German authorities are convinced that Russia also is at the limit of her full effective strength. Under these circumstances, then, Russian threats are regarded as idle. The negotiations for a reciprocity treaty with Russia have not been resumed.

THE DAWN OF THE CENTURY. (Lond on Saturday Review.)

(London Saturday Review.)
We hear a good deal just now of the latter days of the century; perhaps a few words about the dawn of the century may not be altogether ill-timed or unwelcome.
It was the heyday of stamp and paper duties; there were about half a dozen newsduties; there were about half a dozen newspapers, too dear for the multitude to buy, and probably only published, like the Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviews, for the select few to read. There was no gas. Oil lamps enlivened the streets, and at the theaters candlet, supposed to be wax, dripped down the back of your dress clothes. Chelsea was a village separated from London by the "Five Fields" at Pimileo and the Footpad's Pass, called "Bloody Bridge," somewhere where the Court Theater now stands. Visitors to the playhouses from Chelsea used to where the Court Theater now stands. Visit-ors to the playhouses from Chelsea used to assemble after the performance at the bot-tom of St. James' street until they num-bered 30 or 40 strong, and then marched across the Five Fields with torches, blunder-busses and bludgeons—a mutual protection association. Nothing was safe—not even the Bank of England. The one-pound note was not a universal favorite, and the street connected with the loss of the Victoria is the fact that five out of the six engineer officers lost their lives. The reason is not far to seek. The engineers were at the post of duty, and the post of duty was in this case the post of danger. The chief engineer and four of his staff were in the engineer and four of his staff were in the engineer and to open the escape valves. They died, but they will not be forgotten.

Those who know what a watch in the dark, fiery well of the stokehold, 40 feet below the bridge, really means, can alone appreciate the qualities which enable men to remain steadfast at their post in such surroundings in the hour of danger. It requires a stout heart to stay at the bottom of an iron well, with a dozen high-pressure boilers before one, and a quare patch of sky seen through a hatchway 40 feet above, when the order on deck is "close all water-tight doors," and "Cail away all the boats." We must not forget the engineers and stokers of the Victoria. They have deserved well of England.

Headache, which is usually a symptom of stomach trouble, constipation or liver complaint can be entirely oured by B.B.B. (Burdock Blood Blitters) because this medicine acts upon and regulates the stomach, liver, bowels, and blood. Have You Headache?

The death rate in St. Petersburg exceeds the birth rate. From 1764 to 1888 there were 1,539,000 births and 1,772,000 deaths. Ten thousand churches were built in America last year. America last year.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellegg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholers, dysentery, etc., in the market.

WHISKARD'S Wilson Identified.

Apprehended and Brought Over to Canada.

In Sarnia Jail Charged with the Murder of Miss Mary Marshall.

A Lambton County Tragedy Recalled-How the Prisoner Has Lived Dur-ing the Four Years Since the Murder.

(Special to the ADVERTISER.)

SARNIA, July 16.—A murder, which, for fiendish deliberateness and diabolical atrocity, stands in bold relief upon the fiendish deliberateness and diabolical atrocity, stands in bold relief upon the category of crime, may possibly now—after a long interval be avenged. Over four years ago a young man embrued his hands in the blood of the woman he professed to adore. Since then he has been a "fugitive and a vagabond" upon the earth "seeking rest and finding none." But at last the supposed perpetrator of the monstrous deed has been arrested.

THE CRIME RECALLED.

In Lambton county, on the second concession of Warwick north, there stands a small Methodist church. On Sunday evening, 'March 10, 1889, service, was held there as usual. Among the other worshipers was Miss |Mary Marshall. She was tastefully attired in becoming garb, and to her cheeks rushed the crimson indication of budding womanhood as an admirer of the opposite sex walked chatting by her side. The couple had not gone far before Albert E. Wilson stepped up. He, also, wished to enjoy the pleasure of her society.

"Mary I not be privileged with your so-

her society.
"May I not be privileged with your so-

her society.

"May I not be privileged with your society this evening?" he asked.

"Not to-night," came the answer, co-questishly but firmly.

Hardly had the words escaped her lips than the report of a revolver rang out, and Mary Marshall lay upon the ground dead.

TRACKING THE MURDERER.

