VACATION SCHOOLS. They have vacation schools in Toronto this summer, paid for by the Women's Council. Such schools are doing a splendid work in New York. It is thus described:

"In one school a writer on the New York Post found a child giving a practical demonstration of treating a person prostrated by the heat, an incident only too familiar to the poor of that city. When that lesson was over, the child bathed and dressed imaginary cuts, burns and other wounds. Domestic science is taught in all the branches, including cooking, sewing, knitting and the care of infants. Boys are taught chair-caning and at the end of a six weeks' course have learned a trade by which they may earn a little money. An excellent feature of the classes is that they afford relief from the heat, the school buildings being always cooler than the streets. Many classes are held on the roof-gardens. Down town schools have been thrown open to mothers and children from seven until ten in the evening, and the big gymnasium flats are filled with babies enjoying refreshing slumbers in hammocks."

READ THEM CAREFULLY. The Times representative in the course of his interviews with citizens occasionally meets one who asks for fuller information on the subject of manual training and why it should be considered of so much value as part of a school course. All such persons will profit by reading what Dr. Geo. U. Hay, formerly an eminently successful teacher, now the manager and editor of the Educational Review, and Rev. A. B. Cohen, who was himself a student in one of the first manual training schools established in Ontario have to say on the subject. Dr. Hay quotes an eminent American authority, who gives in a couple of paragraphs an admirable summary statement of the value of such training. The Times commends these statements to the thoughtful attention of its readers everywhere, for it is not in St. John alone that manual training is of value.

In Monday's Times will appear an article by Mr. T. B. Kidner, director of manual training for the province of New Brunswick, who in reply to a request from this paper goes quite fully into the questions of manual, industrial and technical training, marking quite clearly the distinction between them.

THE CHURCH AND WORLD

"Show me the man who performs his duty to the church to his family, and to his country, and I will show you a man who is not in need of Orange Lodges, Masonic lodges or temperance societies. These things are well enough in themselves, but after all they are only a substitute for helplessness. And if a man is really a Christian, he will give himself a manly name, yet they are only crutches after all."

In this vigorous fashion did Rev. Dr. Carman on Thursday evening set forth his views of man's duty, and apparently his views of other organizations than churches connected with the church. It will be noted that man's duty to the church is first in Dr. Carman's arrangement. The term church is so arranged in these days that some difficulty is likely to arise in the mind of the earnest seeker after the right path, if he has not had all his problems solved for him by simply accepting the dictum of Dr. Carman or another.

A church involves a creed, and there are churches whose creed Dr. Carman would himself repudiate. There are also members of other churches who would accept a creed which Dr. Carman would scathe. There have always been good and eminent men who were not active members of any particular denomination. But perhaps Dr. Carman in using the term church divorces it from creed, and would make the term broad enough to include every man who does his duty as he knows it, to God and to humanity. It is obvious that with all the churches, aided by what Dr. Carman calls crutches, we are all very far from the condition where every man is governed by the law of service. Man is a social animal, if the church will not meet the demands of his nature he must still be active, and so he joins societies. At a meeting of a Masonic lodge in this city a few evenings since, upwards of eighty men were present. They were not there of evil purpose or for mercenary reasons. A want of their social nature was satisfied. It is so with other fraternal organizations. Of course their scope is limited, for the very reason that the scope of the work of the church is limited. To be recognized as a brother one must pronounce the shibboleth.

But the world is approaching a time when ancient creeds will count for less, and human conduct more. It is indicated by the growing spirit of unity among the churches. They recognize more and more that the gospel of love is the gospel of the world, and that to do the work of the world is to do the work of the church. It is to do in the world the social, the civic, and the national life of the people. "In the world but not of it" will not describe the church of the future.

THE FRENCHMAN'S VIEW In conversation with the Times recently by a gentleman, who is a native of France, gave, in reply to questions, what he stated to be the views of the French people with regard to international relations. The Frenchman, he said, regards the present war as providential, and in sentiment France is strongly Japanese. With regard to Russia, the Frenchman does not forget that, when Napoleon had Russia beaten, the convicts were turned loose to destroy Moscow and cause the awful and disastrous retreat of the French army. With regard to Germany, there is in memory of the loss of Alsace and Lorraine, the Frenchman does not sympathize with Russia, and dreams of the day when Alsace-Lorraine shall be restored to the German to the French flag. With regard to England, it is different. Past wars have not left the same sting of memory. France and England together, with their matchless fleets, could curb the ambition of the German emperor without war. They could simply cut off his trade with the rest of the world. France, England and the United States, said this gentleman, could absolutely dominate Europe, and insist upon what President Roosevelt calls "a square deal." France has with satisfaction the alliance with England, and the success of Japan in the war with Russia. Both, said the gentleman from France, are for the good of the world, and for the advancement of human liberty.

