose two years later, but he also said that Russell & Arnolds were his own particular solicitors in London, and there is no evidence, my Lord, to suggest that the Russell & Arnolds file commenced two years later than Mr. Thomson's visit here.
 KENT, J.—The only point is that Mr. Conroy said this file had been used.
 MR. HOWLEY—There is one point, that Mr. Conroy had gone through this file apparently and had taken from it some of the papers, but he also explained that at that time he had not seen this message, which was mixed up with some letters, and I admit, my Lord, the possibility of the inference which your Lordship has suggested.
 KENT, J.—Is it not a hard inference to draw? My idea is that Mr. Thomson sat at your Board and re-called the message when the message is in your possession and produced by you. I am just putting it to you.
 MR. HOWLEY—I presume when you say "hard inference" you mean—
 KENT, J.—It is difficult to draw.
 MR. HOWLEY—I do not know, my Lord, but of course when a man becomes immersed in a case he is likely to look at only one side of it. It does not seem to me, with all respect to your Lordship, that it is a hard inference to draw. At the same time I admit that the inference which your Lordship suggests is a possible inference. I would go so far as to say not altogether an unreasonable inference if there is nothing else to be considered in coming to a conclusion.
 MR. EMERSON—There is another thing, the fact that MacDonald wired to the Reid Company and said to the Reid Company, "We are wiring Thomson on the subject," and then this message is found in your possession. I do not see what other inference could be drawn.
 MR. HOWLEY—It seems to me, my Lord, that it is a much harder negative inference to draw the conclusion that we were aware of the contents of that message received under such circumstances and at such a time that we would have continued to do business with those people and continued to have displayed the confidence in them it is evident we did have in them up to a much later period. It seems to me, my Lord, that a great deal of matter of detail to the various heads of their departments, and that in matters of this sort Mr. Conroy was the driving power and the dominating figure all through, and it seems to me that the inference that this message was known to the other directors of the Reid Newfoundland Company at the time is a very difficult one to draw, because it means that Mr. Conroy at least—I will not for the moment say anybody else—that Conroy would have that state of affairs before him and continue the friendly and confidential relationships which existed between his Board and the Trust down to as late as the early summer of 1921. And my Lord, I submit that on a question of such moment, on a question involving so much with regard to the presence or absence of personal honour as apart from legal liability that the burden that prima facie is thrown on the Plaintiffs in a matter of this sort cannot be discharged by mere inference unless the inference is overwhelmingly conclusive.
 KENT, J.—I do not agree with that. The onus is on you.
 MR. HOWLEY—Dishonourable conduct as alleged by us, but not dishonourable conduct that the evidence has revealed. For instance, there is the suggestion of dishonourable conduct on our part with reference to the alleged conspiracy.

 KENT, J.—The onus is on the other side.
 MR. HOWLEY—But I submit, my Lord, that fortunately for us, we have been in a position to bring evidence to your Lordship's attention that completely disposes of the suggestion made in that respect. Now the Plaintiffs have brought no evidence to dispose of the prima facie guilt that is shown by this message; no attempt has been made to deal with it at all. And, my Lord, when your Lordship suggests that it is a hard inference to draw that the defendants were not aware at the time of the contents of this message, I, with all respect to your Lordship, take exception to that position from my viewpoint at any rate on the transaction standing alone, but when we survey the whole story and when we realize the attitude and the conduct of the Plaintiffs throughout the whole story, our conclusion with regard to this incident must of necessity be more or less affected by all that surrounds it, and that I submit, my Lord, that incident in April, 1920, when this Gander commission was being considered, is another chapter in the story of intrigue and deception which the Plaintiffs have perpetrated upon the defendants.
 The Fish Claim.
 Now, my Lord, the next step in the story is the settlement of the fish claim. Evidence has been given although it is not a question of any claim in this matter, that in 1919 prior to the formation of the Plaintiff company, the Messrs. Reid entrusted Mr. Greenwood with some negotiations for the settlement of a claim with regard to fish which they had against the British Government or some British authorities. Evidence has also been given to the effect that whatever work was done in connection with this matter extended down to the spring of 1921, and that the business of the negotiations was carried on from the Trust offices. In the spring of 1921 the claim was settled for a figure in the neighbourhood of $80,000, and Messrs. Reid received the $80,000 and paid a commission on that sum at the rate of ten per cent. by a cheque drawn by Mr. Reid in favour of Major MacDonald, and the evidence is that Mr. Reid did not make that cheque out. It was brought in to him for signature with Major MacDonald's name already inserted in it as the payee.
 MR. EMERSON—There is no such evidence.
 MR. HOWLEY—Excuse me. I am sorry, my Lord, to have to delay the matter, but while my learned friend is looking through the evidence I shall go on. The payment of the commission does not go into the accounts or cash books of the Trust as a Trust account and we are told by the Plaintiff's witnesses in explanation of this fact that it was a personal transaction of Greenwood's. Then, my Lord, you will recollect that there is some reference to this transaction in the correspondence between Mr. Jackson and

