Twenty-seven sticks of dynamite, attached a piece of string as an imcient to blow up the City of Lonn, were discovered by boys twenty east of the Carfrae Crescent entrance to the old traction bridge at 10:30 this morning. Two minutes later London South residences were rocked to their foundations, when the 17-year-old lad who made the find purposely set off one of the sticks. escaping with his life only by great

Many theories have been advanced, but all are based on conjecture.

No Thought of Plot. Possibility of the dynamite having been placed for the purpose of blow-ing up the old traction bridge is considered remote. It may have been stolen by boys and hidden. Or it was possibly taken from a Hamilton concern by yeggmen to be used later for cafe cracking. The latter theory was supported by P. C. Thomson, one of the officers who arrived on the scene

FOR LONGER LIFE

Individuals in good physical condition at 20 usually have their own ignorance to blame for not living a 100 or more years. With proper care and a general knowledge of physiology everybody should live to be a centenarian.

The above summarizes the opinions of local medical men in regard to the declaration yesterday of Dr. G. S. Porter at Guelph that the span of human life should be 100 years. They willingly gave the recipe for longevity-moderation in everything and a physical examination not less than once every six months.

In this connection it is interesting to know that a new substance supposed to have the power of rejuvenating mankind arrived in London this week for the first time in medical history. It is a mixture of animal glands in tabloid form and is being administered by local doctors to pa-tients enfeebled from old age. Following the discovery in England ecently that transplantation of recently that transplantation of glands from monkeys and dogs to human beings added 30 and 40 years to a man's life, members of London's medical fraternity procured quantities of glandular mixture which they give to patients internally. Cause Is a Mystery.

The exact cause of the blast remained a mystery early today, al-though officials of the Kemmerer Coal Company in a statement issued yesterday declared a blown-out shot was responsible for the detonation. Another theory is that a carrying trip car, jumping from the track on a 1,700-foot level where the explosion occurred, caused a spark which ig-nited a cloud of dust or gas. As news of the explosion spread quickly throughout Kemmerer and Frontier yesterday a crowd, estimat ed to number 1,000 persons, gathered at the portal of the mine and maintained a frantic, fearful vigil throughout the day and far into the night. Wives, mothers, sisters, daughters, sweethearts and children of the entombed men pressed against the rope-barrier strung around the shaft, and at times overwhelmed the small force of Kemmerer police and volunteers as rescue crews emerged from the underground tomb.

Hysterically, women wept for a husband, father, brother or friend as the hours passed, and only a few survivors struggled from the mouth of the pit. Children's wails mingled with the heart-breaking cries of faithful watchers when it became apparent early last night that no more men remained alive in the mine, and rescue workers ceased their search for the living and turned to the task of bringing out the dead. The eyes of men were wet with tears as they waited, hoping for the appearance of comrades with whom they had worked shoulder to shoulder but who never came. Bodies Were Blackened.

Rescuers passed through the workings as hurriedly as possible, searching only for the living. The dead were found scattered throughout the main slope, but their bodies were not touched until 9 o'clock last night, when the task of bringing them to the surface began after hopes to the surface began after were abandoned of finding any more Indications were that those who

The documents the exact contents of which are withheld, are said to include a series letters which will throw a new light altogether on some of the principal

Papineau, previous to his depart-ure for the United States, while the rebellion was in full swing, would have written letters to some of the leaders of the rebellion advising them to stop resistance, as he thought in was vain and was convinced that de-feat was in sight for the rebels. These messages are also said to prove that the "Sons of Liberty" (Fils De La Liberts) which was one of the leading rebellion organizations, had ramifications extending in all parts

At several points Papineau's warning letters were received, and their activities stopped, but at other points the latter was intercepted and at those points the fights were recorded.

Had these letters reached their destination the rebellion would have been immediately calmed down, according to those documents. The provincial archives are also to be enriched within a few days by the collection of other documents on that same period.

New York, Aug. 15.—Two wellknown fighters will have their chance at Chicago on Friday night, when Jock Malone of St. Paul and Tilly (Kid) Herman of Los Angeles mingle at Aurora.

