WHAT THE GREAT WEST DID YESTERDAY

Montreal, Que., July 12.—The Montreal Herald says: "Saskatchewan has, at any rate, declared its opinion, emphatically, and it is for Mr. Borden to answer its just demands. The country cannot be ruled in one interest against the welfare of its most increasingly important population. If the preponderance of votes in Ontario renders reciprocity impossible, there must be found some other effective way of satisfying the just demand of the west. When reciprocity was defeated, the problem was unsolved but a grave and difficult problem was accentuated. Mr. Borden and the majority of Canadians refused Sir Wilfrid Laurier's solution. What have they to offer in its place?"

HOT SESSION IS PROMISED WHEN DOMINION RAILWAY COMMISSION MEETS IN CALGARY

Statement of W. G. Hunt Before Board of Trade With Regard to Administration of Grain Act Arouses Storm of Protest from Farmers

FARMERS SAY RAILROADS RESPONSIBLE FOR SHORTAGE

Farmers' Representative Says Equal Car Distribution Clause is Needed as Lever to Compel Fair Treatment From Elevator Companies

Statements by certain members of the committee named by the Calgary board of trade in regard to car shortage before the Dominion Railway commission, July 25, that much of the shortage is due to the administration of the clause in the grain act providing for equalized distribution of cars between individual farmers and elevator men, has aroused a storm of hostile comment from the farmers. When the commission meets here, these will undoubtedly be some warm arguments on the subject, the farmers laying the blame for car shortage entirely upon the railroads.

Attacks Car Distribution Clause. At the board of trade meeting, when the committee was appointed, Mr. Hunt referred briefly to the clause in the grain act. He charged that it might take a farmer a number of days as many as ten in some instances, to load a car against three or four hours by an elevator, which might represent 35 farmers, yet the individual farmer was entitled to an equal share in the distribution of cars.

Blames the Railroads. "The whole trouble of car shortage first and all the time is with the railroads. They lack equipment and power and we can prove it to anyone. Granting that the railroads do their best to a certain extent—and I am not prepared to grant that they do all the time, still the fact remains that they cannot handle the grain. We have instances in every instance in our records to prove this."

"Flynn's Hotheadedness Cost Him Battle With J. Johnson"

The Associated Press reports sent from Las Vegas, N.M., last Thursday had it that Johnson won as he pleased, and that Flynn, knowing he had no chance, began butting, hoping to be disqualified rather than be knocked out. Now comes W. W. Naughton, the famous fight critic of the San Francisco Examiner, who has been attending championship fights for the last twenty-five years with an entirely different story. He points out that Flynn had Johnson badly beat and would have had an excellent chance of winning the championship had he controlled his temper. Johnson's holding out just as much a foul as Flynn's butting. Naughton's story is well worth reading for it gives a different version from that sent broadcast by the Associated Press.

By W. W. Naughton. Jim Flynn's butting tactics brought the captain of the police force into the ninth round of the championship fight, and Referee Smith, after puzzling over matters a few seconds, called, however, that the fight was not on a foul Johnson, during the last few rounds of the fight, he had been determined to Flynn's arms and shoulders Flynn complained of being battered in his attempts to use his gloves, then the fireman used his hands in such a manner that it was declared foul.

Smith said: "They both transgressed the rules. Johnson by holding and Flynn by butting. The decision was given to Johnson because he had the better of the fighting up to that time. This was fully a week ago that I kind the man in the lead at the time the bout was stopped was to be declared the winner."

That Johnson had scored the most punches and had brought the most blood was something that could not be denied, but that he looked the winner at the time of the interference is a different matter. It was the opinion of the majority of the spectators that if Flynn could have kept his temper and fought cleanly he could have worn Johnson down.

Flynn was evidently the better trained of the pair. He was fast of fight and stronger at all times, while Johnson, with a grin on his face, stalled for fully half of each round. By the time the sixth round was started, Johnson was a somewhat bedraggled champion. His stamina had been affected by the constant pegging of Flynn's gloves against his stomach, and it was noticed that he no longer maintained the idiotic grin which he wore in the preceding rounds.