Those who witnessed the scene were dazed with horror. Wilson, of course, started to make good his escape. Several bystanders gave chase. One of these, ics timorous than the rest, had almost brought the assassin to bay, when the latter turned around and presented his revolver at him menacingly. The pursuer was cowed and Wilson rapidly made his way to an adjoining fa-m. Here heset fire to a large pile of straw adjoining some extensive barns and the attention of the pursuers was thus diverted. Continuing his flight, Wilson dined next morning with a Mr. Southorn in Watford. This was the last seen of him until a few days since.

morning with a Mr. Southorn in Watford. This was the last seen of him until a few days since.

APPREHENDED.

On the 12th of July the Orangemen of Saginaw, Mich., held a demonstration at which Mr. R. S. Lawrack of Tuscola county, Mich., who formerly lived in Warwick, attended. Hardly had he stepped from the train than he spied a man whom he believed to be Wilson, and who was going under the assumed name of Harry Bradley, standing upon the platform. Lawrack accosted him and both walked down the street together. The former sent a friend to notify Chief of Police Kain, and the man who passed as Bradley was shortly afterwards arrested. He offered no resistance. Government Detective Rogers was immediately communicated with, and arrived in Saginaw on Friday. An hour later Geo. Marshall, a brother of the murdered girl, also walked into police headquarters. When the prisoner and Marshall confronted each other, the former sunk, nerveless and blanched, into a seat.

"Do you recognize this man?" asked Detective Rogers of Marshall.

"That is the man who killed my sister," came the response.

"Do you know me?" querired Marshall, addressing the prisoner.

"No," was the man's laconic reply, without looking up.

IN LAMBTON JAIL.

At first the prisoner refused to leave Michigan without extradition papers. Later. however, he decided to accompany the detective to this town summarily, and yesterday at noon the gray walls of Lambton county jail received him within their gloomy inclosure.

The prisoner registered in full: "Albert Edward Wilson." He is described upon the Chief was a wall ablorer, 27

The prisoner registered in full: "Albert Edward Wilson." He is described upon the official book of entries as "Al aborer, 27 years of age, Episcopalian, single and temperate."

THE GIRL'S BROTHER SPEARS.

An ADVERTISER reporter saw Mr. Marshall while ife was passing through here yesterday on his way home. In response to a question relative to his former acquaintance with Wilson, Mr. Marshall said that he had known the prisoner since his earliest recollection. Both were about the same age and both had attended the same district school together. Wilson's parents and three brothers were still residing near Watford. The former, he affirmed, were disconsciote.

"Is there any chance of your being mistaken in the identification," asked the reporter.

that he had known the prisoner's family for some time. He had no doubt that the man apprehended was the one wanted. He saw a distinct resemblance between the Wilson he knew and the man justarrested. Mr. McArthur said that he presumed Lawreck, the informant, would receive the $1,000 reward offered for the capture of the prisoner. He also remarked that the prisoner had spent a very good that the prisoner, the prisoner had spent a very good that the prisoner had spent a very good to be proud of the very good to be proud of the prisoner. RESULTS OF SEARCHING THE PRISONER.

SARNIA, July 16.—When the prisoner Wilson was searched, upon his person was found $48 in cash, a silver, open-face Waitham watch, a large, ordinary-looking, two-bladed pocket knife, with a brown, wooden handle. The knife evidently has been in possession of prisoner for some time, as it is quite old in appearance. He had also a certigilate from Buena Vista Tent of K.
O. M. of the World, No. 255, issued on June 24, 1893, under the name of Sir Knight H. Bradly with his signature, which resembles that in the jail register.
He was fairly well dressed in a suit of tweed, and wore a brown soft felt hat.

HOW HE GOT AWAY.

No weapon has been found on the prisoner, but he has stated his name is Wilson and related his adventure in getting away, having walked from Arkona to Point Edward, across the river at that point and took the F. and P. M. Railway to Saginaw where he has been ever since.
Part of the time working in the lumber woods and also driving a mill wagon for several months.

A Letter of Thanks.

To the Editor of the Advertiser:

Through the columns of your paper, we wish to convey our thanks to the citizens of Lendon for their hospitality and liberality during our brief stay in your most beautiful city. Throughout our entire trip the kindness of the Canadian people has been unsurpassed by anything of former years. The universal courtesy has mer years. The universal courtesy has tended to greatly increase the high regard the Americans already had for the Canadians. Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love.