Malone's manager wanted the men to weigh in at 155 pounds, but Herman held out for 147, he being a true welter. When the match threatened to fall through, the promoter induced both men to enter upon 151 pounds. Malone will have a real test of his ability against Herman, whose cloverness and hitting ability are recognized. Some critics say like to be punished, but this has been denied by friends of his. DEPLORES LETTER FROM ASSOCIATION ON CHURCH UNION

Rev. W. McIntosh Thinks Communication to Press Not At All Creditable.

ALLEGE DECEIT

That the letter appearing in today's Foronto Globe from the Presbyterian Church Association in reply to the article in the Presbyterian Witness of August 16, in which the association charges the Unionists with bad faith in the carrying out of the union is greatly to be deplored, in the opinion of the Rev. W. R. McIntosh of the King Street Presbyterian Church in London.

"A letter of this kind," the minister said this morning, "is not at all creditable to the association. When they accuse the Unionists of a breach of faith with the people and when they go so far as to say that the Unionists have no moral regal, or Christian right to speak for the Presbyterians, they are in my opinion stepping beyond the limits of the discussion and are taking a stand that may well react on themselves... "There is no doubt," said Mr. Mc-Introsh, "that the article in the Pres' byterian Witness puts the position of the Unionists very clearly and accurately. In the letter in today's Globe, Unionists are also accused of deceit in their policy of trying to allay the fears of the anti-Unionists, by showing them that the changes which will follow church union are, not nearly as radical as they seem to think.

In doing this the Unionists are not carrying on any campaign of deceit-fullness in order to get union through in spite of the people, but as a matter of policy they are telling the members of the church just what the union really amounts to. As to the spirit of the letter itself, Mr. McIntosh is of the opinion that it has been born in the throes of desperation and that a little longer con-

JURY GIVE VERDICT IN HANEY'S DEATH

Say That Fatality Was Purely Accidenal in St. Thomas Case.

A STEP BACKWARD

St. Thomas, Aug. 14. - The jury mpaneled to inquire into the death of Harold Haney, M. C. R. car checker, reported that the deceased met his death on Sunday morning at 9:35, being struck by a light engine in the yards. A verdict of death from accidental causes was given.

J. A. Just as the engine was about next to him Haney suddenly stepped back on the track. He put on the brakes, but it was too late. He had no time to blow the whistle. The bell was ringing all the while. The locomotive was stopped in an engine length. Haney was close to the track before the accident, so that only a step or two backward was needed to place him in a position of danger.

Questioned by members of the jury,
Mr. Ballantyne said it was not the custom to have brakemen on engines in the yards, though the law made this essential when passing over crossings. In explanation, the M.C.R. solicitor, who was present at the inquest, said that brakemen were re-leased from this obligation because of the danger of accidents resulting rom it to their own persons.

Mr. Baylantyne did not think a brakeman on the rear end of a loco-motive approaching Haney could have prevented the fatality. In this he was supported by B. F. Cascadden, yardmaster at the M.C.R., who beieved that just in the last minute he boy, engrossed in his work, had lorgot the approaching locomotive and had stepped back a step too far "A brakeman wouldn't have made any difference," Mr. Cascadden declared.

Other witnesses called were Dr. Campbell, W. Higgerman, Melvin Van Horne, Fred Barnhard, Walter Taylor, Robert Bates and George

Grose. Van Horne, brakeman, and Barnhard, fireman, were riding in the engine cab at the time of the accident. Questioned by Crown Attorney McCrimmon if it was not his duty to ride on the tender in the yard, Van Horne replied "Not that I under-stand." Fireman Barnhard didn't see Haney till after the accident. He was performing his duty, looking out the fireman's window and ringing the bell.

Nothing definite is known as to the cause of the fatality. Mr. Fitzpatrick was at the International Hotel last night for supper, and was not seen afterwards. One explanation is that evening, and returning to St. Thomas on a late car, neglected to get off at Talbot street, perhaps through oversleeping. Finding he had gone far, he may have stepped off into the dark and fallen the long distance to the ground. It is unlikely he was walking on the bridge, as there is a footpath and railing on the east side of the bridge and his body was found to the west of the structure. Some however, believe the gash on his head might have been caused by an engine or car striking him.

Mr. Fitzpatrick was well known in this city. He was 55 years of age.
Coroner Dr. Ewin was called to the scene immediately. An inquest will be held, the jury being summoned by County Constable Hugh Ostrander.