By the way Flynn rushed from his corner it was apparent that he had seen the evidences of Johnson weakening in the preceding rounds. The fireman tore at his quarry like a cat and a rat, and had Johnson again, in the press before Johnson had taken two steps from his corner. Johnson clasped Flynn's biceps and leaned his chin on the hollow of Flynn's arms in such a way that Flynn was as powerless as a man handcuffed. Flynn lashed and twisted to free himself, and once he could not do so, used his head as a battering ram on Johnson's throat and chin. Johnson still held on and glanced appealingly at the referee. And in the meantime Professor Watson Burns, that champion's principal second, jumped upon the ring ledge and shouted at Smith, "Can't you see that Flynn is butting?" Johnson added his voice to that of Burns and there was a look of concern in the champion's eyes.

Referee Smith pulled the men apart and shook a warning finger at Flynn. Flynn, whose fighting blood was up, yelled excitedly, "He's holding me, he's holding me, why don't you make him quit and fight as a champion should?"

Smith turned to Johnson and told him that the charge against him was true. Flynn tore to close quarters the minute the starting bell rang. Instead of meeting Flynn with a straight left or an uppercut, Johnson threw out his arms and clasped the fireman, thus strengthening the suspicion that the pace, the altitude and the rough work combined were having their effect on the champion's strength. But weak as he might have been, Johnson knew how to hold Flynn safely. Flynn tugged in an effort to get an arm free and finding himself baffled, nudged from his feet while he was still held in Johnson's embrace and pounded his forehead against the champion's chin and throat.

Professor Burns flashed up from the platform side again, and drew attention to the fact that Flynn was fighting foully. Johnson held on and gave the mute appeal at the referee across Flynn's head. Smith promptly split them out. This time, Smith warned both men, Flynn, for using his head in an unauthorized manner, and Johnson for holding on instead of breaking and fighting back.

The rest of the round was a repetition of the sixth, Johnson clinging and Flynn ramming Johnson's throat with his forehead, and during it all there was tumult among the spectators and confusion in the ring. It looked, two or three times, as though the referee was about to stop the fight and render a decision, but he probably had second Johnson's holding on against the other man's butting and allowed the thing to go on. It seemed reasonably clear that Johnson, at this time, would have liked nothing better than to have been declared the winner on a foul.

As the champion dropped heavily into his chair at the close of the eighth round he beckoned the referee to him and said: "I thought you told me you were going to be fair, and to tell the truth, I cannot make up my mind which of you is the worst offender."

Several friends of Flynn ran around to his corner in the resting spell and begged him to control himself and fight fairly.

"Johnson is all in, and you will surely whip him if you keep your temper," was dinned into Flynn's ear over and over again.

"I know it," said the fireman, "but it makes me sore clean through when he grabs me and holds on instead of trading punches with me."

They came together with a clash in the ninth round, with Flynn's usual rushing in. Again Johnson disappointed his friends, who expected to see him stop Flynn's charge with a blood-fetting left or a swift uppercut. The negro threw out his arm and almost enveloped Flynn, and, finding himself pinned, Flynn threw discretion to the winds and determined to get a lick of some kind. He butted Johnson's chin again and again and put up his usual speech of argument when Smith pulled them asunder. Another spasm of holding on Johnson's part and butting on Flynn's followed, during which Johnson's eyes said as plainly as words: "Mr. Referee, where are you going to give me this fight on a foul?"

The captain of the state police and one of his men clambered clear over the heads of the spectators and up into the ring. At this time the referee had the heavyweights standing apart and the captain of police went between them and threw both hands aloft.

"They will have no more fighting of this kind," he said, and the crowd felt that the battle for the championship was at an end.

Referee Smith pondered a few minutes and then announced his decision in favor of Johnson, for the reason already explained.

Little Stories About Baseball

By W. A. Phelan.

PAST HENRY'S LIMIT.

