LADY IRIS' MISTAKE; Hero of 'Surata'

CHAPTER XXXV.

"Yes, my darling, I have often thought of doing so," he replied.

"It must hang in the great gallery at Chandos, papa; and we will have in letters of gold underneath it, 'Isabel, Countess of Caledon,'—then I shall be more satisfied. Yes, and in the church in King's Forest we must have a memorial window, papa, and also a marble tablet, with these words, 'To the memory of Isabel, Countess of Caledon, by her only and loving child, Iris Fayne.' Will you see to that, papa?"

"I will do all you ask me, my darling child. It gives me untold happiness, Iris, to hear you speak so lovingly of your mother."

Her wishes were all carried out.

"Papa," said Lady Iris to her father one day, "you know that I shall never marry."

"I know you have said so, Iris; but I hope you will change your mind."

"No, never; and therefore I want to ask you this, papa. As I shall never have a wedding-ring of my own to wear, will you give me the one I saw in the drawer of your secrétaire? I know now it was mamma's. May I have it and wear it? It will remind me of all I have learned since I heard her story."

The earl assented; and one of the happiest moments of his life was when he put his wife's wedding-ring on his daughter's finger. He held the little white hand fondly in his own and touched the ring that shone on the slender fingers.

"This is a pretty ring," he said, pointing to one set with diamonds and rubies.

Ironized Yeast Will Ironize Your Nerves

To Produce Great Natural Nerve Strength, Yeast Should Be Ironized and Not Merely Mixed With Iron. There is Only One Ironized Yeast in the World.

Now, Mr. Man, lighten your fat and clamp your jaw tighter. Now still tighter. As tight as you can. Notice how weak is the tightest you can get? Vitamins and iron in your body made it possible for you to do these two things. If you had still more vitamins, ironized yeast would enable you to do it better.

Is He Run-Down, Exhausted? See That He Takes Ironized Yeast! more vitamins, ironized yeast, you could lighten your fat and your jaws almost as tight as a vice. Ironized Yeast will enable you to do it because ironized yeast combines concentrated vitamins with natural magnetic iron, in such strength that it gives amazing power to nerves and organs in half the usual time. It is the most powerful reconstructive in the world today for tired, exhausted men and women. It is not a mere mixture of yeast and iron. It is yeast ironized, which is a substance that is built up by nature. Each package contains vitamins which give you the natural food-strength they lack. They do not need stimulation; they need natural force. Here it is, ironized yeast! This will give you great blood power, great nerve power, an avalanche of energy, brain clearness, stronger muscles, firmer teeth, a clearer eye and memory—and you'll smile the smile of health and power. Ironized Yeast is sold at all drug stores, as is a package. Each package contains one tablet, each tablet is a tiny yeast-leavened wafer. Harold P. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Sales Agents. Try it. It will prove itself.

"Yes, Allan gave me that," she replied.

"And you wear it still?"

"Yes. I shall wear it always; it will be buried with me, papa."

"I hope he will give you another some day, Iris," said the earl. "You wrote and told him all, I suppose?"

"Yes; but I have had no answer to my letter. Of course I could not expect one. Even if he had written to me proposing a renewal of our engagement, I should probably, in the smart of my wounded pride, have rejected him again. I should have thought he had written out of pity."

"Pity!" repeated the earl. "What nonsense, my darling! You want no pity! I wonder he did not write."

Neither of them knew that Allan Osburn had set sail for India long before the letter was written. Owing to some mischance, it did not reach him; and Lady Iris believed that he was too angry ever to forgive her, and that this, the crowning act of her humiliation, had been thrown away upon him. In her letter to him she had written these words—

"If I had known this when you asked me to be your wife, I should have answered differently."

The writing of those words had been a blow to her pride; and, now that Allan had not responded to them, she wished that she had never indited them.

Lady Iris wrote to Lady Clifford, who was charmed at hearing from her, and replied most lovingly to her.

"When are you coming back to Chandos?" she asked. "I have some news that will astonish you. You remember Marie Bardon, of course, and how much we all liked her? When John brought home his wife, Lady Alice, struck by Marie's fine qualities, took a wonderful fancy to her, and would have her with her at Hyde Court. You cannot imagine how it has improved her. Well, my son Fulke has fallen in love with her, and has asked her to be his wife. Of all the wonderful things that could possibly happen, this seems to be the most wonderful. I think highly of my boy's choice. From all the world I would have chosen you for him, my sweet Iris, whom I have always loved. But I felt that you would never consider Fulke good enough. He was so vain in those days, poor boy; but now he has quite lost his conceit. Marie has done him a world of good, and we are very happy."

The Heir of Bayneham

Lady Hutton's Ward.

"I am half sorry I am," said Lady Hutton. "You will unfit yourself for your journey, Magdalen."

"I could not have left without seeing her," said the woman pleadingly. "Oh, Lady Hutton, can you not tell what it is to have your heart torn in two, as mine is. I must give up my husband or my child. He is in sorrow, in exile, and in want. She will have a home and a mother. I must go to him; he needs me most; yet death itself would be less bitter than leaving my child."

"Still," said Lady Hutton, "as you cannot have both, I think you are acting wisely. Hilda will have everything to make her happy with me."

"I know that, my lady," sobbed the woman. "I know it, or I would not leave her. I do not fear for her, but my heart aches for my little child. I shall feel the clasp of her arms round my neck; I shall feel her warm, soft lips on my face; I shall hear her voice and listen for her footsteps. My life will be empty and dark without her."

"Choose for yourself," said Lady Hutton quietly. "If you wish to alter our arrangements, there is time to do so."

"Do not torture me, my lady," cried the poor mother. "You know I must go to him. In lives such as mine, there comes no sorrow such as mine. Can you not understand what it is to look your last, perhaps, in life upon your own child?"

A quiver, as of sharp pain, crossed the lady's calm face for one instant.

"I can understand it," she replied gently; "and that is why I have brought Hilda here. Believe me, Magdalen, I shall act by her as though she were my own."

The woman made no reply. With every moment that passed her face seemed to grow whiter and her sorrow deeper; she clasped the child in her arms as though nothing but death could part them.

"My own child!" she murmured; "my own little child! I nursed her, loved her, cared for her. I would have shielded her with my life, and I am looking at her for the last time. Oh, my lady, change your plan. Say if I return I may claim her. How can I live without her? How can I die? What answer can I make the Great Judge when He asks me for my child?"

"You are only doing what you decided yourself was for the best," said Lady Hutton. "I cannot change my plans; they are founded on common sense. If for fifteen or twenty years I educate your daughter, and she becomes a refined and delicate lady, you would not surely wish to drag her down again to your level, remembering what that level is?"

"No," replied the woman, shuddering as with deadly fear, "anything rather than that."

"You are not the first," continued Lady Hutton, in her cold, passionless voice, "whose life has been wrecked at its outset; others have had the same troubles, perhaps even greater. Life is ended for you. The cloud that has fallen over it is a dark one—no light can penetrate it. Let your child live and be happy, as she never could be with you. Do you think after fifteen years spent as my daughter that it would be fair to ask her to return to such a home as yours? Would it not be cruel and unjust to be brave for her sake, Magdalen! You have yourself decided where your duty lies."

"I know," said the poor mother plaintively, "one way or another my heart must break."

"You fancy so," said Lady Hutton; "one can hear much, yet live on. Hilda will be happy and well cared for. If she lives she will grow up a beautiful, accomplished lady. She will be my ward and my heiress; she will have wealth and position; she will marry well, and live honored and esteemed. Yet you would have her exchange all this for poverty and shame."

"But, my lady," said the woman, "he may alter, he may repent, and then—"

"Hush," said Lady Hutton; "I believe it is easier to change the leopard's spots than to reform a really bad man."

For cooking, just add water

CARNATION MILK is much richer than whole milk because part of the water has been taken away by evaporation. For cooking, therefore, add an equal part of water to the Carnation you use and you will have milk of normal richness. If you want thinner milk, all you have to do is increase the amount of water. Use Carnation just as it comes from the container, or slightly diluted, for creaming coffee, fruits and cereals. Buy Carnation Milk regularly from your grocer. It is economical, convenient and absolutely pure. Send today for the Carnation Cook Book. Try this recipe.

CREAM WHITE SAUCE

(For creaming vegetables)

2 tablespoonfuls flour, 1/3 cup Carnation Milk, 2 tablespoonfuls butter or substitute, 1/4 teaspoonful salt, 2/3 cup water. Melt butter or butter substitute, add flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Add the milk diluted with the water and cook about five minutes or until mixture thickens, then add seasonings. This recipe makes two cups. All vegetables may be creamed. The vegetables should be cooked by either boiling or steaming. After cooking with salt, drain and add cream sauce.

Eating Arsenic.

Several years ago, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, a farmer cleared some new ground for pasture. Noticing that his cattle became sick and one of them died, he had the water from a spring in the field analyzed, and it was found to contain arsenic. The discovery resulted in the development of an arsenic mining and refining plant.

This plant, at the little town of Brinton, is the only one in the world devoted solely to the production of arsenic. Other refineries produce it as a by-product in refining silver, antimony, and other ores.

Pure arsenic is a steel-gray metallic substance, but the poison is better known in the form of an oxide, the white arsenic usually produced by the refineries. At Brinton ore is found running in small veins through a gray mica quartz formation.

When taken from the mine, it is put through a crusher and then placed in an iron tube known as a calciner. Here, for 45 minutes, it is subjected to a heat of 8000 degrees Fahrenheit. The resulting gases deposit arsenic in the form of an oxide on to "baffle" plates in a six 219 feet long. The deposit is a dirty gray powder full of impurities. It is placed in a refining furnace, and eventually the pure oxide is ground to a powder and placed in barrels with an automatic machine after which it is ready for shipment.

The arsenic has no ill effects upon the workers in the mine. On the contrary, they are said to benefit by contact with it. Though it is poisonous both in the metallic state and in most Seeing.

The lenses of the eye produce on the retina an inverted image of objects looked at, and the question is often asked "Why do things appear right-side up again when their images are wrong-side up?"

