MISS HAMILTON WINS PIANO

Rolled Up a Large Number of Votes On Saturday and Was First

MISS CYR SECOND

The GRAPHIC's piano contest ended Saturday night and the result was a surprise to the Contest Editor who looked for a close finish between Miss Hamilton, Miss Grenier and Miss Cyr, but when the votes were counted by the judges it was early seen that Miss Hamilton had a substantial majority.

The judges finding was as follows: We the judges in response to the GRAPHIC's request to count the votes in the GRAPHIC's Piano Contest, have after carefully scrutinizing and counting the coupons arrived at the following figures which we guarantee are correct.

Miss Ella Hamilton,	221,450
Point la Nim
Miss Juliet Cyr	100,000
Ruisseau LeBlanc
Miss Lydia Grenier,	83,375
New Carlisle
Miss Ruth Donnelly,	16,125
Jaquet River
Signed JAS. L. IMRAY,
M. A. KELLY

The management of the GRAPHIC desire to thank the young ladies for the manner in which the contest was conducted, also for the judges who counted the votes.

This contest has added nearly 350 new names to the GRAPHIC's subscription list, making our circulation slightly over 2,800, which we believe, according to newspaper directory ratings, is the second largest for country weekly papers in this province.

Turkish Baths in Lapland
Even the large cities have not much advantage over the Arctic regions so far as Turkish baths are concerned. In fact this kind of bathing is much favored in the frozen north. In every village stands a hut, in the centre of which is a hollow mound of stones. A great fire is lighted in this, and when the stones have become red hot, water is thrown upon them. The water, of course, instantly turns to steam, which fills the hut, into which the bathers go, each armed with a switch. They then lash each other to ensure lively skipping about, and when they are all dripping with perspiration they rush out and roll in the snow, which makes an excellent substitute for the familiar cold plunge.

Fish Hawk's Queer Fate
A huge bird was killed in a most peculiar manner at Winnipeg. It having flown against and become impaled upon the top of the flagstaff of N. 4 fire hall. It was brought down by a fireman, and was found to be a specimen of the American Osprey, commonly known as the fish hawk, and measured five feet five inches from tip to tip of its wings.

Mechanical Cigar Lighters
Because so many kinds of mechanical cigar lighters have been invented in France since the government established a match monopoly that the monopoly is not the financial success that was expected, the government is heavily taxing them.

FULL TEXT OF JUDGE BOTKIN'S INTERESTING ADDRESS AT LATE DINNER

Campbellton Stands Very High in Matter of Exports to the United States--Reasons Given for Larger Markets.

SOME INTERESTING FIGURES

It is due to Judge Botkin as well as to the GRAPHIC and its readers, that we should remind one and all that an impromptu speech cannot be entirely reproduced from memory and convey to the reader an adequate conception of its power and the magnetic thrills of its delivery. There were many touches of humor, many scintillations of wit, and numerous flashes of eloquent charm, that depended so much upon the speaker's manner, gesture and personality, that no one can possibly convey them to paper.

Every one present, and especially the large number of visiting delegates, was profoundly impressed, and the desire of all that the GRAPHIC might print a reproduction for the benefit of the public has been so strong that we have ventured to place it in cold type and in accurate form and substance as memory will permit. Our American visitors since reaching their homes have shown their high appreciation of the Consul's address by telephoning to Mr. Ned Anderson of the International Railway an urgent request for a printed reproduction of the speech, thus showing that it has put them all to thinking about the wonderful advantages which direct communication with this district would present to them and to ourselves. Let everyone read and ponder what follows:

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen:

At the beginning of my remarks I wish to assure you American visitors that the welcome which Mayor Murray has extended to you for himself and his fellow townsmen here present, is not mere lip service, and it came direct from the heart. I know my friend, the Mayor, and I know all these Campbellton people thoroughly well, and I know this is just such an occasion as they long have wished for when they might meet representative business men from beyond the international boundary and more particularly from along the B. & A. Railway, and become better acquainted and more neighborly and more fraternal. I know, too, that every business and professional man in this community would have greeted you on your arrival had it been known or even suspected that you were en route. But unfortunately none of us dreamed that you were loose on this side of the line until after you came, so short awhile ago. For myself I was just sitting down to my regular evening work to examine and certify the numerous invoices for out of town shippers when I received the call to come as soon as I might, to assist the town officials and a few others at this impromptu reception. I doubt very much whether there be a dozen of the business men of Campbellton who know of this latest American invasion of Canada.

Now, let me say to you, my American friends, that I have been amongst this people for more than the five years last past; that I have closely studied their characteristics, their business interest and methods, their peculiar situation in relation to the commercial world, and their hopes and ambitions, their prospects and purposes. I have found them as intelligent, as generous, as fraternal people as you may find at any other spot on earth. Nowhere under the glittering stars will you ever find a better people nor a people more worthy of your confidence and esteem. I said I knew them. Why, they are all of them my warmest, personal friends, and I try to reciprocate their warm hearted friendship.

They wish me to speak a word to you in their behalf—in behalf of their trade and commerce—in behalf of their greatest commercial need. They wish me to lay before you their situation in relation to your American markets, the only

DALHOUSIE

Dalhousie, N. B., Dec. 18th.—Dalhousie people have always shown a strong Christmas spirit, and the many changes noticed here in recent years does not lessen the interest which has characterized our citizens for over a half a century. The merchants of the shiretown if one can judge by the large stocks carried and the decorations displayed, anticipate a larger holiday trade this year than ever. With the good winter roads we have and if the present like temperature continues there should be some activity in business circles.

Our town has a new policeman in the person of Mr. Stephen Thomas Stone of Halifax. He came here highly recommended. Our new official has been in the military service in various parts of the empire during 23 years. He served as warden for thirteen years in one of the military prisons in England and has rendered good service in a like capacity at Halifax. He is a married man and has two daughters. His family will arrive here in January. It is stated that Mr. Stone will also receive the appointment of liquor inspector for the town of Dalhousie.

The usual Xmas examinations are being held this week in our Superior school. This forenoon the exercises began in the Intermediate department with Miss Vera McInerney as teacher. There was a good attendance of visitors including Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Haddow, Mrs. Andrew Barberie, Mrs. Wm. Simpson, Mrs. Joseph Gillon. Brief addresses were delivered by Rev. J. H. Kirk, Rev. Mr. Coleman, Rev. Mr. Subbort of New Carlisle, Mr. George Haddow, ex-M. P. and Hon. C. H. LaBille.

Miss McInerney in well chosen words thanked the several speakers for their kind and encouraging remarks. The other departments under L. D. Jones, Miss Emma Harquail and Miss Hilda Stewart will have their work done before Saturday when the teachers and pupils will enjoy a few days of rest. Our four teachers are doing splendid work, and both in appearance and practice the present pupils of our public school are a credit to the staff of teachers.

On Friday evening last, Dec. 13th, Miss Jean McNeish was given a linen shower on the occasion of her approaching marriage to Mr. John Selby of Herbert, Saskatchewan. The ceremony was held at the home of Mrs. Connacher, president of St. John's Literary and Social Club. Besides the members of the club and the members of the Ladies Auxiliary a great many of Miss McNeish's friends joined and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Miss Hilda Stewart delighted the guests with some of her interesting recitations. Among those present were—Mrs. Andrew Barberie, Mrs. T. G. Scott, Mrs. D. McDonald, Mrs. Donald Stewart, Mrs. Hoggard, Mrs. Haddow, Mrs. W. S. Montgomery, Mrs. L. D. Jones, Mrs. William Wallace, Mrs. Connacher, Mrs. Howatson, Mrs. John Baldwin, Mrs. A. G. McKenzie, Mrs. J. Wallace, Kate McGregor, Lena Miller, Olive McNeish, Florine Docherty, Miss Gaud, M. Duncan, A. B. Cameron, Stella McKenzie, G. "FOR EVEN THE LEAST OF THESE"

"Kit" in December Canada Monthly.