Hank O'Day, for many years a great umpire and now a big league manager, is not what you would call a mild or gentle person. He is stern and rock-like in face and bearing—as a successful umpire really has to be. Nevertheless, Henry is just and equitable, nor does he fly off the handle, as too many umpires do when the nagging gets too tropical. In fact, there are times when you can call Henry anything—or almost anything—and he won't penalize you, but there are a few things that are his limit—past them you must not go.

Two or three years ago on a burning, broiling, August afternoon, the Cubs were engaged in red-hot battle with the Giants. Close plays and consequently close decisions, were thick as leaves in autumn; tempers were being badly frayed, and the atmosphere was surcharged with trouble. After two or three innings of this stuff, the players on both sides began to take out their spite upon the umpire. They gave special attention to Hank O'Day, who was behind the plate. The batters averred that Henry gave the pitchers an area ten feet square to pitch in, everything within that distance being called a strike, and the pitchers asserted that Henry wouldn't call a strike, even if the batter swung upon it.

Ever and anon, the pitcher would walk in from the slab, address Henry with much spirit, and pour forth a volley of choice derivations. Mr. O'Day, instead of ejecting him, would simply sigh contemptuously and wave him back to his position. Then the catcher would set up a wild wall of frenzy, attempting to show exactly where a nice strike had passed, that Henry called a ball. Mr. O'Day would only grunt, and suggest the hastening of the game. Next the batsman would insinuate that the grand old umpire was either blind or a daylight porch-limber, and Henry would wearily wrinkle up his features without reply. Finally there came a close decision at the plate, Joe Tinker, who was called out, rushed at O'Day, squawking and protesting.

"You — — —" howled Tinker, "are you stewed or just a criminal?"

"It's a fine hot day," said Henry, "and you fellows would like to get off work if you could. Nothing doing!"

Go back there in the sun and keep on baking." Johnny Evers dashed up, set his face close to Henry's, and said something in a low tone. The next instant O'Day charged upon him, and chased him down the field, only ceasing the mad pursuit when Johnny went over the fence and scuttled up the alley.

to his position, and the game went on. After it was all over, a friend approached the umpire. "Did Evers call you a blinkety-blinked unprintable?" asked the friend. "Naw," Henry answered. "That's just a pet name among ball players." "Did he call you a blank-dinged unprintable?" "Naw. Any fellow's likely to say that when he's excited." "Well, then, what did he say to you?" "He called me," growled Henry savagely, "a parallellopedon. I don't just exactly know what that is, but by heck, no son of a gun is going to call me anything like that and get away with it!"

The First Calgary—Annual Camp.
The Church of the Redeemer—Annual Camp.

During the long days of the summer holidays, some of you may be in one part of the country where trees abound, and therefore will perhaps find it useful to know that there are many kinds of shelters that can be made and quickly made, and with no other instrument than an axe, without tools, or any kind of saw, and with a few matches in some kind of a tin which is waterproof, and a stout rope or cord, and some twine, it is possible to construct a shelter which will be a fine night, and one that will be a pleasant surprise to you.

The same idea is used extensively by the Indians in the northern part of this province, and throughout the Northwest territories, but instead of making a tripod they bend down three or more saplings and fasten them together in the centre. This can be varied by finding a place where saplings are fairly thick and selecting a spot where you can bend down six saplings, three on each side, and fastening each pair securely. Blankets or canvas placed over the top and fastened down with stones makes an ideal shelter, and skeleton remains of them will be found, along every trail north of Edmonton.

Australian Trackers

The black tracker was a sort of unofficial member of the Australian police attached to the Bush stations. Usually, he was to be found lounging in a cast-off police uniform—or such portions of it as it pleased him to wear—side, smoking, and very often drunk. It was only when the hue and cry was raised, and he was set to follow a trail, that his wonderful skill was called into play.

