An Enterprising Town that is Marching On to Success

Beautiful for its Situation and Ideal As a Health Resort

By FRANK J. FISHER

Waterdown, replete with a fascinating history of the past, is enjoying an era of prosperity, residential development and expansion of a marked order, thanks to the energetic efforts of the council and leading citizens, who are all genuine boosters.

Essentially Waterdown is a community of homes, a town beautiful, a solid, substantial town, whose citizens take pride in its achievements, material and spiritual. It numbers among its inhabitants a class of men, clean cut and intellectual. These men have created, not simply built, a town, the moral tone of which is unsurpassed by any town in the Province.

HOMES—Waterdown is a town of pleasant homes, and a very large percentage of its inhabitants own their own homes. The consequence is, not a few palaces surrounded by hovels, but a much better average than is often the case where there is great wealth centred in the hands of a few. The lawns are well kept, and flowering shrubs and beautiful beds of flowers are everywhere in evidence.

OUR STORES AND PLACES OF BUSINESS are above the average for a town of this size, being large and convenient in size and appointments, and up-to-the-minute class of goods carried.

CHURCHES—Citizens of Waterdown are, as a whole, a church-loving and church-going people. Nearly all of the leading denominations are represented here, and there are four places of worship which are liberally supported and their services well attended. Wherever this state of things is found it is a guarantee of a high standard of morals and right living in the community. We have no hesitation in saying that nowhere in the world can there be found a better living class of people taken as a whole than right here—not the wishy-washy, goody-goody kind, but men and women who are broad-minded, big-hearted, charitable and generous. The utmost harmony and good will prevails among all the churches, and from this standpoint it is an ideal community to reside in.

SCHOOLS—Waterdown is to be proud of its future new public school from the standing of building, grounds and equipment. The new school building is to cost $75,000. It will be thoroughly modern in every respect, is to have eight class rooms, one principal's room, one teachers' room, library, domestic science room, manual training room and music room, local telephones connecting with each room, drinking fountain on each corridor, inside play rooms to be separate for both girls and boys.

Endowed by Nature with Lavish Hand

Situated Amid Scenery of Rare Picturesqueness.

Altitude is High and Climate Very Heathful

Waterdown is located in the township of East Flamboro, in the county of Wentworth, in the very heart of the best farming and fruit section in America. It stands 530 feet above the level of Lake Ontario, and from its high altitude one may see plainly with the naked eye on a clear day the city of Hamilton, with its thousands of tall chimneys, and even beyond to the historic battlefields and towering monument at Stoney Creek. From its numerous vantage points one may get a glimpse of some of the most beautiful natural scenery in the world. Here one may stand on the tracks of the C.P.R. or in front of one of the homes nearby and look down into hundreds of feet of thickly-wooded ravines. Here, too, one may see the wooden platform erected by Rev. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), and on which he produced the manuscript of his famous novel "The Prospector."

As a health resort it would be hard to find the equal of Waterdown. With its high altitude one gets but the purest of air, and with every breath feels its benefit and inspiration.

Here one also finds rock spring water flowing in abundance from the hundreds of miniature springs and rivulets down the mountain sides, all forming into one transparent winding stream which flows through the town, and pursuing its tortuous, swirling way until it reaches Lake Ontario.

To Lake Medad the town also looks for its future water supply when increased industrial and residential growth make it necessary that a water-works system be installed. Lake Medad is located considerably higher than Waterdown, and forms a natural reservoir from which unlimited quantities of pure spring water could be secured.

Within sight of the central portion of the town proper is also a beautiful natural waterfall, adding materially to the attractiveness of the surroundings of the place.

In the summer months hundreds of Waterdown and Hamilton citizens travel back and forth between these places by the regular country road. Here also one finds great cause for delight, as it is possibly one of the most picturesque natural scenic routes in Canada. Throughout the entire drive of six miles a series of magnificent scenes strike the eye.

The Sawell Greenhouses

Among the business enterprises which occupies a prominent place in our midst is the Sawell Greenhouses, owned and operated by E. T. Sawell and Son.

E. T. Sawell

Edward Thomas Sawell, senior member of the firm, is a native of London, England, and the date of his birth September 9th, 1869. At the age of 13 years he came to Canada, locating at Millgrove, Ont., until 1906, when he came to Waterdown and engaged in the decorating and painting business until 1915, when he entered his present business. He was married in 1890 to Miss Sophia Cummins, a daughter of one of Millgrove's pioneer families. The family consists of three children, one boy and two girls. The family are members of the M. E. church.

Mr. Sawell is a member of the Knights of Maccabees and the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. Sawell is a self-made man of sterling worth and character and by his honorable methods of doing business has won a host of friends.

Major Edward Stanley Sawell, M.C.

Major Edward Stanley Sawell, M. C., was born near Millgrove, Ont., March 31st, 1892. His education was acquired in the public school of Millgrove and the Waterdown high school and later completed his education at Clark's Business College, of Hamilton.

He enlisted as lieutenant in December, 1915, with the 129th Battalion, C.E.F. Recruited and trained with that unit until July, 1916. Proceeded overseas with officers draft August, 1919, and received further training in England. Drafted to 21st Batt. Can. Inf. October, 1916. Saw continuous active service with that unit until August, 1918, in the battles of Vimy Ridge, Hill 70, Passchendaele and Amiens. Promoted to Captain December, 1917, and to acting rank of Major in April, 1919. Gassed August, 1918, and wounded October, 1918. He was decorated at Buckingham Palace with the Military Cross, which was presented to him personally by His Majesty the King.

He is a worthy, upright, able and honorable young man, who has done his bit and done it well. He is held in the highest esteem by all, and Waterdown is proud of him.

Fred W. Crooker

Among the men who stand foremost in our midst is Councillor Crooker, who is also our town postmaster. He was educated here, began life in his father's mercantile store and eventually succeeded his father in the business.

In 1906 he became postmaster of Waterdown, some few years ago he retired from the mercantile business, solely confining himself to his duties as postmaster. Mr. Crooker has served several times on the Waterdown council and was elected to this office in January of this year.