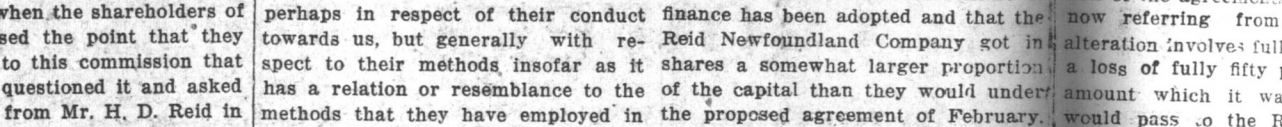

Mr. Conroy, and in that correspondence I think there is a reference to the fact that when the shareholders of the Trust raised the point that they were entitled to this commission that Mr. Thomson questioned it and asked if they had it from Mr. H. D. Reid in writing; hence the letter to Mr. Conroy asking for Mr. Reid's voice on it. But it is interesting to note that Mr. Thomson, who was a director of the Trust questioned the position that the Trust was entitled to this commission instead of Mr. Greenwood. I submit, my Lord, that it would have been more in keeping with his position had he questioned the right as to whether Mr. Greenwood was entitled to take it instead of the Trust. And that incident I submit, my Lord, is another incident to be considered in connection with the conduct of Messrs. Thomson, Greenwood and MacDonald as directors of the Trust, not so much perhaps in respect of their conduct towards us, but generally with respect to their methods insofar as it has a relation or resemblance to the methods that they have employed in the matters that they had to do directly with us.
 The next position after that, my Lord, I submit is the position created under the Blakstad Agreements of April 5, 1921. Now, my Lord, a great deal has been said and a great many questions have been asked with reference to this matter and with reference to the various documents that were signed on April 5th and I would like to try to make clear to your Lordship the position as it seems to me. Your Lordship will remember that in February, 1921, negotiations with Blakstad had reached the stage that a draft agreement had been prepared and sent out to Newfoundland, that under that draft agreement there was a provision for a payment by way of purchase to the Reid Newfoundland Company of a certain amount of money for their lands, and there was a further provision for a payment of a further sum of money to purchase outside lands, which it was contemplated should go into this agreement, and there was a letter from the English solicitors indicating that they had in their minds the idea that any agreement that would be made would be subject to ratification by the Board of Directors of the Reid Newfoundland Company. Now that agreement of February did not materialize, but in April, on the 5th of April, another agreement did reach the stage of being executed, and by Mr. Reid, on behalf of his companies, with Blakstad, there are a number of differences as has been pointed out here in the evidence. In the first place, the provision that funds should be found for the purchase of the outside lands is completely omitted. It is true that under this April agreement a revised scheme of finance has been adopted and that the Reid Newfoundland Company got in shares a somewhat larger proportion of the capital than they would under the proposed agreement of February, but the immediate consideration, the cash consideration, the certain (if I may use the term) consideration, had been very materially altered. In fact, I think, my Lord, but I speak subject services you have rendered at my request." The first point to which I would like to draw your Lordship's attention is this: What services were rendered by Messrs. Thomson, Greenwood and Macdonald to Blakstad up to this date? What was the nature of the services rendered and did the rendering of those services in any way interfere with or conflict with the services which they performed and the services which they owed to the Newfoundland Company? They, my Lord, at this time and in February did all through possessing the authority and the confidence of the Newfoundland Company, were negotiating with Blakstad. It is true that on both these occasions for a time a solicitor was acted for by Mr. Reid who acted for the Trust as well as for the Newfoundland Company, but the negotiations were the Trust and not the solicitor, and the agreement that was drafted in February was negotiated by the Trust, and the agreement that was signed in April was negotiated by the Trust, because, after all, laying aside for the moment the evidence of Mr. Reid to that effect, if the agreements of February and April were not negotiated by the Trust, then the work that the Trust was employed to do and the work for which the Trust was to be paid and the work for which the Trust now seeks to be paid was not done by them. I do not think your Lordship will have any question in your mind that the terms and the negotiation of terms with Blakstad in February and April were in the hands of the Trust as the authorised and trusted representatives of the Newfoundland Company, and that, although Mr. H. D. Reid was there on the spot himself as President of the Company he, relying entirely on the Trust and its Directors, left all these details to them to settle, and under these circumstances, my Lord, it occurs to me to suggest, and I think that the circumstances are such that I can without unfairness suggest, that the services rendered by these people to Blakstad and the services for which he was paying them with a million and a half dollars worth of stock are associated with the alteration in the contract of April of the terms of the proposed contract of February.

Now then, my Lord, No. 251 is the next document that suggests itself to me for consideration. That is "N.B.T. 60," and it is the letter from Thomson, Macdonald and Greenwood to Blakstad of April 15th, in which they say that in consideration of the transfer by Blakstad to them of a million and a half dollars worth of stock as agreed they promise to give him one-third of the debenture stock received from the Reid Newfoundland Company as and when received. Why did that letter become necessary? Did not the letter that Blakstad had written to them already define the consideration, and would it not appear, my Lord, that after the writing and receipt of that letter from Blakstad to the Directors of the Trust, something must have occurred which made it desirable to place on record some other or some additional consideration for the granting of this million and a half dollars in shares, and my Lord, would it not appear from the second paragraph of that letter, "For your information Mr. H. D. Reid had agreed on behalf of himself and the Reid Newfoundland Company to hand us ten per cent. of the net cash and debenture stock received by them as purchase price." Is it not a fair inference from that letter that at the time that letter was written Blakstad did not know that Reid was to pay them this percentage, and if Blakstad did know that, then I submit we come a step further and that is, that at the time that Blakstad wrote his letter promising to give them a million and a half dollars in stock there was no talk or no thought of their giving him a proportion of the percentage that Reid was to give them.

Then, my Lord, we come down to No. 253, which is "N.B.T. 61," and purports to be the letter written to Mr. Reid by Messrs. Macdonald, Greenwood and Thomson, giving copies of Blakstad's letter and of their letter to Blakstad, and asking for an acknowledgment of the receipt, and then we have No. 255, which is "H.B.T. 62" and this is Mr. Reid's acknowledgement of the receipt and the expression of his concurrence. Now, my Lord, we have had quite a distinct conflict of evidence with regard to the time and place and circumstances under which this letter was signed.

had the version of Major Macdonald on the one hand, and we have had the version of Mr. H. D. Reid on the other hand, and I do not see that there is very much to which we can draw your Lordship's attention that will be of any help in deciding whether or not the story of Major Macdonald is sustained or whether or not the story of Mr. Reid is the correct one, but if your Lordship should decide that the story of Mr. Reid is the correct story, I submit that that story brings home to this position, that although this letter and this concurrence in the participation of the Plaintiffs' Directors in the Blakstad shares is signed by Mr. Reid it was brought to him at such a time and dealt with in such circumstances that, as he says himself, he had neither the time nor the opportunity to give any thought to what the effect of it was.