The problem which Chicago is facing at present nerhans serves to lend a perspective to the situation here. The Chicago Tribune recently had this to say:

"Twenty and thirty years ago Chicago was trying to do away with railroad grade crossings. A good deal of the council's work was the passing of track elevation ordinances. It was then the 'deadly grade crossing.' It was recognized that a city could not have railroad trains running across its streets.

'Now we're back to the grade crossing again, with a different kind of locomotive, the automobile. Every street, so far as the pedestrian is concerned, is a grade crossing. Possibly there never will be a satisfactory adjustment of traffic, at least in downtown Chicago, until more levels of transit are provided-not only one underground for street cars, but one at the second story level for pedestrians. The streets were laid out for four and five story buildings, and now they must serve for buildings five and six times higher."

Subways and second-story streets are things which are not likely to worry London for a while. But their necessity in Chicago serves as a warning to those who adopt the policy of waiting and hoping. "Twenty and thirty years" pass quickly in the history of a city. And the London of 1943 and 1953 depends upon the courage, by the sign "To Let." persistency and vision contributed by the builders of

If coming events cast their shadows before, there is significance in the statement made by Dr. C. S. The doctor said: "I would like to say that the farmers have been very much handicapped this year in the way of keeping their milk up to the required standard. It has been one of the prophecies of Canadian economists for the last two or three years that if conditions on the land, as regards labor, were to continue, the day would assuredly come when the cities would find themselves facing a shortage of food, and that in an endeavor to prevent such a calamity the cities would have to buy the close-in farms and control them just as they would any other civic plant, paying the necessary wages to attract workmen and keep them

Sailing and Steamships.

"What do they know of the ocean who only steamships know?" might fitly be a parody on the oft-quoted verse on the glories of England. A despatch in yesterday's paper tells the story of a 40-ton yawl which has been adventuring alone across the North Atlantic since June 23. The report, dated Halifax, N. Then he spoils it all with a "footnote" to the effect that normal feet are very rare.

Perish the thought! The average man is too gallant to rate a woman as, even figuratively, carrying her intelligence in her feet. And of what use is the tip anyway? A man would court trouble if he went around intently studying the feet of women.

Perhaps this expert got his idea from the brilliant colors lately to be seen on feminine footwear. It may be he figures a woman who buys red shoes that leave their paint marks on the sidewalk is lacking in intelligence. Resolutions Will Not Do It.

A few months ago Sir Henry Thornton visited London, and London in righteous indignation demanded redress of her rallway grievances—the decrepit old station and the menace of level crossings. -

London's presentation of her case made a favorable impression on the head of Canada's National Railways. He replied that he was willing to open immediate When a man in a fit of anger loses his self-control we negotiations. Soon afterwards engineers arrived for a say he is seeing red. preliminary survey of the situation. The last word which London has been given is that the C. P. R. must based on this color thought in the mind of the average now indicate its attitude toward the possibility of a union station.

London must keep hammering away, steadily and made. The removal of level crossings and the building associated with this color, or green with envy. of an adequate station mean something more to the something more than good resolutions and attractive blue prints.

The problem which Chicago is facing at present perhaps serves to lend a perspective to the situation here. The Chicago Tribune recently had this to say:

"Twenty and thirty years ago Chicago was trying to do away with railroad grade crossings. A good deal of the council's work was the passing of track elevation ordinances. It was then the 'deadly grade crossing.' It was recognized that a city could not have railroad trains running across its streets.

Now we're back to the grade crossing again, with a different kind of locomotive, the automobile. Every street, so far as the pedestrian is concerned, is a grade crossing. Possibly there never will be a satisfactory adjustment of traffic, at least in downtown Chicago, until more levels of transit are provided--not only one underground for street cars, but one at the second story level for pedestrians. The streets were laid out for four and five story buildings, and now they must serve for buildings five and six times higher.'