Mr. Crooker was married in 1894 to Miss Alice Davis, of Burlington. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite Masons, and the Canadian Order of Foresters.

Mr. Crooker's every interest is bound up in the welfare and betterment of the community at large. He is a good citizen, a capable public official, and enjoys deserved popularity.

The home of Councillor Crooker is on Dundas street and from the home there radiates a cheer and good will much known to the friends whom he welcomes and entertains within the home circle.

James E. Eager

General Mercantile Store

This establishment, under the above title, ranks as the largest and leading store of its kind in Waterdown and surrounding country. It is worthy of liberal mention in a work of this nature. No house offers greater inducements to the purchaser than this, and no establishment is more widely known or enjoys a better trade. The store is one of which the public is fond of dealing, as it is an establishment which in the excellence of the stock carried is fully up to the high standard of similar houses in the larger cities.

The premises occupied on Dundas and Mill street embraces large airy store rooms and ware rooms, and stock includes a full assortment of dry goods, millinery, ready-made clothing, hats, caps, furnishings, carpets, rugs, oilcloths, wall paper, hardware, etc. A leading feature is made of groceries.

James E. Eager is a native of Hamilton, a son of the late Joseph C. Eager, who entered into the mercantile business here in 1862. Since the death of his father, James E. has conducted the business. He is married and has six children—three sons and three daughters. The family are members of the Anglican church.

Mr. Eager is a member of the Masonic order. He is a man of culture, and is a representative of Wentworth county's best class of citizens.

During his long and useful life he has endeavored to do what he believed to be his full duty toward his neighbor and family, and can now rejoice in having a wide circle of warm personal friends whom he has endeared to him by his many acts of Christian kindness and human love.

Arthur Featherston

This business, which is a newly-established one, has been conducted by Arthur Featherston since the spring of 1919. He has met with good success practically from the moment he began business operations here. The store, located on Dundas street, is run along the most up-to-date, substantial and progressive lines, and is always found to be stocked up with a comprehensive representation of the choicest light groceries, bakery goods, ice cream and confections, also handling a line of stationery goods.

Arthur Featherston is a native of Waterdown, being born Nov. 25th, 1882, a son of the late Wm. S. Featherston, who was a prominent business man of this town.

Mr. Featherston's first employment was in his father's bakery, and later was employed in the government mail routes. After working at the bakery trade for a number of years he opened up his present place of business.

Mr. Featherston is a hustling young business man of sterling worth, and holds the respect and liking of the community.

Fred W. Hamilton

Probably the youngest and one of the most capable of the Waterdown business men is Fred W. Hamilton. He was born in Nelson Township, Dec. 21st, 1895, a son of Watson

Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton was married in 1919 to Miss Gladys Small, of East Flamboro Township.

Mr. Hamilton succeeded his uncle, Mr. John Prudham, who retired from business a year ago, as agent for the Massey-Harris Co. He is a progressive and successful business man, who started out in life with nothing to depend upon but his own strong and capable hands and intelligent brain. With this capital and initiative he has made remarkable progress, and has placed himself among the substantial business men of this community.

Such industry, thrift and uprightness of purpose as he has displayed in his life cannot fail to impress everyone with the fact that success in life depends more upon a man than upon what he has, and that almost anything is possible for one who works intelligently and honestly.

A prominent chemist to-day, discussing the future gas engine fuel, predicted that the new fuel for motors will be potato spirit. Much as cane sugar has been supplanted by beet sugar will be the growth of the potato spirit industry. The chemist stated there have been very successful experiments with the potato spirit fuel, and

SPRAYING

(Experimental Farms Note.)

If the fruit grower, vegetable grower, or flower grower does not spray nowadays, he is almost certain to have inferior products in his orchard, small fruit plantation and garden. There are so many injurious insects and diseases which affect a large proportion of the plants that if they are uncontrolled there will either be no crop left or else the value of the crop will be very much reduced.

There are few of these insects and diseases which cannot be well controlled there will either be no crop left or else the value of the crop will be very much reduced.

There are few of these insects and diseases which cannot be well controlled by using some of the remedies which have been discovered during the past twenty-five or thirty years and which have been well tested by many experiments.

Spraying must, however, be thoroughly done if good results are to be obtained. Materials are expensive, and the cost of labor is high and money will be wasted if the work is improperly done or not done at the right time.

The early sprayings are, as a rule the most important, and those who contemplate spraying as all should who have orchards or gardens, should get everything in readiness to begin at the right time as delay may mean much loss. Spray Calendars are issued by the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, in which several sprayings are recommended to be applied at certain stages in the development of the leaves, flowers and fruit. In the case of fruit trees the spray should be applied so that every leaf, bud, and fruit will, if possible, receive some of the material, not only on one part of it but as nearly all over as possible. Every leaf, flower and bud or young fruit missed means a possible starting point for disease or insect damage. In the case of vegetables progress in the application of a good spray is just as important as with fruits. One does not need to be convinced of the value of promptness in using poison in controlling the Colorado potato beetle as the results of the spray are immediately apparent in the death of the "bugs," but more faith is required when dealing with diseases and insects which are not so readily seen but which do much harm and usually the grower is well rewarded for such faith.

The formulae for the mixtures and solutions recommended should be followed as closely as possible. If a man knows the chemical composition of the material, he uses, and has made a study of spraying, he may alter them slightly to meet certain circumstances, but if he knows little about them he should follow closely the instructions given on the Spray Calendar. He should, also, spray as nearly as possible at the time suggested. A delay of a few days may mean practically the loss of the mixture or solution to either the Dominion or Provincial Departments of Agriculture for a Spray Calendar.—W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist.

THE AERIAL AGE.

British Scientist Paints a Rosy Picture.