The Klondike miners must have heard of Wall street. A returned miner tells the following story:—"The people have gone mad over gambling, the miners taking chances on anything. Large amounts are being lost. Just before I left a miner came in with forty thousand dollars' worth of gold. Within a week the man had lost it all at gambling tables, and had started back to the fields to make another fortune."

The cheese market is just now exciting much interest. English buyers and Canadian sellers are some distance apart in their ideas. While as high as 11¢ cents has been paid for cheese laid down in Montreal, the cables offer only 10¢ to 10½ cents. The price must go up in England, or down in Montreal, and the trade is uncertain which it will be. Meanwhile the makers are making a large profit.

For the three months ending June 30th, the Toronto street railway company paid in mileage to the city the sum of $38,484. In addition the city has since secured judgment against the company for about the same amount.

According to a Memphis paper, heaven has a rival. It says:—"There are more rich men in jail than ever before. It is evidently easier for a rich man to break into jail than it is for him to enter the kingdom of heaven."

THE GIRL WHO IS WELCOME Priscilla Preaches a Little Sermon to the Vacation Guest. The first duty of every guest is to do himself to her surroundings. Get into the spirit of the home where you are being entertained. If the family is in the habit of getting up an hour earlier than you are accustomed to, don't turn over for another nap and get to the breakfast table just as everyone else has finished. This is the time of year when flies are a pest, and keeping the breakfast warm delays the entire day's work. If food is served that you do not care for, try to eat it during your stay. Nothing troubles a hostess more than to have a guest refuse what she offers at table. Find some reading or sewing to occupy your morning hours. This is the time when your hostesses, both mothers and daughters, have household duties to perform. They have reserved the afternoon and evening for your entertainment, and if you are busy at something, they will not feel they are neglecting you during the morning. Where there is no servant open your own bed before going to breakfast, and soon after this time get up and tidy up the room. Never allow clothes to lie around on chairs, and be careful about laying hairbrush and comb on a spotless bureau cover. Two things cause the majority of broken friendships which occur during the vacation during a visit. One is trying to suggest to the hostess any change, however slight, in her household management. No matter how much you may discover going to waste or where confusion could be avoided by a little system, do not mention this to the woman whose hospitality you are enjoying. She is doing everything in her power to give you a good time, and she will resent any such advice whether it is asked for or not. The other cause of hard feeling is argument. Each family has its own fixed views, especially on religion. The home is the place for them to be expressed and talked over. The guest should respect this and keep her opinions and beliefs for her own home. Never enter into a family disagreement, and some other member of the household insists upon staying home to play tennis, remain neutral until your wishes are consulted. Should more ominous discussions arise, it is a guest's duty to leave the room until the storm has blown over, or to remain quietly and appear totally unconcerned. Always go to a house well equipped with little necessities and conveniences. A guest should have her own writing materials. Every member of the family may be asking for the library pen and ink just when you want to write your home letter. A miniature sewing outfit and shoe polish, etc., are essential also. Do not go off with other guests on an excursion of your own planning. Your hostess has the first call on your time, and it is her privilege to know just where you are, and to have the pleasure of your society when she is at liberty. Make a point always to take your leave when the time is up for which you were invited. There may be other guests following close on your heels, and the contents of showing you may be simply a final urging to remain, and the contents of showing you that the family has enjoyed your visit. Let them feel that they really want you to come again.

The Kaiser's Envoy, Whose Activity Alarms M. Rowier
COUNT VON TATTENBACH.
Paris, Aug. 4.—At the weekly cabinet meeting held Tuesday, the premier, M. Rowier, speaking of foreign matters, explained the situation on the Moroccan question, especially relating to the arrangement with Germany. He had not yet received the expected answer to the last French note to Prince Radolin as to the details of the celebration, and he was awaiting it with interest.
The attitude, he added, of the special German envoy at Fez, Count von Tattenbach, was very strange, as he was acting outside the instructions of the German government and contrary to the arrangements made between France and Germany in view of a conference. This would occasion complications that would seriously hinder the conclusion of a definite settlement.
The Tempe announces that Count von Tattenbach is seeking from the Sultan a German concession for a cable from Tangier to Mogador, the second important port of Morocco, on the Atlantic seaboard, and that the negotiations are well advanced.