We have travelled together throughout the year, you and I, reader, and have come to the end of the chapter of the month, and to the greatest feast of all the year. Every December comes Christmas with its brave spirit of generosity and charity, its brotherhood love which for once is awakened in every heart, to brighten the darkest and shortest days. I wish you a merry feast of it. When you reach a helping hand to some who are lonely and poor and wandering, do it in such a gracious and tender, and kindly way as will make no poor brother conscious of his poverty. And make some little child the happier for you at Christmas.

The contrast between poverty and wealth is never more sharply outlined than at this time when the shops are aglitter with good things to eat and to play with, and some poor mothers, looking from the flashing windows of the store to the wane but eager face of the little child beside her, wonder at the awful inequality of social conditions which permits the children of the wealthy to have toys to weary of, while the little creatures among the poor have not even a penny doll or a toy wagon.

If you make Christmas happy for one of these—then you will have a glorious and a merry feast of it—and what more can a poor Pedlar wish you?

GWENDOLYN'S TRIP TO THE ICE PALACE

By Winifred Stewart

EVERYBODY was flying hither and thither. In another week Christmas would be here, and there was such a lot of things to get ready. Presents had to be bought, and heaps and heaps of other things had to be prepared.

Gwendolyn Taylor, a little girl of six years, was sitting gazing out of the window. She had not been well, and was not allowed to go out. "It's dreadfully hard," thought Gwendolyn, "and this is just the jolliest time of the season. Her brothers and sisters were out skating, and she longed to be with them."

It was beginning to grow dark, though it was early in the afternoon. A big fire was crackling and laughing in the chimney, casting shadows over the walls and floor of the room. Heaps of picture books and toys were strewn about, and Gwendolyn sat moodily at the window, wishing she could get out to play among the snow.

She picked up one of the books, and was just turning over the leaf when a sweet, soft voice exclaimed—"Do you wish very much to be out in the snow?"

Gwendolyn looked around the room, but she could see no one, and then looking at the opposite side of the window she saw a tiny little man.

"A fairy," said Gwendolyn, "or am I dreaming," and she rubbed her eyes; no it was quite true—a tiny fairy was seated at the other side of the window.

Gwendolyn was so amazed that she only stared at the stranger, and then recollecting herself, said—"Oh, I wish ever so much to be out in the snow, dear fairy, but I've been in bed with a severe cold, and am not allowed to go out. But how did you get in? I'm sure no one ever opened the door."

"Oh! I didn't come in by the door," said the fairy, laughing heartily. "I slid down the chimney."

"Oh!" said Gwendolyn, nodding her head approvingly.

The fairy then handed her a tiny sweet, soft voice exclaimed—"Do you wish very much to be out in the snow?"

Immediately she found herself as tiny as a flower. The messenger then helped her into a fireproof costume, and hand in hand they whizzed up the chimney. When they reached the roof of the house, Gwendolyn was breathless with the excitement. She scarcely had time to think when she found herself in an aeroplane, and the tiny man was seated beside her. There was a loud whirling sound, and soon the flying machine was high above the house and gardens sailing quite smoothly through the air.

"Oh! look, everything seems to be flying away from us!" cried Gwendolyn in astonishment as she looked downward.

"Don't fear," said the tiny man. "See—we're flying between the house-tops and the clouds!"

At last, with a crash, the aeroplane halted, and she opened her eyes. To Gwendolyn's surprise, they were standing in front of a fantastic gate composed of ice, glittering and dazzling the eyes with countless colors.

"What place is this?" asked Gwendolyn. And the tiny man replied—"This is the land where Jack Frost and his fairies dwell."

Gwendolyn gazed in wonderment at the whole scene; it was really magnificent. Tiny little fairies came to welcome her, and Jack Frost himself was waiting to receive her.

"Come away," said Jack Frost, leading her into the palace. "We are all delighted to see you."

Jack Frost looked very pretty in his sparkling white coat and glittering head-dress. He was the most elegant fairy, and quite two inches taller than any of the others. He led her into a corridor where Gwendolyn could see long vistas of marble and what she wondered most at was that walls, floor, and ceiling were all the chairs, were all made of ice. Lights shone from above, lighting everything with delightful shades of color, and as they glided through the corridors Jack Frost opened a door, and to her astonishment countless little fairies were skating over what seemed to Gwendolyn to be polished glass. The floor stretched as far as the eye could reach, and a little band of tiny men were playing charming music.

"Now, you can skate as much as you like," said Jack Frost smilingly. Gwendolyn jumped for joy; she simply loved skating. Two fairies fastened skates both on to Gwendolyn's and Jack Frost's shoes, and they soon were skating out and in among the fairies. Oh! how Gwendolyn enjoyed herself. They waltzed together and kept time with the music, and she wished she could skate with Jack Frost for ever.

"Oh," said Jack Frost, "he has all the fairies tripping away. It is time you were returning."

Gwendolyn kissed him good-bye, and soon she was settled in the aeroplane with the tiny man.

They were flying pretty near to the house-tops now, and Gwendolyn clasped her hands as she once more caught sight of her home.

Soon they were in the room again, and the tiny man helped her to take off the fire-proof coat; handed her another sweet, and disappeared.

Gwendolyn swallowed the sweet and sat down on the window seat. Her brothers and sisters were still skating and having fun among the snow. Then she heard some one call "Gwendolyn," and in another minute her mother was in the room.

"Come here, I thought you must be asleep; I've been calling for the last half-hour, and you were not answering."

"How could I when I've been skating with Jack Frost?" replied Gwendolyn.

Her mother smiled and said she would hear about the skating expedition at tea time.

AN APPRECIATION

The visit of our Maine friends to Campbellton has awakened a deep sense of the possibilities for trade with this district as the following cutting from the Aroostook Republican of Dec. 12th will show. In the course of an able editorial this journal says:

A railroad bridge between Van Buren and St. Leonards, connecting four railroads, is needed not only to accommodate present trade relations but to develop the industries both in Maine and New Brunswick.

As anyone can see, traffic will not all be one way. International trade is necessarily an exchange of commodities. Every dollar's worth that goes to the United States' markets from New Brunswick will call for a dollar's worth of United States manufactures to go back to settle the account. That means business and prosperity for the United States and work for the railroads. It is not to be understood that the returns go direct to the shippers of the outgoing goods. The manufacturer pays out wages and pays expenses in a hundred forms. The cash reaches the grocer, the butcher, the blacksmith and everybody. These all have their individual needs and the calls that complete the exchanges come from widely separated points. It is all in the circle of exchanges.

In the future years, when the bridge is built and immense developments are the result, when students of our history, look back to see and study the great things of our century, our State, our own section they will find recorded as the men who made these things possible. Thomas Malcolm, of Campbellton, who never knew when he was licked and built the International Railroad from St. Leonards to the sea through apparently unsurmountable obstacles; Hon. Albert A. Burleigh, who stood in the gap with his whole private fortune when defeat stared them in the face, and absolutely forced the building of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad from Houlton to Caribou and so to the St. John river, and Allen E. Hammond, of Van Buren, who alone and unaided brought about conditions which forced two great Governments to establish a joint commission that finally settled the disputes of the lumbermen along the St. John river and who, alone and unaided, has brought about the demand on the part of the common people on either side of the "imaginary line," for the building of this bridge, this connecting link, joining still closer in bonds of friendship and fraternity the people under two flags.

"GRANDMA"

WILLETT MOVES

(From Flint Mich. Journal)
T. A. Willett of this city has received word that his mother who has been living for the past 20 years with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Young at Colony, Kas., is moving to Kansas City, Mo., with her daughter and they will make their home there "Grandma" Willett, as both known in this city and in Colony, at one time lived with her son here. She is a charter member of Gov. Crapo Relief Corps and was active in that organization when she was in Flint. She is now in her ninety-sixth year. The Women's Relief Corps and several other societies and organizations at Colony gave farewell parties for her there.

Mrs. Ann Willett (Aunt Nancy) as she was known 20 years ago, was born at Pritchard Cove, New Richmond, Oct. 22nd 1817 when the only means of transportation was by water and some old Indian and hunters trails fording the Little Cascapedia river many times on horseback or in the old-fashioned carts or carbolets with the water filling the box if the tide happened just right.