Now, incidentally, my Lord, although Blakstad's undertaking to give these three gentlemen this proportion of stock is described in No. 250, "H.B.T. 59" as an undertaking in consideration of services that they had rendered, and although their letter "H.B.T. 60" gives a consideration other than services rendered for this stock, there is another point in connection with this matter which appears in the evidence. Your Lordship will remember that in the evidence of Mr. Blakstad reference was made to the fact that at the time that he discussed this point with Messrs. Greenwood, Thomson and Macdonald, or whichever of them were in London at the time, that the question of the controlling interest in that stock was mentioned and it forms one of the reasons for the suggestion that this stock should be assigned or agreed to be assigned. Now, my Lord, what was the effect of such a position? It was true that for the immediate present Blakstad was in control anyhow, but if the idea of the assignment of the stock to the Reid group or to assist in getting the Reid control, was the idea, why was not this agreement with regard to the transfer of the stock made to the Newfoundland Banking and Trust Corporation instead of to Messrs. Macdonald, Greenwood and Thomson, and I submit, my Lord, that the agreement that was made by Macdonald, Greenwood and Thomson with Blakstad with regard to that stock involved this position, that, namely, what the future of the Newfoundland Banking and Trust Corporation was, the day would come when Thomson, Macdonald and Greenwood were able to hold the scales between the Reid group and the Blakstad group, that they would be in a position on any policy affecting the future of the Humber development to be able to say to the Reid group on the one side or to the Blakstad group on the other side what their terms were for their concurrence, and that they would be able, if those terms were at all within the bounds of reason, to dictate their terms, and that they were able in any crisis or any eventually wherein the control of the stock by the one group or the other would be a matter of importance to command a price for their stock out of all proportion to its intrinsic value.

Now, my Lord, before I go on, will you permit me to draw your attention to the evidence of Mr. Reid and correct my learned friend in his interjection with regard to the payee of the cheque in connection with the fish claim. On Page 6 of the morning session of July 6th, in speaking of this transaction, Mr. Reid was asked:
"Q.—Ultimately, I think, it was set for £17,000—?"
"A.—I do not remember the exact figure."
"Q.—You do not remember the figure?"
"A.—No, it was about $80,000, in neighbourhood."
"Q.—That would be about £17,000. You, I think, drew a cheque for the ten per cent?"
"A.—I did?"
"Q.—Did you not?"
"A.—I gave a cheque?"
"Q.—You drew a cheque for the amount?"
"A.—They brought me in a cheque and I signed it."
"Q.—Do you remember to whom that cheque was payable?"
"A.—Payable to Major J. A. Macdonald."

I submit, my Lord, that that is exactly what I stated to your Lordship and the very reverse of what my friend stated when he interrupted.

Now, my Lord, a reference to No. 254, which is "H.B.T. 64" is interesting, I submit, as showing that in the minds of Messrs. Thomson, Macdonald and Greenwood at this time there must have been some thought as to the right or propriety of their action in making these agreements with Blakstad, and with a view to setting themselves right they call a meeting of the Directors of the Plaintiff Company on this same date, April 8th. Present, Major Macdonald, Mr. Greenwood and Mr. Thomson. "I would like to draw attention, my Lord, to the position that, although Mr. H. D. Reid was in London at that time and although he was nominally a director of the Trust, he was not at this meeting nor is there any evidence that he had any notice of it or knew anything about it. But at this meeting, after dealing with the Blakstad agreements with the Reid people they go on to say, "Following on the report of the Directors to the effect that the agreements were signed by Mr. R. Blakstad, Reid Newfoundland Products Corporation and Mr. H. D. Reid," the Chairman stated that Mr. Blakstad had invited Mr. Thomson, Mr. Greenwood and himself to assist in connection with the Newfoundland Products Corporation, Limited, debenture issue he had directed to be underwritten and issued and to advise and assist him in other ways. In consideration of doing this he had undertaken to transfer to them one and a half million dollars worth of Newfoundland Products Corporation shares, as and when he received them." Now, my Lord, I would like to draw your attention to the position that here is a third and a different consideration for this million and a half dollars worth of shares. You will remember, my Lord, that Blakstad in his letter states that the consideration is "the services that you have rendered at my request," and then comes the letter from these people to Blakstad agreeing to give him one-third of their personal commission "in consideration of the transfer to us" of the million and a half dollars worth of stock, and on the same day they have a meeting and the Chairman reports that Blakstad has invited them to assist in connection with the Newfoundland Products Corporation debenture issue that he has undertaken to have underwritten and issued and to assist him in other ways, in consideration of their doing this, he had undertaken to transfer to them, etc. Now here, my Lord, are three different grounds of consideration for this $1,500,000 worth of shares which Blakstad is to transfer to the Plaintiffs, three different, distinct and independent grounds of consideration, all stated in different forms on the same day, and a consideration of the position, my Lord, leads me to the point. What is the consideration for which Blakstad gives this million and a half dollars worth of shares? Is it either of the considerations that are expressed here at all, or is it something else? In other words, does not the frequency of the change in consideration that is made a matter of record by being put into writing, does not the change three different times of the consideration that they record as being the consideration that moves Blakstad to give them a million and a half dollars' worth of shares, does it not suggest that none of these things is the true consideration, that the assertion of one after the other of these considerations is a mere blind to cover up the true consideration? And that leads us to the question, what is the true consideration? I submit for your Lordship's consideration that, having regard to the February agreement and the April agreement and the difference in these agreements, and having regard to the various transactions between the Trust and the Reids in which, to say the least of it, in the least serious case a suspicion as to bona fides arises, and in the other case to which I shall refer your Lordship before I finish I say that the suspicion must thrust itself upon us and require from your Lordship careful thought before you come to a decision that the consideration which really operated to move Blakstad to part with a million and a half dollars worth of his stock was some sacrifice of the Reid interests by these people to Blakstad and his group. Then, my Lord, in that same Minute they go on and tell themselves of the ten per cent. agreement that they effected with Mr. Reid, and, my Lord, they wind up this Minute with the statement: "The Chairman pointed out that as Directors of the Company it was necessary that these points should be brought to the attention of the Trust and the facts recorded," and they bring it to the attention of the Trust by calling a meeting of the Directors, Major Macdonald, Mr. Greenwood and Mr. Thomson, and they bring to the attention of these directors the fact that these personal agreements for their personal benefit have been made with them; they bring it to their attention because they felt it necessary to bring it to their attention, and then they go on and they solemnly and seriously resolve "that a record of the Chairman's

"statements should be made in the Minutes and that the Trust occurred in the Chairman's statements that the remuneration for services to be rendered by the three above-named directors was in order."