THE LITTLE ONES.

Hundreds Lost That Wight Have Been Saved!

The last three weeks of hot and sultry weather was a very trying time for the babies. Hundreds of weak, frail, and badly-fed little ones, succumbed to the common summer troubles, such as dysentery, diarriea and cholera infantum. It makes one shudder to think of the rawages that death will make in the ranks of the innocents during the next two months.

It is pleasing to learn from mothers and physicians that the use of Lactated Food has done much to save the babies. Letters and testimonials sent in during the month of June, speak of scores of little lives saved through daily dieting with Lactated Food. Mothers have graphically described the condition of their dear babies before the great Food was used. In many cases all hope of recovery was given up, and death was belegic for When the Lactated Food was was used. In many cases all hope of recovery was given up, and death was looked for. When the Lactated Food was recommended and used a happy change was always apparent in a few hours, and in almost overy case the Food brought back life and vitality.

Mothers are strongly urged to give Lactated Food a trial for their infants if they are frail, feeble and sickly. There is no other food preparation in the world of such value in the hot weather.

DO YOU COMPREHEND ITS IM-PORTANCE? The London city assessors are their rounds. They are sworn not only to make a correct valuation of all civic property and taxable income, but also to procure the necessary information to compile a voters well as a Provincial voters' list for the

On ordinary occasions it is most important every way possible to make their work as complete as possible, but the present occasion is one of no ordinary moment.

Every citizen, whether man or woman, must bear in mind three cardinal facts: 1. On the lists now being compiled the mayor and aldermen for next year will be 2. On these lists, by decree of the Legis lature, a plebiscite will be taken in regard to the question of prohibition, and be it remembered that on that vote, which takes place at the same time as the municipal elections, all women entitled to vote in municipal contests have a vote if their names are on the voters' lists. No necessary step should be left untaken to secure

3. Then it should not be forgotten that on the lists now being compiled the Ontario elections of 1894 will be held. That seems to be now beyond doubt, as the four year term of the Legislature ends in June next.

this end, and as the first formula is the simplest we shall state it.

The Supplementary Voters' Act, passed at last session of the Legislature, leaves it impossible for any one entitled to be on the roters' lists to be left off if the average souseholder, store and factory owner does his duty and the assessor does that which he takes an oath he will do.

Let us give a brief summary of this act. The assessor is bound, by careful inquiry at every house, hotel, factory or workshop, to ascertain with the utmost practicable accuracy the names of all person over the age of 21 years residing in the house who are entitled by law to vote at an election for the Legislature in that district; and he must enter each name on the assessment roll and mark opposite to the name in capitals the letters M. F.

inquiry of the assessor, or who answers falsely, shall for every refusal or neglect be fined $20. To better enable the assessors to do their duty, it is incumbent upon the city clerk to give every assessor, prior to entering on his labors, an alphabetical list of the male persons who have died in the city since the 1st of January preceding the final revision of such lists so far as these appear from the documents in his possession. To enable him so to do, the clerk is bound to keep for reference a list of the voters who have died, with the necessary particulars of rank and profession. When a city assessor returns his roll, he must to them. make affiadavit to the effect that he has made careful inquiry at every house in his district, in order to ascertain the names of all persons over the age of 21 who are en titled to vote for member for the Legislature, and that he has entered the names o all such persons upon his roll. It is the duty of the mayor and the assessment commissioner to see that the assessors duly perform the whole of their duties under this act as well as under the Manhood