Her parents were Ralph Pritchard and Marie Josephine DeGouff. She is a sister of the late Ralph Pritchard and Mrs. John Willett of New Richmond and Aunt Betsey Pritchard now of Black Cape. In 1840 she was married to the late Thomas Willett of Willett Point who died Nov. 3rd 1863. She is the mother of 6 children 3 of which are still alive as follows: Thomas A. of Flint; Mary A. Young of Kansas City; Matilda A. Randall of Chicago, 65 grandchildren, and 6 great grandchildren.

Leaving the bay about the year 1856 she found herself in the United States in 1858, where her children joined her later. On Oct. 20th 1912 she celebrated her 95 anniversary. The daughter Mary will also be well remembered by many of the now old settlers.

Her early life was passed amid the early struggles of the last century, and has often told her children of horseback rides, boating and long walks before the Kings highway was built through New Richmond and the only roads was the Indian trail and the beach.

Her stories of the old times and people read like a book, her memory is clear and keen and having been born and lived there for nearly 40 years, over 55 years ago, are indeed interesting stories to one who lived for over 16 years and whole that part over 50 years ago to make his home in the great United States.

PARISH PRIEST OF CHARLO IS DEAD

Rev. Father Patenaude Succumbs to Paralysis at Age of Seventy

Chatham, N. B., Dec. 18.—At Charlo on Sunday morning a well known priest of the diocese of Chatham, Rev. Fr. Edmund Patenaude, passed away. For 26 years he endeared himself to the people of St. Margaret's as their spiritual advisor, and only two years ago removed to Charlo. Father Patenaude had not been seriously ill until last Friday, when he was stricken with paralysis.

The news was received here by his many friends with deep regret and was a great shock to all. He was born in St. Joseph De Chambly, Que. on Nov. 8, 1842. He was ordained priest in Chatham on Feb. 2, 1883, and had thus nearly completed thirty years in the priesthood when death called him away. The funeral was held at Charlo at ten o'clock Wednesday morning. His Lordship Bishop Barry and Rev. Father O'Leary attended the funeral among other clergy.

Campbellton Grammar School was closed today for the holidays to reopen again on January 6th.

Principal Carr presided at the exercises today in the Assembly Hall, supported on the platform by His Worship Mayor Murray, His Honor Judge McLatchey, Rev. T. P. Drumm, Rev. C. W. Squires, Rev. J. H. Jenner, Mr. S. Laughlan, Secy to Trustees and Mr. John M. McLean.

After a program of songs and recitations had been rendered by the pupils, Mayor Murray presented certificates to seventeen pupils who had taken the High school entrance examinations last July. His Honor Judge McLatchey was then called upon to present the Governor General's Gold Medal to Mr. Aubrey McLean last year's graduate and valedictorian of his class. His Honor spoke of the happiness it gave him to present this signal mark of honor to a pupil of Campbellton Grammar School and a scholar of Restigouche. He applauded the ambition and industry of Mr. McLean and congratulated both scholar and teachers on the attainment of this coveted prize.

Mr. S. Laughlan who followed Judge McLatchey regretted the absence of the chairman of the school Board, Judge Matheson who was unable to be present. He spoke of the difficulties under which the principal and teachers had laboured last year and because of that although bringing the Governor General's medal to town had to lose the Lieutenant Governors medal to Dalhousie. With all the help now around them, in their finely appointed building he was certain they would do better and looking towards Miss Mitchell's class said he thought they had the teacher who would bring both medals to Campbellton. Rev. T. P. Drumm, Rev. C. W. Squires and Rev. J. H. Jenner also made a few remarks and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The meeting was most interesting but the board should see that chairs are provided for the scholars before the next meeting. It is too much to ask the scholars to stand in one position for an hour.

JUNGLE FETTER

The Elephant's Cave First Drink at Water's, the Rhino Second

A moving picture film took some remarkable pictures at a water hole in Abyssinia of animals which come there from miles around to quench their thirst.

It is the story of the elephant to drink first. No water hole they all stand aside for the greatest beast of all. Many of the animals come 40 or 50 miles for a drink, and there is a truce between even the most deadly enemies.

After the elephant comes the rhinoceros. Although most of the other animals observe the water hole truce faithfully, two rhinos will fight over their precedence. The cinematograph operator obtained wonderful pictures of two of these huge animals going at it hammer and tongs. The fight only ended by one of the animals being killed.

When the rhinoceros has finished the giraffes drink their fill, followed by zebras. Zebras always travel in herds and sometimes 40 or 50 will arrive at the water hole at a time. According to the etiquette of the jungle, however, they only come in fourth for the drinking stakes.

The first four animals are fixed in order, but the rest get a drink just how and when they can.

Of the 70,000,000,000 cubic feet of water which flows into the oceans from the rivers of the United States every year but about 100,000,000,000 cubic feet is lost by evaporation, and one per cent. for municipal purposes.

How dear to my heart,
Wherever I roam
Are the fires of my childhood
And of Home Sweet Home.

By a little thoughtfulness at this season, think of the great joy you might cause or by a little thoughtlessness how much sorrow.

As a Gift for Him, we would suggest a Smoking Jacket, or Bath Robe, Sweater Coat, Umbrella, Fur-lined Gloves, Mitts, Fancy Silk Muffler, Silk Handkerchiefs, Black or white or fancy Ties, Collar Bag, or useful Combinations in fancy box, as Suspenders and Garters, Armlets and Garters, Tie and Hose, Trunks, Suit Case, Leather Bags, and hundreds of other useful articles, ranging in price from 10c to $25.00

Thanking our many friends for their generous patronage during the year, which is now drawing to a close. We wish all a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

CO-PARTNERSHIP UNDER LIME LIGHT
English Board of Trade Investigating Systems in Vogue
A London cable says: The Labor Department of the Board of Trade has been investigating British profit-sharing and labor co-partnership schemes. The results are given in a volume issued by the department.
The first profit-sharing scheme dates back to 1829, and was initiated on Lord Walscourt's farm. Up to the middle of the present year 299 such schemes have been originated. No details are forthcoming of three; 163 others have been discontinued, leaving 133 schemes now working. Four are forty years old, 55 per cent. are less than four years old, and six had their origin this year.
The report describes profit-sharing as the receipt of employees, in addition to other wages, of a share fixed beforehand in the profits of an undertaking. Co-partnership is an extension of this scheme, enabling the worker to accumulate his share of profits in the capital of the business, thus gaining the rights and responsibilities of a shareholder.
The number of work people employed by the 133 firms operating the scheme is 106,000. The profits received by workers last year represented an addition to their wages of 5.5
per cent.
More than half the abandonments of profit-sharing schemes have been due to the falling off of business, which left no profits to be shared.
The experience of the firms which have tried profit-sharing is that it produces excellent results in developing a higher degree of efficiency on the part of employees and brings more harmonious relations between employers and employees.

Palzer in Los Angeles.
Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 9.—Al Palzer, the New York heavyweight, arrived today to prepare for the New Year date with the winner of the Flynn-McCarthy battle, scheduled for Vernon on Tuesday night. He was accompanied by his manager, Tom O'Rourke, and his sparring partner, Al M. Closkey, a middleweight, who expects to find an engagement around the first of the year.
Big and silent, Palzer only grunted in answer to questions. O'Rourke did all the talking, saying that his man was in shape to begin immediate training.

CHRISTMAS BAGS.
They Are a Generally Approved Gift
For Women.
Flowered satin cut in two pieces and with two deep scallops across the top of each section was selected for this charming bag. Plain satin to match the predominant shade in the flowers was used for the lining. A casing was made for the narrow satin ribbon, which served to draw the mouth of the bag together and gave the four sections the appearance of being a big flower.