PARROT CALLED "SAVE ME"

Firemen, Thinking a Woman in Danger, Risked Lives and Rescued a Bird
Milwaukee, July 12.—There is one parrot in this city which owes its life to the fact that it is the possessor of an extended vocabulary. In a fire in the basement of the Plaza Tobacco company the entire 3-story building was filled with smoke. When fire men arrived they heard anguished screams of "Save me! Save me!" from the vicinity of the second floor.

Makes Men Strong

There is no scientific dogma better established than this: that the living organism is itself adequate to the cure of all its curable disorders.—Samuel J. L. Foster, A.M., M.D., M.R.C.P., London, etc.

Then why do doctors use drugs and why do the physical culturists accomplish so many cures. After all it is nature and not the doctor that cures. The "milder" nature is the dictum of today. Drugs are poisons.

To give less and less medicine is the tendency of the times. A doctor will give more medicine in the first year than the next three; he will give more in the fifth year than in the next ten; the better doctor he becomes the more he gives, and I suppose if we would become perfect doctors, we would give more.—Austin Flint, Sr., M. D.

What would he use? Let us tell you. Fresh air, sunshine, electricity, proper food and activity; no drugs needed. You can get all of these for you need for the taking—of course, excepting electricity—the greatest curative agent known to nature.

The physical culturists are quite correct in seeking a natural cure. They can accomplish such cures, except where the nerves are weak—lacking in energy. Electricity will restore that energy and enable nature to effect the cure. This is the foundation of the enormous success of Electro-Vigor, invented six years ago, for furnishing a constant, soothing, energetic current of electricity of great volume, to the human physique without discomfort or inconvenience. Send for our booklet about it.

Gentlemen—I take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I have received by using Electro-Vigor. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, kidney trouble and prostration so bad I could hardly get up. In November last I began the use of Electro-Vigor and today I am as well as ever, being completely cured. I highly recommend Electro-Vigor to any sufferer from these troubles. Wishing you success, yours truly,

RAINS IN MANITOBA MAKE DROUGHT AN IMPOSSIBILITY

The Rains of Wednesday and Thursday Night Covered All of Province

In Southern Part of Province Dry Weather Has Affected Crop 25 per Cent.

Winnipeg, Man., July 12.—In Manitoba representations from all sections shows that in almost every district heavy rains have fallen, which have entirely relieved any anxiety that had been felt on account of the drought. The rains of Wednesday and Thursday nights covered the whole province, not in one continuous rain, but falling in showers. Every district was touched. In some parts of Southern Manitoba, the dry weather of June affected probably 25 per cent. of the crop, and in the Rosefield district fifteen farmers were hailed out, and some hail is reported in other parts of the province, but the losses will affect the total very slightly, the individual case being the sufferer.

Since the rain the grain has made very rapid progress, and all points report very rapid growth. On the lighter lands some tip burn is in evidence and will slightly reduce the yield.

In Saskatchewan the crop is reported all over the province to be in very good condition. A number of districts have wheat headed out, and while the straw is short, the plant is in a very healthy condition. This is especially so in the Battle River, Kerrobert, and Outlook sections. There has been an abundance of rain, and some sections report not enough sunshine. Early flax is out in bloom. It is expected that the harvest will begin in early August and will be general by the 15th.

Alberta conditions are also very favorable, the winter wheat particularly having suffered damage less this year than in any previous year. In the Crow's Nest and Lethbridge sections more rain would do no harm. It is estimated that fall wheat harvesting will start about August 1, and spring wheat about August 10, which is considerably earlier than usual.

MANY CARPENTERS GO BACK TO WORK; END OF STRIKE SOON

Many of the Contractors Have Acceded to Demands of the Toolers

Builders Act Individually and Many Agree to Pay the Advanced Scale

Calgary's labor problem appears to have less met of its complexity, and much of its seriousness during the past twenty-four hours. A large number of contractors have agreed to the demands of the carpenters, and work has been resumed on a number of buildings, including the Burns Block and the Rex theatre.

The Builders' Exchange has, in a way, been eliminated from the controversy. The exchange has reached no agreement with the carpenters' union regarding the insertion of the word "competent" in contracts calling for skilled laborers. But numerous contractors not affiliated with the exchange, anxious to take advantage of the good weather, have agreed to the demands of the striking unionists, and are paying the wage scale requested.