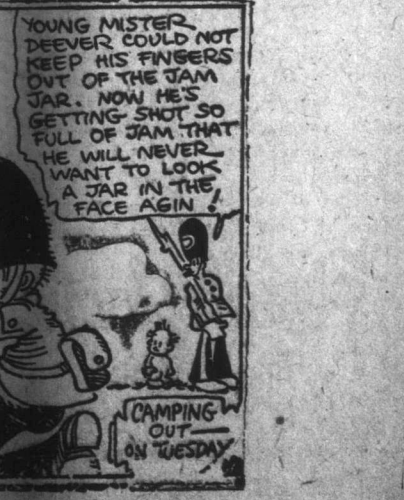

Now, my Lord, we then come down to the visit to St. John's of Blakstad and Greenwood in April, 1921, and in order to keep my story in proper chronological order I would like to point out to your Lordship the position with regard to the first visit of Blakstad and Greenwood to Montreal.

Your Lordship will find by a reference to Blakstad evidence that Mr. Blakstad and Mr. Greenwood left England on April sixth and came out to New York on the same boat that Mr. Reid came on, and according to Blakstad, at the request of Mr. Reid he and Greenwood went up to Montreal before coming to St. John's, for the purpose of interviewing the Bank and obtaining the assistance of the Bank in their efforts in approaching the Newfoundland Government for the guarantee and to inform them of the developments and ascertain the view of the Bank on the whole situation.

the book, and is marked "J.A.M.D. 337." "Dear Sir, Vincent, I greatly regret that I shall not have an opportunity of seeing you as I have to return to Newfoundland sailing on April 6th. I am able to report to you that negotiations have been consummated here. . . . I feel sure you will be most interested in the details. . . . and I would be glad if you would be good enough to make an appointment if possible to meet Mr. R. M. MacDonald, Major MacDonald and Mr. H. B. Thomson, who is over here from Newfoundland, and they will be pleased to give you all the information you may require concerning our arrangements." It is evident, my Lord, that at this time Mr. Reid was desirous of informing the Bank of Montreal as to the situation and as to developments, and it is also evident from this letter that prior to his leaving London he had advised that President of the Bank of Montreal, Sir Vincent Meredith, who was then in London, would be informed of the situation as soon as possible, and because of the fact that he could not get round to it himself he was paying the way to have his representatives, MacDonald and Thomson—the two MacDonald's and Thomson—see Sir Vincent and inform him of the situation, and that I submit, my Lord, is in itself corroboration of Mr. Reid's story that he did not ask Blakstad to see the Bank of Montreal in Montreal and that he did not know why Blakstad went to Montreal. I submit that it is corroboration of the story to this extent, that, having already made arrangements before he left London to have the Bank of Montreal informed of the situation by having his representatives interview the President in London, there was no necessity for him to ask Blakstad and Greenwood or anybody else to go up to Montreal and interview the subordinate officials—when I say "subordinate" I mean subordinate to the President—there. But, my Lord, that is not all. What is the rest of the story. On the trip to Newfoundland Blakstad and Greenwood rejoin Mr. Reid at North Sydney and they come to Port aux Basques and come across country and reach St. John's on the 10th of April. Now, my Lord, if Mr. Reid asked Blakstad and Greenwood to go to Montreal and interview the Bank and if after that interview with the Bank the party became reunited at North Sydney and travelled from North Sydney by way of Port aux Basques and the Newfoundland railway to St. John's, does it seem likely that Mr. Reid would have wired to London on the 20th of April, the day after his arrival in St. John's, No. 375, "J.A.M.D." Here is a cable dated the 20th of April, the day after his arrival here, from Mr. H. D. Reid to Camerosot, London. "All arrived yesterday. Have you interviewed Meredith Bank of Montreal, what are his views." (Adjournment to 2.30.)

Afternoon Session.

MR. HOWLEY—in a review of the story dealing with the conduct of the Plaintiffs in this matter, we had reached April 15th, 1921, just before recess, and I had directed somewhat from the main story to deal with Blakstad's story as to why he went to Montreal in the first instance, and now I come, my Lord, to the story of the conduct of Greenwood while he was in St. John's in April, 1921, and his conduct after he left St. John's.

You will remember, my Lord, that Blakstad and Greenwood arrived here on the 19th April, and they went to the Cochrane Hotel, and they stayed there during all the period of their visit, and on the 25th May, they left together. Now, before we commence to consider what occurred while they were in St. John's, I would like to refer back once more to the minute of the Plaintiff Company, No. 244, that is H.B.T. 67; and we have here a statement that:

"The Board considered it advisable that a director from London who was conversant with all the negotiations on this side should go over to Newfoundland immediately to direct the final negotiations there and to keep both sides in full accord, so as to avoid any delay in arriving at final conclusions, and especially in connection with the Humber area scheme. It was proposed and unanimously decided that Mr. W. H. Greenwood should proceed to Newfoundland on the 6th April next to act in this capacity. . . ."

And I submit that here we have, in what I might be allowed to term rather high flown language, a description of the nature and object of Greenwood's coming to Newfoundland on this occasion; and we must next consider the description which Blakstad gives of the part which Greenwood was supposed to play in the events following the visit to Newfoundland. Blakstad tells us that Greenwood came with him as a sort of private secretary, that it had been arranged that Greenwood was to do the talking, and I take this statement of Blakstad's, my Lord, a witness called by the Plaintiffs, and I say that this description of the role that Greenwood was to fulfill on his visit to Newfoundland, that this description corresponds with the conduct of Greenwood, a director of the Trust and the representative of the Trust, the agents of the Reid Newfoundland Company, while he was here in St. John's. Is it consistent with the Trust, or the Trust and its directors or its special representative, that he should have come here in the Spring of 1921 and play the part of a private secretary to Blakstad the man with whom we were contracting, or with whom we had contracted, and to play the part of a listener while Blakstad did all the talking; and I shall follow that up by asking your lordship to consider the evidence as to what Greenwood really did do while he was here; and I propose, my Lord, to argue that the conduct of Greenwood while he was here was the conduct of a man whose objects were to carry out the idea that Blakstad has stated in his evidence, and not the objects which are stated in the minute of the Trust directors' meeting; and, therefore it was the conduct of a man who was not discharging the duties that he owed to the Reid Newfoundland Company; and that his principals, the Trust, owed to the Reid Newfoundland Company; and that it is the conduct of a man utterly inconsistent with the duties that he owed to the Reid Newfoundland Company.