It occurred to one investigator to try the effect of preventing the inversion of images on the retina. This was accomplished by means of an optical instrument that excluded from the eyes all light except that which passed through the instrument itself. The instrument was adjusted to the eyes at 3 o'clock one afternoon and was not removed (except at night when the eyes were bandaged) until noon the next day. At first, to the person whose eyes were thus treated, everything seemed topsy-turvy and illusory, and the mind instinctively tried to imagine objects to be in the position in which they ordinarily appear. After a time, however, the feeling of the unreality of what was seen passed away, and the person experimented on even began to imagine everything that lay outside his field of vision to be arranged in the same way as what he saw. This goes to show that habit and experience counteract the effect of the inversion of images in the eyes. —Washington Star.

Why Scotchmen Drink Whisky.

"WILL NEVER GO DRY."

Madame Sarah Grand has discovered why Scotchmen drink whisky. It is to enable them to withstand the rigours of their climate.

The distinguished authoress of the "Heavenly Twins," who has consented to act as Mayorress of the City of Bath, expressed, in an interview, her delight that she was to be Mayorress "of the most beautiful city in the whole country," giving it the palm over Edinburgh. "Bath is a fairy city," she said, "I have lived in Edinburgh, and the winters there are very severe."

"When I first went to Scotland I could not understand why all the hoardings were covered with advertisements of umbrellas. I knew before I came away. There is no fear of Scotland going dry. The drink of a country is largely regulated by its climate; so in Scotland they drink whisky—perhaps, sometimes, a little too much. Here towards the South the popular fancy runs to light wines.

Madame Grand has fears for the future of Scotland. "They are," she said, "a very hardy race, but I am sorry to hear they are giving up oatmeal and taking to tea and bread and butter."

Conservatives Have Handsome Majority.

No Doubt of Bonar Law's Phenomenal Success -- Cousin of Sultan Elected to Caliphate.

CONSERVATIVES HAVE MAJORITY OF 77 OVER ALL.

LONDON, Nov. 19. The final summary of the British election shows the Conservatives with three hundred and forty-six seats, Labor one hundred and seven, Liberals sixty-two, George's party eight, and others seven.

SULTAN'S COUSIN SUCCEEDS HIM.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 19. Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi, cousin of Sultan Mohammed VI, was elected Caliph by the Great National Assembly of Turkey on Saturday. He will probably be the seat of Caliphate until the foreign occupation of Constantinople ceases. Abdul Medjid Effendi was born in 1868.

THE PRESS EXULTS.

LONDON, Nov. 19. The Daily Herald, exulting over Labor gains, anticipates another election within eighteen months, and says "if in the meantime we play our cards boldly and skillfully, we ought to have a Labor Government without doubt." Other papers glory in the downfall of Coalition, not only Conservative organs as might be expected but the Liberal press as well finds satisfaction in Party Government.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

IN DEFENCE OF DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

A daughter is a daughter through out her whole life, a son's a son till he gets him a wife." That is a familiar proverb. Mothers of married sons like to quote it with a touch of self-pity in their voices.

In a way I don't blame them. And in another way I do. That is some of them.

For many of them have the idea that it is the daughter-in-law's fault that the married son is so much a stranger to them. And while this is sometimes true, I know of many cases where the daughter-in-law, instead of trying to estrange her husband from his mother, is the main motive force that makes him keep in touch with her as much as he does.

husband does not pay her as much attention as she would like.

The Real Reason.

Men are individualists, when they get families of their own their attention is centered there and it is hard for them to turn it elsewhere. Moreover men have less patience and tenderness for old age than women, and are less sensible to the importance of small attentions in the life of a shut-in than women. And these are some of the reasons why "a daughter is a daughter throughout her whole life and a son's a son till he gets him a wife."

Daughters-in-law sometimes are another reason, but not half so often as mothers-in-law think.

Dr. Saleeby's Assault.

QUEBEC PREMIER REPLIES TO BRITISH PROHIBITIONISTS ATTACK.

Familiar Passages.

Isn't that true? "John, you know you ought to write your mother."

"John, your mother telephoned today and she says you haven't called her up for two weeks. You simply must call her up."

"John, I think we ought to take the children and drive out to your mother's this afternoon. You don't feel like it? That's what you always say. And it's a month since we've been there."

Aren't those familiar passages in many a home that you know,—or perhaps live in?

Of course they are. And who is it that reminds hubby when his mother's birthday comes around and sees that he sends her flowers on Mother's Day, and wears herself out shopping and sewing and planning so that not only his mother but his father and aunts and sisters and brothers and nieces and nephews shall get the presents they want at Christmas time?

Who but that same wife.

When It's Really His Wife.

And then the mother proudly tells everyone "how thoughtful my son is." That, I suppose is as it should be. Most of the savor would be taken from her pleasure in her son's visit if she knew it wasn't made of his own initiative, but with wife pushing him. The wife would be giving little if she weren't willing to give from behind the scenes.

But it does seem rather too bad that the mother should hold resentment against the wife for the fact that the Premier Taschereau came to the defence of Quebec and its liquor policy some time ago when this province was unduly and severely criticised by Rev. Dr. Saleeby, a prohibitionist from Great Britain, who has been delivering addresses in different cities in Canada. Now Dr. Saleeby is entitled to preach Prohibition in season and out, for in that he believes, but in his criticism he should be sure of the facts. In this respect he has not been fair to Quebec, perhaps unwittingly. He spoke as if Quebec were the most intemperate place in Canada if not in all America. To this charge Premier Taschereau rightly took exception and gave facts and figures in proof. The Premier quoted statistics from the Montreal courts, and from Chief of Police Belanger's reports to show that under the present liquor system there is less crime in Montreal than there was under the old order that succeeded the open bar and the free sale by bottle in grocery stores. There has been improvement in this province and in Montreal particularly as regards the consumption of liquor. A person can walk the streets of Montreal for days and days and never see a drunken man. This is true of night as well as day, and is remarkable and noteworthy in an ocean port to which thousands of persons gravitate weekly. The average run of men who wish to take a drink or several daily or at periods is as a rule satisfied with the beer that is on sale in the taverns by the glass or in the groceries by the bottle. Beer satisfies most men who desire to consume alcoholic beverages and the exceptions who must have whiskey buy the genuine article in the well regulated shops of the liquor commission. The beverages on sale there are guaranteed pure and they do not even in the rare cases in which they are abused to drive the consumer crazy as do the potions of moonshine that are sold in the so-called dry provinces. Quebec is and always was a remarkably sober province. The people who constitute the majority of the inhabitants are industrious, saving and respectable of life, and if they do on occasion take a little drop for the sake of comfort or jollification, they are not carried away. They are truly temperate people and are not tempted to drunkenness by the presence of a few liquor commission shops.

The Quebec system is open and not hypocritical and tends to prevent bootlegging and moonshining, which are prevalent in great degree in the other provinces. Any traveller will so inform Rev. Dr. Saleeby, and as he is going to visit all parts of Canada he will be in a position to see for himself. Let him read the newspaper wherever he goes and he will be surprised man if he really thinks that there is genuine prohibition in any one province of Canada. Any man or woman may purchase a bottle of whiskey legally with a little bit of formality in any province, or he or she may go and get liquor by the glass in hotels or blind pigs, if they care to venture into such places after the freewheel that is sold therein. There are hundreds of arrests for drunkenness in the cities of the so-called dry provinces and there is violent crime in them almost daily. Everyone knows that, and it is a fact that in some places the jails are overcrowded just as though whiskey were on sale openly at every corner. Relatively there is no more crime in this province than elsewhere, although here we have the greatest and most cosmopolitan city in the Dominion. Premier Taschereau is convinced that the Quebec liquor system is the best in an imperfect world. It is a system which finds favor with the majority of the inhabitants, and that means that it is as successful as any measure can be. It is what the people want, and they do not bother about what outsiders may think in the circumstances.—The Review.

FISHERMEN

Reject Merchants Offer

WILL NOT ACCEPT $4.30 FOR LABRADOR.

Sir John C. Crosbie Addresses Meeting.

A mass meeting of fishermen was held in the Greenhall on Saturday night for the purpose of receiving the report of the Committee of the United Fishermen's Movement. Capt. Jesse Winsor presided and after a few preliminary remarks announced that as a result of a conference with a number of fish exporters they were offered $4.30 for Labrador, and $5.10 and $6 for Shore fish. He said that as was already known the Export Tax had been removed and it was now up to the fishermen to say if they would accept the offer or still hold back. Since the movement started the prices of fish had been forced upwards by at least 60 cents per quintal but even with this increase he felt that it was impossible to make both ends meet. Their movement was being endorsed all over the country and messages of encouragement to this effect were being received. He felt sure that all Newfoundland was behind them in the fight. Capt. Winsor then called upon Mr. A. B. Morine to address the meeting.

SPLENDID RESULTS.

Mr. Morine was given an enthusiastic reception. He pointed out that the outstanding feature of the movement was the fact that it had spread so rapidly throughout the country without any effort on the part of the Committee. From Carbonear, Twillingate, Trinity Bay, and the West Coast comes word that meetings are being held, and on Monday night several of the delegates would be addressing the mass meeting at Carbonear. Again, when the movement first started, Labrador fish had been sold for $3.70 per quintal, with $2.50 being offered in some quarters, yet to-day, the merchants had offered $4.30. He had been told that the markets show no great improvement over three weeks ago, so that the success was great indeed. He did not want to say what they should do now regarding the disposal of their fish, as he was not acquainted enough with fish prices to say what they should accept, that was plainly a matter for themselves, and he believed they knew what was best, and again it was their own risk, and they were taking their own chances. The results of their movement to date then had been splendid, and it is apparent that it would in short be as wide as the Island itself, as on the matter of taxation, every man, woman and child was interested. An attempt had been made to make this movement appear to be one of party politics, but while it is a political movement in the broad sense of the word, in that it has to do with public expenditure, and the price of the necessities of life, when it was started Union men, non-Union men, and every other kind of men assembled under the one banner. When it sprung from the hearts of the fishermen and from their own intelligence which told them that all was not right it was a political move. Those who say and claim that he is using the fishermen for his own ends, are striking at the fishermen and are their worst enemies, and are endeavouring to inflict defeat upon their fight for a living in their own country. How anyone could be so vile and low down as to injure a movement that was started to give bread and butter to the women and children of those who are seeking reduction in taxation and higher prices for their fish, he could not understand. Why could they not for once forget Morine and remember the fishermen.