A distinguished British scientist has painted a fascinating, imaginative picture of the possibilities of air traffic in the near future. He predicts a time when the traveler from London will save three days in the journey to New York, 11 days in the journey to India and 23 days in the journey to Australia; when airplanes will cover a regular average of 1,200 miles a day and when traffic will be regulated in series of air levels, of 2,000 feet each; private planes up to 2,000 feet; commercial machines in the next level; "ordinary flying," together with the fast commercial machines, in the next; then the official planes of each nation (from 6,000 to 10,000 feet), including those of the air police, who will drop down on offenders in the lower depths; and finally the levels above 10,000 feet which will be used for international travel.

This scientist believes that there will be such a tremendous increase of air travel that it is already time to consider how routes shall be defined and kept, and how the best use can be made of our present knowledge of the air currents of the world. Such a picture as he paints may seem very unreal, but those who have seen the birth of the locomotive, the marine steam engine, the electric telegraph, the telephone, the submarine cable, the motor car and wireless telegraphy and telephone, will say he is incredulous. The internal combustion engine, with its light weight and high speed, was the beginning of an evolution the ultimate character of which it is impossible to foresee.

LAST BIG BLOCK
Of Canadian Pacific Reserve Farm Lands
In Central Alberta and Saskatchewan

We would call your attention to these lands, the last large block of good virgin farm land in Western Canada, which marks the end of wholesale prices for virgin farm lands in the Prairie West. News of this block being opened up is being advertised throughout Europe and the United States, and is being read by hundreds of thousands of people every week. The American farmers have been quick to see the opportunities offered in the Western Provinces of Canada in the past, and I am sure that they will see this last opportunity as quickly as any, and that there will be thousands of them going to see these lands as soon as the snow begins to thaw in the spring. It is, therefore, up to us in Eastern Canada to make arrangements to visit the West and see these lands at the earliest possible opportunity, and I cannot urge you too strongly if you are at all interested in getting a farm of your own, to take advantage of this last opportunity. Those who act now and secure some of these lands will reap the benefit of quicker increase in value than at any period in the past, and the land will pay for itself from the crops in a few years. Those who do not wish to improve the land at once may purchase land on our ten year contract, one-tenth cash, balance in nine equal payments at 6%, which does not require improvement of the land, or you can pay in full if you choose. Those who get there first will get best selection and best location. WRITE and ask for further information NOW

John Prudham

This paper takes great pleasure in presenting the following brief sketch of the life of the most worthy John Prudham, a son of John Prudham, sr., who was one of the early settlers of Halton county, emigrating from Yorkshire, England, and who is reverently remembered by the older people of that county as a citizen and doer of good works for his fellow-man, and the noble example of the father has left its deep imprints on the character of a worthy son.

Mr. Prudham as a youth worked on his father's farm, and attended school at the same time. He began life as a salesman for the J. O. Wisner Son & Co., of Brantford, selling drill goods, and at the same time handling a line of rakes, mowers, and binders' twine for A. Harris Son & Co., also of Brantford. In these early days salesmen traveled on horseback. The above concerns later amalgamated under the firm name of Massey-Harris Co. of Toronto, and Mr. Prudham came to Waterdown in 1890, and has since been their local agent. A year ago he retired, and his business is now conducted by Mr. Fred Hamilton. Mr. Prudham has had a most successful career as a salesman. In 1889 he was awarded a gold watch and chain for selling the largest number of cultivators, and at another time was awarded a similar present for doing the largest volume of business with the least assistance. On his retirement from business he was remembered by the officials of the Massey-Harris Co. with a beautiful 78 piece silver cabinet as a token of their appreciation of his able and honorable service.

Mr. Prudham was married in 1890 to Miss Martha Tansley of Carlisle. They have one son, John Henry Prudham, who for a time was associated with his father as a salesman, and is now a bachelor of pharmacy. Mr. Prudham and his son are both members of the Masonic order.

Mr. Prudham has always been thoroughly manly and upright in character, ever known as one of the substantial men of the county, honored alike for his past services, also for his unimpeachable business integrity, and beloved for his genial and kindly disposition.

Alton Bros.

Garage and Hardware Store

Among the reliable houses which have materially added to Waterdown's commerce is the one conducted by Alton Brothers. This firm became successors to S. H. Gallagher in September of last year. The premises occupied, located on Dundas street, a double store of large dimensions, with warehouse in connection, all heavily stocked throughout. Messrs. Alton Brothers are practical and experienced merchants. They are dealers in general hardware, building material, gasoline, oils, etc., as well as sole agents for Sherwin-Williams paints, Buck stoves, Dominion, Goodyear and Dunlop tires.

Their garage is complete in every detail, having the agency for the Hupmobile and Ford service station.

Austin H. Alton and Sidney L. Alton came to Waterdown in September, 1919, from Halton county. They are the sons of T. M. Alton, a prominent farmer of that county.

Alton Brothers are not only active in the operation of their business, but also take a keen interest in every question affecting the welfare of the community. They are wideawake, hustling business men, who are honorable in all their dealings, and are highly esteemed by all who know them.

The New Public School

New Modern Public School being Erected in Waterdown by Union School Section No. 3

Waterdown Public School

The Public School, now in course of construction, when completed will be one of the finest and most compact modern school buildings in Ontario.

The building is being constructed with concrete basement, walls with red pressed brick, and Natio tile for the upper walls with cut lime stone trimmings.

It will contain large play rooms manual training room, heating room and lavatories in the basement, and eight standard class rooms on the upper floors. The kindergarten room is so arranged with folding doors that when the doors are folded the kindergarten and hall are made into a large assembly room. There are also provided adequate rooms for the Principal, Teachers, Library, Board room and store rooms.

The building will be equipped with a modern Spencer steam heating system and the latest type of fan ventilation. The plumbing will be of the most sanitary type throughout. There will be a hydro pneumatic water system with sanitary drinking fountains on each floor, and a septic sewerage system to take care of the sewerage.

The site of the building is ideal, containing 4 acres affording room for recreation.

That the Public School Board is deserving of great credit for their never tiring efforts in arranging the building of this modern school building there remains no doubt. The selection of the general contractor, Mr. Henry Slater, is proving to be a wise choice, as Mr. Slater has about all the materials now on the grounds. Building materials of all kinds are hard to secure and prices have advanced 25 per cent since the signing of the contract.