Subways and second-story streets are things which are not likely to worry London for a while. But their traffic would bear. necessity in Chicago serves as a warning to those who adopt the policy of waiting and hoping. "Twenty and thirty years" pass quickly in the history of a city. It has been one of the prophecies of Canadian economists for the last two or three years that if conditions on the land, as regards labor, were to continue, the day would assuredly come when the cities would find themselves facing a shortage of food, and that in an endeavor to prevent such a calamity the cities would have to buy the close-in farms and control them just as they would any other civic plant, paying the necessary wages to attract workmen and keep them

Milk is one of the most important of all food products. For the invalid, for the sick, and for the very young there is nothing to take its place. Yet here in London the board of health is informed by its own inspector that the farmers have been so busy in getting in their crops, owing to lack of help, that the milk could not be taken proper care of.

Recently there was a riot at the port of Southampton when emigrants for Canada fought with the police for room to get to the boat bringing them across. Mr. Keynes, the English expert in economics, who at the tirte of the Versailles conference and treaty foretold the rouble that now rests over Europe, and who is being followed by an ever-growing crowd of believers in England, told his hearers two weeks ago that "unless the French get out of the Ruhr before winter comes, the unemployment question in this country will be nore serious than at any time since 1918."

The Meaning of Colors.

Red, white and blue. The colors of the old flag, more discussed and analyzed perhaps than any other arrangement of colors in the world. On the occasion of any patriotic anniversary these colors are given their psychological values, and we are told that red is courage, white purity and blue loyalty.

What relationship can there be between color that the physical eyes reflect and traits in human character? Why, for instance, should a man be called a coward and be said to have a yellow streak? Why should a man be green with envy or blue with fright? We speak of a black scowl, a brown study, the yellow press and so on.

SCOTTISH FARM HANDS ARE ON WAY TO CHATHAM

Special to The Advertiser. Chatham, Aug. 14.-Eleven experienced farm hands who recently arrived in Canada from Scotland are now on their way to Chatham, and are anxious to secure positions with district farmers as soon as they arrive. Word to this effect was received in a telegram at the local labor office this morning. Bureau officials say they will have no difficulty in placing the men on good farm jobs. There is only one married man in the party.

sporting prize in the world should not be narrowed down to one man. Sir Thomas holds no such views and his attitude upon this point is very well known abroad, where no vachtsman has ever seriously thought of coming forward as a challenger. When Lipton first challenged for the cup he was a wealthy tea merchant otherwise unknown even in his own country. His association with the America's cup has made him one of the prominent figures in the sporting world—perhaps the most prominent. And at the same time there is no reason to feel that the publicity he received has injured his tea busi ness. Quite the contrary.

St. Thomas, Aug. 14.—The Saints finished up their practice at Pinafore Fark tonight for the cructal match at London Wednesday afternoon. Manager Geo. Nethercott has virtually decided upon his line-up, and announced that McPhee would face Down, and that Binns would catch. Billings will occupy first, Farley second. Riseborough short, and Arlein third. The usual trie will comprise the outfield, namely, Barclay. Doan and Cabot.

The local O. B. A. A. squad are determined to cinch the title of the S. O. League by defeating London tomorrow. Their exhibition at Pinafore Park tonight was a pleasing sight. The players cavorted about the diamond in great style, to the delight of a great number of fans who journeyed to the park to witness their manoeuvers.

It is expected that over 500 fans will invade the Forest City by motor and via the L. & P. S. There is great enthusiasm here, and fans are getting the baseball fever that marked the O. B. A. A. play-offs in this district last years.

If the Saints win Wednesday, and tuck away the championship of the Southern Ontario League, the management plan to stage a number of exhibition tilts to keep the candidates in trim. Next Wednesday, it is hoped to bring the Grennan Cakes of Detroit to St. Thomas for another game. Although the U. S. champions have not been defeated in their district this year, they were blanked by the locals here about a month ago by the score of 5 to 0. The Windsor Pirates will also be seen in action here this season. Forest Hills, N.Y., Aug. 14.-Favorites came through without upset today in

New York, Aug. 14.—It looks as though Luis Firpo will now settle down to training for his Sept. 16 bout with Jack Dempsey. He has asked the Indianapolis promoters of his bout with Downey to postpone it until after the big battle, and while this looks like a request the chances all are that it is a statement.

Perhaps Firpo feels it is wise to begin to make some serious effort to get himself into shape for the champion, or perhaps he deems it better to string out his set-ups—not use them up too fast. Having stowed Weinert away and with Downey in line for the soporific sock it is difficult to select future victims who are not very good and yet good enough to draw a crowd.