RIBBON THEATER BAG.
A ribbon rubbing was used to trim the outlines of the bag.
A spray of ribbon flowers was knotted at one side of the bag. This makes a pretty bag to carry to the theater and for holding the opera glasses.
Brocade work bags are also most fascinating and are quite fashionable.
Magnificent bits of fabric may be used in this fashion, and if the pieces are too small to form the entire bag they are used with the satin or silk.
There are an infinite number of ways in which they may be adapted in this manner, and even the smallest pieces are available for the decoration of the bag.
If there is enough of the brocade it is sometimes used in a deep band with the silk or satin shirred on the lower or upper part of the bag. If the pieces are smaller, the brocade is made into medallions and set into the satin.
These medallions may be bordered with gold lace or gold braid or with fine strings of pearls. Bags are safe things to present to a woman friend, for now, when they should match her costume and are so generally worn, she is scarcely likely to have too many.

adequate and sure markets in the world for the greatest part of the products of this isolated region. I shall therefore claim the right to talk to you for them. Happily, too, I may talk to you also in your own interests, for after all my study of this situation, I know you gentlemen from along the Aristook Valley and elsewhere, and the people up here on the Restigouche and on the western shores of Chaleurs Bay, have one great common interest in a project which has already been delayed to long to its accomplishments. I refer to the proposed railway bridge over the St. John river at St. Leonard's, to connect my friend Thomas Malcolm's road with the Aristook railway at Van Buren. I desire to impress upon you the necessity for building that bridge, and to show you that the sooner you shall exert yourselves to secure its construction the better for your region and for this. To get that necessity and the great good it will accomplish before you, I shall from memory call your attention to a few figures, for I doubt if you Americans realize what your great interests are in the affairs of this district.

Now, my consular district is composed for most part of three counties—Restigouche and Gloucester in New Brunswick, and Bonaventure across this harbour in the Province of Quebec. This district sparsely settled as it is, sold and shipped products to American markets alone in 1911, valued on their consular invoices at $995,000. Think of that! Where else on earth can you find so small a population in so small a district, that can beat that record! Almost a million dollars worth, and that does not include what they shipped and sold to Europe and to Central and South America, and to Mexico and the West Indies, Australia and South Africa. But pause right here a moment; the great value mentioned does not include all that they sent to your American markets. You are all aware I presume that when the total value of a particular shipment, is less than $500, no consular certificate on an invoice is required. You will understand then that all of those shipments of small values escape consular records. In 1911, from observations, and from the which when added to the others, placed the total value of all exports from the district to American markets at $1,250,000.

Now, let me go a step further in this matter. Leaving out Bonaventure County for a moment, let me tell you that in Restigouche and Gloucester Counties, there were 985 separately invoiced shipments as shown by my records. Of course the greatest portion of them were made by rail, and in lots running from one to six and sometimes seven or eight freight car loads per invoice. I cannot tell you at present how many cargoes nor how many carloads were represented in the 985 invoices. Now, in 1912 from January 1 to the close of my office this evening, we have certified from these two New Brunswick Counties over 600 invoices more than the whole number for 1911, and we have busy weeks yet before the year shall close! On December 31 we shall probably be at least 700 shipments ahead of the preceding year. Now calculating roughly from the average value of shipments last year, the declared exports of the district to the markets of the United States are likely to amount to $1,800,000; and then add the value of the small shipments it would bring the sum total above $2,000,000 in 1912.

Now, examine the railroad map and see how this district is situated,—how it is isolated in respect to the only markets for all their surplus. In one direction their cars must go by way of Chaudiere, Lewis or Montreal, in the other way of St. John. You see it a glance that this whole district is the victim of the "long haul" of circuitous routes to their markets in the States. The extra expense in freights, the delays in transit, the resulting loss of favorable market prices, all these things they must be put up with and their only remedy is to persuade you gentlemen to assist in connecting this country with your own by helping to link Mr. Malcolm's road with the B. & A. at Van Buren. Of course when you do that you will be helping your own interests as well as theirs for every train load of Restigouche and Bay Chaleur freight that passes through your communities will enhance your own business interests. Then too there are many things up here which your people would buy and use if they could get them fresh and quickly. A bridge down there would put your communities in direct and quick communications with these fishermen and fish dealers.

I know that friend Malcolm here beside me would soon be wearing diamonds after that bridge were built and he could send his cars across to their American connections; But so much the better. Heaven knows, that if ever pluck, tenacity of purpose and bravehearted enterprise is to meet with a proper reward, then Tom Malcolm should glisten with gems of "purest ray serene."

Now, do you American gentlemen know how deeply sincere our friend, Mayor Murray, was when he told you that he and all the other residents present were so glad to have you come? They have longed for this opportunity of presenting to your consideration the wonderful resources and trade possibilities of their district, and the mutual benefits for you and them awaiting the bridging of the river and the imaginary line that separate you from them and that has so long been a barrier to their prosperity. They have expected me in my humble way and without preparation, to do some of the talking for them and in their behalf. They wish to be more neighborly and consequently more friendly with you. They want you to be more neighborly with them and to help them get to your markets, to your centres of trade and travel with less expense, less risk and in shorter time. They wish you to learn and think about the worth of their patronage. That bridge SHOULD be built; it CAN be built; it MUST be built.

Here we are two peoples sprung from common ancestral stocks, inheriting the same historical traditions, hopes and aspirations, the same ideas of constitutional freedom, of equality before the law and of man's right to pursue the lines best adapted to his higher development and happiness. We are really one people though they and we choose to carry different flags. But there is abundant room on this continent for both flags,—for their Union Jack and our Stars and Stripes,—the greatest, noblest and grandest flags in all this world. Why, think of it, my friends, all of you. Here is a spectacle never heard of before in all the world's history. Two countries side by side, with an international boundary line, which if straightened out, would measure nearly five thousand miles, and yet, mark the words, in all that formidable nor belligerent looking than a policeman or custom officer, and yet for almost a full century profound peace has reigned between these two people. Side by side in perfect concord and a neighborly respect and fraternal regard, Canadians and Americans are proceeding each in their own way and under their own banner, to work out on their different lines the one common destiny of both,—the goal of civic greatness and civic renown! And as the years shall come and go let these two peoples grow more neighborly, more friendly and more fraternal, one to the other in all business and social relations. Should it to shoulder, elbow to elbow, let them pursue their destinies, two separate nations, with different flags, but with common purposes and with unfaltering, mutual respect; and let them be the arm that would do an act, or the tongue that would speak a word to estrange the two countries. Let no one here or there ever dream of or fear annexation. There can never be such a thing. The time passed long ago for any such suggestion. It is a reminder, cent thought of a dead past, and it is dead beyond all possibility of resurrection. Our several countries are already large enough.

Now, in conclusion before I go, for another meeting is waiting my appearance to fulfill a promise,—you Americans and the Canadians are near neighbors and should be near friends. You need their traffic and its resulting effects, and they need your markets and a direct, quick route to reach them. Only one little link between you and them is to be supplied and that is a bridge between St. Leonard's and Van Buren. That link when supplied will be an additional bond of our international friendship. Did you ever stop and think what effect quick and convenient intercourse between two peoples has upon their respect for each other? Did you ever reflect that if the United States had been gridironed with North and South trunk lines prior to 1860 so that the Northern and Southern sections could have become better acquainted, there never would have been a secession war? With all its horrors of destruction, Trade and travel, ready and con-

Christmas Day and its Symbols.

(BY THEO. BOTKIN)

December 25 is always the great day of the year throughout the Christian nations and everywhere else that Christian people may be. Most, if not all, of us were taught that it is the anniversary of the birth of the Saviour, and it is well and good for us to have some date upon which to celebrate that mighty event. But Jesus of Nazareth was not born on that day—at least there is every reason to the contrary. Neither was He born in the year 1, either before or after our era; nor do we know for a certainty what the date of His birth was. We only know, and of that we may be reasonably sure, that He was born between three and four years earlier than January 1, A.D. 1, and that fact is amply proven by official history of the Romans. But even at Rome there was not then an accurate calendar, nor any accurate system of computing time. They dated events in those days from the supposed founding of the city by Romulus and Remus, and they also had a fashion of referring to events as having happened during the consulships of their rulers. By reason of the last mentioned custom, we can arrive at the truth of the statement that January 1st in the year 1, A.D., missed the actual date of Christ's birth from three to four years. Herod was pro-consul or tetrarch at Jerusalem at the time of the event at Bethlehem, but Herod's rule came to an end more than three years before that first New Year's day, and consequently Jesus must have been between three and four years old when our present calendar began. Some historical critics have claimed that He was almost five years of age when our year 1 began.