Franchise Act. Immediately after the return by the assessors of the assessment rolls to the clerk, and without waiting for their revision and correction by the Court of persons appearing by the assessment roll to be entitled to be voters in the city. Then he must have 200 copies of these printed for the use of the various parties stipulated by the act as well as of the asmessment commissioner, but the council my order additional copies if it so chooses. Power is placed in the hands of the assessmissioner to amend the lists in the will very much simplify re in wa case of those wrongly left all duplicates of names. To enable him to do this, the assessment commissioner must he will attend, day and evening, and the clerk shall notify the public of the fact. This procedure must be taken within fourup in the clerk's office. Before entering on the duty, the assessment commissioner must take an oath that he will faithfully discharge it. No person on the alphabetical list can be struck off without notice of an intended application to the assessment commissioner for that purpose, but in order to have a name added to the list or to correct any error in a name it will not be necessary to give previous notice. To have a name added the person will have to make the usual affidavit under the Manhood Suffrage Act, and such affidavit shall be prima facie evidence that the applicant has a right to vote unless appealed against. The lists will, as usual, be finally revised by a county judge. An important provision in the act is section 24, which enacts that after the voters' list has been finally revised and before nomination for any election the county judge shall have power, on being duly applied to, to strike from the lists the names of any persons who have died since the list was revised and corrected. For list for the municipal elections of 1894 as the purpose of striking off these names, the certificate of the Registrar-General or of the division registrar as to deaths shall be sufficient prima facie evidence right, Wills. In addition to the copious that the assessors should be assisted in of a death, with any evidence of identity which may be reasonably necessary in case the identity of the person said to be dead with the person of the same name on the voters' list is disputed or open to reasonable doubt. This enactment applies to municipal voters as well as to the voters for the Legislature. It will be seen from this summary of the new law that the easiest and most effective way to make the lists complete is o have them rendered so by the citizen coperating with the assessor, while the lastamed is making his rounds. The assessor cannot shirk his duty, except by breaking his oath; let the citizen do his and her part and there will be little work to finish when the Court of Revision sits. Neglect now means

With the dull times in Canada has come no such relief. Instead of reducing their salaries the Ottawa Ministers added several new members to the Cabinet at an expense to the country in providing them with a fat income and a well-paid retinue of

THE PROOF, SIR CHARLES. Sir Charles Tupper either has or has not ground for the statement made by him that the British officials charged with searching for pleuro-pneumonia in Canadian cattle were guilty of fraud or gross negligence in arranging for the examination. He says that the "inwards" of a foreign animal were substituted for those of a Canadian beast. If this statement is correct, Sir Charles is in a position to verify it. If he is not in a position to prove it, the High Commisioner had not right to make it. What is Sir Charles doing to back up the positio he has taken? Canada will be humiliated if it is proved that he has once ore been romancing. The people of the Dominion want their cattle trade to be as entrammelled as can be-why, indeed, should not all their trade be as free as ossible? But no accusations which cannot be substantiated should be made against the British authorities. See how our case in Britain has been prejudiced by mis-representation already. For months the Dominion Government asserted that the quarantine laws were scrupulously observed all along the United States border. Then the British Government discovered that this was a falsehood-that cattle from the Western States, with the connivance of the minion Minister of Agriculture, had Manitoba and the Northwest thrown open

CITY PAVEMENTS.

The present method of city road-making is not an ideal one. Cedar blocks are expensive, and are likely to become more so and at the same time medical men asser that they are unhealthy. The policy of spreading over the thoroughfares what is called gravel, but which is really sandy earth, mixed with small, soft stones, is not more satisfactory. Gravel put on a street this year will be carted away as mud or as dust next year, to be replaced by similar material, which, in turn, will be taken away a year later, and so on. It is an ex pensive penny-wise, pound-foolish system What shall take its place? In Harrowgate Revision, it is the duty of the clerk to England, they are trying gas tar macadam make out a correct alphabetical list of all built in a manner which the borough engineer describes. The foundation mater ial is first prepared by forming a heap of 21-inch broken limestone, 6 feet wide, 15 to 18 inches high and of any convenient length. A fire of wood and cinders is then made on top and the stones gradually turned over until all are at the same tem perature. The stone is then spread on an ron plate while warm and mixed with gas tar, after which it is stacked in a heap for a few months. The surface material is formed by preparing a 9-inch bed of furnace ashes. This bed is 6 feet wide and from 12 ts of wa may have become dis- to 15 feet long, and is covered by one of the dollars red hot." They were heated, and