OPONENTS OF THE FISHERMEN.

The Advocate said, he was peeved because he was not present at the interviews which the delegates had with the merchants. It was true that he had kept back on all occasions except when he was asked by the chairman to attend. It was all the same to the Advocate, if he went with them, it was Morine in politics, and if he was not present, it was "Morine was peeved." The Free Lance, whatever that was, also says it was a Morine movement, when they know they are telling a falsehood. It was low, dirty politics written by a bunch of hangers on, who have soft jobs, and are always to be seen hanging around the parliament house and Government offices. They are a bunch who, no matter what party is in power, are ready to solicit patronage and take money from the public chest. One of these papers, said Mr. Morine, received $50,000 from the public chest last year for printing, and it would have been well paid at $10,000. They are prepared to go to any length, to kill this movement because they see their doom is sealed. In dealing with the matter of taxation Mr. Morine spoke of the tremendous waste that is going on in every branch of the public service, and how it could be abolished and yet have the public services conducted with the same benefits as now exist. In the matter of the public institutions, etc., a greedy crowd of needy politicians were receiving patronage and double prices were being paid for everything that was needed. Unnecessary marine works were being conducted and on these thousands of dollars were being squandered.

PEOPLE AWAKENING.

The people, however, are awakening to the fact, and are demanding a change from this squandering and the burdensome taxation that is being carried on. A new course and a new chart, a new man at the helm, is what the country is asking and that is why a lot of those who try to injure the fishermen are sore. They hear the words of intelligence, awakening along the line, and see the light of a new day dawning. It's for you, the fishermen, to bring about the necessary reforms.

Spread the gospel throughout the length and breadth of the land, the new gospel of clean living, less expenditure, and honesty in public life. Offices that are not needed must be abolished, and those who are filling offices must do the work they are being paid for, while those who are not being paid for the work they are doing must be given a square deal. Every useless man is stealing the money from the tax-payers. It will be the duty of the next Government to see that a commission be appointed to go into this matter of the civil service. Everybody must be made a producer, a job for everyone must be found. Mr. Morine did not despair of the future, he believed that the country could be rescued from the present intolerable position. The fishermen are as productive as ever, the men are here to catch the fish, but it must be made profitable for them to catch it. The trouble to-day is the fisherman is unable to live by the fishery.

FOR REDUCED TAXATION.

The Chairman in opening the meeting for general discussion said they were "hanging 'er down" for higher prices for fish, and they intended "hanging 'er down" for reduction in taxation. The movement started at Wesleyville was going to continue, as it was for their liberty they were fighting.

Mr. Peter Roberts said that neither he nor anyone else was satisfied with conditions as they are to-day. Politics had nothing to do with the present movement. The fishermen had been compelled to take action on their own account as otherwise they would only have to lie down and die. He would travel from Cape Frels to Channal to spread this new gospel of honesty in our public life and a living for our countrymen. What we needed now was common sense, and three good men with common sense could run this whole country. The fishermen were deserving of better treatment, and the people of this country were going to see that they got it, otherwise the country was no place to live in. It was better for all concerned to get out while the going was good. He had a schooner, that was worth $1500, but $500 would take her to-day, because with taxation as it is, prosecuting the fishery next season was out of the question. He never talked before, but people who never said a word were talking now. It was immediate action that was needed, and he for one was going to stand to his guns, and see this matter to the end.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY SHOULD MEET.

Mr. Frank Greene in a brief speech outlined his impressions received from the Committee's meetings with the merchants. He wanted the House to meet early so that a reduction of taxation could be put into force in order that the fishery may be prosecuted next spring. They were unfortunate in that while the fishermen who had sold their fish on the Labrador got as high as $5.20 for it, those of the north side of Bonavista Bay have had to come here and were offered $4.00 and now $4.30. He did not expect $15.00 or $16.00 as in the war year. It was reasonable to expect that like all commodities fish had to come down, but he did want to see it so that the fisherman could live on the result of his toil. At present it is impossible for him to pay his account and get supplies for his family for the winter without going in debt. Taxation must be reduced and while it will mean sacrifice, all must be prepared to make that sacrifice.

WILL NOT STAND FOR MISREPRESENTATION.

Mr. Stewart Winsor, who followed, referred to the attack made on the fishermen by a paper called the "Free Lance." He said it would be a disgrace if they did not stop abusing the fishermen in their fight for fair play. This movement was started by them and they were going to see it through. It is said that John Wesley turned the world upside down. A man was needed now to turn this country upside down and make it better to live in. He did not want to go anywhere else to seek a livelihood, yet thousands of young men were compelled to find employment on the American continent because they could not exist here. He and his fellow fishermen had been insulted by Dr. Modest because they were patriotic enough to make an attempt to better conditions in their homeland. He would, like Captain Roberts, travel the island north from Cape Frels to Channal and speak on every platform to see this movement to a successful conclusion.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE APPLAUDED.

Sir John Crosbie standing in the doorway was seen by the Chairman who invited him on to the platform. Sir John accepted the invitation and on moving through the crowd was given an ovation which fairly shook the building. Sir John had to wait several minutes for the applause to subside. In his opening remarks he stated that there was no doubt but that he would be accused of being a politician and of talking politics to the United Fishermen. He did not care what was thought. He was a politician. Having been invited to speak he was going to talk politics. The men here fighting for their rights as British citizens and as in times passed to secure those rights they had to fight it through politics and politicians. Any citizen who was convinced that their cause was right and just should be behind this movement. In his judgment their cause was perfectly just and they were working for the uplift of themselves, their families, and the Colony.

What interested the men most was the price of fish. Fish at $4.00 and $6.00 some years ago was considered a fair and reasonable price, but to-day every person knew that the fishermen could not exist on that price. And why? Simply because the cost of living was too high. In years past living expenses were at a margin low enough for the fisherman to support his family on his catch, and in many cases have some to spare. To-day this is impossible. What has warmed their hearts is the fact that the cost of living is so high. He said expenditure—squandering in Government circles, which brought in its train taxation. This "Reform" Government who promised to reduce taxation squandered so much that loans had to be resorted to and to pay the huge interest on these loans taxation had to be increased. Taxation impossible for fishermen to bear. This Government were not warm in their seats in the Assembly before a twenty-five per cent. Sur Tax, ten per cent. Super Tax and five per cent. Sales Tax went on every article the fishermen buy. With this tax it makes your average duty so high that you cannot live on the price of fish. What is the remedy? Reduction of these iniquitous taxes. He wanted this country to prosper, he wanted his boys to live in this country with the boys of the men sitting before him, and to make that possible it was absolutely necessary to cut out first, the useless expenditure indulged in by the Government, and so make it possible to remove the obnoxious taxation that is now forcing the best blood of the country to seek a livelihood on foreign soils. He could get along all right, in fact, he would not starve. He was sometimes spoken of as a man possessed of wealth, he was speaking to-night because he was interested in the men who made it possible for him to make his money, the most of which he had made from the produce of men like those before him. With the prospect therefore of being called a politician staring him in the face, he was behind the movement of the United Fishermen to the last ditch, and to prove that he was sincere and was going to fight hard to turn out the men from the Government who brought about the present conditions of the people he would not only oppose the Government and go to a District, but would go to any District that it would be thought advisable, and where it was thought his services would be most valuable and further he would there and then offer to go to Bonavista and help out from public life the Hon. "Bill" Coaker. Mr. Coaker said the other day before he could not do anything against the Government's interests in the consideration of your interests. He forgot all about your interests, he could not do anything that would jeopardize the interest of his Government, but your trouble could go to Hong Kong. This is the man who said he was going to revolutionize the Marine and Fisheries Department in your interests, but when asked to take a hand to help you out he completely turns you down and refuses to come up to your assistance, and his only excuse is that you are meddling with politics. Mr. Coaker's duty is to look out for the fisheries. It is the mainstay of the country and when the fisheries go down everything goes down with it. It would be fair to think that he would be the first man to step into the fight for you. Neither his Government nor any Governments have done enough for the fisheries. It appears Mr. Coaker is more occupied with plans to forward the interests of the Humber Deal than he is to forward the interests of the fisheries, but no Humber Deal can compare with the fisheries. There is plenty of money to be found, even millions, to guarantee the interests of capitalists, but when it comes to developing the interests of the fishermen Mr. Coaker takes a back seat and says you are playing politics. What hypocrisy!

THE HUMBER DEAL.