We know that amongst the early Christians at Rome there was a lively and often angry dispute about the day of Christ's birth. Some placed it at one date, some at another, and still others assigned it to other dates. Many years went by and that dispute was as acrimonious as ever. But at last a compromise was forced upon them—not a compromise as to the actual year, but only as to the month and day, and to that compromise we owe very much to whomsoever it was that suggested the matter, for to it we are indebted for a number of the most precious of our Christian customs.

Long before that time the ancients had discovered many of the truths of astronomy. Among other facts they had discovered that on their day which corresponds to our December 22, the sun reaches its furthest apparent point to the southward, and on June 21 the furthest apparent point to the northward. They discovered also that when the sun reaches either of those apparent positions, it seem to stand still for about two days, and then begins to travel in the opposite directions. Those intervals when the sun seemed to remain stationary, they named Solstices, or, in the English "Sun Stands". As all the then known people lived in the Northern Hemisphere, the beginning of the return of the sun northward from its Winter Solstice was considered a very great event, for in a few months, and in some lands, a few weeks, it would again begin warming the earth and starting the growth of grass, trees, flowers and crops to supply the people's necessities. In other words the beginning of the sun's return northward was nature's promise of new life, new vigor, and the enjoyments of Spring and Summer, etc. And as that seemed to occur on their day which corresponds to our December 25, they held on that day their annual festival in honor of the sun's return. Nearly all the ancient nations had some festival, and from lack of definite ideas concerning God,

Now have those systems entirely died out at this day, for there are still existing forms of such worship in foreign lands, notably in parts of Persia and Afghanistan. But we do not have to go so far to find evidence of their existence. A modern writer has told us of a curious custom still in practice on Christmas Day in an isolated valley in France, at least it was practiced there fifty or sixty years ago. It will give us a good idea concerning the peculiar ideas clustering around Sun-worship or Fire-worship. You will find it in early editions of Encyclopedia Britannica, but let us summarize the story.

An old French city or town stands on the bank of a river, and is built on ground that slopes downward to the river, on Christmas the people turn out and line both sides of a long street running down that slope. At the upper end of the street men have placed an old wagon wheel, or maybe a tire, or a large heavy hoop, whatever it is in the form of a circle to represent the sun, they cover and bind it heavily with straw. Then setting fire to that symbol of the sun they star, and keep it rolling down the centre of the street, as children trundle their hoops. Now, here is the significant part of it all, and the peculiar belief of those people which causes all to turn out and watch the performance: Their belief is that if the morning straw, or perhaps rags, with which the wheel, tire or hoop has been bound, shall be consumed and the fire extinguished, before the sun symbol shall plunge into the water at the foot of the street, it is a bad omen,—that is, that the following season will be a bad one for all kinds of crops and hence that hard times are in store for them; but that if the wheel, etc., is still blazing as it reaches and plunges into the water, that is a good omen for it means a good season for the vineyards, the gardens and farmers, and hence, abundance for every one during the next year.

To us it does not matter about the exact date of our Saviour's birth. It is the fact alone that should concern us. He came at a time when a worse than winter blight lay upon the minds and hearts of the race. The world was wrapped in a pall of superstition, indifference and stupid arrogance. He came to cure and dispel that blight, as the sun comes to melt the snows and ice and dispel the indolence of winter. He came to lift and rend the pall from off the minds and souls of men and "to bring life and immortality to light." His herald's sang "Joy to the world, the Lord has come". In other days the priests and choirs of Baal, Bel, Yule and Sol had chanted "Rejoice and be glad for the Sun is returning!" The angel choir sang of a spiritual fact accomplished "The Lord has come!" The Sun worshippers sang of a fact of the material world—"The Sun is returning!"—not yet come, but, coming! So, to every civilized being, whoever he may dwell or be sojourning, Christmas day is the greatest of the year for it reminds the world that the Spiritual Sun did come, has come, and that in His coming there was and in the promise of everlasting felicity with all our near and dear ones in a realm where there is

No more winter, no more blight, No more sorrow, no more night.

Cause of Eczema Explained

After years of deluging medical authorities are now agreed that Eczema and other skin diseases are not caused by microscopic animals gnawing the flesh just below the epidermis. The patient is perfectly healthy, it is only the skin that is diseased.

Hence, eczematists are now agreed that you must cure the skin through the skin. The medicine must be in liquid form in order to penetrate properly. And we can say with confidence that we have the true remedy for Eczema in our store—the D.D.D. Prescription.

The instant you wash with this soothing liquid you will find the itch relieved. We positively assure you of this. Will you try a bottle of our recommendation? Besides the regular Dollar Bottle we can now offer you, through an arrangement with the D.D.D. Laboratories, a special large trial bottle at only 25c. We are not sure how long this offer will be open—but it is open today, and by taking it up you can get instant relief from that awful itch and an early cure. A. McG. McDonald.

HER PRESENT

An old gentleman gave a little girl a present of a "Teddy" bear whose eyes had been fixed in crookedly. On his next visit he asked the little one if she had found a name for her pet and she answered, "Yes, I've called him Gladly." "That's a funny name," said the old man. "How did you come to call him Gladly?" "Oh," replied the child, "we sang about him at Sunday school. 'Gladly My Cross Eyed Bear.'"

Five tenders for the substructure of the new bridge at the reversing falls at St. John have been received by the provincial department of public works, Fredericton. The cost of the work is to be about $50,000. The contract for the substructure has been awarded to Messrs. Joseph McVey, the well known contractor. Tenders will shortly be called for the superstructure.

Ray Morgan, 20 years old, holds the record for nerve among the farmers of Oklahoma. By accident he lost his right hand in a silage cutter. Morgan at once removed his hand, wrapped it in a handkerchief and hastened as quickly as possible to Muskogee to see if the hand could not be replaced. The accident occurred at 10.30 in the forenoon. Morgan stopped the flow of blood, caught a Midland Valley train, and at 11.45 was in Muskogee at the office of Dr. Reynolds. Unfortunately it was impossible to replace the hand.

To escape death by either of two methods, Roy Dixon, a negro, hanged himself in his cell at Enid, Okla. Dixon was convicted of killing another negro and sentenced to be hanged. Members of his race had freely stated that if the death penalty was not inflicted they would lynch him. Efforts were being made to have Dixon's sentence commuted and the negro lived in fear that if these efforts were successful he would be lynched.

Never Satisfied

Chatham World:—The typical civil engineer looks only at the land, and not at the people to be served, when surveying a railway route. He tries to display his cleverness by getting the easiest route, and never thinks of accommodating the people by giving them good railway connection.

The Chatham diversion, for instance, follows the old route, along which several farmers have settled, and instead of going within walking distance of Chatham Head ferry, so as to facilitate communication between New-

THE CHURCH MOUSE

THEY stood in the doorway of the church, looking each other over as they came in for the first time. Then suddenly Janet was the diamond from the third finger of her left hand and held it forth. "You will oblige me by taking this back," she said bitterly.

He stood looking into her eyes, growing grayer of face as he saw the stubborn anger that reposed in them. "Which means that our engagement is broken, and that I may not hope for its renewal," he replied very low.

For an instant their gaze met as the glittering thing lightly he d was passing from hand to hand; then as she released it and before his grasp had become secure there was a slip of a nervous finger and with a tickle the ring fell upon the iron grating on the floor register. Faintly they heard it go bounding far down the metal pipe which led to the furnace below, each supposing it to be the other.

In the flames and not knowing that in its fall by some strange fate it had bounded through a small hole in the pipe and now lay amidst the rubbish of the church's basement. For an instant the girl's eyes softened, then hardened again and she turned them aside. Upon the floor in a corner of the room the little church mouse was sitting upon its haunches, and the nodded towards him. "To be renewed when the little church mouse brings it back to me," she returned coldly. They turned their backs upon each other and walked away.