The resurrection of Charley Weinert to do the horizontal act for Firpo was a part of the building-up processes in which Firpo has participated since he first attracted Tex Rickard's attention. At first nobody figured that the Newark Adonis had a Chinaman's chance against the Mad Bull, but the propaganda was cleverely worked up, Weinert assisting with his eloquent tongue. The result was that more than twenty thousand fans went out to Mr. Baker's Philadelphia ball park to see how much warrant Rickard had for his fears that Weinert might show up the Pampas Puncher. Rickard, by the way, is always ready to help a brother promoter put over a show. The bout worked out the way the experts doped it out. This in itself was so unusual that the statement deserves a paragraph by itself.

In the first round Weinert pasted the Brantford, Aug. 14.—On Labor Day the Brantford Amateur Athletic Association, together with the Y.M.C.A., is putting on a monster sports competition at the Agricultural Park, Brantford, games to be contested morning and afternoon, with military tattoo and fireworks at night.

Attractive prizes are being offered for softball, male and female, together with tug-of-war, foot races, ten-mile marathon and a ten-mile bicycle race will be run under the auspices of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association with shorter bicycle races and lacrosse matches. In the first round Weinert pasted the Argentino with everything but the ring stool. Finally Firpo got mad, and in the second knocked Weinert down four times.

Little Lessons In Golf BY CHESTER G. HORTON, Nationally Known Golf Instructor. Does the left heel stay on the ground in the full golf stroke, or is it lifted? If lifted, how much? I lift my left heel slightly, or, rather, it just naturally lifts itself a trifle when I shove my weight over to my left leg at the beginning of the stroke. Some players keep the left heel on the ground all the time, and whether it should be lefted is one of the moot questions of golf—made so because there can be no arbitrary rule about it. It is an individual matter. I have instructed some pupils to keep the left heel down, while others have been told to let it come more off the ground—and there you are. The player who is slightly heavy around the waist should, for bodily freedom, let his left knee come far in toward the right at the start of the stroke, and hang limply. His left heel then will be slightly off the ground, and a slight pressure will be felt on the side of the left foot when the club attains the top of the stroke.

While it is not definite at the present time, there is some probability that the C. W. A. may also arrange to have the C. W. A. may also arrange to have a local team of riders attend the Toronto meet to compete in the unlimited team pursuit race.

After the Tuesday race, Coles may go to New York. The local lad has always cherished ambitions to ride on the boards, and meet the fastest riders on the continent. The Newark track stages weekly meets, along the lines of the local meets, but, of course, drawing from a larger territory. Consequently, the competition is faster.

There has been some talk of raising a fund to send Coles, and other local deserving riders there, but so far nothing has been accomplished.

Legs Worry Him.

The very fact that Cobb mentioned legs indicated what worried him most. He is smart enough to keave that bail players begin to fail when their legs fail.

What Cobb is today on the ball field is the result of the study that he has made. Cobb takes from Ty. There is not a ball player on the field and hardly any in the past who have been put through, but no manager ever made Cobb do stunts. Cobb made him self his own manager: a more exacting and imperious manager never lived Ty made Ty chase flies day after day to all sorts of impossible places. The had batters practiced hit it it over my head. Hit it short, hit it to ver my head. Hit it short, hit it to ver my head. Hit it short, hit it to ver my head. Hit it short, hit it over my head. Hon. Charles McCrea Declares Government Policy Regarding Wilson Gas Field.

CONFER IN TORONTO

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Aug. 14.-In a statement made tonight by Hon. Charles Mc-Crea, minister of mines, regarding the utilizing of a small gas field owned by L. Wilson, seven miles from Sarnia, he said the policy of the government would be to see that the domestic demand for gas supply was filled first of all. Mr. Wilson, after drilling a number of wells on his property, had negotiated with Sarnia about buying gas, the city of Sarnia being already supplied by the Sarnia Gas Company, which in turn was supplied by the Union Gas Company. Failing to peratiate successfully with Failing to negotiate successfully with the city of Sarnia and the gas companies, Mr. Wilson had asked the government to grant permission for him to use the gas to manufacture carbon black.

In reply, the government called a conference of the various parties, which took place in the Parliament Buildings today, attended by Mr. Mc-Crea, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Williams representing the Sarnia Gas Company, Mr. Morse representing the Union Gas Company, and Mr. Lambert, representing the Sarnia City Council.