Why doesn't he awake to the interests of the best blood of Newfoundland instead of talking of Humber Deals to suit a few whose interests are bound up therein. He didn't know what the Humber proposition was yet. He had not had the details explained but when the proper time came he would declare himself on that measure. He regretted that Mr. Coaker did not use his position to better advantage than he was doing. He did try to enforce what was termed fishery regulations, but in that enforcement he (Sir John) was absolutely against the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He was accused and that accusation was just. He tried in every way possible to convince Mr. Coaker that he was wrong and he regretted his advice had not been taken. He stood in the Assembly and was prepared to strive in every way possible to block their passage but he stood alone, and if support had come to him at that time and his advice taken this country and you men would not be in the deplorable mess that both country and yourselves are in to-day. There was some reason to talk about the regulating of shipments, but no man of any judgment would advocate the refusal to sell fish in markets at an upset price higher than our competitors were selling for at the same time. We are having keen competition in our fish markets and must be careful. We are only a pin prick on the map compared to the other fish producing countries of the world. As regards regulating shipments, there is some force in trying to do something to make things better, but it is useless for Mr. Coaker to talk of regulation of shipments and holding back fish when he himself is loading steamers at Port Union and sending them off post haste to be in the market first. If it is detrimental to the best interests of the fishermen to ship so much fish to the market at one time as Mr. Coaker advocates, why does he not hold back his fish and so relieve the market of at least what he has to sell for the time being. But Mr. Coaker is the most guilty man in Newfoundland on that score. The law of supply and demand could not be got over, and if the advice of Grievs, Hickman and Crosbie had been taken in 1920 things, as far as the fish market are concerned, would be far better than they are to-day. He would be fair and say that Mr. Coaker was not the only man who should come to the assistance of the fishermen at this time. The Prime Minister was now in England increasing expenditure instead of reducing it, and the bill that this country would have to pay for his picnic would be enormous. on to Sir Michael Cashin, and they were not on very intimate terms. Circumstances compelled him to join the National Government, and he had never found a more honest or upright Executive officer than Sir Michael Cashin. He has only led the Opposition since then, and now it is understood he has intimated that he will not be leading the next general election. It is hoped he will not be retiring altogether, but that the country will have the benefit of his experience in the years to come. In conclusion, Mr. Morine referred briefly to the fish regulations which were undoubtedly a curse to Newfoundland. The plot that was engineered to bring these regulations upon the country must be investigated sooner or later and the guilty persons shown up in their true colours. Capt. A. Kean, the concluding speaker, gave a short address on the doings of the Fascists in Italy. Their movement, he said, was a warning to the world as to what better conditions, and it has been more than successful. It was a union of citizens, and Capt. Kean thought that we should have the same united spirit here. He had prepared a speech but as the time was drawing late he concluded by wishing the movement every success. Chairman Winsor then asked the meeting what they intended doing regarding this new offer from the merchants. By a standing vote all decided to "Hang 'er Down" and not accept the offer.

Refusing to be put to bed.

"So lovely is the world," said she,
"I want to stay awake and see."
The friends who pass along the way,
And drink in all they have to say.

"I've seen the world in April days
And know the summer's lovely ways,
But since to sleep they make me go,
I've never seen the winter's snow."

"I do not want to miss the sights
And pleasures of the wintry nights;
I want to hear the shutters shake
And so I'm going to stay awake."

So, like a curious child she tried
To pass her bedtime open-eyed,
To see the happy carryings-on
With winter here and summer gone.

But Mother Winter came along
And sang a little drowsy song,
And long before the snow grew deep
The youthful rose had dropped asleep.

A Photoplay You Will Long Remember.

"THE SIGN OF THE DOOR" AT THE NICKEL.

The bare announcement that Norma Talmadge will be the star of the screen offering at the Nickel Theatre is enough to satisfy patrons that entertainment of exceptional merit awaits them. But when we add that the screen vehicle is without doubt the best that has yet been given her the appeal to picture patrons should become irresistible, in our opinion. That is our positive belief.

This splendid production in which the charming and incomparable Norma will be seen in "The Sign of the Door," adapted from Channing Pollock's stage play of the same name in which Marjorie Rambeau added to her laurels as a stage star. And it is a new screen triumph for Miss Talmadge, who rises to great dramatic heights in a powerful, moving story, with a strong undercurrent of romance.

Norma has the role of Ann Hunn, well, a beautiful young stenographer, whose marriage to a man of wealth and excellent character, is followed by a tragic chain of events which culminate in an unexpectedly happy climax.

"In Old Kentucky," the picture you've all been waiting for will be shown on Wednesday. This is the greatest picture Anita Stewart has ever appeared in. Watch for it on Wednesday.

SOMEbody DID.

Returning from a sentimental day at the seaside the young couple had been compelled to occupy the same compartment as a merry crowd of holiday-makers. They passed through a tunnel.

"D'you know, darling," he whispered as they emerged, "if I had realised that tunnel was so long I should have kissed you!"

"Good Heavens!" she gasped, "didn't you?"

"What makes you think the baby is going to be a great politician?" asked the young mother, anxiously.
"I'll tell you," answered the young father, confidently, "he can say more things that sound well and mean nothing than any kid I ever saw."

Tongue is only Muscle You Move.

(Monday Health Talk, No. 10)
(By Wm. H. MacPherson, D.C., Ph.C.)

Your tongue is the only muscle you can move without pain if you become a victim of inflammatory rheumatism. Only the victim of this disease can appreciate the unspeakable torture it inflicts.

The cause of this disease is failure of the kidneys and bowels to properly eliminate the wastes of the body. Because of the kidney weakness an acid condition of the blood develops. The victim suffers at the beginning from 102 to 104 degrees of fever. There is sore throat, vomiting, general weakness and the aching pain in the muscles and joints making any movement impossible. Under chiropractic spinal adjustments a normal flow of life impulses over spinal nerve lines is restored and the body returns to normal.

UNABLE TO MOVE.

"Last winter I was unable to move a muscle except my tongue for three weeks. The pain was torture. It was inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered other attacks but this was the worst. They fed me with a spoon. I expected to die. Finally after repeated urging I tried chiropractic spinal adjustments. I was relieved after the first adjustment and continued to get better until now I feel after a year without suffering that I am forever cured." H. H. Knock, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1275H.

First Blood to The Fishermen.

To the fishermen go the first honors in their contest with the Government. They have drawn first blood in a fight waged for right, for the privilege of having a say in the disposal of their products, and have won a lasting victory in demanding the remission and subsequent abolition of an export tax on all their exports. This is but the driving in of the thin end of the wedge for other reduced taxation. Having won the initial round it is scarcely possible that the United Fishermen's movement is going to cease. Their demand is for several other eliminations of a burdensome nature bearing heavily upon them as producers, and the glory of their successful combat in the primary conflict will but induce and encourage them to greater efforts. They are not alone in this great economical movement which they have undertaken. The fishermen of the other great North-west coasts and of the South and West coasts are at one with them in their endeavours. The very success of their beginning has brought thousands of sympathizers to their ranks, sympathizers who are only waiting an opportunity to assist and strengthen them by every means in their power. The voice of the West has long been insistent on something being done to reduce the vexatious taxes imposed on the people. The sentiment of the South is unanimous in demanding that redress shall be made to those who were robbed by the iniquitous Fish Regulations, and who are still further being held up by legalised brigandage in the collection of excessive duties, that extravagance may run rife and outrageous expenditure be continued. The people are alive to-day. No longer are they dormant and enjoying a Rip Van Winkle slumber. The sins of omission and commission of the present government are being kept tab on, and woe betide the reformers (?) when they appear again to solicit the suffrages of an impoverished and bleed-white electorate.

The victory won by the fishermen of the North is a victory for themselves, irrespective of that which might be attributed to it. They came, they saw, they conquered. By the might of their forces they compelled the government to remit the Export Tax on Codfish. They thus reap the benefit. But their work is not completed. Other reductions in taxation on imports they are seeking, and in the first flush of victory it is not at all likely that they will rest on their oars and pursue a ununctive policy of delay in insisting on their further demands. Mr. Coaker, through the columns of his personal organ, on Saturday, arrogated to himself all the credit for the remission of the Export Tax. What do the fishermen think of that? Having won their victory, are they going to allow an individual who did not help them one iota take all the praise for a movement, in which he absolutely refused to interest himself, when approached by the men who carried the issue to fruition? All the arrangements were made. All the negotiations were conducted without the personality or opinion of Mr. Coaker obtruding on the deliberations of the Executive. As a matter of fact he was entirely ignored by the Cabinet. His advice was neither asked or sought, and whatever kudos is due, Mr. Coaker cannot share in any application thereof. He knows he fought the demands of the fishermen, and refused to listen to their reasonable requests. Now when they have won out on the first point, he seeks to assume all the glory, and to deprive the men who withstood him of all the honor of the fight for the benefit of the commonweal. One more victory you have to win, men of the North! ere you return home, and that is the abolition of the sur, super and sales duty taxes, which being imposed by a stroke of the pen, can be removed in a similar manner. Two victories will then be to your credit, and your accomplishment of these in so short a time will prove for ever to the men who now misgovern you that

THE PEOPLE STILL RULE. Newfoundland Participates.

IN ANGLIO-SPANISH TREATY.
Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I have received the following telegram from Messrs. Hawes & Co. (London), Ltd.:—"Alicante office wires Custom House informed them Newfoundland enters new treaty from sixth."
Mr. Hawes received private messages last week saying that the Premier and Mr. Lewis were meeting in Madrid and that they hoped to get Newfoundland placed under the most favourable tariff, the same as that under which the fish of competing countries is imported, and further that they were endeavouring to have this arrangement made retrospective as from the 6th inst., so that Newfoundland would not be placed at any disadvantage.
Mr. Hawes thinks that the information received from the Alicante Custom House is in all probability correct, but confirmation should be awaited from the Premier or the British Government.
The advantage gained under the new tariff would be 4 pesetas gold per quintal, equal to 3½d.
Yours very truly,
J. PATTERSON.

St. Bon's Hockeyists Meet. ASSOCIATION FORMED.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of the members of the old St. Bon's hockey team was held at the college yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Bro. Strapp was moved to the chair and carried out the duties in a workmanlike manner. The accounts of last year were read and adopted. Messrs. Francis Edens and Patrick Keegan handed in their report showing that a large number realized the great interest that was taken in the team this year. It was then decided that a hockey association be formed to look after the interests of the hockey team. This association would embrace all ex-pupils of the college, this being thought desirable because every old boy becoming a member of the hockey association would naturally take a deep interest in the team, because only those who played would be members of the hockey team, yet, the hockey team itself would be organized under the association. The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Hon. Pres.—Rev. J. J. Pippy.
President—C. J. Fox.
Secy.—Francis Edens.
Manager Hockey Team—C. B. Fox.
The meeting was informed that hockey sticks had been ordered last week, and it was the intention to get new sweaters for the season. All of last year's players are available with the exception of "Coke" Cahill who is in Halifax, and John K. Higgins who has decided to retire. As there are many matters of importance to be discussed, it was decided to adjourn the meeting until next week.

Very useful and dainty plain work. Fancy work and fine embroideries. The latest thing in handkerchiefs, paper novelties (something quite new). Preserves, Pickles, Jellies, etc. Candy Vegetables and tins, all to be bought at the most reasonable prices. The early comers will have the best choice at the Sale of Work in Congregational Church Lecture Hall on Wednesday afternoon next.—Nov 20, 21.