What is the evidence as to what happened here? The Defendants never met Greenwood apart from Blakstad, but on one occasion, and that occasion was either on the evening of April 29th, or the morning of April 29th, when Greenwood came into the office of R. G. Reid, and finding Reid and Conroy present handed to Reid the document that has been put in evidence by Mr. Conroy, that memorandum dated the 28th April, and then that was passed to Conroy by Reid, and he asked Greenwood what it had reference to, and what it meant. Greenwood referred him to Blakstad, and walked out. If there had been no other opportunity of a talk or a discussion with Greenwood, whether sought by the defendants, or unsought by the defendants, here at this particular stage when the Blakstad negotiations had reached that particular climax that apparently the main object of his visit to Newfoundland—the getting of the Government guarantee, had failed. Here was Greenwood in the office of R. G. Reid and in the presence of R. G. Reid and Conroy; and invited by Mr. Conroy to a discussion of the situation, because if Mr. Conroy's request as to what this document meant, and as to what it referred to, meant anything, it was an invitation.

To Greenwood to Talk About It, and to a discussion of the situation; and what does he do? He replies, referring Mr. Conroy to Mr. Blakstad, and walks out.

Then, my Lord, we come down to the account of the interviews on the 2nd May. In the afternoon of the 2nd May the Reid Newfoundland Co. had a meeting at the house of R. G. Reid. After that meeting, Conroy, and I think, Forbes, went to Greenwood and Blakstad; and Mr. Conroy handed to Greenwood the letter in which he told him that the negotiations were off, that the Reid Newfoundland Co. directors will not consent, will not approve or ratify the letter written by H. D. Reid granting the personal commission of ten per cent. and to Greenwood reads that letter and puts it in his pocket without comment, but that night and just prior to the second meeting of the Reid Newfoundland Co. directors at H. D. Reid's house, Blakstad, and Greenwood go there, and the discussion that took place has been narrated on the one hand by Blakstad and on the other hand by Conroy, and H. D.

Reid had the matter referred to him, and he has told us that more or less the story as told by Blakstad is correct; but on the other hand, immediately prior to that he has described how Blakstad was angry and excited; but whether we accept Conroy's version of the story or whether we accept Blakstad's version of it, or whether we decide that H. D. Reid's version of that meeting supports Conroy or supports Blakstad, one thing is evident from it all: that Greenwood took no part in the discussion, that the Greenwood did not by word or action indicate that the interests of the Reid Newfoundland Co. were the objects that occupied his mind. He came with Blakstad, he said nothing, and he went away with Blakstad, and during all the period that he was in St. John's he never by word or deed indicated an interest in the proposition that was under consideration, from the viewpoint of the interests of the Reid Newfoundland Co.; and he went away with Blakstad without attempting to have any communication with us, good, bad or indifferent; he packed his grips and walked out with Blakstad—and what did he do? They left here and went to Montreal the Bank, as is evidenced in the cash, and liquidate the indebtedness to the Bank; they told the Bank

What's happening in your mouth?

Nothing goes on in your mouth that your Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush doesn't know about. The inquisitive, saw-tooth-pointed bristles dig into every nook and cranny. Even the hard-to-get-at backs of back teeth are scrubbed clean by the large end tuft.

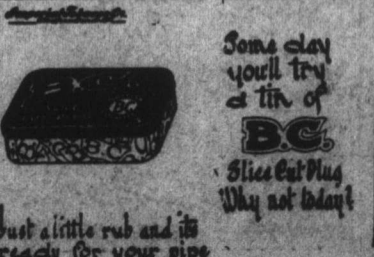

The Prophy-lactic is curious about the germ that makes teeth decay. It hunts him up and chases him out. That is what prevents decay and gives your teeth that look of beauty that comes with white, strong, and healthy teeth.

into accepting Blakstad's new proposal. That, I submit, is the only inference that can be placed on Blakstad's acts, and the same inference must be drawn—must extend to Mr. Greenwood because of his going to the Bank and acquiescing in the statements that Blakstad made to the Bank.

The next view of the situation which I would like to draw your attention to is the conduct of Greenwood and of the Trust, and of Greenwood, evidenced by documents that are in evidence. After Blakstad and Greenwood had visited the Bank in Montreal in 1921 these documents were sent to your lordship will permit me to refer to No. 313 W.H.G. 48. This is a message from the Trust to Greenwood of the 6th June 1921:

"You can assure Government if general legislation for guarantee is proposed subject to ratification of the proposal Blakstad definitely assured can obtain money for this year's development up to three million dollars. We can confirm this and also that we are prepared to assist raising the funds for sound scheme as outlined sound Blakstad's offer of a million dollars cash by installing to be agreed upon for five hundred thousand acres to be sold in West Coast water-power rights and shares. Proceeds to be used for further timber when needed stop payment same as first scheme stop Do provisional legislation as there is no here to find money for reasonable scheme. Here here preparedness required funds" and point out that where members of who were in closest number business were were in the witness never suggested by the Plaintiffs, and that the Plaintiffs to deny this statement, this message from Greenwood, and in so far as is here, it does nothing, nor is it anything but the fact obtainable," but he asks that Blakstad, the other party to the negotiations, the party with whom they are negotiating on behalf of their principals, the Reids, and he asks his partners in the Trust to have Blakstad cable him that the money is obtainable this year, regardless of the fact as to whether the money will be obtainable or not, and I submit that the whole tenor of this telegram goes to show that Greenwood and his associates in the Trust at this time were working, not for the Reid Nfd. Co. but for Blakstad and themselves.