ADMIRAL TOGO---A RECOLLECTION
(London Times.)
I have some memories of the early 70's which have been much in my mind during the last year and a half. They linger round the figure of Hehahel Togo, and they are now put on record in that they have their own historic value. If I do not tell the "how" or "where," my minutes will not be the less finished; "how" and "where" do not signify. If I tell my tale thus, in my own fashion, it will be the better agreed with that Japanese reserve and that quality and practice of silence which have given us all such occasion to think for the past 30 months.
I got back in memory to 1870, and I am a boy again, reading for the Varsity with a private tutor. It is a dark January evening, and I, but fresh come after the Christmas tide, get a hearty New Year's greeting, coupled with a confidential "I want to tell you something. We've got a young Jap here." The world was smaller in those days. Japan had been almost as secluded as Lhasa. To me, "a young Jap" suggested nothing so much as some new domestic pet from somewhere—probably Africa. So my only response was, "A young what?" "A young Japanese, my dear boy, come in and see him." And in another instant I heard, "Here he is! Let me introduce Mr. Togo." I see now before me a man, short in stature and slight in build, who might have been "any age" from 17 to 35 (he was, in fact, 19-20), who, with a charming smile that remains an abiding memory, was looking at me, and who, taking my offered hand, bade me "Good morning"—nightfall though it were. He had only been in England a couple of days; "Good morning" and "Thank you" were the limits of his English vocabulary. In less than another couple of days we were fast friends, and for six months or more we were constant companions and allies. We were in the same house (that of an ordinary English family), shared the same study, and generally led a common life. The only other lad there of our own standing was a Canadian, who, I recall, put Togo specially into my care, with the charge—"I've got to teach him mathematics, but you might try to teach him English." No doubt my efforts were clumsy enough, but Togo had a capacity for taking pains, by which said quality genius is apt to triumph over early obstacles. In a month he wrote me a letter (during an absence of a day or two) a letter of which the first sentence ran—"When we shall to meet next week I shall be conversant to understand with you." A fairly good result that, methinks, for five weeks' effort. That he was a born lightning man we none of us had the ghost of a suspicion. It is easy enough, post festum, to recall small points, the significance of which were lost upon us then. Then we saw only his perfect courtesy, which charmed everybody (the parlourmaid declared, "Mr. Togo quite amazes himself with politeness"); his punctuality—no one ever knew him to be a moment late for the simplest engagement; his kindly good nature—"temper" he may have had, but there was never a flicker to be seen; his instant readiness to accept English modes of life and his power of doing exactly what we did without giving us any ground for thinking him to be a mere copyist. The minutest detail did not escape him: I could lead my record with surprising instances of his ability in this regard. Full of fun, with a keen sense of humor, he was a gnat for work—intent with dogged intensity which is altogether lacking in the English character. Above all other qualities, he had the gift of silence—not the silence of reticence, but the silence of economical speech, which never wastes a word. There was no need to talk. "Do you understand this or that?" There was in his eye and his gesture the unspoken assurance that he had the grip thereof and was ready for more. On one subject only did he seem to have his tongue loosened—on dear Japan he was willing to talk; his heart was his heart's devotion.
Is it possible that the courteous little gentleman whom we know as having been the man, with nerves of resilient steel, who has thrilled the world in the way that all the world remembers? We failed to see it then, but we call to mind, after he has made history, that there were never any "difficulties" for him—that there was none in his joy—back

PLAYS AND PLAYERS
Monday Night Tells of Tom Watters and the Warlike Irishman—How "Neighborhood Neighbors" Got Its Present Name.
This week in matters theatrical has been but a repetition of previous weeks. There is a deluge over everything, and although local theatre-goers have had a spasm of entertainment in the engagement of "Neighborhood Neighbors" at the Opera House, and the Georgia Minstrels at York Theatre, yet the conditions are not yet up to even that stage where they might be called normal. These summer shows that visit St. John are, as a rule, a mélange of shabby and nonsense served up by pretty girls and flavored with the quips and jests of sundry comedians as a sauce.
It must be said, however, that "Neighborhood Neighbors" is one of the best of that class of entertainments that has visited the city. Seldom has a more convincing Celtic comedian than Tom Waters been with us, and his principal charm to me was that he did not burlesque the part. Isn't it funny how many alleged comedians there are who, while they portray other nationalities intelligently, can no more play an Irishman properly than could Sir Henry Irving play "Little Eva."
The very minute an actor is cast for an Irish part he usually dons impossible terra cotta whiskers, a suit of clothes fourteen sizes too large for him—so that he may properly hitch his trousers to his ears every thirty seconds just to show that his tailor was not mean with his cloth—and then he twists and contorts his face until he sends to all appearances culminated as a living example of the proof of the Darwinian theory.
This, I say, is the only proper way to play an Irishman according to the conception of some of these uninitiated intelligent comedians. Mr. Waters has never learned that way. He plays his Irishman as if the poor man might have had some glimmer of sense, and if I am any judge, the theatregoers approved of his conception. Mr. Waters' work was notable in this respect. Aside from him there was little else to the show. That it was, however, very well done.
Mr. Waters, I am told, wrote the piece himself, and first called it "O'Neill's Stone Wall." Unfortunately there was an O'Neill and he had a stone wall. He saw Mr. Waters play the piece and was so impressed with it that he came again the next night with a slogan and threatened to fill the actor full of birdshot and salt. This naturally had its effect upon Mr. Waters' nerves, and all the other actors could be induced to come on the stage to face a bombardment that would make the Sussex shrews feel ashamed of itself. And so the thing might have continued and gone on like Tennyson's hawk, indefinitely, had not O'Neill one night shot ear-ring holes in the ears of the musical director. That cost Mr. Waters a pair of earrings for the young man who supplied the music. Soon the piece was taken off and when it reappeared it was under its present title.