Without the necessity of a formal appeal, the names of persons properly qualified may be added by him, and the names of persons who are known to be dead may be struck off the roll, as well as all duplicates of names. To enable him to same dimensions, but of $\frac{3}{3}$-inch stone. A fire is then kindled on the stone, covered with ashes, and allowed to burn three or more days. A pan is afterward formed, as with a slacking lime, with 6 inches of material on the ground and tar enough poured on to thoroughly coat the separate pieces. This more days. These chippings are rolled and then covered with a thin layer of the surface material, chippings and ashes, This is rolled and the surface a thin sprinkling of fine, well-rolled lime-stone screenings. It is questionable if a roadway of this material would stand the frost of our winters. But there can be no doubt that the pavement question is one of the most important in municipal circles at the present time. What this city needs is a steady working to the provision of pave ments that will last. A work of great usefulness to the legal profession and to conveyancers generally is that just issued by the Carswell Company Toronto. It is entitled "The Dominion Conveyancer: A new book of forms." Howard Hunter, B.A., the Wm. compiler, has made a general collection of precedents useful veyancing, arranged under the following titles: Affidavits, Agreements, Appointments, Apprenticeship, Assignments, Attorney, Powers of, Bills of Sale, Bonds, Chattel Mcrtgages, Charter Party, Conditional Sales, Conditions of Sale, Composition with Creditors, Declarations of Trust, Deeds, Guarantee, Leases, Mechanics' Lien, Mortgages, Notarials, Notices, Partner-ship, Party Wall Agreements, Pledges, Receipts, Releases, Separation, Settle ments, Trade Marks, Patent and Copy. precedents under each title, the editor has added numerous forms of special clauses adapted to particular cases. A complete index to all the forms adds to the useful-ness of the collection. The work contains 563 pages and is substantially bound in half

ABOUT THE TROLLEYS. The New York State board of railroad ommissioners has sent a circular to every street service railroad in the State, recommending that every car operated by the lectric trolley system in that State on a double-track line be equipped with gates at both ends, and that only one gate, that opposite the other track on the rear platform, be open for the ingress and egress of passengers; also that no person (except an instructor, when necessary) be allowed to ride on the platform with the motorman on any electric car. The board also recommends that on all open cars operated by the electric trolley system on double-tracked lines there shall be attached a guard on the side of the car next to the opposite track, running the entire length of the car, to prevent passengers entering or leaving the car on that side, this guard to be of such a nature that it may be transferred from one side to the other.

Now that London is in the throes of an electric railway dispute not a little interest nay be taken by our municipal solons and the railway managers in these recommendations. They have been suggested by the accident record in the various cities that have been running electric cars. At first the great danger feared was from the wires attached to the cars; but it is found that ccidents are rare from that source but requent from other agencies. Running over accidents are the more plentiful. It is nuch harder for a person either old or young to judge the speed of an approaching electric car than it is to guage the rate of a horse car.

ENGLAND UNDER FREE TRADE. (Montreal Heraid.)

The London Echo says that "the agri-ultural laborer in England can buy as bread, tea, sugar, salt, currants, cheese and bacon to-day for 3886 ents) as he could buy for 103 2d $1 47) 50 years ago." Yet Sir Char Fupper and Mr. Howard Vincent are to ing to induce England to go back to to old corn law regime with its high prices.

THE OIL QUESTION.

(Montreal Star.)

The Hamilton Spectator has discovered that they are using crude oil for fuel at the World's Fair; but finds on investigation that steam coal is probably cheaper in Canada. We dislike to refer to it again, but the Spec. may now see the inexpediency of maintaining a duty of 1,200 per cent. against American crude oil, when our wells cannot supply the demand at a paying price. (Montreal Star.)

THE VALUE, NOT THE BULK.

THE VALUE, NOT THE BULK.
(Dundas Banner.)
The Toronto Empire keeps boasting of the increase in exports, and tries to make the farmers believe, in spite of the evidence of their own senses, that they are well off and should be contented, and that well off and should be contented, and that the country is in a state of bounding prosperity. The exports may double, yet if the farmers get only a little over half for their produce what they got before it does not prove that they are prosperous. According to the Empire's way of arguing, $2,000,000 worth of wheat exported at 50 cents a bushel would not only sound bigger but would prove greater prosperity than $1,000,000 worth at $1 a bushel. The fact is that it is not simply the volume of exports that one must judge by, but the sexports that one must judge by, but the value. All the figures in the world will not convince the farmers that they are presperous with wheat at 65 cents a pushel and barley at 40 cents.

HOW THE PANIC WAS STOPPED.