HON. MR. JUSTICE KENT—There is reference there to a cable of June 2nd. Do you know what that is?

MR. HOWLEY—I think that they have it my Lord. It is evidently a telegram from the Trust to Greenwood, whether the original nor the copy has been discovered; and I do not know to what it refers; but I do not refer to it, I submit that the language of this telegram indicates that at that time Blakstad and the Trust were working together, and not working together in the interests of the Reid Nfd. Co.; and that, further than that, at this time Greenwood, a director of the Trust, and the representative of the Trust, asks him to have Blakstad cable to him, a certain statement of fact, regardless of whether it is a fact or not; and the only purpose that he could have had in getting that was for the purpose of trying to do some business with the Reid Nfd. Co.

Rum Runners Are Risking Lives

U.S. Officers Say Customs Men Will Fire On Canadian Boats.

Toronto, July 18. (C.P.)—The Globe to-day says: "Rum runners operating out of Port Colborne to the United States will be fired upon by coastguard vessels, if, when called upon to stop, they attempt to escape in American waters, the boundary line being 12 miles out from the Canadian shore of Lake Erie."

"Young Canadians who are being used by Buffalo whiskey smugglers to operate rum running vessels were officially put upon their guard, and admonished not to persist in the business, under the penalty of a fine of $5,000 and five years' imprisonment, and in addition run the risk of having their boats blown up, with loss of life."

"This warning was given after a visit to the city by Harry Smith, collector of customs for the port of Buffalo, who came, with other United States customs officers, to discuss the Port Colborne situation with J. A. Ayscarr, chief enforcement officer under the O.T.A. in this city."

"The United States customs officers want to do everything in a lawful and a regular way, but if men engaged in rum running persist in taking the risk they may lose their lives," he declared. "The coastguard vessels are equipped to shoot straight at long range, and once orders are given to fire upon rum runners these orders are to be carried out to the letter."

Report Chief Agent S.P.A. Week Ending, July 24th.

Attended to the landing of two carloads of cattle for the St. John's Abattoir Co. The cattle were taken to pasture immediately after landing. Also attended two sales of cattle. I would like very much for purchasers of sheep to take immediate delivery of them especially in this hot weather. The sheep beat themselves around very much in the sun. I was asked to go in on Waterford Bridge Road to put to death an old horse which had been a very faithful servant and the owner, sooner than have him put in to strange hands decided to have him put to death. Also another horse for the Orange Crush Co., which founder- ed from drinking too much water. Also a dog owned by a gentleman on Scott St. I also shot two other dogs owned by persons living in the West End of City. Am thankful to Veterinary Surgeon Smith for chloroform a setter dog owned by Mr. P. Cowan, Palks Hill. The Doctor who lived nearby thought it best to put the dog to death as it was injured in the head in some unaccountable way. I have a report from some gentlemen who are camping near Island Pond, off Topall Road of a dog owned by persons unknown, apparently tied or bound to something, which causes considerable barking. Up to the present they have not located it. I have been asked by Mr. Macklin, Macklin Place to offer a reward to any one giving information to the person or persons who burned his dogs side with pol-ash. I attended the horse show at the Orphanage grounds, where a large number of splendid trucks and driving harnesses and other horses were exhibited and I must say Dr. Furness Veterinary Surgeon deserves great praise in the manner the show was carried out, as well as Dr. Bishop and other judges. I hope it will be possible for owners of horses to offer a reward to their employees for the best kept horse to be given at the end of the year or at an annual event. This will greatly help the work of the S.P.A.

The Long Lane to Peace Facts

Intricate and prolonged diplomatic maneuvers must follow all discussions between Germany and the Allies before any fruitful result can emerge, thinks the Dublin Irish Statesman. Remembering the effect of such maneuvers on the hopes of a European settlement, this weekly thinks it anything but easy to preserve a spirit of optimism, yet it adds that this time a beginning is made on different and better lines. The proof of this, we are told, is that the Allies no longer frame their communications to Germany "in the tone of magistrates addressing a prisoner with a long criminal record," and also there is a glimmering recognition that all the arguments are not necessarily on one side. This gives a foundation, however frail, it is said upon which to build, and "the peoples at least are desirous that the bricks should be used to better purpose than to serve as ammunition in a diplomatic faction fight." It is further stated that there is reason to think that the saner diplomatists are coming to the same conclusion. If the security proposals, it is predicted, lead to a real exchange of views between France and Germany, as seems probable, there is a sporting chance that statesmen may learn what laymen have grasped long since, that the great mass of both nations wants to live at peace with its neighbors.

WEEKLY MEETING. Regatta Committee.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Regatta Committee was held last night with President Hancock in the chair. After the minutes of last meeting had been read and adopted, Treasurer Jeans read a letter from the C. C. C. Band, in which was enclosed a cheque for $45.88, proceeds of a band concert which was recently held at the Lakeside, to go towards defraying cost of improvements. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the bandmen. A letter was also received from the Blue Peter Boat Club, asking the Executive and Committee to attend the christening of the race boat, Blue Peter II, at the Lakeside, on Tuesday evening next. The invitation was accepted unanimously.

Mr. Gordon F. Pike was added to the Committee, and H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., to the list of Honorary Members. Treasurer Jeans reported a special donation of $20.00 from the Truckmen's Union. A vote of thanks was heartily accorded. The Treasurer also reported that the collection received to date amounted to $1,718.23. This amount is only about $300 over this time last year, and it was pointed out that in view of the additional expenses, a large sum is still required. Messrs. A. W. O'Reilly and J. Coffey volunteered to collect from the employees of the Railway.

Mr. Harold Hayward, on behalf of the Fidelity Club, submitted the names of Messrs. Aubrey White and R. Harvey, who will replace T. Chalker and J. Crosbie in the Blue Peter II. Amateur crew.

The following crews then entered:—

INTERMEDIATE
Blue Peter II—J. Hussey, cox; T. Chalker, (stroke); T. Whitten, G. Crosbie, C. James, H. Rogers, F. Whitten.

Star of the Sea—J. Nugent, cox; W. Nugent, (stroke); F. Garland, C. Rice, J. Brocklehurst, F. Aylward, J. Morgan.