ADMIRAL TOGO---A RECOLLECTION
(London Times.)
I have some memories of the early 70's which have been much in my mind during the last year and a half. They linger round the figure of Hehahel Togo, and they are now put on record in that they have their own historic value. If I do not tell the "how" or "where," my minutes will not be the less finished; "how" and "where" do not signify. If I tell my tale thus, in my own fashion, it will be the better agreed with that Japanese reserve and that quality and practice of silence which have given us all such occasion to think for the past 30 months.
I got back in memory to 1870, and I am a boy again, reading for the Varsity with a private tutor. It is a dark January evening, and I, but fresh come after the Christmas tide, get a hearty New Year's greeting, coupled with a confidential "I want to tell you something. We've got a young Jap here." The world was smaller in those days. Japan had been almost as secluded as Lhasa. To me, "a young Jap" suggested nothing so much as some new domestic pet from somewhere—probably Africa. So my only response was, "A young what?" "A young Japanese, my dear boy, come in and see him." And in another instant I heard, "Here he is! Let me introduce Mr. Togo." I see now before me a man, short in stature and slight in build, who might have been "any age" from 17 to 35 (he was, in fact, 19-20), who, with a charming smile that remains an abiding memory, was looking at me, and who, taking my offered hand, bade me "Good morning"—nightfall though it were. He had only been in England a couple of days; "Good morning" and "Thank you" were the limits of his English vocabulary. In less than another couple of days we were fast friends, and for six months or more we were constant companions and allies. We were in the same house (that of an ordinary English family), shared the same study, and generally led a common life. The only other lad there of our own standing was a Canadian, who, I recall, put Togo specially into my care, with the charge—"I've got to teach him mathematics, but you might try to teach him English." No doubt my efforts were clumsy enough, but Togo had a capacity for taking pains, by which said quality genius is apt to triumph over early obstacles. In a month he wrote me a letter (during an absence of a day or two) a letter of which the first sentence ran—"When we shall to meet next week I shall be conversant to understand with you." A fairly good result that, methinks, for five weeks' effort. That he was a born lightning man we none of us had the ghost of a suspicion. It is easy enough, post festum, to recall small points, the significance of which were lost upon us then. Then we saw only his perfect courtesy, which charmed everybody (the parlourmaid declared, "Mr. Togo quite amazes himself with politeness"); his punctuality—no one ever knew him to be a moment late for the simplest engagement; his kindly good nature—"temper" he may have had, but there was never a flicker to be seen; his instant readiness to accept English modes of life and his power of doing exactly what we did without giving us any ground for thinking him to be a mere copyist. The minutest detail did not escape him: I could lead my record with surprising instances of his ability in this regard. Full of fun, with a keen sense of humor, he was a gnat for work—intent with dogged intensity which is altogether lacking in the English character. Above all other qualities, he had the gift of silence—not the silence of reticence, but the silence of economical speech, which never wastes a word. There was no need to talk. "Do you understand this or that?" There was in his eye and his gesture the unspoken assurance that he had the grip thereof and was ready for more. On one subject only did he seem to have his tongue loosened—on dear Japan he was willing to talk; his heart was his heart's devotion.
Is it possible that the courteous little gentleman whom we know as having been the man, with nerves of resilient steel, who has thrilled the world in the way that all the world remembers? We failed to see it then, but we call to mind, after he has made history, that there were never any "difficulties" for him—that there was none in his joy—back

WAY FOR THE WORLD BEATERS

The Matinee Races at Moosepath Next Saturday Will be the Best Ever.

Among the interesting events of the future in horse racing there are none that are exciting as much enthusiasm among the local horsemen as the matinee races which are booked for Saturday afternoon, August 12th on Moosepath Park.

As stated in the Times of July 27th there will be a free-for-all for trotters, and the same for pacers; and a gentleman's driving race for trotters and one also for pacers.

A special race will also take place between Annie Brevet, Fred Duncan's mare and Walter R. owned by Louis King. This is expected to be a very interesting contest.

This will make five races in all. A large number of entries have already been received from owners of fast horses in and about the city and it is estimated that some "dark horses" will be entered that will show some of the fancy ones a wrinkle.

Shaw Simplicius of Waybark told the Times a few days ago that he had a colt that would make some of the sage around town pick up their feet a bit. The colt's name is Bunglehole out of a mare 2:20 1/2 by Barbados, 2:42 2/3. Bunglehole has no mark as yet, but his owner says he can easily do 2:10. In a recent trial he covered a half in 1:16 and wasn't even tired after it. He is said to have a peculiar facility of getting out of tight holes and winning in sweet style.