The selection of the Architect, Mr. J. A. Armes, was another wise choice made by the school Board. The building is now more than half completed, and every detail is working out perfectly true under Mr. Armes' personal supervision. His long experience in the building business and the fact that he is making a careful study of school buildings, having built many of the up to date modern schools in this vicinity, is assurance that the Waterdown school will be fully up to expectations.

Henry Slater

Contractor

The above-named firm has been serving the residents of Waterdown and surrounding country for a number of years, and has won a flattering reputation. It has met with constantly increasing influence and reputation, and has developed a trade that extends all over this entire section. The firm manufactures sash, doors, flooring, interior finish, mouldings, etc. The office, yard and mill, located on Mill street, is equipped with all necessary appliances for the handling of the supplies deposited here. Estimates are furnished on application. The lowest prices are quoted, and all orders are given prompt and careful attention. The business is under the personal supervision of Mr. Henry Slater, who succeeded his father, the late Ferdinand Slater, in the lumber business.

Mr. Slater is also a general contractor and builder, and recently secured the contract for the new $75,000 public school building of Waterdown.

He has been a resident of Waterdown for several years, and is highly respected in all circles of the community. His standing is based on right principles and every effort to deal satisfactorily with the public.

J. F. Vance

Mr. John F. Vance, County Clerk, and also County Magistrate, is one of Waterdown's old boys who has made good. For a number of years he conducted a General Hardware and Tinsmithing business here, which he retired from a short time ago.

Mr. Vance has had long experience in municipal affairs, having been Reeve of Waterdown for a number of years, a member of the County Council, and also County Warden. He is one of our citizens who is interested in the welfare of the village, and an untiring worker in all things beneficial to his home town.

Reuban Sparks

Among the citizens of whom Waterdown is justly proud none rank higher than Reuben Sparks. We take great pleasure in presenting the following brief sketch of his life and characteristics: He was born in Devonshire, England, Oct. 8th, 1834, came to Canada when but a youth and took up farming—Mother Nature endowing him, as it has many of our best Canadians, with a sturdy and vigorous mind and physique. His early education was obtained in the little red schoolhouse—or, rather, the district school—from whence have come forth the best in the Dominion. He followed farming for fifty-four years, when he moved to Waterdown. His idea was to retire when he quit the farm, but his English spirit and strong constitution proved to be incompatible with retirement, and he went into the insurance business. As an insurance agent Mr. Sparks has proved most successful. Of him it might be said he had two successful careers, for he was known as one of the best farmers in the county. Mr. Sparks' worth as a sales agent was proven during the 1918 and 1919 factory loan campaigns, when his services were specially mentioned by the campaign organizer. He captured the prize of a suit of clothes in the 1918 campaign and a pair of $35.00 chairs in 1919. In public life Mr. Sparks has always been active. For four years he served in the township of East Flamboro as a councillor. As township assessor for seven years Mr. Sparks did excellent work. In 1881 he acted as Dominion census recorder. He has been on the board of audit for Waterdown for eighteen years. On Sept. 20th of last year Mr. and Mrs. Sparks celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary.

Mr. Sparks was married in 1859 to Miss Sarah Jane Mills of Glandorf. The family consists of seven children, four boys and three girls. They are: Horace Erwin Sparks, of Hamilton; Charles Herbert Sparks, of Buffalo; Alfred Ethbert Sparks, of San Francisco, and James Edward Sparks, of Waterdown; Mrs. Nelson Worden, of Beverly; Mrs. Thomas Mills, of Carlisle, and Mrs. (Dr.) R. J. Vance, of Waterdown. In his declining years Mr. Sparks is surrounded by the loving care and devotion of his children, and can rest upon the laurels he has won realizing that he has met every call upon him like a gentleman and a brave and honorable man.

Philip H. Metzger

Assessor

Philip H. Metzger, assessor of Waterdown, was born in East Flamboro, July 19th, 1859, a son of the late Jacob Metzger, a pioneer of this section.

Mr. Metzger was educated in the schools of this township, and was engaged in farming up to 1880 when he went to Chicago, where he was employed in the express business. Here he remained until 1886, when he returned to Waterdown and started in the barber business, which he still conducts.

Mr. Metzger is a public-spirited man who is always found ready to help in the cause of upbuilding our town. He has been on the town council from 1894 to 1902, and also assessor for a number of years, and is known by his integrity and good judgment, and has made an ideal public servant.

Mr. Metzger is treasurer of the Independent Order of Foresters, and has been the leader of our local band since its organization. He is also one of the old members of the old 77th regiment.

Mr. Metzger's genial disposition has attracted many friends to him, and he is an energetic supporter of movements which promise to be of substantial benefit to his town and county.

He is a practical workman, and personally superintends all work entrusted to him.

Mr. Speck is a native of East Flamboro township. Vance, which business he purchased last year. He is now erecting a new cement building on Main street, which he will occupy some time this summer. Personally Mr. Speck is well known in commercial circles, and is highly esteemed in the community. He is a member of the I.O.O.F. and the Independent Order of Foresters.

John W. Griffin

Among the leading industries of Waterdown is the establishment of John W. Griffin, who deals in flour, feed, fertilizers, hay, straw, grain and binding twine.

Mr. Griffin has met with the best of success from the outset. Owing to the experience brought to bear by him and the conservative methods followed, a trade has been built up that extends to a large section. The plant has been modernized in every way, and everything has been done to increase its usefulness and output. This establishment has always been unremittent in its endeavor to merit every demand of its customers in a prompt and satisfactory manner, and on this account has built up a patronage of the greatest and gratifying proportions.

John W. Griffin was born at Waterdown, April 22nd, 1866, a son of the late Burwell Griffin. He first started in the feed business on Mill street in 1910, and on the 22nd of April, 1916, purchased the business and plant of Robert Gardner, and in the same year erected a beautiful dwelling adjoining his place of business.

