At the Tivoli Mr. Henry Moore recited a poem called "The Fishermen and the Russians," in which mention was made of Russia's first victory. A song with a refrain beginning "Shall we haul down our flag to the Bear?" was sung by Mr. Alexander Higginson at the Alhambra. The words of this song were, it was said, written by a very distinguished playwright.

boats coming thousands of miles from Japan, as that would have been manifestly absurd, but he was guarding against torpedo boats armed (and equipped in the vicinity of the North Sea. This is not a matter of speculation or imagination, but is a matter of fact upon which the Russian authorities have been furnished with precise details. This information establishes that the Japanese fitted up craft as torpedo boats at certain Swedish ports, and that they also had, a large number of Japanese officers at Newcastle-on-Tyne and other important English shipping points, for the evident purpose of fitting out craft to obstruct the Russian squadron. Therefore, instead of these torpedo boats being imaginary craft coming thousands of miles from Japan, the Russian authorities possess precise information that such torpedo boats were ly actually fitting out at points near the North Sea.

A second important matter on which Mr. Balfour's statement creates an erroneous impression, is his saying that the Russian squadron on Degger Banks, was many miles away from the usual route. As a matter of fact, the Russian naval route through the North Sea is across the Dogger Banks.

> Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 30.—From som cause which cannot be definitely ex-plained the Ontario elevator collapsed today and sank into the waters of the Evans slip. The elevator contained about 370,000 bushels of barley, a large portion of which lies at the bottom of the slip. The loss, on the grain building is estimated at $350,000. Chas Bartholomew, 62 years old, the elevator superintendent, was seriously jured. The Ontario was built 15 years ago, and had been in active operation all of this season. Various reasons have been given as to the cause of the collapse, but as nearly as it could be earned it had its origin in the weakening of the foundations about the dock. It is a well-known fact that the land about the elevator contains large deposits of quicksand, and it is do with our canals is a question which has been asked for some time past. In England various artificial waterways which cross the country represent remendous capital which is now practically unproductive. One of these canals between Basingstoke and Woking, 37 miles long, was put up for sale last week.

It was, the auctioneer told the crowd, a unique chance for a bold speculator, Many were the uses to which he conceived it properly might be put. One unproductive. One of these ceived it properly might be put. One of the most natural was to extend the canal to Southampton in one direction and to the Thames in the other, a project which he admitted would require parliamentary powers. Another and more daring suggestion was that the canal should be drained and converted into a great automobile highway 40 miles long, on which you could go as you please. This also would require a short act of parliament because the purpose to which land may be put is clearly defined by the statute.

He wondered why even the London and Southwestern Railway Company did not come forward in this emergency, a remark which provoked some of the statute.

The next day Erwin estation in the case, and will give his decision later.

SPLIT PULLMAN FROM END TO END

Fatal Rear-End Crash of Fair Special on the Missouri Pacific.

Kansas City, Oct. 30. - Three persons were killed and several injured in a rear-end collision between section No. 2 and section No. 1 of the Missouri Pacific's World's Fair special at Tipton early today. The first section left St Louis for Kansas City at 10 p.m. second section left a few minutes later and was running 30 miles an hour when it reached Tipton, where section No. 1 was taking on passengers. According to Engineer Ramsay, section No 2, a headlight in the yards blinded him and he was unable to .see section No. 1. He also says his orders were clear ahead. He also says the second section crashed into the first, demolishing the end sleeper and overturning the second sleeper.

The Two Hymans.

One of the piquant features of this compaign has been the transformation of the Liberal candidate in the eyes of his opponents. Mr. Hyman seems to he a dual personality, a sort of Jekyll and Hyde. Less than two weeks ago the Free Press spoke of him with unwonted benevolence as "a man who would be singled out in any circle," "a robust figure," one who "had weight in a cabinet of mediocrities." A little later it confessed that the Conservatives had no quarrel with Mr. Hyman books a mass of beneficent enactments These tributes were very unlike the po- Sir William Mulock, Postmaster-Generlitical habits of our contemporary; and al and Minister of Labor, in addition,

Misrepresentation.

There has seldom if ever been a political campaign in which the leading are trying to check the defection of issues have been more persistently and Grand Trunk Conservative voters, who willfully misrepresented by the Conservative party than the present one. This charge does not apply simply to the press, whose writers are anonymous. It applies just as strongly to the leaders of the party. To criticise as sharply as possible—to point out everything that may bear the appearance of evil-is a legitimate mode of political warfare. To go a step further, and keep silence about all the good in your opponents, while not the most honorable course a man can take is yet permissible. But to flatly misrep- shelved the question of the London resent, and to repeat the misrepresentation, no matter how often it is proved to be false-trusting all the time that

The features of the game were the running kicking of Constantine and Powell for the Cadets and the bucking of Capt. Price, of McGill. Cowan at half back played well for McGill.