Free Lance Flat Falsehoods Refuted.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—I understand that the Free Lance is published by a company which includes Messrs. Modell, Stafford and Thistle, and which beside publishing the Trade Review, also aims to publish the Royal Gazette, by arrangement with the Government. The Hon. Dr. Modell, late Editor of the Star, is, I believe, Editor of the Free Lance. So much then for the environment of this organ for public information.
In last Saturday's number of the Free Lance, editorial mention is made of the United Fishermen's movement, and to my connection with it. I shall not refer to the purely personal matters, except to ask Dr. Modell if he does not think that it would do credit to his own name and his own organ if he eschewed personalities altogether from this time forth. The Free Lance represents the United Fishermen as asking (in re the proposed "Fish Trust") that "a large portion of the catch should be taken over by the Government at a price which those engaged in the regular business of the organ refused to pay." This is flat falsehood! The request was, that the Government should guarantee advances on fish at precisely the current prices paid by regular dealers, not at prices they refused to give. The fishermen believed these prices unfairly low, and asked to be enabled to get a higher price, if possible, by an export for their own benefit.
The Free Lance correctly points out that no such great reduction in public expenditure as the United Fishermen have asked for can take place without cutting down the services given by railways, steamboats, telegraphs, marine grants, etc., and asks, "are the United Fishermen ready to make these sacrifices?" Sir, if sacrifice cannot be endured, great reform is impossible. Being intelligent, the United Fishermen understand this. They know they cannot eat their bread, and have it too. And they also know that the financial condition of the Colony is now such that it is a choice between sacrifice and insolvency, between making this a Colony in which they can continue to live, or deserting their country. It is pitiable, Sir, to see so splendid a movement as this, springing from the very people themselves, opposed and misrepresented by those, whose intelligence and education should combine to make them strong advocates of the public impulse for reform.

But I would not have it supposed, Sir, that no great public saving can be made without general public sacrifice. It is true that merely by cutting official salaries, a saving running into millions cannot be made, yet a very large reduction would result. But much money can be saved to the public treasury without harm to the public service. The cost of the telegraph and steamboat service, for instance, can be materially reduced, while the work done can be improved. The public institutions can be made more efficient now and their cost less, by cutting out patronage. Many thousands can be cut off from the public printing bill. I speak with fairly complete knowledge of public affairs, and with a sense of personal responsibility, when I say that savings running into many hundreds of thousands can be saved side by side with increased efficiency in the public service.

Yours truly,
ALFRED B. MORINE.

LATEST SCREEN OFFERING "STRAIGHT FROM PARIS" AN HIT.
Motion picture fans have lately been victimized by one announcement after another that a forthcoming production was the "most lavish" ever made. It seems to be forgotten that extravagance in itself is a credit to a photographer, unless the scene and setting serves to heighten the action of the picture as a whole. This point has been realized by the Equity Picture Corporation in convincingly shown in their latest Clara Kimball Young photodrama "Straight from Paris," written by the celebrated Sada Cowan, who won her laurels as the writer of "Hush." Miss Young's former starring medium.

Evidently the producers felt that in filming a picture based on the sparkling romance of society life, a typical French surrounding was necessary to heighten the realism of the action. That is why "Straight from Paris" the spectator not only enjoys a delicious love-story that includes old-fashioned racy, but surveys a succession of gowns, robes and smartest creations of French fashion in abundance and richness that is enchanting. A session of this artistic masterpiece of screen production proves once more that Clara Kimball Young is an artist in every sense and a supreme master in the skill of adornment.

CONFERENCE ASSEMBLED.
LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Nov. 20.
A host of foreign diplomats gathered to discuss the most momentous questions of the world to-day, when delegates of leading nations gathered for a discussion and settlement of the Near East crisis. Premier Poincare for France, Lord Curzon for Britain, and Mussolini agreed to attend for Italy, although refusing to come to Lausanne for preliminary conference with British and French delegates. It is understood that representatives in a meeting yesterday at Territet, near here, came to some former unanimous agreement on the attitude to be adopted at the conference.

NEW PARLIAMENT OPENED.
LONDON, Nov. 20.
A parliament in which Ireland, with the exception of Ulster, is not represented, and in which the Labor Party appears as chief contender for recognition as the opposition, opened at two-thirty-five this afternoon. T. F. O'Connell proposed John Henry Whiteley for re-election as Speaker of the House, and the House adjourned to receive the King's formal assent to the choice. The paramount question centres upon which party is to be recognized as the official opposition, and it is believed that Labor's numerical right will clash with the claim of the Unionist and Georgian forces to offset their claim.

DUBLIN, Nov. 20.
Dublin is suffering an attack of nerve party owing to DeValera's threat of reprisals, if Childers is convicted of carrying arms, is executed, and partly through the horror of the Inchiboe explosion, and other happenings. Yesterday, when a lorry, with Free State troops, passed through a meeting of protest in connection with the hunger strikers in Mount Joy, the crowd roared and shouted epithets, calling forth a volley in which three civilians were wounded. Mary MacSwiney is continuing her fast since Nov. 6th, and her sister, Annie is still in her position at the front gates of prison, where she maintains a foodless vigil. Four men were killed at the Inchiboe explosion.

Prince Makes Late Dancing Popular.
LONDON.—The popularity of the cabaret and the evening dances in London's fashionable West-End restaurants is returning, and the reason therefore seems to be in no small measure due to the Prince of Wales and his brothers. Immediately after his return from the Far East, the Prince appeared at several well known restaurants for the late supper and dance accompanied generally by the Duke or Prince Henry, and a party of friends. Also since the return of the Prince from Scotland he has been seen at several of these dances, and so have his two brothers. The Royal visitors applaud heartily the entertainment and music, but only occasionally take part in the dancing. The mere fact that they are present, however, is enough for the West-End, and the places are crowded nightly in the hopes that some member of the royal family will be present.

Chinese Murder Trial Opened To-Day

The King vs. Wo Fen Game-- Counsel for Prosecution Ad- dresses Jury.

The Murray Street Laundry murder case opened in the Supreme Court this morning before the full bench, consisting of Chief Justice Horwood, Mr. Justice Johnson and Mr. Justice O'Neil. A double panel of 96 jurors in attendance. The prosecution was conducted by the Deputy Attorney General, P. J. Summers, who went to ill health the Crown's case was taken by H. A. Winter. In the General Hutchinson and Superintendent O'Neill were present, so was Mr. Alfred Hart who had previously appointed official interpreter. The accused, Wo Fen Game, was led to the dock at which the Registrar, Sir J. J. Doyle, started the roll call of the panel. 12 summonses were served; one juror was absent, one was sick and one was excused. George Hart was then put in the box to inform the accused, Wo Fen Game, that the jury would be sworn to try him and that he had the privilege of challenging any of the twelve who were selected. Mr. J. Esmond, who represented the accused then asked the interpreter to explain that the challenging would be by him. The first panel called consisted of Wilfred St. John, George W. R. Gooble, Alfred McNamee, Arthur Osmond, Silas Moore, Arthur Osmond, Silas Moore, John Oldfield, Wm. Davis, John Moore, who were sworn to try the case. The jury returned at 10 o'clock and was over 60 minutes in deliberation. W. Walter Kelly; Thos. Kelly, Jr.; John Deville; Patrick J. Maher, Mr. O'Neil objected to serving on the jury as his hearing was impaired. He was excused as was also Wm. Davis on the grounds of being deaf. Patrick J. Maher and Charles Taylor were then called to fill the panel. Challenges were then begun. The Crown objected to Mr. Gooble. Both the lawyer for the Crown and defence continued the challenge until the final panel resulted as follows:—Alfred McNamee, Moore, Wm. Edwards, Thomas Moore, Thomas Volsey, Samuel Vavara, G. Osmond, Joseph Power, Jack J. Casey, J. J. Neville, Patrick Maher, Hubert Hudson. The case was then administered, after the charge of murdering on May 21st, three of his countrymen and acting with intent to kill another, interpreted to the prisoner. Mr. Winter opened the case for the Crown and the jury stating that they were present to discharge a very solemn duty. The prisoner whose fate had to decide was charged with the crime of murder and before he proceeded to try the facts of the case before them, he had these observations to make first that it was inevitable that they all had brought with them certain preconceived ideas of crime from accounts read in the papers and heard in general conversation. It was their duty to the utmost of their ability to dismiss these ideas, and of paramount importance to form their verdict on the evidence which the Crown would produce. The second observation he had to make was that the accused is a Chinaman, and the victims of the murder were of the same nationality, a fact which might have the effect of detracting from the seriousness of the crime. Above all the prisoner's nationality should not weigh in the matter, and although he stood his trial before a tribunal, of which he does not understand the workings, the facts would be given fair consideration by the prosecution. In measuring his guilt or innocence nationality must not be taken into account and the Crown was asking but plain fair British justice. Mr. Winter then took up the salient facts of the case beginning by stating that Wo Fen Game was accused of intentionally killing three men, Hong Lee, Hong King Hie, and So Ho King, and was charged with intent to kill Hong Wing. With the exception of the latter, they all lived and worked at the Murray Street Laundry. The prisoner also, he said, worked and lived at the Murray Street Laundry. Hong Wing was his brother-in-law and worked at the Casey Street Laundry. It was here that he was wounded. Telling about the history of the accused the prosecutor said Wo Fen Game came to this country about two years ago to work at the Jim Lee Laundry, of which two of the murdered men seemed to be joint proprietors. Evidence would show that the accused was not satisfied with his position at the laundry and last Christmas he complained to Charlie Fong that the wages he received were not enough. The latter advised him to hold on to the job. In May Charles Fong was surprised to see Wo Fen Game come into the early morning to his Cafe. He asked Wo Fen Game why he was not working. He advised Wo Fen Game to return to his work and the latter went as requested but returned in about half an hour saying that they had turned him out. On this same day (May 2nd) Counsel proceeded, it would be shown that the accused went into the Martin-Royal Hardware Store to purchase a revolver. The price of the weapon was $14 and Wo Fen Game said he did not have that much money. On the 3rd of May he asked Charles Fong for the loan of one dollar and fifty cents. The purchase of the revolver, said the prosecutor, brings the case up to the day of the tragedy. What happened after, he said, will be proved by witnesses in as near as possible the order of occurrence. The first witness he would call would be Parsons's photographer and Mr. Noel of the Crown Lands Office. The first material witness would be Chesley Nesevorthy, a man who lived next door to the Murray Street laundry, and who was the first to discover the tragedy summon the police and get a doctor. One of the first officers on the scene, Sergeant Nugent, would also be called. Mr. Winter then reviewed how the police investigated the crime, first finding the bodies at Murray Street and then a wounded man at Casey Street and last Wo Fen Game wounded by his own hand near the door of Wins' Laundry. The witnesses, who picked up Wo Fen Game in a pool of blood, viz Messrs. Duffett and Mayo would also be called. The bullets taken from the pockets of the prisoner and removed from the murdered men would be put in evidence. Beyond these facts, said the prosecutor, there was no other material evidence except statements made by the prisoner, but these may not be admitted in the evidence. Mr. Emerson for the defence objected, whereupon Mr. Winter withdrew his mention of any statements being made.