He was married in 1906 to Miss Annie L. Buttrum. The family consists of two children, both boys.

Mr. Griffin is a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters and the Masonic lodge.

Mr. Griffin is one of Waterdown's best known and respected citizens and business men.

American House

Mrs. M. M. Cook, Proprietress
In the estimation of the traveling public good hotel accommodation is of first-class consideration. In Waterdown it will be found of superior quality. We wish to make special mention of the American House, which is centrally located. It is conducted by Mrs. M. M. Cook, a lady of culture and refined tastes, who has contributed much towards making it the abode of cheer and hospitality that it is. The premises, on the corner of Dundas and Mill streets, comprise a two-story building, containing 25 rooms. The house is well equipped, and has all modern conveniences and accommodations to be found in a popular hotel essential to the traveling public. The cuisine is first-class—all that could be desired; and the rooms are nicely furnished, and at all times thoroughly clean and well ventilated throughout. Visitors to Waterdown will at all times find prompt attention, care and every home-like comfort at the American House.

A Historic Fugitive.

Peter Himadam has surrendered after evading capture by the police for nearly fourteen years. This Indian, with his brother-in-law, Simon Gun-a-Noot, was "wanted" for the murder of Alex. McIntosh and Max Leclair near Kispiox on June 19, 1906, but the authorities never laid their hands on the elusive native. Gun-a-Noot surrendered a few months ago and was acquitted after trial in Vancouver, so that Himadam is not taking any great chances in coming in now as the evidence against his brother-in-law was admittedly stronger than against him. It is doubtful if the crown will carry the case beyond the preliminary stages. Until he walked into Hazelton a few days ago, Peter had been out of touch with civilization since that fateful June morning, he says. He lived in the northern wilderness, supporting himself by trapping, trading his skins and furs with friendly Indians for food and clothing.

Quebec Richer.

Quebec increased her acreage under cultivation from 4,863,859 acres in 1914 to the enormous extent of 13,292,798 in 1918; agricultural products from $99,000,000 in 1914 to $273,000,000 in 1918—a war record unequalled by any other province.

What Is Job's Ministers' Fate?

PICTURE a bunch of cheerless Cabinet Ministers stranded on the beach, the tide of popular favor having receded over the horizon, leaving them high but not dry, with their clothes ston and a chill wind whistling unkindly round their shivering bodies and flapping with mournful cracks through their political bathing suits. A sad scene, and heartrending too, were it not for the knowledge that most of them are secure in the possession of a private stock of most excellent B.V.D.'s

What, though, does happen Cabinet Ministers when they lose their jobs? Have the recent Conservative rulers at Queen's Park joined the ranks of the unemployed? Are their eager eyes scanning nightly the help wanted columns in an anxious search for something to tide them over till the spring comes and work opens up? Waste not your pity in advance. They are all well fixed, or have hopes.

Take Sir William Hearst, for instance, their leader. He can't really complain. It's time he lost the right to consider himself king-pin of Ontario but he had not to wear out his own pins looking for work or to advertise. "Wanted by ex-Premier suitable employment. Good appearance and agreeable manners. Knowledge of law. Big connection. Willing to consider himself the servant of the people and work up. Wages to suit." No, the cheers of the farmers had hardly died away before Sir William found himself appointed a member of the International National Waterways Commission with a salary of $6,000 a year. It's a big drop from $12,000, but there is a lot of dignity in being a member of the I. N. W. C. and it is better than moving the family to the Soo and starting that law practice there again.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, was in a way the luckiest of the bunch. All his clothes were not stolen though there was little left but the shirt and socks. Still it was enough to make him leader of the party. There is not much money in it apparently, though there are hopes, in spite of heartless U. F. O. threats, if Mr. Ferguson becomes the officially recognized leader of the Opposition. Still Mr. Ferguson has no need to worry. He has a good law practice in Kemptonville and another in Toronto.

But what about the masterful McGarry of the big physique, doughty hither, erstwhile Provincial Treasurer? Surely he is not going to bury his brains and his brawn. Surely the clever tongue of him is not doomed once more to beguile the Renfrew Board of Education or twist itself in petty pleading as the town solicitor. By no means! It is whispered that McGarry has big financial interests and that his capable handling of the provincial moneys, combined with his legal knowledge, has qualified him to set up as an expert financial adviser to big business.

And I. B. Lucas, the Attorney-General, another lawyer, what of him? Will he go back to his early task of helping settle disputes about rail fences between Markdale and Owen Sound? Of course, he might once again become a law partner of Hon. W. E. Raney, but two men of Attorney-General's rank in the one firm might make it top heavy. So he still practices law at Markdale and he still stays on the Hydro Commission. But it said he will resign the latter; and it is again whispered that Mr. Lucas, who "keeps his ear to the ground," has heard that there is a shortage of houses and that he intends to help supply the demand by the erection of choice homes to suit select purchasers.

Hon. W. D. McPherson and Hon. Rev. Dr. Cody won't have much trouble finding their B. V. D.'s. Both knew exactly where they had laid them. And they hadn't left them very long! From the Provincial Secretaryship to his old seat in his Toronto law office is for Mr. McPherson as smooth and frictionless as a duck taking the water. Dr. Cody simply steps down from the education rostrum and up into the pulpit of St. Paul's.

Hon. Finlay Macdormid, ex-Minister of Public Works, and Hon. George S. Henry, ex-Minister of Agriculture, may also be classed together. They have turned their backs on the city and for them it is back to the land. They will wake at cockcrow and hurry out to watch the grass growing, and when the evening falls they will sit in the quiet country and philosophize about the shortcomings of their fellow-farmers now sitting in the seats of the mighty in Queen's Park. But; both Macdormid and Henry are farmers in a big way, the former at Rodney, the latter at Todmorden. Henry was credited with being the richest man in the late brotherhood, with a 300-acre farm and half a million dollars. He is also president of the Farmers' Dairy Co. Neither need worry.

