The St. Louis Republican says that Tom Worrell, a waiter in the Metropolitan Hotel at Omaha, has been raised from menial servitude to aristocratic affluence by the death of a kind old uncle, who died and left Tom a fortune of $150,000. A Georgia editor describing a wedding lately, said the bride "looked a very lily, radled in the golden glimmer of some evening lake—a foam fleck, snowy, yet sun-flushed, crowning the ripplings of some soft Southern sea." If that were really so, the bridegroom must have been very much puzzled to know whether he was wedding a submarine conservatory or an Aurora Borealis.

venture to mention the peculiar tastes in pets said to be shown by the venerable maiden ladies of America. In Louisiana, it is with small alligators that they ornament the house, and fill their hearts; in Wisconsin, the globular turtle is deemed sweetest and dearest; in Tennessee a love for lizards prevails, while in Arkansas select snakes are the fashion. It is perhaps unnecessary to observe that in other regions that rare and pleasant animal, the Domestic Cat, is often a favorite.

some slight resemblance to the modern management of criminals in America. A lately reprinted paragraph from a newspaper of that old time contains the news of the sentence of death pronounced upon one man for coining false money, upon another for horse stealing, and on two more for burglary, while a fifth, convicted of manslaughter, escaped easily with a fine of ten shillings. This is not so very much unlike New York justice.

There's a magnificent opportunity for

Two colored men at Mansfield, Pa., lately amused themselves by saturating a Newfoundland dog with coal oil, and then setting fire to the poor beast. Wild with terror, after running some time in the open air, enveloped in flames, the poor brute took shelter under a dwelling-house. The building soon took fire, which the populate equals that of the famous gen leman of the West who could not make up his mind to live, the corn that contributed to continue his existence not being shelled. The free descendants of the former slave population of Reunion have setting fire to the poor beast. Wild with terror, after running, some time in the open air, enveloped in flames, the poor brute took shelter under a dwellinghouse. The building soon took fire, which was only extinguished after cutting away part of the floor. A woman, who at the time was very sick, was so badly frightened by the dog's unearthly howls and the fire that she was thrown into convulsions and it is expected that she cannot sions, and it is expected that she cannot recover. The poor dog was literally rossted alive.

The thriftiness of Mrs. Weller, whose first husband's garments so fortunately fitted the elder Samivel, is equaled if not surpassed by that of a widow of Portland, in the canny State of Maine. Perceiving that her adored departed's silver coffin plate was lying about generally in the way, and desiring very much a pair of handsome new gold-bowed spectacles, she invited a passing peddler to a barter of the same. Leaving the room for an instant she was shocked on returning to find that lovely coffin-plate and the merchant alike gone. Her frantic grief was something too sacred to dwell upon. The police, however, recovered the silver treasure, and her calmness, if not her an injury to the cause of morality in his preaching and dispensing an "emasculated theology; a Christianity without a Christ." Mr. Beecher disclaimed any pretention of being a profound thinker or the founder of a system. He preached to save men, and during his whole ministry Christ had been the starting point of his preaching, and he had preached not is preaching, and he had preached not ne Divinity of Christ, which he believed, and the atonement which he also believed, but he had preached Christ as a present Saviour—a manifestation of God, and this with many variations, and he would appeal from Dr. Curry badly informed, to Dr. Curry better informed. Concerning the deterioration in the Methodist ministry, for which Dr. Curry made him responsible, as well as the weaknesses of the common run of preachers in general, Mr. Beecher said: "The trouble with the preachers is the want of adaptability to their circumstances, not the popularity of one preacher. Some men like to talk Eadies' and Gentlemen's with their preachers. They like to ask such questions as 'What do you think of such questions as 'What do you think of Balaam's ass speaking—do you think he did do it?' And about Daniel. Daniel is a momentous subject with some people. They want to know who Cain married, too. I once put an article in the New York Ledger on this subject. I received a hundred letters about it. If I had put an article in on the proper conduct or Christian behaviour of men, I would never have got a letter on the subject. This was curiosity. But what THE Subscriber is prepared to execute orders GENERAL. A daughter of the poet Burns recently died in Scotland, at the age of 84.

To thee, were I a stickleback,
I'd swim as fast as fins can move,
To thee, were I a bunter's hack,
I'd gallop on the wings of love,
But, as I'm but a simple man,
I'd ome by train, love—if I can.

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 3, 1873. The French have the right of fishing on the eastern coast of Newfoundland. They claim that this right is exclusive, and have been seizing the nets of Newfoundlanders who dared to fish on that coast. As the trenty does not give them exclusive rights, and as Great Britain is able to put down the French pretentions at very short notice, it is rather strange that the fishermen of Newfoundland are allowed to be persecuted by the French vessels. The British naval commander on the coast has been exerting himself to restrain the people from making reprisals on the French. He ought to allead to a settlement. If the people don't Clothing, &c assert their rights with violence, but quietly wait for Mr. Gladstone to organze a Court of Arbitration, it will be found that rules have been agreed to defining the meaning of the treaty to be just what the French claim it to mean, and binding the Arbitrators, under fines and penalties, to give not only the water but the land, three miles from the coast, to the French. If any one doubts this he has only to read anew the story of the Alabama. The New foundland fishermen should spread their nets, and, for every one seized by French war vessel, they should burn, capture or blow up with torpedoes French property of one hundred times the value. If they should go in and take possession of their rights Mr. Gladstone would not arbitrate them away, but if they stand aside quietly and allow him to do the business they brought to a close, that is in an official connexion; but I have the pleasing and gratifying thought that one more binding and enduring than earthly ties has been formed between us—one, I hope, that may retain its rigor even when the thread of life may be drawn out to its utmost limit.

The very complimentary address, given me to-day, accompanied as it is by such a very substantial token of your good will, is sufficient evidence of your kindly feeling towards me. Such an expression of your favor has taken me altogether by surprise, and I cannot adequately tell you how very highly I appreciate it all.

I wish the record of six years residence amongst you, of which you speak in such favorable terms, was better worth your commendation; it has been my one regret that I was not able to accomplish all that I should have liked and desired, in this large and very important field of labor; for what I have done I thank Him who gave me the strength, and I trust that the seed sown in weakness may abide in strength in you.

Allow me, also, to express the hope that the church and congregation may ever retain that fidelity and loyalty to the