S.S. Meigle Returns to Port.

CANADIAN SAPPER TAKES SISTER SHIP IN TOW.

S.S. Meigle, Capt. Cross, arrived in port at 7 o'clock last night from the scene of the disabled S.S. Canadian Sapper, the trip occupying in all a period of fifteen days. The Meigle left here on Nov. 4th at 11 a.m. and having a sufficient supply of coal placed on board to last for 25 days and towing outfit, including hawsers, cables, etc., steered in a N.E. direction a distance of 500 miles to where the Sapper gave her position. Fine weather was encountered and the Meigle arrived on the scene on the 7th at 11.30 p.m. Nothing was done until daylight next morning when a cable was placed aboard and the tow was commenced with. Good progress was made until 9 p.m., when a west wind came up and hampered towing considerably owing to a heavy sea running, which broke the shackles of the towing hawsers and tore away the after bit. On Thursday, 9th inst. it was blowing hard until 4 o'clock in the morning, when another attempt was made. After the weather moderated the cables were fastened to the stern of the Sapper, and being driven by her own engines she was steered at the stern by the Meigle. Good progress was again made until noon hour when the wind freshened from the North-west, and at 1 p.m. operations had to be discontinued owing to the heavy seas. On the 10th it was blowing a gale all day, but both ships were kept in sight of each other. The following day both were laboring heavily, having ridden out a severe gale and boisterous sea. The Meigle was unable to get alongside the Sapper again until the following Monday, when the weather moderated sufficiently for the cables to be passed at the stern end again. Very little progress was made and at 2.30, a burst of wind upset all chances of accomplishing a good day's work. The next morning at 8.30 the hawsers were again placed on board, when an effective tow was made until 12.30, when operations had to be again suspended for a third time, when the hawsers were cast off once more. Nothing was done on the 16th. The weather was very heavy, with heavy rain, both ships being obscured from view the whole day. The Meigle sighted the Sapper's smoke on Friday last, after the weather had abated and was making towards her at 3 p.m. when a message was received ordering her home. The S.S. Canadian Sapper was alongside when she straightened up for port, but Capt. Cross believes that the Sapper is not heavy enough to make a good tow. The disabled ship was assisted by the Meigle about 380 miles, up to the 15th her position then being about 360 miles north east of Cape Spear. The Sapper's damages are very extensive, having her stern post and rudder carried away. The ship is not leaking any. The Sapper is a cargo boat of 5,000 tons, and has on board at the present time 4,000 tons coal, and 1,000 tons of pig iron. Capt. Potts is in command.

Delegates Meet Exporters.

WILL ADDRESS MEETINGS IN CONCEPTION BAY.

The Delegates of the United Fishermen's Movement met the Fish Exporters this morning at the Board of Trade rooms for a decision as to the best price that could be obtained for the catch. Some of the exporters favored giving $4.50 whilst others held that $4.30 was the most it was possible to give under the conditions. A decision was not arrived at and the committee are meeting again this afternoon to give the matter further consideration. A number of the delegates were to go out by train this morning for Carbonara to address a public meeting being held in St. James' Hall tonight, but owing to the meeting with the exporters this morning they could not proceed. However an exporter has given them the use of his car and they will journey over this evening. The Executive of the Fishermen's movement have been requested to send representatives to other ports in Conception Bay and it is probable that those going over to Carbonara this evening will be heard from other platforms.

Child Sent Poison to Sir Wm. Horwood.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A fourteen year old girl mailed the package of candy which poisoned Sir William Horwood, Chief of Scotland Yard, officials believe. They have succeeded in tracing the package to the sub-postal station in the South London district from which it was mailed. The station is a small stationery store and the clerks recall that a girl about fourteen mailed it. Another package containing a cake and addressed to two assistant commissioners at Scotland Yard, was sent a few days before from the same station by a woman, the clerks think. General Horwood is still in a serious condition.

Viennese Seeks Return of Napoleonic Mementoes.

VIENNA.—In 1814 the municipality of Vienna sent to the Lyons fair a priceless exhibit of relics of the Franco-Austrian period of Napoleon's time. They included many mementoes of the French Emperor and of Mary Louise, and other articles of great historic interest. The war came, and the collection is still in France. This week the Mayor of Vienna petitioned the French Minister to restore to the city. It is understood these arti- cles are now in the hands of the French liquidator of alien enemy properties.

Provisions.

Codfish—The exports of dried cod fish this week were as follows:
From Outports—By schooner General Smuts from Marystown Trading Co., Marystown, 4300 qts.
From St. John's—By schooner Herbert Warren, 7581 quintals from Lazo & Co., to Seattle; by schooner Estrella du Mar 2500 quintals from G. M. Barr to Oporto; by schooner A. E. Conrad 931 quintals to Kingston, Jamaica; by S. S. Digby from T. S. Devine 198 quintals to Boston; by S. S. Sachem to Liverpool 12,775 quintals from Messrs. A. H. Murray, Harvey & Co., Bowring Bros., Job Bros., G. M. Barr, T. Hallett, Baine Johnston & Co., Jas. Balrd Ltd., Monroe Export Co., and Juan Lazo & Co.; by S. S. Rosalind to New York 2081 quintals for transhipment to West Indies from The Kennedy Co., C. F. Bennett & Co., A. H. Murray, J. H. Roberts, Baine Johnston & Co., A. E. Hickman, Bowring Bros., A. Kean and the Goodridge Export Co. Total 30,365 quintals.
Pork—There is no change in the market this week. Ham Butt is still scarce and the local price per barrel is up to $33.00. Trade is very quiet chiefly owing to the hold up of the fish cargoes from the northern outports. The imports for the week were 100 barrels from New York by S. S. Silvia, 215 by S. S. Belvernon from Boston and 200 by S. S. Sable I. from North Sydney. Total 515 barrels. The local quotations are $28.50 for Fat Back and S. C. Clear, $38 Grocers Family Meat, $26.50, Spare Ribs, $31.25 for Regular Plate and $32 Morris Family.
Beef. The beef market is quiet and unchanged. The imports for the week were 1455 barrels, viz 555 by S. S. Silvia, 800 by the S. S. Belvernon and 100 by the Sable Island. There is very little doing locally but a good trade is expected when the fish in port is discharged. The imports to St. John's are about 34,000 barrels to date as against 24,000 last year. The local quotations are $21.50 Bos Flank, $20.50 Ex. Family, $18.50 Special Family, and $18 Boneless per barrel wholesale.

Flour—Supplies in the city are again very short and as this is the season when the demand is at its highest point, it is feared that supply will not come in fast enough to fill all northern requirements before navigation closes. The wheat quotation in Chicago went to 117 and seven eighths this week, the highest point for the season. Winnipeg reached 103 and three eighths which is also a top notch quotation. The expected recession in prices after European big orders had been filled is not likely to materialize and present levels if not higher will maintain all winter. Local price for leading brands is $7.75. The Sapper's import was 3250 barrels this week.
Cod Oil—The exports for the week were 3947 gallons by the S. S. Rosalind to New York from Messrs The Union Export Co., and Job Bros. The market is very firm and shows slight advance on last weeks prices. The quantity available is very small and the tanners of the United States now seem to be determined to get a sufficient supply before the scarcity becomes too apparent which they know will be followed by an advance in price.
Cod Liver Oil—There is no improvement whatever on the price obtainable in the foreign markets. There have been however many enquiries recently asking for information regarding the result of the scientific investigation carried on in Newfoundland the past summer by Dr. Zilva and Mr. Graham. It is quite evident that the manufacturing chemists expect something good out of this enquiry and we all hope that they will not be disappointed. Cod Liver Oil has always been looked upon as one of the fundamental products on which the chemist can build up a satisfactory preparation and there is no doubt that with such a thorough investigation as has been made by these scientists, we shall not doubt see cod liver oil take a higher place in the medicinal markets than ever before.

Sugar—The market has grown firmer in the States and Canada, and local prices have advanced accordingly. American White Granulated is now quoted at $11.75 per 100 lbs. in barrels in the St. John's market as against $11.50 last week. The opinion as to the future as expressed by experts is that the prices will get stronger till about Christmas and after that there will be a decline. A hand to mouth policy is therefore going on and will likely continue till the new year.
Molasses—There is a steadier feeling in the molasses market this week owing to more enquiry and a general recognition of impending scarcity. Latest advices from Barbados give the quotation as 45 cents per wine gallon for residue of old stock, with an intimation of advanced prices when new crop comes on the market. If they cannot get the advance they will drop molasses for sugar at the factors. In the local market the stock of choice will be exhausted when the fishermen take their winter supply. Prices are 80 cents for Fancy and 75 for Choice.