SENIOR FOOTBALL.
Star of the Sea (Star) —cox; B. Hart, (stroke); L. Walsh, J. Squires, G. Kearney, W. Power, W. James.

TRADESMEN.

Star of the Sea—cox; B. Hart, (stroke); G. Hall, F. Crocker, T. McDonald, J. English, T. O'Toole.

The remaining crews must enter on Friday next when buoys will be drawn. After some discussion it was decided that three boxes be erected on Regatta Day on the grounds so that those who wish to contribute towards the improvements to the Lakeside may do so.

Like the Blue Peter Boat Club, the Star and C. C. C. Club were granted permission to have wheels of fortune after which the meeting adjourned.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

CITY . . . . . 5
CALCUTTA . . . . . 2

Last night's football match, played at St. George's Field, between a picked team from the Senior League against H.M.S. Calcutta, was brimful of good football and greatly enjoyed by the large number of spectators in attendance.

Although the City team snatched the honors by a score of 5 goals to 2, there is a doubt still existing as to whether they were entitled to a victory. According to a number of people who kept a close watch of the time in the second half, Calcutta had the game won by 2 goals to nil, at actual full time. Thirty-two minutes of play had passed and still no whistle, as against the schedule time kept by the referee. The game still went on and when the City's first goal was recorded the actual playing time, as taken from a stop watch, was 32 minutes and forty seconds to be exact.

Play continued despite the shouts from many people who were scanning their watches, that the time had expired, and when the City scored the equalizing goal there had been 36 minutes and twenty seconds of half time play. The final whistle blew fifty seconds later when the game was declared a draw. Owing to the game being a "who shall," the teams decided to play-off ten minutes each way, and it was in this period that the three goals were scored by the City team.

Before the play-off took place a large number of people left the field in disgust, many being of the opinion that the ship's team had been given a raw deal. The Calcutta's team had four changes in their line-up of the first game. Jones, their regular goalkeeper, being in harness; besides Warren, left full back, Goff, right half, and Mason, right wing, while Charlie Quick, Maddigan, Drower and J. Parsons, played for the City.

First Half.
The game opened up fast with Calcutta playing from the western goal, and saw both teams putting forth strenuous effort to land the first goal. The ball was transferred from end to end by the opposing forwards, with pretty combination play mixed up between, but the backs broke up attack after attack and frustrated any scoring. After several determined attempts had been made by the Navy, they were rewarded after 23 minutes' play when Fitzgerald, the centre-half, scored the opening goal. The period closed with the score standing, Calcutta 1; City 0.

Second Half

Upon resumption of play the City pressed hard to score the equalizer, and on several occasions the forwards managed to get inside of the backs, but Maine Jones in goal was found unbeatable. Honors then became evenly divided with the ball travelling fast up and down field, while the spectators were kept in a high state of excitement. However after eighteen minutes of play there were poor hopes for the city when Calcutta had waged another determined attack in the local stadium and saw Pavest beat Knight on a rebound for the second goal. The City team then bucked up and confined the ball to navy territory, and in the play which followed a free kick was awarded them inside the penalty area. In the scrimmage the city fought hard to drive the leather through but Jones allowed nothing to pass. The time was now gradually drawing to a close with things looking pretty blue for the city, as the referee's whistle was expected to blow at any minute to close the game. Play however continued, and the city forwards making a determined attack a scrimmage resulted and Young scored the first goal. In this play Jones was driven into the goal and sustained injuries to his knee, but he gamely stuck to his post. Four minutes later the city staged another attack when Quick scored the equalizer. A moment later the full time whistle sounded leaving the official score standing at 2 goals all.

Play-Off

In the first half of the play-off with the city playing from the eastern end Nolan availed of a good opportunity four minutes from the start, when he made a pretty run up the right wing, the ball was well placed to the centre to H. Phean who scored the third goal. The navy team went to pieces after this and the city had no trouble in beating the back division, with the result that no 4, was quickly scored by Young. The teams then changed round, with darkness setting, making it difficult to see the ball. The fifth and final goal of the match for the city was scored by Nolan. The game then concluded with the score standing City 5 goals, Calcutta 2.

OPENING EVENTS IN ENGLISH TRACK MEET WON BY FOREIGNERS.

LONDON, July 18.

Most of the glory in the opening events of the annual Amateur Athletics championships at Stamford Bridge yesterday went to visiting athletes, leaving only a small share for the entrants representing England and Scotland.

Four events were decided and of these only one, the four mile race, was captured by the British. The native champion, C. E. Blewitt, of Birchfield, won this race in 19 minutes 54 2-5 seconds.

Hungary took the hop-step and jump, which was won by the Magyar, E. Somfal, of Budapest, with a distance of 46 feet, 10 1/4 inches; Harold Osborne, the Illinois Olympic decathlon champion, was second, with 46 feet 9 1/4 inches, and J. Connor, of Belfast, Ireland, was third, 45 feet 4 1/4 inches.

Ireland won the discus throw in which P. J. Birmingham, of Dublin, hurled the flat for a distance of 138 feet 7 1/2 inches.

The United States took the honors in the weight putting contest, when H. H. Schwarze, of the Illinois Athletic Club, sent the 16-pound shot through the air for a distance of 47 feet 3 inches.

It was not such a blue day for British sport as it would seem on the first glance at the results. Inasmuch as several of the best athletes of Great Britain's younger generation are at present competing in the United States as members of the Oxford-Cambridge team.

In addition to the three field and one track event decided this afternoon, the preliminary and semi-final heats of four running events were held.

Loren Murchison, of the Newark A.C., and H. T. Evans, Jr., of the Illinois A.C., with two Britons, J. W. J. Rickel, South English champion, and G. M. Butler, quarter mile title holder, qualified in the 220 yards dash.

C. R. Griffith of Surrey, and N. J. McEachern, who won the 500 metres in the Tallinn games at Dublin in 1924, were the half mile heat winners.

George T. Stevenson and Ivan H. Riley, both of the Illinois A.C., qualified for the quarter mile flat and the quarter mile hurdles, respectively. In the latter event the British champion, F. J. Blackett, of the London Fire brigade, topped the tilters in 56 seconds, the fastest time ever made by a British athlete.