(San Diego Sun.)

Horace McPhee, who is here as Riverside county commissioner, says there was no flurry whatever about the bank of Elsinore. And then McPhee told a story which is particularly pat at these times. which is particularly pat at these times. He said there was a run on a bank in an iron mill town, and the depositors were being paid in silver dollars. The excitement increased and the run became a fast one. The eashier was a young Irishman, and the work put upon him was more than he liked. He resolved to stop it. He sent the janitor with a bushel of silver dollars into a rear room where there was a store. into a rear room where there was a stove, with instructions to "heat them silver

THE QUEEN CITY ROAD RACE.

TORONTO, July 16.—The second annual Queen City wheelmen's road race took place yesterday afterneon in the presence of thousands of spectators, and resulted in some excellent sport. The course was from the top of Norway hill, on the Kingston road, to the nine mile distant post and ton road, to the nine mile distant post and return to the Woodbine race course, round which the contestants rode once to the winning post. The entire distance being twenty miles. About 1 o'clock, four hours before the race started, a terrific raintorm burst over the city, lasting about an hour, and making the roads about the city very heavy, but three miles from the start the wheelers were racing through two inches of dust. The race is believed to have been the biggest on record in America in the number of competitors starting and finishing.

"Chicago, the World's Fair City," is an interesting paper by John F. Ballantyne. J. O. Davidson has a short account of "Waterspouts at Sea." Mrs. C. V. The Review of Reviews for July very The Review of Keviews for July very fitty calls attention to our entrance on a new age—the age of electricity—in its three absorbing articles on the newest marvels and the even more incredible things to be expected. The great electrical exhibit at the World's Fair is described by Mr. J. R. Cravath. This paper is followed by two more under the title, "Two Giants of the Electric Age." Mr. C. D. Lanier tells of the personality and sketches the picturesque career of Thomas A. Edison. The interview with Mr. Edison presents fully the great inventor's views of the further triumphs in electrical science that are about to come to us. A striking and picturesque centrast to the Edison article is Mr. J. Munro's character sketch on Sir William Thomson, Lord Kelvin. Mr. Munro tells how Lord Kelvin made the Atlantic cable possible and how he invented the best mariner's compass; and the personality of the great Scotch professor is a theme of no less absorbing interest than his wonderful achievements in science. HIS REPENTANCE.

Mr. Alfred King had arrived. Sara was shown through a busy room into a smaller one, long and narrow, apparently partitioned off from a third room, which she did not see. The room contained a couple of chairs, a table-desk, and a dandy sort of a gentleman; nothing more. He was leaning against the table, doing semething to his hails with his penknife, an eyeglass in his eye, and a black mustache with rings at its tend curling on his lip.

"Mr. Alfred King?" she said, interrogatively, for there had been no introduction.

Mr. Alfred King bowed. He removed his hat which he had been wearing, shut up the penknife with a flourish of his thin, white hands, courteously stepped forward, and was altogether the gentleman agasin.

"Miss Sara Davenal, I presume?"

How Sara entered upon her task, she never knew. Its nature made her feel sadiy confused and diffident, as if all solf-possestion had gone out of her. Whatever her brother's crime might have been, she assumed that the man before her had cognizance of it; and it rendered her miserably conscious in that first moment. Very much embarrassed, and aware that she was so, she apologized for the delay in the payment of the money, stated that she expected it daily, and begged of Mr. King to be kind enough to waits little longer. Just what she had stated in her letter; in fact, she had nothing else to urge.

things. I should have been better pleased to wait upon you."
"But I could not make it convenient to receive you, replied Sara. "The truth is, he added, in her candor, "that my aunt, Miss Davenal, with whom I live, was not made cognizant of this business; and it was my father's, Dr. Davenal's, wish that she should not be."

"Ah—I see," observed Mr. Alfred King, in the same drawling tone that spoke so unpleasantly of affectation, of something not true in his nature. "Still I feel horribly annoyed at causing you the trouble of confing here, Miss Davenal."

"Ah, yos, to be aure. The fact is, Miss Davenal, some positive understanding must be come to, as to the precise time when the money is to be paid. You cannot imagine the inconvenience the delay has put me to, and but for the respect I once bore Captain Davenal, I would not remain so passive as I have adone.