Potatoes—The first considerable importation of Canadian Potatoes began this week when the S.S. Canadian Sapper brought 228 sacks from P.E.I. The recent frosty weather reduced the offerings of home grown stock in the city market so that the P.E.I. tubers came in good time. Local farmers have celled their crop and imported produce will again have to supply the bulk of the demand. Prices are $2.50 to $3.00 for home grown and $3.50 to $4 for imported.
Hay—The market is quiet in Canada and owing to the heavy duty of $4 per ton there is very little export trade being done across the border with the United States as compared with other years. The wholesale price in New York is $26 for No. 2 Timothy, while in Canada car lots are only $16 per ton nevertheless there is no money for U.S. dealers just now in taking Hay from Canada. The little export trade that is now going on is to Europe, West Indies and Newfoundland. The S.S. Canadian Sapper brought in 1370 bales this week. The local price is $37 per ton wholesale.
Wool—The market is steady at last weeks prices locally, and 40 and one eighth cents a bushel in Montreal for December and 44 and one eighth for May. The S.S. Canadian Sapper brought in 3533 sacks of four bushels this week which gives an ample supply to the market for several weeks. Some heavy consignments will follow between now and new year, all bought at the low point of the market. The present quotations are $3.70 for white and $3.60 for mixed and $3.90 for black per sack 24 bushels.

A Song of Wheat.

(Suggested by reading an account of Mr. Boone's "Hot Air" address on wheat growing in Newfoundland.)
I walked along by Waterford,
In sunny days of Spring,
I saw a man out sowing wheat,
And he did sweetly sing:—
"Yes, Coaker, for you I'll sow the wheat
It will feed all the poor.
The people will love you once again
And bless you evermore."
I walked again in Summer time,
The wheat was six feet high,
And Coaker said to Mr. Boone
"We'll reap it bye and bye."
When next I passed along that way
The Autumn eve was chill;
And Coaker stood and made his plans
Where he would put the mill.
"I'll put it in my own home town,
Or perhaps in Carbonear,
'Twill win the people back to me,
Their drooping spirits cheer."
"No more shall flakes of smelly cod
Be round the people's door;
We'll grow the wheat, we'll mill the flour,
And want shall be no more."
October came, the golden grain
Was nine feet, six inches high;
And Coaker came and viewed the field
And glee was in his eye.
He knew that in fair Canada
The harvest was gathered in,
But to reap before November came
Was to his mind a sin.
The sun went down in golden light,
The stars their vigils kept,
But Jack Frost came and reaped the wheat,
While Mr. Coaker slept.
Alas! Alas! When Coaker rose
His last fond hope was crushed:
He wept, and raved and cried "Woes Me!
'Tis ever, ever thus."
"I'll say farewell, and sail away
To some far distant shore;
Where wheat, or fish, or Newfoundland
Shall trouble me no more."
GRANIVOROUS.

Minard's Liniment Co., Ltd.
Gentlemen—I have used Minard's Liniment and have found it a good remedy. After the explosion I was pretty well shaken up having quite a number of bruises and cuts, but thanks to Minard's Liniment I am my old self again. It healed the sores and bruises and gave me much relief. It is true to its name as the King of Pain, for it stopped the pain almost at once. I first noticed the ad in the Montreal Standard and decided to invest in a bottle, for which I am not sorry, but can say with truth that I am thankful for it having done all it claimed to do, and in my case much more, and a satisfied customer is the best at one can possibly find. That is my view of it and I think you will agree with me too.
Yours very truly,

BOOK REVIEWERS.

The book reviewers of these days—the ones most widely known—hand out the savage, brutal phrase that makes an author groan. They jump upon a tawdry book with frenzied shriek and curse, and if that author were a crook they couldn't treat him worse. They fume and fust and rant and rail in anger and disdain; it's worse to write a cheap-john tale than 'tis to rob a train. And yet, while critics raise their din, the cheap books hit the spot; I hold it is no downright sin to write some tommyrot. Where one admires the scorching yarn dissecting human souls, a thousand read "The Haunted Barn" and kindred rigmoroles. And shall the eager thousand burn the books they most enjoy, because some critic, pale and stern, that hogwash may annoy? And shall the man who earns his bread by writing red blood dope be crushed by what some critic said, and say farewell to hope? Why should the savage critics cook the lowbrow Mke or Pete? A man may write a jim-crow book, and still be good as wheat.

MARSHALL BROTHERS

Unique Background in German Theatres.

Scene designers and directors in Germany are steadily toward the "medium," the plain, pure and simple, from which they address the audience openly. In practice they tend to try to approach this by using out as much of changing background as possible. They are something in the middle of the table, a flight of steps, a pile of books, and they try to eliminate the stage. Jassner does this Berlin by using his cyclorama a neutral boundary without character in itself. The director of "Messner" uses black curtains, and the Khan, by the same means, to centre our attention on small spots placed in the middle of the background. In Berlin the actor is backed up by space. It is a presence instead of a negative background. Yet it does not obscure the splendid room with its red and grey, its mirrors and its chandeliers. These things float in the air of consciousness, filling what might be a desolate void or a dimly lit darkness. Always the stage dominates the actor, and the actor, driving his message into the spectators, dominates all. Kenneth Macgowan in Occasions and Decoration.

thirty-three and a half feet is cut off each corner, leaving it an octagon shape of four short sides of one hundred and thirty-nine and a half feet and 33 and a half feet respectively. Many inscriptions from the Koran are to be found on different parts of the tomb. The tomb is 243 1/2 feet high and the dome is 50 feet in diameter. It is hollow and full of bats. There are two cenotaphs in the basement, one containing the body of the Emperor, and the other that of his wife. There are four minarets, that stand like sentinels, one of each octagonally projected. These minarets are built entirely of marble and are 141 1/2 feet high. There are a number of other buildings on the grounds. The emperor, it is said, intended to build a tomb for himself on the other side of the river and have them connected with a marble bridge, but for some reason his plans were never put into execution.

Noted Dwarfs.

The attention which was recently drawn to the existence in one of the some counties of a Mr. Lambert who was only 34 inches in height recalls to the memory several other persons of very few inches. Some of these, such as Tom Thumb and the Midgets, are well known, but there are others practically unknown to the majority of people. A Chinese who was only 35 inches in height was exhibited in London in 1880. Bebe, the favorite of Stanislaus, King of Poland in 1764, was but 30 inches in height at the time of his death at the age of twenty-three. Even the Court of England once possessed a dwarf, named Copperin, the pet of that Princess of Wales, who became the mother of King George III, and he was under 30 inches in height. Then the famous Faery Queen who was exhibited in the old and now demolished Egyptian Hall in Regent Street in 1880, was only 16 inches tall and when seated under a man's silk hat was unable to see over the top. Queen Henrietta Maria, also had a dwarf, a native of Oakham, in Rutlandshire. Geoffrey Hudson, only 17 inches high, who was quite unable to reach, some of the taller flowers in the Queen's gardens at Rushbrooke Hall. Twenty-four inches was the height of John Jarvis, page to Queen Mary, daughter of Henry VIII, while the Emperor Augustus had a dwarf, named Lucius, who weighed only 17 pounds, and was not quite two feet in height. The smallest example of all, however, comes from the frontier at Chiasso near the German town of Karlsruhe in the Duchy of Baden, where a family, consisting of father, mother, and daughter, aged 17 years, totalled between them only 40 inches. This was the Straese Davit family, and their bodies were embalmed in the chemical laboratory of the town.

Mussolini Had Exciting Youth.

Benito Mussolini, whose spectacular rise to the Italian Premiership has excited world wide interest, spent an exciting few years in Switzerland during his youth. His entrance into Switzerland was dramatic. He was pursued over the frontier at Chiasso by Italian gendarmes, who had a warrant for his arrest, but won his race for freedom by a scant hundred yards, and the Swiss customs officers refused to surrender him. Mussolini at that time was about 20 years of age. Peniless he crossed the St. Gothard Pass on foot, and upon his arrival in Lugarno was arrested as a vagabond without visible means of support. Political friends, however, came to his aid. Later he entered the University of Lausanne, but, as he was a Revolutionary Socialist, and wrote many fiery articles for the Swiss and Italian Socialist press, he was finally expelled from Switzerland after a warning which he refused to heed. Mussolini then went to Trent, in old Austrian Tyrol, whence he was also expelled in 1911. Upon the declaration of a general amnesty he left Trent for Milan, where he founded the newspaper Popolo Italia. He aroused the hatred of the Socialist people in the conduct of his paper, however, by his campaign in favor of Italy's entrance into the war on the side of the Entente, and later fought with the Italian forces at Monte Nero and at Carso, where he was severely wounded. Mussolini left a number of small debts in Geneva and at Lugarno, which, upon his departure, he laughingly promised to pay when he should become a member of the Italian Government.

TOO MUCH RISK.

Softly the hospital nurse smoothed the sufferer's pillow. He had only been admitted that morning, and now he looked up at her pleadingly. "Ah! phwat did ye say the doctor's name was, nurse, dear?" he asked. "Dr. Kilpatrick," was the reply. "He's the senior House Surgeon." The sufferer winced and pulled a wry face. "That settles it," he muttered grimly. "That doctor won't get no chance to operate on me." "Why not?" asked the nurse, in surprise. "He's a very clever man." "That's as may be," the patient said again, his voice cold and strong. "But me name happens to be Patrick." For Gentlemen of good taste — Cub Cigarettes. —sept23,12

A Wonderful Tomb.

The Taj Mahal stands on the right bank of the river Jumna. It was built by the beautiful wife of Shahjahan, emperor. She was born in 1631, at the age of nineteen, was married to Prince Khurram, who afterwards became emperor. They lived together for fourteen years. After the death of her husband, she was confined to her fourteenth child, called the "Mumtaz Mahal" and named upon her. It is said that she was a friend of the poor, and did much to relieve them in their suffering. When her body rested for nine days in the Taj Garden. The Taj was commenced in 1631 and completed in 1648. It took twenty years to build. The cost has been estimated at $20,000,000. It is claimed that five hundred workmen died of fever on the spot during the erection of the tomb. It is built out of the most beautiful white marble to be found in the world, inlaid with precious stones. The tomb is a square of 186 feet,

Harold's Lament For Garget In Cows

Dominion Sports To-Night.