A week passed, and the little church mouse prowling about in the darkness of the basement, saw something through the gloom that glittered even more brightly than did his own eyes. Cautiously, hungrily, he approached it. It smelt of it, felt of it with his gray whiskers, then stood it up before him. Its glitter fascinated him. Surely his glistening thing about the size of a kernel of corn must be good to eat, and he tried his sharp teeth upon it. Yet gnaw as he would, he could not even scratch it, and at last he decided that it was only good to play with. He was a little thing, and half-starved as are all church mice, so it came to pass that it was not long before he had worked his head and forepaws through it and was running about with it encircling his middle, a very small creature wearing a diamond saddle with a gold girth. It was useful for a time, but he soon became tired of it and tried to crawl out. He could not. Becoming panic-stricken, he fled frantically up the stairs and very unhappy, sat in her pew at the Christmas morning service. It was rather chilly in the church and she slipped one hand into her muff. Then she gave a start, for within it she felt a small, struggling thing with something round and hard about it. "Involuntarily she closed her hand, and as she did so the little church mouse popped out of the muff and scampered away, leaving the round object in her fingers. She drew it forth. It was her engagement ring. The last of all to leave her paw, Janet stepped into the vestry upon her way out. Dick was standing before a window with head bowed, looking older, grayer of face than he had a few weeks ago, and she saw the deep unhappiness that lay in his eyes. She approached him, looking up at him with the old expression which he knew so well. Softly she slipped one hand into his own, and as his fingers gently closed about it he felt something hard, round and familiar within his grasp. He raised her hand. The engagement ring—his own—encircled her third left finger.

"The little church mouse brought it back to me. Listen while I tell you," she said, drawing a trifle closer. For a moment her voice murmured.

"Is it not wonderful?" she exclaimed. "half a week, and she has found it. His eyes lightened.

"Wonderful, dear! It is far more than that. It is a miracle of His Spirit wrought upon His day—His token of love everlasting and that even we are not forgotten."

Tightly his arms closed about her. HARRY IRVING GREEN

Christmas Plum Pudding

The Christmas plum pudding is descended from the plum porridge and is a time-honored dish at every Christmas feast. To be properly made, each person in all the household must stir it before it is boiled and the mistress of the house must add the spices with her own fair hand, and so she favors fortune for a year. If she is an American and mixes her pudding in an agent's chat bowl, stirring it with an agent's spoon, whose handle is adorned with an old English crest, she makes the pudding for in the new land she is helping to keep alive the customs that made our country great.

The pudding should be boiled in a well-floured cloth six hours upon the fire of a well-burning fire.

It has lost the market for the church and does not accommodate the ones along the river.

THE FACT OF EDEN

Eastern Belief That Serpent Had Its Self in Bunch of Bananas

There exists a legend relative to the Christian inhabitants of the East, that they believed the banana to be the tree of the source of good or evil. In a bunch of whose fruit the serpent that tempted Eve hid itself, and they add that when Adam and Eve became ashamed of their nakedness, they covered themselves with the leaves of this plant. Beyond all doubt this legend has some influence upon the minds of those early botanical classifiers who designated two species of the plant by the names of Fruit of Paradise, Fruit of Knowledge.

The origin of the banana is given as India, at the foot of the Himalayas, where it has been cultivated since remotest antiquity. Its origin in the new world is as doubtful as the origin of the American Indian. Natural to Asia and Africa, where more than twenty distinct species of the genus are known, it is said to have been brought first to America from Spain, early in the sixteenth century, and planted in the island of Santa Domingo, whence its spread was rapid throughout the surrounding islands and the mainland. This has never been authentically established, however, and some authorities include the banana among the articles that formed the base of the food supply of the Incas and the Aztecs before the arrival of the Spaniards.

Grown over the entire extent of the meridian of the earth, the fruit of the banana to-day forms, in large part, the principal food of a majority of the peoples living under the tropical zone.

The important deal by which Isaac C. Prescott disposes of his timber areas and steam mill at Albert has been finally completed. The buyers are George McKean of St. John, John L. Peck of Hillsboro and J. Nelson Smith of Coverdale, and the purchase price is $60,000. The new owners will assume control at once. The property includes 26,000 acres, 16,000 being freehold property and 10,000 leased. Mr. Prescott retains the store and residence at Albert.

We wish to call your attention to the fact that most infectious diseases such as whooping cough, diphtheria and scarlet fever are contracted when the child has a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will quickly cure a cold and greatly lessen the danger of contracting these diseases. This remedy is famous for its cure of colds. It contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given to a child with implicit confidence. Sold by All Dealers.

LIABLE LAND WITHOUT OWNER

That area of valuable freehold holding land in an English agricultural county should be apparently unclaimed does not appear very probable at first sight, but the fact remains that in one of the most productive areas of Hampshire, and in the heart of a rapidly growing urban district there are now several plots.

Meet a small town within a few miles of Aldershot, with a population of 3,500, has greatly developed of late years, and five or six years ago, two or three of the principal streets were "made up" by the urban district council under the Private Street Works Act. The cost was apportioned to the frontages, but in a number of instances the owners of vacant plots of land could not be traced.

The amounts apportioned to them were entered in the council's books, and there they remained ever since, unpaid, and with little likelihood of the owners appearing to make payment. The council therefore decided to "notice" the owners, or at least the plots of land in different parts of the town, informing the owners, known or unknown, that unless the sums due are paid the land will be sold. In two or three cases the charge only amounts to about $20 while the land is in some instances worth $5,000.

CANADIAN NAVY

In a speech moderate in tone, and very clear in its statement of details the Premier of Canada in the House of Commons on Thursday defined the policy of his government and his party in regard to the part which Canada should take in the defence of the British Empire. The policy is not materially different from that previously indicated, and is not unreasonable. It is a policy in which the home government amicably concurs. The amount of money which Canada will provide at the outset is thirty-five million dollars. This money will be borrowed in England and will be employed in that country in the construction of vessels—of three vessels—of the most modern type of war ships. These warships will be owned by Canada, and maintained by her, but will form an active part of the British navy in time of Britain's need. In the meantime and during the building and ownership of these vessels, Canada will, by commencing at the foundation and acquiring by practice and experience the art of steel shipbuilding, acquire knowledge of the art of constructing these ships from the smallest to the largest size and thus peacefully and, comparatively inessential to a surge of navy development which will suit the Dominion in every need. The Canadian Premier does not shut his eyes to the fact that the possession, the wars of the Empire, the power to strike heavy blows on the high seas as well as along the coasts of nation enemies, will naturally create a warlike spirit in the Canadian people which will eventually move them to insist upon having a voice in the declaration of war, and in the proclamation of peace, and will lead finally to changes of a highly important character in the constitution of the Empire. What these changes will be can now only be a matter for speculation, and beyond recognizing the fact that they will surely come, it is not worth while at the moment to do more than to recognize their inevitableness. They form, comparatively, little which is of grave moment to the existing rulers of either the Dominion or the Mother Country. But the fact is to be noted that these changes are not far distant, just as the changes have come which have developed small colonies, protected from national enemies by English troops, into great commonwealths and dominions. To take the main step, the providing for the Mother Country of Canadian-owned warships for the defence of the Empire, involves at once the taking by a Canadian representative of a seat on the Committee of Imperial Defence, and moves this Dominion very far along lines which must give her a place in the management of the concerns of the world. Mr. Borden's statement is made with great moderation in both its practical declaration and its ideal, but it is a statement of profound interest to the Canadian people. The very large and generous grant of money which we make for the national defense is a suggestion of the burdens which the new movement will naturally impose upon us, and which we must be prepared to support.

WEAR TROUSERS IS NOW THE CRY

Strong Recommendation by Suffrage Leaders

"Make a bundle of your hats; throw away your corsets and wear trousers instead of these ridiculous tight skirts," is the recommendation of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the woman's suffrage leader to the Equal Suffrage Club in her report of a two-years-around-the-world campaign in behalf of votes for women.