Another speedy one that will no doubt be entered in the gentlemen's driving race is "Never-beat" which was a mark of 5:10 a few years ago.

We have heard of others but they will be spoken of later when the entries are all in. There promises to be a record attendance at these races and from present indications they will be well worth seeing.

THE BORDER WAR

More Trouble Reported Between the St. John Lumber Company and a Bangor Firm.

Chesoonook, Me., Aug. 4.—The lumber war which attracted so much attention on the St. John river during the spring has broken out again, this time at Chamberlain Lake, and serious trouble is feared.

According to reports there was a clash at the lake yesterday between a crew employed by the St. John Lumber Co. and the agents of the Marsh & Ayer Co., a Bangor firm.

It is reported that the St. John crew went to the locks which dammed the lake and attempted to raise the gates. These locks are controlled by the Marsh & Ayer Co. The attendant in charge of the locks made a vain attempt to prevent the gates being raised. It is claimed by him that the St. John crew used violence, took his rifle from him and raised the gates despite his protest.

The agent of the Marsh & Ayer Company came to Chesoonook, Me., on Tuesday for the purpose of telephone to his firm. The agent later returned to Chamberlain Lake with the intention of closing the gates.

It is feared that trouble will result if the gates are again closed. The St. John people want the water running to clean up their debris, while the Bangor firm wants to hold it back for power purposes.

Montreal, Aug. 4.—(Special)—A special London cable says that a party of 183 Doukhobors from Yakutsk Territory passed through on their way to Canada. The dispatch adds that the Yakutsk Doukhobors are by no means fanatics. They are most of them of the quietest and most industrious type. Many of them express no sympathy with the fanaticism of the Canadian Doukhobors.

A new ship built and owned by Captain Shubal Cayval was launched in Marble Cove yesterday morning. She is a yacht rigged and she is very trim and attractive. Captain Cayval and his wife expect to start on a cruise up river in her today.

THE WEST SIDE WHARF

Recommendations to Call for Tenders at Once Will be Before City Council on Monday

A recommendation from a sub-committee to call for tenders for the west side wharf will be before the council Monday. The date for the bids to close is fixed for August 22.

The sub-committee appointed at Tuesday's meeting of the board of works to consider the plans of the city engineer, met yesterday afternoon. Ald. MacRae occupied the chair, and Ald. Frink, Buxter, Riley and Bullock were present, with the director, engineer and common clerk.

It is understood that the plans prepared by the engineer, modified in certain details, will be recommended to the council as the basis on which the specifications will be drawn.

The plans call for a berth 300 feet long and 180 feet wide, the spilling to be of hard pine, the body of the wharf of brick, and the flooring of spruce. This berth will commence at Union street at a point 300 feet north of the present wharf.

The plan for the second berth, which will extend farther out into the harbor at an angle parallel to No. 2 at Sand Point, has not at present been taken into consideration.

It is expected that the council will authorize a call for tenders for the first immediately, as the date recommended for the closing of bids is August 22. It was felt by the committee that the city should make every preparation for starting the work as soon as the dredging, which the dominion government has in hand, will permit.

The matter of penalties for delay by the contractors was also taken up and suggestions on this point will also be considered by the council on Monday.

PASSENGERS DELAYED

Suburban Train Held up Last Night by an Accident Near South Bay.

The passengers of the suburban train were delayed last night on account of an accident to the engine near South Bay. When about a quarter of a mile west of South Bay a crank pin in connection with the side rods of the engine No. 527 broke, and the rod was driven up through the engine seat where Fireman Allan McHarg rested. Mr. McHarg was attending to the fire at the time and luckily escaped injury.

The broken rod was tied up and the train taken back to Fairville. Orders were given to proceed to day after the engine was repaired. The train left South Bay at 10 o'clock this morning and the passengers started off again for their homes.

RAILROAD TO BUILD CHURCH

The Pennsylvania Railroad, as part of its terminal project in this city, is going to build a church, parish house, and parochial school at an estimated cost of $30,000.

The new structures will cover a large plot running from Thirtieth to Thirty-fourth street, just west of Ninth Avenue, and when completed, will be turned over to St. Michael's Roman Catholic church.

The present church property was bought, under contract, by the Pennsylvania, several months ago, but as it turns out, the deal was to be carried through only on condition that the railroad should supply similar buildings on another plot somewhere in the neighborhood.

In the site acquired there will be erected a church, a vestry room, a rectory, a convent, a sister school, and a school of brick and limestone of ornamental design. When the buildings are completed the church will turn over its present property to the railroad.