PROFESSIONALISM AND SPORT.
Whether we get the better of our competitors on the tennis court or running-path matters, we believe, not at all. Although we treated the games which all men play to-day, we did not invent the base spirit of professionalism, which, fostered by the thing called international sport, will in the end destroy sport itself. ### The Garlic Taste in Milk

American dairy interests recently appealed to the Department of Agriculture for a solution of the problem of preventing the garlic taste in milk from cows that have eaten garlic. Experts of the department determined that the only way is to keep the cows from the weed, in which they revel.

Chicherin and Lord Birkenhead

A CHINESE DIATRIBE.
The leading Bolsheviks in their spare moments are apt to boast to one another about the lies they have told the British Government, and the Soviet Foreign Minister, Chicherin, has almost surpassed himself in a speech which he has just made at Moscow.

In it he professed that Lord Birkenhead was looking for a pretext for war with the Bolsheviks, when he threatened to break off diplomatic relations with the Moscow "Junta of assassins," in view of their disloyalty and disregard for the agreement not to carry on hostile propaganda. Chicherin had the effrontery to suggest that if China is Bolshevized, British trade in China will improve. It is obvious that the British imports into China, which are over £20,000,000 in normal years, would vanish at once. The people of China would be reduced to the same unspeakable misery as the Russians under the Bolshevik tyranny.

SYMPATHY WITH CHINA.
Moscow.—In an interview published here, Chicherin, observing that the fierce campaign which is being carried on by part of the British and foreign Press against the Soviet Government in connection with the events in China has now received the quasi-official sanction in the recent declaration of the Secretary for India, Lord Birkenhead, says:

As Commissary for Foreign Affairs, I cannot pass over in silence this extraordinary declaration on the part of a member of a Government with which we are in normal relations. Lord Birkenhead appears to be aiming at breaking off diplomatic relations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and the next step can only be war. It is clear that Lord Birkenhead and his colleagues are merely looking for a pretext, the consequences of which cannot be foreseen.

Let everyone imagine the results of a diplomatic break between Soviet Russia and Great Britain. I have in view also the interests of England herself and of her toiling masses in particular.

Great Britain is interested in developing her trade with China. Speaking in the name of Russia I declare that we have done nothing which could damage the foreign trade of China with Great Britain. On the contrary, the creation of a new centralized democratic China, freed from foreign domination (which, in my opinion, is the best solution of the Chinese problem) will assist the development of Chinese trade with other countries particularly with Great Britain.

While I do not wish to conceal the fact that the Government and public opinion in this country sympathize with China in her struggle, this does not mean interference in the internal affairs of other States, and our policy is carefully to avoid anything that may be interpreted as interference.

On the other hand the Chinese people have never given Lord Birkenhead a "mandate" to make decisions for them as to how they should govern themselves.

Lord Birkenhead accuses the Soviet Government and its agents of aiming at the destruction of the British Empire and of supporting any movement directed against mankind in general.

I, for my part, have declared many times that we are willing to come to an agreement with any State that promotes the cause of world peace.—Router.

Vitamine X, the Giant-Maker

A Faculty member of the University of California, Dr. Herbert M. Evans, recently announced a development of glandular nutrition that, he claims, materially increases the size of animals inoculated with it. Doctor Evans says that this vitamine is found distributed in ordinary foods, but for inoculation it is taken from the pituitary gland of the animal that is to be inoculated. The gland yields a certain fluid, and this fluid is "Vitamine X." Animals treated with injections of the fluid—as guinea pigs, rats, and tadpoles—have grown so much larger than normal that Doctor Evans deems a single injection for a period of time instead of at infrequent intervals would produce a race of giants of their kind. Efforts are being made by Doctor Evans and his assistants to purify the Vitamine X fluid so that it even might be given to humans as a restorative.

Important Amendment TO MONTREAL MILK LAW.

(Montreal Herald, July 16.)

Notices were sent out this morning for a special meeting of the city council next Monday at which the pure milk by-law will be discussed and it is hoped finally and favorably disposed of. The matter was held up at last Monday's meeting because Aid, Desrosches wished to introduce an amendment, which he felt sure would strengthen the law and allow for no loop holes to evade the issue.

This amendment which will be incorporated in the main document stipulates that while special or natural milk must be taken from cows who have been subjected to the tuberculosis test all pasteurized milk must also come from animals who have been tested. This will assure purity at the fountain head.

In connection with the above by-law the Co-operative Union of Milk Dealers has sent a communication to the city relative to certain conditions, the main one being that all pasteurized, sterilized, and other kinds of milk come under the same head and be subjected to the same restrictions as natural milk.

Another important change will advance the application of the by-law by three months which means that it will be effective on May 1 next so as to harmonize with the license year and more important still guarantee a purer supply of milk all next summer instead of from the end of July or thereabouts.

Melting Steel by Wireless

Steel melting furnaces already have been made in England wherein the steel is melted by wireless waves, according to Prof. C. H. Desch of Sheffield University. These furnaces are a development of electrical high-frequency induction furnaces in which a 200-volt current was used. Professor Desch explains, the heat being generated in the metal, so that the metal really melts itself.

Recent tests by the U. S. Bureau of Standards show that blankets of moderate density keep the indoor sleeper warmer than those that are closely woven or dense; also that cotton blankets can be used over sheets to good advantage by all except those who, like campers, sleep where it is damp.

Cotton blankets were found to resist the passage of heat as effectively as wool.

Seaplane Sets Speed Record

A world's record for large seaplanes was made recently when the PN-9 skimmed over the Delaware River course at 128 miles an hour. The PN-9 is made of duralumin and when fully equipped and manned weighs 1800 pounds and carries five in crew. It is said to have a flying range of 22000 nautical miles.

Age of the Earth's Crust

The earth's crust is 1,000,000,000 years old, according to Prof. Alfred C. Lane of Tufts College. He bases his estimate on experiments he has conducted in the disintegration of radium into lead. It takes 1700 years, he says, for a given quality of radium to become half lead.