"My trip around the globe convinced me," said Mrs. Catt, "that in my own country women are the most fettered, artificially, to be found anywhere. Compared with the Chinese women, the American woman is almost as helpless as a baby. It is time for the Western woman to kick herself free of the waddling draperies which the Parisian sends over to us. We should declare our importance in dress as we have in politics, and the sooner we do it, the better for our health, happiness and the cause."

Mrs. Catt advocates the Chinese dress, or a modification of it, because it is the "most sanitary, healthful, comfortable and artistic costume a woman can wear."

She describes the Chinese costume as including "loose straight hanging trousers, made of silk or other material, and over this garment a straight, loose coat, which comes below the knees, usually, and buttons over on one side. This garment is collarless, with sleeves that are half tight and end between the elbow and the wrist."

Rev. F. L. Dimmitt, a Methodist preacher of Columbus, Indiana, has created a sensation by a sermon directed against the mode of dress. Just now popular with women. A special portion of the sermon was the quotation of the following lines:—

"Little girl, you look so small, Don't you wear no clothes at all? Don't you wear chemise or skirt? Don't you wear a pretty skirt? Just your corsets and your hose, Are these all your underclothes?"

The poet closed with a prediction that:—

"After a while, I do believe, You will dress like Mother Eve."

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the Eustachian Tube. But PARISIAN SAGE will do more. It will promote a new growth of hair if the hair is not already dead, and will preserve the natural color of the hair.

It puts the radiance of sunshine into the hair and makes it beautiful and glossy to look upon. Women who use it often throw aside all other hair—30 cents at all dealers.

Charles Malcof, of Stoughton, Wis., a shoemaker, walks from the door of his shop across the Yahara River on shoes which he has invented. The invention consists of a piece of wood, several feet in length and several watertight tin cans attached to the bottom of the boards. One of the boards is worn on each foot.

A clergyman on his way to church one Sunday saw two lads with their lines and rods by the side of a stream. The good man was fond of sport, but true to his creed and cloth. "Boys," said he in a stern tone, "do you know what day this is? Have you not been taught that it is a sin to—?" At this point down went the boat with a jerk. "Pull him up! Pull him up!" broke out the parson. "You young fools! don't you see, you've got a bite!"

SHORT STORIES WORTH READING

THE JESTER CHANGES.

Then something stabbed him—stabbed him quickly. He rose hurriedly to his feet, panting, wide-eyed, his fingers tightly clenched. It was true! He, too, would change! The jolly fat man who loved and

What a change! From the jolly, laughing, fat man—the jester—to a person who would be taken seriously. How old Carding, the well known portrait painter, who was his friend and who loved him, would stare, and—how he would change! Yes, change; for he had seen Carding before with famous people, and he was always so stiff and pompous and not half as agreeable as his natural self. Then there was young Davis, one of his best friends, who did the same class of work as himself—how he, too, would stare—yes, stare and treat him as a personage. Yes, he knew it—it would be the same with all. He would be the famous artist who barely had time to see anything or anybody, courted by the world and by his kind.

THE MASTERPIECE.

It was the first time he had ever tried to do anything at all serious, for his regular work was a weekly series of funny pictures for the comic sheet of a Sunday newspaper. He had never claimed to be anything else, but he had admitted that he worked solely for the remuneration—in gold, hard cash. Yet he had always been gifted with a shrewd knowledge of what was really good, although it never obtruded was beloved by all—the jester—that man would die. And in place of him would be left a fat, grave person, famous, taken seriously by the whole painting world, and a man without true friends. The jester—the jester would be no more.

"A HOPELESS RUIN"

The man put his hand to his head. It felt almost bursting with the realization that had just come to him. Then, again trying to steady himself, he sat down and looked at his picture—looked long and earnestly at its every line. Then he thought of the months of work of hope, of his nerves pitched to high tension. Here was the reward, the reward if he wanted it—fame, fame, fame! The word drummed through his head.

"YES! A MASTERPIECE!"

He tried to think calmly. Fame! It meant a great deal. But the jester—the man who was loved by all; the man who was always met with a hearty hand clasp; the man who had hundreds of true friends, whom none envied and all respected—that man would die!

COURTED, YET ENVID.

Instead what would be? A man of fame who would be courted, yet envied; envied even by some of his former friends; a man who could not lead his natural life and be his natural self; a man who would always be taken seriously; a man of fame—that was all. God! far better the jester!

But it was hard to keep his eyes from his picture. What a wonder, what a masterpiece. Should he give it to the world? His brain whirled, burning feverishly. If he did so, all would be changed. And his friends—his friends whom he loved—these he would lose. But fame—fame! It was one or the other, that he knew; for there was no happy medium. Fame or friends! Fame or friends! Scores of times these words flashed before his eyes and through his brain as he sat in his chair, dripping and panting. Fame or friends—fame or friends?

FAME IN SIGHT.

What would his friends say? How surprised they would all be! For he knew that the world would hear of it. He argued with himself quite frankly, without the slightest touch of vanity. He knew that the picture would be taken seriously—by the critics, by his kind, by the world. Yes, he would be famous, rich, at the very pinnacle of his profession.

Then, suddenly, he made his decision. Quickly, with a wild leap, he sprang forward and put his foot through the canvas, ripping it hopelessly to pieces.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

I HAD been vent taking a cold as a patient to his home and was running to Toronto when a case fell unexpectedly into my hands. The Pullman conductor started us early one morning by calling out to know if there was a physician in the car. There was no reason for my going without hesitation I offered my services. He took me to a room in the Pullman and I proceeded to a worried-looking young man. There was no need to ask for trouble. On the couch lay a little girl of five or six years, her cheeks and eyes bright with fever.

I had a few simple remedies with me, but the child showed rather alarming symptoms of an aggravated cold. Deciding to take no risk, I sent a telegram ahead, and when we reached Winnipeg a physician with necessary medicines came aboard and accompanied us to Port Arthur.

Dorothy escaped all of the maladies with which she was threatened and by the time we reached Toronto was very much better. However, Mr. Singleton, her father, retained me, and the three of us went to a fashionable hotel.

The little girl continued to improve, but the spontaneous gaiety of childhood was lacking.

Christmas was approaching and Dorothy was now able to go about. I was instructed to take her to shops and matinees—in fact, to do everything to afford her amusement.

Her father suggested that she give a Christmas tree for twenty less fortunate little girls, and he kept the big limousine car touring the shopping district while we played Santa Claus.

One day we had been out all of the afternoon. Dorothy had selected twenty dolls, and in retrospect I viewed my own meager childhood and fancied what such a glorious afternoon would have meant to me, but the child appeared more listless than usual. Feeling rather anxious, I took her temperature, gave her some stimulating nourishment and asked her to get into my lap while I read to her.

Dorothy had the beautiful old-world manner in which the little children of the rich are drilled, and always treated me with careful consideration and politeness, regardless of her own wishes. Obeyingly she climbed into my lap, put her head against my shoulder, and I began to read aloud a wonderful Christmas tale. We are all of us children in the story. Dorothy was very quiet, and as I turned a page I looked down to see if she had fallen asleep. To my consternation the wide blue eyes were brimming with tears, fast overflowing and running down the child's white cheeks. As my drooping head came down and her closely in my arms she gave way to convulsive sobs.

Mr. Singleton came in. The opening of the door roused Dorothy, and, seeing her father, she stretched her eager arms to him and cried out:

"Father, dear, I don't want a tree. I just want mother for Christmas."

I placed the child in her father's arms and left the room. An hour passed and then Mr. Singleton tapped on my door. He told me the story. Mrs. Singleton was not dead, as I had supposed; she was in Paris, and if the separation of which he told me was dropped by fault of hers he did not so much as hint at it.

Mr. Singleton cabled at once to Paris. There would just be time. "Don't Dorothy!"

Stopping quickly, her look arrested by my uniform, she exclaimed: "He—she—oh, who is ill?" She faltered, going white.