DR. WARDEN'S CONDITION
A Toronto dispatch says: The Rev. Dr. Warden, treasurer of the Presbyterian church in Canada, it is announced, is not making the progress his friends desire. He has barely held his own during the four or five days he has been in the country. While he is able to get out of bed and on the veranda on a couch several hours daily, he does not seem to gain strength.

The doctor, Dr. Warden, who has been in the hospital for some time, is said to be in a hopeless state. It is to be hoped that the tide will turn.

The cigar-box makers of Havana, Cuba, have joined in the strike begun by other workers for a working day of eight hours.

In Germany it is to be found the highest development of workmen's insurance. In that country a social experiment has been conducted on a large scale, and the

The request of the international foundry employees of New York for an increase of wages—nine cents a day and helpers $2—has been granted by nearly all firms in Greater New York.

The Supreme Court of Michigan has held that the law requiring that a clause be inserted in contracts for public works to employ union men is constitutional.

The Boston (Mass.) Printers' Union No. 1 has adopted a law that all members over sixty and all who become sixty years of age shall be exempt from all further dues or assessments for life, yet continue as active members, with all the rights to work, and entitled to all the benefits and disability benefits, and their families to the benefits paid by the union upon their deaths.

The Barbers' Union of Chicago has finally signed an agreement with the Master Barbers' Association, which represents about 2,000 shops.

The report of the Berlin Trades Union Commission, which is practically the same thing as a trade union in this country, is that the membership of the affiliated organizations was 174,102 at the end of 1904, an increase of over 37,000 against 1903.

The Greater New York Bakers' union, in consequence of the court decision, will force the demand through its own efforts, if possible.

The last year has been a notable one in England as far as labor conditions are concerned. The returns issued each month by the London local government board show that the number of persons in receipt of relief from the state is higher than in any preceding year since 1874.

EARL GREY WELCOMED

Governor General Given Great Reception at Charlottetown Yesterday.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Aug. 4.—(Special)—The sun shone from an unclouded sky today in regal splendor for the vice-regal visit, when Earl Grey and his party landed from the Minto and, escorted by the Prince Edward Island Light House and guard of honor, proceeded amid the booming of guns to the historic parliament building.

In the executive council chamber were assembled ladies and representative men of the province, including Lieutenant-Governor McKinnon, Premier Peters, and Mayor Kelly, the four senators, members of the dominion, provincial and civil legislatures, Dr. J. W. Robertson, Bishop MacDonald and clergymen of all denominations, leading business and professional men, the audience filling the chamber to the utmost capacity.

Earl Grey was accompanied by Lady Grey and daughter, Lady Evelyn Grey, and his staff. An address was read on behalf of the people of the province by Premier Peters. It referred to his excellency's distinguished career and his appointment to office at a time when Canada has attained a recognized position among nations of this world. Reference was made to the work of the late Earl Grey in education, and to his contemplated visit to the Macdonald Consolidated School.

How to Live Long and Remain in Perfect Health and Beauty

(By DR. CRISTION, OF PARIS, FRANCE.)

This much coveted condition can only be secured by a constant and systematic care of the body from the crowning wealth of hair to the shapely and firmly placed feet.

Proper nourishment, well regulated habits, and attention to the complete performance of the functions of the different organs of the body with a sufficient amount of rest, will assure a feeling of health in general, but will not pass over the body against the ravages of time. The feelings and activities of youth may be maintained, but the face and figure may show the age in years as plainly as though stamped in materials on the forehead.

To begin with—the hair should be properly and regularly brushed and the scalp massaged and kept free from dandruff and dirt. We all use a comb and brush, but how many know what kind of a comb and brush should form a part of their toilet articles? A wood comb of these materials may not be out of the ordinary, but a brush, secure one with moderately stiff bristles, the tufts of which are so arranged that the ends of each group are longer than those on the outside. The comb should have long broad teeth with smooth edges and rounded points. No wash or shampoo for the hair should be used that will extract from it all of its oil, as glycerine is used in the presence of air between the cells of the scalp one upon the other, make up the hair's shock or column.

The skin should be carefully and properly washed, attention being given to the fact that the millions of little pores are so many mouths from which poured out are the poisons of the system as well as the moisture and oil which keeps this, one of the most important organs of the body, in proper condition.

The usefulness of massage must not be forgotten—it promotes circulation and stimulation of good healthy oxygen-bearing blood, helps nutrition to the part supplied. With perfect nutrition wrinkles are impossible and double chins and sagging cheeks cannot occur.

To possess a beautiful face one of the first requisites is that the muscles of the face should be set to the tune of reason and beauty, to make the reflection from your mirror a pleasure to you the reflection of your own life and mind must be agreeable.

The use of the general advertised lot of cosmetics and lotions, the become-beautiful-day preparation, is to be deplored. True beauty is more than skin deep, and the hollow places in face and figure and a disagreeable expression cannot be filled out or changed with a paint brush or powder puff.