There only remains Hon. R. F. Preston. He had no portfolio in the late Government so he had none to lose when the crash came. Thus he has merely gone back quietly to his medical practice at Carleton Place and continues to keep an eye on his investments.

There is an ever growing list of Federal Ministers leaving their jobs, but there is little need for worry on their account. Sir Thomas White gave up the Ministry of Finance to become adviser to great financial concerns. His income now must exceed by many times his $7,000 a year as Minister. Hon. F. B. Carvell became chairman of the Dominion Railway Board at $10,000 a year. Hon. T. A. Crerar works enough at his desk to draw $15,000 a year as president of the United Grain Growers. —Toronto Star Weekly.

TRANSMITTING SOUND.

Canadian Assisted in an Important New Invention.

An invention which may, among many other possible uses, be employed as a complete insurance against error at transcription of court testimony by stenographers, has been achieved by Major Lionel Guest, brother of the Coalition Whip in the British House of Commons, and Capt. H. O. Merriman, a Canadian electrical engineer. It consists of apparatus for recording and reproducing sounds carried electrically over a wire.

In a demonstration of the device a message was dictated into a telephone placed in the drawing-room of Major Guest's house, No. 62 Seymour street west, London.

At the other end of the wire in another room was a recorder which automatically inscribed the message on a gramophone record. In a few seconds the record was placed in a gramophone and the message was repeated with great clarity.

Major Guest claims that the best results hitherto obtained in recording the voice or music over the telephone have been unsuccessful through being "harred" or metallic in tone. "The development," he said, "has immense possibilities. I think in the near future it will be placed in a part of the hall where the speaker's voice is hardly audible, say in Manchester, and at the other end of the wire in London the message will be recorded verbatim by the telephone recorder for instant reproduction through ear-pieces to the newspaper offices.

"If the receiving operator misses a word he presses a button and the line or any number of lines are repeated as often as he likes. "The key to the development is the 'vibration motor,' which receives the impulses of the speaker's voice and cuts the message on the wax record. It amplifies the voice impulses to such an extent that the responsive movements of the instrument are visible to the naked eye."

Deadly Wood Alcohol.

Alcohol and wood alcohol are two very different substances. Both are combinations of hydrogen, carbon and oxygen, but the arrangement of the atoms of these elements is dissimilar.

H. S. Howe says in the Scientific American that wood or methyl alcohol has a molecule represented by the formula:

usually written C₂H₅OH. Grain or ethyl alcohol, (that contained in whiskey, brandy, wine, etc.) has the formula:

usually written C₂H₅OH. Naturally, the effects of such different substances on the human body are as different as can be imagined. Mr. Howe writes:

"When ethyl alcohol is taken into the body it produces a temporary stimulation through its effect in rapidly increasing the circulation, which goes on, however, at the expense of the body temperature and, as is well known, is followed by a reaction expensive to the body organism. The alcohol itself is soon broken down into water and carbon dioxide which are harmless substances always present in the body. Excesses of these materials are constantly eliminated through the lungs and the kidneys. However, when wood alcohol is taken into the body it is believed to act in an entirely different manner, remaining for a considerable time in its original condition and then breaking down slowly into formic acid, which is a poisonous substance.

"The work which has been done by Dr. Reid Hunt and others has led to these conclusions. There may be other decomposition products resulting from the action of wood alcohol in the blood stream, and some believe that acetone, formaldehyde and similar substances may contribute to the poisoning. Nausea and vomiting, violent headaches and vertigo, ending in coma and death, are the various progressive stages of the poison's effect, and very often, due to the degeneration of the ganglion cells of the retina, amblyopia, which is a dimming of the vision without discoverable change in the eye, takes place. The result in that case is, at best, temporary blindness and usually permanent blindness, depending upon the extent to which the ganglion cells are destroyed."

Yokohama Maid

The Campbellville Choral Club gave a very successful play in the Armouries on Friday evening, May 7th, and were greeted by a full house. The play presented for the occasion was Arthur Pennis' "Yokohama Maid" a Japanese comic operetta in two acts, with the following cast, Takasi R. G. Gollins; Muvon Yu, C. A. Hsley; Ah No, J. R. Mitchell; Fattedo, C. C. McPhail; Knogudi, A. Elliott; Harry Cortese, E. S. Byerman; O Sing a Song, D. B. Kaiser; Kissime, L. I. Revell; Tung Ivaga, G. Elliott; Helda and Stella, J. Elliott and Mrs. J. K. Mahon; and a chorus of nodding dolls, men and maidens all becomingly gowned in Japanese costumes.

The central figures being Della B. Kaiser, who added much to her former popularity by her excellent characterization as O Sing a Song, without a trace of exaggeration or affection. Her companion Kissime (L. I. Revell) and her faithful old nurse Tung Ivaga (G. Elliott) scored many humorous hits and handled their parts with skill. Colin McPhail as Mayor of Kybosh, and the willing but rejected wooer of O Sing a Song played his part with animation and technical finish, while E. S. Byerman (Harry Cortese) as O Sing a Song's American husband won a huge success. R. G. Gollins (Takasi) in his wonderful gown of black and gold a prepossessing herald and sang in his usual high class manner. A. Elliott (Knogudi) the humble hearted secretary to Fattedo made love with fear and trembling to O Sing a Song but found his affections rested with Kissime. Helda and Stella the nodding dolls, Muvon Yu and Ah No played the remaining roles with credit. Mrs. Lloyd Crawford's brilliant accompanying, and the magnificent stage setting added greatly to the general effectiveness.

At the surrender to Admiral Sir David Beatty, of the German fleet, at Scapa Flow, a German commander came aboard the flagship. He was being greatly humiliated, and showed his disgust by grumbling against his neck.

"Ach!" he exclaimed, "so much for Admiral Beatty!" and he spat over the ship's side. Seeing no movement among some men who were standing by, he grumbled again: "Got strafe the British navy," and again spat into the sea.

A sailor stepped forward. "You may say what you like about the admiral, and I don't care what you say about the navy, but you'd better be careful whose sea you spit into."