Mr. McCrea informed the visitors that the policy of the government was to conserve the gas for domestic consumption where needed. If the various parties could not agree on con-ditions then the matter would have to be referred to the gas commissionwould need the gas seven months of the year. The government would be satisfied for Mr. Wilson to manufac-ture carbon black when Sarnia did not require the gas from his field, but the needs of the city would have to

New York, Aug. 15 .- "You want to know what we are going to do about reparations," remarked Prime Minis-ter Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain, speaking to me alone in the famous room of the British premier, at 10 Downing street, London, as he knitbrows over the great European riddle.

"I do not know. We do not know what to do. Our most acute and experienced specialists confess themselves baffled. They will tell you that in the history of state craft, they are familiar with no other complication so obstinate as this. Not knowing what to do, we yet know we must do something, and we are thinking and debating the whole time what this something shall be. Of this we are sure. We value un-speakably the friendship of our old allies and associates, and hope and believe it will never be broken.

"But we are terribly worried over the Ruhr situation. We want it put right. It seems to us appallingly dangerous. We differ with France as to what should be done, but we do not consider France disposed to seek anything except what everyone should desire—a settlement and the prospect of permanent peace. We do not impugn the motives of our great ally. We love her ardently as ever, and pray justice may be done her. We should be afraid to see justice denied her, but we also should be afraid to see justice denied our own peoples, oppressed as they are, by grievous burdens. OLD ADVERTISER FOUND IN WALLS OF CITY CHURCH

WHEN NEWS WAS CUT

While tearing down the old frame school room at the rear of the Church of Christ (Disciples), at the corner of Elizabeth and Dundas streets workmen discovered between the boards a copy of the Daily Advertiser dated April 25, 1879.

The paper is in a remarkable state of preservation considering the 44 long years it served between the walls. It is only slightly discolored. and the few holes which perforate it were probably caused by nails which held the boards together.

It gives an interesting illustration of the changes which have occurred in the past fifty years in the daily newspapers of the country. Instead of the fourteen to twenty pages which are contained in the average newspaper of today, the old edition has only four. But the pages are six inches longer and nine columns

News Condensed.

Much news is crowded into the four pages, for everything, including the advertisements, is in a very con-densed style. There are no large headlines, for the paper is dressed in English style. News which today would probably receive an eightcolumn head is placed under a single-line caption. For instance, one article announcing that Great Britain and France had despatched ships of war to Egypt comes under a heading "The Egyptian Situation."

All news is classified under the name of the country in which the events occur. One portion of a column captioned "Great Britain." some space is devoted to "France," and hen each country is served in turn. News from various cities in Canada is treated in the same way.

At the time British Columbia seem-

AIRING SUMMER UNDERWEAR. The first law of the summer wardrobe is exquisite daintiness. Unless every piece of lingerie, hosiery and other underthings is as fresh, sweet-smelling and dainty as the crisp frock itself, no woman is above reproach and the utmost care is necessary if she is always to be as clean as if she had just stepped out of the washtub.

This does not mean that every article of underclothing must be constantly laundered. In fact, the gar-ments made of sheer georgette crepe and similar delicate materials will wear out if washed too often. The threads separate and the article grows stringy. In many cases, a dainty undergarment is not so much dainy undergarment is not so much soiled as it is hot, mussed, and a bit damp with perspiration. It is not necessary to wash little vests, stepins, combinations, or brassieres after every wearing, provided they are thoroughly aired for a day between wearings.

The air is almost as cleaning as water, if it is given a chance, and it does not tend to wear out delicate garments, as even the lightest rubbing and squeezing does. Give your lingerie a "dry shampoo" by airing it thoroughly.

This queer fellow didn't see him. He seemed to be very busy. His back was humped up, and he seemed to be having trouble of some kind. Now and then he would stop at what he was doing and rest. Then he would hump his back again and go through the fun-

This queer fellows skin had split down the back and was beginning to come off. Underneath it was a new skin. While the young Chuck watched, the queer fellow's skin split down his legs and his arms, and one by one, he pulled the latter out of the old skin.