The eyes are the windows of the soul and from them looks the life within; lack of nature's resources—sleep—or the use of stimulants to create a tone which is temporary at best, cannot fail to blur them as they are the source of entrance to the body, and act as poisons to the system if retained.

Exercise should be carried on systematically each day, never losing sight of the fact, however, that the tiring of any set of muscles does harm rather than good. Cultivate the habit of deep breathing, it not only aerates the blood and stimulates the circulation, and the organs of the body, but it tones up the heart and nerves.

Remember that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, and to be strong in mind and body the entire delicate mechanism from head to foot must be in perfect order. If you neglect the least part of the machinery, keep it clean and repair and it will last and retain its usefulness.

Not all bodies are built alike, and even where all hygienic rules are observed and the results of such observance entirely satisfactory, we can often improve on a poor gift from nature by the use of a skin cream that can be smoothed away by rubbing in the proper direction and imperfectly developed parts such as the neck and bust can be made to conform to the lines of the body. Foods which are readily absorbed and locally used by the open pores of the skin, and an excessive deposit of fat in any portion of the body can be overcome by the use of massage with suitable oils and lotions to the affected parts.

These suggestions followed out will not simply prolong life and insure health, but add to and preserve and add to each individual alone and a source of admiration to the world over.

Dr. Cristion in his two lectures at the York Theatre Monday and Tuesday afternoon will give valuable instruction to women concerning their health.

No lady who values her personal appearance should miss these lectures.

Constipation, a torpid liver, imperfect digestion or the absence of proper elimination of waste materials by the kidneys and a perfect or even good complexion are not even accessories, much less companions; and particular attention should be paid to these functions. Closely allied in duty with the kidneys is the skin, and this should ever be kept clean and healthy, and not varnished with lotions which close the pores and stop the escape of materials which are of no further use to the body, and act as poisons to the system if retained.

Remember that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link, and to be strong in mind and body the entire delicate mechanism from head to foot must be in perfect order. If you neglect the least part of the machinery, keep it clean and repair and it will last and retain its usefulness.

THE SCHOOL OF MISSIONS

Very Successful Session Last Evening Closed the School for This Year.

A number of others present took part in the discussion, after which the school was closed by Principal Riddell and Rev. D. Picher.

The final session of the school was held in the evening at 8 o'clock, when Rev. Geo. M. Campbell, of Halifax, in the chair. After devotional services two eloquent and earnest addresses were delivered by Dr. Carman, on calling out the reserves, and Dr. Henderson, on money and missions.

Dr. Carman's address dealt with the nature of sin and the results of its operations on the mind of man. He said, in a more negative but a mighty and highly organized force, moral omnipotence and the only power you can set over against it is the omnipotence of God. The great systems of idolatry in India and China are manifestations of the organization of the kingdom of darkness and sin, and it is against these forces in himself and others that the Christian man and woman is called upon to struggle.

The speaker said he had undertaken, with great hesitancy, to speak on this subject, of calling out the reserves, because he felt the utter inadequacy of the expression. "I don't know where your reserves are, except they are the few superannuated ministers. It is not calling out the reserves that is needed, but reorganization of the army. The cowardly, timid and laggard who are in the hospitals not because of sickness but shirking, must be sent out. Let the men who are in power, place and popularity lead out to the front. Let them fight in their own bodies and then, if there is any energy left in them, let them go to Africa and fight there. Fight first the immeasurable sin of political and civil corruption, and we shall have more force to fight the forces of heathenism abroad."

It is the class of Dr. Carman's address. Dr. Howard Sprague said that as many would leave for home early today, the session would be the last. He said that the committee had no fear of the financial side of management of the school. He thought the school had been a success. He said that a school of missions ought to be held in the city of St. John every year.

Rev. Dr. Henderson spoke on money and missions. He said there may be money where there are no missions, but there can be no missions without money. Unless there is poured out upon the people a spirit of greater liberality the world will not be evangelized this generation. He said Christian missions were the means of a greater liberty for all that a man is. Money is stored human energy, the elemental force of society. The money you give to missions becomes the highest power. The question is being discussed, has the church of God surplus energy enough to evangelize the world during the present century?

"If one little mite of the world's great wealth could run into missionary channels, he said, it would raise the heathen as high as any of us inside of a few years. We are living most extravagantly. The European peasant is better off than the American peasant 200 years ago. Dr. Henderson then went on to speak of the enormous wealth of Protestant Christendom and the pitifully small sum expended on missions. He urged those present to give missions their proper place. The church that is not run along missionary lines is like a locomotive off the track. It is going to fall and deserves to fall. Methodism is a missionary force of its own nature. Christianity is an aggressive power or it is nothing. He concluded by an appeal to all to give generously, as by so doing they would be blessed in their own souls.