The situation involving the contractors' union and the brick masons, is practically unchanged, save for the fact that some contractors have taken the initiative and laid down their own laws for the treatment of coursed masonry. This was the principal point in dispute between the two unions. The understanding, however, is only temporary, and it remains for the two unions to solve their difficulty.

Building operations are going ahead with but slight interruption. There is a heavy demand for skilled mechanics, and the contractors are anxious to "make hay" while the sun shines.

FREIGHT HANDLERS STRIKE; MAY TIE UP PORT OF MONTREAL

Montreal, Que., July 12.—A complete tie-up of the port of Montreal will likely take place if the freight handlers and longshoremen carry out a threat to start a sympathetic strike in support of the dock transport workers of the Dominion Transport company, who have left their work because they were not granted the increase of five cents an hour to 25 cents an hour, which they demanded. Several thousand men are involved in the trouble.

The shades of night were falling fast when through an Alpine village passed a youth who bore 'mid snow and ice a banner with a strange device: "Got a match?"

Although only seven numbers of his quarterly have appeared, it has been received with unanimous approval as a well-informed review of the politics of the British Empire. Mr. Kerr is Prof. E. J. Kyle, of the University of Toronto.

BRITISH COMMENT ON THE PREMIER'S SPEECH

London, July 12.—The Westminster Gazette this evening, commenting on Premier Borden's utterance, says that "nothing can be done which will sacrifice in any respect the autonomy of the Canadian people. Premier Borden, however, is forcing an open door when he begs us to understand that Canada does not propose to be an adjunct even of the British empire."

"The fate of Mr. Chamberlain's proposed schedule of forbidden industries," the Gazette adds, "taught that to those who needed the teacher. We have the greatest possible expectations of good results from Borden's mission."

JACK JOHNSON GOING BACK AND HE KNOWS IT SAYS GENTLEMAN JIM CORBETT; IS WISE TO RETIRE IN SEPTEMBER

Claims Never Has Defeated a Really First-Class Man and Is Afraid to Tackle the Colored Heavies—Al Palzer Was in Poor Shape in Last Battle—Ring News and Gossip

By James J. Corbett.
(Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.)
(Special to Morning Albertan.)
New York, July 12.—Although Jack Johnson and Al Palzer retained their place in the holiday battles with Jim Flynn and Joe Rivers neither champion added to his reputation.
The Las Vegas affair proved that Johnson is far from being the marvel he was dubbed by press and public following that "wonderful" feat of beating the services of the once great Jeffries.
The writer has contended right along, as readers of this column can testify, that Johnson is a greatly over-rated pugilist, and I believe his performance in the holiday battle with Flynn furnishes plenty of evidence on that point. Johnson has never defeated a first-class man. Tommy Burns, a great little man, was too severely handicapped in weight and strength to hope to beat the negro. Jeffries was only a shadow by the contestants calling for a decision in favor of the man who led on points up to the time of any possible interruption of the battle, was all that saved the much routed Johnson his highly-prized title of heavyweight champion of the world. And this in competition with a man probably forty pounds lighter.

Taking a line from the encounter of the Fourth, Johnson is a wise bird in deciding to retire from the ring after Labor Day. His reign at the head of the heavyweight division of pugilism is rapidly drawing near an end and I reckon no one is more "hep" to the fact than the accidental champion himself.
It looks like a cinch that Johnson will refuse to do battle with either Sam Langford or Joe Jeannette before the date set for his withdrawal from the game. I understand he plans to take on one or two of the "white hopes" if arrangements can be made. Al Palzer is mentioned as the one to be favored in this respect. Of course, the retirement thing may be only a bluff to avoid the other negroes for the time being and enable him to pick up a bit of soft money with little effort.
If he has no intention of ever again meeting either Langford or Jeannette, the champion had better quit the game for good and all. He can no longer get away with that "bull" about "nobility to fight him." The public fell for that talk for a while, but now that Flynn has made it plain that Johnson is not of the "unbeatable" kind, he will have to fight often or duck into seclusion.
It may be Jack's agents have tipped him off to the fact that within the ranks of the young white heavies there to be found one or two who give promise of developing into fighters of quality, and has pulled the "retirement" thing with the hope of billing the novices into meeting him before they are fully matured. Johnson is no boob, whatever else he may be accused of.