150 COMPETITORS ENTERED—
SMOKING NOT ALLOWED.

The annual indoor Dominion Sports under the auspices of the Cadet Boat Club, will be held in the Prince's rink tonight, commencing at 7.45. The programme prepared by the Committee is all that can be desired and those who patronize the big meet, will have an interesting night's amusement. Some 150 competitors who have been undergoing strict training for the past three weeks, have entered, and feel in fine fettle for the fray. The feature events of the programme will be the basket ball series by the lady teams, while the tug-of-war between the Guards Comrades Assoc. and Catholic Cadet Corps will probably furnish the thrill of the evening. NO SMOKING PLEASE!

The committee in charge would feel very grateful to the sporting public in attendance tonight, if they would kindly dispense with smoking during the performance, if not only gives everyone an opportunity of viewing clearly the various events, but to the athletes it is a complete necessity. A runner cannot be expected to put forth his best efforts in a smoky atmosphere, like has been witnessed in the rink on previous occasions. Should this very easy regulation be adhered to by all, the success of the sports will be a far gone conclusion. The prizes to be competed for will consist of gold and silver medals for first and second places in the running events, whilst silver cups and gold medals will be awarded the winners in the tug-of-war. In the basket ball series, silver cups will be given the victors. The prizes, which have been ordered from England, have not as yet arrived. The presentation will take place on a later date. The judges conducting the affair tonight are as follows:—Messrs. W. J. Higgins, J. W. Morris, Major March, C. E. Hunt, S. Cullen, E. Chafe, H. Russell, E. Robertson, C. Hall, R. Stuck, and H. Thomas. The doors will be opened at 6.45.

U.S. Bugler Will be Kept At Belleau Wood.

NEW YORK.—(By Canadian Press)—In view of the projects which are under way for the erection of Canadian War Memorials in France and Flanders, it is of interest to notice that a movement is on foot in the United States to keep a bugler at Belleau Wood (where many U.S. soldiers fell) to sound taps every morning, this arrangement to take the place of erecting a monument. The idea is thus expressed in a letter to the New York Times:—"The more one reflects, the more one is impressed with the idea, its novelty and beauty. In the minds of many thousands of thoughtful Americans, not all of them soldiers, the sound of taps on the night air awakens memories that reanimate far better than could a mute monument something of that exalted spirit in which our country entered into and carried on the war. To these minds, who would like to apply that spirit to life itself were it humanly possible to sustain such an attitude, even the imagined notes of taps sound ing "over there" its nightly requiem would prove an inspiration. How could we more vividly keep alive our sense of gratitude to our dead and our consciousness of that which they symbolize than by the audible sweetness of the bugle notes in taps?"

CORRECTION.—In connection with an advertisement that appeared in the Telegram re the Concert in St. Joseph's School tomorrow night, the reserve seat tickets are on sale at Mr. W. Meehan's store, Water Street, and not at Mr. Meany's as previously advertised.

Mr. J. Maxwell Cron during the week has changed his place of business and removed his stock of groceries and provisions to the shop owned and recently occupied by Mr. Theo. Parsons.

Schr. E. D. Bailey went on dock yesterday morning. She was taken up on the larger cradle, which has been recently repaired.

"Dalton" Council Knights of Columbus, held its installation of officers on Tuesday evening. State Deputy C. J. Cahill assisted by Mr. Thomas Armstrong performed the ceremony. Many brethren from St. John's and Bay Roberts were present. Following the ceremony a most enjoyable dance was held in the Academy Hall. The Hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion and Messrs. Hayes and Freeman were in charge of the dance. Supper was served at 11.30. A large number was in attendance and greatly enjoyed the evening. Dancing was kept up until 2.30 a.m.—COR. Nov. 18th, 1922.

Obituary.

HENRY SAWERS.
The many friends of Henry Sawers will regret to hear of his passing, death having occurred on Saturday last after an illness of short duration. The deceased was a native of Glasgow Scotland, and came out to this country about fifteen years ago with his family. The late Mr. Sawers was a tailor by trade, and for a number of years was employed with the firm of John Maunders, later occupying a position with the White Clothing Factory, which he held up to the time of his death. The deceased was a prominent member of St. Andrew's Society, having always taken an active interest in the Society's welfare. He was a keen football enthusiast, while his two sons are prominent players, having figured on the Salts line up during the past two seasons. The late Mr. Sawers leaves to mourn a widow, and three sons, Bert of the White Clothing Factory, Harry of the Commercial Cable Co., and William, to whom the sympathy of all will be extended.

Personal

The many friends of Mrs. John J. Evans, who recently underwent an operation at the General Hospital, will be glad to hear that recovery has been complete. Mrs. Evans is now at her residence, Robinson's Hill.

Star Movie To-Night.

SEE MISS MAJOR PLAY AND DANCE AT THE SAME TIME.

The popular Star has now settled down to its "regular stride" in the movie line, for having added Miss Major in addition to the high class run of pictures, it has in the language of the street "put the finishing touches" to their attractions.

For tonight it has popular EARLE WILLIAMS in a story of Central America in the days of revolution, which is regarded as one of the best that this actor has been seen in for some time. In it he plays the part of DICKY MALONER, a ne'er do well, who, when given the opportunity, becomes a General in the American Army. In Fortuna's Mask, Williams is assisted by an all star cast, headed by PATSY RUTH MILLER. What is going to prove the hit of the evening, is the performance of MISS MAJOR. This talented artist has already "got the crowd." It has been said at a Newfoundland audience that they are very hard to please, but when they are pleased they will show their appreciation. Well, Miss Major at her opening performance on Friday night, immediately won for herself the plaudits of the vast audience. They clapped and actually cheered for her, and Miss Major deserved all she got.

One of the audience rightly named her "THE GIRL WONDER." For tonight she will perform one of the most difficult parts of her work, she will dance and keep playing the violin at the same time. It is a piece of work never seen in this city, and will no doubt be a pleasing feature.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—That fierce and pugnacious little man, W. B. Jennings who inappropriately fills the position of Minister of Public Works, by accident, spreads himself over a portion of the Telegram on Saturday, and also gets considerable space in the columns of the Advocate—the former fishermen's thunder—in a most combative reply to two correspondents who made use of the privilege accorded them in your columns on Friday to refute certain statements made by this modern D'Artagnan in an earlier issue of the latter paper.

"Sneaks" and "Mongrels" are epithets which do certainly appeal to the diminutive Minister of Works, but it is in the using of the phrase "spits" that his otherwise pschydermatous hide is penetrated. But harken to the challenge put up by this Don Quixote, this would-be Coeur de Lion. He says if either or both the "sneaks" will call at his office—his office, good Lord!—to-day between the hours of 1 and 3 o'clock he will tell us a few things. Poor deluded old chap! He could not tell anything only that he is saving his departmental salary for a rainy day, and living on the thousand dollars he receives as a seasonal indemnity. And all out of a sweated population "Craven hearts"—what a mighty expression—he says, need not shrink from meeting this Nebuchadnezzar, this Alexander the Great, this Judas Maccabeus, for he will be unarmed. Well now, just think! Here is a man who braves the terrors of invasion of his sacred precincts and even issues an invitation to two of us to call at the same hour. Gallant man! Heroic Minister! Brave M.H.A.! Who in the world would attempt to assault your puny self, excepting it might be patients from the Sanitarium to whom you refused to supply chicken—and you are not chicken hearted; your challenge reveals that—at the request of the physician in charge of that institution. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this courtesy.

Celestials Have Narrow Escape.

BOILER EXPLODES IN RESTAURANT.

A catastrophe was narrowly averted in the Dominion Cafe at the hour of 9:40 last night, when a large boiler, which is used on the range in the kitchen at the rear of the restaurant, exploded and did considerable damage to the place. The top of the range was completely blown off, while the stove was shifted some feet from its actual foundation. A number of Celestials who were close by at the time had a very narrow escape, as pieces of iron scattered in all directions. Fearing a fire might ensue, a telephone message to the Central Fire Hall brought the companies to the scene. Their services, however, were not required. The Cafe closed down for the evening at a result of the occurrence.

Moulding Says it is His Family Medicine

"Tanlac has done my wife and myself so much good that we have made it our family medicine," says Frederick Moulding, 2813 17th St., Southwest, Calgary, Alberta.

"As for myself, I have been feeble about half sick for some time. My appetite was very poor, nothing tasted right, and what I did eat seemed to do me little good. Although I was working every day I never felt hungry, and my energy and strength was slipping right away from me.

"Two or three years ago my wife was troubled somewhat the same way. She had no appetite, was all run down and very nervous. After taking a few bottles of Tanlac she was so improved that all the neighbours spoke about it.

"Knowing what Tanlac did for my wife I, of course, took it myself, and it has helped me just as it did her. I now eat three rousing meals a day and relish every bite and have an appetite that never fails me. The tired feeling is gone and my old-time strength and energy have come back to me. My wife and myself both think Tanlac is great."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

LITTLE MARY.

The little girl from the top flat encountered the old bachelor who lived in the flat below.

"Can I come and play with your little girl, please?" she asked.

"Little girl?" he echoed, aghast.

"My dear, I have no little girl."

"She was very surprised.

"Haven't you? Are you sure? Mother said the other day that the only thing you ever thought of was your little Mary!"

VERY DIFFERENT.

The man who had come down in the world slipped into the seedy restaurant and sat down in his unappetizing meal.

Presently he looked up and saw that the waiter was an old, business friend.

"Good heavens, Charlie!" he cried. "Have you come to this?"

Charles drew himself up haughtily. "I wait here, Bill," he replied coldly; "I don't lunch here."

TIT FOR TAT.

The village tailor only received occasional orders from the Vicar for such articles as hats, collars, or handkerchiefs. "You see," remarked the Reverend gentleman, one day, having called with his usual small order, "when I want a suit I go to London. They make them there."

Calling again a few weeks later, the Vicar remarked that he had not seen the tailor at church lately.

"No," replied the tailor, "when I want to hear a good sermon I go to London. They preach them there."

THE REASON.

"Good gracious, Molly," exclaimed mother, returning with her little girl from a children's party, "how terribly sticky your hands are!"

"Well yours would be, too, mummy, if you had two meringues and a chocolate éclair in your muff."