Dr. Stephenson will be in attendance today and the missionary literature in the school room may be examined by all who wish.

"That girl has an unfortunate idea of her position," answered Miss Caynes. "She has an idea that she is trying smart things when she is merely saying things that smart."

SEAMAN'S INSTITUTE

Manager Gorbell's Report for the Last Quarter Shows Much Work Done.

The Seaman's Institute is becoming more popular every year with the citizens and seamen. Manager S. L. Gorbell's report for the last three months shows a decided advance in the work of the Seaman's Mission Society during the quiet summer months.

The report shows that the mission has been visited by more seamen than any other year during the summer months. All who have visited it for the first time express themselves as greatly pleased with the home-like surroundings and the kind reception they receive. Especially is this appreciated by those who, coming out of the hospital have to wait some time before shipping. The reading and recreation rooms have been well patronized.

The following figures will give some idea of the work done during the three months of May, June and July:

A DUSTLESS AUTOMOBILE

A new dustless car has been tried, and it seems to show so marked an improvement over other designs as to be well worth studying. ALL ABOUT THE HORSE

Here is a Bombay native student's essay on the horse:--The horse is a very noble quadruped, but when he is angry he will not do so. He is ridden on the spinal cord by the bridle, and sadly the driver places his hands on the stirrup, and divides his lower limbs across the saddle, and drives his animal to the meadow.

LAUGHED AT THE INSPECTOR. The Sorry Plight of the Man Who Keeps the Fishermen in Order.

While the local fishery inspector has his friends, it is quite evident that in certain circles the wily official is not as popular as he might be; a fact which is evidenced by the following story which has been told at his expense.

The official disapproved, so seems, that disease was working among the funny occupants of the salmon pond at West End some of which he found it necessary to remove. These were placed in a large box, 60 x 12 feet, which was kept somewhere along the Strait Shore.

On Thursday last he started from the West End in a gasoline launch with a number of logs in tow which he intended to fasten to the salmon depository to prevent its sinking, as it was becoming very heavy. When near his destination something went wrong with the machinery, and the little craft containing the official began to drift up with the tide towards the falls.

This caused considerable excitement among his friends on the shore, who, after some effort, succeeded in placing him on terra firma. But those who were not altogether in love with him stood on the banks and laughed.

A unique gift was received yesterday by a young lady in St. John from her brother who is in Medicine Hat, N. W. T. It was three rattlesnake skins and all. These are used by judges in the west for making belts and judging from the specimens which were shown they were very pretty. The largest skin is four feet long and a half inches wide. The other two skins are about a foot shorter.

According to the instructions received these skins are cut to the required length and width and sewn on a ribbon or canvas, the tail with the rattles serving as a buckle. They are also used for hat bands and in various other ways. The price of the belts in the west after they are made up, ranges from $10 to $20 each.

CENTRAL RAILWAY. It is expected the contract for repairs will soon be awarded.

A report is in circulation to the effect that Gillmore Brown has been given the contract for work on the Central Railway, and that this will in all probability be confirmed by the government next week. Tenders are not being called, but previous bids will serve as a basis for the new contract, which will be remodelled to comply with amendments made to the specifications made by Engineer Wetmore. The decision will, if nothing happens in the meantime, be reached on Thursday.

Though a good portion of the work must be done, the contractor will not be bound to complete it this year. Considerable improvement is necessary though if traffic is to be carried on during the winter.

R. L. Warren, editor of the Ann Arbor Courier-Register, who was east with the Michigan Press Association, has written an admirable series of letters for his paper, of the visit to St. John he says among other things—

It is by far the most charming view I have seen since I left New York. The city is built on a hillside and the view of the bay and the wonderful Lacadie rapids. St. John was under the auspices of the Tourist Association, composed of business and professional men, assisted by the local police. There are a number of places where opportunity is made to direct the tourist. We had seen and enjoyed the St. John river, its beautiful scenery, and the hospitality of the citizens of St. John. WM. HAZELHURST HAS PASSED AWAY. Well Known Foundryman Died at 9.30 This Morning.

With the death of William Hazelhurst, which occurred at 9.30 o'clock this morning, St. John loses one of its oldest and best known citizens.

Mr. Hazelhurst was a native of Wolverhampton, England, having come to this city in 1858, forty-seven years ago, and since that time been identified with the foundry business in St. John.

He may well be termed one of the captains of local industry, having in 1873 established the firm of William Hazelhurst & Co., which for many years was among the flourishing business houses of St. John, employing a large number of men, and besides enjoying a good general patronage, did a large share of work for the Intercolonial Railway. He was widely known throughout the city and province, and his death will be deeply deplored by all those who knew him.

Tenders are not being called, but previous bids will serve as a basis for the new contract, which will be remodelled to comply with amendments made to the specifications made by Engineer Wetmore. The decision will, if nothing happens in the meantime, be reached on Thursday.