There was a pointed stress on the word "once" that recalled the blush into Sara's cheeks, the dread to her heart. She murmured a hope that the money would be realized, and paid to him, ere the lapse of realized, and paid to him, ere the lapse of many days.

"You see, Miss Davenal, had the money no ulterior destination, it would not be of so much consequence," he resumed. "Were it due to myself only I would wait with the greatest pleasure, no matter at what inconvenience; but that is not the ease; it is these other parties who will not be pacified. Do you comprehend me, Miss Davenal?"

"Yes. I think so," said Sara, faintly, beginning to fear the affair was more complicated than she had thought. "Who are the parties?"

cated than she had thought. "Who are the parties?"

Mr. Alfred King ran his white hand, and a showy ring that was onit right through his black har. "Well—I would tell you if I could, Miss Davenal; in snything that concerns myself only, you may command me as you please; but the fact is, I sm not at liberty to mention the names of those parties even to you."

There was a pause, and Sara's manner for the moment grew haughtily distant. She liked his words less and less. But she recollected horse is she subdued her proud spirit. Was not Edward in his power? "These parties have been angry at the delay," he resumed, breaking the silence that ensued. "They have badgered the life nearly out of me over it; excuse the term Miss Daveal, it but expresses the fact. I assure you I have had a most difficult task to keep then from proceeding to extremities. And, in short, they won't be put of

"From extremities?" she repeated, the one ominous word alone catching her ear.

Mr. Alfred King looked at her, not speaking. His gaze seemed to ask her how much she knew. She did not respond to it.

"Were this unfortunate matter made public nothing could save Captain Davenal," he resumed, in a low tone. "He is now in apparent safety, but—in short, it would only be a question of time, two or three months or so. Men are brought from the ends of the world now to answer for—for crime."

Subdued as was his voice, Sara looked around in terror. That partition, if nothing more than a partition, was probably a shallow one, allowing sound to pass beyond it.

"Bo at ease," he said, detecting her fear. "We are quite alone."

Sara believed

missiort, Miss Davenal, they will not wait longer."

"But what can I do?" she urged, in her helplessness. "I admit that the delay is vexatious—heaven knows I have feltit so, vexatious—heaven knows I have feltit so, with the money is there; it will very shortly be forthcoming, and then it will be paid."

"Yes, I have pointed out all this to them, "he said, flicking a speck of dirt off his coat. "I—I suppose there is no foreign delay or obstruction, beyond the delay caused by realizing the different moneys."

His sudden penetrating glance at her, the hidden earnestness of his tone, told Sara that this was a question of importance to cut the interview which had not borne to cut of something untruthful in himself, his voice and his words. Possibly he had sought this personal interview with the sole view of ascertaining this solitary fact. An impresion that it was so passed rapidly through her mind.

"Let me thoroughly understand you," she said, following her own thoughts rather than his words. "Tell me without reserve exactly what you wish to know, and I will answer you to the best of my power. There is no other cause for the delay, except that the moneys have not been realized as quickly as they ought to have been; no other cause whatever! Were you thinking there was?"

"I?" and again the faise, drawling tone grated harshly on her ear. "Not I, I assure you, Miss Davenal. Those parties, of whom I spoke, hinted to me that with all this delay it looked as if there was no intention to pay the money. Of course I knew that it was nothing of the sort; that the money must be paid."

"The very day that the money reaches me, it will be paid to you according to the instructions of my father, Dr. Davenal," she said impressively. "I beg you to believe them:"

"I will do so. How much longer do you suppose the delay will extend? Can you fix any definite date for the payment?"

"I wish I could. But you see it does not rost with me A very, very short period now will, I believe, see it settled."

Mr. Alfred King mused. "I will inform them of what you say, Miss Davenal, and I do trust the period may be a she short one. If protracted, I cannot answer that they would remain passive."

"They must be cruel men, to wish to harm Cavtain Davenal?"

"No," he answered. Had they been cruel men they would not have consented not to harm him. It is not that Miss Davenal; it is the money itself that is wanted; and the delay vexes them."

She was feeling desperate, and she ventured on a boid step. "In their own interest, then, they more cautious not to harm him. Were they to do so, they would loss the money."

"Why."

"Because I would never pay it."