Righted in Time

It was grim enough earnest to foya. Each time she thought of rey-eyed gaze, she felt ashamed. What a silly child she had been! But here was only one thing for it now—to go on groping her way along theabyrinth, whatever way it might lead. There was no turning back now.

"I dare not," she said truly. "Not yet Barry. Not till—till he's gone. Oh, we won't stay long. We're not his kind of people. I realized that. We've little in common with him. He'd think ours an aimless, poor sort of life. He won't stay long. Besides here's the matter. Oh, no Barry, we must carry it through, now we've begun it."

Barry swung himself down from the breakwater, avoiding an incoming wave with agility. It was not perhaps very chivalrous of him, but he was feeling rather sore just then. If he left patry, so did he. And he had to make some recrimination to clear his own conscience.

"We!" he echoed emphatically. "I like that. 'You,' you mean I should think. There was not much 'we' farewell. Moya sat on there. Her contemplations were not the most delightful perchance. Barry, of course, was annoying. But still Barry was hardly to be blamed. If anyone was to be blamed it was undoubtedly the little figure sitting on the breakwater, the sunbeams playing into dark eyes that held shadows in them, for all that smiling radiance of a perfect summer day.

As for Barry, he went on along the sands, kicking stray pebbles out of his way with unnecessary violence.

seeing how inoffensive they were, and very often quite pretty as they shone, wet and glistening like jewels, in the sun.

His own sense of self-esteem was as ruffled as Moya's. If she felt patry, so did he. He had not considered one bit what that piece of good fun—their mock engagement—would entail. But just as Guy's words had opened Moya's eyes to the sacredness and depth of love, of which they had made such a mockery, so had Barry's mother opened his.

Like most boys, he had a deep love and reverence for his mother unspeakable and unconfessed, and her gentle, loving words had made him feel "pretty shabby," as he called it to himself. She had spoken of love, of betrothal and marriage in such a way as he had never thought of before. Far more had she said than he told Moya. She seemed to think it was the most sacred and wonderful thing that could happen in life to him, instead of being a kind of joke, a heedless bit of fun, embarked on in a mad moment.

"I feel a low-down cad," muttered Barry to those pebbles viciously kicked from his path. "Why didn't I think of that before, I wonder? Help Moya out of a hole!—it seems as if we're in a precious deep one at this moment. Oh, but why did the mother want to talk to me like that? I just wish she hadn't."

She had talked so simply so tenderly. She had told him of her own youth and its long-ago romance, now buried in his father's grave. He had been startled from his boyish heedlessness into a new considering of life.

He walked far along the sands and then struck inland down the narrow, verdant lanes. And, turning a corner, he met Una Raleigh.

She smiled at him in her wontedly quiet way. "Alone?" she said. "You alone, too? Why everyone seems solitary this morning. Everyone seems on their own. Is there no party, no excursion mooted? Is everyone pining for solitude? But I thought at least you would not be alone. Wherever is Moya?"

"I left her down on the sands," said Barry moodily, an undercurrent of irritability sounding through his voice—a warning note which said: "I have put up with a lot, but patience about it. You engineered all this. You proposed it—proposed to me, ma'am, I'd have you know! Appealed shamelessly to my sense of pity—rushed me into a mad-cat scheme against my better judgment. No, I wash my hands of it. It's your look-out."

He took a too hasty step on the soft sand. Moya chuckled gleefully. It was not pleasant to have one's actions cast in one's teeth. It made her feel spiteful.

"You'd better look out," she counselled acidly. "Wash your hands! You'll be washed away if you don't look out. Ah, I thought so!" As an unexpected big wave besetged Barry and besprinkled plentifully.

He gave her a parting scowl for ed of it. No, that's what I think, if you really want to know."

He was silent a moment. "Why did you never tell me that before?" he asked then.

"Because you've never spoken in this way to me before, I suppose," answered Una. "And, perhaps, because I'm not in the habit of talking much about what I think to anyone."

She was not. It was more often people confided in her, told her their own thoughts. She was that rarely, a good listener. She had the gift of sympathy, and there was an even more rare peace of soul and spirit about her, so that with her one felt at peace, too, with the world and with oneself.

"You don't talk to me much anyway," said Barry point blank. "No, I often think you avoid me. I'm not good enough to waste time on, I suppose."

He spoke moodily again, frowning at the ground. Una stopped and faced him.

"Oh, why do you say that?" she cried distressed. "I don't do anything of the kind. If you must have it—I do keep out of the way. Because—well, I'm not as gay and lively as Moya. I'm much more likely to bore people with my dullness. And, besides—"

She smiled at him, but not very spontaneously.

"Oh, surely you need not be told. That two is company just now, and three is none. You must know that yourself—and would soon grumble if prospective sisters-in-law gave you and Moya their uninteresting society at every turn!"

Barry took a quick step forward as she turned away.

"Look here, Una, I'm going to have none of that nonsense. That's got nothing whatever to do with our engagement. If you're going to absent yourself like this—"

But she was hurrying away. She said over her shoulder: "Can't you allow me to share the fashionable and universal desire for solitude? No, you're not coming with me. I want to be alone."

But Barry, left alone, too, growled something unamiable, but unintelligible beneath his breath. Usually Una was the most sensible and understanding of girls. It was all rubbish if this engagement tete-a-tete with Moya, and an end to other intercourses. It was absurd that people should look surprised if she sat on the sands alone and he equally chose to walk in the lanes alone. It was beyond all reason for Una to look as if she blamed him. Absurd. Ridiculous!

is near its breaking point." He did not seem to notice this lack of chivalry in the abandonment of his betrothed by the sad sea waves. But Una looked faintly surprised.

"I haven't congratulated you yet," she said. "Oh, I want to do so. I hope—"

But Barry broke in on her swiftly. "I'm sick to death of congratulations. Fed up with them! For goodness' sake spare me any more!"

Una was silent. He looked at her, then, and laughed awkwardly. "Moya and I are not the romantic kind, you know," he said.

"No," said Una slowly and added: "That was what she said."