This was astonishing in itself, but what was more astonishing was the fact that this queer fellow was actually swallowing that old skin of his as fast as it came off. At last he pulled the very last of it over his head and stuffed it into his big mouth. Then he gulped two or three times and that was the last of that old skin. Of course, you have guesse who it was. At the sound of that first laugh Old Mr. Toad turned and saw the young Chuck for the first time. He was indignant. He was indignant because he was being laughed at, and he was indignant because the young Chuck had been impolite as to watch him change his clothes. He was so

GOLD AND SILVER

Associated Press Despatch. London, Aug. 14.—Bar gold, per oz

Associated Press Despatch. New York, Aug. 15 .- Bar silver, 631/40 Many housewives throw away useful things without realizing they are doing so. Who, for instance, would dream that egg-shells are useful for cleaning burned saucepans. You will soon find that this is so if you crush the shells, lay them around the inside as well as the outside of the saucepan. You need have no fear that the shells will scratch. No matter how often you change the lowers or the water in a glass vase, you will find that the bottom will become discolored. To remove this discoloration, crush some egg-shell and place i a little water and shake the contents well. The glass will soon become clear once more. The gardener can also use egg-shells, for they form a splendid fertilizer when crushed very finely.

There is nothing finer than dried orange or lemon peel for starting a fire. They flare up right away. To dry these, piace-them beneath your stove or grate

With the ald of potato peelings you can make a serviceable serge cleaner. Wash some peelings and boil them in a saucepan of water. When they come to the boil, strain off the water and leave it to cool. You have no further use for the peelings, so the hens can make a meal off them.

As soon as the water is cool, din brush in it and rub well into the material to be cleaned. You should then press the serge with a hot iron and a damp cloth, after which it will look almost new.

WHERE DICKENS WORKED. The English Dickens Fellowship has recently acquired ownership of No. 48 Doughty street, Mecklenburg Square, with a view to preserving it as a Dickens shrine in London. Dickens's tenancy of the house in question lasted from March, 1837. until the end of 1839. It is the only one of his many London residences which still remains structurally in tact and unchanged in any way. There it was that the greater vart of "Pickwick" and "Nicholas Nickleby" and the whole of "Oliver Twist" were written. Mr. B. W. Matz, the founder of the Fellowship, has now in his possession the original letter inviting Samuel Lover, the author, to celebrate the publication of "Pickwick.' Writ-ten from Doughty street. It runs: "Talfourd, Macready and one or twe more will be there." After an apology for the short notice given, the letter ends: "Write me a line off-hand like a decent Irishman (if there be such a thing), and say you'll come." Here it was also that the novelist's daughters, Mary and Kate, were born, and the greatest grief of his life befell aim in the death of his beautiful young sister-in-law, Mary Hogarth, who inspired the character of Agnes Wickfield in "David Copperfield." Her death at No. 48 probably largely occasioned Dickens's decision

EARLY ROMAN FRESCOES.

Recently while workmen were digging to lay the foundations of a public garage in Rome, they came suddenly upon a large subterranean structure of the days of the early Romans. It was decorated with frescoes, all of which evidently were painted to represent in disguised form scenes from the Gospels. Four times the figure of the Good Shepherd, which early non-Christians might have identified as Orpheus, is represented. There is also the scene of the Sermon on the Mount, with an mage of the Saviour disguised as a image of the Saviour disguised as a shepherd among his flock, seated on a pinnacle of rock, with an open book on his knees. There are the life size figures of the Twelve Apostles, another representation of the twelve, and ather groups that might repre-

When you buy a lot of nuts, don't consign the shells to the dustbin, but keep them for the fire.

With the old of notes assign your stove or grate other representation of the tweive, and other groups that might represent Christ preaching in the temple; and finally there is the woman with the issue of blood and the ass that the Saviour rode on his last visit to Jerusalem. The best of the collection are two marvelous heads that, it is thought, are authentic portraits of St. Peter and St. Paul, made while the two princes of the apostles were

Total sales for the morning were 116,980 shares. STANDARD MINING EXCHANGE.