My smiling assurance that all was well brought forth a thousand questions, and we both talked at once, and helped her out with her wraps. She cried in my arms and kissed me with fervor when I told her of her mother's health, and we had a gay afternoon finishing the tree.

Mrs. Singleton was on the step-ladder laughing down at me when Dorothy and her father came in. The laugh died on her lips, but I caught her glorified look and heard Dorothy's glad cry. Then I crept silently from the room, feeling the loneliness of spinsterhood as I had never thought of.

"I suppose you feel very thankful to Santa Claus for providing you with such a fine turkey?" said the minister to Uncle Lajah's little boy.

"Now, sah," replied the pious minister, "Uncle Lajah's little boy ter be thankful for Farmer Green ter leavin' his house down on de 'lar."

Chief Game Warden A. B. O'Leary last week lodged a complaint before James Blight, J. P., at Hillsboro against R. Chester Peck, charging him with unlawfully killing a cow moose. Mr. Peck was present and in a voluntary sworn statement admitted to the court that he had shot a cow moose during the last hunting season claiming to have done so accidentally. The case was adjourned until Tuesday, 18th inst., when important witnesses will be heard and the matter further investigated. Information has also been laid by Mr. O'Leary before Justice Blight against Whitfield Steeves of Demolville Creek, Albert Co., charging him with shooting a cow moose. Mr. Steeves admitted the offence, was convicted and ordered to pay for the carcass of the animal, together with the costs.

MYSTERIOUS LOVE AFFAIRS

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA

It was in that land of mystery, Egypt, a country of hot glaring sunlight, where people built huge temples, where the Sphinx and the Pyramids reared themselves out of the shifting sands, and all things were massive, aggressive in their aims, that Cleopatra was born in the year 69 B. C. in the city of Alexandria. She was a daughter of Ptolemy Auletes, and as was the custom with the royal family, was married to her brother, Ptolemy. The household was not a happy one, quarrels followed quarrels, until finally, when Cleopatra was twenty years old, she was banished by her brother.

It was fortunate for Cleopatra's future that in the year before she was expelled Ptolemy Caesar and Pompey had fought the famous battle of Pharsalia, in which Pompey was defeated and had fled to the shores of Egypt for protection. Caesar followed Ptolemy's fate was sealed when Cleopatra, radiant in her young life, appeared before Caesar, and, using the power of her fascination, urged her cause against her brother. Caesar was not the man to hesitate. He seized Alexandria, in her name, defeated Ptolemy, and elevated Cleopatra to the throne.

CAESAR'S RULE.

Cleopatra returned to Rome with Caesar, but we know little about this love story lived out in the heart of the brilliant, dissolute city. Without question Caesar worshipped the woman from Egypt—"Star of the East," as she was called. At his death she returned to Egypt.

Three years passed. The world was in other hands. Mark Antony, Octavius, a nephew and adopted son of Julius Caesar, and Lepidus had formed the second triumvirate. The known world was divided between these masters, one of whom, Lepidus, was a figurehead, so that it prospered a struggle soon forthcoming between Antony and Octavius for the mastery.

When the triumvirate divided the world, Antony took the East. He came to Ptolemy, leaving his wife, Fulvia, at Rome. When Cleopatra knew that her new master had arrived she ordered the royal barge and travelled up the river Cydnus to meet him. Baited perfumes floated around her; on her brow was the sacred emblem of Isis and Osiris, while her eyes were mystic and hooding as those of the Sphinx, but her full scarlet lips spoke of kisses and starling nights.

Antony stood and gazed, and she, knowing her power, raised her hand to take his heart and manhood into her grasp.

New born a wonderful world of passion, in which Cleopatra's nature was stirred nearly to knowing love than it ever had before. All night long they drank and feasted, while the gods Horus, Ra and Thoth gazed down from their granite heights at the haughty Roman general, who, forgetful of his world kingdom, had laid his laurels and his manhood at the sandals, clad, dainty feet of this mystic Egyptian queen.

ANTONY

TROUBLE AT ROME.

Then trouble arose at Rome. Antony was summoned home. Much both to leave, he finally went to find Fulvia dead and Octavius grown strong in the hearts of the Roman people. No Antony made terms, attempted to allow his reason to rule, and married Octavia, Octavius' sister. It was all in vain. Cleopatra's fascination reached across the seas and brought him back again to Alexandria to the touch of her hands.

Forgetful of all except the woman beside him, he divorced Octavia, married Cleopatra, bestowing upon her titles and full powers over his kingdom.

From that time all moved quickly. The battle to decide the mastery of the world was fought, of the shores of Greece, at Actium, in the year 31 B. C. When neither force prevailed and the fate of Antony hung in the balance, Cleopatra, who was commanding the Egyptian ships, left the fight, her entire fleet following her. Why she did it the world will never know. And Antony, careless of honor, fame or power, ordered his ships to put about and followed his loved one.

The end came soon. Antony, dishonored, lay dying of a self-inflicted wound and commanded his servants to carry him to Cleopatra. He died in her arms. For the sake of her embraces he had gladly thrown a world away, great, as always, in his faults, as in his virtues.

Cleopatra lived, and when Octavius entered the city she went to him, as she had to two former conquerors, but this time she failed. All her charm, all her wit, did not stir the pulse of this cold, calculating man. She had not succeeded, and she knew it. With clear eyes she realized her fate, either to be taken to Rome and carried for the mob to howl and stare at, or to Octavius' triumph, or to follow Antony to the dim Egyptian world.

She followed her lover, some say by the sting of the poisonous river asp, others by different means. We know that she lay decked in her royal robes, this daughter of the Nile, the queen of Ostris on her throne, alone and unconsolated.

For the CHILDREN

A VISIT FROM FATHER CHRISTMAS

Teddy Bear hung on the Christmas tree—

A capital place both to hear and see—

The candles were many and all alight, And Teddy Bear thought it a splendid sight.

Old Father Christmas, in mantle red, Smiled as he nodded his hooded head; Round him each little one danced with glee.

Thinking, "Oh, what has he brought for me?"

Teddy Bear wanted to shout for joy, "See, there's an engine for Freddy-boy!"

And the loveliest dolly with golden hair, And eyes that open and shut, for Clare!

"Well, I'm glad that I've come to stay, Everything here is so bright and gay, With plenty of presents for every one, And old Father Christmas to show the fun!"

Poor Bunny! he said, as his tears fell like never get to my burrow again!"

For just then the goose jumped and started to fly, And Bunny was frightened at being so high.

At last the rope caught in the branch of a tree, And luckily breaking, it set the goose free;

But there Bunny dangled until he was found, And helped with a ladder to get to the ground!

AN EXCITING GAME

This is the most amusing game, and it is advisable to play some distance from the Christmas fire, as it will be found a pretty warm one. Chairs should be placed in a circle; there should be one less chair than there are players. The chairs should be strong ones, and should be of different sizes if the game is to be the greatest fun. One child stands inside the circle of chairs, and the others all sit down on the chairs, and at a given signal the children sitting down begin to move on to their neighbor's chair and the one in the centre has to try and get on to the unoccupied chair. It is much fun, and you can imagine, and the players get so excited. If the one in the middle does not happen to get into a vacant seat, he has to go to whom it belongs has to be in the centre now, and try in his turn to get an unoccupied seat.

SANTA CLAUS STOCKING

A Nice Xmas Game.

"Santa Claus Stocking" is just the game you want for Christmas. Each child must take the name of a thing which Santa Claus might put in any one's stocking. For instance, one might be a doll, another a gun, another a dog, and a fourth a box of sweets. When all have taken the name of some object, a grown up person begins to tell a story, gradually bringing all these names in. Directly an object is mentioned the child who has taken its name must do an action in connection with it. The doll might say "Mamma!" in a squeaky voice; the gun must shout "Bang!" the toy dog must bark; and the box of sweets—well, the best thing is to smile sweetly and look pretty! Should any child fail to do his action when the object he represents is mentioned he must pay a forfeit. At the end of the game the one with the least amount of forfeits is the winner.