"Oh, we don't want people to make a fuss about it," said Barry. "I hate a fuss!"

Una said nothing to that. He had turned round and was walking slowly by her side. And he gave another awkward, uneasy laugh in the silence.

"That isn't your idea of things, I know. But then you never do approve of me. You think me an empty-headed sort of chap. I don't come to your standard. I've always known that."

Una turned her clear, steady gaze on him, though her color had mounted a little.

"No," she said, in her gentle way. "I don't think that at all. I simply think you don't do justice to yourself."

Barry tried to laugh again, as if he would have laughed all sentiment away with scorn.

"You don't give yourself a chance," went on Una steadfastly. "You laugh away anything serious—smuggle away any deep feeling as if you were ashamed

Well, there were no words for it. Barry left off trying to find any.

Once let him get safely out of this engagement, vowed Barry, and he would never be such an ass as to get engaged in reality. Trust him for that!

CHAPTER IV.

"You and Barry haven't quarrelled, have you?" began Una, anxiously.

Moya turned round sharply, and her voice was quite as sharp as she answered: "Of course not. Whatever makes you think so?"

Una hesitated. She could not have put her reasons into words. Indefinable they were, but troubling for all that.

"Oh, I don't want to appear interfering," she cried, uncomfortably, and then the anxious words burst from her loving sister's heart. "But you don't seem happy, Moya. And—oh, surely the first few days of an engagement are so precious!"

Precious! Moya could have laughed

Dear Sir—Just a few lines in favor of your Liniment. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT for anything, as it will relieve almost anything. When I go hunting I always take a bottle in my pocket. It is the best for Cold in the Head, ever used, and for Cold in the Chest, and every other part of a person, and for Sore Throat it has no equal. It is also a good liniment for the hair as I always use it. I have also taken blisters off of horses with MINARD'S LINIMENT and I would use no other for any reason for Man or Beast, as I think it is far the best.

aloud. Embarrassing, boring, irritating and annoying—she could have found plenty of adjectives for those first few days, but hardly the one which came from Una.

"I'm perfectly happy," she declared, obstinately. "I'm quite willing to own that I may not come up to your standard of romance, Una. Please don't expect me to do so. And as for Barry, he'd simply hate anything verging on the romantic or sentimental."

Una looked earnestly at her. "Are you sure you understand Barry?" she asked.

"What do you mean?" said Moya to that.

"Oh, Moya, dear, men are not like us. They often hide their deep feelings as if they were something to be ashamed of. But they want those feelings satisfied, all the same."

"And you mean," interrupted Moya, with a certain curiosity in her voice, "that Barry's dissatisfied?"

A shadow of trouble passed over Una's face at those words. Her deep, clear eyes were perplexed and seeking.

Moya laughed lightly—perhaps she had to laugh in lieu of any other emotion. "You seem to know more about him than I do," she said, flip-pantly. "You just distress yourself about nothing. Because we don't come up to your standard, or fulfil that story-book ideal of yours."

She went out of the cottage singing gaily. Una followed her into the garden, but no further, as Moya went on to the shore. Moya never used to be flippant, thought Una, perplexedly. She used to be gay, the life of the family, but not flippant, unfeeling.

"Oh, dear, I wish things were different," thought Una, anxiously. But in what way she wanted them to be different she did not know. There was a lack somewhere, she only realized that—something lacking in Moya's and Barry's relationship, and something like a rising storm in the home atmosphere that so little a time back was bright with the spirit of holiday.

AN ORIENTAL GARDEN.

In the mid. of a broad expanse of barren ground lies the flat-topped Persian city of Shiraz, which was once so wonderful a sight as to cause the visitor to cry, "God is great!" and by the fascination and beauty to make him forget forever his native land.

The Shiraz of the present is still fascinating, though its power over the travellers' memory has waned. The stranger may hurry through the narrow streets lined with square houses, but on the outskirts of the city he must linger and dream awhile in the Persian gardens celebrated in many songs by the poets of the land.

Shiraz is proudest of being the home of two of Persia's noblest poets, Hafiz and Sadi both of whom were enthusiasts over the charms of their native city. The city has changed greatly since their day, succeeding generations still view it through the rose-and-gold light of poet's fancy and still boast of its wonders.

The citizens of Shiraz honor most the man who can quote most fluently and extensively from the poems of Hafiz; yet his grave, in the garden beyond the city, is neglected and desolate. A high brick wall encircles the garden, within the tomb of the poet is marked by a pavilion and a marble slab, on which is carved one of his verses. All about the beloved singer lie his followers and admirers, their graves leaded by stones which peep through rank grass.

The gardens of Shiraz have such names as "Garden of Heart's Desire," "Garden of the Envy of Heaven," and "Garden that Displays the World"—names which they do not always live up to in appearance, because of their owners' dreamy contentment in letting well enough alone. Yet even the uncared-for gardens are deliberately beautiful. Tiny streams wind through them, cypress and elm trees shade them pleasantly, mosses clamber riotously over old walls and a shabbily ornate summer house peeps from among the trees.

TIME TO GO.
 (London Blighty.)

He had held forth for so long on the subject of his adventures that the entire smoking-room was distinctly bored. Finally he reached India.

"It was there that I first saw a man-eater tiger," he announced, boastfully. "Pooh! that's nothing," said a middle-looking little man, edging towards the door. "I once saw a man-eating rabbit!" And he sauntered gracefully out.

THIS WOMAN'S RECOVERY

Shows Remarkable Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Chesley, Ont.—"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had terrible pains in my sides and was not regular. Finally I got so weak I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest half way up the steps. I tried two doctors but they did me no good. I saw your medicine advertised in the newspapers and thought I would give it a trial. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and was restored to health. I am married, am the mother of two children, and do all my household work, milk eight cows, and do a hired man's work and enjoy the best of health. I also found Vegetable Compound a great help for my weak back before my babies were born. I recommend it to all my friends who are in need of medicine, and you may print this letter if you wish."

Mrs. HENRY JANKO, R. R. No. 4, Chesley, Ontario.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.