LONDON LOEW'S THEATRE

In:provement noted in the operating position of London Loew's Theatre in earlier months of the year has been maintained, and there now seems reasonable prospect of not only a further payment, but an actual cleaning up of arrears on preferred at the end of the next dividend period, October 1. The company resumed dividends at the close of 1922, when a disbursement for six months, being at the rate of 3½ per cent, was declared. At April 1 a further distribution for six months was announced, and at July 1 a dividend for the current quarter was declared. It now seems possible that' in addition to the regular quarterly dividend, there will be provision for the balance of arrears for two quarterly periods at the end of the next quarter. If the directors of the company decide to wipe out all arrears on that occasion, the total dishursement by the company within the nine-month period would be 14 per cent.

TRADE REMAINS QUIET AT MID-SEASON SESSION

Live Hogs Quoted at $9.25 Per Cwt. F.O.B. For Select Grade.

There was a heavy decrease in offerings at the local market this morning, and trade was slow. There is a good demand for hay of good quality, the receipts for the past few days being quite light. Prices are gradually becoming higher, $11 to $13 being paid for the three loads on the square. One load of oats was sold for $1.72 per cwt. New wheat receipts are not numerous, and the price remains at $1 per bushel for No. 1 quality, though the single load delivered was sold at 90c per bushel, being much below average and not well cleaned.

Wednesday's shipment of select live hogs was quite heavy. $9.25 per cwt f. o. b. being the current quotation.

The remainder of the price list remains stationary.

The announcement by the Greek government of a plan to restore the among lovers of art. Opponents of the project assert that the very ruins are a tradition the destruction of which would be a greater evil than any benefits a restoration would bring about could offset, even if the restoration turned out perfect. Advocates of the idea maintain that enough is known of the temple, and that enough of the original stones remain, to guarantee a perfect restora-tion, and that restoration is the only thing to save the temple from com plete collapse. Further propping of the walls will deface them.

WANT AD TIPS

A Hint In Giving Addresses There are thousands of them in every town and city of any size-addresses like 2145 Block street. It is out from the centre of town, on a short side street. Put 2145 Block street in a Want Ad, and probably not 20 per cent of readers will know whether it is close in or far out; on the city's north side or east side; close to a street car line, or far from one. Before answering the Want Ad, they must look up the address. and find how to get to it. It is only a little thing, perhaps, but thousands of important decisions have been swayed by "little things." Innumerable times, Want Ad readers, choosing between two advertisements, have gone to a known address, rather than first "look up" a strange one. The lesson here is clear. If your street address is one which will likely be strange to many readers, be ingenious. Make the strange address have a familiar look. Describe it so it is easy to find.

Eli Greenleaf's home is on a street which happens to be one of the city's shortest-it has just three blocks. What Mr. Greenleaf, advertising his place for sale, says, is this: "East Side, three blocks north of Budd Park." Most people know where Budd Park is. And "three blocks north," looks and is a very simple direction to follow. The reader feels instantly he can find the Want advertiser's home with a minimum of difficulty. Get a near local landmark-a park, a school, church, hill, bridge, trunk highway, factory, etc. - and describe your location by blocks from it. If your address is really not so far from things, make it seem of easy, convenient access by stating the time required to get it—"Fifteen minutes" ride from Union Station" and such descriptions are good. "Cars run every ten minutes," has increased the number of inquirers visiting many a "farout" Want advertiser.

DESOLATION MARKS Manager of Country Club Scares Thieves By Ruse

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Aug. 15.—Three armed men, masked and apparently well-informed, forced an entrance some time after midnight into the premises of the Lake Shore Country Club, on the Toronto-Hamilton Highway, near Port Credit, and, banging at the door of J. Pember, the manager of the club, threatened to "finish" him if he did not hand over the keys of the rooms where valuable silver cups and other things were kept.

Mr. Pember and his wife tried to get assistance by telephone, but found difficulty in getting a connection. The burglars finally got through his barricaded door, and at the same time Pember shouted into the telephone "Come quickly! There are armed robbers in the club!" The ruse worked, and the three men ran down the hallway and cleared away. Residents of the neighborhood were aroused and formed a search party, but found no trace of the marauders.

> An Armiet of Lace. New York, Aug. 14.—Just when the day of the sleeveless frock is beginning day of the sieeveless frock is beginning to wane, along comes another of those new whimsies which seek at once to hide and to emphasize the lack of sleeves. This whimsy is an armlet of organdy and lace—just an armlet, worn on the upper arm like a bracelet. Sometimes it is decked with artificial flowers.