Every Day the Calgary Furniture's Midsummer Sale Beats the Previous Day's Selling Record

People like to deal in a store that's as free as the air--nothing succeeds like success. With the beginning of the year 1912 we made a test of lower prices to see if the people would recognize and appreciate, and they do. If lower prices would double our business it would be a paying proposition--it has more than doubled our business. Therefore, we are satisfied and everybody is happy. One day we saw a short statement written by Abraham Lincoln, reading thus: "No men living are more worthy to be trusted than those who toil up from poverty--none less inclined to take or touch aught which they have not honestly earned." And so we thought we'd try putting the poorer people on a par with the rich, trusting everybody alike by our CREDIT SYSTEM--FAIR ALIKE TO ALL--IF YOU ARE HONEST. And that, too, has proven profitable and contributed much to our success. Now, then, get in line. Better for less, and fair treatment. This business has no fence around it. It's for the people; that's why the store does the business.

Famous "Bonehead" Plays on Major League Diamonds Explained by Leading Baseball Players to Hugh S. Fullerton

By George M'Clain, Pitcher, Detroit Tigers, Who is the Latest No-Hit Heaver.)
Far be it from me to boast much about it, but it is a fact that what I did was the biggest bone-headed play I ever made, won the American League championship for Detroit.
The Las Vegas affair proved that Johnson is far from being the marvel he was dubbed by press and public following that "wonderful" feat of beating the services of the once great Jeffries.
The writer has contended right along, as readers of this column can testify, that Johnson is a greatly over-rated pugilist, and I believe his performance in the holiday battle with Flynn furnishes plenty of evidence on that point. I had considerable to say about Al Palzer in this column last week, and a few more words on the same promising subject may not be amiss in connection with the discussion of the heavyweight situation. It was plain as Palzer has challenged Johnson to box for the championship.
When big Al fought Bomadier Wells a few weeks ago he entered the ring in miserable condition. He won, at that, but not until knocked down and almost out by the Englishman. It was plain that he had no intention of ever again meeting either Langford or Jeannette, the champion had better quit the game for good and all. He can no longer get away with that "bull" about "nobility to fight him." The public fell for that talk for a while, but now that Flynn has made it plain that Johnson is not of the "unbeatable" kind, he will have to fight often or duck into seclusion.

notify either the infield or the outfield what I was going to do.
I tried hard to waste the ball, but instead of wasting it I got it over the plate, right in the groove. Hinchman had given the hit and ran sign, just as I expected he would do, and both runners were going when the ball was pitched. Hinchman hit that ball a mile a minute straight through my legs.
I thought it was certain for me, but you can imagine my surprise when I turned and saw Schaefer right back of second base, making a beautiful stop and starting a fast double play that killed Cleveland's last chance and saved the game for Detroit.
Saved the Game
It not only saved the game, but it saved the pennant, as we had to beat Chicago on the following Sunday to win the pennant and keep from finishing third.
When I recovered I told Schaefer the play I had in mind and we figured out the play this way: If the infield had known I was going to pitch out, O'Leary would have covered second base and the ball would have gone through over the bag with no one near it.
It would have been impossible for O'Leary to reach the ball. My failure to let the infield know what I was going to do saved us. I crossed Schaefer, and he thinking I was on the level about pitching a fast straight ball, played back of second and saved the game.
You can see how a bone-head play by myself would have saved the pennant if Schaefer hadn't saved it.

The boy stood on the burning deck. Whence all but he had fled; He hailed us as we neared the wreck. Have you a match?" he said.
